CHAPTER XXII.
THE CARLIST UPRISING.
"We shall be murdered, I am sure of it!" she wailed.
And the captain, in despair, induced the young officer to dispatch their passports to the commandant.
"Meanwhile," he said, "we had all better get out and take some refreshment. You must be exhausted," he added, going round to Edna's side of the rickety chaise, and addressing her in his soft, low murmur.
"No," said Edna, "I am only filled with remorse for being the cause of so much discomfort—and danger."
"Danger!" the captain laughed; "there is no danger."
"You may all do as you like, but I won't move until we get the commandant's reply. Once we get out, this horrible man will take the horses away, and we shall not be able to get into the town at all. You, my dear Mrs. Weston, and Edna, can go; but as for me—oh, do not mind me!"
"I will stay with you!" said Edna, quietly. "Perhaps Capt. Morton will be so kind as to make it comfortable inside for auntie. You will get out, Edna—I insist upon it!" and as Aunt Martha was really too exhausted to combat the willful beauty, she yielded, and allowed the captain to escort her into the inn. Rooms had been prepared, for the landlord had guessed at the result of the conference, and the olla podrida was cooling for supper if milords and ladies would but make up their minds to honor the "Golden Bull" with their presence for one night.

But Mrs. Edward was inexorable, and Edna would not leave her, and they sat in the carriage, the one silent and preoccupied, the other all moans and nervousness. Edward More got a cigar and a glass of sherry wine, and stood about drinking it, cursing his fate inaudibly, and growling at the small mob of peasants that crowded round the carriage to stare at the "mad English."

The night fell, and occasionally there came upon the now cool air a distant rumbling like thunder. The crowd, satisfied at last, walked away, lights flickered to and fro, and every now and then a sentry stalked towards them, paused, grounded his musket, and disappeared. The captain came out after some little time, with a message from Aunt Martha, imploring the other two to leave the carriage; but Mrs. More stood, or rather, sat firm, and the captain, yielding to Edna's solicitations, returned to the inn.

Edward More brought two of the rugs from under the box seat, and wrapped them round Edna and his obstinate spouse, and indulged in another glass of wine and another spasm of swearing.

Then there came the galloping of a horse and the clatter and clash of accoutrements. It was the messenger returned to say that the English might pass the barrier and enter the town.

"What did I tell you? I knew they would never dare to keep us out!" exclaimed Mrs. More, with miserable triumph. "Wake up, Edna—oh, how can you sleep! Do, Capt. Morton, fetch Mrs. Weston. Now, Edward, not a moment is to be lost," and so on without a moment's intermission, until the driver had clacked his whip and they were once more rattling and clattering on their way.

There was a delay at the barrier for an examination of passports, and they had barely passed the outposts and got within sight of the gate of the fortifications, when a sudden uproar seemed to spring up on all sides of them; lights flashed in the air, followed by the roar of small artillery, and there arose a great shout: "The Carlists! the Carlists!"

REPUTATION COUNTS

with a remedy, as with everything. Zam-Buk enjoys an enviable reputation among remedies. Why? Because it justifies the claims made for it. Not only does Zam-Buk cure skin troubles and injuries quickly and permanently, but the quickness with which it ends pain and irritation makes it the most popular remedy wherever it is used.
Then, too, Zam-Buk is the best preventive of blood-poisoning. Applied to an injury as soon as sustained, it destroys all germs and prevents festering. Zam-Buk is best for eczema, piles, rashes, boils, pimples, ulcers, burns, cuts and scalds. All dealers, 50c. box.

It was so sudden that one and all seemed paralyzed, and stared at each other amazed and dumbfounded; then the captain snatched the reins and whip from the shaking hands of the driver, and standing up lashed the horses into a gallop. But it was too late! He came on the drawbridge in time to see the great crash down, and to hear the sentry ground his musket and cry "Back!" Then, quick to see the best course, he, utterly regardless of the shriek which rose from Mrs. More, turned the horses' heads and flogged them into a tear.

Edward, standing up in the carriage, made his voice heard above the din which was every moment growing more dreadful.

"What are you going to do, Morton?" he shouted.
"Get back to the inn," shouted the captain, his face pale and set. "We must, or we shall be in the thick of it! They will be close at hand in another quarter of an hour!"

Sooner than that, Capt. Morton, they are close at hand now.
For scarcely had they reached the barrier than there came the quick, heavy tread of a mass of men, and in an instant the air was black with smoke and terrible with the roar of battle. The Carlists had come!

CHAPTER XXIII.
ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

EDWARD MORE, holding on by the side of the carriage, leaned forward, eagerly straining his eyes to catch a glimpse of the inn. He saw at once that it was their only chance to reach it and get out of the line of fire; but how to do it without interception? Luckily, the outposts were too much engaged to notice very particularly anything out of the direct line of fire, for the advance of the Carlists had been so sudden and so concentrated, that it almost seemed as if they had dropped in the dense mass of smoke which blew right across their path, but the captain fancied that he could remember the route from the inn, and kept on his way from sheer despair.

Presently, amid the flashing of lights and the gleaming of the volleys of musketry, they saw before them the lights of the inn, and the captain threw a word of encouragement over his shoulder.

"Keep up! we are almost there." Almost, but not quite, for suddenly the horses were brought to a standstill and thrown upon their haunches, and two or three dusky forms shouting to the captain to stop, sprang at the harness and began to unfasten it.

There was no time for expostulation or explanation; the horses were taken out and away, and they were brought to a complete standstill.
It was dangerous work now, so dangerous that Mrs. More did not scream, but hid her head in her wrap and crouched at the bottom of the carriage. Aunt Martha clung to her corner, sobbing; and Edna? Edna stood upright, her face shining forth pale and lovely above her dark cloak, drawn closely round her graceful form—she stood, one hand grasping the side of the carriage, as firm as a rock, her eyes all ablaze, her lips half parted with excitement.
What a sweet picture she made!—and what an excellent mark!

"For God's sake! sit down," exclaimed the captain, darting to her side and clutching her arm. "Sit down! you will be shot. You are a mark for a hundred eyes!"

Edna turned her eyes down upon him, and her lips parted with a strange smile.

"Is there so much danger? This is a real battle—quite a real one!"

"Danger—battis! It is a sharp skirmish! Do you doubt it?—look there! But, for God's sake, sit down first!"

Edna drew a little on one side, so that she was shielded by the box, and looked in the direction to which the captain had pointed.

The struggle was concentrated there, and as she looked she had no reason to repeat the question, for amid the fire that belched forth from the guns, amid the clouds of smoke, she saw dusky forms dashing at each other, like demons; with swords gleaming like tongues of fire about their heads, and then a great hoarse shout and a succession of shrieks and groans as man after man on either side fell, under shot, or cut down, but always trodden under foot.

She grew paler, and the scene seemed to swim before her eyes and fade away. Was she going to faint?

With an effort she mastered the weakness, and stooping down to whisper some words of comfort and reassurance to poor, weeping Aunt Martha, saw that the captain had drawn Edward More aside, and was talking and urging some step vehemently.

