Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rishart, Campbellville, Ont., writes: "I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXX.

When Lord Bayneham entered his wife's room she was sitting just as he had left her, still and calm as a statue.

"I must learn to bear it," she had said to herself, when his voice at the door startled her.

When he entered the room Lady Hilda's heart sunk at the expression of his face.

"Hilda," he said hoarsely, "I know all. You have no more to conceal."

"Ah, never again did he see on mortal face such a look of agony as hers wore then; never did human voice sound so despairingly."

"You know all!" she said, rising and standing with clasped hands before him.

Now came the error which for years wrecked those two lives.

"I know all," said Lord Bayneham. He meant to say that he knew she had been in the Lady's Walk, and not alone; but she thought by those few words he meant to say that he knew all her secrets, and that she had nothing more to conceal from him.

Often and often have the events of a lifetime hinged upon a mistake less grave than this.

His words, spoken testingly so long ago, flashed across her when she had asked him if he were deceived in his wife what would he do, and his answer had been, "Such a one must return to her friends. I should know how to find a remedy for the mistake."

"Claude, you know all," she said, looking at him steadily; "did you mean what you said?—must I go?"

He did not understand to what she alluded. He had completely forgotten the conversation that was ever in her mind.

"Did you mean it?" she repeated in a low voice.

"I always mean every word I say," replied Lord Bayneham; "and, Hilda, it has come to this—"

His sentence was never completed, for just at that moment Pauline knocked at the door.

"The Duke of Laleham is waiting to see you, my lord," said the maid. His grace was far too important a personage to be kept waiting, and Lord Bayneham went into the library wishing his visitor in any other place. For one hour and a half he patiently endured the martyrdom. His grace was vitally interested in some county business and wanted his young neighbor's support.

Lord Bayneham tried honestly to give his attention to every word, but he failed in the attempt.

"Landed interest," "county votes," "personal influence," occasionally sounded familiarly in his ear. But it was Hilda's voice he heard, not his Grace of Laleham's—Hilda's voice, asking if she must go. What did the child mean? Go where?—and for what? There must be some stupid misunderstanding. It would have been cleared up if that good man had but deferred his visit.

The poor duke tried hard to make his young neighbor understand all he meant. He thought Lord Bayneham singularly absent, and wondered that he did not show more interest in what seemed to him a momentous question. At length his grace rose.

"I wish," he said to Lord Bayneham, "that, if you are not engaged, you would ride over with me to Oulton. I think the matter in question should be attended to without delay."

Lord Bayneham consented, simply because he could invent no excuse. In a few years he railed bitterly at his folly; for if instead of going with the Duke of Laleham to Oulton he had sought his wife and the unhappy mistake had been explained, years of sorrow and unavailing misery would have been spared to them. From the window of her own room the unhappy young wife watched her husband ride away—watched him with a heart that yearned for one more look at his face, one more word from his lips—watched him with a passion of grief so wild and bitter that she would gladly have died; she did not think in this world ever to see him again.

During that one hour and a half, which had seemed years to Lady Hilda, she resolved upon a step which she afterward bitterly repented. Believing her husband meant that he knew all her secrets, and that he meant those words so carelessly uttered, she resolved not to wait until he should send her from him, but go at once.

As she stood by the window watching the sunlight upon the trees, the sweet, smiling heavens, the glory of flower and tree, she pictured to herself many scenes. How would the proud and stately countess, who valued nothing on earth so highly as noble blood, tolerate the knowledge that her son's wife was a convict's daughter? Hilda pictured the haughty face. She knew the few scornful words in which Lady Bayneham would deplore her son's mistake, each word searing her heart as with a hot iron; the bland, contemptuous manner, the half-patronizing pity. Ah! no, better go at once, since she must go, than suffer this.

She pictured Barbara's wonder—Barbara, on whom there rested no stain of another's sin. Better for her husband had he trampled his love under foot and married Barbara Barle! There was something harder than all that—her husband's last words to her. The cold, cruel words in which he would send her from him—the cold, cruel pride with which he would "remedy his mistake"—how could she bear it and live? How could she look upon him and know they must be as strangers—be whom she loved more dearly than life? She thought of Brynmar woods—of the handsome, kindly face that had smiled into her own. She could not wait for the sun of her love to set. Better one sudden wrench than to die by inches. She looked on the stately home where her husband's love had placed her; should she wait for the time when she should be sent from those walls as one unworthy of their shelter.

No—she would leave it all. The proud castle she called her home, title, rank, position—what right had she to them? Who was she?—a convict's daughter, a broken-hearted woman, the pun of whose life had set in utter darkness. She said to herself that she could not blame the dead, but that she had been better left to share her mother's fate. What right had she to Lady Hutton's home or wealth? Never more would she touch the gold that had purchased her; never more would she enter that fair domain of Brynmar. Her mother's love had been baited for it. She would leave all; false pretences, a false position, should embitter her life no more—she would go from them where none who ever knew her should see her again.

Poor child! she was half mad with wounded love and pride—with the shock of that interview still upon her, her nerves overwrought, her heart and brain in a tumult of sorrow and excitement.

Then she grew superstitious. Why should she have dropped her bracelet? She never remembered to have unfastened it; but for the finding of that jewel her secret would have remained a secret still. With a cold, deadly fear gathering round her heart, she asked herself could it be that Heaven itself was angry with her? She was half mad, and that was the only excuse that could be made for her rash act. From the chaos of thought one idea stood out boldly—she would go at once, before they had time to reproach her with her father's fault and send her away. No passionate weeping, no wild burst of sorrow came to the relief of that burning brain. She moved about the sumptuous room like one in a dream, just conscious of what she was going to do, but nothing more.

Like an electric shock came the sound of Lady Bayneham's voice, asking for admittance. She supposed that by this time the whole matter was made clear, and she came to see how Hilda was.

"Can I come in?" she said, "I wish to speak to you, Hilda."

"She has come to taunt me," thought the poor child, "come to exult over my fall, and tell me she always thought me proud, or something of the kind."

"No not now," answered a strange, brazen voice, "I am engaged; you cannot come in."

Deeply offended, the countess walked haughtily away and so Lady Hilda destroyed her last chance.

If Lady Bayneham had seen the changed young face for only one minute, she would have known that the brain was overtasked. But it was not so, and the young lady of Bayneham went on to her fate. She wrote a few lines to her husband, and covered them with passionate kisses; she took from her writing-desk all the money it contained, never stopping to count it, but filling her pocket-book with notes and gold. Then she rang the bell.

GERMANY SUSPENDS PAYMENTS.

PARIS, Jan. 14. The Reparations Commission has received a note from the German Government signifying its intention to suspend payments of money and in kind because of the occupation of the Ruhr which it says it considers a violation of the Versailles Treaty.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Jan. 14. Great demonstrations of protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr took place to-day, but there were no noteworthy incidents.

PREMIER FRENCH PREMIER DEAD.

PARIS, Jan. 14. Alexander Ribot, former Premier, died suddenly Saturday night.

NEW GOVT. SET UP AT MEMEL.

BERLIN, Jan. 14. A dispatch received here from Memel, southwest of Memel, says Lithuanian raiders have set up a new government with M. Simonettis as President. Simonettis is reported to have requested the Allied High Commission to withdraw French troops from Memel territory.

RUHR MAY BE OCCUPIED.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 14. Bochum, the great centre of the Ruhr industries will be occupied by the French hence, the French have decided the German Government proposes a change of heart and abandons its policy of interference and opposition which the French consider has been following the past week. The French authorities do not announce the date of the advance, but make a statement of the fact that they have decided to extend the occupation further eastward for the purpose of compelling Germany into paying for coal operations deliveries and as penalties for what they term the willful failure to fulfill its undertakings. Concerning the coal deliveries France threatens to pay the cost of labor and salaries of employees and miners. The owners must look to Berlin for their overhead expenses and must make up the price of the coal deliveries f.a.b. at the French frontier. They are prepared to assist the owners in the collection from the Ruhr region and also further eastward later, should Germany fail to come to terms.

