KIDNEY DISEASE.

Diseases of the Kidneys are numerous, from the fact that these organs act as filters to the blood, and form one of the great channels for the removal of impurities from the system, which, if allowed to remain, give rise to the various kidney affections, such as Dropsy, Diabetes, and Bright's Disease. The following are some of the symptoms of kidney disease:—Backache, sideache, swelling of the feet and ankles, frequent thirst, puffiness under the eyes, floating specks before the eyes, and all disorders of the urinary system, such as frequent, thick, cloudy, scanty, or highly colored urine.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS are exactly what the name suggests. They are not a cure-all, but are a specific for kidney troubles only. Price 50 cents per box, or 6 for $1.35. All dealers, or THE DOAN KIDNEY PILL CO., Toronto, Ont.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Did you ever laugh until you cried, Tommy?"
"Yes this morning."
"What?"
"Well, pa stepped on a track, and I laughed; then pa caught me laughing, and I cried."

Sprained Arm.

Mary Ovington, Jasper, Ont., writes "My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hagyard's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days. Price 25c.

Life has shamed that in our blindness we don't see; no doubt it is did. That the milk of human kindness is adulterated, too.

MESSRS. C. C. RICHARDS & CO.

Gents.—After suffering for seven years with inflammatory rheumatism so bad that I was eleven months confined to my room, and for two years could not dress myself without help, you again gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT in May, 1897, and asked me to try it which I did, and was so well pleased with the results, I procured more. Five bottles completely cured me, and I have had no return of the pain for eighteen months. The above facts are well known to everybody in this village and neighborhood.

Yours gratefully,
A. DAIRT,
St. Timothee, Que., 16th May, '99

A baby's voice comes out of the darkness.
"Dimme jinky!" it calls.

"Merciful Heaven! Can it be that my child has forgotten the chemical formula for water?" she cries, and breaks into a cold perspiration.

There is nothing harsh about Laxative Pills. They cure Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick Headach, and Bilious Stools, without griping, purging or sickening. Price 25c.

Pessimists.—I do not believe there is a truly honest man in the world. "Sir," said a common-sense friend, "it is quite impossible that any one man should know all the world, but it is very possible that some one man may know himself."

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

Price 50 cents per box, or 6 for $1.35. All dealers, or THE T. MILBURN CO., LIMITED, Toronto, Ont.

A Little Talk on Ventilation.

Ventilation in winter is a vexed subject, and there are many opinions as to how it should be done. In buildings where an elaborate scientific system is employed, the ventilation looks out for itself if the system is properly worked, but in ordinary dwelling-houses where ventilation is obtained by means of windows and doors it is another matter. One good suggestion is to charge the air in a room often. "If ventilation, by opening wide all the windows to the outside air of rooms and other enclosed spaces, be systematized and performed at fixed times, say before each meal, and for a fixed period, say five minutes each time, the lack of fresh air in such places and the diseases now caused by such lack of fresh air would be in most cases prevented. If such rooms or spaces be vacated at such times, such airing would be effected without their usual occupants suffering more than a temporary inconvenience. Those who vacate such rooms or spaces, if they are obliged to go into the open air, must be kept moving to prevent their taking cold while absent from the room vacated. But where rooms or enclosed spaces adjacent, such rooms or spaces can be vacated and ventilated, as above-named, alternately, and those who vacate them can go into the adjoining room or space instead of into the open air during the process, which need occupy only five minutes at a time three or four times daily.

"To empty bad air out of a room and fill it with good air is simple, and need take no longer than to empty dirty water out of a large bottle and fill it with fresh water. The colder the open air as compared with the air of the room to be ventilated, the more speedily will the bad air rush out of the room and fresh air take its place, as soon as the windows or doors are opened. The more the windows or doors are opened, and the wider each of said windows or doors is open, the quicker will the desired change of the air take place and the less the room will be cooled in the process, and the sooner the windows may be closed and the occupants return to the now well-aired room. When the air of a room or other enclosed space is changed rapidly by setting all its windows wide open, the room or space itself has no time to get cold, not even cold. Walls, floor, ceilings, and whatever furniture it has, remain warm, and so are warm to the touch of those coming back into it, as soon as the windows are closed, and the fresh air in it is quickly warmed by coming in contact with its walls, floor, ceiling, etc. Discomfort and the risk of taking cold from opening the windows to change the air of a room are lessened in proportion to the rapidity of the operation.

