LEEDS CAN PRODUCE CLOVER SEED.

There is no doubt but the good old County of Leeds could become a factor in red-clover seed production. In fact it is not an experiment for seed has been produced in former years of splendid quality.

This year there are a number of fine clover meadows in the county. The season for haying has started early and the recent rains have brought about conditions for the second growth to come on rapidly. every farmer in the county who will have second growth clover should save it all this year for seed if for no other reason than that they may have a supply of seed to sow next spring.

The prospects are for a great dearth of seed and an unprecedented demand. This is shown from market quotations in the seed world where dealers are bidding $24.10 per bushel for December deliveries and $21 for alsike. All small seeds may be expected to advance in price this sea-

It is expected that clover hullers will be available for the use of Leeds farmers wherever there will be enough seed worth while saved and where hullers are not already avail-

Flower Thieves in Cemetery

It is with regret we are acquainted with the fact that some person or persons have the habit of picking flowers from the graves in the cemetery. Just the mere picking of the flowers is not so bad, but when anyone is so destructive as to destroy the plants as well as the bloom, it is high time to take some measure to put a stop to this practice.

The case that has been brought to our notice is that of Mr. Morgan King, who some three years ago secured at considerable expense and trouble some Baby Rambling Rose Bushes, had same planted on his family plot in the local cemetery and secured a man to care for them during the summer. Just when they were covered with roses the first year trespassers stripped all the flowers and damaged the bushes to the extent that they died in a very short time. The next spring practically the same thing occurred. This spring more bushes were planted and were progressing favorably, on Sunday last they were covered with roses, but on Tuesday when Mr. King examined the plot, someone had been so unkind or thoughtless as to pluck some of the roses and do considerabe damage to the bushes.

Now, as a final warning, Mr. King says that the next person or persons caught tampering in any way with the bushes or the plot will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Westminster's Peal is Now a Full Octave.

The bells of Westminster, Abbey, which, except on rare occasions of historic importance, have been silent for a long period of years, rang out again on the occasion of the King's birthday, at the close of an impressive dedication service, conducted by the Dean of Westminster.

the peal was different from any due to the Abbey bell-ringers in previous times. For the first time in history, the famous Abbey possesses a full octave of eight bells, and bravely nd merrily the Victory peal sounded. Six bells had been the number of the peal ever since the Abbey had a tower in which to hang them. They were used to celebrate the armistice the last occasion on which they were rung, and before that, on the Coronation days of King George and King Edward. Recently, however, some anonymous donors offered to renovate the old peal, and add the bells neces sary to make the Abbey the possessor of a full octave.

The offer was received with gratitude by the Dean, and two of the old bells were re-cast and two new ones

At the close of the morning service on June 3rd the congregation passed to the northwest tower, and there the Dean formally dedicated the bells in the following terms: "In the faith of Jesus Christ, and in hope of the world's peace, we dedicate the bells now hung in the tower, as well as those newly cast as those that, being old, have been renovated and hung afresh to the Glory of God and for the replenishing of this Church of St.

Peter's in Westminster."

The Dean then signalled to the bel-

A Woman's Mite.

The poor woman's mite was well illustrated during the last Feed the Suns campaign in London. The story s told that while the Mayor Shoreditch was standing one day in the street holding in his hand a cheque for £21,000, sent to him by a war factory, a poor woman gave him a shilling to invest in war bonds. "It is all I have," she said, "but you are welcome to it to feed the guns and help the boys." The mayor accepted the shilling, and the papers published a notice to the effect that if the investor would call at Shoreditch town hall she would be provided with a war savings certificate. AID TO SLIM DINNER

May Be Given by a Satisfying Soup.

Slim dinners sometimes occur in the best regulated households, but with a little forethought on the part of the housewife they may be expanded to adequate proportions with a minimum of trouble and expense. A satisfying soup, an appetizing bit of salad and a hearty pudding flank the slim meat or fish dish and make it seem quite ample.

The soup, however, is the most potent factor in the suggested trio of amplifiers, thus becoming the point of concentration in giving first aid to the slim dinner. The satisfying soup is not necessarily a meat or heavy cream soup; it may be a light soup, of white stock or venetables or even fish, providing it has an appropriate edible carriely. These carriels are not as garnish. These garnishes are not as much used here as they are in other countries, for they are easy to make and give a pleasing variety to the oups.

These so-called garnishes are not for looks, but make a soup a satisfy-ing part of the meal and so lessen the expense of the meat course or elimin-ate it entirely, and include the various kinds of dumplings, forcemeat balls, jellied meat, fish or vegetables, cut in squares; toasted or fried bread squares, poached puffs of different kinds, poached eggs, sliced hard-boiled eggs, marconi pastes, cereals, spinach balls, vegetables and filled grapeleaf packet.

The Regent Diamond

There is an interesting story told of the great Regent diamond, now by the French government. owned Thomas Pitt, the grandfather of the Thomas Fitt, the grandshiper of the great William Pitt, Lord Chatham, purchased the stone while governor for the East India Company, and sent it to England in charge of his son Robert.

Pitt first heard of it in the summer of 1701, and about December of that year Jamchund, one of the best known native merchants, brought the diamond to him at Madras, and of-fered to sell it for two hundred thous-and pagodas. Pitt would not offer him more than thirty thousand, so the negotiations came to a close. In February Jamchund offered Pitt the diamond for one hundred thousand pagodas. Pitt beat him down to fif-ty-five thousand and raised his own offer to forty-five thousand. Jam chund would not agree, and they took a friendly leave.

and offered the diamond for fifty thousand pagodas. Pitt raised his offer to forty-seven thousand five hundred pagodas. Jamchund, after long haggling, came down to forty-eight thousand—about $100,000— and Pitt closed with him.

Pitt calculated that when the die mond was cut it would weigh about 300 carats and be worth £450, which he declared was "cheap as neck beef." Some monarch, he thought, would be the "fairest chapman" for it; and he preferred that it should be purchased for the crown of England. For the English crown he would make some abatement, but under no circumstance was it to be sold "to a club of people that shall make more advantage of it than myselfe, who have run the greatest of risks to purchase it.'

In 1703 these risks began to grow more serious. Never was man more tormented by a treasure. His letters from India palpitate with his fears. He dreaded being robbed by his own agents. Having intrusted it to his so Robert and Sir Stephen Evance, he subsequently ordered them to hand it to his cousin, George Pitt. About Rob-

"I am not a little jealous too of my who has already had too bold with me on several occasions; there-fore pray take care now that he does strip me.'

Rumors affecting Evance's credit threw him into an agony of alarm. Bitter too was his disappointment when he found that the stone had been reduced by cutting from 410 to 137 carats.

lift and to move about. They keep the water hot for a much longer space of time, because they do not conduct heat as metal does. They are easier to keep clean, because they are made in one piece without joint or seam, and the hard, glazed surface is impervious to liquids or odors. And they cost no more. Last longer, too.