SEAPLANE WRECKED—FOUR DEAD.

KEY WEST, Florida, Jan. 14. The steamer Henry M. Flagler arrived here last night with three survivors of the seaplane Columbus that was wrecked and sunk yesterday afternoon carrying four of its passengers to death. The drowned are Edw. F. Atkins, Jr., New York, two Misses of Atkins, and Miss Grace Caldwell, New York.

FREDERICK HARRISON DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 14. Frederick Harrison, noted as Positivist, Historian and Philosopher, and member of the Positivist Society, died last night at Bath. He was ninety-two years old.

WARSHIP ORDERED TO LEAVE.

PARIS, Jan. 14. The French cruiser Voltair now at cometh in his season." Frederick Harrison, author and philosopher, was one of those spirits which, detaching themselves from the trivial round of common affairs, nevertheless strove valiantly for those things which are good, and which exercise a profound influence on their day and generation. Probably young men of present day culture would find some difficulty in defining exactly what is or used to be meant by Positivism, the creed of which Harrison was the leading exponent. The creed itself may have been merged into newer codes of philosophic thought, but this does not lessen the debt which is due to Harrison by the thinkers of the present day. That the debt was recognized was evinced on his ninetieth birthday, in October, 1921, when an address was presented to him at his residence at Bath. The signatures to the address were headed by that of the Prime Minister, and included such men of such diverse thought and action as Sir James Barrie, Ross Clynes, A. C. Benson, Sir Edward Elgar, Lord Esher, John Galsworthy, Thomas Hardy, Lord Halsbury, the Bishops of London and Exeter, Sir William Watson, and H. G. Wells. All of these were ready to pay their testimony to Harrison's "long and splendid life lived in the service of humanity."

Frederick Harrison, born in London in 1831, went to King's College, London, and afterwards to Wadham, Oxford. Called to the Bar he became Professor of Jurisprudence and International Law to the Inns of Court. More than half a century ago he rendered remarkable service as Secretary to the Commission concerned with the Trades Union activities. He was Bode Lecturer at Cambridge in 1900, Washington Lecturer at Chicago a year later, and Herbert Spencer Lecturer at Oxford in 1905. One of the last offices he filled was Vice-President of the Royal Historical Society and of the London Library. The Freedom of Bath, where he spent the last years of his life, was conferred upon him towards the close of 1922.

Invaluable as were these services of the community, it is of Frederick Harrison, the serene detached thinker and observer, working silently in his own study, that one most cares to ponder over. The range of his writing was wonderful. Studies of Tennyson, Ruskin, Mill and others came from his pen, and will always be considered classics of their kind. Works on the meaning of history and the choice of books, an exposition on the creed of a layman are others of his more notable publications.

More than thirty years ago Harrison stood successfully for Parliament, opposing Sir John Lubbock, who in his own way was another leader in good works. Harrison's failure to get elected can hardly be considered a loss to the world at large. Later he was appointed an Alderman of the London County Council, but resigned after four years. Noisy debate over matters of passing moment were not for him. One of Frederick Harrison's four sons, Mr. Austin Harrison, is still Editor of the "English Review."

C. M. B. C. ANNUAL MEETING.

Famous Play to be Shown Here.

The annual meeting of the C.M.B.C. was held in the Synod Building yesterday afternoon. The adoption of the annual report revealed several interesting facts, notably that the general work of the class had in no wise decreased in importance or in actual fulfillment during the past year. The financial statement showed a neat little balance to the good. To the outside there is perhaps one section of the class's work which is more generally applicable and more generally appreciated than any other. Reference is made, of course, to the Harbor and Wharf Mission, and in this connection the C.M.B.C. has strengthened its hands by affiliating itself with the world-wide movement "Missions to Seamen." During 1922 from the first Sunday in May to the 2nd Sunday in December, 2,894 visits were paid to schooners and steamers by the members of the Harbor and Wharf crews. This total is in excess of that of previous years by 80 visits. One conversant with the work of the C.M.B.C. cannot help feeling that the dropping of tract literature and the substitution of monthly church publications, viz., "The Sign," "The Church Abroad," "Home Words," for distribution to our sailors and fishermen has been both timely and beneficial; timely because as the Chairman, Rev. J. Brinton pointed out, the stock of tract literature published by the chief publications of England had been exhausted (17,000 to 18,000 copies per year were ordinarily used), beneficial because as the Secretary pointed out in his report of the additional reading material. The Chairman in commenting on the report deplored that several of the workers had gone "to their places to work, but hoped that the remaining members would do their utmost to increase the attendance and usefulness of the class. The election of officers resulted in the following appointments:—

Chairman—Graham Grossman. Secretary—Earl Best. Asst. Secretary—Hubert Gardner. Treasurer—M. Tilford. Captain of Boat—W. Learning. Supt. of Wharf Crews—L. Winsor. Other members of the Committee are Messrs. G. Housie, F. Reid, T. Crossman, W. Barrett, E. Hiscob, H. Hawkins, W. Winsor, J. Billard, E. Ryall, H. Roberts, H. Hooker, H. Butler, W. Butler, M. Colton, A. Cobb, H. Ford, A. Watts, E. R. Hiscob.

Before the election of officers Rev. Mr. Brinton on behalf of the class presented Mr. J. Simms, the organist, with a walking stick as a slight token of appreciation of his long tenure of service. Mr. Simms utterly surprised, feelingly replied to the good wishes tendered him.—S.J.H.

Hockey Notes.

The St. Bon's and Guards hockey-ists indulged in hard practice at the rink on Saturday night, and all the players are rapidly rounding into shape. The St. Bon's team have an excellent start to start with, viz: Raymond Hally, Gordon Hally, G. Murray, E. Phelan, W. Callahan and Alex Collins. It is said that Eddie Phelan will play the left wing position this season, while "Billie" Callahan, who played the above position last season will be moved into centre ice where his "slants" are expected to be more effective. With Collins on the right wing they have a "hot" three, and something will be doing in this department when the sticks clash together in the opener. Gordon Cull, the little junior speed skater, has been out with the team at all practices, and has shown up so well to date that a place has been left open for him on the reserves. "Gordon" will be given a chance in the big game, and should make good. The St. Bon's after their last practice held a meeting and elected Wm. Callahan as Captain and E. Phelan, Sub-Captain.

The Guards players mustered together at 10.30 Saturday night, and held a most successful workout under the management of Mr. "Gus" Herder. Although the ice was in poor condition the Guards players put up a creditable exhibition. After another practice the players will be in the best of form and ready to enter the fray.

The opening game of the season is scheduled for Wednesday night. The Guards are holding their final practice at the rink at 8.30 this evening, followed by the St. Bon's at 10 o'clock. The appointing of a referee for the Guards vs. St. Bon's game will be decided on to-day.

Portia Reported.

HAD TRYING TIME IN WHITE BAY. A message was received yesterday by the Coastal Department from Capt. Field of S.S. Portia stating the ship had a very trying time getting out of White Bay. The ice is very heavy and it took the ship 48 hours to get clear. Capt. Field in his report states that all freight for White Bay was landed. The ship was due at Titic Cove yesterday evening.

League Hockey.

OPENING GAME ON WEDNESDAY. The opening game in the League Hockey series takes place on Wednesday night when the St. Bon's and Guards will cross sticks. The games were scheduled to start to-night, but owing to mild weather the teams did not get sufficient practice and a postponement was decided upon. The teams are in good form and an exciting series of games is anticipated.

On Wednesday next, January 17th, at 8 p.m., in the Cochrane Street Lecture Room, a Lecture, illustrated by moving pictures, will be given by Mr. J. W. Morris in the interest of the Cochrane Street Mission Circle. Admission 20c.; children 10c.—Jan. 15, 21.

