

CHIEF WILLIAMS OFFERED TO BET THAT PRIVATE MOIR WOULD ESCAPE FROM ASYLUM

Murderer Wrote to London for Files and the Police Got Wind of the Letter and Forestalled the Scheme.

DR. ENGLISH WAS NOTIFIED THAT MOIR WAS SCHEMING

Says That the Story of the Escape in the Automobile Is All Popycock—London's Chief Gives His Opinion of the Whole Affair.

"It is only three weeks ago that I offered to bet Dr. English $50 that Moir would escape in less than three months," said Chief Williams last night to The Advertiser, when he returned from his holidays.

"Just about a month ago Moir wrote to a chum of his here, stating that he wanted to make a little present to one of his attendants. He asked the man to send him some articles, and also requested him to inclose in the parcel a package of small files for himself. He said the asylum was not big enough for him, and he had quite made up his mind to escape.

DR. ENGLISH NOTIFIED. "As soon as I heard about the letter I notified Dr. English to be on the watch. He would not believe that any such letter ever came from Moir, as he said all the mail leaving or coming to the asylum for prisoners was read. A couple of days after, I got the letter which was in Moir's own handwriting, and sent it down to Dr. English. He sent it on to the government officers, and by a queer coincidence it was returned to Dr. Robinson, of the London asylum.

MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE. "I think that Dr. English believes, as I do, that it was a miscarriage of justice to send Moir to an asylum. He is no more crazy than you or I. "As to the story about Moir leaving in an automobile, I do not believe a word of it. I would be willing to bet that for 24 hours he was within 20 miles of Hamilton."

Asked if he thought Moir would be recaptured, the chief said no, not unless the authorities are willing to spend the necessary money. "He is probably on board some ship by this time," said the chief.

TRACING THE STRANGE AUTO.

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—Fryd A. Ehrmann, the Buffalo hotel-keeper to whom the police looked for an explanation about License 3132, the number carried by the car in which Moir and Taggart are supposed to have escaped, has made a statement to the authorities that he sold the machine some time ago to the Centaur Motor Company, the number going with the car.

The company sold the car to a third party. The books showing the transfer of the car are locked up in a safe, while the manager of the Centaur Company is away.

The police are now looking for the third party. Detective Miller went to Buffalo again this morning, and it is evident that this is where Moir and Taggart are still believed to be hiding.

NIAGARA POWER MAY BE HERE BY THE 15TH OF OCTOBER NEXT

The London Electric Company's contract for street lighting will run until Dec. 1, no matter when Niagara power comes.

There is a rumor about the city hall to the effect that power will be here before that, probably by Oct. 15, but Acting Chairman Pocock stated to The Advertiser that no official communication had been received from the hydro-electric commission in reference to this, and consequently it would be impossible to state when it would be here.

MAYOR GAYNOR GETTING WELL

Passed the Danger Line and on the Way to Complete Recovery.

New York, Aug. 20.—Mayor Gaynor's condition was excellent today, his physicians said, and the danger period has now passed. The doctors agree that he will be completely recovered within a short time, and will go to the Adirondacks to complete his convalescence.

Major Gaynor, though, has indicated that he thought he ought to return to his home in St. James, Long Island, after leaving the hospital.

IN DEADLIEST FORM

The Cholera Continues to Spread in Parts of Italy.

Bari, Italy, Aug. 20.—Five new cases of cholera and three deaths are reported from Trani, where the epidemic continues to give rise to serious apprehension. The disease manifests itself in its deadliest form, many of the victims being attacked without its usual premonitory symptoms, and dying after a few hours.

In other parts of Apulia the situation is more hopeful, the population now being more willing to assist the authorities to enforce hygienic rules. Under the strict measures adopted the march of the cholera to new localities has been checked.

LONDON'S OLDEST RESIDENT DEAD

Mrs. Mary Z. Westland, of South London, Was Born Here in 1828.

CITY WAS THEN HAMLET

Mrs. Westland Had Resided Here Almost Continuously for Eighty-Two Years.

Mrs. Mary Z. Westland, of 36 Craig street, the oldest resident of London, died at her home yesterday afternoon.

There are undoubtedly many people in London older than Mrs. Westland, but they were not born here. She first saw the light of day when the present city was but a mere hamlet, in 1828. She had resided in London almost continuously ever since. Her husband, the late James Westland, died 35 years ago.

Mrs. Westland leaves two sons, James T., of this city, and George R., of Inisfail, Alta., and four daughters, Mrs. James Gray, Mrs. Donnie McCrimmon, Mrs. William Green and Miss Lillian, all of this city. Mrs. Sutherland, of Glenora; Mrs. Robertson, of Hamilton; Mrs. Drummond, of Perth, and Mrs. MacIsaac, of Red City, Mich., are sisters. Mrs. Westland was a sister of the late Thomas B. Robb. The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon to Woodland Cemetery.

$3,000 A YEAR FOR ROBERTS

London Electrical Engineer Is Going With B. C. Government.

ENGAGED AS AN EXPERT

Electrician Will Leave This City in a Week or Two to Take Up His Residence in the West.

Engineer D. P. Roberts, of this city, has been appointed electrical expert and inspector for the British Columbia Government, and will leave within a week or two for the west.

Some time ago he tendered his resignation to go with an English firm, but the British Columbia Government was looking for an expert to inspect their power houses in British Columbia and wrote to Mr. Roberts. Negotiations were carried on for some time, and Mr. Roberts made them a definite offer, which was accepted.

This morning he received a wire from Attorney-General Bowser, notifying him that his offer had been accepted, and to report at as early a date as possible.

The position is worth approximately $3,000 per annum, and is considered a very fine offer.

TORONTO STREET RAILWAYMEN ACCEPT CONCILIATION AWARD

[G. N. W. Dispatch.] Toronto, Aug. 20.—There will be no strike of the Toronto street railway men.

A mass meeting of the men, after a prolonged session lasting from about 1 till 4:15 this morning, voted decisively in favor of accepting the increase of wages, and the indefinite clause relative to hours of labor named in the report of the board of conciliation.

There was a warm debate on some of the clauses of the report, but this in the end was accepted as the best that could be secured.

The resolution is as follows: "That the employees of the Toronto Railway Company, in meeting assembled, while not for a moment satisfied with the report of the board in its entirety, yet, having regard for the public interest, do hereby accept the same with the expression of our determination to continue to agitate for the better conditions and better wages, for which we have contended in this instance."

STORM SEWER ONLY SOLUTION MAY VOTE AGAIN ON BYLAW

Enough Damage Was Done by One Storm a Short Time Ago to Pay For a Large Share of the Cost—And the Expense Is Only Beginning—Action For Damages.

It is now considered probable that a bylaw for a storm sewer system will be presented to the ratepayers in January next.

It will be remembered that last January a similar bylaw was up, but was defeated. For some years the agitation for a system has been keen, but somehow or other the citizens would not vote for it.

The need of such a system was evidenced not long ago, when enough damage was done by one storm to pay for a big portion of the cost. The expense is not done with either. W. F. Boughner has a suit for $1,000 damages against the city. There are half a dozen notices for lesser amounts in the city clerk's hands, and scores are waiting the outcome of Mr. Boughner's suit before taking action. One property-owner in the city had five cellars flooded, all doing considerable damage to household goods, and he stated to The Advertiser that he would bring suit if Mr. Boughner was successful.

"The Only Solution. "The only solution is a storm sewer," declared Consulting Engineer Graydon. "I have advocated it for years, and I am still convinced that it is an absolute necessity. The city would save money every year, and we would be obliged to have better streets, particularly in the east end of the city."

Ald. Saunders and Ald. Pocock, of the board of works, are convinced that such a sewer would be a decided help to the city of London, and it is thought likely that they will make a move to have another bylaw submitted to the people.

MISS FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE HAS VERY SIMPLE FUNERAL

Famous Nurse of Crimean War Laid Beside Her Parents in the Village Churchyard—Memorial Service Held in St. Paul's Cathedral—King and Queen in Attendance.

London, Aug. 20.—Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, who died Aug. 13 at her London home, was buried this afternoon beside the bodies of her father and mother in the churchyard of the little Hampshire village of East Willow.

In accordance with her often-expressed wishes for a simple private funeral, the ceremony was of the quietest nature, the only reminder of her great services to the army and the nation being the presence of a squad of the Grenadier Guards, who acted as bearers. Outside of these, only members of the immediate family and a few retainers were present at the funeral.

Public tribute to the "Angel of the Crimea" was paid at a memorial service at noon at St. Paul's Cathedral here, at which King George, Queen Mary, the Queen-Mother, Alexandra, the war, the admiralty, and the greater part of the British public bodies and colonies were represented.

The cathedral was crowded with the official representatives and thousands of private persons, who had come to do honor to the dead nurse, were unable to find places inside the church, and stood outside during the ceremony.

ALLEGED RUBBER THIEF SENT FOR TRIAL BY MAGISTRATE

John Lampman, Who Was Arrested for Hamilton, Was Arraigned in Court When the Preliminary Evidence Was Heard.

John Lampman, arrested in Hamilton some time ago, was sent for trial at the next sessions by Magistrate Love this morning on a charge of stealing rubber valued at $25 from the premises of the London Rag and Metal Company.

Mr. White, of the firm, stated that on the night of July 4, the rubber room was broken into and about 250 pounds of rubber taken.

Arthur Hoehn swore that on the morning of July 4 or 5, he wasn't sure which, Lampman came to their junk yard with another young man and wanted to sell some rubber. Mr. Hoehn had been informed by phone of the theft at the London Rag and Metal Company's place, and asked Lampman, who said his name was Smith, if it was who said his name was Smith, if it was

CRIPPEN AND AFFINITY OFF LEAVE QUEBEC FOR ENGLAND

[G. N. W. Dispatch.] Quebec, Aug. 20.—Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve were delivered to the Scotland Yard detectives by Acting Sheriff Begin last night, and they were taken from the jail at 7:30 this morning by Inspectors Dew and Mitchell.

DRUNK GAVE POLICE WILD GOOSE CHASE

The Magistrate Grew Peeved and Made Gentleman Pay for the Fiddler.

George Murray, a West London youth, who became intoxicated some time through the night and was arrested by the police early this morning, told a story that he had been beaten by a gang at the west end of Bathurst street. He mentioned several names. The police upon investigation found that the story was absolutely incorrect and without any foundation.

"I will teach you that the time of Columbus Lampton, a drunk, was allowed to go as a first-timer.

AUTOIST AND CYCLIST HURT IN HORTON ST. COLLISION

Mr. Anson Wallace, of 217 Richmond Street, in Serious Condition in Victoria Hospital—Mr. C. Rose, the Well-Known Automobile Man, Also Injured.

Mr. Anson, a carpenter living at 217 Richmond street, was seriously injured, and Mr. M. C. Rose, the well-known McLaughlin-Buick automobile agent of Richmond street, was painfully injured as the result of an accident on Horton street between Clarence and Wellington streets, shortly after one o'clock today.

Mr. Wallace was taken to Victoria Hospital, and Mr. Rose was removed to his residence. The machine was not badly smashed.

According to eye-witnesses Mr. Rose was coming west on Horton street, driving his car, and Mr. Wallace was on his bicycle, going the same direction. Mr. Rose blew his horn, but the road was somewhat bad at this point, and Mr. Wallace was unable to get out of the way. The machine struck a street car just turned the corner.

Struck the Bicyclist. Seeing that a collision was inevitable, Mr. Rose swerved his machine and ran towards the fence. He did not succeed in avoiding Mr. Wallace, but struck him, and knocked him down.

Mr. Rose later went to feel the effects of the accident, and it was discovered that he too was quite painfully injured. He was taken to his residence. At 3 o'clock he was resting quietly, and the physician in charge has ordered absolute quiet. No bones were broken, but there are numerous bruises on his body.

"Mr. Rose tried to avoid striking the man," said Mrs. Rose. "He ran into a tree and he was thrown out and patient fully bruised. The doctor has ordered him to be kept quiet and I think he (Continued on Page Eleven)

LONDON ELECTRIC CO. AND CITY ARE PLAYING LION AND LAMB

The London Electric Company and the city are getting together on the pole proposition, and there will be no need of a suit or any other process of law to arrive at an agreement.

Yesterday afternoon Manager Dark, of the city department, and Manager C. B. Hunt, of the London Electric Company, had a conference, and the difficulty is being rapidly arranged.

They went over most of the controversial ground, and an amicable arrangement will be arrived at. "There is no doubt we can arrange the matter," said Acting Chairman Pocock. "We must make a satisfactory arrangement that will be fair to the city as well as decent to the company."

GRAND TRUNK RY. PAY CAR LEAVES $100,000 IN LONDON

Today is pay day at the Grand Trunk station, and when the pay car comes in this morning it was soon surrounded by hundreds of employees and a great many others who did special work in connection with the strike. An official statement that the amount paid today will probably total $100,000, and break all previous records. In addition to receiving the regular pay with the increase which went into effect on July 1, the strike-breakers receive also a bonus. Hundreds of the regular employees worked overtime during the strike. The pay roll would have been much larger had it not been for so many engines being tied up temporarily.

ENGLISH PICNIC AT THE PARK DRAWS A VERY LARGE CROWD

The English picnic is being held at Springbank Park this afternoon. Large crowds are in attendance. The London street railway has been busy all morning taking the Englishmen and their families to the park, and they are still going down.

A fine programme of sports has been provided, and are proving a most attractive feature.

The Seventh Regiment Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Slatter, gave a fine concert at the park. It is expected that there will be 5,000 people at the picnic 3 o'clock.