"The converse of this is also true. The longer the time taken to change the air of a room or other segregated space the colder it gets, or parts of it get, and the more certain those entering it or remaining in it are to take cold from the drafts of air, or chilled atmosphere, or chill-draughts so produced.

Items of Interest.

The Holy Father is now seventy years of age.

The Ontario Government has made a grant of $10,000 to the University of Ottawa, which splendid Catholic institution was destroyed by fire a little over a year ago.

A telegram from Rome states that the Vatican Biblical Commission has received eight essays in competition for the $100 prize presented by Lord Bray, the subject being "The Vulgate."

The death of Cardinal Lavigerie, Archbishop of Algiers, has reduced the number of Cardinals to sixty-three. The Sacred College when full consists of seventy, counting Rheims. There are ten vacant sees in France.

The Gaidon (Paris) following good advice appropriate to the opening days of the New Year: "Train yourself to keep your troubles to yourself. Don't pour them out upon acquaintances or strangers. It isn't their fault if you have troubles, and they don't want to hear of yours because they have so many of their own."

"After all," says the Northwest Review, "holiness is what ensures the spiritual life of Catholics. The example of one truly holy man is a tower of strength for an entire nation. Think of what the Cure d'Aud did fifty years ago for the religious life of the French people. Think of the blessed influence in later years of Dom Bosco in Italy and throughout the Catholic world."

Announcement is made of the death of the Right Rev. Dr. Lewis Parroli, Vicar Apostolic of Hong-Kong, an alumnus of the Seminary for Foreign Missions at Millar. He passed away on December 27, at a hospice of the Brothers of St. John of God in Italy. A telegram received at the Milan Seminary announces the death of Mgr. Simone Volonteri, Vicar Apostolic of South Honan.

The "Catholic Directory" for Scotland for 1905 shows that in that country at present there are 518 parishes, 424 of these being diocesan and 94 regular, or members of religious orders. There are 227 parishes, with 372 churches, chapels and stations. The monasteries and convents number 64, the Catholic schools 202 and the Catholic population is estimated at 513,400.

"Perhaps in the whole history of intolerance there has been nothing worse than the policy inaugurated and carried out by Combes and his infidel associates," says the Catholic Universe. "Other tyrants have attacked and persecuted the Church, but these sought the overthrow of religion and the dethronement of God Himself. It was the old French Revolution awakened to new life, but equipped to carry out its purposes with more studied and systematic methods.

We learn from the St. John (New Brunswick) "Monitor" that Right Rev. John Cameron, who is dean of the Canadian hierarchy, celebrated Pontifical Mass in his cathedral, Antigonish, N. S., at 5 o'clock on Christmas morning, and immediately after celebrated two low Masses. His Lordship will soon complete his seventy-eighth year. Despite his advanced years, Bishop Cameron is in excellent health, and intends to make his "ad limina" visit to Rome next April.

Don Lorenzo Perosi's new sacred cantata, composed for the feast of the Immaculate, has been performed with success at the Vatican and at the Church of La Minerva under the composer's direction. The work is for soli, chorus and orchestra. It is stated that Pope Pius X., who is known to be a great lover of music, intends to have a hall built expressly for performances of sacred music, oratorios and cantatas which he does not wish to be given in churches or theatres. Don Lorenzo Perosi would be the musical director of this hall.

An "Academy" in all known languages was held in honor of the Immaculate Conception at the great International College of Propaganda Fide, Rome, whose students come from the four quarters of the globe, and is certainly a type of the universality of our Holy Mother the Church, who makes no distinction between black and white, Latin or Greek, but ordains the dusky negro side by side with fair-faced Teuton or tawny Hindoo. On this particular occasion the students pronounced discourses on the glories of Our Lady, or on special liturgical invocation of her, in their various mother tongues.

Baltimore has some 15,000 children in its Catholic parish schools. "To just what extent this conscientious endeavor on the part of Catholics relieves the city is not difficult to see," remarks the Catholic Mirror. "Farcy for an instant our parish schools destroyed and the fifteen or sixteen thousand children thrown upon the city for an education, what chances would they have of receiving it? The accommodations which are now afforded the children of the public schools are in some cases positively unsanitary, and in many cases wholly inadequate to meet the demands. If this is true in the present state of affairs what would become of our fifteen thousand children?"