German Exports Flood Egyptian Markets.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt.—Germany is increasing her exports to Egypt, and it is felt here that she has virtually recaptured the Egyptian market. Orders which previously went to Japan are now secured by German firms. She exercises an almost unchallenged monopoly in synthetic dyes, toys and pianos, and has a predominant position in the field of pencils, paper, glass, chinaware, cutlery, leather goods, small metal manufactures, cotton hosiery, small mirrors and hardware. All these articles have been dumped into the Egyptian market on a scale and at prices that have defied competition. Statistics on foreign trade for the first seven months of 1922 show that Germany has advanced from sixth to fourth position, and that the United States stands fifth. The loss of considerable American trade this year is due to the heavy falling off in the importation of cereals. Last year nearly 115,000,000 worth of wheat and wheat flour alone were brought in from across the Atlantic, whereas this year up to the end of July, the amount was less than $1,000,000 for the same period. Rumania's revival of business has contributed largely to this loss by the United States. Kerosene from America also dropped to a very low figure, the Rumanian product taking its place.

Mussolini Resembles Napoleon.

ROME—"Napoleon the Fourth" is the title by which Benito Mussolini, the young premier of Italy, is fast becoming known locally, owing to his resemblance to Bonaparte in personal appearance, and in his daily intercourse with his visitors and lieutenants. Six representatives of the press, after speaking with Mussolini for over an hour the other night, were evenly divided as to whether this Napoleonic attitude of the Fascist leader was natural, or merely a pose. Mussolini snapped back his answers in short incisive sentences. Many times his right hand wandered into his waistcoat across his chest, and with his clean shaven face a picture not unlike that of the first Napoleon after he placed himself upon the throne of France. Passing through the lobby of the hotel on his way to the ministry of the Interior, the interview, Mussolini caught sight of Deputy Lawton, an Englishman. Lawton, in the possession of a short, black beard, and Mussolini playfully reached up and pulled at the whiskers for a few seconds, just as Napoleon used to do with his old grenadiers. Fascist soldiers have a sort of adoration for their leaders, and this resemblance to Napoleon seems to make a great impression on them.

Another Vessel Wrecked.

GENERAL JACOBS ASHORE AT ST. PIERRE. The following message was received by his Excellency the Governor yesterday afternoon from the British Consul at St. Pierre:—"Schooner General Jacobs of Grand Bank, ashore at Langlade, between Chapelle and Government, Crew safe. Sending tug as soon as wind moderates. North West gale at present."

The General Jacobs is owned by S. Harris, Ltd. of Grand Bank, and is a tern schooner, and one of their fine fleet of "Generals." She is the second of their vessels to be lost at St. Pierre, the General Currie, being lost there last year.

United Fishermen.

Snefeld's Cargo.

HAS 20,000 QUINTALS FISH. S. S. Snefeld, sailing to-day for Mediterranean ports, takes a cargo of 20,000 quintals codfish. Of this amount 4073 packages, containing 29,598 1-3 quintals are going to Alicante, while the remainder 2233 packages containing 3481 quintals is destined for Naples.

Kyle's Movements.

SHIP COMING HERE DIRECT. The following information has been received from the Reid Newfoundland Company with regard to the movements of the S.S. Kyle:—Following her arrival at Port aux Basques last night S.S. Kyle returning to North Sydney taking mails and passengers, she will then come to St. John's, direct. From here the ship returns direct to North Sydney. It is understood that passengers who landed last night at Port aux Basques should have had the option of returning to North Sydney and coming here by sea route.

Dowager Empress of Russia.

MAY LIVE IN ENGLAND. COPENHAGEN.—The Dowager Empress of Russia, Maria Feodorovna, who is now in England on a visit to her sister, Queen Alexandra, may prolong her stay well beyond the limits originally set for it. First it was said the widowed queen, who was a Danish princess before she married the late Emperor Alexander, III, would return to Denmark in five or six weeks; now it is rumored in the court circles that the visit may be indefinite. Maria Feodorovna crossed the Channel at Ostend. She was accompanied by the Russian Princes Dolgoruki and Viazemski, Countess Mensen, and the well known Cossack Jaichouk, who used to carry the little lame son of the Emperor Nicholas, in his arms in the days before the executions at Ekaterinburg over three years ago. The little boy, was Maria Feodorovna's grandson. It is understood locally that the Empress will be followed to England shortly by her daughter, the Grand Duchess Olga and her husband Colonel Koulikovsky, and their children.

Strange Monster Cast up by The Sea.

LIMA, Peru.—The tidal waves which recently devastated parts of the coast of Chile cast upon the beach at the same time a strange denizen of the deep, whose like has not been seen in these waters in many years. It would appear to be a cross between a whale and a turtle. Fishermen at Larin, 25 miles from Lima, reported a huge octopus foundering in the shallow waters of the bay. Then they sent out word that it was an unknown monster of the sea, and they had killed it. The director of the Natural History Museum of the University of San Marcos and the official taxidermist made a trip to Larin for the purpose of studying and classifying the strange visitor. They found an animal with the body of a whale, but with a head and extremities resembling those of a turtle. After examination they came to the conclusion that it belonged to the family of "Balasidae" cetaceans, inhabiting the South Pacific waters. It is supposed that it was carried along by the Humboldt current and thrown up on the beach by the tremendous surf following the tidal waves of the Chilean earthquake. The specimen will be brought back to Lima for mounting and will be preserved in the University Museum.

One Flag You Must Not Fly.

SOME not very good-natured gossip has been circulated in London because Premier Lloyd George, while in residence at Brynawelton, his Welsh seat, flies a flag bearing the red dragon of Wales on a green and white ground; and some people have even gone to the length of saying that in doing so he is acting illegally.

Old Mine Working Discovered in Africa.

JOHANNESBURG.—A discovery of considerable, archeological interest has been made 30 miles north of the Leepoort tin mines in the Transvaal, near the Bechuanaland border. A prospector has unearthed what is apparently a portion of an ancient smelting plant and a quantity of slag, which is being submitted to expert examination. Nearby were old workings and a substantial body of ore containing a white metal, that is thought to be platinum or molybdenum. Mining engineers have left for the scene of the discovery.

Gold Mounted Harness.

A GIFT TO KING ALBERT. BRUSSELS.—A number of costly gifts, including a set of harness, mounted in gold and enriched with precious stones, have been presented to King Albert by Ras Tuffari, regent of Abyssinia. Among the gifts were also many shields and sabres, one of the shields belonging formerly to Emperor Menelik, and used by him at the Battle of Adowa. Similar gifts were sent from Abyssinia to the late Emperor Nicholas, of Russia, when he recognized Abyssinian independence.

The Press and The Pulpit.

"The leaders of the State cannot be trusted, nor can the Press." (Rev. R. E. Fairbairn in address on Week of Prayer Series.)

Not having the full text of the reverend gentleman's remarks at hand, we are not in a position to say whether he meant the State and Press of Newfoundland in particular, or whether his statements—which after all is expert—was made generically. It is easy for a parson to get up in the pulpit and condemn all and sundry who do not agree with his particular way of thinking. That is a prerogative of the parson, and no person may challenge him from the congregation on any rash assertion his privilege allows him to make from his exalted position. All the more reason why he should be careful in his allegations. Of course in the heat of eloquence and under the influence of spiritual zeal clergy-men are apt to transgress the boundaries of their spiritual precincts, and instead of preaching "Christ crucified" are prone to invade other sections far without their theological province. Sometimes they come to grief, stranding on the rocks of dogma of which they know but little and pretend much. Their chart and compass alike are at fault, but with a persistence worthy a lasting memorial they Sisyphean-like roll the rock up the hill only to have it fall back upon them when near the summit, and so they go on endeavoring with the best of grace to perform the task impossible. That is extraneously. Were they to confine themselves to the real spiritual side of things they could and would do far better work, but it seems to be the spirit of the age that takes the pulpit out of its own realms and projects it into new realms for which it was never intended. "The leaders of the State cannot be trusted, nor can the Press." Just what did the reverend gentleman mean? Has the state anything to do with religion as the state? Has the press anything to do with religion as a disseminator of news? When we ask these questions we mean them directly. The pulpit, to our mind, is the exponent of religious affairs and their effect on humanity. Has the pulpit performed its duty either in esse or in posse? The state is the Government. As such it has certain denominational duties to perform, but denominationalism must not be mixed up with religion—which is another matter, and belongs to the church and the clergy. The press as an institution is not concerned with the dogmatism of any religious body. It is prepared to publish reports of the lot, whether of regular or special import. The primary duty of the press is to furnish news to readers, not to specialize on theology, about which there is so much difference that the ordinary layman does not know exactly where he stands, and all has to be left to the pastor, the members of which explain it as it suits, their particular book. So far as the St. John's press is concerned, it has ever been foremost in reporting all phases of church work, when the church workers themselves have not been too indolent in sending in copy. Never has there been a betrayal of religion—and we would wish that some of the advanced theologians who criticize the press, would furnish a definition—by the newspapers of St. John's. All of them have gone out of their way to obtain reports of church services and other functions in order to disseminate and spread their teachings throughout the coast. Yet in the opinion of one clergyman the press cannot be trusted. What does he want the press to do?

