Mr. Edward Sinclair Dead.

A Brief Sketch of this Well Known Bridgetown Lumber- man's Life.

Funeral Sunday Largest Ever Seen In the Province.

Mr. Sinclair is dead. This was the startling news that was passed from one citizen to another last Thursday evening, and cast a gloom of sorrow over the town. For a number of weeks Mr. Sinclair had been ill but it was not generally known that he was suffering from a fatal illness and the intelligence of his death came as a shock to his friends in this town and throughout the province. Beloved by all, he will be greatly missed at his home, on our streets, and in our places of business.

The deceased was born at Douglastown in 1842 and was fifty-nine years of age. He received his business training in the office of Messrs. Gilmour Rankin & Co., after which he entered the employ of Hon. Peter Mitchell, at that time a lumber merchant and ship-builder. Mr. Sinclair subsequently started in business for himself, and for many years he was one of the most extensive lumber merchants on the North Shore.

Deceased left three sons and three daughters. The sons are William, E. Hubert, of the second contingent, Dr. O. W., of Eureka. The daughters are Mrs. (Dr.) Ferguson, Moncton, and Misses Flossie and Helen unmarried.

Mr. Sinclair was a self-made man, starting from the bottom rung of the long ladder of fame he succeeded by untiring industry and shrewd business principles in reaching a place very near the top. Many are the stories of his early struggles against adversity and his manly struggles to overcome his difficulties. During his lifetime he built a number of vessels but was unfortunate in these enterprises as two fine schooners were lost, one on its maiden voyage. After these reverses he applied himself exclusively to his extensive lumbering business and succeeded in laying by a goodly share of this world's goods. The property at Bridgetown is one of the most valuable in the county.

THE FUNERAL

Never in the history of Northumberland has its citizens done such honor to one of its departed sons. From noon until the hour of the funeral, teams congregated from all parts at the bridge and the roads leading to residence of the deceased and hundreds walked thither. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. Wm. Aitken assisted by Rev. T. G. Johnston. At 3 o'clock the procession started headed by the C. M. B. A. Band which played in an expressive manner the beautiful funeral march in Saul. A carriage bearing the floral tributes proceeded the hearse.

The pall bearers were P. B. Wheeler, J. C. Miller, Robt. Ritchie, E. Hutchison, Geo. Watt, John Ferguson.

The hearse bearing the casket was filled with bouquets of flowers.

The mourners were John Sinclair, Wm. Sinclair, Dr. O. W. Sinclair, E. H. Sinclair, C. E. Fish, Jas. O. Fish, John Matheson, John Cassidy and others, and then followed carriages to the number of three hundred or more making the procession about three and a half miles in length.

At the residence of Mr. J. O. Fish the Masons of Northumberland to the number of sixty, headed by the Newcastle Orange Band joined the procession, taking the land and the Orange band played the procession to the grave, playing the "Dead March in Saul". It was a solemn and touching spectacle and thousands of citizens lined the streets with bowed heads and tears were seen on many faces as the cortege passed. The spectators were orderly and were for the most part adorned in black.

At the grave the Rev. Mr. Aitken offered prayer then the Masons held their solemn and impressive burial service.

Among the floral tributes were: Masonic Emblem, Northumberland Lodge.

Bank of flowers with "Father" from children.

Anchor and cable from Miramichi Pilots.

Anchor from D. Pottinger, Moncton, N. B.

Cross from M. A. Finn, St. John.

Wreath from Mr. McSweeney, Moncton.

Anchor from John Ferguson, Newcastle.

Wreath from Miss McSweeney, Moncton.

Wreath from J. J. McGalligan.

And a number of potted plants, wreaths and bouquets.

The sorrow and regret at Mr. Sinclair's early death is universal and his grief-stricken family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

(From the "World")

Mr. Sinclair was one of the most impulsively good hearted and systematically generous of mankind. He studied, planned and sought for opportunities of doing kind and helpful things. He was always unostentatiously giving to the poor, and making presents to his friends. He would fill his pockets with presents, at Christmas and other holiday times, and keep a lookout for persons on whom he could bestow them. It was one of the greatest pleasures of his life to make presents, and he never returned from a visit abroad without bringing home something to be given away. He called at our office once, on his return from New York with a yachtsman's knife, containing a marlin spike at one end, which he had bought for the editor. He had seen it in a shop, had thought it would be an appropriate present, and had brought it back to the Miramichi. This act was characteristic of him; he was always doing such things.

But his generosity was not confined to gifts to his friends and assistance to the poor. Some of his generous acts were much more out of common. He, for instance, once spent $1000 on the professional education of a young man who wanted to become a physician but was without means to continue his studies. The youth was no relation to him, and he was under no obligation whatever to assist him. "What are you doing here?" he asked a lad whom he found at work in a Newcastle shop one day; "why have you left school?" "I have graduated at school," replied the lad, "and cannot go to college as I hoped, because my father is not able to send me; so I have gone to work here." "Get home with you, pack yourself off to college, and I will pay all your expenses," cried Mr. Sinclair. The lad obeyed, and is now studying for the Roman Catholic priesthood. Mr. Sinclair's generosity was free from sectarianism or race prejudice. We mention these things as mere samples of what Mr. Sinclair was in the habit of doing. Everybody remembers how he took a thousand dollar banknote from his pocket, after he had read THE WORLD's article on "The Pilots" Christmas, and sent it to the men whose earnings had been withheld.

