Uses 27 Buicks
At the present time we are operating 27 Buick Cars. Some of these were purchased in 1918 and have been rendering dependable and satisfactory service.
We purchased five of the new 1924 cars with four-wheel brakes and I have driven them personally. The performance is good. In fact there is a feeling of safety that does not exist with two-wheel brakes.
The body design is a great improvement over previous models, but the most important feature is the four-wheel brakes.

The Countess of Landon.

CHAPTER XXIX.

He nodded to the men who were approaching them with eagerness in their faces.

"The crowd of worshippers at the shrine of the new divinity," he said. Madge only half understood him, and she stood confused and blushing deliciously as they pressed round her, begging for a dance.

The women looked at her as she stood, the center of the throng, with Rochester towering beside her. They knew, though Madge did not, that her triumph was commencing, and already envy began to burn in their hearts.

"That kind of person always understands the effective in costume," murmured one woman, who had run through three seasons and was still a spinster. "Did you ever see anything so decidedly stagey as her dress? Those primas would look well on the prima-donna of a light opera, and she started with a forced sneer on her thin lips.

"I should have thought Rochester too experienced to be taken in with a dairy-maid sinner and saucer eyes," remarked another in a tone of ungenerous criticism. "Dairy-maid!" was the scornful whisper. "Say rather the smile of a French goubrette. You can see that kind of thing at any of the cafes chantants in Paris. Poor Royce Landon!"

But Madge heard none of these charming criticisms. She scarcely noticed that the women opposite her in the quadrille looked straight over Madge's head as they clasped hands, for she had to remember the figures and the steps and her whole innocent soul was absorbed in the effort.

CHAPTER XXXI.

From her seat among the dowagers the countess watched her and saw her success, but she exhibited no sign of satisfaction, and when one and another of the stately old ladies remarked on Madge's beauty and grace, the countess merely smiled coldly, and inclined her head.

Though the men sought Madge, crowding round her in the intervals between the dances, and the women were evidently smitten, with envy, though these around the countess, stung by the girl's praise, she could not forget the night at the camp—the night Royce had said: "If I come, she must come with me, for she is my wife!" To the proud patrician, Madge was still the spy girl.

Madge had made Royce promise that he would keep near her, but he found it difficult to perform that promise, because so many other men wanted to be near her, at last however, he did manage to get within speaking distance. Lord Rochester was holding her bouquet while she displayed her card, to show a gentleman who implored a dance that she had not one left, the wit of the party was perpetrating bon mots for her special benefit, and the rest of the group seemed waiting on the off chance of being permitted to pay her some small attention.

Royce watched her and her surrounding court with a smile on his handsome face, and constructively looking up, she saw him, and moved toward him, Lord Rochester falling back and instantly absorbed in examining her bouquet.

"Well, Madge," he said, with his easy laugh, "it's very kind of you to notice me. Is your head quite turned, dearest? Are you satisfied? You should be."

She looked at him vaguely, as if she did not understand at first, then she blushed. "It is all delightful!" she said half apologetically, her eyes wistfully seeking his. "But do you think I haven't missed you? You have not been near me, Jack."

The old, dearly-loved name slipped out unawares. "For the best of all reasons," he said, smiling. "What a success you are having, Madge! All the men, and, for that matter, the women, too, are talking about you."

Madge looked round, confused and doubtful. "I don't understand," she murmured. "Everybody is very kind. But are they not always so?"

"Not always," he responded, laughing at her innocence. "I wish I could dance with you. You couldn't pretend to be somebody's wife ten minutes, could you?"

She smiled up at him timidly. "I think I'd rather remain your wife than dance with you," she whispered in a tone which only a lovely woman can use.

"Very well," he said. "I'm going to dance the next with Irene."

A swift and subtle change came over her face. "I should like to see you," she said. "I will watch."

"Do," he said. "I am quite as amusing at this game as a performing elephant. Eh?" as her partner came up with a smile and a bow. "Your dance, is it? All right; goodbye, Madge."

She looked after him wistfully, and for a few minutes the daintiest young gentleman who had secured her for this waltz expended his eloquence on deaf ears. Royce went round the room in search of Irene. He had not noticed her among the dancers lately, and he found her sitting in the palm-house. Seymour was standing beside her, bending over her and talking in a low, persuasive voice. Royce noticed that his face was flushed, and that his eyes were bright and restless with the brightness which is born of the wine-cup. Irene's head drooped, and a weary, harassed expression made her lovely face look strangely pale and sad in the midst of such a scene of gaiety.

half rose with a sort of eagerness and relief, but it died away in an instant, and she sank back as if she had remembered that she could no longer fly to Royce for comfort and succor. "Give me this dance, Renie?" he said. He did not often call her Renie now, but her paler and weariness touched him, and made his heart ache with a strange pang like that of a half-forgotten pain. What had Seymour been saying to her that she should look like that? "Irene is tired," said Seymour almost chirily. As if resenting his attempt to dictate to her, Irene rose.

"Yes, I will dance with you, Royce," she said. Seymour smiled at them, then forced a smile. "Do not dance too long, Irene," he said, soothingly, and he left the palm-house by the opposite door leading to the hall.

"Why does Seymour take such possession of you, Renie?" asked Royce, resentfully. She sighed. "Don't let us talk of Seymour—of anything for a little while," she said. "I am not tired, it was the heat, and—What a success Madge is having!"

"Yes, but I thought we were to talk," he said. "No," she said in a low voice. In the old times she and Royce had often danced together along the corridors and the hall, and they knew each other's paces as only two persons who have danced together as boy and girl can.

Irene closed her eyes, she knew that with Royce's strong arm round her, and his keen eye and sure foot, she could come to no harm, and gave herself up to the dangerous joy, half-delightful, half-painful, which filled her weary, aching heart. The present slipped away from her like the baseless fabric of a dream, and she was once more the happy, light-hearted girl whirling in the arms of her boy-lover just home for the holidays.

To her it almost seemed as if they were alone and that the soft strains of the waltz were being played for them only. And Royce? He held her firmly, yet gently and tenderly, and as he looked down at the face so perfect in its pure loveliness, and saw that the blue-veined lips were closed over the tired eyes, he too remembered the old times and all that she had been to him, and to him also the present seemed unreal and visionary.

He noticed how lightly she leaned upon his arm, how easily he could lift her as some heavy couple came bounding and blundering their way, how fragile and like a delicate flower she seemed among the other women. There was a slight flush on her face and a faint smile on her lips, but the touch of warmth in her cheeks and the shadow of a smile served only to accentuate the sadness which sat upon the flower-like face.

His heart smote him, why, he scarcely could tell. He recalled their childish days. He had always called her his little wife. Once, in the course of his rough play, he had thrown her down and rendered her, for a moment or two, unconscious. He saw the scene now in this crowded ball-room as plainly as if it were being re-enacted. He had picked her up in his arms and pressed her to him, and kissed her—a great thing for a boy to do—and she had come to and murmured with her first breath: "Royce, dear, don't mind. It is nothing—only hold me a little while."

His heart ached and beat fast, and all unconsciously he pressed her closely to him as he had pressed her years ago. "It is like the old times, Renie," he murmured, scarcely knowing that he spoke aloud.

Prophylactic Tooth Brush. MILLIONS PLANNED FOR AUSTRALIA'S SEA AND LAND DEFENCES.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 2.—E. K. Bowden, Australian Minister of Defence, speaking yesterday of the cruisers which the Commonwealth Government plans to construct this year at a cost of £2,000,000 and construct next year at a cost of £1,000,000, stated that the first two of the new light cruisers will be ready in three years. They are intended to gradually replace existing ships.

The cruisers at Melbourne and Sydney will be overhauled at a cost of £100,000 each. Mr. Bowden said, and the Cabinet was considering a proposal by which the number of men in training for the land forces under the universal training system might be increased.

It is not the policy of the manufacturers of Ivory soap to make extravagant claims in its behalf. They simply say that Ivory soap is a good, pure toilet soap and that it will cleanse the skin thoroughly without injuring the most delicate complexion.

Explosions Caused by Flour.