Presently Edward shouted in her ear:

"Morton wants me to go to the inn, and beg them to open the door. What's the use of my going? I can't speak a word of the language! I want him to go!"

"Yes—yes!" said Edna, looking at him eagerly. "Why does he not—oh, why does he hesitate?"

The captain bent forward and looked at her with significant meaning.
"I do not care to go and leave you—all," he said, and even at that supreme moment Edna noticed the emphasis, and felt a strange thrill, half of alarm, half of surprise.

"Do you not understand?" he said, so close to her ears that he was inaudible to the others. "Can I leave you—at such a time?"

"Go!" said Edna, almost imperiously, her lips trembling. "What could you do for us single-handed? Could one man save us?"

"He could save you!" he retorted, grasping her arm. Edna shrank back.

"Go—go!" she said; and after a moment's hesitation, while he kept his eyes fixed on hers with a passionate entreaty, he turned and ran toward the inn.

It seemed as if his departure had almost been the signal for some fresh movement on the part of the combatants, for suddenly the point of conflict seemed to lean her way, and the struggle for the barrier was taking place so near to her that Edna could see the details quite plainly.

She saw that the sides were pretty equally matched, and that there was not much to choose between them in the matter of courage; it was a hand-to-hand fight, all in a small space, in which every blow told. So engrossed was she by the exciting spectacle that she lost all sense of her own danger, forgot everything save the struggle that was going on under her eyes. Presently she saw that the Carlists were, for some reason or other, losing ground, the reason being that a reinforcement had reached the government troops, and roars of ferocious delight rose from the other side; but suddenly a thrill ran through Edna's fast-beating heart for from the midst of the Carlists ranks there suddenly rode a tall, stalwart-looking officer, who, waving his sword above his head, rode straight at the line of bayonets made ready to receive him, as if he were going at a five-barred gate.

Edna saw the gleam of his waving sword, and then shut her eyes, expecting, if she still looked, to see him cut down, but the next instant she heard a loud roar of defiance, and, opening her eyes, saw the officer, still mounted, slashing right and left with awful effect, and bearing all down before him.

Close at his back his men pressed, firing volley after volley; then came a volley from the barrier, and great clouds of smoke and the hero—for he was a hero in Edna's sight—was hid from her view. Her heart beat fast; her blood ran like fire through her veins, and she sobbed aloud in her excitement. Was he down? Was he dead? No! for as the smoke cleared, she saw his stalwart, broad-shouldered form, not on horseback now, still in the front, still cleaving his way with that awful sword.

Medical Men of St. John's Strongly Commend Maternity Home Project to Favorable Attention of Our People--Read Their Signed Manifesto Given Below.

SOME weeks ago, a number of the registered medical practitioners of the city of St. John's attended by invitation a meeting at the residence of Dr. Macpherson to consider the Salvation Army proposition for a maternity hospital as presented by the representative of that organization, Staff-Captain W. H. Burrows.

The subject was considered first from the standpoint of necessity. On this point there was absolute agreement of opinion and the following resolution was carried unanimously: "That the establishment of a maternity hospital in the city of St. John's is desirable and necessary and meets with the approval and support of the medical profession of the city."

The meeting considered the question of the attitude of those present as medical practitioners to the proposition that the Salvation Army build and administer such a maternity institution. This point was fully discussed, the meeting being told of the experiences of a number of practitioners in connection with the Salvation Army institution now operated here. These doctors strongly commended the methods of the Salvation Army in this connection, they claimed that the organization gave their patients the very best professional service and that they could be trusted to administer properly from every standpoint the institution in which it was proposed to carry on the work on a larger scale and with even more up-to-date methods.

The following motion was then carried: "That in the opinion of the medical practitioners of St. John's the scheme of the Salvation Army for a maternity hospital is feasible, desirable and commendable."

Now that the organizers of the movement are about to appeal to the general public for support, the undersigned registered medical practitioners who approve of the scheme, think it advisable and necessary, for the assurance of the success of the movement, to inform our citizens generally as to their reason for endorsing the plan of the Salvation Army to construct a large, modern and well-equipped maternity hospital in St. John's.

No reasonable layman, and certainly no experienced medical practitioner, can honestly declare that the necessity for a maternity hospital in St. John's does not exist. Such an institution is the one great essential for coping effectively with the problem of healthy and comfortable motherhood of survival of new-born infants and of child welfare generally.

Our citizens know that one of the great obstacles to comfortable, and healthy living generally in this city is to be found in extremely backward housing conditions. And if these conditions militate so strongly against the health of youth and adults it surely is evident that they severely trammel both the mother and infant who are struggling towards health from the trials and extreme weakness of recent childbirth. There are hundreds of houses in St. John's to-day in which unhealthy and uncomfortable conditions threaten to turn the scales completely against the mother and the infant.

An adequate and properly conducted maternity hospital such as the Salvation Army proposes to construct and maintain will give many of these people a fighting chance for life and for the up-building of health and strength to a degree commensurate with the trials and demands of after life.

The problem of obtaining properly trained nurses for service during confinement and for the treatment of mother and child afterwards, is one of the most difficult the medical profession of the city have to face. It is frequently impossible, (no matter what salaries are offered, or how desirable the home conditions in which services are to be rendered), to obtain efficient nurses to look after expectant mothers. The result is that there are now practising in the city and throughout the country, women who pose as midwives, who have had neither the experience nor the training essential to the due performance of their most important tasks. With a maternity home established in the city, the proper training of midwives can be undertaken. This privilege would be one not only available to St. John's but to all sections of the country, whence suitable women can be brought under government auspices, trained in the maternity home, and sent back to their homes, where their services would be available to the very large number of mothers who cannot get the skilled services of doctors during the confinement period.

It might be pointed out, too, that such a maternity home as the Salvation Army proposes to establish here would also afford nurses in training at the General Hospital opportunity to complete their training on a basis which would afford them recognition in Canada and the United States, a privilege which the Newfoundland diploma does not confer on them, because they lack training in midwifery.

From a professional standpoint there appears to us to be no real reason for objection to be found in the fact that two classes of cases are to be treated at the proposed Salvation Army maternity home. The wards for the two classes are kept entirely distinct. Entirely separate staffs are maintained. Even the entrances are separate. There is as much reason for objecting to a general hospital because certain classes are admitted there as there is for objecting to a maternity home because in one of its departments rescue cases are looked after.

We regard the scheme of the Salvation Army for a maternity hospital as feasible, because this organization has had practical experience along those lines throughout the world and has shown in its present institution its great capability for administering such institutions scientifically and in a generally satisfactory manner; we regard the scheme as desirable because of the great needs it will meet and satisfy; and we commend it because, in our opinion it will confer tremendous benefits upon all classes of our population.

We do not anticipate that the Salvation Army institution will result in the complete abolition of the drawbacks under which family life labors in this country. We do regard it as a step towards that desirable result—the first practical step that has been proposed. We are anxious to see this movement for a maternity home succeed, because the proposition is a definite one and places within our reach means of early relief from many of the drawbacks under which mothers and children labor in this city and throughout the country generally.

For many reasons, therefore, the registered medical practitioners of this city urge upon the public generally the duty and the privilege of subscribing to the fund now being raised for the erection and the equipment of a Salvation Army maternity hospital.