The Officers of the association are the following: Honorary President—Sir John Carling; Patrons—Sir W. R. Meredith, Major

BUDD IS SUSCEPTIBLE TO JOY OR SORROW

Too Ready to Get Drunk When Anything Unusual Occurs.

There seems to be every indication that Frank Budd, a colored man who appeared in court this morning for being drunk, is of an emotional character and very susceptible to joy or sorrow. It is said that Budd was arrested on the day he was to be married because he imbibed too freely, and the wedding had to be delayed until he could be bromo-seltzered.

This morning Budd told Magistrate Love that his baby daughter died a few days ago, and that he took some wine as a stimulant.

"That is the last thing you should do at any time," said the court. "Times of bereavement are not time for indulging in wine, and you should not show your sorrow by getting drunk. It is a pretty sad thing to have a funeral in the family, but to have the father drunk is terrible. I understand your wife has complained that you have been drinking too much. Besides you are on the Indian list. I will fine you $10 or two days in jail."

Mr. Budd decided to take the two days in jail.

INDIAN LISTERS

Magistrate Decorated Two With Plain and Ornamental Phrases.

William Proctor, an Indian lister, who has been appearing regularly before Magistrate Love of late, was fined $20, or seven days, when he appeared this morning.

"You are a bully, a tyrant and coward," the court told him. "Your wife has complained repeatedly about your conduct. You are not fit to be around any house where there are women and little children."

Michael Davis, an Indian lister, who lives in London Township, gathered in for being drunk, said he got his whiskey in St. Thomas.

"That is what you tell us every time you come up," said the court. "I think we had better get you put on the St. Thomas Indian list."

Davis was fined $10 and $2 costs.

DETECTIVE MURDERED AT OYSTER BAY

Was Dane of Enormous Strength—Killed by a Crowd of Loiterers.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 20.—George Gostelli, a New York detective, who was well known for his enormous strength, was murdered early today. He was killed in a fight with a crowd at the landing of the Sevanahs Yacht Club's boat house here. Gostelli had been acting as keeper of the boat house during the summer while he was recuperating from a bullet wound.

An attempt was made to assassinate him in New York last spring. He was shot down on a street in Harlem while he was tracing a man who was suspected of robbery. His assailant fled, leaving him for dead, and was not captured.

Gostelli had had trouble all summer with a crowd of men who insisted on loitering about the boat house and a week ago he fought several of them single-handed, driving them away. Half a dozen of them went to the boat house last night and Gostelli drove them away. They returned early today, one of them carrying a shotgun. Three shots were fired, two from the detective's revolver and one from the shotgun. Gostelli fell dead on the wharf.

Gostelli came to America several years ago from Denmark. He said little of his past life. He prized greatly a seal ring, on which was a coat of arms. He was believed to have been a member of a noble family.

PUTTING MONEY INTO CANADA.

The stream of capital pouring into Canada does not come entirely from Great Britain and the United States, as many Canadians have supposed. Other countries are recognizing that the Dominion is a field for investment, as well as emigration. The editor of the Monetary Times has made elaborate inquiries and estimates that about $78,000,000 of foreign capital (excluding the United States), has found its way to this country. France leads the list with $49,250,000, of which $25,000,000 is represented by mortgages. The thrifty habits of the French make France a reservoir of free capital. For this reason it is gratifying to know that French investors are beginning to look favorably upon the Dominion. Certainly this country is as inviting as Russia, into which France has poured two billion dollars. Frenchmen hold large blocks of Lake of the Woods, Quebec Railway, Montreal Power, Montreal Street Railway, Toronto Street Railway, and Dominion Steel Corporation securities, but generally speaking their interests are in Western Canada. The Credit Foncier Franco-Canadien has been so long established that it is recognized as a Canadian institution. It is reported to have attracted $20,000,000 to the Dominion. The Canadian Mortgage Association expects to place $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 of French money in this country.

German investments in Canada are estimated to be $16,500,000, but the unfortunate purchase of Sovereign Bank stock will for many years, it is feared, operate against Canada in the German money market. Belgians have put $7,500,000 into Canada, most of it within the past 10,000 years. Holland is represented by $1,000,000, and Turkey by $3,000,000, the latter being Government and railway securities purchased by one bank in Constantinople. British investments in Canada in the five years 1905-1909, reached the staggering total of $605,453,852. American investments are estimated at $279,075,000, including the investments of other countries. This is an aggregate of $982,418,502, but the real figure is much beyond a billion dollars, as British investments before 1905 were enormous. Nearly all the debenture and preference stock and 65 per cent of the common stock of the C. P. R. are held in Great Britain. The same is true of the Grand Trunk. The Monetary Times is well warranted in saying that Canada is an investment field is one of the most attractive in the world. We have incurred a mountain of debt, which is a mortgage on our future; but what a future!

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT.

What is behind all this talk of a rupture between Taft and Roosevelt? If we are to believe the "regular" or "standpat" Republicans, Roosevelt's conduct has the aspect of a conspiracy against the President. He is already manoeuvring, they say, to re-enter the presidential field. The insurgent or irregular Republicans are claiming Roosevelt as a convert, and profess to hope that he will soon head the revolt against "standpattism." It will be the fault of the President, they contend, if he incurs the rivalry of Roosevelt. The administration may yet ward off a mutiny by divorcing itself from the money power, and the interests and influences represented by such men as Cannon and Aldrich.

The storm centre at present is the New York State election. The regulars are in control of the party machinery. They have chosen Vice-President Sherman as temporary chairman of the state convention, in opposition to Roosevelt. The insurgents say that Sherman is acting under orders from Taft, and that his appearance on the stage is a challenge and a warning to Roosevelt. The latter is being importuned to lead a fight for the control of the state convention, but so far he has not indicated what his course will be. Probably he will stand aside, and allow the regulars full control, with the likely result of a Republican defeat at the polls in November, through the defection of the irregulars.

In the meantime the insurgent movement is sweeping over the country like a cyclone. California has followed Iowa and Kansas. The old Republican machine, which has been for many years a donkey engine of the Southern Pacific Railway, has gone down to defeat at the hands of Hiram Johnson, the progressive candidate for the governorship. American politics has acquired a dramatic interest and a moral significance which it has lacked since the days of Cleveland.

BETTER HOUSING IN ENGLAND.

The movement in England to improve the housing of the working classes, with which Messrs. Cadbury, Rowntree and other wealthy businessmen are associated, has a strong champion in Mr. John Burns, president of the local government board. The aim is to diminish the incentive to visit the public house by making the home so attractive that the public house will be despised; to bring the towns into the country and the gardens into the towns, and by a judicious amalgamation of both to secure for the whole of the people, irrespective of class, something more tolerable, decent, beautiful, and human, than the collection of humped animals that have been dumped in and round London during the past hundred years. This object, the promoters of the movement believe, can best be accomplished by the establishment in various parts of the country of well-built, modern garden suburbs.

Mr. Burns recently laid the foundation of the first house to be built in one of these suburbs at Romford. In the course of an address, he said the movement had come as an attempt to enable a community to order consciously their present habitation, their future growth and development, and to provide for their civic expansion on lines healthy, wealthy, beautiful, and so to regulate their houses, towns and cities that the ugliness, squalor and meanness of many towns today should be avoided. "I am for the home-stead against the tenement," said Mr. Burns, "for the house versus the flat, for the home against the barrack, and I am for peace to the cottage and death to the institution. I like the detached house, the separate garden, and the private house with the collective garden." It is because the garden suburb forms the model of British housing that Mr. Burns has lent his support to the movement.

It must not be supposed, however, that because the matter of better housing has been taken up in England the town population there is denser than in other countries. As Mr. Burns pointed out, Berlin, which is often quoted as a model to copy, has 75 per cent of its population living in three rooms or less, while in London only 52 per cent is so housed. In Berlin 539 per 1,000 of the houses are of five stories, and 99 per 1,000 are of six or seven stories; in London the average is from two to three and rarely four stories. Berlin has 46 people per house to London's 8, and it is hoped these garden suburbs will reduce the number to 5. In all the diseases that are due to insanitation and overcrowding, London leads by 20 to 50 per cent over the capitals of Europe. Battersea, a borough of London, which has only one-tenth of the population of Berlin, has more separate and distinct houses, and in forty years the population has increased four times, yet the death rate has dropped from 26 to 12, and the infant mortality from 162 to 107. But the population of England and London has grown greatly during the last 25 years, and it is still growing, and it is hoped the carrying out of the garden suburb scheme will prevent the poverty and squalor which develop in unregulated communities, where the habitations of the people are not arranged on healthy and attractive lines. In short, what is desired is more healthy, better educated, more noble and more sober communities than is possible in many of the present slum quarters of the great English cities.

The General Conference has voted down a proposal to allow a congregation to retain a minister eight years. Is it the theory that a change is as good as a rest for both the minister and the congregation?

There will be no street railway strike in Toronto, the men voting to accept the award of the conciliation committee appointed under the Lemieux act. If there had been a strike, the News, Mail, and Telegram would have hastened to hold the Lemieux act responsible, as they did in the case of the Grand Trunk troubles.

WHERE THE STICKS ARE THICKEST.

Our only surprise is that the malmigners of Canada have been so slow in getting in their work. Just now this is the only country against which a certain section of the United States press is directing its attacks. We are reminded of the man who said he could always tell which was the best apple tree in the orchard, without tasting the apples, because there were always the most sticks under it. When a country is no good it is never necessary to tell the public so.

THE DIFFERENCE

When Mr. Borden last visited the west he carefully "staked out" the facilities. He did not venture to produce "adequate protection." He avoided the issue. Not so Sir Wilfrid. He has met the issue squarely, and has made it plain that revision of the tariff will be downward, not upward. Having no definite policy on the tariff which could command the unanimous support of his party, Mr. Borden could promise nothing.

DANGEROUS!

It has been frequently demonstrated that looking for gas in the dark is a very hazardous undertaking.

APPRECIATION OF ART.

"I went to see your piece at the theatre last night, and was delighted with it. Do tell me where the costumes were made."

SHOWING MERCY.

"Young gentlemen," announced the professor of English literature, "tomorrow I wish you to come prepared to discuss this sentence from the work of Henry James: 'The entire sentence, professor?' groaned the class. 'Well, take it as far as the first semicolon.'"

TASTELESS CONFECTION.

A little girl who lives on the South Side was overjoyed one evening when her father brought her a large sack of confection with which to celebrate the Fourth of July. After a time, however, she came to her father with tears in her eyes. "It isn't any good at all, father," she said; "it hasn't a bit of taste to it."

NOTHING NEGLECTED.

Appropos of the unexampled extravagance and luxury of New York's multimillionaires, Mrs. August Belmont said at a dinner at Tuxedo: "Then there's young Knickerbocker. Look at young Knickerbocker now. He has nineteen regular servants at his town house, and yet since King Edward's death he had hired four extra colored ones, who are known just to bring up black-edged letters and to look after visitors dressed in mourning."

PITCHERS WILL BE PITCHERS.

Mrs. Jawback—I am a woman of few words. Mr. Jawback—Yes, but you warm them over so often.

A SUBURBANITE.

Dinks—So you enjoyed the circus? Winks—Yes; I was particularly interested in the juggler. I'll bet that man could get any number of hunderd from a street car to the train without dropping one of them.

ECONOMY.

Maudie—hear that, Charley! deliberately picked a quarrel with his fiancée. Claude—Yes, he said he simply had to. Wanted to stop buying flowers for a while, so he could pay his tailor.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Teacher—Now do you see the difference between animal instinct and human reason? Bright Lou—Yes'm. If we had instinct we'd know everything we needed to without learning it, but we've got reason and have to study ourselves most 'blind or a fool.

REJECTED.

Howard—How did you make your wife stop buying your ties? Coward—I told her I'd let her pick out my ties for me if she'd let me choose the style and hairdressing for her.

A BARGAIN.

"Flag of truth and justice which resulted in a verdict against the United States. On the joint high commission which sat at Quebec in 1898, Canada was represented by four members and Great Britain by one. The object of this commission was to settle, if possible, the terms of a treaty with the United States. At the present moment Canada is fully represented by The Hague arbitration. Of the ten civilized nations agreeing last fall to make a standard map of the world, Canada is one. Canada was one of several nations to fit-out an expedition of observation to obtain scientific data of the eclipse of the sun a few years ago.

Canada a Nation

From the Ottawa Free Press.

Who can deny that we have reached a status recognized by other countries as that of a nation? France has recently ratified a treaty made with Canada, subject, in terms, to the ratification of the Parliament of Canada. Two members of an international tribunal that sat in London were delegated by the Canadian Government. A Canadian was the sole British arbitrator in the hearing of the case. The result was a verdict against the United States. On the joint high commission which sat at Quebec in 1898, Canada was represented by four members and Great Britain by one. HELD FOR MURDER

Albert Blondin, Who Shot Dr. Empey, Must Stand a Trial.

Vars, Ont., Aug. 20.—An inquest into Thursday's tragedy, in which Dr. Empey lost his life through a shot fired by Albert Blondin was held yesterday. It was discovered that only one barrel of the shotgun had been fired. After being out for five hours, the coroner's jury brought in an open verdict to the effect that Empey came to his death by wounds inflicted by Blondin, but that jurors were unable to decide whether the fatality was due to accident or intent. At the preliminary trial before Magistrates Macdonald and Stewart, Blondin was committed to stand trial for murder at the L'Original assizes. Blondin maintains the shooting was accidental, and as proof exhibits a bruise on his abdomen, where he says the gun kicked him. There is a feeling in the village that his story may be correct, color being given this by the entire absence of any motive for murder.