DUST MORE DANGEROUS THAN DYNAMITE. It is not generally known that flour, sugar, starch, or grain dust, are capable of working greater havoc than a high explosive such as dynamite. In a barrel or sack four is harmless. But if you were to take handfuls of it and throw it about until the air in the room was full of it, and then light a match, the house might blow to pieces.

Flour is a combustible substance. When a cloud of it floats in the air of a room every particle is in immediate contact with oxygen, and a flame or even a spark will cause it to burn. Instantaneously the whole of it is converted into gas, which, expanding in a closed area, blows out the walls.

Powdered sugar is also extremely dangerous, while powdered spices, oatmeal, and even soap will explode. A Coal Dust Disaster. Some months ago a workman lifted the lid of a bin containing flour, and held a lighted match inside to see how full it was. An explosion took place immediately, and the unfortunate man was badly injured. Yet it was not the mass of the flour that went off, but only what was about in the air of the bin.

A cake of soap does not burn unless put into a furnace or coal range, but if dry, and distributed in powdered form through the air of a room, it will explode with violence. The requisite conditions in such cases are that the substance shall be combustible and that it shall be plentifully mixed with air in a confined space.

The fact that coal dust will explode has only been realized within the last few years. A tremendous explosion in France, in which one thousand lives were lost, was proved to be due to this cause.

Means of safeguard against all sorts of dust explosions are now being evolved, and many factories are station fans to remove particles of dust from the air. Have you a Suit or Overcoat to make? Fights Blood-Thirsty Sharks.

50 HOURS WITH KNIFE IN SEA—SAILOR ESCAPES UNSCAINED.

NEW YORK, May 6.—To the list of plain men made remarkable by capture of the sea has been added the name of Clarence L. Staden, erstwhile able seaman on the tanker Frederick W. Weller, which arrived recently from Panama. Staden, adrift in the wide circle of the Gulf of Panama, alone except for sharks, fought the man eater's hour in, hour out, with the long blade of a sailor's jack-knife, until the steamer Dorset picked him up. He had engaged in this bizarre warfare with the blood-hungry fish for 50 hours, had eaten no food, had had no sleep, and despite all emerged unscathed.

A note pinned to a forecastle post reading: "good-bye tanker Weller" was the first inkling Captain Samuel Purdy of the Weller had that Staden was missing. From the shelf above his bunk his life-belt was gone as well as the knife the seaman had taken pride in tempering.

Staden, shipmates and officers said, was "inclined to be melancholy" and they offer this as an explanation for his jumping overboard. The assumption was, they said, that once adrift terror and fear of the sharks de-throned any other thought he may have had and he desperately snatched and stabbed at the encircling fins.

India Lost 12,000,000 in Epidemic of 1918.

London, April 23 (A.P.)—Between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000 people in India died during the influenza epidemic in the winter of 1918, it is revealed by the Indian census of 1921. The population in 1921 was 318,849,400, an increase of 1.3 per cent. over the 1911 census, but it is several points under the 1918 estimated census, due to the epidemic.

There are about 9,000,000 more males than females in India, and much headway in education, especially among females, is shown by the 1921 census. In religious beliefs the Hindu number 686-out of every thousand of the population. Mohammedan adherents number 217 a thousand; Buddhist, 37; tribal religions, 31; and Christians, 15.

The density of population in the whole of India is now over a square mile, varying from a maximum of 878 in Bengal to a minimum of six in Baluchistan.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

Upon a rainy day I walked, and as I jogged along I talked with people here and there; "We planned a picnic in the woods," said a lady in a dress; "this rain is beastly good—the weather should be fair. The weather bureau makes me sore; it always lets the torrents pour when sunshine would be right; they never send the goods desired, they are not acting white." "Overalls!" cried Farmer Jones, "this rain is worth a million buns, it saves the country's crops; so pray excuse me if I sing and blithely dance the Highland Flieg, and send up joyous yawns." "This morn I bought a suit of duds, and then the clouds sent down their aids—Behold my raiment now! The driers all have run, the warp and woof have come unspun," exclaimed J. Bindle Dore. "Our Government's a false alarm, if to wet down the granger's farm, it spoils my Sunday suit; its plattitudes I shoo away; for greens and succotash and hay I do not care a hoot." "I had ten tons of overhoes," the merchant said; "I thought I'd lose a lot on them, by jing; I feared I'd need a bargain sale, and get a fraction of the sale such overhoes should bring. ## German Market for Bell Island Ore is Promising

Ex-Kaiser Reported on his way to Silesia— Briand may be Poincare's Successor.

LARGER SHIPMENTS OF ORE TO GERMANY.
MONTREAL, May 13. Mr. M. Wolvin, President of the British Empire Steel Corporation, left this evening for New York to embark on the Berengaria for England, on a short business trip before leaving Montreal. Mr. Wolvin stated that recent developments in Germany make possible the resumption of large shipments of iron ore for the steel industries in the Ruhr. Mr. Wolvin expressed himself as optimistic regarding the prospects for the next few years, as there is every indication of the resumption of a profitable business for the iron ore exports of the British Empire Steel Corporation in Newfoundland, from which source practically no income has been received for some years. Referred to the large stocks of coal that the railway companies and manufacturing plants have carried in the United States and Cape Breton, Mr. Wolvin stated that this condition has to some extent limited the amount of Nova Scotia coal that would be purchased in the Province of Quebec during the present year. He believed, however, that even under these conditions more Nova Scotia coal will be sold in the Province of Quebec during 1924 than during the past year.

BRIAND MAY SUCCEED POINCARÉ.
PARIS, May 13. Discussion in Radical and Socialist circles as to the formation of the new Government indicates that the leaders of the Coalition Bloc of the left will insist upon the Socialists receiving their full share of the honor. Already a strong movement is on foot in favor of a Socialist president of one of the Chambers. This project is pursued up to the opening of the Chambers session seems likely to bring on the first clash between the new majority and opposition. In view of the margin the Radicals and Radical-Socialists will be able to muster without the help of the moderate elements some doubt is entertained as to whether a Socialist could be elected president, even if the Radicals were willing to support him. The former Premier, Briand, remains the most talked of presidential possibility.

CANADIAN FISHERIES SHOW DECREASE IN 1923.
OTTAWA, May 13. Statistics of the fisheries of Nova Scotia for 1923 show a decrease in total production for that year as compared with the previous year, says the Bureau of Statistics. The value of fish marketed, fresh and canned, cured or otherwise prepared, amounted to $3,448,385 in 1923 compared with $10,209,258 in 1922, a decrease of 17 per cent. The cod fishery shows the largest decrease, the value of the product having dropped from $3,565,837 in 1922 to $2,434,492 in 1923. The lobster fishery in 1923 displaced and took first place in order of value with a product valued at $3,081,647, a slight increase over the previous year. The increase in total value of lobster production is due to higher prices, the quality of the catch being less than

Vital Facts for Women

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For such of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

To Stamp Out Slavery

Geneva, April 21 (A.P.)—To give impetus to its work of stamping out slavery in the remote corners of the world, the League of Nations has voted to appoint a commission of six experts on colonial questions to make a complete investigation of the subject. The International Labor Bureau has been asked to name a member for the commission.

Elections in South Africa

London Times: How far the personality, the reputation, and the fighting qualities of General Smuts may sway the country at the elections remains to be seen. Seventeen years have passed since he first took office as Colonial Secretary in the Government of the Transvaal, and more than thirteen years since he joined General Botha's first Administration of the Union of South Africa. His worst enemies will not grudge him his splendid record of services to the Union in the troubled times that lie between. Yet leaders of parties in other countries than South Africa have discovered, to their cost, that a long term of office is not always a recommendation at the polling-booths.

HIGHER TARIFF NEEDED TO HELP INDUSTRY, SAY NATIONALISTS.
LONDON, May 7.—(Canadian Press)—The London Daily Telegraph's Cape Town correspondent reports that the South African Nationalists, emboldened by the threatened failure of Imperial preference, are emphasizing the necessity of imposing heavily increased customs tariffs to stimulate South African industries. The leader of the Cape Nationalists, Malan, speaking near Cape Town last night, said the Nationalist policy was to build up industries without considering the interests of Great Britain, as he accused the present Government of doing.

