

The Battle Begun.

Trial of the Petition to Unseat C. S. Hyman, M.P.

A Goodly Array of Prominent Legal Talent.

Preliminary Skirmishing by the Several Solicitors.

Officers of the Young Liberal Association Examined—The Petitioners Attempt to Prove Agencies.

The trial of the petition of Pring v. Hyman began at the Court House yesterday afternoon. The trial bearing Judge Ferguson as judge and Robertson as counsel for the petitioners, and Hyman as respondent, began at 12.30 minutes late. They arrived at the court room as usual, and commenced exactly at the time announced. Before that hour the room was well filled, and when the doors were opened by the police, the room was packed to the doors with expectant people, including many prominent members of both political parties, and a number of ladies. Scores were glad of an opportunity to get standing room.

Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P., the respondent, was present. His counsel were: Hon. E. H. Blake, Q.C., of Toronto, and George C. H. Gibbons, Q.C., of Toronto, and J. B. McKillop, Q.C., of Toronto, and E. Meredith, Q.C., and J. C. Judd.

The position of the tables gave the lawyers a good deal of trouble and Messrs. Blake and Oser each seized an end of one and placed them according to their liking. Mr. Hyman and his supporters took the table to the south and the petitioners' counsel were situated at another behind the reporters. The seats in the jury box were seized on with avidity by spectators and the aisles and doorways were crowded by the crowd. The county constables were armed with long pointed poles as usual, and kept up a rattling process in an endeavor to keep the peace. When the court began the clattering ceased, and the audience was most attentive.

High Constable Schram, in his new ery's gown, was present, and did his best to keep the people silent during the tedious wait. He varied the monotony by announcing in a loud voice that the witnesses for the petitioner who were not discharged to-day could call to-morrow at 10 o'clock, and Judd's office for their pay. Junior Fletcher brought in a huge bundle containing the ballots polled at last election, and which gave Charles S. Hyman, M.P., about 185 majority of the 5th of last March.

PROCEEDINGS BEGIN.

At 1.47 p.m. their Lordships entered and took their seats amidst silence. The judges wore the robes of the counsel, and called on Mr. Oser. The latter moved for an order to add certain particulars and amend paragraphs 67, 32 and 214. An affidavit accompanied the motion, sworn to by the solicitor, that the additional facts did not come to his knowledge until after the particulars had been issued.

MR. GIBBONS ON THE STAND.

George C. Gibbons, Q.C., was first witness and was examined by Mr. Oser. What offices do you hold in the Liberal Association?

—I was president of the association, but my successor, Mr. Cronyn was appointed before Mr. Hyman was nominated.

Mr. Oser to Judge Ferguson—N, I am not examining Mr. Gibbons on any ritual establishment of agents, but on the fact that Mr. Oser to witness—What else did you hold after your resignation?

Witness—I did not hold any. George M. Reid was appointed treasurer, John Macpherson acted as secretary, Thomas A. Browne acted largely in doing the society's work.

Q—Who were the vice-presidents? A—I do not remember that any vice-presidents were elected.

Q—What relationship existed between the Young Liberals and the senior association? A—They worked together.

Q—Were some of the members of the Young Liberals consulted as to the thing called headed? A—Yes, those who were getting the Young Liberals.

Mr. Gibbons was questioned as to the late campaign. The first news was about Feb. 5, to consult with Messrs. Cronyn, T. S. Hobbs, Frank Cameron, Charles Leonard, Wm. Snider Dixon, Peavler, John Stevenson, Owen Pynn and John Gius employed by Mr. A. Yes.

Q—What did they do? A—Distributed circulars, dodgers, posters and other literature.

Q—Were not some of these employed just the day before the election? A—I don't think there was any then but what were engaged a couple of weeks before the election.

Q—What did they get? A—They were paid according to their work—about $1 a day, I think.

Q—Where did you get the money? A—From George Reid.

Witness in reply to a question said he did not inquire whether those assistants were voters or not. He employed an emigrant boy for one.

Q—How did you keep track of these men? A—I had a foreman.

central committee was formed. The chairman of each ward committee, with Mr. Hyman or himself, met together and acted as the executive, although not formally organized as such. Sub-committees were also formed for each sub-division.

Mr. Oser—I understand there was a railway committee? A—There was undoubtedly a special committee working among the railway vote.

Q—Who looked after that? A—The secretary or somebody under his direction.

Q—Did you do anything regarding the absent vote? A—No, I only received half a dozen letters from outside voters expressing their desire to come to London on election day. I wrote them saying we would be pleased to have them come, but that I could not assist them.

Q—Who had all this special train business in hand? A—I don't think anybody in London had anything to do with it.

Q—Did you know there was a special train? A—I have heard that there were two special trains came—one on the C. P. R. with Conservative voters and another on the G. T. R. with the Liberals. (Laughter.)

Mr. Oser—Let us stick to the old Grand Trunk. Do you know of tickets being issued? A—I do not.

Q—Did you have any communication with W. T. R. Preston? A—Yes, in regard to speakers and minor matters.

Q—Did you get some literature from him? A—We got some literature from him suitable for farm constituencies.

Q—Do you know of any other committees besides what you have named? A—No.

Q—Who had a treasurer? A—Yes; George M. Reid.

Q—Who put up the money? A—It was raised by subscription; I subscribed some myself.

Q—Who made the disbursements? A. Of the money. A—No.

Q—Who was the statutory agent? A—James Magee.

Q—Do you know that voters were brought from Chicago and elsewhere? A—I do not know, but I have heard so.

Q—Do you know anything about the arrangements for bringing in the outside voters? A—No.