It is unnecessary to say that he was the most hospitable of men. His house, and all the cellar and larder contained, were always at the service of anybody and everybody who called to see him. There were no metes and bounds to his hospitality. It overflowed and kept on flowing.

Mr. Sinclair, as a business man, was shrewd, far-sighted and keen, and made money even faster than his generous impulses distributed it. He was a humorist, a bright and interesting talker, and had natural literary gifts that would have gained him a prominent place as a writer if he had devoted himself to authorship.

Mr. Sinclair's death is an immense loss to the social and industrial life of the Miramichi. Active, high-spirited, wide-awake, genial, impulsive, public-spirited, the place he filled must remain vacant. He will be missed and mourned by the poor who he helped, by the friends who loved him, and by the whole people of the Miramichi.

Glasgow's Big Fair.

Greatest International Exhibition Held in Great Britain.

On the 2nd of May, 1901, Glasgow proudly threw open the gates of her international exhibition and bade the world welcome to the greatest show of its kind ever held in the British Empire. The site of the exposition covers 70 acres of ground in beautiful Kelvingrove Park, where the city held such a successful affair of its kind in 1888, yielding its promoters a clean surplus of $250,000 and being visited by 6,000,000 people.

The exhibition is completely international in its character. Space has been taken for exhibits by Russia, France, Austria, Japan, Morocco, Persia, Mexico, Denmark, India, Western Australia, Canada, Queensland, British South Africa and South Australia. Considerable space has been taken by the United States and Germany in the machinery section, but these countries will not be officially represented.

Canada has a special building covering 12,000 square feet, where agricultural products, fruits, manufactures and minerals are exhibited. The main buildings cover an area of 20 acres, six acres of this space being occupied by Industrial hall, which is a very attractive exhibition in itself. Over this building rises a dome 200 feet high and 80 feet in diameter. This dome is reached by stairways and elevators and will be a popular spot from which to secure a view of the entire grounds. Surmounting all is the allegorical figure of "Light," gigantic in size and to be seen for 20 miles at night.

One of the most attractive and valuable features of the great fair is the Fine Arts gallery, a magnificent building of red sandstone. It has the largest collection of paintings from all sources ever exhibited in the country. Among those who have contributed to its loan collection of pictures, sculptures and objects of art and virtue are King Edward and many of the nobility of England and Scotland, and nearly every country with a school of art has sent important contributions. The Fine Art gallery will remain a permanent ornament to the city after the exposition closes in November.

Another great feature will be the music. The sum of $100,000 has been set aside to be spent on it alone. The most celebrated bands of the world have been engaged and will give concerts in the grand concert hall, which is built in the Venetian style and which is one of the largest and finest places of its kind in the world. It is a memorial to the Glasgow exhibition of 1888. Owing to the great display of arts and industry many scientific and other societies will visit the city during the past century. The chief classes are trades, applied arts and handicraft and nursing. From many countries, France in particular, have come interesting specimens of women's work, literary and manual, and women from Denmark and Russia can be seen employed at industries peculiar to those countries.

Connecting Industrial hall with Machinery hall is a covered avenue 900 feet long. The latter building covers an area of five acres and is 500 feet long and 340 feet wide. One of its features is the driving of the exhibits by electric motors wherever the latter are powerful enough. Visitors looking for amusement will find it to their hearts content. There has been erected an Indian theatre, where jugglers, wrestlers, snake charmers, etc., from the far east will perform, and near by will be found "the polar regions," containing a large collection of arctic animals. Daily biograph displays will be given indoors by the British Mutoscope and Biograph Company, and switchbacks, merry go rounds and water shoots are to be seen on every hand.

Glasgow's great exhibition was opened by the Duke and Duchess of Fife and will remain open until November. It is confidently predicted that it will be visited by at least 10,000,000 people, who will represent every country on the face of the globe.

WITH DEATH AT HIS HEELS,

Thrilling Ride of Farmer Boy to Warn People of Advancing Flood.

In the gray of a September morning, 1874, Collins Graves, a New England farmer's boy, started with a gun on his shoulder, for a woodcock thicket. He passed by the dam which held in check the waters of the reservoir belonging to a manufacturing concern. He saw that the water was beginning to trickle over the top of the earth-work and that the water was rising so rapidly that the ordinary sluiceways did not carry it away as they should. He reasoned exactly as did the hero of Reade's tale. He knew that the dam must go, and he knew also something of the horror which would follow its breaking. Graves warned the people near at hand, and then mounting a powerful horse he dashed down the valley to rouse the inhabitants. He had gone at top speed less than a quarter of a mile when the dam broke. From that time on the flood followed him with "death on the first of its hissing waves." He gained on the waters, though at every door he stopped and shrieked a warning. Men, women and children rushed forth and sought safety on the shelving hills. Graves kept on. Like the people in the English "ry, many who heard the cry of the messenger at dawn laughed and said, "It's an old story—the dam has been breaking for years." and then turned back to bed. The sleep of 145 of these knowing ones was a long one. They went to their deaths in the seething waters.

