Ruled BY Destiny!

CHAPTER XIII.
"COURTING TIME."

To know that they were separated for a few hours, brought a strange unreasoning feeling of relief, and almost accepting the fact as an omen of success, she dressed, and telling her maid that she was going to walk her headache off, made her way to the plantation.

She reached the bridge as the clock struck eleven, waited there for some minutes, then slowly strolled into the dense shadow of the pines.

She had brought a book as an excuse for loitering, and with it open in her hand she sat down on a fallen tree and waited.

There was no sign of Oscar Raymond, and she had seen no one since she started, excepting an old laborer in a rough frieze coat, whom she had found busily engaged picking up sticks at the fringe of the plantation, and with a sigh of relief, as the clock chimed the half hour, she rose and closed her book intending to go home, when the old man in the frieze coat hobbled toward her, passed her a few steps, paused to gather some sticks and cones, and then hobbled back again and stood beside her looking up at her, with his hat in his hand and his reddish-gray locks streaming down his neck.

Lady Blanche had taken out her purse, when the old man put his hat on again and laughed.

At the sound of the laugh—the low, mocking laugh—Lady Blanche started and turned crimson.

"Is it you?" she said.

"Yes," said Raymond, "and if your ladyship does not recognize me, I need not fear detection by any others here," and he peered up at her from his half-closed eyes with a furtive smile.

"Why are you here? Was it necessary?" she asked, coldly.

"Quite," he said, "or depend upon it I should not have taken the journey. Things are working well for us, my lady! There could be no better scene for our little comedy than this. You will understand that when I unfold my plot!"

"Your plot? Then you are ready—" "To strike!" he said, quietly, and with the smile of conscious power which had never failed to impress Lady Blanche. "But we had better come into the middle of the wood, my lady," and he hobbled in front of her.

Lady Blanche followed him until they had got well out of sight of the road, then he stopped, and, courteously motioning her to a bank, drew himself up to his full height and leaned against a tree.

"We need to be cautious, my lady," he said. "Last night my messenger was discovered by Lord Norman. He was suspicious—and no wonder. Your French women are bad tools; they are always so curious on their own account. That is Josine's only fault."

"It was Josine, then, who brought me this note?" she said, coldly.

"It was Josine who should have brought it, but she dropped it, and it was brought you by Lord Norman," he answered. "A dangerous episode, my lady! Her stupidity might have ruined us, and that would have been provoking, just as our plans are complete."

"Complete," she repeated, turning very pale.

"Yes," he said, with a smile, and with a look of confidence that shone through the painted wrinkles on his face. "Yes, my little plot is now ready for the stage, my little plot is prepared, and given a fair opportunity—which we must make—and average luck, I shall have my revenge, and you—well, you will have had your amusement!"

"Tell me!" she said, impatiently.

"With pleasure," he answered. "Lady Blanche, before the week is out, Lord Norman and the young lady who stands between you—pardon! the young lady he loves—will be parted, and I shall come to you to claim my reward!"

CHAPTER XIV. A DIABOLICAL PLOT.

LADY BLANCHE drew a long breath and looked at Raymond.

The dark, piercing eyes met hers with a faint smile of confidence, a forecast of triumph in them that contrasted very strongly with the disguises of age and poverty.

"Your ladyship would like to know how I am going to bring this much-to-be-desired result about. I will tell you. Will you not sit down? We are quite out of sight from the road."

Lady Blanche sank on to a fallen tree, and Oscar, Raymond—with the broken sticks he had gathered at his feet, ready to his hand if he should find it necessary to resume his assumed character—leaned against a tree beside her.

"This is my little plot, Lady Blanche," he said. "Pardon me if, during the recital, I exhibit any signs of pride. They say that the serpent in the Garden of Eden was rather conceited with the little plot of the apple, whereby he caught Eve; and a little self-glorification must be permitted me."

Lady Blanche made a gesture of impatience, and lowering his voice—bending down as he approached the most critical parts of the recital—he unfolded his scheme for the destruction of Lord Norman's and Floris's happiness.

Lady Blanche listened, and her face grew paler and paler.

A faint shudder ran through her as he proceeded, and when he had finished, when the insidious voice had whispered its last word, and he closed with a low, sardonic laugh of satisfaction, she drew a little away from him shuddering palpably.

"Ingenious, it is not, my lady?" he said, with a sinister smile.

"It is diabolical!" fell from her pale lips.

"Oh, you flatter me!" he retorted. "Diabolical!" she repeated.

But she did not get up and leave him; she sat, her fingers entwined together, her brows knit, pondering in silence for a moment or two, while he watched her.

"If—if it should fail," he said, in a hushed whisper, "it will cover me with shame! I shall never be able to hold up my head again—I should die!"

"Oh, it will not fail," he said, confidently; "it is too good a plot to fail. It is just a little comedy that requires nice, careful, artistic acting; and I think I can manage my part. As to your ladyship, I have no misgivings respecting you: it is just the part you can play, if I mistake not, to perfection."

Lady Blanche's face grew crimson for a moment—crimson with shame—then the color died away, leaving her pale as marble.

"There is Josine," she said, after a moment's thought, "can you rely on her? Persons of her class are not always to be trusted. You have bought her, no doubt, but she may betray us for gold as readily as she consented to betray—them."

He laughed.

"No doubt. But I hold Josine in a stronger chain than that of gold, my lady—I hold her by fear. Josine, in a weak moment, was foolish enough to steal some letters of her mistress, and I have them. If I am not mistaken, she had appropriated other things besides letters—such unconsidered things as rings and a bracelet. I have seen her wear them, which was a blunder on her part. A word from me, and she would lose her place and her character. Besides, Josine is French—she enjoys an affair of intrigue, it is meat and drink to her; and she hates, she detests Miss Carlisle. Oh, you may rely on Josine, my lady!"

"At the mercy of a servant!" murmured Lady Blanche, with suppressed bitterness.

He laughed.

"We are all at the mercy of some one or other, my lady. Lord Norman, for instance, is at the mercy of you and me; while I—oh, I am at the mercy of my tailor, my ladyship—the world at large. Is your ladyship afraid?" he broke off, with a sarcastic smile. "If so, admit it, and let us have done with the matter. After all, it will not affect me, this marriage of Miss Carlisle and Lord Norman, so much as it will affect you—"

She put up her hand to silence him.

"I am not afraid!" she said, with calm hauteur. "I am merely anxious to guard against failure, failure which would mean ruin to me, ruin and shame unspesakable," and her lips quivered.

