DIPHTHERIA!

USE STANDARD UNIVERSAL DISINFECTANT FLUID For Drains, Closets, Sinks, Lavatories, Tender Feet, Washing Dogs, Washing Paint, etc.

DIRECTIONS.

Infectious Diseases—Distribute by means of a spray freely over the sick room a weak solution (about 1 oz. fluid to 5 pints water). Bed vessels and other utensils should be thoroughly cleansed with a solution of about 1 part to 10.

All Infected Linen and Clothing should be washed in a solution (1 part in 100), and this can be done without fear of injury to the most delicate fabrics, and with the confident expectation of rendering them thoroughly aseptic.

A Wise Precaution in case of infectious disease is to shut off the sick room by means of a sheet saturated with a solution of about 1 part in 50.

For the Bath—If sufficient fluid to cloud the water be added the effect on the body will be found most exhilarating and refreshing.

For the Foot Bath—A teaspoonful of fluid added to the water will be found most beneficial to those troubled with tender feet.

Laundrymen and Others will find that for foul and dirty linen an admixture of fluid sufficient to make the water milky will prevent any noxious vapour arising therefrom.

CHAPTER XIV.

"Oh, thank you!" said Reece. "It is rather a warm morning, and I am thirsty. What a delightful view you have here! I dare say you have become used to it and don't notice it. You have been here some time, Mr. Raven?"

"Some time," assented Raven, with a smile.

He made the response carelessly enough, but his dark, bird-like eyes searched Dexter Reece's face; but, though the eyes were keen enough, the attitude of the miller was as careless as his tone, that of a man apparently quite at ease.

"You find trade good, I hope?" said Dexter Reece, as he sipped the water.

"Fairly good," replied Raven.

"You are an Italian, I understand?" remarked Reece, after a pause.

"I am an Italian, sir," said Raven.

"And you do not find that the fact of your being a foreigner interferes with your business?" said Dexter Reece.

"Not at all, sir," replied Raven. "An honest man is acceptable in any country."

"Quite so," assented Reece. "You must find this English climate rather trying, quite different to your native one. Where did you come from?"

"From Abruzzi," said Raven, glibly.

"Ah, yes," said Reece. "Will you let me see the mill? I have never been over one."

"With all the pleasure I can sustain," said Raven immediately. "Honour us by entering, sir." He threw open the door, and Dexter Reece went in. Cara was standing by a hopper; she turned her head, but took no further notice of him. Lemuel Raven showed Dexter Reece the working of the mill, and explained its simple process with painstaking politeness; indeed, he appeared to be pleased by the interest which his visitor displayed. Dexter Reece remained some time; but, during his visit, Cara did not address him, and was not addressed by him. Lemuel Raven accompanied his visitor to the door, and, with bared head, bade him farewell. Then he turned to Cara, who had been apparently absorbed with her work, and said:

"Have you seen this gentleman before?"

"Yes," said Cara, "twice. He was with Miss Desborough when she drove

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making it at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 64 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter cough.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent lough cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Torrey pine extract combined with ginseng, and has been used for generations to heal in same membranes of the throat and chest.

here the other day; and I saw him at the Hall yesterday."

"He spoke to you—you spoke to him?" asked Raven easily. "He seems a very pleasant gentleman."

"Is he?" said Cara. "Yes; he asked me a lot of questions."

"Ah, indeed," murmured Lemuel Raven. "And his name?"

"Reece—Dexter Reece," she replied.

Raven moved about the mill, humming softly, as if there were nothing whatever on his mind. He went out after a while, and did not return until late in the afternoon. The mill had stopped, Cara had exchanged her workaday clothes for the serge coat and skirt, and she was sitting by the door, absorbed in one of the new books Evelyn had lent her.

"Reading again, eh, Cara?" said Raven, lightly. "You spend too much time over these books, little one; you will spoil your eyes. Better go for a walk."

Cara put down the book reluctantly, took her sun-bonnet from its nail, and went out.

Raven watched her until the silp figure was hidden by the dip of the hill; then he locked the door, lit a lantern, and went into the cupboard in the angle; he came out presently and went up the rough stairs. After a time he descended dressed in the clothes he wore on Sunday; he stood at the door as if waiting for some one; and presently a cart drove up.

"Ah, here you are!" said Raven. "I will not keep you a minute!"

He brought down a box from upstairs, placed it in the cart, and said:

"That is all; you know what to do with it."

Half an hour afterwards Cara returned. She had been to a part of the moor from which she could look down at that portion of the Hall which was visible amongst the trees; and she stood, lost in thought, thinking of all she had seen there, and of Evelyn. Half unconsciously she felt that she was on the threshold of a new life.

"Back again, little one," said Lemuel Raven pleasantly. "Yes; I am going down to Port Dale," he added, answering her look of surprise at his changed clothes. "You shall come down with me. No, no!" he said quickly as she moved toward the stairs. "You are well-dressed enough, besides, I cannot wait; I have an appointment, and I am late already."

They started, Raven having locked the door carefully, and walked down to Port Dale. Lemuel Raven talked more freely than usual; and when he was not talking he hummed lightly. It was dusk as they descended the quay, and Raven looked round him carelessly.

"There's a ketch getting ready to sail," he said. "I know the captain; I have business with him. Would you like to go aboard with me?"

"Yes!" said Cara promptly.

"So you shall, little one," he said, with sinister amiability, as he halted the boat.

They went aboard the ketch. The small crew appeared to be busy, and the captain hurried across the deck, and held out his hand, saying heartily:

"Ah, here you are, Mr. Raven! Just in time!"

Unseen by Cara, who was gazing about her with interest, Lemuel Raven put his finger on his lip and frowned warningly at the captain, who looked embarrassed and said confusedly:

"You'll find a cup of tea in my cabin. I'll join you and Miss Raven presently."

Raven took Cara down to the cabin, and they seated themselves at the table.

"Snug, isn't it, Cara mia?" he said, with a side glance at her. "Ah, it is nice to be on board a ship again. Let us have some tea; the captain is busy."

Cara poured out the tea; and Lemuel Raven talked in the vein which he had used during their walk; Cara looking about her at the various objects in the cabin. Presently she felt the vessel move.

"Why, they have started, father?" she said.

"So they have!" he said. "Suppose we go down with them as far as the bar? We can row back. You stay here. I'll go and speak to the captain."

He left her, and Cara amused herself by looking at some of the books neatly arranged on one of the lock-

CHAPTER XV.

Ronald and the faithful Smithers went aboard the Hawk a little before six on the morning following the day on which Ronald had so providentially met his old acquaintance, Harry Vane.

Short as the time had been, Smithers had contrived to get a seaman's kit together; and he looked so proudly conscious in his nautical attire, and so much like a stage sailor, that Ronald had hard work to suppress a smile.