Irak Gradually to Take Control

BRITISH FORCES TO LEAVE UNDER NEW AGREEMENT.
LONDON.—(A.P.)—The military and judicial agreements subsidiary to the Anglo-Irak treaty, made public yesterday, provide that Great Britain's military support to Irak shall be progressively reduced until Emir Feisal's Government is able to maintain internal order and defence, at the earliest possible moment, but not later than four years from the conclusion of the agreement. During that period Britain may maintain a British garrison in Irak or establish local forces there, for which the Irak Government undertakes to provide facilities. Not less than 25 per cent. of the revenues are to be devoted to defence and security.

Feisal's Government also undertakes to employ British legal experts, with full judicial powers, in the Irak courts. Control of the port of Basra is to be transferred to a port trust approved by the British Government. The cost of civil administration is to be borne from the Irak revenues and the state also agrees to recognize its ability for such assignments with respect to the Ottoman public debt as may be made under the peace treaty with Turkey.

Dressing a Codfish Every Second

Out on the foggy Grand Bank the most arduous task of the cod fisherman is "dressing down." Everyone dreads it, for it means working regardless of hours until the job is done. If the catch has been heavy, midnight, or even the dawn following, sees the entire crew hard at it by the light of flares. No one, not even the cook, commonly known even afloat as "the Doctor," may have any respite. The deck is slippery with parts of the thousands of cod that have been slid from the knife of the slitters into the hold. Cut fingers are of no avail as an excuse for laying off.

The Abuse of a Public Utility

Already the Coaker-Hickman combination are showing what little regard they have for the public by using the daily despatches to broadcast the most misleading and incorrect statements both with regard to the Opposition and also in connection with their own imaginary progress.

No one is likely to be impressed by such obvious falsehoods, and it is certain that the public generally will see in their actions the insincerity of their promises to economise and reduce expenditure.

Promises by the Coaker-Hickman clique are just so many scraps of paper. Panic-stricken because of the defections from their ranks, by the gathering strength of the Opposition, and by their rapidly dwindling chances of retaining their lucrative jobs, they are willing to resort to the meanest methods to gain their ends.

Coaker or Hickman in the role of an economist is reminiscent of the ass parading in the skin of a lion. It would be excellent material for comic opera, but no one for a minute would think of taking them seriously in such a guise. Economy and Retrenchment are unwelcome strangers in the Hickman-Coaker camp.

COAKER CAN'T ECONOMISE.

MONROE STANDS FOR ECONOMY AND CLEAN GOVERNMENT!

A Prompt and Decisive Denial.

Yesterday the Squires organ assumed the position of advisor to the Leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party. The advice was of a twofold nature: first, as to Mr. Monroe's line of action, and secondly, with regard to the disposal of Mr. W. R. Warren.

As to the pronouncement of Mr. W. S. Monroe, that has already been made clear. It is MONROE FOR A CLEAN-UP AND AN ERA OF ECONOMY.

His policy does not need any further explanation, and the voters in the city as well as those who are here from the outports will have all matters made clear to them by the able lieutenants who are looking after the interests of the East and West End Districts.

The second suggestion that Mr. Warren and Mr. Monroe have a private deal whereby the former is to be elevated to the Bench is a FABRICATION, and we are authorized by Mr. Monroe TO DENY IT ABSOLUTELY.

The purpose of this rumor is easily seen, but the public have complete confidence in their new Leader, and are satisfied that his word is his bond.

The LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVES are going to the country with a CLEAN SLATE, and THE PEOPLE will see to it that they are sent back to make the CLEAN UP, which is the chief plank in the MONROE platform.

The Retrenchment Committee.

BARNES and Palais de Luxe on the Parade Ground.

HALFYARD and his little list of travelling expenses.

HICKMAN and the pit props episode.

COAKER and his love for special trains.

Monroe is the Man!

The citizens of this country of all shades of politics, must be prepared to make one united effort to safeguard their interests.

The fate of the country will be decided June 2nd. Surely it is our duty to think seriously and act sanely. Monroe stands for clean Government, is a man of principle and can be depended upon to make good his pledge of Retrenchment and Economy, thereby securing us stability and better living conditions.

Let us then boost him, work for him, and vote for him, and on polling day the Monroe Party will have a majority vote the biggest that Newfoundland ever saw.

For the man that our country now needs.
O for Opposition, the Party he leads.
N for Newfoundlanders they will give him the reins,
R for Retrenchment—where Coaker remains.
O for opportunity to vote Monroe to power.
E for Economy, the need of the hour.
MONROE IS THE MAN.

HIGAMY HEARING.—Patrick Healey for bigamy comes up for preliminary hearing in the Magistrate's Court this afternoon.

What Price, Hickman?

Mr. A. E. Hickman is a native of Grand Bank. Some of his old associates there have wired their congratulations to him upon his assumption of leadership. It was an impulsive act which did more credit to their hearts than their heads. They did not stop to know his policy, or to reflect upon his capacity to carry it out. They did not even reflect upon the price he had paid in the form of inconsistency for the perfunctory honor of leading a herd of Coakerites. He is the man whose blow was a knock-out to the fishery regulations. Coaker is the man who enforced them. The Grand Bankers suffered their evil consequences very acutely. It is, therefore, a crucial question, has Hickman submitted to Coaker, or Coaker to him? "A man is known by the company he keeps." Hickman as leader is in the company of followers all marked "Coaker" on horn, hoof and tail. Surely the kind congratulations will rather be sorry than glad for Hickman when they realize how he has fallen from his high estate. If not, and he wins the battle he is trying for, they would be sorry men, when Coaker forced upon them another crazy fishery experiment. Why has the Hickman who opposed even a controlled Coakerism last year committed himself to an uncontrolled Coakerism this year? What price Hickman?

"In Mr. Bradley," as the Advocate on Tuesday so admirably expressed it, "Port de Grave will have a representative worthy of the District and the confidence and support of the electors."

Mr. Bradley's letter to Mr. Hickman is as follows:—
(Copy).
Hon. A. E. Hickman,
City.
Dear Sir.—A few days ago you honored me with an invitation to become a candidate for the party to be led by you at the forthcoming election. No personal consideration for my support, pecuniary or otherwise, was at any time either offered by you or asked by me. I accepted the invitation

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

May 13.—All the news still of the elections, and scarce any candidates announced, albeit polling day now less than three weeks distant. I learn to-day how the Opposition men in St. John's will be Russell, Bennett and Captain John Parsons; in St. John's West, Sir J. C. Croble, Linegar and Brown; and in Bay de Verde, Cramme and Puddister. Mr. Morris will go with Dr. Arch Tatt to Trinity, and Mr. Harold Mitchell like to be with them. Mr. Warren, I learn, goes to Fortune as an Independent, and Mr. Jeffery will be the Monroe man against him. It is given out to-day how Mr. F. Lukins will be the Government man in Fortune, and G. Harris and J. Chessman will go for Hickman to Burin. The greatest news of the day is of G. Bradley, that was to be the Government man in Port de Grave, now coming out for Monroe, and shows how weak is the Hickman party. By despatches out of England, news of the visit which their Majesties of Rumania make to London, and a great state occasion made of it. The weather grown cold to-night, so I remain at home by the fire, and to read all the evening, to my great content.

Bradley Will Not Touch Coakerism.

Mr. F. Gordon Bradley notified Mr. A. E. Hickman last night that in view of the fact that the Coaker element commends the situation, he could not possibly associate himself with the party. Mr. Bradley, like many others, took the promise of Coaker that he was withdrawing from the political field at its face value, but as soon as the personal of the administration was published, he at once realized that Coaker outside the Government was an even greater menace than Coaker in the ranks. He promptly refused to lend himself to the conspiracy, and has decided to give the whole of his support to the Monroe Party.

"In Mr. Bradley," as the Advocate on Tuesday so admirably expressed it, "Port de Grave will have a representative worthy of the District and the confidence and support of the electors."

Mr. Bradley's letter to Mr. Hickman is as follows:—
(Copy).
Hon. A. E. Hickman,
City.
Dear Sir.—A few days ago you honored me with an invitation to become a candidate for the party to be led by you at the forthcoming election. No personal consideration for my support, pecuniary or otherwise, was at any time either offered by you or asked by me. I accepted the invitation with the understanding that Sir William Coaker and his Union had retired from politics; that at most but three or four former Union-candidates would be of the party; and that their allegiance would be to you.