"Pardon me," he said suavely; "it is my part to take all the precautions against failure, and I have done, and will do so. Leave it to me, Lady Blanche! Rest assured that I am too fond of my little plot to permit it to miss fire! If you will carry out the instructions I have given you, you will find that we shall succeed beyond our expectations."

Lady Blanche rose, and drew her veil over her face, and he stooped and picked up his sticks.

"You will send Josine to me, my lady?" he asked. "Send her to the plantation to gather some wild flowers for your hair to-night. I will wait here for her, and, if I might make a suggestion?"

Lady Blanche inclined her head.

"If I were your ladyship I would give her some trifle in the way of ornament. Josine's heart is set on earrings, and a bracelet or a pair of bangles would bid her to you in a bond closer than love itself," and he smiled.

Lady Blanche nodded, and turned to leave the wood, but paused to look back over her shoulder and say:

"Do not send any more notes. Give Josine any message you may have for me, please."

He nodded, approvingly, and without a word of adieu she glided from the plantation.

As she neared the house she saw Lady Pendleton and several others standing on the terrace.

Lady Betty bent over the stone coping to nod a greeting.

"Why, where have you been, Blanche?" she asked.

All eyes were turned on her, and for a moment her face flushed; it seemed to her as if the dullest of them must read her secret in her face.

"To the plantation," she said; "and I am almost inclined to go back. There were such lovely flowers there, and it never occurred to me until I had left them behind how nice some of them would look in one's hair to-night!"

Two or three of the young men who were loitering about instantly pushed forward.

"We'll go and gather you a bunch, Lady Blanche!" said one, and the rest eagerly echoed the offer.

She smiled.

"Thanks; but you would not know which to pick, or you would pick them with too short a stem. No, but if Lady Pendleton will allow her maid to go—"

"Of course I will!" said Lady Betty. "Josine will be glad of the excuse to get out. Will one of you be so kind as to ask one of the army of footmen to go on a voyage of discovery for her! I'd go to my room and ring for her if it were not such a terrible way!"

One or two of the men laughingly went to find Josine, and in a minute or two that young lady stood beside her mistress, with her dark face set demurely.

"Oh, go into the woods and get some wild flowers, Josine!" said Lady Pendleton.

"You will find them in the plantation by the hedge," said Lady Blanche, languidly, and without raising her eyes.

Josine shot a curious glance from one to the other.

"We want them for our hair," explained Lady Betty.

"Certainly, miladi," said Josine, with a respectful bend of the head, and a second sharp glance at Lady Blanche as she went off.

Lady Blanche sat on the terrace with the rest, joining in the conversation, and even laughing, a rare thing for her, at the feeble sallies of wit provided by the young gentlemen in attendance; and Lady Betty, to whom Lady Blanche was a perpetual enigma, was wondering what had put her in such good humor, when the figure of Josine was seen in the distance returning to the house.

"Isn't that Josine?" asked Lady Betty. "She hasn't been gone long!" Lady Blanche smiled, she knew at once that Josine had found the flowers already plucked for her.

Italians Held by Austrians in Vienna.

WAR SUMMARY.
While the Italians have been engaged cleaning up the front gathering together the spoils and making straggling Austrian prisoners, the American troops stationed in the Belleau Wood north of Chateau Thierry have been devoting their time to showing the Germans again the fighting timber of which they are made. Following up the recent attack as a result of which they occupied the wood in its end they have advanced their lines gradually northwest of the wood, took prisoners 264 of the enemy, addition to inflicting heavy losses men killed or wounded. The attack was launched Tuesday night with purpose of driving out the few remaining nests of Germans in the wood from which enemy parties constantly were harassing the Americans, followed a hurricane of artillery, intensity of which stunned even the ears of the enemy who previous had been through the terrific drum fires of British and French. The hammer of the guns was kept up for three hours before the infantry set out to accomplish its task and the work wrought by the American shells, many of them of high explosives was evident from the number of enemy soldiers strewn the ground, and the state of general demoralization that prevailed. The capture of Belleau Wood is a considerable strategical importance owing to the fact that the enemy has been able to take positions on the sides without further artillery, northern edges also commanded rear behind the enemy line running Chateau Thierry. All the positions held by the Austrians on the plateau constituting the Capote Bridgehead have been taken by the Italians, and the whole bank of the river is clear of the enemy. From the fighting there has been considerable activity in the south section of the Italian sector. In the mountains however, bombardments are incessant in many sectors and intense artillery operations are going along the whole front. The French official reports that all the territory lost by the Italians to the Austrians in the initial stages of fighting has been recaptured. On the front in France and Flanders the Picardy, Allied troops have had several successful encounters against the Germans.

American Troops Carry Out Brilliant Operation.

Italians Have Reoccupied all Ground Held by Austrians. Profound Dejection in Vienna. Germans to Punish Russia.

WAR SUMMARY.

While the Italians have been busily engaged cleaning up the Piave front gathering together the spoils of war and making stragglers Austrian prisoners, the American troops stationed in the Belleau Wood northwest of Chateau Thierry have been devoting their time to showing the Germans again the fighting timber of which they are made. Following up their recent attack as a result of which they occupied the wood in its entirety, they have advanced their lines materially northwest of the wood and took prisoners 264 of the enemy, in addition to inflicting heavy losses in men killed or wounded. The attack was launched Tuesday night with the purpose of driving out the few remaining nests of Germans in the wood from which enemy parties constantly were harassing the Americans. It followed a hurricane of artillery, the intensity of which stunned even those of the enemy who previous had gone through the terrific drum fires of the British and French. The hammering of the guns was kept up for thirteen hours before the infantry set out to accomplish its task and the havoc wrought by the American shells, many of them of high explosives was evident from the number of enemy dead strewn the ground, and the state of the general demoralization that prevailed. The capture of Belleau Wood is of considerable strategic importance owing to the fact that the enemy had been able to take positions on all sides without further artillery. Its northern edges also commanded the rear behind the enemy line running to Chateau Thierry. All the positions held by the Austrians on the Lower Piave constituting the Capo Sile Bridgehead have been taken by the Italians, and the whole bank of the Piave is clear of the enemy. Aside from the fighting there has been little activity in the south section of the Italian sector. In the mountains, however, bombardments are in progress in many sectors and intensive artillery operations are going on along the whole front. The Rome war official reasserts that all the territory lost by the Italians to the Austrians in the initial stages of the fighting has been recaptured. On the front in France and Flanders and in Picardy, Allied troops have carried out successful encounters against the Germans.

ported that the Germans have begun to build a naval port at Trieste entirely independent of the Austrian authorities, who were not consulted. The purpose is supposed to be the establishment of German commerce in Austrian ports after the war. All the commanding officers of Trieste since the loss of the Austrian dreadnoughts are Germans. The Austrians are only in nominal command.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, June 26. (Official.) We captured a few prisoners and machine guns last night in the neighborhood of Sully Lesse (Picardy) and west of Merville (Flanders). The hostile artillery has been active in the neighborhood of Villers-Sur-Are and Gommeourt and on the Bailleur-Hazebrouck sector.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, June 26. (Official.) The French carried out a number of raids during the night in the regions of Mally Raineval (Somme sector), Molencourt (east of Rheims), Vinly (north of the Oligan River), and northwest of Chateau Thierry, and at Mont Carnillet (east of Rheims), capturing prisoners and machine guns.

