Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): That was the policy of the British Government and it was the right policy. Private ownership of ships has been successful in Great Britain, which is the greatest shipping country in the world. It has not been necessary for the British Government, in order to maintain their supremacy on the sea, to put the money of the British people into the building of ships. All they have to do is to leave the people alone and the people will do the business themselves better than the Government. My hon. friend should have left the people of Canada alone. The minister would have less to answer for and the country would have been better off if the people had been left alone. He has put the shipping of this country back for a decade by his so-called policy; he has driven shipping enterprise out of the field. Have you heard of any man putting his money into ships in this country since this programme commenced? No man would take the risk. The minister put the prices up so high; he engaged all the shipyards; he inflated prices so that new shipyards were started, and the people who put their money in them are likely to lose it. This policy will be bound to end in putting the shipping business back for a number of years to come in place of assisting it. Some hon. members will say, "Oh, but we must have ships." Of course we must have ships; we must also have wheat and potatoes and steel; but that is no reason why the Government should begin to plant potatoes or to sow wheat. Or build steel plants. Let the Government stay out of this business; it is far too hazardous a business for the Government to be in. It is not advisable for the Government to be competing with private ownership on the seas without any prospect of reducing freight rates or of being of any advantage to the country. I have pointed out that my hon. friend does not need those vessels for the railways, and that in regard to our export trade, if we have a cargo to send to any part of the world, there are thousands of vessels ready to carry that cargo as cheaply as the Government can carry it. It is, therefore, altogether unnecessary that we should have those ships at all, and the minister will be doing the part of wisdom if he will get rid of them as quickly as possible and put them into private hands. It may be that he will not be able to sell them, at the present time; I do not know whether any one would buy them from him or not. To begin with, he would have to make a heavy loss, and he would require to make terms. He might have to give a number of years to pay for The ships. He would, of course, require to impose conditions that they would engage in Canadian trade, and remain upon the Canadian registry. If the minister had the courage to announce that his policy is to get rid of these vessels and turn them over to private ownership on the best terms he can, I am quite sure that the step would be satisfactory to the business men of this country. And that ultimately we would save a great deal of money. The Government, by engaging in this shipping programme is not doing any good to our trade; it is involving the country in a very large expediture which is likely to become much larger. It is not possible, in my judgment, for the minister to show anything like a profit for several years to come on these vessels. If he is not able to show a profit, to earn his depreciation and interest, he is going into bankruptcy, and we will lose our $70,000,000 in the end. It is far better to make our loss now and to put the ships into the hands of people who will operate them in the interest of Canadian trade. I think I have said enough at the present time, and I hope I have given the minister a few things to think about and to answer.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): Perhaps it would be more convenient if I said a few things before the minister replies, and he could deal with them at the same time as with the remarks of the hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair).

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If my hon. friend would allow me, I would prefer to answer the hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough now. I did not think it would be necessary for me to say very much more as regards the Government shipbuilding programme and the operation of the ships, inasmuch as the statement which I presented to the House went into the matter very fully. The hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough is a man who is held in very high esteem in this House and also by everyone who has the pleasure of knowing him. Therefore, I feel it is necessary, on behalf of the Government, to answer some of the salient points that he brought out in his speech. Apparently, the results for 1920 have been rather disappointing to my hon. friend. He has had considerable experience in the shipping business, and from what he knew of the high cost of operation of ships and also the very marked decrease in freights that had taken place, especially during the remaining months of 1920, he no doubt was looking for a very much worse statement than I had the pleasure of presenting to the Houes on behalf of the Government. I think the figures speak for themselves. The result of the operation of the Government shipping by the operating company is, to the mind of the most men, a very creditable showing, and inasmuch as my hon. friend has dealt considerably with the figures of the statement, it is only fair to hon. members and also to the public that I should go more in detail into the figures that I presented to the House a few days ago than I did on that occasion. First of all, I think I made it abundantly clear then—and if not, I will do so now—that the ships made an operating profit. I do not want my hon. friend or ony other hon. friend to get the total profits mixed up with the operating profits of the ships. If our railways had made an operating profit instead of having made a loss of $70,000,000, every hon. member of this House would feel in a much better frame of mind that he does now. But the Government ships have made an operating profit on closed voyages, for which profit I take no credit whatever, because the management of the Government ships is left in the hands of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. The management are composed of old, experienced shipping men who have been for many years with the old Allan Line, and I here wish to pay my compliments to the management for the very splendid showing they made under very difficult circumstances during the calendar year 1920. The operating profit on closed voyages, as vouched for by the well-known firm of auditors, Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell and Company, was $1,293,525.55. Hon. gentlemen on the other side of the House have distorted, I will not say deliberately, but at all events they have not admitted that the Government ships during the past year made an operating profit. Now all hon. members know that in that operating profit is included the general expenses of operation of the ships, besides $1,000,000 for insurance premiums. If the ships had done nothing more than make the operating profit I have just mentioned, I consider that would be a very good showing, but the operating company have done more than that. On the open voyages a conservative estimate is that the profit applicable to 1920 would amount to $183,000. Therefore, the net operating profit on the Government ships amounted to $1,476,525.55. Will any hon. gentleman that has any knowledge of shipping say that that is not a remarkably good showing that the Government ships made during the year 1920? I know that the public are satisfied, and I know I shall read in the newspapers a little later on that the people of this country are very much gratified at the splendid showing that the Government ships made during the year 1920.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Does my hon. friend say that the people of this country are satisfied with a showing that did not earn interest on the money that was put into the ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If my hon. friend will wait a moment I am coming to that. First of all, I want to make it clear that the operating profit on the Government ships amounted to $1,476,525.55.

Mr. DUFF: What year was that?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: 1920.

Mr. DUFF: Is that a new statement?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, it is the same one.

Mr. DUFF: It is not the same that you gave to the House the other day. On what page of Hansard will we find that statement?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I can tell my hon. friend that in a minute. My hon. friend occupied the time of this committee for four-and-a-half hours the other day, and I hope he will not begrudge me the time necessary to make my statement. I shall guarantee I shall not take longer than forty-five or fifty minutes.

Mr. DUFF: If the minister will allow me, the hon. member for Lunenburg is in an entirely different position from the minister. The minister is here endeavouring to get the House to pass a vote of $8,000,000, and as a representative of the people of Lunenburg I say that I am fully justified in asking any questions that are relevant to the item under discussion. I am not going to allow the minister to tell me that I cannot ask questions. The minister cannot evade my questions by referring to a speech I made the other night, I want to tell the minister he must answer.

The CHAIRMAN: Before the minister proceeds, it might be well to make the rules quite clear. The hon. member for Lunenburg is entitled to ask any question he sees fit concerning this item, and the minister can of course give any answer which he sees fit, but I must point out that when the minister has the floor, no hon. member can take the floor away from him, even for the purpose of asking a question, until the minister has concluded his remarks.

Mr. COPP: Unless the minister consents.

The CHAIRMAN: Unless the minister consents, of course.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am sorry the hon. member for Lunenburg did not understand the very plain statement which I made and which appears on the pages of Hansard, but for his information I will gladly repeat the figures. I say that the net operating profit on closed voyages for the calendar year ending 1920 was $1,293,525.55. And to that the net earnings on voyages closed since January applicable to 1920, namely $183,000, and you have a net operating profit for the year of $1,476,525.55, which I think the public of Canada will agree is a very good showing.

Mr. DUFF: The minister is not giving the statement he gave to the House on March 29, as it appears on page 1334 of Hansard. Do the net earnings shown on page 1334 of Hansard, amounting to $781,460.09, include that $183,000 on closed voyages?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Certainly. My hon. friend from Lunenburg is taking the net results of the entire statement. I am giving the operating profits first.

Mr. DUFF: You said net profits.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Net operating profits. Now we come to the question of depreciation. A great deal has been said about the cost of the Government ships, and a great deal has also been said, and rightly, about the depreciation of values. Everybody knows that there has been a very sharp decline in the cost of ships, but my hon. friends opposite, in order to show the public that there has been an enormous loss, take off the full depreciation, and take it off about twice over, from the profits for the current year, and say, here is a loss of $20,000,000, sometimes they say $50,000,000. Now these are very unusual times, and after such a long period of war every manufacturer in this country, every wholesaler, and every retailer, has large stocks of raw material and finished goods on hand that have very markedly depreciated in value. Any man who has been in business will know that if a large manufacturer carries a stock of war material estimated at $5,000,000, let us say, and there has been a depreciation in value of say $3,000,000, the manufacturer does not write off that $3,000,000 depreciation for the one year 1920. If business houses did that, they would be insolvent. What do business men do? They recognize the great depreciation in values that has taken place due to the war, and they set aside a reasonable amount for depreciation and spread it over a term of years, and that is precisely what the operating company have done. They have taken off 2 per cent, and just here let me explain a misunderstanding on the part of some hon. gentlemen. That 2 per cent depreciation was not on the full cost of the ships, but on the full cost of the ships as they were turned over to the operating company. Therefore, the depreciation is not 1,135, as some hon. gentlemen made it out to be, but 2 per cent on the full cost of the ships as they were turned over in 1920 to the operating company. The depreciation for last year amounts to $667,665.45. The operating company will reinvest that amount of depreciation, they tell me, probably in Victory Bonds bearing 5½ per cent interest, and 5½ per cent interest during a period of twenty-five years will write off the entire cost of the Government fleet. Now, I think that hon. members will agree that that is a sound and conservative way of taking care of depreciation in values of the steel ships built by the Government under contracts, most of which were let during the war and the rest in the year 1919 when prices were very much higher than they are now. It is most unfair to the Government and to the operating company to take the full amount of millions of depreciation during the year 1920 and say that there is a loss to the Dominion of Canada on Government ships. Let me point out to hon. gentlemen that when the National Transcontinental railway was built, from Moncton to Winnipeg, at a cost to this country of $200,000,000, there was not one cent of interest paid, and there never will be for a good many years to come. I am not finding any fault with that myself; but what seems peculiar to me is that my hon. friend who has just taken his seat (Mr. Sinclair), and who has been in the House so long, should earnestly lament the fact that we are not getting full interest on the Government ships. It does not seem to trouble him that no interest was paid in connection with that $200,000,000 spent on that portion of our railroads.

Mr. CAHILL: Where does the minister get the $200,000,000 from?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: From the Minister of Railways.

Mr. CAHILL: Well, the blue book of the Minister of Railways gives it at $168,000,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am quite willing to take the corrected figure as given by the hon. member for Pontiac.

Mr. FIELDING: What difference does $30,000,000 make?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The principle remains, nevertheless.

Mr. FIELDING: The principle is there, but the interest is not.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: So far as depreciation goes, I have had the operating company's figures checked up, and if the earnings keep on as they did in 1919 and 1920, the entire cost of the fleet will be written off in twenty-five years. Let me repeat again, that no business concern in this country would write off depreciation on raw material or finished goods all in one year. Now, when we come to the interest, if the operating company had been able to make earnings enough to pay 5½ per cent interest on the cost of the ships as they were turned over to them during the past year, the amount of that interest would have been $1,828,329.07. I am quite prepared to view the statement in the way my hon. friend would like to have me look at it. What is the loss on interest when we have concluded with the entire statement? It is $1,000,000. That is a fair statement; it is a true and accurate statement, vouched by the company's auditors, the well known firm of Marwick, Mitchell and Company; and it is the only way a statement would be dealt with by any of the banks and business men throughout the country. If it gives any comfort to hon. gentlemen opposite to take off the entire depreciation on the ships at once and say that that is a loss, I have nothing further to say. Let me say, however, that during the last year the operating cost of ships was the highest that the shipping world had ever known. When you take into account the rapidly declining rates of freight and the fact that no shipping company in the world has ever had the same number of ships turned over to them in such a short space of time as this managing company, for them to make an operating profit of $1,476,525.55, to write off for depreciation, outstanding liabilities and incorporation expenses the sum of $695,065.46, and to show 2.35 interest on war cost of ships, is to make what I consider a very good statement, and so do the Government and the people of Canada.

Mr. CAHILL: Oh, no, not the people.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, I will come to that in a moment. When the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) was speaking, he said that I made the statement last year in the House that half a million dollars for interest had been paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, and in his usual declamatory style, he brushed that aside and said he did not believe that a cent had been paid into that fund.

Mr. DUFF: I did not say that.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, I will withdraw that statement, but that is the way I understood the hon. member.

Mr. DUFF: You must not understand; read my speech and see what I said.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: When I get my summer holidays I shall be glad to read the hon. gentleman's speech. I made inquiry of the Finance Department to-day and this is the information I received: There was a cheque for $500,000 for the year 1919. The cheque was received by the Finance Department from the National Railways, and was divided thus: $415,358.36 will be found at page 102 of the Public Accounts for 1919-20 and the balance $84,641.64 went into last year 1920-21. There, I think, is clear enough proof; I have indicated where in the Public Accounts the particulars may be found.

Mr. DUFF: Is it not a fact that the minister told us last year, when he made his statement, that he had paid the Finance Department 5½ per cent on the total cost of the 1919 ships or the ones in commission at that time?—not $500,000, but 5½ per cent on the total cost, which would amount to over $1,000,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I can only inform my hon. friend that the information which I presented to the House last year and which I am giving this year, is information I got from the operating company and which I have no reason to doubt at all. The information I gave last year I repeat again; it covers the full amount of interest on the ships that were in operation in 1919, at the rate of 5½ per cent. I come to another very important matter. My hon. friend from Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair), said I had given three reasons for the Government entering into a policy of shipbuilding, namely, war, railways, and expansion of export trade. That is quite correct. He then went on to say that he could see no reason for entering upon a shipbuilding policy as a war measure because the first ship not launched until November 1918. That, of course, is quite correct; but I became a member of the Union Government in 1917, and during the very dark months of 1918 the war was at its very height. There was more tonnage sunk then that at any other time during the war, and no minister of the the Crown within the confines of the British Empire could sit down and say he would not enter into shipbuilding, nor would he do this, that or the other thing, because possibly the war might cease at any moment. There was only one policy for the Canadian Government to follow, and the same policy was being followed by the British Empire and all the Allies—that was to strain every nerve and to go ahead with the building of ships as fast as we could as if the war was going to last forever. Therefore this Government very wisely, and with the unanimous consent of the House, entered upon a policy of shipbuilding, for war purposes only, in April, 1918. Happily the armistice was signed on November 11, but that was no reason for the Government not going ahead, in the early part of 1918, with their plans and their contracts with the various ship builders throughout this country to construct ships under Canadian registry, in view of the very heavy loss of tonnage that was taking place daily.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): My hon. friend has omitted to mention the main reason I gave. It was not that the keels were not laid until a certain date; it was that the Munitions Board were building ships and that the Canadian yards were busy with contracts for that board at the time my hon. friend intervened.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend will also remember that when I announced the Government's policy on April 4, 1918 —I have Hansard here to prove it—I very clearly explained to the House that the Imperial Munitions Board were keeping all the fourteen yards that were building steel ships in Canada busy building ships for the Mother Country under British registry, but that Canada was providing the money to build those ships—

Mr. CAHILL: Just as a loan.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: —and I said at the time the Government thought it the wiser policy—instead of putting up money to build ships under British registry for the Mother Country—which ships would leave this country and be free from Canadian control—to construct ships ourselves inasmuch as we were putting up the money for Great Britain anyway. Then we would be able to build up a mercantile marine of our own under Canadian registry which would remain under our control for all time to come.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): We were simply lending the money.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Of course we were lending the money. I also said at that time that Canada needed a mercantile marine to co-operate with her large system of railways. Now my hon. friend is a much older man than I am but I cannot follow his reasoning when he says that there is no need of ships in connection with a large system of railways. Well, if my hon. friend can prevail upon the Canadian Pacific Company to sell their fleet of ships, which is just as large as ours, and if he can impress that company with the fact that they can carry on their transportation in Canada and throughout the world with a railway system only and without ships, —if he can get the Canadian Pacific Company to do that I am willing to recommend it to the Dominion Government.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): If my hon. friend can make a profitable business with this venture like the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is doing I would be glad to see him go on, but I do not think he can.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That was not my hon. friend's statement. My hon. friend stated "In my opinion there is no need for ships for railways."

Mr. SINCLAIR: (Guysborough): Certainly not.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: He further said "No railways should have ships; we can get all the ships that we want."

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Quite true.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have only been Minister of Marine since 1917, and I found ships as scarce as hens teeth. During 1917, 1918 and 1919 we could not get ships at all. My hon. friend also says we have not done anything to expand the export trade of Canada. Very well, I will take the British West Indies about which my hon. friend knows a great deal. When we were building ships an official of the Royal Mail Packet Company that has four ships running to Bermuda, Demerara, and Port of Spain, said "Surely you are not going to run ships down to the West Indies." It was the usual story from private owners. He said "We are taking care of all the trade. What a foolish policy it would be for the Dominion Government to send ships down to the West Indies." I told that gentleman that while we were building ships and owning ships—that is the Government of Canada—we were not operating the vessels, and the routes upon which they would run would be left by the Government to the management. Now what has been the result? Twelve of the Government ships are operating down there and they are hardly able to take care of the trade. Take the South American route. Would the Dominion of Canada have a single ship running to South America if this Government had not built and operated its own ships. Any man that is familiar with the transportation to the West Indies knows that the trade of those islands was in the hands of our American friends. The South American trade has also been in their hands. Let me tell my hon. friend what has happened as the result of the ships of the Canadian Government going down there, and in order to save time I will only give the bulk figures. The exports of Canada to the British West Indian Islands—Bermuda, British Guiana and British Honduras—in 1913 amounted to $4,967,312 but in 1920 they had increased to $15,257,014. That is what the Government ships have done in expanding trade between Canada and the British West Indies. Now let us see what the growth in imports has been. In 1913 our imports amounted to $9,864,017 and in 1920 they had grown to $19,863,722. Yet my hon. friend says further that these ships have done nothing to expand the export trade of Canada; and I have only cited to him the figures with respect to the West Indies alone. The hon. gentleman took the trade returns for 1919 and compared them with the returns in 1920, and he discovered from those returns that the exports were some three hundred millions less in 1920 than they were in 1919 but that is not at all surprising. The hon. member knows just as well as I do that the reason for the exports being so much larger in 1919 than they were in 1920 was on account of the need for replenishing the depleted stocks of the world after the war, but now that world-wide depression is being experienced it is not at all to be wondered at that our export trade has decreased. But I can tell my hon. friend that the decrease would be very much more if it had not been for the ships of the Government Merchant Marine.

I want to tell my hon. friend another thing. The Government held a conference with representatives of West Indies in June, 1920. What was the whole problem that had to be solved in order that Canada and the West Indies might draw closer together in the matter of trade arrangements? If the Government had not owned and been able to operate its Merchant Marine I doubt very much whether we would have been able to have successfully completed, as we have done, the details of the agreement entered into and which will be submitted to this House shortly by the Minister of Trade and Commerce. I say that we would not have been able to have concluded that preferential trade agreement with the West Indies if it had not been for the fact that this country owned its own mechantile fleet. Jamaica, which has never yet granted Canada a preference, is now willing to give us a preference in the best market of all the Islands down there of twenty-five per cent and I repeat again if it had not been for the fact that we were able to give the West Indies the transportation facilities that we are giving them, if we had not been able to provide the passenger accommodation that we have provided—with ships sailing from Halifax in winter and from Montreal in the summer time to the Bahamas, Jamaica and British Honduras—I doubt very much whether we would have been able to have completed, in the successful way in which we did, the preferential agreement entered into between Canada and those Islands.

Now, to hear hon. members opposite one would think that Canada was the only country that had to face the problem of depreciated values of ships. But the Government of Canada has received no credit for not building wooden ships. When the Government launched its shipbuilding programme I was besieged with requests from the Maritime Provinces and from the provinces of Quebec and British Columbia to have included in our programme the construction of wooden ships. As the minister responsible, I advised the Government not to embark on wooden shipbuilding at that time, because when peace came those ships would be of little value to us and would ultimately be an enormous loss. What were other countries doing in the meantime? Old England was having wooden ships built here, so was Norway and so was France, and while our highest average cost for steel ships was $191.50 per ton, I have seen the contracts placed for wooden ships here and I know the cost ran as high as $200 a ton. Then no one finds fault with the Emergency Fleet programme which our neighbour to the south carried on, but she has millions of tons of wooden ships on her hands and she does not know what to do with something like 536 steel ships. Then turning to the Mother Country, think of the enormous shrinkage in value both on steel and wooden ships that she has had to face. Besides that, England during the war built large national shipbuilding yards, as they were called over there, or, in other words, government yards, and they were building steel ships on a large scale. During the war Australia built just as large a mercantile fleet of steel ships as we did. I have read, as no doubt other hon. members have, what is called the Parliamentary Journal of the Empire, which gives a short synopsis of the debates that take place in the Mother of Parliament and in all the other parliaments of the British Empire. But I have not read a word of criticism in any of those parliaments in respect to the great shrinkage in the value of their ships. I find no fault with hon. gentlemen opposite for criticising the shipbuilding policy of the Government, because one of the duties of the loyal Opposition is to criticise, but inasmuch as this is a national policy I hope that hon. gentlemen opposite will take a national view of the matter and think of what these ships are doing for Canada—of how they are helping our railways and how they are helping to expand our export trade and to advertise the Dominion all over the world. Although the profits are not yet very great, I do not look through the same blue spectacles as does my hon. friend from Antigonish and Guysborough. We will pass through this depression and as long as this Government remains in power our mercantile fleet will continue to be owned by the country and operated by the Canadian Government Mercantile Marine. We are not going to sell these ships to any private interests, for just so long as we own our Canadian National railways we shall need to operate our mercantile fleet in conjunction with those railways.

11 p.m.

Hon. members have even gone so far as to estimate what the loss is going to be on the operation of our merchant marine for 1921. True, they do not know how much cargo is going to be carried, they have not the slightest idea of what the revenue or what the expenses are going to be, but still they sit down and say: Here is our loss for 1920, and here is the loss that we are going to have in 1921. Last year my hon. friends stated that 1920 was going to be a poor year. They said. Wait until you see the end of 1920, and then the people of Canada will realize where they are going to be with your shipbuilding policy. Well, we have finished 1920, and it has been a good year. Everybody thinks so, except the minority of hon. gentlemen opposite. I do not know what 1921 is going to turn out, but in this young country we have got to keep our courage up. Many of us have been through depression in our own business and we have emerged successfully, and I think the country is going to come through this depression all right. It may be that hon. gentlemen will be surprised next year when they find a profit on the operation of this much-abused merchant marine.

I am not as familiar with the history of the past as my hon. friend from Red Deer (Mr. Clark), but the other day I happened to come across what is known as Cromwell's Navigation Act of 1651. I think hon. members will agree that that is far enough back.

Mr. COPP: That will be far enough back. Now come along from year to year.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: What was the object of Cromwell's Navigation Act of 1651? No country knows better how to expand her trade than the tight little island of Great Britain, and Cromwell's Navigation Act laid down the principle that imports into the United Kingdom should be in British bottoms only, and that three-fourths of the crew should be British subjects. That is the way England started to secure the supremacy of the seas that she has maintained so well since that time not only with her mercantile fleet but also with her navy. What did Germany do in 1870? She subsidized steel shipbuilding and gave preferential rates over her railroads for cargoes to be carried in German bottoms. Therefore if Canada should lose a few million dollars a year I would conceive it to be good policy for us to have built these ships and to continue to operate them. We hear a lot about Canada being a nation. Show me a nation in the world to-day that is not a maritime nation. It is high time that Canada owned her own mercantile fleet and assumed her place among the maritime nations of the world.

I want to refer to one or two points made by my hon. friend for Guysborough before I sit down. He says that on November 11, 1918, we had only four contracts placed, and that we should have ceased shipbuilding at that time. I do not think he was in the House when I gave the figures the other day, and I will give them again now.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): My hon. friend is a little astray in what I said. I said there were only four keels according to the dates from a return which I got in that journal to which I referred. I am aware that there were a number of contracts, in fact I stated there were eighteen contracts between the date of the armistice and the meeting of Parliament.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am quite willing to accept my hon. friend's correction. When he said that only four keels were laid down I inferred he was under the impression that that was all the Government had done on November 11, 1918.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Oh, no.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As a matter of fact the value of contracts signed on or before November 11, 1918, amounted to $29,299,991.40; the value of contracts approved by Order in Council on or before November 11, 1918, but not signed, amounted to $16,359,708—or a total amount of commitments on November 11, 1918, of $45,759,694.40. The value of contracts approved by Order in Council after November 11, 1918, was $27,283,572.50. Now, hon. members are well aware of the reasons why the Government placed contracts in 1919. I stated them fully when the vote was before the committee but it will take me only a moment to do so agin. This country, like all other counutries, was in a state of chaos as the result of peace following four prolonged years of war. Nearly 50,000 men were employed in our shipyards, including the allied trades, and it would have been a rash procedure for the Government suddenly to have closed the shipyards at that time and sent those 50,000 men adrift, particularly in view of the fact that as many of our returned soldiers were among the men so employed. The Government recognized the gravity of the situation—and no Government has ever gone through more serious times than this Government has. The Government therefore said: We will continue our ship-building programme, first, to keep the wheels of industry going; to keep these 50,000 men employed in order to tide them over a very serious period, and also because of the fact that a fleet of sixty-three ships is none too large for Canada. We realized at the time that we were going to lose money on these ships, but it was imperatively necessary that the Government let further contracts is it did in 1919. Further, we went on with public works; we went on with the Welland canal, and we let as many contracts as we could in order to tide the country over that very difficult time. The Government have no apologies to make; they have no regrets whatever for entering upon this ship-building policy and for carrying it on as they did in the critical period of 1919 to which I have just referred. Now, my hon. friend likes to go back to pre-war times. He says that a ship in pre-war times would cost about £8 or £9 a ton. That is prefectly true, but I think my hon. friend will agree that it is not fair to compare the pre-war cost of an ordinary tramp freight ship with the high costs prevailing when the Government let their contracts in 1918 and 1919.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): If the minister will permit me, I did not make the comparison for the purpose of showing that there was anything wrong in that respect with the minister's operations. I did so to show that it was impossible for the minister to make a profit when the ships that he built cost four times as much as the ships built during the war, of which there are millions of tons now afloat. I admit that a ship cannot be built now for the price at which it could have been built before the war.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Quite so, and in that respect Canada is in no different position from that of England, United States, Norway, France or any other country. They all have a large amount of tonnage built during the war. Norway had a ship launched at the Vickers shipyard, Montreal, on Saturday last. I know the cost of that ship, but I do not think it is fair to a foreign country that I should here state the price.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Why?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, I do not think that I should. I cite the case merely to show that all countries of the world placed large orders for tonnage at just as high prices as Canada paid. Our friends to the south paid an average price of $215 a ton as compared with our price of $191.50. Canada can compete with the other nations of the world, because other nations have not fleets wholly built in pre-war times. A large proportion of the ships operating on the seven seas to-day were built during the war at high cost, just the same as Canada's were.

Now, there is another thing. The hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) when he was speaking gave figures to show at how much lower prices ships could be built to-day than the prices paid for the Government ships. When I made my statement to the House I said that the same type of ship as our 8,400 ton deadweight would cost to-day in the United Kingdom $130 a ton. My authority for that is this: our naval architect has just returned from England. There he visited all the yards, and I had told him to find out for me exactly what the yards of the United Kingdom would charge to-day for ships of the type that we are building here. The information that he brings back is that these ships, figuring on the difference in exchange would cost $130 a ton. It is not fair to say that an ordinary tramp ship can be built to-day at a certain price as compared with the cost of the Government ships when it is a fact that the machinery, auxiliary equipment and type of the tramp ship generally are totally different from those of the Government ships. Then, my hon. friend advanced a peculiar argument; I am not an experienced shipping man but I have never heard it. Shipping men tell me that the speed of a freight ship should not be over 10½ or 11 knots an hour. If you have a freight ship with a greater speed than that you burn too much coal and the ship cannot be economically operated. But my hon. friend thinks that Canada's ships are too slow; that freight ships should have a speed of something like thirteen or fourteen knots an hour.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): My hon. friend has entirely mistaken my idea. I pointed out that the Australian company operating in competition with my hon. friend was running fast boats and that that would be another circumstance which would make it difficult for him to get the freight. I quite agree that a freight vessel must necessarily have a lower speed than a passenger vessel. I would not favour making the speed of a freight vessel anything like that of a passenger vessel. My hon. friend misunderstood me.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not think I did, but of course I will accept the explanation of my hon. friend. But I want to point out to him that more than once in his speech to-night and during his previous speeches he referred to the Government ships as tramp ships—I took note of it at the time—and referred to the slowness of the speed, 10½ and 11 knots. That is a proper speed for the ordinary freight ship. So far as the Australian route is concerned, while I have not the details I was told by the management not very long ago that our ships are carrying full cargoes to Australia and New Zeoland and that that is the most profitable route which the Government ships at present operate. My hon. friend also made the point that we subsidize these competing ships. True, we are subsidizing ships running to Australia, to Newfoundland and to the West Indies. But the ships under subsidy by the Department of Trade and Commerce are freight and passenger ships, whereas the Government ships carry freight only.

Now, I wish to submit the following details of difference in construction and equipment between the Government ships and ordinary British tramp ships:

1. Increase in accommodation area, and quality also accommodation for 4 passengers with deck saloon and lavatory adjacent.
2. Additional heavy derricks.
3. Additional electrical plant.
4. Total equipment and outfitting, not included in British vessels.
5. Sidelights brass in Canadian vessels: cast iron in British.
6. Steam heating in excess to suit Canadian winter ports.
7. Steering gear: very much in excess of British vessels, being directly connected to rudder head with telemotor control.
8. Telegraph: largely in excess of British vessels.
9. Winches: one extro on Canadian vessels.
10. Navigating position largely in excess of British vessels.
11. Fittings and equipment throughout in excess of British vessels.
12. Canadian vessels have cold store and refrigerating engine for ships' provisions. British vessels have only ice box.
13. Grain trimming and escape hatches in Canadian vessels extra.
14. Mechanical operating gear for engine room skylights and handling lifeboats.
15. Sundry items throughout vessels, such as teak rails, extra rails and stanchions, canvas work, extra stores, galley and pantry equipment, hospital, galvanizing iron work, upholstery, etc., all additional to equipment in British vessels.
16. Bronze propeller blades, and bronze spares. Cast iron in British vessels.
17. Additional covering to boilers.
18. Ash ejector fitted in addition to ash hoist.
19. One sanitary pump extra.
20. Independent in place of attached feed pumps.
21. Extra metallic packing.
22. Extra spare gear and outfit.
23. No trials were held on British vessels owing to war conditions? All Canadian vessels perform 6 hours full power trial, with steering and anchor trials.

"I may say also that a number of our vessels are equipped with oil fuel installation in addition to coal fuel." There is, therefore, a long list of differences between a Government ship and an ordinary freighter.

There is another thing that has just occurred to my mind. The hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough Mr. Sinclair) and the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) said that a large number of the Government ships were idle; that they were swinging at their anchors in Halifax harbour. This country has been fortunate; all the Government ships were busy in 1920, and up to this moment they are, so far as my information reaches me, all engaged. The reason that ships are lying at anchor in Halifax harbour at the present time is because they are in there for their annual overhaul, and when that is done, they are going to enter into the coal trade of Canada. My hon. friend (Mr. Sinclair) says that our small ships are of no use; that they are only yachts. Let us see what size "yachts" they are. Nearly all of those ships are 3,750 tons deadweight, and we have only four that are as small as 2,800 tons. My hon. friend knows that to do trade in Newfoundland and the West Indies where the waters are shallow, you must have vessels of light draft, and we could not send larger vessels than the ones that are plying now either to the West Indies or to Newfoundland. In addition to that, our vast system of railways requires a large number of that exact type of ships to be put into the coal trade.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Does my hon. friend intend to put the small ships into the coal trade?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The operating company do.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): They will be making a mistake.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Possibly. I have never interfered, nor has the Government, with the management. I do not know anything about the operation or the price of their coal. I do not ask them any more questions than I would ask the Canadian Pacific.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Do you not think you should?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: All that I am interested in, as Minister of Marine and Fisheries in this Government, is the net results of the operation of ships at the end of the year. I am not going to cover the debate that took place in this House the other day; but no man could manage ships if the Minister of Marine or any of the other ministers of the Dominion Government were going to ask him where he bought his lubricating oil or coal, or where he bought his butter or cheese. I do not ask a single question at all; they have an absolutely free hand as long as I am Minister of Marine, and as minister and speaking for the Government, I want to say that we are well pleased with the splendid showing made in 1920 and we are very hopeful for the year 1921.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): It is considerably past the hour when the House should be closed up if we had carried the proposition that was before us to-day, and I do not want to detain the committee unduly at this hour. I am lost in admiration at the courage and optimism of the minister and I say that unreservedly. He is a splendid type of a Canadian; but even Canadians can be too optimistic, and I really think the minister, just at the moment, is the leader in the class of super-optimistic Canadians. My hon. friend is too optimistic when he assures himself and keeps assuring this committee that the country is behind this shipbuilding policy. I want the minister to listen to what I am going to say on this subject. If there was anything in that statement or as much in it as my hon. friend thinks, I know of no man who would be so loyal to him as the Prime Minister (Mr. Meighen), but even the Prime Minister the other day used words of very great caution and reserve in regard to this scheme. He said: "It is true the picture is not as rosy as we could wish it might be." I thought I used rather strong language when I spoke of the business as a white elephant, but if there is a fair amount of truth in the representations that have been made by the hon. members for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) and Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair), I do not think I used too strong language at all.

There is this further fact which I should like to bring to the minister's mind so as to moderate his optimism as to the people of the country, and it is a point he might be able to clear up. The severest critics in the press of my hon. friend's statement the other day were to be found in newspapers which are about the very strongest supporters of this Government. The Halifax Herald, a newspaper which has always been prepared to burn its boats for anything coming from a Conservative ministry or a ministry that might be suspected of any tendency towards Conservatism, offered most uncompromising and severe criticism of the minister's whole scheme, and Halifax is a shipping port where newspapers should know something about this question. I am trying, you see, to get the minister into a reasonable frame of mind on this subject, because if he goes away with the Prime Minister to Great Britain as he is threatening to do, and he keeps in this optimistic frame of mind about shipping, he will be coming back with a string of dreadnoughts in his train. That would be a very serious catastrophe to come over this country at the present time. You come from Halifax to Ottawa, and you have in Ottawa a paper known as the Journal which has vied with the Halifax Herald in severe animadversions upon my hon. friend's statement. Then you take a trip from Ottawa to Montreal, go back a little in your tracks, and you come to the greatest shipping port in this country, the place where surely my hon. friend's scheme should have enthusiastic support if it gets it anywhere. But here again his journalistic friend, the Gazette, meets him and joins with the Ottawa Journal, with the Halifax Herald, and to some extent with the Prime Minister himself, in taking a gloomy view about the subject upon which my hon. friend is a positive Micawber, who is always sure that something is going to turn up to get him out of his troubles.

I want to give my hon. friend some more reasons why I think his optimism is not entirely well founded. I am going to show him, I think without any fear of contradiction or refutation, that his scheme has already broken down in some of its main features. I want to make very definitely this statement, that the scheme as undertaken by the Canadian Government was not in its inception a war measure at all. If I need any evidence of that, I find it in the statement which my hon. friend made a few minutes ago. He said that when he embarked upon the scheme, the Imperial Munitions Board was building, I think he said, at fourteen points in Canada, was doing all with Canadian material, Canadian men, and at Canadian shipping points that could be done for the winning of the war. I do not see my hon. friend take any objection to that. Then, I repeat, the first point in his argumentative platform goes out clean from beneath him. It never was a war measure at all, and that has a serious bearing on things we have heard in this debate, not only from my hon. friend the minister, but from this side of the House that this shipbuilding was all right as a war measure, but should have been stopped at the asmistice. It never was a necessary war measure as undertaken by the Canadian Government. The work never should have been taken out of the hands of the Imperial Munitions Board. We had our hands very full during the war, and the Government had my whole-hearted support at that time for anything in reason, but as my hon. friend admitted the other day, I never gave any countenance whatsoever to his taking up this business of shipbuilding.

Well now, if it was not a war measure, what was it? What was at the back of my hon. friend's head when he undertook this? It was nothing that was in any way discreditable to him, neither was it discreditable to my hon. friend from Maisonneuve and my hon. friend from North Cape Breton that they agreed with him. What is discreditable to them, I think, is the way they leave the minister in the lurch to-day. It is especially wrong on the part of a Highland Scotchman, who should always be prepared to die in the last ditch for any cause to which he has given his adherence. But I leave them out of consideration. What was in my hon. friend's head was that if there was to be shipbuilding in Canada, it was a useful industry for the Government to support. That was really what was in his head, and he was an extremely skilful man in setting about it. I do not want to use the words offensively, but when he arranged to burglarize the public purse, he took the precautionary measure of enlisting some of those who ought to be detectives and making them receivers. That is what happened at various points in this country. He got them into the scheme with him,—it is no use going behind the bush in this business—and so he had this put before us as a great scheme for building up the shipbuilding industry in Canada. That was what was in my hon. friend's mind. He had all the anxiety about the war that any member of the Cabinet had, and their anxieties were great, but his anxiety was not that ships were not being built fast enough in Canada for the war, because he knew the Munitions Board were building them fast enough, faster and better than he could build them, and he ought to have known—and this is where I must blame him, kind as he has been to me in his language, and I appreciate his courtesy and kindness—he ought to have known, I say, that he would have got out of his difficulties much sooner if he had left the business in the hands of those who were experienced in this kind of work.

I have not heard any pointed reference to the steel end of this shipbuilding project. What is the position of the steel end of it? The minister says now that we ought to have projected a war that was going to last forever. Well, that is a long way to look forward to, a very long way. Indeed, it is more than the mind can grasp, and it must be clear, I think, to the minister that if we were to look forward to a war lasting forever, we need not have troubled about these matters any further because we should have all gone down in the sweep. There would not have been a government to take the place of the one that is disappearing on the other side, and all our troubles would have been settled in oblivion.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If my hon. friend will allow me, I did not say the war was going to go on forever, but I said the Government ought to go ahead with its plans for helping win the war as if the war was going to go on, which is a different thing.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): That only shows that the minister was careful as a prophet, but very careless as to policy, because if the war was not going to go on forever, it has become fatal for him to go on with his policy forever. While the war has gone, the policy is with us. I do not think the minister is helping himself by his correction.

This was what was in the minds of those implementing this project. What otherwise was the meaning of a contract for five years, and that is a considerable portion of forever, with the Dominion Iron and Steel Company? I think I am right in saying that a contract was entered into with that company for 250,000 tons of steel plate. I do not know precisely what is the condition of that contract now, but it is confidently stated in many quarters that only 40,000 of the 250,000 tons have been delivered, and that that part of the project is closed down at the present moment. I do not think it is going at all—if I am wrong, the minister will correct me—and the Government is being pursued, naturally, by the company for some compensation for their losses under this very formidable contract which has broken down. I do not want to press this point very much further. I am only concerned that the main features of this scheme should be before this committee before we vote $8,330,000. It is somewhat alarming, Mr. Chairman, to reflect that this vote, which now looks so small to us, is one-fifth of the total expenditure of Canada in 1896, when the late Liberal Government came into power—one-fifth of the total money that was running the whole Dominion for federal purposes. We cannot lightly pass this vote until we are sure the committee knows what it is doing, and that the country also knows what are the main features of this scheme. I take it that at the present moment—and I am very anxious to have the minister's attention, because I want to know, and the committee will want to know, exactly what the state of his mind is before he gets his money—the position of the Government is that construction on this programme will cease this year, that this is the last money that the minister expects to ask for, for the construction of ships under the Dominion programme. Well, I am sorry to say that brings us to this position, that the second plank of my hon. friend's augmentative platform goes out from beneath him, because for the moment this great industry of shipbuilding, this building up of industry along the line of shipbuilding, has disappeared from the Government's programme. The programme, my hon. friend said in his first statement to the House, will terminate so far as the Marine Department is concerned this year, so that the second plank in his platform, I repeat, goes out from beneath him. I wish I could be as sure of the Government as I am of the Marine Department. I will tell my hon. friend why I have doubts on that subject. Just before the statement which I have quoted from memory occurs this other statement:

> Regarding the question of a subsidy as an aid to stimulate steel shipbuilding in Canada, the Government has this matter still under consideration, and it may be that an announcement in that connection will be made by the hon. the Minister of Finance when he brings down his budget.

Now I must say that that statement fills me with very considerable alarm. I had hoped that we should get away from our duties here by the end of May or early in June, but if, after we have got the shipping vote all on one side, we are to have a system of shipping subsidies for an industry which is as manifestly difficult to carry on as the shipping industry at the present moment, then I apprehend that the discussion of the Budget will be neither brief nor smooth. I will not say any more about it at the present time than just that, because, if we are to be asked, on top of the minister's statement about the surplus ships that are in the hands of the government of every nation in the world, to invest Canadian money in more shipbuilding, then we are certainly to be asked to take a course which is unbusinesslike and which would lead to certain loss and certain national disaster in the immediate future. I issue that word of warning in the hope that it may reach the ears and eyes of the Minister of Finance and that he will not fulfil the veiled prophecy which is contained in that portion of my hon. friend's speech.

Now, in connection with the building of industries, my hon. friend has repeated an argument to-night for the continuance of this scheme which he used in the year 1919, and which he used last year; that is, as to the employment of workmen. At first sight, and if we did not go below the surface of the matter, it would naturally appeal to any one of us in these difficult times. But I want to point out to the Government that the employment of public money to give work to any portion of our inhabitants in an unprofitable enterprise only aggravates the difficulty which it sets out to relieve, because you can get money only in two ways. If you raise it by taxes, then you take the money from the pockets of the taxpayer to put it into an unprofitable enterprise; if it remained in the pockets of the taxpayers, it would either go into the development of their own business or to swell the money in the hands of our banks, and would be loaned out to promote profitable business. If, on the other hand, instead of raising it by taxes, you raise it, as is not too seldom the case, by borrowing, then, in addition to the economic evils which I have just pointed out, you have the further economic loss of having to pay interest on the money you borrow; and when, as is frequently the case, we borrow from a foreign country, there is the added evil that for the sake of relief to a few workmen at a few points in the country, we pay interest to foreign people. Capital comes into the country in the shape of goods made abroad, and we make business for the foreign country from which we borrow and employ workmen in that country only to score a loss and put our own workmen out of work in our own country. So that no policy is more reprehensible, no policy in the long run is more economically unsound, than the policy of embarking on unprofitable or unremunerative work for the simple object of giving temporary and local relief to a handful of our own people.

Now it was not a war policy; the minister has proved that. It was not a necessary war policy; it was simply a continuation of a war policy which was being as well, or better done, and with vastly less risk to the people, by the Imperial Munitions Board. It clearly was not a good way of building up Canadian industry, because my hon. friend assumes the committee that we are giving it up this year as a Government enterprise. I have pointed out its futility and folly as a cure for unemployment, and their remains the consideration that it is the necessary complement to the Government system of railways. Well, I should like to know exactly where my hon. friend stands under this head. We are left now with the ships on our hands. I do not wish to use language of recrimination. My object is not a party object; it is to serve the country in this matter and help the people and the Government, if they will be helped, out of their difficulties. But I should like to know if I am right in interviewing my hon. friend's mind when I infer from what he has said that he still thinks it is a good thing for the Government to go on operating these ships. A diametrically opposite policy has been suggested by my hon. friend from Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair), who says he would sell the ships. Well, I do not know whether I would recommend that policy at the moment, for the minister is in the unfortunate position of having missed his mark. He said himself that he could have sold them last year; but las year was 1920, and this is 1921, and I doubt very much whether there is anything in the suggestion of the hon. member for Guysborough, for the simple reason that it is highly problematical as to whether he could sell the ships except at a loss that must be regarded as absolutely ruinous.

With regard to the alternative of going on operating these ships, though of a sanguine temperament, I still fail for the moment, I am sorry to say, to share the minister's optimism. It seems to me to be a very doubtful course of national policy to add to railroads, which show a deficit of $70,000,000 this year, a fleet of ships which, at their end of this transportation system, I very much fear may show a deficit in the years that lie immediately in front of us. I hope not. As a good Canadian, I hope I am wrong; but that is how it looks to me. I believe that my hon. friend, even if we allow his figures to be all right to-night, will have a different showing to make next year; and if there were any way of disposing of these ships at a reasonable loss, I would seriously ask him to consider the recommendation of my hon. friend from Guysborough.

For the rest, I should not like to sit down without a constructive word, and I must repeat what I have said to my hon. friend from the beginning of this business. He has referred to-night in complimentary terms to Britain's history in regard to shipping. He spoke of what was done at the time of Cromwell. Well, the spirit that runs British ships was manifest then; but to bring British shipping to where it is to-day, in addition to that spirit, there has been a policy, and that is the policy not want to press this point; I am almost tired of hearing my own voice pressing it in this House, I have had so much to say upon it. I do want to say, however, that this Government will have to decide whether they want a high tariff policy or a shipping policy, because they will not get both. I repeat that prophecy with the utmost confidence, and I do so for the purpose of urging my hon. friend to bring this consideration before the Cabinet. What is the sense of building railroads to carry the surplus of our crops to the edge of the ocean, and building ships for the avowed purpose of carrying those crops, and then putting up a high tariff wall as an obstacle in the way of goods either going out or coming in? You may have the one policy or the other to pursue both is an act of economic folly. If we are to have a tariff wall as high as Haman's gallows then do not let us fool ourselves about having a successful merchant marine, because we shall not have it.

I have tried to review the minister's policy in as few words as I could compress it into. I have charged that his policy was not a war policy undertaken for the war. It was taken out of the hands of those who were doing it as well as he has done it, and better. It has failed as a shipbuilding industry in the hands of the Government; it is a doubtful scheme as regards operation; and I do not think it will be made a success until the country alters its fiscal policy.

I just have one word more to say, and that is that if the minister goes to Britain we shall have to know a good deal about naval policy before that time. I would recommend to him that when he goes to that country to study shipping at first hand, he should meet the shipping men of the Old Land and they will tell him how shipping has been made a success there. He will only find one opinion amongst people who have anything to do with ships in Britain as to what has been the cause of the success of British shipping. He will only find one opinion, as indeed there only can be one opinion; and to continue with this shipping policy at the same time that we follow the fiscal policy that has been followed in this country, from Confederation up to the present moment, is an act of economic folly which can only end in national loss and disaster.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: I do not profess to be a sailing man, and I do not profess to know a great deal about the mercantile marine, but I do think there has been considerable criticism from some of our friends across the way, especially those that come from the maritime districts. My good friend from Red Deer (Mr. Clark) lives at a good distance from the sea now, and I am afraid that he has forgotten some of the opinions that he brought over with him from the Old Land when he first came across.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): My memory is my strong point.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: My hon. friend was then more of a maritime man that he appears to be at present. The hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair) has delivered a long address tonight as did the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), the other day, conveying the idea that the shipbuilding policy with which the minister has allied himself is one that is going to lead to great disaster in this country. The minister is well able to look after himself as has been proved on many previous occasions. However, I shall say a few words with regard to some of the points raised and I shall, in reply to what has been stated by one or two gentlemen opposite, place on record a few of the press criticisms which have been said to be of a very unkind nature; I think it was the hon. member for Red Deer who made that observation. Some of the newspapers, however, have not criticised the minister in any such way, and if the comments come from papers that are usually unfriendly to the minister and the Government I think perhaps they will have quite as much effect as if they were from papers that have supported the Government, even if those comments are not, in some instances, as favourable as they might be. I shall read first the opinion of the Sydney Post:

> Canada's experience with its state-owned merchant marine has been more encouraging than with its Government-controlled railway system. In cost of construction and operation, in freights earned, and in successful business management Mr. Ballantyne was able to demonstrate by a comparative statement that Canada's merchant marine has made a record which suffers nothing by comparison of that of any other country.

That is fairly strong and it comes from a maritime quarter, the Sydney Post of March 31. I hope the hon. member for Lunenburg will take notice of that fact.

Mr. DUFF: Thank you, I have.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: I now come to the Winnipeg Tribune. It is published in a city a fairly long distance from the sea, but not so very far from the Great Lakes where shipping is considerable of a factor. The Winnipeg Tribune of March 31 contains the following:

> "The showing made by the Canadian merchant marine is not by any means bad when the circumstances of trade during the past year are taken into account, and when its position is compared with merchant marine of other countries."
>
> "The merchant marine as it exists, however, forms a great and powerful weapon in the hands of the Government of Canada for the development of overseas trade. It is capable of being used, and should be used both to stimulate trade where it may be profitable to the country as a whole, and to correct some of the unfortunate tendencies of our trade as it at present exists."

I think that is favourable comment coming from the Winnipeg Tribune. Now, let me quote from the Vancouver Province of March 30:

> "Happily the Minister of Marine does not share all the experience of the Minister of Railways. He does not report a deficit."
>
> The Government purchase of ships was not intended as a direct financial investment. It was one way of providing employment for returned soldiers for the period or readjustment after the war. In this province, and doubtless elsewhere preference was given to returned men in these works. The industry gave regular and well paid employment at a time when it was gretly needed."
>
> "Nevertheless the Canadian merchant fleet seems to have been kept busy, and it is now possible to establish several Canadian steamship services which might otherwise have to wait.

Next, I will give a quotation from the Hamilton Spectator of April 2:

> It is true that the shipbuilding programme was not completed in time to be of practical service in the campaign; but the Government can hardly be blamed for not foreseeing the exact date of the termination of hostilities.

Now the Toronto Mail and Empire of March 31:

> The statement presented by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries respecting the operation of the national merchant fleet for 1920 is very gratifying. It is the more pleasing because in the latter part of the year shipping conditions on the ocean were much depressed. The United States shipping Board had to lay up hundreds of vessels, and suffered heavy operating losses. British owners had to lay up ships. Rates fell from one-third to two-thirds of what they were in January, 1920. Competition for cargoes was keen by the tramp freighters, and new routes were projected by many of the important old lines. It might have been expected that the Canadian Government fleet, being a new comer on the ocean, would have been at a large disadvantage in breaking into transatlantic cargo carrying, but though the number of ships in operation increased during the year to 47, with a tonnage of 250,000, cargoes were found for nearly all voyages. Hon. Mr. Ballantyne was able to report an operating surplus of $1,293,000. After depreciation, incorporation charges, and liabilities, the net surplus was $781,460 which was 2.35 per cent on the capital cost of the ships. Last year was really the first fair test of the merchant marine, because in 1919 only a few round voyages had been completed by about a dozen ships. When rates had sunk so low that even thousands of British vessels were laid up, the making of an operating profit was a triumph of management. There are sixteen vessels still to be delivered, nearly all of them large vessels. Hon. Mr. Ballantyne complains that the Canadian manufacturers have only given half-hearted support to the government vessels. They have not gone after export business, as they should, and have been too content to do their importing of overseas materials through United States channels. The rapid extension of routes on which the government freighters ply offers to Canadian business men exceptional sea transportation, and as costs of production come down, and a surplus productive capacity is built up, more energy in developing overseas business should be expected. The government ships are giving the service, at any rate, and if they can continue to pay their way, making some return on their capital cost, the country will have reason to congratulate itself on the experiment. Few countries have attempted national operation of merchant vessels with any success.

I have only read a few of the large number of extracts that I have here.

Mr. COPP: Were they marked to be read?

Mr. COCKSHUTT: No. I have read several, and if my hon. friend wants more they can certainly be handed to him.

Mr. COPP: You had better read them.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: I am not going to kill time, as my hon. friend might expect.

Mr. COPP: You have done more of it than I have this session.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: I did not say my hon. friend had killed time. Do not run away with that idea before it is imputed to you. I said I did not want to quote them for that purpose, and although I have these extracts I do not propose to read them at the behest of my hon. friend.

I want to devote one or two moments to the arguments put forward by my hon. friend from Red Deer (Mr. Clark). He has several grievous faults to find with the shipbuilding policy of Canada as a policy. It is open to criticism probably, and I would expect my hon. friend, who studies all matters of economics, to have some criticism on so large a subject as the shipbuilding policy of Canada. Now as the Vancouver Province article which I have just read pointed out, shipbuilding was undertaken for several reasons, one of which was to carry freight in co-operation with our railways. And I take issue with my hon. friend from Red Deer and other gentlemen opposite who criticize that as not being the part of good policy. The Canadian Pacific railway has made excellent progress along that line. It finds that it is necessary to have freighters on both oceans, and has operated them successfully for a long time in conjunction with its railway system. I admit that it requires very strong backing to do that, but if the Canadian National railways are to be a success they must be able to compete in all matters with the Canadian Pacific railway, and they cannot do that too soon. I can quite understand that shipping men do not like that any better than the Canadian Pacific Railway does, but the Government having, partly perhaps from choice, but largely from compulsion, taken over about 20,000 miles of railway, we are now obliged to run those railways to the best possible advantage, and I submit that it is economically a sound policy to have boats on the oceans east and west and also on the lakes, if necessary, to co-operate with our railways and to make our carrying charges as low as possible so as to compete with any other transportation company in that respect.

I think transportation is a national policy. I thought to have ships upon the waters, would appeal to my hon. friend from Red Deer, because though I know he is pessimistic with regard to many things that are made in Canada, if I recall correctly he did not think that Canada was only able to build ships of a small character and for the carrying trade, but in that celebrated debate on the Naval issue my hon. friend even went so far as to strain his free trade opinions in favour of building dreadnoughts in Canada. I do not want to misconstrue him. I was in the House when that speech was made, and I was shocked that a gentleman who as a rule was so consistent on free trade could have broken through even to the extent of proposing that we should build battleships, but I believe the hon. gentleman did advocate that policy on that occasion. If I have misinterpreted him I shall be glad to be corrected.

12 m.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): If my hon. friend will permit me, I do not want to interrupt him, but he is always so fair to me that I know he wants to be told exactly where I am in that matter. Of course, I supported Canada building her own ships for defence. If she was to have a navy at all, I preferred to have it made in Canada. If I may say so, I think my hon. friend has come to my view in that respect. It was a question of defence, and even so old an authority on economics as Adam Smith states that defence is the first duty of a country. But when it comes to a question of building ships for profit, my hon. friend is dealing with another question altogether. I believe in having good stout locks upon my house for my own security, but it does not follow that I want to embark in the business of a locksmith and lose money in making and selling locks.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: Mr. Chairman, I did not think the hon. gentleman was going to explain his shipbuilding policy and give his reasons for going back on free trade to the extent of supporting a shipbuilding policy for Canada. I thought he would have had uttered only two or three words to tell me whether I was minsinterpreting him or not. I do not like to have a free trade speech thrust in the middle of a protectionist speech because it rather spoils the thread of my argument. The hon. gentleman says that I have come to his line of policy. Not at all. I am backing the building of ships that we can build in Canada to advantage,—these merchant marine ships,—but I am not asking that we should build dreadnoughts, for they are the last word in shipbuilding, and even yet Canada is not prepared in any shape or form to build those big battleships. I do not think my hon. friend accuses me of being unduly peaceful, but I say that at the present time I do not think Canada is called upon to embark on a battleship enterprise. Therefore, I am not in line with his policy on that occasion.

Now, if the manufacturers of Canada, as is stated by the minister—and I am afraid there is some truth in it—have not taken full advantage of his policy, it must be remembered that at the present time export trade presents very serious difficulties, as everybody knows who is in the business. If you sell your goods to-day to foreign countries it is questionable if you can get paid for them, and if you do get paid it is in a depreciated currency or in goods that you are not in need of. Therefore I say it was a most unfortunate time for the minister to embark on this policy. But that is not his fault, and the blame should not be on him. The policy is all right, but it was embarked upon about four years too late. The minister was not in office at that time or I believe that the policy would not have been undertaken too late—I mean too late to get the best financial results, not too late to be of general advantage to the Dominion in point of trade. I myself waited on the then Minister of Marine four or five years ago and begged him to embark on the building of some ships. That was away back in the second year of the war, when it became evident that we were going to lose a large amount of British shipping through the activities of the German submarines. I tried to convince him that it was the psychological moment to undertake a shipbiulding programme. At that time ships could have been built at half the price that they cost later, and, further, during the war they would have paid for themselves if they made two or three successful voyages, so high was the cost of transportation at that time. Therefore I say to my hon. friend from Red Deer that this is a sound commercial policy providing we are getting good value for the money spent.

The question arises whether or not the best of bargains has been made. I do not think any hon. gentleman has said that the minister did not make the best bargain possible at the time the contracts were let, and while it is easy to figure out now that you have lost money on those contracts, where is there a private firm to-day is not more or less in the same position? I know of small businesses in our town that have had to wipe out nearly half their capital this last year because they were caught when the war ended with a vast amount of material on hand which went down to twenty-five per cent of its original value. I am connected with several enterprises that have had to make very serious reductions in the value of the goods on hand —and it would strike the Government the same as it would strike private individuals. Before the war ended the farmers were getting very high prices for their produce, but if they carried their stock recently they had to write off a large proportion of the value and if they sold they had to sell at a straight loss. Therefore, the minister having in good faith placed contracts for the building of these vessels, is carrying out his part of the contract as an honest man should. Every business man must stand by his business engagements whether they are going to be a loss to him or not. So I say to the hon. member for Red Deer that the policy is all right; the only question is whether the thing is being done at the right time and to the best advantage. If the hon. member knew that proper consideration had not been given to the matter and that fair advantage had not been taken of the opportunities offered, why that would be a point which he could reasonably put forward as an argument. But he questions the right of the Government, or of practically anybody to spend money on what we might call relief work.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): I did not question the "right" of the Government. The Government is almighty in the country while it is governing. I questioned the wisdom of the Government's action. I join with my hon. friend in defending the rights of the Government, but I should be sorry to join with him in every thing he thinks wise.

Mr. COCKSHUTT: All wisdom, I admit, does not dwell under my cranium, nor does it under that of my hon. friend. Perhaps a little error creeps into both now and again, but there is more error in my hon. friend's cranium, I think, than there is in mine on this question of relief work. He says he questions the wisdom of the Government. Well, both in the Old Land and in this land works of practically no utility have been undertaken for the sake of furnishing employment to workmen. This policy has been followed in order that these men might feel that they were not dependent on the contributions of their fellowmen; in order that they might maintain their dignity and be in a position to say with truth: We are earning our living. So when my hon. friend says that that is not good policy I answer him by saying that the Government was justified in its expenditure which resulted in furnishing employment to returned soldiers and others who would otherwise have been out of a job—justified even if the ships could have been built at twenty-five or fifty per cent less. I believe that my good friend here, the member for Skeena (Mr. Peck) who has every sympathy for the soldiers, will express the view that it is a sound policy to help returned men, even if at a disadvantage otherwise.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): If it is good policy, why does not the Government continue it? Why is the Government finishing its contracts and why has it cancelled its contract for plates?

Mr. COCKSHUTT: The minister had a certain programme, and that programme is finished at a certain time. All programmes, no matter how long they are, and all speeches on great questions, must some time come to an end—because they are finished.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): The unemployment is still there.

[Mr. Cockshutt.]

Mr. COCKSHUTT: Perhaps so, but it may be relieved in another direction. Why should we keep on building ships if we have enough? Let us build something else that we need more. What about highways? That is a good thing on which to spend money and the proper time to undertake work of that kind is when the workingmen of the country need it. I stand by that as sound policy. It is a sympathetic policy. I will not say it is a charitable policy, because when you furnish work to a man who is willing to work, I do not think you are giving him charity; you are simply making it possible for him to obtain his daily bread in an honest and satisfactory way and to hold his head up and say: I am a man among men. I am surprised that the hon. member for Red Deer should object when the Government say they undertook this policy partly to furnish work for the unemployed. As is pointed out by the Vancouver paper, this policy was a great benefit to a large number of returned men in that city.

Now, as to the value of the ships we have, I do not profess to know as much about that phase of the subject as the member for Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair) does. But I am afraid he is disposed to write off somewhat more on these ships than he would if he was the owner of them. I do not know the hon. gentleman's pedigree, but I rather think there must be some Scotch in him. As a matter of ordinary business the whole amount should not be written off in one year; it should be spread over a term of years. No business man would say: Well, this is a pessimistic morning; I will take an inventory of my stock and down comes everything to seventy-five per cent below what it cost. Where would the assets of this country be if we applied that principle all round? What can you sell to-day at one hundred cents on the dollar? I challenge my hon. friend to pick out of the daily market reports in the newspapers ten companies whose stock is to-day selling even at par or anything near par. Canadian Pacific stock, which was selling two or three years ago as high as 285, has come down to as low as 115. If that is possible in the case of a great and powerful enterprise managed to the last degree of efficiency, is it likely that the Government, embarking on a new policy in difficult times, could foresee that shipping was going to come down with such a sudden bump? I say, therefore, that business men throughout the country will not be disposed to criticise the minister because he keeps the book value of his ships above the market price. I say that in spite of the contention of the hon. member for Guysborough, who, I believe, paid some attention to me a few moments ago when I was not in the House. I repeat that the proper way to make these reductions is by a certain amount each year, according as the business will stand it. It is unreasonable for the hon. member for Lunenburg or the hon. member for Guysborough to suggest that the whole thing be cut down in one fell swoop; if they were shareholders in a company, they would not advise such a course as that. Why ask the Government to get pessimistic all of a sudden? I admire the optimism of the hon. Minister of Marine. It is quite true, as the member for Red Deer has said, that it is an optimism that is not, perhaps, given to everybody. Some men are always pessimistic and some are always optimistic; I try to be a little of each. I know that we all want a little bracing in these times. It appears to me that it comes like a tonic from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to hear him, in answer to wails that come from the other side, wails all down the line about the tremendous loss in ships and to Canadian trade, say: "Well, I see brightness ahead; I see a future for our ships; I see that this is going to be a commercial success some day, and in connection with our railways, is going to be a paying policy for the Dominion of Canada." I really think when the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) sleeps over this situation, he will conclude that he went a little too far in his depression tonight as regards a policy that is really commendable. I do not like to see him get into a pessimistic mood. I know it is very hard for him to refrain from that when he sees protection romping around, but I hope he will not give way to it too much. As I do not want him to become too pessimistic, I will give him as a bracer, a definition of pessimism that I heard the other day. A man is a pessimist who considers it is necessary to wear both a belt and braces. I suggest to my hon. friend that he does not get too pessimistic as to require bracing up to that extent.

I rose to make these few remarks only because I think the minister has been perhaps unduly pressed on this subject, and he is too good natured, he does not want to use too many hard words, so I do not believe he will object to my putting in a few thrusts to my hon. friends opposite to show them that I, as a business man, believe the minister has done his utmost to make the affairs of this country successful and prosperous. He began the work at the very top notch, and while that was unfortunate, it was not his fault. He was urged to do it on every hand, and many to-day would have him continue it. I believe even the hon. member for Maisonneuve (Mr. Lemieux) who made that severe attack on the minister the other day, would be willing to let the item pass, if the minister would say: "I will spend a few million dollars in the constituency of Gaspé in building ships." Do not be too pessimistic about the success of the shipping policy of the minister in connection with the railways. While I admit that deficits of the kind that we have had on the railways cause a shudder to run down our spine, so to speak, we believe that, with our railways and our ships being operated in conjunction with each other, this country will be pulled out of the mire by a board that may be finally brought to give its best attention to the development of these great enterprises. If we boost up our shipping and boost up our railways as we should, if we show the loyalty that is in us towards these enterprises and do not criticise and knock and pound and try to drive into the earth our property, there will be a vast difference in the atmosphere in a very short time. That is the spirit which I commend to the attention to some of my hon. friends opposite; I suggest that they lend a friendly hand and try to get a traffic for our property both on water and on land, and I think in due course they will see the sun smiling just as the Minister of Marine says.

Mr. DuTREMBLAY: Last session this Parliament passed an Act empowering the Government to lend money to the extent of $20,000,000 to shipyards. Has any shipyard taken advantage of this, and is the Government giving any encouragement, by subsidies or in any other way, to shipyards?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No shipbuilder has taken advantage of the Act passed last session. One shipyard applied for it, but the Government did not see fit to grant them the financial aid because they were working on contracts which they had secured before the Act was passed. The Government took the ground that when the Act was passed last year, it was only to encourage the bringing into Canada of new orders. As regards subsidies, that is a matter that will be mentioned when the Budget is brought down by the Minister of Finance.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): Will the minister tell us exactly what is the position of the Government at the moment in regard to the contract for steel plates?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member for Red Deer seems to be quite familiar with the matter. The Government took 40,000 tons on account of the contract for 250,000 tons. The demand was very brisk last year from all parts of the world and was greater than we were able to supply. Then suddenly the demand ceased throughout the world, and although the Government sent a man over to England in November and December to see if he could get orders, he was unable to obtain any. Therefore, the Government cancelled the contract, and any claim that the company may have will have to be settled by the Exchequer Court. In any event, the claim can be only for the remaining tonnage.

Mr. McDONALD: What is the estimated cost per ton to complete the boats now under construction at Toronto?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The contract was let at $180 a ton. The company unfortunately failed, and while my department called for tenders to have the work finished at a fixed price, we were unable to get anybody to tender on that basis. Several firms tendered on a percentage basis, and the contract to finish the ships was awarded to the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company. I cannot make a positive statement, but I do not think the ships will cost any more than the original contract price of $180 a ton, although I am not, of course, certain of that.

Mr. McDONALD: How and when were those contracts advertised and who submitted tenders for the same?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If my memory serves me aright, the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company, the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company, the Canadian Vickers, the Three Rivers concern and the Halifax concern were asked, but we got firm bids only from the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company and the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company.

Mr. McDONALD: Has the Government any report on the cost of work due to the inefficiency of the class of help now employed in Toronto?

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No. We have one of our own men there, and the reports coming into the department from day to day go to show that the work is being done efficiently.

Mr. McDONALD: How much is being paid on these contracts, first, to the Dominion Shipbuilding Company or the liquidators, and secondly, to the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Perhaps the hon. member would go on with any other questions he may have to ask, while the deputy is looking that up.

Mr. McDONALD: What arrangement have the Government made with the liquidators relative to the material on hand with the Dominion Shipbuilding Company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: When the Government first commenced to let contracts they took the precaution of getting a surety bond from each shipbuilder for 10 per cent of the value of the contract. In addition, we took a lien on all the material that might be in the yard. In case of the failure of a firm, such as the Toronto firm, for instance, we can collect the value of the surety bond, and in addition all the material on the works belongs to the Dominion Government.

In reply to my hon. friend's previous question, the total contract price amounted to $630,000 for each ship, and the amount paid to the company before they went into liquidation amounted to $409,500. The Collingwood Shipbuilding Company are now completing ships on the basis of cost, plus 15 per cent. They are being paid as the work progresses, on the voucher of our man on the work.

Mr. McDONALD: Is the Government in possession of information relative to steel prices? Is the Government paying the liquidator the 1921 or the 1919 prices for the steel on hand?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There was a large quantity of steel plate in the yards; I saw it when I was there last fall. The contract for that steel was made before the company went into liquidation, and the Government are standing by it.

Mr. McDONALD: That will be the 1919 price?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am not sure.

Mr. CAHILL: Would the minister mind repeating what he said with reference to depreciation and a sinking fund?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The operating company have allowed 2 per cent depreciation on the cost of the ships. That amount of depreciation will be re-invested each year, yielding 5½ per cent interest. Therefore, with the 2 per cent depreciation and the interest in the course of 25 years, providing the company's earnings are kept up, there will be enough to write off the entire cost of the fleet.

Mr. CAHILL: If we got this $8,000,000 working in that same direction it might work off some of the liabilities of the country. The minister is really borrowing money to put into a sinking fund. I do not see how he can borrow money, pay interest on it, and at the same time use it as a sinking fund to reduce his obligations. If he had a surplus invested, and had not borrowed the money in the first place, there would be some reason in his argument, but to borrow money and place it in a sinking fund and say that you are going to wipe off the liability with that is not a very sound argument I am afraid.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is the usual way in a business concern, so far as my judgment goes. The operating company are in a very strong liquid position. I referred to that in my first statement, and therefore did not want to refer to it again this evening.

Mr. CAHILL: They owe one hundred cents on the dollar.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Their current assets show a very nice surplus over current liabilities. They do not owe a bank anything, so they are in a very good liquid position. The only way to write off the excessive cost of the ships is to spread it over a period of years, and I do not think 25 years is too long. I have had their figures checked, and they will be able to do that provided their earnings can be kept up. I wish to say to my hon. friend, who understands these things so very well, that there are very few operating companies, if any, that are called upon to make their operating expenses provide for depreciation, as in the present case, and then be expected to earn 5½ per cent on the war cost of the vessels. We are taking it up with the operating company now, and it seems to me we ought to modify that rate of interest, but we have not done so.

Mr. CAHILL: Modifying the interest charge would only be a bookkeeping transaction in any event. The people of Canada are called upon to furnish the money; they have to pay the interest on the debt of Canada. So unless the minister pays the interest on the full amount that he borrowed from the treasury for this company, over which he claims to have no control, it does not matter whether he makes a bookkeeping entry at 3½ per cent or at 7 per cent, which is the rate, I believe, the Government are paying now. The country is losing the difference. For the minister to say that he can borrow money to create a sinking fund is surely not good business. If the minister had his fleet paid for, if he had sold stock and paid for his fleet in that way, and the fleet was earning profits so that the minister was able to lay aside a surplus, there might be some force in his argument; but to say that with borrowed money he can create a sinking fund to write off depreciation, I am afraid, is not sound business.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We are not borrowing money to create a sinking fund. If my hon. friend and I had been going to build that fleet, we would have had to borrow the money from some bank or issue securities. Having done so, we would then provide a depreciation fund just the same as this company is doing. It appears quite the usual thing to me.

Mr. CAHILL: Is there not a charge against the Marine Department or against this shipping company? Do they not agree to pay interest annually amounting to so much?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: 5½ per cent.

Mr. CAHILL: Have they paid it?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: They paid 5½ per cent last year.

Mr. CAHILL: But not for 1920?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, they have not earned 5½ per cent on the capital cost of the ships, only 2.35 per cent.

Mr. CAHILL: Therefore, you have no money to put into a sinking fund?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Oh yes, we have.

Mr. CAHILL: If you pay your interest you have no money to put into a sinking fund. You are probably $1,000,000 short, and therefore, you have nothing to put into a sinking fund, so it is useless to talk about a singing fund that is going to relieve the situation. You are not paying your interest.

Mr. ELKIN: It is only a matter of bookkeeping.

Mr. CAHILL: Yes, but the difficulty is it is very expensive bookkeeping for the Canadian people. If the minister was doing the bookkeeping for himself, he might go on and spend his money and I would not criticise him at all, but in this case it is the money of the Canadian people. I do not like his statement that he has a sinking fund that is going to take care of something when, as a matter of fact, it is not because he has not paid his interest. He has made a loss on operation for the last year and therefore has nothing to place to sinking fund and cannot possibly pay for the ships in twenty-five years or twenty-five hundred years.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There is a surplus of current assets over current liabilities which will enable the company to set aside the amount of depreciation their statement shows.

Mr. CAHILL: Is there a sufficient amount of current assets to pay interest?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, and more.

Mr. DUFF: The minister says he has set aside $667,000 for depreciation. I understood him to say that 2 per cent this year, and a corresponding amount during the next twenty-five years, would wipe out the $70,000,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The company have taken 2 per cent of the value of the ships turned over during the past year, and that 2 per cent amounts to $667,665.46. They will re-invest that at 5½ per cent, and the annual interest on the 2 per cent year after year for twenty-five years will accumulate sufficient to write off the cost of the fleet.

Mr. DUFF: The minister says that with this $667,000 odd he is going to pay off the $70,000,000 in twenty years.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, but depreciation every year.

Mr. DUFF: How much will you pay off in twenty-five years?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The actuaries have figured it out. I have had one ship taken at a valuation of a million dollars to make sure that their figures would be right, because I am careful not to put anything but correct information before the House. They have taken a ship valued at a million dollars. Two per cent of that will be $20,000; re-invest that $20,000 at 5½ per cent, and write off 2 per cent every year; then keep on investing with compound interest on top of compound interest, and in twenty-five years it will equal $1,000,000.

Mr. DUFF: The minister says that he has put this $667,000 in the sinking fund, and after doing that he has no money left. Consequently he owes the Finance Department interest on the money invested in these ships in 1920, which is $50,000,000. How can any business man put money to rest when he has not paid interest?

Mr. CASGRAIN: It cannot be done.

Mr. DUFF: It is absolutely impossible. The minister owes interest, not only for 1920, but also for 1919. If I understood him correctly about an hour ago, when he was making his third speech this evening, he told us that the amount of $500,000 which he paid to the Finance Department in 1919, was all the money he owed that department for interest on money advanced by the Government up to December 31, 1919. Am I correct? Very good. Then if the minister will be good enough to turn to page 1331 of Hansard, he will find that he made the statement that at December 31, 1919, he had twenty-four vessels of a tonnage of 129,000 tons. If the minister will take his pencil and make a calculation he will see that at $192 per ton these twenty-four ships cost $24,768,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, but bear this in mind—

Mr. DUFF: I catch your point; let me go on and, if I am wrong, you can correct me. Interest at 5½ per cent on $24,768,000 is $1,362,000. If I apprehend what the minister was about to say, it is that all this money was not advanced during the year 1919. Is that what he was going to say? Yes; exactly, the minister nods his head. The minister will not forget that part of that money was advanced in 1918, so that one off-set the other. For instance, he was paying out for the work during the progress of construction, from May or June, 1918, to December 31, 1919, so that he not only owes interest in 1919, but also has not paid interest for 1918. Taking what was advanced in 1918 and what was advanced in 1919, the two years' interest would amount to one year's interest on the total cost of the ships.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I admit quite frankly that during the progress of the construction of the ships, while moneys were being advanced, the country lost interest; but it is not fair to charge interest to the operating company until the ships are turned over.

Mr. DUFF: It is as broad as it is long. Some one is losing that interest, whether it is chargeable to capital account or not. The country, in addition to paying $192 per ton from the time the contract is let or the keel is laid, loses that interest, and it makes no difference, so far as the people are concerned, whether the interest comes out of operating account or not. It must be paid, and consequently the minister owes, in addition to the $2,740,000 interest for 1920 which he admits—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Of course, I cannot tell, without looking it up, what the advances have been. I could not give any idea what the interest would amount to, because I would need to find out how the advances were made and the length of time, and then figure the interest. I do not know what it would be.

Mr. DUFF: I agree that it is impossible to tell exactly what the interest is; but it is a fair assumption that he owes the 1920 interest, whether it is $2,700,000 or not, I do not know; it a question of degree.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is $1,828,000.

Mr. DUFF: Does that include also the interest that would be due on progress payments on the ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. DUFF: That would be another $400,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know.

Mr. DUFF: Neither do I; but it would be somewhere around there. Taking the minister's own figures, the interest due for 1920 would be in the neighbourhood of $2,000,000. Although the Canadian Government Merchant Marine paid into the trasury $500,000 for 1919, there is still owing some interest for 1919 and 1918, either by the merchant marine or by the Marine Department.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is drawing a very fine line.

Mr. DUFF: When the minister says that he is putting aside some $667,000, and is making a good showing, I think it is quite fair to say that he has not done so well, because he owes about $2,500,000 or $3,000,000 interest.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That would not be fair. I am quite willing to leave it to my experienced friend, the hon. member for Shelburne and Queen's (Mr. Fielding). This company is operating the ships and we have to put them on a strictly business basis. We could not charge them interest during the progress of construction of the ships, because that would not be fair. I say that the Government of Canada would have to take care of that interest, but it must not come into this statement at all; it has no relevancy to this statement.