Yesterday I learned from the Royal Gazette the personnel of your new Executive Council. To the individual gentlemen who compose it I have no objection, but as a body it is extremely objectionable. It is quite apparent that the alleged retirement from politics of Sir William Coaker has not the slightest foundation in fact. It is further quite evident that his influence upon the party behind the scenes is now far greater than when he was openly a politician, in fact to-day he is the dominant influence in your party. Your policy and leadership will be subordinated to that influence if you are to retain the name of leader.

As I view it such a situation constitutes a grave menace to good government and to the recovery of this country from its present unfortunate position.

Under these circumstances I find it impossible to continue a member of a party which is not in fact what it was represented to me to be, and must therefore withdraw therefrom.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) F. Gordon Bradley,
May 13, 1924.

Farewell Dance

AT GRENFELL HALL LAST NIGHT. Upwards of 250 couples attended the dance and supper in Grenfell Hall last night, as a farewell to Mr. Pushe the dancing instructor, who is leaving by the next Red Cross boat on an extended visit to New York. The evening was a very enjoyable one, and the affair did not conclude until an early hour this morning. In the elimination dance, the prize, $10.00 in gold, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cleary. During the interval, Mr. Percia Jardine, on behalf of those present, wished Mr. Pushe an enjoyable stay abroad, and presented him with a purse of gold. In reply, Mr. Pushe thanked his friends for their kindness and good wishes, and expressed his hope to see them all again in the near future. At the close Marshall's bus made a tour of the city, taking the dancers to their homes. The music during the evening was supplied by the Prince's Orchestra.

The funeral took place on Friday, May 9th, and was solemnly attended by citizens from the outlying settlements.

T.A. Card Party and Dance

A very enjoyable dance held last night at the T.A. Hall, under the patronage of the T. A. Ladies' Auxiliary was attended by about eighty couples. The affair began with a card party, which was followed by supper served in their inimitable style. The prizes in the card games were won by Mrs. M. Shea and Mr. J. O'Neill. To the excellent music provided by the C. C. Orchestra, a select programme of dances was gone through, and when the National Anthem was played, at an early hour this morning, all went home thoroughly pleased with the night's festivities.

Magistrate's Court.

An ordinary drunk was discharged. A 32-year-old seaman arrested under warrant was charged with the larceny of 2 coats, and 1 pair of short boots from on-board the S.S. Walter Kennedy, valued at $15.00, and the property of Capt. Samuel Simmons. Owing to the Crown not being ready to proceed the accused was not asked to plead. He was remanded to the penitentiary for eight days.

Mr. Trappell will sing "When a Feller Needs a Friend" to-night. Hear him.—may14.11

Here's Consistency!

"Hickman is the people's choice," says the Advocate. Wrong, brother! Hickman is Coaker's choice.

"Hickman, the renegade Liberal," said the Advocate only one year ago. "Hickman, the Liberal leader," says the Advocate to-day. Which is the turnout?

Query: Why is Hickman smarter than an Ethiopian?

Answer: Because he can change his skin—in a mighty short time, too!

The Advocate yesterday announced Mr. Fred Lukins as government candidate for Fortune Bay. Two lines below it said: "The only way to bear trouble is to convert them into blessings"—by lying about them, of course!

"Mr. W. J. Higgins," says the Advocate, "caused the downfall of the Liberal Government under Warren. He also reduced Warren from his old colleague. And then he broke the Warren Government of a day." Mighty man, Higgins! Was that why Coaker wanted to coalesce with him, under Warren? It sounds like "sour grapes," brother Advocate. You would boost him if you could see him!

The Advocate in an advance announcement of the Hickman Manifesto, (written by Mr. Hickman, of course) says that "it is the fearless and practical statement of a man of business methods." It will deal, of course, with Coaker's Fishery Regulations, vintage of 1920, and will explain why Hickman violated them. Incidentally, it will deal in this connection with the charge that he broke his engagement with Fishery Minister Coaker about the fish he sold in violation of the Regulations. It will be immensely refreshing to read Hickman on Coaker, and what Coaker does not know about the fish business. As the Advocate truly says: "Our fellow countrymen will welcome such a pronouncement."

Manifesto of the Liberal-Conservative Party To-Morrow

The Manifesto of the People's Leader, W. S. Monroe, will be published in the Telegram to-morrow. The practical views of a practical man, its frankness and sincerity will appeal to the public, who have long since wasted a great deal of money made by the organ of the man whose every action contradicts them. Look out for the Manifesto which bears the stamp of sincerity, and is the guarantee for CLEAN GOVERNMENT.

"When a Feller Needs a Friend"

PLAYED TO GOOD AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT. There was a better attendance at last night's presentation of "When a Feller Needs a Friend." The performance was even better than the previous nights and the audience was very appreciative. To-night will witness the final performance and it is hoped that there will be a big audience present as the play itself deserves recognition, and the object, the Catholic Cadet Corps, is a worthy one. The specialties last night were remarkably good. Miss Redstone's song "In Old Madrid," was very pleasing and was encored. Mr. Trappell sang "When a Feller Needs a Friend" and had to respond to several encores. Miss Harris sang "The Little Dancoel," and "Nursery Rhymes," made a great hit. Miss Keegan's rendition of Mark Antony's oration was the best thing heard in recent years.

Mount Cashel Band will play at the performance of "Snow-White" in St. Joseph's Hall to-night.—may14.11

Horse Take Fright

A horse with long cart attached, belonging to Mr. Peter Summers, took fright near King's Beach shortly before 2 o'clock and bolted at a furious rate west along Duckworth Street, scattering pedestrians in all directions. While the infuriated animal was galloping along the foot of Prescott Street, a woman narrowly escaped being run down, was only saved from being run over by the presence of mind of a passer by. The beast continued on and ended its mad dash by colliding with a hydrant near the Government Savings Bank. The horse escaped unharmed.

Big Vaudeville Show at Crescent To-Night

A FEAST OF FUN AND EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT.

The Crescent Theatre has prepared a treat for its patrons to-night, in the form of a big local vaudeville programme, with the best variety talent in the city. The items are: Character Songs, F. King, Newell and Green, two of the city's most accomplished vocalists will be heard in Duets and Solos. Master Micky Michaels, the talented youthful Soprano, will also appear in new selections. And last, but certainly not least, is our old friend Dan Deimar, who will present his famous Female Impersonation. As an impersonator Dan stands in a class all to himself, and in this particular character he is a scream. This programme we recommend as the biggest show in the city to-night, therefore an overflowing house is assured.

An extremely well told story is "Sherlock Holmes," the feature film at this theatre to-night. John Barrymore plays the title role and gives a splendid idea of that snooting, observing detective of all those stories. The picture is intensely interesting all the way through, bringing in many exciting moments by means of ugly looking creatures who think only of death. There is a royal romance causing the death of a girl. The dead girl's sister is in possession of some love letters, from a Prince, and a deadly gang want said letters for the purpose of blackmailing the Prince. Here is where the wits of Sherlock Holmes come in. Of course, he defeats the blackmailers with all his well-known skill and daring, and incidentally wins the girl's hand for his trouble. The photography and direction of "Sherlock Holmes" could scarcely be better.

THE OLD BLACK HEN.
Mother, is the old black hen going to be sent on a holiday?
No, Tommy, what a funny thing to ask. I heard papa tell the new governess he would take her out driving when he had sent the old hen for a holiday.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LABOR GOVT. AGAIN VICTORIOUS. LONDON, May 14.
The Labor Government again came out victorious in the Commons to-night when the Conservative motion, moved by former Premier Stanley Baldwin, for retention of McKenna's duties, which Premier MacDonald had accepted as a motion of censure, was rejected by a vote of 317 to 325. The debate on the motion was almost wholly confined to the automobile industry and the effect the removal of duty would have on employment in that field. The Conservatives voted straight for retention of duties but the Liberals joined with Labor in defeating the motion.

BORDEN SUGGESTS EMPIRE REPRESENTATIVE

LONDON, May 14.
Sir Robert Borden would bring the whole of the British Empire into closer co-operation by a system of Resident Ministers in the British Isles, to voice the opinion of the Dominions on the external affairs of the Empire, according to a suggestion brought forward by him in a public speech here to-day.

