The flame was oon subdued; but about ten o'clock at night a fence which runs up to the rear of the house and part of which forms one wall of a cooking shed, was found to be on fire. The second outbreak caused alarm, and the Chief Constable was sent for. He discovered some traces of coal oil, and it was evident from appearan that cotton, or some such material had been saturated with coal oil, and having peen ignited had been placed against the fence with the intention, no doubt, of consuming the place. The reason that she was thus attacked was that she had the monstrods impudence to be found in the company of a man against whom the senior proprietor of the Mercury holds an editorial spite!"

Well, well! it is quite evident that our wrathy contemporary has "got his back up," and it is very doubtful whether he will be able to get it down again, even with the assistance of the lion-hearted bearer of the terrible surveyor's pike. If to designate his betrothed "young and amiable" is an insult, what then would he wish us to call her? A more delicate allusion to the lady could not possibly be made. The truth is, that the item took so well, and a vast amount of fun being poked at the "hero of unfought battles," for his narrow and contracted ideas of courtesy and gentlemanly demeanor, he felt it necessary to work himself into a towering passion previous to his buckling on matrimonial harness. Had he been a MAN instead of a brailed of the coal trade, if not to its actuation to testode at any interest facts. Arrangements have entire static "Arrangements have enterprise is high coal state and provise static "Arrangements have entire static "Arrangements have entire static "Arrangementshave entire static "Arrangements have entire static "Arrangements on matrimonial harness. Had he been a MAN instead of a brainless BRAGGART the objectionable item would never have been taken by him as an insult. However, in this case, as in many others, he has by his own acts shown that he is a creature almost unworthy of notice. His ideas of feminine sensitiveness and gentlemanly demeanor must have undergone considerable change since laying down the whip and currycomb at Nashville, when he was wont to boast of his daring exploit in having, with superhuman courage and presence of mind, discharged the contents of a loaded six-shooter into a room occupied by a number of defenceless females! for which manly act he yet expects to receive a pension, and leather medal with several clasps. In common with him, we are fearfully agitated over the prospect of the young lady leaving town by the first conveyance (probably the Traction train for the north), but it must be borne in mind that it was not on account of said item, and when she does return we shall duly chronicle the event. When we mention the name of the "fair sex" (God bless them) in the same breath with that of hogs, as he has done, then the hero of Wyndham street may begin to doubt our loyalty to them. We have yet to learn that the lady in question was ever roticed by us in his company, and themere fact of association with a son of Mars who has traversed the wide world from Mount Forest to Chattanooga and back again as far as Guelph, would not lower her in our estimation. We have often spoken of this great medicine in terms of very high praise, and we have as often felt that all we crudt say in its favor would not do it full justice. It is one of those medicines of which we san speak-and speak decisively—from experience; for we have repeatedly taken it, and invariably with the best results and the greatest satisfaction. We always keep it on hand, ready for an emergepcy, and we regard it not only as one of the very-best and most reliable of medicines in use for various, ills, but as one of the cheapsetsles. As a remedy for stom sch complisints, such as dysentery, diarrhosake, the Pain Killer is without doubt unserpassed, and everywhere most deservedly in demand. One, two, or three doses, of a tes, spoonful cach, in a wine glass of milk and water, with a little sugar, have repeatedly, within our knowledge, effectually oured serious trouble of this kind. Judgment should undoubtedly be used in not checking certain stages of diarrhes too suddenly; but taken at the proper time, the Pain Killer is taken at the proper time, the Pain Killer will act like a charm, and frequently cures when nothing else will.—Provinces & ADVERTISES. These amounts cannot, however, be considered as approaching to the possible productiveness of these mines in the future. The total 'rea of the gold regoin may be estimated at about 7,000, square, miles, and the proclaimed districts do not yet reach a twentieth part of this district. of gold found is rock veins, as compared, with alluvial washings derived from their waste—a mere accident of the deposits or of the mode of exploration. It is probable that the Nova Scotta deposits are strictly a continuation of those which run along the Appalachian alope as far as Alabama, and which may throughout, as in Canada and the Ural Mountains, occur in altered members of the Silurian series. It is to be anticipated that the connection with the auriferous deposits of the U.S. may soon be effected by the discovery of gold in the metamorphic districts of New Brunswick. The quartz veins of Nova Scotta are remarkably rich in gold; and, as already stated, there is no reason to believe that they will be found to diminish in productiveness in following them downward. There is little room to doubt that gold will be found throughout the coast metamorphic district of Nova Scotta, more ear cally the slaty rocks of southern Grey, forough, Halfax, and Lueneburgh; and the northern parts of Queens, Shelburne, and Yarmouth may be expected to be auriferous.