GERMAN DEPRESSION.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 26. (By the Associated Press.) The Austrian reverse in Italy is becoming known within the German lines, and is causing depression, according to prisoners captured by the British soldiers. The German soldiers are surprised at the Austrian defeat, as it was believed firmly that the offensive movement, which was intended to administer a knock-out blow to Italy, would be a complete success, and thereby hasten an early peace.

THE AUSTRIAN ROUT.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 26. (By the Associated Press.) Under the fire of Italian machine guns and artillery, which were brought up rapidly, the Austrian withdrawal across the Piave soon became a disorderly rout. It is estimated the Austrian losses total more than two hundred thousand. It was a terrible sight as the maddened Austrians fled under the deluge of Italian bullets and shells. They leaped into the river and grabbed pieces of wood or anything that would aid them. They tied themselves to mules and horses, but their efforts were in vain, for as the enemy troops reached the opposite bank they were again caught by the fire of the Italian guns which had been trained accurately on the eastward retreat. On the Montebello the slaughter was terrific. Bodies of Austrian troops were moved down almost in their entirety at the crossing divisions already surrounded the river were strewn with dead and dying, while hundreds of bodies were carried down in the current to the sea. At one place the correspondent counted three hundred bodies floating a distance of half a mile. One regiment of troops which originally was composed of more than two thousand men, had left Monday morning but eight or nine men to the company, and these were prisoners. Along the Piave the Austrians found themselves, if possible, in a worse position, and sustained heavy losses. A single episode shows how and why the retreat started. On Saturday the Austrian command sent the 81st Schuetzen Brigade, composed of regiments number 31 and 32, with orders to widen the Austrian breach at Lamopol and to do this at all hazards. The brigade attempted to carry out this order and fought like wild men, but the Italian pressure was so terrific that they were unable to accomplish their object, which was to succeed in crossing the Piave. The brigade was surrounded in this section. After six attacks, which continued Saturday night and Sunday morning, they remained at 1 o'clock Monday only 80 men of this brigade. The others were either prisoners or wounded or dead. The commanding officer then committed suicide and the ninety men surrendered. Yesterday was the anniversary of the battle of Solferino, in which the French and Italian armies defeated the Austrians fifty-nine years ago. The victory was proudly emulated by the Italian army in the present fighting. In fleeing, the Austrians left behind them much war material, the enemy troops even throwing away their rifles and hundreds of machine guns which were to have been used to protect the retreat. From the first day of the offensive the Italian morale was of the highest among both the troops and civilian population. Venice appeared to be little concerned over the fact that the enemy was striking in her direction, only 30 miles away. To-day, however, Venice awoke to celebrate the Italian victory.

GERMANS MARCH ON MOSCOW.

LONDON, June 26. The Germans are preparing to march eastward toward Smolensk, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Moscow. Foreign Minister Tschitcherin, accordingly, it is added, has sent the following telegram to Ambassador Joffe at Berlin: "The military authorities at Smolensk report that the Germans are concentrating large forces on the road to Smolensk. A German detachment has attacked and occupied a few small villages, and demand is made that the bridge across the Dnieper river be handed over. The German soldiers declare they have been ordered to advance on Smolensk. I consider the advance inexplicable." Smolensk is about 225 miles west southwest of Moscow and is on the direct road to Bolshevik capital.

CAUSED SENSATION.

PARIS, June 26. (Via Havas Agency)—Acknowledgment by Foreign Secretary Von Kuehlmann that Germany cannot be certain of winning the war by force of arms, caused an indescribable sensation in the Reichstag, says a Zurich despatch to the Petit Journal. His prediction that the war might last through a fifth winter was received in silence, and there was much consternation among the members of the right. The debate which followed the Foreign Secretary's speech was very stormy, pan-Germanism speeches being interrupted by the left.

WARNING TO SHIPPING.

WASHINGTON, June 26. Shipping operating in the area east of longitude forty, between the latitude of Cape Race and Bermuda, has been warned of enemy activity, the Navy Department to-day announced. No explanation was given, but a report of a German raider in that vicinity was brought to an American port yesterday by an incoming steamer.

DILLON'S VIEWS.

DUBLIN, June 26. The Irish Recruiting Committee professes to look for active support from the Catholic Church and the Nationalist Party, said John Dillon, in address to a meeting of the United Irish League here Monday night, but they will get neither the support of one nor the other until they hand over to Ireland the Government of their own country. The Irish Nationalist leader suggested that an all-Ireland conference be held next autumn with the object of devising a scheme for national unity, reiterating that the Nationalists would never adopt the aims and methods of the Sinn Fein party in order to create a situation of a party in the world.

DISCUSSING IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, June 26. In appealing to the Government to refer the Irish question to the Dominion Conference, former Premier Asquith in the House of Commons last night said that the relation between the two policies of Home Rule and Confederation from the beginning had appeared to him obscure and mysterious to the last degree. He agreed with everything the Prime Minister had said about the urgency for an Irish settlement, and would ask if it is not possible, and I speak not in Irish alone, to take advantage of the presence here of the representatives of the great Dominions from all parts of the Empire, to suggest, advise and present some scheme of settlement which might be acceptable to all parties in Ireland and to the people of Great Britain. I do not believe the Imperial War Cabinet could perform a task more vital to the interests of the Empire, or more valuable to the prosecution of the war than to pave the way for a settlement in Ireland." Sir Edward Carson asked the Government to give a frank explanation of their policy of offering recruits to England. He argued that such a policy could only be satisfactory and just if applied to the whole Kingdom and Dominions. When Irishmen refuse to assist England because they could not get Home Rule, he would remind them it was not a question of assisting England, but of assisting civilization to drive back barbarism. He asked Irishmen to turn their eyes to the west to see what Irishmen in America were doing. Reviewing the various negotiations in which he had participated for the settlement of the Irish problem, Sir Edward continued that they would show to the Dominions and America that Ulster had not been unreasonable in trying to find a settlement. He would say to his fellow Irishmen, whether from the north, south or west, "For Heaven's sake indicate your country and your honor and take your share in the war for freedom." Sir James H. Dalziel asked how long the Government was going to allow the scandal of young men going to Ireland to escape military service. Chief Secretary Shortt replied, agreeing that the scandal existed for a considerable time, but after consultation with the law officers it has been decided to issue immediately a proclamation calling these men for service. They would be taken under escort and handed over to the military authorities in England.