Mr. DUFF: I agree with the minister in the statement that until the ships are handed over to the Government Marine, that company should not pay interest; but that does not effect the position of the people of Canada. Somebody certainly lost that interest. If it is not added to the capital cost of the ships, and I presume from what the minister said it is not, then instead of having expended $50,000,000 on capital account, as the statement shows, we will expend more, or else he owes the Finance Department a certain amount of money for interest which has been added to the capital account.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It was not the policy of the Government—my hon. friend will allow me to make this explanation—when I was a harbour commissioner for the port of Montreal to pay the interest on the capital expenditure of many millions of dollars while the development was going on, or until the work was finished and it was put in a position to pay its own way. The hon. member for Shelburne and Queen's will quite readily remember that, and without taking up the time of the committee I could name a port in Canada where millions of dollars have been spent and no interest was received during the construction and none has been received since.

Mr. DUFF: But, these works were in a different position.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: They are national works.

Mr. DUFF: They are to this extent,—that the minister is coming here and telling us that he has made a profit on this business. It may be a good policy in the case of the harbour works in Montreal, where all they get is a certain amount of revenue and which works are not expected to pay just like ships pay.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: They pay their interest.

Mr. DUFF: If they pay their interest so much the better, but this is a different policy altogether. Harbour works are an entirely different thing from the Government launching into a shipbuilding programme. However, I do not want to get diverted from my speech. I will answer the remarks of the hon. member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) by saying that if it is good business for the Government to go into the ship operating business, it would be equally good policy for the Government to build trawlers in these yards and send them out to Prince Rupert, Lunenburg, Halifax and Canso and operate those same trawlers. The Government has just as much right to engage in the fishing industry as they have to engage in the shipping business. The Government may just as well engage in the refining of sugar or engage in the buying of Canadian wheat. Seeing that practicaly half a crop remains in Western Canada unsold, why not go into the wheat buying business in order to help the farmers. Why not buy all the wheat in the western grain elevators and everywhere else, for that would be carrying out the same principle? Why not buy agricultural implements, and I say this with the greatest possible respect for my hon. friend (Mr. Cockshutt).

Mr. ELKIN: The hon. member for Lunenburg is a shipping man. He has a knowledge of the Atlantic ring and the position that Canada and Canadian shippers found themselves in with regard to the trans-Atlantic trade. Will he say it is not good business for the Canadian Government to place themselves in the position of building and owning ships so that they can open up trade routes for the benefit of Canada and Canadian shipping?

Mr. DUFF: In answer to my hon. friend I would say that the Canadian Government ships have not been opening up trade routes. To every port where the Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships have gone since they were launched, other Canadian vessels have been going for years past. These routes have been served by other lines of Canadian steamships for 150 years past. It is all nonsense to say that these ships of the Canadian Government have increased Canadian business; they are running all around looking for freight. In the Halifax Herald of to-day my hon. friend will find it stated that one of the Government ships is leaving Halifax to go to Portland. Another one is bringing a cargo from Buenos Aires to Philadelphia. That is the way in which these steamers of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are helping Canadian trade. The minister tells us what great things they are doing in the way of developing Canadian trade. I would like my hon. friend to turn to the report of the Department of Trade and Comemrce and see what evidence he can find there of that. The minister has a line of ships running to Brazil, and to hear him talk a minute ago one would imagine that nobody ever took any business to Brazil from Canada before. Why Canadian sailing ships have been going from St. John, Halifax, and other Canadian ports to Brazil for the last one hundred and fifty years. My hon. friend from St. John knows that. It is not the Government owned ships only that have been doing this business.

Mr. ELKIN: Not on regularly established trade routes.

Mr. DUFF: My hon. friend must know that if there is no freight to be carried no ships are required. The ships to which I have alluded have always carried freight if there was any freight to be carried. Now as to the trade with Brazil, I find these figures on page 6 of the report of the Department of Trade and Commerce: Brazil —1914, $267,858; 1918, $974,368. That was before there were any ships belonging to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. In 1919, and this would be for the year ending March 31—and of course before the minister had very many ships—the trade had increased to $4,000,000; but in 1920 when the minister had opened this particular route, as the hon. member for St. John calls it, the exports to Brazil had dropped to $2,703,000. So you see the minister's steamers are not doing very much to open up trade routes to Brazil and, as I said a moment ago, sailing ships from St. John and Halifax have been carrying the products of Canada to Brazil for the last one hundred and fifty years and there was never any complaint. Now the minister's ships are doing the business which these sailing ships were formerly doing. Vessels representing an investment of millions have been tied up because the Government has embarked on this scheme—that is where the whole trouble lies. I could read the shipments from Canada to other countries. I could make a comparison between shipments in 1914 and shipments in 1918 and 1920. There has been an increase on account of the increased cost of the goods. My hon. friend knows the cost of merchandise is perhaps two hundred per cent greater than it was in 1914 and yet the minister says we are doing more business because these ships are on the ocean. Why there is nothing in the statement when you analyze it and learn exactly what it means. I repeat that these ships are not opening up trade routes, they are going around looking for freight. They are carrying products to New York, they are loading cargoes in Portland, Baltimore, or somewhere else to carry across the ocean, and so on.

Now to get back to the question of the interest account, because I want this thing straightened out, I say that the minister cannot very well claim that because he had $667,000 at rest for the first year and has not paid his interest for 1918, or 1919, or 1920, he has any surplus, or any money, at rest. The very first thing he must do is to pay interest on the charges before he talks of putting money to rest account. In estimating this interest I take the cost of those steamers which were put in operation up to December 31, 1919, at $192 a ton. I think I am safe in saying that that figure applies to the whole sixty-three ships, and that the cost is on the average $192 a ton. In figuring at $192 a ton for the 1919 ships and the 1920 ships the minister is far too conservative. I think he will find that instead of costing $192 they averaged $202 a ton because they represented the heaviest contracts.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I might inform the hon. member that the lowest price was $167.50, other contracts were let at $180, and the highest price paid was $215 a ton. It has been very carefully figured out that on the entire programme the average will be $191.50.

Mr. DUFF: That is exactly what I am saying, but I am trying to show that the first ships constructed by the minister cost $215 a ton.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, $180.

Mr. DUFF: He paid $215 for some.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: For one or two.

Mr. DUFF: And the ships that are being built now are being constructed for a lesser price than any of the others.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Some are, some are not.

Mr. DUFF: I mean you did not contract for any ships for $167.50 in 1918 or 1919.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The lowest price we paid in 1919 was $180 a ton for the ships built by the Coughlan Shipbuilding Company of Vancouver, and one by Wallace at $167.50.

Mr. DUFF: Consequently that figure of $167.50 brought down the average.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That might be, but when the 63 ships are finished the cost to the country will be $191.50.

Mr. DUFF: But in figuring my interest on $191.50 a ton on the 1919 ships I was figuring low. It would be more correct if I figured the average at about $202 because the minister will admit that those ships cost more than the ships that are not yet completed. I would like to have some information in regard to another matter. Late last session hon. gentlemen opposite voted some $703,000, to be found in the Further Supplementary Estimates for the year ending March 31, 1921, on page 14, No. 549, by way of advances to Victoria, British Columbia, Shipbuilders, Limited for the construction of four vessels at an estimated cost of $250,000 for each vessel—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That does not come under the Department of Marine and Fisheries at all. If my hon. friend will direct that question to the Minister of Finance he will be able to give him the information required. It is money the Government of Canada loaned to that shipbuilding company through the Finance Department.

Mr. DUFF: Do I understand the minister to say that the Finance Department made the contract with these people?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. DUFF: Now, the Toronto shipyards. I understand the minister to say that the contract he made with these people is on a cost plus basis. What money had the Government already advanced to the shipyard before the new arrangement was made? And what difficulty, if any, arose with the workmen in the yard?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: $409,000 was the amount paid. We have not had any difficulty with the men in the yards at Toronto. More skilled and unskilled workmen have been offering their services than are really needed. When the war was on that yard paid the highest wages of any shipbuilding yard in Canada, 90 cents an hour. When we came to let this contract on a cost plus basis, naturally I knew that the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company were not interested in what wages would be paid, because the higher the wages the greater would be the amount of cost plus they would get from the Government; therefore, the maximum scale of wages was fixed at 75 cents which was the current wage in Toronto at the time.

1 a.m.

Mr. DUFF: I understood there was a strike and that the men would not accept the wages the Government offered.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: A few men of the Trades and Labour Council may have struck, but the yard had more men than they really needed.

Mr. DUFF: I understand that the number of men who were previously employed in the yard had some disagreement with the Government about wages, and therefore struck for better treatment. Will the minister explain what happened?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: A few of the old men who were employed by the Toronto Shipbuilding Company at ninety cents an hour for an eight-hour day were not satisfied to take a drop to seventy-five cents an hour, and they left.

Mr. DUFF: Is the minister aware of the fact that the men now employed by the company in the place of those skilled men are not capable shipwrights?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I know that assertion has been made, but the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company have demonstrated fully to the Government that they have one of the best equipped yards in the Dominion and that their workmen are thoroughly skilled. Besides that, the Marine Department have got their own man there, and I can assure the hon. member that the work is being done just as efficiently as in any yard in Canada.

Mr. DUFF: How much money was paid to the Vancouver shipbuilding companies, and how much are the vessels under construction likely to cost?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We were able to make a much more advantageous arrangement at Prince Rupert than we were at Toronto, and the Wallace Shipbuilding Company are completing those ships for eight per cent over labour and any material they have to buy. I do not know exactly what the ships are going to cost, but I should say it will be a little bit less than the original contract, because that was one of the highest contracts for that type of ship that the Government let; it was during the war and the price was $198 a ton.

Mr. DUFF: Has the minister any information in regard to the work done on the Canadian Inventor?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None.

Mr. DUFF: Has he received any complaint about the shaft being short after the ship was launched and taken over by the Government? And had the Government to spend a large amount of money to put in a new shaft?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not any knowledge.

Mr. DUFF: Of course, I can understand that it is impossible for the minister to give the information which the committee should have before they pass this item. It seems to me there should be somebody here—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Is my hon. friend referring to something he heard when out at Vancouver?

Mr. DUFF: Oh, no.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know whether this ship that my hon. friend has in mind was built by the Coughlan Shipbuilding Company or not. My deputy tells me that the Canadian Inventor was built by the Coughlan Shipbuilding Company. There was something wrong with the tail shaft and the Government inspector made them take it out and put it back without any extra cost to the Government.

Mr. DUFF: I have another complaint with regard to the Canadian Inventor. Perhaps there is nothing in it.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): There is nothing in any of them.

Mr. DUFF: The hon. gentleman does not know anything about the subject.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): It is just like your speech.

Mr. DUFF: I should like the hon. member for Muskoka to be courteous.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): It is just like your speech; there is nothing in it.

The CHAIRMAN: (Mr. A. Thompson): Order.

Mr. DUFF: I was going to ask a question; now I will read the whole article. It has to do with the treatment accorded to the crew of the Canadian Inventor. It says:

Complaining that the treatment accorded them after their ship had put to sea was far from that represented in the ship's articles and appealing to the public for an investigation to "give them a square deal," ten members of the crew of the C.G.M.M. freighter Canadian Inventor, which reached Calcutta on Monday, have addressed a communication to the World. This reads as follows:

"S.S. Canadian Inventor,
at sea.

"We read with pride of the work proposed—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not wish to interrupt the hon. member, but I may say that I have seen that article.

Mr. DUFF: But the hon. member for Muskoka has not heard it.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): I am quite willing to give to it the value that usually attaches to my hon. friend's remarks.

Mr. DUFF: Did the hon. member put a question? If he did I would like him to repeat it. The item continues:

"S.S. Canadian Inventor,
At Sea.

"We read with pride of the work proposed and already accomplished by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine Service in opening up various trades between the United Kingdom, Australia, India and the Orient. Prouder still were we when we read that the ships of the service were built in Canada and manned by Canadians; in fact, our pride soared so high that we overlooked many of the essentials which go to perfect the whole system.

Mr. ELKIN: What is the hon. gentleman reading from,—Robinson Crusoe?

An hon. MEMBER: Read it over again.

Mr. DUFF: I will do so for the benefit of the senior member for St. John (Mr. Elkin) who evidently did not hear my reading of the article so far. It is from the Vancouver World and is dated March 8, It reads as follows:

Seamen on Canadian Ship in Complaint

Crew of C.G.M.M. Inventor Say Treatment Shameful—Were Rationed

Vancouver, March 8.—The Vancouver World says:

Complaning that the treatment accorded them after their ship had put to sea was far from that represented in the ship's articles and appealing to the public for an investigation to "give them a square deal," ten members of the crew of the C.G.M.M. freighters Canadian Inventor, which reached Calcutta on Monday, have addressed a communication to the World. This reads as follows:

"S.S. Canadian Inventor
At Sea.

"We read with pride of the work proposed and already accomplished by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine Service in opening up various trades between the United Kingdom, Australia, India and the Orient. Prouder still were we when we read that the ships of the service were built in Canada and manned by Canadians; in fact, our pride soared so high that we overlooked many of the essentials which go to perfect the whole system.

"One, if not the most essential, is the crews of these ships which have started out to do so much. This is the fact we wish to draw to the public notice, the inhuman treatment handed out to us, the indispensable pieces of machinery which go to make up the perfect machine. We say indispensable, and so we are, although the government does not classify us as such.

"All returned men and experienced seamen welcomed the service as a means of employment and ready to take advantage of the opening offered rather than throw themselves on the already overburdened list of unemployed.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Louder, louder.

Mr. DUFF: Mr. Chairman, I wish you would try to keep order.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): I rise to a point of order. The hon. member is reading his speech.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. A. Thompson): The hon. member is reading a quotation from a newspaper, the name of which he has given. He is, therefore, perfectly in order.

"At the time of signing deep sea articles, which were read out to us before we gave our signatures, the conditions seemed up to the standard of other services, and while alongside the government wharf, during the time we were loading, conditions seemed as represented. But as soon as we got to sea conditions changed and from then on have gone from bad to worse, until things have come to such a state that one would hardly imagine that we were human beings at all.

"On mustering before the commanding officer of the ship to request sufficient food to feed healthy men, the chief stewart was called and we were informed by him that we were on rations, nothing of which was ever read out of the articles. Even these meager rations ran out two weeks before we reached our first port of call, and we have had emergency rations ever since. We all put up with 'bully beef' and hard tack, some of us for over three years whilst overseas, realizing the necessity of it, but there is no reason for such conditions to exist today.

"The three meals put together each day would not make one square meal for a healthy man. Then, added to the lack of food, was the condition of the weather—not one real fine day ever since we left port. For days snow, ice, rain, sleet and heavy seas washing fore and aft, breaking up the deck cargo, which had to be re-lashed every time, drenching us to the skin day after day; not so much as a hot drink when we came below.

"Another thing, in watches, we are on duty day and night, and in all weathers there is a period of fifteen hours without a meal. Take, for instance, the 4 to 8 watch, considered the best, going on watch at 4 p.m., relieved for supper for half an hour at 5 p.m.; then relieved again by the next watch at 8 p.m.; turn into a nice bed consisting of a straw pillow and mattresses and one pair of blankets; called at 3.30 a.m. to get ready for watch at 4 a.m.; not relieved until 8 a.m., with not as much as a cup of warm cocoa going on or coming off, with the thermometer down to 10 deg. of frost inside the wheelhouse as it has been day after day.

"Bear in mind it is not the cold or the weather we complain of—we are not fair weather sailors. It is the state of the inner man to cope with these conditions that we object to. We give these details of duty because there are a great number of people not acquainted with the duties aboard ship.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. A. Thompson): I would remind the hon. member who is speaking of rule 18, section 2, which reads:

Mr. Speaker or the Chairman, after having called the attention of the House or of the committee to the conduct of a member who persists in irrelevance or a tedious repetition either of his own arguments or of the arguments used by other members in debate, may direct him to discontinue his speech.

I do not wish to make that ruling, but I would draw it to the attention of the hon. member who, I am sure, will use his own good judgment in the matter.

Mr. DUFF: Mr. Chairman, speaking to the point of order, I wish to say that I have not been guilty of tedious repetitions; I repeated the reading of the article at the express wish of hon. members sitting on the Government side. I think you are wrong, therefore, in calling me to order.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. A. Thompson): I did not call the hon. gentleman to order; I simply directed his attention to the rule.

Mr. DUFF (reading):

We are not a bunch of illiterates, we have to serve our time and not all in a position to do so as cadets. The sea is the same as every other profession. It has changed, and the men of the fo'c'sle to-day are going to be the officers on the bridge to-morrow.

We hear some accuse us of being agitators, radicals, Bolsheviks. Nothing of the sort, we are human beings appealing for human treatment.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. DUFF: Do you want me to go on?

The CHAIRMAN: I was merely trying to make order so that the hon. member could proceed.

Mr. DUFF (reading):

We realize there is no support given to anybody using radical and direct-actions, so encourage us to be patient and give your co-operation in our endeavours to get better conditions.

We are making this public appeal in the hopes that there are some in authority who will read it and make it their business to at least investigate the matter and give us a square deal.

(Signed) Robert C. Gray, J. P. Bruce, A. Ferris, S. Bullock, G. Davie, C. Headley, G. W. Burney, A. Muir, R. H. Traeksley, A. Malcolm.

I would like to inquire from the minister, who says that this matter has been called to his attention, if the management of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine has communicated with the captain and officers of the Canadian Inventor and found out whether this story is true or not.

[The Chairman.]

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As the hon. member is well aware, the operation and management of the ships are entirely in the hands of the operating company. The article was merely brought to my attention by my private secretary, but not to deal with, and I would not have dealt with it, had it been brought to my attention for that purpose, because the matter is one that belongs solely to the management to deal with.

Mr. DUFF: I understand the position the minister is in; that the minister is not the one who deals with the matter. I understand that the merchant marine is under the managing company the same as the railways. But as the minister has given us a statement of the operating expenses of the company for last year, and as this has to do with operation, I think I am quite justified, although I do not want to press the question, in bringing the matter to the minister's attention, and I should like to ask him if he would not make a note of this and get somebody to write to the management of the ships and ask them to take up the matter with the captain and see whether this story is true or not.

I thought I saw the hon. member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) come in a few moments ago. In the excellent address which he gave us, he spoke about the reasons why this shipbuilding programme or policy was a good one. He quoted from a number of newspapers to show that he was justified in making that assertion. In the few remarks which I made to-night, I also made a few quotations to show that other newspapers did not have the same faith in this shipbuilding programme and especially in the profits which the management of the ships told us that they made last year. To prove to the hon. member for Brantford that some of the newspapers are not very well satisfied with this policy or the way in which the ships are being managed, I would like to read an article which appeared in the Montreal Gazette after I had made my speech.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member must know and if he does not know, I can tell him something about my own city. This is a free country, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier used to say, and every man has a right to express his opinion. In the city of Montreal the majority of business men are absolutely opposed to public ownership for reasons which I do not need to tell the hon. member; the French press hold different views, so what the Montreal Gazette publishes is not surprising at all. In view of the late hour, unless the hon. gentleman is very anxious to read the article which merely reiterates what the Montreal Gazette has already stated; that is its opposition to Government-ownership.

Mr. DUFF: I am sure I am not anxious to keep the minister here; in fact, I think we might adjourn. I have a question or two to ask as to contracts.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Go ahead.

Mr. DUFF: I will read this article first. The hon. member for Brantford, as I said a moment ago, quoted from a number of newspapers, and I read from some newspapers to show that they did not have the same faith in this shipbuilding programme as regards profits. I am glad to hear the minister say that this is a free country. We thought it was not, and we are glad that the ban is lifted and that no more Orders in Council will be passed. This is an editorial from the Montreal Gazette of Saturday, April 9, headed "The Merchant Marine:"

The debatable point in connection with Canada's merchant marine is that of policy. When the construction of ships was undertaken by the Government in the spring of 1918 there was no dissent in Parliament, the action being generally approved as a war measure. At that time the sea tonnage of the world was being decimated by German submarines, resulting in a serious shortage of ships, and it was as necessary to the successful prosecution of the war to provide means of transportation overseas as to raise reinforcements for the army. Cost of construction was a secondary consideration. The cry was for ships and more ships; and to avert the disaster threatened by the enemy submarines the United States engaged in an extensive shipbuilding programme and Canada in as large a one as her resources permitted. There can, therefore, be no profitable discussion as to the wisdom of the policy in the circumstances of its inception, and controversy should be confined to the sole question of the prudence of retaining the ships and operating them through a Government agency at the charge of the Canadian people.

Upon this point there is a division of opinion. Many persons, unconnected with the shipping business, are convinced that a Government service cannot profitably compete with private companies on the sea more than on the land; while there are others who from national priide, or a less worthy motive, are captivated by the idea of Canadian ships flying the Canadian flag, ploughing the seven seas, and carrying Canadian commerce to the four corners of the earth. There is a patriotic sentiment aroused by the picture which the Minister of Marine has not neglected to evoke. But business is business; and it is very dubious whether the taxpayers will long applaud an appeal to patriotic pride that involves dipping their hands deep into their pockets for no practical purpose. The Canadian mercantile marine could probably have been sold, both the completed and uncompleted vessels, a year and a half or two years ago at cost price; to-day they would scarcely realize 40 per cent of cost, and it is very far from certain that a reaction upward to price will occur before the ships have run their course and been scrapped. The Government, however, resolved to engage in the shipping trade for reasons which had no relation whatever to the purpose of the original policy, and were wholly an afterthought. Those reasons, as stated by Mon. Mr. Ballantyne, were the desirability of linking a steamship service with the national railway, and the means supplied by the ships of opening up new trade routes and expanding Canada's foreign commerce. The Canadian Pacific had an ocean fleet as an adjunct to its land, and why not the Government? And so, superimposed upon the National railway deficit, we have the deficit of the Canadian Mercantile Marine to be met out of the taxes upon the people.

It is pertinent to point out the fundamental difference between rail and water transportation. In the case of the former the road bed is restricted, while in the case of the latter it is as wide as the ocean. There can be no monopoly of business in respect of ships. Vessels of any and all countries can ply their trade in the ports of the world; there is no such thing as right of way, but free and open competition, and ever the ship comes to seek the cargo. If the National Railway requires ships to carry its over-seas traffic, the ships can be had for the asking without the expenditure of a single dollar on capital account. If the ocean-borne traffic is unprofitable the ship owners bear the loss, and the Canadian taxpayer escapes. The fact that Governments cannot successfully compete on even terms with private enterprise remains as a cardinal objection to the maintenance of the Canadian mercantile marine, and if it is contended that the National Railway requires to be supplemented with a steamship service, the rejoinder is that this service can be secured without price to the people and with equal advantage to the railway by arrangement with privately owned steamship companies.

The Canadian marine venture has already involved the loss of many millions of capital in consequence of the drop in the value of ships, and involved the loss of at least $2,000,000 on operating account in 1920, under the most favourable statement of accounts. It is most desirable that Canada's foreign trade should be enlarged, that new markets should be sought, that ships carrying Canadian products should reach countries not hitherto tapped, but $2,000,000 in the way of subsidies to steamship lines, over and above earnings, will go a long way towards this end, while at the same time removing the risks of heavy loss to the taxpayers now incurred. The Minister of Marine is firmly convinced of the prudence and advantage of the mercantile marine, and he is an experienced business man. But the Minister of Railways is also convinced that the National Railway is a fine proposition. It may be so; but unfortunately for the Canadian people these convictions have loaded upon them an enormous debt and an enormous deficit; have strained the credit of Canada; have necessitated very heavy taxation; and hold out no hope of amelioration for many years while the fatuous policy of Government ownership is persisted in.

That is what the Montreal Gazette says, and I am sure that paper is as much to be depended upon as the paper from which my hon. friend read. I would like a little more information before I sit down. I notice by Volume II of the Auditor General's report for 1920, page 0-101, the following:

Canadian Otter 4,350 tons, deadweight, at $215 per ton; instalments paid, 10, $794,962.50; 'tween decks $29,850; re-adjustment of exchange, etc., $1,899.33, total, $826,711.83, less paid in 1918-19, $140,287.50.

So that in addition to paying $215 per ton deadweight there has been paid for 'tween decks $29,850, and an item of $1,899.33 for re-adjustment of exchange. Consequently the ship cost that much more.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Would the hon. member expect any shipbuilder to put in 'tween decks for love?

Mr. DUFF: No, I would not, but we have been given to understand by the minister that these ships averaged $192 per ton. What I want to find out is whether these extras were included in figuring the average cost?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Certainly not. I might tell my hon. friend that there have been a great many extras. The refrigerating plant for instance, that goes into these ships is extra, so are the oil burners and many other things.

Mr. DUFF: Well then, these ships must have cost more than $192 per ton, which was the figure the minister gave to the House. I do not hold the minister responsible, because he probably just made the statement which was passed to him, but certainly when these extras are added in, the cost must be more than $192. The minister has admitted that is correct.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Certainly.

Mr. DUFF: Consequently, the price of $192 should be corrected, and the correction go out to the public. I also notice that the Canadian Squatter is down here at $215 per ton. She also had to pay $29,854 for 'tween decks. This ship therefore cost $223 instead of $215 per ton. Now if every ship has cost $7 per ton more than the amount the minister stated, it means that the average price is $199 per ton instead of $192. Then I notice in connection with the Canadian Voyageur, 4,300 tons dead weight, at $207 per ton, "excess dead weight 275 tons at $207." Would that be extra?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is the tota ascertained dead-weight.

Mr. DUFF: The contract was for a 4,300-ton boat. When the ship was ready for delivery, the surveyor from the department, I suppose, went on board and measured the ship and found that instead of being 4,300 tons deadweight capacity she was 4,575.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is right.

Mr. DUFF: In his statement did the minister figure this at 4,300 tons or 4,375?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The total ascertained deadweight.

Mr. DUFF: Then in the case of the Canadian Pioneer I see here extras: wood bulkhead, $2,268.27; canvas $110; additional awnings $1,901,72; lamp chimneys $5.25; altering gunner's room $680; refrigerator plant $1,850: That seems a pretty large item for awnings, and I do not think the Government should have had to pay extra for wood bulkheads, which are certainly a part of the vessel.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Canadian Pioneer was going to India and everybody knows what a hot climate India has. The operating company asked to be allowed to put awnings on the boat. The bulkheads do not amount to much.

Mr. DUFF: That is satisfactory. Then I notice an extra for the Canadian Miller, steel cargo derrick at $5,500. Would that be part of the vessel's equipment?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The operating company asked for a heavy derrick to handle the heavy cargoes that the ships would carry.

Mr. DUFF: Would not the ordinary derricks available be sufficient to put cargoes on board?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not very heavy lifts.

Mr. DUFF: I see here an item for adjustment of exchange. Why should the Government pay exchange when the contract was made in Canada? And then I see something about a tail-end shaft. It seems to me that this is something which a ship must have if she is to go to sea.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The operating company asked for a spare tail-end shaft in case anything happened the original one and we allowed them to procure it.

Mr. DUFF: Will the minister say why the Government should have to pay exchange when the contract was made in Canada?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: When steel was sold at a fixed price and they could not get delivery in Canada owing to heavy demand and bought in the United States, it was only reasonable that we should allow the difference in exchange.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. DUFF: Hon. gentlemen opposite do not seem anxious to obtain the particulars of these items for the information of the country and I will not go further; but in round numbers, the extras which I notice would amount to perhaps $50,000. As I understand it, these ships cost $50,000 in addition to the contract price.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. PIERRE CASGRAIN (Charlevoix-Montmorency: (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I had no intention of taking part in this discussion, specially at this late hour, but after the definite and sweeping assertions made last night in the House by the Minister of Marine, at the outset of his statement concerning the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, I deem it advisable to define my attitude in this connection. The minister declared that the whole country is satisfied and that this year, to use his own words, the said company could come before the House and the public with a "creditable showing." As for me, Mr. Chairman, I am not satisfied with the declarations of the Minister of Marine, and I maintain that the situation of his new Merchant Marine Company is not satisfactory, for all the money which we put in this undertaking, I think we had a right to expect a better result. One has no need to go very far to realize that this result is not what was expected. We find at page 31, of the Report of the Department of Railways which was brought down a little while ago, that among the subsidiary companies, are The Canadian National Telegraph Company, the Great North-Western Telegraph Company of Canada, and, at the bottom of the page this other white elephant, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited—

Mr. Chairman, the Minister of Marine, has boasted that many newspapers had approved his policy, and had expressed the opinion that the financial statement presented this year to the House, was very satisfactory. A moment ago, I saw the hon. minister hand over certain papers to the hon. member for Brantford, so that the latter might keep the floor for a little while. The minister will allow me, I hope to read to him a few extracts from the report of the Bank of Montreal, dated the 6th of December last. It is to be found in the "Standard" of Saturday, December 11th, 1920. I want to be reasonable, and I shall not read the whole report. I shall be content with quoting a few of its most important statements, and shall afterwards ask my hon. friend, the Minister of Marine, what he intends doing should he agree with the comments made by the President of the Bank of Montreal, when submitting his last financial statement.

Here is what the report says under the caption "Government Owned Railways and ships":

> Canada to-day has a very large National Railway System which is being operated at a heavy loss, thereby increasing the load on an already heavily tax-burdened country. Sooner or later some means must be found to relieve this situation. Some confidently believe that by proper public administration of the lines, deficits can be cut down.

It is the President of the Bank of Montreal who speaks thus. He adds—

> My own view is that the proper solution will be found if the Government, at the earliest feasible time, divests itself of ownership and operation of the roads and places them under corporate control upon terms fair to the country and upon conditions that will ensure the service for which the construction of the lines was undertaken.

And further on the President of the bank speaks as follows:

> In the same connection, and speaking for myself alone, it would appear desirable that no more national expenditure should be made for the building of ships."

Of course, he speaks only as president of the bank, but I wish to draw the attention of the chairman and the members of this committee upon the eminent qualifications, the high personal standing of the president of the Bank of Montreal. Though I may not be an intimate friend of his, I may not eat at his table, I may not visit at his house, I may not meet him at the club, I say that no one can deny his influence in the financial circles of Canada; he is an intimate friend of the Minister of Marine, who is often met in company with his friends of the Bank of Montreal, of the Royal Trust of Montreal, of the Sherwin-Williams, and of many other powerful companies, of which the Minister of Marine is either one of the chesty and ponderous directors or shareholders.

Mr. Chairman, allow me further to quote certain other statements of the president of the Bank of Montreal—

Mr. CHAIRMAN: I understand the hon. member for Skeena (Mr. Peck) is rising to a point of order.

Mr. PECK: No, I wish to ask the hon. gentleman a question. I wish to inquire if Lord Shaughnessy is not on the Directorate of the Bank of Montreal?

Mr. CASGRAIN: The books speak for themselves, I did not look at them. You can inquire for yourself. The blue book and the other books will tell you better than I can.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member does not know if that is so?

Mr. CASGRAIN: I do not. You know more than I do. That is why I am here and you are there.

The CHAIRMAN: I must remind hon. gentlemen on both sides that even at this late hour it would be well for hon. members to address the Chair.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation). Mr. Chairman, I willingly abide by your decision. Since I have the honour of representing the county of Charlevoix in this House, I realized that when, intent on having our views accepted, we put in our way of expressing them more vim perhaps than the occasion justified, we often regretted that some of your decisions did not favour us as much as we would have wished; but no one ever complained.

While a programme of ship-building during the war was commendable, subsequent developments dictate a modified policy. In June, 1914, the world tonnage totalled 49,000,000 tons; in June, 1920, it has risen to 57,300,000 tons, and, in addition, at the end of September this year there were 7,565,000 tons under construction. Tonnage at present exceeds requirements, and in expectation of rate reduction and shrinkage in earnings, construction abroad has already been arrested, and empty tonnage is now laid up in many ports. There is no ground for the belief that this condition will quickly pass. The United States recently failed to secure bids for standard ships; Japan has cancelled orders for 100,000,000 tons in his own shipyards, and Norway is cancelling orders in Great Britain. These factors constitute, in my opinion, a danger signal that Canada might well heed and stop all further new construction.

Mr. Chairman, such was in the month of December last, the opinion of the president of the Bank of Montreal who, as I said a moment ago, reflects the sentiments of the financiers of the metropolis, and of Quebec and the whole country as well.

We have read—I have for my part—the reports of several other banks issued since then and in no other report from a bank or a financial institution supposed to be reputable or of any importance have I found a single word of commendation or approval concerning the new policy of the Government Merchant Marine. On the contrary, the president and the directors of the Bank of Montreal, who are the friends of the Minister of Marine, are giving him in the words to which I have just called the attention of this House the most solemn warning that could be given to a public man and to a good friend, by saying: "Sir, stop; you have done enough; that might have been all very well during the war; we could have needed it in the beginning, but there is a time when we must stop; otherwise, whatever good we might have expected from that policy will be set to naught by the deficits which will pile up in the future." Such is the substance of opinion uttered by the president of the Bank of Montreal and the directors of that financial institution.

What is happening to-day in this House? In contradiction to that warning, we see the hon. minister asking for eight million and a few odd hundred thousand dollars to go on with the programme initiated two or three years ago, when some necessity may have then existed. Now that necessity has vanished; nevertheless, the minister comes and tells us: "Vote that sum of money; I need it and I need it at once."

The hon. minister told us a moment ago: "We shall pass this item and we will be at it the night through."

Mr. Chairman, for my part, if we were to remain here the whole night, I am willing to do so, but I don't intend to let the item pass before I have the opportunity of entering my protest on behalf of the constituents I am representing in this House, and of the party to which I have the honour to belong.

Mr. Chairman, there must be a reason for the presistency in that policy. Has the minister given any? Quite the contrary, he told us and I have taken it down: "Prospects are not very good now." Well, Mr. Chairman, if the future forebade nothing better than we had in the past, instead of continuing this policy, would it not be better to put up with a loss and to suspend work on some ships which can no longer be of any use, rather than wait for what may turn up, relying on a better market in years to come, and in the expectation of getting at most a paltry amount which would not cover the interest upon the money's voted and expended this year?

I am amazed when I see the hon. minister and his friends offering reasons which do not hold, and are quite conflicting. A moment ago, we had it from the hon. member from Brantford that it was good policy because it had given work to returned soldiers and to unemployed men, and because at this time the shipbuilding industry is flourishing. I ask you, Mr. Chairman, in all that the hon. Minister of Marine has stated to-day, with a view to show the soundness of the Government that this policy, is there any mention of how many returned soldiers have been put to work in the shipyards? He has not mentioned one. Nor did he tell us how many of these unemployed, who, not long ago, were in the streets of Montreal, clamouring for bread and storming the restaurants, had been given work in the shipyards?

Surely, had those people been employed in the ship yards the Government has assisted through this policy of a merchant marine, we would not have the spectacle which is to be seen in Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere, and there would not be people depending to-day upon public charity for a living. Nor would we have the hon. member for Brantford asking us, as if Parliament was a charitable institution, to continue this policy in order to prevent the unemployed and the famished to die of hunger.

When it is a question of voting an item, as the one we are debating this evening, we should take all the means possible so as to ascertain whether the policy proposed is one which is sound and co-ordinated, and if in passing this item, benefit will be derived not only for the eastern section of the country, the Halifax, the Vancouver and the province of Quebec dockyards or any other place but if the whole country will benefit in any way. I question whether the hon. minister has shown us, the other day and the other night, when he brought down his report of our merchant marine, that he had made good use of the money we voted in past years?

I ask myself if, considering these circumstances, we are justified to-day in voting the amount of $8,000,000 as the minister desires?

Mr. Chairman, one thing strikes me: It is that when the Government wishes to promote a rather difficult policy, in many cases, their ablest men are not called upon to do it. When it comes down to a railway undertaking, the hon. member for Grenville (Mr. Reid), who directs that department, is called upon to initiate all kinds of schemes more or less acceptable, and as I mentioned it when I had the occasion of criticising his estimates last year, no better advocate can be found. Whoever listens to him, feels convinced that even with a poor case something good will turn up, providing that his pleadings are sufficiently stretched out and loud—to bury the contentious voices, thus leading all to believe that he is right. Now that we are dealing with the Marine Department, the Government, to defend its policy, chooses one of its friends, the hon. member for St. Lawrence, the present Minister of Marine. I must say to the Government, that they were not so happy in their choice, for since the Minister of Marine is at the head of that department, he has shown, I shall not say inability, but has not given proof of the same foresight, sagacity and experience, that he has shown for his own interest and that of companies, such as the Sherwin-Williams and others of which he was a director, or a shareholder. I might even say, if I wished to be a little harsh, that the hon. minister is a flaw, the stumbling-block in the Government, and the sooner he will disappear, the better it will be, not only for the Government, but for the whole country.

When we weigh what he has accomplished, and consider his policy and the results which have followed, he can be termed a perfect cipher.

The hon. minister is of much importance, perhaps too much. This is the reason why he is unable to bring to the administration of this department, all the vigour and energy that one should expect from the head of so important a department. For this reason I refuse to vote the item of $8,000,000—which he asks this evening. This, I do in the interest of my county and my constituents, also in the interest of my province and in order to be faithful to the mandate which has been entrusted to me.

Mr. RINFRET: The hour is late, but I think with such a large amount of money involved and in the face of a policy which is so little in accord with good sense and public spirit, we had better accept the challenge of hon. members on the other side and possibly sit here over night rather than let this item pass. First of all, I desire to challenge the opinion expressed by the Minister of Marine that this policy is endorsed not only by Parliament but also by the people of Canada.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

Mr. RINFRET: We are not in a hurry. It is very remarkable, Mr. Chairman, that we have a Government so boastful of public support when speaking in this House and yet so little anxious to go to the polls.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We will give the hon. member a chance in Yamaska county very soon.

Mr. CASGRAIN: The sooner the better.

Mr. RINFRET: We want that chance not only in Yamaska county but in the whole country.

Mr. LALOR: We will give you a chance and show you fellows a trick or two before we get through.

Mr. CASGRAIN: You will not come back.

Mr. RINFRET: We have given the Government many opportunities during the session to consult the people. We first of all asked the Government to accept an amendment to go to the country but it was refused by hon. members opposite.

Mr. BLAKE: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order.

Mr. RINFRET: Then we offered an amendment on another occasion—

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. BLAKE: I rise to a point of order. The hour is late and I think the hon. member should speak to the question before the committee.

Mr. DUFF: I wish to speak for a few minutes on that point of order, Mr. Chairman If I understand the point raised by the hon. member for North
2 a.m. Winnipeg correctly, it is that the hon. member for St. James Division of Montreal was not speaking to the question before the committee. It seems to me that the point of order is not well taken, for although the hon. member did not keep perhaps as close to the subject under discussion as he should have, it was because of the fact that the hon. Minister of Marine in his usual manner interjected a remark with regard to Yamaska.

Mr. PECK: (from the seat of the leader of the Opposition): Mr. Chairman, speaking to the point of order—

Mr. CASGRAIN: The official leader of the Opposition!

Mr. PECK: No. Speaking to the point of order raised by my hon. friend from North Winnipeg, although the House is in very good humour I think we would get along with these items much better if parties on both sides of the House would cease interruptions. I am one of those who cannot agree with my very good friend from Shelburne and Queen's—for whom I have the very highest regard—as to shortening the hours; I think we should lengthen them. I am going to see this debate finished and the item passed. Good humour is all right, but speaking unofficially for the leader of the Opposition, I think we should get along very well if we did not interrupt.

The CHAIRMAN: Before giving any ruling upon the point of order, I must direct attention to the fact that the remarks of the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) and of the hon. member for Skeena (Mr. Peck) were not relevant to the point of order raised by the hon. member for North Winnipeg (Mr. Blake). Coming to the point of order itself, the Chair regrets that it was not paying sufficient attention to the remarks of the hon. member for St. James (Mr. Rinfret) to declare whether the rule should be applied in the present instance. But in theory the point raised by the hon. member for North Winnipeg is certainly well taken, and I am sure that the hon. member for St. James will adhere strictly to the question under consideration.

Mr. RINFRET: Mr. Chairman—

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Mr. Chairman, I would like to know by what authority the hon. member for Skeena (Mr. Peck) is professing to act as leader of the Opposition?

The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Rinfret.

Mr. RINFRET: I have so much to say about the question under consideration that I am perfectly willing to bow to your ruling. I would express the wish that the Chair would pay a little attention to what I say; I think that would be very proper even at this late hour.

Now, the Minister of Marine has said that this policy has been endorsed by the people. I was endeavouring to show that the Government had given the people no chance whatever to endorse this policy, when I was called to order. I do not regret the incident, because this discussion has brought to this side of the House a member who usually sits on the other side, the hon. member for Skeena (Mr. Peck) —and he seems to enjoy it. While it is two o'clock in Ottawa it is only around ten o'clock in Prince Rupert and probably that is why the hon. gentleman is so cheerful.

Coming back to this item, I share the view of the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) that this was not altogether a war measure. The minister made that very plain to-night when he said that while he laid down his policy as to building steel ships as if the war was going to last forever, he was more cautious when it came to wooden ships. In another part of his speech he said that at the conclusion of the war we would not have known what to do with the wooden ships and he boasted that he had been clever enough to prevent this country from spending any money on this class of ships. I would say that if he had been a little more cautious, possibly he would also have refrained from engaging this country in such an extensive steel shipbuilding programme. It will be seen that although my hon. friend was at that time under the impression that the war might last quite long and that it was imperative that shipbuilding must go on, he was exercising some discretion as to the quality and character of the ships. I repeat that had he been as cautious with regard to steel as he was with regard to wood, we would be better off to-day.

I may add that I do not share the minister's optimism as to the outcome of this venture. Possibly it is because we on this side have been unsuccessful in obtaining information, although we have made a great effort to obtain it. The minister himself has said to-night that he does not know much about this venture, and that he does not care to know anything about it. He said he was not going to inquire from the management where they bought their coal, butter, milk and so on. I do not feel that way at all, Mr. Chairman. I think we should know from the management not only where they get their coal, but where they get the deficit which we have to face to-day.

My hon. friend admits that other countries have a surplus of ships, and he says that is an excuse for our being in the same position. But the trouble is that other countries have been engaged in shipbuilding for some time while this country seems to have chosen as the time to build the very time when it was imperative not to do so. That is an altogether different situation. As to the surplus which my hon. friend claims, I think he should give his secret to the hon. Minister of Railways. But if we get back to good book-keeping I do not think the hon. minsiter can claim any surplus. It has been shown that the best claim he can make is a return of some two per cent on the capital investment. We know that the Government borrowed money from the Canadian people at the rate of five and one-half per cent and that the securities for these loans are exempt from taxation to the extent of one billion three hundred and some millions. The Government, therefore, in investing a portion of that money in their shipbuilding programme and obtaining a return of some two per cent—which is much disputed, but that is their own figure—are not only using money on which they are paying five and one-half per cent interest, but are using the amount of the income tax return as well. So that the claiming of a surplus under these circumstances indicates a very great degree of optimism. I am inclined to repeat something I heard my good friend from Waterloo say the other day in Montreal: that if the minister can claim a surplus in the face of all the facts relating to his shipbuilding programme, he is entitled to open a sunshine factory with cucumbers as his raw material.

The member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) has endeavoured to give us some opinions of the press which, he says, show that the people are very appreciative indeed of this policy of the Government. When he started out he gave us the impression that he was going to quote Liberal newspapers which were emphatically in support of this policy, but he confined himself to a few Tory newspapers which were trying very hard indeed to find the least bit of common-sense in it. He started out with the Sydney Post, which could not say anything better in support of my hon. friend's policy than that it was less disastrous than the railway policy. It did not say the policy was a good one, but expressed the view that it was not as bad as another policy which was worse. Then he quoted the Winnipeg Tribune, which simply said that the policy was not too bad when compared with that of other countries. Again the policy itself was not endorsed; the view was expressed that the condition here was no worse than somewhere else. He then went to the Vancouver Province, another Tory paper, which said not that the policy was right, but that it had a redeeming feature; it gave employment to returned soldiers. So with the Hamilton Spectator, which never dreamed of being a Liberal journal, and so with the Mail and Empire, which has just absorbed another Toronto paper and is also a good, strong Tory journal. So that the Liberal press opinions put forward by the hon. member for Brantford amount to the views of a few Tory papers, not endorsing the policy, but stating in one case that it is not as bad as something else, and in another that it is less disastrous than the railway policy.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member knows that La Presse is the largest newspaper in Canada, having a circulation like 140,000 copies a day. Would he mind quoting what La Presse has to say editorially on this subject?

Mr. RINFRET: I have read recently the editorial columns of La Presse, and its expressions of opinion with regard to the railway and shipping problems indicate to me that it is perplexed as to what attitude to take.

Now, I wish to quote the words of the president of the Royal bank, Sir Herbert Holt, with regard to this matter. He says:

> Government control has practically disappeared during the year just past—wheat, paper and sugar being the commodities to be freed from regulation. Government ownership of transportation systems has developed. Without any advantage to the public in efficiency or rates, the operation of our national railways during the last twelve months has resulted in a loss which will probably more than absorb the amounts collected on Excess Profits and Income Taxes for the year 1919. Unless Government methods of operation are more efficient in this country than they have been in others tax payers in Canada may find the maintenance of their railroads and fleet more expensive than pension charges and other legacies of the war combined.

An hon. MEMBER: Order.

Mr. RINFRET: If the hon. gentleman wishes to rise to a point of order. I will listen to him with great pleasure. I see there is nothing of the kind.

Mention has been made of the Montreal Gazette during this debate; but for some reason or another, perhaps because the House was not in a listening mood, no quotation from the Montreal Gazette has been placed on Hansard, so far as I know. I have in my hand an editorial which is not very long and which is interesting, and I will crave the indulgence of the House and that of the minister in particular while I read it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am in no hurry, and I may say that we on this side of the House are in no hurry at all, so that the hon. member can take just as long as he likes.

Mr. RINFRET: I am very glad to hear that. I think we cannot be accused of delaying the debate. What we would like to do would be to delay the shipbuilding, but it is unfortunately too late to do that. This article is headed: "The Canadian Marine," and it is from the Montreal Gazette of December 9, 1920:

> The building and operating of ships is precarious business for governments to engage in, more so than the construction and management of railways, because in the case of the latter there can at least be some permanence of rates. The war gave immense impetus to the shipbuilding industry, both from the urgent demand for ships to transport men and supplies and by reason of the large losses caused by submarines. Cost of construction doubled and trebled, and more than one government felt it necessary to supplement private yards with public plants. Now, the inevitable has happened.

As we predicted.

> There is a glut of ships. The tonnage of the world at nearly 60,000,000 tons is much the largest of record, and this at a time when the foreign commerce of many countries has been checked by depreciation of currency and the contraction of credit. Freight rates are falling. So expeditiously and easily can ships be sent over every sea to every port that water transportation costs conform quickly to the law of supply and demand, and there seems bound to be considerable loss in the future in the inventory value and operating results of vessels built at the peak of prices.
>
> Canada had developed a considerable shipbuilding industry, the principal customer of which has been the Government The Government will in a few months possess a mercantile navy of 63 vessels, quite a formidable fleet, constructed in Canada, and having an aggregate tonnage of 386,140 tons.

I would commend this to the attention of the minister, but I am sorry that he is not in his place.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: He is here.

Mr. RINFRET: I apologize to my good friend; I never like to speak when he is out of my sight; but I will read a little louder so that the sound of my voice will reach where he sits now:

The policy of procuring ships was a war policy, and it is very doubtful whether in other circumstances it would have been entered upon; so that while there was ready and adequate justification for the creation of a fleet, it is by no means certain that it should be continued as a Government activity, much less enlarged in number. Last year the nineteen Canadian Government vessels then afloat made an operating profit of $1,056,767 from completed voyages, and a further profit of $350,000 was estimated from open voyages, making a total profit of $1,406,000 on operating account.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

Mr. RINFRET: Here again I may interject that these are the figures given by the Government, and for many reasons and particularly for the reason that we are not given any information, I personally take no responsibility whatever for what I am reading. I continue quoting from the Gazette, and I hope my hon. friends have not missed a word, because I am quite ready to start over again if anything has failed to reach their understanding. The Gazette says:

Interest on capital and depreciation must, however, be provided for, and the failure so to do is a notable omission in the annual report of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited.

I am waiting for the applause of hon. gentlemen opposite.

Mr. LALOR: There is nothing of much note yet.

Mr. RINFRET (reading):

The money invested in the ships costs Canada 5½ per cent, and depreciation in the case of ships is a serious item, so that when all the charges are taken into account the fleet will be found to have entailed loss.

Just what we are claiming to-night.

The retention of the fleet in Government control is a purely business problem The ships are linked up closely with the National Railway System, and the report of the directors contains the statement that the fleet of the Merchant marine forms a most important ally to the National System of railways, and enables the railway to obtain large through shipments of freight to Atlantic and Pacific ports which would be lost to the National System if it were not for the steamship connections of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine Limited.

The last paragraph is a quotation from the Government report made by the Gazette. The Gazette goes on:

We are somewhat sceptical of this statement for the reason ships may be chartered without the expense of capital investment, and that chartered ships can be operated quite as economically as Government-owned vessels. The directors, cognizant of the change in conditions, warn the public that the Government marine is not to be regarded as a money-making proposition, in these words:—

"Having regard to the fact that all of your company's vessels have been built since the war began, the cost of construction has been much higher than prevailed before hostilities, so that the interest, depreciation and insurance expenses on your vessels are much higher than obtains on those of your competitors whose fleets, even after taking into consideration their new tonnage would not nearly equal per ton dead weight the cost of the fleet of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine Limited. Your vessels will also be competing on some trades against vessels carrying foreign crews. It will be seen, therefore, that while a satisfactory business is being done—

The Government is speaking, of course.

—and much new trade developed, large profits should not be looked for."

Then the Gazette continues:

The considerations counselling a cessation of new building are that the ships are unprofitable, and that they serve no purpose not equally to be secured by charter of by alliance with private steamship companies. The United States Government, very prudently we think, has terminated its war policy of public ownership and operation, and is disposing of its fleet, and in matters of business the Americans are shrewd. There is, indeed, something inspiring in the existence of a fleet of Government ships sailing the seven seas, and extending the commerce of Canada to the four corners of the earth, always provided the sentiment does not involve heavy cost and heavy taxation, for it should be remembered that the loss on the fleet falls on the pockets of the Canadian people.

I could quote from other papers, but I think this puts the case very clearly. I regret that the Government has adopted with regard to the national railways and the merchant marine the policy of not giving information to the House. The reason given by the Government for this policy is that it would not be good business to disclose to the competitors of the Government system its administrative methods, but is it not extraordinary to hear that given as a reason, Mr. Chairman, when we remember that the competitor to the state-owned railways and the Government merchant marine is the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, whose brilliant and effective methods of administration have brought that company to such a brilliant success? However, as the Government persists in not giving information to the House, either on the railways or the merchant marine, I think that we on this side of the House are perfectly justified in trying to get the information and discussing the items before the committee to the extreme limit. As far as I am concerned, I wish to place myself on record as being absolutely opposed to the Government's policy. I think the Government should be censured for ever having embarked upon this shipbuilding programme, and not only should it be stopped immediately as regards the building of new ships, but the Government should dispose of its present fleet at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. CAHILL: How much does the minister expect to have to spend to complete the contracts in Toronto that are let on this cost plus 15 per cent basis?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not expect it will cost more than $180 per ton, because labour costs are down, but I do not want to make any positive statement.

Mr. CAHILL: What will be the total still to be expended?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The original contract price was $630,000 per ship, and there has been paid $409,500. I could only give an estimate of the balance. It would cost, I should suppose, about $230,000 to $250,000 to finish each ship.

Mr. CAHILL: When the ships are completed, does the minister think he could get as much for them in the market as he will have to spend to complete them?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is not the Government's policy to dispose of its ships.

Mr. CAHILL: The people of this country are more interested in where this money is going than in the Government's policy. Would it not be good business for the minister to cancel these orders? What is the purpose of expending this money on a cost plus 15 per cent basis when the minister apparently has no control over the company in the matter of expenditure?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: One of the principle reasons why the Government went on with the building of these ships—there are many reasons but I shall not detain the committee to give them—was that there was a large number of men out of work in the city of Toronto, and although the Government knew they could not get the same efficiency out of men in the depth of winter, with these boats all exposed, we went on with the work to give bread and butter to our returned men, who were clamouring for employment.

Mr. CAHILL: Were the men who were getting the 15 per cent plus, which would amount to something over $60,000 particularly hungry?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am not speaking of him, because like my hon. friend from Pontiac, he possesses plenty. I was speaking of the hundreds of men who were clamouring for employment. I happened to be in Toronto at the time and I know there was a very serious unemployment situation there.

(The continuation of the debate will appear in a later issue.)

Tuesday, April 12, 1921.

Mr. CAHILL: Under those circumstances would it not have been better to distribute the money to these unemployed rather than give it to the contractors on a cost plus basis? Who is this firm that is getting this $60,000 for overseeing the work?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Collingwood Shipbuilding Company.

Mr. CAHILL: Does the minister propose to spend any more of this $8,000,000 in that way, giving 15 per cent, plus, for the finishing of ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As I said in the earlier part of the night, we have only two ship companies in Canada that failed, one at Prince Rupert, and the other at Toronto. The company at Prince Rupert received 8 per cent and the other company 15 per cent.

Mr. DUFF: Why do you pay one contractor 15 per cent and another 8 per cent? It seems to me that 8 per cent is high enough.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I differ from my hon. friend there. I may say that the Wallace Shipbuilding Company, after they agreed to finish the ships at 8 per cent, sent a man here for the purpose of getting out of the arrangement, because they thought there was an immense amount of material yet to be purchased, and they were figuring a large sum to be spent on material as well as labour. Had they known that such a small amount of material was to be purchased they would not have quoted 8 per cent. Fifteen per cent was the best price we could get in eastern Canada.

Mr. DUFF: If I understand the situation, the contractor gets 8 per cent on everything he buys, on every cent of wages he pays out, and on every bit of material he provides. All he does is to oversee the work. Now, on one contract in Toronto where the minister says there is $221,000 yet to be spent, the contractor would get $30,000 for overseeing the building of that ship. It seems to me that my hon. friend is mistaken when he says that that is not a goodly sum to pay out. If the answers he gave me with regard to the Prince Rupert contract are correct, the amounts due on these two contracts total something like a million or a million and a quarter, and 8 per cent on that, it seems to me, is quite a respectable sum. The minister thinks that 8 per cent is rather small. When one looks over the Auditor General's report for the last four or five years and sees the exorbitant prices which the Government has paid to certain shipyards in the country to build destroyers and other boats, it will be obvious why the minister says that this is not a large percentage; but in my opinion, and in the opinion of people who know something about these contracts, 8 per cent over and above the cost of everything that goes into the building of ships, as well as labour, is a fairly good commission for shipbuilders to get.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): I have listened all night and into the morning with great patience to the discussion of these Estimates. I have listened on many occasions to the member for Pontiac (Mr. Cahill) and the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) discussing, from a theoretical point of view, the issues that are before the House to-night.

An hon. MEMBER: This morning.

Mr. McGIBBON: This morning, rather; and even at 2.45 a.m. I am persuaded that it is still possible for me to tell those hon. members a few things.

An hon. MEMBER: What are they?

Mr. McGIBBON: Be patient and you will hear them. It is quite apparent to everyone on both sides of the House that hon. members opposite have been greatly disappointed by the showing that has been made by the minister. Throughout the length and breadth of the country, newspapers favourable to the Opposition have led the people to believe that they were to expect another financial spectacle such as we had in connection with the Government railways, and ever since the Minister of Marine submitted his report to the House, we have seen the bitter disappointment on the faces of members of the Opposition. They have come here expecting something that they could turn to advantage, and being disappointed, they are trying to bolster up a weak case. The hon. member for Lunenburg and the member for Pontiac—I want them to mark this—refuse to accept the minister's word when he says that after the armistice this work was carried on, to a great extent, to give employment to returned soldiers. I quite understand that the member for Lunenburg and the member for Pontiac had no sympathy with that undertaking.

Some hon. MEMBER: Order.

Mr. DUFF: Order. Mr. Chairman, the hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. McGibbon), has made the statement that the member for Lunenburg and the member for Pontiac had no sympathy with the returned soldiers. I ask that the statement be withdrawn.

Mr. McGIBBON: That is what I said.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Take it back.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Peck): I do not think that the expression is out of order. The hon. member for Muskoka does not, I suppose, intend to cast any reflection on any hon. members.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. CAHILL: I do not wish to dispute your ruling, Mr. Chairman, but the statement was quite plain, and perhaps you did not catch it. What was said was undoubtedly a reflection on the members to whom it had reference.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Peck): I would ask the hon. member for Muskoka to withdraw any remark that casts a reflection on hon. members.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): With the greatest humility, Mr. Chairman, I bow to your decision, but I may take the privilege of placing before the House the record of the hon. member for Lunenburg.

Mr. DUFF: Go to it; come on.

Mr. COPP: We challenge you to do it.

Mr. McGIBBON: On another occasion.

Mr. DUFF: Do it now; come on.

Mr. COPP: You dare not do it.

Mr. McGIBBON: It takes better stuff than the hon. member for Lunenburg to tell me that I dare not do it.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Peck): I must ask the hon. member for Muskoka and other hon. members to keep their temper. I trust no reflections will be cast on any hon. member; I do not do it myself.

Mr. McGIBBON: I have not the least intention of reflecting on anyone, but if the hon. member's record in the House constitutes a reflection on himself it is no fault of mine.

Mr. SEGUIN: (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I would raise a point of order. I question whether the hon. member is justified, at this stage of the debate, in attacking other members and not to discuss the question which is before the House. I should like to have your decision on this point.

Mr. RINFRET: (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, before you give your decision, I should like to discuss the point of order. I do not think that the Chairman can claim that the hon members. . . . . .

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order, order.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): Mr. Chairman, I must object to this interruption. If hon. members have any questions to ask me, let them do so.

Mr. RINFRET: I am speaking to the point of order. In doing so, I am speaking in French, as is my right. If the hon. gentleman cannot understand me, while it is no reflection on him, it is his fault, and he cannot deprive me of the privilege of addressing the House in the language I am using.

Mr. RINFRET: (Translation.) My argument, Mr. Chairman, is as follows: An hon. member claims that other members of the House have no sympathy for the soldiers, the president of the committee cannot rule that this is not derogatory to their honour. I believe, on the contrary, that the president, must take the view that when a member accuses another of not having had any sympathy for our soldiers, he has made a serious charge, which he should retract.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Peck): After the decision of the Chair has been given it cannot be criticized. Therefore I would ask the hon. member for Muskoka to proceed with his speech, but he must be good enough to refrain from indulging in any personal reflections and thus render less difficult the duty of the Chair.

Mr. McGIBBON: It is a great pleasure Mr. Chairman, for me to submit to your ruling. I have been a member of this House four years and I have never intentionally transgressed any of its rules. I have always, to the best of my ability, extended courtesy to every hon. member but, Mr. Chairman, there are limits beyond which courtesy cannot be extended. There are times when patience ceases to be a virtue; and at three o'clock in the morning we have had rehashing of old articles and a recourse to old tactics which amounts to nothing more or less than obstruction. The time has come when we should have a show-down, and if any hon. members want their record to be placed on Hansard I am quite prepared to take up the challenge and see that that is done no matter who may be hurt.

Mr. DUFF: All right go ahead and put it on record.

Mr. McGIBBON: Having said that, I want to congratulate the Minister of Marine on the broad-minded policy that he conceived and laid before the people of this country. I want to congratulate him on the success which has characterized that policy up to the present hour, and I have not the least doubt that for that policy the future holds prospects equally as bright. Some hon. gentlemen opposite have a very short memory. I ask the hon. member for Pontiac (Mr. Cahill) what would have happened had the war gone on for another eight or ten months? We know that the enemy would have won the war, because the destruction of merchant vessels was so far outrunning the building of tonnage that we would not have kept pace with it. Does any hon. member here to-night deny that? If he does he had better go and consult the records. I tell hon. gentlemen that had the destruction continued for another eight months at the rate it was progressing, the British Empire, and its Allies, would have lost the war on that very ground alone. Are we to condemn the Government of Canada for taking the necessary precautions to try and supply the deficiency in ships caused by the destruction of tonnage that was going on and in order to help us to win the war? Without ships we could not have moved a man and could not have moved a pound of freight. If hon. members opposite do not know that, they had better delve a little into the history of the last five years and ascertain the facts for themselves. If we had lost the war what would have happened? Would hon. members have been here to-night quibbling over the expenditure of a few millions of money spent in pursuing a policy that was imperatively necessary. It is a travesty on parliamentary procedure that we should be kept here until three o'clock in the morning debating about the expenditure of a few millions of dollars upon the construction of a merchant marine that was intended to play an important part in helping to win the war. It is a travesty on our intelligence and our patriotism. Let hon. gentlemen search history a little if they will and what will they find? How has England kept up her balance of trade for the last thirty, forty or fifty years? By pushing her merchant marine and her commerce into unknown lands. Let my hon. friends take up the exports of Great Britain to the United States, to Germany or to any of the other countries that are under protection and what will they find? That during the years I have mentioned those exports were diminishing and her balance of trade was only kept up by opening up fresh avenues of trade with South America and other unprotected countries. What would she have done if she had not had a merchant marine available for that purpose? Are we so short-sighted that we cannot see beyond the present hour? Is it to be thought that our merchant marine has no more prospective value to Canada, and that it ought to be scrapped? Do people think that the trade to be derived in future by pushing into foreign markets is of no value to Canada? I advise hon. gentlemen opposite who indulge in such criticism to study the trade statistics, and ascertain what has already been done in that line and what the prospects are for the future. Let them enlarge their vision and let them conceive of Canada as a nation. Let them conceive of the Canadian people as a nation equal to any on the face of God's earth. How are we going to achieve that trade expension which we all hope to see if we have not the means of carrying our products to the seven seas of the world? Mr. Chairman, I have listened for days—not only during the present session but in former years—to the utterances of the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) and the member for Pontiac (Mr. Cahill) and I have gone out of the House wondering whether we are children or whether we are men. I say to hon. members—and I do not very often take up the time of the House—for God's sake broaden your vision, get a true conception of the nation and its status, lift your eyes above the horizon of Canada—yes, above the horizon of the British Empire—and look at these questions from a broad national standpoint and see if Canadians cannot take their place as one of the great nations in the world. When you do that, and when you push your commerce into the seven seas of the world you will not spend time until three o'clock in the morning worrying about whether we have a return of two and a half or three per cent interest on your money. For Heaven's sake, is there nothing bigger or brighter in a nation's outlook, or in a nation's ideal, to discuss than to be quibbling over a few dollars? Was it dollars that made the British Empire? Was it dollars that saved the world in the great struggle from which we emerged in 1918, or was it patriotism? Was it the ideals that men cherished or was it mere quibbling over petty issues? What are you going to pin your faith to if you lack ideals, or lack belief in the nation's future? To me it is inconceivable that we should be kept here until this late hour of the morning squabbling over the petty issue as to whether we have got two and a half per cent or five per cent return on our money, when the great issue is before us of what we are going to do to build up our country. What are we standing here for to-night—for a nation within the British Empire, or for that small parochial colonialism that we hear so much about from the hon. member for Lunenburg that is bound up, I was going to say within the four walls of a ship.

Mr. DUFF: Do you stand for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine?

Mr. McGIBBON: Sure I do. I stand for anything that is going to make Canada a nation. You cannot make Canada a nation without a merchant marine. You may lose a few million dollars, but is it not worth something to carry the commerce of Canada to the four corners of the earth? Are you going to measure that in dollars and cents? I say, Mr. Chairman, for God's sake—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. McGIBBON: —let us forget this parochialism, let us get down to business, let us conceive of Canada as a nation, and let us deal with our national affairs accordingly.

Mr. CHAIRMAN: Shall the item carry?

Mr. COPP: No, Mr. Chairman. I am going to address myself to the Chair, if I may have the privilege. My hon. friend from Muskoka (Mr. McGibbon) has devoted some time to the subject of what we should do to make Canada a nation. I do not propose to pursue that line, as it seems to me that it is entirely out of order, but if we ever wanted any evidence to prove the necessity of the motion made by my hon. friend from Shelburne and Queen's this afternoon for an adjournment of the House at a reasonable hour, we have it before us to-night. However, that is not for me to discuss at the moment. We are to-night discussing a very large and very important item in the Estimates. Such business is usually treated by hon. gentlemen in a serious and considerate manner, but although this is one of the largest individual items very little, if any, consideration is being given to it by my hon. friends opposite. The Minister of Marine has asked us to vote $8,330,000 for the completion, as he says, of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. It is useless at this time to argue what should have been done at the outset, but it is not too late to consider what should be done now. In the statement which he made to the House last week I find that forty-seven vessels are in commission and, as he would say, sailing the seven seas. Apparently he takes a great deal of credit to the company to whom he has handed these vessels over for operation because they have made a profit, as he claims of 2.35 per cent over operating expenses.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No. The operating profit which I gave a few moments ago was $1,400,000 odd.

Mr. COPP: But what percentage?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I understood the hon. gentleman to give the profit as an operating profit. The operating profit is $1,400,000 odd.

Mr. COPP: That is the way you put it in your statement:

> I wish to point out that these net earnings are before providing for interest, and the above amount of net earnings, $781,460.09 is equal to 2.35 per cent interest on notes given to the Government for the full cost of the ships.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: But that is not the operating profit.

Mr. COPP: That is the profit amounting to 2.35 per cent on the cost of the vessels, as I understand that statement.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: After providing for all operating and overhead expenses, depreciation, etc.

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend may find the argument of some success as far as he and his friends are concerned, but I cannot see how he can figure that we have made a profit on the operation of these vessels until he is able to show that interest and all fixed charges have been paid. My hon. friend gives reasons why he embarked on this shipbuilding industry, the main reason being to provide work for returned soldiers. That was a most worthy motive. But if that was so, I would like to know what the minister thinks of the recent dismissal of seven or eight hundred men from the Canadian National Railway shops at Moncton, the majority of whom are returned soldiers. Surely the same broad sympathy should be extended to those men and others elsewhere, although there has been a deficit in the operation of the Canadian Government railways. In referring to the shipbuilding industry, a moment ago my hon. friend said that we on this side of the House hoped that we will have another "financial spectacle" as we had in respect to the government railways. It is a "financial spectacle," Mr. Chairman, and it behooves all hon. gentlemen, I care not on which side of your Chair they sit, to try and work out the best arrangement possible to meet present conditions. That cannot be done while we are indulging in threats and challenges such as have been thrown across the floor of the House to-night. I can readily understand that my hon. friend can argue that it would be unreasonable to sell these vessels at the present time and go out of the shipping business, but so far as I am concerned—and I do not profess to be an expert in these matters—I can foresee that we are going to have in this shipbuilding industry, if we can dignify it by that name, another failure next year, and that that failure will be repeated year after year, piling deficit upon deficit, just the same as is happening now in the operation of our Canadian National railways.

3 a.m.

We had that before us when my hon. friend embarked on this—I was going to say tragedy; when he embarked on this undertaking. We had the example of the Canadian Government Railways with a deficit year after year, yet my hon. friend saw fit to hand out this dole of fifteen per cent over and above cost to the ship-building concerns in Montreal and elsewhere—and he comes back here and tells us he did it because he hoped to give employment to returned soldiers. If that is so, did he assume any responsibility as to the wages these men should receive? I would like to see the country relieved from the terrible burden which has been imposed upon it, and I suggest that if my hon. friend consulted and accepted the advice of reliable business men, he would be doing the country a service. He knows such men, many of them, in the city of Montreal; he knows their business capacity and qualifications, and their counsel might be of value. We launched out into this undertaking without proper thought, without proper study, without proper consideration. We have lost money, but to many people to-day a few millions is as nothing; we have come to think in large amounts. I say that we should get back to normal. We should cease thinking in terms of hundreds of millions and get back to a little horse-sense, if I may use the term. Let us not go on drifting until it is too late. I say to my hon. friends opposite that I am serious in this matter; I do not desire to talk politics.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. COPP: Hon. gentlemen do not seem to understand the conscientious expression of opinion without reference to politics. That attitude on their part is easily explained, because with the exception of the minister himself not one gentleman opposite has paid the slightest attention to the item that has been before the committee for consideration since yesterday afternoon. My hon. friends opposite should realize that they have as much responsibility as any other hon. member of this House in the matter of seeing that the Minister of Marine is granted only sufficient money properly to carry on the business of the country with due regard to the country's interests and not with a view to continuing the extravagance which has been going on during the past two years.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I find at page 31, on the last line of the annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals of Canada, for the fiscal year dating April 1 to March 31, 1920, the following words:

"CONTROLLED COMPANIES"

"Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited".

(Translation): I would like the hon. Minister of Marine to tell me who are the shareholders in this company and when it was incorporated.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This was a subsidiary company created by the Government in order that the House and the people generally might know what profit or what loss was the result of the operations of the ships. In doing that we followed the example of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in connection with their ocean service.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) I would now like to know who are the shareholders of the company and who is its president?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Government, I think.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) Who is the president of the company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The King.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) Where is the head office of the company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: At Toronto.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) I wish to thank the Minister of Marine for his kind information, because I had no knowledge of the facts concerning the incorporation of this company; I knew that a limited company had been incorporated, but I did not have the information which the hon. minister has just given me. I am happy to learn that His Majesty the King is president of the company and that the public are the shareholders. I see that not only do we own the shares, but that we have all the responsibility and deficits as well.

I would now like to know from the hon. minister—I also read on page 31, the following:

Constituent and subsidiary companies comprised in the Canadian Railway system —sub-title: Constituent companies.

The Canadian Northern Railway Company.

The Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Company

The Canadian Northern Quebec Railway Company

Mount Royal Tunnel and Terminal Company, Limited.

Canadian Northern Pacific Railway Company

Canadian Northern Alberta Railway Company

Canadian Northern Western Railway Company

The Canadian Northern Saskatchewan Railway Company

Central Ontario.

The Canadian Northern Manitoba Railway Company

Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Railway Company

Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Railroad Company

Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg Railway Company

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I rise to a point of order. We are not on the Railway Estimates and I cannot see how my hon. friend is in order on the Ship-building vote in reading the names of all these subsidiary railway companies.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) This is to show what relation the three paragraphs have to one another. I read at the head of page 31: "Constituent and subsidiary companies comprised in the Canadian Northern Railway system." I wished to enumerate the constituent companies. Further on, I read: Subsidiary companies, which is another class of companies, and still further on, under the caption "Controlled companies," we have "The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited." I thought I was entitled to enumerate the various companies making up the entity or class termed "Constituent companies," as well as others which make up the other class known as "Subsidiary companies," and also that which is designated under the name "Controlled Company." I should like to know in virtue of what this company has been classed under that designation. I think the question I have put to the minister is quite in order.

The CHAIRMAN: (Translation.) I understood the point of order was decided by the very fact that the hon. gentleman had put his question, but I take it now that he has not yet got an answer from the minister.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) What I wish to know is just this: I spoke of "Constituent Companies," and under the caption "Subsidiary Companies," I mentioned "The Canadian National Telegraph Co.", "The Great North-Western Telegraph Co. of Canada." and several other companies, and under the last caption "Controlled companies," I mentioned "The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited." I should like to know under the authority of what Order in Council, of what Act, or other enactment, that company "The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited," was placed under the control of the "Canadian Northern Railway System."

Mr. CAHILL: Has the minister a copy of the contract with the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company of the cost plus basis?

[Mr. Casgrain.]

Mr. CASGRAIN: There is a point of Order.

The CHAIRMAN: I understand the hon. member has a perfect right to ask under what Order in Council or what law or what Statute this Company was placed under the direction of the Canadian National Railways Company; but the Chair is helpless; the Chair cannot oblige the minister to give an answer unless he so desires.

Mr. CASGRAIN: With your permission, I will translate.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is not necessary.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I see at the end of page 31, controlling company, Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited. I would like to know by what Order in Council or law, or if there is no Order in Council or law, by what Act or deed the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited, came under the control of the Canadian National Railways system?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Government own all of the stock, as my hon. friend well knows. I am quite prepared to stand for loss of time. I can quite understand what the hon. gentleman is at. What he wants to do is to kill time; it is not information he wants.

Mr. CASGRAIN. We are serious.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: So am I, but the night is young. I am afraid I cannot agree with the hon. gentleman about his seriousness, but I will try to be a little more serious than he is and tell him that the Government own this company and the company was created by Order in Council, as he well knows.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) That makes it clear to me that the company has been constituted under the Order in Council which has just been quoted to me, but that does not tell me by what authority that company has been placed under the control of the Canadian Railway system.

Mr. RINFRET: Possibly I may be permitted, at this stage of the debate, to protest against the minister's assertion that we are not serious. This was supposed to be private members' day, and his item came on only at the last moment or around midnight and naturally found a House not so well filled as it might have been. There is only a handful of members on both sides of the House; but we are endeavouring, not only myself, but my friends, the hon.

member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), the hon. member for Pontiac (Mr. Cahill) and the hon. member for Charlevoix-Montmorency (Mr. Casgrain), to get information. It is very hard to get it; but we intend to stay here until we do so, and we are very serious and, in fact, more serious than the minister thinks.

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) If you allow me, Mr. Chairman, I will put my question to the Minister of Marine in a different way: Has the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited, been put under the control of the Canadian Northern system under the last law passed in 1919 concerning the administration of the Canadian National Railway system?

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the item carry?

Mr. CASGRAIN: (Translation.) Since I cannot obtain an answer from the Minister of Marine, I will ask the House to take note of my remarks. I have a right to an answer to the question, which I have put at least three or four times.

The hon. Minister of Marine, said something a moment ago which might seem true, but it was not quite the truth. I must say that I am as serious as the Minister of Marine can be. I am asking for information, and he refuses to give it. If there be an Order in Council as he claims, he must know it and should tell us; if it be under the law passed in 1919 that the Canadian Northern System, Limited, and all the subsidiary companies were put under the control of the Canadian Northern Railway system, he must know it and should tell us. I represent a constituency of 20,000 voters, who sent me here not only to represent them, but to represent Canada as a whole. When we are asked to vote a sum of eight million and some odd hundred thousand dollars, it is not a matter to be disposed of in an instant. The hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. McGibbon), put the question a moment ago, What is the use of haggling so long over a matter of a few millions? Mr. Chairman, the people's representatives have the right to know how this money is spent. We have here before us a company organized as a company with limited responsibility; it is not known when it was organized; we are told the King is its president and the Government controls the shares. I ask the Minister of Marine, who is in possession of all the information, to tell us what its exact situation is, and he refuses to answer me. I ask the Chair to request the minister to give me an answer and I am told that the Chair cannot force him to answer. Again I put the question and again I receive no answer, but I am sure that when I go back to my constituency next summer, and tell the electors what has been the conduct of the minister this evening, he can rest assured that the verdict rendered will not uphold him.

A moment ago, in the course of my remarks, I put the following question to the minister: How many returned soldiers have been employed in the various yards in Canada? I had no better success; the minister did not deign to answer.

Mr. Chairman, I asked a moment ago how many returned soldiers had been employed in the various yards of the Canadian Marine. I received no answer. This is the fourth time that we put pertinent questions to the minister, and he says, You are not serious. Mr. Chairman, if we were not serious we would not sit here tonight, the hon. members for St. James (Mr. Rinfret), for Montcalm (Mr. Séguin), for Pontiac (Mr. Cahill), for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), and myself; and our venerated leader this evening, the hon. member for Shelburne and Queens (Mr. Fielding) would not be in his seat, being content, notwithstanding his advanced age and all the years of labour which he spent in the service of his country, to remain among us at this hour of the night to lend his help to His Majesty's loyal Opposition.