MEN MAY ACCEPT AWARD

Toronto Street Railway Trouble Probably Settled Tonight.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Judge Barron said this morning that the street railway conciliation board would have its decision ready at about 8 o'clock this evening, and it is believed the mass meeting of the men called for midnight tonight will accept the award, as well as the railway company.

BISHOP INGRAM IN HAMILTON

Noted Prelate Will Soon Pay a Visit to His Brother at Aylmer, Ont.

A BUSY TIME AHEAD

His Lordship Has a Strenuous Programme for Sunday—Will Arrive in Aylmer on Monday.

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—Right Rev. Bishop Ingram, of London, England, who has come to Canada to visit his brother at Aylmer, Ont., and attend the Anglican Church tri-centenary, which will be celebrated at Halifax shortly, arrived in Hamilton yesterday, and was welcomed by Bishop DuMoulin, many prominent clergymen and laity of the diocese of Niagara. He reached Montreal Thursday evening on the Empress of Britain, on which Archbishop Bourne, the head of Roman Catholicism in London, who is in this country to attend the Eucharistic Congress, was a passenger. Bishop Ingram left for Hamilton without delay. As the train from Montreal rolled into Hamilton at 10:30, Bishop DuMoulin, whose guest his lordship will be during his short stay here, headed a delegation of prominent clergy and laity, who were waiting to greet the distinguished visitor. Bishop Ingram, his fine features wreathed in smiles, stepped jauntily off the steps of the parlor car, and was cordially greeted by the Bishop of Niagara. The Lord Bishop of London then shook hands with each of the party, dropping pleasant remarks as he passed along. "I hope the clergy will not be shocked at those things," he laughingly remarked as he pointed to his golf bags. His lordship is an enthusiastic devotee of the links and always carries his golf sticks when he goes travelling. An Aylmer Lady. Accompanying him was his niece, Mrs. Ingram, of Aylmer Ont., who is on her way home. She was introduced to the party, and was escorted by Bishop DuMoulin to a carriage. The distinguished guest attracted much attention during the few minutes he stood on the station platform. "Who is that tall gentleman wearing the large gold cross?" asked a tourist from the United States. When informed, he said: "I thought so. I have seen his picture, and his face is not one that is likely to be soon forgotten." "The reporters were told that the bishop was too tired after his long trip to be interviewed. He was driven direct to the See House. A Sight-Seeing Trip. Today this Lordship will be taken around the city in an auto and conveyed through the Niagara fruit belt. He will also be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by George E. Bristol, to give the clergy and laity an opportunity of meeting him. The affair will be purely informal. On Sunday morning the bishop will hold a communion service, and on Sunday afternoon he will address a meeting at the station. He served a short time as curate in Shrewsbury, Shropshire, and then went to London as rector of Bethnal Green. He at once saw the condition of the lower strata, and threw himself into the work of the slums. Two great events in the metropolis will always be associated with his name—the founding of the Oxford movement, and the opening of the Red House in Commercial Road, Whitechapel. By the former work he brought classic Oxford into direct contact with the London slums, and by the latter provided a strong counter attraction to the numerous drinking places.

Dear Miss Grey: What will keep shoes from squeaking? SQUEAKY.

Dear Miss Grey: I ordered lobster salad, creamed potatoes, and tea at a restaurant recently. I have since heard that I was criticised by a member of the party.

Dear Miss Grey: What can be done with old faded leather table covers, which have become faded by the sun? A FRIEND.

Dear Miss Grey: I have long saved up a great deal of combings, I should like to know if one of your readers could explain how these hairs are fastened together for making a plain switch. 2. During the summer months persons have the misfortune to get poisoned with ivy, oak and various other kinds. I have been badly poisoned myself, so know the torture. The safest and best cure is plain spirits of camphor. It kills the poison and does not drive it into the system. HENRIETTA R.

Dear Miss Grey: The combings are not a matter which we have a right to discuss. The care of hair and skin, with all affairs of fashion and costume, is the province of the advertisers. I fancy that the weaving of the loose hairs into a switch or puff is a professional art. If I am mistaken, somebody may be depended upon to set me right.

HAPPINESS A DUTY. Be happy. Be happy in spite of everything. When a person is not happy he is a failure in life.

It has been said that nothing makes happiness like happiness, and from observation one sees that it is true. Happiness is an excellent habit to get into. Surely there are those who are so minded that they cannot cultivate the good habit of being happy.

The trouble with some people who fancy themselves unhappy is in reality only an unwelcome fancy—they like to look on the dark side.

Robert Louis Stevenson said that "No duty is so undervalued as that of being happy," and it would seem that women are generally neglectful in this respect.

CHAPTER XXX.

So fierce had been the fight while it lasted, and so suddenly had come the storm, that Hilma had not time to think of anything but her own safety.

"Thank God you're safe," the princess cried as she rushed to me. And then she was a mother, with a frightened animal at the blood on my face.

"What now?" she asked as quietly as if we were playing a game and not tempting life and death.

BEAUTY PATTERN COMPANY.

No. 8768—A Smart-Looking Suit for the Boy.

A simply made and neat suit is here shown. It is a good design for general school service.

The newest belts are rather wide with round or broad oval buckles. The smartest novelty is made of black patent leather trimmed with gold lacing.

Satin is to be much worn in the fall. Frilled hats are quite modish now. Frilled satin toques that set well down on the head are the fads of the moment.

Lingerie and chiffon costumes in black and white are possibly the most striking of any that are being shown this season.

At least one odd waist in the wardrobe of the modish woman should match her tailor suit, or the color scheme of the suit should be carried out in the form of a jumper or over-bouse of chiffon.

Don't you think for a minute that frills are out of fashion. The very fact that they must be used, and "look just horrid" when massed, keeps them "in." To wear them indicates laundry bills are of no consequence to you.

Nothing rescues a passe shirt-waist so effectively as a fall. There is the fall demure of accordion-pleated lawn or mull or linen, with its scalloped edge of embroidery. Or, sometimes, the edge is only a deep fold of black or color. Large white handkerchiefs with colored borders have come to their artistic end in many of these frills.

Then there is the frill aristocratic, of lace or allover embroidery, elaborately tucked and edged with accordion-pleated satin. Sometimes the frill aristocratic is of net, with silk-embroidered dots and a stiff lace edge. This is worn with the silk or expensive lingerie waist.

And there is the frill practical, really part of the waist and concealing its opening. This is likely to be adorned with a diagonal row of buttons—black, if the folded edge is black; colored, if colored—or else is of plain stripe embroidery, hiding the band of buttons and buttonholes below it. It has been tucked in the blouse material, pin-tucked.

LACK OF PURE BLOOD THE CAUSE OF MOST ILLNESS—THE CURE, ENRICH THE BLOOD SUPPLY.

Any illness caused by lack of blood will be benefited and cured by a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are made from the finest blood purifiers to increase the red matter in the blood and enable it to carry to every organ and tissue an increased supply of oxygen, the great supporter of all organic life.

This has been proved by cures in thousands of cases not only in Canada, but in all parts of the world. More people today own health and happiness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine. One of these is Mr. James Starr, of Galahad, Ala., who says: "A few years ago I became ill and very weak. Some days I would have a hot dry fever, and on others would be bathed in a cold sweat. I grew weaker and weaker until I could do no kind of work, and was finally confined to my bed. I tried several doctors, who cost me considerable money, but did me no good, as I was still getting weaker and weaker. I asked the last doctor who attended me to tell me frankly if he could cure me, and he told me my case was so complicated that he did not think he could help me. I told him I had heard a great deal about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and asked if he thought they would help me. His reply was, 'Well, they won't do you any harm and they may help you.' I sent for a half-dozen boxes at once and began taking them. After taking three boxes there was no doubt they were helping me, and I continued using them for some time longer. With the result that I am now as strong and hearty and can do as good a day's work as any man in my neighborhood."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

SPECIAL NOTICE. Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 801 Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chance are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

SAVED FROM THE KNIFE

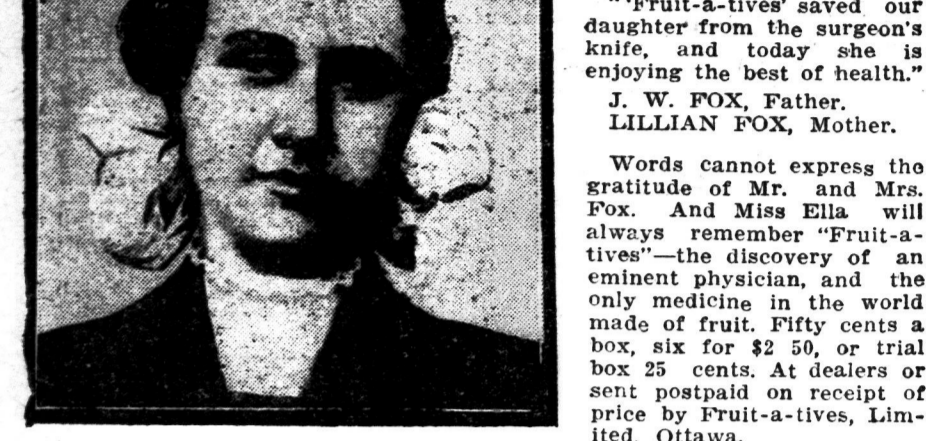

Appendicitis Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

Newburgh, Ont., Feb. 12, 1910.

"Just about a year ago our daughter Ella, 14 years, was taken with terrible pains in the right side. The pain was so severe that we had to carry her to bed. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis, and advised an operation.

"We took her to a hospital in Kingston, where she was again examined by an eminent specialist. He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once if we wanted to save her life. As we had taken her to Kingston to have this done, we were ready, but our daughter was afraid and cried and begged so pitifully that we postponed it for that day. Luckily for us and for her an uncle came in with some 'Fruit-a-tives', and insisted on Ella taking them. Good results were apparent almost from the first dose, and the continuous treatment cured her.

"'Fruit-a-tives' saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife, and today she is enjoying the best of health."

J. W. FOX, Father.
LILLIAN FOX, Mother.

Words cannot express the gratitude of Mr. and Mrs. Fox. And Miss Ella will always remember "Fruit-a-tives"—the discovery of an eminent physician, and the only medicine in the world made of fruit. Fifty cents a box, six for $2.50, or trial box 25 cents. At dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS HELD FOR FRAUD

Ex-Manager of Illinois Central and Others Arrested—Traces of Over $1,000,000 Graft.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Three former executive officers of the Illinois Central Railroad Company were arrested today on warrants in connection with the alleged frauds by means of which the railroad was defrauded, it is said, of $1,500,000.

The men arrested were: Frank B. Harriman, formerly general manager of the road; Charles L. Ewing, formerly manager of lines north of the Ohio River; John M. Taylor, former general storekeeper of the road.

The warrants, sworn to by J. T. Harahan, of the Illinois Central Railroad, charge the three men with conspiracy to cheat and defraud the railroad by false pretences, and with operating a confidence game. Harriman and Ewing were taken to the Harrison street police station. Their bonds of $10,000 each were signed by a professional bondsman.

The allegations in the graft case are startling. The investigation began a year ago. It reached a crisis last spring when President Harahan began action against the men said to have aggregated more than $1,000,000. The allegations were that they conspired to have repair companies in connivance with high officials of the road, Harriman, Ewing, Taylor and many others of less magnitude, resigned their positions. Much of the money is said to have been repaid privately.

The name of Ira G. Rawn, who resigned a vice-presidency in the Illinois Central to become president of the Monon System, and who was found dead recently at his home with a bullet wound in his breast, was brought into the scandal. Murray Nelson, Jun., attorney for the Illinois Central, today said that Rawn's death headed off warrants which would have been issued for him.

Private detectives, working under the direction of Mr. Harahan, are said to have unearthed frauds other than those connected with padded car repair bills. These are said to involve the diverting of $1,000,000 or more from new construction funds. The investigators say they have procured several confessions, which will be used in their attempt to fasten guilt on culpable persons.

Today's developments bring the name of Ewing into the case for the first time.

"I have never been approached by any attorney or detective engaged in this case," Mr. Harriman said. "I am perfectly innocent of any and all charges made against me. I will admit that I have been awaiting some such action as this order in order to clear the charges. I am glad of the opportunity to clear my name. I have always been true to my friends, and I want them to know, as will be shown in court, that I was always true to the Illinois Central."

Harriman's connection with the Illinois Central Company covered a period of 21 years. He began as a civil engineer's apprentice, served three years as an assistant roadmaster, and rose through the grades of construction engineer, trainmaster and division superintendent to the general management.

An official of the Illinois Central road tonight intimated that other warrants would follow those issued.

"We will get the last man in this conspiracy, if it takes us down to the lowest section hand," he declared. "The mass of evidence we have obtained is so great that it demonstrates that political graft in its palmy days conditions pale into insignificance beside the hoodwinking of the railroad executives by rascals. I expect that other roads will wake up, and that their awakening will produce more than one surprise."

Mr. Harahan, who has a detailed file of documents and photographs, laid the case before him. Judge Olson referred him to Judge Brugemeyer, in the jurisdiction of which the case is pending. The Illinois Central officials are detained. Judge Brugemeyer issued the warrants, but made every effort to keep the fact secret.

Hearing on the warrants was set for next Friday.

THE WESTERN BUSINESS COLLEGE CHANGES HANDS

It has just been learned that the above-named college has passed into the hands of Mr. W. Brooks, of Toronto. Mr. W. C. Coo, who has conducted the college for over 25 years, has found that his duties as official court reporter have been pressing so closely upon him that it was impossible to give the school sufficient attention.

The work of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, which Mr. Coo is official stenographer, has increased so much that he has to spend a great deal of his time in Toronto, and in the future will devote his whole time to official court work. Miss Lillian Fowler, assistant court stenographer, will have charge of the court work in London.