It is stated that among recent converts in Germany, in addition to the Princess Dowager of Hesse, aunt of the Emperor William II., who has already been mentioned, are Wilhelmine von Hillern, the novelist, who has been living for years at Obersimmergau; the dramatist poet, Martin Unterwiesinger, and his wife, the well-known author, Rosa Stoll, and Dr. Ludwig Siegel, formerly a Protestant preacher, and until a short time ago professor in the Gymnasium of Breslau. It is rather a significant fact, remarks "The Messenger Magazine," that conversions to the Catholic Church, through frequent enough in Germany, are not often mentioned in

It is a curious phenomenon of human nature that men guilty of the most heinous offences against womanhood are, when brought to trial, the recipient of a vast amount of envying sympathy and pity from women.—Sacred Heart Review.

Here is a waterword from Charles J. B. Raparte, the eminent Catholic lawyer of Baltimore, Md., which should find a place in the mind and heart of every Catholic young man who aspires to public life in the United States:—

"A Catholic, tried and found wanting in any field of public or private duty, inflames an injury on the honorable standing and salutary influence of the Catholic Church in our country, which no learning and eloquence in her defenses can repair. Our fellow-countrymen, not of our faith, believe that Catholics can be men of honor and patriotism when they see such men; unless we can show their eyes the wholesome and abundant fruit, we shall preach to deaf ears while we extol the tree which bears it."

Writing from Rome, under date of January 7th, his Lordship, Bishop Casey of St. John, N. B., among other things says: "On Tuesday next Bishop McDonald of Charlottetown, Monsignor Chalifon and Father Viancourt of Sherbrooke, Father Masban and myself will start on a journey still further East, even to the Holy Land. We will stop at Athens, Smyrna, Constantinople, Jaffa, then to Jerusalem and Bethlehem, Nazareth, etc. In forty-two days we hope to be again in Rome, and after spending a few more days here, we will leave for the land we love best.

Once again have the hopes of well-wishers of Russia been disappointed by the action of revolutionary agitators. The thousands of workmen who thronged the approaches to the Winter Palace last Sunday had of themselves no desire to ask redress of any but industrial grievances. The demand for a constitution, a demand which it is utterly impossible under any circumstances for the Government to grant at once, was put upon their lips by the Socialist leaders, who wished to use this huge strike to further their revolutionary designs. On these leaders rest the blame of last Sunday's bloodshed.—Casket.

"Die Deutsche Zeitung" recently published a special despatch from Rome stating that the opinion was prevalent in clerical circles of the Eternal City that Emperor William of Germany had secretly turned Catholic. To which the great Catholic organ, the "Kölnische Volkszeitung" ("The Cologne People's Gazette") remarks: "In better informed Catholic circles nobody believes anything of the kind. However, it is a fact that in foreign Catholic countries the opinion frequently is expressed that Emperor William is very near to the Catholic Church in matters of faith. We therefore repeat with ill emphasis that this is nothing but idle imagination ("leere Phantasie"). It happens that the Emperor does not make any distinction what faith a person professes if he pleases him otherwise, but William II., is equally as far from the Catholic faith as his grandfather or father."

Amid the fears of French Catholics over the abrogation of the Concordat, the Abbe Gayraud utters some words of hope. Recognizing to the full the iniquity of the government's bill, he nevertheless thinks it will result in good for the Church. Catholics will gain their rights as citizens, and be better able to claim respect for their religious convictions once they cease to be privileged and paid. Ecclesiastical appointments will no longer be in the hands of crony politicians, and a new order of clerics, appointed solely by the Church, will emerge for the salvation of France. Old Gallican ideas will be destroyed root and branch, and the last vestiges of servitude to the State be swept away. The Catholic Church in that country, freed from tyranny and vexation, will cease to be a department of the State, administered by M. Dumy and the clerical officials of the Ministry of Worship. Hard years, of great stress and trial, will come upon her, but in the end she will make her position good, and with a hierarchy and clergy of her own choosing, will win the ground lost by her during the centuries when she has been sequestered and enclaved by the State. The eloquent deputy's prophecy must be tested by time.

Borden Again in Parliament.