Finally, in 1717, the Duke of Orleans regent during the infancy of Louis XV., agreed to buy it for the French Crown. Pitt, accompanied by his sons and his son-in-law, Charles Cholmondeley, carwied it over to Charles; whence it was delivered to the jeweller appointed to receive it. Pitt in a letter to his son Ebebet wrote:

"I cannot help impertinent foole medding with my busyness that they had nothing to do with. The stone was sold for 2,000,000 livres (£185,000). I received the third of the money, and the remainder in four payments, every XV., agreed to buy it for the French

A $10,000 LIQUOR INSPECTOR. (London Advertiser.)

The provincial official who directs the Government liquor dispensaries now in operation in several centres of population is said to receive a salary of $10,000, and after the showing made before the Meredith commission in connection with the Ayearst charges this seems to be "a bit thick."

What heavy honor, what crushing responsibility, what technical knowledge falls upon or is demanded of this official that he should receive ten times the average wage paid in this province, in addition to traveling expenses. With local inspectors and official vendors in/charge of the Government's stores, is there $10,000 ernment's stores, is there $10,000 worth of inspecting to be performed by a Government employee whose sal-ary as Grand Custodian of the Barrel ary as Grand Custonian of the Barrel is greater than that of the Premier of Ontario by $4,000 and greater than that of the Premier of Ontario by $1,000. Is there a mipister of the gospel, a school teacher, a college professor (certainly not a newspaper editor) who gets as much salary as the travelling overseer of the travelling of the travelling overseer of the travelling of the travelling overseer overse the travelling overseer of the Imperial Quart? Even the members of the Provincial license commission, no even Mr. Ayearst himself can ap proach this gentleman for affluence and apparently for influence.

Wonder what his politics was be-fore he entered into the task of High Chief Tester. Also his party service in the past and his pull at Toronto? And just how many of the $200 fines imposed under the O.T.A. go to make up his salary?

The liquor business as conducted by the Ontario Government must be a highly lucrative profession when such a $16,000 plum is handed out to a chief of inspectors. The moral appears to be: Become a bartender and get a start to one of the largest salaries in Ontario.

TOUGH MEATS

Meat may be cooked in water in number of ways without being alowed to reach the boiling point. With the ordinary kitchen range this is ac-complished by cooking on the cooler part of the stove rather than on the hottest part, directly over the fire.

Experience with a gas stove, particularly if it has a small burner known usually enables the cook to maintain temperatures which are high enough to sterilize the meat if it has become accidentally contaminated in any way and to make it ten der without hardining the fibres.

The double boiler would seem to be neglected utensil for this purpose Its contents can easily be kept up to temperature of 200 degrees F., nothing will burn. Another method is by means of the fireless cooker. In this a high temperature can be maintained for a long time without application of fresh heat Still another method is by means of

Gramateki

The story of an original German spy is told by Le Mercure de France. It appears that this man, Gramatski, condemned to imprisonment by the Norwegian courts, and doing time in his cell, wrote an advanced mathematical treatise and composed an opera. Owing to his good conduct his sentence was reduced by half, and he was about to be liberated when he begged to be allowed to finish his sentence, declaring that he was engaged on a translation of Lund's treatise on mathematics, a work of national importance. Gramatski offered to play some of the airs of his opera on the flute for the entertainment of the court, but the court did not appear particularly inclined to hear them. The Norwegian authorities are considering what had best be done with Gramatski.

Knew the Anecdote

Dr. Harrison Allan, treasurer of the Bible Society of America, said in an address recently: "We find a deplorable ignorance of the Bible even among the higher classes. When, now and then, we meet some one who possesses a little biblical knowledge, he or she is apt to be ridiculously proud about it. A young millionaire and his wife were once talking to me about a visit they had made to the famous picture gallery of the Prado in Spain. What did you like best in the Prado?' I asked. 'A Correggio,' said the husband—'a Correggio of Adam and Eve in the garden with the apple and the serpent. Then the young wife looked at me with a superior air and added: 'Yes, that inter-ested us especially, because, you see, we knew the anecdote.'"

A ROMANCE-FILLED SEA

One of the Historic Centres of the Orient.

Surely nowhere else in the world, writes F. B. Bradley-Birt in "Through Persia," is there an arm of the sea so fraught with historic memories as that which guards the approach to Persia on the south. Quitting India at Kara-chi, one sails straight out into another world, a world of Oriental despotism and old romance.

Even at the outset, as one crosses the Arabian Sea, historic memories crowd thick upon one. This way from the Indus, at whose mouth lies Kara-chi, sailed Nearchus, admiral of the great Alexander, in the fourth century before Christ, leaving so careful a re-cord of his voyage that its course along the northern shores can still be traced to-day.

From the opposite and of the gulf, from Busrah in Arabia, 12 centuries later came Sinbad the Sailor, of wide renown, on his seven voyages of farfamed adventure to furnish nursery tales for all time to come.

Early in the sixteenth century there suddenly appeared upon the scene the high-poped vessels of the Portuguese, first of European nations here as elsewhere in the west.

Then at the beginning of the seven-teenth century there followed in the wake of the Portuguese the British and the Dutch, eager to rob the earliest pioneers of their hard-won laurels and wrest from them the empire of the seas. From time to time the French appeared like meteors amidst the clash of warring elements, making spasmodic efforts to share the spoil and plunder of this new world of wealth, the fame of which, magnified a hundredfold in Oriental flower of peech, had spread far and wide over

Throughout the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries this coveted arm of the sea was the constant scene of strife from end to end. With varying fortunes the Portuguese, clinging with dogged tenacity to the first footholds they had won, held their own for 150 years. For a time the Dutch-men swept the seas. Then the British succeeded to the supremacy of the gulf.

DEARER COAL.

Six Shillings Per Ton Increase in Britain.

London, Cable—Announcement by Sir Auckland Geddies, the Minister of Reconstruction, in the House of Commons to-day that the Government, had decided to raise the price of coal to the consumer by six shillings a ton on July 16, caused a sensation among the members. Sir Auckland, said it was hoped that the increased cost of the payment of standard wages, the reduction of hours and the reduced shift. This increased cost of fuel, be pointed out, obviously would seriously hamper manufacturing and export business. Its effect undoubtedly would be very serious upon the Lancashire manufacturing concerns, he added.

The Minister also pointed out that the profits of the colliery owners would be limited in accordance with the report of the Sankey, Mining Commission, to one shilling, two-penies per ton.

Prince Henry of Prussia to the British King.

Offers Aid in Throwing Light On War.

Berlin Cable - Prince Henry Prussia, brother of the former Germa Emperor, has now come to the aid of the dethroned war lord, and adds his plea to that of the others for abandonment by the allies of their project to bring the former Kaiser to trial for his crimes against mankind.

Prince Henry, in a telegram to King George, begging him to desist in the effort to extradite the former mon-arch, pledges himself to assist the King in bringing to light "the truth regarding the war and its conse quences.