Graves reached the little village of Haydenville, with its single street. He screamed his message to the few who stood sleepy-eyed, at their gates. They realized its import and roused the sleepers. Graves' horse never faltered in his gait from the moment of his mounting. It fell dead before the Haydenville street was passed, crushing its rider's leg. Another horse was at hand. On it the messenger climbed and sped on, with the roar of the waters in his ears. On, on, on, he went, and the miles passed swiftly under the stride of his steed. Behind him the valley was a roaring torrent, while on the hills on either side, looking down on the destruction of their homes, were those whom he had saved. Others all unconscious, were ahead, and the race went on.

And this is the cry that he flung to the wind: "To the hills for your lives! The flood is behind."

For last warning was given, the messenger died, and his body lay beyond where far-reaching meadows unpeopled. There the pent up waters would disperse and lose their crushing force. Graves turned his horse aside and up the hill-side to safety, while the flood tore behind. He had saved a thousand lives, so the people said, but when they came to him to thank him Collins Graves' reason had gone under the awful strain. Time and rest, the healers, restored him. He refused reward, but it came to him afterward in the tribute of the poet John Boyle O'Reilly, who wrote the pulse quickening verses of "The Ride of Collins Graves."

Brother Gardner's Sayings.

When de world calls a man a good feller, it means a pusson who am willin' to lend money widout interest or security.

I once know'd a man so wise dat he predicted de downfall ob an empire, and yet dat verry same man stole chickens and left de feathers flyin' round for de police to foller up.

I'd gib a heap to know what am beyand dis life, but at de same time I recognize de fact dat if I don't hustle round dere will be no bacon fur breakfast.

Ebery man should firmly believe dat de good will be rewarded, but no man should be fool 'nuff to believe dat integrity will rake in a poker pot ag'in three kings.

De world am either cold, cruel and deceitful, or it am full ob truth and sunshine and good people. It all depends on de state ob yo'r stomach and pocketbook.

De only advantage I could ober see in hev'in' a brother-in-law was to hev somebody round who'd trade yo' an old watch fur a pistol without a hammer and come out $2 ahead ob de game.

Accordin' to divine wisdom, ebery pusson was bo'n to carry out a mission on dis earth, and fur dis reason I ain't expressin' no sympathy fur nor kindin' any fault wid de man who bucks up ag'in a faro game and draps his roll. He was probably bo'n to buck.

One has got to take luck as he finds it. On two different occasions I hev found a dollar in de street, and on two others I hev lost a dollar and a half through a hole in my pocket. Dar's heaps ob time to git eben, however, and I ain't worryin'.

We's all got our aspirations, but yo' hev got to libe next door to a man to find out whether he aims to go to de legislature or his aspirations will be satisfied wid borrowin' yo'r jackknife and lyin' about it.

UNWISE LAWS.

The alien labor laws of the United States and Canada are not creditable to either country. They have, comparatively speaking, little effect, but because they exist opportunity is given to create and foster ill-feeling on both sides of the line where the most amicable relations should exist. The St. Croix Courier notes and comments on a recent instance: "The applying of the alien labor law to Mr. MacNamara, landscape gardener, of St. Stephen, at Calais, was a small piece of business. Citizens of Calais in the same line of business as Mr. MacNamara come over to the Canadian side and perform contracts, and no one raises any objection to them. Many of the employees of the Milltown cotton factory make their homes in the United States and go backward and forward to their work without let or hindrance on the part of the Canadian authorities. At other points on the border American citizens also come over to Canada and perform labor without having the alien labor clause applied to them." Fortunately, cases of this kind are rare along the border of New Brunswick, but they occur with unpleasant frequency in the upper provinces. An earnest effort ought to be made by the governments of the two countries to secure some arrangement by which they could not occur at all. With all the enlightenment of the twentieth century it ought to be possible to settle a matter which is so simple and yet is fraught with danger to the peaceful relations of the countries.—Globe.

After all the displays of Anglophobia which have served to enliven the press of the United States in times past to give them to Fourth of July orators, and to win applause for the professional political tail-twister, incidents are constantly occurring which prove that deep down in the hearts of the people there is still an abiding love for, and faith in, the old land. When a citizen of the Republic makes his million his first thought is to seek social recognition for himself, his sons and daughters in Britain. He does not value the culture of Boston, nor care for admission into exclusive aristocracy of New York. He considers himself as good as they are already, and goes to the fountain of honor, and establishes his claims to social distinction by having his womenfolk presented at court in London. The next idea is to become the owner of a country seat, after which the way is open, if he has daughters, for an alliance by marriage with the nobility and so the summit of his ambition is attained. What is true of the social trend of American citizenship towards Britain is also true of the financier, as we see in the case of Mr. J. P. Morgan, Mr. Yorkes and many other millionaires. They seem to feel that no matter how their high standing as moneyed men in America may be, they need the hall mark of the London money market, the endorsement, so to speak, of the Old Lady of Threadneedle street, to stamp their title to financial recognition. The same yearning for acknowledgment in the Old Country is to be seen in the sporting world, when men like Mr. Croker, who cannot hope to aspire to admission into social or financial circles, find scope for their ambition and satisfaction for their longing on the English turf. British journals that have grown pessimistic over the "Americanization of England" should consider the other side and find out what there may be in the Anglicization of America. If the social, financial and sporting currents of life in the two nations tend to converge into one broad stream in London, the fact should be more a matter of congratulation than of apprehension, because the effect must be to bring the people of both into closer relationship, lessen the causes for misunderstanding, render more remote the chances of quarrel and unite them in the onward peaceful march of civilization. Already British manufacturers and merchants are awakening to the true character of American enterprise and bracing themselves to meet a competition, which is not without the better element of co-operation, and which, instead of threatening destruction, really points the way to greater achievement and higher success. American capital seeking investment in Britain is the brilliant complement which American business sagacity pays to British honor and stability; as such it should be graciously accepted.—Witness.