Hon. R. L. Borden, Leader of the Federal Opposition, was elected to the House of Commons by acclamation for the County of Carleton, Ontario, on Saturday last. The certificate of his election was handed to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery the same evening, and a copy of the certificate was given to Mr. Borden, so that he could take his seat on Monday. It was understood, however, that he would not be introduced in the House till yesterday. The returning officer, acting under instructions from the Government, used his efforts to have Mr. Borden returned as soon as it was possible for him to do so. For his services in this respect a vote of thanks was passed at a meeting held at Richmond on Saturday after the nomination. A special train with nearly forty Conservative members of Parliament left Ottawa Saturday forenoon for the Richmond nomination to give the glad hand of good fellowship to their popular leader. The meeting after the election was a most enthusiastic one. On behalf of the twelve hundred Liberals who voted for him in the late contest in the county, Mr. Caldwell the defeated Liberal candidate greeted Mr. Borden and also read from the platform a clause in favor of paying the leader of the Opposition a salary equal to that of a Cabinet Minister. Mr. Kidd, the member for Carleton, who retired in Mr. Borden's favor, was presented with an address and a scarf-pin. Mr. Borden in his address expressed his hearty appreciation of the proceedings. About thirty persons delivered three minute speeches. Mr. Caldwell again spoke and offered his congratulations to the electors of the county on their new representative, especially to the Liberals who offered no opposition. Mr. Borden sincerely thanked Mr. Caldwell for his kind words. He then talked of the political issues of the day and said that the policy of the Conservative party is the same as in the late campaign.

Mr. Borden received a most enthusiastic welcome upon taking his seat in the House of Commons yesterday. In reply to the greetings he smilingly remarked that he had arrived a little later than he originally intended, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier would probably excuse this, having himself been delayed by a similar reason on a former occasion.

The Storm, the Trains and the Mails.

By Friday morning the railway track was again clear, after the storm of last week, with the exception of the eastern end of the Souris line from New Zealand. The delay here was caused by an accident on Friday, which wrecked the regular tri-weekly freight train from Charlottetown. The train was equipped with two engines, a snow plough, flanger, baggage car and coach. At the New Zealand Station crossing, when the train was making between twelve and fifteen miles an hour the snow plough left the track and plunged into the ditch on the right side, at the same time the front engine was turned off to the left, and settled down on its side across the track. No. 26 is a new heavy engine, and sustained much damage in the wreck. A wrecking train went from the city Friday night, and Saturday evening the engine and snow plough were righted. On Sunday the train reached Souris, and this was the first train to reach there since the previous Tuesday. Sunday afternoon the wrecked train was brought to Charlottetown. A mail and passenger train also came in from Souris the same afternoon. The mail that was brought across the Straits on Tuesday of last week reached here, together with a mail brought over Thursday, shortly before midnight Thursday. There were crossings at the Capes Friday and Saturday, and again on Monday, but none yesterday or today.

The steamers are at their moorings at Georgetown and Pictou, and the prospects of making a move are by no means bright.

Steamer Struck a Rock

A Halifax despatch of yesterday's date says: In the blinding snow storm at three o'clock this morning the steamer Damara, Furness liner from Liverpool for Halifax, struck a ledge off Pleasant Point, near Musquodoboit Harbor, fifty miles west of Halifax, and was soon abandoned by the Captain and crew, who with three passengers took to the boats. One of those containing 18 people was in charge of Captain Gorst, while the 1st officer took the other boat with seven persons. With great difficulty the boats were launched in a heavy sea and headed for the shore only a few miles distant. After starting they were able to see the steamer for only a few minutes and don't know her fate. The shore was reached by the 1st officer's boat which arrived late this afternoon, and the people, who were about exhausted, were hospitably received. The other boat with its 18 persons has not yet been heard from, and if still afloat its conditions must be terrible for intense cold and fierce storm prevails. Wrecking steamers are leaving Halifax in the hope of being able to save the steamer or find those missing. The Damara was engaged in the Liverpool trade.

Georgetown.

Prof. Stockton gave his concert here Saturday night to a large audience which was largely composed of Ladies and children, as well as the leading merchants and business men of the town. During the ventriloquist and Slight of hand tricks the audience was kept in continuous roar of laughter and remarks of approval and appreciation were heard on all sides. He is to appear in Souris, St. Peter's, Morell, Montague Bridge, Cardigan, and the Murray Harbors and other towns soon.

Russian Intelligence.

Warsaw, Feb. 3.—According to the best information obtainable, the official list of persons killed during the disturbances here, contains over three hundred names in addition to the many unidentified bodies lying at the receiving vault in the cemetery where the latter will be buried to-night. A group of soldiers outside a liquor store last night fired on passers by without warning, killing a shop keeper and wounding another man.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—News of the assassination at Soical on Solimen, of the Procurator General of Finland, though occurring before noon on Monday was not generally known in St. Petersburg last night, but may be expected to produce an immense sensation when published, as it will be regarded as the precursor of an era of terrorism from which the events of January in St. Petersburg and throughout Russia gave the signal.