Our opposition is loyal, we simply ask the Government, whose claim is that the object of this policy is to help the returned soldiers and to prevent the unemployed from starving with hunger, to tell us, at least, how many of those people have been employed in the ship building yards. I do not think the assertion made by the minister is correct. I would not say it is false, as this would be inconsistent with parliamentary etiquette; but we all know what happened, of recent date, in the province of Quebec.

Aided by the hon. Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton), the hon. Minister of Marine introduced, in the dying hours of last year's session, a bill enabling the Government to dispose, by Order in Council, of Estimates amounting to about $20,000,000. Now, it was hardly a fortnight after that law had been adopted, when two companies supposed to share in that sum were bankrupt; I mean the Three Rivers Shipyard and the National Shipbuilding. such are the industries favoured by the Government and by the Minister.

Glancing at the ministerial benches, I find that the hon. minister himself has gone out; perhaps he is disgusted with his work. It is about time he should be, having swallowed the millions granted in the preceding years. I am told that I am making obstruction, that I will not understand, that I have no reason to take such steps as I am taking to-night. Mr. Chairman, when we are asked to vote this amount right away, I cannot do otherwise than take the position I have taken, and I am surprised that the minister should lack courtesy and loyalty to the extent of not listening to us and of leaving the chamber, because he is afraid that were I to speak at any greater length, I might perhaps make more punctures in his management of the merchant marine for which millions are voted by this House. Mr. Chairman, there is another point to which I would call the attention of the committee and of the country. I asked the minister, a moment ago, some information as to a certain Order in Council and also as to the several resolutions, actions or other nefarious decrees of the Government concerning the management of the marine. I have got no answer, as I said a moment ago I caught, on their flight, some expressions and phrases uttered by the minister while delivering the great speeches of which he has somewhat the monopoly and explaining the management of his great company as he would have done to a small board of directors or to a small and very poor municipal counil. He said: That information, I have it, not because the merchant marine is managed neither by the Marine Department or by myself, but by a company, and all I have to do is to depend upon them and to ask them the results and the remittance of the money.

Money was voted to the minister in that way and he would now have us vote an item of $8,000,000. I, for one, shall refuse to vote it, because that sum will be managed and spent not by the minister himself, but by the company called the Canadian Merchant Marine, under the control of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, the doings of which it will be impossible to supervise and the extravagant expenses of which it will be impossible to control. Should those in charge of that company take a fancy to send ships to any part of the world, where there is no traffic, we could not prevent it, and the hon. minister would tell us next year: "With the eight millions I have completed the building of a few ships, but I have rereceived a report showing that I have less revenue than last year."

Were we sure that this was the last amount we would be called upon to vote for the merchant marine, and would the Minister give us the information which we now ask, perhaps we might reconsider the decision we are taking to-night to oppose that item; but under the present circumstances we cannot change our attitude with respect to that matter. I may be charged with having said too much, but when such a heavy expense is being dealt with, no one could even say enough. The position we have taken is perfectly justified by the very fact that the Government will not give the information we would like to get. Therefore, I hope that my hon. friends will help me in this contest. I have probably held the attention of this House during too long a time, but I think I owed it to myself and to my electors to say what I have said. I shall now take my seat, reserving the right to begin again later, on the occasion of some other items which will be submitted to us, and I hope my hon. friends will continue the debate which I have opened.

Mr. CAHILL: Has the contract with the Collingwood Company any fair-wage clause in it?

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): Has the Minister of Marine gone to the Senate?

Mr. CALDER: The Minister of Marine has been in the House a very long time. He has gone out for a very short while, and will be back in a few minutes. I understand that in the contract itself a scale of wages was fixed.

Mr. CAHILL: Has the minister a copy of the contract? Trouble was reported there.

Mr. CALDER: There is not a copy of the contract here.

Mr. CAHILL: Is there one in the department?

Mr. CALDER: Certainly.

Mr. RINFRET: The Minister of Marine was charging us a minute ago with not being serious, but I think he has been carried away by his own seriousness. I hope he will be back in the House to reply to our questions.

Mr. CALDER: He will be here shortly.

Mr. CAHILL: A good deal has been said about the contract for the employment of labour in Toronto. The minister now tells us he has not such a contract; but after considerable effort on the part of the members of the Opposition, we were able to find out that there was some kind of contract on the basis of 15 per cent plus on some $460,000 odd. It would appear that the Government are not very serious in their professions of interest in the labour men, at least not so serious as they are in their attempt to provide fat sums to certain gentlemen who, I presume, are friends of theirs in the contracting business. With regard to this money which the ministry proposes to vote to-night, the statement that has been given to us is, to say the least, the most preposterous thing ever presented to Parliament. The Government come down and propose a vote of $8,300,000 to finish their shipbuilding programme, and the minister mis-states his position; he attempts to bring in a statement showing that he has made an earning when, as a matter of fact, he has incurred a loss. He tried to show the committee that he was placing a sum of money in a rest fund that was to be used for depreciation on his ships. I will not say he was trying to mislead the committee.

Mr. McGIBBON (Muskoka): You might just as well.

Mr. CAHILL: But he gave a statement that was misleading. He stated that he had earned a surplus and had some money to provide for a sinking fund, whereas, as a matter of fact, he had not earned interest on his investment, and therefore had no money to loan. His scheme was all right, but the only thing was that he had no money. So that it is not only bad bookkeeping but it is misleading to say that he has provided a sinking fund to take care of depreciation. Now, the shipping people claim that they should have at least 5 per cent for ordinary depreciation, and my hon. friend has not even provided that amount. He has not earned a total of 5 per cent on the whole operation. He has not actually earned interest, and therefore no amount for the 2 per cent he allows for depreciation, which, according to the shipping people, should be 5 per cent. The people of this country have reached the point where they are very much concerned over the extravagance of the Government. The Government apparently have lost touch entirely with the country; they do not seem to appreciate what is in the minds of the people. The people are being taxed to just about their limit of endurance. The Government have devised every possible scheme to tax them, and they are unable to bear any further burdens. Yet the Government are asking for $589,000,000 this year, and unless you are going to borrow, which means bankruptcy, you will have to tax the people for that. The minister said it would probably cost $460,000 to complete these two ships, and he would not say that they would bring that money on the market when completed. The people have no money to squander on these official extravagances. It is all right for the hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. McGibbon), to talk of a few millions here or there; but if I mistake not, his desk mate to-night, the member for North Perth (Mr. Morphy) advocated the other night that the Government should go full steam ahead as they did in the United States. Well, so far as this Government's expenditures have been concerned, they have been going full steam ahead for the last five years. They opened the throttle wide and threw away the steering gear, and have gone the limit in every possible kind of expenditure. They have no regard for the people's money; they are simply hanging on as long as possible. I do not know what their hope is; I do not believe they have any, but they will hang on as long as they can, and continue to squander money. Yet the ministers do not think it necessary for them to give information to the committee. The member for Muskoka said we were obstructing. I have not been on my feet as long to-night as he was, in all the time I have spoken. I have been trying to get information, and every time I got up to speak, some one else wanted to follow up the line of argument he had in his mind, and until now I have not been able to state my views on the shipping question. I think the Government will acknowledge that their shipping programme was a mistaken one, and that it was wrong for them to continue it last year. Had they taken the advice of the Opposition, and disposed of the ships, they would have been in a much happier mood than they are to-day. It is not the business of the Government to own ships and chase around the world looking for cargo. That is for private enterprise, and the Government will find that out. The minister was unfair to the committee in pointing out the advantage of his ships to the export and import trade of Canada. He said that in 1914 we had imported from the West Indies $9,000,000 worth of goods, and in 1920 $19,000,000 worth. In 1914, I might point out, we imported from France about $3,600,000 worth of various commodities, and in 1920, something like $61,000,000, almost twenty times as much, and I do not think that the Canadian Marchant Marine carried a dollar's worth of these goods. There is also an item in regard to Greece; this has increased sixteen thousand per cent, but it is not due to the Canadian Merchant Marine. And there is an item for Italy, which is equally as large. There is an item for Italy and it is equally as large. Of course these are exports from Canada, and it will be argued by hon. gentlemen opposite that the Government do not need to provide ships in which to send these goods over to those countries because the Government paid for the goods themselves—they loaned money to the Canadian manufacturers to furnish these goods to Italy, Greece and Roumania. Having provided the goods they do not need to provide the ships. But our trade has increased with a number of countries that our ships do not visit. The percentage under the heading of "other foreign countries" has increased by seven hundred per cent. That is a greater percentage than the minister was able to mention when he spoke of the merchant marine doing such great work for our export and import service.

The minister disclaims all responsibility for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. He does not interfere with the management in any way, and he does not scrutinize the expenditure, but if there are any deficiencies the people must provide the taxes. We know that he furnishes the money but that is all we do know. But that is not good enough for the Canadian tax-payer. He is being forced to the wall by reason of having to pay heavy taxes, which have become an enormous burden on the country. My hon. friend tells us that he has been building ships in order to provide employment; and in the next breath he tells us that he is paying some person fifteen per cent on the wages of those men. There is something wrong about that; no man has the right to collect fifteen per cent from the labouring men of this country. That is not good business and there must be something wrong when such a system can obtain. The Government should wake up and take notice in regard to all these matters because if they do not the time is coming when Canada will be in serious difficulties. In fact the Government have got the country into difficulties as it is, and the situation is growing worse all the time.

[Mr. Cahill.]

The Government have embarked on a policy of public ownership but for what reason I do not know. Just think of their coming to the House and asking for $8,000,000 in the present case, and then telling us that they have absolutely no control over the expenditure of this money. It is a most absurd position to take, and the people of the country are wondering where it is going to end. They are thinking seriously upon this whole problem. When the minister states we are talking lightly about these matters he is misstating the facts. When hon. members opposite accuse me of wanting to obstruct I have no hesitation whatever in saying that I would be too delighted to obstruct this item until it was withdrawn. If my physical endurance would permit it I would stay here for a week opposing it and hon. members opposite might call it obstruction as much as they liked. I would do that willingly if it would save $8,000,000 for the Canadian people, money which they can ill-afford at this juncture to squander. It is an insane policy to spend money without any objective or without any policy in view, and it is, to say the least, a lamentable condition of affairs for the Canadian people. The Government have no hope of doing any better. They have not the courage to face the situation and take their loss. They admit no responsibility to the country, but they go on taxing the people, and the Minister of Finance is turning grey in his attempts to find money to pay for these extravagances. We have been here now almost two months, and the Minister of Finance is not yet able to say when he expects to be able to present his Budget. The Minister of Marine told us to-night that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine is managed by the Canadian National Railways. Yesterday evening the Prime Minister proposed solemnly and as if he meant it the appointment of a committee to look into the affairs of the Canadian National Railways, of which this merchant marine is a branch, and yet the Minister of Marine to-night asks for a vote of $8,300,000. Apparently he has no regard for the committee which the Prime Minister appointed only a few hours ago. It does not look as if the Government were serious or took the Prime Minister seriously. The minister tells us the same old story, that he has no knowledge of the affairs of this undertaking which seems to be an outlet to squander the savings of the people, for apparently the irresponsible directorate in charge may decide what to spend without any restriction whatever. That condition of affairs would not be permitted if hon. members opposite had the courage to consult the electorate. We are being asked to spend money to help the working man—of which some gentlemen will take 15 per cent—in order that we may provide an export business, for which we must pay the manufacturer in advance, and then in turn we put a tariff wall around the country to exclude imports. But under our system we do not need to exchange goods! We are furnishing the goods, the money and the ships, and, not satisfied with that, we are subsidizing other ships to compete with our own merchant marine. We are going on the assumption that as long as we turn out paper dollars we can bring about prosperity. That is a policy for school children, for this Government, but it is not a policy that will be tolerated by the Canadian people when they have an opportunity to express their views at the polls. I hope the minister will seriously consider the withholding of this item until he can bring it before the committee which his leader named this evening.

4 a.m.

Mr. MAHARG: I was going to suggest that we rise and report progress on account of the absence of the minister, but as he has just returned I am satisfied to go ahead with the business. I have a few questions to ask him. What time in 1918 were the first ships put into commission on the trade route to the West Indies?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Canadian Voyageur was launched in November, 1918, and the Canadian Pioneer in December, 1918, They were sent to Quebec to be finished off owing to the St. Lawrence freezing up between Montreal and Quebec. They went from there to Halifax, and the Canadian Voyageur was the first one to sail some time in February.

Mr. MAHARG: I want to get the date in 1918 when your ships started trading with the West Indies.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I think the Canadian Voyageur went to the West Indies on her first trip but I am not certain.

Mr. MAHARG: Could the minister state the value of the trade with the West Indies at that time?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The exports or imports?

Mr. MAHARG: Both.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: To all the West Indian Islands, in 1918, $9,653,761; in 1920, $15,257,014.

Mr. MAHARG: Will the Minister give us the tonnage for those periods?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No. The Trade and Commerce Department, from whom I got these figures, could not tell me what the tonnage was.

Mr. MAHARG: It is difficult for us to know just whether our trade is increasing or decreasing if we cannot have the tonnage. This afternoon the figures given were for 1913 and 1920, I think. I would like very much to have the figures for the tonnage, as dollar comparisons may be very misleading on account of violent fluctuations. How many of the Government ships are on the Great Lakes at present?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None.

Mr. MAHARG: How many could be transferred to the Great Lakes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, that would be a matter for the company to decide, but we have a few 2,800 ton and a few 3,750 ton ships that could operate on the Lakes. We have twenty-five ships of canal draft size.

Mr. MAHARG: Twenty-five ships that could be transferred to the Great Lakes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. MAHARG: No subsidies are paid on the Great Lakes, I believe?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. MAHARG: It seems to me that it would be very good business for the Government to transfer a number of these ships to the Great Lakes. I made this suggestion a year ago, and I believe that the minister promised sympathetic consideration, or something to that effect. In the face of the scarcity of shipping on the ocean and the tremendous fall in ocean freights, I would like to ask why a number of these boats have not been transferred to the Great Lakes.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The ships were occupied elsewhere running to Newfoundland and the British West Indies, and some across to European ports. I think I promised my hon. friend last year that I would bring the matter to the attention of the management; I shall be very glad to do so again. I do not know whether the operation of these ships on the Lakes would be profitable or not, neither can I say now whether or not there is sufficient freight offering there. My hon. friend will understand that I do not follow the details of the operation of the ships.

Mr. MAHARG: I am at a loss to understand the position taken by the Government. Is the Dominion to provide seventy or eighty millions of dollars and take care of a continuous loss possibly for years and yet have nothing to say as to the expenditure of those moneys? Are we quite helpless and absolutely in the hands of this shipping company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No. When we first turned the ships over to the operating company I told them to use their judgment in putting the ships on the routes that they thought would pay best, but that one thing we did not want them to lose sight of was the national interest. There may be some very good reason, with which I am not familiar, why they did not put some of these ships on the lakes. Not later than to-morrow, or when I can get away from the House, I will telephone down and let my hon. friend have the answer speedily.

Mr. MAHARG: Then my hon. friend cannot say why they have not been put on the lakes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. MAHARG: Has the Government made inquiry into the possible profitable employment of those boats on the Great Lakes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is only reasonable to suppose that the operating company would see that the ships were put on the routes where there was the best chance of making money. They have even gone further than that and put them on routes where they were taking a chance. The absence of our vessels from the lakes would signify, I should think, that the trade there would be unremunerative. But I do not want to make a positive statement; I will have the manager communicated with to-morrow and let my hon. friend have his answer. The answer of the minister suggest another question.

Mr. MAHARG: Have any of the directors of this company any interest in outside shipping companies?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There again I do not want to make a positive statement. I have known for many years the gentlemen who are directors of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and if they had any connection with the Canada Steamship Lines, I think I would know it. So far as I know, they have not.

Mr. MAHARG: While the Canada Steamships are the big noise on the lakes, they are not the whole thing, there are many other smaller companies, some of more or less importance. It does seem to me that the Government have been a little lax in their duty in connection with an expenditure of this size, especially when it has been made with the idea, as has been stated, of assisting the Government railroads. Now, I think there is a field on the Great Lakes where our railroads can be helped tremendously.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: They may be.

Mr. MAHARG: I do not think there is any doubt about it. I think the Government should have made inquiries with a view to finding out just in what fields these ships could best serve the railroads; for assistance to the railroads was the one strong argument used by the Government to-day in favour of their construction. Is the minister aware that there are companies on the Geat Lakes that are making handsome profits, paying good dividends on capital, but whose capital is, according to the best information that can be obtained, at least four-fifths water?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member will understand that I have no knowledge of private companies operating on the Great lakes.

Mr. MAHARG: This is public knowledge, as the Canada Steamships, Limited, a few days ago issued a report which appeared in the press showing that they made handsome profits this last year on the Great lakes. It would seem as though it would be wisdom on the part of the Government to keep well informed in that respect. The point has been raised in this House of the control of transportation rates on our lakes and it has met with considerable opposition. Some members of the Government have suggested, probably not publicly, but privately, that there might be some way of controlling the cost of transportation on the Great lakes, and I was wondering if this was one of the means which they had in mind, because it would be a very effective way of controlling it to some extent. But we have on the Great lakes today, even if the minister would take for granted a hypothetical case and assume, according to the figures of the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) that his ships have cost him five times more than they are worth now, a field of employment whereby he could make full interest on the total cost of his ships.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend does not want to make an exaggerated statement. He is not a gentleman of that type, and I do not want him to think ships could be bought at one-fifth the price paid by the Government.

Mr. MAHARG: I am not saying that; I am saying "even if you take the figures as a hypothetical case." I am not saying what ships could be built for now, whether it is twice or five times less. I have shown to the minister that if we take the actual figures that are being paid for freight on the Great lakes now, he could go into competition on the Great lakes and earn full interest and something to spare on the total investment of his ship. That should surely be good business and worth trying.

Before I go further, I want to show to the minister the actual figures being charged on wheat, which is one of the chief products shipped across the Great lakes and one of the most profitable kinds of business carried on, on the Great lakes. These are actual figures of one company which does a great deal of the shipping on the lakes. I should like the committee to bear in mind that the shipment of grain across the lakes in the month of September is very small, because it is about that time the grain commences to move from the prairies. Even in the month of September, 1919, the rate from Fort William to bay ports was three cents; in 1920 in the same month, it was 4½ cents, or an increase of 50 per cent. In October, the grain starts to move freely and in October, 1919, the rate was 3 cents, and in October, 1920, from 5 to 5½ cents, or an increase of almost 100 per cent. The same figures apply to November of 1919, and 1920, from Fort William to bay ports. From Fort William to Montreal in September, 1919, the rate was 11 cents; in September, 1920, from 13¾ to 14 cents; in October 1919, 11 cents and in October, 1920, 15½ cents; in November, 1919, 11 cents and in November, 1920, 15½ cents. All these rates show a tremendous increase, all the way from 33 per cent to almost 100 per cent over the rates in 1919. This shows that there is a field of most profitable employment for almost the entire merchant marine. As the minister admits that he was not aware of the profitable field, I thought I would quote these rates so that he need not be in doubt as to possibilities of doing a profitable business on the Great lakes. How many ships were fitted with a view to lake trade?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Twenty.

Mr. MAHARG: Yet none of these ships have been employed in that business, and this is most remarkable because a large number of those ships were built right on the lake ports from Port Arthur to Toronto.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): Ten of them tied up in Halifax.

Mr. MAHARG: Instead of ships plying on the lakes where they were built and where there is plenty of profitable work for them to do, they have been taken off to ocean routes and, as the statement has been made, chasing around the world looking for business. Have any of these ships been used in the coal trade?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not yet, but quite a few of them are at the port of Halifax now being overhauled, and it is the intention of the company to put them into the coal trade as soon as navigation opens.

Mr. MAHARG: Are they being rebuilt so as to be suitable for the coal trade?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. MAHARG: They do not require rebuilding for the coal or grain trade?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not so far as I know.

Mr. MAHARG: I am glad to know that, because there is a way out for the minister to serve a very useful purpose to this country, by immediately getting those ships into commission on the Great lakes.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We will look into that matter with pleasure.

Mr. MAHARG: There are now some 40,000,000 bushels of grain in store at the head of the lakes. Some of this is being loaded now; in fact, by this time some of it is probably on its way, and I do not think the Government need worry very much about looking into the matter. The business is there and will always be there, because production in western Canada is going to increase. The boats could serve a useful purpose, not only in carrying grain, but in breaking down some huge combines on the lakes which affect not only the West, but very materially the East. Some are under the impression that lake rates are not of much interest to the people of eastern Canada; but, to use a popular expression, it gets them both ways, just the same as it does those who live west of the Great lakes. Thus, these boats can serve a useful purpose there and at the same time find very profitable employment.

When you consider the profits that companies can make there with their capitalization such as it is, I am sure you will agree that there is room for improvement. I should just like to mention one or two combines they could break up right away. There is the insurance combine in particular. A few years ago, before the Grain Commission in Winnipeg, a miller stated that they could secure lake insurance at 50 per cent of the price they then had to pay if they could get shipping to carry their goods without having to take insurance from those who had control of the boat space on the lakes. Apart from the saving in dollars and cents, you could put a crimp as it were, in this combine business. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of produce goes to waste in these lake ports simply because the shipping companies do not have to take it unless they like; there is no control over them one way or the other. They have held up shipments of grain for days, even when the Grain Board had control of the trade, and they would not supply boats unless their price was met. The breaking up of this combine would be of tremendous value to the country, not only in a direct material way, but in its moral effect in bringing concerns of this kind to their senses. The only conditions at present under which you can do business with them are beyond human endurance.

I do not wish to detain the minister any longer this morning. I thank him for his courtesy, I hope he will take into consideration some of the suggestions I have made, and should we come back here again next year, I hope his answer will be a little different. I hope he will give us more than a promise to take the question into consideration, for really these promises do not get us very far.

Mr. P. A. SEGUIN (L'Assomption and Montcalm): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, it was not my intention to take part in this debate, and I remained at my seat in the hope that the minister realizing the extravagance of this item, as well as the seriousness and large number of the objections urged against its adoption, would drop it, thus dispensing me with saying a word; but as the Government have made up their minds to force this very large amount through the House, I think it is incumbent upon me to protest strongly in the name of my constituents against the granting of this item.

Mr. Chairman, only a short time ago, the hon. Minister of Agriculture applied for a vote of four million and some odd thousand dollars toward promoting the main industry of this country. The Government thought fit to content themselves with a paltry four million dollars to meet the requirements of Canadian agriculture, and the Minister of Finance turned a deaf ear to the entreaties of the hon. Minister of Agriculture and withheld even the amount which would have provided for maintaining the experimental farms. How is it then that the hon. Minister of Marine can now come before the House and ask for a vote of $8,000,000 toward the building of ships which we have no need for, and that, without giving us any of the grounds on which such a large grant might be justified. When we ask for explanations from the Minister of Marine, his answer is: I am not positive, I am not particularly acquainted with the details, I leave such matters to be dealt with by the company without looking very closely into them myself." Or else he says: "The outlook is not very bright." Indeed, as regards the building of our merchant marine, the outlook is not particularly encouraging. However, we are told that it has been deemed necessary to pursue that policy in order to procure work for returned soldiers. But on inquiring from the minister as to the names of the soldiers who benefit through the amounts spent by the Government, the minister is not even in a position to state the number of returned soldiers who are paid out of these millions. We are told that we are triflers, that we are not serious in objecting to such a large expenditure so uselessly incurred. I am of opinion that if one side of the House is open to the charge of flippancy, it is the party which at such a critical period of our national life, at a time when our finances are in such a deplorable state, urges us to grant lightheartedly and without discussion millions and millions of dollars. That is enough to cause the people of this country to rise and to induce its representatives in this House to do their utmost toward inducing the Government to examine themselves and realize the hatefulness of their ways. Hon. gentlemen who preceded me on this side of the House have shown that the whole press of this country, with the exception of a few newspapers quoted by the hon. minister, have disapproved of the building of the ships. Extracts have been quoted from the Gazette, a paper which never lets an opportunity to help this Government slip by, and which characterizes this shipbuilding policy as extravagant and not to be pursued any longer. And please note, Mr. Chairman, at the time the Gazette published this editorial, on the day following, congratulations were extended to it by a prominent taxpayer of Toronto, in a letter which reads as follows:

Canadian Merchant Marine.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Sir,—I read with considerable interest the article in your issue of January with reference to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and to me there appears to be more truth than poetry in the view taken by you in connection with this fleet.

The Government was justified in building these ships when they did—no one should question this—but when it comes to a Government running a fleet of steamers in opposition to private owners, that is quite another question.

I submit for the consideration of the Canadian tax payers whether it is reasonable or even common sense that a Government can, from a financial standpoint, successfully run steamers in competition with private companies, especially when those managing are novices compared with the managers of old seasoned companies, such as the Cunard Company, the Donaldson Line, Furness Line, as well as the hundreds of old and established companies of Great Britain and Norway which are operating freight steamers the world over.

But the public are told that these steamers are opening up new trade routes, but where, may I ask, are these new trade routes? Certainly not between Canada and Great Britain and the Continent, ports such as Glasgow, Liverpool, London, Hamburg and so on. South African ports are not new ones, neither are Australian and New Zealand ports. The South American service is, I beleive, new, but the management is only playing with this and it should not require sixty-five steamers to open up this route.

Only a few days ago the press informed the Canadian public that the Government steamers were being operated at less cost than any other steamers in the world; those ignorant of ships and shipping might accept such a statement as correct, but to anyone at all familiar with shipping business, the statement is so absurd that it is not worthy of consideration.

Is it reasonable that the Norwegian and British owners, with their long years of experience, cannot manage their shipping business as economically as Canadians especially, remembering that the Canadian fleet is under the control and direction of gentlemen with little or no experience.

It is a fact beyond question that the Government managed Intercolonial Railway has been a charge upon the tax payers of Canada ever since its opening. What is to be expected from the Government owned steamers? Nothing but deficits, and heavy ones at that, and the now over burdened tax payers will be called upon to pay up millions annually as the result of Government operating annually as the result of Government operated tonnage.

Owners of steamers outside of Canada are losing less money by tying up their boats to the piers in harbors than by operating them and in face of this it is claimed that the Canadian steamers are making money.

How is this possible? It is not possible, and the tax payer is being misled.

It shows clearly, Mr. Chairman, that an extravagant shipbuilding policy is generally considered as being absolutely against the interests of the country. If we compare the Estimates of the Department of Agriculture with those of the Department of Marine and of the Department of Militia, we are inclined to believe that those in authority have actually lost their heads, and that they really want to rouse the people's wrath and to stir up the farmers in the most arbitrary manner by showing them that they do not care to give the agricultural industry a proper assistance. We should congratulate the hon. Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Tolmie), for his efforts to promote that branch of the administration, but what can he do when he is told by the Minister of Finance "You must confine yourself to such an amount."

I cannot see why they should be so very sparing as regards the assistance to be given to the farming industry, when they are spending so lavishly on some unnecessary items. I wonder whether the interests at the bottom of such undertakings have anything in common with the interests of the country, and if under this shipbuilding scheme, we would not be able to discover some huge scandal such as it has been the prerogative of the Tory administration every time they succeeded in getting into power and remaining there some time.

I do not wish to detain the House any longer. I may have occasion to further discuss the matter, but before taking my seat, I must protest once more, on behalf of my constituents and on behalf of the county of L'Assomption, as strongly and as vigorously as I possibly can, against this policy of wasting millions without any advantage to the country.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): We have sat for quite a long time and do not seem to be getting much further forward. I do not know that any good purpose is being served by continuing the sitting. The cause of its continuance has not been on this side of the House; the policy is that of the Government. There has been a suggestion —I am not quite sure that it has not come from the minister—that there has been a want of seriousness on this side. I cannot admit that for a moment. I have listened to the whole debate, I myself having occupied eighteen minutes of the committee's time just before midnight. I have heard all that has been said, and if there has been a want of seriousness, which I would not dispute, it has not been on this side. We do not consider eight and a quarter millions of the people's money a matter for jest, and it was not from this side of the House that a mock presentation of a bouquet was made to the Chairman of Committees. I have not heard a speech from this side of the House that was not seriously directed to some item in the Minister's programme with a view to getting information. There have been three contributions to the debate from the other side since the minister retired from the debate, which he has done for some hours, with the single exception of his replying to the member for Maple Creek (Mr. Maharg), in his usual courteous manner. So far as speeches are concerned, the contributions from the other side have been three; although there have been numerous other contribution in the way of the opening and closing of desks; and the entertainment has also been added to in a way I have not seen in my experience in this House, in the shape of a midnight lunch. That happened on the other side, however. The seriousness is here; the frivolity is with the people who treat lightly the country's money. The three speeches to which I have referred have not helped the minister's position. My hon. friend from Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt), made a speech in which the one attempt at serious argument was the contention that this money spent for the benefit of returned men was a good thing. I had given economic reasons why I did not think it was a good way to cure unemployment by creating more. As a matter of fact, the contention of my hon. friend falls to the ground in this particular, that unemployment is rifer in this country at the present time than since I came to Canada twenty years ago. So that the very object of the minister has fallen down, as well as other planks in my hon. friend's argument. But it cannot be the opinion of hon. gentlemen opposite that it was done entirely to afford employment to the unemployed, because my hon. friend from Muskoka had a vision of these ships sailing the seven seas. If it were not so late, I should like to know from the minister what disposition has been made of all the ships he has finished at the present time. So far as we are concerned, every minute of this debate has been useful. In the very last words which the minister uttered to the committee, he told us that a number of these ships are in Halifax harbour being overhauled. That is not what the Halifax Herald says about them.

It says they are tied up in that port because they have nothing to do. In previous remarks upon this question I pointed out, that from the columns of the Montreal Star I had learned that some of these ships were coasting up and down Norway, or Scandinavia, and even going to Germany to try and get cargoes. I would like to know exactly where the ships are at the present moment? However, what I want to point out to the committee is that we have two contradictory statements made as to what the ships have actually done, and what they are doing at the present moment. On the one hand we have it asserted that they are doing good business because they are going to promote Canada's trade in all the seven seas, and on the other, that at any rate they have done some good in providing work for the unemployed. As I said when the hon. member for Brantford was speaking, if that was their object it is a pity to have stopped such a programme when my hon. friend considers it so attractive. If the object was to employ the unemployed, then there never was so much need for shipbuilding and road building. If this Government believes in spending public money for this purpose why not raise another Victory Loan and go ahead and spend money?

We of the Opposition, we who are opposing the Government of whatever creed, have no monopoly of the view that this business has fallen down. The ships were built at a loss, they were built in an unprofitable way, and they were built at too high a price. I asked my hon. friend the other day, would he say now, as he said a year ago, that he could sell these ships at a profit. Could he sell them at all?

Mr. CASGRAIN: Not one.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): My hon. friend is asleep apparently and I repeat the question—could he sell the ships at all? Then if he could not I reiterate that they are a white elephant on his hands. Now that is the condition of the ships. With regard to their helping out the railroad policy, what my hon. friends opposite, from the minister down to the back bencher, have to prove is that two deficits make a surplus. We have a defiicit of seventy millions on the National Railways and we, who are not serious forsooth, are to be told that if you only add losing ships to losing railroads the thing will be all right. Well, those of us who live another year will see. Those ships that are in Halifax harbour being overhauled are not earning much money for this year. The ships that are coasting up and down Norway are not earning much money. I am very much afraid they are not earning money because everybody who knows anything at all about ships knows that it is a very difficult thing for shipping to earn money anywhere at the present moment. I admit that quite frankly and seemingly my hon. friend from Skeena (Mr. Peck) agrees with me.

Mr. PECK: No, I ask why do you blame the Government then?

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): Why I should blame the Government for going into an unprofitable business against my own warning? When my hon. friend and his friends knew or were told, that this was an unprofitable business and went into it and come forward with a story such as we have heard about these ships, is my hon. friend so lacking in his grasp of public authority as to seriously press the question why the Government should be blamed, if one of the Government enterprises is undertaken against the knowledge of those who know something about shipping, and against warnings in the press of this country? In many quarters from the very beginning, especially in the capital city of the country, in the "Citizen" newspaper which every hon. gentleman could have read. From the beginning of the enterprise, every move in this shipping policy has been pointed out when it was wrong and condemned. That is why I blame the Government, and I ask my hon. friend if he does not think there is good ground for it?

Mr. LALOR: Are the Government supporters alone to blame in that respect? What about hon. gentlemen opposite who supported that programme?

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): My hon. friend has an excellent opportunity of settling accounts with other members of the House for himself.

Mr. LALOR: I am asking you the question.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): A child can baffle a philosopher, and really I am not prepared to tell my hon. friend at just this moment to apportion the blame. These of course are to blame that defended the policy. But that does not rest at my door, and after all is said and done the Government of the day is responsible for the policy of the day; and I have not known it as a common policy for a Government, when it is being met by solid facts and solid arguments, to ask a person using those arguments and producing those facts to apportion the blame between the minister and other members of the House. That is the business of my hon. friend from Haldimand, (Mr. Lalor) not mine. I do not want to delay these proceedings. I have occupied ten minutes in addition to eighteen —that is twenty-eight minutes of the time of the House, I have taken up. I do not feel that I have wasted a moment. I have spoken in what I conceive to be the best interest of this country, just as every word that I have ever uttered was uttered from that point of view and that point of view alone. I would call the attention of my hon. friend from Skeena to the fact that when I qrst uttered these words I was sitting behind the Government as he himself is sitting still. I was sitting behind the Government, and I was one of the few men—if he wants a confession—who were disappointed that by proceedings like these the Union Party was smashed to slivers. When I next blamed this policy, and pointed out the evils of it, I had moved to the crossbenches because I would not make myself responsible for this shipbuilding business. My hon. friend, therefore, has no ground when he asks me why I blame the Government in this matter. The summary of the matter is this: It is an unprofitable enterprise, and despite all I have heard about it being a popular policy from end to end of the country it will not requre many such detailed debates as we have had in the last two days on these Estimates to change any popularity that is left into very great unpopularity. I do not believe quite that my hon. friend is so sure of the popularity of this scheme. I do not see how he can be so sure of it because if it is not popular in the Government press in Halifax and Montreal then I can assure him it is not popular with the farmers of the prairies. Neither is it popular with the working men of Toronto who have had deputations up here revealing the very inwardness of the business. That popularity has not been a thing that has been absolutely evident in the by-elections that have taken place all over the country. Neither does the confidence of the ministry in their own popularity become evident when they keep by-elections back as far as they can by straining the law to the last point. I warn my hon. friend that he is living in a fool's paradise in regard to the popularity of the scheme. This night's debate, so far as this side of the House is concerned, has been fully justified because, up to the last moment, whenever the minister intervene he gave us information which has thrown more light on the scheme and that is what the country wants. It is an unprofitable scheme, it is next door to a bankrupt scheme, and I am afraid that the minister will find that it is a poor backing for an administraton which is rapdly approachng the same position politically as this scheme has arrived at economically.

Now so far as I am concerned I should like, if I have any influence with my hon. friends on this side, to suggest that we have made our protest, we have ventilated this thing pretty well considering the number present, and so far as I am concerned I really doubt whether there is any wisdom in going any further. The minister is looking worried, he has already retired for an hour and we do not want to overwork him. I think therefore the vote had better be passed. Eight million three hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. CASGRAIN: It is a large amount to swallow.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): It is needed, is it not, for the finishing of certain contracts? The finishing of contracts is something that, after all, we are just as sensitive about as any one on the other side of the House. But that fact furnishes the final condemnation of the scheme at the present moment. For, here is a scheme of shipbuilding on the part of the Government for certain purposes, nearly every one of which has been knocked on the head. You have a number of ships already built which are idle, and here is an order for $8,300,000 to build some more. To do what? To get cargoes where those already built cannot get them. If my hon. friend could 5 a.m. sell the ships I would stand the big loss on them, because it will be some years before they do anything for this country, especially if the policy of the Government is not changed on other matters.

Mr. MAHARG: The hon. member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) referred to-night to the fact that the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) questioned the wisdom of the project, but the hon. member for Brantford must surely have himself questioned the wisdom of it when he referred to it as he did. He said the policy itself was all right, but he was not certain that the time of putting it into operation was all right.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): It was too late.

Mr. MAHARG: What is the good of advocating a policy if you do not put it into effect at the proper time? It is good policy to sow wheat in my part of the country, but not unless you know when to sow it. I might just as well say that it is good policy for me to sow wheat in January as that it is good policy to go into shipping without knowing the proper time for doing so. I think his argument is just as illogical as he would like the House to believe our argument is.

Then he said that the farmers themselves know all about the fall in prices. I would like to tell the hon. member for Brantford that the farmers do know all about the fall in prices, but they also know something about the advance in prices, particularly of agricultural implements, in connection with which the hon. member's name is very prominent. I had occasion to purchase some implements before leaving home to attend the session here, and the manager of the company through which I did the business told me that there was only one agricultural implement and they handled practically all lines—that had not gone up in price. These advances run from 10 to 20 per cent. The hon. member for Brantford may be glad to have this information, especially as the Cochshutt Manufacturing Company make more than one line of agricultural implements.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): It is an extraordinary situation that the twenty-one hon. members sitting on the other side of the House seem to have no arguments to put up against the able speeches that are made from this side of the House. Apparently no one is able to answer the arraignment of the Government just delivered by my hon. friend from Red Deer. It strikes me that my hon. friend from St. John, a distinguished member of the Government, ought to be able to defend it, if it is capable of defence.

Mr. CASGRAIN: He is a dumb philosopher.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): And my hon. friend from Colchester (Mr. McCurdy)—can he say nothing in defence of the Government? If this policy is right why is it that no supporter of the Government can demonstrate it? We are open to argument, but we are determined to do everything in our power to prevent the passing of this $8,000,000, because we are fully convinced that it is an extravagant and useless expenditure at the present time. We have shown that these ships are only worth 25 per cent of the money put into them. Twenty-five per cent of $8,000,000 is $2,000,000, so that we are throwing away $6,000,000. We are told that this is to help the unemployed. It strikes me that there is no more extravagant way of employing idle men than in building ships, for you pay a very small amount for labour and a very large amount for material. Labour is not a great part in the construction of a ship. Besides, if you employ labour in one part of the country you are equally bound to employ it in other parts. In the town where I live there is a shipyard, but the Government have not recently let any contracts there, although there are a great many idle men in the locality. Why do we not get the use of some of this money in New Glasgow instead of its being all spent in Toronto, Port Arthur and other places west of Ottawa?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Does not my hon. friend know that we placed a million dollars' worth of contracts at New Glasgow and $8,000,000 at Halifax.

Mr. CHISHOLM: Not millions.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I did not know that $8,000,000 was to be expended in Halifax.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Quite a large part of it.

Mr. SINCLAIR: How many ships are being built in Halifax under this programme?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There are two yet.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Does my hon. friend pretend to say that he is going to spend $4,000,000 on one ship?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. SINCLAIR: (Guysborough): If he is, the condition is much worse that we thought it was. My hon. friend must be mistaken when he says that this money is to be expended in Halifax.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: A portion of it.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Well, if my hon. friend is to find work for the returned soldiers, how is it that he is placing contracts in a few places like Toronto and Halifax, and making no provision for the returned soldiers in other places in Canada? My hon. friend stated the other day that he had sixteen ships under construction and only two of them are being built in Halifax, so that there must be fourteen somewhere else. He has not told us where the fourteen are being built. He also told us that the total tonnage of the sixteen vessels amounted to 114,470 and that the average cost of building is $192 per deadweight ton. That means that my hon. friend is asking for $8,000,000 to complete a shipbuilding contract involving $21,978,000 worth of work. My hon. friend has not given the explanation of this; it looks to me as if he would be coming back later for a large sum in order to complete his programme. He has not told us, either, how much work has been done on the ships that are now in course of construction. He stated this morning that the ships that were in Halifax harbour were there for repairs. Well, that is an illuminating statement. The newspaper that supports the Government in Halifax and has done so from its inception until very recently has been criticizing the Government severely on its shipbuilding programme. From his window the editor can see in the harbour ten or twelve ships lying at anchor.

Mr. DUFF: Fifteen on Saturday.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Fifteen on Saturday, my hon. friend says; that is the spectacle witnessed by the editor of the "Halifax Herald." Consequently he came out and informed the country of the condition of things. Well, if as the Minister says these ships are under repair there must have been something wrong with their construction in the first place, because they are comparatively new ships. If there are fifteen in the harbour at once and all for repair, it will take a long time to have the repairs made, because only one ship can go on the slip at a time. This is the manner in which we are getting light on this question.

On page 9 of the 53rd annual report of the Minister's Department I find the following:

The following is an approximate comparison of the cost of wages and board per month between a British, an American, a Canadian, and a Japanese steam merchant ship of similar tonnage and dimensions; cost of the British ship for wages and board per month $3,645.09, of the American $6,711.10, of the Canadian $2,303.50 and of the Japanese $1,124.50.

The pay of the master of the Canadian ship was $250 per month, that of the master of the Japanese ship $100 per month; able seamen on the Canadian ship received $16.20 per month, on the Japanese ship $9 per month.

My hon. friend, then, who is spending millions of money for the purpose of giving employment to men in certain parts of Canada, pays his sailors $16.20 a month, about fifty cents a day. The classification of the Civil Service, page 5, gives the compensation of an ablebodied seaman on the Great lakes and on the coastal waters as $55, $60, $65, and $25 for subsistence in addition. But on the deep sea waters of the Atlantic, and, I suppose, of the Pacific, my hon. friend expects his sailors to work for $16.20 a month, while the master gets $250—as much as fifteen sailors. His ships ought to make money if he is paying his sailors at that low rate.

My hon. friend informs us that there is a sinking fund to provide for the capital expenditure and also for the depreciation, and that at the rate at which he is accumulating amounts in this sinking fund he expects to discharge the debt in twenty-five years. But my hon. friend appears to have made no provision for keeping the ships afloat during that twenty-five years, and to provide for necessary repairs. He tells us that ten or fifteen ships that are at Halifax are there for repairs. It takes a great deal of money to make repairs in these times; the machinery of the ships will depreciate year after year and will have to be renewed; the boilers will have to be renewed every ten years anyway even if the best care is taken of them. The minister cannot repair his ships and renew his machinery and boilers twice during the twenty-five year period without some money, and so far as I can learn, he has not made any provision for repairing his ships or renewing boilers and machinery. How does the minister propose to deal with the question? How does he propose to get the money to put in new boilers? Will he take the money out of the sinking fund? If he does, his sinking fund will be very largely reduced. If he could get along without any repairs for twenty-five years; if his boilers would last for twenty-five years, his theory might work out. But twenty years is regarded as the life of an ordinary tramp vessel; if it lives for twenty-five years, all the better, but it is apparently necessary that the minister's ships should last for twenty-five years to work out the sinking calculation the minister has made. How does the minister expect to keep his ships afloat during those twenty-five years? I do not see that he has made any provision for that important eventuality.

I pointed out, when I was speaking before, that freight rates have become very much less during the last few months. During the first six or seven months of 1920 rates were high and ship-owners made a good deal of money. The slump came the last of August or the first of September. As everybody knows who knows anything about ships, it is usual to have contracts two or three months ahead, so that most of 1920 must have been carried on under pretty good contracts at fairly high rates. Then the slump came and rates dropped to about one-half. I am familiar with some of the trades; but if any hon. gentleman will go into the library or reading room and take the "Journal of Commerce" of New York or the "New York Herald" and look over the fixtures of vessels last September or August and look over the same fixtures for the same routes at the present time, he will find a very large difference in the rates that are paid. If my hon. friend, on my calculation, lost $4,000,000 last year, how much is he going to lose this year? We are in dead earnest about this matter, because we feel that we represent the people of Canada; that there is at stake, not only this $8,000,000, but probably $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 more to be wasted in connection with these ships during the current year. We cannot afford to spend this money; the people of Canada have enormous burdens to shoulder; indeed, the hon. member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) represented the Canadian people as a weary Titan carrying an enormous load. It would be a great mistake for us to permit the Government to do anything we could prevent, in order to increase that load by some $12,000,000 for the coming year. That is the reason why we are fighting this question inch by inch; and if ever we were in earnest in our lives, we are in earnest now, if possible to get some concession from the minister, to draw from him some promise that he will look into the matter and that if it costs more to finish those ships than to leave them alone, he will not spend the money for the present year. If any of these ships are just about commenced—and I do not know whether they are or not, because the minister has not told us—if the keel is laid and a few thousand dollars spent, we should not think of throwing away another million to complete the ship when we know that when it is completed, it will not be worth in the market more than 25 per cent of the money put into it. That is the way the matter strikes us, and it ought to strike hon. gentlemen opposite in the same way. I see a number of business gentlemen opposite me. Do they want to waste $8,000,000 or, perhaps $12,000,000, during the current year? I am sure they do not. If not, let them take charge of their minister, and endeavour to do something with him. They alone can do it. We cannot do it on this side; it is like throwing pearls in the wrong direction for us to make speeches on this side attempting to influence the minister; but hon. gentlemen opposite can influence him if they try, if this venture strikes them as it strikes us on this side, as a losing game, a blunder, that should not be committed by the Government of this country.

Mr. PECK: Just in case anybody thinks nobody on the Government side is going to talk, I should like to say a few words. My good friend from Red Deer (Mr. Clark) seemed to resent a question that I asked him in all good humour. The hon. gentleman is such a master of eloquence, and we all respect him so much and listen to him with so much interest that I am sorry he resented the question I asked.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): I did not resent the question at all.

Mr. PECK: The hon. gentleman cannot have any more good humour than I have. As I understood the hon. gentleman to be bewailing the decline of freight rates throughout the world, I simply asked why the Government should be blamed for this decline in freights and why that should not be considered in the loss of profits. It is a very god thing that we have continued this debate, because I am quite sure hon. members opposite are entirely sincere; I do not believe they mean to obstruct. When you look across the House at those earnest and sincere countenances, you can see that they do not mean to obstruct. Therefore, is it not very much better that thirty or forty of us should sacrifice our time until this hour of the morning, or if you like during all the forenoon in order to get this item through? This shows that not only we on the Government side, but hon. gentlemen opposite are sincere in this matter, and we want to get the item through. What is the use of carrying on this debate for days? Let us get the item through, and I am sure we can if we go on.

I am not going to carry on the discussion in defence of the policy of the Minister, because we do not need to do that. It is very easy to tear things down, but it is very hard to build them up. I am quite sure that the minister's policy is going to win out, and I am prepared to stand hehind it. I do not care what gibes are thrown at me about my not crossing the floor of the House. I am as good a free trader as the hon. member for Red Deer, absolutely, and if I had a little square constituency down in Alberta, I might talk a whole lot of free trade and nothing else, but I am a practical politician. I am going to fight for free trade where we can get it, but I challenge my hon. friend from Red Deer to say if he can get it from the official Opposition in this House. Take the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Mackenzie King), or the hon. member for Shelburne and Queen's, (Mr. Fielding), or the hon. member for Quebec East, (Mr. Lapointe) or the hon. member for Beauce, (Mr. Béland)—all these hon. gentlemen have made high protectionist speeches in this House. I look in vain for free traders on the other side of the House.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Here we are.

Mr. PECK: I know you are there, but there is no free trader there.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Here is one.

Mr. PECK: If any hon. gentlemen can show me where we can get genuine free trade or a policy that will work towards free trade I will be with him, but in the meantime you have to show me. I always listen to my hon. friend from Red Deer with the utmost respect, and I challenge him to say whether he has any more sympathy than I have with the speeches from the official Opposition.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): We are all together on this item.

Mr. PECK: In the meantime let us get on with this item. We are all good humoured and want to get it through. I know hon. gentlemen opposite want to get it through and adjourn the House.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): I just want to say that if I have earned any portion of the respect of my hon. friend from Skeena by anything I have done in this country, then indeed it is one of the highest rewards that has come to me, and a far better reward than could come to me in any other form. So far from holding any resentment, I replied to him with the utmost earnestness. He might have mistaken that for temper, but it was not so. I was very anxious to get my point of view into the mind of my hon. friend. It was simply earnestness, not ill-temper. How could I be ill-tempered with so genial a gentleman as the hon. member for Skeena? Let us leave that.

My hon. friend has joined me at one point. I did say a few minutes ago that I did not see much use in continuing this discussion, but I have rather changed my mind since because of the very practical and sensible speech of my hon. friend from Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair). The more we go into this thing the worse it seems to get. Every time the minister speaks or tells us anything it appears to make his case worse. I do hope we shall have a ministerial reply to the last speech of my hon. friend from Antigonish and Guysborough. He has made a calculation—he knows something about shipping—and he fears that $8,000,000 is not going to finish the contracts of the minister. He has made a calculation by which he has demonstrated to this committee that there are good grounds for fearing $21,000,000 will be needed yet. That is a practical point which the minister is bound to take up, even at this late hour of this sitting. If this $8,000,000 is only a portion, and we shall have to find $21,000,000, I think that is good ground for not getting the item through in a hurry.

My hon. friend from Skeena has issued a challenge to me. I am very proud of him as a confessed adherent of the doctrine of free exchange. He is consistent in believing in a shipbuilding programme, and no doubt if he pegs away at the minister he may get him on a fiscal policy that will make their ships pay. I want, however, to appeal to my hon. friend's imagination—I do not think it is the strongest thing about him. He is the sort of man I would like to have with me if I was going to fight tigers—but I would like him to project himself in imagination to the harbour of Halifax, and to suppose that by some modern invention an inhabitant from the planet Mars had also come to Halifax harbour to see what was going on there. He would naturally ask my hon. friend from Skeena some questions. He would know he had come from close to the Minister of Marine and would naturally suppose he was well up on the shipbuilding programme. "Well," the man from Mars would say to my hon. friend, "what are those fifteen ships doing over there?" "Oh," says my hon. friend from Skeena, "they are being overhauled." "Is there nothing for them to do on the sea?" "Not for the moment; cargoes are very hard to get." Then they would look around the harbour and see two new ships that were being built. This intelligent inhabitant of Mars would naturally say: "Well, I cannot understand why you should be building two more ships when the finances of the country are strained to the utmost, and you have no cargoes for the fifteen ships that are here." What would my hon. friend from Skeena say if he had it put to him in that way? Does he not see that it is an immensely practical proposition that my hon. friend from Guysborough puts up when he says: We had better cut that loss if there is any suspicion of our being drawn into an expenditure of $21,000,000. But there is another side to this question of hurrying the item through. What would the inhabitant of Mars say to the hon. member from Skeena when he explained that we were building more ships, at the cost of millions of money, when we had dozens of them that we had the greatest difficulty in finding cargoes for now? He would say: "I would like to take the next aeroplane back to Mars." So far as I am concerned, I am content from that point of view. My hon. friend has not convinced my reason about the wisdom of getting the item through, but when reason fails to appeal to the majority, then we must succumb to majority rule. So that I join with my hon. friend in wishing that the item may go through as soon as possible. It is getting on to breakfast time now.

Mr. D'ANJOU: (Translation.) I should be recreant to my duty if I did not join those eloquent gentlemen who preceded me, in objecting most strongly to this item of more than $8,000,000 that is asked by the Minister of Marine. Besides the minister, two other hon. gentlemen from the other side contributed to this debate. The first stated that the discussion was nothing but ridiculous, as it was only a question of a few million dollars. Hon. gentlemen have heard so much about millions during the war and are now so familiar with large figures that they are ready to vote any amount that may be asked by the Government. However, when they were in the Opposition they proved to be very sharp obstructionists; they used to discuss items of $500 for hours; but now that His Majesty's loyal Opposition objects with good reason to this item, they take occasion of that to ridicule the stand we are taking to defend the rights of the people. Hon. gentlemen are doomed to be disappointed, and when they come before the people they shall have to give a strict account of the moneys they have spent in useless and disastrous undertakings.

It may be argued that this discussion is of no avail since the Government, having a majority in this House, can have the money voted whenever they like. But we on this side of the House are satisfied that we have fulfilled our duty in representing properly not only our own constituents, but the whole people of Canada, who shall have to pay exorbitant taxes to meet the enormous expenditure involved in the construction of ships in this country.

According to the experts, at any rate, it is established that this policy was disastrous and it is time for the Government to stop such foolish expenditures of no benefit to the country. Unrest is rampant in the country and not only the people's representatives but the people themselves beg the present Government to economize. Take for instance the Department of Agriculture, whose credits should be very large; the estimates for Agriculture amount to only $4,502,000 and still the Government come and ask for 8 millions to spend on the mercantile marine. However, it seems to me that the interests of the country would be better served should the Government drop their disastrous shipbuilding policy and transfer those 8 millions to the Department of Agriculture so as to encourage our farming community. For my part, and during the last two sessions, I have had occasion to ask the minister to establish an experimental farm in Rimouski county and, on every occasion, the minister told me that my request was a most reasonable one but that it could not be granted until the country's finances were in better shape. The minister said a moment ago that he was ready to spend the night here in order to put through the vote for 8 millions for his shipbuilding industry, but nevertheless, he refuses to extend the necessary explanations or give all the information that the people's representatives in this House may expect from him.

The hon. members who spoke before me have given the opinion of various newspapers regarding the shipbuilding industry in this country. Extracts were read from liberal newspapers, papers in sympathy with the Government, unionist newspapers. With your permission, Mr. Chairman, I shall read an extract from a newspaper which is rather giving its support to the agrarian members in this House: the Ottawa Citizen:

Too Many Ships.

While our government is taking much credit to itself for its extensive and costly shipbuilding program, which goes on apace, there is developing a world situation in tonnage which is becoming of serious import to all maritime nations. This relates to the glut of tonnage from which the European and American continent is suffering. Writing in the New York Evening Post, Mr. Allan Nevins calls attention to the fact that the United States shipping board has tied up seven steel vessels since the end of September and now announces that eight more, all large ships, have been withdrawn. A noted American authority on maritime affairs is quoted to the effect that hardly half the world's available ocean tonnage is being employed at this time and that a general fall in shipping securities in the United States and Britain marks the general situation. Companies here and abroad have resorted to special devices to keep their tonnage moving. Five lines plying from Liverpool to Oriental ports—the Cunard, Ellerman, Moss and others—have offered rebates to shippers who will promise to restrict themselves to their vessels. Steamships agents in New York and other American ports are making vigorous efforts to obtain parcel freight in default of full cargo shipments. A fortnight ago the American shipping board announced that American lines carrying freight to the four chief ports of Germany, Holland, Belgium and France would be allowed to fix their own rates. This means a price-cutting war in competition with European lines.

The chief causes for the present situation are given as too much tonnage and a heavy decline in freight shipping. According to Lloyd's Register the world had, in June, 1914, a gross tonnage of about 45 1-2 million tons of shipping. In June of this year it had almost 54 million tons. In addition to this there is building some seven or eight million more tons. In the United States the shipping board has attempted in vain to sell some of the 1,000 steel ships under its control to private parties but the knowledge that the world is in for a protracted spell of sharp competition and of freight rates that spell disaster to lines lacking in efficiency and very heavy capital has proved too strong for the board to do business.

Mr. Chairman, after the evidence offered by the most important newspapers representing public opinion in this country, after the opinion given by experts in shipbuilding, it seems to me that the honourable the Minister of Marine should open his eyes and that, not only should not we report progress, but this item should be struck out of the estimates for the mercantile marine and granted to the Department of Agriculture. The Government should strive to economize where economies may be accomplished. When the development of Agriculture is at stake, or when those industries which may contribute to develop or increase the richness of our country are at stake, I have no objection to the Government spending all the money they think proper to spend. For my part, I feel sure that the members of the Opposition are now doing their duty towards their constituents and towards the country at large when they oppose with the greatest energy this item of 8 millions which the Minister of Marine asks the House to vote.

Mr. RINFRET: I do not want to detain the House, but I must congratulate the member for Maple Creek (Mr. Maharg), and the member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark), for supporting the Opposition in their attitude to this item. We object to the Merchant Marine, and falling in line with the member for Red Deer, have endeavoured to show that even during the war the minister discriminated in his treatment between steel ships and wooden ships. But even if, as the minister claims, this were a war policy, I contend that it is all the more reason why it should now be discontinued. The Government was supposed to be elected for war purposes, but they do not realize that the war is over. We object to this policy on the further ground that it is another form of Government ownership. This Government has been experimenting with railway ownership, and their experiment has proved disastrous. It is well known that Government ownership in the United States has also proved a great failure, and instead of experimenting further and trying their great administrative powers in this matter, the Government should abandon the policy of public ownership in both railways and ships. The funniest part of the whole debate is the claim of the Minister of Marine that he has a surplus in the operations of his ships, and his figures show an elasticity of bookkeeping which is perfectly astounding. The investment in this great venture is about $50,000,000. The Minister says he has obtained, or rather the management has obtained—because he confesses that he knows nothing about the subject himself—a surplus of over $780,000, something like 2.35 per cent on the initial investment of $50,000,000. The Government is carrying loans on which it is paying 5½ per cent, besides exempting these loans from the income tax. So that it will be seen that the minister cannot show any better statement than a return at 2 per cent on capital. We know that the capital cost of the ships has been shrinking a good deal since they were built. These ships cost $192 per ton deadweight, and it is now claimed that they could be well replaced by ships costing $130 per ton. It is clear, therefore, that we have lost the enormous sum of $62 per ton on the value of the ships, and this represents, both on ships now in commission and on those to be finished, a total deficit of something like $20,000,000. Of course, the minister and his supporters say that we do not need to worry about millions; the war has been won and we must provide employment for returned soldiers, and it does not matter at all if it costs one million or twenty million dollars; we can well afford it. I agree with what has been said by the hon. member for Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair), that the worst way to deal with the problem of the returned soldier is to have such expensive contracts as ship-building for the sole purpose of providing a little temporary work. There are dozens of ways in which we could help the soldiers to equal advantage and with more profit to the country, and this ship-building policy is a poor excuse for providing employment. We have quoted in this House extracts from the press, Tory, Liberal and Independent, and we have also quoted reports of the Bank of Montreal, the Royal Bank, and, in fact, nearly every bank except possibly the Bank of Commerce, all adverse to this scheme of ship-building as well as the policy of the Government ownership of railways. The people have to provide the deficits, and while it is all right for the ministers to say that it is only a matter of a few millions, the people want to know where this money is to come from. We know that in a few weeks' time the Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) will have to come before the House and advise that some means of taxation be adopted to make up these deficits; and it is a serious responsibility for hon. members to make light of the matter and pass it off with any trivial remark that it is only a few million dollars, or words to that effect. The people have been labouring heavily under the taxation of the Minister of Finance of last year, and that hon. gentleman is now at work to find some other means of taxation. When the people have to dig down into their flat purses to find a few dollars and give them to the Government it is outrageous to hear the minister say: Oh, that is all right; give us all your earnings so that we may experiment in Government ownership.

I wish to read the following short paragraphs from a clipping from the "Journal of Commerce," a New York paper, dated October 26, 1920:—

> The present cost of operation of modern vessels is from three to five times greater than during the ten-year period prior to 1914, while freight rates are only from two to three times higher at the present time. Building programmes are being curtailed and it is reasonable to believe that freight rates cannot be kept below the actual cost of operation, and unless some international rate war should spring up as a result of the paternal legislation enacted by the last Congress and which the president, with apparent wisdom, has so far declined to enforce, it would seem reasonable to believe that freight rates are not likely to go lower, and with stabilization of the general situation may work higher.
>
> In this connection, it is well for shippers to bear in mind that at this time two years ago the rate on one commodity, for instance, cotton, from New Orleans to Genoa was about $8 per 100 pounds, while to-day the rate is from $1.25 to $1.50 per 100 pounds, or just one-fifth of the rate two years ago, and only about double what the rate was in 1913, although the cost of wages, coal, port charges, etc., have trebled and quadrupled during the same period.

I could go on reading, Mr. Chairman, but I would not utter one sentence which I felt was not useful and necessary for the carrying on of the business of the country. The United States, with their tremendous export trade, had an over-supply of ships. In Canada, though, we continue to build ships, even in the face of the present situation. It would be better for Canada to buy ships from the United States at the present time than to continue to build them in this country. But we should do neither, because we do not need the ships. Not only should we censure the Government for entering upon this policy; we should stop building ships and try to dispose of the ones we have at the earliest possible moment.

6 a.m.

Mr. CAHILL: Will the minister inform the committee at what yards the sixteen ships to be completed are under construction?

Mr. WIGMORE: Victoria, 1; Halifax, 2; Prince Rupert, 2; Toronto, 2; Montreal, 2; Midland, 1; Vancouver, 1; Collingwood, 1; Levis, 1; Port Arthur, 1; Coughlan Yards, Vancouver, 2.

Mr. CAHILL: What is the tonnage of each?

Mr. WIGMORE: Victoria, (one), 8,300; Halifax, (two), 10,500; Prince Rupert, (two), 8,350; Toronto, (two), 3,500; Montreal, (two), 8,300; Midland, (one), 3,500; Vancouver, (one), 8,300; Collingwood, (one), 3,500; Levis, (one), 8,300; Port Arthur, (one), 3,500; Vancouver, Coughlan Yards, (two), 8,300.

Mr. CAHILL: What amount is still to be paid on each?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I cannot tell the amount for each ship, but the vote will certainly complete the work and no further vote will be asked for. I heard the hon. member for Guysborough say that it would take $21,000,000 to finish the ships. I hope hon. members will take the word of the Government.

Mr. CAHILL: What are the names of the builders of the ships not yet finished?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Halifax Shipyards, Toronto Ship-building Company, Harbour Marine Company of Victoria, Coughlan Ship-building Company, Vancouver, Wallace Ship-building Company of Prince Rupert. There is also one ship to be completed at Levis and one at Midland.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I do not wish to put my word against that of the minister, but I stated that, according to the minister, there were sixteen ships under construction and that on the basis of a total tonnage of 114,470, at a rate per ton as given by the minister, the cost would reach $21,978,240. If the minister would tell us now how much money he has expended on the ships we would be able to check these figures.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I gave them to the House when I made my first statement. Of the amount of $8,000,000 required to complete the programme $4,665,496.10 is a re-vote from last year.

Mr. CAHILL: Is there no way in which the minister can cancel these orders and dispose of the unfinished ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The ships will be entirely finished by July next and it would be quite impossible to cancel the orders now.

Mr. CAHILL: According to the twenty-eighth report of the Department of Trade and Commerce for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1920, the total value of goods of Canadian origin exported in the field covered by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine was $30,000,000. We have apparently spent $1.50 for every dollar's worth of goods we exported; yet the increasing of our export trade was one of the principal reasons why the Government went into the ship-building business. To a country that had any knowledge of the economics of export and import, of production and manufacture, my hon. friend's appeal would not be a very sound one. To attempt to build ships to promote export trade is surely building your house on the sand. Hon. gentlemen opposite criticise us on this side for not offering constructive criticism. Well, it is not exactly the business of an Opposition to provide the Government with policies; when the Government find they have no policy, it is time for them to resign.

Taunts have come from the Government side against members of the Opposition for their war records. I have no apology to make for my war record nor for that of my constituents. From the little village of Portage du Fort, in the county of Pontiac, with a population of 360 souls, we had 37 volunteers before conscription came into effect, and after conscription came into effect there was only one man conscripted, and he was neither French nor Irish, but of my hon. friend's nationality, and that is not saying anything against his nationality.

Mr. MAHARG: Who has control of these ships before they are launched?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Government, under the Department of Marine.

Mr. MAHARG: I understand that five of these ships are being constructed at inland ports, and that they will be finished in July. I would suggest that if the minister has control over these boats construction be rushed as rapidly as possible, and that these ships be retained on the lakes where they would be absolutely sure to find employment. If he has not control, I would urge that he suggest to the company that the ships be retained on the lakes.

Mr. CAHILL: I wish to read an item from the Halifax Herald, one of the papers supporting the Government:

> The announcement in parliament that the deficit on the government owned and operated railways amounts to something like seventy millions of dollars, is not only startling, but really alarming. In placing the figures at seventy millions it is stated the Minister of Railways was "breaking the news gently," and by that it would occasion no surprise if the actual deficit ran up to over a hundred millions.
>
> But while public attention is focussed on this enormous and really staggering deficit of the railway system, a note of alarm is being sounded from other quarters. There are rumors to the effect that the railway system is not the only utility that is losing money.

For instance, there is the Canadian Merchant Marine. This gigantic enterprise must have cost the people of Canada a huge sum of money. To-day it is costing a huge sum of money. How many millions of dollars went into this enterprise, we do not know. How many millions of dollars are being spent annually by this same enterprise we do not know.

We think it would be well for the Parliament of Canada to take this matter in hand.

Are the millions of money being spent wisely? That is the question the people would like to have answered.

Are all those ships earning their keep? That is another question the people would like to have answered.

There are about ten of those fine ships in Halifax harbour at the present time, anchored in the stream. Some of them have been there for quite a length of time, and there does not appear to be any hope of their leaving their anchorage at an early date.

The maintenance of a steamer of any size costs money. The maintenance of the ten steamers of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine service cannot cost under one thousand dollars a day for each ship, or, at the inside calculation, ten thousand dollars a day. These ships are fully manned. The officers and members of the crew are sustained at the Government's expense and they are paid out of Government money.

Why are those ships lying idle in Halifax harbour?

If there are ten of those ships lying idle in Halifax harbour how many are there lying idle in other harbours?

Would it be a fair estimate to place the loss occasioned by the maintenance of those idle ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine service at $50,000 a day?

Why maintain all those ships if there is nothing for them to do?

Why use them to crowd out privately owned ships on routes of trade which private capital and enterprise have taken years to build up?

Why should the Government enter into competition with its own people?

There are many millions of dollars invested in those steamers. But the first cost is only a bagatelle in comparison to the cost of maintenance and if Canada is not careful, if Parliament does not put on the brakes, does not find out the reasons why, there is a possibility of the country getting another shock of equal if not greater proportions than that served up by the Minister of Railways last week.

The taxpayer of Canada should keep both eyes on the Canadian Merchant Marine.

If Parliament does not put on the brakes, it says. Well, we are putting them on now.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Westinghouse brakes.

Mr. CAHILL: No, the Opposition brakes. I would advise the taxpayers to keep their eyes on the Minister of Marine.

The minister persists in going ahead with this foolish and insane scheme in the face of advice from practically all the papers supporting the Government, with the exception of a few clippings which my hon. friend gathered and handed back to the member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt). I do not believe fifty per cent of the members of the Government are honestly in favour of this enterprise, but they must support the proposition because their majority is getting narrow and they cannot afford to go against the Government.

An hon. MEMBER: We had a majority of thirty-eight the last time.

Mr. CAHILL: The time is coming fast when you will be glad to have a majority of three, and if I can help to bring that time any nearer, I am prepared to stay here.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Next week?

Mr. CAHILL: Well, the sooner the better. Now I am sure that if the minister consulted any schoolboy he would be advised not to squander this $8,000,000 of the people's money on this insane project. I think we had better call a halt and save the people from disaster.

Mr. PIERRE CASGRAIN (Charlevoix-Montmorency): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, since I have addressed this House, only a few moments ago, I have noticed with some astonishment, mingled with anxiety and even fear, I might say, that the Minister of Marine is left alone to pull himself out the best he can, in the discussion of an item in his budget, and which places him at the mercy not only of the Opposition, but also of that of his own Government friends. I am sorry to see that those who supported him in the past years, in the launching of his new policy of a Canadian merchant marine, abandon him entirely to-day. We have now been sitting all evening, even part of the night,—dawn is now breaking—and the only person, the only member on the right, the only minister who has spoken in the defence or helped in the triumph of the Meighen Government policy, was the hon. Minister of Marine. Three ministers sat in the House this evening: the Minister of Customs, the Minister of Public Works, and the Minister of the Interior. Yet not one came to his rescue. Why? I perceive the reason, Mr. Chairman, in the remark which was made by the Prime Minister himself, when he expressed doubts and fears on the future results of the colossal enterprise of the Minister of Marine. The item of eight million and some odd hundred thousand dollars,—which we have been debating for many hours, is not one which should be voted without giving it much thought; I have already given my reasons why we should strongly oppose it. All my hon. friends who spoke before and after me are of the same opinion. When we consider the item which the Government wishes to have adopted, to-day, by this House and its eagerness to spend not in the interest of the Department of Marine but in the interest of a company called "The Government Merchant Marine, Limited", there is food for thought and we wonder what the Government is doing in other spheres. The Government must devote itself to the public welfare and supervise every thing where its activities find an opening, for instance: wharves and public works in the different provinces, and where they already exist, they must be kept in good condition of repair by the Government; it is its duty to look to these things. Some of these come under the Department of Marine, others are controlled by the Public Works Department.

In my own county there are some wharves which up to the present time were lighted at the expense of the Marine Department. The cost was about $1,000 per year. There was one at Cap à l'Aigle, one at Murray Bay and another at St. Irenée. What is happening to-day? Some time ago, I received a letter informing me that it was the intention of the Department of Marine, of the hon. minister himself and of his deputy minister, to cancel the subsidy which had been granted up to then for the lighting of these wharfs. What will happen when the steamboats of the "Canada Steamship Company" come down at night to this part of the county, to Murray Bay, Cap à l'Aigle and St. Irenée, when they will travel up and down the river; there will be no more lights on the wharves to accommodate travellers, the steamboats and even in some cases not only the boats of the "Canada Steamship Company" but also the Government's own boats. Last night, we were asked to allow the vote on this item of eight million and some odd hundred thousand dollars to go through, and this morning they still insist in having it shoved through; yet we are refused a grant of a few thousand dollars for these wharves. I called upon the deputy minister, Mr. Johnston, and pointed out to him that this was a disastrous policy which would occasion serious inconvenience, many disadvantages and even loss of life. The deputy minister, who that day was a busy man, did not pay much attention to me "Come in some other time, I am too busy at present".

If last night and this morning, we have strongly protested, as we are now doing, it is because the Government, through its representation: the minister, the deputy minister and those who have the care of the commonwealth, are not doing their duty. It is our right to demand from the Government that they look after the commonwealth as they should do. When the Government through its employees and its ministers refuse to do so, it is but just that the members of Parliament should assert the right of those they represent and refuse to pass the items which the Government to-day are pressing them to do. They do not bother about items of two, three, four or five thousand dollars, but they attach much importance to those running into millions, they are easier to shove through, the trick being done, the Government's supporter, those who sell paint for instance, obtain contracts and get rich.

Yesterday afternoon I brought before the House a resolution which came within the province of the Minister of Marine. I was asking for the establishment of a steamship service between Murray Bay, in the county of Charlevoix, and Tadoussac, in the county of Saguenay. You will allow me to say a few words in French on this matter, because this pertains as much to the Marine Department as to the Post Office Department or the Trade and Commerce Department. Nearly two years ago the Minister of Marine himself gave me permission to use the steamer Champlain which, up to that time, had been running between the north and south shores, between Murray Bay and Tadoussac, with calls at Cap à l'Aigle, Saint Fidèle, Saint Siméon and Baie Ste. Catherine.

During the winter season 1919-1920 the service given by this steamer was a most satisfactory one. Now, what happened last spring? Friends of the Government offered to buy this steamer—the St. Lawrence Gulf Shipping Company, if I am not mistaken, represented by a man called Charles Barnard of whom our venerable friend, the member for Shelburne and Queen's, has had occasion to speak last night. I do not want to blame the right hon. Minister of Justice, but this Mr. Barnard happens to be his brother-in-law. I leave the conclusions to those wishing to draw them.

Since that time there has been no steamer service between those places. What happened? As I said yesterday afternoon there is nothing but a small boat going across from Baie Ste. Catherine to Tadoussac with the result that, during the spring, fall and winter months the traffic is four, five or six days late and that the mail can be carried only every second or third day and even only once a week.

Last year, when I criticised the Estimates of the Marine Department, I told the minister that, instead of spending considerable sums—he was then asking for twenty millions—he should not spend all of the amount voted, but save a small part for the constituents I have the honour to represent, a sum of two or three hundred thousand dollars, or grant them a subsidy of three, four or five thousand dollars to permit the establishment of a service between Murray Bay and Tadoussac. Nothing resulted from my request because the Marine Department have much more to do than look after the people of Charlevoix and Saguenay counties. They are busy doing big business. They deal extensively with the Dominion Steel, they carry law suits with this company before the Court of Exchequer; and also with the Nova Scotia Steel Company and the British Empire Steel Co. of which the Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries was one of the directors until recently when he resigned to resume his duties as Deputy Minister, so as to give more time to the Canadian Mercantile Marine which was brought forth by the minister and himself. I have but one more thing to add; I have said it several times in the course of this debate, but I would rather say it over again, because the hon. members sitting to your right, Mr. Chairman, are rather boneheaded. Although we tell them that they simply usurp power, that they hold no mandate to keep up this railway policy and to make the people swallow this policy of a mercantile marine which they are boosting to-day, they refuse to listen. The day will come, which is not far off, when after telling them: "Keep your hands off the public treasury," the electors of the Dominion will tell them in their turn what we, the members on the left side, are telling them to-day: "Leave the merchant marine alone, because this is not a good policy for the people of this country."—"Govern—mind your own business."

Mr. MARHARG: How many Government ships have been built and launched in the Port Arthur shipyards?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Six.

Mr. MAHARG: In what years were they launched?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: In 1919 and 1920.

Mr. MAHARG: What time of year were they launched?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know the month, nor the day, nor the hour.

Mr. MAHARG: I am not quibbling on such minute information. I want to know approximately, within a month, the time of year these ships were launched.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I will look up the information.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): While the deputy is looking up that information, does not the minister think that as leading the House at this moment, as well as being minister in charge of estimates, he might report progress?

Mr. MACKIE (Renfrew): No chance; carry on.

Mr. CLARK: My hon. friend from Renfrew is not leading the House, and I was not appealing to him. It might be well for the minister to consider that if one sitting of the House runs into the other it might become necessary to carry this vote by closure.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Does my hon. friend think that is fair after the very plain obstructionist policy that has prevailed on the part of members on the other side since somewhere about midnight? There has been a most deliberate attempt to delay the business of this country; yet the request is now made, at two minutes past seven in the morning, that the committee rise and report progress. All I can say is, certainly not.

7 a.m.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): I am not saying anything unfair, I am appealing to my hon. friend to think of his responsibility as leader of the House. Nor can I quite admit, having had considerable experience in Parliament, that the policy of the Opposition has been such as to deserve the characterization the minister has applied to it. The last time I was on my feet I pointed out that the minister never intervened without giving fresh facts upon which further appeals to him could be made as to what his policy really meant: I held out the olive branch to my hon. friend in more ways than one during the night and I thought it was no harm to ask the minister whether he had considered that.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I appreciate the courtesy which the hon. member always evidences in this House. I have no reference to the hon. member or to those associated with him. But the official Opposition planned this obstruction and put it into effect. Is it fair, therefore, to call upon the Government to ask the committee to rise?

Mr. COPP: By what authority does the minister say that the Opposition planned obstruction tactics and carried them through.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: According to the evidence to-night.