THE KELLY MORTGAGE CASE AGAIN.

Instead of paying Mr. Kelly the amount of the mortgage he holds on the Muirhead property it purchased, although a Judge of the Supreme Court has decided that it purchased the property subject to the mortgage, the Royal Bank of Canada is dragging the poor man into an equity suit, using the names of third parties for the purpose, and setting up on their alleged behalf the claim that they are innocent holders. This is mighty mean business for a great banking corporation. The bank would not have obtained the privilege of using the name of the School Board if Mr. Tweedie had not, in his offensively domineering way, forbidden his appointees on the body to grant it. His bullying had the effect of causing Chairman Snowball and other members to yield to the request of the bank. It is, however, doubtful if this consent was legally given. A special meeting was held, notice of which was not, we are informed and believe, given to all the members, and only five of the trustees were present. Two of those voted for a motion to authorize the use of the School Board's name, and the Chairman declared the motion carried. The bank's attorney, on the strength of this, has filed a bill, in the name of the School Board, setting forth that the trustees, after having innocently purchased the land and erected a costly building, desire to be protected by the honorable court from eviction. The bank is trying to escape its liability under Judge McLeod's decision by using the names of third parties and pleading that these persons bought the land without having been notified of the mortgage on it. A private individual, with self-respect and a reputation for honesty and fair dealing, to maintain, could not act in this way, but a corporation, without body to be kicked or soul to be damned, has no scruple in doing so. Judge McLeod has spoken very emphatically, and it remains to be seen what the other occupants of the bench will say. But costs are accumulating all the time, and Mr. Kelly is only one poor man against a rich corporation. As a matter of cold fact, as opposed to the legal fictions of the bill in equity, the School Trustees, Mr. Creighton, and Mr. W. B. Snowball, whose names are used as plaintiffs, are not in the least concerned about Mr. Kelly's suit, nor interested in the amount of one cent in it, as they hold their lands under a special warranty from the Royal Bank of Canada. The bank is the only one interested and it is putting up all the fight.—World.

The Ministerial Session of District will meet on the day preceding at 4 p. m.

A Lynching Bee.

ALTURA, CAL., May 31.—Calvin Hall and his three sons, Frank, Jim and Martin Hall, Dan V. Vantis, who been stealing horses near here for years, were arrested yesterday and were kept under guard by three officers. A mob of forty masked men took them at 2 o'clock this morning and hung them in a bridge near Look Out. The officers were overpowered and compelled to help. The mob dispersed within five minutes. The bodies were still hanging at 10 a. m. Sheriff Street and District Attorney Bonny have gone to the scene of the hanging. Look Out, the scene of the lynching is in the Hot Springs valley on Pitt River, 25 miles from Alturas, the county seat of Modoc county. There is no telegraphic communication with the valley, and the news of lynching was brought to Alturas by a courier. Particulars are very meagre. The residents of Hot Springs valley are nearly all cattle raisers in Modoc county.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Regular meeting Held Last Wednesday.

AN ENGINEER ENGAGED.

Resignation of Board of Health Accepted, Other Business.

The regular meeting of the Newcastle Town Council was held in the Council chamber last Wednesday evening. There were present:—The Mayor and Aldermen Ritchie, Hickson, Hennessy, Williston, Lounsbury, Stable, Phinney and Pedolin.

A communication from Willis Chipman, Civil engineer was read and the clerk instructed to write him and accept his offer to come to Newcastle during week commencing June 2nd.

Benj. Reid was appointed a lumber surveyor.

A number of accounts were passed. The Park and Fire Committees were instructed to buy a quantity of new supplies for the fire company.

The resignation of the Board of Health was accepted.

A by-law relating to dogs and dog taxes was passed.

The town clerk was given a vacation of two weeks commencing June 4th.

Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the council was held Friday night.

The Mayor and Ald. Hickson, Hennessy, Williston, Stables and Phinney were present.

The following resolution was passed:—That in view of the fact that the late Mr. R. Sinclair was at one time a member of the Newcastle Town Council.

It is resolved that the Mayor and Council attend the funeral on Sunday next as an official body.

The Council adjourned after which the following address and a handsome silver tea set was presented to the clerk:—

ADDRESS.

To R. T. D. Aitken, Town Clerk, Town of Newcastle.

Dear Sir,

It has come to our notice that you are about to take unto yourself a partner in life in the near future, you will be but following in the footsteps of wise men of all ages in such a course and carrying out that great injunction, "That it is not good for man to live alone."

We have to congratulate you on the choice you are making and trust it will rebound as we know it will to the increasing happiness of your lives.