London, Feb. 7.—According to the despatches in the morning newspapers of this city, the strikes in Russia have spread to several stations on the Trans-caspian railway. A military train going to Batoum was derailed through the strikers tampering with the line—no loss of life.

Tiflis, Feb. 7.—A crowd of 300 strikers carrying red flags, invaded the centre of the town on Sunday morning, distributing proclamations, and fired revolvers at the gendarmes who tried to seize the flags. Two gendarmes were severely wounded with bullets and a third with a dagger. The police dispersed the demonstration, and arrested thirty persons, and pursued others into a tavern where several of the rioters were so badly injured they had to be sent to the hospital.

Helsingfors, Feb. 7.—The Assassin of the procurator General of Finland has been identified as Karl Lenard Lohenthal, a student at the Imperial Alexander University.

The merchants of Mount Stewart have combined in a grand anniversary celebration and special marked down sale of bargains to be had in all kinds of merchandise. As a special feature they have secured the service of Prof. Stockton to give his concert each night at 7.30 o'clock all this week Feb. 6th to 11th and all should avail themselves of the opportunity to see this concert as well as to do their shopping at a generous discount.

Rapid fire guns mounted on automobile cars are to be used by the Russians for the protection of the Trans-Siberian railroad. Six of these cars have been ordered by Nicholas Sammerfeld of Moscow, the representative of the Russian government who visited the Chicago automobile show. They have been ordered for immediate delivery. The cars are to be arranged with extended platforms in front and rear to hold a gun and it is specified that they are to be equipped with thirty horse power motors of high speed.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 4.—It is the intention of the Government to bring Maxim Gorky and several authors to trial on political charges. Governor-General Trepeff, who received the Associated Press correspondent Friday p. m. said that the whole case was now in the hands of the Minister of Justice, who is conducting the investigation, at the proceedings of which the Procurator General will decide whether the prisoners shall be tried by a civil or military court. Turning to the question of the present aspect of affairs, the Governor-General said: "We have every reason to feel satisfied—masters and men are on excellent terms, and work is proceeding everywhere quietly." The reputation of the workmen's deputation by the Emperor has created the best impression.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 6.—According to Kropotkin's later report, indicating the wounding of the third Russian General Dombroski, operations at Sandiapa and fighting at Shaikta have been momentarily suspended. The Russians successfully repulsed the latest attack of the Japs eastward with heavy loss. The cold is still intense, there being 24 degrees of frost. The indications are that the Japs are preparing to break inactivity as soon as the weather moderates. The war office has been closed, and no further reports regarding the rumor that Kropotkin is about to give up his command, can be obtained.

Russian Headquarters at Huan, Feb. 6.—Lieut. General Grippenburg, commander of the second Manchurian army, left to-day for St. Petersburg. The Japanese feverishly left the bank and centre, evidently apprehending a Russian offensive movement. The Japs are attempting to roll up the Russians' right wing north-west of Sande-pas.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—Rapid fire guns mounted on automobile cars are to be used by the Russians for protection of Trans-Siberian railroads. Six of these cars have been ordered by Nicholas Sammerfeld, of Moscow, representative of the Russian Government who visited the Chicago automobile show. They were ordered for immediate delivery. The cars are to be equipped and built with extended platforms in front and rear to hold guns, it being further specified that they are to be equipped with thirty horse power motors of high speed.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—News of the assassination at Soical on Solimen, of the Procurator General of Finland, though occurring before noon on Monday was not generally known in St. Petersburg last night, but may be expected to produce an immense sensation when published, as it will be regarded as the precursor of an era of terrorism from which the events of January in St. Petersburg and throughout Russia gave the signal.

London, Feb. 7.—According to the despatches in the morning newspapers of this city, the strikes in Russia have spread to several stations on the Trans-caspian railway. A military train going to Batoum was derailed through the strikers tampering with the line—no loss of life.

Tiflis, Feb. 7.—A crowd of 300 strikers carrying red flags, invaded the centre of the town on Sunday morning, distributing proclamations, and fired revolvers at the gendarmes who tried to seize the flags. Two gendarmes were severely wounded with bullets and a third with a dagger. The police dispersed the demonstration, and arrested thirty persons, and pursued others into a tavern where several of the rioters were so badly injured they had to be sent to the hospital.

Helsingfors, Feb. 7.—The Assassin of the procurator General of Finland has been identified as Karl Lenard Lohenthal, a student at the Imperial Alexander University.