In his message Prince Henry says that after his conversation with King George in July, 1914, he returned to Berlin, and was with the then Emperor when mobilization began. The telegram continues: "I can testify that the Kalser and his councillors endeavored by every means to avert, the war and disaster to mankind. 230, and that a neutral court should be created to investigate the responsibility for the war.

In the course of the debate President Febrenbach protested against, Alsace-Lorraine being torn from Germany. He said that the treaty of 1871 simply made good what had been taken from Germany 150* years before. He hoped that the people of Alsace-Lorraine would preserve their German character, customs and civil-German character, customs and civilization.

Part 7 of the peace treaty, com-prising articles 227 to 230 relates to penalties. Article 227 paraigns the former German Emperor for "a supreme offence against international morality and the sanctity of treaties." The other articles relate treaties. The other articles relate to the bringing before military tribunals of persons accused of having committed acts in violation of the laws and customs of war; to the handing over of these persons by Germany, and to an undertaking by the German Government to furnish documents and information of every kind bearing on these offer and violations.

Ratification of the peace treaty by the German National Assembly removes all doubt of the acceptance of the terms by Germany.

The National Assembly by ratifying the treaty makes it possible for the allied and associated powers to raise the blockade. Official notification was sent Germany on June 29 that the blockade would be raised when the treaty was ratified. Placing this condition on the raising of the blockade was looked upon in Peace Conference circles as a sure plan for securing speedy ratification by Germany.

The Council of Five-on-Monday decided to lift the commercial censorship on communications with Germany simultaneously with the removal of the blockade.

The peace treaty does not become effective for all the signatory powers until three of the great allied powers in addition to Germany have ratified it.

When three of the principal allied powers, in addition to Germany, have ratified the treaty it becomes effective for those who have ratified it. After Germany and the three allied powers have ratified it, the treaty will come into force for each other power on the day when it notifies the Peace-Conference secretaries of its ratification.

The resolution adopted by the Allied Council concerning the blockade was as follows.

The Superior Blockade Council is instructed to base its arrangements for rescinding restriction upon trade for rescinding restriction upon trade with Germany upon the presumption that the allied and associated powers will not wait to raise the blockade until the completion of ratification as provided for at the end of the treaty with Germany, but that it is to be raised immediately upon resent of information that the treaty of peace has been ratified by Germany."

Promulgation of the resolution ratifying the treaty is dependent upon the signing of the resolution by Prezident Ebert.

"The Albino Bass of the Ottawa" is the title of a real fishing story from the Dominion Capital which is one of the several good stories in the national outdoor magazine for July. The six illustrations show ing the capture of a Newfoundland salmon are the best this year. They accompany a splendid article on the Humber, King of Atlantic Salmon Streams. The interesting departments, Guns and Ammunition, Fishing Notes, Conservation, Kennel and Trap are all up to their usual standard and along with the second instalment of that interesting serial, "The Bear of Silves Dale" go to make up one of the best summer issues of the Canadian national sporting monthly, ROD AND GUN IN CANADA can be obtained from any bookstand or direct from the publishers, W. The Kids are Planning for a Big Holiday.

At Brockville, Friday, July 25th, Sparks World's Famous Shows will hold forth for a matinee and night performance, and the rare, unque and wonderful things that have been promised on paper will become reality.

The airy riders who, in diaphanous skirts have been pirouetting on the expansive backs of beautiful and speedy circus horses (on the bill-boards), will be seen in all the gorgeousness of tulle and seductive smile; the elephants will copy their pictured acts of comedy and go them one better; the contortionist will pro-ceed to disentangle himself from the knots he tied in his responsive body last year; the acrobatic families will turn dizzy somersaults and the clowns will work off their best and latest comedy stunts to the great delight of the crowds present-we all

There is nothing on earth like the circus. It is the people's show par excellence. It is the one great American amusement that appeals to BUY YOUR COAL NOW.

A survey of the coal situation by the Commission of Conservation proves that a coal shortage next winter, and possibly next autumn, is aimost a certainty.

During the year ended May 24, the output of anthracite was only 1,679,-600 tons. This production is 65,000 tons than the week preceding, and is 226,000 tons less than the corresponding week in 1918. While the production is falling off, retail dealers in the United States continue to be de-luged with orders from customers are insistent upon prompt de-

Up to June 7th of the gresent year, the total production of anthracite was only 33,349,500 net tons as compared with 42,858,000 tons in the corresponding period of 1918, a decline of 91/2 million tons, or 22 per cent. it is a fair assumption that the produc-tion during 1919 will be less than 80,000,000 tons, whereas the production in 1918 was 99,514,334 tons. If this prediction be verified, there will shortage of 20,000,000 tons, or

The shortage is due to a number of causes, not the least of which is the migration of tens of thousands of Jugo-Slavs, Czecho-Slavs, Hunga rians, Poles and other Europeans who are returning to Europe.

In addition, if there is such a serious shortage, we may confidently expect much higher prices for anthracite. Therefore, the Commission of Conservation advises consumers to purchase their winter supply of hard coal at the earliest possible

Some Few Drawbacks Connected With Simple Life.

Man Who Goes Back to Nature Finds That He Has in No Way Escaped the Curse of Adam, Laid on Us All.

Back to nature? Well, what about it? For twelve hours out of the twenty-four I am now immolated in a forest near Vashon Heights, bordering the clammy beach, trying to feed the hun-gry maw of the camp stove, the while mopping my streaming brow and getting back my wind. The other twelve hours of the day I am dashing across twelve miles of water in a saucy craft, getting to work, working, and dashing back again at eventide to prepare the firewood for the evening repast. We would get along fine in this world were it not for the fact that we are obliged

My poets have lately referred much to nature's wondrous beauty that we of the city lose, and I am now engaged in investigating the matter, but I find the little intimate matters connected with living close to nature take so much of one's time that one has few moments for nature, except, perhaps, if one be profane, to swear at the en-tangling brush, the beach barnacles, and the thickness of the log one is trying to saw through.

Some day when I get, perhaps, two days' firewood ahead, and the pancake flour, butter and bacon, crackers, tea, coffee, bread, etc., all in, if the boat is not whistling for the dock, I intend to lift my weary head from my sodden task, brush the perspiration from my eyes, and absorb some of this beauty of nature that I hear so much about. Last night I tore away a few mo ments from wood sawing to get into the waters of the Sound. It was apparent at once that the Sound water is experiencing a very late spring, and that its winter freshness has not yet worn off. However, after one is inafter the first shock-one gets reconciled to the change, and the tonic effect is highly exhilarating. After the dip I sat on the veranda of my shack and felt so well that I saw my way clear to buy my winter's coal and pay the last half of my taxes. My goodness, it would be worth while for everyone to take to beach bathing if only for the optimism it induces! I can even stand it to have Willie sit around and tell me how to do things. Willie is only fifteen but he has an enormous knowledge on every subject. He is here in the wilderness for the first time in his life, yet he instructs me how to saw a log and prepare the firewood and on other seasonable topics, and the only way I can get even with him is to send him two miles after milk, thereby giving him opportunity to get still closer to nature.