Mr. Coo in his official position and appointments, will be continually coming into contact with men requiring well-trained stenographers, and very naturally he will refer all such matters to the old college, which has been the centre of his interests for so long a time.

Mr. Brooks, the purchaser, is well and favorably known throughout Canada in business college work. He has been identified with the most important college organization in the Dominion, as well as having had considerable experience in a number of the larger American cities. He is energetic and aggressive in his policies, and his new undertaking will have his best attention. The Western Business College has therefore been giving its time chiefly to Shorthand and Typewriting work, but it is proposed now to fully develop the Commercial Branch, and to take the college over in complete in every detail of its various courses. Important alterations in the premises have been under way for some time, so that the institution will commence the new term under its new management in quarters splendidly adapted to the requirements of a thoroughly up-to-date, business college.

NO NEED FOR KNIFE.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—"You do not need a knife to cut the leaves with now, the bakers make them so small," said Magistrate Denison this morning to Arturo Pierra, an Italian, charged with carrying a dirk. Pierra pleaded that he needed the weapon to cut his beard with. He got a short sentence for being drunk.

On Inauguration Day, Tuesday, August 23, he will hold a grand review of the Boy Scouts in front of the grandstand. About 1,700 of the Scouts will be encamped on the Exhibition grounds.

CROESUS DIES OF A BROKEN HEART

Founded School With His Fortune—Bested by Brother in Love Affair.

St. Louis, Aug. 19.—David Ranken, Jun., who recently gave all but a small part of his $3,000,000 fortune to the David Ranken trade school, which he had recently founded here, died early today at Atlantic City. His death is attributed to heart disease and persistent importunities of two brothers stood together. David, a beggar, but it may have been a mania of love that hastened his death.

For a somber remembrance surrounded the life of this man, which he was able to overcome only partially by business and application. Ranken loved as few men love, and neither the marriage or death of the one he adored altered his devotion.

The girl was Mary Ranken, his own first cousin, of this city. It was in the late sixties and she for a time favored his suit. But she was won, not by him, but his brother, Robert Ranken.

Grief tore the heart of the young man when his brother led his love to the altar, and for 16 years David lived apart and did not speak to his cousin or his brother. Then Mary Ranken died, and at her grave the two brothers stood together. Bound by their mutual sadness, they were friends again. David made friends with his brother's six children.

But this was not to last long, for Robert soon married Miss Nellie Haliday, a girl of his own rank. The marriage seemed a sacrifice. Immediately he went his own way once more and never again passed a word with his brother Robert.

As the years passed the melancholy of the former general of the province and more. He went about only in the pursuit of business and the acquirement of a great fortune. He did not make friends and had no visitors at his modest home, 511 North Fifteenth street, where he had lived for five years past. To Mrs. Mary Hickman, his housekeeper, he scarcely spoke except when necessary.

Ranken made his million in real estate and speculation. Much of his real estate he purchased in the days when values were low, and later sold at great profits. He was a Democrat. He was born in Londonderry, Ireland. He came to St. Louis in 1862.

PRIZE FIGHT AND LAW

Judge Declares No Legal Case Against Exhibitions of Pictures.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Crown Prosecutor Walsh, under instructions from the attorney-general of the province, applied today for warrants against those who had given alleged exhibitions of the fight between Jeffries and Johnson. Judge Lanctot refused the application, and declared no legal case could be made out against the exhibitors of the pictures, unless the law is arranged by the Legislature. It is now likely the original films will be shown in Montreal. Prize fights are tolerated in the suburbs. Last night a 15-round affair was pulled off in Massonneuve. Thus far no legal interference has been sought.

DECK HAND DROWNED.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Edward Brockwell, a deckhand on the Niagara Navigation Company's steamer Chicora, fell overboard and was drowned when the steamer was half way to Toronto on her trip this afternoon. The engines were reversed and every effort made to save the man, but in vain. So suddenly were the engines reversed that the machinery was damaged and the boat is now in dock for needed repairs. Brockwell came here recently from England.

LOST BY DEFAULT.

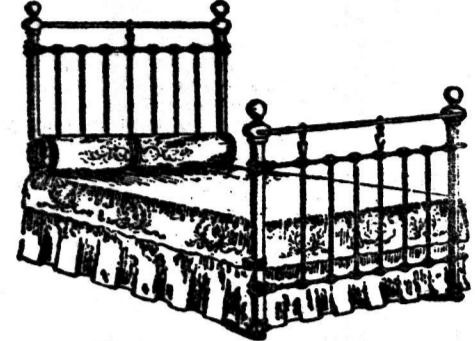

St. Marys, Aug. 19.—The return game in the intermediate C. E. A. series between St. Marys and Stratroy, which was to have been played here yesterday, was won by Stratroy by default. St. Marys defeated Stratroy in the first game played here Aug. 10 by the score of 24 goals to 2.

ESPERANTO RANKS MAY BE DISRUPTED

Esperantists in Canada and the United States Claim They Are Kept in Dark.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Whether or not there is to be an insubordinate outbreak in the ranks of the Esperanto Association of North America which will cast a pall over the success of the international congress in session here, will be determined by tonight.

The grievance of the Esperantists of the United States and Canada is that their organization is practically a family affair. General Secretary Reid, of the North American Association, who is also secretary of the congress, with his wife, who was Dr. Fry Kellerman, of Columbus, Ohio, constitute the majority of the executive committee which is the controlling power of the American Esperantists. The third member of the executive committee is Professor Stillman, of the Department of Agriculture.

Are Up in Arms.
Esperantists of the United States and Canada are up in arms because they are in the dark as to what is going on in their affairs.

They say that they do not know whether or not the Esperantist class are increasing or decreasing, nor what disposition is made of the revenues that go to the executive committee. Professor Stillman, it is said, is as greatly uninformed on this point as are the members, and lined up with the insurgents.

Circular letters have been sent by those behind the movement to all members, asking them to state their grievances so as to eliminate the personal element in the North American group.

elections were being closely but quietly contested.

Loath to Speak Out.
The American universal language advocates who are dissatisfied with the present executive committee control, have been working quietly to remedy their grievances. All are loath to come out openly at this time, believing that a family row among the American brethren would hurt the American association delegates' representatives.

This afternoon the delegates attended the "Bassale" between Washington and Cleveland. The "decano" or umpire, for the accommodation of the foreigners who do not understand English, called "Frapuor" for "strike" and used Esperanto whenever he could remember the terms that he had been practicing for several days. A baseball book, explaining the great American game, written in Esperanto, was furnished the delegates.

CHATHAM MAN HATES THE DOG CATCHER

Paid Fine For Interference and Is Not a Bit Sore Over It.

[By Our Own Man.] Chatham, Aug. 20.—One dollar and 40 cents was the fine yesterday imposed upon Gaspare Favato, the Italian fruit dealer, for assaulting Alexander Jamieson, the local dog catcher. Much local interest was manifested in this case, as both Favato and Jamieson have frequently been in trouble. The case occupied the attention of the court all morning. Favato was defended in court by W. E. Gundy. He based his defense on the plea that he did not know Jamieson was an official dog catcher when he caught him carrying off his dog. He claimed that Jamieson did not wear any badge of office, and he also claimed that the dog was muzzled when the dog catcher caught it. Jamieson's story was that he was going down Queen street on Wednesday when he saw two dogs in front of Favato's store. One was not muzzled. He caught the dog and was putting it in his wagon, when Favato came running out and struck him. He struck him five or six times, and acted as if he were insane. The police stepped in and in both went to the station. Magistrate Houston based his judgment on the belief that the Italian did not know Jamieson was an official dog catcher. He thought his dog was being stolen. He said that the city should either supply the dog catcher with a badge or uniform. At the conclusion of the trial, Favato appeared to be rather delighted with the publicity he was receiving. "It do ma business good," he said. "People hate Jamieson. They come buy bananas from me. They wish Jamieson would come and try to take another dog. He would cheerfully pay the fine."

SUMMER RESORT HOTEL MAN FINED

Owned Up to Having Liquor for Sale on His Premises.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Aug. 20.—David Wees, proprietor of the Grand View Hotel, Wees Beach, appeared before Magistrate Fleck yesterday afternoon in answer to a summons charging him with having liquor for sale on his premises. Mr. Wees pleaded guilty and was fined $20, with costs of $10.44. A charge was also laid for selling liquor, but this was withdrawn. A young man named McCree, of Peoria, who is charged, while under the influence of liquor, with stealing $15 from a fellow boarder at Lake Huron Park, came before Magistrate Fleck yesterday for sentence. McCree, when arrested on Wednesday, denied knowing anything about the money, but when he was told that the evidence against him was established, A. Johnston searched the room where McCree had been staying in a downtown hotel and found $10, he pleaded guilty. The magistrate, after hearing evidence as to the young man's respectability, allowed him to go on suspended sentence on condition that he would give up the use of intoxicating liquor and appear when called on for sentence. The members of Sarnia Lodge, I. O. O. F., will attend divine worship at St. John's Church on Sunday morning. Rev. T. G. A. Wright will occupy the pulpit. All offerings are cordially invited to attend.

CAPT. KENDALL TO GET REWARD

Serious Labor Trouble in Winnipeg—Large Numbers Affected.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 20.—From 40 to 90 per cent of the masons and bricklayers who have been employed on the many millions of dollars worth of buildings now being erected in Winnipeg, were not working yesterday afternoon. It is estimated that some 200 men are directly affected, but most of the allied trades are held up, as the result of the union ignoring the ultimatum of the Builders' Exchange that the members of the union who quit work on the Lynn Mill Company's contracts return to their employment by 7 a. m. this morning or suffer a loss of all work in the city, contracted by members of the exchange. The exchange members met at 10 a. m., and at noon paid off all their masons and bricklayers and the strike was on. As building operations are now active the lockout in a serious affair.

LANTERN WAS FOUND BURNING ON DOCK

Feared That James Mulligan, a Night Watchman of Sarnia, Has Been Drowned.

[By Our Own Man.] Sarnia, Aug. 20.—It is feared that James Mulligan, of 536 South Christina street, night watchman at the chain works dock, was drowned last night. He went to work as usual in the evening, but this morning failed to go home. As he is not a drinking man, his wife became alarmed, and a search was instituted. His lantern, which was still burning, together with his hat and a fishing line, were soon found, but no trace of the watchman was revealed. Mulligan has a wife and six small children.

Under his charge important improvements were made to the edifice and the congregation was greatly strengthened.

FRANK JOHNSON SAID TO BE IN DETROIT

Men Who Killed Jake Enos Declared To Be Having a Good Time a Few Miles Away.

[By Our Own Man.] Chatham, Aug. 20.—A local colored man, speaking of the murder of Jake Enos, said today: "Frank Johnson, the one accused of the crime is in Detroit, where it should be easy for the authorities to locate him if they wish." According to this man's story Jackson has been in Detroit ever since he and Johnson slipped from Chatham. People from this city have seen and talked to Jackson in Detroit. He apparently does not fear arrest so long as he stays away from Canada. Recently Jackson was seen by a colored man from Chatham and he asked for $2 to keep him until he could secure employment, as he was out of work. Jackson seems to think himself safe in Detroit.

LOBO MAN CLAIMS THE SWOPE MILLIONS

Mr. Adam Swope May Get a Share of Vast Estate in Kansas.

Mr. Adam Swope, a farmer living on lot 1, con. 2, Lobo Township, is a claimant for the Swope millions in Kansas City. It will be remembered that Col. Thomas H. Swope, of Kansas City, was the victim of a sensational murder on the morning of the 10th of July, after a great legal battle was fought and sentenced to life imprisonment. The fortune left by Col. Swope was estimated at several millions of dollars, and since then numerous claimants have been discovered. Mr. Swope, of Komoka, comes from Pennsylvania stock. His father was named Leiby, and he thought he must be a brother of the murdered man. That would make Adam Swope a nephew, and one of the nearest heirs to the millions. He has written to Judge Ralph Latsaw, of Kansas City, and has laid his claims before him. The judge is investigating the man's claims, and although he has found nothing conclusive as yet he will continue the investigations until he is satisfied himself as to the justice of the claims.

GOSSIP OF THE LAKESIDE RESORT

News of Port Stanley as Gleaned by The Advertiser Man.

Port Stanley, Aug. 19.—The residents of East Orchard Beach will give a concert in St. John's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening next for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid. An exceptionally fine programme will be given, and without doubt the entertainment will be the best attraction offered at the Port this season. West Lorne celebrated its Civic Holiday here yesterday. Although the weather man sprinkled the 400 excursionists all day, nevertheless they managed to have a good time, patronizing all the amusement devices on the beach. The steamer Glen Erie ran five special lake trips. Capt. Lorne Band to a free ride. All enjoyed the trip and tendered a vote of thanks to the captain and his merry crew. The Royal English Gipsies, who have been telling fortunes on the picnic hill for the past two months, broke camp yesterday and left for Toronto. Miss Constance Bowman, of London, is spending a week with Miss Huelia Douglass, of Lillanue Cottage, Fraser Heights. Miss Robertson, of St. Thomas, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Turnbull, of Fraser Heights. Mrs. Alice Weir and son, Stanley, of Walkerville, are visiting with relatives in the village. Mr. John Hough and daughter, Miss Alice Hough, of Fairport, Ohio, are holidaying with relatives in the village. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nicholson, of Windsor, are visiting Mr. C. N. Hough, Mr. Nell Nicholson, of West Lorne, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Nicholson, at Mr. C. N. Hough's, Miss Dowling, of Ingersoll, and Miss Vera Hallack, of Cuba, N.Y., are the guests of Mrs. F. G. Rumball, of Millersville, Fraser Heights. The valuable pet dog of Mr. J. Darch, Brookside Cottage, Orchard Beach, which has been missing for several days, was found early this morning strolling across the bridge on its way home from Stanley Beach. It is believed that the canine was so fascinated by the glitter and show along the board walk that it could not return to the quietness of Orchard Beach till it had indulged somewhat in the pleasures of this world. Mrs. (Dr.) McKillop, of St. Thomas, spent Friday with Mrs. E. T. Smith, of Idlewild Cottage, Orchard Beach.