THE WHOLE REPORT AND NOTHING BUT THE REPORT.

LONDON, May 14.
Prime Minister MacDonald, addressing the women of the Labor Party at the Albert Hall, this evening, said "Our greatest problem now is getting the Reparations Experts' Report into operation. Of some things therein, I am a little suspicious, but it were to examine every line and paragraph and every proposal in the report, where would we end? I feel that what the Labor Party did after twenty-four hours study of the report, namely, announcing to the world that the report would be put into operation as it was, was the right thing to do if that course is pursued, Europe will have a new chance of finding its feet. Germany, France, Italy, Belgium and ourselves, none of us can afford to go into details. It must be the whole report and nothing but the report."

SAVED IN THE NICK OF TIME.

GAGSTOWN, N.B., May 14.
Walter McAllister, aged twenty-one, was found in the St. John River, today, clutching an overturned canoe, but unconscious. After being brought ashore it took the strength of two men to pry his grip loose from the craft. He was revived and will probably be quite recovered in a few days. It is believed he had been in the water over two hours.

A BULL MARKET IMPENDING?
A Belief That we are in an Era of Accumulation.
BOSTON.—Zornbrower & Weeks in special circular to customers say in part:
"In September, 1922, you will recall that we brought the situation existing in the stock market and in business to your attention by a letter of analysis, from which we quote the first paragraph:
"Once in every three to seven years an unusual opportunity is presented in our securities market to place funds for investment or speculative purposes that subsequently return substantial profits, which are, however, measured largely by the calibre of the securities purchased. Such an opportunity came in the year 1903, 1907, 1914, and we believe a like opportunity obtains at the present moment."
We believe that we are on the threshold of another cycle movement somewhat similar in character to the bull market which ran from late 1921 to early 1923.
"Some stocks are undoubtedly already in an area of accumulation which we think will soon be extended in greater detail.
"What should be borne in mind at this time is that unfavorable surface factors can be disregarded and a buying position considered whenever the market is reactionary. It should be remembered, however, that a period of accumulation is marked by contrary movements, and this may be especially true of the motor and equipment groups at this time."

What he Drank

The popular parrot at the old Cheshire Cheese, Fleet Street, has amused thousands of visitors to the historic tavern—the latest being Mr. Philip Snowden, M.P., the Chancellor of the Exchequer.
The other night, when Mr. Snowden was a guest there at dinner, he was reminded of a visit paid to "The Cheese" by Mr. Baldwin, when Chancellor. Just then a waiter turned to the parrot and said, "Tell the Chancellor what Mr. Baldwin drank when he was here."
"Scotch!" came the pat reply.
"Well," said Mr. Snowden, laughing, to the parrot, "don't you go and tell the next Chancellor who dines here that I drank ginger ale."

What adds interest to Miss Swann's work is that she was a milliner before the war.

Sir Wm. Mulock Mentioned

FOR THE POSITION OF CHIEF JUSTICE OF CANADA.
TORONTO, May 6.—Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, and Chancellor of the University of Toronto, may become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir Louis Davies, says a Globe news agency.
His Lordship's name is being associated with the appointment, although no official action has been taken by the Cabinet at Ottawa.
Should Sir William Mulock be transferred to Ottawa this will leave the Chief Justiceship of Ontario vacant. In its action now before the high court of Ontario the Provincial Government claims the right to name the Chief Justice of the Province, and to designate the Judges who make up the Court of Appeals. Ottawa disputes this claim, and an interesting situation might arise in legal circles if the Federal Government appointed Sir William's successor and Ontario disputed the appointment.

A philanthropic woman was visiting a insane asylum. There was one old man there who roused her special compassion.

"How long have you been here, my poor man?" she asked.

"Twelve years."

After several more questions she passed on, and her guide informed her that the old man was the medical superintendent.

"I'm so sorry, doctor," she cried, hurrying back. "I'll never judge by appearance again."

SIDE TALKS.

THE SPENDING SPECTER.

Do you ever have a spending spree? Times when your ordinary money seems to take wings and fly away? Generally these spasms come on when you are spending some larger sum of money than you usually handle, and all smaller sums seem to be diverted in comparison. This is the sort of thing I mean.

Some friends of mine have been building a house. The money that they have saved for years is now being spent. Which means that where, as a rule, they spend perhaps $3,000 or $4,000 a year, this year they are spending, in addition to their usual $3,000, some $7,000 or $8,000.

We think we've GOT to have them. And this is what has happened. "I think we must have gone crazy about money," the wife told me. "We seem to think we've got to have all the things we've been waiting for for years right now. We're put in all sorts of electrical contrivances. Jim keeps saying now is the time, if we don't do it now we never will."

"I've wanted a kitchen cabinet for years and I'd kept putting it off because I hated to spend the money. But when I saw my new little kitchen I felt I just had to have it, and Jim said to go ahead. And he made me buy a $50 one when last year he thought a $40 one was too extravagant. I hope we get this house finished and settle down pretty soon, or we won't have a cent to our names! The house cost us more than we expected, and we ought to be doing without this year, and instead we are buying more than we ever bought before. I don't know what's happened to us."

Like Nickles and Dimes.

I think I do. They have been spending out such large sums of money that smaller sums of money have grown to seem trifles to them, to be thrown around like nickles and dimes.

It's the same sort of thing that happens when you buy an automobile—and I suspect that is why so much money is made in the automobile business in accessories. When a person who has spent out from $500 or $600 to $5,000 or $6,000 for an automobile, comes to fit it out, the lesser sums that must be paid for that extra tire and the special spot light, and the shock absorbers, and the speedometer, and the thousand and one things that can be put on a car—especially if it is the world moment when the intoxication of spending money had loosened the inhibitions of common sense and caution.

Beware "That's Only Ten Dollars."

Beware the times when instead of saying: "That costs $10, I wonder if it's worth it?" you find yourself saying, "That's only $10—I might as well have it."

And yet, too many inhibitions, too constant a repression, are like all work and no play. Maybe we need these spending spasms to keep us going. I wonder?

Just by the Way

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Belinda,—I don't see why the men should have all the say about politics, do you. Really! 'Us rather mean to have elections this time of year, just when the housecleaning is on, and really one can't do duty to both! Almost as bad as the Enquiry, when a whole morning would go before one knew it, and like all dutiful wives I cannot possibly get the papers till hubby has done with them. Now if I had a vote it would be more exciting. But I fear if Mr. Coaker gets in I'll never get it. I don't think he would approve of women voting, do you?

I always imagine he must take after some of those grand old Johnnies who lived in the good old days who believed in women being kept in their place. Do you know Mr. Coaker's Advocate says so. I'd just love to really meet him. Oh, I did see him once, some years ago, when he first came up from Port Union, and then he was rather shy I think because he thought the ladies in St. John's didn't wear enough clothing, on their necks of course. So as my neck was rather bare that day I didn't dare look at him, and I hear he was an eye like a gimlet. Poor dear man, how he must have suffered, because since those days the dresses have been growing scantier at both ends.

But then I forget, he has made some trips to the West Indies, and there, I believe, the ladies' costumes are very scant at times, coloured ladies of course, so he wouldn't be quite so shocked at the fashions. And the Advocate says he is so thoughtful for the feelings of others. Perhaps, of course, it means the people in his Union. But surely you remember how some years ago he wanted to see grass growing in the streets of St. John's, Water Street, especially. I believe, no doubt he meant that kindly. I'm sure he meant the dust, nothing else. You know how horrid it is on a dusty day when a motor rolls by, and one is nearly suffocated. Well, there's no doubt Mr. Coaker had dust in his mind. Just think how delightful to roll along on nice grassy streets, how peaceful and quiet it would be: No noise or bustle to be heard. Of course there must not be so many motors, only for a privileged few.

I'm sure dear Mr. Coaker would enjoy driving his car in St. John's on nice grassy streets, far more than he does now. The lovely peace and quiet would remind him of some of those delightful little outbursts where they say grass is growing on the streets, and no people to trample it down as they have all gone away. Some people say if he gets the Government he will again start sowing lawn seed, especially on Water St., and particularly in the neighbourhood of the City Club and Board of Trade, which he thinks is far too noisy and disturbing to his work.