One would greatly enjoy communing with nature, no doubt, if one had time to commune in this busy, stressful business life. And there are hints of it. Yesterday the sun came up on a world as fresh and bright as though it had been made overnight; the soft en breeze came in through the window, a strange forest bird chirruped outside; the lapping of the water on the beach wooed to further slumber, and I was about to take another eyeful and another earful when the camp cook howled hoarsely for fuel, summoning me hastily back to this material world. If I can arrange to get along without eating, I think I am going to like this back-to-nature life of the camp.—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

New Thing in Diplomacy.

Just recently, one of the allied powers, in the process of setting its house in order, or, rather, going carefully over the ground to see what needed most to be set in order, tackled its diplomatic service. It found many things that were out of date, and many other things that never had been in date, and it determined to make many reforms.

Perhaps the most significant was the one which provided that in future a working knowledge of stenography should be an essential part of the diplomatic equipment. More and more surely is it being proved true that the ambassador of the old order passed with the advent of the telegraph and telephone.

Some one once said, indeed, that ambassadors nowadays had become clerks; an exaggeration, of course, but the latest "requirement" lends color the view.-Christian Science

Farm Gardens.

The farm garden idea did not start with our entry into the war, but had its inception in 1914, when the Women's Farm Gardens association was formed. At first the association bus-ied itself to obtain positions for women in farm and garden work. After we got into the war and the dangers of a food shortage threatened, the association began work along the lines of the department of agriculture in England, which encouraged the tilling of small pieces of land, going so far as to give out allotments to those who will till them. The boy scouts and other bodies have done much this year along the line of war gardening.

Commentary.—I. The Lord's Supper instituted (Matt. 26: 26-30). 26. As they were eating.—This was on Thursday evening. Jesus had closed His work of teaching on the preceding. Tuesday evening, had rested on Wednesday and on Thursday evening Jesus and His disciples were eating the Passover meal in a room in Jerusalem. The feast of the Passover was observed yearly in commemoration of cheering of the Passover was observed yearly in commemoration of the deliverance of the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage and the preserving of their first-born from the destruction that came upon the first-born of the Egyptians. The blood of the Passover Lemb carrielled. the Passover lamb, sprinkled upon the lintels and door posts of the Is-raelites' houses, meant life to the peo-ple and was a fitting type of Christ, whose blood was to be shed for the salvation of mankind. Took bread— This was at the close of the Passover meal. The bread was in the form of meal. The bread was in the form of a thin round loaf, or cake, and was unleavened, as no leavened bread was used in the Passover feast. Blessed it used in the Passover feast, Blessed it be made of it, it would be effective.

Brake it—Jesus broke the bread that He might divide it among His disciBles, and the breaking of the breadtypified the wounding and bruising of Christ's body on the cross. Gave it to the disciples — All the disciples were to share in the ordinance that Christ, was instituting. This is My body.—This is a common expressionfor, "This represents My body." The disciples were to take the bread and eat it in token of their partaking of disciples were to take the bread and eat it in token of their partaking of the spiritual benefits that would come to them through the death of their Master. 27. Took the cup. The cup contained the expressed juice of the grape, which had been used during the Passover feast, Gave thanks— The Greek word is that from which our word Eucharist is derived. The Lord's Supper thus becomes to us a thank-offering. Drink ye all of it—The disciples were told that they should all partake of the contents of the cup. 28. My blood of the new testament— "My blood of the covenant."—R. V. blood of the covenant. wine was to represent the blood of Christ that would shortly flow on the cross. Jesus entered into a coven-

WHAT is your doctor's first question? Why does he sus pect constipation?

Because 90% of his patients are suffering from ailments caused directly or indirectly by the action of poisons formed in a sluggish intes-

These body poisons are absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body until the weakest organ, unable to withstand the poisonous contact, becomes infected and refuses to act properly. Unfortunately it is usually not until then that the doctor is consulted and asked to treat the diseased organ.

The surest way of purifying the blood and preventing the formation of these destructive body poisons is to prevent stagnation of food waste in the intestinal tract—to prevent constipation.

Constipation is not a matter to be taken lightly or neglected. Nor is it either sufficient or safe to take castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., in order to "force" bowel action. Such action does not cure constipation, it makes constipation

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels. Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the in-testinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constination and selfpoisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasan to take.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists. Insist on Nujol. You may sufer from ant to save all who would come to the Father through Him. The title of the New Testament comes from this passage. Shed for many—For all mankind the blood of Christ was shed (Heb. 2. 9). For the remission of sina—It had been said, "Without shedding of blood is no remission," Heb. 9. 22; Lev. 17: 11). The blood of Christ was to be shed that all who repent and believe in Jesus might be saved. "The blood of the Old Testament was shed for a few. It confirmed a covenant made with Israel (Exod. 24. 8). The atonement was only for Israel (Lev. 16.24); but Jesus Christ is a propitiation for the sine of the world (1 John 2; 2)." 29. Will not drink henceforth of this Truit—Jesus gave His disciples of this Truit—Jesus gave His disciples notice that this was His last meal with them and that He would soon go to the Father. When I drink it new to the Father. When I drink it new—Jesus was here referring to the partaking of the joys and glories of the heavenly state which were to be participated in by all who should savingty believe in Him. He pointed to the fact of a resurrection and of a blissful reunion in the Father's glory. In

The Pather's kinglem. This common the common in the common in the father's glory. In ful reunion in the Father's glory. In my Father's kingdom—This expression is used to denote heaven. "The thought of the meeting again is brought in to brighten the gloom of the leave-taking."—Expositor's Greek Testament. 30. When they had sung an hymn—The Passover feast was concluded by singing what was called the Hallel, Psa. 113-118. This is the only instance of which we have record of our Lord's being engaged in singof our Lord's being engaged in singing. It was before this song, while Jesus and the eleven were in the upper room, that Jesus recorded in John 14-17. Went out not the Mount of Olives—The Mount of Olives is eastward from Jerusalem across the valley of Kidron. He know when valley of Kidron. He knew what awaited Him, that He would be betrayed by Judas Isc. riot into the hands of His enemies. He would pass through Gethsemane and would pray there where He had often prayed