BOLSHEVIK ATTACK REPULSED.
ARCHANGEL, March 4.
(By the A.P.)—After artillery preparation the Bolsheviki forces launch an infantry attack yesterday against the Allied positions on the right bank of the Vaga River, between the villages of Kitakab, Kitka and Vistavka. They were repulsed with considerable losses.

HOW CAN SHE HELP IT!

PARIS, March 5.
At a meeting of the German Cabinet on Monday morning attended by party leaders and delegates of shipowners, it was agreed unanimously it is understood, that Germany could not submit to coercion from the Entente Powers either in the armistice negotiations or in the Peace parleys proper, according to a Urlich despatch to Le Journal. The German Government declared that it will decline all responsibility for all possible consequences if the Entente tries to speculate on German patience. Demands for the requisition of shipping are held to be absolutely unacceptable because it is said it would definitely "paralyze the country's economic future." Germany will oppose the dismissal of German crews from ships requisitioned, it being pointed out that this would throw forty-two thousand seamen out of employment.

RIOTERS FIRED ON.

BERLIN, March 4.
Government troops at police headquarters fired on rioters in the neighborhood this morning and several casualties are reported to have resulted. The troops had been called to disperse the crowds which were gathering in increased numbers around the headquarters. Reports were current earlier in the day that a Spartacan marine division had seized police quarters but this turned out to be incorrect. Advice from Bremen state that the political prisoners there have been released by insurgents. The electric and gas works are in insurgent hands. The attempt to call a general strike in Dresden was a complete fiasco.

KILLING EACH OTHER.

BERLIN, March 5.
Severe disturbances have occurred in the suburbs of Lichtenberg, where it is reported three policemen were killed and eight Spartacans were killed and thirty wounded.

ALARMING REPORTS.

BERNE, March 5.
Berlin telegrams carry alarming reports of the situation at Halle. They declare that the troops have used machine guns and that a number of officers and strikers have been killed. According to Vorwaerts there has been some looting and arson in a part of Halle.

BERLIN QUIET.

BERLIN, March 4.
(By the A.P.)—Greater Berlin was quiet up till two o'clock this afternoon, Gustave Noske, the Minister of War, apparently having the situation in hand. A proclamation of martial law by the Prussian ministry had a salutary effect. The quick recovery of strategic points in the city by the Reinhardt Brigade also served to dampen the ardor of the Spartacans.

NOW WANT RECIPROCIITY.

WINNIPEG, March 4.
At its sitting this afternoon the Manitoba Legislature unanimously adopted a resolution, moved by A. W. Miles, the member for Cypress, in favor of an immediate and substantial reduction of the customs tariff, the reduction of the customs tariff on goods imported from Great Britain to one-half, the acceptance of the Reciprocity agreement with the United States as proposed in 1911, the placing on the free list of foodstuffs and agricultural implements, and the extension to Great Britain of all tariff concessions, after a strong expression of opinion from Premier Norris that never in the history of Canada was the time so opportune as now for a revision of the tariff on the lines of substantial reduction.

NEW YORK SHIPPING TIED UP.

NEW YORK, March 5.
Transatlantic and coastwise shipping in New York Harbor was at a standstill again to-day as the strike of harbor workmen became more effective, and there were indications that the few ferry boats which did not cease operation yesterday would

MURDER ON HIGH SEAS.

NEW YORK, Mar. 5.
Capt. Adolph C. Pedersen of the American Brigantine Puka, nicknamed by the crew "Hellfire," and his two sons, A. E. and L. R. Pedersen, mates of the ship, were brought to-day by the S.S. Rochester and locked up pending investigation of charges of murder on the high seas. Six members of the crew of the Puka also arrived on the Rochester to be held as material witnesses. According to the charges forwarded by the American Consul at Cape Town, South Africa, Capt. Pedersen and his two sons are accused of violating the section of the seaman's act forbidding corporal punishment, during a seven months' voyage last year from San Francisco to Cape Town. This punishment is alleged to have resulted in the deaths of the Chief Cook and a Seaman. Handcuffings followed by beatings with knotted towels and a club are charged against Capt. Pedersen and his sons. Members of the crew assert they were forced to obey orders aboard ship at the point of a revolver. Part of the charge of murder on the high seas is based on the assertion that when seaman Axtel Hansse jumped overboard two months' out from San Francisco he repented of his act and clutched a rope trailing the stern of the Brigantine begging to be hauled back on board which Capt. Pedersen is alleged to have forbidden any member of the crew to do.

RETURNING TROOPS.

The White Star Liner Megantic arrived here to-day from Liverpool with 49 officers and 1154 other ranks of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, also 224 civilian passengers.

A WORD TO THE NEW SOLDIERS.

LONDON, Mar. 5.
Winston Churchill, Secy of State for War, has sent a message to the new soldier battalions which are proceeding to the Rhine saying, "You are about to proceed to Germany to form a part of the British army keeping a watch by the Rhine until the Germans agree to, and carry out our just peace terms. Your period of training has been completed and you are in every respect fit to undertake the serious business of active service. You will find British troops where victories have led them along the banks of the most famous of German rivers and in one of the finest enemy cities. The bridgeheads which they will be guarding will enable the Allies at any moment to move swiftly forward into Germany in case of any failure of the enemy to comply with right conditions. I am confident you will bear yourselves with modesty and discipline, observing at all times a correct demanour towards the inhabitants who should never be treated with harshness and familiarity. I am sure you will keep yourselves in the highest state of military efficiency so that at any moment you can discharge any duty entrusted to you. Lastly you will realize that you are in a special sense the inheritors of the glories won by the British Army and are chosen to uphold in your own persons by daily conduct their high traditions, bravery and fair play. I wish you God speed, a fine adventure and a swift return.

Mr. Nell C. MacCullum, of Brackley Point, P. E. I., Tells a Story of Interest to All Sufferers From Kidney Ills.

Brackley Point, Queen's County, P. E. I., March 5th. (Special.)—Mr. Nell C. MacCullum, an old resident of this popular little summer resort, never tires of showing visitors over his beautiful home, which is the work of his own hands. And he always finishes with the declaration:

"I never could have done this but for the benefit I received from Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I was brought up on a farm," Mr. MacCullum continues, "but about ten years ago I took a very severe cold. I tried plasters and pills without getting any real benefit.

"Then I thought I would try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of them made me all right again. A year later I felt it coming on again, but another box of Dodd's Kidney Pills drove it away. Now I just take one or two boxes as a spring medicine, and you can see how healthy I am. I built this house from basement to chimney myself."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely a kidney remedy.

Authors' Earnings.

Are authors underpaid? Some of the finest classics in our literature have been miserably paid for. Oliver Goldsmith parted with his immortal "Vicar of Wakefield" for sixty guineas; Shakespeare made only about £20 a year out of his plays; while Milton got no more than a "fever" for his "Paradise Lost!"

But there is a brighter side to the question. Thackeray, for example, received just a trifle under £5,000 for "The Newcomes"; Wilkie Collins was paid £5,250 for "Armadale"; George Eliot was handed a cheque for £7,000 in return for "Romola"; while Lord Beaconsfield's publishers paid him £12,000 for his "Eldonham," a bargain which is said to have turned out a bad one.