The Cattle Plague.

We have already referred to the cattle ague, which is raging with terrible tality in Illinois. The disease is call-Spanish fever, and is said to be co ed from Texan droves, all the anialls of which are healthy. The Chica-opsishers lately sent Prof. Gamgee, of ondon, who is now in the United States of investigate the cattle disease stong the London, who is now in the to investigate the cattle disease stong the track of the cattle coming from Texas, and he has reported that it belongs solely to the exercta of the Texan animals 2 "49.063 "50.27" which themselves are all found to be dealthy. The influence comes, he says, from certain young succulent plants eaten in Texas by the cows, with no perceptible evil results to their health. It is a curious consideration that these healthy cows should thus give the disconnection of the Texan animals 2 "49.063 "54.33 to 49.00 "4 that the diseased Illinois animals should be undiseased in milk and flesh. For, the Professor says, their runting calves are healthy; and he also says the meat of those sick cows is wholesome and free from disease, and he would have no scruple to eat it himself.

On Tuesday of last week thirty-three head of Illinois cattle, all steers, were purchased in Albany and shipped to Providence by rail. Some of them show-ed symptoms of sickness on the road. They were placed in a pasture at Provience, and eleven of them were immediately after killed and dressed. The dayfollowing, one of the animals was found sick and killed. On Saturday and Sunday six died in the pasture. On Sunday morning the account of the drove of thirty-three cattle stood as follows: eleven had been killed and dressed, and one had been killed because of being diseased and six had died in the pastu field, leaving fifteen still living. Of the latter, every one showed symptoms of disease, and some of them appeared to be in the last stage of the disorder, and it Union eemed probable that they would die in a short time. All these cattle were raised in Illinois, none coming from Texas, which shows that the disease has taken firm root in that State. Of the arrivals in New York, the same immunity of Texas cattle from the disease was observed while some hundreds of those raised in Illinois were affected.

'A committee of learned professor paid a visit to the abattoirs of Communi paw market a short time since, and after a thorough inspection of the sick and dead animals there, they describe the condition of the beasts during the continuance of the disease, and their appearance after death as follows: "The animal alive shows a certain degree of lassitude, a dull oye, and is generally weak and poor. On examination of its intestines, the kidney showed a fatty condition, while some portions of it presented a less solid condition than natural, and the exterior was of a mottled appearance. The main intestine was excoriated, and showed numerous black spots, presenting the appearance of having been burned with caustic. The urine was bloody. All the cattle coming to Communipaw in this condition are from Illinos, but they have been previously pastured with Texan cattle, in which alone the disease, if any exists, is found. The Texan cattle, however, are known to be infected with tioks, a species of cattle lice of an enormous size which would alone account for several of the symptoms of plague, so called—that, is, poorness of condition the excoriation of the stomeh produced by the animals swallowed, the color and appearance of the contents of the bladder derived.

The pestilence seems to be spreading and the Boards.of Health are kept busy. In the vicinity of Albany it has made its appearance and is committing fearful woc. Every possible effort is being made to ascertain the true cause of the disease, and to arrest its progress. Within the Metropolitan District of New York there is the greatest activity among the officials. Metropolitan District of New York there is the greatest activity among the officials, and every drove that arrives is inspected. Sixty car loads came in from Illinois on Tuesday and they are said to be perfectly free from the disease. One drover voluntarily slaughtered $8000 worth of infected animals. No one knows what to do, or which way to turn. The disease is not properly understood, and consequently no remedy can be applied with mently no remedy can be applied with

We Canadians have a right to hope, that if the pestilence be peculiar to the States our Government will take such measures as will preyent its spreading beyond their boundaries.