Mr. Gibbons asked to be examined on the criminal charges, but Mr. Oser was not ready.

JOHN MACPHERSON.

Mr. John Macpherson, secretary of the Liberal Association, was the next witness. Mr. Oser asked him if he had any books or papers.

Witness said he had none. He used books and papers as secretary of the association. The last he knew of them they were put in a wooden box and taken from the committee rooms, in the Albert Hall, to George M. Reid's warehouse.

Q—Did you keep a letter book? A—No.

Q—Did you do any cash handling? A—I did.

Q—Who did you have as assistants? A—Fred Evans, Fred Saunders, Martin McKillop and Arthur Sippi.

Q—Were they paid assistants? A—A gratuity was paid them after the election.

Q—Were they voters? A—No.

Mr. Blake objected.

Mr. Oser—Did you know them as voters? A—No.

Q—Were some of them messengers? A—No.

rooms. Because of this the papers were hurriedly gathered up and put in the box and then taken to Mr. Reid's—the next building. He had had nothing to do with the box since. All that he had entered in his book he gave to Mr. Magee, the financial agent, with the exception of one item.

Mr. Blake here handed in Mr. Magee's financial statement.

Mr. Blake to witness—What was the item? A—It was a cable to a relative that I paid for myself.

Witness, continuing—Some of the men in our employ told me that Mr. Carling's men got $1.50 a day, and they—our men were dissatisfied, as they did not get that much. A good deal of assistance was required. There were 5,000 voters in the district and these were supplied periodically with literature distributed from door to door. Bills had to be posted announcing meetings. Witness did not pay out anything but what was earned by legitimate and necessary work.

THOMAS S. HOBBS.

Thomas S. Hobbs was examined by E. Meredith. He was assistant chairman of No. 3 ward committee. Mr. Hobbs was questioned closely as to the organization of the Liberals. He saw the committee books a short time before the election, but never since. The books were not talked about in the Liberal rooms.

Mr. Meredith—You were subpoenaed to produce the books?

A—No.

Q—Did you make any inquiries about these books? A—I asked Mr. Reid where they were, and he told me he did not know.

Q—Did you discuss the absent voters in your committee? A—Yes; they were marked absentees in the books.

Q—Were no arrangements made about the bringing in of the absent voters? A—Our committee was not asked to do it.

Q—What did you do about the Toronto vote? A—Mr. Taylor, of the Globe, was written to by me and asked if some of the voters there could be brought down on the Globe.

Q—Did you speak to anyone about the absent vote being brought in? A—I do not recollect doing so.

Q—Do you want to say that you did not communicate with anyone in the central committee about the absent vote? A—I swear it.

Q—Were you aware of the G. T. R. tickets being issued? A—No.

Q—What about the special trains? A—I know nothing beyond writing to Mr. Taylor, who said he would do all he could. I heard afterwards the train was coming.

Q—Did you write to any outside voters about coming to London? A—No.

Mr. Hobbs was questioned about the members working on committees. The names of Dr. Gardiner, Samuel Stevely, John Thorne, George Bellon, Henry Edmunds, Charles McClary, Charles Thorne, John Pardon, John Clark, Charles Stevens, Finlay McNeill, Alfred Talbot, Wm. J. Stubbins, Hugh McLaren and D. Sare were among those he enumerated.

Witness had nothing to do with disbursement of money. Upon one occasion he had bought refreshments for his committee.

it looked? A—Yes; but the screws had been withdrawn.

Q—Were they withdrawn in Mr. Reid's factory? A—I don't know; the boys brought it over to me. I opened it about a week after I got it.

Q—You were telegraph operator at the Liberal rooms, were you not? A—Yes.

Q—What did you do with the messages? A—Handed them to the telegraph companies.

Mr. Oser—I want you to stand down for a while. I will ask you at these books.

Mr. A. O. Jeffery was then called.

Q—It is said you have these books. A—I have not.

Q—When did you get rid of them? A—I never had them.

Q—Did you ever see them? A—Not since the election.

Q—I am informed you were committee chairman of No. 2 ward? A—I was chairman of sub-divisions 9 and 12 in that ward.

Mr. Oser—Give me the name of your committee.

Witness—The committee in division nine were: A. M. Hamilton, James Reid, Wm. Reid, John Smith, Messrs. Moore, Arscott; and in division twelve Messrs. J. W. Hyman, North, jun., Wm. Tyler, Parks and John Slade. There were others I cannot recollect.

Q—You were handed a voters' list to ascertain if there were other names on it that were on the committee. Robert Sharpe was the only additional one he could remember.

MUST FACE THE MUSIC!

Mandamus in the London Revision Court Case Settled.

The Supreme Court dismisses Preliminary Objections to the Nova Scotia Election Petitions—The Trials Must Go On.

[From the ADVERTISER'S special correspondent.]

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—As already briefly telegraphed you, late yesterday afternoon the judges rendered their decision on the reserved point, declaring that the mandamus should issue. The formal order was accordingly taken out this morning and will probably be served on Mr. Fraser to-day, ordering him to proceed at once with hearing the objections.

THE NOVA SCOTIA MEN MUST FACE THE MUSIC.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—In the Supreme Court yesterday Judge Weatherhead dismissed all preliminary objections and fixed dates for the trial of election petitions as follows: Annapolis, against Mills, Dec. 28; Cumberland, against Dickey, Dec. 15; Pictou, against Cameron, Jan. 5; Pictou, against Hon. C. H. Tupper, Jan. 12.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—The following assignments in Ontario are reported: Petrol, Wm. Kirtson, groceries and shoes, Wm. Kirtson, J. M. Hamilton, merchant, Wm. Kirtson, proprietor of the Bon Marche bank-rupt dry goods house in Woodstock, is in trouble with liabilities, it is estimated, of about $15,000.