German Junkerism.

Dr. Von Kuchman, the German Foreign Secretary, addressing the Reichstag on Monday, endeavored to find another scapegoat upon which to place responsibility for the war and this time fixes on Russia. This speech is more characteristic than ever of the made in Germany type and it is plain that the Herr Doktor has been instructed by higher authority to make this new departure.

In reviewing the work of the year, he declared that the year just ended had been in some respects the most successful in the history of the conference, this being especially so in regard to finances.

Western Notes.

Prospects of saving the steamship which went ashore near Rose Blanche, some time ago do not look very promising. The vessel lies on the Eastern End of the Western Island of Petites (East of Rose Blanche) known as Gull Island. The bow is so close to the rocks that there is no room for a dory to pass around between the shore and stem. The stern rests on a shoal and nearly the whole length of the keel is free from ground with some 7 fathoms of water underneath. Should a heavy sea heave in the vessel will not last long. A wrecking plant on the spot making an attempt at salvage.

Commemoration Day, July 1st.

A series of events has been arranged by the Great War Veterans' Association for Monday next, July 1st, to commemorate the deeds and sacrifices of the soldiers and sailors of Newfoundland in the war. While the anniversary naturally brings into special prominence the gallantry of our soldiers at Beaumont Hamel it is intended that with the observance of July 1st this year the names, the exploits and the memory of all our soldiers who fought gallantly and since shall be as closely associated with those of the heroes who fought on that day in 1916. Captain Donnelly, the first officer of the Regiment to win a decoration, and the veterans of Gallipoli and the men of Guedecourt and Montchy and the other battalions of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment will all be equally remembered and honored on Monday next with those who fought at Beaumont Hamel. On Sunday the churches will hold special services in memory of our dead. On Monday morning a monster parade will be held comprising the Returned Soldiers, Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Newfoundland Regiment, Legion of Frontiersmen, Returned Sailors, Boy's Patriotic Association, Daughters of Empire, Khaki Guild, Nursing Divisions of the St. John Ambulance Brigades, Nfld. Patriotic Association, Boy's Brigades, City Bands and others. A patriotic address from His Excellency the Governor will be given at the morning's proceedings to a close.

Perjury Case.

The preliminary hearing in the case of John Chislett for swearing falsely in giving evidence before the Military Tribunal while seeking exemption for his cousin, Alpheus Chislett, was heard before Judge Morris yesterday morning and afternoon. The evidence of the Chief Justice, Robert Alsop and Miss Rowe, stenographer of the Tribunal, Judge Morris, J. Grace and F. E. Reid, James Chislett and Jacob Chislett was taken. Mr. C. E. Hunt appeared for the Crown and Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., for the defendant.

Methodist Conference.

The thirty-fifth session of the Newfoundland Conference of the Methodist Church was opened at Governor Street Church yesterday morning, June 26th, at 9.30, with the Rev. J. R. Saint, D.D., presiding. After devotional exercises were conducted and roll called, the retiring president briefly addressed the conference. In reviewing the work of the year, he declared that the year just ended had been in some respects the most successful in the history of the conference, this being especially so in regard to finances.

Commemoration Day, July 1st.

A series of events has been arranged by the Great War Veterans' Association for Monday next, July 1st, to commemorate the deeds and sacrifices of the soldiers and sailors of Newfoundland in the war. While the anniversary naturally brings into special prominence the gallantry of our soldiers at Beaumont Hamel it is intended that with the observance of July 1st this year the names, the exploits and the memory of all our soldiers who fought gallantly and since shall be as closely associated with those of the heroes who fought on that day in 1916. Captain Donnelly, the first officer of the Regiment to win a decoration, and the veterans of Gallipoli and the men of Guedecourt and Montchy and the other battalions of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment will all be equally remembered and honored on Monday next with those who fought at Beaumont Hamel. On Sunday the churches will hold special services in memory of our dead. On Monday morning a monster parade will be held comprising the Returned Soldiers, Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Newfoundland Regiment, Legion of Frontiersmen, Returned Sailors, Boy's Patriotic Association, Daughters of Empire, Khaki Guild, Nursing Divisions of the St. John Ambulance Brigades, Nfld. Patriotic Association, Boy's Brigades, City Bands and others. A patriotic address from His Excellency the Governor will be given at the morning's proceedings to a close.

Perjury Case.

The preliminary hearing in the case of John Chislett for swearing falsely in giving evidence before the Military Tribunal while seeking exemption for his cousin, Alpheus Chislett, was heard before Judge Morris yesterday morning and afternoon. The evidence of the Chief Justice, Robert Alsop and Miss Rowe, stenographer of the Tribunal, Judge Morris, J. Grace and F. E. Reid, James Chislett and Jacob Chislett was taken. Mr. C. E. Hunt appeared for the Crown and Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., for the defendant.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, June 27th, 1918. If you have trouble with your feet in summer, if they burn or pain or perspire too freely, or if the boots "draw" them, you can get prompt and welcome relief by the use of the "Walk Easy Tablets." A foot bath of water in which two or three of these tablets have been dissolved will give an indescribable sense of ease and comfort to your feet, and a few applications will enable you to walk easy in summer. These tablets are, we believe, quite the best of this sort of thing in the market, and we are not forgetting some widely advertised remedies that are good enough in their way. But we have known "Walk Easy" to succeed when some of the best known of these have failed. Price 25c. a box.

Goodyear Quality Lowers the Cost-per-Mile. Goodyear Value does not stop at fair prices—rather, it does not begin at any price. Long mileage is the first aim of the Goodyear factories and excess mileage is the aim of Goodyear Service Stations and Dealers everywhere. We believe that there is not another tyre manufactured today that will give so low a cost-per-mile as the new type Goodyear. We believe it from our own experience, and because we have seen it proven by figures gathered from many sources. You can make your decreased tyre cost-per-mile, through fitting Goodyears to your car, offset your increased petrol-cost-per-mile. General Motor Supply Co., Ltd., St. John's, Agents.