General Lew Wallace, the American writer, got royalties on his "Ben Hur" and "The Sign of the Cross" amounting to almost £80,000; while Sir Walter Scott, he wrote at such a tremendous rate that his novels used to bring him in about £15,000 a year.

Overcrowding.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—If the present habit of overcrowding amusement halls is to be permitted, this city will certainly, too soon perhaps, witness some terrible horror or catastrophe.
During the past few weeks, I have visited certain of these places and was much alarmed at the toleration exhibited by the police in permitting such an outrageous violation of common sense conditions, for I understand the police authorities are responsible to the public for the necessary precautions to safeguard human life in respect to these places.

I contend, Sir, that when the ordinary seating capacity of a hall is filled the police should see that no overcrowding is permitted, not as we see it now so often, with all the aisles and entrances and exits blocked beyond the possibility of a safe and orderly retreat in case of danger. And not alone this, but outside of these places solid masses of people are permitted to form up, scores wide and hundreds deep, pressing so heavily against the entrance doors that were an alarm to be raised inside with a full house present, probably the great majority of human beings therein would meet some terrible fate before they could escape by way of the single narrow exit that alone seems to be provided. The police authorities should teach our people to line up in single file when approaching the entrances to public halls, railway ticket offices and such places, as is done in all civilized cities abroad, otherwise we run the risk of appalling danger as well as continue to be looked upon by strangers as only semi-civilized in modern

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few more remarks on this important subject. In the closing paragraph of my last letter I said that we were a much neglected people, and when I made that statement Sir, I only just touched the outer fringe of the matter, and when I give you a further illustration of how we are treated, I know that you, Mr. Editor, and the public generally will entirely agree with me. To the South of us there is Point Lance, Gull Cove, Lears Cove, and that first class light station, Cape St. Mary's with no road at all. Now must there not be something "rotten in the state of Denmark." that this state of affairs should exist. Why is it thus; I am afraid some abler pen than mine will have to solve the puzzle for I know I cannot. But this much I do know that we as taxpayers don't merit this abominable treatment, as the following figures will show. During last season the fisheries of St. Bride's, Branch, and other fishing settlements stocked from the fisheries the sum of one hundred and sixty eight thousand dollars and from sale of cattle and by products about fifteen thousand dollars more was realized, making a grand total of one hundred and eighty three thousand dollars, not counting thousands of dollars worth of farm produce, which could not be marketed. These figures show in a rough way the earning powers of our people, and it is hardly necessary for me to say that the most of this money returns to the trade and revenue of the country. When you take all into consideration you can come to no conclusion other than this, that the very least the Govt. could do would be to give those deserving people a good up-to-date road with some suitable means of transportation, thereby giving an impetus to agriculture in a locality in which possibilities for that kind of work are so suitable, and I may say, ideal. Hoping that my humble efforts may awaken the government to a sense of its duty towards a people so ing neglected, and meanwhile I intend to take the advice of that great statesman Daniel O'Connell, who said "agitate, agitate, agitate." So from that Mr. Editor you can gather that I will come again.

Thanking you in anticipation for space.
I remain, Yours truly, JUSTICE.

The deal was made and a bystander assisted the now thoroughly bewildered pupil to discard. Then the boy began and, without informing him what made for points, a teacher explained rally. "What you want to do is to peg."

Contribute To The Human Power To Learn.

How on earth the pupil ever got anything out of such a hodge podge, simply can't imagine, but when I came down later in the evening he seemed to be playing away quite cheerfully. Occasionally he still made mistakes which his teachers found vastly amusing. Not half so amusing, I thought to myself, as their instruction! The fact that he could learn at all was certainly a tribute to the human power to learn in spite of difficulties.

Teaching is one of the things everyone thinks he could do—if he cared to try. But I seldom hear anyone try to explain or define, or teach, without realizing what an art it is and what an artist a good teacher is.

Of course, it is especially hard to teach a game because there are almost always several teachers who all bring forth haphazard ideas that happen to strike them, and any definite system of instruction is almost impossible. But it really is amusing to listen as an outsider to such a dialogue.

I wish someone would write a monologue on teaching some game, bridge, for instance.

Just Folks

THE GENTLE GLORY.

There is in gentle ways and conduct true More glory than in fortune's yellow gold.

That life which is in deeds of kindness told, Outshines the splendor of the mighty few

Who dare with might what right would scorn to do And strive for joys which they alone may hold.

An honest man is nobler than a bold.

Worth is in how and not what men pursue.

He that would win men's love and earn their praise Must spurn the sordid battlefields of greed,

Must find his joys in smoothing others' ways And spend his substance for another's need.

No greater glory here can mortal find Than to be mourned as one whose deeds were kind.

Things to Remember.

Following the famous sales at Christy's last year when jewels and precious bits of art were auctioned for the benefit of the Red Cross, there was inaugurated the idea of collecting pearls for the most precious necklace of all. Princess Victoria undertook the work of collecting aided by public-spirited women of the Empire. Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and all the ladies of the Royal Family contributed their choicest pearls and the string grew to almost unwieldy length. The Countess of Norbury gave the clasp consisting of a huge rose diamond surrounded by smaller stones. The signing of the armistice came at about the time the string was completed. On December 19 the necklace was sold to a firm of well-known jewellers for £22,000 the money going to the British Red Cross.

Those interested in Baby Welfare in Great Britain, the women who inaugurated the Children's Jewell Fund, conducted a Doll's Fete just before Christmas and received many notable contributions. Queen Alexandra sent a doll dressed in the Welsh costume. A note accompanying the gift was from Queen Alexandra herself and gave a short history of the doll. It turned out that the gift was associated in a peculiarly personal way with the Royal household. When as Princess of Wales, Queen Alexandra visited Wales with the Prince this doll was presented her. Every one of the princesses had played with the doll and showered upon it their childish affection.

Queen Mary gave a beautiful wax doll dressed just as Princess Mary was dressed when she was a little girl wearing a dainty white frock of the finest material and simplest fashion and a pretty blue bow in its golden hair.

Those who were interested in the way the women of Great Britain and Ireland would use their voting privileges have made some very interesting discoveries as a result of analyzing the election returns. For one thing women candidates fared badly which shows that, so far, women are not clamorous to the extent of voting for their sex alone. On the other hand they seem to have voted with their men-folks or to have followed their own preferences.

In only three cases where there were women candidates did they receive more than one-third the total vote. The exceptions were: Mrs. Decpard, Miss Pankhurst and Miss Macarthur. It is by no means likely that all the votes for these candidates were cast by women. Out of the 13,161 women voters registered in Manchester, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence received but 2,985. Of the 14,861 women voters in Mansfield Miss Markham received but 4,000. It looks very much as if reconstruction has already commenced in Great Britain and that the women are doing their own thinking.—From Canadian Public Information.

ARE YOUR EYELIDS FIRM?

The eyes are the most susceptible of all features to conditions of the nervous system and to mental states, and the eyelids are in sympathy with them.