II. The Lord's supper a memorial (1)

20-22 Certain evil

II. The Lorus support.

Cor. 11; 20-34). 20-22. Certain evils had grown up in the church at Corinth. There seems to have been divided to the members. When isions among the members. When they gathered to enjoy the love-feast, they divided up into sets, or cliques, some bringing with them a bountiful supply of food and others who were supply of food and others woo were poor, had little or nothing, hence some were "drunken" and others were hungry. This service or exercise then became an occasion of revelry rather than a means of grace, and the apostle was strong in his condemna tion of the course that was taken. The love feast was different from the Lord's Supper. The custom seems to have prevailed of having a meal and at its close to celebrate the Lord's supper. 23. For I have received of the Lord—Paul indicates to us that the risen Lord made known to him directly the history of the institution of the Lord's Supper, and he gives it here We thus have his account, in addition to those given by the writers of the Gospels. Which also I delivered un-Gospels. Which also I delivered un-to you—The language here shows that Paul had given to the Corinthian church the account of the Lord's Supper as he had received it from the Lord. The same night—It was after the Passover feast had been eaten that Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper. In which he was betrayed-Jesus and the eleven went out into the garden of Gethsemane where Jesus prayed, and after prayer Judas Iscariot appeared with Jewish leaders and soldiers and betrayed Jesus with a kiss. Tool bread—The description which the apostle Paul gives of all the institution of the Lord's Supper is in full agreement with that given by Mat-thew. 24. This do in remembrance of me-We note that the word remembrance here used means the act of recollection, and also that which enables one to recollect. It is used also in the sense of a memorial. Emphasis is thus placed upon the fact that the Lord's Supper is a memorial. By it we are reminded of the efficacy of the atonement of Christ, and we are to atonement of Christ, and we are to remember with gratitude the sacrifice that was made for us. In thus re-membering the death of Christ our faith should grasp firmly the benefits which flow to us from his death, 25. When he had supped—Jesus took part himself in this sacred rite. ye drink it-The Lord's Supper was to be frequently observed. In some per-iods of the church it has been cale-No directions are given in the scriptures as to the frequency of this observance, but it should be observed at regular intervals. 26. Ye do shew the Lord's death—Chirstians in partaking of the Lord's Supper declare their faith in Jesus Christ, and in the atonement he made. Their faith is quickened and strengthened by observing it truly and a sermon is preached to the world upon the effi-cacy of the atonement. They who engage in this ordinance signify their separation from the world and declare that they have confidence that the blood of Christ cleanses from sin. Till blood of Christ cleanses from sin. I'll he come—"This same Jesus, which is taken from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1;11). This ordinance was instituted by our Lord during the period that he was earth at his first coming and is to be observed until he shall come again. He is coming again to receive the church, his bride and we are exhorted to faithfulness in watching for his coming.

27-34. The apostle sends forth a warning against partaking of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper unworthily. They who engage in this ordinance with irreverence, without family in Christ are "guilty of the body and blood of Christ." They flyng sights or insults against the Lord. Hence every one should carefully examine his spirit before approaching the Lord's table and see that he is coming revtable and see that he is coming reverently and trustingly. Paul attributes the weakness and sickness of many of the church of the Corinthians to the fact that they have sinned against the body and blood of Christ in partaking of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper unworthily. Neither the love-feast nor the Lord's Supper should be made an occasion for the gratification of the desire for food and drink with one another. I. Communion with Christ. II. Communion with Christians I. Communion with Christ. The Lord's Supper is originally and distinctively a Christian institution. It is the second of the sacraments re-ceived by the Christian church and is of equal authority with baptism, from which it differs in that it is to be repeated on frequent occasions. Both belong only to the children of God. It was instituted by Christ himself and had no typical predecessor in the ceremonial dispensation, and has no symbolic representative in any other system of religious service. In its original significance the term Euchar ist appropriately means the giving of thanks, which on the part of Jesus accompanied the setting apart of each of the elements used in its administration. We have four accounts of its establishment; in the first three gospels, and in Paul's first letter to the Corinthian church, whose knowledge was derived, as he emphatically tells us, by a special revelation to himself (1 Cor. 11: 23-25). As a rehimself (1 Cor. 11: 23-25). As a religious service it looks in two directions: backward to the cross, and to his second coming. "Ye do shew the Lord's death till he come." The Lord's Supper is first a memorial service. Jesus shrank from forgetfullness and to perpetuate the remembrance of himself, inseparable from his work, established this "visible gospel." Nothing can kindle glowing love like the stirring of the memory of great sacrifice endured in service rendered. By the very terms and limitations of its establishment Jesus gave his disciples assurance, and kindled anticipation of his return. The sacrament is a declaration o faith in the value and virtue of redemption. We can not behold, much less receive, the emblems of Christ's death without remembering our own moral need and the vicarious significance of his death on the cross. purpose is to quicken faith and kindle love. The Old Testament foreshad owed the principle when the prophet turning from the rites of Mosiac ceremonialism, cried from "the watch-tower of vision," "The just shall live by his faith." Jesus echoed the same truth when he declared, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man....

ye have no life." Nothing is more evident than that the communion was instituted to keep ever before us the fact that the partaking of food is not more necessary to the physical than simple faith is to the spiritual life. II. Communion with Christians. The cross is the center of communion. Here converge all human interests and hopes. Here God's people confess a common need and kindle a common The Lord's Supper is a symbol brotherhood. The munion which it represents is of the spirit and not of the act. Love for Christ will imply and embrace love for his followers. The symbolic significance is not in the vessel, but in its 'contents, consecrated by Christ's act of blessing as an abiding emblem of atoning blood. There is no tran-lished symbolism. This is exclusively a service for Christians or sincere trusting penitents. To eat and drink "unworthily," "not discerning the trusting pentions...

"unworthily," "not discerning included body," is blasphemy.

Source of Timber Shifted.

Shipbuilders in Maine are bringing timber for supplying their yards from Oregon. This, a few years ago, would have been regarded as another instance of carrying coals to Newcastle. Time was when Maine had timber enough for its own purposes and to spare. There is, perhaps, no occasion for alarm at the present time, but would it not be well, even aow, for Maine to begin thinking of conserving soil of the Aroostook? To have go out of the state for timber is sad, but to have to look elsewhere for potatoes would be terrible.—Christian Monitor

Names of a Decade

Famous Writers Born Between 1809 and 1819.

In the intellectual sphere it will be found that most of the great names of the Victorian Age are those of men and women born in the ten years between 1809 and 1819. Carlyle, Macaulay, Disraeli, J. S. Mill are all a little earlier, and Herbert Spencer, Matthew Arnold, Millais, George Meredith a little later. But the calendar of those ten years is worth recounting: -In 1908 Darwin, Gladstone, Tenny-

1811, Thackeray.
1812, Dickens, Robert Browning.
1816, Charlotte Bronte.
1819, (the birth year of Queen Victoria herself) George Eliot, Charles Kingaley, Ruskin.
I have included Disraeli and Gladstone not because, but in spits, of their being politicians.

At the Queen's accession the eldest of these was twenty-eight and the youngest eighteen. That year (1837)— the opening scene of the Victorian of these was twenty-eight and the youngest eighteen. That year (1837)—the opening scene of the Victorian drama—fitty heralded the future; for in it were given to the English world two, immortal works, opposite as the poles in character, but each disclosing for the first time the real genius of its author: Dickens' "Pickwith Papers" and Carlyle's "French Revolution." During the decade which followed our "literature was enriched by "Vanity Fair," "Jane Eyre," the first volume of "Modern Painters," and the first two volumes of Macaulay's "History of England."

Sir Edward Clarke has recently produced an interesting autobiography. I will not go through his catalogue, which every one should read and study; but I will take two or three years as samples, sometimes omitting one or two of Sir E. Clarke's specimens, and sometimes adding one or two, for which he has not found a place.