As an officer of the Town Council you have always been courteous and obliging and displayed a willingness to discharge the duties devolving upon you.

As a mark of respect and appreciation we ask your acceptance of this tea set as a small token of our best wishes for a long life and future happiness in the union in which you are to play such an important and responsible part.

In behalf of the members of the Town Council of the Town of Newcastle.

D. MORRISON, Mayor.

Dated at Newcastle the 31st May, 1901.

OVER THE WIRES.

Fire at Buctouche.

BUCTOUCHE, N. B., May 31.—What proved to be a serious fire broke out about three o'clock this morning in Gratia's warehouse. As soon as the alarm sounded people hurried to the scene and worked hard to stop its progress, but were unsuccessful until the warehouse and the two adjoining buildings were destroyed. One of these was owned and occupied by W. D. Cormier as a general store and dwelling. Mr. Cormier also owned the other, which was occupied by S. Leblanc, a tailor also a watchmaker, the dwelling being unoccupied. A commercial traveller named McLeod, of Amherst, lost all his samples, which were in the warehouse.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Irving's new hand engine did good work in subduing the flames. Fortunately there was no wind, or the whole town might have suffered. Loss estimated at $5,000; insurance unknown.

Borne and British.

LONDON, May 31.—On the anniversary of Lord Roberts' entry into Johannesburg comes the news of severe fighting and heavy losses within forty miles of the gold reef city.

The battle at Vladfontein, on the Durban-Johannesburg railroad, reported by Lord Kitchener to-day, is the most serious engagement since General Clement's reverse at Magaliesburg. The garrison of Vladfontein, apparently large, composed of Yeomanry, had 174 men put out of action. That their assailants came to close quarters and suffered heavily is shown by the number of dead left on the field.

Lord Kitchener's dispatch to the War office is as follows:

PATROIA, May 31.—General Dicksen's force at Vladfontein was attacked yesterday by Delarey's forces, and there was severe fighting. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving 35 dead. I regret that our casualties also were severe.

A Nova Scotia Suicide.

AMHERST, N. S., May 31.—Uriah Johnson, an elderly farmer and merchant at Port Philip, on the Northport and Pughwash road, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging himself by means of a skate strap tied to a bedpost in his room.

After adjusting the strap to his neck he had evidently sat down and strangled himself to death, as he was in that position, with his back against the bedpost, when found, life being extinct. He had been in a very melancholy condition for some time, and of late his mental condition bordered on insanity. He leaves a widow and six children.

Dr. Dakin of Pughwash held an inquest, at which the verdict was that the deceased committed suicide by strangling himself.

Town Wiped out by fire.

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 2.—The little town of Jasper, county seat of Jasper county, was entirely wiped out by fire to-day. Seventeen houses, including every business house in the place, and a number of residences were destroyed.

Previous to the fire the post office safe and the safe of the county treasurer were found to have been blown open and rifled.

The Country.

An Epitome of Events Gathered by ADVOCATE REPORTERS

We would like to have good news from the country. In Whiteville, Scotland, and Douglas, Scotland, the people who are in the country are in a state of excitement. They are in a state of excitement.

WHITEVILLE.

We are glad to welcome home our boys from the drive. Although they like stream-driving they seem to enjoy getting home again.

The travelling doctors who have spent quite a while in Redbank, passed through our settlement but found no resting place therein.

Mr. Jno. and Wm. Hare are engaged quarrying stone at Shealy Cove for the new Presbyterian Church at Redbank.

Mr. David Mutch has returned from the States on a visit to his father's home in the Allison settlement.

Bass and Shad fishing is going on steadily, and a dozen bark canoes may be seen floating over the river at any time.

Mrs. Frank Hare and children are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hare, until their new home in Newcastle is finished.

Capt. Benj. Forsythe of the steamer Sarcle paid a visit to his home last week.

LOWER DERBY.

Dear Editor:—

Allow me a small space in your valuable paper.

Having bought one of the Dundas knitting machines from James Park of Redbank, I wish to let the public know of its merits. It is easy to work and the work that it does is far better than any hand knitting, and it is in the reach of all as far as price is concerned. I would not part with it for $50 which is nearly four times the price. I have had all kinds of machinery on my farm but none is so highly prized as the knitting machine. Mr. Park is a general agent and an expert knitter himself and takes great interest in his patrons and can supply any part that may be wanted.

Thanking you Dear Sir for the space I have occupied in your valuable journal. I remain

Yours truly
JOHN HOLLIRAN.

TABUSINTAC.

TABUSINTAC, May 30.—As summer has come once more with green fields and sunny air, I am sending a few items of general interest from Tabusintac hoping it may find space in the columns of your paper.

We are having delightful May weather, and the farmers are committing their seed to the earth, hoping for a bountiful harvest.

Times are rather dull just now, as quite a large number of our young men have gone lobster fishing. Some of the most fortunate are able to come home on Saturday evening to lighten the sad hearts of several of the young ladies, for the end of June comes quickly, with no more opportunities of Saturday evening calls.

Miss Olive Jardine and Miss Maggie Stymist spent Friday and Saturday with friends on the beach.

Miss Annie Simpson spent the 24th in Chatham.