STRATHROY.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Strathroy, Aug. 19.—Mr. D. C. Ross, M.P., and family, accompanied by Miss Bangert, returned home from Muskoka on Thursday. Court of revision will be held on Tuesday next in the town hall. Miss Rhea, Mee will start training for the nursing profession in St. Joseph's Hospital, London, at an early date. Councillor W. F. Hill and wife leave on Saturday for the Grand Central Friends' High Court, after which they will visit the Toronto fair. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Saul, of Chicago, are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong. Mr. Russell Parker, 4th line, Adelaide, and Phil Keyser, have left for Winnipeg and other western points, where they will purchase several car loads of western cattle and bring them back to their farms for fattening. The officers and teachers of St. John's Church Sunday school will give the scholars a picnic at Alexandra Park on Tuesday next. Sports and games of all kinds will be provided, and some excellent prizes for the successful winners of the events. The Front Street Methodist Church Sunday school intend holding a grand jubilation and picnic on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at Alexandra Park. All preparations are being made to make the occasion one long to be remembered. Sports and games of all kinds will be freely indulged in. A good programme will be provided, headed by the Citizens' Brass Band. The arrangements will be under the direction of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Graham and Misses Hedley, White, and others. A good time is assured. Mr. Neil Mitchell has secured the contract from the Agricultural Board for the erection of a grandstand for the fair grounds, which work is being rapidly pushed ahead. All the buildings have been moved across the race track to the east, which will positively avoid any of the accidents to pedestrians from crossing the race track as formerly. The buildings are now all situated fairly close together, and all can be visited without trespassing on any part of the race track. This speaks well for the committee, whose plans have been favorably commented on by those who have seen the improvements. The fair this year promises to excel any previous effort. Fine weather is the only thing required to assure a very large attendance at this ever-growing and popular fair.

THEODORE WILL TELL WHERE HE STANDS

Will Take the Public Into His Confidence at an Early Date.

New York, Aug. 20.—Within a week or ten days Theodore Roosevelt will take the public into his confidence as to where he stands on the great public questions before the country. He will answer in detail the question which has been asked daily since his return to the United States, namely: Where does he stand as between the progressive Republicans who favor progressive legislation and the conservative and reactionary element in Congress? His answer to that oft-repeated question will make him the leader of the progressive element in the Republican party. When Mr. Roosevelt has declared his position there will be no lingering doubts in the minds of anyone, as to what he stands for in the way of national legislation, and it will be clear to all who he believes President Taft should have in mind in carrying out the patronage of progressives and permitting Attorney-General Wickersham to try to read them out of the Republican party. His answer will give joy to Lo Polletto, Cummins, Dooliver, and Bristow in the Senate, and Murdock, Polndexter, Norris, and other out-and-out insurgents in the House. Without question of any kind it can be stated that Mr. Roosevelt will announce himself in favor of an immediate valuation of railroads as a true basis for rate making. He will heartily endorse the popular election of United States senators under the Oregon plan. He will favor the initiative and referendum and recall. There are other principles of a progressive nature which will receive his endorsement, but the advocacy of the ones outlined above will land the former president in the front of the progressive movement so effectively that it will be impossible to overlook the wide chasm between himself and the more conservative element in his party. This is a brief outline of the announcement which Col. Roosevelt has prepared for the country, and which will take definite form in the speech which he will deliver at Osawatimie, Kansas, in the early days of his tour through the west. It will be reiterated in the speech to be delivered at the conservation congress in St. Paul, a few days later, and it will be emphasized in a speech to be delivered at Denver. Mr. Roosevelt will deliver other speeches on his swing through the country, where his popularity is great, but the speeches at the three cities indicated are the ones which have been selected by him as his answer to the question: "Where do you stand?" These speeches are now ready. They have been written, re-written and discussed frequently by some of Mr. Roosevelt's most intimate friends. The final drafts have been agreed on and there is not one chance in a thousand that there will be a change.

But the entire programme will be carried out without regard to the 1912 campaign.

It will not be an attack on the Taft administration, except in that it will sharply differentiate between that which Mr. Roosevelt believes a Republican president ought to advocate, and that which Mr. Taft has done. The very nature of the speeches will make this clear. It will not be necessary for them to refer to Mr. Taft or any of his supporters in any direct way.

THAMESVILLE.

Thamesville, Aug. 20.—Aug. 24 has been proclaimed a public holiday. In connection with the holiday, the Sunday united schools are holding a union excursion to Erie Beach. This is also the date of the big picnic in Chatham in aid of the St. Joseph's Hospital. The local boys will compete in a baseball tournament. THE DEATH OCCURRED IN HOWARD ON SATURDAY OF JOSEPH ABBOT REYNOLDS.

ATHLETIC DAY WILL BE MONDAY

Western Fair Officers Want to Make the Opening Day "The Best Ever."

Monday, Sept. 12, will be Athletic Day at the Exhibition this year, and it promises to be one of the best days of the year. The management are putting a great effort into having all the exhibits in place, and the programme on the amusement platform before the grand stand are expected to be in readiness for the first time in the history of the fair. In addition to the full programme there will be a very interesting event this year, being the opening pull in a tug-of-war series. Gold watches will be given to the winners. The contest on Athletic Day will be London vs. Leontion Township. This event alone should bring a large crowd. In addition to the above there will be two grand view stands, one of which will be the entire programme will be repeated, followed by one of the most brilliant displays of fireworks ever seen in London. Professor Hand will produce a very realistic manner, an up-to-date automobile collision, also fifty-eight other distinct pieces, concluding with the "Eruption of Mount Vesuvius." The price for the covered grand stand will be 15 cents; open stand, 10 cents; children 10 cents. This should make Monday the best day of the Exhibition for visitors to attend. All information given at the general events.

A TENSE SITUATION

Korea Under Military Guard and Annexation Expected at Once.

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 19.—Though nothing official can be learned confirming the reports that negotiations for the annexation of Korea by Japan are now proceeding, many signs indicate that annexation is imminent. Long conferences between officials are constantly in progress, visits are frequently interchanged, and real activity is noted in the Japanese offices. The censorship has been placed on an even more rigid basis than before, and Tokio newspapers, containing reports of the situation in Korea, are confiscated at Pusan on their arrival in this country. The entire country has been placed under a strong military guard, and a number of Japanese war vessels are now patrolling the coasts of Korea. The situation indicates conditions of extreme tension, and officials maintain a sphinxlike attitude, refusing to make any statement regarding annexation.

ROCKEFELLER TALKS ABOUT AIRSHIPS

Regards Feats of Airmen With Interest But Is Content With Solid Earth.

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—While he is enthusiastic about airships and has studied the flights made by aviators, Mr. John D. Rockefeller has not allowed his enthusiasm to reach the point where he himself seeks to ride in the air. His big black automobile, with Benedict, his chauffeur, at the wheel, is about as far as he cares to go in riding. Aerial navigation, he thinks, is all right, but he himself much prefers terra firma. The oil king thus expressed himself, though he waxed enthusiastic over the visit paid to him by Mr. Frank Goodale, the youthful aviator, in his airship. "We understand you had a strange call yesterday," someone said. "Yes, yes," responded Mr. Rockefeller. "What do you think of aerial navigation?" Mr. Rockefeller's eyes brightened and a smile lighted up his face. "Well, it's all very nice in a way, but I'd prefer much not to take any part in it. I like the earth, and my automobile is good enough and exciting enough for me. Aviation no doubt is an interesting study. I have followed the flights of some of the world's best-known aviators to some extent and enjoy reading about their accomplishments, but I never have become so enthusiastic as to envy any of them. It is too dangerous a sport. "So you don't intend investing in an

WASHINGTON EXPECTS JAP GRAB OF KOREA

Annexation Might Cause Friction Between Uncle Sam and Mikado.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Official dispatches are expected hourly at the state department from the Orient telling of an arrangement for Japan to take over the Empire of Korea, forecasted by United States Ambassador O'Brien in a dispatch to the department yesterday. Associated Press dispatches describing the unusual activity of officials in Korea and of the warships patrolling the Korean coast are interpreted as substantiating the information conveyed to the department by the ambassador. The United States Government thus far has made no protest concerning Japanese domination in Korea. Following the course taken by other powers, no protest was made to that article of the Portsmouth peace treaty between Japan and Russia, which Japan probably regards as the latest recognition

AUTO'S MERRY CHUG PEEVES ROCKEFELLER

Wants to Move the Highway So That He Can Have Peace.

Ferrytown, N. Y., Aug. 19. — Because of the heavy automobile traffic on Bedford road, the main highway between this place and Pocantico Hills, and the noise from cuttings on the muffers, John D. Rockefeller wants the board of trustees and the town board practically to close that road to motor cars, and make them use Webber avenue.

BIG LEADER OF TONG WAS ASSASSINATED

Chu Him, Hiding Six Months, Slain Five Feet From Home.

New York Aug. 17.—For six months Chu Him, a member of the Four Brothers Society, feared to put his nose outside the door of his restaurant, at 11 Doyers street, lest he be killed by the hatchet men of the On Leong Tong. At 7 o'clock last night he took a chance. He had not gone five feet from the door of his establishment before he was shot and killed.

Two members of the On Leong Tong were arrested by men who were charged with the murder of Chu Him. In Chinatown it was said that the shooting was likely to be followed by other deaths, and that the killing of Chu Him furnished the basis for the resumption of the tong war in which several Chinese were killed last winter.

When that war was at its height one of the chief advisers of the Four Brothers was Chu Him. He was often at the Four Brothers headquarters at 22 Pell street. He was supposed to be high in the war councils of the tong. After Captain Hodges, of the Elizabeth street station, put Chu Him behind bars on the shooting business in Chinatown and the tongs had agreed to suspend hostilities Chu Him felt that the general amnesty had nothing to do with him.

So he immured himself in his restaurant to Mott street. It is surrounded by business places by men friendly to Chu Him. He thought he was safe there. A hostile hatchet man could hardly pass the watchful neighbors without being detected. Chu Him ate and slept in his restaurant, excused visitors there and fairly large amount of going outside to return calls.

Business was dull with him last night. Tiring of the solitude of his room he walked to the door of the restaurant. One of his oldest friends stood in front of a tea garden across the way. The friend waved his hand to Chu Him and Chu Him waved back. Chu Him started to walk over to his friend of the tea garden. He went a few steps when he fell dead. Two Chinese who had shot at him from the end of the street, and further states that they were two of the On Leong Tong death watch which was set on Chu Him six months ago, and which had been on duty ever since. The sound of the four shots brought a crowd of sightseers and Chinese, but Chu Him, who had been shot through the heart, was beyond the reach of ambulances.

The hunt for his murderers began with Sergeant Stevenson and Police-man Young in the lead. They were guided by Lau Wing, a Four Brothers man, who lives at 23 Pell street. He took the police to the headquarters of the On Leong Tong, at 14 Mott street. There, standing on the sidewalk, and with a little concern in their faces as if they had never heard of Chu Him and his sudden taking off, were Tom Yuen, of 26 Mott street, and Lee Fat, of 15 Mott street.

"They did him," said the guide briefly. "I saw them."

Ton Yuen and Lee Fat were arrested, charged with the murder. Extra policemen were sent into the district, but there was no further trouble during the night. To predict that this peculiar condition will continue until the killing of Chu Him will be allowed to go unpunished by his tong was more than the police cared to admit.

FRANCE'S FOREIGN CAPITAL

Dominion the Bargain Counter of the World—France Interested—The Division.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Mr. Fred W. Field editor of The Monetary Times, prints this week the result of his investigation in respect to the amount of capital, other than British and American, invested in Canada.

The grand total is $77,889,050. The inquiry has been extended over several months, information being gathered from every known source of value, particularly in the countries of Europe.

An Estimate. The following is an approximate and carefully compiled estimate: France: Manufacturing and industrial development, $5,500,000; lands, $4,750,000; loans on mortgages, etc., $25,900,000; Canadian industrial, railroad and other securities, $10,000,000; municipal and school bonds, $1,000,000; total $49,250,000.

Belgium: Western lands, $1,000,000; Belgium: Western mortgages, $3,000,000; Saskatchewan lands, $1,500,000; British Columbia lands, $750,000; Canadian railroads, $500,000; total $5,750,000.

Germany: Western lands and mortgages, $2,500,000; western coal lands, $800,000; Canadian securities, $3,000,000; total $16,500,000.

Foreign holding of Canadian bank shares: Total, $1,439,550.

Companies Involved. The following figures give details of some of the leading companies which have interested or are at present interesting foreign capital in the development of Canada:

German Development Company, of Germany, capital $1,000,000; development of their coal property in Alberta, Alberta Societe Anonyme Beige due Nord-Ouest, Canadian of Belgium, $1,000,000; mortgages.

Western Canada Farms Lands Company, of Belgium, $200,000; land company. Societe Hypothecaire du Canada de Belgique, $3,000,000; loans.

La Cassis, Hypothecaire, Canadienne of France, $2,000,000; loans on mortgages. Revillon Brothers, Limited, of France, $500,000; fur posts at a number of points in Western Canada; merchants.