"Take first 1850—the year of !!Pena place.

"Take first 1850—the year of !!Pendennis," "In Memoriam," and "Christmas Eve and Easter Day." Or again, 1855, with "Maud," "Men and Women," "The Virginians," Macaulay's third and fourth volumes, and Herbert Spencer's "Psychology." Or, lastly, 1859, with the "Idylls of the King," "Adam Bede," "The Tale of Two Citles," "The Ordeal of Richard Feveral," Edward Fitzgerald's "Rubaiyst," and (in some ways the most epochand (in some ways the most epoch-making of them all) Darwin's "Origin of Species." Even this marvelous and almost unexampled array gives an inalmost unexampled array gives an inadequate idea of the resources of Victorian genius when the age was at its zenith. For, within the same ten years, we have the first published poems of Matthew Arnold and William Morris, Ruskin's "Stones of Venics," the first novel of Anthony Trollope,
Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford," Mill's "Liberty," and the best work of Charles Kingsley. The stream, if never afterward quite so full and strong, did not dry up; it was for years later being dry up; it was for years later being constantly re-enforced and vitalized by new tributaries, down to the wery confines of the Victorian Age. The wind blows where it lists; and no theory of causation with which I am acquainted—whether of heredity or imaginable antecedents—can adequately account for these indisputable quately account for these indisputable facts. It is right, moreover, to record; that the Victorian public, the men in the street at whom Matthew Arnold gibed, the subscribers to the circulating libraries, which then went far to make or unmake the fortunes of an author, were neither unapprociative, nor exclusive in their appreciations. nor exclusive in their appreciations It is arue that the two greatest of the women writers of the age—Charlotte Bronte and George Eliot—were, at the Bronte and George Ellot—were, at the outset of their careers, roughly handled by the orthodox and fashionable critics. In the case of another pair of the most gifted authors of the time, Robert Browning and George Meredith, each of whom had to wait before he could make good his claims to pass, from the worship of a coterie, into the recognized Pantheon. The into the recognized Pantheon, the fault lay, perhaps, as much with the perversity of the writer as with the dullness of the public.—From Mr. Ascuith's Romanes lecture, "Some Aspects of the Victorian Age."

Improvements.

Baker's cinnamon buns, always so unlike 'the kind mother used to bake," may be made almost to pass for those, by buttering, rolling in a bit of cinnamon mixed with sugar, and browning for just a few minutes in the oven. The bakers' cinnamon buns are never brown enough anyhow, so this will not make them overdone Apple sauce served with a dressing of ice cold orange juice is delicious.

When compelled to serve berries without cream, try a little marshmailow-whip instead. It is really almost as good, perhaps quite so. It can be made at home or cought, and has the advantage of keeping indefinitely. It has proved a boon to many a housewhen the cream has gone sour. or when a pudding or other dessert seems untempting, and requires a little extra touch to make it just right.

But they are really only ordinary, bought, canned ones, removed from the can to an earthen dish, a few strips of bacon laid on the top, and a little black mo-lasses mixed with the beans—then till whole baked for a little while till whole baked for a little while till brown. They have quite the home-made flavor. Evon a Bostonian might be fooled!

Linked France and Scotland.

The small border, or treasure, which surrounds the arms of Scotland in the British coat of arms is the emblem of preservation of protection. A legend states that the border was given Achaius, king of the Scotts, by Charle magne as a pledge that the French lilies should defend the Scottish lion. The significance of this lies in the de sign of the border, which is composed of fleur-de-lis.

He came forward and took the hand which Clytie held out somewhat timidly. There were dark shawhat timidly. There were dark shadows under his eyes, and his thin lips were compressed. CHAPTER IV

Toward sundown—appropriately enough, for he was a "sundowner"—a young man trudged along, what, by a stretch of courtesy, may be called a road winding through an Australian valley.

The scene was beautiful enough, for, though the valley was somewhat som-ber by reason of the heavy foliage, the hills above were clear and gloriously colored by the rays and the glow of the setting sun. But the wayfarer was not "taking any" scenery just then, for the full enloyment of the beauties of nature is not easily acquired on an empty stomach; and the young man was not only hungry, but very tired, and by no means certain of a meal and shelter, to say nothing of a bed.

He was a fine spectmen of humanity; not quite six feet, with broad shoulders and a muscular frame; inshoulders and a muscular frame; in-deed, there was very little else but bone and muscle, for he was almost as lean as a greyhound, and yet with that air of compactness and strength, of suppleness and readiness which your young Englishman displays all the world over, when he has been prothe world over, when he has been pro-perly dragged up as a boy, and passed through the curriculum of a public school. Tired as he was, he trod the uneven ground lightly and did not slouch. He was a sundowner, right enough; but any man, with the slight-est knowledge of the tribe, could have told by a glance at the young fellow that he was not a tramp of the com-mon or casualward kind.

He was good-looking as well as lithe and stalwart, with a well-featurlithe and stalwart, with a well-featured face, burnt brown by the Australian sun, and with eyes which are called "hazel" by the unfair sex, and with a mouth, not too small for manilness, and as resolute and as expressive as the young eyes. Taking him altogether, he was not the kind of young man who could pass through a crowd unnoticed.

His clothes of stout and serviceable cord showed signs of wear and cord, showed signs of wear and veather, and were torn here and there by the wattle; but they had got moulded to his shape by rain and sun and he wore them instead of their wearing him as alas! is too often the case with man's habiliments. The usual thick blue handkerchief, containing a few necessaries, was tied on the end of a stick which he carried over his broad shoulder; and he was fortunate enough to be smoking a pipe, for he had eaten nothing since he had left the last station in the early morning; and with such a man in such a place and in such a case, an old briar pipe, filled with strong to-bacco, is food, drink, mother, father, consoler and friend.

New, a little depression under such donable enough, but this young man was of a cheerful countenance, for he had pluck, a certain high spirit which his friends called "audacity," and the incapacity for knowing when he was beaten. But he had walked quite far enough that day, and he scanned the road before him with lively interest His tramp had been so solitary that his interest grew still more lively when, turning a bend of the rough road, he saw the figure of a woman at some distance in front of him. She was walking more slowly than he was, and with a gait which his ex-perienced eyes told him indicated a perienced eyes told him indicated a weariness as great as, or greater than, his own. Her head, covered by a shawl, was bent; she seemed to be holding something in her arms. There was something so pathetic in the figure, dragging along the apparently never-ending road, and shadowed by the great gum trees, as if they were adding their weight to her lonely misery, that the young fellow, who possessed a tender heart toward all sorrowing womankind, quickened his pace that he might overtake her and offer her at least the solace of his companionship; but she turned an other bend of the road, and, when he reached it, he found, to his amazement, that she had disappeared.