The schooner was a beautiful vessel, and evidently most perfectly and handsomely "found." Her decks were almost as white as her spotless sails; every bit of metal shone brightly in the light of the early sun; the crew, a small but sufficient one, was evidently composed of first-class men. The captain, a short and wiry-looking man, with keen blue eyes and a firm mouth, came forward and saluted Ronald.

"Glad to see you, sir," he said. "Mr. Vane told me to expect you; your state-room is quite ready. Mr. Vane is in the saloon. This is your man, I suppose, sir?" he added, casting a rather surprised glance at Smithers, who stood beside his extremely nautical-looking box, with an air of being quite ready for doing anything or going anywhere at a moment's notice; and who stood with his legs bowed and his sailor's cap set at an angle which he considered the professional one—that is to say, hanging perilously on the back of his head.

"Yes," said Ronald, introducing Smithers with a profound gravity, which was the only alternative to laughter. "This is Smithers. Mr. Vane has been kind enough to engage him as cook."

Captain Shanks directed Smithers to the cook's galley, and Ronald went down to the saloon, his heart as light as a feather, his appreciation of this pleasant turn in his fortunes showing in his bright eyes.

The owner of the beautiful vessel was seated at the table bending over some papers; he greeted Ronald heartily, but with a certain gravity.

"Delighted to welcome you on board, Des—Carew!" he said. "Splendid morning, isn't it; kind of good augury, eh? We'll have some breakfast as soon as we've set sail. Come on deck and look round. A nice little ship, isn't she?" he remarked, as they walked round the deck and he showed the vessel, with quiet pride.

"I should say she is about as perfect as she could be," said Ronald. "You've got a tremendous lot of canvas, Vane."

"Yes," assented Vane, rather drily. "I like going fast; and I very much question whether there is anything of her tonnage to beat her. She is new, as you see. I had her built last year."

"She must have cost a pile of money," Ronald remarked.

"She did," said Vane; "but it won't be thrown away. How do you like the captain?" he inquired quickly.

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleville, N.S., Canada.—"I doctored for ten years for female troubles and did not get well. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I write now to tell you that I am cured. You can publish my letter as a testimonial."

Mrs. SUZUKINE BABINE, Belleville, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Another Woman Recovers.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, No. 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

there was no sign or sound of life anywhere. She knocked at the door several times, but no response came.

With surprise, disappointment, and a strange sense of foreboding, she returned by way of Port Dale to the Hall.

Mr. Dexter Reece was standing on the terrace, and he came forward to help her to alight from the jingle.

"What is the matter?" he asked, for he saw that something had upset her.

Evelyn bit her lip and tried to speak composedly.

"Oh, nothing very much," she said. "And yet it seems very much to me. I have been up to the mill. It is closed—shut up; and Cara has gone—disappeared."

"What!" exclaimed Dexter Reece. "Not—not gone for good, not disappeared?"

"I—I am afraid so," said Evelyn, frowning with disappointment and regret. "I drove round by Port Dale, and they told me that Raven and Cara had sailed two nights ago by one of the trading vessels."

Dexter Reece went pale and swore under his breath.

"Escaped, by Heaven!" he muttered, in too low a voice for Evelyn to hear him.

OFFICIAL. LONDON, Dec. 6. The British force has reached Kut-el-Amara, without further fighting. In France there has been mining and artillery fighting. Russia reports successes on the Stry and in Galicia. Italy says that at Monte Nero an enemy attack in dense formation penetrated the Italian lines at a few points, but they were finally driven out, leaving 500 dead and 131 prisoners.

DONAR LAW. STOPPED BY CENSORS. LONDON, Dec. 6. Announcement was made at the War Office to-day that in future all personal government cards, addresses of neutral countries, will be stopped by censors.

REACHED KUT-EL-AMAR. LONDON, Dec. 6. The British army in Mesopotamia which has been withdrawing from before Bagdad, reached Kut-el-Amara on the Tigris, 105 miles below Bagdad without further fighting.

PEACE DELEGATION DISCUSSED. LONDON, Dec. 6. Request was made in the Commons this afternoon by Sir Edwin Montagu, Liberal, that an intimation be sent to Henry Ford and William Jennings Bryan, that their proposed peace mission in this country would be irritating and unwelcome at the present time. It drew a response from Lord Robert Cecil, Parliament member for Foreign Affairs, that as the passport of the members of the peace mission only had been issued for neutral countries, the contingency contemplated by Sir Edwin did not arise. A rapid bombardment of questions came from different parts of the House, inviting the Under Secretary, seeing that these people left amid a storm of criticism, to convey to them, in whatever neutral country they found themselves, the intimation that they are not wanted here at any time.

FRANCE AND HER PROVINCES. PARIS, Dec. 6. France will not make peace until Alsace and Lorraine are won. Belgium and Serbia restored, and German Imperialism and Prussian militarism is put beyond "the possibility of resurrection," so said Albert Thom, Under Secretary of War yesterday. This declaration of Thomas is attracting widespread attention, as it is one of the statements from the neutral republic cabinet concerning the attitude of the government with regard to peace.

WAR COUNCIL IN SESSION. PARIS, Dec. 6. The first meeting of the general War Council was held to-day at Paris. The Council is designed to carry forward the work begun recently by the French, British and Russian, for the purpose of bringing about closer cooperation among the Entente Powers in military operations. The Council meeting was attended by representatives of Britain, France, Russia, Italy, Belgium and Serbia. The French Commander-in-Chief, General Joffre, presided.

INDICTMENTS FOR CONSPIRACY. NEW YORK, Dec. 6. Five additional indictments were returned to-day against Robert Fay, Walter Scholze, Max Breitung, Dr. Herbert Kinsale, Englebert Bronkhorst and Paul Daech, all charged in conspiracy, to murder and commit assault with deadly weapons, and to destroy ships. Previous indictments against them merely charged them with destroying ships.

POUR-PARLERS. PARIS, Dec. 6. Telegraphing from Athens the correspondent of the Havas News Agency says: Pour-parlers continue between officials of the Greek government and representatives of the Entente Allies, the view point of each being maintained. There is nothing to indicate that a prompt solution of differences is about reached, but in official circles the hope is expressed that military questions will be adjusted by a Modus Vivendi. The King on Sunday received Premier Skoufzidis and then summoned the French minister, both conferences lasting a long time. A communication given out by the government to-night states that declarations contained in the press of Athens do not represent the views of the Government.

ROUMANIA TO CLOSE FOREIGN NAVIGATION. PARIS, Dec. 6. Four Austrian monitors are prepared to leave Ruzhichuk in Bulgaria, on the Danube, to bombard Reni, the Danube port in Bessarabia, where the Russian army has assembled, says a Bucharest correspondent of the Temps. Information to this effect was received to-day. In consequence the Roumanian Government has decided to close all foreign navigation on that part of the Danube which flows through Roumanian territory.