How very interesting the Advocate was on Monday night I think. I compared our city to Sodom and Gomorrah. (I hope I've spelt it right). So old-fashioned and sweet of them. Wasn't it. There Lot's wife was turned to a pillar of salt. I fear my Bible history is weak, but really when the Advocate tries to elevate us it is rather bewildering isn't it? But I knew there was something to do with salt. Dear Mr. Coaker! he was awfully fond of salt some years ago; he got such a lot of it, and a large quantity seemed to disappear. I suppose, it melted. Perhaps 'twas Kruschen Salt, if so he drank it. He must have, and no doubt that explains why 'twas so awfully expensive as it does the colony a tremendous lot of money. But it 'twas Kruschen it's done him good. He was so sick when the Enquiry was on some months ago, couldn't bear to leave Port Union. But my, the Kruschen is working wonders now for him. They say he is so active. And he's so generous, to his followers especially. If he hasn't taken all that salt, they will certainly get their share. Or perhaps he has had some of that wonderful new treatment, in the form of injections. You can get it for ever, to give one support; they give brass, but I hear lots of his party don't need any brass injected, they have lots in their makeup, but they'd like some more in their pockets. The feel of it does wonders for some people. But there's no doubt Mr. Coaker has had some, since there has been such an improvement in his health since February. But did you notice how many men were ill then; then seemed to be suffering from loss of memory. 'Twas very strange, but there is no doubt they have all had brass injected since. Mr. Walker would be delighted to know they have recovered so rapidly since he left. 'Twas rather strange the fashionable disease of that time did not affect him. He seemed immune against it.

Well, really I have written you a very long letter, but when I get chatting about dear Mr. Coaker I really can't carry away. He is so popular in St. John's and his name is on everybody's tongue, and his lovely interesting little paper keeps it so fresh in one's memory. It's a lovely little paper, isn't it? I don't believe if we hunted the Empire through we'd find its equal, for some things of course. Do come and see my new spring hat and the paper in my drawing room. Ta ta dear.

Yours,
BETSY BUSY.

Digging up the Old Things

Between digging up old things and inventing new ones, the scientifically-inclined citizens are kept busy. One of the latest expeditions we read about is that which is to set out from England for the Tanganyika Territory in East Africa, to recover the extraordinary remains of dinosaurs unearthed by Germans just before the war. Dr. W. E. Culter of the University of Manitoba, the well-known collector of pre-historic specimens, is arriving in London this February to take charge of the expedition, will leave London a few weeks later on its two years' journey.

The German discoveries indicated that the East African dinosaurs were twice the size of the largest in British museums, although that is eighty-four feet long. German East Africa, which passed into British hands during the war, has become a region of great interest to scientists the world over, and American museum authorities have asked for permission to recover dinosaur remains for their own collections. These dinosaur remains lie at Tendagarit, nine hundred feet above the sea level and perhaps forty miles from the coast.

In January, the steamer "Crissfeld" docked at Philadelphia, laden with 85 tons of relics from Egypt and Palestine, unearthed by expeditions of the University of Pennsylvania.

Last spring, the explorers from an American University returned from an Eastern trip with two dozen dinosaur eggs, said to be millions of years old. One of the eggs appeared to contain part of the skeleton of a small dinosaur. Otherwise as "Punch" of England declared, the two dozen seemed to be in fairly good condition.

Then we had a despatch from New Orleans which stated according to a lecture delivered by Count Byron Khun de Prorok, archaeologist and artist, that hipostics and roque, as well as delicately-perfumed face lotions and powders, more than twenty-three centuries in age, have been unearthed in the ruins of Carthage.

This young scientist has been in charge of the excavation work at the ancient city for the last three years and is considered one of the world's prominent authorities on the subject of archaeology. He said the excavators also found thick-lens spectacles, a terra-cotta pipe organ, perfume vaporizers, the tomb of Hannibal and his family, his elephant stable; also they discovered the boudoir of a lady of high rank containing many cosmetics and articles suited for Milady's dressing table.

This archeologist, with the fancy name prophesied that excavators will yet find great wealth—the treasures of the Gothic conquerors—buried beneath the remains of the city of Carthage. Also—and this is of more interest to be learned—the Count believes that the lore of ancient libraries will yet be revealed in that historic spot.

It was a woman, according to the old tales, who founded Carthage—none other than the Tyrian princess, Heliassa, usually known as Queen Dido. She was a masterful lady who, when persecuted by her brother, Pygmalion, fled to Africa and made a real estate deal with Iarbas by which she became possessed of the land on which Carthage was subsequently built. Iarbas was not an honest soul and tried to force Dido to marry him. This lady, who was a widow and desired to remain unmolested, found that Iarbas was determined to make her the sharer of his fortunes and decided to burn herself to picturesque cinders rather than be Mrs. Iarbas.

Therefore the funeral pyre of Queen Dido lights the best with the name of Millicent Womanhood. Of course, Virgil has a different story about her falling in love with Aeneas, but those who knew most about Dido say that there is nothing in the Virgil story, for Dido had been dead ever so long before Aeneas began to wander about the Mediterranean. Anyway, all authorities declare that Dido was beautiful and that she brought from the sophisticated city of Tyre many new perfumes and beautifying creams. So, certain that as soon as they were free to do so they would insist upon her abdication. Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide abdicated her throne in January, 1919, and entered a convent, a course which she had already contemplated following at the time when the Kaiser was trying to marry her to his youngest son, Joachim.

In the last year of the war she seems to have lost her fear of the Kaiser, even to the point of attempting to intrigue against him; but it was not to the Allies that her sympathies were transferred. They were enlisted on behalf of Catholic Bavaria against Protestant Prussia, and a mysterious visit which she received in 1918 from the German Chancellor, Count Hertling, was interpreted in many circles in Luxembourg as meaning that Bavarian particularist ambitions were coming to a head and that a plan had been formed for including Luxembourg, together with Alsace and Lorraine, in an independent Greater Bavaria. If, however, such a scheme was ever considered, the collapse of the German armies and Kurt Eisner's unexpected revolution made its execution impossible.

James Oliver Curwood's Stirring Story

"GOD'S COUNTRY AND THE LAW" NOW AT THE NICKEL.

The Nickel Theatre offers for its mid-week attraction James Oliver Curwood's stirring story "God's Country and the Law." Every book-lover in St. John's knows what to expect from the pen of Curwood; he has never been known to make a failure and this picture may be recommended as one of the finest screen entertainments you have ever witnessed.

"Do you believe in superstition? If you do, you no doubt know of the legend of the age of 'spades' and 'devis' linger."

"But, after all, is superstition a habit or a fear that has been injected into one's life? "Is it an inheritance? There are those who believe it is, but the majority of those who are inclined to characterize as absurd superstition of any story, will argue that it is merely a sign of timidity—or fear. But is it?"

"That is the perplexing, interesting and timely question that is answered in 'God's Country and the Law,' which will be shown at this Theatre on to-day.

"This production, which deals with love and adventure in the Great Northwoods, is adapted from the story of James Oliver Curwood. It is the most extraordinary entertainment that it provides, but in addition to that it solves that perplexing problem: "What is superstition?"

The programme of solos and duets by May Jackson and Ernest Miller is in itself an entertainment unusual. They have already won the appreciation of our music-lovers which means that their engagement is going to be crowned with success.

Dinner Cost a Throne

In the months immediately preceding the outbreak of the great war one would have thought Marie Adelaide, Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, whose death was recently announced, one of the most fortunate severals as she was undoubtedly one of the most beautiful of European princesses, says the London Times.

"Nothing could have been more gracious and charming than her demeanor at a village fête in which I saw her take part at Vianden in July, 1914, when she was just 29. Yet even then her reputation for being not quite what a stranger would have expected and thought becoming. After the hand had ceased to play and the bouquets had been smilingly accepted and the Luxemburgers had sung their national anthem—"We want to remain faithful—are"—one could not help hearing certain murmurs. The Grand Duchess, people were saying, was "too fond of Prussians."

She certainly was not so fond of them that she wanted them to invade her country; but they were unquestionably a great many Prussians hanging about her court, and when the invasion came it found her surrounded by Prussians and to some extent Prussianized. None the less the Grand Duchess telegraphed a protest to the Kaiser and then fled. A lady of her court, who had then to my diadon hotel for refuge, told me that she had seen her and her sisters and the younger sisters governess all sitting round the room together—and all of them in tears.

