Shakghai, Sept. 22.—A new complication has arisen in the Franco-Chinese difficulty. The blocking of the bar of the Woo Lung river has been ordered by the Chinese, although the passage for the ships of neutrals will be left. This action is due to Chinese disbelief in the promises of the French. Veritable panic prevails in Shanghai. Merchants of neutral powers have asked the naval commanders of those powers to take some action. The British consul has advised the Chinese to obtain skilled foreign assistance, and to keep traffic open. The Russian consuls have been ordered to protect French interests wherever the French consuls leave. The Russian fleet comprises one iron-clad, three cruisers, two corvettes, and six gun hoats. Three other iron-clads are exboats. Three other iron-clads are expected. This strength, in view of the smallness of Russian interests in China, is considered significant.

Rome, Sept. 22.—There were 305 new cases of cholera and 161 deaths in Naples during the past 24 hours, and 104 new cases and 65 deaths in other parts of Italy.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE BIG DEAL

CHICAGO'S CORN CORNER

Kent and Armour Alleged to be the Manip ulators—The Squeeze Likely to Last Until January. CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Eighty cents for corn and seventy-five cents for wheat was daughter of C. E. Robinson. Her mind has been filled with nonsensical ideas about runaway marriages. She said on Friday morning that she took the valise when she went to school in Boston and gave it to a woman. She told a blood curdling story of having her life threatened unless she complied with a demand for money. She said she met the woman in Albany station and gave her the valise containing valuables. The valise and valuables was a strenuous effort made by the short interest to cover September sales, but there were no adequate offerings until the previous reports that the siege of that city had been raised. The despatch states that the or antry in the neighborhood of Khartoum is freed from rebels, and the obtaintant of food supplies is comparatively easy. The French consul was on the point of starting for Dongola with Colonels Stewart and Power.

The claim is made at short interest, still it is sufficiently large to advance the price to a dollar a bushel, and a desire is shown to do so.

One report has it that Kent and Armour have secured from eight to ten thousand thousand bushels. The corner is certainly of such gigantic proportions as to lead one to believe that the biggest speculators are working it. Every month until January is likely to go.

The outcome of the tude was discussed. The outcome of the meeting, according to the gentleman referred to, was a letter from Assistant Pastor Halliday to Mr. Beecher, expressing the regret of the holders of the meeting at the latter's course, and the outcome of this letter was a somewhat brusque reply from the great preacher to the effect that he tolerated no interference with his political convictions, and that if the members of the church were dissatisfied with anything he did, he was always ready to resign the pulpit and that he could live without Plymouth church. The Times also publishes an interview with City Treasurer Wheelock, (rep.), a member of Plymouth church and a warm friead of Mr. Beecher. The bar was prominently and largely represented, but the customary address of congratulation to a new judge was not presented, although a number of lawyers had individually congratulated his lordship in his private room. The omission of an address was severely commented on by many in the audience. After some routine business had been disposed of, the court adjourned, the following being the peremptory list for to-day: Macdonald v. Howard, Buckler v. The brotherhood claims to be the largest and wealthiest labor organization of one class on the continent. It seems a bad sign when the govern ment of the great British empire upon which the sun never sets, has to tell the distressed West Indians that nothing can be done for them. Forty years ago or more Britain entered upon the policy of treating foreign countries just as she did her own colonies in trade matters, and this is what it has come to. To-day prominent West Indians are debating amongst themselves whether to seek annexation to Canada or to the United States. Commercially the mother country has ceased to be worth

Now this may be all right, but it looks India colonies were gained for Britain by much expenditure of both blood and treasure. Now that very cool and unsympa thetic free trade statesman—Earl Derby-says that they had better look to Canada he has nothing else to suggest. He might suggest that they should apply to the United States, but that would scarcely benefit his position. We venture the sug gestion that they might apply to France, or Germany. These two powers appear to be extremely anxious for colonial posses sions abroad, at a time when Britain appears to think them an incumbrance.