The merchants of Mount Stewart have combined in a grand anniversary celebration and special marked down sale of bargains to be had in all kinds of merchandise. As a special feature they have secured the service of Prof. Stockton to give his concert each night at 7.30 o'clock all this week Feb. 6th to 11th and all should avail themselves of the opportunity to see this concert as well as to do their shopping at a generous discount.

Both legs were frozen up to the knees, his hands and face were also frozen. He had been out all night, and in his wanderings had waded into the open creek near where he was found. A Lily Amidst Thorns.

FOR A NOVICE.

O King majestic, strong I ever from my earliest days, Well may I call myself Thy work of grace alone; Thy love to pay with love, Thy care to tell with praise, Gladly I come today before Thy altar-throne. Jesus, my Best Belove what privilege is this? For nothingness am I. What have I done for Thee? Yet, clad in virginal white, it is today my bliss To follow Thee, the Lamb, in heavenly ecstacy. I know, alas! too well, that I am less than naught, Weakness itself, and poor; devoid of virtues great; And yet Thou knowest well that I have always sought, With longing heart, Thyself: on Thee alone I wait. When my young heart first felt the fire of love burn bright, Thou cam'st, O Christ! that fire to Thee alone to take; Naught could content my soul but Thee, my one delight;— The Infinite alone my burning thirst could slake. Like some weak lamb afar from its safe sheltering fold, Gently I played, and knew nothing of dangers drear Shepherdess, Queen of Heaven! thy mother-love untold, Thy mother-watchfulness, drew me by heart apear. So, playing on the brink of pitfalls dread and deep, After I saw the hill of Carmel beckon me; And I divined that they who climb its summit steep, Shall learn, of love, to fly to heaven's eternity. An angel's purity, dear Lord, attracts Thy heart, An angel white as snow, in heaven's celestial mirth. Dost thou not also love a lily kept apart, For Thee, from mire and taint; as white as snow on earth? If he, within Thy sight exults, all dazling pure, In brilliant stainless robes, whose lustre blinds our gaze? Hast Thou not kept my robes as safe, as white, as pure? My virgin heart has been the treasure of my days. —Translated from the French of Saint Therese de l'Enfant Jesus, by S. L. Emery, A. R.

Pere Jean.

(The Messenger for January)

For the third time that evening, good Madame Latour stood hesitating at the door of her master's room. Not as on the two former occasions, did she now content herself with a disapproving shake of the head, but, urged by the sight of the still untried supper, knocked loudly. There was no response. "Humph, that letter!" murmured Madame Latour, and then, advanced to the priest's side. He started and for a moment his eyes were a far-away look, then they rested kindly on the poorly figure of his housekeeper beside him. "Ah, it is you, Madame Latour!" he said, smiling, as he folded the letter before him. "do you want anything?"

"I want you to eat your supper, Monsieur le Cure," she answered, with the respectful familiarity to which her twenty years service fairly entitled her.

"Ah, true, I had forgotten," he answered—then with a glance at the humble repast—"somebody, I am not hungry this evening." "Now this will not do at all," his housekeeper expostulated. "You have had a tiring day, Pere Jean, and to-morrow will be the first Friday, and everyone says that you are looking ill—and they will say I starve you—and I do my best, but what can I do?" Madame Latour passed from sheer lack of breath, when the cure said nothingly: "My child, the trouble is you do not, and that is all you have to answer for. There, perhaps after all I am hungry," he added, drawing the chair to the table. Somewhat appressed, the good woman withdrew, but she paused for a moment at the doorway to remark, somewhat interrogatively, "Your letter contained good news I trust, Pere Jean?"

"Yes, yes the best of news," answered the cure eagerly. "It is from my friend the missionary in China of whom you have heard me speak. He is now in a wild part of the country, where the natives are cruel and uncivilized, and hate missionaries bitterly. At any moment he may be put to death! By a singular good fortune he met a party of English travellers who promised to forward this letter from Peking, otherwise I should not have had it." "Mon Dieu, and you say that is good news!" ejaculated the housekeeper.

"Yes, the best of news," answered the priest, and there was a joyful ring in his voice, "the best of news,

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

It was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her. Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Wallaceburg, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

for then indeed the glorious crown of martyrdom will be his." With a wonderful look the housekeeper withdrew, shutting the door softly.