In youth and health the lids should be smooth, white and firm. When drawn down over the eyes, and when rolled back or when the eyes are opened they should telescope so that there is but a single ridge or crease in them. But with years they become wrinkled and the skin brown unless every care is taken.

All health, lack of sleep and worry, over sleep and fatigue all leave their impress upon the eyelids, changing their color to the dusky hue and causing them to look feel dull and heavy as though weighted at their edges.

Never rub or massage the lids, dabble them every night with a soft cloth dipped in hot water, and if there seems to be inflammation allow the cloth to remain on for a few minutes. Then dry by rubbing with a dry piece of old linen, pat in some skin food, dabble with cold water and go to bed.

If in the morning any of the cream shows wash it off with the regular toilet of the face and dust the lids lightly with a perfect powder. If you know of one.

Granulated lids are a common annoyance and a menace to beauty. A paste of powdered alum and white of egg bandaged on the eye at night has been known to work wonders. attended to at once, while a calm lids add to or detracts from the expression of the face and gives a strong hint of the personal character. Constant winking or stretching of the lids betokens extreme nervousness; squeezing the lids together shows a weakness of the eyes that should be The pretty loop at the hips, once slowly occasional movement of the eyelids is indicative to poise and self-possession.

Fads and Fashions.

The afternoon frocks have belts made of material rather than of ribbon.

The Oxford shoe topped by a ribbed stocking has no rival for street wear.

White and black combinations hold known as the extension skirt, is still seen.

Colored wooden beads take the place of buttons on fine vests of organza.

Necklaces ending at the knees with jeweled pendants are very fashionable.

Train effects are used in evening gowns but the real trains have not yet arrived.

Some of the new one-piece tailored their own for both day and evening wear.

A dress of horizon blue bure has for its only trimming buttons of navy blue coroso.

Simple line capes are easily made by the home dressmaker. Some are simply circular.

The natty box coats frequently have their open fronts outlined with close-set buttons.

Evangelists in Newfoundland.

A Review of Their Work.

L. C. MORRIS.
ARTICLE X.

We have now written of the principal Evangelists who have visited our city within the past forty-three years; and we trust that what has been said was worth while. The actors in those scenes have mostly passed away, and only a small percentage of our readers will recall those events. Personally I met all those people of whom I have written, and their faces are still fresh in my memory, and their various traits of character are well remembered. I learned a great deal from them; and having spoken in public myself for most of the period mentioned, I have had a special interest in such people, and have been a sort of fellow-worker with them.

Those were the prominent men of the class; but there were others whose names are worthy of being mentioned; and who, though their stay was brief, rendered masterly service. Foremost among these stands the world-renowned name of Mark Guy Pearse. None but have read and heard of him, but not so many of us have heard his voice, for it is only by a rare chance that such masters come this way, and when they do come, the field is too small for them to stay very long.

It is some fourteen years since Mark Guy Pearse honored St. John's with a visit; and the lectures which he gave at that time must still be fresh in many minds. If nothing else be remembered, the vast assemblage of people who sought entrance to his meetings, will be sufficient memento to his popularity. Of his lectures, two stand out in bold relief, as masterpieces of oratory, and as up-to-date subjects then; and the same would apply to them now. One was his lecture on "Christian Socialism," and the other was that of "A Bit of Bread." The first aroused a keen interest among those who lean to extreme socialistic views, and who, because of their extremes, are carried away with their own particular side of the question.

One particular statement of the lecturer was very obnoxious to these friends, and in conversation with some of them afterwards, they repudiated the principle which the great man had stated. Here is what he said: "Socialism aims to pull down that which is up; Christian Socialism aims to lift up that which is down." A few such sentences as that, embody a great amount of hard fact, and they go to illustrate the greatness of the man of whom we now write. The sentence is pregnant with meaning to present day disputes, and it was the utterance of such sentiments, and the authorship of such sentences, both in print and on the platform, that gained for Mark Guy Pearse, that fame, which is so justly his.

The second topic seemed a rather simple one on the face of it; but when the master touch of the lecturer had presented it, there was a dignity and a value attached to it, which at once elevated it. It was only a bit of bread; and yet upon that apparently insignificant factor, depended the life of the whole world. To have listened to the story of the evolution of a bit of bread, from its first stages in the sowing, until, and all through, its last stages in the reaping, was to see how really great the bit of bread is, and how really small, and utterly dependent, a man is. At the time it looked that way; but the late war has confirmed all that the good man said; for the whole world has learned the value of a bit of bread.

Such men as Mark Guy Pearse ever stand out as leaders in their calling; and every generation is the richer because of their work. The last half of the nineteenth century produced many such great men, among all the churches, and their impress upon society has been deep and abiding. In Church, State, Art and Literature, these master minds have ruled; and all their teaching has been in the march of advancement. No mere superficial theories did these men teach. They penetrated into the certainties and meanings of life; and imparted the highest ideals to the people.

Some people say that the first half of the twentieth century, so far, has not produced such a great class of men of this character, as was produced in the last half of the nineteenth century. This opens up a big question. True it is, that there is more invention, and that education is more generally advanced, and that science is daily adding to its laurels; but, confining the question to its limits, have the churches and the states as many great and outstanding leaders to-day, as were in evidence a generation ago? A man to lead to-day should be greater than one who led in the past. The people are not so confiding now as they were, and that which drew the crowd once, has lost its attraction. A man great in the past would not be so great at the present; and it is beginning to look as if the people intend to do more of their own thinking than they have hitherto done—such at least is the tendency of modern education.

But whatever turn the wheel may take, and whatever power Democracy may attain unto, it must still stand a principle among men, that somebody must lead; and it is of these leaders we have been writing, and foremost

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off—Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

Glovertown Welcomes Heroes.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few remarks regarding the reception given to our heroes on their return from the war. On Saturday, Feb. 8, there was great excitement around when it was found that the s.s. Corsican had arrived at St. John's the evening before, and that five of our boys were on board, and would be leaving for home the next day by train. Preparations were then made for building an arch and decorating it. Then on Sunday all the men having horses and sleighs beside a number of other friends, decided to go to the station, about four miles distant, to meet the boys on their arrival there, whom we though would arrive about 12 o'clock in the night. The arch was beautifully illuminated and all the houses along the road displayed lights in every window. Crowds were around awaiting to hear the whistle of the train, or the faint sound of sleigh bells in the distance. All at once sleigh bells were heard, but great was the disappointment when it was found to be some one coming bringing the news that the train with the boys would not be due until 10 o'clock next morning. It was a very disappointed crowd who then went their way home to wait until the next morning. However their patience was rewarded the next day at 11 o'clock, when the train whistle was heard at the station. We knew it would take about an hour for them to drive out, and quite a crowd gathered around to await their coming. When suddenly the joyful sound of sleigh bells were heard, and we could see them coming in the distance, cheers arose from all present, and I tell you it was an exciting time when the sleighs with four of our boys (one stayed behind at St. John's) stopped right in the midst of the crowd. Then began the cheering again, and the hearty welcome home and the hand claps. But with all the joyful excitement, there was still a sadness as the father of two of our brave boys, "who had made the Supreme Sacrifice," went forward with tears rolling down his cheeks to welcome home the companions of his two dear lads who had lost their lives. On Monday, Feb. 17, the W.P.A. gave a reception in the schoolroom in honor of our returned heroes, when the boys and their parents with a number of other friends, about 100, sat down to a hot dinner at 7.30 p.m. After dinner was over (and I think it was enjoyed by all), ice cream was served to the guests, and after the tables were cleared the doors were opened for all who wished to come in to the entertainment, when the following programme was rendered:

Song, "Welcome Home," by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold.
Chorus, "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue."
Recitation, Mrs. E. Sweetapple.
Address, Pte. John Wells.
Solo, Mrs. B. Burry.
Recitation, Miss Maggie Arnold.
Chorus, "Hard Times Come Again no More."
Several other pieces were prepared, but owing to the lateness of the evening we had to cancel them. Pte. Wells gave us a very interesting address, and showed some curios, among them being a German helmet. He told us that he took it from the head of a German. Some one in the audience asked, "What became of the head," at which Jack (as he is most commonly called), turned, and said, "Ah, that's telling," and we were left to form our own opinions as to how he got it. The young people were then given the use of the school for games, etc., until 12.30, after which hour all dispersed feeling quite tired out, but delighted with the evening's programme.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain, yours truly,
ONE PRESENT.

Afloat on the Floe.

Last night a seaman tried to board his ship in the harbour by walking out on the ice. Unfortunately, however, the ice opened, and began to drift towards the Narrows. The seaman, not relishing the voyage, cried for assistance, and was heard by men at the Battery who got in touch with the police. The Minister of Marine being informed, authorised the tug Ingraham to go to the rescue of the mariner, but, in the interim a boat manned by A. Piercy put out from the East End and succeeded in bringing the voyager to land.

Small Sealing Fleet.

So far only nine steamers are getting ready to prosecute the combi seal fishery, as follows:—Sable, L. Farquhar, 150 men; Eagle, Bishop, 208 men; Terra Nova, Kean, 203 men; Neptune, Barbour, 203 men; The Wmsor, 203 men; Seal, Randall, 180 men; Ranger, Winsor, 173 men; The Viking, 160 men; Diana, Parsons, 150 men; a total of 1,595 men. The Viking, the only steamer in the Gulf, clears for the fishery from Channel on the 10th inst., and the northern fleet on the 12th.

PROCEEDING TO ST. PIERRE.

It is probable that the schooner W. T. White, which ran ashore near the Harbor Breton Lighthouse a few days ago while on her way there from English Harbor West, will proceed to St. Pierre for repairs. She is leaking badly, and her codfish cargo has been considerably damaged.

Magic of Coal-Tar.

From Perfume to High Explosive.
The modern magician's favourite raw material is coal-tar. He waves his wand over it and, lo! all sorts of marvels spring into being.

Coal-tar—a cheap by-product in the manufacture of ordinary gas—is an exceedingly complex organic compound, out of which the chemist seems to be able to dig almost anything he wants, from a dye to a perfume, from a disinfectant to a grease-spot eradicator, and from a pain-killing drug to a war explosive.

It is almost a century since naphthalene was first derived from coal-tar. We are most familiar with it today as the substance out of which moth-balls are made. But from it have also been obtained some beautiful colour dyes—buttercup-yellow, a variety of scarlets, pinks, and greens.

Known to Every Household.

Next came benzine—discovered five years later, in 1835. There is a little bottle of it in every household because of its property of dissolving fats, and therefore effective as a remover of grease-spots. What is known as the "dry-cleaning" process—a mystery to most folks—is simply washing with a mixture of kerosol and benzine soap.

Many years ago a clever chemist was trying to make an artificial quinine from benzine treated with nitric acid. In this attempt he failed, but to his great surprise his process yielded cheaply and in quantity, "aniline"—the stuff that is to-day the source of a whole rainbow of wonderful dyes.

In My Lady's Boudoir.

From benzine also is derived an artificial oil of bitter almonds, used by the hundreds of tons for the scenting of soaps. And likewise obtained from coal-tar—black and eye-smelling—are many exquisite perfumes, such as "white heliotrope," for my lady's toilet.

Most widely used of all coal-tar products is carbolic acid. It was the original germ-killer—the first one used by Lister as a disinfectant in surgery.

In conclusion it may be pointed out that your gas has been of such poor quality during the war because many ingredients previously allowed to remain were extracted to enrich the coal tar from which superlatively high explosives were manufactured.

Superstitious Thieves.

Some of the most notorious criminals, who, it might have been thought, would not pay the slightest attention to omens, good or bad, have a profound belief in superstitions of all kinds.

Curiously enough, the burglar will often relinquish a big burgling feat if a dream the night before has warned him that he will be in danger. But should it happen that he sees a rainbow during the day he will consider it to portend that, however reckless he may be, he is not likely to fall into the hands of the police for a space of three months.

Many burglars carry a donkey's shoe in their pockets before setting out, believing that this will protect them from danger, while others pin their faith to a piece of coal, which they will carry in their pockets throughout their career.

The pickpocket is equally superstitious. He will not rob a person who squints, this being accounted a certain sign of disaster, and if it happens that the purse he steals contains foreign as well as English money it is believed to augur that he will travel a good deal in the immediate future, but whether in the company of a couple of warders or not there is nothing to show.

Weddings and funerals are pregnant with meaning for the professional thief. To pick a pocket at a funeral would be to court immediate disaster, whereas if a purse stolen at a wedding contains gold it portends the best of luck for the thief.

Some pickpockets have a favourite pair of boots that they wear as long as they can keep them on their feet, and if they are not arrested while wearing them they cut the boots up into little square pieces and give them away as "lucky tokens" to confederates.

To-Day's Messages.

9.00 A. M.

PRISONER ON HUNGER STRIKE.

PARIS, March 5. M. Jomont, manager of the newspaper Libertaire, who was arrested after the attack on Premier Clemenceau, as the result of the discovery in a secret printing plant of a block used for the reproduction of a leaflet supporting Bolshevism, is on a hunger strike. He began it because his demand to be treated as a political prisoner was not granted. To-day was the fifth on which he had not eaten. Forcible feeding has been proposed by the prison doctor, but the prisoner's lawyer has entered objections to this, characterising it as "degrading."

PRESCRIBING BY WIRELESS.

NEW YORK, March 5. The wireless telephone and wireless telegraph were used in mid-ocean by Lieut. Commander A. E. Younie, Senior Surgeon on board the transport Sierra, to prescribe for patients on the transport Powhattan and the British steamer Pollac, which were many miles away. The Sierra, which arrived here to-day with the Powhattan received a wireless message in mid-ocean from the captain of the Pollac saying that one of his crew had been taken ill. The message gave symptoms and asked for diagnosis and treatment. Acting on this information, and subsequent messages concerning the sick man's case, the Sierra's doctor prescribed treatment by radio, and at last reports the sick man was considerably improved in health.

RECOMMENDS PUNISHMENT.