9.30 A.M. GERMAN DOCTRINE REPUDIATED.

LONDON, To-day. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Ambrose Chamberlain, former Secretary for India, speaking at a meeting of the Victoria League, at the Guild Hall, said the Imperial War Cabinet was the creation of the war, arising out of its necessities. He was confident it would never be allowed to drop. (Cheers). To sit on such a body was a liberal political education. If anything were needed to stir the people to sterner resolve, it would be found in the speech of Mr. Chamberlain. German peace resolution was one thing, but a German peace quite different. "Might made right and where there was no might there was no right," was the doctrine had been beaten to the ground.

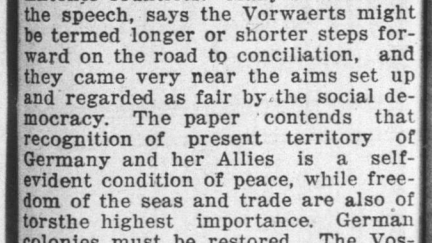

WHAT'S IN A NAME? LONDON, To-day. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—In the House of Commons, Noel Pemberton Billing, M.P. for Hertford, alleged that Sir Albert Stanley, Controller of Shipping, was a German named Knater. Mr. Bonar Law replied "Sir Albert Stanley has no German blood in his veins." Sir Albert Stanley subsequently stated that his parents were English. His father's name was Knateries, an old English name, which was changed to Stanley, because Knateries was very difficult to remember and pronounce. (Laughter and cheers). His family had resided in Derbyshire very many generations and there was not the slightest foreign blood in it. (Loud cheers).

BLOOD-THIRSTY AS EVER. AMSTERDAM, To-day. Following the speech of Dr. Von Kuchmann, in the German Reichstag, dealing with Germany's war aims, Deputy Crocher, (Centrist) expressed regret that the German Foreign Secretary was still as blood-thirsty as ever. He added, nevertheless I believe we have passed the climax of international hatred. German war aims are no obstacle to a truce of God. Count Von Westarp, Conservative, said that the words of the Foreign Secretary regarding responsibility for the war alarmed him, and that Dr. Von Kuchmann's declaration didn't strengthen his will to peace. Abroad he continued, they will, I fear, regard it as a new peace offensive. An appeal to the goodwill of England is useless. Secretary Von Kuchmann made a general reply to the criticisms raised in the debate. He said the most difficult questions for the conclusion of peace would be territorial questions, and proceeded to deal in some detail with the rectifications that would be required by Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria.

DIVERSITY OF OPINION. AMSTERDAM, To-day. Germany's minimum program for peace discussions, as announced by the Foreign Secretary Von Kuchmann, in his speech to the Reichstag, says the Koelnische Volks Zeitung, "The Foreign Secretary is clearly demanding that goes beyond German vital necessities, or that vitally threatens other countries." The Germans of Berlin consider that the speech opens wide the field for peace discussions, and says it keenly awaits the reply of the Entente countries. Many sentences in the speech, says the Koelnische Zeitung, are to be termed longer or shorter steps forward on the road to conciliation, and they came very near the aims and regarded as fair by the social democracy. The paper contends that recognition of present territory of Germany and her Allies is a self-evident condition of peace, while freedom of the seas and trade are also of the highest importance. German colonies must be restored. The Koelnische Zeitung says the speech confirms the idea that for the Foreign Secretary an understanding with Great Britain is necessary and worth striving for.

LABOR MEN TO END TRUCE. LONDON, To-day. Arthur Henderson, a former member of the Cabinet without portfolio, in moving the resolution that the political truce should be no longer recognized, said that the resolution was read along with the context, it could have no other meaning but that the truce should no longer be recognized, and that the political truce has been no signed truce between the labor party and the government since Lloyd George went into power. Henderson continued, as the Government desired to include the words which the labor party wouldn't accept, a change had to be made. However, owing to the action of the parties in bye-elections, the speaker declared, he had hoped that the old truce would be continued because it was much better on the whole not to contest bye-elections. The executive of the party, Henderson added, was of opinion that the labor represents themselves shouldn't be withdrawn from the Government. Robert Smilie, leader of the miners' organization, expressed surprise Mr. Henderson's statement. "We are going to end the truce to-day," he said, "for the country is as sick of the truce as it is of the Government."

Germany's minimum program for peace discussion was formulated by Foreign Secretary Von Kuehlmann, in his speech to the Reichstag, says the Kölnische Volks Zeitung. The Foreign Secretary, it adds, demanded nothing that goes beyond German vital necessities, or that vitiates the peace negotiations. The German High Command considers that the speech opens the field for peace discussions, and it keenly awaits the reply of the British Government. Many sentences in the speech, says the Vorwaerts might be termed longer or shorter steps forward on the road to reconciliation, and they came very near the aims set up mocracy. The paper contends that recognition of German territory

LABOR MEN TO END TRUCE.
LONDON, To-day.
Arthur Henderson, a former member of the Cabinet without portfolio, knowing the resolution that the political truce should be no longer recognized, said that if the resolution were read along with the context, it could have no other meaning but that the truce should no longer be recognized regarding bye-elections. There has been no signed truce between the labor party and the Government since Lloyd George came into power. Mr.
Henderson continued, as the Government desired to legislate the words which the labor party wouldn't accept, a change had come about. However, owing to the action of the parties in bye-elections, the speaker declared, he had hoped that the old truce would be continued because it was much better on the whole not to consider bye-elections. The executive of the party, Henderson added, was of the opinion that the labor representatives shouldn't be withdrawn from the Government. Robert Smillie, leader of the miners' organization, expressed surprise at Mr. Henderson's statement. "We are going to end the truce to-day," he said, "for the country is as sick of the truce as it is of the Government."

Both ships were bound for American ports. Only the second engineer of a crew of sixty of the Pomeranian was saved. The captain asserted that no trace was found of the other members of the crew, after the vessel, following a muffled explosion, in crew of the Medora took to the boats

If Houses Could Speak.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What wonderful books we should have, if houses could write their stories of their lives! Having concluded an interview with the order man, I lingered on my back door stoop the other morning, enjoying my stolen moments the more, doubtless because a dozen reproachful tasks awaited my rising and going inside. The air was rich with the fragrances of spring and the May sunshine lay sweet on the green fields and on all the houses, little and big, scattered over the countryside. As I sat there, idly looking at them, that thought came to me.

The little white bungalow would write of Married Life.

The little white bungalow where the C's used to live, for instance. What a story of married life it could write! What a typical tale of two high-spirited, intense young people who alternately found they could not live with, and could not live without, each other. I remembered the stray tales we used to hear of the night that she threw her wedding ring into the river and the night that she took a dose of poison. (This story became public property because her husband had to wake a neighbor at midnight to telephone for the doctor and the neighbor, a surly bachelor, being wakened with the cry, "I want to use the telephone. My wife has taken poison," succinctly advised "Go home and give her another dose.") I am afraid that that little house however would have a hard time marketing its story for it did not have the conventional happy ending.