Storm Still Raging on West Coast.

RAILWAY OPERATIONS TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED. A heavy north west blizzard is still raging on the West Coast. From Millerton Junction west the snow fall is the greatest for the season, drifts in places having been piled up as high as 10 feet.

The incoming express, which has been on the road since Saturday morning last was at Briggs Junction 11 o'clock this morning, and is expected in the city this afternoon.

The rotary plows on the western division are held up at their base until the storm subsides.

For the present the Reid Newfoundland Company have decided to discontinue the operating of the railway, and until further notice S.S. Kyle has been ordered to ply between St. John's and North Sydney. The ship is at present detained at Port aux Basques but is expected to get away for North Sydney this afternoon, and from there she will come on to St. John's direct. The passengers that came over by her on the last trip will remain on board. A local with mails and passengers will be leaving here 1 p.m. to-morrow for Millerton Junction. Passengers desirous of going farther west can do so by boarding a freight train with day coach attached.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Jan. 14th (Lord's Day).—Lay long, being a cold day and not one on which I would willingly go abroad. I read in the Montreal Star news sheet, how E. C. Bellows will make many poor men rich with Labrador gold, and his way of doing it, indeed, a most amusing one. He tells how he will sell claims of a quarter acre for $200 and a share of the profits that will come from them, and so cleverly is his announcement fitted, that it would make even men of sense to believe that the company will not become enriched in any other than from the profits. But, indeed, it is most likely that there will be more than five thousand men who will buy claims, and so make a million dollars for the company, and yet little for themselves. In the afternoon I did venture abroad, being well wrapped in my new topcoat that I have had lined with fur. Meeting Potter, we to discuss on divers matters of business, and did grow so hot with argument, that our ears and noses did become frozen stiff, almost, and we did heed them not. So coming home, my wife would have it that I have been drinking, and did put me in high humor, since she would have none of my denials, and did swear that she smell it of me. So to bed, where I did read till high midnight.

Curliane.

The lady Curliane contested for the Gosling Trophy at the Curling Rink on Saturday morning, which resulted in a tie between Mrs. R. G. Reid and Mrs. W. H. Duder, both securing 25 points. In the play-off Mrs. Reid was returned the victor by a very narrow margin. Mrs. Wm. Kennedy came second with a score of 21 points.

ST. JOHN'S CURLERS DEFEAT U.S. TEAM AT MONTREAL.

Mr. Gerald Harvey, President of the St. John's Curling Club, received the following message on Saturday from Montreal, from Mr. H. D. Reid:—"British Empire Exhibition Competition: Newfoundland represented by T. M. Forbes, R. G. Reid, Dr. Chas. Peters, and H. D. Reid, skip, defeated U.S. team 16 to 8. (Sgd. H. D. Reid.)"

The following message has been sent to Mr. T. Reid congratulating the team on their success:—H. D. Reid, Canada Life Building, Montreal.

"Your message has been posted on the Notice Board of the Curling Club. We, on behalf of Club, most heartily congratulate you upon your decisive victory, which upholds the honor and skill of St. John's Curling Club." (Sgd. G. HARVEY, President. W. H. DUDER, Secretary.)

Personal.

Mr. Thos. Walsh, buyer for Messrs. Parker & Monroe, is a passenger enroute to Boston by the S. S. Belvernon to-day.

The many friends of Rev. Dr. Jones will regret to learn of his serious illness. Word was received in the city by last mail, stating that the reverend gentleman was suffering from influenza, and his condition was so serious, that he was obliged to cancel two engagements on mission work in Halifax.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR THE GRIP AND FLU.

Body Exhumed. HUSBAND ARRESTED ON WARRANT.

The body of Mrs. Peter Nolan which was exhumed at Avondale on Saturday morning by order of the Minister of Justice arrived in the city by train Saturday night. The remains were in charge of Constable Devine and were brought to the morgue by undertaker Murphy. Yesterday forenoon Drs. Anderson and Greeve held a post mortem examination. The result of their examination did not disclose sufficient evidence to make a charge of manslaughter against the husband Peter Nolan. A warrant for his arrest, however, charging cruelty under the Delinquent Neglect Act, and the Children's Act has been issued and the accused will be brought to town. The body of the woman was sent out to Avondale by this morning's train for re-interment. The police investigation of the affair has disclosed the fact that since November Mrs. Nolan and three children, a girl aged 11, a boy of seven, and another child of 18 months, had been living in a shack which was neither wind nor water tight. The deceased, who is 43 years of age, was married to Peter Nolan at Avondale about 18 months ago. She was a widow when she married Nolan, who is about 50 years old. Her previous husband's name was Terry, by whom she had three children. The eldest is a girl of 14 years and is now in service. It is reported that the marriage with Nolan was not happy and there were frequent quarrels. The climax came about two months ago, when Nolan is said to have turned his wife and children out of doors. The unfortunate woman took her children to a small shack, some quarter of a mile distant, and it was here that she died. This shack may be described as a shack 9 x 15 feet. It was erected by her former husband as a preliminary to building a house. It had since been used as a shelter for cattle, being made habitable by the seams being stuffed with straw. It was not however, tight and ice and snow formed on the floor. For a week or more Mrs. Nolan and her children, it is said, slept on some hay which was stored there. Then a neighbor gave her a bedstead, while some other people provided a couple of blankets, and a small stove. Food and firing had to be sought from neighbours until Monday last when the woman gave birth to a child. Although a midwife neighbour was present the mother and her babe could not be saved. Both were buried together on Tuesday last in the churchyard. It is understood that Peter Nolan, the husband of the dead woman, is a cousin of Wm. Nolan who is now serving a seven year term at the Penitentiary, for cruelty to his little daughter which resulted in her death.

British Wool Growers.

SEEK TO IMPROVE STOCK. LONDON—Several hundred head of rams are to be imported into this country from Peru in order to test the possibilities of producing merino wool, or merino cross wools, in the British Isles. The plan is the result of efforts by many wool manufacturers in the North of England to breed sheep here which would produce a grade of wool as fine as that produced in South America. At the present time the finest wool produced here is graded as coarse. Should the initial efforts be successful, it is probable that all the present large flocks will be gradually killed to make way for the finer breeds, as these command prices four times higher than the present British product.

Manitoba to Have Liquor Referendum.

The campaign is proceeding for repeal of the Manitoba Temperance Act, and the enactment in lieu of that measure of the Government Liquor Control Act, which will permit the sale of liquor direct to consumers from Government stores. An exception will be made for beer, which may, under the proposed law, be sold direct to the consumers by brewers who hold permits from the Liquor Commission. The campaign for Government sale is being carried on by the Moderation League of Manitoba. The Bracken ministry is pledged to make early provision to the next session of the Legislative Assembly for passage of an act to cover a referendum on the liquor question. The executive of the Moderation League have been in conference with Premier Bracken and are assured he will make arrangements so that the provincial vote may be taken not later than April, 1923. Formal petitions are being circulated requesting the Government to proceed under the existing Prohibition Act to take the referendum vote on the issue of Government control versus prohibition.