DOCTOR VESNITCH HOPEFUL. PARIS, Dec. 6. Better days for Serbia are coming, says Doctor Vesnitch, former Serbian Minister to Paris, recently appointed Serbian Minister of Finance, in an interview with the Temps to-day. "Our army, which has been retiring for two full months without respite, is reforming. This retirement was forced, because the Allies were not ready with sufficient troops in the Balkans. These troops are now landing. They will have the cooperation of a Serbian Army of two hundred thousand. I do not exaggerate when I say two hundred thousand. We shall again and again have victories such as those of last December."

A VIGOROUS PROTEST. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. U. S. Ambassador Page at London to-day advised the State Department that he had filed a vigorous protest with the British Foreign Office against requisitioning vessels of the American Transatlantic without the formality of Prize Court procedure.

RUSSIAN COLONEL SUICIDES. WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 6. Colonel B. Paramerevsky, representative of the Russian Government in this country, looking after the performance of contracts for munitions, committed suicide here to-day. The cause of his act is not known. The following note, dated to-day, was found beside the dead man. "Do not accuse anybody of my death."

ATTACKED AND ESCAPED. LONDON, Dec. 6. The British steamer Japanese Prince, recently was attacked by a German submarine but succeeded in escaping from the German boat according to information received here to-day.

TROUBLE IN SHANGHAI. SHANGHAI, Dec. 6. A band of 20 or 40 rebels armed with rifles and bombs attacked the Charper sub-police station at four o'clock in the morning. The rebels threw four bombs, of which three exploded. One policeman was killed and three wounded. A body of regular troops were brought up quickly and the rebels disappeared.

During the forenoon further troubles developed in the vicinity of the French concession. At ten o'clock three hundred men, for the most part coolies, armed with bombs and musser rifles, attempted to seize the Chinese police station at the west gate of the French concession. Their attack was repulsed. They attempted to retreat into the French concession, resisting at the French police to disarm them, and firing on the French, and throwing bombs on the French police station. The French replied by fire, upon which the rebels took refuge in houses in the Rue Enochenard. Fifteen arrests by Chinese and French police followed shortly after. Intermittent firing by the rebels was kept up. The International Volunteers have been called out and posted at strategic points with orders to search for weapons on all Chinese coming into the settlement. This afternoon the French police arrested twenty-five men at Sicawels, near the native city. The men were armed with bombs, rifles and bayonets.

APPEAL FOR EARLY PEACE. NEW YORK, Dec. 6. A News Agency despatch to-day, says: Pope Benedict's allocution to the Consistory of Cardinals to-day contained a stirring appeal for early peace. Great hope was entertained that the Pope's allocution would be a measure toward ending the war in the near future would result from this initiative by the Pontiff, but enthusiasm was tempered by the skepticism accredited to the German Cardinal Von Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne. Hereafter he was supposed to be a bearer of a peace mission from the German Emperor. Cardinal Von Hartmann is now said to be far from optimistic, having conceded to a friend that peace will be impossible for another year at least. The Cologne Cardinal enjoys such close relationship to the German Emperor, that his utterance will have the color of authority.

BRITISH SUBMARINE'S WORK. LONDON, Dec. 6. (Official). A report has been received from a British submarine operating in the Sea of Marmora, describing her recent activities. On December 2nd she fired into and damaged a train on the Ismid railway. On Dec. 3rd she torpedoed and sank the Turkish destroyer Var Hissar, outside the Gulf of Ismid, she picked up two officers and forty men of the destroyer's crew and placed them on board a sailing vessel. On Dec. 4th she sank a supply steamer of 3,000 tons and over. At Panderma by gunfire she also destroyed four sailing vessels carrying supplies. The Turkish torpedo boat destroyer Var Hissar was built in 1907 at Orestos. She was 184 feet long, 19.7 feet beam, and 9.5 feet draft. Her armament consisted of one 6-pounder, six 3-pounders, and two torpedo tubes. Her speed was 28 knots.

How to Prevent Acid Stomachs and Food Fermentation. By a Stomach Specialist. As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble that which causes all the pain and difficulty is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one or two teaspoonfuls of bisulphated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisulphated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

Goodyear in the Finals.

Grand Falls, December 3, 1915. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I am enclosing a clipping from an English paper that came by the last mail which might be of interest to the public. By letters received from Stan Goodyear a short while ago he mentioned on his letter that he was to see a boxing match an English chap had knocked out an Australian in the 15th round, and Stan with the usual Newfoundland grit challenged him and the result you will see for yourself, so if it is any use to you you may use it for your paper. I remain, yours truly, C. H. HAYWARD.

"Heavy weight Driver Hannan beat Sergt. Goodyear. This was one of the best fights of the evening, both men going at it hammer and tongs, and at the same time, the proper amount of science to make the match interesting. Hannan nearly showed his superiority in fighting, and Sergt. Goodyear did his best to keep at a distance and change the style of the fighting. Hannan was into him all the time and scored point after point. In the second and third rounds there was little to choose between the two opponents, but what made the fight particularly interesting was the interference in the methods of the two fighters. An extra round was ordered, in which Hannan proved that his methods, as in this case at least, were superior, and the belt, kindly presented by Messrs. Davies Bryan, was handed to him. Both men, in spite of the hotness of the pace, were quite fresh at the finish."

From Private T. B. Evans.

Private Thomas B. Evans, of the Newfoundland Regiment, writing to his parents from Newton on Ayr, under date Nov. 4th, says that he was leaving for his duty on the 10th of the following day. The letter further states that the draft consisted of over one hundred men, and that they were all thoroughly equipped and ready to enter the trenches on arrival. His letter throughout is quite cheery. He tells his parents that he is determined to do his duty as a soldier. Referring to equipment, Private Evans says that they have all been supplied with warm uniforms, clothing, and each man was given two pairs of boots. The young soldier concludes by telling his parents not to worry about him but instead to feel proud that he was going forward to fight for King and Country.

From Lance-Corpl A. French.