A Dramatic Tale by the Big House.

And then the big house that used to belong to the A's before they lost their money in the panic of nineteen seven, and it was bought by their poor relatives who had been saving money tortoise-like while the hare spent it. If that house could tell all that it knew, I am sure we should have an interesting volume.

And next to it is the rambling green house where Mrs. Graham and her married daughter lived until they quarreled about something (the neighborhood never could find out what) and the daughter went away and has never come back, and Mrs. G. has lived alone these seven years. That house surely could tell at least one interesting story.

Wouldn't You Buy These Books!

Just think what a volume of short tales the old yellow house could bring out, about the dozen or more families that have lived there from time to time—stories sad and stories happy of their births, their deaths, their romances, their ambitions, their tragedies!

Lock down your street, or out across your countryside, reader friend, and endow the houses you see there with literary ability. Don't you think you would like to read the stories they might write?

A normal baby immediately after birth can hear and see, feel pain, and cries when uncomfortable or hungry. If not banded up too tightly, it exercises the arms and legs and muscles of the body by natural movements.

At one month, it begins to locate the direction of sound and can follow a bright light. At two months responds to the snapping of fingers and follows bright objects. At three months holds head erect, turns it steadily from side to side, smiles when talked to, grasps bright objects and coos. At four months begins to recognize those who fondle him and brings everything to its mouth. At five months knows its mother, father, puts out his hands to be taken and stops crying when food is brought near. At six months sits up in a chair, with a slight support and is interested in its surroundings. At seven months recognizes familiar faces from a distance, grasps objects placed within reach and laughs aloud. Smiles to everybody and cries when scolded. Be-

NOT FOR OURSELVES.

Not for ourselves in golden gain; Not for a bigger stretch of land; Not for a port to rule the main, Nor for a nation to command! We brave the fight on land and sea, That suffering people shall go free.

Heads high, we march unto the field, Singing the songs of free-born men, Hiding no stains upon our shield, Having no cause we dare not pen. To-day our banners are unfurled As champions of a better world.

If ever holy war was made, If ever men have died for truth And drawn in honour's cause the blade, It is this strife which claims our youth. No selfish cunning mars our thought— We fight and die as free men ought.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Should I invite a young man to call on me or should I wait for him to ask if he may call?" queried May.

"Sometimes circumstances make it proper for a young lady to invite a young man to call on her, but usually she will wait for him to ask if he may call," said her mother.

CHAPPED HANDS AND LIPS.

What is more unattractive than cracked, bleeding lips or red, rough hands. And, as they are both so unattractive, painful and wholly unnecessary, we cannot help wondering why folks endure them.

As a rule chapped hands and cracked lips are the result of neglect and carelessness. A few moments spent before retiring each night in rubbing them with some soft cold cream, will keep them soft and natural in appearance, shape and color even in the coldest weather.

Chapped lips seem to be a chronic disorder. One scale of cuticle peeling off to be replaced by another becomes so usual that the victim fails to notice it. Cracks upon the lips are deep and sore, bleeding slightly nearly every day. Cracks upon the hands seem to appear without any apparent cause a fissure opening in the skin crosswise of the muscle gapes open, remaining this way for sometime after closing, leaving a rough red painful ridge.

The cause of such troubles is not far to seek when it's seen that chapped and cracked lips nearly always manifest themselves after a period of intense cold when care has not been taken to keep the lips dry when out of doors. Moisture gathering upon the veil, a careless habit of touching the lips with the tongue, both of these will, almost immediately produce chapped lips.

For both hands and lips an old-fashioned remedy, liked very much by our grandmothers, was nothing more or less than mutton-suet. A small piece, purchased from the butcher, cut fine is slowly poured into a cup. When it is hardened the cake is taken out and kept in a convenient jar on the dressing table for use night and morning, which practice will surely prevent both the spoken of.

WALT MASON

IT WILL END.

The captain and the colonel still bravely charge the foe; but nothing is eternal in this puny world below; some day when we are swooping around with our spirits drooping, a fair peace pace will come ker-whooing, and end the reign of war.

They're shooting and they're blasting, as they have done for years; but nothing's everlasting in this, the best of spheres: all things on earth are ended, the puffing and the splendid, when Father Time has wended, a while, knee deep in tears. To-day is charged with sorrow, and comfort is denied; but there'll be a to-morrow all wool and three feet wide; it's worth our while repeating that mundane things are fleeting: the trials we are meeting some fine day will have died. I'm glad the world keeps shifting until we are perplexed; I'm glad we're always drifting from one thing to the next; I'm glad that every Sunday is followed by Monday, that I am happy one day, the next day sorely rest. So let us all endeavour to keep our smiles on straight; the war won't last forever, and that's as sure as fate; some morning we'll awaken to see the daylight breakin' upon a world forsaken by every war lord skate.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GALT GET IN COWS.

"As Idle as a Painted Ship."

(From the Chicago Evening Post.)

For more than three years now the German Admiralty has diverted the attention of the people from the inutility of the navy by the work of the submarines. Popular hope was centred upon the U-boat as the chief means of victory. It was to bring England to her knees; it was to keep the American Army in the United States; it was to force the surrender of France by cutting her off from American markets. It is now evident that it has not done and will not do any of these things. Like the Hun gun and its bombardment of Paris, the U-boat, although vastly more destructive, has served simply as a diversion for the public mind, a source of temporary encouragement leading to grievous disappointment. And now the people turn upon the Admiralty and ask: "What of the big battleships loafing in the Kiel Canal? Are they capable of anything more than setting a few Russian islands in the Baltic and the Gulf of Finland? Why cannot they prevent troops and munitions crossing the channel between England and France?" And the Admiralty is forced to answer that there are geographical barriers in the way of doing what the people demand. It is all very well to blame it on geography, but the people are not likely to be satisfied with this reply. There is more than a geographical barrier—there is the barrier of the British fleet and the French fleet and the American fleet, and it is a real barrier, as the Admiralty admits by implication. The consciousness is dawning on the German people that even a victory in France would leave Germany the prisoner of the Allied fleets. She can take to the seas again only when Great Britain and America give their consent. Until they lift the blockade Germany must be content to navigate the Baltic waters for her great navy and the merchant marine she is said to be building. Armies may be able to win the war in the East, but armies cannot win it alone in the West. Germany cannot gain her victory until she breaks through the iron walls over which fly the Union Jack and Old Glory.