Belgo-Canadian Fruit Lands Company, of Belgium; British Columbia Fruit Lands Company, of Belgium; Land and Agricultural Company, of Canada, Belgium; western lands, Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian, of France, $8,000,000; loans.

Societe Immobiliere des Fermes Canadienne of France, $400,000; lands. Germany. Germany has seldom lacked initiative either in commerce, industry or finance. An investment in it has invariably acted cautiously, with the result, as it has happened, that German ventures in Canada have not been large. Canadian Pacific shares are traded in there to a considerable extent, many important Canadian Pacific Railway movements having originated in Berlin. The next interest of any significant importance in Canada is that of the Deutsche Bank with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. This took the shape of a two million dollar investment in the Sovereign Bank of Canada, of which the German Bank contributed one million dollars. The failure of the Canadian institution, in the opinion of German authorities, shattered faith and for many years prevented further large investments from Germany coming to this country.

German-Canadian Bank. It is not unlikely that one day a German bank operating with a Canadian bank will cater especially to the financial needs of the various German colonies in the Dominion. It is thought by this way that the greater amount of business will result.

Since the removal of the German surtax there is thought to be an opening for German trading companies. If Canadian partners can be found, this development may be an early one.

There is little likelihood of Germany becoming interested in the financing of Canadian railroads. The chief German interest in Canadian investments is in railroad stocks, affording speculative opportunities. Canadian Pacific is listed on the Bourse, and the Grand Trunk, which are traded in through London. Whenever the Canadian Northern is put on the market it is quite likely that its quotation in Berlin will create a big market in that city therefor.

Continued from Page One. Search Still On. The Hamilton Herald says: The two maniacs who escaped from the criminal section of the Hamilton asylum had not, up to press time, been located, though the search for them has not been one whit abated.

Locally the asylum authorities are still continuing their investigations in to clues which have given them an insight into how the two managed to effect their breakaway. It has been learned that a short time ago a bunch of keys to the asylum was lost by one of the attendants. This attendant has since left the employ of the institution.

Word comes from London that the police there have been shown a letter which declares that Moir's escape from the asylum here was planned at a meeting of his friends in that city on Aug. 10. The writer of the letter says that Moir's friends discussed the possibility of having him taken away in a small balloon and spirited across the border.

A $50,000 GIFT

Lincoln County Accepts Mr. Carnegie's Big Donation For Library.

Lincoln City Council on Tuesday accepted an offer by Mr. Andrew Carnegie to give £10,000 for the provision of a public library.

Over £432 was realized last year from the sale of scrap metal collected in the city of London, and £181 from the sale of tins found among the 80,000 tons of refuse collected, says the city engineer's report, issued on Tuesday.

A search was begun recently in the sea near the lighthouse on Great Orme's Head, Llandudno, for treasure amounting to £60,000, which is believed to have lain buried beneath the waves for 86 years. On Jan. 1, 1824, the Hornby castle, from Liverpool to Rio de Janeiro, was blown out of her course during a great gale, and at about midnight was dashed against the rugged rocks of the Great Orme, which at that point rise to a height of about 600 feet. Only one of the crew was saved. In addition to general cargo the Hornby Castle had goods to the amount of £60,000 on board, and it was to endeavor to recover this the Lady Kate salvage steamer, of Liverpool, arrived at Llandudno to start the search under the direction of Mr. John Gibney, of Liverpool, the well-known diving expert.

IRELAND

BREACH OF PROMISE

An amusing breach of promise case was tried at Galway quarter sessions, when Miss Margaret O'Donnell, living near Ballinasloe, was awarded £12 damages against Edward Donohoe, of Mellickmore. It appears that the parties met on the 12th of the month, the match was broken off on the 27th, and the bride entered the room, and the parties were drinking champagne and feasting with each other. The defendant embraced the plaintiff. "He has his arm round her for an hour and a half," said the witness. "The question of fortune was being discussed on and on, and he did not do so, and he married another woman with a 'fortune' of £70.

BRAVE SIGNALMAN

Rescues Lady From Death at the Peril of His Own Life.

A case of remarkable heroism on the part of a signalman occurred at Strabane, County Tyrone, recently. Mrs. Neil, wife of a Presbyterian clergyman, had reached the station from Belfast, and to make connection for Letterkenny she had to go to the other side of the bridge. Thinking she had not sufficient time to cross the footbridge, Mrs. Neil started to cross the tracks, and failed to notice the approach of a train. Several passengers tried to stop the train, but it was too late, and the train struck Mrs. Neil, becoming excited, stumbled and fell in front of the incoming train. For a moment it seemed as if nothing could save the unfortunate lady, when just in the nick of time James Conway, a signalman, sprang on to the line in front of the engine, and seizing the lady, dragged her out of danger just as the train came up.

SERMON FROM SHAKESPEARE

The middle of humanity thou never knewest, but the extremity of both ends. ---Timon of Athens, Act. IV, Sc. 3.

Apemantus, the cynic philosopher of "Timon of Athens," was a raller against humanity. He had faith in no one, according to him all men were base and sordid. But even Apemantus could utter words of wisdom, and this pithy summing up of the cause of the ruin of Timon should be taken to heart by all given to extreme courses. Timon was prodigal of his wealth. He lived in the present, with no thought of the future; he had generous impulses and he selfishly gratified his impulses, without stopping to consider whether or not he could afford to believe costly presents on every favor. In his adversity he proclaimed, "I am Misanthropos, and hate mankind." His fault lay in the fact that he had failed to select the golden mean between excess and defect. Even a colossal fortune would not have withstood his extravagance. He had foolishly supposed that all men were generous; rudely awakened from his dream, his faith in humanity gone, he fled to the wilderness and hid like a beast of the forest, solacing himself by unpadding his heart with words against the world he had left.

Apemantus and Timon were predecessors to Aristotle, and Shakespeare, in the words of the text, but anticipate the philosophy of the great Greek teacher. Every man has to confront in one form or another his Charibdis of excess and Scylla of defect. The man who are able to choose the middle channel where the deep water is, and, with a strong hand on their passions and appetites, steer a watchful course, are in but little danger from the rocks and whirlpools. The evil effects of extreme action have many illustrations in life. For example the matter of eating and drinking! Food is essential for existence. The great majority of the flesh is heir to are due to overindulgence or unwise abstinence. On the one hand there is the glutton, who seems unable to resist the cravings of appetite; on the other, the ascetic, who starves his body. The glutton becomes coarse, gross and beastly, a mental sluggard; the ascetic grows emaciated, anemic and apathetic. Food and drink are excellent servants, but must not be either overworked or underworked.

Clothes are likewise essential to existence. A man may survive without a schoolmaster, but he would perish without a tailor. There is nothing

Never Use Soap for cleaning milk cans or bottles. Soap should never be used when cleaning milk cans or bottles. There is always a certain amount of the grease in the soap which remains behind, especially in the seams or where the sides and bottom meet. This grease does not evaporate but turns rancid and taints milk. It causes the milk to deteriorate and sour.

On the other hand, one dessertspoonful of Snowflake Ammonia added to a dishpan of hot water cleans and sterilizes milk cans and bottles thoroughly.

Snowflake Ammonia cuts and frees the grease in the milk from the cans or bottles. The grease floats away with the water. And when the cans are dry there is no sediment left in the seams, because Snowflake Ammonia evaporates with the water. It is a powerful germicide and destroys all bacteria that may be in the cans or bottles.

KING GEORGE VISITS A LEPROSARIUM

At the London Hospital—Sees the X-Rays at Work, and Talks With Patients.

The King and Queen paid a visit in semi-state to the London Hospital on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6, and spent nearly an hour among the patients. King George's intimate knowledge of hospital work was demonstrated once again.

At Aldgate came the first glimpse of the east end's welcome. It was a true Whitechapel crowd, many tens of thousands strong, which lined the broad thoroughfare down to the gates of the hospital—a crowd with more of a sprinkling of Jews, for the Jewish Sabbath offered an almost universal holiday, and including a vast number of little east end children. Less than half an hour before the arrival of the royal party, costers' donkey barrows had been bowling merrily along the road. As their majesties drove by the cheering burst upon them, and all Whitechapel road blossomed with fluttering handkerchiefs.

Advancing between lines of curtseying nurses, the King and Queen walked across the grass where three children suffering from hip disease lay in spinal carriages, their faces looking white and drawn in the gray sunlight. One of them, a 7-year-old boy, who said his name was Jimmy Moor, said he had gone to a convalescent home at Gloucester on the previous Wednesday, but he had begged so hard, with tears in his eyes, to see the Queen, that the doctors had relented.

King George said an encouraging word or two to each child and then passed on, bowing as he went to the crutches and bandaged sufferers from the surgical wards, and pale convalescents who had been wheeled on to the lawn in chairs, until his attention was drawn to two young men, with whom he spoke for a few minutes.

Work for Lepers.

One was Benjamin Turok, a leper. "I hope," said the King, "that you are happy here." Then, turning to a member of the staff, he remarked in a low voice that he was deeply interested in the work that is being done for lepers, and had a vivid remembrance of his visit to Robin Island.

Turok is a South African and was sent to the London Hospital, with a membership by subscription for the treatment of a disease quite different from leprosy. It was not until he had been in the hospital for a fortnight that the true nature of the malady was diagnosed. He has now lost all motion in his hands, but the disease in the form here present is not fatal, and he is absolutely non-contagious.

The second patient with whom his majesty conversed was a young man named Thurston, who is suffering from the extremely rare complaint known as "myasthenia gravis." The muscles of the neck and jaw are incapable of more than two or three contractions before becoming so exhausted as to be useless. Consequently the patient can only speak a few words or eat a mouthful of food before the jaw drops and has to be replaced by hand. The King commented to Thurston upon the remarkable character of his disease, and said he hoped that some means of curing it would be found.

On the way to the out-patients' hall there was a pathetic incident, which will long be remembered by those who witnessed it. A little girl, Doris Bowler, who had been operated upon for cataract, had been carried by her nurse to a window, which the Queen would pass. As she sat there waiting they raised the bandages and she saw the shadows of the passing people.

"That is the Queen's shadow! That is the Queen's shadow!" said the nurse, and the child clapped delightedly.

Noticing the little girl's glee and her sad condition, Queen Mary stopped and for some minutes stood holding the tiny hands and looking gently about the kind faces of the nurses, and the day when Doris will be able to see at any rate a good deal better than she can now.

In the out-patients' hall their majesties saw 900 members of the staff, including 300 nurses, assembled, and the Queen presented certificates to three prize probationers—Miss Mary McNabb, Miss Minnie Reid, and Miss Mary Derrick. A presentation of special interest was that of Miss McIntosh, the assistant matron, who has just been appointed matron of St. Bartholomew's Hospital. The Queen shook hands with Miss McIntosh with marked cordiality, and after the latter had retired she was recalled in order that the King might congratulate her personally.

As the party were about to leave for the Flinsen light department, where lupus and kindred maladies are treated in wards presented by Queen Alexandra, King George remarked, with a father's thoughtfulness, that Princess Mary would probably prefer to visit some other part of the institution, and this being agreed to, the little princess was conducted to the children's wards by the assistant matron.

One of the special reasons for King George's wish to visit the lupus department, with the working of which he is, of course, intimately acquainted, was to examine a new invention, known as the "Finsen light," by which it is hoped greatly to reduce the cost of administration. The "automatic nurse" holds the Finsen lamp in position, and the services of a separate nurse for each patient can thus be dispensed with.

After carefully examining this new appliance, his majesty talked for some time with Dr. Wickham, the famous Paris cancer specialist, whose treatment of the disease by means of radium has been much discussed in medical circles.

Dr. Wickham spoke with enthusiasm of the work which is being done at the London Hospital, and especially of the treatment of a man who was suffering from cancer of the eye, but whose sight in one eye has been saved.

The X-Ray Martyr.

Then came an exhibition by Dr. Sequiera of the wonders of the new and extraordinarily powerful lamp which he has invented for the treatment of skin diseases, and of a set of cabinets in which patients can be subjected to the X-ray treatment without danger to the operator. As he examined the latter appliances, King George spoke with evident feeling of the brave martyrs, and particularly of the late Mr. Cox, who turned to Mr. Harnack, a former operator at the London Hospital, who has lost the use of both hands, and expressed his deep sympathy.

Next came a brief tour of the Melanosis and Treves wards, where their majesties were particularly interested in the many appendicitis cases, and the King put a number of questions to Dr. Leonard Hill about an oxygen bed which he had invented.

By this time the royal party had been at the hospital for close upon an hour, instead of the half-hour originally planned.

"I should very much like to go through another ward," the King remarked, "but we really ought to be going. We are keeping the people waiting in the streets."

Accordingly the visitors' book was signed, and the King and Queen, with the royal children, returned to the palace, and the royal visitors' after pressing keen appreciation of what they had seen.

STRATHCONA'S 90TH YEAR; BIRTHDAY AT THE OFFICE

London Paper Interviews Canada's G. O. M.—His Wonderful Vigor—Work and Duty His Watchwords.

(London Daily News, Aug. 6.) Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the high commissioner of Canada, is 90 years of age today.

This morning he will, all being well, drive as usual from his home in Grosvenor Square to his office in Victoria street, about 11 o'clock, and it will be 7 in the evening before he steps again into his carriage, after a day's work worthy of a man of 50. If there is any difference between this day and any other in the business round it will not be of his seeking.

"You will be celebrating your 90th birthday tomorrow, Lord Strathcona," said a Daily News representative, who found him at his writing desk yesterday afternoon.

"Oh, no," the high commissioner replied, "as though the idea could have any possible foundation. I shall not be celebrating it."

"But at any rate the records show that you are 90 years of age tomorrow," the interviewer persisted.