France, Nov. 8, 1915. Dear Father,—It seems to me a long while since I wrote you personally, but nevertheless it's not that I don't think of you, for you are scarcely ever out of my thoughts. You never fail to write me often and this I don't forget, though it's utterly impossible for me to write you as often as I would wish. Place, conditions and facilities for writing are the chief reasons for this, but never forget that I think of you all none the less. I am writing this in my dug-out, just a small place only enough for two of us to crawl in out of the weather, and often we are in the open; but we must only make the best of it all and let us hope there are better days to come. As I am writing our big guns are thundering over my head. It shakes the ground where I am lying. Father, war is hell, and it takes one who has gone through it to know. Now about my trip to London: Well, I must say that I spent the most enjoyable time in my life there. I left the firing line on the 3 p.m. train Oct. 23rd (Sunday), arrived at Boulogne, France, on Sunday night at 10 o'clock, crossed by boat to Folkestone, England, at 10 o'clock, took the train from there and arrived in London 3 o'clock Monday morning, called to Woodley about 3 a.m. same day. I left for the firing line again at 5:40 Sunday evening, Oct. 10th, having spent a most enjoyable time in the city of London. The troop trains were given a great send-off. My friends in London wrote and told me it was a sight they won't soon forget. The soldiers and civilians gave a tremendous cheer as we moved out. You could scarcely move through the crowds at the station. I know a little of London now, that being my third trip since leaving the land of the maple leaf. Tell mother I received the box O.K. containing the socks on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6th, and I have them on now, they are fine and warm. She can send as many pairs of them as she wishes, they are just like kind ones need out here. I am sorry to hear of the death of poor Rupert Watts. Your letter was the first intimation I had of his death. He used to treat me good whenever I could go to see him, which was often. Don't fail to write soon. Please thank Mr. F. Sullivan and Master Hal Oke for their presents and thoughtful remembrance of me on the battle field of France. For now, good-bye, with love to all till we meet again. From SANDY.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drowns them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, fitted with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play." Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality. We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X. Lamp and GASTHEAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

Cominion War Loans.

Early in the year when the Government at home found their hands full in financing the war for themselves and their weaker allies and in advancing loans to the Dominions, the Colonies, Office suggested to the Dominions that they should endeavour to float the loans they needed, and that they would render indirect war aid to the Empire if they left London and the homeland as a preserve to meet the immense borrowings which the War imposed on the home government. The Commonwealth of Australia took the lead in raising a large sum within her own jurisdiction. Some months ago the Commonwealth Government determined to raise a hundred million dollars locally at 4 1/2 per cent. Twenty-five millions was issued as a first instalment, and this was subscribed for more than two and a half times over. So assured is the Government of floating the whole of the $100,000,000 that it is said a second loan for one hundred and twenty-five millions will be proposed. The wealth of Australia is considerable. Its five million people at the end of last year had 425 million dollars on deposit in the State Savings Banks, and the assets of the various Australian cheque-paying banks, including the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, amounted to over 900 million dollars. The Labor Government of the Commonwealth have taken a clear lead among the Dominions in organizing an army, a fleet and in local financing.

Turning now to the Dominion of Canada, we find that she has also been very successful in her financial operations. She raised her first war loan in New York. This was for 25 million dollars. She is paying five per cent interest on it. She is now engaged in raising a loan locally and in this effort she has met with magnificent success. Her issue was fifty million dollars, and this was almost all taken up by big subscribers. Her banks took up $26,350,000. Her insurance companies $7,535,000. Her industrial companies $4,825,000. Her cities $2,920,000. Her rich men $2,500,000 and her trust and loan companies $1,250,000. ## OPENING OF CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Congress assembled to-day for a session which is expected to be the greatest within the memory of the present generation. Four hours work at the House saw Speaker Clark returned to the chair, Representative Mann returned leadership of Republican minority, the introduction of two thousand bills and resolutions, many of them proposing measures of national defence, many more in opposition to the appearance of constitutional amendments to enfranchise women and a miniature rule fight that flickered out with the adoption of last year's rules with few changes. In the Senate practically nothing was done except election of Senator Clark, Arkansas, President, pro tempore, Vice-President Marshall was absent because of the illness of his wife. Both Houses then after sending a joint committee to the White House to give official notice of the opening of Congress, adjourned until to-morrow, when the real business of the session begins with President Wilson's address to a joint session of the House at 12.30.

RUSSIAN SPOILS FOR OCTOBER.

GENEVA, To-day. The Russian Legation at Bern to-day issued the following statement. In the month of October official communications greatly exaggerated the number of Russians made prisoners. October was a specially successful month for the Russians who captured 674 German officers, 49,200 Austro-German soldiers, 21 large cannon, 1,118 machine guns and three search lights.

GERMANY WANTS TO KNOW WHY HER MILITARY AND NAVAL ATTACHES ARE OBJECTIONABLE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Germany notified the United States to-day that she desired to know upon what grounds the State Department asks the withdrawal of Capt. Boyed, naval attaché to the German Embassy here, and Capt. Von Popen, military attaché to the German Embassy here. Lansing received the request from two sources, from Count Bernstorff, Ambassador, and from the Berlin Foreign Office through the German Legation. The States will reply promptly. Lansing will not discuss the facts nor will he give the sources of information concerning the activities of the attaches, in connection with naval and military matters, to which the State Department objected. Without reference to reasons, Germany requested the State Department to ask for the withdrawal of attaches, it is stated the United States will stand upon the established understanding that a diplomatic officer has made himself disagreeable is sufficient to cause his removal. It was broadly intimated that Germany's request for information that if the United States based its action on anything else than the developments of the Hamburg-American Line conspiracy in the trial at New York or the case of Jas. Archibald, American war correspondent, who carried papers for Capt. Von Popen as well as Dr. Duba recalled Ambassador of Austria, German wanted to know.

WANT SAFE CONDUCT.

BERLIN, To-day. The United States is expected to get a safe conduct home for the two officers, if it wishes to be rid of them. "Whom it is as objectionable" stated that Germany will make no request for this service.

CONSTANTINE'S LATEST MOVE.

ATHENS, To-day. Constantine, King of Greece, received the correspondent of the Associated Press on Saturday and gave him a message for America on the attitude which Greece has assumed in the world war. The reasons for the policy which has been followed by the Greek Government, I am especially glad to talk for America, said the King. America will understand Greece's position. We are both neutral and are together determined if it is humanly possible not to court destruction by permitting ourselves to be drawn into the frightful vortex of the present European conflict. America is protected from immediate danger by the distance which separates her from the battlefield. We too, thought that once, but the battlefield shifted and may shift again. What is happening in Greece to-day may happen in America, Holland, or any other neutral country to-morrow. If the precedent now sought to be established in the case of Greece is once fixed. The interview with the King took place at noon in a smaller palace which is the King's personal residence, and the audience lasted an hour. From the time emphasizing the earnestness and sincerity of what he is saying, he trumpeted the table soundly with clenched fist, despite the serious subject he was delivering. The fundamental cause of the entire threatening attitude of the Entente Powers towards Greece to-day and said the King, is the Entente's own assumption without the slightest reason therefor, that Greece is ready to betray the Entente to Germany at the first favorable opportunity. It is reasonable to suppose such things. From the very outset of hostilities in the Near East, Greece's neutrality has been stretched to the utmost to accommodate the Entente Powers, for whom we have always felt the keenest sympathy and deepest gratitude. The Dardanelles operations, were directed from Greek islands occupied by the Allies' troops. When the Serbians were endangered by the conbined Austro-German and Bulgarian attack, the Allied troops landed unopposed on Greek soil from which, with a second city of Greece as a base, they prosecuted not only unopposed, but aided in every way. Finally they have given my personal word that the Greek troops will never be used in an attack on British forces in Macedonia, merely to ally unjustified suspicions. Yet despite all these evidences of the good faith of Greece, the Entente now demand in a form which is virtually an ultimatum that Greek troops be withdrawn from Salonika, and that means all Macedonia, leaving our population unprotected against the raids by Bulgarians and Austro-Germans. Just suppose the Germans were in a position to demand that your country concede the use of Boston or Seattle as a base for an attack on Canada, what would you say? And if your military experience and advice to your general staff told you that such a landing was doomed to failure, because made with an inadequate force and you realize that British troops in Greece would pursue the retreat of the Germans across to Boston, destroying as they went, would you accept the prospect without struggle? But had your Majesty German assurance that Greek territory will be respected? The King was asked. Of course and an Entente assurance too and your Majesty German assurance that Germany, said the King, has given assurance for herself and her Allies, but that does not prevent the German-Bulgarian armies, as a measure of military necessity, from pursuing the retreating French and British into Greece, fighting in Greece and turning Greece into a second Poland. I have that assurance and also that Greek frontiers will be re-erected after the war, but that does not rebuild towns or compensate my people for months perhaps years spent living in misery and fugitives from their own land, when their country is not at war and has nothing to gain by risking devastation. Why the Entente Powers treat us as if I were king of a central African tribe to whom the sufferings of his own people were matter of indifference. Having been through three wars I know what war is. I do not want any more, if it can be hon-ourably avoided. My people do not want any more and if they and I can help it we shall not have any more. Then your Majesty does not believe that intervention policy of former President M. Venizelos, really expressed will of Greek people. I know it did not, replied King forcefully. When people re-elected Venizelos they elected him not his policy. The great mass of the people of Greece did not and will not understand any-