Arnold's Case.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—John R. Arnold, late mechanical superintendent of the Public Works Department, was yesterday tried before Police Magistrate O'Grady in Ottawa. The charges laid against him were conspiracy, obtaining money under false pretences, and breach of duty as a public officer. The magistrate reserved his judgment.

Garbutt Must Go.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Decision was this morning given in the Common Pleas Divisional Court in the celebrated extradition case of Harry Garbutt, of Wingham, Ont. The court ruled that the prisoner must be remanded for extradition under the warrant already issued by the Minister of Justice, Wm. Lount, Q.C., on behalf of the Government, a stay of proceedings, which was granted.

No Reciprocity Negotiations This Month.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—It is by no means certain that the Ministers of the Dominion will visit in Washington in December to consider the subject of trade relations with the United States. The date must first be fixed by the United States Secretary of State and the assent of President Harrison will be necessary. In view of recent movements in the party of the President and the Secretary of State, it is tolerably certain that no invitation will be sent to Ottawa this month or even next.

The Metal Rail Tie Coming to the Front.

Appalling Record of Daily Casualties on American Roads.

Perils of Transcontinental Routes—Railway Earnings—Fast Time—New Features and Evolutions of Progress.

The metal rail tie is coming to the front quite rapidly. A number of leading railways in the States have been experimenting for several years and have demonstrated that the cost for maintenance is so much less than with the wooden tie as to more than justify the additional first cost.

TICKET COMMISSIONS.

There is yet trouble over the ticket commissions. The Alton district is on, and yet that road carries through passengers. How they get them is what worries the boycotters, and they are getting tired of it. It is reported that some of the eastern roads are conspiring with a western line to evade the trunk line agreement. The issue now is: "Who shall decide the course and distribution of travel—the railways, the travelers or the ticket sellers?"

TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROUTES.

Henry Villard, the railway magnate, while in Seattle yesterday visited most of the railway offices in the city. He walked up to the counter of the down town Northern Pacific ticket office and said to Ticket Agent Johnson, who had not the slightest idea that he stood in the presence of the highest official on his road:

"Give me a ticket to Boston over the Canadian Pacific."

"Canadian Pacific's blocked," ironically responded Johnson.

"Don't believe it," said Villard.

"Want to go to Boston over the Northern Pacific," said Villard.

"Mountain fell on track, cutting tunnel half mile long."

"I'll investigate," said the financier, as he asked Mr. McGinnis to wait his return, and started over to the Canadian Pacific office.

Agent McGinnis looked up from his books, but did not recognize Villard.

"Can't do it," said McGinnis.

"Why?"

"Four feet of sand on the road at Pasco, Lake Pend d'Oreille overflooded and Indians on the warpath in Dakota."

"Anything else?"

"Yes. Gang of train robbers near Helena, prohibition force in Dakota and a strike on the Eastern division."

"Jewbillers," exclaimed Villard. "Think I'll go and try the Union Pacific, then. That's all right, ain't it?"

"That's all right," sarcastically observed McGinnis, who stopped telephoning to Johnson for assistance. "That's all right, I said," continued McGinnis again, with a sort of foot-note move of the hand, as his supposed customer was about to leave.

"What do you mean?" inquired Villard.

"Oh, nothing. Go on and take the U. P. You'll see time enough if you live through it."

"Oh, good morning, Mr. Johnson," said McGinnis, greeting his ally as if he had not seen him for a month. "Have you had any tidings of your father yet? Would you mind telling this gentleman what you know about him?"

Johnson, after struggling with his feelings and wiping away several imaginary tears, spoke up, sorrowfully:

"It pains me to speak of it, but my father started west six months ago over the Union Pacific. He died on the way of course, and we hope to receive his corpse here."

"Well done boys," said Villard after a hearty laugh, and handing each agent his card.

"When the Canadian Pacific fails to approve of some case come over and see us, Mr. McGinnis."

"Johnson," he said, laying his hand on that gentleman's shoulder in a fatherly manner, "some day you will take my place." (Seattle Press Notes.)

fused to give him a pass. He shipped his hand press by another road, and walked the whole distance, 75 miles.

Grand Trunk Railway earnings for week ending Nov. 21, 1891, $410,594; in 1890, $301,940; increase 1891, $108,654.

Mr. George H. Smith, jun., has been appointed chief train dispatcher of the Northern Pacific. He was formerly with the St. Paul and Duluth.

Mr. Edgar Hill, formerly general freight agent of the Big Four, has been appointed manager of the National Cordage Company, of Cincinnati.

Mr. R. P. Humphrey, superintendent of the Tonawanda and Cuba road has been appointed superintendent of the Danville and Mount Morris road.

Mr. C. C. Reynolds, has been appointed superintendent of the Chicago and Erie with headquarters at Huntington, Ind. He was trainmaster on the Erie at Buffalo.

The return of traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Nov. 14 to Nov. 21, 1891, is $485,000, as compared with $411,000 in 1890, being an increase for 1891 of $74,000.

Chicago, Burlington and Quincy quarterly dividends have taken a step upwards to 14 per cent. Only 1 per cent has been paid for this the last three quarters. This is seriously below the 8, 9 and 10 per cent which used to rejoice the stockholders in the good old days, gone never to return.

A. B. Chafee, well known in railway circles in Canada, died at his residence in Brockville last week, from the effects of a cold. He was formerly with the South-eastern Railway, but later president of the International Railway Guide Company, also connected with several business enterprises in Canada.