The priest poured out a cup of the coffee upon which Madame Latour justly prized herself, but he could not taste it nor the morsel of cold toast he broke off. Pushing back his chair he arose, walked over to the window, and stood looking at the country scene without. How fair it looked in the sunset glow, with the first touch of autumn on the gold-tinted leaves and waving Indian maize. Before him lay the little village of Sainte Barbe with its cluster of houses along the one winding street, and a few more dotted here and there on the hillsides. It was a simple French Canadian parish like a hundred others scattered over the Laurentians; simpler, perhaps, and more old-fashioned than most, for the railway came only to St. Clovis twelve miles away, and the nearest town was thirty miles distant.

Sainte Barbe was a poor parish, and the little dwellings were for the most part wooden cabins, white-washed or gaily painted, and each with a tiny patch of garden. But here and there was a house of stone and mortar, landmarks of the old French regime, and relics of the days when it had been a trading-post.

Yet, like many other settlements it now was "off the road," and though older, it was in reality far behind St. Clovis, which could boast of a thriving creamery and cheese factory. The inhabitants of Sainte Barbe were in no wise envious of their more progressive neighbors, but were content to eke out their modest existence by dint of hard labor on a not too productive soil. Though money might be scarce food was always plentiful, and the woods yielded ample fuel to keep the fire blazing merrily even in the poorest cottage during the long, cold winter. So they were satisfied with their lot, for aught we may say, knowing a rarer and truer happiness that is always to be found among the poor, and Ah! how seldom among the rich!

For their saintly old cure they had the deepest veneration. He was their guide and advisor, and the mediator in all their petty disputes.

The notary and doctor who formed with him the village aristocracy were wont to complain laughingly that their advice or prescription was referred to the cure before it was followed.

Some of the older inhabitants remembered when half a century before he had come to Sainte Barbe, a young man with an earnest youthful face, and a kindly manner which had at once endeared him to them all. "Monsieur le Cure" had seemed too grave a title, so his people had got into the way of calling him "Pere Jean," and "Pere Jean" he had remained ever since through the years that had silvered his hair, and brought a stoop to his tall form.

The sunset glow had faded and there was a chill in the evening air, but still the old priest stood motionless by the window. The letter tightly clasped in his hand had awakened a far-away past and memories long forgotten, now rose unbidden.

Once again they were college boys, Edouard, and he, and his eyes grew bright or dim at the recollection of some prank or punishment shared together. They had been different even then; Edouard, quick and impetuous and with a persuasive eloquence, which had made him a leader among the other boys, — himself quiet, almost timid, now following, now restraining the friend he loved dearly. Unlike in character, they were united by a deep generous affection such as is formed in early youth, when the heart is fresh and loving, and which often remains unchanged amid the doubts and disillusionments of age.

The dream of each had been to become missionaries, and side by side to labor for God's glory in a pagan land. Then had followed, after a few peaceful years at the Seminary, that never-to-be-forgotten day when they had received ordination. Soon after it seemed as if their dearest wish was to be realized, for an earnest appeal came for missionaries to China, and they had eagerly offered themselves. Then had come a disappointment, so keen and so bitter that even now, after fifty years, the memory of it came back with intense vividness. Edouard was granted the coveted permission, while to himself after he had made his plea, and answered a few searching questions, the bishop had said, "My son, this is not the life intended for you; God has chosen you for a different work, some the less His because it is different."

A day later the friends parted; Edouard, whose joy was overshadowed by the other's pain, went to China and he, Jean, to Sainte Barbe.

There had followed for the missionary a life of hardship and labor. The very qualities which had distinguished him at college stood him in good stead now. The fame of his teaching spread afar, and he untiringly preached, converted and baptized.

Once in a while a letter would come to his friend in the little French-Canadian village and the cure would read it with joy and with pride. If there was still a longing in his heart for other fields he was unconscious of it, for he had determined to devote all his energies to the little flock intrusted to his care. How peacefully the years had passed for him he reflected now. There was scarcely a ripple to mark one decade from another.

He had seen the children grow up and marry and have children of their own. He had stood by the bedside of his "older children" when fearful of the Unknown lying darkly at hand, yet humbly trusting that all would be well, they would plead—"Pray for me, Pere Jean;" and he stood by the new-made grave in the little hill-side cemetery until the last cold fell on the rough-hewn coffin, and he knew that another traveller starting on his homeward journey had gone not unprepared. What kindly folks he dwelt among, so considerate for his comfort, so careful to avoid whatever might give him pain. There was, however an exception. He could now see a tiny thread of smoke rising above a small unpainted cabin which stood away from the other houses. A solitary man lived there who spoke to no one, and was unloved by all. Years before when a lad he had gone away to the city, and obtained a good position in a mill. Quick and nimble, his promotion had been rapid, until one day there had been an accident which maimed him for life, and he had come back to St. Barbe a cripple.