Mr. COPP: The evidence as given by the hon. member for Red Deer is that no obstruction was offered. In fact, my hon. friends sitting to our left have taken a more emphatic stand if possible in regard to this item than the members of the official Opposition. No obstruction tactics were arranged or organized. The suggestion made by the hon. member for Red Deer is a proper one, and I again appeal to the minister to consider the course which he is taking. I have no apology to offer for my attitude. I have remained here this morning and I would remain much longer if I thought that the effect would be to prevent the wasteful expenditure of the people's money. The minister may have a very acute and definite knowledge concerning the transactions of his department but hon. gentlemen on this side have not that information, and the only way we can get it is by interrogating the minister when his Estimates are before the House. The minister, guardian of the treasury so far as his department is concerned, asks the people for $70,000,000 which he has virtually handed over without consulting the people to a company they know nothing about. I repeat, Sir, that the conclusions of the hon. member for Red Deer, who is an hon. member of considerable experience, are absolutely right, and I would feel that I was not doing my duty to my constituents, to Parliament or to the people if I did not utter the strongest protest of which I am capable against the procedure which has been adopted by the Government.

Mr. MAHARG: Is the minister in a position to answer my question?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Ships were lounched ready to go to sea, on July 17, 1919, August 6, 1919, October 4, 1920, October 29, 1919, October 15, 1920, and November 17, 1919.

Mr. MAHARG: May I ask if these boats left the head of the lakes with cargoes or part cargoes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know if that comes under the operation of ships.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Has the Merchant Marine made any report to the Minister this year?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None other than that which I presented to the House in my statement. Their annual report will be issued shortly.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I think we should have the advantage of that report before us before we are asked to vote this money. I am surprised my hon. friend undertook to charge the Opposition with obstruction. He has brought this upon himself by stating the other day that we had not opposed the passing of items for the construction of ships, and that consequently we had committed ourselves to the Government programme. We are now endeavouring to make our objections as plain as we can. It is not from this side of the House alone that opposition is coming. There is no newspaper in this country that has been so loyal to the present party as the Halifax Herald, and we have had extracts from that paper read to-night showing that the Herald is arousing the whole people of Nova Scotia on this question. The Ottawa Journal and the Montreal Gazette take the same view as the Halifax Herald of the Government's policy. You could not name three more loyal papers to the Liberal and Conservative party than these three, yet they are all protesting against the expending of this money.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: When the report of the Merchant Marine does come down, it will be an exact duplicate of the figures I have presented to this House already. I can say further that the annual report of the Board of Directors will not contain nearly such extensive information as I have given to the House.

Mr. DUFF: The minister has told us that the amount placed to rest for depreciation is $667,665.46. On the same page you will find that between that amount and the depreciation reserve shown on the consolidated balance sheet there is a difference of $148,175.86.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is the amount of depreciation carried over from last year and added to this.

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

Mr. DUFF: There is no such amount in the 1919 statement as $148,000. I have looked for it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I said that this amount of $150,000 was carried over from last year and added to this year's depreciation.

Mr. DUFF: Then it should have appeared in last year's statement but it does not. It does not speak of $148,000, but of $1,056,767.38.

I admit that the minister is in an awkward position, and if he has not the information it is only fair that he should report progress. He said the other day that he was willing to give all information, and there is absolutely no reason why this item should be forced through. We are not trying to block the estimates, but we want to get information in view of the promise given by the minister on March 29, that he would inform the House on these matters.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If the hon. member will read Hansard he will see that I offered to give every bit of information possible regarding contracts placed for steel ships between the Department of Marine and the shipbuilders. I am prepared to do that.

Mr. DUFF: The minister should be prepared to give information with regard to all of the operations of the Marine. There is an item of $148,000 in regard to which we want to know something.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: What is before the committee is the 1921 statement. The only item here that is taken from the 1919 figures is the item I have just given of $150,994.46. I have given frankly and freely all the information I have.

Mr. DUFF: I can quite understand that the minister feels we are pressing him too hard.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not at all.

Mr. DUFF: The minister need not deny it. At the same time, we are not blocking his estimates.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: You are.

Mr. DUFF: That is not quite fair. In the operating account you have an item for depreciation of $667,000, and in the same column you have an item for something like $880,000 for depreciation. The public will think there is something wrong, and someone has to prove where the differences come in.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Are you not satisfied to take the certificate of such a well known concern as Marwick, Mitchell and Company? If you are not going to accept the operating company's figures, audited by their own auditor, and this reputable firm, the Government cannot possibly do more.

Mr. DUFF: The minister is a business man; he has done business on a larger scale probably than any other man in this House, and he knows how far auditors can go and what information they can obtain. If he will read their statement, he will see that they add a qualifying clause that the information they get is according to the books of the company. They cannot possibly tell what the true facts are.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have seen hundreds of statements of various companies during my time. If an auditor comes to audit your business he has to get the information from you, and he must therefore say that his statement is based on information that is given to him. That is as far as any auditor can go.

Mr. DUFF: That is what I say; it is impossible for Marwick to be absolutely sure that these accounts are correct. Marwick does not know whether the outstanding liabilities are $22,000 or $222,000, and it a well known fact that that item is not correct.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: How do you know it is not correct? My hon. friend must not suppose that the auditors can go to the Government Marine and make a cursory examination of the books. A firm like Marwick goes closely into these questions. The whole statement falls to the ground if we are to take the position my hon. friend is taking.

Mr. DUFF: The minister does not know whether this is really a profit or not, and I think I am right in saying that no shipping man in the world would make up a statement and say that the Government made money since the first of January on their ships. I do not believe there is a steamer in the world that has made any profits since the first of January, or at all events since September 1, last. And yet, in order to make a good showing, the company puts words into the mouth of the minister and makes him say that he made a profit of $183,000. There is no question that that cannot be correct, and this is another reason why the minister should furnish the Committee with information. The company estimated some $513,000 as profits they expected on unclosed voyages in 1919 and 1920, and the minister expects us to pass this item without any information. If there is one business in the world in connection with which the management cannot predict any sure profits it is the shipping business, and the minister of Customs (Mr. Wigmore) who is present must know that this business is the most precarious in the world. When a ship leaves port, although the owner may know what his expenses are going to be and what the cargo is, nevertheless he can never figure on what his profit will be. He can only tell when his crew are paid off. It is a shame that the Minister should be placed in such a position—to be made to father a statement of that kind, because any man who reads it must know that there is something wrong. There is no justification for figuring a profit of $350,000 on voyages which were not closed.

The minister told us on two occasions that these ships were built so as to increase Canada's export trade, but early this morning, finding that his previous statements would not hold water, he explained the presence of fifteen ships in Halifax harbour by saying that they are going to be used in the coal trade. Well, they may as well be used in the carrying of coal as lie at anchor in Halifax harbour or take goods to foreign countries at a loss. But the ministers's argument that his ships were built to increase export trade falls to the ground when he now says that he is going to use practically thirty-three per cent of his ships in the coal trade. Then, there is the curious fact that these ships were built on the Great lakes and subsequently taken elsewhere, although the minister in reply to the hon. member for Maple Creek (Mr. Maharg) practically expressed his willingness this morning to place some of them on the Lakes. Surely that shows bad management somewhere.

8 a.m.

Another statement made by the minister in regard to the operation of these ships is rather interesting—and this is a point on which I have not touched before. On page 1331 of Hansard, in his statement of March 29th, the minister said:

> With regard to the costs of operation, it will be found that a comparison of Canadian Government wage costs with like costs of operating similar ships by Great Britain, the United States, Japan, Norway and France, is as follows:
>
> The monthly wage cost of a Canadian Government merchant marine ship of 8,100 tons

deadweight which carries a crew of 41, including 2 boys, is $3,705. Published figures from an authentic source—(bulletin issued by Dow, Jones & Co., of New York), show the monthly wage cost of foreign ships of similar tonnage as being, for British ships $3,924; American, $5,315; Norwegian, $3,378; and Japanese, $2,869.

But I find that quite a different statement in this regard appears in the report of the minister's department. It says:

The following is an approximate comparison of the cost of wages and board per month between a British, an American, a Canadian, and a Japanese steam merchant ship of similar tonnage and dimensions; cost of the British ship for wages and board per month $3,645.09, of the American $6,711.10, of the Canadian $2,303.50, and of the Japanese $1,124.50.

Now, Sir, I would like the minister to explain the discrepancy which exists between the figures given in these two statements.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The explanation is that the figures given in the departmental report are a year old, whereas the statement I presented to the House, gave the figures up to date.

Mr. DUFF: I notice also that in the departmental report it is stated that the pay of the master of the Canadian ship was $250 per month, and that of the master on a Japanese ship $100 per month, and that able seamen on the Canadian ship receive $16.20 per month, and on the Japanese ship $9 per month. Am I to understand that on the Government ships able seamen received last year only $16.20 per month?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am informed that my hon. friend is quoting from the parliamentary report, and that that is a ship of Canadian register operated by a Japanese crew.

Mr. DUFF: It does not read that way. It says that an able seaman on a Canadian ship received $16.20 per month.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Those figures do not apply to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine at all but to a Japanese crew on a ship of Canadian register.

Mr. DUFF: I should like to know who are the managers and directors of this merchant marine?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The maneger is Mr. R. B. Teakle, for many years with the Allan Line. The directors are Mr. Hanna, Mr. Mitchell, Colonel Cantley, Mr. E. R. Wood, Mr. Barnhill, and Mr. Reilly, of Winnipeg.

Mr. DUFF: Mr. Teakle of Montreal may know something about shipping but none of the others do. I think the directors should be competent shipping men, and one should be located at Halifax and another at Vancouver.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): I would again point out to the minister where we have arrived in this matter, and make another appeal to him, such as I made an hour and a half ago. We have arrived at the position where reason does not prevail, where two sets of grown legislators have resorted to a policy, for some hours at least, of pure force or endurance. The vote before us is upon a policy which is very unpopular in the country. There is no difference on the Opposition side of the House in regard to the subject, and I venture to say that if we had an honest expression of opinion we should find very grave doubts among hon. gentlemen opposite as to the wisdom of this policy. As has been pointed out, three of the leading ministerial papers are opposed to this policy, the Halifax Herald, the Montreal Gazette and the Ottawa Journal. I am pointing these things out in order to induce, if possible, a reflective frame of mind in my hon. friend. My hon. friends to my right cannot be moved; I have appealed to them. They at any rate are sure of defeat, and for this reason, that the Government has the machinery in its own hands by which this impasse can be brought to an end along proper and reasonable lines provided in the legislation of the country. If the Minister cannot get his vote without it, he can get it by the closure, as long as he has a majority behind him. Under these circumstances, what is the use of persisting?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I cannot understand the reasoning of my hon. friend. Surely he can remember that the serious business of the House ceased at midnight when the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) read a voluminous article in regard to certain ill-treatment which had been meted out to some seamen on one of the ships. I asked him if he would be good enough not to read the article, as we had all seen it. Not only did he read it, but he deliberately started in again and read it over.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): In response to an invitation.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Since midnight we have listened to nothing but newspaper reports from the Montreal Gazette, the Halifax Herald, and other papers. I could read reports from newspapers all over the country commending the Government Merchant Marine, but I have too much compassion on the committee to do that. My hon. friend from Red Deer attaches too much importance to what any newspaper says about the Government shipbuilding policy. If he thinks that the press of the country is opposed to that policy, the first time he is in the library let him read the newspapers and he will see that the majority of them are very much in favour of our shipbuilding programme.

Mr. CLARK: Name some newspapers.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I will not take up the time of the House doing so. Now, questions have been discussed all night and this morning which have been dealt with before, and as leader of the Government at the moment I will say frankly and freely that, in view of the systematic blocking of our estimates since midnight, I certainly will not, at a quarter to nine, agree to report progress.

Mr. MAHARG: I desire to correct the minister. He said that since twelve o'clock we have done nothing but quote newspaper reports.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I leave out the hon. member.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. MAHARG: Previously to twelve o'clock I did not say one word. The minister, I will admit, always answered me courteously, and I think he will admit that I never gave him any reason for making a statement of that kind in reference to myself.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My remarks had no reference to the Agrarian party, which is so well represented in this House today.

Mr. CLARK: It would be ungracious of me not to acknowledge the generosity of my hon. friend's afterthought. But that is only an illustration of the effect which the strenuousness of this sitting has had upon his intellect. The minister is not fit to go on with the game he is playing.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Do not be alarmed; I am all right.

Mr. CLARK: I think my hon. friend is exhausted, and I would have to take with more than a grain of salt any figures which he might give, unless they were well audited by someone else.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am perfectly sober.

Mr. COPP: I do not want to take issue with my hon. friend the minister, or to entreat him to report progress, but I will not permit his statement to go unchallenged, that there had been systematic blocking of the Estimates since twelve o'clock. The minister has occupied more time than any other member of the committee. The hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) in reading a second time the newspaper article referred to, was only courteously complying with a request from the other side. Now, the minister said he did not quote articles which he could have given by the dozen in commendation of his programme. Well, he had newspaper clippings before him and he deliberately gave them to another hon. gentleman to make use of, and in order that they might be read he had to request a member who had the floor to sit down. I challenge him to deny that statement. It is no use his raising his hands in holy horror and shedding crocodile tears on the misuse of time in this Chamber. I have taken up a few minutes, and I can inform the hon. gentleman that I am prepared to stay here till three o'clock this afternoon or twelve o'clock to-night and see that the people's interests are safeguarded before this item passes.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Louder.

Mr. COPP: I will speak just as loud or as quietly as I want to. Now, we on this side will not permit the statement to go unchallenged that we have in any way blocked the Estimates. We have only exercised our right in asking for information which the minister should give us.

Mr. CAHILL: I did not say a word before twelve o'clock last night, and when I did criticise the Government, I did so mildly. When I read from a newspaper, the extract was very short and it was from a newspaper which, although condemning the Government in this case, usually supports it. I am glad the Minister of Railways (Mr. Reid), who is the senior officer in this undertaking, is now in charge of the Estimates. We were told that the Canadian Pacific Railway had ships, and we were asked whether any person would say that they could be sold. The Canadian Pacific Railway ships, I am informed, are not of the kind that we are spending money on.

They are passenger liners running on established routes, while our ships are tramp vessels running all over the country looking for cargo. We were told also that the Canadian National Railway Company could not get along without ships. Well, the Canadian Pacific Railway got along very well without ships. I know that the Great Northern, one of the best railways in the United States, ventured on the shipping business, and went out of it because it was not profitable. But the Canadian Pacific Railway are organized and equipped to take care of international trade to a larger extent than any other organization in the world. I am quite sure the Minister of Railways will not claim that the Canadian Merchant Marine has been an acquisition to the earning power of the Canadian National Railways. It is a mistaken idea that you can assist the National Railways by carrying cargo from South Africa to South America or from Texas to Liverpool. Now, the Government must not try to evade responsibility in this matter by placing it in the hands of an irresponsible body. They have taken a course that will naturally create a great deal of opposition. The Prime Minister, about twenty-four hours ago, appointed a committee to look into the whole question of railways and shipping, and a very few hours after that the Minister of Marine came down with his Estimates and wanted to put this very large sum of money through for his shipbuilding programme. He insisted that he had a programme; that he was going on with it; that nothing would induce him to part with these ships. Well, if any one was unreasonable, it was the Minister of Marine. I hope, therefore, that when the Minister of Railways comes to pass his estimates he will be more generous in the matter of giving information; and that now that he is in the Chamber, he will by furnishing all the information possible, refrain from obstructing the estimates of the Minister of Marine. I do not hesitate to say that I should be glad to obstruct this item if by so doing I could prevent its being passed. I am quite willing to take the responsibility of obstructing in this case; I only wish I could obstruct more successfully than it seems to be in the power of the Opposition to do.

Hon. Mr. REID: I think it is hardly fair for the hon. member to say that the Government ships are not bringing traffic to the railways. Last summer I discussed the matter with Mr. Phillips, our agent in London, and he mentioned the fact that our ships collected a cargo in South Africa, I think it was, for Canada.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): What products come from South Africa to Canada?

Hon. Mr. REID: It was a port in Africa or some other foreign country that Mr. Phillips mentioned. In any case, he said that there was a full cargo from that country to Canada. When our vessels go to England or to ports in foreign countries in that part of the world, they do bring return cargoes, and consequently our railways get the benefit.

Mr. MAHARG: Are these cargoes supposed to be shipped to ports where our own railroads will get the traffic?

Hon. Mr. REID: If it is a cargo that we can collect for Canada, our railway gets the benefit of it when it is landed.

Mr. MAHARG: But in the case of Canadian Pacific freights, would they go to our roads, or to the Canadian Pacific Railway?

Hon. Mr. REID: They work together in order to get a cargo for the vessel. If the Canadian Pacific would ship their freight by our vessel, we would get that advantage; otherwise they might have to send it on one of their own ships or on a tramp vessel at a later date.

Mr. MAHARG: If they gave you their freight to take care of, you would hand it over to them at a port where they would secure the railway haulage?

Hon. Mr. REID: If our agent could get a full cargo at some point, say in South Africa, our vessel would take it. If the Canadian Pacific agent had a part cargo, we might take it and let them receive it at this end. Now, a number of these smaller ships could be used between Sydney and Montreal in the carrying of coal.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I have pointed out that it is the experience of the manager of the Dominion Coal Company that small ships did not pay in the coal trade and that they found it wiser to use larger ships with big hatches for operation between Nova Scotia and Montreal. If my hon. friend has any large ships, I would advise him to use them in that coal trade, unless he wants to lose money on the business. There may be use for the small ships somewhere, but evidently that is not the place to put them.

Mr. RINFRET: As one of the members who earlier in the night made a few quotations, I wish to say that I have no apology to make for doing so. The Minister of Marine, of course, would not enjoy my reading of the editorial from the Montreal Gazette. I quoted also from the report of the Royal Bank. Any objection on the part of the Minister of Marine to these quotations would be not because of their length, but because they expressed distinct disapproval of his policy. The Minister said some time ago that the Opposition had planned this obstruction. Now, I have noticed that the Minister of Marine always brings up his estimates when they are least expected. Last year, when he was quite aware that a number of members from Quebec were objecting to estimates for the Canadian Navy, he made a point of bringing those estimates down on Saturday evening, when many hon. members from Quebec would be away. But it happened that we were not away; the discussion proceeded forced until midnight, and the Minister was obliged to bring his estimates up on another day. On the present occasion, the minister comes down with his estimates on Monday, private members' day, and at a time when quite a number of members were attending in Montreal the funeral of a former member of the late Laurier administration. It was wholly improper that the minister, about half-past eleven at night, and on such an occasion should ask the committee to consider an important item respecting the merchant marine. Yet the minister wonders why his estimates are not well received and why we raise objection. If he would give notice in the ordinary way that the estimates of the merchant marine would be taken up tomorrow or on a day named, possibly he would not be subjected to this particular treatment. This is a very important item, calling for the expenditure of $8,000,000. I think the point made by the hon. member for Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair) is a very strong one—that next year the minister will come down and ask for more millions in connection with his ship-building policy.

This item is a large one compared with some of the other items of the different departments. For the Justice Department, which is a very important department, we find the Government is well satisfied with an item of $2,181,000, as will be seen by reference to pages 11, 12 and 13 of the Estimates. For the Agricultural Department, page 24 of the Estimates, all that is asked is $4,500,000, plus another $1,000,000 authorized by statute. For the carrying on of this important service, which we cannot do without, the Government is satisfied with $5,500,000. But they ask us to vote $8,000,000 for the Merchant Marine, which service results in annual deficits, and we do not know when it will end. I think this comparison is very edifying, and we might refer to the Immigration Department, page 25 of the Estimates. That department is satisfied with $1,500,000, and possibly a few hundred thousand more, to carry on the work of the department. It is absolutely out of place that the Government should ask us to vote $8,000,000 for this fantastic Merchant Marine with which we are loaded. The Department of Health is a most important department, dealing with medicine, hospitals, quarantine stations and so on; but the Government is well satisfied with $700,000 for that department. On page 50 of the Estimates we find that the Government is only asking $2,465,000 for the Lighthouse and Coast Service. This service is not intended for ships which are empty, which the Government did not know where to send or what to put into, but this is a very important service for the general steamship trade of the country. I will not say the amount is not large enough, but, when compared with other items, it seems very reasonable. But by comparison the amount asked for the Merchant Marine is much too large. The amounts asked for by the Fisheries Department, the Labour Department, the Dominion Lands Department, or any other department are smaller than the amount asked for by the Merchant Marine. I think it is unfair that the Minister of Marine should refuse the Committee to rise.

I join with the hon. members on the other side of the House in greeting the Right Hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce, who has just taken his seat. He is a sensible gentleman, and I feel quite sure that when we put our case before him he will advise his colleagues to rise and report progress. I think he will agree that it is utterly improper to ask us to vote this amount this morning. This is Private Members' day, the item is important, and the attendance in the House is very slim. I appeal to the good sense and the prolonged experience of the Right Hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce (Sir George Foster) as to whether we are not right in asking the Committee to rise. We are entitled to more information, and it is not at all unreasonable to ask that this item should stand over for further discussion. When we try to speak from our own knowledge and experience in such matters we are jeered at and referred to as members who did not know much about the question. When we cite quotations from papers supporting the Government, or from reports of presidents of great financial institutions, we are charged with obstruction and an endeavour to kill time. I think the hon. minister has failed to appreciate the earnest desire of members on this side of the House to obtain information, and perform their duties as representatives of the people. The hon. Minister of Marine argued that the Merchant Marine was a war measure and that when he started shipbuilding he had done it as if he thought the war was going to last forever; he said this was a very proper thing and we could take no chances. He said that while other nations were building wooden ships he would not follow their example, because the ships would be of no use after the war, and we would be loaded with them. My hon. friend had a double mind, a war mind as regards steamships and a peace mind as regards wooden ships.

The experiment of the Government in public ownership was disastrous, and was an utter national catastrophe in regard to railways, and we should not make the same mistake with shipbuilding. The Minister of Marine says that if we have the ships and the railways working together we will have different results and possibly a surplus. The deficits that are creeping up in the Merchant Marine are liable to become as great as the deficits in the administration of the railways. Some day in the future the Minister of Marine will say that it is all right, we have deficits in the railways and in the Merchant Marine, but that is because there is a missing link, and we should build aeroplanes to run in connection with the ships and the railways. When Sir Vincent Meredith, Sir Herbert Ames, and the newspapers supporting the Government condemned these policies, it was about time to stop. I would urge that the Rt. Hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce should advise his colleagues that further discussion should be postponed.

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: I have not had the pleasure of sitting the seance through to-night, but I recall old times when I have seen daylight streaming through the window. My hon. friend from St. James (Mr. Rinfret), has appealed to me to ask members on this side of the House to agree to rise and report progress. In order to report progress, we will have to show that some item has been passed which would indicate that we have made some progress. The item before the House is one for the fulfillment of contracts already let. I am informed that not a single contract for which this money is being asked has been let since the last session of Parliament. These contracts were in conformity to a policy which had been supported and received an affirmative vote in the House, and the contracts were let in the line of a policy which had been determined upon in the House. The contracts having been let and the work having gone on, they must be proceeded with and the contractors must be paid, and the money necessary to complete the vessels must be voted, so as to bring them upon the water, where they can produce returns. Is it reasonable under the circumstances to refuse the vote for the completion of this work? We have our differences as to policy in this House, but Parliament can never proceed with its work unless the majority rules. The previous vote received the approbation of the House and the money was voted. Is it supposable now that the Government is going to back up, and that no money should be voted to complete the work? That is impossible. If that were done the Government could not retain its self-respect, and could not function. The Government must give such information as can properly be given. I venture to say that no new matter has been introduced during the debate and the subject is worn thread-bare. If the Government is to function they must have the money to carry on the established policy.

Mr. CLARK (Red Deer): My right hon. friend the Minister of Trade and Commerce has made a brief speech on this subject, but he suffers very great difficulty in not having heard the discussion during the night. If he had heard that discussion he would not have ventured on one of the arguments that he used, and certainly would not have ventured on the guess that he has made as to what has been going on. He says that if progress had been made he would willingly accede to the request to report progress. That is an endeavour on his part to get round what is ordinary parliamentary formula. He has frequently taken part in the reporting of progress when no item had been voted. I will try to show him that progress has been made during the time he has been enjoying a much-needed rest. His argument is based exclusively on the fact that this $8,000,000, equal to one-fifth of the total expenditure, roughly speaking, of this whole Dominion at the time my right hon. friend ended his period as financial adviser of the previous Conservative administration, is to complete a contract. In this shipbuilding scheme the Government has not shown any very great respect for contracts. They had a contract in connection with this very scheme with the Dominion Iron and Steel Company of Nova Scotia, a contract in good faith I presume, to take 250,000 tons of steel from the Dominion Iron and Steel Company for this shipbuilding project. Only 40,000 tons have been delivered, and this Government who, my hon. friend says, must observe the sacredness of contract in connection with building ships has cancelled the steel contract and arbitration proceedings are going on now to settle their account with the Dominion Iron and Steel Company.

My right hon. friend also ventured upon the guess that no new matter came out during the night. I may say that a great deal of new matter came out during the night, and I will deal with the new matter in referring to the short speech which the Minister of Railways made just now, of which I did not hear the whole, but which I venture to refer to in regard to the part which I did hear.

He was saying, when I had to leave the House a few minutes ago, that this government building of ships was primarily a war measure. Now, I venture to take direct issue with my hon. friend, if he means that it was a war measure undertaken, of necessity, by the Government. We elicited very important information in regard to that during the night—very important, as far as I was concerned, during the period since twelve o'clock which my hon. friend, the Minister of Marine said a few minutes ago had practically been wasted. That hon. minister himself told us that when this shipbuilding scheme of this Government was taken up, the Imperial Munitions Board had been for some time engaged at fourteen different points in Canada, marshalling all the forces that Canada could spare of men and material for shipbuilding; had been doing all that Canada could do in addition to her almost superhuman efforts in the field. I take the ground that the hon. Minister of Railways could not have known all about this scheme or he would not have claimed that this was undertaken in the first instance as a war measure. It was transferred from the Imperial Munitions Board, who were doing the work splendidly, and who would have had this very great advantage in the doing of the work, that they would have been able to stop it at the end of the war,—transferred not the better to attend to the war, but transferred to the Dominion Government with this idea in the back of the hon. Minister's head—and I take it with this idea also in the Government's head—that the busines might be undertaken as a Canadian work, and the benefits presumably passed into the pockets of Canadians; so, I say, the defence that this was a war measure falls to the ground. The Minister of Railways has used the argument in this House—and we have heard it during the night, we heard it last evening—that the shipping scheme of the Government is a necessary complement of the National Railways. Well, now, the thing that we cannot get over in that connection is this: This Dominion is very short of money at the present time, all railroad extensions within Canada have had to cease, and I commend the Government for their firmness in that connection. We have had a report in connection with the Canadian railways which, to say the least, of it, ought to make every member of this House, whether on the Government or on the Opposition side, anxious about the financial condition of these roads and the financial condition of the whole country. The duty of the Opposition comes in at this point to find out exactly what is going to be done with the vote of $8,000,000 and what the Government hope for. Now, if we are to regard the shipping scheme as the complement of the railway scheme, and if we could have the assurance that the shipping scheme was going to be such a success in the next few years, that it will help the railways out of the hole, we on this side of the House should be satisfied. Will the Minister of Trade and Commerce say he has any hope that this shipping scheme will help the railroad scheme?

An Hon. MEMBER: Certainly.

Mr. CLARK: My hon. friend says "Certainly," then he must prove to us how two deficits will make a surplus. That is the financial difficulty that is bothering the humble individuals on this side of the House. I do not know who it was who interrupted me with that confident adverb, "Certainly." Whoever used it is omniscient in railroad and shipping matters. If he believes that this shipbuilding scheme, this building of ships at a time when ships are a drug, not only in the Canadian market, but in the markets of the world, is justified economically and will help in the railway situation, to meet the deficits on the railways of forty millions last year and seventy millions, this year,—well, we cannot see how two deficits are going to make a surplus, and how a small deficit is going to help to meet a bigger one. I want to get to very close quarters with this scheme, and I want to tell the right hon. the Prime Minister and the Government exactly what is troubling him, and to give my right hon. friend, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, some information that we have received during the night. I wonder if my right hon. friend has any idea how many of these ships are in Halifax harbour at the present time. I do not think he knows. Well, we have been here all night, and we have the information. There are fifteen of them. I do not think they are two years old. And what are they doing in Halifax harbour? The Halifax Herald, a journal which generally supports this Government with might and main says they are tied up to the wharves and doing nothing. We heard during the night from the minister that they were being overhauled. Well, the overhauling of fifteen ships within two years of being turned out by this Government is a pretty serious operation for the people of this country. And what else is going on at Halifax? Will he (Sir George Foster) believe that, with these fifteen ships tied up in the Halifax harbour and their counterparts sailing over the seven seas seeking cargoes in Scandinavian and other ports, and not finding them; with their capital value cut in the middle—there are now two new ships being built in Halifax harbour? Does he not think this is a work of supererogation and that there is danger of financial disaster if this policy is continued? Does my right hon. friend wonder that we, on this side of the House, are anxious and that we do not want this work to go further without the country being fully apprised of the facts and understanding the situation of the shipping scheme at the present moment? Why, I ventured to indulge in a flight of imagination during the night. I wondered if a man from Mars, if he were intelligent, who came to Halifax harbour for the first time and looked over it with one of the Government supporters and saw the condition of affairs—I wondered what he would think of the inhabitants of this planet and especially of this country and the members of the Dominion Government. He would naturally say, "Well, what are these fifteen ships doing here idle? They look to be pretty new. The paint is hardly off them." He would have to be informed, "They are getting overhauled. They have been for two years pulling us out of our railroad deficit, and they have now come into this harbour to be overhauled." Now, if he were of an inquisitive turn of mind he would take the Government supporter to where the two new ships were being built and ask: "What are these ships for?" "Oh, these are new ships to join the company of the idle ships that are getting overhauled." Then what would he say? If, as I have presumed to imagine Mars is inhabited by intelligent people he would say "Get me an aeroplane, and let me go back to the planet Mars where there are intelligent people, for I cannot find any intelligence in the Dominion Government." He would be compelled to say that if he were intelligent, which I have presumed to imagine.

I had sworn to myself I would not say any more about the merits of this scheme. My hon. friend the Minister of Marine will tell the House I have occupied very little time during the night. Indeed for the last four or five hours the men who have been debating the merits of this scheme have been growing so strong that I could not get a word in edgeways except to promote walking in the paths of peace. I have been endeavouring in the last four or five hours to get the Minister of Marine to listen to reason, and as I am on my feet I will tell my right hon. friend (Sir George Foster) the advice I have been giving him. I have pointed out to him that this scheme is doubtfully popular, that the Government's hold in this House is a slender one, that their tenure of the country is still more doubtful, and that it would have been the part of wisdom to use the legal regular machinery for terminating this debate. I fully concede—my right hon. friend knows I concede it before I say so, and as I have said before on critical occasions this session—a government is constitutionally a government as long as it has a majority of the House behind it. But my right hon. friend knows his Shakespeare: "It is excellent to have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant," and what I tried to impress upon the immature and inexperienced parliamentary mind of my hon. friend the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was that it would be a wise thing to let the few of us who feel very keenly on this subject go home some hours ago and then he could meet the House later and put his estimate through by the legalized procedure of the closure. What are we going to gain by sitting here hour after hour? I do not know what the proper machinery will be for bringing this seance, as my right hon. friend has called it, to a close. I am not very well up on how the guillotine is operated in this country, but I understand that notice is needed. In any case I refer this matter to my right hon. friend in a conciliatory spirit, which the Minister of Marine will admit I have displayed again and again at this sitting—I said hours ago that as far as I was concerned I did not believe in the policies of force. I have only a distant connection with my hon. friends to the right; I was only supported by one member of the Progressive group for hours; so that I could not do more than suggest a certain line of conduct. We have arrived at an impassé in which physical force is being used. Now the closure is physical force, but it is physical force reinforced by reason, and carried out in a reasonable way. And I say to my right hon. friend, (Sir George Foster) who is now leading the House, that he should consider that aspect of the case. We cannot refuse the estimate; the Government is in power, and we cannot refuse it. But we can surely take two nights to discuss it, and if the night runs into the morning, then it is an obstinate minister that is to blame and not an inquisitive Opposition. May I show my right hon. friend the reasonableness of what I am saying by reminding him that ten years ago he himself took a leading part in holding up estimates, in holding up the House of Commons against the beneficent measure of reciprocity, most of which he himself has since helped to carry, and he did that not for two nights only, but for days and days, and weeks and weeks, and almost months, until he forced the Liberal Government to go to the country. Now there is no power in an Opposition to do that now, because my right hon. friend has the closure as every civilized country in the world has been compelled to have it, so it is only a question of following properly arranged and legalized machinery, instead of methods which are perfectly natural to a strong-minded and decided character who has spent his life in business, like my hon. friend the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, but are utterly foreign alike to the nature and experience of my right hon. friend who leads the House. I pray the Minister of Marine to postpone his eagerness to get his estimate through, and to consider the new matter we have brought out during the night in as favourable a light as he can, and to meet me half way, and seize the olive branch which I offer on behalf of the recalcitrant group to my right.

Mr. FONTAINE (Hull): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I rise to endorse the appeal made to the Government by the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) that they may consent to adjourn and report progress. I heard a moment ago the hon. Minister of Commerce (Sir George Foster) who had just re-entered the House and upon whom we counted to induce his colleagues to show themselves amenable to common sense, say that it was difficult to report progress as no progress had been made. It seems to me on the contrary that we have accomplished much. The members of this Parliament who opposed this item of eight million dollars have spent the night here defending the interests of the country and trying to obtain information which, unfortunately, were denied them by the Minister of Marine. The only information we obtained—I heard the hon. member for Red Deer mention it a moment ago—is that at the present moment there are fifteen vessels lying idle in the port of Halifax. It is most astonishing that the Minister of Marine should come before this House and ask for a vote of eight million dollars for boats when we already have more boats than what we know what to do with.

The hon. Minister of Commerce pretended that it is a matter of abiding by a contract. I am much astonished at hearing members of the Government speak of abiding by a contract. I remember many contracts which the Government repudiated; many times when their word had been given they broke their word. I find them now strangely ticklish on the point of honour and of abiding by their word. They have not accustomed us to this.

Eight millions is an enormous sum while we only vote four millions for the Department of Agriculture. Do you not think it would be more to the point to vote eight millions for model farms, for the improvement of means of communication in the rural districts? It seems to me that eight millions given for the development of agriculture would be the very best investment at present.

We are opposed to the merchant fleet because we believe we don't need it. I heard members of the Government tell us, "But you, of the Liberal party, have you not favoured a marine, have you not advocated a marine?" Quite so, Mr. Chairman, but to-day circumstances are altogether different. We are no longer in pre-war times, when the German danger was abroad. It seems to me that now every dollar should be used for reconstruction and for the promotion of agriculture, and not for building boats, which is throwing money away. I now ask of the Government not to force us to sit day and night until they have their gag ready. I humbly invite them to be willing to abide by common-sense, in order to allow the members of this House to go and rest. It seems to me that it should not be necessary to talk to them for days and nights in order to make them understand that an expenditure of eight millions for boats at the present time is an extravagance which we, on this side of the House, cannot allow to pass. If the Government want absolutely this item to be adopted, there is no use in our sitting here any longer, let them have the courage to rise, let the right hon. Minister of Commerce, who is now leading the House (Sir George Foster) rise boldly and put on the gag, the machine which they invented and patented in order to silence us. We shall leave the matter to the electors of the country for them to pronounce between the two parties. We shall submit to the gag here, confident as we are that they will understand that we have acted as we have through love of duty and care for their interests.

You know it, Mr. Chairman, the Government no longer possesses the confidence of the country. The Government have no mandate and the electors would be much surprised if we did not oppose this expenditure. I say that this expenditure is not necessary, first because the Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) is at a loss for taxes to meet the interest on our war debt. From January to December he racks his brain to find means for meeting our liabilities. Then, why this expenditure which, in my judgment, is quite useless? I heard a few days ago the right hon. Prime Minister say that owing to the financial situation, he had decided to reduce by 25 per cent the bonus for the civil servants. The Government have no money to pay the civil service, and they ask us to vote eight millions to build ships which we don't need, probably with the object of benefiting political friends.

Mr. Chairman, why does the Minister of Marine seem to take offence? I heard him say, about six o'clock this morning: "The hon. members of the Opposition have spent the whole night reading newspaper extracts and repeating the same thing over and over again." Why, are we not justified in taking every possible means to prevent the adoption of this item? And since the hon. ministers will not yield to common sense and to the arguments submitted by us, is it not our right and our duty to resort to the constitutional means at our disposal, in order to check this expenditure? As I said a moment ago, since the Government is unwilling to supply any information or to pay any heed to our arguments, let them have no hesitation in resorting to force. As a general rule, they are not afraid to do so. Why should they spend all this time uselessly? Why not apply the gag right away?

I do not think Parliament would be justified in voting this item. I say, again, that when we are bound to burden ourselves with such sacrifice, when the ratepayers of this country have to disburse such enormous amounts in the shape of taxes, when the Minister of Finance keeps imposing tax over tax, it is unreasonable on the part of the Government to have us vote items amounting to eight millions, without even supplying the information that all the members of this House have a right to get.

The Minister of Marine seems to become extravagant, or rather has he always been so. I understand that a man, used as he is to handle millions, may be unable to fancy that we would reduce the amount of the vote he is asking; but he must remember that all the rate-payers and citizens of this country have not had, like himself, the good fortune to belong to all kinds of companies paying big dividends and having paid still larger dividends, during the war, on account of the war. We, citizens of this country, who are sitting on this side of the House, belong to the people, and we ask, in the name of the people, that the members of the Government should return to the right path and yield to our legitimate demand. Should the Government wish to go on with the debate in this style, let them be assured of our strength, of our resolution, of our earnest desire to do our duty to the extent of sitting here as long as they may like us to. We are ready, however, to adjourn; but let not the Government or the Minister of Marine fancy that they are going to wear us out. Perhaps we are not the majority, but we have the courage and we know that we are performing our duty. We are not so numerous as is the other side of the House, but I may well say, Mr. Chairman, that we have the satisfaction to know that we are doing our duty by sticking to the position we did take, and, thank God, the members of the Opposition will keep doing their duty to the last minute. Useless is it for the Government to think or to fancy that they will wear us out. We are going to follow them up and I do not think they should resist any longer. Let them use the gag, the weapon which they are so fond of, the public is in expectation of that, after all. Here is what my electors have kept telling me for a long time: "Doctor, you hold a seat in the House, you allow to pass all manner of expenditure to the amount of millions, we are driven to wretchedness, the city is filled with unemployed people, the shops are closed, we shall soon have to depend on public assistance to save our citizens from starving." Meanwhile, the magnates of the Government, the millionaires, the presidents of the big companies will force us to sit during the whole night because they wish to get more millions and to keep on piling up money for themselves and their political friends. How is that?

I think I voice the wish of my electors in rising to speak at this hour of the day, and I am sure they will give me credit for it. It is my candid opinion that the Government is wrong and should not persist in its pertinacity, it being admitted that pertinacity is an ill-adviser. I am surprised to see that the hon. Minister of Commerce, who has so much experience, who has grown old in politics, does not make his colleague, the Minister of Marine, listen to reason. I understand that the Minister of Marine may be liable to stubbornness as he is younger, more fiery, more enthusiastic, and as he has been a minister for just a couple of years, but the Minister of Commerce, an old man who has spent fifty years of his life in politics, should not listen to this ill-adviser called stubbornness, he should rather bring the members of the Government back to reason and say to them: "Since the Opposition is eager to obtain further information, since they will not let this item pass before they have been supplied with sufficient information, all right, we will adjourn and give them the information they want."

Moreover, the members of the Government and more particularly the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce, know this by experience. It was not my privilege to occupy a seat in this House at the time of the reciprocity measure, but I have been told that the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce had led obstructionist tactics against that measure for months. That shows once more that a stubborn man never wants woe. A few years ago, the members of the Government, who were then in Opposition, fought against that policy which was to bring happiness to every farmer of this country; to-day you may see them ready to run to Washington asking for favours and willing to accept anything. Why should we not make the most of past experience and why, glancing backwards, seeing that ten years ago he committed serious blunders to the detriment of the country, does not the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce listen to reason and acknowledge for once at least that we are right and should have every needed information? For, after all, when it is a matter of spending the people's money, Mr. Chairman, if you only knew how conscientious, how timorous I am. Had the hon. Minister of Marine himself to pay the eight millions, I can assure you he would not be so much in a hurry and would willingly grant the wish of those who surround him and who want some explanations. Unfortunately the money belongs to the people and they do not care when spending other people's money.

Mr. Chairman, I beg the hon. Minister of Marine to think the matter over. It seems to me that his political training would have caused him to act otherwise, but I realize that his connection with the hon. members on the other side of the House has quite altered his nature. Formerly, when he was president of the Montreal Harbour Commissioners, the hon. Minister of Marine would not have had that Tory tendency towards compelling people to vote millions of dollars without even supplying them with the necessary information. It hurts me to see that he has agreed to sit on the other side of the House where, coming in touch with such sinners, he has become a greater sinner than them. Once more, I believe it is useless for the Government to hold on. Were they to compel us to sit until three o'clock in the afternoon, their situation would not be any fairer nor any better.

Besides, the whole press of this country, save those papers that are paid to stand by the Government, the fairly independent press that ponders is against that expenditure for the marine; the press that often sides with the Government is opposed to all this expenditure. What is the reason of that stubborn determination to build a fleet, in spite of the members of this House, were they free to act according to their convictions; for, could we read what is in the heart of every member on the other side, we would see that, like us, they are against that expenditure. However, the rod brings them into submission and besides they fear the elections. These gentlemen know very well that were they by a mishap to compel the Government to go before the people, they would never come back here. I am afraid interest is the prime mover in their actions, I apprehend we will not have a free and independent jury in this House so as to do justice to the people, because they are too selfish.

It seems to me that persons having as much experience as the members of the Government have should halt a moment, think the matter over and realize they are going astray. They may by such an expedient, thanks to their majority, hold on to power until next year, until the elections, but they must know that by such a behaviour, by ignoring the voice of the people, by gagging the House, they are doing unpopular acts which the electorate will be well able to judge at the proper time. I am not here to offer any advice to the Government—God forbid such a pretension on my part—but it seems to me they ought to reflect. Sometimes a fair word does no harm, no matter where it comes from, be it from the most humble being, from the most unassuming workingman. Before resuming my seat, I say once more to the members of the Government to think it over, to see in what situation they are placing themselves before the country and the electorate. From my own viewpoint, they might above all let the committee report progress because, after all, the farther they go along that path, the more they harm themselves in the eyes of the electorate, so for us on this side who are raising objections, we deem that in doing so we are doing our duty, that in acting in that way we are keeping our trust as the representatives of the people. At this time, when we have no money, when industries have had to close, when the people are in distress, it seems to me that it is a most unpardonable extravagance to ask us to vote a million dollars, especially when this money is to be voted without serious thought being given to it, without the necessary information. I think the members of Parliament have certain rights. I understand that we are not entitled to such privileges as are enjoyed by members of the Government, I admit that we are very modest, very humble, that we do not, as does the hon. Minister of Marine, belong to powerful companies, yet, I think that we are entitled to fair play, and that the Government are wrong in refusing to give the information that we have been asking for. Besides, has not every member the right to obtain full information? What would our electors say should we vote millions of dollars without requiring that the Government render us a detailed and conscientious account of such expenses as have been made?

Mr. Chairman, it is most important that the members of the Opposition fulfil their duty, and let me say so, we shall read with pride and satisfaction, in the papers, that we have fought bravely all night through, so as to bring the Government to its senses.

I would like to say one word more before I resume my seat. I notice that the hon. Minister of Marine is not in his seat, but I hope that the hon. Minister of Railways and Canals (Mr. Reid) or the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce will stand up and declare that they are ready to give in to our fair request, and as they are not well informed and they are not sufficiently acquainted with all the items, since it is because of ignorance on their part that we cannot obtain any information, let us grant them the benefit of the doubt: I hope they will soon adjourn so as to allow them to secure this information, which they can afterwards impart to us.

In behalf of the country, in behalf of those whom I have the honour to represent, I beseech the Government to do justice to our claim, to do right by our country, and I ask all the members of the Opposition to stand firm in their rights so that the Government shall surrender.

Mr. MICHAUD: (Translation.) I wish to ask my hon. friend a question concerning the ships which are in the harbours of St. John and Halifax. It appears that there are at the present moment fifteen ships at Halifax: Does my hon. friend know how many of those ships which are now in St. John's harbour belong to the Department of Marine?

Mr. FONTAINE: I believe that the Government ships which are at present in the St. John's Harbour are absolutely idle.

Mr. McCREA: Mr. Chairman, members on the other side of the House have been accusing those on this side of obstructing, stating that we had formed plans and schemes to obstruct the Government; but as one of the members who have been sitting here all night I wish to assure the hon. minister that that has not been my purpose. It is not a matter of pleasure or a matter of satisfaction to sit here all night; I am here to get information on both sides, as far as possible. I wish to hear the arguments for and against. I have heard a good deal of sound argument showing why this marine should not have been undertaken. Our friends on this side of the House have been asking for information, and I am very sorry to say they got but little. The least the minister of this department, or the minister of any other department, in bringing estimates before the House and asking to have them voted, could do would be to come forward with all the necessary information possible. Suppose this marine were undertaken by private corporation, and the general manager of the corporation at a general meeting came before the directors, and they asked him a lot of questions, and he said "Oh no, I do not feel like giving you this information," do you think they would tolerate that kind of thing from their manager or president or any other officer? It appears, we have constructed some 47 vessels and put them afloat. I believe we should have the date that every vessel was launched and a statement of the cargoes they carried, and what money they made or lost, separately. Then when we had this information as to the prospects or outlook for those vessels as a paying investment, we would probably have more courage to go on and vote more money to complete the project, but I have sat here all night trying to obtain information. I have not voted either on this question or any other question without information, and I do not propose to vote on this question until I get all the information possible, so that I may form a sound and as well-reasoned judgment as I can as to whether this project was a wise or foolish one.

After listening to the argument and the information given, from what little knowledge I have of the shipping business I concluded that it was the height of foolishness for this Government to undertake to build vessels at all. During the war no doubt everybody was doing everything possible in the way of building ships and making munitions; and all this kind of thing, for the purpose of winning the war. Every manufacturer in this country was busily engaged in making munitions of war. But when the war was over we stopped, immediately shut up the shops and ceased making munitions. Why did they not do the same thing with shipbuilding? But they say, "These contracts were let." Was it wisdom on the part of the Government to let contracts which would not be completed for three years? Why did they not let the contract for the building of one or two or three vessels, but not more than could be finished within six months, and when that one was completed, if the war was still continuing, and we needed more vessels, let the contract to build another? But the letting of contracts by the Government for the building of some 63 or 64 vessels at a cost of some $60,000,000 to $70,000,000, and coming to the House and saying they were built for war purposes, is worse than nonsense—it was foolishness.

Ever since I came to the House, I have questioned the wisdom—or the foolishness—of constructing so many railways. Indeed, the consensus of opinion on both sides is that too many railways have been built. But the Government have said: "Oh, yes, but it was your party which commenced these railways, and we had to finish them." In 1911, when the then Opposition appealed to the electors for support, their cry in the Eastern Townships was that the then Government, of which the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the leader, were not business men, and hon. gentlemen then stated to the people that if they were returned to power they would adopt and apply business principles. Well, if they had carried out their undertaking, the very very first thing they would have done upon taking office would be to carry out an investigation of the railway projects and of any projects involving the considerable expenditure of public money with a view to seeing whether the expenditure was wise or unwise. Then, as business men, they should have caused any projects found to be unwise and uncalled for to be discontinued right then and there. But my hon. friends did not do that; yet they come to us now and say: We were simply completing what you people commenced. The least we would expect from intelligent men—and I think there are some intelligent men on that side of the House—is that they would profit by the mistakes made in connection with the building of railways. If experience is worth anything, was not the building of transcontinental lines, for which there is no traffic, not a simple reason for caution before any programme of building vessels was undertaken? There is some justification for the building of railways, even if traffic is not offering for them at the moment; there is the possibility of developing our natural resources and of encouraging settlement. But the building of ships is quite a different matter; a ship built at Halifax can sail any sea and call at any port. Before the war shipping was not a paying proposition; for years men who had put their money in ships were not making money. Now, I have done a little shipping and in the particular line of goods with which I have to do, the pre-war rate from the ports of Canada—Montreal, Quebec, Halifax, St. John—to the ports of England or Scotland was anywhere from thirteen to sixteen cents a hundred. The rate during the war from and to the same ports was anywhere from $1.60 to $1.80. In other words, the rate went up more than twelve times. And the Government launch out on a ship-building programme. When this question came up last session, the minister made the argument that the operation of the Government ships was a paying proposition. Well, I would like to know why it would not be a paying proposition, in view of the tremendous increase in rates. But when you have regard to all the information—such information as we have got—it is very doubtful whether the operations were really on a paying basis. It is said that a net profit of some 2.35 per cent was realized. Is that a good profit, having regard to the fact that rates were about twelve times what they were in pre-war days? To-day the rate on the same class of goods is about 55 cents a hundred, or more than three times the rates under normal conditions. But with fifteen of these vessels already tied up, unable to get cargoes, nothing to do, and the rates dropping every day, what do you think of the chances of vessels constructed at a cost of $192 a ton? The ordinary cost of constructing vessels in normal times was about $50 a ton, or one-quarter of what it cost the Government to build its ships. The Government ships then, built at a cost of about $200 a ton, are going out to compete with vessels built at $50 a ton? Do you think they have any chance of success? Absolutely none. I venture to say that even if these fifteen vessels that are tied up could get cargoes, they would make a smaller loss by remaining at anchor, because I doubt very much if they would get rates that would pay the cost of operation, to say nothing about profit.

Mr. Chairman, I surely will not be accused of obstructing because this is the first time that I have been on my feet to address the House or the committee since the session opened. I should not rise to take up the time of the committee now had I not wished to express my opinion that this is one of the rankest, most foolish, most unjustifiable expenditures that the Government has ever made on railways or on anything else. There is some justification, as I have said, for building new railroads into new territories to develop new sections of the country, but no argument of this kind can possibly apply to the carrying out of an extensive shipbuilding programme. If we had large surpluses at our disposal, there might then be some justification for experimentation in shipbuilding and the carrying out of a large shipbuilding programme. But we have $70,000,000 of a deficit in railway operations alone; in fact, if the Minister of Railways brought down a correct statement, making a fair allowance for depreciation of rolling stock, road-bed, and everything else, the deficit would be nearly twice $70,000,000.

Hon. Mr. REID: Oh, no.

Mr. McCREA: The minister shakes his head, but I want to tell him that the depreciation on rolling stock, ties, rails, and on everything else pertaining to a railway would run into a tremendously large sum. I do not find that he has made any allowance for this depreciation, nor has he, so far as I can see, made any allowance for capital invested.

Hon. Mr. REID: The hon. member has not read the statement or he would not say that.

Mr. McCREA: What allowance has the Minister made for the capital invested in these roads? What allowance for depreciation of rolling stock, road-bed, and everything else? No, I am not fond of talking; in fact, I would rather avoid it. But I did not sit up all night on this occasion simply for the love of sitting up; I have passed that stage. But I think I owe something to the constituency I represent, and besides, I try to represent the people of Canada, so far as my ability goes. I consider that I would be far from doing my duty if I sat quiet and allowed this vote to go through without making a strong protest. So far as I am concerned, I propose to remain here until this item is withdrawn, or until it is put through by closure.

Mr. FORTIER: (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I wish to join with the brave phalanx of the Opposition and prevent the Government from committing such an act as they would be blamed for by the people. Together with the electors I have the honour to represent I object to this vote or $8,000,000 for the Canadian merchant marine. I do not think that the reasons given by the Minister of Marine, at the beginning of the debate, can in anyway whatever justify the Government in voting such large sums as this for the continuation of a useless undertaking.

I was in my seat when the hon. Minister of Marine rose to speak in favour of the building of a merchant marine. He told us that his reasons were these: Firstly, because it had been a war undertaking and therefore must be continued; secondly, because the country owned the railways, and our transportation facilities must be co-ordinated; we must add to our railways a fleet of merchant ships; thirdly, he said Canada must carry out her treaties with foreign countries, and this is required to complete our transportation system. Let us take his reasons one by one. After having considered each of these reasons, I feel justified in objecting to vote this sum. In fact, if the merchant marine has been altogether a war undertaking, we should, now that the war is finished since several years, discontinue all works undertaken because of the war. That which is most important to-day, for the country, is to forget the war: when Canadian finances were involved to such an extent as will bear not only on the present generation but also on several generations to come. After the armistice had been signed, Cabinet ministers and especially the Minister of Finance told us that we had entered upon a new era that we must give up expending such large sums as we had been obliged to do during the years of great sacrifices; what we must now do was to practise economy and encourage production.

The period of reconstruction is beginning; let us turn our efforts towards a new era of economy and production. On this condition only Canada may be able to meet its obligations and to look into the future with confidence.

Now, the second reason invoked by the hon. Minister of Marine is that we must build this merchant marine in order to complete our transportation system. For several sessions we have been told of the nefarious work of the Government in nationalizing the railways. We have the proof now that the country is involved in enormous expenditure, in yearly deficits which reach over fifty millions and will still increase; we have the proof, I say, that there was no necessity for the Government to acquire those railways. We have indulged in an undertaking the consequence of which is to pile on taxes which will burden the country for ever. Now, why should the present Government want to add to this enormous liability incurred by the acquisition of the railways, almost as large an indebtedness for the construction of a merchant marine. If the railways, as has been several times stated, are too huge for the present population of the country, if a vast immigration policy is needed to give these railways the employment they now lack, why tack to this railway system a merchant fleet which will have no employment either? This second reason advanced by the Minister of Marine does not hold good. It only shows more plainly the utter uselessness of this policy.

Thirdly, he said, we must seek commercial treaties with foreign countries, and to that end it is necessary to have mercantile ships. I understood that it is in the country's interest to seek commercial treaties with the neighbouring republic. I understood that, from generation to generation, the policy of the government—whether Liberal or Conservative—has always been to secure commercial treaties with our neighbours; I understood that even in spite of the absence of treaties, Canada has no better ally than the United States and that it would continue to deal with the Americans. Whatever have been the barriers raised between the two countries, whatever have been the customs duties imposed on the exchange of our commercial products, they have not prevented Canada from dealing with the United States far more than with any other country in the world. Therefore what is the use of building ships to go and beg for commercial treaties with the West Indies or some unknown country of South America, when we have by our side the American republic which is interested in dealing with us, and when it is our constant interest to deal with it? Besides is not the present Government rather inclined to secure commercial treaties with the United States? It is surely the policy of the Opposition; it is certainly the policy which was adopted at the great convention held here in 1919. I for one would see with the utmost satisfaction new treaties on the basis of reciprocity which we fought for in 1911, and which allowed the producers of this country to carry on a profitable commerce with the neighbouring republic.

The two principal reasons which induced me to rise and oppose this enormous vote of eight millions are the following: First, the debts and the liabilities of the country do not allow us to embark upon such considerable expenditure. Mr. Chairman, I would not at this moment put before the committee the lamentable picture of the enormous debt with which the country is encumbered, and which reached two billions; of the yearly liabilities which Canada has to meet; of the interest upon the debt; of the expenditure involved in our participation in the war; of the war pensions which amount to an annual disbursement of over fifty millions; and moreover, of the lamentable liabilities incurred for the acquisition of the railways and for the building of the merchant marine. Ministers have told us that the country has annually to face deficits on account of their railway policy, deficits which amount to more than fifty millions, and which will next year probably reach one hundred millions. We also know that on account of this merchant marine building policy, the country will again face annual deficits. These are only incipient and will, of course, grow annually, all these obligations which to-day burden our Canadian Budget will not allow us to think of such a stupendous undertaking as this one.

In order to meet these yearly deficits of our Canadian finances, the Government has been forced to have recourse to this abominable system of taxes. No doubt, it is necessary, to meet the war expenditures, that taxes be levied whatever may be the cause of their assessment, however, it is not less true that in their results they are odious, when they are levied on the income and specially when their consequence is to bring misery in the Canadian homes, and to-day the taxes levied on the ratepapers are more odious than any of those that may have been imposed in the past. They are levied upon the income of the humblest, upon the head of families that have to support their children and are forced to borrow to meet this tax.

But this is not the only consequence of this disastrous policy of unlimited expenditure brought on by the Government. Another which glares at us in this Capital, has been the extraordinary treatment meted out to the Civil Service. For instance, but a few days ago we saw in the press and even heard, I believe, through the official channel of the Government's representatives, that the civil employees of the Dominion Government will have to put up with a curtailment in their bonus. Are you aware, Mr. Chairman, of what a curtailment in the bonus means at the present time? Are you aware what a curtailment of bonus means to this large number of civil employees who support a family, many of whom have sacrified their career to give their country the best part of their life, do you realize what this means in the year 1921? They had come to look upon, for the last few years, this bonus as an integral part of their salary, and the Government were obliged to admit that it was absolutely necessary to permit them to exist. In reality, if there is a bonus which can be considered as an integral part of the salary which a civil employee receives, it is certainly that bonus which was given to them since these years of war, since the high cost of living. I would like to see the name of bonus disappear and the employees, who after all would not be drawing such a high salary owing to the maintenance of the high cost of living, receive to-day as a permanent salary, his present one plus the bonus received for the last few years. Instead of fully considering this question as it should be, that is judiciously, we find the Government depriving the civil employees of part of their income at a time when the high cost of living has not decreased. Rents, for instance, far from going down, are on the upward trend, and the cost of living maintains itself at a high level and if anything threatens to rise. Therefore no justification exists for the Government to lower the salary and particularly the bonus which the civil employee receives. They will put forward as a reason that the expenditures are heavy, that Canada's obligations are numerous and that they must economize and clip the salaries of the civil employees in order to continue to administer the country's business. But what contradictions do we not find in the Government's attitude, on the one hand cutting down the civil employee's bonus and on the other trying to force a vote to-day for $8,000,000 for its merchant marine building policy, when this undertaking is not justified, the war being over, when we should enter on a period of reconstruction, when we should economize the most and when, lastly, instead of spending uselessly as the Government wishes to do, we should busy ourselves with reconstruction work.

It was justly pointed out during this debate, that the Government want this enormous sum to be voted so as to continue the construction of ships, when they have but small amounts placed to the credit of agriculture and other important departments of the Administration. There is but $4,000,000 placed to the credit of agriculture and yet they wish to pass a vote, for this year, of over $8,000,000 for the building of ships. It would be wiser to increase, if the country's finances will permit it, the subsidies to agriculture than to continue to vote money for these merchant ships. There are many openings in our dear Canada where the Government could well spend money to help the agricultural interest. They have told us that in the future they would encourage the establishing of experimental farms. There are many places, and I could indicate some in our province and in my county, where the Government might well encourage agriculture by establishing some of these experimental farms.

As it was remarked a few days ago, there is a movement towards agriculture and all eyes are turned to the host of farmers who are the important producers of this country. We see the reason why the Government, in order to beget a little popularity, has promised to expand that policy of establishing experimental farms; however we are still waiting. I do not see any in my section, and certainly it is a place where one should exist, in that colonizing territory. No doubt, it is important that these farms should be established in the more settled parts of the country, in the St. Lawrence valley and in the different parts of the other provinces, but if there are places where these agricultural subsidies would have the best results, it would certainly be in those colonizing parts, such as Labelle where in the midst of the Laurentian hills a new region of cultivable land is being opened under beautiful blue skies and amongst evergreen hills where is to be found a very energetic population, forming to-day one of the important centres of the province. It is in those places where experimental farms should be established, and instead of spending money for the building up of a navy, it is in encouraging agriculture, if there is money to spend, that this money would be better placed. The second reason I invoke to oppose the vote of this amount, is that to-day this merchant marine is absolutely useless. Indeed, it is in this debate that the fact came out. Certainly, the number of ships built or acquired by the Government up to date, is too large. Of what use are these ships? Are they employed on trips from which we derive some returns such as to transport our products to countries with which we have commercial treaties for the exchange of products or are they not awaiting in some port or another the cargo that luck will bring their way? It was shown in this very sitting of the House, that there are in the port of Halifax fifteen of these ships which are at anchor for the last few days. No one knows when they will obtain a cargo. This brings out the uselessness of our merchant ships and the futility of the Government's policy on that question.

Instead of spending money to acquire new ships would it not be wiser, now that the Government is in possession of almost all our railways with the exception of the Canadian Pacific, to see that not only in one particular province but that in all of them necessary branches be built to complete their system?

Would it not be wiser for the Government, who wish to complete our transportation system, instead of acquiring new merchant ships when the number we own is already too great and when it is shown that these ships are absolutely useless, would it not be better to complete our railway system? Does not the country now know that the construction of the Transcontinental, for instance, was certainly justified by the fact that in going through these unknown regions of the northern provinces of Ontario and Quebec, it opened up to colonization a vast territory? The glory certainly is to the credit of our Canadian statesman, it is to the honour of Sir Wilfrid Laurier who foresaw the development of this beautiful region of Abitibi, where to the north of the Laurentides, is thrown open a domain almost as extensive as that of the St. Lawrence valley and where the sons of that old province have ventured in great numbers to open up important and prosperous centres. It would be advisable to complete this system of railways inasmuch as our finances will permit. Before spending millions in the shipbuilding enterprise it would be more appropriate for instance to connect Montreal with the Transcontinental by means of that projected road of a few years ago, by the "North Railway Company," and thus by this extension connect the Metropolis of Canada, the large city of Montreal with the Transcontinental by skirting the counties of Argenteuil and Labelle and through this vast region situated to the north of these counties. This is an enterprise which by its own merit commends itself to the Government. Since we have millions to spend for useless enterprises, I take it upon myself to draw the attention, for the are the most urgent. mB.Oydcvmome m completion of these railways, to the absolutely important undertakings which recommend themselves to our attention and which are the most urgent. Besides this one, I could also point out that of the entension of the State-owned railways in the older sections of the province, particularly in the county of Labelle. I have had the occasion, some years ago, to call the attention of the Government to the advisability of extending the Northern Canadian line which runs from Montreal to Huberdeau, and whose chart provided for its construction to about the centre of the county of Labelle; this section of the country was opened many years ago, it is rich in natural resources, but there are no railway communications, and for several years, the people have been waiting for an extension of the line. I had the honour to accompany a delegation who waited upon the Minister of Railways and Canals, and to state as clearly as possible the importance of the completion of this railroad, from a viewpoint of revenue to be obtained from it by the company, or by the Government who own this system, and also for the inhabitants of this important district. We undoubtedly received a kind welcome, I could not say otherwise; the minister received us very well; he understood that it was most important for the Government to provide for the extension of this line, but though we have been pressing him for the last two or three years, pointing out the need of this enterprise, nothing so far has been done. I know that, in answer to my repeated request in behalf of my county, the Government shall tell us: "We cannot at the present moment make any large expenditure." Yet, this would not be a useless expenditure since it would result in great benefit for the Government, and because the development of our district, owing to the extension of the lines, has been such that we can assure the Government that they could not find a better means to obtain a revenue for these railways, then by building these branch lines. It has indeed been admitted that there is not a more remunerative line for the Canadian Pacific, in the province of Quebec, than these branches which run north, towards Mount Laurier, or leave Ottawa for the Gatineau to Maniwaki. These are the roads which have given the best results to the Canadian Pacific. If the Government would consider the progress made by this company, if they would but give better attention to our request, if they would do as this company has done, and build branch lines to the important centres where we have a growing population, where the land is being cultivated, where we have rich natural resources, water powers, mines, and a forest wealth which awaits but actual development, if, as I say, the Government, would pay any attention to our request, they would not adopt this disastrous policy of construction of a merchant marine, but they would provide for the completion of its railway system before wrongly attempting to complete the transportation system by uselessly constructing ships, when so many are idle, at the present time, in the ports of Halifax and St. John. Instead of investing their money in a merchant marine, they would provide for our railway system and the completion of its branch lines, they would complete the work which private concerns have not be able to do. Such is the duty of the Government, and, if ever there is a thing which would justify the Government for its nationization of the railways, in the eyes of those who were the most strongly opposed to this system, it would be the completion of the railway system and the provision of these newly settled districts, or even the older ones with the railway communications that they require. So far, the railway companies have been interested only in linking the large centres, those from which they could expect immediate benefit, but the Government, now that they own the greater part of our Canadian railways, have for duty to complete the work which has been left unfinished by private concerns, and help towards the settlement of this district, this beautiful district of Labelle, for example, by building those branch lines which are necessary for their upkeep and progress. By doing this, the Government would establish remunerative systems which would help in reducing the enormous deficits which are accumulating from year to year.

I have spoken at length on this all-important question. I have deemed it my duty to rise and protest, and I have done so with great pleasure. I know that in the accomplishment of this duty I will please those whom I have the honour to represent. Should I have to remain here several days and several nights yet, to oppose this worthless, disastrous policy of a merchant marine, this useless vote for millions which are constantly accumulating and encumbering our Budget, I would do so with the greatest satisfaction, for I could then go proudly to my electors carrying my head high, and say: "I have stood up for your interests" and I am here ready at all times to stand up for the interests of the people.

Mr. TURGEON: I see the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Sir George Foster) looking at me. I am sure he thinks it strange that the persuasive appeal which he made a few moments ago to members on this side of the House, to allow the minister (Mr. Ballantyne) to report progress, after voting the amount under discussion, has had no effect. If his appeal could affect the mind and heart of one member on this side of the House, he knows it is the mind and heart of the member for Gloucester (Mr. Turgeon).

However, I deem it my duty on this occasion to express, as briefly as I possibly can, my views on the great question of the Merchant Marine of Canada, a question, the discussion of which I had left to my hon. friends from Nova Scotia and other provinces who are more competent to discuss it with the authority derived from practical experience in the pursuit of their own business. The Minister of Trade and Commerce no doubt remembers that every session during the war I rose in this House and implored him and the Government of which he is a member to begin at once the construction of merchant vessels to help the Allies in carrying not only munitions but provisions to Great Britain in her stress, when it was taking every ton that a vessel could carry to maintain the millions of soldiers who were fighting for democracy and for the salvation of Canada.

The time came when the United States felt that she had to join the Allies in the war, and she found herself pretty much in the position of Canada—without a navy able to transport the millions of soldiers which she was determined to send to help the Allies. During that period, I for one, and others on this side of the House, appealed to the Right Hon. the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and to the other members of the Government, to give help to Great Britain in the matter of transporting the American soldiers who were so badly needed to put an end to the struggle in which the Allies were engaged.

There was no attempt on the part of the Government to build a ship. I will not refer to the time of the naval debate in 1911, when we on this side of the House placed on the statutes of the country an Act for the construction of a naval service, which would have been so useful during the war, and so remunerative to Canada after the war, because we would have had those vessels ready for the transportation of our commerce from this time forward. But my hon. friends on the other side remained silent at that time and did nothing at all. The press of the country could never persuade any member of the Government to undertake the construction of a vessel, either for the navy or the merchant marine. At last in 1917, when my hon. friend the Minister of Trade and Commerce came into the Government, he announced to this House that he had a naval programme ready to submit to us. War was still going on. I remember, when speaking on the Budget, that I congratulated him upon the project he had enunciated. But he had remained silent for three years, and they were only commencing to construct the navy at that time. But still, as I thought, it was time then to begin. But war ceased almost as soon as the Government commenced the construction of marine vessels. We asked them to halt, because we knew that Great Britain had all those vessels which she had used for the transportation of munitions and soldiers, not only from Canada but from the United States, and there were more ships on the ocean than could possibly be used for business. They had commenced too late, but, late as it was, they were determined to go on. There was certainly no constructive or wise policy adopted in this matter—no policy that would be carried out by any business concern in Canada, or in any place the world over. They knew that freight had risen high—twelve hundred per cent from the pre-war rate up till that time. They knew that with the cessation of the war, and the cessation of the transport of munitions and soldiers, with an immense fleet at the disposal of the countries interested, those freight rates would necessarily come down as rapidly as they had risen during the war, and that, therefore. the new vessels they were building were bound to be a loss to the country. But no appeal could be effective upon the mind of my right hon. friend and his colleagues in the Council.

When I came into this Chamber about nine o'clock this morning, the hon. gentleman from St. James (Mr. Rinfret) was addressing the House,. He stated that they had been accused by the hon. members on the other side of the House of having had an understanding that they should continue this debate during the night, and stop the vote from being effective. In contradiction of this statement, I will tell my hon. friend that I left this House last night, contrary to my habit. a few minutes before twelve, thinking that, on a private members' day, the Government had simply taken the vote merely to finish the day, and that in a few minutes my hon. colleagues would be following my example and going home. When I came here this morning and heard that statement made, I desired to register a denial of the statement that there was any such understanding. My hon. friend will give me credit for this—that had I known there was to be any such protracted sitting I would have been here all night, the same as the rest of my colleagues. When we appeal to the Government to stop the waste of money upon the building of ships which cannot be used, they tell us that they have a contract, and, having a contract, they had to carry on. I always thought, from my experience in business of the departments of government of the country for the last twenty-five years, that every contract the Government made with a firm or private individual contained a clause that the contract would be terminated on the Government giving notice within a certain time specified in the contract. No contract has ever been made by any Government of Canada without such a provision. They gave a contract to the Dominion Iron and Steel Company in Nova Scotia for 250,000 tons of plate, and, after they had received about 25 or 30 per cent, they stopped the contract and advised them they could use no more. They could have exercised the same privilege with the shipbuilders in the different shipyards of the country. But they were not always so timid when they wanted to cancel a contract or stop shipbuilding in this country. Great Britain has been building ships for a year or two in our shipyards in Canada through the Munitions Board. They had work going on all the time. They had been building ships which they thought they might need in the future. They were not so sensitive at that time about contracts. They practically told the Munitions Board to vacate the shipyards of Canada, and that they themselves would build these ships, instead of the Munitions Board which represented the Government of Great Britain. This I consider most criminal. If this had been done by the poor member from Gloucester, or Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he was at the head of the Government, and if he had said to the Government of Great Britain: "I will discontinue your work here and I will take your place," such action would have been condemned very strongly. It was certainly not only audacious, but it was against the friendly intercourse between the Government of Great Britain and one of her Dominion under the British flag. Why not allow Great Britain to go on with the project if they desired to do so? When the war was over, Great Britain having so many ships that she did not need them all, could have sold to Canada any number of vessels which we might have required for that ocean traffic. But they have built those ships now, and we are told by the Government that fifteen of them are to do in the port of Halifax a certain traffic. I do not wish to mingle the question of railroads with this question of marine to-day, as I do not intend to occupy the attention of the committee very long. I do not say that we have too many railways. I always took the ground that if our railways are not paying what they should pay to-day, and do not give the service they should give, it is not because we have too many railways, but because we do not give to the Canadian railways the traffic which is there for them, but which is diverted from Port Arthur—seventy per cent of it—every year to Buffalo and New York. And I say again in regard to the relations between the railways and the merchant marine, that all the import trade that is coming back from New York, Philadelphia and Boston comes also through those ports, and, therefore, our own marine is deprived of the ocean trade going and coming. My hon. friends on the other side have said that the Transcontinental was a useless expenditure, but I say that it was the most patriotic and beneficial expenditure in railroads that Canada ever made. I am sure that that view will be expressed by future historians, to the great shame of those who have opposed the building of this road.

I do most earnestly appeal to the Government to take this matter into further consideration and see whether they can determine upon a policy more in line with the interests of the people. Why do my hon. friends, in view of the enormous financial burdens of the country, insist upon proceeding with this ship-building programme? The minister has endeavoured to show a surplus on operating account in connection with his Government ships, but I am afraid that this does not disclose the real condition, and that next year he will come to the House with an even more unsatisfactory result. Sir, wherever the Canadian may set foot upon his native land there he finds rich natural resources. Why, then, not take such steps as are necessary to make full use of this great Transcontinental railway,—built to compete with railroads leading to the ports of New York; built to suit Canada's condition; built to carry the produce of the western farmer through Canadian ports to its destination across the sea; built to carry a tonnage which no other railroad in America could possibly handle. Sir, all these considerations were had in mind by these who projected this great system. The road is so constructed that trains of from sixty to ninety cars can be hauled with a single engine, over a road-bed as smooth as the floor of this House. Only by developing to the full by every means at our disposal the traffic handled by these lines can we hope to get rid of the deficits which the railways of Canada have experienced during the last two or three years. I am not opposed to the management of railroads by the Government. When some people in despair cry out: Give back the Government-owned railroads to their former owners, or hand them over to a private concern, I say, let us do the best we can; let us develop these roads which have been constructed to make short our great distances and to make more direct and convenient the transport of our produce from the field to the point of export.

Mr. Speaker, my right hon. friend who leads the House may question my judgment, but he will not doubt my sincerity. I appeal to him in all earnestness, not as the member for Gloucester, but as one who is trying to reflect the opinion of the people of Canada generally, to take such steps as will prevent this wasteful expenditure. Let the Government do this in their own interests, if for no other reason, because if they reconsider their action the people will say: They have taken the right course; we will support them. If we proceed as we are doing we shall only have to struggle with new deficits year after year. We have to look forward to a deficit again next year and as long as that is the case why should we not stop the construction of useless vessels? I am appealing to the Government in the exercise of their duty—their duty, not to the Opposition but to the people of Canada—to stop this expenditure, and I still trust that my right hon. friend who now leads the House will consider what I say and will consent to report progress and in the meantime to consider the matter, and when we come back again tomorrow or next week he can present a programme upon which we on this side of the House, will perhaps be responsive to his appeal.

Mr. EDWARDS: Mr. Chairman, I would be the last person in this House to doubt the sincerity of my hon. friend for whom I have now, as I always have had, a very high esteem. But after listening to his remarks in reference to the Transcontinental project, I trust he will not think I am using harsh or disrespectful language if I say I have certain doubts as to his judgment. I agree with the hon. gentleman that we have too many railroads in this country; that is a fact which has been pretty well impressed upon us from one end of Canada to the other, about which, I think, there is perhaps no real difference of opinion. But it just strikes me that it will be well if hon. gentlemen who sit on the other side of the House would look over the pages of the history, going back a few years, and measure the extent of their responsibility for the fact that Canada has too many railroads to-day. It might be well if they, in all fairness, in considering the question, should estimate what portion or parts of the Government railways of Canada are most responsible for the $70,000,000 deficit which we have to-day and, if they will seriously and honestly give consideratioon to that question they will admit the responsibility for such a huge deficit is very largely, I might say, almost entirely theirs.

But, sir, I have not risen for the purpose of discussing the railway situation, I want to say a very few words in regard to this particular matter which is covered by the vote before us. Might I be permitted to call attention, very briefly, to one or two facts: The original shipbuilding programme, of which this is a continuation and a part, was launched on April 4, 1918, at which time $20,000,000, I believe, was asked for and voted. I think I am right in saying that the shipbuilding policy was pretty generally accepted by both sides of the House at that time, and that there was no objection to voting the $20,000,000. If I am right in that statement, then those who consented to the shipbuilding policy inaugurated in 1918, who gave their consent and raised no objection to the vote must, in all fairness, assume their fair share of responsibility for the inauguration of the policy and for the voting, at least, of that $20,000,000. We proceed next to the following year. Then, I think, some $30,000,000 was asked for in May, 1919. On that occasion, I believe the hon. member for Gaspé (Mr. Lemieux), or as he was referred to the other night, seeing that he sits for the constituency of Maisonneuve also, the hon.

member for Graspy—commended the Government very strongly for its shipbuilding policy, for keeping the wheels of industry going in this country. Now that was in May, 1919, and I think I am right in stating that the distinguished member for Marquette, the leader of the progressive party, was in May, 1919, a member of the Government and therefore—

Mr. McCREA: That is perhaps the reason he left, he did not agree with them.