Whether after that the Grand Duchess was frightened or capitulated was uncertain at the time and still remains uncertain. Her enemies said that she was a pro-German; her friends that she was humiliating herself in the hope of saving her country from the fate of Belgium. On the whole, as time went on it was the view of her enemies which prevailed. In September 1914—a date at which a number of her subjects were lying in the Trier Prison, treated there with as little solemnity as common criminals—she invited the Kaiser to dinner and treated "the glorious" German army."

There can be little doubt that the dinner cost the Grand Duchess her throne. Her people never forgave her for it. Their fury was intensified by a telegram which she sent to the Kaiser in 1915, congratulating him on his victories and by her ready assent to her sister's marriage to the then Crown Prince of Bavaria. It became

Those censors who are pointing so bitterly to the modern fopper as an entirely artificial young person, who is practising the most "lureful" description by resorting to the powder puff or the vanity box, would do well to consider feminine ways, in the light of the results of excavation in Thebes and Carthage. The fopper of to-day is probably an understood person in comparison with the young lady of high estate who tried her arts on Hannibal.

Lioness and Antelope Fight

"In November last I had a camp on the Chirua River, a stream running from the Dowa hills east into Lake Nyasa, the camp being some 8 miles from the lake. I had been away for a couple of weeks leaving a watchman and a few "boys" in charge, and on my return they produced the skins of two half-grown lion cubs that had been killed by a sable antelope two nights previously within a few hundred yards of the camp. It seems that for several nights a lioness with three cubs passed the camp on the way to drink at the river, returning again before daybreak to some scrub clad hills a few miles to the west, says the London "Field."

 "About midnight on this particular night the boys heard sounds of a great struggle going on some 300 yards away in the direction of the river and concluded that a lion was attacking some large animal. At daybreak the boys went to the spot to find out what had happened and picked up the spoils of a lioness with three cubs, together with tracks of a bull sable.
 "Following this spoor they arrived at the scene of the combat and found within a few hundred yards of the camp. It seems that for several nights a lioness with three cubs passed the camp on the way to drink at the river, returning again before day-at the edge of the trampled grass lay a lion cub with its skull smashed in, and a little further on another dead cub, also with its skull smashed in a similar manner, but no wounds on the body of either.

 "From here the tracks of a lioness and one cub led up into the foothills, where all traces were soon lost on the dry, hard ground, while the spoor of the sable led down to and across the river, the animal apparently going strong and practically unhurt. It would appear that when the lioness attacked the sable he put up such a good fight that he got clear away, leaving two dead cubs, killed probably by kicks. They did not appear to have been struck by the horns, as there was no hole in the skins of either. I have known of sable being attacked by a lion and both animals being afterwards found dead, but this is the first instance I've known where the buck has got clear away, and especially after killing two cubs.
 "One would suppose that the infuriated mother would have taken revenge at all costs, whereas she apparently retired with her one remaining cub, leaving the sable master of the situation. It is a great pity I was not there at the time; thus I can only vouch for the spoor and the condition of the ground, the smashed skulls and the skins of the two cubs, showing no wounds whatever, but with large discolored patches on the inner side of the scalps. Personally I have no hesitation in believing that my boys' version is true in every detail."

Our Political Problems

And How to Solve Them.

(By ANALYST.)

"Law is holy; ay, but what law? Is there nothing more divine Than the patched-up broils of party—Vandal, full of meat and wine? Is there, say you, nothing higher? Naught, God save us! that transcends Laws of bank-note texture, wave by vulgar men for vulgar ends?"
 The secret of good executive work is to delegate authority and to instill loyalty and teach method, so that each subordinate, in his own place, will really be in a way a part of the chief himself. That can't be done here. A man can't pick his subordinates to suit himself; he cannot train them, and, except in very rare instances, their loyalty is not to him, but to a party, or to some other man, or to some outside interest. Often it is even against their superior. Often enough it is to nobody but themselves and to nothing but holding their jobs. In such circumstances, work cannot possibly be well done.

Let me here repeat a recent story of a politician who had urged the appointment to a rather high place of a man who was obviously a poor executive. The politician admitted this. "But he's the man needed now," he explained. "That office is full of opponents of the government who are doing their best to make a poor showing and hurt the administration. This man will get them out. Then we can get one who'll run the office right."

Owing to persistence in political transgressions and since since 1908, the public life of the colony has been contaminated and the industrial outlook rendered disheartening in the extreme. It is hard to say what our fate may be as a result of the official waywardness to which I refer. We have no right, perhaps, to hope that we may be an exception to the rule by which countries have their period of growth, and grandeur, and of decay. It may be that all we most esteem may fade away. But if we have done our duty well, even though our prosperity should pass away and our country become she may be remembered, not ungratefully, as at one time a nursery for the great British navy—in the glorious days of history when our forefathers, too, were empire builders and helped to carry the flag to the four corners of the world. However, the time for action in our public affairs has now come. No greater reason for it can exist to-morrow than exists to-day. Every hour's delay only adds another chapter to the humiliating story of corruption, mendacity and fraud!

It is excellent to study life as it seems to be, with the purpose, however, of determining what life really is, in all its variety. In addition, the ideal must steadily be envisaged, with all that its achievements would imply in the word of the twentieth century. Positive conclusions must be weighed before they are made even to seem imperative, but in the end they remain positive. A freshly independent journalism for Newfoundland needs, emphatically, to take the positive side as much as it can, without allowing itself to be merely imbued with a vain human optimism. The political campaign this season should be an occasion, then, not just for an increasingly tearing away of what has been inherently destructive, but for a discernment of how the old ways must be mended and new ways built, in order that the fine forest of Liberty may be a place for all to enjoy as they proceed through it like the pioneers which active and progressive people always must be. A journalism doing this necessary work, both in St. John's and in the outposts, must, in fact, be worthy to be called, in the words of Isaiah, a "restorer of the breach," a "restorer of paths to dwell in."

There is a growing belief here in the city, among outside observers more than among politicians, that the old bluffing, buncoing, close-corporation style of politics is in its last days. If this is true, if the time has come when the public would rather have facts than bluff, and reason than sentiment, then the patriotic type of mind springs into natural leadership. It may not be true. There is no doubt that the proportion of voters who want sincerity is increasing, but they may still be too few to win. It may be that the old rules are still sound; that a political platform is useful only for the enticement of voters, that intelligent people, seeing through it, will nevertheless support the party for reasons of their own; that there are so few intelligent folk that success can be won by the party offering the best blue-sky prospectus. For this reason the future career of the new leader will, to a great extent, measure the change in the intelligence Newfoundland applies to its politics.

Obviously, the time for such a change is at hand. The basis for political success makes rather sudden shifts, though at long intervals, and only after some considerable popular revolt against old methods forces politicians to new ones. For a long time, for example, democratic institutions in England functioned through fear and reprisal, and a beaten politician died suddenly. This was finally stopped, and Walpole Pitt and their successors governed by means of corruption of the legislators. We recently had such a period in this country when men high in office, as well as ordinary members of the House of Assembly, were more or less open for sale to big interests.

They have kept power through organization supplemented by careful misleading and vitiation of opinion recently reduced to the science of propaganda. Now there is revolt against this. The next step in political morality will naturally be toward destroying these two methods of exploiting democracy, and of the way by far the more deadly is the debasing and corrupting of public opinion.

Now, to ensure efficiency on the part alike of public servants, individually and collectively, there are, of course, rewards for the efficient and penalties for those who are not so. In the case of a government acting under a constitutional form of government, such as is the system we call "responsible government," the rewards and penalties are both clearly and sharply defined.

Some time ago, in a short article on the expenditure of public money, I pointed out the fact that, in all countries like Newfoundland, for many, many years after their inhabitation, there was and is abundant scope for useful public works of such a nature as would absorb all the surplus manual labor of the country. To be profitably employed, this manual labor must be expended, not in snowshovelling, breaking stone and other pauperizing occupations, but on such works as will assist the state in realizing its natural products. And the rate of wages paid thereat must not exceed a sum equivalent to somewhat less than is current at the time in the ordinary labor market.