Mr. Hiram Fayle of Bangor, Me., is visiting friends here. We regret to learn that he is in poor health, but hope he may speedily recover.

Mr. Wm. Smith, the engineer in Mr. J. Murphy's shingle mill, spent Saturday night and Sunday at the Point.

Mr. Donald McEachern paid Tabusintac a flying visit on Friday evening, looking hale and hearty.

Mr. James Lee is busily engaged in planting a large crop of beans, and we hear he is contemplating the lands of matrimony in the near future.

One of our gentlemen friends visits Segue frequently, using four wheels, this summer, instead of two as formerly. [The Methodist church is undergoing repairs, and the minister, Mr. Curtis, is expected from Newfoundland on the 8th of June.—World.

BATHURST.

His Lordship Bishop Barry, has gone to Chatham to be absent a few days.

Mr. W. A. Craig, Manager of the Dalhousie branch of the Royal Bank of Canada visited town during the week.

Mr. H. Cochran of Moncton, spent the holiday here.

Mr. Donald Hachey, accompanied by his little daughter Miss Eucharis, is spending a few days in Chatham.

Her friends are glad to learn that Mrs. S. Williamson has completely recovered from her recent illness.

Mrs. Casey and children and Mr. Mendle and her children of Boston, are visiting their mother, Mrs. P. N. Melvin. Their friends here are pleased that their intention is to spend the summer in Bathurst.

Mrs. J. J. S. Hachey, has returned from a visit to Chatham.

Another competent clerk, has been added to the staff of Messrs. W. J. Kent & Co., in the person of Mr. Miles of Fredericton.

The eldest son of Mr. Duncan Patterson met with a painful accident last week. The young man was returning from an excursion to Caraquet. At one of the stations along the line, attempting to jump from the train while it was in motion, he fell between the cars, and had his foot so badly crushed, that amputation was found necessary. This operation was performed by Drs. G. M. and G. Duncan. The friends of young Wm. Patterson are anxious in their expressions of sympathy at this accident and in their hopes for his speedy recovery.—Events.

MR. GIBSON UNSEATED.

Personal Charges Dropped—Promises of Future Good Conduct Signed by Politicians.

FREDERICTON, June 3.—The court for the trial of the York election petition convened at eleven o'clock this forenoon, Chief Justice Tuck and Judge Hanning presiding. Messrs. O. S. Crockett and H. F. McLeod appeared for the petitioner and Mr. A. J. Gregory for respondent. After the reading of the petition and the proof of some preliminaries, Mr. Gregory, in behalf of the respondent, admitted that petitioner could prove corrupt practices at election by agents and others acting in behalf of the respondent, though without his actual knowledge and consent, and he admitted that on polling day dinners were given and provided by agents and other persons in behalf of respondent, though without his knowledge at many of such voters having voted or being about to vote, and that some of the voters were hired by agents and other persons in behalf of respondent, though without his knowledge to convey voters to and from the polls, and that these acts were corrupt within the meaning of the Dominion Elections Act, and sufficiently prevailed to warrant the court in declaring the election void and the seat vacated. Upon these admissions the judges declared accordingly.

Mr. Crockett, asked by the Chief Justice if he proposed to press the petition further, stated that the petitioner would offer no evidence in reference to the personal charges or in support of the claim of the seat.

The court having declared the election void and the seat vacated, thereupon adjourned sine die.

The trial did not last more than half an hour. A large number of spectators were present, but the majority of those who had been subpoenaed as witnesses did not put in an appearance in consequence of the imputation that the matters were to be admitted. That the matter stopped with the vacating of the seat as above described is the result of an agreement entered into between the parties a few days ago, by which Dr. McLeod consented not to press the matter further, in consideration of a written pledge given to him by leading representatives of both parties that they would refrain from all corrupt and illegal practices in all further elections in the constituency, and that they would use their utmost influence to prevent the use of such methods by anyone in behalf of their respective parties. This pledge is signed by Fred P. Thompson, M. P. P., W. T. Whitehead, M. P. P., Willard Kitchen, E. B.

SERIOUS ARMY OF TROOPS.

Tian Tsai, June 3.—There was a serious affray yesterday between international troops. Some British Fusiliers who were acting as police here and preventing French soldiers from house-breaking, were attacked with bayonets and bricks. The Fusiliers responded by firing into the air. This brought a number of Germans to the aid of the Frenchmen. They numbered together 200 men. Five Fusiliers fired again, this time killing a Frenchman and wounding three others. In subsequent fighting four Fusiliers, five Germans and one Japanese were wounded. The arrival of a German officer and a strong guard ended the fray.

Paris, June 4.—The Figaro, which breathes a sign of relief at the departure of Count von Waldersee from Peking, says: "The long Chinese nightmare seems to be coming to an end. The marvelous concert of the powers was maintained to the last. It is a miracle. For a year French, British, German, Russian and American troops have been able to continue a campaign without turning their arms against each other. It is a triumph for civilization; but it is mainly due to the intimacy of France and Russia against which united force no selfishness dared to attempt to prevail."

Bold Burglary.