And what has created the incumbrance Only one thing—the Manchester policy of the friend of every country but your own That policy, too hastily pronounced successful a quarter of a century ago, is now dene, but we do advise the public to note well how it goes on, and how the whole thing seems to "pan out" in the course of

Says the Winnipeg Sun : Peaches are a poor crop in Canada this year. The intense frost in January killed the buds. Dealers are importing peaches from the United States. The Northwest settler. nevertheless, will still be compelled to pay a duty on American canned peaches in order to enable these Eastern Canadian growers, who cannot supply their own market, to turn a few dollars out of him. It is sheer robbery. To which let us add that is no part of the N.P. to fight against climate. Whenever the character of "not transferable" is clearly established against any industry supposed to be in the N. P. list we drop it like a hot potato. But our own peach-growers and fruit-canners are still to be heard from on the subject. They would do well to send a strong deputation to Ottawa soon if they want to "save their bacon." The market for canned fruit in the Morthwest is bound to be immense; and little dribs and drabs won't supply it. The shoe will probably pinch here, as Mr. Macdougallihas told us.

We would rather not believe that the two real; candidates for the presidency of the United States are such villains as each is pictured to be by the partizans of the other. But this much we will mention, by way of recalling how things used to be in old times. In the early days of the great republic, say sixty or eighty years ago, the

He has been introduced to the west a good deal of late, and we fancy there is something behind it all. One thing is certain, Sir Hector has made himself a name as an able administrator—un homme d'affaires, as the French say.

The Montreal Post says that Father Rlordan, for a number of years chaplain at Castle Garden, is now in Ireland, warning the people against the dangers of emigration to the United States. But this is not all that he has te say. More important still, he says that a liberal emigration expenditure feeds the eviction fever, and makes it worse all the time. The big emigration machinery is, in brief, a convenient means of enabling hard landlords to put the people off the soil. Stop the emigration, he says, and the pressure upon parish funds would speedily give the land lords new ideas on the eviction business. But evictions will go on, as long as the authorities generously take the victims off the landlords' hands, and send them to America, out of the way. There is something in this, we should say.

Allowed to be a very clever man, bus he was predicted to be a man of deep learning, he was a brilliant and solp witer, but completely detirute of all ideas of logic; he often is found to assume his premises and then build up his arguments. Archbishep Lynch and Purgatery.

To the Editor of the World. SIR: In my last letter, I had only got o the 6th article, added by the council of Trent to the faith once delivered to the aints but said by the council and the catechism of Pius IV. to be necessary to salvation, all who do not hold these articles being damned. I will now go on to state ne others. Art. 7. I do firmly believe hat there is a purgatory, and that the souls kept prisoners there do receive help by the suffrages of the faithful. I have looked through the report of Dr. Lynoh's sermon, and I do not find he says anything about purgatory. This seems very odd, about purgatory. This seems very odd, about purgatory. This seems very odd, about purgatory. I have been the property of the contents of the bible should be furnished with replies to which, on the assumption that their objections are not captious, I think they are entitled.

A century or two ago, the West that there is a purgatory, and that the ost important doctrines of the Romanist and contains within itself the source of much of the material prosperity of the priesthood, as a great portion of their support comes from the saying masses for the souls in purgatory. It is further a distinct doctrine of the church of Rome as put out at Trent, and every one who does not believe it, is cursed. Now when Dr. Lynch calls the public of Toronto together for the purpose of telling them what Romanists believe, I want to know why he which every one joining the Romanists has to swear.

Before dealing further with the sermon of Dr. Lynch, I desire to draw attention to what he puts forth as a statement of fact. Facts are quite different from doctrine; a fact is true or not true; a man says a certain thing happened, or it did not, and when a man makes a statement of fact he is bound to know the truth of what he says, especially a man who pretends to be the archbishop of Toronto, and who assumes to himself the office of a bishop in the church of God; when he publicly salls the people of Toronto together he is expected to speak the truth.

I am sure that any christian will be happy to assist an honest inquirer who may have doubts as to the genuineness or authenticity of soripture, but this is widely different from meeting persons on a platform, some of whom sorich themselves by form, some of whom enrich themselves by assailing christianity with ribaldry and ridicule. With regard to the letter which bears the signature of Mr. Cooke, as I am supposed to have entirely missed the gist of his former letter, it is hardly necessary to reply a second time. Had I

A CURIOUS STONE

Connecting Man and Mam

An animated discussion is going on con erning the genuineness of alleged Indian markings on a stone in the possession of of Henry D. Paxson of Doylestown. The matter is an important one for geologists, since if the stone could be proved genuine it would settle in the affirmative the ques the figure of an Indian shooting a man-moth with an arrow, while the sun, rep-resented as a face, sends forth its divergent rays. come so heavy as to be intolerable. Government and landlords, left to face the work of feeding and ledging the evicted multitudes, would be driven to the conclusion that the difficulty could only be overcome by securing the people in their own homes. Evictions will continue so long as there is emigration; but if the people refused to leave the country, evictions would soon be found to be a costly and ruinous luxury to the exterminators.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety percent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five percent of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of 'living Catarri-A new Treatment. Starting with the cital how generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of 'living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star.