The kindly folks who had known him from infancy had come with their offerings of aid and sympathy, and were sorely hurt and puzzled when he curiously refused both, and took possession of a deserted cottage, where he lived no one knew how.

Something beside the cruel accident had changed the light-hearted lad into a sourd man, something had entered his heart like steel and rankled there. The older folks thought of him pityingly. The children named him "le Croche," and ran to their mothers when his crooked form came in sight, for was not a man who never went to church, and who avoided their good cure, only a degree removed from the Evil One himself?

"Le Croche" seemed indifferent to people's opinion regarding him and became, if possible, more bitter and silent as time passed.

The priest sighed as he thought of his "black sheep" and of his futile efforts to win him back again. Then his eyes left the fast darkening scene, and sought his own little room, which was plainly furnished, but warm and homelike. A bright-hued vase stood on the mantelpiece. It had been a present from Madame Latour when her cousin in town died, and left her a legacy. This was only a few dollars, but she had felt quite rich for a time, and her first act had been to buy a gift for her master. The flowers it contained were from little Jeanette, who lived next door, and who regarded it as her special charge that the cure should be provided with the best blossoms of her garden. The somewhat gaudy picture of the Holy Family had been the doctor's birth day gift, and the notary had given the clock on a similar occasion.

There were other trifles which, though of no value in themselves, yet helped to give the little room an appearance of comfort. He had often thought lovingly and gratefully, if regretfully, how easy it was, but now with his heart full of love for the friend who might even then be shedding his blood in distant China, each article seemed to reproach him for a self-indulgence, of which he was in no wise guilty. The picture of that other life so full of suffering and sacrifice whose rose before him seemed in pitiful contrast to his own.

What victory, and what service could he show his Master when his stewardship should be yielded up? He, too, had had a long life—and yet, was he not empty-handed? "And I wished to become a missionary," he told himself, sadly. "I who have done so little as a parish priest. The bishop was indeed wise to refuse my audacious request and to place me among a good pious people, ready to overlook my shortcomings and forgive my faults."

This was perhaps the bitterest moment of his life, and as he stood there at the open window he trembled, and the hand that grasped the sill was cold and damp. "My God, my God," burst from his lips, "I meant to do so much for Thee, and I have done so little."

"Pere Jean!" it was a small childish voice accompanied by a warm little hand which was laid gently on his own. The appealing accent and touch brought wonderful soothing to the priest's troubled heart. There was no trace of the last moment's anguish in the cure's kind smile, as he looked down at the bare-footed orphan who stood outside the window. "Well, petit Paul, what is it?" he asked.

Treated by Three Doctors for a Severe Attack of Dyspepsia, Got No Relief From Medicines, But Found It At Last In Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Frank Hutt, Morrisburg, Ont., was one of those troubled with this most common of stomach troubles. She writes:—"After being treated by three doctors, and using many advertised medicines, for a severe attack of Dyspepsia, and receiving no benefit, I gave up all hope of ever being cured. Hearing Burdock Blood Bitters so highly spoken of, I decided to get a bottle, and give it a trial. Before I had taken it I began to feel better, and by the time I had taken the second one I was completely cured. I cannot recommend Burdock Blood Bitters too highly, and would advise all sufferers from dyspepsia to give it a trial."

"Do I dear?" the other replied, sweetly. I feel quite well, and you—how wonderfully improved you are! You look positively young!"

Keep Minard's Liniment in the House. A Sunday-school teacher once asked her class how the angels obey God. Different answers were given, but the best was that of a boy who said: They obey without asking any questions."

The King of Terrors Is Consumption.

And Consumption is caused by neglecting to cure the dangerous Coughs and Colds. The balsamic odor of the newly cut pine buds and invigorates the lungs, and even consumptives improve and revive amid the perfume of the pines. This fact has long been known to physicians, but the essential healing principle of the pine has never before been separated and refined as it is in DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP. It combines the life-giving lung-healing virtue of the Norway Pine with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing Herbs and Balsams. It cures Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, and all affections of the bronchial tubes and air passages. Mrs. M. B. Lisle, Eagle Head, N.S., writes:—"I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for coughs and think it is a fine remedy, the best we have ever used. A number of people here have great faith in it as it cures every time. Price 25 cents per bottle."