At the adjourned annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific in Montreal it was found that the necessary unanimous consent of the shareholders of the Calgary and Edmonton Railway could not be assured, therefore the further consideration of the acquisition of that road was postponed until Dec. 14.

Nineteen of the twenty railroads entering Chicago have formed an association called the Columbian Passenger Committee. The object is to secure united action in passenger and baggage transportation during the World's Fair. The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern is the only road that has not become a member. It's not the Alton this time.

The C. P. R. Company are erecting another giant elevator at Fort William. The movement of grain from the Northwest has been so heavy that it has taxed the capacity of the railway to the utmost to handle it, and with the close of navigation the pressure will be still greater, and it has been deemed necessary to build another elevator and store the grain as it is received.

A remarkable illustration of long-distance telephoning was made recently on a wire between Chicago and Oskosh, Wisconsin, 175 miles. The conversation was carried on with greater clearness than is often the case between points only a few blocks apart. This has been done by a transposition of the wires of high-drawn copper at different intervals, which equalizes the induction and overcomes the electrical resistance.

The new Canadian Pacific Railway station at Ingersoll is nearly completed, and it is said to be one of the largest and most expensive stations ever found anywhere on the road. It is constructed throughout of brown stone and brick, and will be formally opened in a few days. When the opening day has been fixed upon an elaborate dinner will probably be given in honor of the event, to which many prominent gentlemen from different parts of Western Ontario will be invited.

The New York Central and Hudson River and Lehigh Valley have concluded a deal that means considerable. The N. Y. C. has leased to the L. V. the branch from Tonawanda to Batavia, and gives the L. V. traffic rights over the Central's Buffalo and Suspension Bridge branch on condition that the L. V. does not insist on building a line from Suspension Bridge to Buffalo as has been contemplated. The Lehigh has been using the Erie tracks to the Falls and Suspension Bridge.

The station of the Interstate Commerce Commission is responsible for the following appalling statement: Every day in the year 17 persons are killed and 72 others injured on the railways in the United States. These figures include employes, passengers and others who meet their fate at street and road crossings or otherwise on tracks or trains. The proportion of actual employes is 7 killed and over 61 injured daily. Legislation or any other means used that will reduce this frightful record of suffering and death should be imperative.

End and stripping him of his hat and coat, has been given 30 days in Brantford jail. The Brantford Council has discussed the case. The Brantford street railway franchise promoters want a franchise for 30 years. This was decided to reduce to 25 years. They also proposed to put in the "T" track instead of the wide-flange track.
At this proposition a decision was rendered at a public hearing to visit Buffalo and to make a decision to make the necessary insurance to make the necessary insurance. It is claimed that the substi-

Toronto to Mrs. C. E. King by 26 cents on the dollar. T. E. King was the assignee of the estate.

A drainage commission appointed by the Ontario Legislature, through the efforts of W. D. Balfour, M.P.P., to take evidence as to the best means of improving the workings of the drainage law, will hold their first sitting at Chatham on Dec. 5.

The handsome new waiting-room erected by the G. T. R. at the Port Huron side of the great tunnel is now complete. Mr.
Fawcett, a San Francisco citizen, has been placed in charge of the dining hall and refreshment room.

Wm. Brice, a Cabinet-maker in the Port Huron car shops, dropped dead of heart disease while at work on Wednesday morning. He was 63 years old, and leaves a wife and five children.

MIDDLESEX.
On Monday night Miss Christina Mc-Kellar, 10th concession of London township, retired at night in her usual good health, and about an hour after was discovered suffering from what appeared to be convulsions. Medical aid was called, but nothing could be done. The deceased lady was well and favorably known by a very large circle of acquaintances.

A letter has been received from Rev. J.
G. Brown, Baptist missionary in India, formerly a resident of Ridgeway. He left sailing for Toronto University, and is meeting with great success in his work. He has mastered the native language, and now in the Kumbhar River, about 40 miles from the Bay of Bengal.

On Tuesday, Glencoe, Mr. Hower, blacksmith, left his wagon shop for a few minutes. While he was away an elderly man, named Leitch, of Kilmartin, the presence of liquor on the forge. Being under the influence of liquor he fell into the fire, scalding himself badly. Being unable to get out, he was smothered by the flames.
The unfortunate Leitch was pulled from the fire, and was found dead. Mr.
Hower was summoned, but the flesh being badly consumed, it is doubtful if he will ever recover.

A canopy stage will be put on the Sharp and Komoka route by John Sharp. The G. T. R. has commenced work on the new line between Glenora and Kingscourt.

OXFORD.
David O'Grady, proprietor of the O'Grady house, Ingersoll, died on Tuesday afternoon at his residence from the effects of a paralytic stroke received a few days ago.
The remains were taken to Brantford for burial.

PERTH.
William Fox died in Colorado, and his body was brought home to Stratford for burial. He cut his knee with a chisel, and it was not until he was in bed that it was found that he had cut his knee.

A child of W. J. Rogers, Motherwell, fell from a high chair to the floor and broke her arm.

Wm. Jones, butcher, has absconded from Selkirkville, leaving $1,500 in debts unpaid.

WATERLOO.
Rev. J. K. Smith, D.D., after an absence of four years from Galt, was greeted by a crowded congregation in his old Knox church pulpit, which he had occupied for twenty years. At the conclusion of his morning sermon he stood at the front of the pulpit, and it was a touching sight to see nearly the whole congregation grasp his hand. In the evening his text was from Matthew xxvii, 22: "What shall I do with Jesus which is called Christ?" This Dr.
Smith applied in a forceful, eloquent appeal to the unconquered faith of his old time earnestness and in a way long to be remembered by those who heard him.