Much surprised, for there was no habitation in sight, he hurried on, and presently he say her lying under a tree, amid the scrub and underworth, on the side of the road. He dropped his bundle and bent over her. The shawl had fallen from her head, and he saw that she was young, very little more than a girl, he guessed—a girl who would have been very pretty, but for the rack and ruin which emaciation had worked in her face; but he scarcely noticed her appear-ance, for he saw that she had fainted, and judging by the trasted face and the thin hand that pressed against her bosom the burden she still carried, he divined the cause—the exhaustion of hunger and exposure, of the terrible tramp through the Australian wilder ness. He had noticed a brook, not yet dried up, a little way down the road, and he ran back and got his hat full of water and bathed her face and lips

While he was doing so, her poor thin hand relaxed its grip of the child, and the young fellow took it from her. He glanced at the baby face, whitened by the touch of death's fingers, then, biting his lips and fighting with his emotion, he laid the dead baby on the ground beside her. Her eyes went to it directly they opened, sought it with an agony of foreboding and grief, and her first words were:
"Is it—dead?"

He did the best, the wisest thing He did the best, line wisest thing he could have done, and silently put the poor little mite in her arms. Her wan face broke up and the tears wan face broke up and the tears streamed down her cheeks and fell on the cold little face on her bosom; then suddenly she dashed the lears away, and looking up at his grave and pitying eyes, said, in a low

Her tears were threatening again but she choken them back, her hand pressed against her throat, and sat present against her throat, and mat gazing vacantly before her, and rock-ing herself over the babe who had escaped this wicked, weary world of

The young fellow leaned against a The young fellow leaned against a tree and filled his pipe with shaking fingers; for he knew that he must give her a little time. He was shaking with something else besides pity; for he noticed the absence of that significant ring, which the wife, who is also a mother, will cling to until the last hour of her extermity, and he suspected a will the tremity, and he suspected a villain in the case.

Presently he said, in a gentler voice a more tender one, than one would have suspected in so stalwart and nave suspected in so stalwart and strong a man:

"D you think you could walk a little way farther? There is a station at about another mile. It is called Parraluna. I was going there, and will take you with me."

She looked at him in a dazed fashion for a moment; then she made to rise.

As he helped her to her feet, he said:

"Give me the child."

But she shook her head and pressed the baby closer to her. With the assistance of her companion's atrong arm, she struggled along for a little while; then, with a dry sob, she held out her burden to him, and he took it, gently, reverently. In this fashion, and in silence, they made their slow progress; and after a while they heard the barking of dogs roused by their approach, and came in sight of the homestead.

Jack Douglas repeated the state-ment that he had found the girl on the road; and Mrs. Jarrow, after a steady look at him, nodded her head.

HAYING

The cutting and curing of hay is an operation requiring the exercise of prompt action and sound judgment if a maximum yield of hay of suitable quality is to be saved. Towards this end there are several factors which should receive consideration. The time or stage of cutting is of prime throat the state of the state of the state of the same stage. importance since it affects both yield and quality. Usually the most prof-table yield is obtained when the crop is cut when in blossom or just past that stage, say when about one-third of the bloom has disapeared. Or-dinarily the tendency is to leave the commencement of having too late for commencement of naying too fate for proper curing during the latter part of the season, due to over ripeness of the crop. It is advisable, therefore, to plan to do this work during the period when there is the least possibility of tos. Beginning haying sardy is good practice. early is good practice. Clover and alfalfa cut slightly immature will make better hay under favorable weather conditions than left until weather conditions than left until fairly ripe. Besides, an early start will allow for loss of time through broken weather as of the broken weather during the haying season and will ensure a heavier sec-ond crop which may be utilized for hay, seed and pasture purposes. With regard to methods of curing, no definite rule or rules of procedure can be laid down to meet all require ments. A successful hay maker so to speak "Knows his business," knowledge that is acquired only long experience with vagaries of weather, periods of cutting, condi-tions of curing, etc. To become ef-ficient in this work requires one vigi-land and with ability to contend with

Clovers and alfalfa are more difficult to cure than timothy and other grasses. BOYCOTT. (Christian Science Monitor)

The thing which Japanese statesmen have learned, through bitter experience and for good reason, to draud is happening in China. A boycott on all Japanese goods and on everything Japanese is being organized throughout the country, and has, according out the country, and has, according to the latest advices, already reached formidable proportions. The movement is, of course, protest against the action of the Peace Conference in giving, to Japan the economic rights in the Province of Shantung, and it is, as far as Japan is concerned, perhaps the most effective protest that China could make. Four years ago, when Japan had had her will en China, and had successfully forced upon her her notorious Twenty-one upon her her notorious Twenty-one Demards at the point of an ultimatum, China, weighed down under the trem-endous load herself stripped, where Japan was concerned; of all weap save one, namely, the boycott. T one, however, she seized, and proces one, however, she selzed, and proceeded to use to much purpose. There was no rublic proclamation of any kind, of course. Very little, indeed, was said about it. The boycott just began, but, before very long, it was so thorough and far-flung that it struck something very like panic into the hearts of the merchants of Tokye and the shippers of Nagasaki.

WEAK MOTHERS REGAIN HEALTH

weakness to get the upper hand of her. If she does worry will mar her work in the home and torment her in body and mind. Day after day spe amid the same surroundings is enough to cause fretfulness and depression. But there are other causes, as every mother knows, that tend to make her nerves run down. A change would benefit her jaded system, and rest might improve her blood so as to give the nerves a better tone. But rest and change are often impossible and it is then that all worn out we men should take a short treatment with Dr. Williame' Pink Pills, which make new blood, rich with the elemake new blood, rich with the elements on which the nerves thrive. In this way these pills restore regular health, increased energy, new ambition and steady nerve. There is a lesson for other women in the case of Mrs. Harry P. Snider, Wilton, Ont, who says: "Five years ago my twin hables were born, and I was left very weak and very miserable, hardly fit to do anything. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did not help me Then I tried another doctor, but with no better results. One day I went home to my mother, telling her how miserable I felt, and that the doctor's medicine had not done me any good. miserable I felt, and that the doctor's medicine had not done me any good. Mother asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as I was glad to try anything that might help me, I got three boxes when I went back home. By the time these were used there was no doubt they were helping me, and I got three more boxes. But I did not need them all, for by the time the fifth box was used I was entirely cured, and never felt better in my life. Now when I hear people talk about feeling weah or miserable I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and tell what they did for me, and in similar cases I they did for me, and in similar cases i

Paint Alarms.

Fire alarm paint is coming into use abroad. At ordinary temperatures the paint is light red, but when heated it becomes darker. Long before it reached the temperature of boiling water it becomes black. On cooling it returns to its original shade. The principal use found for it is in paint-ing machinery parts that are liable to overheat. An attendant needs only to glance at the machinery occasionalto know whether it is excessively hot.

It has, however, another application—to give warning of threatened fire. -Saturday Evening Post.