Mr. EDWARDS: That is perhaps so, no doubt the hon. gentleman can state the reasons why he left, but I am stating the fact; and I do not think my hon. friend will question the reasonableness of my statement, when I say that the hon. gentleman (Mr. Crerar) cannot reasonably get away from his responsibility in voting that money and in the endorsation of that policy. In regard to those hon. gentlemen sitting around him now, and who occupied seats on this side of the House at that time, and who at that time voted the same way that hon. member voted, they are in the same position, and cannot escape their full share of responsibility for the second vote of $30,000,000 and for their endorsation of the shipbuilding policy. Now, that places the responsibility for a total of $50,000,000. I come now to last session when I believe $20,000,000 was asked for and was voted, and with regard to that vote I believe that some hon. gentleman who gave their support to the shipbuilding programme when it was inaugurated in 1918 and again gave their support to that programme when the $30,000,000 was voted in 1919, did not give their support. In all fairness I want to state that fact. But the item was voted. This Parliament, rightly or wrongly, did vote $20,000,000 last year. Now let us see how much it is proposed to add to that amount. True, a vote of $8,000,000 is asked for by this item. But I ask hon. gentlemen in all fairness to consider this fact, that of the $20,000,000 that, rightly or wrongly, was voted last session, only $15,334,000 was actually expended, so that of the $8,000,000 which is asked for now, $4,664,000 is a revote of money which was voted by Parliament last year, and in reality the further money which this Parliament is asked to vote now is $3,334,000. That completes the shipbuilding programme.

Let me go back to the question of responsibility for the building of the ships. I say that there are hon. gentlemen sitting across from me who gave their support not only to the shipbuilding programme in 1918—that was unanimously approved—but who gave their support to the shipbuilding policy in 1919 and to the vote of the $30,000,000, and many of them took a less hostile attitude, at all events, last session in regard to the $20,000,000 than they are taking at the present time. I want to call attention to this further fact The $30,000,000 voed in 1919 was voted at a time when the hon. member for Marquette was a member of the Government, and when most of the hon. gentlemen sitting across the floor to my immediate right were sitting on this side of the House and giving their support to the Government, and therefore supporting that $30,000,000 vote. I claim that, whatever that vote enabled the Government to do in the way of building ships or carrying out their programme, any man in this House who voted for that $30,000,000 must share responsibility for the work that the Government did and that they were enabled to do because that money was voted. That vote of May, 1919, carried the programme through not only to the end of 1919, but to the end of the fiscal year, that is to March 31, 1920. I claim, therefore, that hon. gentlemen like my hon. friend for Marquette, who was in the House and a member of the Government when this money was voted, must share responsibility for whatever work was carried on up to the end of that fiscal year in so far as shipbuilding was concerned. There were not any new contracts let for vessels after December, 1919. Therefore, if I am wrong in backing the Government up in this programme, it appears to me that certain hon. gentlemen opposite who have expressed their opposition to this programme are just as far wrong as I was wrong. They gave their adherence to the policy of the building of ships just as much and as far as I did. And, after December, 1919, no further contracts were entered into, and the contracts entered into in December, 1919, would not have been entered into if this House had not consented to the vote of $30,000,000, to which vote hon. gentlemen opposite gave their approval just as much as I did.

Mr. CRERAR: My understanding is that contracts were entered into as late as May, 1920.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There have been no contracts entered into since 1919.

Mr. EDWARDS: That was my understanding when I made the statement. I will concede at once that if the hon. member for Marquette or any other hon. gentleman who sat on this side of the House at that time and gave his approval to the vote of $30,000,000 can show that contracts were entered into after the expiration of that fiscal year, that is, after the 1st of April, 1920, he is absolved from all responsibility in that regard; but in so far as anything was done by this Government on their shipbuilding programme in the year 1919, it was only done, and could only be done, because this Parliament voted $30,000,000 for that purpose. In voting that $30,000,000 for that purpose we told the Government to go ahead with their shipbuilding programme and enter into contracts.

What other conclusion could you come to? No contracts were entered into after December, 1919. Therefore, if I was wrong in regard to the vote that enabled and encouraged the Government to proceed with their shipbuilding programme, some hon. gentlemen who are trying to get out from under now were just as far wrong as I was. It is all right for some of these hon. gentlemen to bring this matter up now in the way they have done, for the purpose of achieving what is patent to everybody here. Since this matter has come up, it has afforded an opportunity to some hon. gentlemen to make speeches and deliver orations, in order to try and impress their constituents with the fact that they are great for economy; that is the whole purpose. Of course, the opportunity afforded by this vote has been followed up by the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) to present, as usual, some more of his free trade fallacies, of which he has always a stock on hand. It has given him that opportunity, of which he avails himself no matter what item comes up for discussion. It has given some other hon. gentlemen the opportunity to say "Oh yes, we agreed to your shipbuilding programme in 1918, but the war was on then, and we did so as a war measure." Mr. Chairman, I will freely accept that as a reason from an hon. member like my hon. friend from Gloucester (Mr. Turgeon), but should I accept it as a reason from the hon. member from Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), for instance? I cannot accept such a reason from any hon. member who assumed the attitude which that hon. member did at a time when our soldiers were asking for reinforcements. He did what he could to prevent them from getting there. That hon. gentleman had a use for his ships at that time, and it was not in the interests of the Allies, but to take men away out to sea so that they could not report for service. So, when my hon. friend states as a reason why he supported the policy of 1918 that it was a war measure, I say that he has got to bring up another story to convince me. I do not think the hon. gentleman's record is such as to substantiate any such assertion on his part. Now, the House sat all night debating this question, and I think we may look at it for a moment.

Mr. CAMPBELL: Are you in a position to say whether any of those contracts for ships could have been cancelled?

Mr. EDWARDS: Most frankly, I am not in a position to say; the Minister of Marine must answer that question.

Mr. CAMPBELL: Certain railway contracts have been cancelled, and I do not see any reason why the same procedure could not have been taken in regard to the ships.

Mr. EDWARDS: I am not in a position to give my hon. friend an answer. Speaking from my own personal knowledge, I know that in the city of Kingston, where there is a small shipbuilding plant, the Collingwood Company, there was an anxious request the winter before last for a contract for a new vessel. I know also that in December, 1919, out in Vancouver they pleaded with the Government very strenuously for one or two orders to relieve the unemployment situation, because the soldiers were coming back in great numbers and there was considerable unrest. Unemployment was staring the people in the face in various parts of the country, and something had to be done. To what extent the Government was influenced, in giving orders for ships, by conditions that then arose and the urgent appeals that were made, I can frankly say I am not in a position to state. But so far as I am concerned, I am willing to take my share of responsibility for voting this additional $3,300,000, which is really all that we are asked to vote, to complete a shipbuilding programme which was in the first place unanimously agreed to. The first vote of $20,000,000 passed without objection; the second vote of $30,000,000 passed, if not without objection, at least with compliments from certain prominent gentlemen opposite; and as regards this final amount, I for one am willing to assume my share of responsibility. What does it amount to after all?

Mr. CAMPBELL: Is there any more reason why this programme should be completed than there is why other programmes in regard to other national projects should be carried out?

Mr. EDWARDS: Yes, I think there is. I do not blame my hon. friend for keeping constantly in mind the building of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Mr. CAMPBELL: I did not mention it.

Mr. EDWARDS: Well, I do not profess to be a mind reader, but I will bet a horse to a hen that I am not very far wrong. If I represented the constituency represented by my hon. friend, I think that probably I should have done what he did the other day. I would have made a speech in the House which I could send to my constituents to show them that I was putting up a vigorous fight on their behalf for the building of this railway. Now, that is playing the game, and I have no objection at all to that course. But I do think, without going into the details, that some reasons might be advanced for carrying out contracts entered into in the shipping programme of the Government, while reasons equally cogent could be given for not completing the Hudson Bay Railway at this juncture. I may say, however, speaking for myself, I hope the day is not very far distant when the line in which my hon. friend is deeply interested will be completed. I sincerely hope that.

Mr. CAMPBELL: But you will not vote for it.

Mr. EDWARDS: Not this year; if it comes up this year I will not vote for it.

Mr. CAMPBELL: And I will not vote for this item this year.

Mr. EDWARDS: I do not think you will, and that brings me exactly to the point I was coming to. My hon. friend will give reasons, as others did last night and yesterday afternoon, why he will not support this proposal. That is within the rights of hon. members. But having done that, what is the use of taking up further time? The Government must assume responsibility for this vote, and eventually we will put it through. The hon. gentleman opposite, having placed their views before the country and stated their opposition to this vote, having maintained that opposition throughout the whole night, must be satisfied that the country will be fully aware of their attitude towards this subject. That being the case, what is the sense of spending further time discussing the question? If there are any hon. gentlemen opposite who have not put themselves on record as being opposed to it, for Heaven's sake let them get up and express themselves. But having done that, what more is there for them to do? For my part, I am prepared, for reasons I have given, to support the Government in this matter; and hon. gentlemen opposite are equally prepared, for reasons they have advanced —I will not enter on the question of their sincerity—to vote against the item. Very well, having put themselves on record, they should see the futlity of further opposition. That is all I desire to say now. I do object to certain hon. gentlemen trying to lay the blame, if blame there is, on the Government for its shipbuilding policy that received their support in its initial stages, when they voted the great bulk of the money that has so far been expended on this programme.

Mr. PEDLOW: The members of this House generally, and more particularly the members of the Opposition, are extremely grateful to my hon. friend (Mr. Edwards) for having accorded them the privilege of expressing their views on this subject. I trust, however, he will be good enough to concede that the members of all sections of the Opposition are aware of this privilege, and are prepared to exercise their rights on this question. The fact that they have stood here in the front line trenches, many of them all night, in defence of their views on the policy of the Government, shows that they not only know their privileges, but are ready to assert them. The member for Frontenac has taken to task very seriously the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), who precipitated this discussion. He has referred to the war record of that hon. member, and while I cannot see that that has anything whatever to do with the discussion now in progress, I think that the war record of the member for Lunenburg will compare favourably indeed with that of the hon. gentleman.

Mr. McCREA: A good deal better.

Mr. PEDLOW: My hon. friend has said that the Opposition did not object to this vote last year. If the hon. member will read "Hansard" covering the Estimates when that vote was under consideration last year, he will find that many of the members, including the member for Lunenburg, raised strenuous objection to that vote.

Mr. EDWARDS: I would remind my hon. friend that I did not say anything of the kind.

Mr. PEDLOW: If I have not understood the hon. member for Frontenac, I am sorry; but I am still of the opinion that that was the impression left on the House. We are not here to-day to wave the flag. I think that the members on this side of the House can claim equal honour with the members on the Government side in regard to war work and war activities, and there is no need for any references of that kind. That sort of thing is ancient history, and has nothing to do with the subject we are dealing with to-day.

Some hon. members on this side of the House did in 1918, 1919, and even in 1920, support this shipbuilding proposition; but it is quite evident that they have a seen the error of their way in that regard, in which respect they differ from the members on the Government side of the House.

The hon. member for Frontenac (Mr. Edwards) claims that in view of the fact that this project was favoured at one time, and in spite of the admitted fact that it is a losing game, we should continue spending $192 per ton in building ships that are worth only $35 to $42 per ton to-day. Is that good business? I ask you Mr. Chairman, I ask the Minister of Railways whether this is good business, and I would like the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to get up and say now, if he will, that it is good business. It is suggested that as the Government have entered into the contract, it is sacred matter; but it is a well known fact that contracts which were entered into during the war by the Government, by manufacturers, by importers, and by business men the world over, are not now regarded in that sacred light. In many cases those contracts were cancelled, and a readjustment was made on a fair basis. I know of many instances in which manufacturers and importers were allowed that privilege and where an adjustment was made satisfactory to both parties to the transaction. The Government, during the period that has ensued since the Armistice was signed, have exercised that right, and have cancelled munition contracts, adjusting the matter satisfactorily with the parties concerned. Why not exercise the same right in regard to building vessels that are not needed, vessels that would simply lie idle alongside the 16 other vessels that are now lying idle in the harbour of Halifax? The Government have exercised their right to cancel war contracts for textile materials, and I know that in these instances they have paid bonuses amounting to three-quarters of a million dollars, for the cancellation of those contracts. I think it was good business on the part of the Government to make an adjustment of that kind.

I was delighted to see the Minister of Trade and Commerce come in so bright and fresh this morning after his night's rest when others had been labouring all night and had, as he says, produced nothing. He immediately took hold of the situation and suggested that we pass the item without further discussion. It was quite evident to him that the Committee had reached a stage where it was impossible to make progress without the application of the rules of the House. He could gather from the temper of the Opposition and from the tenor of their remarks that we were determined that this item, $8,330,000, shall not pass unless the Government take the only course open to them and apply the closure. I am very much of the same opinion as the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) in regard to that matter. I detest the word "closure," but as he points out it is a method that has been adopted by all the governments of the civilized world. If it is clear—and I am sure it must be clear to the Government—that this Opposition is determined that this item shall not pass unless we are forced to pass it by the only means in the hands of the Government, they should in all reason and in all decency listen to the appeal made by the hon. member for St. James (Mr. Rinfret) and repeated by the hon. member for Frontenac (Mr. Edwards), the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark), the hon. member for Gloucester (Mr. Turgeon), the hon. member for Sherbrooke (Mr. McCrea), and others. This item is only one installment of the amount required by the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

I have been figuring while this discussion has been going on, that there is a balance of 114,470 tonnage still to be constructed, and at $192 per ton this will cost the sum of $22,978,240. If this item of $8,000,000 is passed for the purpose of doing this work, it is only an instalment on the amount required to complete the work—about one-third of the amount actually needed. So that we are committing ourselves to a proposition that is really like a will-o-the-wisp. We are getting nowhere. It would have been better if the Minister of Marine had exercised the privilege granted in all contracts entered into during the war, and have cancelled the contracts for the ships, the construction of which had not been commenced. That would have been the sensible course. The attitude of the minister is worse than nonsense. It is unbusiness-like to go on spending $192 for $35 worth of service. The hon. member for Sherbrooke says it is worse than nonsense—it is foolishness. I go further and say it is worse than lunacy. No sane business man would adopt such a course in his own affairs. The Government can only force this item through by closure, and I would ask them to consider the possibility, the advisability and the desirability of cancelling the contracts, in order to see if a reasonable adjustment cannot be made with the firms who have these contracts in hand. Comparing the result of the railway operations in the past year, with the operations of the Government Merchant Marine, it seems to me that the Minister of Railways and Canals and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries have been running a race with each other to see which would pile up the biggest deficit. The Minister of Railways presents the result of the operation of the railways during the past year and shows a deficit of some $70,000,000, and he says "There it is, boys, go to it; what will you do with it?" The Minister of Marine and Fisheries does not come up quite to that point, but, according to the estimate made by a man experienced in shipping, the hon. member for Lunenburg, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries piles up a loss on the year's operation of not less than $59,000,000. That statement has been made on the floor of the House and I have not heard it successfully contradicted. The figures submitted by the hon. member for Lunenburg are very convincing, and no one could seriously dispute them. The Minister of Trade and Commerce made the assertion, or possibly the guess, that no new idea had been advanced during the whole night's discussion and nothing had been achieved, and intimated that the Opposition were simply marking time. As a member of the Opposition, I am willing to continue marking time until we obtain satisfactory information from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and we have been asking for information all night. There is one item here which I think cannot be explained by the Minister of Finance. I refer to the discrepancy $148,175.86—I am now quoting the figures from the minister's own statement, page 1334 of Unrevised "Hansard." I find under operating account, 1920, an item deducted for depreciation of $667,665.46. In a subsequent statement also presented to the House by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries I find an item for depreciation the total of which is given $815,842.32. That is an item transferred in the balance sheet by the minister submitting the annual net result for the year. That shows a discrepancy of $148,175.86, between the two different accounts. We should have an explanation of this discrepancy. It is a large amount to the ordinary citizen, but may seem only trifling here. I think it is large enough to warrant the Opposition in holding up the item until we receive a satisfactory explanation of it. We have been asking all night about the earnings of the different ships, and we have been told by the hon. member for Lunenburg that a great many of these vessels have been parading up and down the coast of North America with mud ballast. It would have been better if these vessels had been left in Halifax harbour or some other harbour. We were told that these were built for the purpose of assisting the export trade of Canada, but these vessels have been engaged in coast trade in the Mediterranean sea, taking cargoes from one point in the Mediterranean to some point in Europe. In view of the fact that the Government have to go out to all ports of the world to look for trade to keep these vessels going, it seems to me it is not reasonable that they should continue building vessels presumably to help the trade of Canada, and send them out to foreign ports to be used in this way. All this is being accomplished at the expense of the taxpayers of this country. The Minister of Railways some time ago volunteered the information, when asked the question, that one of these vessels was being used in the trade between Canada and South Africa, he was asked what class of merchandise was brought by that vessel from South Africa to Canada, and he was entirely ignorant as to the commodity handled by vessels on that route. We would like to know what proportion of the $8,000,000 is going to be used in overhauling the vessels laid up in Halifax harbour. I understand that most of these vessels have not been in use for more than two years. It is preposterous that a vessel from which the first coat of paint is hardly worn should have to be laid up for repairs.

I have urged the reasonableness of my request that these contracts be cancelled. The Government saw fit to cancel various contracts for munitions, textiles, and steel plates; the railway companies, I understand, have cancelled large contracts let during the war and the period of reconstruction. The Government having exercised its right to cancel many other contracts since the termination of the war, I appeal to them to consider seriously the advisability of cancelling the contracts for the remainder of the ships under construction, and thus save an enormous amount to the taxpayers of Canada. I wish to voice my opposition to the continuance of these contracts. These contracts are being carried on without any probability of effecting good objects so far as the public are concerned. A few individual contractors and labourers might be benefited by their continuance, but the people generally would be penalized. It would be in the interests of the country in the long run if some compromise between the contractors and the Government was arrived at with a view to the cancellation of these contracts. Possibly the vessels actually under construction might be completed and disposed of, but we should be recreant in our duty if we permitted the Government, without protesting on our part, their right to go ahead with the building of vessels for use in Canadian trade. I have much pleasure in associating my protest with that of other hon. members on this side—and I am glad that all hon. members sitting on this side of the House, including those to my extreme left, are included in this opposition. The Government may rest assured that this vote will not be carried without the adoption of the strongest measures that it is in their power to employ.

Mr. ROCH LANCTOT (Laprairie and Napierville). (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I think the Minister of Marine will not complain that I am making any obstruction regarding this amount of eight millions, as this is the first time that I rise to discuss this mercantile marine scheme launched by the Government some three years ago. I want to know why we should persist in this insane policy, why we should spend more and more millions when past experience proves that all this Government's undertakings have caused some awful losses to the people of this country? I agree with you, Mr. Chairman, that we have to deal with a most unlucky Government. They have taken over most of the railways in this country and thus bringing about heavy deficits. They have undertaken shipbuilding, then the cost of construction fell about 80 per 100 and the Government is still paying the same price, that is $192 a ton, though the price should not be more than $40 or $45. I want to know why the minister did give such long term contracts when he could have followed the exemple of other countries and cancelled those contracts whenever there occurred a change in prices, or else, grant contracts from year to year, so as not to pay in 1920 and 1921 prices which are three times what they were when the contracts were given.

Now, we are charged with having countenanced this mercantile marine policy. So far as I am concerned, Mr. Chairman, I may say that I never did countenance any undertaking of this Government. If some of my hon. friends from this side of the House saw fit to aid the Minister of Marine in this shipbuilding policy, that is their business and I have nothing to do with it. However, I was of opinion at that time that they were mistaken in helping out this Government and you will admit with me, Mr. Chairman, that I never supported the Government in anything they did since 1914 and, particularly since 1917 till this day, and that I do not propose to do so in future.

This shipbuilding policy, if I understand what has been said in this House within the last few days and especially by the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), will probably cost the country as much as our national railways. Not only will the Government pay the construction of these ships four times what it is worth, but they will also be called upon to pay a handsome amount to the Dominion Steel people for their cancelled contract. Is it not a fact, Mr. Chairman, that in the United States such cases had been provided for and that the Government had a right to cancel a contract at any time? But, in this country, our Government, always generous towards the big corporations, and loath to displease them, have put no such clause in our contracts and we are now at the mercy of the Dominion Steel, who, after the elections or even before, will send an account which Jean Baptiste will have to settle. I wonder if we merchants, we farmers, could not strike such bargains as those made by the Minister of Marine? I wonder if a Western farmer could have, three years ago, sold his wheat for three years to come at $3 a bushel, and kept up this price for three years?

I also wonder if I could have sold my hay, three years ago, for $30 a ton and insist on this price being paid for three years to come? Under such conditions I do not think that any serious-minded man would want to do business with me or with the Western farmer, but our Government, though posing as a serious Government, make contracts with shipbuilders for two or three years, always at the same price and even when those prices fall to $40 or $45 they must still pay $192.

I often hear the railway question discussed in this House. True it constitutes a white elephant on the hands of our people, but I am always surprised to hear the hon. members on the Government side. They look as if they wanted the people to believe that the Liberal party is responsible for this state of affairs. If I remember correctly, the Conservatives are in power since 1911, and before 1911 the Government of the day had given the Canadian Northern 35 millions to build their road from Prince Arthur to Montreal, but this building was not carried through till after the hon. gentlemen opposite came into power. Thus, they had a perfect right, once the elections were over, to stop this undertaking and take over the road from Mackenzie & Mann as they have done some years latter, but too late. If they had been business men they should have dispossessed Mackenzie & Mann after the 1911 elections, they should have taken over all the western branch lines so as to provide feeders for the National Transcontinental.

Moreover they had completed the Transcontinental as projected under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and as stipulated under the contract with the Grand Trunk, we would have had the finest railway of the country and we would now have had two transcontinentals to maintain instead of three. The Government now say that they made no greater mistake than we have. They carried on the construction of the Canadian Northern railway as far as Vancouver on the Pacific coast, after the year 1911. Why? To help the McBride policy which had it been allowed to prevail would have dragged the province of British Columbia into bankruptcy. I ask you, is it their work or ours? I say it is the doings of this Government, since 1911. I have a certain knowledge of this railway policy. It is always the same thing. Mackenzie and Mann having obtained, in 1911, $35,000,000 from the Liberal government, must have contributed to the Conservative party's funds, three or four million dollars to carry the elections of 1911. They now put the plea that we did not protest against the merchant marine. Did the Conservatives protest, in 1911, against the grant of $35,000,000 to Mackenzie and Mann? They did not cast their vote against this railway policy because they had the certainty of getting a good share of those $35,000,000 in order to defeat Laurier. "Anything to beat Laurier." Let them not throw the stone, because they are the most open to criticism.

This disastrous policy must change. On this subject I wish to remark that I entirely approve of the principle adopted by my hon. friends of the Agrarian party, that each side will have to look to the re-election of its own candidates. Mr. Chairman, if to-day we have to put up with such enormous debts, the fault can be found in our election, it is due to election organization, to the buying up wholesale of newspapers to favour a party's politics, because for these things money is needed and who are those who put it up. They are the magnates, the railway companies, the banks and the large manufacturers. Have you any doubt that these gentlemen in return expect to retrieve their losses, as the saying goes? This is what ruins a country. We should act with Parliament as is done with a municipal council of a parish when it makes a mistake with regard to public works within its limits. Those interested would not allow the cost of such work to be 400 per cent higher than if it was done by a contractor at the cost price of the market. If however such a thing should happen, and if a council paid exorbitant prices, those interested could have recourse to a court of justice and would certainly be upheld in their contentions, for the municipal councils can be called upon to give an account of their act before the courts and be convicted as the case may be; but this House is the highest court of justice in this country, there is no higher tribunal and that allows it to adopt the most senseless and the most expensive enterprises which the people have to pay.

When one speaks in this House, no matter on what subject, it always ends on war topics. My hon. friend from Frontenac cannot to-day say one word on the merchant marine without bringing in the war, without mentioning what such and such a member has done and what he has not done. Well, Mr. Chairman, for my part, I have done what I should have done, and I fear no reproach, but I would like to see things cease and that the House betakes itself to business. Mr. Chairman, you have often heard that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Transcontinental as it is called, was to cost but $13,000,000, and often have I noticed when these figures of $13,000,000 were mentioned, they were greeted with prolonged applause on the Government side. The right hon. member from King's (Sir Robert Borden) has many times mentioned to us those figures, $13,000,000 to construct 1,800 miles of railway! I never took it for granted that the ex-Prime Minister was serious when he used to throw this bomb of $13,000,000 for an 1,800 mile railway. I never paid much attention to it and I also noticed, up to now, my hon. friends on this side of the House never passed any remarks about it. I think the proper time has come for me to take up this assertion. If I am not mistaken, the Laurier government who conceived this transcontinental project, declared that the railway after completion, would be handed over to the Grand Trunk who would undertake the operation of it for seven years without paying any interest to the Government which would mean to the country an expenditure of $15,000,000 of unpaid interest. At the expiration of the seven years, the Government was to rent the railway to the Grand Trunk for forty-nine years, the latter paying an annual interest of three per cent on the total cost of the road. That is what I understood. If the ex-Premier wishes to visit my county and there declare before my constituents that the transcontinental built by Sir Wilfrid Laurier was to only cost $13,000,000, I am certain that my electors would not take him seriously. It is simply a political bluff. I consider myself a practical man, I know the value of a dollar, I have laboured and handled the plough, I am not always an easy mark for the politician's bluff. I would like to see a change in this state of things; that business be taken up seriously in this House. Is it possible for a Government like the present one to administer railways and a merchant marine? Mr. Chairman, I say it is not, because I know but too well the members of the Government. No returns can be expected from what they do. First, I give them no credit for ability unless it is that of furthering their aims through politics. These gentlemen are directors or are shareholders in large companies and they have more at heart the companies' interests than those of the public. So far I have not seen this Government do anything for the welfare of the country. What is however, evident to me, is that they have not followed our example, for the Liberal party after having held power for fifteen years, had to retire as poor as it was in 1896; in contrast to the Liberal party, which was always opposed to the nationalization of public utilities, the present Government thus reasoned: we shall take possession of the whole public service; not only shall we have control of the civil employees, but we shall have all the employees of the state-owned railways and of our merchant marine. In this way we shall control the country, cost what it may, we shall succeed nevertheless. I foresee that it will place a great number of electors at their beckoning, but on the other hand, I believe, that the latter will not all vote for them and besides there is the people who pay for these ruinous enterprises, who have an inkling of what transpires behind the curtains and who will dismiss them at the next general elections. I do not wish to ramble away from the question. Why this great hurry to vote $8,000,000 for the merchant marine? We cannot afford it this year; then why not place that amount on next year's estimates? The hon. member for Nelson (Mr. Campbell) complained only yesterday of the Hudson Bay Railway for which $21,000,000 have been spent. I believe it is more important to complete that railway, the cost of which has been more than reimbursed by the sale of lands which skirt this road, than to continue the building of ships when we have not sufficient freight for the ships we already own, not mentioning the enormous deficit we are accumulating. If it is wise, in order to economise, to delay the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway for one, two or three years, how much wiser would it not be for the Minister of Marine to postpone his own project to next year or later if need be. He would simply have to complete the ships already in building, not to start any others and leave things as they are. For as the hon. member for Sherbrooke (Mr. McCrea) remarked the ocean freight rates will fall in the proportion of 90 per cent. I have some experience of what took place before the war. I was an exporter of hay to Europe and pre-war times we could export hay through the port of Montreal to Liverpool from the opening of navigation up to July at a price of 12 shillings and at times for 15 to 17½ shillings to Glasgow. You are well aware that for the last few years we could not export a ton of hay to England for less than $20 and $30 a ton.

Now, if the Minister of Marine has been somewhat encouraged by the fact that the number of ships built in 1919, were remunerative, he cannot pin his faith to the belief that the rates will be maintained at those high levels, because all the countries of the world have now larger merchant fleets than previous to the war and taking into consideration that the European countries are ruined, and buy very little, there exists very little water transportation. He stated last year that he could have sold his ships at a profit. I am afraid that he has lost the occasion of reimbursing the people of this country, the money invested in that enterprise. Still, it was the advice that was given to him by many members of this side of the House, people of great experience, such as my hon. friend of Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair) and Lunenburg (Mr. Duff), who knew better than the Minister of Marine and better than myself what ought to be done and the things that relate to the merchant marine. It is not perhaps too late: it is still better, when the market conditions are unsteady to sell at once and not to put off. When a man has netted 75 or 80 per cent, he sleeps in peace, whereas when he keeps his stock, he gets sick. I am surprised that the hon. minister is not ill on account of the appalling cost of his merchant marine. As a matter of fact, it is not he who pays, but the country, and so he may sleep quietly. Many hon. members on this side of the House know more about that matter than myself, and I trust they will continue the discussion, but I may refer to it again this afternoon should it be necessary.

Mr. POWER: In reading over the Hansard of March 29, 1921, page 1329, I find there the most interesting statement of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

> When we are in Committee of Supply I will, to the very best of my ability, and with the greatest pleasure, give the fullest information to hon. members regarding the operations of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

Taking the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to be a man of his word I should like to ask him a number of questions. I am sorry he is not in the House, but if the hon. gentleman who is now leading the House can tell me whether he will be in a position to answer them, I will put them to him. Will the hon. gentleman who leads the House tell me whether he is in a position to answer?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I am afraid I am not a mind reader. I have not heard what the hon. member wishes to be answered.

[Mr. Roch Lanctot.]

Mr. POWER: On page 1331 of unrevised Hansard, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries gives a list of the vessels which compose the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and which when built will complete the programme of the Government. I am glad to see the excellent deputy minister of Marine and Fisheries enter the House. I assure him that it is with great pleasure that a large number of the members of this House and the people generally heard that he had returned to the department which he had graced with his presence for a long time. We, and I imagine the business people of this country, are somewhat at a loss to know how the Department of Marine and Fisheries could be carried on in his absence. With the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) we all agree that he has had large experience in matters connected with the department.

I am glad to see the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Ballantyne) also in his seat again. I was just pointing out that in his statement it is set forth that 114,470 tons have yet to be completed. At $190 per ton this would amount to twenty odd million dollars. We are now being called upon to vote $8,000,000. Would the minister be kind enough to tell me whether this is the only instalment, or whether we may expect to vote other items later?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am sorry that the hon. member for Quebec South was not present last evening as he would have heard this question answered. But I have no objection to answering it again. The vote we are asking for now, $4,000,000, is a re-vote for last year, and is to complete the Government's shipbuilding programme. All the ships are so far advanced that by the end of the month of June, and not later than the month of July, all the ships will be finished. Possibly, it may be some little time before I have the honour to ask hon. members to vote money again, but you never can tell.

Mr. POWER: Really then, we have only $3,000,000 of a new vote.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. POWER: Over how many ships is this $3,000,000 to be spread?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Sixteen.

Mr. POWER: Would the hon. minister be kind enough to give me the names of the ships? I hope they will be christened with proper names. If as my hon. friend the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) has pointed out, the Government are entering into the spirit trade, I hope the ships will be properly named. I would suggest to the minister that he enter into a conference with his friends from Ontario, who are disturbing the electorate of Ontario with the presence of "Pussyfoot" Johnson and others, to have proper names attached to those ships, so that this country and other countries will know the kind of business that this Government has entered upon. I would like to know the names of those ships and the places where they are being built. It is important to know that. It has already been pointed out that when large public undertakings are being carried on in any constituency, it is extremely difficult for a member to ask for a public accounting. Such being the case, it would be well to know in what constituencies these ships are being constructed. I imagine that one is being constructed in a constituency close to my own, but I am prepared to oppose the vote in spite of that.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We have not got one called the "Canadian Power," but if I had thought of it sooner, there would have been.

Mr. POWER: It would be a mighty good ship.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The steamers are the Traveller, the Cruiser, the Constructor, the Reefer, the Thresher, the Pathfinder, the Leader, the Logger, the Skirmisher, the Coaster, the Challenger, the Harvester, and the Transporter. The Traveller is being built at the Harbour Marine Works, Victoria, and the Cruiser and Constructor at Halifax. On the Cruiser and the Constructor a little over a million dollars each has been spent, and on the Traveller about a million and a half.

Mr. POWER: How much more remains to be spent on the Traveller?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know.

Mr. POWER: Surely you are in a position to tell us what you expect to pay for these boats.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The contract price on the Traveller was $1,673,000. We expect to have the Cruiser and the Constructor finished in July.

Mr. POWER: It might not interest members of this House, but it would interest business men engaged in shipping to know how the Government's programme is being carried out. It would be well for us to take our loss generally on the whole marine and let it sell for what it can. If we stopped building now, what would be our loss approximately, as compared with the loss we should sustain if we completed the boats and sold them below cost? I do not ask these questions in order to annoy the minister; nothing is further from my thoughts. How much more remains to be expended?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We will find out and let you know during the next hour.

Mr. POWER: What about the next boat?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If you want full information regarding the minor details of every boat I shall have to send to the office and get it. You want to know exactly how far advanced these boats are, how many more plates are to go on, what decks, and everything like that?

Mr. POWER: It might be interesting.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: And all about the piping, and so forth. We will try to get it for you.

Mr. POWER: And particularly the amount which is still to be expended on each. The minister can give that now.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not got it.

Mr. POWER: Give me the contract price for each ship, and approximately how much has been expended on each.

Mr. BALLANTYE: I cannot tell you that, but I will get all the information I can, down to the smallest screw, if you will give me time.

Mr. POWER: I am only too glad to give you time. The members on this side want complete information in order to form a reasonable judgment on the whole question. I am sure that if we had full information some of us who are prejudiced against the scheme might become staunch supporters of it. I at present have a prejudice against the minister's policy but if I got all the information I require that prejudice might be removed. I do not believe in government control of ships or railways, or, for that matter, of anything else—not that I have no confidence in hon. gentlemen opposite, but I have no confidence in the operation of public utilities and even if we were sitting opposite I should hold the same view. I do not know that the minister attaches very much value to the conversion of a new recruit, but if he does I would be only too glad to be converted to his view, and cal.

his attention to the old saying of the joy in Heaven over the conversion of one sinner. It is Heaven to be in the minister's place just at the present moment, but there might be joy in that portion of the Chamber if he could obtain one or more converts. I would like to ask the minister whether he has taken seriously into consideration the suggestion which was made in the House by the Minister of Railways last week, that we should take these boats and place them on the inland coasting trade and use them for carrying coal from the Sydneys to Montreal. Have representations been made to him with respect to this, and by whom?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not only have representations been made, but the company have decided to put those vessels on the coal trade. A large number of them are in Halifax just now, having a certain amount of overhaul, and then they are going to be put on the route.

Mr. POWER: Is that what the sixteen vessels are doing?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The number has varied. I would not want to make a guess, but I will wire and find out.

Mr. POWER: How many boats does the minister intend to place on the route?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is not arranged by the minister: it is done by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

Mr. POWER: How does the minister know there was such an intention?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Because I was told so by the management.

Mr. POWER: Is the minister given all the information?

Hon. Mr. BALLANTYNE: Oh, certainly.

Mr. POWER: Has he anything to do with influencing the decision?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not at all.

Mr. POWER: Is the management convinced this will be a paying route?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know what the management's views are.

Mr. POWER: If not, why does he think the management is going to run the boats from Halifax?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is the arrangement we have with them.

Mr. POWER: That is the arrangement the minister has with the management?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is very old news to my hon. friend, that the management of the merchant marine is entirely free from Government interference, and that Mr. Hanna, and his experienced steamship men, manage the boats and put them on whatever route they see fit.

Mr. POWER: Is Mr. Hanna a steamship man?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Mr. Teakle, of the Allan line, is the experienced man.

Mr. POWER: And all matters of policy such as these are entirely in the hands of the Canadian Merchant Marine?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As far as the management of the ships is concerned.

Mr. POWER: Questions of policy as to where those boats are to sail would, I presume, be in the hands of this company. So that when the hon. minister takes credit for extending the trade of Canada to such and such ports, the minister was really not responsible for that?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I gave the management full credit for the great showing of the Merchant Marine as to the carrying of Canadian products and the profits. I do not take any credit.

Mr. POWER: The hon. minister is not responsible for the opening of new trade routes, in any part of the country?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. POWER: If any credit is to be given, it is to be given to the management company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. POWER: If the minister became convinced that certain sailings were not paying, that certain services—such as the service to Newfoundland for instance—were not paying, could the minister, under his arrangement with the Merchant Marine, make representations to the Merchant Marine?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Surely.

Mr. POWER: If the House becomes convinced of this, would the decision of the House have any weight with the Merchant Marine?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The decision of the majority of the House always has influence with the minister.

Mr. POWER: It always has?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. POWER: I am glad to hear that. Therefore, should it be shown that the policy of establishing a service to certain countries, at the same time subsidizing the concern to run the steamship service, were in its nature apparently an absurb policy, a bad system to be followed, could the minister, after listening to representations on the part of shipping men, such as the hon. member from Lunenburg and others, make such a representation to the Company as would induce them to change?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am quite sure that if the member for Lunenburg makes representations to my colleague the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce that he is entitled to a subsidy on his fishing smacks, it will receive careful consideration of the Government.

Mr. POWER: I do not know that he has asked for any subsidy on fishing smacks, but I think it rather unfair for the minister to say——

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I thought I heard him mention the hon. gentleman's (Mr. Duff's) name.

Mr. POWER: I said he had made certain representations that it was a bad business to subsidize boats to go to a certain country or to certain parts, and at the same time to send our own mercantile marine there, often at a loss, and I asked the minister. If he were convinced that these representations of the member for Lunenburg were just and reasonable, could he have any influence on the Merchant Marine Company and ask them to change this policy?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Again, I am sorry my hon. friend was not with us last night. The Government ships are freight ships—the hon. gentleman from Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair) describes them as tramp ships; I do not call them that. None of them are passenger ships, and, therefore, none of them are subsidized. The ships that are subsidized to Newfoundland, to the West Indies and Australia, are passenger ships subsidized by the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. SINCLAIR: It is not a reflection to call vessels "tramp ships."

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I understand that.

Mr. POWER: Is there any possibility of the minister influencing the decision of the Merchant Marine Company?

I would like the minister to lay down the principle because I wish to make some representations on behalf of my constituents. Is it worth while making representations to the minister with regard to any question of policy as effecting the Merchant Marine?

Mr. KEEFER: Is my hon. friend in favour of the Government operating these ships?

Mr. POWER: I am not.

Mr. KEEFER: If not in favour of operating them, is he in favour of having them operated by a private company?

Mr. POWER: I am in favour of getting rid of the whole thing, lock, stock and barrel.

Mr. KEEFER: Is the hon. member aware of the amount of trade from the west coast of Africa that is now coming to Canada?

Mr. POWER: No.

Mr. KEEFER: Is the hon. member aware how much trade from the coast of Africa is going to the United States?

Mr. POWER: No.

Mr. KEEFER: Would the hon. gentleman think it advisable to have a transport service between here and the west coast of Africa?

Mr. POWER: Now, I will put that question to the minister. Will he please give me an answer?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am not the Minister of Trade and Commerce;—he will be here in a few moments.

Mr. POWER: Then I give that answer to my hon. friend from Port Arthur (Mr. Keefer). Then, may I again ask for an answer to my question whether the minister can influence the management of the Merchant Marine to change or to amend its policy if the proper representations are made?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am a modest man and would not like to claim too much. If, however, my hon. friend will tell me what he wants I will try to get the influence that he thinks I ought to have.

Mr. POWER: I have recently been asked by a number of people in Quebec and Montreal to place before the minister the suggestion that he ask the Merchant Marine to arrange their services so as to facilitate the shipment of horses to the Old Country. I understand that that would be a very profitable trade, and that if we could get the boats, American horsemen would be only too glad to come to Canada and carry on their shipments from Montreal or Quebec. I have also been told that the Merchant Marine boats have been discriminating against the port of Quebec. They obtain cargoes, say, in the East Indies and carry them through to Montreal, refusing, unless the cargoes are very large, to discharge at Quebec, with the result that shipment has to be made by rail back to Quebec. This involves considerable expense and inconvenience on the part of Quebec merchants and consumers, and it would seem to be only fair that these cargoes should be discharged at Quebec. I would like the minister to take these matters into consideration. If we have him with us this afternoon I hope to read to him some letters with reference to the trade in horses with the United Kingdom.

Mr. HERMAS DESLAURIERS (Montreal, St. Mary's): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, it is much to be regretted that the Government saw fit to force the Opposition to spend so much time in trying to make them agree to what common sense should have caused them to accept from the start. The difference between the Opposition and the members of the other side of the House is now to be seen clearly, because when some members of the other side suggests some practical measure, dictated by common sense, we of this side are always anxious to accept it. For many years the Government has proven that, on account of our bad financial conditions, it is necessary to practice economy. Now it is in the name of that very economy that the Opposition feel it is their duty to oppose these extravagant Estimates. Mr. Chairman, we cannot possibly agree to the votes asked for, under the present circumstances, for many reasons. First of all, it has not yet been shown to us that the carrying of this naval policy of the hon. Minister of Marine was obligatory, necessary and beneficial. We refuse to vote such enormous sums of money when we know that they will serve to convey once more that same man Crosby from Halifax to Hudson bay where he goes with food for some Eskimos who do not exist there. We refuse to vote any amount in order to allow that man or others to carry to Chesterfield some wire with which to fence 10,000 square miles of land, so that cariboos that never pass there may breed. We refuse to vote those Estimates because we know that, on the shores of the Richelieu river the minister puts to dry many a vessel that could be used somewhere else. We then refuse these Estimates because we know that at Port Nelson a number of boats do not serve any purpose. There is amongst others a steamer called the Neophyte which is idle on the shore. There are four other barges there. There is that precious dredge which for the last fifteen days has not been used. For all those reasons, Mr. Chairman, we object to the shipping Estimates at the present time.

We know that the selection of Port Nelson as a seaport is altogether ridiculous, that the natural port of that district was Port Churchill. But the Minister of Marine saw fit to remove the natural port of the Hudson bay from Port Churchill to Port Nelson, which is at the further end of the Hudson bay and where the boats of Crosby cannot reach but at a distance of 25 miles when year after year they carry on shipments of supplies for people who do not exist. And that is the reason why they have transferred there that notorious dredge, in order that they might dig a channel through which ships could more easily reach the port when all the time it was demonstrated that the Nelson carries alluvia which destroys year after year the work accomplished during previous years.

We are asked to grant those sums of money for the building of ships. It was shown lately in this House the present boats of the Government had wandered about the seven seas in quest of cargoes. We have sufficient proof of that.

Now that the war is over and this question of patriotism seems to have been settled for the time being while exports have been reduced to normal, it is understood that we do not need more ships. Moreover, if we wish to help the expansion of shipping, we may, in imitation of the Montreal Vickers', go to work and build ships for Norway and other countries. Why build ships if we have no cargoes to carry? Such a departure might prove most dangerous to our young nation. True it is that we hold this famous title of nation, having bound ourselves to respect the conditions of the League of Nations. Now, as far as Canada is concerned, what does that League of Nations mean? The right hon. Minister of Justice (Mr. Doherty) and the former president of the Privy Council (Hon. Mr. Rowell) told us wonderful things in this connection, things of such a nature as to exalt the patriotism of a young nation to the utmost. On the other hand, their utterances in Europe were dreadful, so much so that, at a certain moment, Europe felt itself shaken and, surely, the nicident would have been most ingracious had not the former president of the Privy Council thought fit to deny his own words.

By clause 10 of the covenant of the league, we bind ourselves to carry, in war time, our human cargo overseas; and by that same clause, we also bind ourselves to carry the victuals necessary to feed about fifty nations. Surely, this famous League of Nations does not rank very high in my estimation, it rather constitutes a snare, a screen behind which Europe may pull its wires at the expense of the smaller nations.

I beg leave to quote an instance of this before I proceed further. When the last war between Russia and Poland took place, Poland and thirty-three other nations had signed the Peace Treaty according to which, in the case of war, those nations were to help Poland to have the integrity of her territory respected, and were to come to her rescue. Well what happened? Poland, in that war with Russia, was abandoned and found herself alone. The nations which had assumed the obligation to defend the integrity of her territory and to use their influence in her favour in the council of the League of Nations, did nothing of the kind. What, then, does that League of Nations amount to? It is apparently a mere means of calling the smaller nations to the rescue of the bigger. Supposing a war was declared in India, in Egypt or elsewhere and we had a navy which was available, our ships would be at the disposal of those nations which had signed the Peace Treaty.

I shall oppose, with all my might, the votes intended to develop the naval scheme of the hon. minister, because a scandalous misuse was made of our ships in the past. No later than three years ago, when the people of this country were put on short allowance in the restaurants and in the hotels, the Government's ships were carrying bacon over to the Esquimaux, who eat nothing but raw meat, and that merchandise, which would have been so useful to our white people, the officials at Port Nelson were obliged to deliver it to the Esquimaux, who made candles with it.

We have met with the railway disaster; we have run into a debt of $650,000,000 in connection with the Canadian Northern; we have to conclude the purchase of the Grand Trunk by which we shall incur a debt of $900,000,000. The railway deficit is a real disaster, and yet, we find, on the Government side, no less a man than the hon. member for Lambton East (Mr. Armstrong) who would like to see the present Government marine operated under similar conditions.

It is claimed in certain quarters that, at a time of enforced idleness, when so many people are out of work, it would be most important for the Government to let contracts and to operate and develop the marine. I think that reason is groundless. When the last Norwegian ship was launched at Montreal a statement was made during the banquet which followed, to the effect that it was the intention to close the Vickers shipyards within a month or more from that date. I have said, just a few days ago, that we had, in this country, an industrial policy which was surely not unfamiliar to the Government, and that this policy was no more nor less than a policy of protection beyond measure. It is desired that the question of salaries should be settled, and there you have the reason why the president of the company stated at that banquet, that work would cease at the Vickers' shipyards, at Montreal, although there was no lack of contracts.

We also oppose the present votes for economy's sake, because the burden of taxes on the ratepayers' shoulders is already heavy enough. Our marine is bringing us a deficit, our railways have brought us one likewise. It is probable that the Budget will reveal still higher taxes. I find it altogether unreasonable to favour a programme which in the past has brought about deficits and which, on account of its present uselessness, will entail deficits still larger. With a debt of over two billions, we can say that the Government cannot afford to spend such sums for an undertaking which at best can only be a matter of chance.

I heard a short time ago, "The two parties cannot throw stones at each other in the matter of the national railways; the Liberal party have a great share of responsibility, and so have the Government party." There is, however, a slight difference to be considered. Under the Laurier regime it could be allowable for a government to spend something to foster the progress of the country; but at a time when Canada's debt reaches two billions, I think the blame we can level against the present Government is much more serious. We are often told that the resources of the country must be developed. True, if you have the wherewithal to do so. Our credit is wretched; we have a formidable debt which demands at all cost the strictest economy, and our resources are but hypothetical at the present time. We cannot believe in the reason invoked by the Government that they want to give work to people in shipyards, no more than we could believe them when they talked of a programme of workmen's lodgings. They were to give employment to all the trades, they were to keep from the working class the danger of unemployment. They had an underlying design. They meant to impose such impossible conditions that no one would accept the offers, and they were refused everywhere.

I admit that under the present circumstances, we should follow the advice of the Government who urge us to practise economy; but we do not want to be the only ones to do so; they must do likewise; they must put an end to the development of its merchant marine programme; they must stop their expenditure on the Welland canal to make a seaport of Toronto; when we know that the Welland canal can only be of use to the coast trade. Under present circumstances, they ought to undertake to strike out the fifty millions intended for the Welland canal, and the hundred millions voted to continue the development of the port of Toronto which will never be anything but a port for tourists.

I therefore beseech the Government to practise that which they preach, to content themselves with the strictest economy in the matter of shipbuilding. And I hope they will recognize the good faith of the Opposition and the duty which is now imposed upon us to oppose most energetically votes for which there is certainly no excuse, and which can only result in heavier taxes being imposed upon our fellow-citizens.

Mr. GORDON: The minister has gone far afield for justification of his merchant marine policy citing legislation existing in Cromwell's time. He may be Cromwellian to that extent, but he is mistaken if he thinks the Canadian people are behind this proposition. Leading Canadian journals on both sides of politics have been quoted indicating clearly that the people generally and the business interests are altogether opposed to it, but the Minister apparently intends to carry it through with the assistance of his supporters. Let me quote from the Toronto Saturday Night, the leading financial journal in Ontario, which has supported the Government in practically all its legislation. The last issue of that journal says:

When the war was at its height and when the deadly submarine was getting in its best work, the thought was very general that it would be years before there was again sufficient shipping to meet the public demand. But see what has really happened? There are to-day tied up at the docks or swinging at anchor more idle vessels than ever before known. An authoritative statement is to the effect that there are five million dead weight tons of shipping laid up in Britain, America and Scandinavia, a total of 1,278 ships. It is not a case of there being too many vessels, provided world conditions were normal is place of being utterly demoralized as they now are. It is safe to state that there are not less than two hundred million people over in Europe who would only be too glad to see these ships now motionless sailing into their ports carrying from this continent the necessities of life. But, alas, they have nothing with which to pay, so they must go without.

Much of this idle shipping can now be purchased at far less than original cost, the owners being only too glad to get out from under. A prominent Canadian ship broker informed the writer the other day that first-class vessels could now be purchased at well under $100 per ton, whereas these same vessels cost $200 or upward per ton to construct.

This is one of the foremost journals in Ontario and has been a sympathetic supporter of the Government and particularly of the Minister, and what I have just read indicate one of the storm signals in that province.

On Thursday last, April 7, the Evening Telegram of Toronto, which has been a Government supporter ever since it was founded, opposed this scheme in a very vigorous editorial headed "Concealment Can't Help." The editorial reads:

The financial showing of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine is quite as good as was to be expected. But the Minister of Marine might well have been a little more frank with the public. The merchant fleet was started under the stress of war. The building was continued under popular demand that no Government would have dared to deny. The operation has been, so far, as can be seen, business-like and economical.

But what was to be gained by attempting to conceal the fact that a great deal of the war-time cost will have to be written off? What profiteth it the Government to give a false impression that the fleet showed a surplus when the capital charges must necessarily be taken into account? The fact still remains that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine has a deficit of $1,500,000, a statement such as any business man would give serious consideration when the actual depreciation in shipping values is increased by many millions.

Hon. Mr. Ballantyne may be playing politics, but playing politics won't pay deficits. These are serious financial times in the country's history, and nothing is to be gained by misleading statements that will have to be amended at an early date.

The hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in presenting his statement to the House gave certain figures which I will repeat briefly.

Operating Account for 1920

Gross revenues closed voyages		$10,027,442 77
Operating expenses		8,733,917 22
Operating profit closed voyages		$ 1,293,525 55
Deduct—
Depreciation	$667,665 46
Outstanding liabilities	22,000 00
Incorporation expenses	5,400 00	695,065 46
Net earnings closed voyages		598,460 09
Net earnings on voyages closed since January applicable to 1920		183,000 00
Total net earnings		$ 781,460 09

The significant point is this, the minister says:

I wish to point out that these net earnings are before providing for interest, and the above amount of net earnings, $781,460.09 is equal to 2.35 per cent interest on notes given to the Government for the full cost of the ships.

Now, the depreciation in any asset is the difference between its actual cost and its replacement value. The replacement value of ships to-day is shown by the many authorities which have been cited to the House to have been cut in two, and yet the hon. minister assumes to cut off by way of depreciation only the 5 per cent which is the annual depreciation outside of any which comes by reason of the condition of the world's markets and the absence of business for shipping. If a loss of 50 per cent had been caused to the merchant marine by tempest, or in any other way, that would be the present depreciation. Loss has been caused, not by tempest, but by reason of certain conditions existing. So that the proper course for the minister to take would have been to carry on his books the shipping at its actual cost, to write off the depreciation, and to take his loss as any business house would do. I submit that the hon. minister has confused the principles of depreciation, because 5 per cent is depreciation which continues outside of any other consideration, no matter what happens. That is the basis which is generally accepted in the matter of depreciation. But in addition to that, there is the depreciation which results from other causes, such as tempest, fire, or anything else that involves the laying up or destruction of the ships. For such depreciation the minister should have made allowance in his figures, and had he done so, as the " Telegram " points out, the loss would amount to something like $1,500,000. The minister should revise his figures in order that the exact situation may be understood, and should adopt the principle that depreciation is the difference between the actual cost and the present replacement value. That is the principle which has been adopted in all the courts. The position is more serious in view of the fact that every dollar taken from business in taxes reduces by $1 the possibilities of business expansion. If it was necessary to keep returned men employed, it would have been well for the Government to cancel its orders when it found that shipping was no longer needed, and adopt some scheme along the line of housing, or establish some fund in co-ordination with the funds of the provinces to keep the returned men engaged. By doing so, they would have kept the men busy establishing homes instead of building a vast fleet of ships which is resulting in loss day by day, and the outcome of which we are unable to ascertain.

Every village and every town is opposed to the scheme, and every paper that is printed has something to say in criticism of it. The confidence of the public is shaken, and there is a widespread feeling that the Government should immediately get rid of a scheme which is not paying and which is adding to the burden of this country day by day.

There may be, and there is, a reason why we cannot get rid of our difficulties in connection with railway construction, because railways are necessary to maintain communication between the various parts of the country. Cities, towns and villages would be cut off, and great loss would be entailed in trade and business if we did not carry on the railways even at a loss. But that is an entirely different situation from the shipping; it is entirely different from carrying on trade between negro ports in Africa and Canada, or carrying whiskey to Cuba and Jamaica, and so on, as is being done, at a loss.

I submit, therefore, that we should not pass the estimates which the minister has submitted to the House, as it is simply throwing money away on a scheme which has not been well considered, and which will entail greater loss as time goes on.

Mr. E. SAVARD (Chicoutimi-Saguenay): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I have often heard people of all conditions say that we should expect anything from the present Government, and I don't doubt but my colleagues on this side of the House have also heard the same opinion expressed; but there are limits to all things, and that is why we could not foresee that, last night, between eleven o'clock and midnight, after a day especially allotted to the private members, the Government would bring forth this item of eight millions for the consideration of the House, especially under the unfortunate circumstances known to all, circumstances which necessitated the absence of a number of members either already in Montreal or on their way there. I say that the Government must necessarily have known of those regrettable circumstances, and that it took a good deal of audacity on their part to ask the House, under such circumstances, to deal with a matter of such importance. Evidently, had we been able to foresee that the Government would bring forth this matter last night, there is no doubt, as was stated with as much sincerity as valiance by the hon. member for Dorchester (Mr. Cannon), that most of the members would have spent the night here to take part in the debate.

There is no doubt but that the Government counted upon the absence of many of us; but if they had hoped thus to pass this item without difficulty, they must have found themselves much out in their calculations. The Opposition is still hale and hearty, and ready to fight day and night, the whole week if need be, until the Government bring into operation the means at their disposal to close our mouths, and apply foreclosure.

Mr. Chairman, like all those who have spoken before me I am opposed to this Government marine policy, and I also, am decided to adopt all possible means to oppose it. The Opposition have been blamed for having passed the time, during the night, in reading paper extracts. Has not the Opposition a right to do so? Have they not the full right to do so? The duty of the Opposition here is to express the opinion of the public, the opinion of the electorate throughout the country. And what is the best way to do that? Is it not by quoting such comments as are made by the Canadian press? Although it may displease the Government, or perhaps the hon. Minister of Marine, I beg forgiveness for giving myself the pleasure of reading an extract —and especially of reading it in English— of an article published by the Citizen of Ottawa, in December, 1920. I do not know whether this article has ever been read; in any case, it may be well to read it again.

Too Many Ships.

While our Government is taking much credit to itself for its extensive and costly shipbuilding programme, which goes on apace, there is developing a world situation in tonnage which is becoming of serious import to all maritime nations. This relates to the glut of tonnage from which the European and American continent is suffering. Writing in the New York Evening Post, Mr. Allan Nevins calls attention to the fact that the United States shipping board has tied up seven steel vessels since the end of September and now announces that eight more, all large ships, have been withdrawn. A noted American authority on maritime affairs is quoted to the effect that hardly half the world's available ocean tonnage is being employed at this time and that a general fall in shipping securities in the United States and Britain marks the general situation. Companies here and abroad have resorted to special devices to keep their tonnage moving. Five lines plying from Liverpool to Oriental ports—the Cunard, Ellerman, Moss and others —have offered rebates to shippers who will promise to restrict themselves to their vessels. Steamship agents in New York and other American ports are making vigorous efforts to obtain parcel freight in default of full cargo shipments. A fortnight ago the American shipping board announced that American lines carrying freight to the four chief ports of Germany, Holland, Belgium and France, would be allowed to fix their own rates. This means a price-cutting war in competition with European lines.

The chief causes for the present situation are given as too much tonnage and a heavy decline in freight shipping. According to Lloyd's Register the world had, in June, 1914, a gross tonnage of about 45½ million tons of shipping. In June of this year it had almost 54 million tons. In addition to this there is building some seven or eight million more tons. In the United States the shipping board has attempted in vain to sell some of the 1,000 steel ships under its control to private parties, but the knowledge that the world is in for a protracted spell of sharp competition and of freight rates that spell disaster to lines lacking in efficiency and very heavy capital has proved too strong for the board to do business.

For this reason and for several others, we are strongly opposed to this naval policy, but the chief reason is that the country cannot afford this expense, as many an hon. member has repeatedly said before me, but in such a struggle as we have been going through, since last night, I think repetitions are necessary, and there cannot be too many of them.

Some time ago, I heard the hon. Minister of Railways and Canals state before this committee that for several years no railway would be built by the Government. The same thing has been said for the Public Works Department. There is a pressing need of certain works which we have asked for, for many a year, such as an extension of the wharf at Chicoutimi, for this wharf is too small, and the development of our district is consequently delayed. We are invariably told: "We cannot do anything for you, the Government has no money." It has been the same for everything we have asked. I have always received the same answer to all that I have asked for, for several years: "We have no money, and the proof is that we do not undertake any work." That is why thirty-one engineering offices have been closed in the country; the Government have closed sixteen of these offices in the Department of Public Works. We are told that the Government have decided not to undertake any public works because of the need for economy. These offices have been closed; yet, I hear that the employees have been kept on, that they have been transferred to other departments. As I have already said on many another occasion, the county of Chicoutimi is certainly a beautiful one. I believe that on the other side of the House, there is not one member who has any idea of the extent of the district of Chicoutimi-Saguenay, and even on this side of the House, I am sure that some would be surprised were I to tell them that in order to go from one end of my county to the other, one has to travel eight hundred miles. It is perhaps larger than the rest of the province of Quebec. The Dominion Government owns large properties in the lake St. John district and also in the Chicoutimi district, and all along the northern coast to Labrador. I do not think I am exaggerating when I say that the Government has built in my district, in the lake St. John district, and along the Saguenay, about sixty wharves which will certainly fall to pieces, now that the engineer's office is to be closed.

I do not know whether this engineer has left his office; at any rate, the closing of the office is a foregone conclusion; the engineer will leave Chicoutimi and come and live in Quebec; and the Government property—some sixty wharves—will continue to deteriorate. Besides, the Government has had dredges made; they spent several thousand dollars in the dredging of the Saguenay river; but there are absolutely urgent works to be attended to, for the district is going to develop at an unexpected rate within the next few years. However the Government seem to put obstacles in the way and impede progress. Why refuse in all the counties of the country the carrying out of absolutely necessary works, and spend some ten millions for an altogether useless marine? When we confer about such matters with well informed people, people of second judgment and free from political entanglement, they cannot imagine that a government should take the responsibility of so nefarious a policy: of spending ten millions for an absolutely useless marine while refusing to carry out positively urgent works in all parts of the country.

Well, as I had occasion to say yesterday, the Government under a pretense of economy, has suppressed a small grant which the Laurier government had allowed for 12 or 15 years, as soon as the Price firm ceased to carry on its industry at St. Catherine's bay. For several years Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government granted a supply of $3,500 to a very interesting population, that of the north shore. It is not a mere fishing community; they have large industries, they own fine farms, numerous, flourishing parishes. Now, under the pretence of economizing a few cents, this population is deprived of an absolutely necessary service. The Minister of Commerce gives as a reason for it that this service is a "ferry service". I had always understood that a ferry service was carried on between the two shores of a river. This subsidy granted by the right hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was to allow a boat to go from Tadoussac, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, to St. Catherine's bay, which is not on the Saguenay river but on the St. Lawrence. Therefore it seems to me that this cannot be a "ferry service". When a boat leaves Tadoussac she has to go to the St. Lawrence and come back to St. Catherine's bay. For 12 years this subsidy was granted; everybody found it absolutely necessary, and now, in order to save a few dollars a whole population of about fifteen thousand souls are deprived of all communication during the long winter months.

I say that, for all those reasons, no confidence can be placed in ministers, who thus carry on the business of the country, and I oppose the vote of eight millions which the Minister of Marine is asking for.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Before making the few remarks that I desire to address to the committee upon this subject, I would like to ask the hon. minister or the right hon. gentleman who leads the House a few questions. I would like to ask if many demands have been made by the people of Quebec, or from the district of Quebec, for contracts for ship-building?

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: I understand that quite a large number of demands came in from different parts of the province of Quebec.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Would the right hon. gentleman give the names of those who made requests from Quebec?

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: No, my hon. friend had better put that question to the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. DUFF: It seems to me that the Minister of Marine should be here when his estimates were going through.

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: The Minister of Marine has been here for the greater portion of the time.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: This is a very important question, and I am greatly surprised that my right hon. friend does not give the information, because it is to my knowledge that quite a few demands have been made by very reliable and important firms in Quebec who were recommended by the most prominent citizens in Quebec for contracts. The city of Quebec pays a large share of the taxes of this country, and the people there were entitled to their share of the patronage as much as the people of any other part of the country. That is why I would like, and why I would insist upon, a reply from the right hon. minister who leads the House, or from the Minister of Marine. I quite understand that the hon. Minister of Marine has given quite a lot of time and has been in the House most of the time since yesterday. But, on the other hand, if the Government are not in a position to answer my question, I would like to have an adjournment until the Government is prepared to give an answer.

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: My hon. friend might have taken an earlier opportunity, when the hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries was in the House, to put his question, but I will make a note of those questions and hand them to the Minister of Marine when he comes in, and my hon. friend will get an answer to his questions.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: What the right hon. gentleman who now leads the House says is quite right. But this is the first time I have had occasion to speak on the question.

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: Let my hon. friend put his question, and I will make a note of it for the Minister of Marine when he comes in.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: It is my turn to speak now, and it is my right to get an answer to my question.

Sir GEORGE FOSTER: Allez, go to it.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Mr. Chairman, I have the pleasure now of seeing the Minister of Marine and Fisheries coming to his seat, and with your kind permission, I will repeat my question. I would like to ask if it is to the knowledge of the hon. minister that some demands were made upon the Government for contracts for building ships in the city of Quebec, and in the district of Quebec.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I think the hon. member is aware that the Government when they were placing contracts placed a contract with the Davis Shipbuilding Company for two—three—ships.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: That is not exactly an answer to my question. Does the hon. minister say that a contract for two ships—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Three.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR—was placed with the Davis Shipbuilding Yards at Levis? Is it to the knowledge of the hon. the minister that quite a demand was made by Quebec firms outside the Davis firm for contracts for building ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am not aware that there is any shipbuilding yard in the city of Quebec building steel ships except the Davis firm; I know they build wooden ships at Quebec, but the Government is not building wooden ships, only steel.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Another point: Is it not to the knowledge of the hon. the minister that the Quinlan & Robinson firm of Quebec have applied several times for contracts for shipbuilding in the city of Quebec?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not that I am aware of. I can only repeat what I stated a moment ago that they are not steel shipbuilders, and we are not ordering wooden vessels.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Can the hon. minister tell me why they do not order wooden vessels?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friends opposite have found much fault with the Government during the last twenty-four hours for ordering steel vessels, and it may be that their criticism would have been still worse if we had ordered wooden ships.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Was not fault found when the contract was entered into for steel ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Oh, no; when the Government launched their shipbuilding programme it was with the consent and approval of hon. gentlemen on both sides of the House, including the hon. gentleman (Mr. Lavigueur). The demand was for steel only, not for wooden ships.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Is the hon. minister aware that for a great number of years Quebec has been a great centre of shipbuilding?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Of wooden ships, yes.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: The firm of Quinland & Robinson, of Quebec, of which mention has been made, have built some wooden ships and I understand that they have been quite satisfactory, and have carried out their contract.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not any knowledge whatever with regard to wooden ships. We did not order any, and I have no personal knowledge of wooden ships; I advised the Government not to order any, and I advised them to confine their shipbuilding programme to steel ships. I think my advice on that occasion was wise.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: I would like the hon. minister to tell us why he should be opposed to wooden ships.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I think the hon. member is aware of the fact that wooden ships are out of date in competition with steel ships, and while all other countries ordered wooden ships during the war—I am sorry my hon. friend was not here through the very pleasant evening which we spent last night when I made the statement that the United States has a million tons of wooden vessels they do not know what to do with, and England and France with Norway—large tonnage of wooden vessels which cost them $200 per ton. Luckily for Canada we have not any wooden ships.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: (Translation.) Last night a bomb exploded in the House of Commons. A credit of $8,330,000 was asked for the Merchant Marine. The House was taken by surprise. No one expected that such a demand would be made last night. The debate started vigorously. The siting lasted all night; it will last probably all day and perhaps the whole week. The members on your left, Mr. Chairman, are convinced they have an imperious duty to fulfil, and want to protect with all their might against this policy, which is condemned by the electors from one end of the country to the other.

We were given, last week, a statement on the operation of the Government railways, acknowledging a deficit of seventy million dollars, and I believe that if the auditing of the accounts of the administration of the National Railways was conscienciously and properly made, it would not be seventy millions we would have to deplore, but more likely one hundred millions and perhaps more, as stated by many newspapers, including those favourable to the Government. It is therefore found, Mr. Chairman, that the Government operation of the National Railways is disastrous, to the utmost, altogether ruinous, and calculated to bankrupt the country, unless the Government be driven from office by the wrath and indignation of the people, and unless competent people having the interest of Canada at heart, should take the direction of national affairs. After having had a deficit of 120 millions in two years with the railways, the hon. Minister of Marine asks us to continue the building of a Merchant Marine as a means of giving employment to returned soldiers. This aim would be most praiseworthy, and if it had been faithfully carried out there would have been nothing but congratulation to offered to the Government. But, as in all the programmes introduced by the Government, this one has been brought down as a mean of maintaining themselves in power, ontwithstanding the will of the people. Favouritism has been shown to friends of the Government in the giving of contracts, and a bid made for popularity.

I asked the hon. Minister of Marine a short time ago if he had received requests from different parts of the province and from the district of Quebec for shipbuilding contracts. The hon. minister does not recollect having received numerous requests from this district. I know that he speaks in good faith when he says his memory fails him, but to my personal knowledge the most urgent requests have been made to the Government by firms of the highest standing for some of these contracts for Quebec, the cradle of shipbuilding in Canada, in order that work might be given there, as elsewhere to the brave soldiers who distinguised themselves at the front, and who asked the Government an opportunity to earn the bread for their families. If the Department of Marine wishes to make the necessary search it will be found that the Quebec firm of Quinlan and Robertson, offered to construct steel vessels at that place, but there have been no contracts for shipbuilding given to Québec. There is neither work nor patronnage of any kind for that city, because it is hostile to this Government. I have myself pleaded with the Government; I have forwarded petitions. Formerly I had the honour to be mayor of the city of Quebec ant it was in that capacity that I took these steps. The Quebec Chamber of Commerce also applied to the Government with the same objection in view, but we received merely acknowlegements of our petitions, and the contracts were given elsewhere, some times without tenders, to the friends of the Government. Enormous contracts were given, and Quebec was rerefused even the slightest consideration for the returned soldier who wanted bread for his family. Apart from the firm of Quinlan and Robertson, the Davie Shipbuilding Co. of Lévis, one of the best organized firms in the country also applied for contracts. The hon. minister answered one of my questions just now by saying that the firm of Davie, of Lévis, had built two vessels, and had given full and entire satisfaction. A lay number people from the city of Quebec worked in the Davie Shipyards, and Lévis as well as Quebec tried to obtain contracts, but the citizens of Lévis were no luckier than those of Quebec, and after the building of the two boats, no other contract was given. The great majority of the labourers who worked at Lévis were deturned soldiers, as I know from having Government places for most of them, and they are now thrown out of work.

I listened with much interest to the judicious remarks of the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) an the subject of shipbuilding, and I congratulate the hon. member upon the valuable and interesting information he has given to the country. The same applies also to the hon. member for Antigonish and Guysborough (Mr. Sinclair).

Because of the disastrous Gouvernment Merchant Marine policy, and the administration of the National railways, the people of the country are to be bled white to replenish the public treasury to which they willingly contribute since they know that the Government during the war contracted very heavy debts which, whether wise or not, have to be paid. The public is obliged to make the greatest sacrifices, even the humble labourer who earns barely enough to keep his family, must contribute a certain percentage of the wages he earns by hard work, to pay the debts contracted by this Government. And where does this money go? Can the tax-payers at least have the satisfaction of being able to say that their money serves to decrease the National debt? No, Mr. Chairman, I am well informed? I believe that the Income tax brought about 28 millions to the public Treasury last year. Has any part of these 28 millions been used to reduce the national debt? On the contrary, these amounts contribute only in a small degree to pay off the disastrous administration of the national railways and merchant marine, which are running the country to ruin and will prove more costly to the people than the war.

I was proud and rather satisfied to notice lately that the city of Quebec for the year 1919, had contributed to the public treasury through the income tax, the amount of $2,-800,000. It has therefore the right to claim her share in the distribution of government grants. Each time, however, Quebec has asked for some favour; what has been the Government's reply? Only of late, I petitioned the hon. Minister of Public Works, asking for the rebuilding of a breast wall, the property of the Government, which had been destroyed during the flood of 1918 and which supported the Saint Grégoire de Montmorency road, in the beautiful county that I have the honour to represent in this House. It was refused, they even declined to do anything whatsoever, even to repair this property which was their own. My predecessor asked the Government who had even promised to relieve the situation by the construction of a bridge on the island of Orleans connecting the mainland with seven of the most flourishing parishes of the Quebec district, comprising deserving farmers, who are isolated on that island during a certain period of the year, when they cannot sell their products to the city and neither ship them, not even can they dispose of their fish which become a loss, Mr. Chairman, at a time when we are pre-occupied in lowering the cost of living. Subsidies were once granted them but they have since been cancelled. For many years we have insisted that the Government put to execution this important project, and which will be done, you may rest assured, when the Government of this country will be under the administration of persons having a sense of justice and wish to be equitable to the population of this country without distinction of race or religion.

When we shall have at the head of the Government men of the stamp that I have just mentioned, the bridge of the island of Orleans will be built and it will be an act of justice and an important improvement.

We have requested, Mr. Chairman, that the Government instead of throwing away their money in enterprises like the merchant marine, in order to favour their friends, I might also add the city of Quebec has also made the request, that this Government, its Premier its ministers, the entire Cabinet, fulfil the contract and keep their pledges. While the right hon. member for King's (Sir Robert Borden) is in his seat, I shall recall his words pronounced in 1913 at the Chateau Frontenac on the occasion of a large banquet given to him by the citizens of Quebec. He then declared to the citizens of Quebec that he wished to do them justice and that he had come to Quebec to see that these large enterprises were to be continued without any interruption and completed. Where are those pledges, those contracts signed by the Government for which the city of Quebec has made enormous sacrifices to obtain the development of railways, to obtain the transportation of the western wheat which had been promised to them and which was to the advantage of the whole country? The promises, the contracts, the solemn pledges and the declarations made by ex-Premier of Canada before many hundreds of persons at the Chateau Frontenac, in Quebec, where are they? All these pledges have become a dead letter. They always answered us: "Gentlemen, your demands are reasonable, but we cannot for a moment think, during war time, to execute any work, we cannot think of spending any money." Nevertheless, we voted millions after millions and the Government spent that money in the building of ships and they refused to the citizens of the Quebec district, improvements which would have benefited the whole country. They continued to ship the western grain through the American ports, at a cost of 34 to 35 cents per bushel, when by shipping it by the St. Lawrence river and Quebec, route, having given us the wharves and the elevators promised, we could have shipped the Winnipeg wheat at a cost of about 16 or 17 cents per bushel, this is to say 50 per cent cheaper and at the same time utilize our national railways and shorten the route by 214 miles, from Quebec to Winnipeg. This is the way that the Quebec province has been treated by the Government since 1911. And to-day when they wish to bring on closer relations with Quebec, when they want to shake hands on the eve of federal elections, is it not time, Sir, for the citizens of the province of Quebec to consider how shamefully they have been treated by the Government. You may be sure, Mr. Chairman, that the people of the city of Quebec and of the whole province do remember and will not forget; such is their motto. Can this Government, which has only three members from Quebec in its ranks, after having denied all its pledges and if I may be allowed to use the expression—boycott the province of Quebec, can this Government expect in the next general election any other result than that which it obtained in 1917? The representatives who will be sent to this House by the province of Quebec will be just as united as they are to-day.

There has been another injustice towards the city of Quebec to which I would like also to refer. Quebec has a very well organized exhibition. whose board always relied on the $50,000 allowed by the Dominion Government. When our turn came to apply for the grant, we were told that the Government could not give it because they had to economize during the war. It is always the same answer as regards the province of Quebec. After the war, we sent our request to which they replied: "We are not giving any more grants; we have done it two or three times for other provinces; Quebec never got it, but, now we have stopped these grants."

I wanted to draw the attention to that injustice on the part of the Government towards the city of Quebec, because if you want to have god farm products and to encourage young people to remain on the land in order to cultivate it and to provide cargoes for the Government ships, it seems to me that it would be an excellent policy to give a little encouragement to the good farmers of the Quebec district, as it has been done elsewhere, and to give to Quebec the grant which it did not get, although entitled to it. The Board of Harbour Commissioners did not meet with greater success, when they asked for the construction of a cold storage plant, which would allow to ship through Quebec the butter and cheese which we are forced to ship through Montreal, because we have no cold storage plant in Quebec. I do not know that any of the members of the Government who are present in this House can say that the province and especially the city of Quebec actually received a share of the grants.

Allow me, Mr. Chairman, to say a few words about the government-owned railways and the service which we have in Quebec. I believe it is the duty of the people to patronize the national roads as much as possible and when I am not in too great a hurry to reach Quebec or Ottawa, I travel on the Canadian Northern. Do you know what kind of service we get between Quebec and Montreal, for instance? The Canadian Pacific runs three good trains daily which cover the distance in five hours; the Canadian Northern has pretty good coaches, it is a fairly good train but it takes seven hours to go from Quebec to Montreal. When taking the Ocean Limited from Montreal to Quebec, you would think that they would make use of the Quebec bridge and take the passengers right through to the city, however they do nothing of the kind. The Ocean Limited, when not late, reaches Lévis at five minutes past twelve at night, and there is a boat to take the passengers over to Quebec city; but unfortunately it happens sometimes that the train is late—it is a habit with the government-owned railways —and as it reaches Lévis at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, passengers have to wait on the wharf for ferry boat. Travellers coming from Quebec to take the Ocean Limited, who number sometimes 50 or 60 and perhaps a 100, cross over with the ferry boat which leaves at 11.30 p.m. and if the train is late, they have to wait in the open air until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. That is how the national railways are being operated. It would be much better to have a train leaving from the Pacific station, which would go over the Quebec bridge and connect with the Ocean Limited, for the convenience of the passengers bound for Montreal, and those bound for Quebec could be taken right through to the city. When a request to that effect was made by the council and the Chamber of Commerce of Quebec, the Government replied that it would involve too great an expense. The administration of our national railways is the same throughout the country.