"If I could only have been contented to let those oil speculations alone," resumed Hiram, eagerly, "or if I could have bought month—earlier!

them a month—only one month—earlier! But I was mad and we are ruined! The landlord was here this morning persecuting us, because the rent of the rooms was not paid. I never thought I should come to this, Huldah!"

His wife made no reply—Marian still

His wife made no reply—Marian still wrote on, her brow slightly contracted.

"Still, we should have done well'enough," went on poor old Lacy, "if Marian could have made up her mind to marry young Deforest! He is well off—we old folks could have had a home with him, with our feet on the green grass and God's pure, clear sky above our heads. It's not too late yet, lass. Deforest was here yesterday when you and your mother were gone down to those musty old newspaper offices. Yeu'd better think of it, my girl!" Marian looked up, tossing back the drooping hair from her brow.

"Father," she said, pitifully, "I have told you that I do not love him!"

"Love! love!" echoed the old man, aneeringly. "Love won't boil the kettle nor buy a gown! I thought you had outgrown the age of school-girl sentiment!"

"I hope I shall never outgrow it, father!"

"I hope I shall never outgrow it, father!"
answered Marian, in a low voice.
"And while you are waiting for love to grow up in your heart, your poor old father and mother may pine their lives out in this "I hope not, father!" said Marian. "My writing —"

"I don't want to hear another word of your writing," interrupted Mr. Lacy. "If it hadn't been for your ridiculous idea that you were a genius, you'd have settled down quietly to be John Deforest's wife, five years ago!"

Marian pursued the argument no further, but her mother's gentle encouraging glance, as she looked up, mutually testified that she had at least one tender sympathize!

And the blue-eyed April violets blossomed and died, and May hung her chaplets of bloom on tree and gleu and forest, and still Marian toiled on, early and late.

Her father's words often occurred to her at times of fatigue or despondency. "A genius." Was she, indeed, a genius? If she were—oh, bright, impossible if—every sacred fire of her nature was burning on the altar of this book, into which she was interweaving the tenderest fancies of soul or brain; oh, if!

And Marian grew paler and more absorbed day by day; and her mother mother the station-house twelve hours before treatment, and then was shipped to complete the sum of the station of the best lots in West Toronto are to be had from George Clarke, 295 Yonge street.

And Marian grew paler and more absorbed day by day; and her mother watched her with wistful eyes, silent care, and old Hiram fretted on, with the incoherent plaints of old age; and the summer ripened into golden fulness, under beamy moonlight nights and the glow of tropic days.

"It's getting warm weather," groaned old Hiram, "and this Croton water isn't fit for a dog to drink, let alone a christian. Oh, if I could only have a drink of water out of the old well under the garden wall! It used to be as cold as ice when the sun was atits hottest. I dreamed last night of standing beside that well, with the old bucket brimning over, and the wild roses hanging over the curl, all in a tangle, as they used to grow!"

"Father," said Marian, who had just come in, with cheeks unwontedly rosy, and a light sparkling deep down in her eyes, whall we all go—you and I and, mother for a nice long drive in the country this afternoon."

The old man's face lighted up for an instant, but it fell again.

The old man's face lighted up for an corns. instant, but it fell again.
"We can't afford it," he said, testily.
"We are poor. Carriage drives cost

"We are poor. Carriage drives cost money."

"But I have earned a—a little money from my book," began Marian, earnestly. "Book, indeed!" laughed old Hiram. "A pretty book you'd write. But we'll go—if you can afford to squander the money on your old father. You've been very close with your money of late."

Marion's cheek glowed at the undeserved taunt, but she did not reply. "Father's not well," she said to herself, "and he's old and irritable, and this hot weather frets him. He will be better when—"

And there Marion's reverie stopped.

-his voice faltered strangely as he spoke.
"Who lives here now?" he asked, "You said Burke had sold it!"

"Nobody just at present. Shall we go in and walk through the rooms?" Hiram Laoy assented, with a silent in-clination of the head.

unbeams, and every gust of southwardcoming air seemed full of the vague scents of violets and daffodils, and grass growing in a sunny hillsides!

Thiram Lacy sat by his city-window,
where the sweet air listed the silver hair
upon his forehead, and thought longingly of the departed days when he dwelt under his own vine and fightree, and watched the clination of the head.