WELLINGTON.
Charles Davidson, of Guelph, has received from the Department of Patents at Washington, D. C., a patent for a device for coupling ropes used in transmitting power and traveling over pulleys. It consists of two members, a hook and an eye, with attachments for gripping the ends of the ropes, and is very simple and quick acting.

Miss Laura McLaren, daughter of Wm.
McLaren, Guelph, has returned from a visit in Germany.

Seventy-five electric lights will illuminate Guelph soon.

Chief Randall, transit officer, Guelph, had his first case before the police magistrate a few days ago. The defendant was a young lad named George Thomas Hudson. He was found guilty and was sentenced to twelve months in the reformatory at Penetanguishene.

The young people of Chalmers' Church Y. P. S. C. E., Guelph, made a presentation to J. Arthur Emile, the color blind, prior to his departure to Minneapolis, in the shape of a handsome Bible bound in morocco.

Miss Carrie Bone, daughter of Richard Bone, of Omaha, late of Guelph, died of typhoid fever at that place on Nov. 15. The deceased was a captain in the Salvation Army before leaving Canada, and was highly esteemed.

ADVERTISER PRINTING CO.,
LONDON, CANADA.

"The Advertiser" is an organ of news and of thoroughly independent opinion. The Advertiser alone is responsible for opinions expressed in these columns.

"The Advertiser" advocates Constitutional Free Trade, and as early as possible after, free trade with the whole world.

"The Advertiser" looks forward with hope to Canada's future as that of an Independent Canadian Nationality, in equally friendly alliance with the United States and with Great Britain, believing that such a status would be best for Canada, best for Great Britain, and promotive of the best attainable relations with the United States. As to Imperial Federation, sometimes spoken of, the ADVERTISER as yet has seen nothing proposed that bears any stamp of practicability, and in any case infinitely prefers the grander and more really hopeful scheme of a federation of the English-speaking peoples of the world.

"The Advertiser" advocates prohibition and sale of intoxicating liquor; and all expenditure general legislation and persuasion in the meantime.

"The Advertiser" is an advocate of equal rights for women, whether as regards the franchise, or equal wages for equal work.

"The Advertiser" is a believer in Christian Union, and consider the time has come when the various Christian denominations should come closer together. Those bodies which are now nearest should unite first. Under the present system there is an unjustifiable waste of men, means and effort. The ADVERTISER will endeavor to promote the movement for Christian Union not alone by direct appeal and argument, but by seeking to present the best rather than the worst side of each denomination.

"The Advertiser" advocates Obligatory Voting as both necessary and practicable. Nothing would so much purify electoral contests. Nothing would so much enforce the idea that the franchise is a duty, not a chattel.

London, Friday, Nov. 27.

OUR SPLENDID POSSIBILITIES.

An Anglican preacher, writing of a visit to Canada in the Christian-at-Work, says that the more he saw of Canada and the more he talked with Canadians the more he realized the great future that its people inherit. He has this to say on the trade question:

"Canadians are greatly disappointed by the poor progress revealed by the last census. They all complain likewise of the prohibition tariff, which closes to them the American markets. It seems pretty clear to me that it would be to the benefit of both peoples to establish perfect reciprocity between Canada and the States."

With a fair opportunity to make the most of our magnificent resources our visitor is convinced that a great future is before us. He says:

"It is at least certain that Canada presents great attractions to capable agriculturalists. It has no blizzards even in the far west; its climate is fine, the possibilities of its development endless. There is room for infinite expansion. The shadow of Malthus does not overhang it, as it does the older lands of Europe. Here the primal blessings rest: Be fruitful and multiply.
'Give us Canada, and we will make a nation of it,' said a man to me on the American side of the Falls. 'Give us a fair chance, and we will make a nation for ourselves,' said the Canadians. The Canadians do not want annexation. They are more loyal to English traditions than the English themselves.
And for that reason Canadians visiting England feel keenly the general ignorance of English people as to their condition, and their indifference to their aspirations. 'We were always spoken to as Americans when we were in England,' said a Canadian lady to me, 'and if that is all the English know about us, we may as well be annexed as not.'"

The reverend gentleman rightly gauges the situation when he says that nothing is so likely to promote annexation as a tariff war with the United States and the indifference of the Colonial Office. It is being made evident on all hands that the people of Canada are determined to have freedom to trade with their neighbors as they find it profitable. The men who, openly or covertly, are working to prevent the only reciprocity which it is possible to obtain are therefore responsible for whatever annexation feeling there is. Granted freedom to trade, Canadians would possess all the advantages that annexation would bring, and that without change in their political status.

EVERY CANADIAN IS INTERESTED

IN THIS CASE
The decision of the Court of Queen's Bench of Ontario on the London Dominion voters' list case has excited much interest throughout the Province.

It is explained by the mouthpiece of the men who promoted the movement to prevent a complete revision of the voters' lists that "it has been a lawyer's battle entirely." This is simply not the fact. The Conservative lawyers who have fought so hard to retain hundreds of bad names on the Dominion voters' lists, on a miserable quibble, did not assume that attitude for the mere fun of the thing. Lawyers are not built that way. The lawyers fought the battle—it was a losing one from the start—but the meeting of Conservative bosses decreed the unwarranted attack and put up the money to pay the costs.