Pendragon, K. Co., June 2.—The post office in Freeze Bros' store here was broken into this morning between 6 and 7 o'clock. Entrance was effected by removing a large pane of glass. Two young men who arrived in the village on Saturday night from the direction of Anagnone were suspected and this morning several parties went out in different directions to round them up. They were captured by a party consisting of Samuel Morton, Fred Morton, John Preece, Irvine White and others on the I. C. R. railway track near Dunsmuir shortly after dinner. The men gave their names as Watson and Walsh, belonging to Chatham, N. B.

They obtained little booty from the post office, a cheap watch being the principal thing stolen. They, however, tore open a large number of letters evidently expecting to find some money, but so far as known obtained nothing.

They, however, took a quantity of goods from the store of Freeze Bros., including clothing and boots. The two prisoners are now locked up in Samuel Morton's and will be removed to Sussex for preliminary trial tomorrow.

The P. O. inspector, Dr. Colter, at St. John, has been notified of the robbery.

Second Cousin Dies, and the Man Next Door Plays the Fiddle

Mr. Bowser's face expressed such gloom as he entered the hall the other evening that Mrs. Bowser hesitated to inquire whether his business had all gone to smash or the doctor had told him that one of his lungs was missing.

She put the question, however, and in a voice scarcely above a whisper and preceded and followed by long drawn sighs he replied:

"Two hours ago I received news of the death of Hiram Gordon."

"And who on earth is Hiram Gordon?" she inquired, after vainly trying to recall the name.

"My second cousin, out in Nebraska. Yes, poor Hiram has passed away from earth, and his troubles are over."

Mrs. Bowser had no remembrance of any second cousin, and she was sure that Mr. Bowser had held no correspondence with any for years and years. Besides, he was not the man to let the death of a distant relative pull him down to any extent.

She wanted to say so, but it suddenly occurred to her that this was one of Mr. Bowser's freaks. As they sat down to dinner she began to chat of the events of the day to chase away his sorrow, but he looked at her reprovingly, and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, this hilarity is altogether out of place under the circumstances, and you ought to have sense enough to realize it."

"I am not hilarious," she replied, "but I do not see why the death of a second cousin whom you have not seen for 20 years should plunge our house into the depths of gloom."

"If you do not, I do, and you will greatly oblige me by keeping your levity for some other occasion."

He ate very sparingly and signed frequently, and he forgot to say that the steak was overdone and that there were lumps in the mashed potatoes. As they adjourned to the sitting room he sank into a chair with a whispered groan and said to himself:

"Poor Hiram! Poor Hiram! And yet he is better off."

"Now, then," answered Mrs. Bowser, with bustling voice, "I want to know who this Hiram Gordon was. Was he one of your distant relatives who was always trying to borrow $5 or $10?"

She meant to arouse Mr. Bowser, and she accomplished her purpose. His face flushed up, and he turned on her with:

"Is that the way to speak of a person who has just been laid to rest? Woman, you seem to be heartless!"

"But I am not. It seems that you had a second cousin named Hiram Gordon. Years and years ago he moved to the west. You never wrote to each other, and I never heard you mention his name. I don't believe you had thought of him for five years when you got news of his death. And what is his death to us? I don't say we should rejoice, but I don't see why we should weep."

"No, of course you don't. My sorrows are not your sorrows."

"But why do you sorrow?"

"Woman," shouted Mr. Bowser as he sprang up and gave the family cat a scare, "I sorrow because I have the heart of a child with the body of a man! When we were babies together, Hiram Gordon and I occupied the same cradle. In childhood we played horse together. He had the same tender heart I have got. As a boy he would go a mile out of his way rather than walk on a sleeping hog. True, we drifted apart and lost sight of each other for a score of years, but we always carried a soft spot in our hearts for each other. A person with the heart of a hyena cannot understand this, but there are others who would even grieve with me. Poor Hiram!"

Mr. Bowser sat down with a great jar, and sighed and shook his head, and Mrs. Bowser thought it policy to maintain silence. The cat came back and tried to look solemn, and for five minutes the house seemed to be deserted.

Then came a sound that brought Mr. Bowser to his feet as if he had been thrown up by a springboard, and he raised an arm and hoarsely whispered:

"By thunder, but what do you call that?"

It was the strains of a fiddle next door. It squeaked and wailed and squawked as it was being tuned up to the key of G, and then started off on the air of "Buffalo Gals" like a young colt galloping across its pasture.

"By John but think of it!" gasped Mr. Bowser, as his eyes began to bulge out. "My second cousin dies out in Nebraska, and I scarcely get word of it and sit down to grieve when a human hyena next door starts in to work a jig tune out of his old fiddle!"

"But our grief is our own," replied Mrs. Bowser. "We can't expect nor do we ask the world to grieve with us."

"I know that, don't I? But the world has no right to play a blamed old fiddle under our nose when we are feeling as we do tonight. That noise has got to stop!"

"I think if we go up stairs we shall not hear it."

We'll neither go up stairs nor down cellar, but stay right here, and that man will either stop that fiddle or I'll stop his wind! By the great horn spoon, but I didn't believe that such heartlessness could exist in this world! Just hear it will you?"

But she wouldn't go on such an errand as that. Please don't let such a little thing disturb you. He may not play five minutes longer.

You bet he won't, exclaimed Mr. Bowser, as he started down the hall. I'll go over there and see that he doesn't. I might stand the yawling of cats or the wailing of a hand organ, but when a man breaks in on my grief with the fiddle it is going too far.