The operation of the road is about the same elsewhere—I have had occasion to travel a little between Quebec and Winnipeg, for instance. When I passed by way of Toronto, I found magnificent coaches, very large, very well appointed; but if I pass via Cochrane, it is another story between that place and Quebec. It is as if one would say, It will always be good enough for Quebec—I would like the Minister of Railways to see for himself; I am sure he is ignorant of the state of things, and I would be most happy if he could realize what kind of service is given from Cochrane to Quebec. It is one that could not be compared with that to be had between Toronto to Winnipeg.

These are some of the grievances of the citizens of Quebec. For my part, I am absolutely opposed to the policy of the Government Merchant Marine, which is nothing less than a duplicate of the disastrous National Railways policy, and had I an advice to give the Government, I would tell them to give up the whole scheme at all cost, immediatetly if possible, to get rid of this load which is breaking the country's back, and which together with the national railways, spells the ruin of the nation.

I said a moment ago that we had solicited contracts for the firm Quinlan & Robertson. It comes to my memory now that we also asked for contracts for a company of shipbuilders of Saint Laurent, on the Isle of Orleans, which employ a large number of workmen there and elsewhere. This request was no more heeded by the Government than the others. So that when I say that the distribution of contracts was marked by favouritism, I believe that it will be admitted that I am absolutely justified.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman I shall vote against the item of $8,338,000, and I will ask the Government before indulging in useless expenditure, before sinking millions as they do, to give a little more consideration to the citizens of Quebec, who pay their taxes like everybody else. I will ask them again to continue the work on the St. Charles river, at Quebec, and I will not weary asking this. The Government have already sunk $1,600,000 in these works; moreover they have cancelled the contract which they had with the contractors and acquired the whole plant, and if I am well informed this plant was valued at about five of six hundred thousand dollars. Without any reason, the Government, some day, decided to discontinue the work in spite of engagements taken and in spite of their contracts. Notwithstanding many solicitations from the citizens of Quebec, the Government have refused to resume the work, and the matter will no doubt go no further, like the rest. It seems to me this would have secured a fine port for the Government marine.

I will vote against this item of $8,000,000.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Mr. Chairman, the committee has been sitting for about eighteen hours continuously. The item under discussion was before the committee on a previous day from about 4.30 until six o'clock, and again from eight o'clock in the evening until 12.30 the next morning. Certain hon. gentlemen opposite have formed the opinion that they should block this item, for what purpose I am unable to conceive, and for what purpose I modestly suggest they do not quite understand themselves.

The history of the item under review is very briefly this: During the progress of the war, indeed at a period which turned out to be fairly near the end, having in mind the total amount of construction, the Government did undertake a shipbuilding programme of certain dimensions. Toward the undertaking of that programme they had been repeatedly urged by the hon. members of this House, and from the entire Dominion pressing requests came that this country should commence the task of establishing a mercantile marine, requests that were all the more pressing because of the all too-imminent necessity of the hour.

That policy was embarked upon, if I am correctly informed, with the unanimous approval of this House in the first place. That was in the spring of the year 1918. In the spring of the year 1919, after the armistice had been signed, but before, I believe, peace was formally established, the policy was continued with certain limitations. A vote of this House was taken for its continuance, amounting to $30,000,000, and my recollection is that that vote was unanimous, some objection being taken (but no vote being called for) on the part, not of the official Opposition, but of one or two hon. gentlemen who now are among the Farmer group. However, the policy that the Government had ventured upon received the unanimous, or almost the unanimous endorsation of this Parliament some six months or more after the armistice had been signed, with the limitations set up in the vote of that day. That constituted endorsation of the programme which the vote embodied, and to which the vote should be applied. Following out the mandate of Parliament, the Government let certain contracts, and the decision to let the last contract was come to in the month of December, 1919, now almost a year and a half ago.

Towards the end of the year 1919, the unemployment situation in Canada was becoming more and more acute; not that we suffered as other countries did, but undoubtedly in December, 1919, and during the early months of 1920 there was very considerable distress due to unemployment in various parts of the country. The Government was importuned, as only a Government can be importuned, to relieve that distress. The importunity was particularly strong because so great a degree of the distress was suffered by men who had returned from the war, and the chief pressure came from those men, and from those who represented them and pressed for consideration on their behalf. That was a factor of considerable magnitude in relation to the letting of the last two or three vessels or more, all of which had been authorized by this Parliament.

Now, I say again, the last decision was arrived at in that month. Efforts were made to keep the price down to the lowest possible point, thus delaying the final Order in Council approving of the contract until the month of March, 1920. Since that date no new engagement of any kind has been entered upon, none whatever; all that the Government has done, all that was left to do, has been to carry out the obligations into which this country had entered by the authority of this Parliament, by virtually the unanimous authority of this Parliament and which had been pressed upon us from all sides.

To complete that work, to carry out the contracts into which we had solemnly entered by the authority of Parliament, a vote was taken last year. It was stated in that vote last year that more would be required, that probably it would be impossible to complete the ships within the then present year, and that something more would be later requested. The vote that is now before the House, a vote of $8,000,000, is to cover $4,665,000 that was included in last year's $20,000,000 vote, and the balance for that completion which it was plainly stated last year would be required as the work would necessarily continue into this year. The Government then is merely engaged in asking for a revote of about three-fifths of this amount and of the other two-fifths for the completion of work which this Government was authorized to perform by this House.

The position of the Opposition, if I am able to put it into words, seems to be this: They are entirely with us in authorizing expenditure at a time when it is popular, where the work is being done, but after the work is nearly done and it is time to pay, then they are altogether against us. They quite agree that the country should enter into solemn engagements, but they are entirely opposed to the country carrying them out.

Just a few days ago, one hon. gentleman stated that because certain moneys were not paid in London, England, he hung his head in shame at the spectacle of Canada repudiating her obligations. Canada has repudiated no obligation to which Canada was bound, but the party of which he is a member now believes that this House should be held between heaven and earth, stagnant, sterile, doing nothing, for days for fear that Canada may comply with her obligations to people of this country. There are contracts to pay for that have been entered into, and there are also contracts to complete. Are hon. gentlemen taking the position that we are perfectly right in laying down the hull of a vessel, but wholly wrong in completing the vessel?—that it is perfectly proper to build a ship, but wholly wrong to put the engines in that ship? Do they say that it is wholly wrong to complete that which it was wholly right to commence? Because they believe that just at this time when the operation of shipping the world over is suffering by reason of reversal, in which suffering we bear our part, do they say this is the time for the Opposition to stand here and say, "When the sun shines everything is all right and we approve of it, but when the clouds come we go back on everything we have said and we want to sit back and do nothing?" I was surprised that the hon. gentlemen of the agrarian party should have allowed themselves to be lured by plausible phrasing on the part of the official Opposition into the position they have got themselves in. Are they aware that the leader of the agrarian Opposition (Mr. Crerar) was a member of the Government when the whole work was undertaken and when the last ship was ordered?

Mr. CRERAR: I am quite sure my right hon. friend the Prime Minister does not willingly misrepresent me. I left the Government early in June, 1919, and I have here Hansard, containing a question asked by my hon. friend, the member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff)—

Mr. MEIGHEN: I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon; he is right, I know the point he is making.

Mr. CRERAR: Mr. Chairman, my right hon. friend made the statement definitely and very explicitly that I was in the Government when the last contract was made.

I left the Government early in June, 1919, and I want to tell my right hon. friend, and my hon. friend the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that according to the information brought down in reply to the question by my hon. friend from Lunenburg in this House, and answered on March 4th, of this year, the last contract for these ships, two in number, was let on the 7th April, 1920, ten months after I left the Government. Now, I do not wish to take up the time of my right hon. friend the leader of the Government, but this simply illustrates all that he knows, and all that my hon. friend the Minister of Marine and Fisheries knows, about his own business. When my right. hon. friend the leader of the Government makes such sweeping statements in order to score a point, he wants to be very certain that his facts are correct before he repeats them.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I was quite ready the moment the hon. gentleman called attention to the date. I knew then I was wrong in that statement, and I accepted the hon. gentleman's statement—the hon. gentleman's resignation was in the June previous—and for that error I am quite prepared to make amends to the hon. gentleman. I have no desire to misstate the position of anyone. But the fact that the hon. gentleman was not a member of the Government at the time the contract for these two ships was let, does not alter the fact that he was a member of the Government when the estimate was prepared and brought into this House and that he supported the entire shipbuilding policy when it was thus undertaken.

Mr. CRERAR: Might I ask my right hon. friend another question? If his statement just now is correct, does he mean to say that that commits me indefinitely to the building of ships by the Government?

Mr. MEIGHEN: It commits the hon. gentleman to the support of the programme which was then undertaken. That is the point. We are not taking a policy, we are not continuing a policy but only completing an authorized programme which he supported. We undertook a certain task which we are carrying out. It is true, the contract for two ships were let after the hon. gentleman resigned, but that is not a reversal of policy, it is an execution of policy.

Mr. CRERAR: Almost one-third of the contracts for building ships were let after I left the Government.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Let me say that if I understand the situation aright, the position of the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark) at least has the greatest resemblance to consistency of that of any hon. gentleman opposite. He takes the position that we should not have undertaken the building of ships at all, the building of ships being peculiarly the commercial prerogative of the United Kingdom, they being able to build them much more cheaply than we, and that consequently we should leave to them the work of supplying the carrying needs of this country. While it might be such a difficult task for us that it may not be wise for us ordinarily to enter into competition of that nature, at the time this was done there were very special circumstances which made it our duty to build them, even at great cost; special circumstances which made it our duty to build ships in this country because they were required, and had to be built wherever the ships could be constructed. These are the circumstances under which this programme was undertaken. The hon. gentleman went through a performance similar to that in which he has been engaged during the last twenty-four hours some years ago. In 1913 I remember he delivered then a long series of speeches, taking the ground that instead of ordering any ships for war purposes in England, we ought to build two fleet units in this country, no matter what they cost, that we ought to build ships on the Atlantic and on the Pacific, at a time when the cost of building in this country would have been easily double the cost in England and at a time when emergency called for them being built with the least possible delay. The hon. gentleman held this Parliament up, or was instrumental in doing so for weeks in an effort to compel the building of ships in Canada for purposes of war, on the Atlantic and on the Pacific, at a cost of probably fifty million dollars to this country. At a time when the ships had to be built we undertook the building of seventy million dollars' worth of ships to this country.

But hon. gentlemen opposite are evidently tired of the task they have undertaken on this occasion. One after the other they have pleaded that this debate be brought to a close, that they do not want to continue the performance that has been going on for some thirty hours. Well, I do not think we could wish clearer evidence of the purpose of that performance. The hon. member for Red Deer, the hon. member for St. James, Montreal, the hon. member for Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and the hon. member for Westmoreland all have pleaded for the Government to intervene and have the closure applied in this committee. Well, if that be so, it is pretty good evidence of the purpose of their talk. It is the best evidence that the debate was conducted only in order that it would have to be stopped. Under the circumstances, I feel that it is the duty of hon. gentlemen on this side of the House to accede to their request. The Estimates were brought down in this House on the 8th of last month. I believe the debate on the Address was finished only on the 3rd. I do not know of any previous occasion when the Estimates were brought down so early after the conclusion of the debate on the Address. Commencing, I think, on the 15th, or earlier, on each and every day when the House reached Government Orders, we have moved the House into Committee of Supply. As yet merely fractional items have gone through. The progress this House has made has been infinitesimal compared with the work the House has to do, and if this is to go on, then Parliament will cease to be the High Court of the nation. It will arrive at a status in the public eye that I, for one, would not like to contemplate. I, therefore, feel it my duty to take the first step to bring to an end this performance, and I move that the further consideration of this item be postponed.

Mr. MURPHY: Under the rules this motion is not debatable.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Boivin): No.

Motion agreed to.

Ocean and river service—maintenance and repairs to Dominion steamers and icebreakers, $1,750,000.

Mr. PARENT: May I ask what amount of money has been spent for the icebreaker Montcalm?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The amount was $138,094.

Mr. PARENT: Perhaps the hon. gentleman would save time if he would give us the names of the various steamers and the amount of money spent for repairs on each one.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The names of the vessels and the amounts spent on each are as follows:

The Aberdeen	$ 5,784
The Arranmore	nothing
The Argentine	160
The Bellechasse	1,890
The Brant (hull repairs)	1,393
The Concretia (hull repairs)	214

The Dollard	1,773
The Druid	46,810
The Estevan (hull repairs)	5,900
The Frontenac	2,200
The Grenville	4,500
The Lady Grey	71,000
The Lady Laurier	1,060
The Lambton	2,753
The Laurentian	28,000
The Montcalm	20,000
The Newington	3,400
The Reserve	900
The Rouville	9,000
The Scout	893
The Shamrock	16,600
The Stanley	10,000
The Thomas Mason	191
The Vercheres	900
The H. W. Lee	2,890

Mr. PARENT: Is there any special reason why repairs amounting to $46,810 were made to the Druid?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The steamer Druid was in a very bad state of repair, and naturally the cost of putting her in proper seaworthy shape was greater than if she had not been in such a bad state of repair.

Mr. PARENT: What is her tonnage?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None of these ships is bought or operated according to tonnage. They are just small river craft.

Mr. PARENT: Has the minister an idea how much it would cost to buy a ship similar to the Druid at the present time or at last year's prices? No doubt, with his experience in shipbuilding, he will be able to give the committee that information.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not claim any particular experience in shipping. The hon. member probably has in mind the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff). I could not give the hon. member the information for which he asks.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I am told that the steamer Champlain, which up to last year belonged to the Canadian Government, was sold to the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company, and for some reason or another, some delay occurred in obtaining a settlement of the accounts. Can the minister give me some enlightenment as to this matter?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The matter is now in the hands of the Justice Department, but the Government are fully protected by note and mortgage on the ship.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Who is attending to the Government's side of the case in the matter. Who is the attorney of record?

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As my hon. friend knows, there are a large number of attorneys and other legal gentlemen in the Justice Department. I cannot give my hon. friend the particular name.

Mr. CASGRAIN: The minister does not quite catch the point I want to make. Generally, there are in the Department of Justice different lawyers looking after special cases; but when it comes to a matter of pleading cases before the Exchequer Court or Supreme Court or a local court, the department generally retains the services of lawyers in the different localities where the cases are to be pleaded. In one instance in Quebec where an expropriation was going on, the Government retained the services of Mr. Bernier, who is now a judge. In the present case, who is the attorney, if any, who has been selected to look after the interests of the Government?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am sorry I cannot give the hon. member the name of the legal gentleman in the Justice Department, but my colleague, the Minister of Justice (Mr. Doherty), has promised to get it for me.

Mr. CASGRAIN: It may be that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is not in a position to give the committee that enlightenment, but I see next to him the Minister of Justice, and surely the Minister of Justice knows who is retained for this case. I wish he could whisper to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the name of this attorney, because I would like very much to know it.

Mr. DOHERTY: I can only give my hon. friend my present impression, which is that the case has not reached the stage where outside counsel would be necessary. I cannot say that positively. The hon. gentleman, I think, appreciates the fact that it is not possible for me to walk around with, present to my mind, who the lawyer is in every particular case in which we may be concerned. I shall be very glad to ascertain the fact. I am now told by the Deputy Minister of Marine that I would be justified in saying positively that no lawyer outside of the department has been retained in connection with the case. I make the statement upon his authority.

Mr. CASGRAIN: What amount has been paid up to date on account of the purchase price of the steamer Champlain, and what is the balance still remaining due on that price.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The price at which this ship was sold was $61,050—$13,000 has been paid in cash, and four notes have been given of which one of $12,000 has been met. There are still unpaid one note for $11,997 and two for $12,000.

Mr. CASGRAIN: When did the sale take place?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not the exact month; it was either July or August, 1920.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Who are the signatories of these notes, and are they responsible persons? Are they persons with whom the contract was made, or other parties?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company, Thomas Harling and one of the Messrs. Clark, I am not sure of his initials.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Was there not a gentleman called Mr. Barnard, of Montreal, who had something to do with the contract that was passed in the guaranteeing of the payment of these notes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not that I am aware of.

Mr. CASGRAIN: What interest do these notes bear and has the interest been paid regularly?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If the hon. gentleman will ask me some other question, so as to enable the business to proceed in the meantime, I will be very glad to let him know about the matter of interest later on.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I will be delighted to do so. Does the minister know that the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company is now in liquidation?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Quite so.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Is the note signed by the company alone?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I said a moment ago that it was not only signed by the company but also by Thomas Harling, and one of the Messrs. Clark, I do not know what his initials are.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I think I know this Mr. Harling. I think he was in Montreal some time ago and that he engaged in the shipping business. I am told also that he did not find his venture in our city a profitable one, and that in the city of Quebec, where he tried to do a little better, his success was not any greater. I do not consider that the Government has any very great guarantee in the signature of Mr. Harling. This company is in liquidation to-day, and I think I can assure the committee that such a person as Mr. Harling is hardly one to respond to the payment of these notes when they become due.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Would my hon. friend consider the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company's endorsation good enough to appear on the notes?

Mr. CASGRAIN: This is the first time I have heard of that name. I thought by the answers which were given in the House last year that this steamer was sold to the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company that is now in liquidation. The notes are signed by this company which is in liquidation, and the endorser, if I understand well, is Mr. Thomas Harling.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: And also the Gulf Pulp & Paper Company. My hon. friend knows very well that this company which is established at Clark Harbour, is tremendously strong financially, so that there is absolutely no risk at all as long as their endorsement is on the note.

Mr. CASGRAIN: May I ask the minister who are the parties in the Pulp & Paper Navigation Company that endorsed these notes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Clark Brothers.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Is the note endorsed by Messrs. Clark Brothers themselves?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is endorsed by the Gulf Pulp Paper Company which is an eminently good concern, as my hon. friend knows.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Continuing further, I would like to ask the minister when the contract was made between the Government and this company for the purchase of that steamer?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It was made during the month of May last.

Mr. CASGRAIN: In May last? But when was the endorsation placed on the back of the note by the Gulf Pulp & Paper Company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: You want the date?

Mr. CASGRAIN: Yes.

Mr. PARENT: Just lately, was it not?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: On the 5th day of May.

Mr. CASGRAIN: In what year?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: In the year 1920.

Mr. CASGRAIN: So, if I understand well, it was about the same time that the contract with the Government was approved?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: About the same time.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I would now like to ask how it is, if this note is signed by two good endorsers—at any rate endorsers that the Government pretend are good—that the matter is in the hands of the Department of Justice for adjustment?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It may ease the anxiety of my hon. friend about the safety of the Government financially when I say that Clark Brothers have now sold out the Gulf Pulp & Paper Company to Lord Northcliffe. I think my hon. friend will feel satisfied that he is wealthy enough to take care of the obligations.

Mr. CASGRAIN: What are the legal costs in connection with this matter?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None.

Mr. CASGRAIN: None at present?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not yet.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): I want to call the attention of the minister to a promise which he made when he was putting his Estimates through the House last year. On that occasion I urged that there should be an improvement in the wages paid to the engineers on the steamer Brant. The minister then made a statement which was quite satisfactory, but apparently the matter has been allowed to drop without having been attended to. At all events I have heard nothing upon the subject lately, and I would like to know from the minister if the matter has been adjusted, and if so, in what way?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I received information with regard to the steamer Brant a day or two ago, and the department is now very carefully considering what shall be done in the way of advancing wages. I do not say that we will advance the wages, but we have the matter under our consideration.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): Is the minister willing to adhere to the statement which he made in the House last session on this matter?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not recall the circumstances.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): His statement was that the prevailing rate of wages would be paid.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I think my hon. friend will recollect that a year ago I qualified that statement by announcing that the Government were willing to pay the prevailing rate of wage for a similar sized ship.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): I might also remind the minister that he qualified his statement still further. He also said that the prevailing rate of wage to be paid would not, in any case, be less than the wage of last year, plus the bonus. With reference to the information which the minister spoke of receiving, would he be good enough to say when he received that information and from whom?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The information came from Mr. Winchester of the Brant and Mr. Cummings of the National Association of Marine Engineers. I can assure my hon. friend that we will not overlook the matter. I cannot at this moment say just what we will do, but the question is under our consideration and will be dealt with very shortly. As soon as a decision has been reached I will be delighted to let my hon. friend know.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): I am very glad to hear the minister speak in such a tone. I regret to have to bring this matter before the committee, but I have been endeavouring to get it settled through the department almost ever since May 5 last. I am glad to know also that the minister is willing to act on the information which he has received from the secretary of the National Association of Marine Engineers in Charlottetown, and the engineers who are interested, namely, the engineers on the Brant. In regard to the prevailing rate of pay I think the officers of the department might have acted with greater promptitude in ascertaining the facts. I would like to know further from the minister if the adjustment made according to the information he has given to the House will date from April 1, 1920, as it should do?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, I am not prepared to say that. I think my hon. friend will just have to leave the matter to our generosity. I can assure him we will do the best we can.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): I am not asking for this readjustment of wages as a matter of generosity, I ask it as a matter of right. It is something which should have been settled long ago.

Mr. CASGRAIN: The Government do not bother with small matters, they only bother with millions.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's): However, I am willing to accept the statement of the minister and leave the matter to his own judgment.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Coming back to the matter to which I invited the attention of the committee a few moments ago and referring to this transaction between the Government and the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company re the sale and disposal of the steamer Champlain. The minister told us that a contract was signed on a certain date, but he did not tell us who signed that contract. Of course, the Government was one party, but who were the parties of the other part?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Gulf of St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Company, Mr. H. de S. Bossé signed on behalf of that company.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Did any other person connected with the company sign?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As far as our knowledge goes it was Mr. Bossé alone.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Would it be possible for the minister to obtain the contract from his two valuable assistants who are helping the committee in disposing of these items? I would like to have a more positive answer in regard to the parties who signed on behalf of the company. I am informed on good authority that the person who was supposed to have a controlling interest in the company, who, as we say in French was the bailleur de fonds, was a prominent lawyer in the city of Montreal, Mr. Barnard. I would not say that he went so far as to give a bond or guarantee for the transaction, but I think there is something in the information tendered to me. Would the minister refer to the contract and let us see it?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend does not expect me to send it across the floor of the House at this moment?

Mr. CASGRAIN: No.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not got the contract, but I will be very pleased to forward it to the hon. gentleman.

Mr. CASGRAIN: If the contract was made and signed by Mr. Bossé on behalf of this company, and if notes for the balance were also signed by him on behalf of the company and endorsed by one Thomas Harling, how is it that afterwards this new company, the Gulp Pulp and Paper Company, which was not a party to the contract, endorsed the notes? At whose suggestion did the new company endorse or guarantee the notes, and why?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: These gentlemen were interested in establishing this service with Clarke's harbour.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Do I understand that the steamer Champlain is to run between Quebec and Clarke's harbour, and that it has been transferred to these people?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I could not answer that.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I understand the Government had in its possession the contract signed by the party who is buying the steamer, and that notes were also given by the company, one for $12,000 and another for $11,000 odd; later a new company came in and endorsed the notes. I would like to know why the Government thought it necessary to require that further endorsation if the company and Mr. Harling were considered sufficiently responsible in the first place?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I know my hon. friend will find no fault with the vigilant officers of the department getting all the endorsements they possibly could in the public interest. That is just what they did. They would have obtained more endorsements had that been possible.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Were these two notes that the minister has been speaking of the first notes, or renewals?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The first notes.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Are they overdue now?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: One of them has been paid, as I told my hon. friend a few moments ago. The others have not been met, and that is the reason we are referring the matter to the Department of Justice.

Mr. CASGRAIN: What is the amount of the two notes that have not been met?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Twelve thousand dollars each.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Has the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company, through the liquidator, refused payment of those notes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. CASGRAIN: On what ground?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The usual ground —that they did not have the money.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Did the Government have recourse to the endorser, Mr. Harling, for payment?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The department protested the notes and we are holding Mr. Harling liable along with the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company.

Mr. CASGRAIN: When were the initial protest proceedings taken?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: In the language that legal gentlemen generally use, the notes were duly protested. I cannot give the exact date.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Did the minister ask the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company Limited for payment of those notes?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The notes were put in the bank and they were not met. Thereupon they were protested in the usual way.

Mr. CASGRAIN: A few moments ago the minister told us that it was good policy to obtain as many endorsements as possible in connection with these notes; that not only had we the signature of the gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company, but also the endorsement of Mr. Harling; then, to obtain further security the department got the Guly Pulp and Paper Company to endorse the notes. Now the minister has taken proceedings against this company. I would like to have some enlightenment from the minister as to the financial backing and capacity to pay of this Gulf Pulp and Paper Company Limited.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: From what information I have been able to give my hon. friend and the fact that we have a mortgage on the ship, I do not think we need worry about the Government getting the full price. My hon. friend knows very well that the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company is owned by Lord Northcliffe and is thoroughly sound; he also knows that Thomas Harling is fairly good; and with a mortgage on the ship besides that, why should any one worry?

Mr. CASGRAIN: It is all very well to have the names of such big companies as the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company, controlled by Lord Northcliffe, and Clark Brothers, but I have known many big corporations that were reputed to be very strong financially, but which sooner or later we discovered were far from being what they were supposed to be. The minister tells us that we have a mortgage on the ship, but this ship is in the hands of other persons to-day, and therefore the Government has no control over it, and should the ship meet with disaster no one knows what position the Government would be in in regard to their security. If the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company is so good and is controlled by Lord Northcliffe, I would sooner that the minister would apply immediately to that company and to the Clark Company for payment of these notes.

Mr. PARENT: I want to refer again to the "Druid, Mr. Chairman. Have any tenders been asked for the expenditure of $46,000 in repairs on that particular ship

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Such work as was not done by our own workmen was carried out by tender.

Mr. PARENT: Where was the work performed and how long did it take the department to spend $46,000 on that ship?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The work was done by the Davies, but I cannot tell my hon. friend the number of days or hours that they took.

Mr. PARENT: Does the hon. minister know how much was done by tender and how much without tender?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I cannot inform the hon. gentleman just how much was done by the department and how much by tender. I shall have to get the information for him.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I have received some information from the hon. minister in regard to the nefarious transaction with the Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company regarding the steamer Champlain. I do not wish to detain the committee much longer on that matter, but in closing let me say that the information given by the hon. minister in answer to my question does not satisfy me, and I do not think it will satisfy the committee. If the minister would follow the suggestion I have made and go immediately to the people of the last mentioned company who endorsed the note and to Lord Northcliffe for the balance that is due, it would be better for the interests of the Government.

Coming to another subject, while on the item for repairs and maintenance of steamers and ice-breakers, I would like to draw the attention of the minister to a certain incident that happened in the county which I have the honour to represent. I am in receipt of a letter dated March 1, 1921. It is signed by the Rev. Monsieur Abraham Gaudreau, the parish priest of Bergeronnes, and is addressed to me. It reads as follows:

(Translation.)

BERGERONNES, March 1, 1921.

To Mr. M. P. CASGRAIN, M.P.,
Parliament, Ottawa.

Sir,—I wish to bring to your knowledge a proof of ill will on the part of the Department of Marine which might be a subject for a question in the House if you should deem it advisable; I shall therefore give you the facts.

About December 22 last, the schooner Marie Lydia (owned by Mr. Joseph Dumont of Lévis) which was wintering at Bergeronnes drifted away, carried by the ice. This schooner is worth $25,000. We asked for help to send the Montcalm; the river was perfectly free of ice, the weather was fine; it would have been easy for a ship like the Montcalm to go to the rescue of the Marie Lydia, which was exposed to the weather for five days in front of Trois Pistoles, and bring it to safety at Tadoussac. Notwithstanding most pressing entreaties, we were never able to obtain a favourable answer. The schooner is now safe at Cap de la Madeleine. Of what use are our ice breakers, if they cannot be utilized to go to the rescue of so valuable ships.

You can obtain all the correspondence which took place on this subject by applying to the Department of Marine who will give you all the facts in this case. Eight days ago the schooner was still at Godbout, the Montcalm could have rescued it at any time.

With my anticipated thanks,

I am, yours faithfully.

AM. GAUDREAU, Priest Curé.

Rev. Mr. ABRAHAM GAUDREAU,
Bergeronnes, P.Q.

OTTAWA, March 12, 1921.

Reverend Sir,

I wish to acknowledge your letter dated the 1st inst. with reference to the accident that happened to the schooner Marie Lydia, last December.

I regret with you the inertia and the little interest which the Government shows in such cases, however it is nothing new and does not surprise me. Be assured that when the occasion comes, I shall establish your grievances and will try to obtain some explanation of the subject.

Believe me, Rev. Sir,

Yours respectfully,

PIERRE CASGRAIN.

The facts, in a nutshell, are as follows: A schooner called the Marie-Lydia was down the river St. Lawrence at Bergeronnes when it met with an accident. From the information contained in the letter it seems that the ice-breaker "Montcalm" was in the vicinity, and although the parish priest, the mayor, and prominent citizens of this place have asked for relief, have asked that the Montcalm be sent to the rescue of that schooner, they have received no satisfactory reply. Who pays for the maintenance of those ice-breakers? We have here to-day an item, $1,750,000, that we are asked to hand over to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for the administration of ice-breakers in the navigable rivers, especially in the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence. Now, here is a concrete case where, through the inactivity and nonchalance of the department, justice and equity have not been done, and this schooner has not received the care and attention it was entitled to.

Yesterday, when I introduced my resolution setting forth the reasons why we are calling for a service between Tadoussac and Murray Bay in the county of Charlevoix, I deplored, as also did the hon. member for Chicoutimi-Saguenay, that the Government was neglecting entirely that part of the province of Quebec, which is a large maritime district. Those people are away from all communication and all sources of relief, and they look to this Government, to the Government of the day, whether Tory or Liberal, for relief and assistance. But we find that they only obtain such relief and assistance when a Liberal administration has charge of the affairs of the country. They have frequently asked this Government to establish communication between the two places I have mentioned, and we have had no satisfactory reply. Here again we have an instance of the department not acting properly. Yesterday I mentioned that I went personally to the department and asked the deputy minister to see that the lights should be maintained on three of the wharves of my county, as they had been in years past, and the deputy minister said that he was too busy to attend to me at that time. That is a matter that would cost the paltry sum of $1,000 and yet yesterday we were called upon to vote $3,800,000, and to-day we are called upon to vote $1,500,000 for ice-breakers and steamers. But when it comes to obtaining a little assistance for the people of my district in the lower part of Quebec we are refused.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If my hon. friend will allow me, the Department of Marine and Fisheries has not treated him quite so badly as all that. The information has just been handed to me that the department instructed Captain Bloise of the Stanley to pick out four men to go to the assistance of the Marie-Lydia which is reported off the Magdalen Islands. It does not give the hours at which she pas- Captain Dumont, the owner, has been so advised. So my hon. friend will admit, I think, that the department has paid the attention we always do pay in such cases.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I am glad to get that information from the hon. minister. When was that done? This letter is dated March 1.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: To-day, at 11 o'clock.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Well, I hope that those people have been rescued and have received assistance from the department. But I would point out that a long time has elapsed since I received the letter.

Mr. POWER: Before the item carries, I would like to call the minister's attention to something that has occurred in the past few months in the city of Quebec. Now, in accordance with the consideration which the Minister of Marine always gives to the labouring classes, and particularly to the unemployed labouring classes, the statement has been made that these ships were constructed in accordance with a programme which was simply carried out in order to afford employment, in view of the serious unemployment situation in Quebec, I applied to the minister to carry on the repairs of ships early in the beginning of the winter in order that the unemployment situation, which is undoubtedly very acute at that season of the year, might be relieved, and in order that the work would not have to be carried on late in the spring, thus delaying navigation. In that connection I wrote to the minister calling attention to the fact that the unemployment situation was acute in Quebec, and that the department had a large number of vessels which it intended to winter in Quebec, and asking that if possible orders should be given for the repairs to be carried on during the early part of the winter. I suggested that by taking this course, employment would be given to a large number of workmen at a period when work was difficult to obtain. This was on November 30, 1920. I thought it was a reasonable request to make of the minister. If ever there was an emergency in a small way, it was during that period, and had the minister acceded to my request it would not have involved the expenditure of one single extra cent to the department, the money would simply have been expended at a period of the year when it would have done the most good. I might say that at the present time these repairs are not made and that for well over a week, or I might say two weeks, or perhaps three weeks, navigation has been opened from the port of Quebec. I not only wrote to the minister on November 30, but I wrote him again. In answer to my letter of November 30, I received a letter on December 13, the minister, I might say, is apparently a very busy man, and takes a long time to answer letters, when he answers them at all. In his reply he stated that as soon as these ships were placed in winter quarters, they would be gone over in order to ascertain what repairs were required. On December 17, I again called his attention to the fact that the ships were in their winter quarters and that the repairs would give employment to 70 or 100 men for some six weeks, at a period of the year when it would be of very great assistance to the workman. To this the minister did not reply. On Dececmber 24 I received a letter from the secretary of the department acknowledging the receipt of my letter and stating that reports were expected from the inspectors. At that time a large number of people in Quebec city were literally starving, being unable to obtain employment. I corresponded with the inspector and was told that the inspection was completed, and that the ships were ready to have the repairs undertaken. At the same time a mass meeting of unemployed was held in Quebec, at which resolutions were passed stating that

> Whereas it is the announced policy of the Government to in as far as possible carry on Public Works in order to alleviate the present acute unemployment situation;
>
> Whereas There are in the Port of Quebec a large number of Government vessels which need overhauling and repairing;
>
> Be it resolved that this meeting requests the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, and the Honourable C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to immediately proceed with the work of refitting and repairing these vessels as a Government undertaking and not by contract;
>
> That the work be begun at once in order that insofar as possible the worst season of the year, which is the present, may be passed over without undue suffering or hardship to the labouring classes of the City.

Copies of these resolutions were sent to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and the members representing the districts surrounding Quebec. But no answer was received. On January 10, not having received any answer to these representations, I telegraphed to the minister:

With reference to previous correspondence, department vessels wintering in Quebec. Important that decision to carry out repairs be carried out at once. Kindly reply.

CHARLES G. POWER, M.P.

To this the minister replied:

Our inpectors are now working on specifications, for repairs to vessels wintering Louise Basin, and will arrange put work in hand as soon as possible.

That was a month and a half afterwards. On January 26, having been given to understand from the Fisheries Department that preparations were completed, I wired to the minister as follows:

Re repairs to vessels Louise Basin. Understand all preparations made but no authority received here to employ labour. Could this not be given at once?

On the same day, January 26, the deputy minister replied:

Agent has been authorized to take on extra men required for repairs to vessel Louise Basin.

I might say that these extra men were three men and one boy. I stated in another telegram on January 27:

Authority given departement to employ labour for only one vessel. What about other vessels?

I received a reply that repairs were being carried out by the department, and that any additional help necessary would be taken on. I carried on this correspondence for a week or ten days, and the situation in Quebec became more and more acute. The vessels were lying there, all preparations apparently had been made for the repairs, and yet, for no reason I have been able to fathom, the repairs had not been undertaken. I sent numerous telegrams to which I received no answer until on February 3, I received a telegram from the minister's private secretary:

Your telegram February second received and will he submitted to hon. Mr. Ballantyne on his return to city next week.

Now, Sir, I have carried on correspondence with the deputy minister and with the minister, and one or the other invariably answered. But this time the private secretary refused to answer and stated that the minister would not return "until the next week." That, I may say, was during the famous Peterborough election. I suspected that the minister was busy, and I sent the following telegram to the minister's secretary:

Your telegram of February third—why not relay mine to the minister?

That would have been the logical thing for the secretary to do. I have no doubt, even if the minister were engrossed in his electoral labours, he could have had time to answer the telegram and to give instructions to have this work done. Anyway, the sum and substance of it all is this: That I repeatedly, as representative of an important constituency in the city of Quebec, —called upon the minister to do this work, asked him to do something which would not involve the expenditure of one single extra cent to the country, which, on the contrary, would possibly have saved some money to the Government,—which would have been a considerable utility to my constituency and the city of Quebec and the district in general,—which would have been a charitable act on the part of the Government since a large number of those who were seeking work had not been able to obtain employment since navigation closed; yet, in spite of all these appeals, and appeals made by the mayor and other people of the city, almost nothing was done during the whole winter. The work is now being carried on when a large number of people can find employment elsewhere, and it is not so necessary. I have called the minister's attention to this, because I am under the impression—and I warn him now, because next winter will be probably as hard as last winter and perhaps more so—that it will be a matter of policy for his department to have these repairs carried out at a season of the year when the workingmen need help from the Government in the worst way. It was the announced policy of the Government last autumn to carry on public works so far as possible, in order to relieve the situation. I would ask the minister, not only to make a promise and announce a policy, but as a matter of fact, to carry out that policy, and next winter, when the same situation or a worse situation arises, to take care that these necessary works shall be carried on?

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: May I ask the hon. minister why an increase of $450,000 has been made in these Estimates?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That increase is principally for fuel labour, and repairs to ships.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: May I ask what proportion of that amount is supposed to be spent in actual repairs?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The following ships will be repaired at Quebec: The Druid, the Lady Grey, the Montcalm, and the Rouville.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: What is the amount of repairs on those ships?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The repairs to hulls and engine of the Druid are estimated at $25,800; the Lady Grey $30,000; Montcalm $40,000 and Rouville $15,000.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: I understand the Government boat gives a service from the Island to Quebec during the period of non-navigation—that is after the close of navigation. Can the hon. minister tell me if that is correct?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Our icebreaker runs to the island of Orleans and also to Quebec bridge.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: I would remind the hon. minister that every year there appears to be great difficulty in making the service, and it is only after a few days or weeks that we can manage to get the boat to make the service. I would like to have the department arrange for a service at the close of navigation next autumn, so as to give those people on the island communication with the city.

Mr. DOHERTY: We have now been over an hour—

Hon. MEMBERS: Carried, carried.

Mr. DOHERTY: I think that the hon. member for Quebec West (Mr. Parent) showed the proper appreciation when he expressed the view that it was time this item was disposed of. We have been over an hour on the item. I think it is no reflection on the hon. gentleman to say that the course of the discussion indicates that there is no very important question which ought to be raised now, and, even if we postpone now, or propose to move the further consideration of this question, if there is anything really important there will be, within the rules, an opportunity to bring it up. I beg to move that the further consideration—

Hon. MEMBERS: Carried, carried.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): We are not wasting our time in getting this information. The hour was well spent. This is a large item,—million and three-quarters,—and when we remember that this department has increased enormously—

Mr. DOHERTY: Either the item is carried or not carried; if it is not carried my motion before the Chair is not debatable; so that in either event the hon. gentleman is out of order.

Item agreed to.

Investigation into wrecks, $12,300.

Mr. LAPOINTE: I suppose this item is debatable. I wish to make my position clear. Although I was quite willing, as far as I was concerned, to let the other item be carried, I do not think we deserved the lecture given us by the hon. Minister of Justice (Mr. Doherty), as to having spent too much time on the two preceding items. Those items were very important, asking for a large amount of money, and it was certainly the right of the Opposition to discuss them, and we have not trespassed upon our right in taking one hour to discuss it, and ask for information in regard to it.

Mr. DOHERTY: I did not say too much I said enough.

Mr. POWER: Might I ask the hon. minister how many minutes we will be allowed on this item?

An hon. MEMBER: One hour.

Mr. PARENT: Will the hon. minister say how many investigations into wrecks have taken place in the last year? I want to know all the names of the ships in regard to which investigations were held, and by whom the investigations were made.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend will not make much headway by asking all the names and that sort of thing. I am only too willing to give the information, but I think we ought to try to get along with the business in a friendly way, instead of hon. members endeavouring to embarrass the minister by asking him to read out a number of unnecessary names.

Mr. PARENT: I do not think I can be charged with asking unnecessary questions. On another item I wanted to discuss some matters, but I was prevented by the Minister of Justice by a motion which he moved.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have given the hon. gentleman the information that there were 34 wrecks, and while I am perfectly willing to give the names, I cannot see what useful purpose would be served by doing so.

Mr. PARENT: My object in asking by whom the investigations were held is that it has come to my knowledge that some of the parties in charge of the investigations cannot understand the French language, and when they had to try captains and pilots, these men were not in a position to give the evidence they wanted because they did not understand English. I call the matter to the attention of the minister, so that steps may be taken to have those who sit on these tribunals understand both languages, in order that justice may be done.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Can the hon. member cite one case in which the wreck commissioner or his assistants did not understand French?

Mr. PARENT: If they do understand French, that settles the case.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Mr. Demers is the name of the wreck commissioner.

Item agreed to.

Expenses of schools of navigation, $8,000.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Where are the schools of navigation?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Halifax, Yarmouth, North Sydney, St. John, N.B., Quebec, Kingston, Collingwood and Vancouver.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: How long has the school at Quebec been established?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: About eight years.

Mr. PARENT: Who is in charge?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Captain Napoleon Lachance.

Mr. PARENT: Is he a pilot?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: He used to be.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): This looks like a very small item to carry on all the navigation schools in the Dominion of Canada. There has been for a few years an application for a navigation school at Canso, and my hon. friend has not yet taken any steps in that direction. I would like to place the matter before him again, because this is, as he knows, an important point. It is the greatest fishing point in the Dominion, and a large number of young sailors are brought up there. Some years ago something was done by the department in the way of establishing a navigation school at Canso but the project was abandoned and nothing has been done of late. It looks as if we are going to be a maritime country, and if we are to be able to navigate even my hon. friend's ships, we must pay a little more attention to the training of sailors and officers, and $8,000 for this purpose for the whole of Canada seems a very small amount when such large amounts are spent in other directions. The education of our seamen is very important, and I should like the minister to take note of the fact that this application of Canso is especially important for my constituency.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I shall be glad to look into the matter.

Item agreed to.

Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, $18,000.

Mr. SINCLAIR: (Guysborough): What is the reason for increasing this item by $13,000?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: A serious wreck occurred at Port Weller, the entrance to the new Welland canal, and it has to be removed.

Mr. EDWARDS: In this connection I should like to call the minister's attention to a wreck at the entrance to what is called Collins' bay. Several years ago I took this matter up with the Hon. Mr. Hazen, and I regret to say that I did not make much progress. This is a case of an old vessel that was brought up from Kingston, and the owner of it apparently thought that was a very good place to drop it and leave it. It was left there as an old derelict, and some persons set fire to it. It was burned down to the water's edge, and the rest of it has remained there ever since, although the owner, Captain Donnelly, has been asked on several occasions to remove it. This wreck lies just a few inches below the surface of the water, and I know of one case where a pleasure yacht running into the bay ran up on this wreck. Inasmuch as the water in this bay is deep and vessels are apt, in case of a sudden storm arising, to run in there for shelter and this wreck is right at the entrance, steps should be taken to remove it or to compel Captain Donnelly, who, by the way, is manager and owner of the Donnelly Wrecking Company, to remove his old wreck out of this bay. I have taken this matter up with the Department of Public Works, and I am drawing it to the attention of the minister (Mr. Ballantyne) because it seems to come properly under this item. The order that was given by Mr. Hazen to remove the wreck should have been put into effect, and Captain Donnelly should have been made to remove it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is the first time that I have heard of the matter. I am glad that the hon. member has brought it to my attention, and one of my assistants has made a note of it.

Mr. MURPHY: A few minutes ago the minister referred to the fact that the greater part of this appropriation was for the removal of a wreck at the entrance of the Welland canal. Is this a steamer, and by whom is it owned?

Mr. BUTTS: Would it not be well for the hon. member for Frontenac (Mr. Edwards) as well as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries (Mr. Ballantyne) to look a little further into the law of marine insurance and see if the marine insurance company is not the one which should remove the wreck?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: In answer to the hon. member for Russell (Mr. Murphy) I might say that the Muriel W. is the name of the vessel, and it is owned by Senator Webster, of Montreal. It is one of those large wooden hull ships.

Mr. MURPHY: Was she engaged in private business, or was she chartered by the Government at the time of the wreck?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Private business. She was caught in a storm and became wrecked.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): As I understand the law, if a ship sinks and obstructs navigation, the duty of removing the wreck is not necessarily that of the Government, but that of the owner. Have any further efforts been made to get the owner of the wreck to remove this obstruction?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The hon. member is quite right. The owner of the ship should see to it that this wreck is removed. We are taking the matter up and intend to charge the owner for whatever expense may be incurred in connection with the removal.

Mr. MURPHY: I hope there is no question but that the private owner of this wreck will be made to reimburse the Government for the cost of removing it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, we will do the best we can.

Mr. MURPHY: The minister says he will do the best he can, but I am not satisfied with that statement. I want an assurance that the hon. Senator Webster will be made to pay the cost of removing that wreck.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My colleague, the Minister of Justice, advises me that we have a good legal claim against the owner, and therefore we will see that he does pay the cost.

Item agreed to.

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

To continue subsidies for wrecking plants—Quebec and British Columbia—$35,000

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): We ought to have some explanation of this item?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is an old item that has been voted every year while I have been Minister of Marine. The amount of subsidy paid to the Quebec Salvage & Wrecking Company, Limited is $25,000, and to the Pacific Salvage Company, Limited, $10,000. As far as the former company is concerned I notice that the contractors are required to pay to the Government fifty per cent of the amount of such excess which is over the rate of interest at 5½ per cent on a capital of $150,000.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): The committee would like to know whether the Quebec Salvage & Wrecking Company rendered any service during the past year for the $25,000 they received. These subsidies are very apt to be continued from year to year without any investigation as to whether the company receiving the money are rendering service or not.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I will be very glad to get a statement for the hon. member. I do not recall any serious wrecks in the river St. Lawrence, down the Gulf, or on the Pacific Coast, but in the interest of navigation the Government has always thought it wise to have these wrecking plants available. I will take a note and have the information which the hon. gentlemen or placed in his hands to-morrow.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Is there any return from these companies showing the service they performed during the year?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, there is an annual return. I will see that the return for the past year is mailed to the hon. gentleman or placed in his hands to-morrow.

Item agreed to.

Life saving Service including rewards for saving life—$90,000

Mr. CHISHOLM: Does this vote deal with the life saving stations?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes. The life saving stations have now been transferred from the naval service to the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. CHISHOLM: I notice that the minister has closed several of these stations. I want to know where those that have survived his destructive tendencies are located?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: In the province of Nova Scotia—Baker's Cove, Bay View, Blanche, Canso, Clark's Harbour, Devil's Island, Duncan Cove, Herring Cove, Scatari, Seal Island, and Westport; and the cost to the Government is $18,000. I have given orders to close up as many of these life saving stations as could be closed without running any risk of jeopardizing human life.

Mr. CHISHOLM: I am not going to discuss this question at all. I merely wish to say that I have had correspondence with the minister with regard to the Chéticamp station which was opened in 1911. It was unworthy of the minister and of his department to have closed that station, because it is the only contribution to the fishing industry in my constituency that I can credit the minister with. The only thing I wish to say now is that I am going to ask the minister to be good enough to leave the buildings there and not to sell them. I am sure the minister is convinced by this time that we are going to have a change of Government, and just as soon as that change comes we will see that this station is restored to its former status—

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not for a while yet.

Mr. CHISHOLM: —and that the minister's destructive operations will be corrected by the successors of the present Government.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am not in a combative mood this afternoon, and therefore the only thing I will say to my hon. friend is, that he will have to wait for quite a few years before his hopes are realized.

Mr. CHISHOLM: We will see; the people will decide that question.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): In former years there was a life-saving station at Whitehead in the county of Guysborough. Has it been closed?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That has been closed also, I think. I may say, quite frankly, that when I became minister I found that a great many of these stations were really political life-saving stations and nothing more. I therefore felt it to be my duty in the public interest to close them up.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I want to say to my hon. friend that Whitehead is a very dangerous point on the coast where a good many wrecks occur. The station that was located there was doing very good work, and on very many occasions not only vessels but human lives have been saved by the efforts of the crew. Now as far as politics is concerned the moment my hon. friends opposite got into power they dismissed the crew. The men had been trained for some years in their duties, and had done good work; but within two or three weeks after the election of 1911 the crew were all dismissed, and a man who was not residing at Whitehead, but lived at the time in the town of New Glasgow, although he was a former Whitehead resident, was made captain of the crew.

Mr. CHISHOLM: That was not politics, though.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): That is what happened. The new crew, of course, were not as good as the former men. I wish the minister would take note of the fact as to whether that station at Whitehead has been done away with, because, as I say, it is a very important point on the coast, and the station ought to have been continued.

Mr. EDWARDS: I would like to ask if the minister has received any request for the establishment of a life-saving station on the islands called Main Ducks, in the lower end of lake Ontario near Kingston, and if so, whether the matter has received any consideration from his department?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The matter is now receiving the attention of the department.

Mr. LEGER: Is it the intention of the department to re-open the life saving station at Richibucto?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am sorry that I cannot give any encouragement to my hon. friend that it will be re-opened.

Item agreed to.

River St. Lawrence ship channel—Maintenance and operating dredging fleet, $528,000.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Will the minister explain the reason for the increase?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The $50,000 increase is largely due to repairs to the dredging fleet.

Mr. PARENT: Are all the dredges employed on that part of the river the property of the Government?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. PARENT: Are any contracts given at all to private individuals?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: None.

Mr. PARENT: Between what points was the main part of the money spent?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Principally in the Cap à la Roche region between Montreal and Quebec, and also in the North Channel, below Quebec.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Last year when these Estimates were before the committee I asked the minister about certain dredging that ought to be done in the county of Charlevoix at Rivière St. Francois in the Baie St. Paul district. The approaches to the land are not very good, there being many rocks which make it very inconvenient to the people who travel from Quebec and Murray Bay to the various ports in that locality. If the Government would send one of their dredges to that district for a few days it would help the people a good deal. Last year the hon. minister promised to take the matter under consideration, but nothing has been done.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It has not been done by the Department of Marine simply because the matter comes under the control of my colleague, the Minister of Public Works.

Mr. PARENT: Can the minister give the committee a statement as to the depth of the channel at the present time?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We have a 30-foot channel, at low water, as my hon. friend probably knows, from Montreal to the sea. Some of the curves are 500 feet in width, and others as much as 1,100 feet. The dreding, of course, is going on constantly, but where prior to the war we had nine dredges operating, now we have only three. If I can get enough money from my colleague the Minister of Finance we may possibly put on another dredge.

Mr. PARENT: Was there not a time when the channel even so far as Three Rivers was 35 feet deep? Since then that depth has been gradually reduced to the extent just stated by my hon. friend.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: So far as I know the channel has not yet been dredged to a depth of 35 feet.

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Is the river getting any deeper on account of this dredging?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am quite sure my hon. friend has travelled between Montreal and Quebec and from Quebec to the sea. The channel is so well lighted and buoyed that one might think one was going down a city street.

Mr. PARENT: The White Way of Ottawa.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We are almost free of wrecks. When the dredging is done the channel does not refill, but it is a big contract to keep it open to the depth and width we think it ought to be. I suppose the dredging will go on as long as we live.

Mr. PARENT: Does it re-fill?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I do not think the minister quite understood my question. Are we simply dredging out the mud that comes in during the year, or are we deepening the channel year by year?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, the channel is getting deeper and wider every year.

Item agreed to.

For the maintenance and improvements of the Sorel shipyard, shops and offices as well as operating expenses, $75,000.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Will the minister explain the increase?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The $10,000 increase is for the maintenance of the shipyard wherever it has become in a bad state of repair.

Mr. NESBITT: Is that the yard where the minister repairs his dredges and so forth?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Item agreed to.

To provide an icebreaker to be used in St. Lawrence river, including maintenance of same (revote), $2,000,000.

Mr. PARENT: Will the minister explain?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This was voted last session, but when my department called for public tenders I was surprised and disappointed to find the lowest tender was $2,220,000.

Mr. PARENT: Where from?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: From the Wallace Shipbuilding company, of North Vancouver.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Come east—the tenders will be lower.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That tender was more than double the cost of a similar icebreaker called the J. D. Hazen, built in 1912 and 1913 for less than $1,000,000. I did not think I was justified in letting a contract for more than double that amount. Therefore we rejected all the tenders. I am asking for a re-vote, and now that material and labour are coming down I hope we may be able to get tenders somewhat closer to 1912 prices. I am sure all hon. gentlemen, especially those from the province of Quebec, will recognize how necessary it is to have a very powerful icebreaker. Both the Montcalm and the Lady Grey are very old icebreakers. In 1919 the Canadian Spinner and the Canadian Recruit were both caught in the ice, and had the department an icebreaker similar to the one intended to be covered by this re-vote we would have had no difficulty at all in releasing both those vessels. It is of the highest importance in the interest of navigation that we should have an icebreaker of this type, as she will enable us to keep the channel open later in the winter and to clear it earlier in the spring.

Mr. PARENT: With such a powerful vessel, has the minister in mind to keep navigation open all the year round from Quebec to the sea?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I would not like to be so ambitious as that, but we will be able to keep the channel open later in the winter and clear it earlier in the spring. If any ship should be caught in the ice, we will be able, with such a powerful icebreaker, to release her.

Mr. PEDLOW: What was the original cost of the Champlain? I see that she was sold last year for $61,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The cost was $90,000.

Mr. PEDLOW: I find that during the year the department spent $46,000 on repairs to that icebreaker. Was that amount spent after the sale had been made to the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company, owned by Lord Northcliffe?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, I have just been informed by my deputy that no money was spent on the repairs of the Champlain by us. I do not know what the company did after purchasing the ship, which was very old. The Government has not used her for a number of years, and we think that the price we got was a very good one.

Mr. PEDLOW: According to the minister, it was a fairly good price, that is, if he obtains payment. I understand that the minister has received one payment on account of this icebreaker, the Champlain, and also holds two notes that have been endorsed by a firm which is considered excellent security for the amounts of those notes. But the notes have been protested. I would like to know, if I am in order, why it is that these notes, endorsed by a good endorser, have not been collected by the Government.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am afraid that my hon. friend is a little out of order. I do not know whether he was in the House when the hon. member for Charlevoix-Montmorency (Mr. Casgrain) and the hon. member for Quebec West (Mr. Parent) discussed this matter for half an hour or so. We are now on an entirely different item, to provide an icebreaker for the St. Lawrence river. The Champlain item was passed some time ago.

Mr. PEDLOW: I appreciate that position, but we are discussing the purchase of a new icebreaker. My first question was as to why the Government was buying this new icebreaker and selling the old one. The question follows as to the disposition of the icebreaker. If I am not in order, I would like to know.

The CHAIRMAN: I fear that the hon. member is not in order. The Chairman has always endeavoured to allow the widest possible discussion on any item, but believes such discussion should be limited to the most appropriate item. In this particular instance, the matter has already been discussed for some time, as was pointed out by the hon. minister. It relates to item 205, and not to the item now under consideration. By a series of questions my hon. friend could lead up to the formation of the company which signed the notes, and that would certainly not be in order.

Mr. CRERAR: Would the minister inform me how long the period of navigation from Quebec, and also from Montreal, extends?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That depends altogether on the weather conditions. For instance, the opening of navigation this year from the port of Montreal was the earliest for some fifty odd years, the first river boat having arrived at the port of Montreal somewhere around March 28 or 29. Below Quebec, owing to the very mild and favourable winter, navigation is quite open also. But as a general rule navigation closes at the port of Montreal about November 25 or 26, and opens anywhere from April 25 to 30. As the port of Montreal opens and closes, so does the port of Quebec.

Mr. CRERAR: To what extent would this period be extended by the operation of the icebreaker which the hon. minister is proposing to build?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We hope to keep navigation open two weeks longer. We have not an icebreaker that can go through any considerable thickness of ice, and it is very necessary to have such an icebreaker. But I want hon. members to understand that unless we get a tender much lower than the one for $2,000,000 I shall not place the order.

Mr. PARENT: I think that if the hon. minister had been frank he would have told the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) that the port of Quebec is generally open about fifteen days earlier than the port of Montreal.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Quite so.

Mr. PARENT: And in that connection, if he had used the ships which are lying idle at Halifax, and sent them to Quebec we would have been doing business fifteen days earlier.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: When I made the statement in reply to the hon. member for Marquette, I meant ships bound to Montreal only. I quite realize that the port of Quebec is open nearly all the year round.

Mr. CASGRAIN: So is the port of Murray Bay.

Mr. FIELDING: As this is the only item I see for the construction of new icebreakers, I think I am in order if I again draw the attention of the minister to the desirability of the department having a better equipment for dealing with the occasional closing of the harbours on the south coast of Nova Scotia. I do not mean that there should be a two-million-dollar icebreaker for that purpose. But occasionally, in very sharp weather, some of the largest harbours are closed, and it has been found necessary to have some equipment to open them. I must do the minister the justice of saying that in every instance when the matter has been brought to the notice of the department, he has made the best use possible of the available ships, and has met the difficulty as best he could. But in other instances, we have found an inadequate equipment for that purpose. I do not propose that a powerful, expensive icebreaker should be equipped, but some vessel adapted for general service should be made sufficiently powerful to be used in that service in the winter, a vessel that would not be laid up in the summer, but would be useful all the year round, and would have sufficient power for that service when the occasional closing of those harbours occurred. I would ask the minister to keep that in mind.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I would be only too happy to do so. We were able to open the harbour of Shelburne twice this spring with the Lady Laurier, and we hope to be able to do so next spring.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I would like to be assured by the minister that when this contract is let, public tenders will be called for.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Oh, yes; I mentioned just a few moments ago that public tenders had been called for, and I thought my hon. friend was arising to compliment me upon not placing the order with the lowest tenderer because the department considered the price too high. I can assure my hon. friend that not only will tenders be called for, but that unless they are very much below $2,000,000, the Government would not feel justified in placing the contract.

Item agreed to.

Lighthouse and coast service—agencies, rents and contingencies, $215,000.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The increase of $17,000 is explained solely by an increase in the salaries granted by the Civil Service Commission.

Item agreed to.

Salaries and allowances to lighthouse keepers, $650,000.

Mr. LEGER: I would like to draw the attention of the Government again to the remuneration of the lightkeepers. At the last session of Parliament I called the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the matter, particularly to the nemuneration paid to part time employees, and we were told at that time that the $60,000, then being voted, was to increase the salaries. I understand that their salaries have been increased to the extent of from $10 to $20 per annum, which is a very small increase. The range of salaries under the present Civil Service classification is from $210 to $270. The lightkeeper who was paid $250 in 1919 has had his salary increased by $20, which makes his salary for 1920, $270. In some other classes there have been larger increases of salary and in view of the fact that the salaries of these men are very low, that there has only been an increase of from $10 to $30 since 1911 whereas the cost of living has increased in that time 150 per cent, and that the judges required an increase in salary by reason of the increase in the cost of living there is cause for protest on the part of these men. In this particular instance, we have a large class of public servants, who perform duties for which they are deserving of great credit, and on their behalf, from a reasonable point of view, I do appeal to the Government to be more considerate towards these public servants, and to allow these hard-working employees sufficient compensation to provide properly for the support of their families. I therefore hope that this question will be taken into consideration by the Government and that justice will be done to the lighthouse keepers of Canada by increasing their salaries to such an extent that will be able to make a living, anyway, for the time for which they are employed.

Mr. EDWARDS: We have not very many lighthouse keepers in my part of the country, but there are a few, and I have felt for a long time that these men have not received the consideration that is due them in the matter of salary. I merely rise to give general endorsation to the remarks of my hon. friend who has just taken his seat.

Mr. J. E. S. E. D'ANJOU (Rimouski): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I would like to say a few words in support of the request which my hon. friend from Kent (Mr. Léger) has just made. The hon. Minister of Marine has referred to an increase of this item, an increase which is due to the re-classification of the Civil Service, and I desire to call the minister's attention to the necessity of an increase of salary for lighthouse-keepers.

Mr. Chairman, there is not in the Civil Service, a class which, in my opinion, is so poorly paid than that of the lighthouse-keepers. Such increases as have been granted by this department have not been adequate to the present high cost of living. Most of the lighthouse-keepers could not make a living, were it not for their large families, for their sons who are able to work and support them. I hope, Mr. Chairman, that the Minister of Marine will take my request into consideration and that he will make sure that these lighthouse-keepers are not ignored.

Mr. P. CASGRAIN (Montmorency-Charlevoix): (Translation.) Mr. Chairman, I wish to second the request made by the hon. member from Rimouski (Mr. d'Anjou) as to an increase of salary for the lighthouse-keepers. There are several in the country of Charlevoix-Montmorency. I do not think the Government should hesitate in granting a small increase of salary to those poor lighthouse-keepers who have so much to suffer during the winter and spring seasons.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the hon. Minister of Marine to do something for this part of my county which is known as the river St. Francis. I have asked him to place an icebreaker there so that there would be an easier access to the port. This place is situated in a bay which explains the difficulty of reaching it. They are also obliged to keep lights at a high cost during the fall and the spring. I would ask the Government if it would not be possible to place a lighthouse there. If this were done, and it would not cost much, I think it might prove satisfactory to the Government.

Mr. Chairman, I do not wish to make any opposition, this is not the time, but I say that if the Government would accede to my request, I am sure that they would do well in erecting this lighthouse, it would be of such advantage to the county of Charlevoix-Montmorency which I have the honour to represent.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have listened very sympathetically to what hon. members have said about the low salaries that are paid to lighthouse keepers. The matter of the reclassification of lighthouse keepers, is in the hands of the Civil Service Commission, and I see that a sum of $40,000 has been added to the Estimates for the year 1920-21. That is all we will be able to do this year, but I am heartily in sympathy with what hon. members have said about the inadequacy of the remuneration to these lighthouse keepers. In regard to the light that my hon. friends wants, I will not put the "light in the window" for him, but I will do my very best to see that it is placed on the wharf, and I hope it will guide him in the right direction.

Item agreed to.

Maintenance and repairs to lighthouse, $800,000.

Mr. POWER: Might I ask if this item includes repairs and light?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes, it does; this is for all the lighthouses and all the lightships and the amount is just the same as last year.

Mr. POWER: Might I ask how many lights belonging to the St. Lawrence South district were repaired during the last winter, and where they were repaired?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There were four repaired at Quebec and one at Halifax.

Mr. POWER: Were any repaired at Sorel?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, none.

Mr. POWER: Might I ask how much of this item is for maintenance and how much for repairs?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend will recognize that that would be pretty difficult to answer, depending altogether on the wear and tear and the condition that the lighthouses would be in. One year the maintenance might be more and another year the repairs might be less. It is rather too difficult a question to answer.

Mr. POWER: What destinction does the minister make between "maintenance" and "repairs?"

Mr. BALLANTYNE: About half and half.

Mr. POWER: Really, the "maintenance" is "repairs."

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No.

Mr. POWER: What actual expenditure is covered by the "maintenance?"

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The principal charge is for oil, for fuel and for light.

Mr. POWER: Where is the oil purchased?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We have a War Purchasing Commission, and they make the purchase.

Mr. COPP: Does not the minister at Ottawa have his engineer make a report to him as to what repairs are necessary?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

[Mr. Ballantyne.]

Mr. COPP: The minister made his general answer, "half and half."

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I have not the engineer's report, but of course, before this amount is placed in the Estimates we will have a more detailed report.

Item agreed to.

Construction of Lights and Aids to Navigation, including regulation of traffic in the Detroit river and such other places as may be necessary, $400,000.

Mr. PARENT: May I ask the hon. minister to whom aids to navigation have been granted? Are they to private companies or individuals?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This item is for lights and buoys.

Mr. PARENT: And aids to navigation.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: That is the same thing.

Mr. POWER: Where are the lights and buoys constructed?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I am informed these buoys are constructed at different points in the Dominion of Canada, depending on where they are going to be placed, and who is the lowest tenderer.

Mr. POWER: Where are the buoys desired to be placed on the Atlantic coast constructed?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Most of them are made by the Robb Engineering Company, at Amherst, and some are made at Sorel.

Mr. POWER: By whom?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: By the Government shipyards.

Mr. FIELDING: There was a lightship at Barrington passage which outlived its usefulness. What is the minister doing about it?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We have placed a gas buoy there.

Mr. FIELDING: It is not intended to renew the lightship.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Not at the present time.

Mr. LAPOINTE: What is meant by "regulation of traffic in the Detroit river?"

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There is an international channel in the Detroit river, and the Canadian Government has an agreement with the American Government. We take care of one side of the channel and the American Government takes care of the other.

Mr. CHISHOLM: This is for the construction of new lights and lighthouses?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. CHISHOLM: The last two years I have been endeavouring to get the Government to build a small range light at Grande Etang. They assured me that this would be attended to, and I have some correspondence in my room where the officers of the Department inform me the work was to be undertaken "immediately." Well, "immediately" is quite a distance away.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: We would have put that light there before, but the department has been hard-up the last year or two. Our expenditures have been cut, but, as my hon. friend thinks we have not done what we should, I shall make a special inquiry about it and see what we can do.

Mr. CHISHOLM: The hon. gentleman is very kind. I got the same promise last year. My difficulty is this. I am always anxious to protect the Government. I told my people that such work was going to be undertaken, that the Government has provided the necessary money, and I gave them the assurance that it would be undertaken.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I assure my hon. friend in all seriousness that we will put the light there if we can. Note has been taken of it, and it will come before the Lighthouse Board, and afterwards before me.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I find an item in the report of the Auditor General that a considerable sum of money out of this vote was paid to D. D. Swan, of Montreal, for services as consulting engineer, Victoria Harbour, B.C. This gentleman received payment at the rate of $75 a day. It struck me as a large figure to pay for consultations which appeared to last for fifty-five days. I should like to know the necessity for this large payment out of this fund. It does not seem strictly connected with the maintenance of lights.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, it comes under the vote, Lighthouse and Coast Service. What we really employed Mr. Swan for was to send him out to Vancouver and look over the situation and make a complete detailed recommendation to the Department of Marine as to what developments should be provided for that most important port; and, not having any vote that we could charge it to, we thought it very properly came under Lighthouse and Coast Service, as expansion and development of navigation.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Is that a usual charge?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It is the usual charge for a marine engineer of Mr. Swan's type. He is the best harbour and marine engineer we have in this country. The Montreal Harbour Commissioners Board brought him out from England ten or twelve years ago to carry out the large improvements that were undertaken at that time at the Port of Montreal, and I understand it is the usual charge for a man of his ability and skill.

At Six o'clock the committee took recess.

After Recess

The committee resumed at Eight o'clock.

Lighthouse and coast service—single service, $75,000.

Mr. MURPHY: Will the minister explain the increase?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This increase of $10,000 is principally to cover increased telephone charges.

Mr. FIELDING: What is comprised in this item?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Signal service stations have been established to report movements of ships by means of wireless telegraphy, telegraph and telephone signals, the system extending from St. John, New Brunswick, to Halifax and Cape Race.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Is the minister having new telephone lines put up along the coast, and, if so, where?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Department of Marine have a contract with the Bell Telephone Company who have put the rates up. This $10,000 covers the increased rates for the current year.

Mr. SINCLAIR: The money goes to the Bell Telephone Company?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. FIELDING: Is there a signal station at Westport, Nova Scotia?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. FIELDING: It has been alleged that some change has been made in that respect of late, and that the old signal station has been taken down and removed to another place.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: It has been removed from the old point down to the lighthouse, at the request of the shipping interests.

Mr. FIELDING: Is it generally assumed that the change is beneficial? It has been alleged that the change is by no means suitable to the place, and that the station is not convenient to shipping, but I do not like to make the statement too positively.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The storm signal will remain where it is, but the signal service station has been moved down to the lighthouse, as I have said, at the request of the shipping interests.

Mr. FIELDING: What does the term "shipping interests" mean?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Ocean liners and steamship companies, principally the Canadian Shipping Federation of Montreal.

Mr. FIELDING: The records, if necessary, will show that the change was made at their request; is that correct?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Quite correct.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): What are the places on the coast of Nova Scotia where storm signals are operated?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is the signal service. Storm signals come under the appropriation for meteorological service.

Mr. SINCLAIR: What is this for?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: As soon as a ship passes a signal station, the person in charge telephones to the next station giving the name of the ship and the time at which it passes the station, so that if my hon. friend were coming from Liverpool to Montreal, his friends in Montreal would know at what time the ship would reach Montreal, supposing she reached Sorel at such and such a time, and Three Rivers at such and such a time.

Mr. SINCLAIR: Are there any such stations on the coast of Nova Scotia?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Partridge island, Camperdown and Westport.

Mr. PARENT: Does this item cover salaries to men in charge of the service?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Are there increases in salaries?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There has been an increase in salaries to the extent of $2,000.

[Mr. Fielding.]

Mr. COPP: I understood the additional $10,000 was for extra allowance in connection with the telephone signal service.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Telegraph and telephone, both.

Mr. COPP: I notice in the Auditor General's report of last year that $14,157.10 was paid to the Bell Telephone Company for these services. The total amount for this service after deducting provisional allowance, cost of living bonus, was only $59,000. If there is only $2,000 extra to be allowed for telephone service, I can hardly see the reason for the minister asking for an increase of $10,000 when the expenditure was only $59,000 last year.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The increase in salaries is not $2,000 but $4,000; the telegraph charges are $4,000 more and the telephone charges are $4,000 more.

Mr. COPP: Who keeps up the private telephone line between Montreal and Quebec?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The Bell Telephone Company.

Mr. COPP: They construct and keep it in repair?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. COPP: Then this amount is to pay the operators along the line of this service?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. POWER: What is the necessity for this private telephone line between Quebec and Montreal? Would it not be possible to get the same information by Marconi or otherwise?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is the promptest and most efficient service that the Department of Marine and Fisheries could possibly get. Wireless would not suit. If my hon. friend were on a ship, he would notice that the signal stations signal by flag as well as by telephone.

Mr. POWER: I am not familiar with signal service stations, but I understand the movements of ships are reported to the signal station at Quebec by wireless. Am I right?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: If the ship were coming from the ocean, she would be so reported; but when she would get into the river, the reports would be made by the signal service stations by telephone.

Mr. POWER: The signal service report is really only for ships between Quebec and Montreal.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The telephone service is just from Montreal to Quebec, and the wireless from Quebec to cape Race.

Mr. POWER: If it is possible to give satisfactory service by wireless from the lower stations to Quebec, I am not opposing the item, but I do not see the urgency of having a special wire from Quebec to Montreal. The most important reports are those that come from below Quebec when a ship is approaching Canada. Why then should we have, for the sake of reporting movements between Quebec and Montreal, a special telephone line when we already have a Marconi service? Are there special reasons?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is not a new vote; it is one that has been made for a great many years. It is necessary for the ships to get this telephone service when they are passing each other in the river, and there are many special reasons for it.

Mr. PARENT: Is this telephone used for the services of the various departments?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: No, just for navigation.

Item agreed to.

Administration of Pilotage, $250,000.

Mr. COPP: I have great pleasure in offering my congratulations to my hon. friend upon the reduction of this item from $400,000, as it was last year, to $250,000, a decrease of $150,000, providing the reduction does not in any way endanger the public service. I would, however, draw his attention to the fact that in the Auditor General's report for the year ending March 31, 1920, there appears only to have been expended for the administration of pilotage the sum of $103,000 plus the cost of a Royal Pilotage Commission amounting to $11,000. If that is all that was expended in 1920 out of a vote of $400,000 I can hardly see the necessity of voting another $250,000 this year. Perhaps there is some explanation for this, and if so, I will be very glad to hear it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: My hon. friend will remember that I put the Pilotage Act through the House three years ago taking over the pilotage districts of Halifax and St. John. That accounts for the increase in expenditure as regards those ports. The decrease shown is due to the fact that we no longer have the British Columbia Pilotage Association, it having been abolished.

Mr. PARENT: What is meant by "The Administration of Pilotage"? By whom, and in what way is this work done in the several districts of Montreal, Quebec, Halifax and St. John?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: A few years ago the pilotage district of Halifax and St. John was administered by a local pilotage commission. The department have taken those districts over and, like the districts of Montreal and Quebec, they are now under the Marine and Fisheries Department. The general superintendent of pilots stationed at the marine office here, I refer to Captain Robertson, has supervision of the pilotage districts of Montreal. All the pilotage districts of Canada are now directly under the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. PARENT: Has not Mr. Wiallard been appointed superintendent for the district of Quebec?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: He is acting superintendent for the districts of Montreal and Quebec.

Mr. PARENT: Has the minister received any communications from the Shipping Federation suggesting a decrease in the number of pilots for the district of Quebec?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Well, I have not seen the communications myself but my deputy tells me they have been received, and that the Shipping Federation are under the impression there are too many pilots.

Mr. PARENT: Upon what grounds do the Shipping Federation base that opinion? For years the pilots have given good service in the country but now it appears the Shipping Federation are asking for a reduction in their number, and suggesting that no more apprentice pilots be admitted. I think the minister should give further information as to the recommendations of the Shipping Federation and the grounds upon which they are based.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I will be very glad to tell my hon. friend that the Government and the Minister of Marine have to stand as impartial judges between the demands of the pilots on the one hand, and the demands of the shipping people on the other. Ever since I have been Minister of Marine the shipping interests have claimed there are too many pilots in the districts of Montreal and Quebec and they have urged me very strongly to reduce the number. So far the department have not done so. Furthermore the shipping people think the pilotage charges are too high, whereas the pilots themselves consider they are too low. The shipping people think there are too many pilots, and the pilots consider there are enough. That, briefly, is the situation.

Mr. PARENT: How many pilots do the Shipping Federation think would be necessary for the service?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: There are sixty pilots below Quebec and the Shipping Federation think there should only be fifty.

Mr. PARENT: Do they suggest any means whereby the number can be reduced to fifty.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Yes.

Mr. BUTTS: Would my hon. friend suggest cutting the number down to forty.

Mr. CASGRAIN: I am not a minister.

Mr. BUTTS: No, but you are making a lot of noise.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): When this matter was up last year we drew the attention of the minister to the fact that while the pilots of the St. Lawrence are pensioned, the pilots in other ports of Canada draw no pension. Has the minister any plan for treating the pilots in the other great ports of Canada in the same way as the pilots in the St. Lawrence are treated? In this connection I would like to point out that in answer to a question that I placed on the Order Paper about a week ago—it was stated there are thirty-four retired pilots in Quebec, and that some of them are officially described as " decayed " pilots. I would like the minister to define what a " decayed " pilot is?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The term "decayed" pilot is an old nautical term that we got from Trinity House very many years ago. The Quebec pilots have no more reason, on general principles, to receive a pension than the pilots in any other district of Canada, but when Mr. Justice Brodeur was Minister of Marine and Fisheries, an Order in Council was passed to the effect that when any of the Quebec pilots reached the age of sixty-five they should be placed on the retired list and given a pension of $300 a year. I do not see how the Government can relieve themselves of the responsibility devolving upon them under the agreement that was entered into at that time between the then Minister of Marine and the Quebec pilots. My own opinion is that the agreement ought to be continued.