One might be tempted to enlarge on the significance of the lack of faith in the righteousness of their cause which such an attempt to stuff the voters' lists by these men portends. But that can be left for another time. Let it suffice to give a few of the more notable points in the important judgment just given by the Court of Queen's Bench. On Tuesday, the ADVER-TISER, though not pretending to very deep legal acumen, strongly combatted the view that "not qualified" was an insufficient notice to a man whose vote was attacked. Common sense as well as common law, we then held, should affirm the rightfulness of that contention. This is how we reasoned the matter out:

"But it has been said that when a man is attacked on the Conservative style of notice, 'Not qualified as a tenant under the act,' and so in regard to owner and income voters, he knows what he will have to answer and comes prepared. Not under the operation of the act in this city. We give an example:

"John Smith is objected to by the Conservative agents. The objection reads, 'Not qualified as a tenant under the act.' He goes to the court prepared to prove that he is a tenant in the meaning of the act.
He submits proofs of his tenancy. He is then examined as to his being a British subject, and as to his age, and if he cannot produce proof of these two things he is struck off.

"This being the case, it seems to us to be more just to the voter to insert the words
'not qualified' on the notice of objection, and let him come prepared to defend his right to vote from all attacks. It is certainly more fair than to lead him to believe that he will be attacked on but one point, and then attack him on another for an altogether different reason."

Within 24 hours after this was written the Court of Queen's Bench, composed of that eminent jurist, Chief Justice Armour, and Justices Falconbridge and Street unanimously decided that the ADVER-TISER view of law and justice was the correct one, and that the provisions of the Dominion Franchise Act should not be so construed as to prevent the doing of justice to all parties—a result that no one denies would have followed the decision argued for by Mr. Hellmuth, acting for the Conservative managers.

The possibilities under this infamously concocted Dominion Franchise Act were earnestly touched upon by the learned chief justice and others during the progress of Mr. Helhmuth's long argument in favor of throwing out the Liberal objections to bad names. Mr.
Helhmuth had remarked that the statement 'not qualified' was no ground at all.
Whereupon Chief Justice Armour replied:

"You can get no better analogy than in the common law procedure, in which it is provided that the grounds shall be shortly stated, contrary to law and evidence." That was as wide a ground as 'not qualified.'"

The chief justice added that it would be monstrous to deprive a man of a vote on technical denials. Mr. Helhmuth began to explain that this was the important question of a man who was on the lists being taken off. "How are the lists made up?" the chief justice interrupted. "We cannot be blind to the fact that the lists are frequently stuffed."

Mr. Helhmuth—But you cannot assume that.
The Chief Justice—If there are 600 names objected to it shows that there was not extraordinary care taken in the revision.

Mr. Helhmuth—But you must assume that he is on the roll by right if his name is there and the list is made up in accordance with the statute.
The Chief Justice—Then he is prima facie on the roll, and you must get him off.
That is all the assumption you can make.
(Smiles.)
Mr. Helhmuth was arguing that a man had a right to know upon what ground his right to vote would be attacked.
The chief justice did not see much force in the contention. A man has a right to vote or he has not, he said, and he can tell what that right is. Then, as an instance of the way the voters' lists are made up, he remarked that people were on the lists with votes on property owned by him. "That is the way," he continued, "we know that the country is seoured for the purpose of getting all the people on the lists who can be got, and it would be a violent assumption to say they were all on the lists by right." "I don't doubt," he added a moment or two later, "there are a great number of people put on the lists who have not the remotest notion of it."

A habitue of the court-room leaned over to the chief justice and told the story of how the chief justice, who has no vote, being a judge, was himself put on the list for East Simcoe without his knowledge.
With regard to the appeal to the county court judge, the chief justice said it seemed to him that Judge Elliot had no right to hear the appeal. He thought Judge Elliot was of the same mind, but wanted to give an ex-cathedra opinion that the revising officer might set upon.

It was a comparatively easy thing, after this discussion, for the court to unanimously agree that the Liberal notices were amply sufficient even without the amendment carried out at much expense on the revising officer's ruling. In due course, the revision must be proceeded with.

CORVINO's leaders, the high tax papers have renewed their attack on the corruption conducted at Ottawa.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

THE Dominion Franchise may be justly called an "An Act to Disfranchise Worthy Citizens and to Encourage Litigation." What a travesty to say that such a measure is an improvement upon the inexpensive, easily-understood lists compiled by the municipal authorities.

UNDER the coming system of voters' list compilation, there will be no opportunity for men without qualification to get on the lists. The voter will have to go up to the place of registration in open daylight and make affidavit to his qualification, simply as a citizen. By no sharp practice will he be wheedled out of his franchise.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.
Harper's Magazine for December will be a superb Christmas number. The illustrations will include a large number of full-page engravings representing some of the best work of some of the best modern artists. The fiction is of a character especially adapted to the holiday season, and many of the articles and poems are appropriately suggestive of Christmas memories and the good cheer and hallowed influences of that occasion.

An interesting series of papers, "Stories of Salem Witchcraft," by Winfield S.
Nevins, is begun in the December New England Magazine (Boston). The first article gives an account of the witchcraft cases in New England previous to 1692; the outbreak in Salem village; the court and places of trial; a full history of the trials of accused persons, and copious quotations from the remarkable testimony in the court files are given, and the article is embellished with many portraits and drawings now published for the first time, and made especially for this series. The article is particularly interesting at this time, as the 100th anniversary of this remarkable delusion is approaching.