Edison on Cigarettes.

A writer in "Harper's Weekly" says: "Cigarettes are not mere rolls of tobacco. They are not drugged with expensive poisons as charged, but they have a peculiarity. The combination of burning paper and tobacco makes a compound which is neither tobacco smoke nor paper smoke, but has a name which chemists know and a smell which everybody knows. There is not much of the new compound, but in what there is of it lies the misery of the cigarette. Thomas A. Edison may be supposed to know what he is talking about when he says: 'Acroline is one of the most horrible of poisons. It really believes that it often makes boys insane. We sometimes develop acroline in this laboratory in our experiments with glyoxine. One who got it from the oven drove one of my assistants out of the building the other day. I can hardly exaggerate the dangerous nature of acroline, and yet that is what a man or a boy is dealing with every time he smokes the ordinary cigarette.'"

How Ferdinand Got His Throne.

The story goes that when the Bulgarian envoys, twenty-eight years ago, had made an unsuccessful search among the European royalties, for a ruler to fill the Bulgarian throne, and were sitting dejected in a Vienna cafe at the end of their pilgrimage, preparing to return home empty handed, an envoy of Ferdinand's mother, the Princess Clementine, approached them and called their attention to the young prince, who was sitting at a neighboring table. "There is the man you want," she remarked to them, "a grandson of Louis Philippe, a favorite of Austria and the Czar, a man of wealth and cousin of every crowned head in Europe." The envoys reported to Stambuloff and he eagerly embraced the candidature of the young prince. Ferdinand was then in his twenty-seventh year.—Westminster Gazette.

Letting the Driver Alone.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"A u t o m o b i l i n g always tires me dreadfully," a woman said to me the other day. Yesterday I was in a machine with her and I found out why. She had to help run the machine all the time. She scarcely took her eyes off the road ahead for a moment; when we approached another machine, sometimes she informed our driver of the fact (how a driver does love that), other times she simply straightened up and watched the two machines tensely until we were safely past; when we went around a curve, instead of yielding her body to the swing of the machine, she leaned stiffly the other way as if to balance the turn and keep the car on the road. If for any reason the car slowed down quickly I could see her brace herself as if she were putting on the brakes.

She Can't See Why Riding Tires Her So.

"We had a lovely drive," I said when we reached home.

"Yes," she said, "lovely; but I am so tired. I don't see why riding tires me so."

I hope someone who knows her better than I will tell her some day that it's simply because she won't let the driver run the machine.

Lots Of People Are Like That.

There are lots of people, like that, aren't there? And I don't refer merely to automobilists. I mean it in a broader sense than that. People who won't let those to whom any responsibility belongs carry it, but push their shoulders under the burden and then complain that they have so much responsibility.

Or, in a still larger sense, people who find life hard and puzzling simply because they cannot let God run the universe.

I had a letter from a dear letter-friend this morning. She said: "We have had a misfortune in not having our flats all rented, so, of course, that put off my vacation. But sometime I will make up for it. So I do not worry."

She Lets God Run the Universe.

There is a woman who does know how to let God run the universe.

No wonder that, in spite of hardships and illness and shadows of one sort or another that have lain on her life, she is a serene and happy woman.

Rev. G. J. Bond, D.D.

The many friends of the Rev. Geo. J. Bond, D.D., will be glad to learn from the following item, copied from the "Wesleyan," that the reverend gentleman is making a name for himself at Sackville, where he is labouring for one year before taking up his duties at Cochrane Street Church.

"Sackville.—On Friday evening, 26th inst., Rev. Dr. Bond delivered a lecture to a large audience in the Methodist Church, subject: "On the Roof of the World." Dr. Bond took his hearers with him through most picturesque scenery in China and Thibet, and in his versatile and entertaining manner described the pictures which illustrated his address. A few years ago, the lecturer made this extraordinary journey of 2,000 miles into the heart of China and the borders of Thibet, and peculiar interest was added to the scenes thrown upon the screen, from the fact that these beautiful pictures were photographs taken by the lecturer himself, which he had painted by artists in Japan, so as to obtain the true tints of nature and costumes in those lands. At the close of the lecture, the chairman, Rev. Dr. Sprague, presented to Dr. Bond a hearty vote of thanks from the audience and especially from the ladies of the W. M. S., under whose auspices the lecture was given.

Under Prof. Crowell's expert management, the lantern views thrown upon the screen, were exceptionally fine.

Dr. Bond is preaching memorable sermons. He has won the admiration and love of "town and gown", and our great regret is that at the end of the year he has to leave us for another field of labor."

Why People Feel Depressed In the Cold Weather.

Why is tiredness and languor so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong. No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humors. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

Wedding Bells.

HOGAN—QUINLAN.