It was all the same—the old furniture undisturbed in its nooks and corners—the worn, familiar carpets—the same tinting of wall and wood-work. Hiram Lacy could almost believe that it was but yesterday he quitted the threshold. He sat down in the old cushioned arm-chair, which had once been his special chair.

"I shall die more contentedly for having seen the dear old farm-house once more!"
he said, in a broken voice.

"She says yes!"
"Oh!" said Mr. Lacy, dryly; "so this s the reason she wouldn't marry John Deforest!"
"It is one of the reasons, I believe,"
said Mr. Arden, laughing.
And thus, in striving to work out the happiness of her parents, Marian Lacy found the great gift and sunshine of her own life!"

For the Ladies. -Laughter is the poor man's plaster,
Making every burden light;
Turning sadness into gladness,
Darkest hour to May dawn bright.

People who wish to note the progress Toronto is making ought to visit West Toronto Junction. It is within a few minntes of the Union station by the trains of either the Ontario and Quebec and the Grand Trunk or the Northern. The junction station of the C. P. R. is now in full blast and freight and passenger trains are stopping there every short while. New houses are going up all round while the plans of many handsome ones are still in the hands of the architects. Real estate in the neighborhood has steadily risen in value and promises to advance still more rapidly. A lot or block in this locality is the best investment a workingman or capitalist can go into. It will double itself in two years just as Parkdale, Brockton and the whole west end has done. Some of the best lots in West Toronto are to be had from George Clarke, 295 Yonge street.

"It would never do for you to cast your bread upon the waters, my dear," said the fond young husband. "Why not, Alfred" asked his pious wife. "Because it is so heavy it would sink," he replied. "Wretch?" she exclaimed, "can you make light of so saered a subject?" "No, my dear," he replied, "nor can my stomach."

No Rival in the Field.

There is no rival for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It is the acknowledged champion for the cure of all Never intartle the girl who is in love It's dangerous to frighten people who have affections of the heart.

And there Marion's reverie stopped.

The air was full of the sweet breath of new-mown hay, when the open carriage rolled along the green country roads, under the rastling boughs of elm and beech, and waving willow. Hiram Lacy's eyes brightend—the blood seemed to leap with new impulses through his veins!

"Ah!" he cried, drawing a deep breath, "now I am beginning to live again! Why this is the old road, with the gnarled oak hanging over the gate. There are the fields that used to be ours! Daughter! why did you take this road?"

"It isn't ours any longer!" he groaned. "See those clover fields—I always said it was the best ground in the country—and the tall corn, growing so royally! And the house looks just as it used to look—I believe it's the very same robin, singing in the poplar tree by the poreh."

Bis eyes were brimming over with tears

J. D. CARLING AND WIFE,

the son of the postmaster-general of Canada, who it was reported in the newsrom Ottawa. They arrived at the hotel last Saturday morning, and were assigned to an elegant suite of rooms on the second floor. No one was aware of the history of the romantic couple, except the proprietor of the hotel, until it was published. Young Mr. Carling was indignant at the "extraordinary lies," which slipped into the papers, and he has been busy for the last few days dividing his time between experiencing his happiness and denounc-ing the "malicious persons" who econom-ized the truth in speaking about his elope-ized the truth in speaking about his elopement.

"The true account of it has never appeared," said Carling to a News reporter this morning. "The fact is, my wife and I have been married for the past two months, and I think I have a perfect right to go with her if I please."

Carling met Miss Fatee a year ago and fell in love with her. They were engaged, and obtained, he says, the consent of both their parents to marry in three years. Three years to wait! It seemed a whole future to young Carling. Every time he asked the girl, "Do you love me?" she replied, "Of course, I do," with an 'Ill-always-remember-you-far-away-look in her dark brown eyes. Last July the Patee family went on a visit to Boston, and Carling went along. One beautiful evening, July 21, while strolling from the public gardens to the Back bay, Carling was talking with Miss Patee about their affairs, and concluded by asking her to marry him that night. She consented, and they presented themselves to the nearest elements. hey presented themselves to the nearest lergyman, Rev. P. M. McDonald, Ph. D. clergyman, Rev. P. M. McDonaid, Fh. D., a presbyterian minister, residing at No. 26 Chester square, who performed the ceremony that made the lovers man and wife. The marriage was kept secret, and last week Carling, after consulting his wife, determined to leave London and settle down in a home of his own. All arrangements for departure were made and Friday down in a home of his own. All arrange-ments for departure were made, and Friday morning Mr. and Mrs. Carling took the train for Windsor. At the same time let-ters were posted to the postmaster-general and Mrs. Carling's parents informing them of their children's doings. All kinds of rumors were started, the young husband thinks, which were greatly embellished for sensational purposes and circulated by the gossips.

sensational purposes and circulated by the gossips.