The December number of the North American Review brings to a close the 153rd volume of that well-known monthly, and contains a full index of the volume.
The present number opens with an exceedingly valuable paper, entitled "Thoughts on the Negro Problem," by James Bryce, M.P., who is so well and favorably known by his masterly work, "The American Commonwealth." Rear Admiral S. B.
Lucas, U. S. N., writes in a serious vein on "The Benefits of War." In a striking article, called "The Three Philanthropists," Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll describes three different methods of dealing with the vexed question of capital and labor. Hon.
Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, in "A Great Statistical Investigation," describes the work which is being done by the Finance Committee of the Senate, in connection with the Department of Labor, in collecting statistics showing the effect of the tariff laws upon wages, prices, etc. Very Rev. Robert Gregory, Dean of St. Paul's, London, asks and answers the question, "Is Corporal Punishment Degrading?" Ex-Prime Minister Crispien's brilliant article on "Italy and the Pope," begun in the Review for November, is brought to a close. The workman's interest in the free coinage of silver is described by T. V. Powderly, general master workman of the Knights of Labor. The list of the main articles in this issue is entitled "The Quorum in European Legislatures." A most timely contribution to it is a statement by Dr. Leslie E. Keeley in regard to his "cold cure," called out by the recent death of Colonel John F. Mines.

HIGH TAXATION THE BARRIER.

(Windsor Free Press.)
If the Government would remove the tariff wall which bars the settler from prosperity it would soon be found how little the Hon. Mr. Carling, in his capacity of Minister, has had to do with the meager immigration to this country.

HE COMES HIGH.

(Montreal Herald.)
Paris-Canada says that Sir Charles and Lady Tupper and Mrs. Stewart Tupper have left on a trip to Italy. Lots of Canadians who contribute handsomely through the National Policy to the payment of Sir Charles Tupper's salary, would be glad if they could have a much shorter holiday at their own expense, but they can't afford it.
Perhaps, however, they are content to know that the High Commissioner is faring splendidly and enjoying himself at the expense of heavily-taxed Canadians. By the way, has Sir Charles paid that G. T. R. bill yet?

HON. WILFRID LAURIER.

(Canada Presbyterian.)
There is nothing in this world that gives a man pre-eminence as quickly as the gift of eloquence. No so long ago Hon. Wilfrid Laurier was a young lawyer in Arthabaskaville. In college he was noted for his eloquence, and when he made his first speech in Parliament, Sir John Macdonald paid him a high compliment by saying that he had frequently heard of the young gentleman's oratorical powers, and he was not disappointed. Mr. Laurier spoke in Boston last evening, and all Canadian lovers of oratory will watch with more than usual interest the impression he made on the H. B. He has been asked to presently to go to Mr. Gladstone and the Liberals are giving to the Grand Old Man.
Next to a good character there is nothing that pays better than a silver tongue.
Mr. Laurier has both. His speech on the death of Sir John Macdonald was one of the finest oratorical efforts ever made in this country. So thought Principal Grant and other good judges.

Death of the Bishop of Carleton.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Right Rev.
Harvey Goodwin, D.D., lord bishop of Carleton, is dead. The Right Rev. Harvey Goodwin, D.D., bishop of Carleton, formerly dean of Ely, son of the late Charles Goodwin, was born at King's Lynn, Norfolk, in 1818. Entering King's College, Cambridge, in 1836, he graduated as second wrangler and Smith's prizeman in 1840. He was fellow and mathematical lecturer of his college, and incumbent of St. Edward's Church, Cambridge, from 1848 to 1858. He was dean of Ely from 1858 to 1869, when he was appointed bishop of Carleton in succession to Dr. Walgrave. He is the author of "A Memoir of Bishop Mackenzie," "Essays on the Pentateuch," "A Commentary on St. Matthew, St. Mark and St. Luke," "Hulsean Lectures," in 1855-6; "Lectures on the Church Catechism," "A Guide to the Parish Church," "Parish Sermons, University Sermons," etc., "Walks in the Region of Science and Faith," 1883, and on some mathematical treatises. Dr. Goodwin was the first to propose the erection of a church house as the Church of England's celebration of the Queen's jubilee.

The Archbishop of Aix has been sentenced to pay a fine of 3,000 francs for treating M.
Fallieres, French Minister of Public Work-ship, with contempt.

He Shrinks
from Washing
So do woollens and flannels, if they're not washed properly. Try the right way. Get a package of Pearlina, and do as directed. Your things won't shrink, and they'll be softer, brighter, and better, than ever before. That's the beauty of Pearlina—washing is not only easier, but better and safer.
Things that you wouldn't dare to trust to the wear and tear of the washboard are washed perfectly with it.

Beware
Feddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearlina." IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—read it back.

Eyesight Restored.

For the benefit of those suffering from disease of the eyes, I would advise treatment by the Hologenic System. The method is non-injurious and gives rapid relief from pain. I have had a weak eye for 30 years, and have tried various remedies. In August, 1891, I was attacked with an aggravated form of conjunctivitis of both eyes. There was redness, inflammation, swelling of lining of eyes, and white lining membrane, intolerable of light and wind, unable to read or write.
I heard about remarkable cures being made with Dr. J. Eugene Jordan's Hologenic Medicine.
I was examined by Dr. Ross of Toronto, who prescribed Hologenic remedies and in three days I was so much improved that I resumed my duties in my store and continued to gain rapidly. In two weeks I was cured sound. The effect has been permanent for over a year. My faith is very strong in Hologenic Medicine.

November, 1891.
Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Oct. 29, 1891.
For the benefit of those who see nothing but suffering and death before them, I wish to say there is hope for you yet. I have been in a like condition myself and own my restoration to health to the ever-reliable Hologenic Remedies. Last spring I was utterly prostrated by a severe attack of conjunctivitis of both eyes.

Peculiar

To tell in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine. Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of cures abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be deceived by cheap imitations. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The profile was almost perfect, and the

but the dark eyes were very soft and melancholy, and seemed to hold a world of sadness in their depths.