On the evening of Nov. 23rd, Red Head Cove was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Jeremiah Quinlan led to the altar Lizzie, youngest daughter of Cornelius and Ellen Hogan. The bride was prettily dressed in chalon lace over cream satin, with wreath and veil and carried a bouquet of maiden hair fern and lilies of the valley. She was given away by her father and was attended by Annie Quinlan, sister of the groom and Bride Evans, niece of the bride, who looked charming in cream silk with black picture hats; the groom was supported by his cousin Terence McNamara, assisted by Michael Brady; the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. V. Donnelly, who after the ceremony delivered a most instructive sermon on the duties of holy matrimony. The presents were many and costly; the groom's present to the bride being a gold bracelet and to the bridesmaids gold chains and pendants. Refreshments were served at the bride's parents. Following the ceremony all returned to the groom's home amid sounds of music and showers of rice where upwards of three hundred guests were entertained. Dancing was kept up until the wee sma' hours of the morning. The bride and groom is well and favorably known in the city and all join in wishing them many happy years of wedded life.—Cor.

The Sealing Voyage.

It is understood that only eleven steamers—10 wooden and 1 steel—will prosecute the 1916 sealfishery, namely, the Bonaventure, Terra Nova, Neptune, Ranger, Kite, Eagle, Viking, Erik, Diana, Bloodhound and Newfoundland. They will carry crews approaching 2,000 men. The Bonaventure, which will be the only steel ship going out, will prosecute in the north. Last spring she was in the Gulf in charge of Capt. Bob Bartlett and was first home with a load of whitecoats. We understand that Capt. Wm. Winsor is going in command of the Bon. the coming spring.

Bankers Outfitting.

The West Coast banking fleet are now getting ready for the voyage on the Western Banks. Operations will commence earlier this year than formerly. Most of the vessels, it is expected, will leave their home ports for the fishing grounds during the first week of January, as previously stated in the Telegram, and begin operations as soon after that as possible. Bankers are now getting their bait supply for the first trip.

Letters and Parcels for the Dardanelles.

POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.

(Daily Telegraph, Nov. 19.)
Mr. Pike Pease, the Assistant Postmaster General, has made a statement in regard to the postal arrangements in the Dardanelles, in the course of which he says:
Under existing conditions all letters and parcels for the troops in the Dardanelles are despatched first of all to the base Army post office at Alexandria. Letters are forwarded with the civil mails for Egypt via Marseilles. Parcels are despatched by the long sea route. On arrival at Alexandria, the whole mail, both letter and parcel, is carefully checked by the Army Post Office staff against the way bills which accompany it, and it is then sub-divided and way-billed for transmission to the Dardanelles.

For the transmission from Alexandria onwards we are entirely dependent on the transport service. The transports do not run at any regular intervals, and the time the mail may wait in Alexandria is quite considerable. This particularly applies to parcel mails, as, whenever the accommodation is limited, preference must naturally be given to the more important letter mails.

From Alexandria to Gallipoli.

Transports from Alexandria, under present conditions, naturally take some time to reach their destination. When they reach Mudros Bay, Lemnos, where the advanced post base is situated, the mails are again taken over, and eventually reach Gallipoli, the postal staff, and transferred to the smaller fleet sweepers, which are regularly despatched from Lemnos to the various beaches in Gallipoli. Here, again, owing to the difficulties of transfer in an open harbor and the fact that often two or three transports with several thousand mails arrive together, there is often a delay of two or three days. On reaching the beaches the mails are again transferred from the fleet sweepers to lighters, landed on the shore, and carried up to the various Army post offices, where, after a further exhaustive check, they are handed over to the post orderlies of the various units, who, in turn, distribute the letters and parcels to the men.

The conditions are such that it is impossible to give a service approximating in any way to that afforded in France, where the means of transport are practically those of peace time. A letter can on the average hardly be delivered under three weeks while parcels may take four or five weeks, or in some cases even six weeks. It will be realized, therefore, that even in the letter post it is hardly possible to obtain an acknowledgment under about six weeks, while in the case of parcels the time may easily be seven or eight weeks.

Losses in the Post.

Of course there have been a large number of complaints of loss of letters, and, to a greater degree, of parcels despatched to the troops in Gallipoli; and a special study of the question was made by one of the chief officials of the Post Office, whom Mr. Samuel recently sent out to carry out investigations on the spot.
So long as the mails are actually in the custody of the Post Office loss is almost unknown. The records show conclusively that not more than one mail bag has been actually lost while in the charge of the Post Office through the whole campaign. Now and then there are cases in which mail bags are found to have been tampered with while on the transports, but the losses due to this cause are infinitesimal. The real reason for the undoubted failure of a large number of mails to reach the addressees must be sought elsewhere, and it is due to two main causes.

The first of these is the inadequate packing of parcels. The public who send the parcels to the Dardanelles certainly do not realise that before a parcel reaches the addressee it is transferred from quay to ship, ship to lighter, &c., no fewer than nine times. Mr. Samuel hopes that a great deal of good may be done by the issue of a leaflet with detailed instructions as to packing, which he has decided to have distributed to everyone who presents a parcel for transmission to the Mediterranean.

The second cause of the complaints of non-delivery is the difficulty experienced on the transport service of disposing of letters and parcels addressed to men who have been wounded and sent from their units to hospital. There are at present between 50,000 and 60,000 entries on the hospital list, and a number of men are employed for their whole time on keeping the list up to date. Under the most favourable conditions a parcel for a man who has been sent down from the front may not reach him in hospital until seven or eight weeks from the date of posting, and under unfavourable conditions a period may be considerably increased. The news, therefore, of the arrival of a parcel cannot reach the sender in England until ten or eleven weeks from the time of posting. In the case of letters the delay is not quite so great, but it is still considerable. In many cases the wounded man has returned direct to England, in which case it is impossible to obtain the hospital address in Alexandria; and letters and parcels have to be re-addressed to the original senders, who, of course, only receive them many weeks after their despatch, and when they have long given them up for lost.

Acceleration by Transport.

One of the greatest difficulties of the service, viz., the very slow transmission of the mails, will shortly be remedied, as the French War Office have now kindly allowed us to make use of our letter mails of their transport services running direct from Marseilles to Mudros. This will enable us to reduce the course of post by about a week. We have also been able to concert arrangements with the Admiralty which will, it is hoped, enable us to make a similar reduction in the time of transmission of parcels. The acceleration will react on the whole service, as it will, of course, not only allow of letters reaching the Dardanelles sooner than at present, but it will also ensure a correspondingly earlier return of letters for casualties to the base post-office, and a much prompter delivery of correspondence to patients in hospital.

It should perhaps be added that parcels over 11 lb. in weight are not despatched through the Post Office, but through the Military Forwarding Office. They apparently take longer in transit than post parcels, and they are not delivered to the addressee direct; they have to be called for at some convenient point.

More Heavy Weather on Cape Breton Coast.
Louisburg, N. S., Nov. 27.—Last evening just after dark the steamer Newfoundland made her way into port running before the gale. It was too rough for the pilots to venture out and while the harbor is very easy to reach, it is well buoyed and has good clear range lights showing at night, the entrance would look very narrow to one not acquainted with the coast and Captain Davis of the Newfoundland displayed good seamanship in handling his vessel and bringing her into port.
The steamer Cohan arrived this afternoon from Placentia and reports the gale as a very severe one off the coast.