Mrs. Bowser begged and pleaded but he was firm. He was so firm that he didn't wait for his hat. He passed outdoors and through the gates and rang the bell of the next house, and it was the man of the fiddle who answered his ring.

I want this riot stopped!" said Mr. Bowser, with his usual promptness.

What riot? asked the wondering neighbor.

You are playing on a fiddle.

Yes, but I am in my own house. I think you live next door, don't you, and your name is Bowser?

Exactly, and while I am grieving tonight over the death of my second cousin in Nebraska you are sawing away on a blamed old fiddle. It must be stopped!

O, it must! We'll see about that. What is your second cousin to me? How dare you come here and say I must do this or that.

Will you stop this squawking or not? demanded Mr. Bowser.

No, I won't, and you'd better get back home! I want no old hickies telling me what I must or must not do.

Sir, my second cousin out in Nebraska—

Durn your second cousin out in Nebraska and you, too!

Then Mr. Bowser grabbed both man and fiddle. From her own door Mrs. Bowser saw them clinch and struggle and roll down the steps and over the grass, and the cat looked on and said to herself that it was the prettiest scrap that she had seen for a year.

At the end of five minutes Mr. Bowser let go and returned home. His clothes were in tatters, his nose bleeding, and his chin had been knocked out of true, but behind him he had left just as sad a looking object, and a fiddle in fragments besides.

He stood in the hall and puffed and blowed and glared at Mrs. Bowser for a minute and then said: Woman, retire to your room!

But I want to get the wrack and camphor an alcohol and a sponge and—

Woman, retire! he interrupted.

And when she had passed upstairs he sat down on the lounge to commune with his grief, and wipe his nose on a handy corner of the mantle drape.

Bell and Gladys Merritt risked their own lives saving his. They were all at work on a jam of logs on Little Tobique, one day last April, and the lumber was tossed and piled in confusion along the stream for a distance of a mile, with a mighty force of water coming behind. Simultaneously with the breaking of the jam, Mr. Brewster fell into the stream where the water was deep and swift, and would have been drowned but for the prompt and brave action of Bell and Merritt, who, seeing the position he was in, went out on the logs in the face of all danger, and together were able to rescue Mr. Brewster. Mr. Brewster said he was desirous that the brave act be brought before the public.

JUNE WEDDING.

The marriage of Mr. R. T. D. Aitken and Miss Jean Thomson, daughter of Samuel Thomson, K. C. of this town took place at the home of the bride's father Monday evening at eight o'clock.
The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. Wm. Aitken. The groom was supported by Allan A. Davidson, K. C. of the firm of Davidson & Aitken while Miss Annie Aitken acted as bridesmaid. The bride was given away by her father.
Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The house was prettily decorated with potted and cut flowers, lights, etc.
The presents to the bride were numerous and costly among which was an elegant silver tea set and address from the Newcastle Town Council and two handsome pieces of furniture from St. James' choir. The groom's present to the bride was a sunburst of pearls and to bridesmaid a handsome ring set with an opal surrounded by emeralds.
The bride's wedding costume was of white brocade satin, yoke and sleeves of point venise and gold and cream applique. She wore a veil of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations, maiden hair and smilax.
Her travelling costume was of combination pearl grey broadcloth, turquoise panne velvet, cream and gold applique with picture hat of grey chiffon and pink roses.
The happy couple left by Monday night's express for Montreal, Toronto, Niagara Falls, and the Pan American Exhibition at Buffalo. A large crowd and the Orange band assembled at the station to bid them bon voyage and as they ascended the car steps amid the music of the band they were showered with rice and the good wishes of the crowd.
The Advocate joins with the citizens in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

Some Mechanical Features Likely to Awaken Lively Interest.

New York, June 1.—The Dickson Locomotive Co. is engaged on an order for 12 locomotives for the Intercolonial railway of Canada, comprising five consolidated and seven 10-wheel types. All of these engines are equipped with the Cleveland cylinder. One of the ten-wheelers is completed, and it is proposed to place it on exhibition at the Pan-American exposition as part of the Canadian exhibit by courtesy of the minister of railways and canals of Canada. In the meantime it is being put in service on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western. There are some features about the engine which are likely to awaken lively interest among railroad men the principal one being the Cleveland cylinder, with its central exhaust and arrangement of annular exhaust pipes.

The N. B. Tourist Association
Doing Good Work.

Mrs. Rupert E. Olive of St. John who has been travelling throughout the province gathering information for the New Brunswick Tourist Association was in town last week and interviewed a number of citizens. She expressed herself as delighted with Newcastle's many attractions to induce tourists to visit this town but expressed regret that at present there was no hotel so commodious for this class of travellers.
She left a sheet to be filled out with the name, address, etc. of any person in town or throughout the county who could accommodate summer visitors. Any person desiring to procure this desirable class of visitors will please either call at the Advocate office or send their name and address together with the number of guests they can accommodate and we will put them in proper shape and forward to the association at St. John and that association may be in a position to send a number of visitors to this section this season. We trust that as there is at present no sufficient hotel accommodation here that our citizens will open their homes to this class of visitors and send in the desired information at once.