A.A.A. Medals Arrive.

WILL BE PLACED ON EXHIBITION. The medals won in the N.A.A.A. sports August, 1922, arrived by last English mail. The medals, seventeen in all, are nine carat gold and of an original design. The centre consists of three large A's with N.A.A. engraved on a bar across the face of the medal, while a gold crown is attached to the top. The medals are well made and look very neat and attractive. They are the product of Messrs. Schofield, Goodman & Sons, Ltd., Birmingham and the local agents are Messrs. Walter Clouston & Sons of this city. The Victor Ludorum medal is of the same design and twice the size of the ordinary medal. The winner of the Victor Ludorum is Mr. Freddie Phelan, who won the same honor in 1921. The trophies will be placed on exhibition in a few days.

Morning Train Held Up.

ENGINE DERAILED AT WATERFORD BRIDGE. While the outgoing Carbonez train which left the depot at 8.45 this morning, was proceeding out of Waterford Bridge Station, the engine left the rails near the Trepassey line switch, which resulted in the interruption of the train services along the shore. A staff of men from the railway station were despatched to the scene and were engaged all morning placing the engine on the track. The cause of the run-off is attributed to the forming of ice on the rails. After the mishap an engine went out and brought back the passengers. The train is consequently delayed until the road bed is cleared up.

Digby Delayed.

The S.S. Digby, which was scheduled to leave Halifax to-day for this port, has been delayed owing to the non-arrival of freight. The recent snow storms blocked the railway line from Yarmouth to Halifax, and also the main line from Truro to Halifax. Both lines are now in working order. The Digby sails from Halifax to-morrow afternoon for St. John's.

He Agreed With Her.

"Men make me tired," declared the conceited young lady contemptuously. "They are absolutely lacking in self-control, judgement, and good taste." "Possibly you're right," retorted the young man, "but just think how many old maids there would be if they were not."

Bell Island Mines Closed.

GERMANY CANNOT TAKE IRON ORE BECAUSE OF FRENCH OCCUPATION OF RUHR. Work has been suspended indefinitely at the mines on Bell Island since Saturday last, and 1,500 men are thrown out of employment, and are being paid off to-day, when they will leave for their homes. It appears that there is no present market for the iron ore product. The last shipment of 6,500 tons left the island on Friday last for Germany, which completed an output of 750,000 tons, or 100,000 tons more than the contract called for. On Saturday last the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. were applied to by wire from the Head Office at Sydney to suspend operations. As far as can be gleaned the suspension of mining is due to the stand recently taken by France in occupying territory in the Ruhr Valley, which comprises Germany's coal fields and Steel plants. Under present conditions orders cannot be received, and it would be useless for Germany to contract for more shipments under present conditions. The operations at the Iron Island last year found employment for 1,800 men up to September. A slight increase had been made in their wage, and during November and December the operating staff was enlarged to 2,400 men, a reduction taking place with the beginning of the year.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

UNDOUBTEDLY. NEW YORK, Jan. 15. Three men, after drinking liquor in a Jersey City saloon yesterday, turned from the bar and fell to the floor doubling up and died without speaking a word. The liquor is believed to have contained fatal ingredients.

NO SYMPATHY STRIKE. CALGARY, Jan. 15. There will be no sympathetic strike of miners in District Eighteen U.M.W., according to a decision reached after a full day's conference regarding their attitude toward the Edmonton strike.

STINNES STRONGHOLD. BOCHUM, Jan. 15. This city, forming the heart of the monster Steel Works of Hugo Stinnes was occupied to-day by French forces.

MAY RESORT TO ARMS. BERLIN, Jan. 15. Following the destruction of French placards in the streets of Essen, the French commander has ordered the German police guard on duty constantly day and night, and advised that the continuance of such acts would mean punishment for the police allowing it. It was also advised that the French would use their arms in the case of further actions of a like nature.

PASSIVE RESISTANCE. ESSEN, Jan. 15. A half hour stoppage of work here to-day, as a protest against occupation by French was carried out, while an anti-French demonstration was carried out in front of invaders headquarters, but no violence occurred.

KILLED AND PLUNDERED. DENVER, Jan. 15. The leader of the bandits, who robbed a Federal Reserve Bank trunk of two hundred thousand dollars in front of the Denver Mint on December twenty eight, last, was found dead in a private garage here last night. He had a bullet wound near the heart and his body was in a car stolen some months before in a neighboring town. He is believed to have been fatally wounded in a fire directed at the robbers as they drove away from the Mint. He had only a few dollars in his pocket when the body was found.

IN THE GRIP OF THE STORM. HALIFAX, Jan. 15. Nova Scotia to-day is recovering from the worst blizzard in eighteen years. National railways are blocked high with snow drifts, and there has been no service since Saturday, with very little on Sunday, while on Prince Edward Island and on the smaller railway lines in Nova Scotia all trains were cancelled on Saturday and Sunday, with hope to re-establish the schedules to-day. Two deaths are reported as directly due to the storm. At Berwick, in Annapolis Valley, an aged farmer returning from his barn, after feeding stock, fell in the snow and was buried two days and two nights before the dead body was found by neighbors. At Yarmouth a ten year old boy bound for Hospital for an appendicitis operation became worse on a stalled train, and died before medical assistance could be procured.

FISHING VESSEL LOST. LIVERPOOL, N.E., Jan. 15. The fishing schooner Ira M. Cunningham failed to return to port on Friday night with others of the fleet and all thought she was lost until the Metagama, outward bound from St. John, reported yesterday rescuing Captain Conrad and crew from the battered and sinking craft. Many narrow escapes are reported.

Mussolini Abstemious And a Hard Worker.

ROME.—Benito Mussolini, the man who at thirty-eight years of age has become virtually the legal dictator of Italy, has a great capacity for work. Since he assumed charge of the Interior, Mussolini has averaged over eighteen hours of hard work every day. At his desk promptly at the stroke of eight, he is still busy at midnight attending to the business of the two most important ministries in his government. During the 15 months in which he was engaged in the organization of the Fascist movement culminating in the peaceful entrance of a hundred thousand of his followers into Rome, October 31st, Mussolini worked an average of twelve hours every day, including Sundays. Mussolini eats little and drinks less. He sleeps about five or six hours out of the twenty-four. His beverage is a light Italian wine with about fifty per cent of water added. His favorite recreations are fencing and walking, and he is said to be a chess player of no mean ability. Italy's man of the hour was an enthusiastic advocate of his country's entrance into the world war on the side of the Allies. He served as a corporal until wounded so severely that he had to be sent to the rear as unfit for further active duty. It is said that his body bears the scars of one hundred and twenty wounds, caused by shell splinters and shrapnel.

Fishery Supplies.

Conditions do not improve in the fish markets as anticipated, and within the next three months the outlook for the issuing of fishery supplies will be the worst on record since the spring opens. Since New Year's many planters and fishermen in the outports have been sending in annual January orders for certain supplies that are necessary early in the year and in preparation for the fishery, particularly twine and rope, and to make new traps and nets and to replace old ones during the winter, as the old ones must be ready when the spring comes.

These orders are not being filled when accompanied by cash and the procedure is the exception and not the rule. The merchants are not prepared, under existing conditions, to issue any credit supplies for the fishery in the coming season. The big supplier informs The Trade Review that he has written to no less than 150 outport dealers in such a way that they stand, and many of them are not last year's but are coming season will be one which nearly everybody will want to repair old ones. This, too, is the general situation.

Another feature that makes the outlook worse than usual is that, at the older men who have saved their living invested in their fishery and fishing property, are they to accept conditions as they are and to make the best of the situation, the young men, held by no other ties, are getting restless and are looking toward getting out of the fishery as long as they can get a satisfactory living in it. They are now realizing that they have come to a stage when this can be done no longer. The realization of the fact that they cannot get twine, rope, canvas, nails, oakum, and other necessities to make ready for the coming fishery, is a circumstance that adds strength to their resolution to leave Canada and the United States and seek a livelihood and the worst that is that very few of them will go to work at the fishery again.