Lord Haldane.

What He Knew in Berlin—Why He Did Not Tell the People. (Daily Mail.)

Lord Haldane some time ago laid the blame of the Government's inadequate military preparations on the misapprehension of the Cabinet. Last night he said that he brought back the "tip" from his visit to Berlin (when Germany's plan to tie our hands in war was clearly shown), but told it only to the Cabinet, not to the people, or, as he said, "not to where it would simply lead to mischief."

Lord Haldane cannot have it both ways. Lord Haldane, speaking at the Hampstead Garden Suburb Institute last night, said: "I have been criticized as not having warned my countrymen (after his mission in Berlin in 1912) and warned the Government about the war itself. My knowledge of what took place was substantial. Such information as I got—and I got a good deal—was carefully recorded and communicated without a moment's delay to the Government of which I was a member. (Hear, hear.)

More than that, not only did we immediately take counsel over what we ascertained, but we also took immediate action on it, and if we had not taken action on it you would not have commanded the seas to-day and the Germans would have been in Paris perhaps in Galis. This did not prevent us from doing all we could to try to get the ideas of aggressive policy of war out of the heads of other nations on the Continent. My most earnest desire was to keep peace, and I did everything in my power to keep it. (Hear, hear.)

But I was painfully conscious that there was at least the chance of a terrible war, and I did all that in my lay to bring home that information, not to where it would simply lead to mischief, but to the minds of my colleagues and to those with whom I was working, with the result that at least we were not taken unawares, and we were able to mobilize not only the fleet but the army in the first moment of the outbreak of the war.

I do not want again to leave even a pretext for it to be said that warning has not been given. When the time comes and the records are disclosed warnings about the war and the steps that were taken will become known to the people. They are all there, and I am not in the least afraid of the advent of the day of judgment.

The rest of the speech was about the need for education to meet the situation after the war. "We shall be face to face with the advent of democracy, and let us see that we do our best to educate our masters before they can exercise the mastery over us."

When a vegetable is tender enough to be pierced with a fork, it is perfectly done and should be removed from the fire.

He is seen in company with General Joffre and staff inspecting the trenches in Flanders; reviewing some of the most famous French regiments, attending the presentation of decorations which General Joffre makes to two British officers and several French soldiers for conspicuous bravery in the field, &c., &c. It is a remarkable picture of a remarkable man.

BRITISH THEATRE.
The attendance at this popular house last night was most enthusiastic over the programme. King Baggot is making many friends among the movie fans at the British, and in "The Turn of the Tide" he added to his laurels still further. "The Hard Road" is a splendidly acted subject being reviewed. The "Wearer Weekly" is well up to the best of these entertainments, a long series of events of international importance being reviewed. The Wearer Company with a reputation for humour is here with a pretty comedy number "When he Proposed," and concludes the programme which will be repeated to-night.

"THE GODDESS" AT THE NICKEL.
The Nickel Theatre was well attended yesterday, the great attraction being the wonderful serial which justly has the reputation of being the sweetest serial ever presented at the movies. Thousands of our people are interested in it, and all are charmed with its excellence. Yesterday's episode saw the child who entered the cave fifteen years ago come out a beautiful woman. Anita Stewart plays the part to perfection and was greatly admired. The Pathé News and other films were also of the highest quality. It will be repeated this evening, be sure and see it. ## RAMBLING NOTES for 1915.

CHAPTER IX.

There seems hardly a place around our island that one may visit from which volunteers have not gone, and scarcely a home that is not affected by the call of Empire. And so we found it in our rambles, and sometimes under most unexpected conditions. Hence while at Seaton, when visiting the church, we met one lone woman who had come to pray. She showed the marks of anxiety in her face, though not very old. I was standing by the marble bust of the late Rev. Father O'Regan, and was reading the brass mural tablet close by when the good woman, having finished her devotions, passed by. On hearing me I spoke to her and told her that I had been acquainted with the rev. gentleman whose tablet I was reading. She at once told me of the young priest's devotion to duty, and how he had built the church, and how in storm and tempest he had been lost with all his ship's company.

She then spoke of the war, and how close it came to her heart, and how her only child had fallen in the fight. As she continued her tale she said: "and yet he was not my real child, sir, but having no children myself I adopted him when he was a babe, and was left motherless. I reared him and trained him to be true and faithful to his church, and I thought more about him in a sense than if he were my own child. It broke my heart to part with him, and two weeks ago he died of wounds at Gallipoli. My name is Roach, but his name was Fred Columbus." I knew the woman's feeling well, and expressed to her my deepest sympathy, as one of my own sons had died the previous Wednesday for the front.

On leaving the church I went into a house on the adjoining property, and there, too, found a mother whose boy was at the front. She showed me his photo, and told me how she hoped for his safe return, and how hard it was to say "good-bye" to him. His father was dead and therefore she felt it all the more. And so the chapter runs on; the chapter of a thousand heart-breaks, the same the world over since man was created will continue the same until the close of the volume.

All the while my uppermost thought was of the young clergyman who went down into the sea, and who amid the roar of the waves, faced the final summons. The bust in the chapel is of white marble and is very ornate and well executed, and was made in Italy. The church is large and very comfortable, and stands upon one of the most suitable sites and most beautiful slopes that could be desired for a place of worship. The people attend from a radius of three or four miles, and fill the building to its utmost capacity. At the Presbytery we were well received by the Rev. Monsignor Sears, who, with his brother, has devoted his life to the good work of their high calling. The churches and the clergymen represent what is best in life, and every edifice that rears its steeple skyward, is a monument to their zeal, and a perpetuation of their faith.

At Little River a new church was opened by His Lordship Bishop Power, just before he took his departure for Canada, and as the place assumes larger proportions, other buildings of a similar nature will be erected. If the clergymen and the school-teachers keep in the van of civilization, then the right foundation will be laid, and the super-structure raise its walls an ornament and a stronghold.

The vicinity of Little River, as our readers are aware, is the rendezvous of the disciples of Isaac Walton. The locality is indeed an ideal one for the purpose, and one that offers many attractions for the angler. To the man who is confined in an office, and who may be fortunate enough to get a week or two off, at no better place could he pitch his camp than near some of the "shady nooks" which abound along the shores of Little River. A large increase may reasonably be expected in this direction, and every inducement should be held out so that these avenues of income may be more fully developed and the best possible returns received from them. The Game Board has done excellent work in this direction so far, and it is to be hoped that they will be enabled to continue their efforts, for by so doing they both encourage tourist traffic and conserve the public rights. Sometimes there has been misunderstanding as to the rights of sportsmen who visit our waters, and no little time has been lost thereby; but the Game Board has adjusted many of these matters and now there is a better understanding with the result that harmony prevails. Every avenue of revenue that our country offers should be trailed off, and our sporting grounds and salmon pools, and our trout streams including prove very supplementary to the Treasury.