"I believe so," was the guarded answer. There was a twinkle in the clear, hazel eyes that still look out like those of a young warrior from under penthouse brows—though the brows are white as snow. But the face was admirably serious, even stern. Then, in a moment, he was smiling as a school-boy might after pretending to some extraordinary ignorance before a catechizing schoolmaster.

"A young man or an old man, what does it matter?" he asked. "So far as my own feelings are concerned, I hardly know the difference. But for these kind inquiries, which I certainly appreciate very much, I should pass my birthdays by without remembering them."

"A birthday, though, reminds me, of one thing I am proud of. It is seventy years since I went, as a young man, to Canada. So, at any rate, I am an old Canadian, if not an old man. That is what I like to remember."

A Night Light.

"Not an old man," the truth of the saying is witnessed by a nickname that the Canadian office has been given among the other Government offices in Victoria street, "The Light-house," it is commonly called, because a light is to be seen burning there at all sorts of strange times and seasons. The man who burns that light is the high commissioner himself, working far into the night, with that insatiable energy which years and hardships seem only to have nourished. It is a thing for him to return to the office after dinner, and remain in his room reading reports or writing till 9:30.

Not long ago it was pointed out by a physician that, for a man of his years, Lord Strathcona was putting in too many hours at his desk.

"You really must knock off sooner than 7 at night," the doctor declared.

Lord Strathcona agreed, with evident reluctance, to follow the advice, with the result that for some weeks he went home to dinner at a quarter of 7 instead of 7.

Against that story must be set the advice addressed to him years ago by the late Sir Andrew Clark. He told his patient that there was no reason why he should not live to 100 "if only he would keep on working."

Lord Strathcona's gospel of "work" and "duty" for his watchwords.

"I," he said last February, "I want to have a word with any who are going out to Canada this would be my message: 'You are going to a land of splendid possibilities where you will find many to welcome you. Only one thing is necessary to insure your success, the ability and the determination to work. You must work strenuously, steadfastly, and as long as is necessary. The men who work in Canada cannot fail.'"

In talking of the right way to work he always insists upon the necessity for close attention to detail.

"Oh, that is only a matter of detail," said a businessman with whom he was discussing some big deal.

"Pardon me, pardon me," said Lord Strathcona, in his quiet, courteous way, "but to my mind it is precisely detail that does matter."

To anyone who has met him the use of the word "detail" in such a connection must seem inevitable.

Thirty years in the wilderness as an officer of the Hudson's Bay Company could do nothing to affect his innate courtesy of manner, as is shown by the following extract from a letter, written in 1859 by a newly joined member of the staff: "I called today to pay my respects to Donald A. Smith, our great mogul of the service, and was surprised to find him so affable and unassuming with no trace of ruggedness. You'd think he had spent all his life at the court of St. James instead of Labrador, and I came away feeling I was going to be made a chief factor."

that might have had a roughening, and certainly had a toughening effect. One journey in particular he recalls as having tested his manhood.

While living as a fur trader in Labrador he was suddenly threatened with snow-blindness, and determined upon an immediate visit to Montreal, the city that was 500 miles distant, over fields of ice and snow, and the month was October. After extraordinary hardships Montreal was reached, and an operation performed upon the young factor's eyes. Then the journey back had to be faced.

THE DEATH ROLL OF THE AIR FLYING CLAIMS A LONG LIST

But Aviation Goes on Apace—The Faulty Propeller the Prime Cause of Disaster—Still Far From the Goal.

- Leut. Thomas E. Selfridge, U. S. A., killed at Fort Myer, Sept. 17, 1908, while flying with Orville Wright; aeroplane turned over while swooping in a great circle.
- E. Lefebvre, killed at Juvisy, on Sept. 7, 1909, in a Wright machine, which turned turtle at a great height.
- Captain Louis F. Ferber, killed at Boulogne, on Sept. 22, 1909, when an aeroplane he was testing turned a somersault as a wing touched the ground in making a turn.
- Antonio Fernandez, killed at Nice, on Dec. 8, 1909, when he fell 1,000 feet after the motor of his aeroplane exploded.
- Leon Delagrangue was killed at Bordeaux on Jan. 4, 1910, when a wing of his Blériot monoplane broke, while aviator was turning at high speed against the wind.
- Hubert Leblon was killed at San Sebastian, Spain, on April 2, 1910, by falling into the harbor, when, from an unknown cause his machine turned turtle.
- Chauvette Michelin was killed at Lyons, France, on May 13, 1910, when he lost control of his machine and came in collision with a derrick on the aviation grounds.
- Mons. Logly was killed at Budapest, on June 2, 1910, by a fall from his machine from a great height.
- Eugene Speyer, a boy, was killed in San Francisco on June 17, 1910, when a glider he had attached to an automobile capsized and fell with him from an elevation of 37 feet.
- Herr Robl was killed at Stettin, Germany, on June 18, 1910, when his aeroplane capsized and dropped 250 feet.
- Charles Wachter was killed at Rheims, France, on July 3, 1910, in an Antoinette monoplane, he was testing as an amateur, the machine dropping to the ground in flight.
- Daniel Kinet was killed at Ghent on July 10, 1910, when the rudder of his aeroplane broke, and the machine, turning over, fell from a great height.
- Charles S. Rolls, famous English aviator, was killed at Bournemouth on July 12, 1910, when his Wright biplane buckled and he was unable to control his machine in mid-air.

"Death will not halt us nor disaster check our flights. Aviation is not a fad of the day. It is a human achievement that ranks with the steamship, the locomotive and the automobile. It is development, progress, civilization."

So says the aviator, who, while sorrowing for his fellows who have met disaster and death in their flights, is keenly alive to the inevitable lessons taught by each tragedy of the air.

The death list of aviation is a long, grim one, and is growing. From Selfridge to Rolls, all the daring men who have died in the conquest of flight seem to be in the line of those who have been bequeathed to the world a lesson. When a Lefebvre is killed by his machine turning turtle, the men who fly learn to guard against this in their flights, and when a Fernandez loses his life through the explosion of a motor his fellows at once take pains to further to improve their motors. When the dispatches tell of a death because of a broken rudder, a faulty control or a snapping wire, each story drives home its lesson, and to the parts mentioned more and more of perfection is added. For this alone, say the daring masters of flight, spells safety and success.

The Faulty Propeller.

Faulty propellers are the prime cause of accident, the aviators say. Nearly all the accidents in Europe, in the last year, it is believed, were primarily caused by some break in this most important part of the machine. Of course, when an aeroplane suddenly collapses and crashes to the ground, killing its pilot and crushing its machinery to fragments, there is no actual means of knowing exactly what happened at first, but other aviators declare that in nearly all instances the propeller is to blame.

"I have seen a propeller fall from the dead before him," the aviator asks if these shall have died in vain. What lessons have the martyrs taught? Will their deaths check the progress of the cause in which they perished? Will the accumulating disasters of aviation daunt the daring or weaken the hearts of the men who have set about to conquer the secret of flight, no matter at what cost?

From every aerodrome and field of flying, from every aviator who has felt the thrill that can come only to him who soars from earth to sky, comes a brave and unflinching "No."

"We all face death in our aviation experiments, for we are still experimenters," said Mr. Clifford B. Harris. "Death can stop only the individual. It cannot stop aviation. He is a worthless experimenter who takes no risks. Without courage convictions are of no avail. There can be no forward step without casting fear aside. If we feared to fall we never would walk. If we feared to fly, aviation would be numbered with the lost arts."

Still Far From the Goal.

"Aviation has advanced with astounding strides, yet it is far from its goal. It must reach that goal and it will have to be through daring—almost foolhardy daring. Excess of caution spells defeat.

"But I would not eliminate carelessness. Carelessness and daring are not synonymous. Study the disasters of aviation and you will find the trail of carelessness over nearly all of them, ative that I should return to my post as soon as possible. The Indians insisted that they could never reach that post alive, the snow was so deep. They were right, poor fellows—two died before we had gone half way; the other when we were 100 miles from the post. I completed the journey alone."

In the qualities that went to the performance of that feat lie the chief characteristics of the man.

As Sir Charles Tupper, his predecessor in the high commissionership, has said: "Only the pluck, energy and determination of Lord Strathcona carried the undertaking of the Canadian Pacific Railway to success."

An empire is proud today of having given birth and scope to such a giant among workers.

faintly marked in some, the distinctive marks in others.

The aviator must be careful in three directions. He must judge flying conditions with care, he must inspect his aeroplane with care, he must operate it with care. I would not bar stunt, I would not bar efforts to accomplish what others have not attempted, or, having attempted, have failed.

"It is sometimes more than foolhardy to try a flight when the air is fairly boiling with cross currents. It is the height of folly to ascend without knowing that every wire is in place, every bolt firm, the engine working smoothly, the propeller true and strong, and the controls obedient to every demand that may be made upon them."

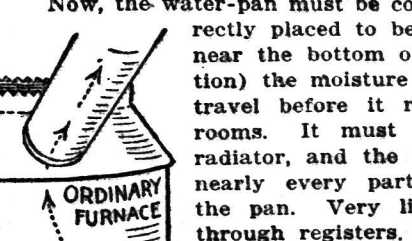

"Many accidents are due to errors in operation. The novice meets conditions with which he is unfamiliar and becomes a plaything for the currents. If it is evident that in descending he turned downward at too sharp an angle to admit of his returning to level or upward flight when his plans reached the currents close to the earth's surface."

"In the case of Mme. De La Roche, who met with a terrifying accident in France, but fortunately escaped with her life, it was found a very broad warning for all, especially those engaged in contests. When two or more aviators are in the air at the same time, over the same field, they cannot use too much care in avoiding the paths of each other. Mme. De La Roche was making a highly successful flight when another aeroplane dashed across the field, passing over the one in which she was making a flight. The currents set in motion by this other machine caused hers to swerve, and apparently she lost control, not only of her machine, but of herself. Had she been permitted to have ample air room the accident never would have happened."

"I have just received a letter from Mons. Paulhan congratulating me on my two hours' flight and advising me to be very careful above all things about my propeller, as most of the accidents that occurred in Europe this year were due to faulty propellers. Considering the terrific number of revolutions Continued on Page Fourteen.

SIDELIGHTS ON NOTABLE PEOPLE BY THE MARQUISE DE FONTENAY

The Duke of Roxburghe, who arrived in New York this week by the German liner Crown Princess Cecilie, with his American wife, formerly Miss May Goelt, this being their first visit to the United States since their marriage seven years ago, bears a name and a title familiar to book lovers and bibliophiles all the world over. For the third duke, on account of a romantic love affair with a royal princess of one of the reigning houses of Germany, pledged himself to a life of celibacy and sought consolation for his sorrows in the collection of a world-famed library, which after his death was sold at auction in London. The sale lasted not less than 42 days and attracted collectors from the United States and from all over the continent of Europe, among the most notable treasures being the "Vadardfer Boccaccio," printed in Venice in 1471, and which, after passing through the hands of the late Duke of Marlborough and of Lord Spencer, is now understood, in the possession of J. Pierpont Morgan.

The romance which led the third Duke of Roxburghe to live and die unmarried is but little known, yet is worthy of being placed on record. In the year 1761 this duke set out on the grand tour of Europe, with all the pomp and circumstance befitting his rank and the statelyness of his time. He was handsome, gallant and 21.

On his way back from Moscow he halted for a time at the little court of Strelitz, which was then ruled by the Dowager Grand Duchess, to whom her son, the reigning Duke Frederick Adolph IV, and his brothers, respectively, had but two daughters, Princess Christine, lovely girl of 20, and Princess Charlotte, small and frightfully plain, the ugly duckling of the family. The young Duke of Roxburghe fell violently in love with Christine and she not only smiled on his suit, but promised him her hand, her mother and eldest brother looking on the match with approval.

Then a strange thing happened—nothing less than a formal demand on the part of George III, of England for the hand of the lovely Princess Charlotte, which was, of course, at once granted along with the acceptance of the stipulation, made by the British Government, that no member of the Mecklenburg-Strelitz family should marry a British subject. This dashed to the ground all the hopes of the Duke of Roxburghe, and put an end to his plans for a union with Princess Christine. He left Strelitz at once and for the subsequent 47 years which elapsed until his death spent his life in virtual retirement, devoting himself entirely to his books and never appearing at court.

The standard "Peerages" accord to him the briefest possible mention, merely alluding to him as having been a Knight of the Garter. But for his sake Princess Christine of Mecklenburg-Strelitz remained unmarried until her death, rejecting all offers of marriage, finding no wooer who could compare with the gallant and handsome Scotchman who had won her heart before her homely sister Charlotte had become Queen of England.

It is only fair to King George III. to explain that he had no voice whatsoever in the selection of his consort, who was chosen for him by his mother, the Princess of Wales, and by her universally detested favorite and prime minister, the Marquis of Bute, with the object of preventing the infatuation of the young monarch for the fascinating Lady Sarah Lennox, leading him into inviting her to share his throne.

When this third duke died, the honors and estates devolved upon his remote kinsman, William Ker, descended from a younger son of the Earl of Roxburghe, who had flourished at the court of James II. He, too, died without issue, and then there were a number of claimants to the dukedom. But eventually the committee of privileges of the House of Lords awarded the dukedom and the minor honors and the ordinary tribunals of Scotland assigned the feudal estates to Sir James Innes Norcliffe, Bart., although popular opinion in Scotland, as well as a number of genealogists, protested against the decision, insisting that it should have been made in favor of Major-General Walter Ker, of Littledean, as heir male of the Kers of Cessford.