Of course, the men so employed have to work at a distance from home and the comforts of civilization, or have to pay an exceptional price for their supplies, as is the case with those now working on the Humber; the apparent rate of wage may be higher than that of the market. But if the state so manages (or mismanages), as that this employment demoralizes the people, awakens within them a liking for unsettled occupations, destroys the ties and endearments of domesticity, and makes men prefer Government work to civil employment, then these public enterprises become a bane instead of a blessing, and those who promote them the enemies rather than the benefactors of their country! That this is so is self-evident from the very nature of the case. The same law, both civil and natural, that would imply fair and just treatment in the one case, would equally require it in the other. The Party System, was founded on our national action of fair play. It was not sportsmanlike that one side should have a rich accumulation of rubbish, while the other was left with nothing but the bare truth.

"I've been a Walg three weeks myself, just of the moderate sort. And don't find them and Democrats so different as I thought. They both are pretty much alike, and push and scrouge and curse. They're like two pickpockets in league for the "Receiver's" purse. Each takes a side, and then they squeeze the good man in between them. Turn all his pockets wrong side out, and quick as lightning clean them. To neither one of them I'd trust a second-handed rail. No further off than I could sling a bulldog by the tail!"

The Girl Guides Association

The First Annual Report of the Girl Guides Association in Newfoundland has just been issued. In addition to a description of the Girl Guides Movement, it contains a list of Executive and Officials of the Movement, the names of the members, the financial statement which shows the Association is firmly establishing itself, and the respective reports of the Island Commissioner, Lady Allardree, the Hon. Secretary, the Commissioner for Training, and the Equipment Officer.

The Island Commissioner's Report is as follows:—
The First Annual Meeting of the Girl Guides in Newfoundland marks our balance of work done, and emphasizes the work awaiting us. Our numbers have grown from 198 to 1119—an increase of 78, and our records show the formation of 8 Outport Companies, 11 new St. John's Companies, and an established Headquarters, the centre of busy activity. Three Outport Commissioners are at work and little Guide Sisters have joined us as far north as Cartwright in Labrador, in Bonavista and in Conception Bay.

Members of the Association have answered any call made on them, while our Headquarters Committee have established our Guide Home where Training Courses are conducted, Companies meet, and where the Equipment Department has developed into a branch of which we are justly proud.

The Badges earned show that our Guides are encouraged to specialise in branches that will help the mothers and home-makers of the future, and instill in them a love of nature and open-air exercise and games. Some Guides had gardens in the old War-allowment Government Home grounds and grew flowers and vegetables, but this side of our work needs better organization in the coming year. All First Class Guides must hold, amongst other badges, that of a Cook, and I shall ask the Association's consent that, for Newfoundland Guides a knowledge of "hay-box" cookery be added to the test already defined by Imperial Headquarters. Newfoundland suggested a Skater's Badge to draw up the necessary tests, and had the honour of having these accepted. Is a Newfoundland Guide prepared to win the first badge awarded?

Our Treasurer's report will tell you of her careful husbanding of our resources. Public sympathy and support have lightened the task of organization, have enabled us to secure our Headquarters, to assist with equipment where help was really needed, and to assist all first literature to Outport Companies. Our Balance Sheet encourages us to believe that if our Vice-President and members of the Association still desire to support us, and we may count on their subscriptions, the New Year's work may be met with further appeal towards Headquarters funds.

Two "Thanks Badges," the symbol of a swift service to the wearer from any Guide who may see it, have been awarded. One to Mrs. G. Roberts, whose untiring and helpful work has equipped our Guides, and one to Miss Nora Rendell, who in her leisure time, has done more than anyone to help to consolidate our new organization. A third "Thanks Badge" will be given to Miss Bright at the first opportunity that offers, as a token of our gratitude to her for the inspiration and help she has given us by conducting our first Guides' Training Course.

Gratitude is especially due:—
1. To the Lecturers and Examiners who have helped the Guides to earn their badges, and to Mrs. Kennedy who organized this branch.
2. To Mrs. Charles McKay Harvey to whose entertainment we owe our sound financial position.
3. To Colonel Rendell to whom much of the success of our first Rally was due, and who presented a shield to the 1st St. John's Company.

4. To Messrs. Reid, Son & Watson from whom came our first donation and offer of help.
5. To the various "Sports" Committees who kindly added "Guide" Races to their programmes, and awarded generous prizes to the winners.
6. To the Old Colour Club for continuing to rent half their premises as our first centre.
7. To Mr. P. E. Outerbridge and the Director of the Prince of Wales Skating Rink.
8. To the PRESS for their sympathetic support and invaluable propaganda. Dr. Robinson very kindly wrote a delightful article for the International Guide Book, as the Newfoundland contribution.

The aims of the Girl Guide Movement are to stimulate intelligent obedience, self-reliance and service to others, that Guides may be fitted for worthy leadership; to prepare girls for womanhood in their homes or in the world, that they may find joy in work and face difficulties with courage and gaiety. If women are so prepared, surely an indifferent and apathetic citizenship will become a thing of the past. Will those who can give a little leisure and whose heads and hearts approve these aims, come forward to help us? Our Executive Officers need assistants to lighten their task. We urgently need Guiders for day and evening work. A child is a Newfoundland Orphanage said, "I no longer feel an orphan since I became a Guide." Four Centres have asked for Companies. One of these is an Orphanage! Little children are waiting to join us and girls at work need wholesome recreation, instruction and companionship to fill their evenings. To give time to these Guides is to gather joy and to widen interest. We ask for volunteers.

As Island Commissioner I am deeply grateful for the loyal co-operation of my Commissioners, Secretaries and Guiders and, as such, I have recorded in my Report to Imperial Headquarters our appreciation of their guidance and assistance. Something has been achieved. Much remains to be done. Sister Guides, let us go forward, glad to have accomplished a little and filled with hope for the future, putting our whole hearts into our work and play, and trying, happily, each day to be true to our Promise, to do our best for our God, our King and our Empire.

COURAGE
He that has never grieved nor felt the pain
Or parting from a loved one for a while,
Has never hungered for a vanished smile
Nor longed to hear sweet laughter ring again,
May fancy courage is of broad and certain
To hold in battle some disputed mile
Or venture boldly down a dangerous aisle
Where bullets spatter on the turf like rain,
Yet faith demands a sterner test than this,
It bids men smile whose hearts with grief are torn,
To hunger for the loved ones they must miss,
And for the living, smiling face the morn.
This is true courage—bearing long years of pain,
Sure is the faith that love shall meet again.

Women and the Farm

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 2.—(Canadian Press)—The profession of agriculture for women was dealt with from many aspects at the Provincial Women's Institute Convention in April. With large numbers of women coming from other parts of the world, and guaranteed physically fit, coupled with the fact that farm machinery today has made farming operations of all kinds possible to women, it would seem that a new era in the history of agriculture was beginning. There are women who have made an unqualified success of farming in British Columbia, as illustrated by the 10-acre farm in the Okanagan near Vernon. These two women have their ten acres in fruit trees and are successfully keeping the bees.

Another woman on a farm owned jointly with her husband did all the work on half an acre planted in peapods, marketing two and a half tons at 12 cents a pound, in addition to which she harvested without assistance, an acre of radish seed. This woman is 27, looks 18, and her baby, well along in her second year, shows by perfect proportions the scientific feeding and open-air sleeping which her mother has insisted upon since her birth.

Don't Say— "Just a Sore Throat"

In a few days, you know, "just a sore throat" may be something much more serious. For science has proved that the throat is not only the first spot reached by infectious germs, but also forms the ideal soil for them to multiply on.

Throat protection, therefore, means germ destruction and is a duty that you owe your health. It is easily achieved by the regular use of Formamint—the germ-killing throat tablet.

Formamint (which is endorsed by over 5,000 American physicians) is the scientific way of disinfecting the mouth and the throat. Handy to have with you—pleasing in taste—it frees an efficient germicide that mixes with the saliva and so, reaches where gargles cannot go.

And a tablet taken occasionally during the day not only brings grateful and immediate relief from "sore throat"—but affords protection against even more distressing ailments that so often follow infection of the throat linings. At all druggists.