Gingham Gowns Are Popular.

Of late, gingham has advanced into popular favour for many and varied purposes. Where once aprons and school dresses were looked upon as almost the limit of its possibilities, now it has none; for dressy frocks and attractive collars and cuff sets are among the up-to-the-minute wearables which are made of this attractive material.

Collar and cuff sets of plain lawn or batiste edged with strips of bias gingham are seen everywhere. New silk gingham in some of the oldest and most familiar patterns are seen side by side with taftotas and messalines in all the shop windows, while one of the latest combinations is gingham trimmed with plain linen matching the prevailing color of the dress.

For a little dark-haired girl, blue and white checked gingham with shawl collar and turn-back cuffs of blue linen—a linen band at the hem—and a narrow belt of the same material—looked very summery and sweet; and practical, while a washable blue linen hat carried out sensible mother's cleverly planned color scheme.—In Woman's World for July.

End of a Beautiful Life.

At 12.30 a.m. yesterday, June 26, at her mother's residence, 78 Springdale St., there passed to her eternal reward the soul of Marie, the elder daughter of Nora and the late John M. O'Sullivan. Miss O'Sullivan was born at King's Cove, 26 years ago; while she was still young her family came to St. John's. Even in her childhood Marie gave proofs of the sterling character that was hers. A loving child and sister, a loyal and devoted friend—gentle, obliging and kind, she endeavored herself to all with whom she had any dealings. Those only who claimed the privilege of belonging to the "inner circle" of Marie's acquaintances knew all the sweetness of her disposition—her scorn of all unreasoning, her loathing of deceit, the jealous care with which she guarded the reputation of the absent. Her pious, while unobtrusive was deep and constant and her sole endeavor to do good to others, to be helpful to all who needed assistance. Marie, the child of gifted parents, was herself endowed with many and rare talents—she was an artist of much ability, and often aided her father in the designing and illumination of those addresses for which his name was famous.

After having graduated from the Presentation Cathedral Square, Marie spent a year on the Labrador as a school teacher. There she was beloved by all her pupils who appreciated her painstaking efforts for their religious and educational welfare. And when it was found necessary for her, on account of her delicate constitution, to leave that rigorous climate, it was reluctantly and with tears that the inhabitants of the settlement, parents and children, bade her adieu. For two years afterwards she taught at Bay of Islands; here also she was untiring in the interest of the children committed to her care; she had charge of the choir which she trained to much perfection, and there are in Curling today, many, both young and old, who feel that they owe a big debt of gratitude to Marie O'Sullivan and who will be saddened on hearing of her early death. From them as well as from Very Rev. M. O'Rourke who was her kind father and friend during her stay on the West Coast, we would ask a little prayer for the repose of her soul.

For years Marie had been hearing within her heart the gentle whisper "Come, follow Me," she longed to quit the world and give herself and her talents to the service of God in the Cloister, and she would have done so, had not her Master willed to call her to a closer union with Himself—the Vision Face to face. Last October Marie developed peritonitis; she entered the General Hospital where she received the best medical attendance that our Island Home can afford; her loved ones hoped to have her with them again fully restored to health and energy, but it was not to be—the Divine edict had gone forth and Marie was beyond all human aid. In March she returned home where she gradually weakened notwithstanding the tender care day and night of her devoted mother and family. Always patient and religious, Marie awaited with perfect resignation the final hour; no sigh, no murmur escaped from her lips even in her greatest sufferings; grateful for all the kindnesses bestowed on her, full of faith and hope in the mercy of that God she loved and served and fortified by all the rites of Holy Church she breathed her pure soul when at length the Reaper Death came to claim it.

Oh! not in cruelty, not in wrath, The Reaper came that day: 'Twas an Angel visited the green earth And took the flower away.

Miss O'Sullivan leaves to mourn her, besides her fond mother, one sister, Mrs. W. Simms, Prospect Street, two brothers, Ronald of the telephone service, and Robert at home, as well as a large circle of friends, to all of whom we offer sincere sympathy in this hour of bereavement. May she rest in peace.

Tableaux.

No person should miss seeing the Tableaux at the Casino this evening. The proceeds are for Red Cross purposes and apart from a patriotic desire to assist this good work, play lovers will be rewarded by the particular beauty of the Tableaux as well as by the singing of plantation melodies by a sextette of ladies, while a mixed quartette will render some old-time heart songs. PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

The second game of the series yesterday afternoon resulted in a win for the B.L.S. by a score of 10 to 6. Owing to the wet grass, which made the ball very slippery, the fielding was not altogether up to the mark. Sinnott pitching for the Lions showed up well having eight strike-outs to his credit, while Carew of the Mackmen had but seven strike-outs, but allowed only three hits.

Double plays unassisted by Gowans at first and Cooney at second, and a two base hit by the former were features of the game.

St. Jenkins got in a nice bit of work in the second inning by stealing home on Brazie and Doc Power.

The game was well attended considering the threatening weather and a substantial sum was realized to augment the funds of the W.P.C.

The following is the official detailed account of the game, by innings:

FIRST INNING.
 Red Lions—Quick first man up hit through short, stole second; Mullings bunted, Carew stole second; Mullings scored Quick. Mullings out stealing second. Cooney thrown out at first. Buckingham caught out. 1 run, two hits, 1 error.

B.L.S.—French walked and stole second; O'Reilly singled; Grace struck out. Wild pitch by Sinnott scored French. Doyle bunted scoring Brazie. Brazie bunted safely scoring O'Reilly. Williams struck out. 2 runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

SECOND INNING.
 Red Lions—Hiltz singled and reached second on Doyle's error. Jenkins bunted, Carew throwing wild to first allowed him to reach second. Hiltz scoring. Gowans struck out. Sinnott struck out. Jenkins made a pretty steal home, Brazie dropping the ball at plate. Power struck out. 2 runs, 1 hit, 3 errors.

B.L.S.—Burke safe on first, Gowans dropping the ball, Burke stole second and third, ball was now getting very slippery. Doc Power fanned, Carew singled scoring Burke. French and O'Reilly struck out. 1 run, 1 hit, 1 error.

THIRD INNING.
 Red Lions—Quick hit to Power, Mullings out at first. Cooney flied to French. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

B.L.S.—Grace singled at second, Doyle flied to Cooney, Grace now on third, Brazie walked, Williams hit to Mullings who made a bad error allowing Grace and Brazie to score, Burke fanned, Doc Power caught out. 2 runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

FOURTH INNING.
 Red Lions—Buckingham struck out, Hiltz walked and stole second, Jenkins struck out, Hiltz was taking a good lead of third scored through Brazie's wild throw, Gowans walked, Sinnott flied to Power. 1 run, 0 hits, 1 error.

