Level Crossings. "The outcome of that debate resulted in two resolutions," said Ald. Beattie. "One was to recommend to the Dominion Government the appointment of a municipal representative on the railway commission. There is always some question of great importance to municipalities, and the feeling of the convention was that a man of municipal experience should be on that board, to deal with the questions as they come up. Practically the same resolution was passed regarding the Ontario municipal board. This board also deals with many questions affecting the municipalities, and a municipal representative should be on that

"The next day we had an interview with Mr. Fitzhugh, second vice-president of the Grand Trunk, relative to the Egerton street crosssing. He thought that the whole question of track elevation should be taken up together, and as a result he did not appear any too anxious to discuss the erection of a bridge or anything of that nature with us. However, he promised to take the matter up with Mr. Hays at the earliest possible date, and it is probable that something will be done in that matter very shortly." It is probable that the question will be opened very shortly by the council. Such was the feeeling about the city hall this morning. The impression also prevails that the

There was tumultuous cheering durng the greater part of the 100-kilometre (practically 63 miles) bicycle race, which lasted two and three-quarter hours. It was a battle between France and Britain, the latter winning. A dozen punctured tires figured considerably in the excitement and result.

The other events also furnished much enthusiasm and cheers. Five times was the British flag raised on the stadium victory pole, twice for the bicycle events, once for a swimming contest, once for the five-mile of his father's death. The Preposed Structure Will Overtop All the Other Skyscrapers.

New York, July 21. - Plans have been drawn, it was learned today, for a thousand-foot tower as the striking feature of an enormous office pile to replace the Mills building in Broad street. The proposed structure would overtop the Eiffel Tower, whose skeleton frame reaches 980 feet skyward; would overtop the 909-foot tower planned for the new Equitable building, would rise 300 feet higher than the Metropolitan building and would look down on the 612-foot Singer

The plans for this tallest building ever conceived are in the preliminary sketch stage. That the sketches for the gigantic tower have been made was admitted today at the offices of Ernest Flagg, the architect of the Singer tower. His chief engineer said that no contract had been made, as the project was yet in the preliminary stages, the details being in process of development. As soon as Mr. Flagg returned from Europe, he said, definite action would be taken. It is said it would take at least a year to remove the present Mills building and get the work of laying the foundations under way. The plans now in process of development contemplate a tower with a maximum of office room on each