There are only three schooners as far as we can ascertain, being built in the whole country, not including the United States, and very few small fish boats. About a score of old schooners are being repaired. Such a state of affairs in this particular regard during the past three hundred years and is in itself something that should provoke serious consideration in the minds of all who have any regard for the future welfare of Newfoundland.

One hope that naturally presses itself to the mind of the ordinary worker is a possible big development of our land industries—our pulp and paper possibilities, the iron ore of Bell's Island, the copper of Notre Dame Bay, and the old era of fishery supply for Newfoundland is drawing to a close and the time may be when it no longer will be regarded as our leading staple industry. Prices keep at their present low level. This seems to be the logical conclusion. For, if it does not pay fishermen to catch fish, why should he waste his time in doing so when he can find other work that will at least give him a satisfactory living?

It may be possible that the Hummel is the door to the temple of new industrial development and that in Newfoundland that will be few years hence and the world people more comfortable and more providence, especially added to the development by the discovery of the copper wealth now lying dormant in Notre Dame Bay. It is by way it seems that next spring shall have reached the parting of ways and that if the fishery does appear to be a better paying proposition than it is to-day, we shall be compelled to take the new way and appear to be opening up to us a new era of activities in connection with the development of forests and our minerals.—Trade Review.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
SHE GAVE ME A LETTER TO MAIL. She gave me a letter to mail; I said it should go right away. Should catch the first post without fail. I vowed there would be no delay. And into my pocket it went. The letter that never was sent.

I thought of the book she desired. The shopping she asked me to do. I sent up a maid whom she hired. I remembered the coal order, too. I remembered to stop for the meat. She wanted that evening to eat.

I don't like to brag or to boast. As a husband I do as I'm told; I am sure I remember the most of the things that a mind ought to hold. And the gas bill she hands me to-day I even remember to pay.

Weeks after I run through my coat. Through the papers and things I acquire. And discover a sweet-scented note. Which I promptly consign to the fire!

There's ever and always I fall—When she gives me a letter to mail. A good dinner deserves a good cigarette, a bad dinner needs one. Let your choice be CUB.

Why Paper Money is Issued.

Christopher Beck, writing to a London paper in reference to the issue of paper money, says: When a country is obliged to turn from a gold to a paper currency, the result is always an increase in the cost of living. In other words, a depreciation in the value of money. We had to issue paper money in 1914 because the gold had to go out of the country to pay other nations from whom we were buying. They wanted hard cash, you see.

The Great War, however, was not the first occasion upon which the British Government was obliged to make a change. In 1797, at the height of the Napoleonic Wars, paper took the place of gold, and although the cost of those wars was small compared with that of our late struggle, and was spread over twenty years, yet the value of the paper pound fell to sixteen shillings.

At that time it took us twenty-four years to get back to gold currency. In 1790 the French issued notes called "assignats." These tumbled in value so that, within a short time, one gold Napoleon (worth normally twenty francs) would purchase 7,200 francs in paper.

When the Civil War broke out in the United States in the year 1861 the U.S. Government issued paper money, notes since known as "greenbacks."

At once a slump began, and within four years the paper dollar (nominally $1.00) was worth only one shilling and five pence. That was a far worse slump than anything that we have known, and it was not until the year 1879 that the paper dollar got back to its par value.

As for the paper money issued by the Southern States, that went from bad to worse until, like Bolshevik notes, it was worth no more than the paper on which it was printed. Almost every country has had, at one time or another, a similar experience.

No Lloyd George Memoirs.

The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune announced on Sept. 15 last that they had jointly purchased for the United States and certain other countries in the Western Hemisphere the serial rights to the War Memoirs of David Lloyd George, then Prime Minister of England. The price to be paid was $40,000 of which $4,000 was paid in advance. The contract for this purchase has now been cancelled, at the instance of The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune and after legal proceedings had been begun by them against Lloyd George.

The contract was signed after representation had been made by the agent that the work had been begun and was then in progress, and that although Mr. Lloyd George might soon retire from office and thus gain more time to devote to the work, yet even if he remained in office, half of it, he hoped, would be delivered to the purchasers by Jan. 1, 1923, and the remainder as rapidly as possible. However, to meet the contingency of Mr. Lloyd George's long continuance in office and arduous occupation with governmental labors, a period of two years was allowed for the completion of the work.

The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune learned on Nov. 23 that Lloyd George, who had just retired from the office of Prime Minister, was about to enter into a contract with an American "syndicate" to write weekly and fortnightly articles on current topics for a period that, under a proposed option, might be extended to 108 weeks, overlap the two-year period within which the Memoirs were to be completed, and, in the opinion of the purchasers, endangering their delivery and impairing their value.

The two newspapers at once made energetic protest, but on the following day, Nov. 24, Mr. Lloyd George entered into the new contract. A "tois" cable correspondence failing to produce the desired result, The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune, through their London counsel, the Honorable Sir Charles Russell, began an action in the High Court of Justice in London against Lloyd George, asking for an injunction restraining advertisements disparaging or prejudicing the value of the Memoirs, restraining the publication of Mr. Lloyd George's articles written under the agreement made on Nov. 24 with an American "syndicate," and, alternatively asking for the rescission of the contract made by Lloyd George with The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune. Leave was granted for a motion to be heard, but before the date set Messrs. Lewis & Lewis, solicitors for Lloyd George, arranged with Sir Charles Russell for the cancellation of the contract of The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune with Lloyd George and the return to the two newspapers of the advance payment less a part of the commission that had been paid by Mr. Lloyd George to his agent—Newspaperdom.

Copper Horseshoes.

Copper horseshoes as a means of preventing forest fires have recently made their appearance in the forests of the west, and, if the plans of certain forestry officials are carried into effect, this metal will supplant steel upon the hoofs of all horses to be used on public domains where there is any measure of fire hazard. According to some of the supervisors, steel horseshoes used in flinty mountainous regions may have been the cause of some of the mysterious fires that have started in forest reserves. Heavy steel horseshoes striking against flint or hard granite may readily be the source of sparks, which, falling into dry grass or other inflammable material, would quickly cause it to burst into flames if fanned by a breeze.

The Terrors of Death Valley.

Death Valley, a desert region in Eastern California, near the Nevada frontier, lying 100 feet below the sea level, got its name from the fact that in summer it kills. A man can seldom live through three summers in the valley.

The valley is gray and somber. From April to October it is an inferno. From October to April it averages very comfortably. Then come ducks, geese, quail, robins, black-birds, lynx, bobcats, rabbits, coyotes, badgers, bats, mice, gophers, skunks and foxes, only to clear as soon as summer begins again.

Souse a blanket in a tub of water and pull one end out dripping. It will dry thoroughly while you are scrubbing the other half. Dip a handkerchief in water and hold it up. It is dry in a minute's time. Jump into water fully clothed and you will be bone dry to the last thread in half an hour. Ten minutes on the sand will bake an egg hard. Cut beef in thin strips, dip in brine and hang in the sun. It is jerky with in an hour. Alfalfa cut in the field is cured and ready for stacking in less than two hours.

A large part of the valley is a borax marsh. Parts of this carry on a thin crust, but in the south the crust is so thick there is a road across it six miles long, on which they haul the 20-mile loads of borax. Summer heat runs up as high as 160 degrees, the highest on earth. At midnight it often touches 120. The only animal life found in the valley in summer is snakes and other reptiles. The average humidity of Death Valley is only 01 or 1 per cent. It sucks the moisture from a man's body fast enough to send him insane in a few hours without an abundance of drinking water. No man can bear to touch a rock with his bare hands in midday. The first of many deaths recorded against Death Valley and the one that first gave it the name, was when thirty men, women and children tried to cross it. A dozen escaped alive. Ten years later the bones, wagons, utensils, yokes, chains, guns, revolvers, even children's toys, were found. No rain had fallen on them in all that time. The Pitue Indians had diet them untouched from superstitious fear.