B.L.S.—Carew hit to Mullings who in turn made a bad throw allowing Carew to reach second. Sinnott's throw to second to catch Carew proved futile allowing him to reach third. French singled scoring Carew, O'Reilly flied to Gowans doubling up French at first. Grace walked and stole second. Doyle singled, stole second, Grace died stealing home. 1 run, 2 hits, 2 errors.

FIFTH INNING.
 Red Lions—Power, Quick and Mullings thrown out at first.

B.L.S.—Brazie walked, stole second, Williams flied to Cooney, wild pitch by Sinnott allowed Brazie to take No. 3 bag, Burke sacrificed scoring Brazie, Power flied to Mullings who badly muffed, Power stole second and third, Carew struck out. 1 run, 1 hit, 2 errors.

SIXTH INNING.
 Red Lions—Cooney flied to Doyle, Buckingham flied to French, Hiltz singled, Jenkins thrown out at first. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

B.L.S.—French safe at first, O'Reilly safe at first, loose fielding on the part of Sinnott. On a foolish throw by Sinnott, French and O'Reilly moved around a peg. Grace thrown out at first, French scoring on the play, O'Reilly on third, Doyle bunted scoring O'Reilly, Doyle second and on trying the same stunt at third reached home on a bad throw, Brazie singled safely and stole second, Williams flied to Cooney doubling up Brazie at second. 3 runs, 1 hit, 4 errors.

SEVENTH INNING.
 RED LIONS.—Gowans made the best hit for the evening, a two bagger, Wedding Bells.

MARTIN-THOMPSON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place last evening at "Crosalea," the home of Mr. Alfred A. Martin, when his eldest daughter, Jeanette, was united in marriage to Mr. Peter Thompson, of the Electric Power Station. The bride, beautifully gowned in white duchesse satin, embroidered with pearls and wearing wreaths of orange blossoms and veil, and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and ferns, entered the drawing-room with her father; Miss Flora Pike playing the Wedding March. Rev. Harry Boyle, of Wesley Church, Secretary of Conference, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister Miss Meta Martin, who was daintily dressed in pink, and the groom was supported by his brother, a returned hero who did "his bit" at Monchy. The usual congratulations followed after which the party, about forty, drove to Bowring Park, and on returning sat down to a bountiful supper. The usual toasts were then proposed in which the bride was congratulated on her useful and very successful work at Wesley Church, in connection with the Pansy Mission Band, the choir and the Sunday school, and for so many years organist at the mid-week prayer service. The recognition of this was evidenced by the shower of household articles from lady teachers, and the many valuable and useful presents received from a host of friends in church work, and otherwise. There will be many good wishes for much happiness to attend the young couple as they embark on the voyage of life together in which the Telegram joins.

CAMPBELL-JOLIFFE.

Yesterday, at the home of Capt. Joliffe, his eldest daughter Lonnie, was united in the bonds of matrimony, with Mr. Alexander M. Campbell, eldest son of Mr. William Campbell. The bridesmaids were Miss Violet Thompson and Miss Marjorie Joliffe, the bride's sister, with little Ruth Clouston as flower girl. The bridegroom was supported by his cousin Lieut. Harry Maddick. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of ivory brocade silk and georgette crepe, with seed pearls and embroidered veil, and carried a handsome bouquet. Miss Mabel Christian played the Wedding March, and after the ceremony and during the festivities songs were rendered by Misses Flora Curtis, Gertrude Christian and Marjorie Joliffe. The presents received were useful, handsome and numerous. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon in American and Canadian cities. The Telegram wishes the young couple all the joys of life.

He, his eldest daughter Louise, was united in the bonds of matrimony, with Mr. Alexander M. Campbell, eldest son of Mr. William Campbell. The bridesmaids were Miss Violet Thompson and Miss Marjorie Joffe, the bride's sister, with little Ruth Clouston as flow-

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of ivory brocade silk and georgette crepe, with seed pearls and embroidered veil, and carried a handsome bou-quet. Miss Mabel Christian played the Wedding March, and after the ceremony and during the festivities songs were rendered by Misses Flora Curtis, Gertrude Christian and Mar-were useful, handsome and numerous.

Jaffa.

FROM A CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER.

After a long period of heavy rain and bitter cold the weather has changed at last. The time of the singing of the birds has come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land. For us there is no magic of spring; we went to sleep in winter, and lo! we have awakened on a summer morning; where yesterday great lakes of water were, to-day green grass, sprinkled with unfamiliar flowers, is waving in the balmy breeze. A host of little creatures have arisen with the sun, and crawl, hop, fly, and scurry upon a thousand household duties. After the weary sand of Sinai; after the dust of Gaza; after the months of fighting, and these latter weeks of torrential rains and biting cold, we lift up our heads in thankfulness and feel that life is good.

If I look out from my dugout I see the barrenness and desolation of No Man's Land, its only crop the wire, its only furrow a trench. But if I look backwards I see green pastures rolling down to golden sands lapped by a wondrous sea. Yellow broom is growing on the hillside with scent as sweet as on the hills of home; the grass is gay with tulips and lilies and little dwarf sweet peas; and a multitude of wild flowers, strange to me, but how familiar, I love to think, to that dreaming Boy who roamed the fields by fowery Nazareth.

In a near-by lake frogs croak in chorus all night long; sleepy tortoises bask by my dug-out door; swift flashing lizards dart past in the sun; dragon-flies and droning beetles fit through the air.

Through that same soft, warm air there screams, alas, the blasting shell; and the peace of the summer morning is given by the gusty rattle of machine guns, or the loud hum of aircraft high above.

You will not have leaped into summer as we have, but we can envy you for other joys. Here are no snow-drops, fair maids of February, cool and sweet in the dewy grass; no trim array of gorgeous crocuses no yellow primroses on the mossy braise; no scented hawthorn on the hedges; no tiny buds on the trees.

The graves around Jaffa were bedecked for a brief day or two with a wealth of lemon and orange blossom, but these are gone like wedding flowers. So, too, when the angry sun has scorched the grass to brown, and the parched flowers are all withered, and a tortured world groans beneath the fall, there will be sweet pink roses-buds in English gardens, fresh leaves on every tree, and fairy pools of dew each morn on every blade of grass. There will be fragrant heather on the Scottish hillsides, dear homely flowers in tidy gardens, long lingering twilight in the summer evenings, and cool, soft breezes whispering in the night.