The Drought in Scotland.—Scotland is under the influence of one of the most searching droughts that has been experienced within the memory of middle aged men. We do not suppose that heavy land has been more rent since 1826. The pastures are very much embrowned on light coast land and on rocky or gravelly soils in the interior of the country, oats are stinted, and green crops are making no progress. Water is scarce on many farms where such a want is seldom felt. The channels of streams are dry, and, farmers are looking wistfully for rain. Of the crops wheat alone has not suffered during the week. It has had a choice blossoming season, and the earliest is filling with as sound an ear as we have ever seen. With the exception of deep, rich land, the bulk of straw is much under an average. The oat crop is giving way rapidly on light and also on thin heavy land. The crop in general has run rapidly into ear when it is scarcely covering the ground. There must now be a greater deficiency of straw, and oats in an sarly season are not likely to compensate for stinted growth by all extra produce of grain. The weather has been favorable for hay making. The general crop is light, and there seems to be a sure prospect of another winter of scarce provender for cattle. The reports of the early potatoe crop are the worst we have ever had in the second week of July.—Elinburgh Journal.

A slight pause, during which Gilbert was endeavouring to reconcile the voice and circumstance with his surmise as to the identity of his friend.

Give me your here

Give me your hand, he said, 'and let me who is the friend to whom I may one who who is the friend to whom I may owe my life.

Stay where you are, Master Elio? you must not touch me or seek to know me. You will have it Qent can obtain pardon for you.

'I have been guilty of no orme, and, it have been guilty of no orme, and, the my seem of the my seem would join the erg. I will give them the lie."

'This is reshness.'

'Say rather it is calm resolution. For observe, there is another reason why I should reject this offer to run like a thief from my prison, my escape would attach much blame to Captain Lindsay, under whose charge I have been placed. I will not have suspicion cast upon him, and shame thon mysels ergs. I will not go.'

'Think again—think of the future rousers throwing away; think of the wrong you are doing to those who love you.'

'They are few, and would not like to see me disgraced.'

'I tell you that you will be recalled. Your escape is but to procure time to prove your truth.'

'I will not go the receased designation.

'I will not go, he repeated doggod?

'I will not go, he repeated doggod?

He sprang toward her; but swifter than he, she had withdrawn and closed the door before he could touch her. So sudden indeed was her departure that for an instant Gilbert stood in doubt as to whether or not he had been dreaming all the while. But there was a faint perfume in the chamber which sufficed to cenvince him—that it had been no dream—that he had been offered liberty and he had refused it.

But the friend who had come to him in need? There was only one who could or would do so much, and he blessed her for the act. So he waited quietly for the day of execution.

CHAPTER XXVIII .- IN THE TOILS.

cution.

CHATTER XXVIII.—IN THE TOILS.

Is the night chilly and dark?
The night is chilly but not dark?
The thin grey cloud is spread on light—
It covers but not hides the sky.
The moon is behind and at the full.
And yet she looks both small and dust.
The might is chill, the cloud is give.
Sir Walter Spens was pale, and his eyes glistened with excitement when he removed the mask from his face in the secret chamber in which his lady awaited him.
'You are agitated,' said the wife, regarding him earnestly. 'What was it the stranger sought with you?'
'Nothing—nothing of import.'
She regarded him questioningly.
'Then why are you troubled 'a little while go you left me and your brow was unruffled and your voice steady. You come back to me and your brow is clouded, your voice is noarse, and your words hesitate.'
'Is it so? You are watchful. I forgot to lell you that I must leave you sgain present-y. Perhaps that will account for my—the hange which you observe.'
'But you will not go to-night?'
'Yes, to-night,—within the hour,
'Se scon?'
'It must be. Wherefore, good wife, take comfort and pray for my return.'
'I would that I could field you here; but, since that may not be, I pray heaven speed, you back again.'
'My faith sweet dame, you will learn willow bettimes, he broke out with a short unpleasant laugh.
'Why think you so?'
'You take my going with so much philosophy,'
There was surprise, pair, sud fear in the sophy. There was surprise, pain, and fear in the look which she fixed upon him. His eyes sought the ground uneasily. It is scarce an hour gone, she said quietly, 'since you were chiding me for the weakness which feared your absence, and now-you seem to chide me for having hid the aching of my heart that the thoaght of my unhappiness might not mar you in the work you have to do. The Virgin Mother knows how hard has been the struggle wherewith I've worn the mask which yeals the sore you make in leaving me."

He folded her in his arms and kissed he

He folded her in his arms and kissed her passionately.

'My sooth, I think I grow peevish, wife, and weak as you grow stronger. But we shall mend anon.'

'Wh: was that noise?' she cried starting.
'I heard none.'