High Priestess of Beauty.

In mid-Victorian days a shop in Bond Street was the mecca of hundreds of Society women, anxious to receive or enhance their charms. It was known as the "Temple of Beauty," and in its window, over which the legend "Ever" gleamed in large letters, was a seductive display of cosmetics, at prices ranging from two to twenty guineas. These Madame's baths drew the ladies of rank from the Bond Street shop to the High Priestess of this Temple of Beauty, a middle-aged and elegant Jewess. Among the crowds of women who flocked to this Bond Street Temple, was the elderly widow of an Indian officer, who in addition to a comfortable pension, had a small fortune of £5,000. This widow was ready to make great sacrifices to capture her youth and lost looks. Madame was very willing to do so; she was quick to find a way to the widow's vanity and advantage to her own pocket. Madame concocted a tale of how one of her distinguished customers, a lord, had been smitten by the widow's charms, and had secretly confided to her the desire to be honoured by her hand. It was, of course, necessary, first of all, to restore the widow's good looks, and this Madame intended to do. The price would naturally be high—a matter of a hundred pounds—but the widow was ready to pay almost any price if she could only have the chance of being a Queen of Society. Madame never, and enjoyed secrecy on the widow, pointing out that his lordship did not wish to receive any compensation, for fear of his family opprobrium, but which had been actualized by the wily Jewess.

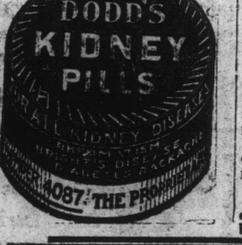

Tree Blushes Like School Girl.

A tree which changes color—blushes like any school girl, is something of a curiosity, and for some time the cause of the blush puzzled botanists. The blushing tree is found in the Florida swamps, and assumes its modest and mysterious glow of color during and for a short while after a rainstorm. As the wet drenches its wet foliage, a change of hue at once takes place. Gradually the tree gives way to pink, which creeps over the leaves, deepening as it goes, till in a minute or two the green is gone. Only by examining closely under the bushes, broad leaves and on the trunk, are a few streaks of green to be detected. The tree, on the whole, is as pink as the cheek of a healthy girl. After an hour or more, the rain having ceased, the tree resumes its familiar green.

One day a naturalist subjected a leaf to microscopic examination. He found the cause of the transformation to be certain tiny insects which live on the tree. These, and not the tree and its foliage, change their color, being as green under the rays of the sun as the tree on which they live. When the cold rain falls on them they contract their infinitesimally tiny bodies and turn pink. Numberless millions of these parasites take part in the performance, so numerous that when they blush their pink makes the green invisible.

A coat and dress suit of white canton crepe features box-pleating in the coat sleeves.

White silk handkerchiefs with brightly colored borders are used as drapery on white dresses.

While the work of restoring the widow's beauty went on, and her vanity quickly dwindled away until she actually found herself owing money to the cunning Jewess which was unable to pay. Then, when Madame Rachel realized that she had not squeezed another sovereign out of her victim, she showed her anger. She applied for a warrant for arrest of the widow, and had her head in Whitecross Street prison failing to fulfil certain financial conditions which she had undertaken. This led to a very indelicious, a fatal for it had the effect of rallying the lady's friends to her support. A investigation was made into her doings with Madame Rachel, the story of cruel imposition was set right, and Sarah Rachel, commonly known as Madame Rachel, found herself in goal on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. In the trial that followed at Old Bailey, the whole story of fraud was revealed to the nation, and amusement of the High Priestess of Beauty discontinued to five years penal servitude. Ten years later she received the same sentence for a similar fraud, and ended her misspent days in prison walls on January 14.

Generous.

These poor little boys next door no mummy or daddy, and no Aunt Jane," said the mother. "Wouldn't you like to give them something—just a small present?" "Yes," said her little son. "Let's them Aunt Jane."

WHEN YOU BUY UNWISELY.

Under what circumstances have you made your greatest mistakes in the selection of your clothes? As I contemplated a gown which I have almost never worn when I could make anything else do duty in its place, and which I am now about to give away after waiting a decent length of time (like a widow) I considered that question.

"I Must Say Something."

That frock had been a mistake from the start. So had a suit that I bought the year before. And as I thought the matter over I say there had been one thing in common about their purchase. They had both been bought when I needed something at once and had gone to town saying: "I must buy something."

I think that is the circumstance which causes more mistakes in most women's selection of a wardrobe than any other factor. Think it over and see if it has not been so with you.

When you make up your mind that you are going to buy something you generally end by buying anything.

A far better way is to have it in mind when you need a certain kind of frock and be on the watch for it and not buy until you see just what you want.

If a woman is going to get the most in clothes-satisfaction out of her husband's money, I think she should do the following:

First, have a budget. Know what she has a right to spend.

Know What You Want.

Second, decide what she wants most. She can't have everything (I am talking about the average woman). What does she want most—smart sport clothes, pretty frocks for the home and for her friends' homes, evening gowns, smart suits for the street? What shall she specialize on? And would she rather have one very smart, simple frock and make it do duty both for the street and for wearing more dressy things or have two less expensive dresses? Every woman ought to answer such questions as these clearly to herself if she wants to get what she wants. One reason most of us don't get what we want is because we don't know what it is.

Thirdly, have a general color scheme that fits her personality and her appearance. To keep changing from one color to another means constant changing of accessories and accessories are disproportionately costly.

Buy Systematically.

Fourthly, have a general plan of renewal. She should consider what she can afford per year for a coat and spread it over the years the coat is to last. Of course she will plan not to buy a winter and spring coat the same year. And she will know when she is going to buy far enough ahead to take advantage of bargains.

And lastly, in the matter of clothes, she should be the pupil of her own mistakes. Everytime she makes a mistake she should analyze it, know why it was a mistake and try not to repeat it.

Which applies, incidentally, not only to selection of clothes.

Trail of Death, Blood and Broken Bones.

WHEN STEEL CABLE DRUM BROKE LOOSE ON S.S. VALACIA.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—A drum of 150 fathoms of steel cable, torn from its mounting on the deck of the British freighter Valacia by a huge wave which smashed over the bow during a storm on December 29, was hurled into the fore-castle and killed two and injured 19 members of the crew, officers of the vessel declared on her arrival here from London, yesterday.

The drum went rolling in every direction of the ship which was riding tempestuous seas wrecked both fore-castles before members of the crew were able to get it under control.

Officers said the Valacia encountered severe gales and tremendous weather immediately after she lost sight of the Cornish light. A westerly gale during the night of the 28th and the morning of the 29th December had the decks well awash and kept the crew working to the exhaustion point.

About 25 men were below decks, resting from their arduous work, when a mounfainous sea broke over the bow and poured tons of water into the hold. Above the hiss of the sea pouring through a dent in the deck sounded a brazen report like that of a huge gong and the drum disappeared into the flooded compartment. It crashed compartment walls, pinned sleeping seamen in wrecked bunks, and left a trail of blood and destruction as it rolled about. The officers described a battle to subdue the huge bulk of steel, as thrilling as Victor Hugo's description of the struggle with a cannon unloosed on a war vessel in a storm-tossed sea.

After a fight which lasted an hour, and during which the Valacia was often in danger of foundering, the drum was lashed.

Arthur Hassel and Charles Tippett, of London, British war veterans, were found to have been killed. Nineteen men were treated for injuries, varying from severe bruises to broken arms and legs. The inside of the ship was badly wrecked.

THE POET.