PARIS, March 5. The French Government is asked to make every effort to secure the punishment of all German officers and soldiers found guilty of plundering, or causing devastation in the occupied regions of France, in the report made by Senator Reynald, on behalf of the Senate Committee, which recently visited the devastated districts. The report asks for the Government to call the attention of the Allied powers to German methods of destruction, and urges the Government to obtain restitution of stolen property. The Government is urged to hasten material reconstruction and to aid the economic life of the people affected.

CLERGY FOR ORDER.

OMSK, March 5. After having remained neutral for two years, the clergy in the government of Omsk is now bitterly attacking the Bolsheviks. It has gone completely over to the cause of Admiral Kolchak, Governor of the Government of Omsk, and is expressing its sentiments in a manner which has deeply impressed the entire country.

GOVERNMENT RETAINS CONTROL.

WASHINGTON, March 5. The Government to-day determined to retain control of the railroads, despite the failure of Congress to provide funds for the railroads' administration, and to have the roads finance themselves for the next few months, through private loans on the open market or through advances by the War Finance Corporation. Efforts will be made to maintain operations on a normal scale, and to carry on as much of the improvement programme as possible, in order to avoid throwing employees out of work or otherwise disturbing industrial conditions. No attempt will be made to solve the problem by raising rates.

AQUITANIA LIBELLED.

NEW YORK, March 5. Three libels were filed here to-day against the s.s. Aquitania and the Cunard Steamship Company, in connection with the sinking in New York Bay on February 28, of the freighter Lord Dufferin, rammed by the Aquitania, scheduled to sail from here to-morrow noon, was placed under attachment pending decision in the Admiralty Division of the Federal District Court to-morrow on the question of jurisdiction. Two of the libels were filed by Gaston, Wil-

Hams and Wignore, Inc., of Canada for the loss of the Lord Dufferin, claiming $1,000,000 damages through the sinking of the ship, and $400,000 through loss of part of her cargo. The third bill was entered by the Atlantic Sugar Refining Co., of Delaware, for $250,000 loss on cargo. At a hearing to-day, counsel for the Cunard Co. claimed that the Aquitania was taken over by the British navy early in the war, and is still under control of the British Admiralty. The company refused to furnish bonds to protect the claimants, in order that the ship might proceed, asserting that she is not under control of the owners.

A NEW MENACE.

BERLIN, Mar. 5. The Spartacists have inaugurated a movement to seize Koeningberg, East Prussia, and thereby open a route of communication to Moscow, so that Bolshevik armies from Russia might move to the assistance of the Spartacan forces, according to an official Government bulletin to-day. The Government, however, the bulletin states, has sent forces in to Koeningberg with the object of putting down the Spartacan strike movement for the seizure of the town.

A POPULAR MOVE.

PARIS, Mar. 5. The Chamber of Deputies proposed to-day, without discussion, a bill, authorizing the Government to advance 25,000,000 francs for organization of popular restaurants.

NEGOTIATING A SETTLEMENT.

NEW YORK, Mar. 5. Traffic in New York harbor remained virtually tied up at the end of the second day of the Marine Workers strike, but James L. Hughes, mediator of the Department of Labor, reported to-night that progress had been made towards effecting a settlement between the railroad administration and its employees who man forty per cent of the craft, but private boat owners and their men, apparently, were as far as ever from an agreement. Railroad administration officials met a committee of the strikers in the offices of J. Stone, Federal manager of the Erie railroad late to-day. After the conference Mr. Hughes announced that "very satisfactory progress was made towards a settlement of the controversy, and a further meeting will be held to-morrow."

NOON.

MUST BE PAID FIRST.

LONDON, March 5. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Replying to a deputation from the Mercantile Marine Service, in regard to reparations to relatives of sailors murdered during the war, the number of whom the spokesman of the deputation estimated at 20,000, Premier Lloyd George, yesterday, paid a tribute to the heroism of the mercantile marine in saving Great Britain from starvation and the Allies from collapse. He denounced German submarine warfare as the most cruel and infamous exhibition of piracy ever seen, and announced that the British delegates to the Peace Conference had been instructed to submit their first demand for full compensation for losses at sea, including compensation for other expenses. He concluded by urging that claims be immediately submitted to the Foreign Office.

WORKMEN OPPOSE STRIKE.

BERLIN, Mar. 5. The Vorwaerts, the Socialist organ, reports that the result of the secret ballot taken on the strike issue in eighty Berlin plants, shows that more than twenty thousand workers were opposed to, and that 7,900 were in favor of a strike. The workmen in numerous factories, the newspaper adds, were stampeded into strike by the radicals on Monday before the Soviet took official action.

BULGARIANS VIOLATE ARMISTICE.

SALONIKI, Mar. 6th. Fighting between peasants and Bulgarian forces in western Thrace and Strumitza, as a result of efforts of the Bulgars to requisition food and household articles, has been reported. It is said that the Bulgarians are attempting to strip the country before being forced to retire.

BOLSHEVISM IN UKRAINE.

WARSAW, Mar. 5. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Strong forces of Bolsheviks are still active in Ukraine. They still hold Kiev, where they are reported to have levied a contribution of 2,000,000 rubles, and have forced the bourgeoisie class to exchange houses with the population of the Sluzs and Ghetto quarter of their town. A large detachment of Ukrainians are holding the Bolsheviks south of the Kiev-Kovel railway line, but the whole of this line is reported to be in the hands of the Bolsheviks. Petura, the present dictator of the Ukrainian Government, appears to be a strong leader, and of pro ally sentiment, but he is not sufficiently supported by the various elements in Ukraine. Odessa and a small belt of territory around that city is at present held by French troops.

A LAME EXCUSE.

LONDON, March 6. A German wireless message, picked up here, alludes to a "threat" made by General Nudant, Marshal Poch's representative on the joint armistice commission at Spa, because the Germans have failed to turn over to the Allies industrial and agricultural machinery. The message explains that German firms, constructing the required material, have been unable to complete deliveries because of the strikes, and that a shortage of railway cars and the destruction of railways, near Erfurt and Halle, have also retarded the carrying out of the armistice agreement. It is said that trains filled with agricultural machinery are standing on side tracks between Erfurt and Breslau.

S. S. Appenine.

The Furness Withy Co. received a message yesterday afternoon from Mr. T. Kennedy, who is inspecting the s.s. Appenine, saying that No. 1 tank boiler room, and engine room, and port tank was damaged, but the ship's engines were workable. All holds perfectly dry; of opinion that ship would easily get off if assistance could be reached. Arranging to discharge bunker coal to lighten ship. The P.M.G. received a message from mailman Taylor saying there were 10 bags of mail which had been landed, and would be dispatched by the earliest train. A message to the R. N. Co. last night said there was no ice in Wiltess Bay, and that the ship was in the same position, the water was smooth, the crew of the Appenine were also aboard and the prospects of refloating the ship was good. No further messages were received up to press hour.

Seal Arrives

AND LEAVES FOR APPENINE. Baine Johnstone's steamer Seal arrived in port about 12.15 to-day, and had no sooner berthed at the pier when she was sent to the assistance of the s.s. Appenine, which is stranded at Wiltess Point. It is not known definitely what aid the Seal will be able to render, but there is a possibility of her being able to tow the Appenine to port. If not, the Seal will likely return to port this evening.