Mr. FIELDING: Is there not a system of pensions in the case of some of the other pilots? According to my recollection the pensions of the Halifax pilots are chargeable to the pension fund, and the only difference would be that the pensions in one case would come from the pilots' own fund, and in the other case from the Dominion treasury. In that respect there is inequality. I remember when this item was put in by the hon. gentleman's predecessor it was a settlement of a long standing trouble. I have forgotten the details, but I quite agree that the minister can not do otherwise than uphold that settlement.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): I did not expect the minister to upset the agreement made with the Quebec pilots. My point was: had the minister any plan to put that system in force in the other ports. If the pilots in other ports contribute to a pension fund of their own, that is a very good thing, but the Government do not help that fund so far as I know, and I do not see that those men would be on the same level as the Quebec pilots who are paid out of government funds. Who appoints the pilots in Quebec?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The pilots of Quebec, like the pilots of other districts, serve an apprenticeship; then on passing the prescribed examinations, they are made branch pilots, and as vacancies occur they are taken on the strength.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Do they get their papers from the department?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Yes.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Guysborough): Then, if there are too many pilots, the trouble can be very easily corrected by the department restricting appointments.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: This is an old-standing difficulty, and is one of the reasons why my predecessor, Mr. Brodeur, agreed to give the pilots at Quebec a pension of $300 a year, providing that their number was reduced from 75 to 65, and that is gradually being done. On the other hand, it is rather hard to say to a young man after he has served seven years as an apprentice pilot and is ready to become a branch pilot that he cannot become one. We are meeting the difficulty by not taking on any more apprentice pilots.

Mr. PARENT: Did I understand the minister to say that the corporation of Quebec pilots is now entirely under the control of the department? If so, when did that corporation effectively disappear?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: An Act was put through the House in 1914 making the Minister of Marine the pilotage authority. That is the time when the Quebec Pilotage Association really disappeared.

Mr. PARENT: Is the minister aware that there is now a union composed of the Quebec pilots to take the place of the corporation of pilots?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I heard so.

Mr. PARENT: Is he aware that the charter of the Quebec pilots is still in existence?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I do not know.

Mr. PARENT: Perhaps he can find out from his deputy minister or from the latter's assistant?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Neither of them knows.

Mr. COPP: I notice in the Auditor General's Report that during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1920, we expended about $115,000 under this item of administration of pilotage. This year we are asked to vote $250,000. The reason for that increase, as I understood the minister, was because the department had taken over the pilotage business at the ports of St. John and Halifax. The expenses of the Montreal Pilotage Board amounted to $15,525 last year, and the Quebec Pilotage Board to about $5,000, and I submit that the expenses of the ports of Halifax and St. John would not equal those of the ports of Montreal and Quebec. Therefore we would not expect an increase of over $5,000 in each of the Maritime Province ports, besides, while we have taken over the Halifax and St. John pilotage we have relinquished the Victoria, which last year cost $19,000; consequently we should not have any increase at all.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The system is quite different in the districts of Halifax and St. John as compared with that in the districts of Quebec and Montreal. In the former we pay the salaries of the pilots, and they collect the pilotage dues; but in the latter districts the pilotage associations pay their own salaries and collect the pilotage dues.

Mr. COPP: Were the ports of St. John and Halifax under the direction of the minister during last year ending March 31?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: Halifax was.

Mr. COPP: What was the expenditure last year at Halifax?

Mr. BALLANTYNE: The St. John pilotage district was taken over on October 1, and to December 31, 1920, I see the revenue amounted to $9,379. I will try to get the expenditure in a moment or two.

Mr. COPP: If my hon. friend has not the information perhaps he would send me a memorandum of it.

Mr. BALLANTYNE: I will be very glad to do that.

Mr. PARENT: On April 4, the member for Dorchester put the following question to the Minister of Marine:

> What is the amount of superannuation paid to former pilots from Montreal-Quebec division, or to widows and dependents of same? What is the number of those pensioners? What are their names and respective ages?

This was the answer given by the minister:

> Pensions to Montreal-Quebec retired pilots and widows of retired pilots are paid out of the Montreal Decayed Pilots' Pension Fund, and is administered for the Montreal pilots by the Department of Finance.

And here follows a list. Then we come to No. 18 and we find:

> Decayed Pilot, Jean Arcand.

I would suggest to the hon. gentleman that when speaking of pilots who are still alive and enjoying pretty good health they should not be called decayed pilots; it sounds very bad.

Item agreed to.

RESOLUTION FOR ONE-SIXTH OF AMOUNT REQUIRED FOR NEXT FISCAL YEAR

Sir Henry Drayton moved:

> That a sum not exceeding $71,499,703.70, being one-sixth of the amount of each of the several items set forth in the main Estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1922, and one-sixth of the amount of the item for a provisional bonus allowance for the Inside and Outside Services of the Civil Service set forth in the supplementary Estimate for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1922, be granted to His Majesty for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1922.

Mr. FIELDING: I think, Mr. Chairman, it is practically impossible to carry a resolution of this character except by common consent of the House. I would be glad to know whether my hon. friend the Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) is prepared to receive the suggestions which we offered the other day in what I think was a friendly spirit. If it be that the suggestions then made are not to receive any consideration, why, of course, we must take advantage of whatever the rules of the House will permit. I do not think it is wise for my hon. friend to try to get this motion otherwise than by that common consent which has accompanied such motions in times past.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Mr. Chairman, I entirely agree with the hon. gentleman that this is a matter which ought to be covered by consent. I would go further —I would entirely agree with him that the consent which ought to be now given should be characterized by the same terms and in the same manner as the consents which at his requests were so frequently given during the many years he was Minister of Finance.

A suggestion was made when this matter was first under discussion that salaries should be paid and that other accounts should be stopped. I think it went further than that afterwards—to the extent that essentials should be paid. But we do not intend to pay anything except what is essential and is required to be paid. We certainly did not intend to launch out into expenditures in connection with undertakings which we are not bound to discharge when we have not got a sufficient vote to carry them through. But my position is exactly the same as the position of my hon. friend on many occasions; it is extremely hard to say in advance what is exactly necessary and what is not. On a former occasion when the same question was put my hon. friend said that he would like to know just exactly what items the Opposition were objecting to when he would consider the matter. We have not, of course, that information as yet.

I would like to point out very briefly some of the difficulties, because I think all hon. gentlemen will realize them. Suppose you take the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment. Of course, you have the salaries of your officials, but you have also your pay and allowances to the veterans who are receiving treatment or education; you have your unemployment relief; you have your operating expenses, consisting of cash advances for disbursements to meet current expenses, and so on; you have your vocational expenses, payments for supplies in connection with vocational training, tuition fees and the like; you also have your vocational loans which are being made to returned soldiers under certain circumstances.

The truth of the matter is that the country's business is a pretty big one, perhaps entirely too big a business, but it is impossible to stop it. Take for example your immigration; are we to stop all the work in connection with the Immigration Department, with the exception of payments for salaries and bills already approved? You have your rent of offices all over the country. You have the travelling expenses of agents. I suppose they would have to be stopped. You have your expenses in connection with the deportation of undesirables which has been going on all the time. You have your telegraph and telephone expenses and the necessary alterations to buildings which ought to be done this year. These alterations should be started very soon if we are going to properly look after immigration. You have your running expenses at border points of entry on the international boundary. You have all your expenses in connection with the detention and feeding of immigrants at these border points. Then in regard to the Health Department you are exactly in the same position. Going through all the departments, where there is any work to be done, this simply provides for salaries. If the money is not voted, it means for one thing that you might just as well discharge your employees, because unless these things can be looked after, unless they have something to work with and for, you are getting nothing for your salaries.

The position this year, it seems to me, is exactly the same as in any other year. There have been a great number of these votes. I have already pointed out to the House that English authority states that interim supply is an integral and necessary part of parliamentary and national finance. I have given already one authority for it; but if there is any doubt in the mind of anybody that what is asked here is not what is necessary, I am going to fortify it with another authority. I will now read from May's Parliamentary Practice, 12th edition, page 448. May says:

> Owing to our financial system, and the conditions of parliamentary business, the presentation of estimates for grants in advance upon the estimated departmental expenditure of the year, before a complete sanction has been given to that expenditure, is an annual necessity. These grants are known as "votes on account." It was hoped that the vote of the committee of supply would be taken upon the bulk of the annual estimates during the earlier portion of each session, as the financial year closes on the 31st March, and begins on the 1st April. The futility of a hope centred on the 1st April is the experience of every session. When that day comes round, session after session, very slender provision has been made for the requirements of the new financial year. Moreover, as every grant of supply is limited to the service of the financial year for which it is made, the grant lapses, if it has not been utilized before the 31st March; and under the provisions of the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act, 1866, all unexpended sums in the hands of the departments are surrendered to the exchequer. Thus, obviously, during the first quarter of each calendar year, a vote on account must be demanded; for if no grant in advance has been made upon the 31st March, the maintenance of the public service in the early part of the new financial year will be wholly unprovided for.

It seems to me it is unnecessary to refer to further authority. The matter is one which is well within the recollection and knowledge of any member of this House who has sat here any length of time. It is certainly well within the memory and recollection of my hon. friend the ex-Minister of Finance. Something was said the other day that conditions were entirely different, that at the present time there were large deficits, while, when previous interim supplies were voted, there were large surpluses. I am looking now at the Public Accounts, page 63, which gives the tabulated statement of surpluses and deficits. While I do not think the question of surpluses or deficits has anything to do with it, nevertheless I notice that in the year 1911 there was a net deficit between receipts and expenditues of $3,773,505.70.

Mr. FIELDING: A net deficit in 1911?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Yes.

Mr. FIELDING: It is only by adding the capital expenditure that the hon. gentleman can make that statement.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: The hon gentleman's point is well taken, just as well taken as was the statement made by the hon. gentleman from Gaspé (Mr. Lemieux) because if we deal with the matter in the way suggested by hon. gentlemen, then of course there was a surplus. Going back to the year 1911 again, if you forget all about capital there was a surplus of $30,000,000. Let us treat this year in the same way as the hon. gentleman thinks the matter should be treated. Treating it in the same way for 1920, there is a surplus of $45,900,000. For the present year the surplus is a great deal larger than that. If we are going to talk about surpluses, we have at least to get on common ground. We have no surpluses when we look at our capital account. We have large surpluses on our ordinary expenses and on our ordinary receipts. The hon. gentleman had surpluses on his ordinary expenditure and on his ordinary receipts. The only difference is that ours is much larger in so far as those items of the account are concerned. On the other hand, our capital expenditures are also much larger. As I was pointing out, there was a deficit in 1911 of three million odd; a deficit in 1910 of $12,338,000; a deficit in 1909, in times of peace with no war debt, of $45,969,000; and a deficit in 1908 of $14,000,000. Let us see now about interim Supplies. Take the year of the big deficit $45,969,000, that occurred in 1909. In that year the interim Supply was allowed to go, not for a sixth, but for a quarter. It seems to me the thing is too plain really to require further elaboration. If it was necessary to carry on the business of the country during the year that I am referring to, during the years my hon. friend moved interim Supply in proper conformity with Canadian practice and with British practice, if it was necessary to decently carry on public business, it is just as necessary in order to decently carry on public business now. If it was necessary to pay Canada's commitments, to observe good faith to carry on our obligations, it is just as necessary to-day. My hon. friend says it should be done by consent. I entirely agree him, and I hope this matter will be carried through by consent, as indeed, it ought to be.

Mr. FIELDING: I think some hon. gentlemen on this side of the House made some references to surpluses which perhaps justified the hon. gentleman's comment. I did not, however, and so I pass from that. I pause only to say that, if I am not mistaken, my successor in office came down to this House and announced a very handsome surplus and did not find it necessary to draw the line that my hon. friend draws now. However, there is no difference between us in substance in that respect. I am going to suggest to my hon. friend that when he is spending his time pouring over the pages of history he should not deal so much with what the late Minister of Finance said. It would be exceedingly interesting if he told us what the Prime Minister of to-day, and the late Prime Minister and what another hon. gentleman sitting on that side of the House, said at this time. It might be as interesting as what I said. After all, I think the question is not to be determined in that way. My hon. friends need not quote any authorities to prove that interim Supply is the proper thing. I have never said anything to the contrary. I quite agree that there are occasions where interim Supplies are necessary to carry on the public business, and I say now the hon. gentleman should have the interim Supply to carry on the public business, so far as he can show real urgency for it. He asks what difference there is between now and former times. There is a pretty large difference. In the times to which he referred the gross disbursements of Canada were in the vicinity of over one hundred million at the highest. Last year our disbursements were $743,000,000, they are not likely to be any less this year, and, therefore, I think there is a material change in the situation. I think what was a fourth or a fifth or a sixth some years ago is a different thing from what is a fourth, fifth or sixth to-day. I think the vast difference between the sums involved in the expenditures of former years, and the sums involved in the expenditures to-day create a very serious difference which my hon. friend ignores. I quite agree that there should be an interim Supply, and I do not confine it to salaries and labour, though they are the most urgent things. A man enjoying a modest income from the Government has not anything laid aside, and it is important that he should get his wages, and he should have priority. I would go further, and say that where my hon. friend can show that there are claims which should be paid in the interest of the Administration and fair play, I should like to have a statement of these claims, and I would like to help the hon. gentleman to get the assistance.

As to how that might be brought down there may be a difference of opinion. I have heard the suggestion made that there should be a committee, whether formal or informal, for a conference between the two sides, to agree upon the matter. I would think it might be quite possible to come to an understanding whereby we could agree on the passing of those votes. I still offer the suggestion to my hon. friend that he should try to come to some arrangement. As to the form in which it should be done, I am not prepared to say anything at the moment. But if my hon. friend is not going to get this by consent, he will find it an exceedingly difficult job to get it at all. I think the rules and practice of Parliament will virtually prevent him from getting it, except at very great trouble, inconvenience and embarrassment. I cannot recall a case where such Supply was passed, unless it was a matter of friendly agreement. I would suggest again that, by some means, my hon. friend should endeavour to satisfy us as to what are the most urgent cases, and I should like to assist him in getting Supply through to that extent.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I should should like to supplement what my friend the hon. member for Shelburne and Queen's (Mr. Fielding) has said, by drawing the attention of the Prime Minister (Mr. Meighen), and the Minister of Finance (Mr. Henry Drayton), to the concluding remarks which I made when speaking on this subject in this House on April 7. I pointed out at that time that we of the Opposition had no desire to embarrass the Government in the matter of any amount which might be necessary to pay salaries and wages, and, indeed, to carry on the public service to the extent that might be absolutely necessary. I pointed out that it was customary, when interim Supply was desired, for a conference to be held between both sides of the House, and I left the door open very wide to hon. gentlemen opposite to meet the Opposition in a friendly and courteous way in that connection. May I read the remarks with which I concluded what I said on April 7? and which will be found in Hansard at page 1743 (unrevised edition):

> But in taking this stand we have no desire to in any way embarrass or penalize the Civil Service because of any neglect on the part of the Government, we will be perfectly willing to consider any arrangement with a view of providing what may be necessary in the way of salaries both for the Inside and Outside Services. As respects other expenditures, however, we contend that except as agreed upon, this Parliament should have the full right of examining in the closest detail every item of the Estimates before voting any portion of them.

In asking this, Mr. Chairman, we are only maintaining the right of the people, through their representatives, to exercise due control over public expenditures.

My hon. friend has mentioned that there was no difference between what the Government is asking to-day and similar requests as made in previous years. May I point out to hon. gentlemen opposite that the amount which we are being asked to vote at the present time is $71,499,703.70. The total expenditure for the carrying on of the whole public service of this Dominion in the year 1902, did not reach $50,000,000; yet we are being asked by hon. gentlemen opposite to pass, within an hour or less time, a sum amounting to over $71,000,000. Until 1908, the total expenditure chargeable to Consolidated Revenue Account did not reach $70,000,000, an amount less than that which we are being asked to vote now. In 1909, the total expenditure chargeable to Consolidated Fund reached $84,000,000, plus a few thousands; in 1910, $79,000,000; and in 1911, $87,000,000 odd. Eighty seven million was the highest point reached for expenditure on Consolidated Revenue Account, prior to the change of Government which took place in 1911, an amount not very much greater than the amount which we are being asked to vote now for the purposes of interim Supply. That being the case, we feel that, in the public interest, it is absolutely necessary that due control should be exercised by the people's representatives in this Parliament over the vast expenditures which the Government are making.

9 p.m.

I wish to draw the attention of my right hon. friend to the fact that this House has been debating, for the last day or more, one item of some $8,000,000, which it has not seen its way to pass. Yet hon. gentlemen opposite propose now that we shall be forced to vote one-sixth of that amount, and thereby reverse the position which we, on this side, have taken, namely, that that expenditure is not justified under existing circumstances.

May I repeat in a word the position which we take? We are ready at any time to meet hon. gentlemen opposite in conference, to agree to give them what is necessary in the way of meeting salaries and wages for employees of the public service. We are prepared to go further and to give them what is needed to carry on the public service of this country in a manner which will not embarrass public business, which will help to maintain the good faith of the Government, and its credit, which will enable the Government to carry out commitments to which my hon. friend has referred; but this must be as a result of a conference between both sides of this House, surrounding whatever may be granted with such conditions as, in the public interest, seem to be absolutely necessary at the present time.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I sympathise with hon. gentlemen opposite in the rather awkward efforts which they are making to distinguish between conditions that obtain this year and those that have obtained for many years gone by in relation to this vote. The distinction was put on one basis last week; it is put on a wholly different basis to-day. Last week we were told: "We could not agree to interim Supply this year because, when interim Supply was voted under a former Government, there were surpluses, whereas now there are large deficits." The facts fell from under that contention, so the contention was abandoned. The facts were the contrary. The surpluses as calculated by hon. gentlemen are much greater now than they were then.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Yes, the difference between ordinary expenditure and revenue is much greater to-day than it has ever been before, and hon. gentlemen opposite have asked and obtained interim Supply when there was no surplus at all, but a huge deficit amounting to a large proportion of the whole annual revenue. The facts fell from under that contention, so the whole footing was shifted to-night. To-night we are told: "It cannot be agreed to, because there is so much money needed;" or to put the matter in other words: The necessities are so great, the reason for objecting is all the greater. In Great Britain there is interim Supply voted where the necessities are ten times as great as ours, and I have not heard of any hon. gentleman in the British House of Commons putting forward that ground for refusing interim Supply, nor do I know of any interim Supply being refused anywhere or any time upon grounds such as suggested by hon. members opposite to-night. I have looked the records back over many years to find whenever conditions were such in this, or any other House, and I know of no such case.

Hon. gentlemen opposite have shifted their grounds in other respects very materially. The leader of the Opposition (Mr. Mackenzie King), read what he said on April 7, to the effect that he was not so very much opposed to interim Supply to the extent that the public service be paid. But when he spoke in this House on March 15, that was not the position he took; he did not hold open any door then, so far as I could see. If any hon. gentleman can see any hole or opening in this door, his mental eyesight is better than mine. This is the ultimatum that the leader of the Opposition gave to the House when the question was up on March 15:

> This delay on the part of the Government is the less excusable inasmuch as the matter was expressly brought to its attention on two or three occasions during our last session.

He goes on to show that, the session before, he had told us there could be no more interim Supply:

When we were discussing Supplementary Estimates on June 7 last I took occasion to speak to the hon. Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) as follows:

I want to say, not by way of threat but simply that hon. gentlemen opposite will understand the position of the Opposition, that if the government of the day should by any possibility be in office next year we shall not be willing to make these advances.

I was referring then—and I think the Government would do well to consider this particular feature at the moment—to the practice which my hon. friend asked us to adopt of voting a portion of the Supply en bloc at the end of the fiscal year before there had been any opportunity of considering the Estimates.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Hear, hear.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Does the hon. gentlemen say that he meant there that we had asked Supply en bloc last year before any Estimates had been considered? That was not the fact. He meant that he would object this year to any vote en bloc; that is interim Supply.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Without consideration.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Nobody is asking him to vote this without consideration. We have given him time for consideration since last Thursday; in fact, we notified him first on Tuesday night, so that he has had a week for consideration now and he can have still longer. There will be an hour or so to-night, or, perhaps, still more, for consideration to be given to the matter. His statement, quoting what he said on June 7, is that he would not be willing to vote interim Supply this year. That was the ultimatum which he gave to the House.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: En bloc, yes.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Is this not en bloc?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: One-sixth without consideration would be en bloc.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Who is talking about no consideration; we have never refused consideration, never suggested such a thing. This is an interim Supply vote which is a vote en bloc, which he told us on March 15, supplementing what he said on June 7 of last year, he would not agree to vote. Now he complains because we did not go to him and beg him to recede from his position. If the hon. gentleman had not made that statement, it would have been our duty to approach him; but he notified us twice from his place in the House that he would not grant interim Supply. Now he complains that we have taken him at his word. Such is the first shift. Then when this came up on the seventh it was suggested by hon. gentlemen opposite that they were not ready to vote interim Supply, but they would vote to pay the public servants. That was as far as they were ready to go then. That is to say they were ready to pay wages and salaries to the civil servants of this country as long as the civil servants did not work—as long as we could not supply them with the material to work with. They would, for example, pay the nurses and the doctors, and other employees in the hospitals under the Department of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment but they would not buy medicines for the patients, they would not heat the buildings, and they would not pay the rent. They would vote the money to pay the salaries of engineers on irrigation works but they would not vote them supplies to go on their trips. In a word they would pay civil servants money for their services as long as they gave no value therefor. That was the position hon. gentlemen took on the seventh. But to-day they go further: They say we will vote the salaries of the civil servants but nothing else except what is necessary to be voted in order to carry on the public service. But they want to surround even such a vote of interim Supply with some conditions. I ask why surround with conditions this year when conditions were never suggested before? Is it because the amount is larger? Is it because we have to pay $15,000,000 a year on the war debt? Is that the reason for surrounding interim Supplies with conditions? Is it because we have to maintain hospitals for our soldiers at an expenditure of twenty millions or more a year? Is that a reason for surrounding interim Supplies with conditions? Is it because we have to have from forty to fifty million dollars for the land settlement of our soldiers? Is that a reason why there should be conditions? Is it because we spend thirty millions a year or more for pensions? Is that another reason? I hope hon. gentlemen opposite realize in that regard how formidable was their position on the seventh when they were ready to pay the pension commissioners, and all the officers of the commission, but they were not ready to pay any pensions.

Now what is it in the Estimates that hon. gentlemen think should be held up? What is there in those Estimates that is not necessary for the public service? If hon. gentlemen to-night—and there is yet time—will go through the Estimates and lay their finger on something that they think can profitably wait for a month or two months we are ready to consider it. But they have had plenty of time to do that. Since a week ago they have known that interim Supply would be introduced. I venture to say that never since interim Supply was first asked in this House has it been left as long—in order to enable supplies to be voted in the regular way, if possible—as it has been done in this case. We are now twelve days past the end of the fiscal year and no interim Supply has been voted. We are one week past the time when notice was given that a motion for interim Supply would be introduced. My hon. friends have had all that time to search out an item of some nature—I do not know what it could be—that is in the Estimates to which they want to take exception. We will give them a little longer time, and if there is such that it can, without any injustice at all to the public service, be omitted I have no desire to go on therewith. But we must have interim Supply or there will be paralysis of the public service of this country, and it is interim Supply that we have been notified by the leader of the Opposition officially, on two occasions, that will be denied. Consequently I ask hon. gentlemen from every side of the House what it is that has occurred that justifies an attitude never before assumed in Parliament, that justifies defiance—frank defiance first, modified defiance next, and conditional defiance now—of a practice essential to the business of Parliament. We ask only for the rights that every Government has had in other times; and while we have a majority in this House—while we have a majority ready to support us in that position—we are prepared to give all reasonable time for consideration of every reasonable suggestion, but that done we intend that the majority shall rule.

Hon. CHARLES MURPHY (Russell): If the Prime Minister intends to secure interim Supply, he has, I submit, adopted the wrong tone and the wrong language for securing it. Personally, I do not intend to have my position misrepresented by the right hon. gentleman, any more than the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) permitted him to misrepresent his position. The right hon. gentleman spoke of facts having dropped from under the position taken by hon. gentlemen on this side. Well, Sir, if anything dropped from under anybody, the ground dropped from under the right hon. gentleman this afternoon when he made an accusation against my hon. friend from Marquette, an accusation that was refuted by that hon. gentleman's reference to Hansard and by his quoting words that fell from a member of the present Government.

Now I would have thought that the generous offer that was made from this side of the House with regard to securing interim Supply by a conference, and subsequently by unanimous consent, would have been met in a very different spirit from that displayed by the Prime Minister. He has endeavoured to ridicule the language used by the leader of the Opposition by twisting the words that the latter hon. gentleman used when he referred to his statement that he would decline to grant interim Supply. Without question the words used by my hon. friend (Mr. King) on that occasion referred to the fact that he would not grant interim Supply for any of the Estimates which had not been considered and the Prime Minister, I submit, must have so understood him. In any event that is the way in which we on this side of the House understood the statement. Personally, I repeat that language and, speaking for myself, and for myself only, I decline to be a party to granting interim Supply for any item in these Estimates which, up to the present time, we have not considered. Now analogies have been sought to be drawn between conditions that exist now and those that existed in times past; and the hon. gentleman who now occupies the position of Finance Minister undertook to re-write the bookkeeping of this country for the last ten years and to make it appear to-night in this House for the first time that there were deficits in years past in which the Finance Minister occupying the position he does, and belonging to the same party that he does, declared that there were surpluses. One notable example of that was referred to by my hon. friend from Shelburne and Queen's (Mr. Fielding), who quoted what was said by the minister who occupied that position in the Borden Government in 1912 when, speaking in this House in the spring of that year, he announced a surplus of thirty odd millions and, in a spirit of playfulness, said he would give credit for one-half of it to the Laurier Administration and credit for the other half to the new administration. I refer to that only by the way. But this is the kind of argument that is used, and this is the spirit in which the generous offer from this side of the House is met.

As I mentioned a moment ago, attempts have been made to prove that conditions now differ in no respect from conditions in the past when interim Supply was asked and granted. Mr. Chairman, conditions differ vastly now from those which prevailed in times past. Generally, conditions differ to the extent which has been alluded to by the two hon. gentlemen who have preceded me in this debate. But there is another important difference which I wish to bring to the attention of the committee, and in regard to which I wish to define my own position whether any other hon. gentleman on this side agrees with me or not. The proposal has been made to pay the salaries of the civil servants. So far as I am concerned I want to qualify that. In as much as it may be regarded as expressing my personal agreement I want to qualify it to this extent—that I will not agree to vote any interim Supply which covers salaries for any of the six hundred and ninety-two new positions which are set forth in these Estimates; I will not be a party to that.

Mr. BUTTS: The labourer is not worthy of his hire.

Mr. MURPHY: According to the Estimates the Department of Insurance has 2 new positions, the Department of Health 6, the National Art Gallery 9, the Naval Service 9, the Finance Department 12, the Fisheries Department 13, the Marine Department 17, the Civil Service Commission 19, Patents and Copyright Office 19, Secretary of State's Office, 24, Department of Immigration 24, Auditor General's Office 24, Post Office Department 185 and the Department of Militia and Defence 309. I decline to be a party to granting interim Supply to cover one-sixth, or whatever the fraction may be, of the salaries provided for these new offices created in these various departments.

I decline further in view of the discussion that took place between six o'clock yesterday evening and six o'clock this evening—a discussion for which the thanks of this country are due to the gentlemen on this side who participated in it and thereby focussed attention upon this expenditure, this indefensible expenditure, in connection with this mad shipbuilding programme of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Speaking as one member on this side, I decline to be a consenting party to interim Supply that will commit me to the principle involved in that item that was discussed for that length of time and which was suspended on the motion of the Prime Minister. Now I have shown a few particulars in which present conditions differ from those in times past. I have done so simply because of a challenge thrown out by the Prime Minister. I do not do so for the purpose of preventing the Government from getting the moneys which they should get in order to carry on the public business of this country. Now, Mr. Chairman, just let me point out how much the members of the Opposition can dig out of these Estimates when left to themselves and with no further information than that which is disclosed on their face. Just let me refer to a little incident of this afternoon. On page 48 of the Estimates there appears item 211 "Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, $18,000", an increase of $13,000 over last year. The Minister of Marine was asked to explain that increase. He first of all said that it was on account of a wreck in Weller's bay in the entrance to the Welland canal. I asked the minister what this wreck was. I was told it was a large vessel as though the size of the vessel would explain the increased vote. I then asked him for the name of the vessel and the name of its owner. He gave me the name of the vessel, and then said the name of the owner was the Hon. Lorne Webster, a senator supporting this Government in the other branch of Parliament. So this Government was voting public money to benefit a supporter of theirs in the other House to the tune of $13,000, and that was a thing that was exposed this afternoon. That exposure having been drawn from the Government, the Minister of Marine was forced to promise the House that he would see that the Hon. Lorne Webster returned to the Government the money that was expended in removing the wreck of his boat. Now, that is a sample of the amount of information contained in the Estimates. If it is impossible for the Opposition—

Mr. EDWARDS: If my hon. friend will allow me. Take the item my hon. friend mentions, and suppose that interim Supply had been granted yesterday, would the granting of that have prevented this committee from refusing to pass that item.

Mr. MURPHY: I am not contending that it would, but it places those who consent in an embarrassing and very difficult position. If they criticise an item, and still more if they move to strike it out, they are liable to be told: You consented to a portion of that. I submit that hon. members should not be put in that position.

Mr. MEIGHEN: No.

Mr. MURPHY: My right hon. friend says no. I am quite prepared to accept his statement. When my hon. friend from Frontenac asked me a very proper question, I was about to say that the Prime Minister should not taunt this side of the House with having had ample time to know what they are prepared to consent to. The Government itself should make it clear to members on this side of the House what items cover matters of urgent public business, and having done that they would be met in a fair and generous spirit by the Opposition. It is impossible for hon. members on this side of the House, for the reason I have pointed out in connection with the item which I have cited, to know what moneys are urgently required and what are not. There may be some general sums in connection with certain departments, the very phrasing descriptive of which would indicate that they were urgently required, but I submit there are a great many other items in regard to which the Opposition cannot have any information unless that information is furnished by the Government. So I submit that if the Government desire to secure by unanimous consent a percentage of these Estimates necessary to carry on the public business of the country, then the whole matter should be approached in a very different manner from that in which the Prime Minister has seen fit to approach it.

The CHAIRMAN: Is it the pleasure of the committee to adopt the resolution?

Mr. FIELDING: No, Mr. Chairman, I had hoped that a general discussion would lead to some friendly understanding, because whether the Minister of Finance will credit me or not, I am sincerely anxious that we shall come to a good understanding in this matter. I regret that I have seen no signs of that, and therefore I am obliged to take the point of order that this motion is out of order and cannot be entertained. When motions are made for Supply en bloc they can only be carried by waiving all the rules of the House, and that is what I had in mind when I said that only when there was mutual agreement could such motions be passed. There is no Estimate before the House which permits this motion to be made. The Estimates contain many hundreds of votes, each of those votes is an individual resolution, and each of those resolutions must be considered separately and individually. If the hon. gentleman can come in and move that one-sixth be voted en bloc, then he could move that the other five-sixths be voted en bloc. I submit that unless there be an agreement by common consent this motion cannot be entertained. No record, I think, can be found of any such motion in previous years. When we say we will take a sixth or a fourth, as the case may be, that is not a part of any motion, although it is interesting by way of information. I submit, Sir, that my hon. friend cannot proceed in this way; he must take each one of these items and move with regard to one-sixth of that item, and we have a right to debate every one of them.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Mr. Chairman, I would like very much if I could to accommodate the hon. gentleman, but I fear it is entirely impossible to do so at this hour.

The CHAIRMAN: As the hon. member (Mr. Fielding) has raised the point of order, I would ask other hon. members to confine their remarks to the point of order now before the Chair.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Mr. Chairman, on many grounds it is impossible that the point of order can stand. The burden is on the hon. gentleman to show that a resolution on Estimates submitted to this committee cannot take any form that an hon. member chooses to put it in. It is true the practice of the House is to move one item after another. In fact, no motion is usually put; it is implied that each item is under consideration by way of motion.

Mr. FIELDING: The item is always called by the Chairman.

Mr. MEIGHEN: But to say that the motion because it takes another form is out of order so long as it relates to the Estimates that are before this committee, seems to me to be asserting something that there is no reason behind at all. If the Chair is to rule that no interim Supply in this House—and the same rule applies to the British House—can go through unless every member agrees, then it is in the power of any individual member to prevent the passing of interim Supply and to tie up the whole business of the country indefinitely. The suggestion seems to me absurd, and the consequences of it are so appalling that it is impossible to assume that it is embodied in the rules at all. The hon. gentleman said that if we voted one-fifth en bloc could also vote the remaining four-fifths. So we could, if the House chooses to go that way, but the Government never would be justified in introducing such a motion. Any Government which asked for interim Supply beyond the necessities of the State would very soon loose the confidence of the country. But it is for this committee to decide in what form it deals with the Estimates put before it, and it can deal with them in this form the same as in any other form. It is for the committee to decide by its majority whether the motion which is now before the Chair —and which is the same motion which has been before the Chair in former years— is in proper form.

Mr. FIELDING: I admit, as my right hon. friend says, that it is the same motion as has been before the Chair in former years, but with this vital difference. In former years an agreement had been come to and no exception was taken to the motion. That being the case the ordinary rules were waived. My right hon. friend says this committee can deal as it likes with these Estimates but I submit that it can only deal with them in accordance with the rules of the House. These Estimates which I hold in my hand contain several hundred items. I say the practice follows a simple principle, and if my right hon. friend can move for one-sixth en bloc he can also move for the remaining five-sixths. That is so preposterous that I am sure that my right hon. friend in his graver moments would not consider it. I make the assertion that in no case will it be found that a motion for interim Supply is in the form in which this is now presented. I think it will be found in every instance that the items are taken individually, and if they are not separately voted upon it is because the House has come to an understanding. What usually follows? There being an understanding— such an understanding as I would be glad to have now—we agree that we will take one-sixth and we allow the Clerk of the House the responsibility of preparing the items, but in no case is the motion submitted in the form in which it is now before the Chairman of this committee.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Mr. Chairman, I desire to say a word or two in support of the point of order raised by my hon. friend from Shelburne and Queen's (Mr. Fielding). The rule is perfectly clear: Every item of the Estimates must be brought before the committee by way of resolution. That is what Bourinot lays down very plainly. As my hon. friend from Shelburne and Queen's states, if it can be done otherwise for one-sixth, it can be done for the whole. That is why every year this interim Supply when granted has been granted by consent after a preliminary conference. I will call the your attention, Mr. Chairman, to the language of the right hon. member for King's, N.S. (Sir Robert Borden) who was Prime Minister for several years after having been leader of the Opposition for a lengthy period. Speaking on April 7, he said, at page 1747 of the Unrevised Hansard:

> It is perfectly obvious that you can get a vote on account only by consent, because on every item with respect to a vote on account, you could take up just as much time as you could in passing the entire Estimates. Therefore, it goes without saying that this must be by consent.

Of course my right hon. friend the present leader of the Government is more arbitrary than his predecessor was, and does not care about obtaining consent from his opponenets when he wants something to be done, but with all his cleverness he has no right to twist the rules of the House. If he will not resort to the ordinary courtesy of coming to the leader of the Opposition for a conference and consent in this matter, we certainly have the right to object to the passing of this interim Supply, and, Mr. Chairman, undoubtedly you must rule out of order the motion which is before you.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I desire to refer to one feature of the hon. gentleman's remarks. First, I observe that he still does not quote any rule upon which he asks for this rather remarkable ruling; and, next, in his references to the speech of the former Prime Minister he quotes remarks to the effect that because of the right of any hon. member, under a motion for interim Supply, to debate any item affected by that motion, it would be practically impossible to proceed except by consent. So by an abuse of the rule, there would be that practical impossibility, which abuse fortunately now can be overcome by the amendment of rule 17. That is what the former Prime Minister had in view. I have never heard it suggested in this House that the motion for interim Supply must be by unanimous consent. It never was put in that way at any time, and never was so intended by the former Prime Minister. The consequence of any such ruling would indeed be so appalling, as I said before, that I cannot conceive of its being made.

Mr. LAPOINTE: My right hon. friend said that I had not quoted any rule upon which I based my argument. I cite the following from page 416 of Bourinot:

> All these Estimates are divided into votes or resolutions, which appropriate specified sums for services specially defined. They are arranged under separate heads of expenditure, so as to give the full information upon all matters contained therein. The blue book is made up in several columns; one showing the amount, if any, voted during the previous year; another, the amount to be voted for the next year; another (where necessary), the increase or decrease of expenditure for the same service. Each resolution specifies, when necessary, every item on which there is to be a particular expenditure. For instance, under the head of a vote for harbours for a province there will be a number of distinct items, one for each harbour for which money is required. When the resolutions are under consideration in committee, it is the duty of the minister (whose Estimates are under consideration), to explain each item that appertains to his department, and in this way the House is able to come to a conclusion as to its necessity.

Nowhere can you find that it is possible to avoid this by bringing in a general resolution covering all the items of the Estimates.

Mr. DOHERTY: The hon. gentleman's citation from Bourinot has reference to how these things are done, but there is not one word suggesting that the committee is not at liberty to deal with all of these things that have been referred to it. Bourinot has told us but we all know by our own experience how this thing is done.

Mr. McMASTER: Why was it always done by consent, if the right existed in the Government to do it without consent?

Mr. DOHERTY: Because in the past Oppositions were more reasonable. I do not think I need labour what I have just pointed out. The hon. gentleman has failed to cite any authority which is opposed to us.

Mr. FIELDING: What, would my hon. friend claim that if the Minister of Finance, instead of bringing all these details from day to day, came in with a motion, and said "I move that the whole Estimate be passed en bloc," it would be a proper motion, and that we could not take exception to it under the rules of the House?

Mr. DOHERTY: I think you will recognize that the Minister of Finance in doing that would be acting most unwisely.

Mr. FIELDING: That is not the question.

Mr. DOHERTY: But if you ask me if there is any rule against doing it, I would reply with the question; where is the rule? There is a method in which the Estimates are usually dealt with, but we always come back to the question: Where is the rule that deprives the committee of the right of dealing with them en bloc?

Mr. FIELDING: Where there is a multitude of resolutions before a body, you cannot bulk the resolutions and move their adoption all at once.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: The Minister of Finance has cited page 448 of May in support of this contention. I would like to turn to page 446 of the same volume where you find the following:

> The demand by the Crown for grants of aid and supply for the service of each financial year is made in the speech from the throne at the opening of Parliament. The Sovereign addresses the Commons, demands the annual supply for the public service, and acquaints them that estimates will be laid before them of the amount that will be required. Further demands may be made during the progress of the session by messages from the Crown desiring pecuniary aid (see p. 454), by a demand for a vote of credit (see page 454), or by the presentation of an estimate. The form in which the Commons vote those supplies is a resolution that each sum be granted to His Majesty.

Mr. DOHERTY: Hear, hear.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Therefore, the inference is clear that they cannot be passed en bloc, because there must be a resolution for each sum granted to His Majesty.

The CHAIRMAN: The point of order raised by the hon. member for Queen's and Shelburne (Mr. Fielding) is that the Estimates which appear in the printed volume for the current year cannot be bulked together for the purpose of voting en bloc on account a certain proportion of the said Estimates. The hon. members who have spoken on the point of order have referred to the rule of the House, but none of the members has cited the rule. As a matter of fact, there is no rule of the House of Commons of Canada relating to the manner in which the Estimates shall be submitted to the House. There is however, a general rule, rule 1, which says:

> In all cases not provided for hereinafter or by Sessional or other Orders, the rules, usages and forms of proceeding of the House of Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in force on the first day of July, 1867, shall be followed.

Referring to Bourinot and May in order to find the precedents and the customs then in force, I find that my hon. friend the member for Quebec East did not, in citing Bourinot, cite the strongest statement in Bourinot in support of his contention. Bourinot at page 425 says:

> When the House goes into committee of supply, the Speaker will call on the chairman of committees, or in his absence, on an experienced member, to take the chair of the committee. The rules that obtain in other committees prevail also in this. Each resolution will be formally proposed from the Chair, and amendments may be made thereto. Each member is provided with a printed copy of the estimates, and the Chairman reads the vote at length from a written set of resolutions, each of which he signs when it has been adopted by the committee. As in other committees, each resolution must be proposed and discussed as a distinct question, and when it has been formally carried, no reference can be made again thereto. Neither is it regular to discuss any resolution before it has been formally proposed from the Chair. Each vote or resolution is necessarily a question in itself to be proposed, amended and put as any motion or Bill in the House.

That would make it quite clear that the Government would not have the right to vote en bloc the total Estimates for any one year. But provision has been made for an interim vote, and if hon. members will turn to page 450 of Bourinot they will see there the following statement:

> "It is an established rule," says a high authority, "that a vote on account should involve no new principle, but should merely provide for the continuation of services which had been sanctioned in the previous year; and it is the practice not to take more than two or three months' Supply, except in certain particular cases of public emergency, so that the committee in agreeing to vote on account are not pledged to the Estimates for the year in anticipation of the opportunity to be afterwards afforded of voting them in detail."

That is not very clear, but by referring to the 12th edition of Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice, at page 479, hon. members will find the following:

> The motion by which a grant on account is proposed follows the customary form. The motion states the total sum required; and the various amounts needed for each department, which compose that sum, are stated in a schedule appended to the resolution. The question proposed thereon from the Chair follows the terms of the resolution, and places the total sum, the aggregate grant, before the committee for its decision; and upon that question amendments can be moved for the reduction of the whole grant, or for the reduction or omission of the items whereof the grant is composed.

I certainly must follow the precedent just cited and rule that the resolution is quite in order.

[The Chairman.]

Mr. FIELDING: I wish to avoid any confusion, Mr. Chairman, and I understand you rule the motion is in order. In the terms of the ruling I understand we can deal by discussion and by amendment with every individual item which is included within that motion.

The CHAIRMAN: The citation upon which I base my ruling, reads as follows:

> The motion by which a grant on account is proposed follows the customary form. The motion states the total sum required; and the various amounts needed for each department, which compose that sum, are stated in a schedule appended to the resolution. The question proposed thereon from the Chair follows the terms of the resolution, and places the total sum, the aggregate grant, before the committee for its decision; and upon that question amendments can be moved for the reduction of the whole grant, or for the reduction or omission of the items whereof the grant is composed.

Mr. McMASTER: I understood from the Prime Minister's argument that he thought as this interim Supply had been granted in times past, it should, without question, be granted now, and in connection with his argument the Prime Minister endeavoured to make out that the financial condition of this country was not a serious one. He endeavoured to convey to the House the impression that we had on ordinary account a very large surplus of revenue over expenditure. I cannot think that the Prime Minister, with the sense of responsibility which that position entails, would wish to convey to this House and this country anything but the real fact, that the country's financial condition merits the serious attention of every patriotic Canadian citizen. What has been done in the past is not a precedent as to what should be done at this time, because our financial condition is so different from what it was in days gone by.

I think that perhaps members of the House may be interested in a every brief consideration of the following figures: the total expenditure of Canada for the fiscal year in which Confederation took place, 1867-68, amounted to just under thirteen and a-half millions on ordinary and on capital account. If you estimate the population of Canada at that time as three and a-half millions—and I think that is a fair computation for the purpose of my argument—you will find that the expenditure per head during that year, both on capital and ordinary account, was $3.84. Ten years afterwards, our expenditures had gone up to twenty-three and a-half millions. Our population had gone up to about four and a-half millions, and the per head expenditure amounted to $5.43. In 1887-88 our expenditure had risen to almost thirty-seven millions. The population was then over four and three-quarter millions, and the per capita expenditure—and those figures always relate to capital as well as ordinary account—amounted to $7.63. In 1897-98 the expenditure amounted to thirty-nine millions and the average per capita expenditure to $7.24 and at the end of the next decennial period, 1907-8 it had risen to just over seventy-six and a-half millions. Our population was estimated then at about seven and a-quarter millions and the per head expenditure to $10.63. In 1910-11 the former Prime Minister of this country stated that an expenditure of just over eighty-seven and three-quarter millions was a fair indication or prima facie evidence, if I remember his terms correctly, of corruption. Our population was then about seven and a-quarter millions, and the yearly expenditure amounted to $12.18 per capita. In the last year before the war the total expenditure on capital and ordinary account amounted to about one hundred and twenty-seven and a-quarter millions, and, estimating our population at seven and a-quarter million, we find an annual per head expenditure of $17.68. Last year our per head expenditure was just about $74.20, and it will be just as high this year. It is true, as the Prime Minister said, that money is badly needed; but is it not even more true that reduction in the Estimates is required, and that we must cut down the expenditures of this country?

I know that complaint against extravagance of governments by Oppositions is not a new note to be sounded in legislative halls, but the Minister of Finance has asked us to point to some expenditures to which we object, and as regards which we do not wish to take the responsibility of voting even one-sixth. I would like the representatives of business on the other side of the House, who, I trust, have some feeling of responsibility for the financial condition of the country, to do me the honour of following me in what I say and, if necessary, to turn over the Estimates and look at the figures to which I very respectfully invite their attention. On page 37 of the Estimates, I find a new drydock at Esquimalt, B.C., amount $300,000. Is that a necessary expenditure? I should like to enlist, if I could, on my side the Minister of Finance whose responsibility is very great in the premises at the present time. I would ask him whether he believes a new drydock at Esquimalt, at a cost of $300,000, is a proper expenditure in the present condition of the country's finances. I said $300,000; I was wrong; I should have said $1,300,000. It is just one million times worse than I thought it was. Then we find Toronto harbour improvements, amount $1,000,000. I have put upon the Order Paper a request for a return of the quantity of tonnage which comes into and goes out of every port in Canada, and I say that the tonnage that comes into and goes out of Toronto harbour cannot justify for one moment an expenditure of $1,000,000. The expenditure there is a great scheme of civic improvement to give a fine marine driveway or lake driveway for the people of Toronto. It is not in any degree an expenditure for the purpose of bettering the shipping of Canada. One million seven hundred thousand dollars was spent on this last year, and we are asked to spend $1,000,000 this year. I would ask hon. members who are interested in this question, which is, after all, the most important question that we have in Canada to-day—the bread and butter question, the question of expenditures of the Government—to look at page 44 of the Estimates where they will find it is proposed to spend $20,000 more on the National Gallery of Canada. No doubt it is a splendid thing to develop art and the artistic qualities and perceptions of our people; but, after all, the first thing that Canadians have to do at the present time is to cut down expenditures.

10 p.m.

I would ask hon. members to refer to page 61 of the Estimates where they will find this item: Civil aviation, $700,000. During the war, I understand that one-half of the British Air Force was manned by Canadians and that they made a grand name for themselves on the western front in air operations. With the advantage of a number of young men who have qualified themselves for work in the air, it should not have been necessary for the Government to propose to spend this amount on civil aviation, and it is a mistake to propose to spend this money because the question is not a pressing one. Then we have a Canadian air force at an amount of $825,000, and again I object to such an item. I cannot pretend to be exhaustive in this discussion; I am only picking out items here and there. I pick out this item on page 63: The Canadian Press, Ltd., $50,000. I have on previous occasions criticised this item, and it is a great mistake, for the sake of the Government and the press of this country, that one should be under any obligation to the other. The press of Canada should stand on its own feet, pay its own expenses, and look to no Government, no matter what political complexion that Government may have, for any aid. In days gone by, in the time of Queen Anne, the Grub street scribblers used to be retained by one party or the other in order to help themselves to remain in power or to get into power, I am utterly opposed to this subsidizing of the press by the Government.

I have tried to answer very briefly the challenge of the Prime Minister to indicate in the Estimates anything that fault could be found with. I cannot think, having the pleasure of the personal acquaintance of hon. gentlemen opposite, that they are altogether lost to a sense of responsibility; but may I say, in all seriousness, that the financial condition which confronts our country is of the most serious nature, and economy must be not only preached, but practised.

Mr. GUTHRIE: May I be permitted to say just one word in reference to a statement made a short time ago by the hon. member for Russell (Mr. Murphy), regarding the apparent increase in the number of employees in the Department of Militia and Defence? When the Estimates were tabled about a month ago, there was some comment in the press and in the corridors of this House, because there was a large apparent increase in the number of officials in the department. But if hon. members had read the Estimates as prepared on page 8, they would have received notice, by means of an asterisk, that the votes now submitted, and the votes previously submitted for the same purpose, differ in this respect, that in former years during the war, those who held many of the positions now tabulated under the Militia Department, were paid, not out of the funds of the Militia Department, but out of the War Vote and the Demobilization Vote which were granted from year to year. As a matter of fact, there has been, during the past year, a tremendous decrease in the employment of the Militia Department. It might well be expected that since the end of the war, employment in that department would rapidly decrease, and such being the case, a short table of figures shows the employment in that department during the war. I give these figures now to correct any misapprehension that may have arisen on the part of hon. members who hastily read the Estimates as printed.

The total number of civilian employees, temporary and permanent, at Ottawa, and in the various military districts throughout Canada for the war years, was as follows:

1914	558
1915	1,231
1916	2,875
1917	4,092
1918	5,201
1919	8,105
1920	5,900

At the present date, there are 1,386 both at headquarters and throughout the eleven military districts of Canada. When I assumed office in this department a little over a year ago, there were approximately 5,900 employees. To-day at Ottawa and throughout the districts, there is a total of 1,386. In Ottawa we have still temporary employees to the number of 805. We propose, through the Civil Service Commission, to have a list for some years to come of permanent employees to the number of 339, not 441, as printed in the Estimates. This arises for this reason: Many of these positions, which have arisen only since the war, will have to become permanent for a number of years yet to come. We shall have to maintain a staff in our record office of approximately 74 additional permanent clerks; in our separation allowance and assigned pay branch, of 50 additional permanent clerks; in the central registry, of 43 additional permanent clerks, and in other branches, of 92 additional permanent clerks. Just how long the services of these permanent clerks will be necessary one cannot more than surmise, but I should fancy for a few years, perhaps five, or in extreme cases, seven or eight years. These clerks have not been employed this year for the first time; they have been carried throughout the war. We have reduced the number now to what we believe is a minimum number for future years; but for the first time we propose to pay those clerks this year out of Militia Department vote while, during former war years, they were paid directly out of War Appropriation and Demobilization votes. The Demobilization vote this year has been reduced to some $6,000,000 or $7,000,000; last year the House will remember that it was $38,000,000. I think the explanation which I have now given will be satisfactory to the committee. I merely wanted to demonstrate that there has been no increase, but a tremendous decrease; in fact, at the present moment in the city of Ottawa, we have only 805 temporary employees; we propose to have 399, which will make a total of 1,204, and our total in the districts outside of Ottawa will be 184 temporary employees, making a total of 1,386, which we have to-day as against the total of 5,200 which we had fourteen months ago.

Mr. FIELDING: Mr. Chairman, would you be good enough to either read the resolution, or permit the clerk to do it, or kindly send it to me to read—whichever you prefer.

Resolution read by the Chairman.

Mr. FIELDING: That is the whole resolution; there is nothing more? Very well, I want to call the attention of the committee—although I do not wish to be at all technical—to the ruling given. The rule laid down by the Deputy Speaker, Sir, before you took the Chair, was that this resolution should be accompanied by a schedule. The part of the rule to which I have reference reads as follows:

The motion by which a grant on account is proposed follows the customary form.

In this case there is no customary form so I will waive that.

The motion states the total sum required; and the various amounts needed for each department, which compose that sum, are stated in a schedule appended to the resolution.

There is no schedule appended to the resolution and it is for you to consider, Sir, whether you can proceed to deal with it when it is not in conformity with the ruling of the Deputy Speaker.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Steele): The Deputy Speaker, as I understood him, did not rule that the schedule must be attached to the resolution, but he read an extract from May which said that was customary in England. It has never been the custom in Canada to annex a schedule to the resolution for votes on account and it is considered here that the printed Estimates distributed to members are sufficient for the purpose of adopting such votes on account. I would therefore consider that we can quite properly proceed with the resolution as it is before the committee.

Mr. FIELDING: I would like you to permit me, Mr. Chairman, and I bow to your ruling, to say that the ruling of the Deputy Speaker was in the words of May. He read the words from May and upon that he based his decision.

Mr. LAPOINTE: I suppose we have a right to ask questions in regard to any item in the Estimates? There is an item, number 325, asking for a vote of $80,442, to provide for salaries and contingencies for a purchasing commission. If I remember well, a Bill was introduced two years ago to create a purchasing commission but the Government had to withdraw it owing to the opposition it evoked, especially from their own supplies. Last session the Bill was again introduced for the purpose of creating a purchasing commission. Once more strong opposition to that Bill was expressed on both sides and the measure was not pressed to a vote. However we all read in the press, some time after the session was through, that an Order in Council had been passed creating such a commission. I now desire to know if the vote which is covered by this item is to pay the expenses of that purchasing commission created by Order in Council, and I would like to have all the details and particulars surrounding the creation of that body.

Mr. DOHERTY: It is quite true that there was a Bill before the House last year looking to the creation of a statutory purchasing commission with authority conferred upon it to do certain things in virtue of the provisions of that measure. However the proposed Bill did not pass and did not become law. Nevertheless, last session Parliament voted money to provide for the expenses of a purchasing commission to be constituted by the Government. That purchasing commission was constituted by Order in Council, but the Order in Council did not purport to confer upon the commission so named any qualities, functions, or powers special to itself as a distinct and independent body. It was a commission appointed by the Governor in Council —who had the general responsibility for the supervision and direction of the purchasing to be done by the different departments—to exercise, under the authority of the Governor in Council, powers of supervision and direction. For a commission of that kind money was voted at the last session of Parliament and the present item, as I understand it, is to provide for the expenses of a commission of that nature—a body quite distinct from what had been proposed to be created under statutory authority with independent powers of its own.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Then this commission does not exist under any statutory authority?

Mr. DOHERTY: There is no specific statute creating that body but, as I have endeavoured to point out, the Government has the responsibility for all the purchasing that is done. Having that responsibility it has the power to direct and the power to supervise, and it has constituted the body which I have just mentioned to exercise these powers of supervision and direction under the authority of the Governor in Council.

Mr. LAPOINTE: But the will of Parliament—as expressed last year and in the preceding year by members on both sides of the House—was that the purchasing ought to be done as formerly for every department. I would like to know from the minister what is the difference between this purchasing commission, appointed by Order in Council against the will of Parliament, and the commission that it was proposed to create under the Bill that was withdrawn last year?

Mr. DOHERTY: The hon. gentleman talks about a commission being appointed against the will of Parliament. He completely ignores what I have twice stated, and what he will find to be the fact if he refers to the Estimates of last year and to the Hansard reports of the discussion on the item which provided for the expenses of a purchasing commission. That item was adopted by Parliament after it was quite clear that the Bill was not being proceeded with. It was voted after an explanation which—as nearly as one can affirm when speaking from memory—was identical with the explanation I have given now. It was not a vote to provide for a statutory commission, because there had been no statute, but it was explained to the House what was sought to be done.

Mr. LAPOINTE: What I am anxious to know is the difference between the functions and the work of this commission and the one whose appointment Parliament refused to sanction?

Mr. DOHERTY: The difference is in the powers and authority to be exercised. The commission which it was proposed to create by statute was one upon which Parliament—if the statute had been passed—would have conferred directly the power of doing the purchasing, to be exercised independently of authority from the Government; whereas the body that is now constituted is delegated by the Governor in Council to carry out its duties of supervising and directing the purchasing, and has no independent authority derived from Parliament.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Who are the present members of the purchasing commission?

Mr. DOHERTY: The commission as at present constituted, is composed of the Minister of Interior, Mr. Howard, and Colonel Affleck.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Who is the Minister of Interior?

Mr. DOHERTY: Sir James Lougheed.

Mr. McMASTER: Would it not have been better, Mr. Chairman, when Parliament had expressed itself so emphatically against the formation of one sort of body—I hope the minister will not be impatient with me because I am always very good natured, respectful and polite towards him—

Mr. BUTTS: Do not lay it on too thick now.

Mr. McMASTER: I will endeavour to be nothing less than courteous and polite to the Minister of Justice, and I hope that equal courtesy and politeness will be shown by hon. members opposite. The point I wish to make is this: We had a debate upon the purchasing commission last year, and I think the session before, and we all remember the eloquent and businesslike speech made by the member for Lanark (Mr. Stewart) upon the subject. Now the Minister of Justice says this purchasing commission is, in some way or another, different from the purchasing commission which it was proposed to create by the Bill of last session, and if I mistake not by the Bill of the session before. Well, as I understand it, a purchasing commission must of necessity be a commission having to do with purchasing or buying, whether created by a Bill or by an Order in Council. The question I would like to put to the minister with all respect is this: Would it not have been well when Parliament declined to authorize it not to have endeavoured to introduce this purchasing commission—even though it differs somewhat from its predecessor—through a side door by way of Order in Council rather than through the front door by way of a Bill in this House?

Mr. DOHERTY: That must be done by a Bill, but Parliament having intimated that it did not desire the appointment of this statutory commission, the idea was abandoned. Parliament then said by its vote: We do authorize you to create a commission acting under the authority of the Governor in Council, and we are so satisfied you should do it that we vote you some $80,000 for the purpose. Could there be any clearer expression of the will of Parliament? They are two perfectly different things, Parliament realized that, and consequently while Parliament did not want a statutory commission, it did vote to the Government the money to provide this supervisory body to assist it in the performance of the duty that lies upon it to see that the purchasing is done to the best advantage, subject of course to any statutory rules there may be with regard to it which we have not sought to interfere with.

Mr. McMASTER: Would the minister explain the modus operandi followed by this new and alleged unobjectionable purchasing commission?

Mr. DOHERTY: I am not in a position to give the details of their operations, but in substance their functions are supervisory, if I may so express it, and advisory to the different bodies connected with each of the departments. I may say, as being that branch of it which comes most under my cognizance, that the purchasing in my own department proceeds in this way. The officers, say, in charge of the penitentiaries make requisitions for what they require, and those requisitions go in the first instance to the superintendent of the penitentiary. If he approves then they go to the purchasing agent of the Department of Justice.

Mr. McMASTER: The requisitions are made out by whom?

Mr. DOHERTY: By the warden of the penitentiary. He requires certain things, and he forwards his requisitions to the superintendent. Each requisition is sent to him for his approval or criticism. From him it goes to the purchasing agent, who also goes over it and—

Mr. McMASTER: Is that purchasing agent an officer of the commission or of the department?

Mr. DOHERTY: He is an officer of the Department of Justice. If my memory serves me right, there is a distinction in amount, and where the amount involved is under $500 the requisition goes to the deputy minister, and if he approves, it is returned to the superintendent. It is then submitted by the purchasing agent to the supervision of this purchasing commission, and the calling for tenders and so forth is done under and by the advice of that commission. When the tenders come in they are opened by one or the other purchasing agents of the department or the commission, but both are present or are represented. That, so far as I understand it is the modus operandi.

Mr. McMASTER: As so many shifts are made are not the papers likely to be lost?

Mr. DOHERTY: We are not anxious about the papers getting lost, but we are anxious to provide every possible check to see that we have our purchasing made with as close an eye to the public interest as is possible. If the hon. gentleman would reflect for a moment I think he would see the utility of having the co-operation of a body which comes into contact with all the purchasing of all the departments and with the individual officers of those departments. By this means you put at the service of all departments the united knowledge of all the transactions and you get the whole experience derived from the purchasing for all of the departments put at the service of each of them. Surely that is a very substantial advantage; at least it seems so to the Government. When Parliament authorized the Government to provide that additional protection for the public purse the Government felt it was doing nothing but its duty in providing it.

Mr. McMASTER: As far as I have followed the minister I understand the modus operandi to be this. For instance, the warden of the penitentiary wants, say, twenty beds. He writes out his requisition, which would amount to less than $500 I presume. Then he submits that first of all to the superintendent of the penitentiary; the superintendent sends the requisition along to the department's purchasing agent, and as it is under $500 it goes to the deputy minister, and is finally returned to the superintendent. Am I right?

Mr. DOHERTY: It is returned to him for the purpose of reaching the commission. That is the machinery.

Mr. McMASTER: Then does it go to the purchasing commission?

Mr. DOHERTY: I am not in a position to say whether the purchasing agent carries the document there or not, but it gets to the purchasing commission. The purchasing agent proceeds then under the direction of and with the cooperation of the purchasing commission. Let me point cut that perhaps for our purposes I have begun too far back. There are two substantial things to be decided; in the first place, should these articles be bought; in the second place, if they are to be bought, what is the most advantageous way of buying them.

Mr. LEMIEUX: It seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that you have created a body which would not be needed at all if the departments were administered as they should be with honesty and efficiency. I do not see why we should spend $90,000 a year to create an outside body from the various departments to control those departments. I have had some experience in the administration of public affairs as the head of a large spending department, and I know it was not necessary to have an outside body to judge whether or not the expenditure proposed in that department was needed. In those days they proceeded in this way. Suppose in the Post Office Department paper or ink or stamping machines or letter boxes were required, these were looked after by the officer in the department itself in charge of equipment. The requisition was made by that officer to the deputy minister, and the deputy minister presented it to the minister. If relatively a small amount not over $5,000, it was not necessary that the minister should bring the requisition before his colleagues in council; if over that amount he would have to get an Order in Council. It is the same in all departments. In the Public Works Department, for instance, you cannot go over that amount of $5,000 unless you get special authority in the Estimates or from Council.

Mr. JACOBS: Except in the Marine Department.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Except in emergency cases, and then we know how the Audit Act provides: So I do not see the reason why the Government when it had a number of officers trained in the service since confederation, should consider it necessary to spend this large sum of $90,000 on that outside body particularly when the House on two occasions declined to permit the creation of such a body. Even on the other side of the House I remember hon. gentlemen objected very strenuously to its creation. In spite of that the Government, after being refused that authority last session, created a purchasing commission. Now during the period of the war as expenditure was due, when there was really an emergency and you had no time to consider very much the prices, for time was the essence of all the contracts, I am ready to admit that under those conditions it was a good thing to have such a commission. I have already said that, as to the personnel of that commission during the war, certainly I found no fault, but the war being over, and departments having resumed their natural functions, the various departments came within the normal conditions, as we all did, and it was the duty of the Government to do away with any such expenditure. Such was the desire of Parliament, because on two occasions the then President of the Privy Council was very insistent that this vote should carry, and that this authority be given to this new body. Parliament refused. The members on this side of the House fought as strenuously as we did those on the other side of the House. I say, then, this lack of confidence is in their own followers, but I would place the lack of confidence above the followers. It is a lack of confidence in the authority of Parliament that has been shown in the present instance by the Government, and I have no hesitation in proposing to do away with that expenditure. I would, therefore, move that that item be struck out.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Steele): I would like to point out that a motion to strike out would not be in order.

Mr. BELAND: For what reason? The Deputy Speaker has ruled, quoting May, that a sheet and schedule should be annexed to the resolution, specifying every amount and each amount from each department. That would carry with it permission for the committee to discuss any of these special items mentioned in the list that should be annexed to the resolution, and if we grant to the committee the right of discussing each item included in the list that should be annexed, then it goes without argument that we have the right equally to move for a reduction, of the striking out, of such an item in that list. I think that my hon. friend the member for Maisonneuve, has a perfect right, and that it is in keeping with the ruling of the Deputy Speaker to move that one-sixth of the amount in the main Estimates for the purchasing commission should be struck out. I would like to have your ruling upon that.

The CHAIRMAN: A motion of that nature is purely a negative motion which, under the rules of the House, is never in order.

Mr. LAPOINTE: I would like to discuss the point of order before you give a ruling. I quite understand that if we were moving to strike out the whole resolution it would be a purely negative motion, but that is not what my hon. friend for Maisonneuve is doing. The resolution is general. It asks to us to vote $70,000,000 en bloc, and my hon. friend for Maisonneuve asks that out of this amount of $70,000,000 an amount of $80,000 be struck out. Surely this is not a motion to negative the whole resolution, and the chairman specifically stated in his ruling that we would have to move to strike out any of the items forming the whole resolution.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I think the hon. gentleman is not quite right as to what is before the committee. In order to get a clear appreciation of it, let us understand what the real practice is, what we are talking about, what we are voting on and what flows from that. In the first instance, we do not, by this vote, either challenge, approve or endorse a single item in the Estimates. The whole of them are left open absolutely. I will take what has been the practice of this House. At page 5595 of the Hansard of 1903 the then Finance Minister said:

> I propose that the House give us a vote of credit for one-fifth of the total sum. The effect of this will be to give us a Supply for about two months. All the matters that can be discussed in connection with these votes will, of course, still remain before the House, and we will have to take these up item by item for the purpose of obtaining the remaining four-fifths of the Estimates. So that the course we now propose does not in any way restrict the fullest and freest discussion. It simply facilitates the granting of a partial supply which will be very much needed before the end of the present month.

And the then leader of the Opposition said:

> The only question which suggests itself to me is as to the effect of the proposed resolution upon items which there might be a motion to strike out, or upon items which eventually might be dropped.

That is the furthest the hon. gentleman ever went. The Minister of Finance said:

> I admit that would be a proper criticism; and if any particular item were indicated as likely to be the subject of debate I would strike it out of the present motion, but if such a motion should be presented later it would apply to the four-fifths.

Mr. CAHILL: That is all based on understanding.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: To this effect: that every item is open to the fullest discussion.

Mr. JACOBS: What are we here for?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: To enable business to be carried on; to try to get money to continue to do business here. There has been ten times more discussion this year than there has ever been before.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Will my hon. friend allow me to say that if he were debating this point with the decision of the Chairman in his mind he would probably alter his judgment. What I am asking now of this committee is that a certain specified amount be omitted from the schedule which is supposed to be annexed to the motion which was made by my hon. friend a moment ago. Suppose that my motion is ruled out, my hon. friend will realize that one-sixth of an item which I want completely omitted will be voted upon. Is that logical? I am against this whole amount which gives life to a commission and a body, the existence of which was refused on two previous occasions by this Parliament, and if we now vote one-sixth of the $80,000 the principle is admitted, and later on it will be absolutely illogical for me to comment and propose its omission. But my friend, as I submit with all due courtesy, has not lived up to the decision of the Chair. The Chairman quoted from May at page 479 as follows:

> The motion by which a grant on account is proposed follows the customary form. The motion states the total sum required; and the various amounts needed for each department, which compose that sum, are stated in a schedule appended to the resolution. The question proposed thereon from the Chair follows the terms of the resolution, and places the total sum, the aggregate grant, before the committee for its decision; and upon that question amendments can be moved for the reduction of the whole grant, or for the reduction or omission of the items whereof the grant is composed.

I claim, Mr. Chairman, with all due deference to my hon. friend, that when I proposed to have this item 325 omitted from the schedule, I am simply living up to the decision which was rendered by my hon. friend the Chairman of the committee, because if I vote one-sixth now, without being allowed the privilege, which under ordinary circumstances I could not be denied, it is no use discussing it in any shape or form at any later date.

Mr. EDWARDS: If the hon. member votes one-sixth interim Supply, does he say that he is precluded, if that vote carries, from moving to strike out the whole of this item subsequently.

Mr. LEMIEUX: When one-sixth is voted, yes.

Mr. EDWARDS: It has been done from time immemorial. I have noticed session after session, when I was on the Opposition side, that the interim Supply was voted and whole items were subsequently cut out or reduced. I can refer to items in regard to which that was done.

Mr. LEMIEUX: When this one-sixth is voted, if it is voted, without giving opportunity to move an amendment, if one-sixth is voted on this particular item, there will be a Bill based on the resolution. It will be sanctioned by His Excellency the Governor General, it will be the law of the land, and no power on earth can do away with that one-sixth. It will be voted, and it can be spent at the sweet will of the Government. I object, not to the whole grant—because we recognize His Majesty's Government must be carried on—but I object to that particular item; so did my hon. friend from Simcoe (Mr. Currie). I am not sure if my hon. friend did not object to that item at the previous session. My hon. friend from Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) objected to it. Several of the hon. gentlemen on the other side objected to it. That is not factious opposition.

Mr. EDWARDS: Absolutely.

Mr. LEMIEUX: No.

Mr. EDWARDS: My hon. friend takes objection—

Mr. LEMIEUX: To one item.

Mr. EDWARDS: And the hon. gentleman behind him takes exception to another item, and so each one goes ahead and absolutely nullifies the vote we propose to put through, keeping the thing going for a month, if necessary, in regard to this interim Supply—absolute obstruction, nothing else.

Mr. BUTTS: My hon. friend from Maisonneuve is a lawyer, I understand,—perhaps like myself, not very much of a lawyer. He knows, however, that old expression of the law that speaks about the omnipotence of Parliament.

An hon. MEMBER: Where is that?

Mr. BUTTS: In Blackstone. If we pass a vote to-night, what difference does it make whether we are right or wrong? Parliament is omnipotent.

[Mr. Edwards.]

The CHAIRMAN: If I may be allowed, it will, perhaps, be easy for me to meet the wishes of hon. gentlemen on both sides of the House by slightly changing the wording of the amendment as proposed. I understand, before I entered the chamber, that an amendment was moved by the hon. member for Maisonneuve (Mr. Lemieux) to strike out item 325 from the schedule to the Bill. Strickly speaking, as was pointed out by the hon. member who occupied the Chair, the amendment in that form would not be in order because you would be omitting $80,442.96 from the total vote, whereas I think the intention of the hon. member is to omit one-sixth of that amount. He certainly has a right to omit from the total amount, one-sixth of the amount of this item.

Mr. LEMIEUX: That is correct.

The CHAIRMAN: I would suggest that the amendment be made in this form:

That the total amount mentioned in the resolution be reduced by the sum of $13,407.16, being one-sixth, of the amount of item No. 325 for salaries and contingencies of the Purchasing commission and that said item be not included in the schedule to said resolution.

Mr. LEMIEUX: That meets my intention. I had not made the calculation, but I certainly said that I moved to reduce this item by one-sixth.

Mr. BELAND: The Chairman has figured this out accurately; I made it out myself that one-sixth amounted to $13,-407.16. I have to differ with the hon. member for Frontenac (Mr. Edwards), in his contention that, when these $13,000 odd is voted, if later, when the House is in Committee of Supply and item No. 325, amount $80,442.96, is under consideration, an hon. member should move to strike it out and the committee should support the amendment, the amount of $80,442.96 would be struck out of the public expenditure of this country. I will try to explain to my hon. friend how this may come about. It is intended now to get from the committee a vote equal to one-sixth of the total amount of the Estimates. This vote would cover about two months of the fiscal year which commenced on April 1. Let us suppose now that the session lasts until July, and further, that the item in question is brought down for the consideration of the committee some time in July. Is it not probable that the $13,407.16 that we would vote to-night, might be expended? What recourse will my hon. friend have to get this money back into the treasury, if, in accordance with a Bill passed by this Parliament to-night, or to-morrow, or next week, the minister is permitted to expend the money? There is no recourse whatever. The $13,000 will be spent.

Mr. EDWARDS: My answer is, that in voting one-sixth of the total Supply, you are not separating each individual amount. If you were separating each individual amount in the one-sixth and applying the vote to each individual item, my hon. friend's contention would hold good. You are voting one-sixth of the total amount, and as I understand the ruling of the Chairman, that does not preclude any person from subsequently striking out any item in the Estimates in whole or in part.

Mr. STEVENS: This amount is largely for salaries of clerks and officials of this commission, so-called. Two weeks have already passed since the beginning of the fiscal year and there is no money to pay them for the two weeks. This institution is carrying on business. By this amendment, if it carries, we refuse Supply for amounts already in a sense expended, and so close this institution right up. When I say "already expended" I mean that services have been rendered to the country by these officials and nothing has been paid. So much for that part of the matter. I hesitate to delay the committee, but I am a member who is wholly in favour of this purchasing department, and I will give one or two simple illustrations of its value. I have not, under my hand, information that I had on a former occasion. Take, for instance, the question of purchasing of bedding. I understand some of my hon. friends say that they do not want a general discussion of this item, but in view of the opposition made to it, I have a right to express my views in support of it. I am opposed to the striking out of this item for the reasons already mentioned, and this additional reason, that this commission has given good service and has saved a good deal of money to the country, and that if the item were under proper consideration, we might have full information to that effect. Before the committee passes upon this item, we ought to have before us full information as to the value of the services of the commission. For those reasons I support the passing of this one-sixth vote to pay the expenses of the commission up to the present time and to continue it until the item is under consideration.

11 p.m.

Mr. LEMIEUX: My hon. friend says that he is in favour of this body called the purchasing commission. I respect his views; but unfortunately, he was in a minority, and the Government chose to ignore the will of Parliament expressed during two different sessions. My hon. friend says: "The poor officers of that body are awaiting their salaries." I have much sympathy for them, but the responsible party is the Government. Why did the Government, in spite of Parliament, in spite of the expression of opinion on both sides of the House, immediately after the session was over, ignore the will of Parliament and create that body? Parliament is supreme. The hon. member for Cape Breton South and Richmond (Mr. Butts), said a moment ago that Parliament was omnipotent. I do not like that expression, but let us say that it is the true expression. Parliament has not been omnipotent in the present instance; the will of Parliament has been disregarded.

Mr. BUTTS: The opposition was weak.

Mr. LEMIEUX: The Government assumed to itself the will of Parliament and created that body. I have much sympathy for the officers of the commission, who, as my hon. friend says, are awaiting their salaries, but the country is entitled to be respected. Members on both sides represent the electors of this country, we have been sent here to check the expenditures of the Government, and not a cent can be spent by this Government without its being voted by Parliament. Parliament has refused on two occasions to vote that amount, to create that body.

Mr. DOHERTY: A vote was passed last year.

Mr. LEMIEUX: But the vote was to meet a condition to be created by Parliament. An amount was put in the Estimates, but along with this amount a Bill was introduced, and that Bill was combatted by both sides of the House and was finally withdrawn. Yet as soon as Parliament prorogued and the members dispersed, the Government took upon itself to create that body, ignoring the will of this House.

Mr. DOHERTY: I am sure the hon. member would not want to mislead intentionally. Parliament voted that amount of money, after Parliament knew that no Act was going to be passed, for the purpose of providing for the totally different body which, I have pointed out, was explained at the time and has been explained since. When the hon. gentleman persists and will persist in saying that this commission was created against the will of Parliament, he persists in absolutely confusing two totally different things, one thing which Parliament said it would not have, and another thing which Parliament said it was willing to provide for, one thing that took the absolute control out of the hands of the executive Government to put it into the hands of a body created by statute, and a totally different thing which, leaving the control and the responsibility in the hands of the executive Government, provided for their having suitable agents to aid in the carrying out of that business. Whatever may be right or may be wrong about the principle of the commission, when Parliament comes to deal with the other five-sixths, it will have that principle before it to deal with. What is it that the hon. members' amendment asks us to do? It asks us to say that these clerks and employees, who are engaged in a presently existing service, as regards which it is not anticipated that we may for some time reach the consideration of the item as a whole providing for that expenditure, and who will necessarily go on working in the interval, shall work for two months for nothing. Parliament will be in a position to decide upon the entire principle when we come to deal with the five-sixths. It does not commend itself to my judgment to suggest that, before we come to deal with the entire principle and to determine it, we should take off that two months' pay from those persons whose operations will go on in the meantime. Let us get down to common sense and realize what it is that is before us, however we may technically discuss this matter. One thing is beyond peradventure, that the worst that can happen in regard to anyone of these items is that two months expenditure could be made even though Parliament should ultimately determine not to carry on the operation at all. And when it is the case, as in this particular instance, that the worst thing that can happen is that two months' pay will go to officers who will have done two months' work—even if Parliament finally decided not to carry on this work for the future—I do sumbit to the common-sense judgment of the House that the right time to settle the principle is when you are dealing with the great and substantial vote, and when you can deal with it and settle it once and for all, and not endeavour to do so when it is merely a question of voting two months' pay for all these employees.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Surely my right hon. friend would not think that I would misrepresent the facts of the case.