I read an ode by Seacook Sage — it is the proper thing to read him; his words just now are all the rage and wild applause the highbrows feed him. I read that epic to and fro, from right to left and down the middle, I greatly strove its sense to know, and still it was a beastly riddle. "The way this poet fumes and rants, imputing souls to tiger-lilies," I said in anger, to my aunts, "must give all thoughtful men the willies. One line in ten is fine and grand, and might be written by a master: if 't'other nine you'd understand, you'd have to wear a porous plaster. Life is too short to read a bard who balls you up with far-fetched phrases; I'll throw this volume in the yard, and Seacook Sage may go to blazes." When I am talking to my aunts I tell the truth, as I decry it; but when I go to Culture's haunts I know the truth and yet deny it. That evening at the Highbrow Club I boosted works of Seacook-Sage's, and said he was a gifted dub whose fame would thunder down the ages. I feared they'd think my brow was low if once I started in to jaw him, they'd say I lacked the sense to know a first class poet when I saw him. I would't give ten cents a ton for all the odes this bard is showing, but we are rabbits everyone, and follow where the crowd is going.

Keeping to The Subject.

She: "Well! Let us change the subject. I've done nothing but talk about myself all the evening."

He: "I'm sure we couldn't find anything better to talk about, my dear."

She: "Very well, then! Suppose you talk about me for a bit."

Coué And The Doctor.

Somewhat belatedly, a few of the city's doctors have been moved to take, or at any rate to consider the taking of needed measures to protect the American public from the real dangers which will be created for it by the arrival here in a few days of M. Emile Coué.

They do not say, and it is not necessary to say, that the pharmacist of Nancy is a man of evil intentions or that his method of treatment by auto-suggestion is worthless. According to all reports he is a worthy person, with those who know and advertise him declare, a disinterested desire to serve suffering fellow creatures. That sets him apart from nearly all other originators and practitioners of "irregular" arts of healing, but it does not make him the more competent to deal with disease or to decide in particular cases whether the patients can be helped by his variant of faith cure or should go at once to a trained surgeon or physician.

Nor does M. Coué's vindication lie in what seems to be the fact, that not a few followers of his advice have found themselves the better for it, sometimes to a remarkable degree. Every charlatan has had successes, else would his career be short and his attempts to exploit human credulity unprofitable. Of Couéism it can be said with truth that "there is something in it," just as there is in all the related cults, and as there is, for that matter, in the innumerable nostrums to which the great army of self-dosers resort—nostrums of which the majority began life as the legitimate prescription of a real doctor. But to have utility is not enough, either for a mode of treatment or for a medicine.

M. Coué, to his credit, does not claim to have a panacea for all ailments, but many of his followers and imitators are less modest, and there is less the peril of his invasion. What he purports to do here appears to be "the practice of medicine," and for that he is not qualified under our law, however it may be under the law of France.—N. Y. Times.

The Bushman Found The Water.

The Bushman is looked upon as one of the ethnological mysteries of South Africa. While one of the lowest types of humanity, it is claimed that he possesses extra-human faculties and that he can hear noises that other men cannot hear. He has also the powers of discovering water, as the following incident that happened a short time ago, near Kakamas, as recorded in a South African paper, will testify.

A farmer and a doctor in cart and mules were lost in the desert. Things were serious. They had been without water since dawn the day before. The mules were exhausted; nothing was in sight but the sunlight upon the sand dunes. Suddenly the farmer alighted and ran forward, rifle in hand. A Bushman and then another showed from behind a sand hill.

They remained deaf to all questioning—in their own language, which the farmer spoke a little—as to the whereabouts of water. Then the farmer strapped both the Bushmen, with the doctor's aid to the wheel of the cart, and proceeded to apply the slambok.

It was brutal business, and the doctor, revolting against it, protested: "They may not know of any water after all," he said. The farmer shut his lips very grimly: "They must find water or we must die of thirst," he answered. At last, raw and bleeding, the Bushmen gave in. One could not move, but the second led the farmer less than 300 yards to where an outcrop of rock lay half hidden in sand.

On the far side of that rock was a small spring of clear water, not flowing but just rising to the surface of a cup-like crevice of the rock, which was covered by a flat stone of Bushmen shape. Carried in small quantities to the mules, who had failed to detect its presence, this water, the flow of which was continuous though slow and meagre, enabled them to pursue their journey, one Bushman being taken along as a guide.

Fads and Fashions.

The very short sleeve is seen only occasionally. Long and three-quarter length sleeves are predominant.

Knitted one-piece sports frocks for spring have waist bands, paneled in front and back, and slightly brushed collar and cuffs.

Tongue effects with fans of lace and feathers held with jeweled ornaments are favored on evening slippers.

A sweater of yellow silk is bordered with wool in soft Perstian coloring. Lightly mixed with tinsel threads.

Bindings of white and contrasting color grosgrain ribbon are used on the sleeveless sports jackets which fasten near the bottom.

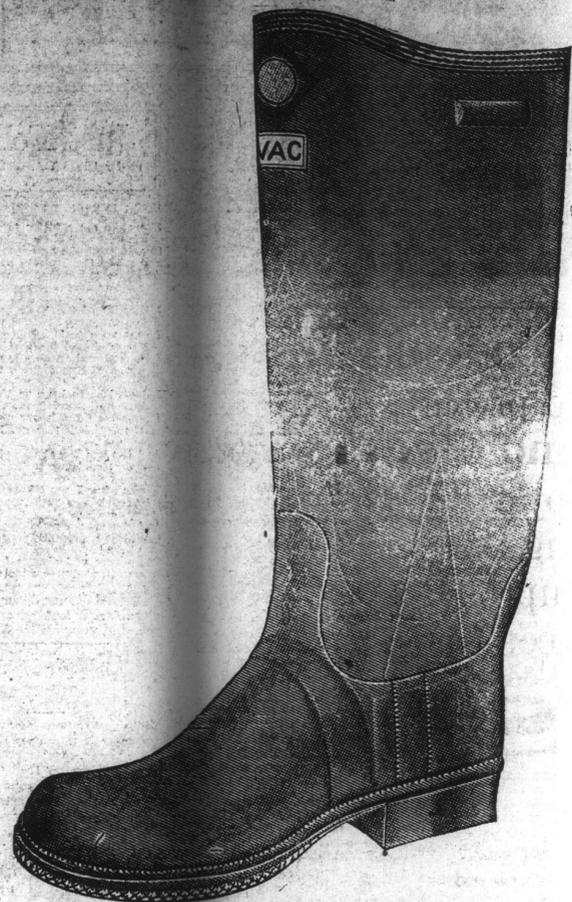

A daytime costume shows its bodice cut in bolero style, and another model of navy taffeta has full puffed paniers on each hip, with a tight draping caught at one side.

Among lace frocks one finds the cape-backed blouse, many models developing the tiny cape jacket or the folds that suggest the cape hung from the shoulder.

Layers of loose pointed panels of Georgette crepe fall from a bodice of silver cloth shot with the color of the crepe. Georgette roses are used for the girdle.

Sheer overslips are worn with elaborately trimmed petticoats, one being headed in a butterfly pattern, another trimmed with lace, ribbon and embroidery.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Under an Act representing the St. John's General Hospital (6 George V. Chap. XIX) and with the approval of the Governor in Council, the Board of Governors have fixed and prescribed the following scale of fees to be levied from and paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the Hospital:

SCALE OF FEES.

Every person receiving treatment in the St. John's General Hospital shall pay fees according to the following scales:—

Persons admitted to the public wards, $1.00 per day.

Persons occupying private rooms, $10.00 per week in addition to the daily fee of $1.00.

To cover cost of dressings, anaesthetics, and for the use of the Operating Room, patients undergoing operations shall pay a fee of $10.00 in addition to the fees specified above.

Every applicant for admission to the Hospital must bring or forward to the Superintendent of the Hospital, certificate signed by a duly registered physician that such applicant is a proper subject for Hospital treatment.

Under the provisions of the General Hospital Act, 1915, all patients who are unable to pay fees shall be required to bring with them a certificate of their inability to pay, which shall be signed by the Resident Relieving Officer, or where there is no such Officer by a Justice of the Peace, a Clergyman or other responsible persons.

The fees of such patients thereupon payable by the Commissioner of Public Charity, by virtue of the said Act.

By order of the Board of Governors.