The Streets.

The continuous mild weather is rapidly melting the snow and ice ready the streets are bare in places, but as a rule they are in a miserable, dirty condition. It is impossible to walk without stepping to puddles of water, and the effect is generally disastrous to either the person's health or garments, oftentimes both.

Bowings' Boats.

S.S. Portia was to have sailed this afternoon for the usual western ports, going as far as Channel. S.S. Terra Nova was getting ready this morning to leave for the Appenine, at Wiltess Point, to render any possible aid, but the arrival in port and subsequent leaving of the s.s. Seal made this unnecessary.

Personal Mention.

Dr. Leslie, of Newtown, who has been suffering from a fractured thigh, is steadily improving. Constable Ezekiel, an ex-soldier, has resigned with the police force. Capt. Churchill, of the Dorothy Baird, returned here a few days ago. The vessel was badly damaged in a Brazilian port, and was subsequently sold. Ex-Pte. Michael Hickey, who arrived in town a day or so ago with his mother, from Holyrood, left last evening for home again. Pte. Hickey saw 18 months of active service, first with the Royal Nfld. Regiment, then with the 1st British Columbia Battalion, and was wounded twice in France. Mr. Jas. J. Davis arrived in the city yesterday from Argentina. Mr. Geo. Kennedy, of Avondale, is registered at the Crosbie. The s.s. W. H. Reid, LeMarchant Road, is confined to his room suffering from bronchitis.

Shipping News.

S. S. Ecascan arrived at Gibraltar on February 27th and left the following day, for Piraeus, Greece. The Furness liner Digby which was put on this route a few days ago, is expected to arrive at this port, shortly, from Liverpool. The S. S. Adolph now due here from New York, was reported yesterday morning in clear water between Cape Race and Cape Ballard. Below the latter Cape the ice was packed closely on the shore, and until it moves off the ship will be unable to reach port. The s.s. Melgic has sailed for Louisburg with general cargo from the Reid Nfld. Co. The s.s. Cape Breton has sailed for Louisburg with general cargo from the Reid Nfld. Co. The Tommie G. has cleared from Gibraltar with 3,100 qtls. of cod fish for Lisbon. The Whitford Lee has cleared from Buffett and Co. Marystown, with fish cargo for Oporto. The General Maude is loading cod-fish at Marystown for Oporto. The Gordon Tibbo is loading at Belleoram for Bilbao. The Senator and the Gladiator are loading salt bulk at Channel for Gloucester. The Sunset Glow has entered Belleoram to load cargo for Alicante. WEATHER ACROSS COUNTRY. Calm and dull; 28 to 40 above.

OVER INDISPENSIBLE TUGS.

Low, sharp-cut bow to afloat, stern is a length of 115 feet; port to starboard is a width of 18 feet, and her draught is 9 feet. These are the dimensions of a fair-weather tug. Engines are placed on the crew berth aft and the boiler forward, and throughout the hull is lit by electricity. All this may seem a desirable boat, but the life of the tug's crew is not from desirable. Go where you will, from stem to stern there is no dampness in the whole ship. About her deck are coils of rope, some of stout Manila rope, others technically known as "weather" aft, and when at sea the deck is green at every stride. It takes a comfort in all that! A great curved steel bar, which supports the stout engine when the tug is at work, expert donkeyman is at his work, or perhaps three, a boy of 10 in the engine room, a boy of 12 on the deck, and the captain and his crew. Such is the tug's crew. The stout, well-tested mast, handy deck-house, and a fat funnel, give the appearance of one of these "weather" tugs. Winter and summer alike they are busy, varied and irksome are their duties, and always they have a touch of danger in them. Most small boats boast a tug, and in the ports there are found whole fleets of them, many of great size. Some of our very finest tugs are the Alexandra boats of Liverpool, each of which is called after the Mersey docks—Herculeanum, Coburg, Warwick, and so on. As their name implies, their chief work is towing. They can tow anything from a 40-ton liner to a 30-ton dunnage barge. Their horse-power, in proportion to their size, is enormous. They are useful sea-boats as well, almost sturdy craft in a storm as the steam-trawlers.

Some tugs are specially constructed for ocean-going purposes, and as often tow great sailing vessels hundreds of miles. Sometimes they cross a disabled steamer in her search, and bring her home.

Navy Ghost's.

(from the London Daily Mail.)

It is somewhat surprising that navy warfare has produced no legends of "Angels of Mercy" type. The German is still superstitious, and has of a black cat in considered a disastrous omen for the whole ship. At the Admiral's table the accidental ringing of a tumbler is instantly muffled, for the sound is supposed to portend early death by drowning. However, the navy possesses one or two ships that are haunted, and many a serving in them are by no means logical about their ghostly shipmates. Strangely enough, ships are rarely seen; they are generally heard or felt only, and there always an unpleasant occurrence give rise to spirit manifestation on board. There is, however, one war occurrence that is still wrapped in mystery. In 1917 a convoy of twelve ships, was on passage, when at dawn the day after sailing the escort commander discovered thirteen ships in his charge. While the identity of the extra ship was being discussed the convoy was suddenly attacked by German light cruisers, and 11 of the escort and nine of the merchantmen were sunk. The German then made off. Survivors who witnessed the whole proceedings positively assert that there were thirteen ships, and that a mysterious vessel disappeared as mysteriously as she had appeared; that was not sunk is certain. Official reports failed to throw any light on the nature of this vessel; it was ascertained that she could not have been a German raider, and her name was "logged" by the escort commander. It was Vanderdecken, the Dutch captain, who in the "Fly-Dutchman" wished to witness the capture of his old enemies, the Dutch.

Make your Motoring season an enjoyable one by owning the Car that all other motorists look upon with envy—the Buick Six is the most envied car in St. John's.

The Buick is always ready to take you anywhere you desire to go—it never falters.

When you press the starting pedal of the Buick, you are assured immediate response—the Delco starter is always on the job to turn over your engine every time you require it.

Buick Cars are luxuriously equipped, and upholstered in genuine black leather—no imitation. Strength of construction is an inherent quality of all Buicks. With the new Sixty Horsepower Valve in Head engine sixty miles an hour is easily accomplished, besides hills are made short work of.

A new and valuable feature is the entirely enclosed valves and engine, thus keeping out all grit and dust and giving longer life to the car, consequently the Engine is noiseless.

We shall be happy to let you look over our 1919 Buick Six which recently arrived—you will be convinced why it is the most envied car once you have examined it.

CUSHION SOLE SHOES

Many a Man and Woman who has suffered with foot troubles, remembers with gratitude the day when we induced them to try our Cushion Soled Shoes. Inside these foot comforters the foot rests upon a cork insole, over which is a covering of soft felt which is covered by a lining of kid skin. This combination makes a splendid cushion for the foot and brings great relief to tender feet besides keeping the foot warm and dry.

CUSHION SOLED SHOES FOR MEN,
$5.50, $7.50 to $9.00.
FOR WOMEN,
$4.70 to $8.50.

While these Shoes are made with all the style and beauty of other Shoes, they are comfortable and delightful to the Man or Woman suffering from tired or tender feet.