The general was reduced to the direst poverty, completely ruined, by the legal expenditures in connection with his claim to the dukedom, and his estate of Littledean was sold and now forms part of Lord Pollworth's beautiful place in Berwickshire, on the banks of the Tweed. The legal proceedings lasted for a number of years and among the claimants was a Robert Hepburn Ker, a baker, at Kingstons, Jamaica, to whom at one moment the committee of privileges seemed inclined to award the dukedom.

Floors Castle, on the Tweed, the principal home of the Duke of Roxburghe, which has been beautifully restored, refurnished and equipped with all the most modern luxuries, since his marriage, is a little over 200 years old, and was built according to the designs of Sir John Vanbrugh, the architect of Blenheim, to take the place of old Roxburghe Castle, one of the most important strongholds in the border struggles all through the Middle Ages. The old castle, the picturesque ruins of which remain, was the home of the Princess of Northumbria before Earl David became King of Scotland.

Long after Northumbria had been added to Scotland the castle continued to be the principal residence of the kings of Northern Britain. Court, councils and parliaments were held within its walls, a royal mint was established there, and it was the seat of the government until the end of the reign of Alexander III. Subsequently, in the possession of the Kers, it became the headquarters, sometimes of foes of the crown, and a garbled holly tree marks the spot where James II, of Scotland, was killed by an arrow while besieging the Castle of Roxburghe. Within thirty feet of this holly flourishes the splendid oak planted by Queen Victoria on the occasion of her visit to Floors Castle shortly after her marriage, the Duchess of Roxburghe, the day, duchess of the present duke, having been lady in waiting, mistress of the robes, and the earliest of the intimate friends of the late Queen.

The present duke is childless, and the next heir to the dukedom and estates is his younger brother, Lord Alastair Inner Ker, captain of the Royal Horse Guards, a veteran of the South African war, and who has a little boy of two by his marriage with Miss Anna Breese, a very pretty American girl, daughter of the late William L. Breese, of New York. The Duke of Roxburghe has a number of minor dignities, including the title of Marquis of Cessford, and the Marquis of Beaumont, the latter of these titles being usually borne by the eldest son and heir of the duke. The founder of the family was John Ker, of the Forest of Selkirk, who lived in 1317. But it was not until the sixteenth century that Sir Robert Ker, of Cessford, was created Lord Roxburghe by James I. of England. The fifth Lord Roxburghe was raised to the rank of duke by George I. for his services as secretary of state.

Old Sir William Wedderburn, who has been elected as the president of the impending national congress in India, is a man who although drawing a considerable pension from the crown as a former judge of the high court of Bombay, and as chief secretary of that presidency, has been a member of no end of trouble to the British Government since his retirement from the Indian bench, owing to the encouragement which he has given to the Nationalist movement in England's great Oriental empire.

In fact, Sir Mancherjee Bhambhagere, who enjoys the distinction of having been the only native of East India to occupy a seat in the English House of Commons, has charged Sir William in parliament at Westminster with being the one individual more responsible than any one else, dusky skinned or white hued, for the disaffection, the secession and the animosity to British rule rampant for the last 10 or 15 years throughout the length and breadth of Hindustan. Sir Mancherjee added, from his place in the House of Commons, that the abuse and reproaches heaped by native newspapers upon the "Grand" in India, are mere echoes and repetitions of the articles contained in the newspapers with which Sir William is identified and in the innumerable pamphlets which he is forever writing.

Sir William Wedderburn's attitude is all the more astonishing since his elder brother, as well as the latter's wife and his child, were put to death under circumstances of the most peculiar atrocity at Hissar, in Upper India, by the rebels in the great Indian mutiny of 1857.

The Wedderburns are a very old Scottish family, and a first mention in history in connection with the oath of fealty sworn by Walter de Wedderburn to King Edward I. of England, at Berwick-in-Tweed, Aug. 23, 1296. The Wedderburns were among the earliest Scotch Reformers and produced the so-called Wedderburn Psalms, while Robert Wedderburn, rector of Dundee, was the author of that remarkable "Complaint of Scotland."

DEATH ROLL OF THE AIR

tions a minute the propellers must make in order to give the machine the required momentum, too much care cannot be taken to see that the propeller is made by a competent and careful manufacturer.

"Every wire should be gone over carefully before the aeroplane is taken from the hangar. After alighting they should be gone over again, as the breaking of one wire would put an extra strain on its neighbor, and if it escapes getting tangled in the propeller it may still throw off the balance or out of balance, which would leave the aviator in a very uncomfortable, if not dangerous, position.

"But there is no need to be accidents in aviation, no matter how much care is used. There are accidents due to construction which can be prevented only by patient, long and constant study. New principles may be adopted. A different material may be used in some parts. Defects in construction are not to be done away with by mere care. Study and experiment alone can bring the remedy there.

"Accidents which are purely and simply accidents will also happen. They happen today to the steamship, the locomotive, the automobile and the electric car. Accidents will always happen. Their possibility, even their probability, simply must be ignored in every field of effort, and particularly so in aviation. We are not to be deterred by the probability of accidents in the future to be permitted to handicap aviation, there would be no aviation.

View of Capt. Baldwin.

Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, one of the most expert of veteran aviators, and yet as daring as the veriest novice, declares that neither accident nor death can explain him.

"There is something deeper and greater in aviation, and it is not of sport," he said. "It is a great secret, and one that will grow greater every day. It is still in the field of experimentation. It is hardly yet a sport. It is destined to become of great commercial value. I believe it is a limit to its possibilities. I believe the day is coming when men will fly from city to city as they now make journeys by rail.

"The altitude of flight is not an important matter after we have reached such a height as to make flying easy and free from the ordinary obstacles the earth may offer.

"Rapidly of flight, distance of flight and safety are the great problems. With the solution of these problems will also come the carrying capacity of the aeroplane for either passengers or freight. As to the value of the aeroplane in war, certainly if the aeroplane is developed to a commercially practical point it must become a practical engine of war.

"I do not feel that the accidents, fatal and otherwise, which are being charged up to aviation, are showing any great danger in man attempting to fly.

"Senior Antonio Fernandez was killed by a fall in Spain last year. He had shown himself able and daring, but he had had little experience. He was what might be called a daring novice, yet he attempted a flight equal to that attempted by the veteran aviator. The lesson here is that the novice must go slowly. He must not soar to heights where he will meet conditions with which he is unfamiliar. He must not attempt long flights until he knows what they require of his engine and propellers. He must be willing to profit by slow experience.

Mons. Delaprange's Death.

"One of the saddest tragedies of aviation was the death of Mons. Leon Delaprange. He was at the head of Europe's practical aviators. He was a man of wealth, an artist and of unusually high standing in every way. He was one of the pioneers of aviation and had been remarkably successful. He was a record maker in altitude flights. He had met with several minor accidents, and it would have seemed that his skill, knowledge and experience would have prevented a fatal accident in his case. But last January, while making a flight in a monoplane, his machine collapsed and he was hurled to his death.

"I have never learned the details of the accident, but I am impressed with the idea that there was either a lack of care in the inspection of his aeroplane or some carelessness in its operation. It is often the case that the veterans of aviation, the most experienced, display a carelessness of which a novice would not be guilty.

"Captain Rolfs lost his life in attempting to make a descent at too great an angle. I do not know that absolutely, but all I have learned about the case goes to substantiate that theory. Now, if you are gliding at an angle of from twenty to thirty degrees you can light in the utmost safety or you can rise again without trouble. When you attempt to descend at from thirty-five to fifty degrees you are running a grave risk. It is the danger line. It puts you at the mercy of a strong current or of any gust. When you go over fifty degrees I wouldn't insure you against accident for less than one hundred per cent premium.

"On the whole, these disasters have impressed me with the importance of these rules, which, if I have not pasted them in my hat, I have tacked to my memory.

"No detail of construction or operation is too small not to be worth attention. Keep all supporting parts away from the propellers.

"Most accidents happen close to the earth. The higher you fly the safer.

"Novices must go slow. The gasoline motor is not yet sufficiently perfected to insure safety at all times.

"We must study how best to increase the strength of supporting parts.

"Last, and greatest of all, be careful, be careful, be careful.

Mr. Curtiss' Advice.

It was expected that Mr. Glenn Curtiss would emphasize carelessness as the lesson taught by aviation accidents. Noted for his caution, which, however, it must be borne in mind, has not prevented him from becoming one of the most successful and most famous aviators in the world, he was quick to point out that it was the lack of care which was the prime cause in most of the disasters.

"Details of the accidents abroad, where most of them have happened," he said, "are meagre, but you can see in one of them a trace of carelessness. An aviator cannot be too careful if he values his life and limbs. In the first place, he must allow for accidents that will not be sense anything going wrong. Operating an aeroplane calls for the utmost caution. No flight should be attempted unless the conditions invite. I do not go in for 'stunts,' so called. The risk is too great and they add nothing to the science or art of aviation. Understand, I do not say the aviator should take no risk. He must do that or abandon aviation. But he should take no unnecessary risk. There is a wide difference.

"I am unable to see in any of the accidents, fatal or otherwise, anything that points to an error in what are now the generally accepted principles of aviation. I think, rather, they go to prove those principles correct. A thorough understanding of these principles, a strict inspection of the aeroplane in all its parts, ignoring not even a bolt, knowledge, experience and care in operation and regard for conditions will reduce aviation accidents to their minimum."

Mr. Hamilton's Views.

Mr. Charles K. Hamilton, whose daring flights have startled the country, does not attach as much importance to what are called "flying conditions" as do some other aviators.

LONDON BUSINESS IS SATISFACTORY

Bradstreet's Report Notes No Especial Activity Here but Volume Good.

CONDITIONS IN CANADA

From the Atlantic to the Pacific Trade Appears To Be in a Healthy Condition.

Bradstreet's Trade Review says: Bradstreet reports to Bradstreet's say the past week has been little changed in the trade situation here. The movement of general lines of merchandise continues of fair volume although trade has still much of a holiday nature. A fairly good sorting trade in drygoods is noted while business for fall continues of moderate proportions. News from the west is rather more reassuring and expectations are that a good fall business will be done with that part of the country. The eastern harvest is now near the finish and, generally speaking, the year has been a good one for the farming community. Deliveries of produce continue good, in some instances collections are reported to show slight improvement, but in the majority of cases they are still slow. Labor continues to be well employed and money is showing signs of plenty. Boot and shoe men are little slack and the demand for leather is reported quiet. Money shows a slightly easier tendency.

Toronto reports to Bradstreet's say a good steady tone is noted to general trade. The sorting business in general summer lines is of good proportion and retailers generally would expect a good position with hold too heavy stocks on hand. As far as fall and winter business is concerned ordering for Eastern Canada and some parts of the west has been good. Some delay, however, are showing a tendency to wait until they have a better idea of what their requirements are likely to be. Latest reports of the western harvest say late rains did much good, but the last week's fall business in Ontario promises to be of good volume. Crops of nearly all kinds have turned out well, the chief exception being that of apples. Receipts of produce are reported to be steady. Collections are about as reported last week.

In the West.
Winnipeg reports to Bradstreet's say both wholesale and retail trade have kept up very nicely during the past week. In fact, in some lines there has been some signs of increased business. The harvest is well on, and is a couple of weeks ahead of the last year. Reports state crops generally are looking better than was expected, having received much benefit from the rains of the past fortnight or so. Should this prove to be the case it is likely general business will feel the effect within the next month or two.

Vancouver and Victoria reports say all lines of trade report a good movement and prospects for the future continue excellent. Provincial industries are busily engaged and as long as this continues retail trade should keep its present satisfactory state of activity. Money seems to be working slightly easier. Collections are about as reported a week ago.

Quebec reports to Bradstreet's say trade does not appear to be more than holding its own during the past week, a quietness, which is usual, owing to the holidays. Collections are reported on the slow side and no general improvement is anticipated until the season is more advanced. Local industries are only fairly busy. Crop reports in this section continue favorable.

Hamilton reports say a fair volume of seasonal goods is reported amongst the retailers and wholesale business has shown some improvement during the past week. Local industries continue busy and country trade has been active. Crops are reported now fairly well harvested and the results are said to be good in all crops. Collections are fair.

Steady in London.
London reports say that while trade there is not unusually active a steady business is moving and the indications are that it will continue of good volume throughout the rest of the year. Crop reports have been reported in this district, and with high prices the farmers should be well situated. Local factories continue busy. Collections are fair.

Reports say general business there continues to move satisfactorily and there is a general feeling of confidence regarding the outlook for the future. Wholesalers report a fair demand for goods of all kinds, and a demand for sorting lines and seen to be fair to moderately good.

Personal Mention

A very pleasant time was spent the other evening at the home of Miss Minnie Holmes, Weston street, South London, when her friends gathered to bid her good-bye. Miss Holmes left on Tuesday on an extended trip to the west. She will visit her sister, Mrs. Charles Thorn, of Durban, Man., and will also visit Mr. Joseph Merritt, of Winnipeg, formerly of London. Miss Holmes has been in poor health lately and her friends hope to see her much improved on her return from the west.

Toronto Mail and Empire: Miss Kate S. McLaurin, daughter of Rev. John McLaurin, of 573 Spadina avenue, is returning home from her mission field at Vuyyuru, India, upon the advice of her physician. Miss McLaurin has been in India for fifteen years, with but one year's furlough, and the climate has begun to undermine her health. To fulfill her schedule, Miss McLaurin would not return until next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Braddon have left for a trip to Detroit, Pontiac, Toledo and Cleveland.

Mr. Walter Howell, of Detroit, a well-known Mergenthaler typesetting machine operator, has returned to Detroit after a visit with his father, Mr. Thomas Howell, of Philip street.

Late H. M. Mitchellree.