'It was like the clank of aumout.'

'My aword perhaps struck the chaik.'

'And my watchtul ears gare it and the significance of an armed force come to arrest you.

fire broke out in the woods in Blenheim, and as the wind blew strong the fire spread from the woods over the fields with destructive rapidity. The buildings on two farms were entirely consumed, and it is supposed that a number of cattle that, were in the bush perished, as they have not been seen since. Hares, foxes and minks forsook their solitude and fled before the roaring flames.

The Braes of Yarrow An Historical Tale of the Sixteenth Century.

A slight pause, during which Gilbert was endeavouring to reconcile the voice and circumstance with his surmise as to the identity of his friehd.

'Give me your hand,' he said, 'and let me know who is the friend to whom I may owe my life.'
'Stay where you are, Master Elliot; you must not touch me or seek to know me. You must leave Scotland until the friends you have at Court can obtain pardon for you.'
'I have been guilty of no crime, and, therefore, need no pardon. Some have called me coward, and were I to fly even from the unjust verdict which condemns me, others would join the cry. I will give them the lie.

would join the cry. I will give them the lie."

'This is rashness."

'Say rather it is calm resolution. For observe, there is another reason why I should reject this offer to run like a thief from my prison, my escape would attach much blame to Captain Lindsay, under whose charge I have been placed. I will not have suspicion cast upon him, and shame upon myself, even for life, which is precious to me now as ever, I will not go."

'Think again—think of the future you are throwing away; think of the wrong you are doing to those who love you."

'They are few, and would not like to see me disgraced.'

'I tell you that you will be recalled. Your escape is but to procure time to prove your truth.'

'I will not go,' he repeated doggedly.

truth.'
'1 will not go,' he repeated doggedly.
Gilbert"—It was a cry of pain.
He sprang toward her; but swifter than he, she had withdrawn and closed the door before he could touch her. So sudden indeed was her departure that for an instant Gilbert stood in doubt as to whether or not he had been dreaming all the while. But there was a faint perfume in the chamber which sufficed to convince him—that it had been no dream—that he had been offered liberty and he had refused it.

-that he had been sheeted.

Fefused it.

But the friend who had come to him in need? There was only one who could or would do so much, and he blessed her for the act. So he waited quietly for the day of execution.

Is the night chilly and dark? The night is chilly but not dark; The thin grey cloud is spread on high—It covers but not hides the sky. The moon is behind and at the full Andyet she looks both small and dull. The night is chill, the cloud is grey.

Andyet she looks both small and duil. The night is chill, the cloud is grey. Sir Walter Spens was pale and his eyes glistened with excitement when he removed the mask from his face in the secret chamber in which his lady awaited him. You are agitated, 'said the wife, regarding him earnestly. What was it the stranger sought with you? Nothing—nothing of import. She regarded him questioningly. Then why are you troubled? a little while ago you left me and your brow was unrufled and your voice steady. You come back to me and your brow is clouded, your voice is hoarse, and your words hesitate. It is it so? You are watchful. I forgot to tell you that I must leave you again presently. Perhaps that will account for my—the change which you observe. 'But you will not go ronight?' Yes, to-night,—within the hour. 'So soon?' It must be. Wherefore, good wife, take comfort and pray for my return.' I would that I could hold you here; but, since that may not be, I pray heaven speed you back again.' 'My faith, sweet dame, you will learn widom betimes,' he broke out with a short unpleasant laugh.' 'Why think you so?' 'You take my going with so much philosophy.' There was surprise, pain, and fear in the sophy.

There was surprise, pain, and fear in the look which she fixed upon him. His eyes sought the ground uneasily.

'It is scarce an, hour gone,' she said quietly, 'since you were chiding me for the weakness which feared your absence, and now-you seem to chide me for having hid the aching of my heart that the thought of my unhappiness might not mar you in the work you have to do. The Virgin Mother knows how hard has been the struggle wherewith I've worn the mask which veils the sore you make in leaving me." make in leaving me."

He forded her in his arms and kissed her

He folded her in his arms and kissed her passionately.

'My sooth, I think I grow peevish, wife, and weak as you grow stronger. But we shall mend anon.'

'Wh twas that noise?' she cried starting.'
'I heard none.'
'It was like the clank of armour.'
'My sword perhaps struck the chair.'
'And my watchful ears gave it all the significance of an armed force come to arrest vol.