IN THEIR LAST LONG SLEEP REACH, LIMIT IN ABSORPTION

Beautiful Spot in Which Have Be Laid American Soldiers Who Died in Liberty's Gauss,

On the wooded slope of a steep hill that rises high over a great bend in the River Seine lies a little plot of earth that is as much America as is the national cemetery at Arlington or the hallowed ground of Gettysburg. It is a quiet and peaceful spot, for al-though Paris is near—the slender pinnacle of the Eiffel tower is in plain view over the trees—the city is sepa-rated from the American cemetery at Surnesnes by the green expanse of the Bois de Boulogne. The heart of the city that is the heart of the world is not five miles away; you would think it at least fifty. It is a spot far removed from war, and yet there are enough of the accoutrements of war about it to remind the visitor that the 700 graves here are the graves of soldiers—mostly of soldiers who died of their wounds on the journey in from the front or at one of the hospitals in or near the capital. Further up the slope frown the ramparts of the fort of Mount Valerien, one in the chain defenses that surround Paris. ing hostilities planes flew from field to field, the drone of their motors never so clear as in this quiet countryside. And more warlike still, an occasional cannon shot echoed from a testing ground in the neighborhood. The little cemetery itself, with its wellaligned rows of white wooden crosses, will some day be as green and fair a God's acre as any in France. It is becoming so as fast as the loving hands of the living can convert it into one. Even in these fresh fall days. the graves are all abloom, and hardy shrubs add a touch of somber beauty to the little corners and round points. -Stars and Stripes, Paris.

WAR DEMAND FOR PLATINUM

Is Essential in Production of Sulphuric Acid, Indispensable in Manufac-ture of Explosives.

Two universally known productsone a rare metal, the other a common acid—have lately assumed importance that is mystifying to the laity. Platinum has become virtually the king of metals, and sulphuric acid the king of chemicals. The reasons for this are most simple. Platinum is obtained chiefly from the Ural mountains. Owing to chaotic conditions in Russia, little of it is being mined. It is absolutely essential in the manufacture of sul-phuric acid. Without a small amount of it being present, oxygen, water and sulphur dioxide will not unite chemically. Sulphuric acid, on the other hand, was probably the most indispensable product used in the prosecution of the war. Its tremendous affin-ity for water made it vitally important in the manufacture of high explosives. For instance, one obtains a fairly harmless liquid by mixing glycerin and nitric acid. If sulphuric acid is added, it combines the two chemically by taking an atom of hydrogen and one of oxygen from the nitric acid, an atom of hydrogen from the glycerin, forming water, and taking it unto itself. One then has nitroglycerin. In a similar manner sulphuric acid is needed for the manufacture of guncotton and TNT. Thus we had the peculiar cycle of circumstances that made it unpatriotic for an American to have in his possession more than an ounce of platinum in the form of jewelry. Incidentally, however, there is said to be good reason for the belief that a very large proportion of the so-called platinum in modern jewelry is composed wholly or at least in part of cheaper metals.-Popular Mechanics Magazine

It is said that there are now on the market as a substitute for tea the leaves of a plant which Niebuhr described as long ago as 1775. The plant is the Catha edulis, or Arabian tea, which is cultivated or grown wild on the Hast African coast from Abyssinia to Natal, in the Nile valley, and in Arabia. The leaves are called by the natives "kat," and when belied give off a liquer which is said to be a powerful stimulant. The natives drink this tea before starting on long marches or other strenuous labors. The tea is said to have a pleasant

"That marked dollar bill will be found in the vest pocket of that gen-tleman," said the conjuror, pointing with his magic wand at Sam Lawsing. All eyes were riveted on Sam, who advanced to the front, took some money from his vest pocket and said: "Boss, here's your change. Ah've had two beers and a cigar out of that dollar you told me to keep in ma pocket till you called for it."

General Mangin possesses a vein of sardonic humor. When, in the autumn of 1916, he had helped to undo in a few days the work for which the crown prince during eight months had sacrified the flower of the kaiser's army, at Verdun, Germany launched a peace offensive. Reviewing his men one day, Mangin eyed them over and remarked with a grim smile. "Ah, you're the sort of peace ambassadors the republic wants."

To its devotees chess is the most absorbing of all mentrl activities, the game that above all others brings complete forgetfulness of the world to those who play and these who watch the moves, observes a writer in the New York Herald.

A striking example of this self-ab-sorption has been shown recently in the rooms of a local chest club when distinguished experts struggled for supremacy in the mimic field heedless of the stupendous four-year struggle that was fast drawing to a close on Europe's shell-torn, blood-soaked board. What was the reckless slaughter of thousands of German soldiers in com-parison with the sacrifice of a single ivory pawn standing guard before its queen? Which one of those who moved the pieces or of, the greater number who watched them with fur-rowed brows and fast-beating hearts thought of the kaiser's peace offer while the queen's gambit was passing before their eyes? The pope may lift his voice in words of solemn counsel but they heed him not. The only ecclesiastical power that they recognize is that of the mitred bishop sweeping into the heart of the enemy's country and smiting the rock as it stands.

To read the printed accounts of this tournament is to recall the old Puck picture of two chess players carried in their chairs from a burning building with the board between them. Nor do we wonder at the fact that it was only while absorbed in his daily game that the exiled Napoleon could forget Sir Hudson Lowe.

EPIGRAPHS PROVE A PUZZLE

Explanation of Hieroglyphics Admit-tedly Very Old Will Surely Be of the Greatest Interest.

Amateur archeologists of California are endeavoring to interest professional scientists of the East in the epigraphs, which abound on the rocks of Round Valley, not far from the city of Bishop, and which are believed to be as old, if not older, than the hieroglyphics of earliest Egypt, to which they bear a strange resemblance It is believed by many that the trange markings constituted the names by which ancient tribes marked the source of water supply for the benefit of those of their number lived roving lives.

These hieroglyphics have never been deciphered, although they are matters of record in the leading museums of the country, it is said. The Indian tribes now living in the vicinity declare they are the work of the Indians of North America and that they antedate all aboriginal lore.

Some who have examined the strange markings in the flinty bowlders say the heiroglyphics closely re-semble those of earliest Egypt and may replace the latter as the first written language of humanity.

They are found always in the vicinity of water supplies, the same markings discovered near Bishop appearing also on rocks extending through the Canadian border, down through Washington, Oregon and California to the Mexican line and beyond. This fact, It is argued, indicates that prehistoric tribes marked a highway for their migrating members or for their armies, giving specific directions as to the best water supplies along the way.

French Live Stock on the Decline. The United States food administration has called attention to the large decrease in live stock in France since the beginning of the war. In cattle this decrease amounted to 2,599,000 up to December, 1917; in sheep the decrease amounted to 6.238,000 head; in hogs to 2,869,000 head. In the period since owing to the food shortage there has been a still further shrinkage. Figures like these indicate that there will be a large and insistent demand for live stock from this country for the foreign trade for many years after peace is finally established.

Good American Family. Thirty years ago a girl came to this country from Russia to marry Louis Fleshner, an immigrant from the same country. They settled in Springfield, Mass., and when the United States entered the war they had four sons, the oldest 23. All of them entered the army and the eldest has distinguished himself in battle. He is the young man who, having lost an arm and an eye while carrying amountion through shell fire, optimistically exclaimed: "I'm the lucklest Jew in the army.