Gives Better Satisfaction Than Any Other.

MESSRS. DEARBORN & CO.,
St. John, N.B.
Dear Sirs,—I am now using your Baking Powder. I have used different kinds, but I like yours the best. It gives better satisfaction than any other kind.

THE OLD VIRTUES.

The old-fashioned virtues are not out of date; they'll never relapse to abandoned estate. The records will show you that honesty pays, as much as it did in the halcyon days. And industry brings reputation and scads, the same as it did in the times of our dads. Sobriety helps us to lay up a wad, the larder to fill when the wolf is abroad. The silver-tongued speakers are jaunting around, and filling the air with a riot of sound, instructing the people just how they should vote, if they would be sure of retaining their goat; they're talking of creeds and of fens and things, and nothing of value the spell-binder brings. The world would be better if speakers would boom the old-fashioned virtues, and keep them in bloom, and say to the people, "Don't worry, don't fret, be honest and sober and keep out of debt." Oh, that is the counsel the plain people need; it's better than platitudes going to seed. The old-fashioned virtues much sustenance give; when they are adhered to, they teach us to live; and when we are ready to murmur good by, they show us how sportsmanlike delegates die.

LECTURE ON SPAIN.—Before a crowded audience Mr. W. H. Jones lectured at the Grenfell Hall on Sunday evening. He took as his theme "Romantic Spain," which was ably handled and held the closest attention of all present. The historical tales, as told by the speaker, were immensely interesting. The discourse was illustrated with twenty appropriate lantern slides.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The Society for Protection of Animals was incorporated in 1912, with a limited liability and objects as follows:

Prevention of ill-treatment or neglect of animals.
Promotion and encouragement of proper care and treatment of animals.

Spread of education, moral suasion, and other influences tending to better the physical condition of animals.

Institution of agencies of the Association throughout the Colony to further its objects.

Enrolment as members of persons who shall subscribe their names as such and who shall contribute, whether in money or in services, towards the advancement of the Association.

Prosecution of proceedings according to law against persons violating the law relating to cruelty to animals.

Introduction of legislation to amend the law.

Receiving, collecting, holding and applying funds, donations, contributions, or legacies intended to promote the Society's aims.

Taking over the duties and continuing, and extending the operations of the Society, which since the year 1883 has been established in the Colony, and known as "The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," etc., etc.

The information of your readers, I annex hereto a synopsis of the work performed by the Society last year. Let them carefully consider the work done, and judge for themselves whether or not the facts thus set forth show cause why the existence of this Society should be continued.

The work of the Society has performed has been done under the handicap of a more or less limited membership, and this connotes the disability of laboring with scanty funds. Every earnest additional member obtained means not alone an increase in the revenue of the Society, but the additional security that the Society's interests are being protected and its aims and objects furthered by yet one other additional individual.

In this way, its influence for good will be extended, and as the sphere of its usefulness widens, so will tangible results become still more apparent, until, perchance, the time will come when the alleviation of the condition of dumb animals, their protection and humane treatment will no longer be ideals to be striven after, but realities to be achieved.

With these objects in view steps are now being taken for the enrolment of new members. With the Society's records before the public, the facts as above, may not one with confidence predict a practical public endorsement of the Society's efforts?

For the information of those who have not forwarded their 1915 subscriptions, to place them in the hands of the Hon. Treasurer with as little delay as possible.

Let me deal with one other point: All criticisms, complaints, suggestions or recommendations, proffered by any bona fide person will be cordially welcomed, and in fact, I would request all friends of the Society who, in their wisdom, know of any way in which the administration of our duties might be more fruitfully accomplished, to communicate with me. Their communications will be carefully considered and treated with the utmost confidence.

Yours faithfully,
CYRIL JAMES FOX,
Hon. Sec. S. P. A.

QUOTATION FROM SOCIETY'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1915.

Total matters noted including the specific items following:
About . . . . . 920
Horses sent . . . . . 27
Treatment or rest . . . . . 97
Humane killings supervised . . . . . 28
Prosecutions . . . . . 6
Innumerable warnings given, literature distributed and many other things done, such as inspection of slaughter houses, obtaining repairs to streets and archways, etc.

Throughout the year the Society's Inspector visited steamship and railway termini, with the object of seeing that every precaution was taken to ensure animals against accident or avoidable discomfort when being unloaded from steamers and trains, also superintended the housing, tying up and driving of animals, insisting upon proper food and water being supplied during transportation and on arrival at destination; 3,388 animals of all kinds were thus protected from risks and dangers that might entail suffering. He was, moreover, responsible for seeing that animals were carried below deck in the winter weather.

The Workhorse Parade organized under the auspices of the Society did much by awakening sentiment and friendly rivalry to inculcate in drivers care and affection for their charges, and the realization that they are intelligent animals rather than unfeeling machines without the right to enjoy life.

Fatigue from Poisoned Blood

Singular action of the liver, kidneys and bowels leave impurities in the blood which render it poisonous. Poisoned blood is the cause of tired, lagging feelings, as well as of headache, backache and bodily pains and aches.

By awakening the action of these filtering and excretory organs, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse the system, purify the blood and cure such ailments as indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements and constipation, etc.

10 Cent Cascarets Best Laxative for Liver and Bowels

Don't stay constipated, headachy, bilious, with breath bad or stomach sour.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from a cold, constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets to-night; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, bad cold, offensive breath and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Your Boys and Girls.

The child crippled physically deserves all the help and comfort it is possible to give, but the child crippled morally by lack of training is in a pitiable plight. Often the mother becomes hard pressed by child bearing and infant nourishing, while the children on their feet are literally pushed into the street to make room in the house for their juniors.

Children learn by imitation, either in thought or act. The imitation of wrong becomes as much a matter of course or natural sequence to the child as does the imitation of right. In the matter of "taking things," which becomes stealing if indulged in after baby days, the condition is often but the uninterrupted continuance of the baby habit, of reaching out and taking what is wanted.

We Know Just How You Feel!

You need an engine for your boat and you are worried almost to death trying to decide which is the best one to buy. One fellow tells you to buy his machine because it is cheaper than others.

Another firm advises you that they have been in the engine business longer than anyone else and therefore their machines are the best.

Then along comes another chap with an engine which he claims is entirely new and better than anything else on the market.

NOW LISTEN.

DON'T buy an engine or any other piece of machinery because it is cheap; probably it has been made cheap.

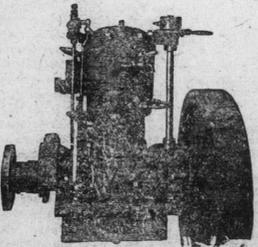

DON'T experiment with new designs, let the other fellow do that.

DON'T depend too much on what any manufacturer says about his own product. Ask someone who has used it.

We would like to give you names of parties using FERRO Engines.