"Mrs. Watkins," she began hurriedly, in sweet, cultivated voice, and then stopped and drew back as another person came into the shop; "no, do not let me interrupt you;

I was only going to say that one of the young ladies at Miss Martingale's seems very poorly, and Miss Theresa is a little troubled about her, so I have promised to go back for an hour or two; but I have my key with me if I should be late."

"Dear Miss Watkins," Mrs. Trafford exclaimed Mrs. Watkins, fustily, as she looked at her lodger's pale, tired face,

"You are never going out on such an evening, and all the while you are so ill, as if with a new broom; and you and your cough, and the fog, and not to mention the rawness which sucks into your chest like a lance, and here Mrs. Watkins shook her head and weighed out a quarter of a pound of mixed tea, in a disapproving manner.

"Mrs. Trafford smiled. 'My good friend, she said, in rather an amused voice, 'you ought to know me better by this time; have you ever remembered that either frost, or rain, or fog have kept me in-lens a single day when duty called me out? and here she looked round her, and prepared to leave the shop.

Rate of Sir Hugh.

To be sure this was only a trifle. To do her justice, Mrs. Watkins drove a very thriving for the shop, and would lunch in parlour at twelve o'clock, with her pipes and hol-nailed boots, for a twist of tobacco or a slice of cheese, and crack clumsy jokes across the counter, besides this, Mrs. Watkins had another source of profit that was at once lucrative and respectable. She let lodgings.

And very genteel lodgings they were,

with a private entrance in Beulah Place, and a double door that excluded draughts and the heterogeneous odors from the shop.

These lodgers of Mrs. Watkins were the talk of the neighborhood, and many a passer-by looked curiously up at the bright windows and clean white curtains, between which in summer time bloomed the loveliest flowers, and the earliest snowdrops appeared in spring, in the hope of seeing two fair faces which had rather haunted their memory ever since they had first seen them.

It was six o'clock on the evening of a dreary November day. Watkins' shop was empty, for the fog and the rawness and the cold had driven folk only to their homes, and Mrs. Watkins here, as before, with strong tea and much hot toast, was entering her profits on a small, greasy slate, and casting furtive glances every now and then into the warm, snug parlor, where her nephew and factotum Tom was reclining himself in his turn from the small black teapot on the hob.

A fresh, wholesome-looking woman was

Mrs. Watkins, with an honest, reliable face and a two-fold chin; but she had two peculiarities—she always wore the stiffest and plainest and most crackling of print dresses,

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.

BY LEMAN ABBOTT.

Before the world stand these three figures evermore: Priest, Pilate, Christ—Malignity, Cowardice, Heroism. In the priest all the malignant passions are apparent in the Christ all the divine powers are supreme; Pilate's soul is a battle-field in which the better and the worse are contending for the mastery. Pilate brought forth his Prisoner, placed him before the mob, placed him before the world and cried,

"Behold the Man!" By this very act he placed himself also before the world. It is the contrast between the two that is the lesson of this scene.

Pilate knew what was right, and would have done it. He had no inclination to yield to the malignant demand of the priesthood or the clamor of the crowd. To save the Prisoner he resorted to every expedient except that which could only succeed—courageous, manly, decisive action. He sent him across the Tyropitane valley to the palace of Herod, the tetrarch of Galilee, for judgment. He proclaimed him innocent, and offered to chastise him and let him go.

He seized on the annual custom of releasing a prisoner of state to the Jews on their great holiday and offered to release Jesus.

He endeavored to awe the mob by calling down upon their heads the responsibility for the crime he was about to commit. He appealed to their patriotism:

"Shall I crucify your king?" He appealed to their pity: ordered Jesus to be scourged, and brought him out, pale and bleeding, in the hope that the suffering might awaken their compassion, though the silent grandeur of the Sufferer had no power to touch their hearts with awe. All was in vain.

He could not appease the mob and he dared not brave it. He was a coward because he was a skeptic. He lived in the visible and by the visible. He knew no God; hoped for no immortality. When Christ spoke of a kingdom founded on truth, he answered with a snarl: "What is truth?" Of the value of a palace and sumptuous living every day he had some understanding.

Of the value of the palace of a man's own conscience, of the sumptuous fire of him whose soul says to him at the end of a well-fought battle: "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," he knew nothing.

The visible was the real; the invisible was the unreal. The skeptic may be a stoic, but he never can be a hero. His bravery will never go farther than his faith. He may die for his country, if he has a faith of humanity; for men, if he has a faith of humanity for God, if he has a divine faith.

Atheism has begotten no missionaries, no martyrs, and never will. This is the one

cowardly Pilate.

How is it possible to paint the other?

Unmoved he stands in the tumult silent amid all the opposition; calm in the midst of a storm; serene in the face of a tempest and none of fear crosses his serene face.

He knows the end from the beginning; knows the cruel scourging; knows the fearful mark and the taunting beneath the weight of the cross; knows the agony of the climb driven into the quivering hands and feet, and the long anguish of the slow hours of thirst and fever and throbbing upon the cross. And he never hesitates; never wavers; trembles not at the sight of the tempest of a storm of wrath and pain; nancy in silent waiting for it to blow its breath to the end and unrelenting. There is no figure of Christ in the midst of the minors. He was not alone for God was with him. He was not alone for God was

with him. He was not alone for God was

with him. He was not alone for God was

with him. He was not alone for God was Washington Irving.

If Mrs. Trafford had been questioned about her past life, she would have replied in patriarchal language that few and evil had been her days, and yet no life had ever opened with more promise than hers.

Many years nearly a quarter of a century, before the gray-haired, weary woman had stood in Mrs. Watkins' shop, a young girl in a white dress, with a face as radiant as the spring morning itself, leaned over the balcony of Beulah House to wave goodbye to her father as he rode away east-