Carling has a youthful appearance. He is tall and determined looking. He has a decidedly English face, covered with a sparse growth of light hair and a scarcely perceptible sprouting of an infant mustache on his lip. Through an accident some years ago he lost his left eye, which has been replaced by an artificial one. Carling's father, besides his high political office, has a good income from his brewery at London. Mrs. Carling is the daughter of Mr. Patee, of the firm of Perley & Patee, lumber dealers. She is a black-eyed brunette, plump and small-sized. Both she and her husband denied the published statement that they were mere children. He claimed that he was 21 years of age and his wife 19. They will spend the winter at Windsor. Young Mr. Carling has accepted a position in Walker's distillery at Walkerville.

Hew the Young Couple are Spending
Their Moneymoon.
From the Detroit Evening News.
"J. D. Carling and wife," is the signature which adorns the register of the Crawford house at Windsor. Carling is court. "And now your honor, I demand the discharge of Rose Lynam. For the papers had eloped with Miss Eva Patee past two years and a half she has been condemned to worse than death. Forced to consort under a false name with furious lunatics, to have her ears greeted not by the soothing comforts of the man who had undertaken before God and the church to undertaken before God and the church to love, cherish and protect her, not by the loving affection of the children she had given birth to, but abandoned by her husband to her fate, compelled to have her sanest speeches treated as the maniacal outpourings of a diseased mind and to have her slumbers startled by the mad cries and horrible yells of her demented associates. And on what account? and what authority? On the ipse dixit of a chimerical theorist—a mad doctor whose constant association with and lifelong study of the lunatic have taught him no better lesson than that the greater portion of God's creatures are fools, and that once the mind of man is beclouded, the darkness of madness must forever reign, and the sun of reason be forever dimmed. Vain is the skill of the physician according to him, futile the tender ministrations of the saintly sisters, unavailing the prayers for cure to Almighty God—once mad, always mad. No wender the lunatics hopelessly sigh when his name is mentioned. But I say, out upon such theories, and pronounce it a disgrace that such tenets should be held. I believe your honor dissents from them, and, in that belief, and in the complete assurance that my client's sanity has been triumphantly demonstrated, I leave the case in the hands of the court." MORE GOLD! The Precious Metal Discovered in Madoc

Village.
From the North Hastings Re A few days ago, while digging a well on Joseph Liberty's lot in this village, the workmen came across a rich vein of goldbearing quarts, much resembling the famous pocket first discovered in the Richardson mine years ago. Naturally, quite an excitement has since ensued, and the "mine" has been visited by many of our citizens, each of whom carried away a handful of the dirt, and was soon busily engaged in washing it and picking out the precious golden particles. We have been shown some of the gold dust extracted, and shown some of the gold dust extracted, and in proportion to the amount of dirt from it taken, knowing ones assert it gives evidence of great richness. What the proprietor intends to do with his gold well we are not aware, but we would be only too pleased to chronicle Mr. Liberty's elevation among the millionaires.

Living Without Nourishment. From the Hamilton Times. John Baker of Millgrove is a bachelor and over 80 years of age. Economist writes that some uneasiness is felt in government circles concerning the financial situation, and the probable deficit financial situation, and the probable deficit at the end of the year, which is already calculated to reach a sum of $200,000,000 francs. The revenue is expected to realize 90,000,000 less than the estimates, and the credits for the war in Tonquin and Mada-gascar already voted and unprovided for exceed 60,000,000, to which the bill for the Chinese war will have to be added.

More Easily Bone Then.

From Good Words.

The minister had gone to see a dying parishioner, and when he reached the cottage he found the family bathed in tears, "Is he worse?" he asked, "Oh, sir, he's just deein," was the repiy, with an agony of sorrow. Looking toward the "box bed," where the sufferer lay, he was astonished to see two men bending over it. "What are they doing there?" "Eh, sir; they're just shaving him?" "Shaving him!" said the minister is a mazement; "can they not let the poor man die in peace?" "It's tar easier poo!" was the strange answer which mingled with the sobbing.