Mr. DOHERTY: I did not say so.

Mr. LEMIEUX: I inferred that from the argument my right hon. friend advanced a moment ago.

Mr. DOHERTY: I think the hon. gentleman does misunderstand the facts of the case.

Mr. LEMIEUX: I do not misunderstand them and I am young enough to have a good memory. I tell my hon. friend that during the period of the war a commission was instituted by the Government with a view to the purchase of the various equipments that were necessary, and in order to review some of the war contracts. That was the commission presided over by Sir Hermisdas Laporte. After the commission had completed its work, and after the war was over, it made a report asking the Government to make it a permanent body, representing that it would be an excellent idea if there was a permanent purchasing commission. That idea was embodied in a Bill which was introduced two years ago by the then President of the Privy Council (Mr. Rowell). It was combatted with much vigor by gentlemen on both sides and the measure was withdrawn. Last year it was decided to re-introduce the Bill embodying the exact principles cited a moment ago by my hon. friend and, under the assumption that Parliament this time would not oppose the legislation, an amount was placed in the Estimates for the purpose of creating the organization. But Parliament—with a persistence that I can only admire—again made its opposition felt, and again members on both sides stood firm in their objections. I see my hon. friend from Dufferin (Mr. Best) shaking his head but he was one of those who continued to oppose the Bill—in fact there were many on the Government side who took that course. Have not the various ministers in the Government the necessary authority to control the expenditures in their departments, and have they not enough confidence in their own personal honesty to exercise that control? Why should they have such an external body as this to purchase the supplies needed by their departments and to supervise the acts of their employees? There is in every department the necessary machinery to supervise the purchasing of supplies and the purchasing of equipment, and there is no need for such a body as this. Mr. Chairman, we cannot understand how the Minister of Justice can so explain this item, in view of the withdrawal of the Bill referred to, as to make it clear, in his own way, that it is a totally different body from the one contemplated last year and the year before. I see hon. gentlemen opposite me who expressed opposition to this proposal, and I trust their memory and their honour in this matter. Is not this item regarded as a way out of the impasse in which the former President of the Privy Council found himself after the experience of the last two sessions of Parliament? He could not succeed in passing the legislation because it was opposed as much by members on the Government side as by members on this side. And yet the Government now comes forward with this proposal. They have ignored and disregarded the opinion of Parliament, but they now come here and say "You must pass this item because we have decided by Order-in-Council to create this body in spite of your opposition." I have more regard for the authority of Parliament than to expect that such a proposition will be successful. I say that Parliament is the supreme master in this question, and we have the right to say now if we approve of the principle involved. I say further that if we now vote one-sixth of the Estimate we are committed to the principle which Parliament last year, and the year before, opposed. Therefore, let us reduce this item by one-sixth, and Parliament will then have expressed its opinion as to the necessity of having such an external body foisted on the country when the country is simply hungry for economy and still more economy. My right hon. friend may think I am lacking in sincerity, but I hope not, because from what is happening outside and from what news he may receive—not only from Canada but from Great Britain—he must realize that this great country of ours is in very serious difficulties at this very moment. Why, Mr. Chairman, is it not a time not only to speak of economy but to practise it? There is a payment due and overdue in London—

Hon. Mr. REID: Oh, no.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Yes, that payment was not contingent on the arbitration in connection with the Grand Trunk. I remember well the legislation passed by Parliament, and this payment of the coupons of the Grand Trunk was not contingent on the arbitration now going on. Yet the shareholders of that company are denied their payments—a payment guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada. People say that there is no money in the Exchequer to meet the obligation of Canada. I do not believe that but at all events, be that as it may, in view of that circumstance, and in view of many others, is it not time for us not only to speak of economy but to practise it? The Minister of Finance should not only practise economy in the ordinary sense of the term but he should adopt a policy of cheese-paring. We are living in a fool's paradise. We have been so accustomed to speak of millions, and even billions, during the last few years that we have lost all sense of proportion, and the country is facing a very heavy bill of taxation. If you do not cut down the expenditure when it is useless expenditure, as in the present instance, how can you ask the people of this country to tax themselves to the limit as they are doing? They have taxed themselves last year and they are ready to do it again provided there is adequate justification. But who is there in the Government who is practising economy, instead of merely preaching it? Look at the volume of the Estimates with which Parliament is now called upon to deal—the figures are simply appalling. We are spending our time looking at each other and deprecating the huge financial commitments of the country and yet no one applies the pruning knife. Why not begin by applying the pruning knife to this very unnecessary appendage to the various departments of the Government?

Mr. NICHOLSON (Algoma): I would like to concur in the idea that it is impossible for the committee, with the information at present available to discuss such items as this with intelligence. If we did so in regard to this item we would necessarily have the right to discuss every other item in the Estimates in the same way. The question has been raised here as to whether we commit ourselves to the whole of the items in the Estimates by simply passing one-sixth. Hon. members opposite have said that we cannot consistently move to reduce a single item if we pass this one-sixth to-night. But I would remind hon. gentlemen that on June 30, last, as will be seen by a reference to page 4549 of last year's Hansard, the leader of the Opposition, when the Committee of Supply were considering an item of $6,500,000 for the Permanent Force in the Estimate of the Department of Militia, moved to reduce the item by $1,000,000. Was he within his rights in doing so or was he not? Without presuming to give an opinion as to what the parliamentary practice is, I submit that common-sense would suggest that the hon. gentleman was within his rights and yet interim Supply had previously been voted on this item as well as on all other items. I think, if my memory serves me right, without referring to the records, the leader of the Opposition, subsequent to that date last year, voted to reduce several other items in the Estimates. I presume he will do the same this year; it will be his right to do so. There are items in the Estimates which hon. members may wish to scrutinize, and even to criticise, and they can only do that when the minister in charge of the department, with his officials, is here to explain why the vote is being asked and what work is being accomplished in connection with the expenditures for which authority is sought. Again I say that if the contention is sound that we cannot reduce or change any item because of voting this interim Supply of one-sixth, then the committee might just as well vote the one-sixth and go home, because there is no use discussing the Estimates in any shape or form.

Mr. BELAND: I am absolutely unable to see the point that is being made by the hon. gentleman. We never contended that we could not move later on to strike out five-sixths of the total amount. Of course, we can do it because five-sixths have not been voted. But our contention is that once you have voted one-sixth, and it is expended, surely my hon. friend will not pretend that you can strike it out. That is the point we are making.

Mr. CURRIE: That is not the point.

Mr. BELAND: My hon. friend says that it is possible for you later to move that one-sixth or a certain amount or any portion of an item may be stricken out; we know that very well. In the case my hon. friend has quoted of the leader of the Opposition last year moving that an item of, I think he said, $6,000,000 should be reduced by $1,000,000 we have an example that it can be done. There is no objection to that, and we have never said anything to the contrary. He could have moved that the $6,000,000 be reduced by $5,000,000 for that matter, because the $5,000,000 had not been voted; but as to the sixth million, he could not have moved to reduce or strike it out because probably it had been expended by that time. My hon. friend sees the point?

[Mr. Nicholson.]

Mr. DOHERTY: It seems to me quite clear from the line that is now being adopted, and while I have respect for the sincerity of hon. gentlemen, from what seems to me to be quite manifest as the end if not sought to be obtained, the end that will be reached by this method of dealing with a motion for interim Supply, namely, to prevent us dealing with this motion within the time in which it is required. If hon. gentlemen persist in ignoring what is clear I think beyond the possibility of doubt, that every principle remains intact, even after we have voted this one-sixth, and every resolution and the principle underlying it is still open for discussion to everybody concerned—

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Will my hon. friend allow me a question? If we vote this one-sixth for instance for this purchasing commission, which is $13,000, will the Government have the right to spend that $13,000?

Mr. DOHERTY: Certainly there would be a right to spend that $13,000, which will involve this awful thing—

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Will he allow me another question?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. DOHERTY: I do not propose to be cross-examined.

Mr. RINFRET: You cannot stand it.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: We are in committee.

Mr. DOHERTY: The hon. gentleman says I cannot stand it. I am a man of pretty equable temper and considerable patience—

Mr. JACOBS: Hear, hear.

Mr. DOHERTY: But I am in the face of opposition that can wear out even my patience when it becomes so perfectly manifest that we are having an attempt simply to defeat the purpose of this motion for interim Supply. The motion is valuable only on condition that it is promptly passed. The only thing that justifies it is that we are called upon to take immediate action, even at the risk of paying a few men's salaries for a couple of months where we might decide in the future to abolish their office. We are asked to take that risk. Why? Because the public business must be carried on, and because we have behind us the experience of parliaments from time immemorial. Interim votes of this kind, without splitting them up and trying to cut down particular items, have been passed year after year, and it has been so conceded that hon. gentlemen have thought that it was necessarily a matter of common consent. Now, in the face of that I beg to move, Mr. Chairman, that the further consideration of this resolution be postponed.

Mr. PARENT: The old trick.

The CHAIRMAN: Mr. Doherty moves that the further consideration of the proposed resolution be now postponed. Is it the pleasure of the committee to adopt the motion?

Motion agreed to.

Mr. LAPOINTE: I understand that we are prevented asking any questions about advance Estimates?

The CHAIRMAN: The motion made by the Minister of Justice is not debatable under the new rule 17a, and therefore, it cannot be debated.

Mr. RINFRET: It is just a question of debate.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Is this fair treatment of Parliament?

Mr. RINFRET: It is gagging.

Mr. LEMIEUX: What becomes of my amendment?

The CHAIRMAN: When the resolution is again before the committee the amendment must be disposed of.

Mr. LAPOINTE: The Government will not gain anything by this harsh action.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order, order.

Mr. RINFRET: The Tories are in.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: The Germans are here now.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Mr. Chairman, may I be allowed to ask a question?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order, order.

The CHAIRMAN: The hon. leader of the Opposition has made a request that he be allowed to ask a question of the Government. Strictly speaking he would not have the right to do so, as there is now no resolution under consideration, but I feel sure that the privilege will be granted to him by unanimous consent of the committee.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I would like to ask my right hon. friend if the Government has any obligation to meet these payments before the end of the present month?

Mr. DOHERTY: I am not in a position to say on what dates all of these payments come due but certainly there must be innumerable payments which will become due before the end of this month.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Perhaps I could give some information which I know the hon member for Maisonneuve (Mr. Lemieux) would be glad to get. He says that we are ignoring our responsibilities in the English money market. We want to be able to discharge them. He has expressed great anxiety that Canada's fair name is suffering in England. I may tell him and the committee that as a matter of fact payments there will become due within two days, and this interim Supply is to enable those payments to be discharged.

Canals—Welland ship canal construction, $5,000,000; Trent canal—construction and betterments, $339,000.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Will the minister tell us what construction has been done this year on the Welland ship canal?

Hon. Mr. REID: Four contractors have been working for the last two or three years.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Were the contracts given by tender, and what were the amounts?

Hon. Mr. REID: The original contracts were given by tender, but shortly after the war broke out those contracts were cancelled. Last year the officials of the department did not think that it was in the public interest to call for tenders on account of the very high cost of labour and materials, and contracts were given on a cost plus basis, terminable at any time and not to extend longer than December 31, last. At that time we again extended the contract for 1921 on the same basis. When we decided to do that last January we believed it would be far better if we could let the work by public tender. Accordingly the officials of the department were instructed to prepare plans and call for tenders at the earliest possible date. Plans were ready for section five and three tenders were received last Thursday.

Mr. BELAND: Did the minister say there were five sections or four?

Hon. Mr. REID: No. There are nine sections altogether, but prior to the war tenders were called for and contracts let for sections 1, 2, 3 and 5, which were cancelled later as I have stated, and the contractors were allowed to continue on a cost plus basis. We received tenders for section 5 last Thursday, and an Order in Council will be passed to-morrow or next day awarding the contract. The other three sections on which work is continuing, on the cost plus basis, will be let by tender within a very short time just as soon as the officers of the department can get the specifications ready.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: What are the names of the present contractors?

Mr. DOHERTY: If the hon. gentleman will pardon me for interrupting. It has been suggested to me that we had a fairly long session last night we should not unduly prolong the sitting this afternoon. However, before moving that the committee rise, I desire Mr. Chairman, to give the following notice:

That at the next sitting of the Committee of Supply I shall move that the further consideration of Resolution No. 218 as printed at page 49 of the Estimates for the current fiscal year and the further consideration of the resolution proposed this day for interim Supply, shall be the first order of business of the committee and shall not further be postponed.

Progress reported.

On motion of Right Hon. Mr. Doherty the House adjourned at 11.45 p.m.

INDEX

FIFTH SESSION — THIRTEENTH PARLIAMENT, 1921

Abbreviations.—1r., 2r., 3r.,=first, second, or third reading. Admn.=Administration. Amdt.=Amendment. Com.=Committee. Dept.=Department. Div.=Division. Govt.=Government. M.=Motion. Neg.=Negatived. Qu.=Question. Ref.=Reference. Rep.=Report. Res.=Resolution. Sec.=Section.

Abbatoirs. See Health of Animals; Live stock

Abitibi District, 3075
Grievances of settlers, 2510

Accounts. See Finance; Public Accounts

Accredited Herd. See Health of Animals

Adams, Capt. Henry C., and Canadian Navy Enquiry, 901; qu. 1237

Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 5, 40, 66, 110, 154, 188, 230, 244, 262, 313, 351, 397, 448, 479. Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Campbell), adjournment, neg.; Amdt. (Mr. Mackenzie King) non-confidence, neg. Address agreed to, 561

Ad Hoc Judge, 1084. See also Judges Act Amdt.

Adjournment. See House of Commons

Administration of Justice. See Justice

Admiralty Courts. See Vice Admiralty

Adulteration of Food Act Amdt.
Administration, 3129
Maple Products, 888. See also that title

Advisory Council of Scientic Research. See Research

Aeronautics, etc. See Air

Aeroplanes. See Air

Age of Consent. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Age Limit. See Prisons

Agenda. See Prime Ministers' Conference

Agrarian Party. See Progressive Party

Agricultural Colleges, 1034

Agricultural Gazette, 1074

Agricultural Implements, 91, 492, 417, 583, 666, 3179, 3372, 3394, 3492-6, 3508, 3631
United Grain Growers, and, 418-9

Agricultural Instruction, 1029

Agricultural Machinery (Standardization of Parts) 584; Res. (Mr. McCoig) 666; Amdt. (Mr. Henders) 670

Agricultural Shows, grants to,
M. (Mr. Archambault) 1238; withdrawn, 1247

Agricultural Societies, 1074. See also Exhibitions

Agriculture. See also Immigration; Soldier Settlement; Unemployment
Agriculture Act in Great Britain, 3186
Aids to, 1245
Appropriations limited, 1029
Butter. See Dairying Industry
Cold Storage warehouses, 1038
Conservation Commission, 3964
Cow-testing associations, 1036
Deputy Minister, salary, 950
Dairying. See that title
Decline of in Great Britain, 3186, 3237
Department
Civil Service appointments, 1045
County fairs, assistance to, 1123
Deputy Minister, salary, 950
Estimates, 917, 1024, 1074, 1116, 4506-13
Destructive insect and Pest Act, 4512. See also that title
District Representatives, 1033-4
Duff, the late Hon. James, work of, 1033
Eggs. See that title
Experimental Farms, 4512. See also that title
Fruit inspection, 1041. See also Fruit
Grasshopper plague, qu. 838, 1027
Health of Animals. See that title
International Institute of, 1116
Land suitable for, 845, 872
Live stock. See that title

Agriculture.—Con.
National Dairy Council, 1126
Potato-growing and diseases, 1032-3, 3224, 3442-73, 3525
Production, 135-6, 872
Products, decline in value, 3487
Publications, 1073
Seed and Feed Control, 1125, 4513
Seed fairs, 1126
Seed Grain. See that title
United States, in, 3188
Wright County, condition in, 922

Air Board, estimates, 3776

Air Force,
Camp Borden, qu. 1820, 3777
Preference in Civil Service appointments, 4483

Air Service, 3776
Forest patrol, 4495
Topographic Survey of Northern Canada, 856

Alaska boundary, 4494

Alberta
Coal, price at mine, 1251
Coal production. See Fuel Supply Problem, Natural Resources
Highways, grants, qu. 821
Industrial Research Commission, 1267
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries
Prohibition plebiscite, 3901, 4374-88
Supreme Court, qu. 576

Alcohol. See also Customs and Excise; Inland Revenue; Prohibition; Proprietary; Special War Revenue
Certificate of provincial analyst, 3786
Customs duty, 3705
Excise duty, 2725-6
For medicinal purposes, 3729, 3957

Alderson, Mr. George B.
Claim of for compensation, 924, 1052, 2270-4, 4508. See also Health of Animals

Algernon Rock pier, qu. 1383

Alice Arm, wharf, 3976

Aliens. See also Canadian Nationals; Dominion Elections; Immigration; Naturalization;
Franchise, and, 3103
Naturaliation, 2441
Wives of British Subjects. See Dominion Election Act Amdt. Bill

All Night Sitting. See House of Commons

All Saints' Day. See Civil Service Holidays

Alpine Club, 4494

Alward, Mr., and Transcontinental, 1657

Ambassador at Washington, 185, 357, 525, qu. 671, 2400-23, 3635. See also Canadian Representation in the United States; Prime Ministers' Conference
Delay in appointment, 786
Fordney Bill, 512. See also United States

Amendments to Supply. See Supply

American Consuls. See Customs and Excise Bill; Trade; Trade Commissioners

American Markets. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade; United States

Amery, Col. L. S., 1532

Ames, Sir Herbert B. (St. Antoine)
Resignation
Enquiry as to date, 1069
Received, 1001
Reported, 464, 469, 478, qu. 577
See also Representation

Amherst drill hall, 2739

Amqui Station, 382, 1176, 1233

Anderson, Mr. R. K. (Halton)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 235. Demand that Government resign—amendment introduces no new issue, 235; congratulations to mover and seconder—tributes to former Prime Ministers—speech of Leader of Opposition—Unemployment insurance—old age pensions—League of Nations; tariff, 238; Alliance with Agrarian party; leader of Agrarians an out-and-out free trader—by-election in Peterborough—principles of Liberalism, 239; invitation to Liberal Unionists to cross floor—mandate of Government—immediate election would delay redistribution; increased representation, 240; seceders should have consulted their electors—Laurier administration and the tariff, 241; Daniel Webster and the clamourers, 242
Budget, 3348. Canada's debt and annual growth of expenditures, 3348; increase in trade, 3349; increase in population, 3349; Canada's present and future growth and progress, 3351; moderate protection necessary, 3351; reciprocity with United States, 3353; home market and transportation, 3354; fruit growing, 3354; Opposition and protection, 3355; Farmers' Party platform, 3356;

Anderson, Mr. R. K.—Con.
Budget—Con.
Grain Growers' Grain Company, 3357, 3360; Winnipeg strike, 3359; Depopulation of rural sections and increased price of commodities, 3361
Feeding Stuffs Act, qu. 965
Inspection districts, qu. 1624
Toronto-Guelph-Sarnia highway, etc., qu. 4252

Andrews, Mr. George W. (Centre Winnipeg)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 469. Congratulations to Prime Minister; free trade and protection—the "yellow peril", 471—markets of the world, 472; exports; Farmers' Platform; abuse of tariff no argument against protection, 473; free trade in England; armaments do not prevent war; Assembly of the League of Nations—the amendment; redistribution; election, 474
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen), 1803
Housing, 1152
Oleomargarine Act Amdt., 3881
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2678
Proportional representation, 1537

Anglo-Japanese Alliance, 2637-9, 2357-60

Animal Contagious Diseases Act
Administration, 1048
Powers under, 4508
See also Health of Animals

Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 2031; 1r., 2942; 2r., com., 3r., 3011

Animals, Cruelty to. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Annapolis County
Fruit growing in, 1046
Inspectors, 1041

Annapolis public building, 2741

Annexation. See United States

Annual Drill. See Militia

Annuities Branch, 4524

Anodynes, elixirs, etc., duty on, 3709

Anse Aux Gascons wharf, 3991

Anse St. Jean, wharf, 4536

Antelope in Western Canada, qu. 1134

Anticosti Island, squatters on, 1514

Antigonish Public Works office, 2818

Appendices
Canadian National Railways
Employees' pay, qu. 1737, 1815

Apples. See also Fruit
Export to Great Britain, 1501, qu. 1714
Markets for, 1469
Tariff on, 126

Appropriation Acts
1. Bill No. 42 (for 1921-2, for $71,499,703.70). Res. 1674; 2001; 1r., 2045; 2r., com., 2100; 3r., 2116
2. Bill No. 222 (for 1920-1, for $14,681,810.-14; and for 1921-22, $371,044,471.26). Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 4577

Arbitration. See Grand Trunk

Arbitrations and Awards, Railways, 3015

Arbitrators, Judges as. See Judges Act Amdt.

Archambault, Mr. Joseph (Chambly and Verchères)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 244. Grand Trunk employees' pensions, 244—omissions from Speech—dissolution—election, 1917; "Knots and Lashings"—railway problem, 245; Can. Govt. Merchant Marine—Prime Ministers' Conference, 246; Imperial relations; League of Nations; no mandate—Purchasing Commission, 247—overtures to Quebec, 248; Mr. Gauthier, severance of connection with Liberal party, 250; inconsistent attitudes towards tariff, 251; Lafontaine and Cartier, 252; Minister of Immigration, 253
Agricultural Shows, M., 1238-46; withdrawn, 1247
Auditor General's Report, 1385
Banff National Park, 4495
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2911
Board of Commerce, qu. 599, 602
Budget, 3557. Financial operations, 3557; rigid economy in national expenditure necessary, 3558; military expenditure, 3558; Winnipeg strike, 3560; Grand Trunk shareholders, 3560; Prime Minister playing the game, 3562; Credits to Greece and Roumania, 3563; Members of Parliament directors of companies selling to Government, 3564
Canada Grain Act, 1442
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bill, 2230
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2252

Archambault, Mr. Joseph—Con.
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Proposed Special Committee, 1440
"Squatter" and "Pioneer," Ss., qu. 1382
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 2032
Canadian National Railways
French language, 4331-3
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1767-97
Canadian Press Limited, qu. 564
Civil Service, religious holidays, 1384; qu. 1499
Confidential messengers, 1334
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3007, 3919-36
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Amalgamation of departments, Dr. Cartier, 3821
Debates, translation of French Speeches, Res. 698
Defamatory libel; publication of judicial proceedings, 2149, 3933
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4237-40
French Trade Agreement, 1174
Grand Trunk Railway
Loan, 4138
Shareholders, list of, 3320, 3560, 3740
Harbours and rivers, 3975-81
Highways, grants to provinces, qu. 2098
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill, 2247
Inland Revenue Collector at St. Hyacinthe, Dr. Cartier, qu. 3904
Inquiry into public services, qu. 604
Interim Supply, voting of, 2011
Kirkwood Steamship Company, qu. 564
Militia supplies, sale to Roumania, 2245
Mondou, Mr.—Yamaska election, 3594
Montreal and South shore bridge, M. 2211-19
Montreal, public service, qu. 604
Naturalization Act, 1914 Amdt. Bill (Aliens who served in Allied Armies) 2441
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4031-34
Oil, leases, qu. 564
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2265
Paintings in Senate Chamber, qu. 566
Parliament Buildings, 3994-4002
Pierreville postmistress, qu. 3423
Prime Ministers' Conference, qu. 564; 3320
Privilege, correction of Official Report Société des Artisans, 230
Public Accounts, 1069
Public Buildings, Nova Scotia, 2758
Public documents, destruction of, qu. 599
Purchasing Commission, 2024
Returns, enquiries for, 2009, 2775, 3320
Ross rifle, statement of Rev. Canon Scott, qu. 599

Archambault, Mr. Joseph—Con.
Roumania and Greece
Dominion Canners, purchases, qu. 1001
Interest on loans, 1072
Loans to, qu. 478, 564
Militia stores, sale to, 2245
Tappert, Rev. N., qu. 1673
Welland canal, 2025, 2979-98

Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Archives, 4533. See also Public Records
Biggar, Mr. H. P., qu. 2343
Doughty, Dr. Arthur, 2947
Provision for, 2945

Arctic Expedition, 4106, 4113

Argentine, Beef, competition with, 1039

Argue, Mr. Ira E. (Swift Current)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 367. Congratulations to Prime Minister—Mandate of Government and its supporters, 367; redistribution, representation of West; freight rates; Wheat Board, 368; price of wheat—grain investigation, 369
Canadian National Railways, 3038
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4467
Gravelbourg-Swift Current Railway, 3053

Armistice Day
Shipbuilding contracts after, 1683
Thanksgiving, 2555

Armistice Day Bill (Mr. Mowat) 1r., 2618; Transferred to Govt. Orders, 3207; 2r., com., 3773; 3r., 3776

Armouries for Public Meetings, qu. 901

Armstrong, Mr. J. A. M. (North York)
Civil Service bonus, 2109

Armstrong, Mr. Joseph E. (East Lambton)
Budget, 3424. Western Ontario industries, 3424; Imports of manufactured goods and exchange, 3425; canning factories, 3426; manufacturing industries generally, 3427
Business of the House
Bills reported by Standing Coms., 3761
Butter substitutes, material for, 3745
Canal tolls, 2969
Civil Service Retirement Act Amendment Bill, 4273
Flax Industry, 1401
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway, 744
Highways west of London, 4307
Illustration stations in Western Ontario, 948
Immigrants along national railways, 3070

Armstrong, Mr. Joseph E.—Con.
Inland Shipping
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, qu., 2192
Rates—control, 1497, 2557, 2966-9
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 607
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4193
National Research Council, 2702
Ocean shipping, Govt. control, qu. 3530
Quebec Union Electric Telephone Co., 3343, 3421
Railway Act Amdt. Bill (Inland Shipping Rates), 1497, 2556
United States railways, 1576
Welland canal, 2969

Army Worms, 1028

Arsenic, 1027

Arthur Young Company, 2781, 4465. See also Address; Civil Service; Post Office; Printing Bureau
Employment of, 551
Payments to, qu., 4251

Arthurs, Mr. James (Parry Sound)
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, firearms, 3900-6
Dominion Elections Act Amdt., 309
Imports for home consumption in 1920, qu., 602
Pensions, widowed mothers, 637
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4056
Soldiers' Pensions, insurance and re-establishment committee, final report, 4056

Artisians, Canadiens Francais, La Société des, 82

Ascension Day, 2626, 2775. See also Civil Service
Adjournment. See House of Commons

Ashley, Sergt. T., C.M.S.C., qu., 3090

Assembly. See League of Nations

Atholstan, Lord, 1515
La Presse and, 3248

Atikokan, additional tracks, 1017

Atlin District, B.C., Judge, 1080

Auditing. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canadian National Railways

Auditor, Independent. See Canadian National Railways

Auditor General
Railways, audit by, 1189

Auditor General's Report, 597, 958, 2247
Comparison with Estimates, 1108
Delay in bringing down, 737, 903, 1791
Penitentiaries, purchases for, 1104-5
Travelling expenses of judges, 1088
Unprovided items, 4535
Vols. I and II, 642; Vol. III, 788, 1396; Vol. IV, 737, 1176, 1385, 1388

Australia and New Zealand
Trade and steamship services, 1223, 1468, 1493

Austrian and German Imports. See Customs Act Amdt. Bill; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Authors. See Copyright

Automobiles.—See Criminal Code Amdt.
Driving while intoxicated, 3911
Theft, 3913

Backus, Mr. E. W., 4173-4224. See also Lake of the Woods

Baie Ste. Catherine Steamship Service, 1822, 1971

Baie St. Paul liquor seizure, qu., 696; qu. 1132

Balance of Trade, 97, 3219, 3264, 3366, 3397 See also Address, Budget, Trade.

Baldwin, Mr. W. K. (Stanstead)
Budget, 3201. Tariff question, 3201; war indemnity, 3202; Roumanian and Greek loans, 3202; present economic conditions, 3202; financial situation, 3202; Laurier Government, 3204; railway problem, 3204; taxation, 3204; Easterr Townships, 3205; military and nava expenditure, 3205; League of Nations, 3208; military service, 3206; immigration policy, 3206
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4446
De Martigny divorce, 4112
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 741
Housing, 1143-9
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4224
Unemployment and Labour, 1373

Balfour, Hon. A. J., and protection, 3417

Ball, Mr. Robert J. (Southeast Grey)
Pierreville postmistress, qu., 3208

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C. (Minister of Marine and Fisheries and Minister of the Naval Service)

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C.—Con.
Brant, steamer, 1982
British preference, 3485, 3553
Liberals, and, 3616
Budget, 3209. Revenue, 3209; Imaginary letters and Mr. McMaster, 3209; private business of ministers, 3210; tariff revision, 3210; position of Mr. Fielding on tariff, 3211; Naval affairs and expenditure, 3212; fiscal policy of Farmers' and Liberal parties, 3213; boot and shoe industry in Quebec East, 3214; Mr. King's speeches in Eastern and Western Canada, 3214; position of Mr. Gauthier, 3215; Quebec representation in Cabinet, 3216; attitude of Quebec, 3216
Business of the House
For tomorrow, 2148
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bill (Public harbours) 2229
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2259-60
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Balance sheet, 1920, errors in, 1697-8
Canadian Press comment, 1704
Creation of company, 1908
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, 1710
First annual report, 1694
General statement, 1272; shipbuilding, 1272, 1279; shipping rates, decline in, 1273; cost of construction, 1274; operating costs, 1275; routes and sailings, 1275; exports, 1276-77; operating results, 1277; assets, 1277; liabilities, 1278
Halifax-Newfoundland route, 1686
Information, 1440
Operating profit, 1867
Preference to Canadian products, 1280
Quebec port, alleged discrimination against, 1271
Sailing routes, 1275, 1733
Ships on Great Lakes, 1914
Vessels, names of, 1962
Canadian "Inventor" 1890
"Champlain," 1980, 1995
Canadian Nationals Definition Bill, 786
Champlain, steamer, 1980, 1995
Chicago Drainage Canal, 1851
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4475-84
Naval Service, preference, 4484
Dry docks, 1690
"Esperanto," wreck, 4341
Fisheries
Breeding establishments, 4036
Dominion and Provincial jurisdiction, 2105

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C.—Con.
Fisheries—Con.
Inspection of pickled and canned fish, 2183
Lobster hatcheries, 4036
Overseers in Lunenburg, 2179
Salmon fishing licenses, 4342
Icebreakers and steamers, repairs, 1979, 1994
Imaginary letters, 3209, 3174
Johnston, Mr. Alex., re-appointment, 644
Life-saving service, 1990, 1991
Lighthouse and coastal service, 1996, 2174
Signal service, 1997, 4040
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1995
"Marie Lydia," schooner, 1985
"Narbethong," steamer, 2175
Naval Service estimates, 4010-36
Navigation, season of, 1994
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4010-36
Ocean and River service, 1736
Pilotage, administration of, 1999
Pilots, pensions, 2000
Public Harbours, 2229
Repairing of ships at Quebec, 1988
St. Lawrence channel, dredging, 1992
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. (Ministers and directorships) 652
Sherwin-Williams Paint Co., 372, 3484
Shipbuilding, 1272, 1683, 2081
Contracts, 1872, 1884, 1972, 1902
Correction as to value, 1683
Depreciation, 1886
Details of construction, 1874
Dominion Steel Company, 1691
Extra fittings, 1894
Figures, 1931
Imperial Munitions Board, 1869
Interest on cost, 1887
Lemieux, Mr., speech on, 1684
Newspaper comment, 1934
Operating profit, 1866
Opposition to, 1892
Price per ton, 1873
Progress in debate on, 1729, 1931
Sinking fund, 1885
Shipyards, Government loan to, 1883
Swan, Mr. D. D., Consulting engineer, 1997
Tariff—speech, Montreal, Nov. 15, 1920, 363
Welland canal obstruction, 1990
Wrecking plants, 1990
Wrecks, investigation, 1988
Yamaska by-election, 3251

Ballot Boxes, Convicts working on, 1092

Banff National Park, 3986, 4495

Banking and Commerce, Com., 962

Bankruptcy Act Amendment Bills
1. Bill No. 36 (notice to creditors of suspension) 1r., 1069; 2r., com., 2556. (See No. 3)
2. Bill No. 37 (French Version) 1r., 1069; m. for 2r., 2557. (See No. 3)
3. Bill No. 118. 1r., 2618; 2r., com., 3909, 3143; 3r., 3146. Senate amendments. 3772-4068

Subjects and sections discussed:
Additional security by trustee, 2913
Adjustment of rights of contributories, 2929
Affidavit upon registration, 2910
Alternative powers—court to await prior action, 2937
Assignment of book debts, 2922
Available Act of bankruptcy, 2909
Claims, priority, 2935
Commencement of bankruptcy, 2910
Discharge of Trustee, 2934
Dismissal of petition, 2910
Dividend, 2930-31
French version; correction, 4170
Jurisdiction of Dominion and provinces, 2924
Leased premises, 2935
Liability of officer, director or agent of company, 2940
Local newspaper, 2909
New trustee may be substituted, 2916
Penalty for removing goods, 2938
Permission limited, 2920
"Person," 2910
Procedure in Quebec under Civil Code, 2924
Proof, power to admit or reject, 2935
Proposal of composition or management, 2911
Removal of goods; bank deposits, 2920
Remuneration, expenses and costs, 2930
Remuneration of trustee, 2933
Search warrants, 2936
Securities—secured creditor to value, 2935
Stay of proceedings, 2912
Trustee may apply for directions, 2918
Trustee may apply for sale of property, 2920
When misrepresentation or fraud, a defence for contributory, 2928

Bankruptcy Act, Judges under, 1084

Banks. See also Finance; loans
Canadian, deposits outside Canada, qu. 1623
Dominion Notes and gold reserve, qu. 1234
Taxation, and, qu. 2192, 3664

Banner Oats, 1033

Bar Association. See Canadian Bar Association

Barbed Wire, 3328, 3495

Barnard, Mr. C. A., 1846, 1930

Barnhill, Mr. A. P., 1609-10. See also Canadian National Railways
Business interests, 3610

Bass River, wharf, 3989

Battlefields Memorials Commission, competitive designs, 2566

Beatty, Mr. E. W., and immigration, 1127, 1356

Beauce, appointment of Judge, 1081

"Beaver" Canadian, Ss., qu. 1673

Beef Cattle. See Cattle Embargo; Live Stock

Beef, Dressed, export of, 1039. See also Cattle Embargo

Beer Containers, Marking, 3786

Beet Sugar, 301, 3426, 3456

Béland, Mr. H. S. (Beauce)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 157; Election, League of Nations, 157; speeches of Sir George Foster and Mr. Rowell; International Justice; Article X; registration of treaties; expenses, salaries of officials. 158; Canada's share; Imperial federation; centralization; local control; Lord Burnham, 159; unrest and dissatisfaction, 160; Government has outlived mandate; representation, redistribution will not greatly help Agrarians; tariff issue, 161, 162; Quebec situation, 162; Canadian National Railways, Board of Commerce, 163; Board of Pension Commissioners; International Joint Commission; Peace Conference; Assembly of the League of Nations, 164
American implements at Experimental Farms, qu. 492
Auditor General's Report, 914
Brunelle, Sergt. Major N., 1519
Business of the House
Monday, Government business, 2148
Public Bills and Orders, 2819
Second reading by consent, 2889
Saturday sittings, 2818
Canada Year Book, 1425
Canadian Association for Prevention of Tuberculosis, 3142

Béland, Mr. H. S.—Con.
Canadian National Railways
Private ownership, 1498
Canadian representation in the United States, 2400-28
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2780
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2492-2502, 4268-73
Coal importation, 1248
Cocaine and morphine imports, 3130
Coffee, adulteration of, 3141
Conservation Act Repeal Bill, 3146, 3958-71
Dairy Produce Grading Bill, 4437-42
Demobilization, 2285
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4065
French Trade Agreement, 1175
Fuel Supply, Special Committee, evidence in French, 4251
Government railways, boards of management, 1658
Governor General—reported appointment of Lord Byng, 4435
Grain elevators, 1442
Health
Medical officers, 3133
Immigrants, for, 3132
Housing loan, 4552
Immigration, 2575
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4351-5
Income Tax, extension of time, 1272
Maple Products Act Amdt. Bill, 2150, 2193, 2557-60, 2618, 2890
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1652
National Resources, 892
Maple industry, 892
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2263-7
Parliament Buildings, 4000
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2096, 2709-11
Polish Battalion for service in French Army, 4055
Pootmans, Mr. G., and Belgian loan, 3379
Purchasing Commission, 2018, 2020, 2024
Quebec riots, 1508
Quebec Union Telephone Company, 3343
Returned Soldiers
Pensions, insurance and re-establishment Special Committee, 732, 4055
Relief for, 2688
Revenue, expenditure and debt, qu. 2099
Scientific Research, 1430. See also Research
Statutory expenditures, 1422
Unemployment, 4551

Belfast, linen yarns. See Linen yarns

Belgo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Company, 3049

Belgium. See also Loans
Credit to, qu. 577, qu. 1001, 3347, 3377
Pootmans, Mr. G., 3379
Purchases in Canada, qu. 736

Bell, Dr. Graham, secretary, 2377

Bell, Major Graham A., 1609-10, 1666, 3610. See also Canadian National Railways

Bell Telephone Company, Signal Service, 1998

Belly River water rights, qu. 2943. See also Irrigation

Bermuda
Steamship service to, 1488
Trade agreement, rejection of, 1271. See also Canada-West Indies
Trade relations, 2253

Berne Convention. See Copyright

Berry Boxes and Currant Boxes
Amendment of Inspection and Sale Act M. (Ethier), 4106, 4114

Berthierville telephone, qu. 1233

Bertrand, Mr. Joseph Tetu, 4079

Best, Mr. John (Dufferin)
Agricultural Shows, 1244
Chief Justice, income tax, 1565
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4468-80
Experimental Farms, 940
Flax-growing, 1392, 1395
Fruit inspectors and Civil Service Commission, 1045
Highway construction in Ontario, 3027, 3033, 4295
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4214-18
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3855-88
Parliament Buildings, 4075

Bi-Cameral System. See Ministers

Bienfait, Briquetting plant at, qu. 673, 4499. See also Coal; Lignite; Natural Resources

Biggs, Hon. F. C. and Highways, 3036, 3037, 4290, 4448. See also Highways

Bills. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Private Bills Discussed; Speaker. For Public Bills see individual titles

Binder Twine, 3227, 3328, 3365, 3481, 3493, 3505. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt.
Exemption of fibre, 3746

Biological Board, 2189

Birchard, Dr., grain laboratory at Winnipeg, 1228

Birds. See Migratory Birds

Bituminous. See Coal; Fuel Supply

Blair, Mr. William J. (Battle River)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 376; General election unfair to West; no demand; marketing of farmers' grain; at mercy of grain dealer; elevator practices, 377; position of elevator operator; screenings and dockage, 378; overages; Winnipeg Grain Exchange; Wheat Board; participation certificates, 379; Mr. Woods' statement; investigation necessary
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 1343

Blake, Mr. Matthew R. (North Winnipeg)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 313; Congratulations to Prime Minister; unjust criticism of Government, 313; effective prosecution of war; trade expansion; merchant marine; re-establishment, 314; Soldiers' Settlement Act; soldiers' insurance; expenditure of Ontario Government, 315; trade with United States; exchange; declaration of policy by leader of Agrarians; investigation of grain trade, 316; performances not promises; leader of the Opposition, 317
Alcohol, tax on, 3731
Criminal Code amendment, 3899
Debates, translation of French speeches, 702
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4201
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2267

Blondin, Hon. P. E., 536, 552. See also Postmaster General
Payments to, qu. 567. See also Ministers, Post Office

Blood Indian Reserve. See Indians

Blood-Testing of Animals, 1050

Blouin, Mr. Joseph. See Quebec Riots

Blue Books, printing of, 1485. See also Printing Bureau

Board of Commerce, 163, 401, 441, 3169, 3604. See also Address, Budget
Appointment and work, qu. 602
Total cost, qu. 599

Board of Directors. See Canadian National Railways; Management

Board of Railway Commissioners. See Railway Commission

Board of Trade Reports
French forms, 2819, 3320, 3375

Boards of Trade, 1465. See also Trade

Boivin, Mr. George H. (Shefford). See also Deputy Speaker
James McLaren Company, Limited, 665
Speaker's Chair, presentation, 3688, 3691

Bolshevism, 27, 3451
Pamphlet issued by Labour Department, 4548

Bolton, Mr. Ferris (Lisgar)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 396; Grain trade—drying up of lakes in Prairie Provinces—duration of Parliament, 396

Bombs. See Criminal Code Amendment

Bonds. See also Finance; Loans; Victory Bonds
Canadian Government, qu. 1620, 3289
Comparative return on Dominion and Nova Scotia, 4165
Outstanding War, Victory, tax free and taxable, qu. 2821
Tax-exempt, 3398

Bonus. See Civil Service

Boot-making. See Penitentiaries

Boots and Shoes
Industry, 1222, 3214, 3230, 3386, 3484, 3637
Trade in, 1225

Borax, Manufacture of, 3365

Bordeaux Mixture, 1033

Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert L. (King's, N.S.)
Archives, provision for, 2947-53
Armistice Day Bill, 3773
Business of the House
Complaint of undue haste, 4452
Prorogation—important business immediately preceding, 4452
Canadian Constitutional Development, 2378
Canadian National Railways, Special Com., reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen), 1777
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2436
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4488
Religious holidays, 4488
Returned soldiers, 4259
Copyright Act Amdt. Bill, 3838-50
De Martigny divorce, 3765-70
Disarmament, views on, 3418
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays, Rule 17c, 2104
Governor General—Address to on retirement, 4435
Interim Supply, 1678
Judges' salaries, 1563

Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert L. —Con.
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2329
Nauru Island phosphate deposits, 4542
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2626
Privileges and Elections Com., 2373
Speaker's Chair, 3693

Borden, Camp
Air Force, qu. 1820, 3777

Borrowing. See Housing; Loans

Boswell, wharf, 3977

Bosworth, Mr., and value of ships, 1706

Boucher, Mr. Aime, ques. 3422, 3423. See also Pierrevile; Yamaska

Boucher, Mrs. See Pierreville Postmistress

Bounties, 3085. See also Natural Resources; Trade and Commerce
Beet Sugar, 3456
Iron and Steel, 874
Linen yarn, 1389
Petroleum, crude, 1385, 1413

Bourassa, Mr. J. B. (Levis)
Canadian National Railways, superannuation, qu. 2344
Civil Service
Appointments, qu. 572
Returned soldiers, qu. 3259
Dredge Internationale, qu. 2192, 2506
Motor-bus tax, remission, qu. 603
Printing Bureau, destruction of documents, qu. 603
St. Romuald public building, qu. 577, qu. 604

Boxed Goods. See Special War Revenue Act Amdt.

Boyce, Mr. George (Carleton)
Arthur Young Company and Griffenhagen, payments, qu. 575
Housing, 1146
Immigration to Northern Ontario, 3077
Oleomargarine Act Amendment Bill, 3859
Unemployment and immigration, 1362

Boyer, Mr. Gustave (Vaudreuil-Soulanges)
Dairy products grading Bill, 4444
Maple Industry, 887
Natural resources, 887
Road from Cascades Point to Coteau Junction, qu. 576
Tobacco licenses, 2554
War History, qu. 1625

Boys, Mr. William A. (South Simcoe)
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Provincial analyst's certificate, 3789
Still—innocent manufacture of part, 3788
Grand Trunk loan, 4148-58

Bradley, Mr., Vice-Admiralty registrar, 1086

Bran, for destructive insects, 1027

Brandram-Henderson, Limited, 1611

"Brant," steamer, 1982

Brantford-Hamilton Highway. See Highways.

Bridges. See also Canadian National Railways; Public Works; Railways and Canals
Banff, 3986
Bryson-Calumet Island, 3986
Campbellton-Cross Point, qu. 573, 2937
Edmundston, 2810
Grand Etang, 3987
Jacques Cartier County, 3678
Joliette, 4320
Kingston, 3973
Lachine Canal, 3675, 4308
Longueuil, 300
Montreal-South shore, M. (Archambault) 2213
Perrot Island, qu. 576, qu. 603
Quebec highway, 4333
Railway, 1664
St. Annes-Vaudreuil, 3677
Victoria, 300

Briquettes, 1251, 1267, qu. 673, 4499. See also Fuel; Lignite

Bristol, Mr. Edmund (Toronto Centre)
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1288
Cattle embargo, 728
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2464
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 743
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. (Ministers and directorships) 594
Shipbuilding, 1288

British Board of Trade and Immigration, 3133

British Cattle, 1049. See also Cattle Embargo

British Chamber of Shipping, 1716

British Columbia
Buoys and Lighthouse service, 2175
Fisheries, 861, 883
Fruit industry, 9-10
Hog cholera in, 1059
Lumber trade, 1725

British Columbia.—Con.
Natural resources, 861
Poultry, 3750
Shipment of ties to Egypt, 1725
Vancouver Island railways, qu. 3422

British Embassy at Washington, 1221. See also Canadian Representation.

British Empire Steel Corporation, 1691. See also Halifax Graving Dock

British Flag, protection under. See Burnham, Dr.

British Foreign Office. See French Trade Agreement

British Funds, disbursement in Canada, qu. 733

British Goods, importation of. See Customs Tariff Act Amdt. (Marking of Imported Goods)

British Manufacturers. See Trade

British North America Act
Proposed amendments. See Address; Ministers
With regard to Judges, 1082

British Precedents. See Address; Ministers

British Preference, 3699

British Remount Commission, 4341, qu

British Subjects, foreign-born wives of. See Dominion Elections Act

British Traditions. See Ministers

Brookfield, Mr., and Halifax Graving Dock, 1699

Brouillard, Mr. J. O. (Drummond and Arthabaska)
Archives, Mr. H. P. Biggar, qu. 2343
Canadian National Railways, Hornepayne division, qu. 1624
George, Mr. A. D., qu. 1233
Newcombe, Mr. E. F., and G. T. Arbitration, qu. 1002
Printing Bureau, destruction of documents, qu. 1621
Judge Snider's report, qu. 2028
Tilley, Mr. W. N., K.C., qu. 1001

Brown, Hon. George, 172, 1167-8
Letter to Sir John A. Macdonald, 4002

Brown-Tail Moth, 1027. See also Destructive Insects

Brunelle, Sergt. Major N.
M. (Mr. Lemieux) for papers, 1518

Brussells, International Financial Conference, qu. 1237, 3148, 3150, 3157, 3268, 3276, 3452, See also Military Expenditure

Buchanan, Mr. W. A. (Lethbridge)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 475; congratulations to Prime Minister; explanation of personal position; not prepared to support Government; people voted on war not domestic questions; new parties, policies and leaders, 475; redistribution and election; Western Canada entitled to increased representation, 476; tariff; the parting of the ways, 477
Antelope in Western Canada, qu. 1134
Customs revenue by provinces, qu. 1622
Irrigation
Belly river water rights, qu. 2943
Milk river water rights, qu. 2099
Natural resources, 857
Transfer to Western Provinces, 2535
Trade agents in United States, qu. 1001

Buckley, Mr. Charles P., qu. 966

Budget. See also Ways and Means
Date of
Announcement of, 2943
Inquiry, 738, 903, 1270, 1555, 2151, 2568, 2818, 2890
Debate on, 3127, 3146, 3209, 3262, 3322, 3343, 3375, 3423, 3476, 3531, 3584
Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) 3155; neg., 3686-7; resolution agreed to, 3688
Resolutions, 3121
Speech, 3114

Bud Worm, destruction in spruce forests, 1031

Building Conditions. See Housing

Building Material, tax on, 3734, 3736. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt.

Building Trades. See Labour

Building Trades Conference, 1498, 1556

Bulk Freighters. See Fuel Supply

Buoys. See Navigation, aids to

Bureau, Mr. Jacques (Three Rivers and St. Maurice)
Armistice Day Bill, 3773
Automobile theft, 3916
Business of the House, 1330, 1340
Definite statement as to, 1025
Estimates—method of voting, 1073
Morning sittings—prorogation, 4339
Previous debate, 3562

Bureau, Mr. Jacques—Con.
Business of the House—Con.
Supply
Procedure, 1024, 1025, 1073, 1217
Thursdays and Fridays, 958, 1217
Canada Temperance Act
Cases pending, 3902
Exemption of, 4376
Proclamation, 4876
Retroactive legislation, 4376
Supreme Court case, 4376
Canadian Forestry Association, 4494
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 645, 647, 767
Canadian National Railway Company, damage to property, 3049
Canadian National Railways
Forest fires—Transcontinental, 4335
Operation of, 1004
Saskatoon, switch engines, qu. 3090, 3903
Cattle embargo, 729
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 3901-4267
Conservation Act Repeal Bill, 3959-68
Containers, 3956
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3830-7
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3900-36
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Invoice certificate, 3798
Fee, 3798
Form of, 3798
Proclamation, 3798
Trade agents, 3798
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite), 261
Dates of proclamation, assent and voting, 303
Names eliminated, 304
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4246-8
Election officers, disqualification, 4246
Nomination paper, 4247
Exchequer Court Act Amdt., 624
Fuel Supply Co. evidence in French, 4251
Harbours, and rivers, estimates, 3973
Vote in Com., 3979
Highway construction in Ontario, 4297
Hudson Bay Railway, motion involving expenditure, 984
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4344-54
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, Bill, 608
Interior Department
Messenger clerks, 1333
Salaries, 1330
James MacLaren Company, Limited, Bill, 598
Justice Department
Law officers, 1078
Juvenile delinquents—spanking, 3918

Bureau, Mr. Jacques—Con.
Lake of the Woods Control Bill, 1176
International Joint Commission, and, 1071
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4171-4226
National Research Institute, 2692
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4012-34
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payment to, 4575
Patent Act Amendment Bill, 4456-9
Penitentiary Act Amdt. Bill, 3739
Railway statistics, qu. 3422
West Durham election, 1324
Wines, sparkling, tax on, 3734

Burnham, Dr., treatment of by Serbian Government, qu. 576
M. (Mr. Lemieux), 1520

Burnham, Mr. J. H., resignation of, 1

Burnham, Lord, 159
Suggested appointment as Governor General, 599

Business Depression, 3213. See also Address; Budget; Trade

Business Profits War Tax, 3120, 3253, 3445. See also Address; Budget; Taxation
Expenditure, 4533

Butter. See Dairying Industry; Dairy Products, grading of; Oleomargarine

Butts, Mr. Robert H. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
Budget, 3524. Attitude of Government supporters on tariff, 3524; comparison with attitude of Opposition, 3525; protection and the fiscal policy, 3525; foreign trade development under protection, 3526; steel trade, 3526; Dominion Coal Company and strike—Mr. E. M. Macdonald, 3528
Cost of operation of ships, 1799
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, theft of automobiles, 3917
Ingonish, Macleod's breakwater, 4087
Interim Supply, 2020
Judges, power to suspend sentence, 1857
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2124
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2066
St. Lawrence coal trade, 1495
Wrecks, removal of, 1990

By-Elections. See House of Commons; Representation in Parliament
Bill respecting, 1310
Holding of. See Representation in Parliament

Byng, Lord, New Governor General. See Governor General

Cabinet
French Canadian Minister, alleged offer of position to, 3638. See also Veniot; York-Sunbury
Gauthier, Mr. L. J., M.P., and, qu. 1131
Ministers. See also that title
Post Office Dept. and, qu. 1349
Quebec, representation in, 3216

Cabot Strait, 3297

Cahill, Mr. Frank S. (Pontiac)
Air Board, 3777-83
Annapolis public building, 2741
Binder twine fibre, 3756
Bounties, 1386. See also under this title; Natural Resources; Oil
Bureau of Statistics, 2142
Business of the House, 1344
Estimates
Announcement of business for to-morrow, 1344
Rule 17C
Right to call dept. when in Com. of Supply, 2889
Thursdays and Fridays, 1215, 2889, 3001
Calumet Island bridge, 3986
Canada Year Book, 1425
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 776
Canadian National Railways
Auditing of accounts, 1189, 1668
Board of Directors, 4314
Correspondence with directors, 1003
Lord Shaughnessy's letter, 2503
Management—Information, M. (Mr. King) 1189
Officials, payment of, 1669
Report, qu. 902
Special Committee, reference to
M. (Mr. A. K Maclean), 1615
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1769
Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 1813
Canadian Northern Railway, Directors, 1664
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2378
Census—appointment of enumerators in Pontiac, 828, 1127
Civil Service and patronage, 828
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Cost of production, 4426
Imports from European countries, 2811-19
Proclamation, 4407
"Reasonable profit in the circumstances" 4415
Valuation for duty, 4415

Cahill, Mr. Frank S.—Con.
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill—Con.
Valuation of currency, 3811-19
Customs Tariff Amdt. Bill, imported goods, marking, 3952
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4245
Dominion Police Force, withdrawal from Mounted Police, qu. 601
Dominion Statistician, 1231
Estimates. See also under this title Business of the House
Consideration of, 1666
Objection to, 1074
Flax industry, 1396
Georgian Bay Canal, 688
Gilmour and Hughson, Limited, 1096
Grand Trunk Arbitration, qu. 2030, 2445-79
Grand Trunk Loan, 4145-68, 4314
Motion to reduce, 4151, neg. 4167
Grand Trunk Railway, directors, 3741
Great Lakes and St. Lawrence waterway, 688
Harbours and rivers, 3973-80
Homesteads, 1346
Housing, 1145
Immigration, 2578-84, 3057
Abitibi country, in, 3075
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3826
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 4499
Interim Supply Bill, 2103-2116
Interior and Immigration Depts. 1331
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 609
Kapuskasing illustration station, 949
Live cattle industry, 1474
Manufacturers, protection, 1492
Militia, annual drill, 2294
Montreal Harbour Commission, 2268
Mounted Police,
Recruits, qu. 601
Strength, 2798-2800
National Research Institute, 2705
National resources, 849
Oil
Bounties, 1418, 1424
Lands, General Lindsay and, 1342
Leases, 1340
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4028-34
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3883-92
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. 2267
Parliament Buildings, 3996-4001
Penitentiaries, 1116
Increase in cost, 1112
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2096
Pontiac Census Commissioners, 1127
Printing of Publications, 1438
Purchasing Commission, 1098, 1102, 1114, 2142

Cahill, Mr. Frank S.—Con.
Railway Commission, 3016
Railway Department, record searcher, 1672
Railways
Deputy Minister of, 1665
Parliamentary control, 1603
Return, inquiry for, 2688
Riding Mountain Park, 1343
Rule 17C (Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays) and Interim Supply Bill, 2103-2105. See also under this title Business of the House
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2155-7
Shipbuilding, 1935
Contracts, 1902, 1911
Export trade, 1927
Sinking fund, 1885
South Africa steamship service, 1491
Steamship subsidies, 1491
Transcontinental Railway
Colonization along, 3075
Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2511
Transportation of grain, 2982. See under this title Georgian Bay Canal; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway
Welland canal construction, 2981-90
West India cable, 1438
West Indies-Canada Trade Agreement, 1467
West Indies Steamship service, 1488, 1490

Calder, Hon. J. A. (Minister of Health, Immigration and Colonization; President of the Council)
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 779
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3207. 3827-9. See also under this title, Immigration
Civil Service
Retirements, list of, 1817
Superannuation
Increased allowances, 4275
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4461-93, 4281-88
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2486-2503, 4119, 4266-78
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 3903, 4062-8
Debates, Official, distribution of, 2224
Esmonde, Mr. Osmonde Grattan, 1557
Health
Adulteration of food, 3142
Department, 3127
Report, 1852
Research work, 3135
Drugs, traffic in, 3130 See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Medical officers, 3133
Mental Hygiene Council, 3143

Calder, Hon. J. A.—Con.
Health—Con.
Sick mariners, 3135, 4039
Immigration Act Amdt. (Deportation), 1858
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3007, 3822-7
Money qualification, 3825
Persons guilty of sedition, 3826
Senate amendments, 4343
Immigration
British inspectors, 3067
Care of immigrants, 3069
Chinese, 3207, 3827-9, 4131
Department, 3055
Estimates, 2568-2602, 4127, 4131
Postponement of consideration, 3077
Exhibits decorator, 3066
General statement, 2568
Head tax, 3056
Medical officers at ports of departure, 3132
Mental defectives, 3583
Officials, 3057
Policy, 3063
Railways and, 4130
Typhus fever, precautions, 644
Unemployment, and, 1380
United States, 3065
Women, 3061
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 620
Langley, Hon. George, statement by, 456
Langlois, Mr. George Arnoult, 4128
Military District No. 12, 2797
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. Bill, 2263-8, 2346, 2897, 3009, 4062
Special Committee, report, 2708
Proportional Representation, 1541
M. for Special Com., 1542
References to, 363, 438, 452
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, strength, 2798
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2343, 2481-6
Sales tax, 3757
Sick and distressed mariners, 3135, 4039
Smallpox on Scandinavian, 1499
Tuberculosis, prevention of, 3142

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. (Victoria and Carleton, N.B.)
Abattoirs and cold storage plants, 1125
Agricultural implements, 3496
Budget, 3441. Farmers' party, attitude of, 3441. Protective tariff and duty on fertilizers, 3441; potato crop, 3442; Roumanian loan, 3444; revenue from Victory Bonds, 3444; luxury taxes and business profits tax, 3445; Canadian manufacturers and tariff, 3446; sales tax, 3447

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W.—Con.
By-election, York-Sunbury, 2151
Canadian National Railways, directors, 1672
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2781, 4467-89
Cow-testing, 1037
Customs Tariff Amdt. Bill—imported goods marking, 3950
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4243
Fertilizer Act Amdt. Bill, 1497, 2231
Highways—New Brunswick, 4306-8
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 613
Lumber, tax on, 3744
Militia, Douglas, Mr., dismissal, 2277
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2123
Railway Department, sundries, 1667
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2154, qu. 837
Tobique reserve—timber, 4503
Widowed mothers' pensions, 639, 4370
Woodstock exhibition, 1125

Camp Borden. See Borden, Camp

Camp Grounds, Farnham, Que., 1132

Campbell, Mr. A. W. See Highways, Commissioner of

Campbell, Mr. J. A. (Nelson)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 369; Congratulations to Prime Minister; review of the debate; personal position, 370; tariff, protection not main question before House, 371; adjustment of tariff schedules, necessaries of life; profits; Dominion Textile Company; Sherwin - Williams Paint Co.; duties on agricultural implements; Ford car; mining machinery, 373; Government formed for period of war; redistribution before election, 374; precedents; constituency of Nelson, a concrete proposal; adjournment till fall for redistribution, 375; amendment to the amendment proposed, 376; Amdt. negatived, 561
Aerial patrol, 4495
Budget, 3681. Natural resources of Western Provinces, 3681; tariff revision and protection, 3682; cement industry, 3683
Canadian Forestry Association, 4495
Canadian Wheat Board Bill, 2159
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3915-38
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4233-43
Geological Survey, 2141-7
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 3463
Highways
Manitoba, 4308
Ontario, 4298

Campbell, Mr. J. A.—Con.
Hudson Bay Railway, 2980
M. 974, 1852
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4187-4207
Musk Ox and Reindeer, 4543
National Research Institute, 2699
Natural Resources, 869
Transfer to Western Provinces, M. 2519, 2541-53
Parliament Buildings, 3999
Railway Commission, cases before, 3022
Reference to, 495
Shipbuilding contracts, 1955
Trent Canal, 2606-16, 2953-8
Welland canal, 2966-89
Witness fees, 3937

Canada Evidence Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3318-9; 2r., com., 3r., 3758

Canada, Foreign Trade. See Trade

Canada Grain Act. See also Canadian Wheat Board; Grain; Administration, 1442

Canada Highways Act. See Highways

Canada Shipping Act Amendment Bill (Public Harbours)
1r., 1174; 2r., com., 2228; com., 2555; 3r., 2556

Canada Steamships, Limited, 1914

Canada Steel Company, 3407

Canada Temperance Act, 4533
Importation of liquor into provinces, qu.
Quebec city, petition for suspension, 3584, 4382
Where adopted, repealed and in force, qu. 4253

Canada Temperance Act, Bill. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt; Prohibition Plebiscite
1r., 3901, 4061; 2r., com., 4373; 3r., 4388
Subjects and sections discussed:
Alberta, probibition plebiscite, 4376
Cases pending, 3902, 4373
Costs, 4377-81
Damages, 4387
Defect in form not to invalidate, 3902
Expenses under, 4533
Gold Seal Liquor Co. v. Dominion Express Co. 4375
Omission of date from proclamation, 4379
Pending litigation not to be affected
Amdt. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) 4384

Canada Temperance Act Bill—Con.
Proclamation, 3901, 4375
Valid, 4373
Prohibition plebiscite, 4375
Retroactive legislation, 4374
Rights other than those of litigants, 4379
Vote, 4379

Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1920, 563
Report tabled, 2191. See also Trade

Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1920, Bill
Res. 1557; 1r., 1557; 2r., com., 2251; 3r., 2263

Canada Year Book, 1231, 1425

Canadian Air Force, qu. 965, 3776. See also Air
Camp Borden, qu. 1820, 3777
Regulations tabled, 350

Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, 3142

Canadian Bar Association, 1094. See also Private Bills Discussed

Canadian "Beaver," qu. 1673. For names of Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels, see Vessels

Canadian Citizens, War Claims, qu. 1820. See also Germany, Reparation

Canadian Council of Agriculture. See also Progressive Party
Platform, 338, 489, 3356, 3358, 3569

Canadian Council of Women's Immigration, 3058-61. See also Immigration

Canadian Engineering Standards Association, 1426

Canadian Expeditionary Force. See also Returned Soldiers
Disability pensions, qu. 1235
Farmers and farm labourers in, qu. 1349
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4051

Canadian Forestry Association. See Forestry

Canadian Goods, sale of. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade

Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 6, 314, 557, qu. 3089. See also Ballantyne, Hon. C. C.; Canadian National Railways, Special Committee; Insurance Act Amdt. Bill; Returned Soldiers; Shipbuilding; Vessels

Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine—Con.
Assets, 1277
Liabilities, and, for 1920, 1701
Auditing of accounts, 1694
Balance sheet for 1920, 1696
Bosworth, Mr., statement of, 3249
Business brokers, 1713
Coal for, 1861
Competition with other steamers, 1714
Construction costs, 1274
Contracts, proposed cancellation, 1727
Control of, 1908
Crews, 1275
Complaint of treatment, 1891
Depreciation, 1701
Directors, names of, 1934
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, 1710, 1723
Export trade, 1732
Fair wages, 4545
Financial operations, qu. 902
First annual report, 1692
General statement by Minister, 1272; shipbuilding, 1272, 1279; shipping rates, decline in, 1273; cost of construction, 1274; officers and crew, 1274-5; operating costs, 1275; routes and sailings, 1275; West Indies service, 1275-6; export trade expansion, 1276; results from operation, 1277; assets, 1277; liabilities, 1278;
Government shipbuilding programme, 2076. See also Shipbuilding
Great Lakes, ships on, 1913
Hall Engineering Co., Montreal, qu. 695
Information, 1164, 1440
Availability of, 1279, 1290, 1292
Special Committee. See Canadian National Railways, Special Committee
Inland navigation, and, qu. 2192
Insurance, 1278, 1703, 4359
Liabilities, 1278
Manager, 1934
Marcil, Mr. Louis T., compensation for injuries, qu. 2942
Marwick, Mitchell & Co., auditors, 1724. See also that title
Montreal, Bank of, opinion, 1895
Operating account, for 1921, 1969
Estimated, 1717
Operating costs, 1275; and wages, 1933
Operating losses, 1579
Operating profit, 1866
Operation, result of, 1277
Operation of boats, 1579
Press comment, 1705, 1707, 1709, 1718, 1808
Prime Minister, statement of, 1708

Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine—Con.
Quebec port, discrimination against, 1271, 1965
Reported sale of ships, qu. 570
Royal Bank, and, 1719
Sailing routes, 1275, 1732
Sick mariners, and, 3136. See also Health
State-owned fleets sold in other countries, 1718
Steamers, repairs to, 1979
Steamship services. See also that title
Australia-New Zealand, 1493
Canada-West Indies, 1275, 1489, 2259
Newfoundland, 1487
Vessels. See also that title
Cost of, 1799
In service, qu. 568
Liquor cargoes in, 1713, 1715
Names of, qu. 1499
Canadian "Beaver," qu. 1673, 1862
Canadian "Conqueror," qu. 1381
Canadian "Explorer," 1714
Canadian "Inventor," 1890
Canadian "Mariner," 1713, 1715
Canadian "Otter," qu. 1382
Canadian "Pioneer," qu. 1382, 1689, 1722, 1894
Canadian "Planter," qu. 2942
Canadian "Rancher," 1716
Canadian "Recruit," qu. 575, qu. 1381, 1382, 1703, 1868
Canadian "Runner," 1715
Canadian "Sapper," qu. 734
Canadian "Squatter," 1894
Canadian "Voyageur," qu. 1381, 1382, 1716, 1894
Registration of, 1720
Size of, 1732
Wages, 1921

Canadian Government Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 2164

Canadian Law Library, 1090

Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, 1610-11
Works, 3407

Canadian Manufacturers. See Trade and Commerce

Canadian Manufacturers Association and Tariff, 3445, 3645. See also Address; Budget; Manufacturers

Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, 3143

Canadian National Express Company
Expenditure on Eastern lines, 3037

Canadian National Railways, 89, 163, 245, 269, 330, 344, 381, 387, 390, 4561. See also Grand Trunk; National Railways and Shipping; Railways; Reid, Hon. J. D.
Administration of. See under this head Management
Amqui station, 382, 1176, 1233
Annual statement by Minister, 1004
Auditing of accounts, 1669, 1792
Auditor
Independent, qu. 1133
Baie St. Paul—St. Urbain branch line, 4328
Betterments, 1015, 3037, 4316
Bonds
Flotation of in New York, 3288, 3298
Bridge between Montreal and South Shore, 2213
Canadian Government Railways. See under this head Intercolonial, Transcontinental
Branch railways, purchase of, 4338
Vote of $7,000,000 to meet working expenditure, 4335
Canadian National Express Company, 3037
Canadian National Railway Magazine, 4332
Canadian Northern Railway, 245, 3287
Bonds, issue and sale of, qu. 837
Borrowing, 3287
Certificates, issue and sale of, qu. 605
Cost of equipment, 1023
Deficits, 1189
Eastern lines, 1018
Guaranteed bonds, sale of, qu. 604
Loan of $50,000,000, 3037
Quebec-Loretteville, electrification, 4328
Salaried officials, qu. 2942
Vessels, qu. 1348
Western lands, 2583
Western lines, 1017
Cape Breton Coal and Steel, 3295
Car shortage, 512, 549, 3541, 4322
Caraquet-Gulf Shore extension, 4338
Carvell, Hon. F. B., speech of, 1202. See also that title
Cedar posts, tenders for, qu. 1130
Charlevoix county—station platforms, 4329
Claims against, 1657
Claims between Ste. Rosalie and Bagot, qu. 571
Disposition of unoccupied land between, qu. 572
Coal purchases, 1772
Committee proposed, 1201
Company, 3049
Conductors, qu. 569
French-speaking, lack of, 1782, 4329
Correspondence, production of, inquiry, 1003

Canadian National Railways—Con.
Deficit, 996, 1005, 1178, 1185, 1189, 1203-4, 1205, 1597, 1600, 4165, 4319
Payne, Mr. J. Lambert, 3017
Directors, 1664, 3407, 4314
Cantley, Col. Thomas, qu. 1501
Deputy Minister of Railways, 1666
Interested in other companies, 1609
Names, 1609
Private business interests, 1609, 3610
Responsibility, 1594
Salaries, 4315
Divisional points, qu. 574
Earnings, 1006
Eastern lines, Improvements, 1017
Electrification, 4327
Employees, 1011
Conductors and brakemen discharged, qu. 1622
Fraud and malpractice by, 1669
Reduction in, 1851
Remuneration, qu. 1673, 1737
Supplementary answer, 1755, 1815
Equipment, 1007, 1013
Expenditure, 1662
Betterments, on, 3037
Western lines, 3037
Explanation of increase, 1011
Fair wages, 4545
Family compact, 1610
Fences, 4569
Fire claims—Shelburne County, 4569
Fish, transportation of, 877, 883, 890, 962, 1038
Fixed charges, 1006, 1008
Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 4142, 4314. See also that title
Foremen of engines, qu. 1673
Freight
Cars, qu. 568
Nova Scotia points, qu. 1620
Rates, 4562
Tonnage, 1007, 1012
French language in Quebec and New Brunswick, 4328
Gaspé Railway service, 962, qu. 2623
Government business, 4130
Grading and track-laying, 1021
Grading in Western Provinces, qu. 570
Grand Trunk loan, 4131
Halifax and South Western
Extension to Lockeport, 4323
Station accommodation, 4327
Hanna, Mr. D. B., 4315. See also that title
Hornepayne division, qu. 1624
Ice supply at Mulgrave, qu. 963
Immigration, 4129
Improvements and new structures, 1017

Canadian National Railways—Con.
Independent auditor, qu. 1133
Information for Parliament. See under this head, Management; Special Committee
Insurance, 1772
Intercolonial Railways, 3041, 4561
Amqui, piling lumber in railway yard, 382
Auditing of accounts, 1189
Charny and St. Foy, work, qu. 1501
Deficit on, 1800
Expropriation of land at Lévis
M. (Mr. Fielding) for papers, 1846, 1851
Lévis station, 2957
Management, 1189
Maritime Provinces, improved transportation, 4561
Mileage, 1005
Ocean limited, 1976
Pensions, old employees, 387
Railway Board, and, 1655
Section men, dismissal, qu. 2028
Superannuation of employees, qu. 575
Train service, qu. 3903
Joliette bridge, 4320
Kelley, Mr. Howard D., 4315
Lake Superior Branch, 3050
Liabilities, 3300
Liquor, theft of, qu. 1132
Loans
$26,000,000, 4169, 4288, 4334
$89,687,633.39, 4131
Amended item, 4168, 4288, 4313
Locomotives, etc., 1007, 1203, 1611
Damage to at Parent, qu. 963
Lord Shaughnessy's letter, 2503, 2890
McAdoo award, 4325
Maintenance, 1005, 1006
Management, qu. 1132, 1654, 1659, 1668. See under this head Special Committee
Information laid before Parliament, M. (Mr. King), 1178
Neg. on division, 1214-5
Manitoba Government, correspondence, 2777
Maritime Provinces, improved facilities, 4516, 4561
Mileage, 1005, 1012
Ministerial statement by Hon. Mr. Reid, 1004; operation, loss in, 1005; mileage, 1005; earnings and operating expenses, 1006; general railway situation, 1007; Grand Trunk Railway, 1008; summary of operating results, 1010; Grand Trunk Pacific, 1014; new structures and improvements, 1017
Monastery, station at, 4324
Moncton shops, 1851
Montmagny—shed accommodation, 4570
Montreal Locomotive Company, qu. 696
Natural resources, development, 871

Canadian National Railways—Con.
National Transcontinental. See under this title, Transcontinental
New lines, 1023
Operation, 1005, 3300
Cancellation of trains, 1004
Operating deficits, 1013, 1189
Operating divisions
Eastern lines, qu. 1131
Western lines, qu. 1131
Operating expenses, 1006
Operating results, 1010, 4316-18
Parlor car receipts—French language, 4330
Passenger traffic, 1012
Payroll, comparison of, 1011
Political control, freedom from, 2828
Politics, participation in, 4502
Prince Edward Island Railway, 4565
Private cars, 4563
Private ownership, and, 1498
Provincial liabilities, qu. 2942
Publicity, 4332
Purchasing agent at Chicago, 1793
Quebec and Saguenay station agents, qu. 696, qu. 963
Quebec bridge—highway, 4333
Quebec, Oriental & Atlantic and Western Railways, qu. 573
Quebec—Shawinigan service, qu. 573
Questions on order paper, 1763, 1782, 1783, 1798
Rails
Price of, 1852
Transfer to France, 4569
Railway ties, 1772
Rate increases, 1007, 1191
Report, qu. 902
Rolling stock, 1007
St. Alexis station, qu. 2375; qu. 3582
St. Augustine, qu. 695
St. Foy round house, 767
Correspondence, 1502
Res. (Mr. Parent), 840, 967
St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 837 See also that title
St. Hyacinthe shops, qu. 2821
St. Simon telegraph operator, qu. 3208
Saskatoon, shunting, qu. 3090, 3903
Section men, 1439
Special Committee, proposed reference to M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean), 1573; Amdt. 1582-83
Special Committee on National Railways and Shipping
M. (Mr. Meighen)
Agreed to as amended, 1814
Amdt. (Mr. King) 1761, neg. 1810
Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) accepted, 1812-14
Notice of, 1618

Canadian National Railways—Con.
Special Committee on National Railways and Shipping—Con.
Special Committee appointed, 1845
Reference to, 1817
Report of, 2095
Staff, 4562
Statements and summaries, 1010, 1024
Statistics, qu. 3422
Steamship services, 558
Subsidiary companies, 1907
Sully, Que., 1134
Summaries of operating results and trade statistics, 1009
Superannuated employees
Increase of allowance, qu. 575, qu. 2344
Toronto train connections, 4569
Tourist traffic in Gaspesian peninsula, qu. 2622
Train agents, qu. 1349
Transcontinental Railway, 280, 746, 1949, 3043
Expropriation of land, 1656
Forest protection, 4335
Freight rates on pulpwood and sawlogs, 2511
Management, 1189
Mileage, 1005
Montreal, and, qu. 574
Montreal-Winnipeg passenger traffic, qu. 2376
Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2509
Transportation of grain, 2984
Transfer of rails to France, 4569
Vancouver Island, qu. 3422
Western lines, 1017, 3039
Winnipeg-Quebec and East, qu. 569, 2509
Work done, 1019

Canadian National Railway Company, existence of, 3049

Canadian National Research Institute, 4555. See also Research

Canadian National Telegraphs, 1019

Canadian Nationals Definition Bill
1r., 397; 2r., 585, 644, 767; com., 767; 2031; 3r., 2151
Sections and Subjects discussed:
Canadian Nationals, 767
Declaration of alienage, 2031
Naturalization, 781
Renunication of nationality, 781

Canadian Navy. See also Naval Service
Adams, Capt. Henry C., 901, qu. 1237
Ex-members of, qu. 3422
Sale of "Niobe" and "Rainbow." See "Niobe"
Status of members of, 3686

Canadian Northern Railway. See this title under Canadian National Railways

Canadian North Prairie Lands Company, 1611

Canadian Pacific Railway Company, 1789. See also references in Canadian National Railways debates
Canadian notes refused in United States, qu. 599
Comparison with Government railways, 1780
Competition with Government railways, 1181, 1190, 1200
Patents to lands, qu. 2821
Shares, decline in price, 1195-6
Steamers, 1688, 1730, 1936
Stock, depreciation in, 1882

Canadian Postal Guide, qu. 1349

Canadian Press Limited, 4533. See also Press
Comment on Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1704

Canadian Reconstruction Association, 3312

Canadian Representation in the United States, 2378-2436. See also Ambassador at Washington; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Prime Ministers' Conference; Trade
Correspondence, 2406, 2428
Press comments, 2408
Statement regarding, 2406

Canadian Trade Commission
Roumania and Greece, purchases, qu. 1236

Canadian Vickers, 1884. See also Shipbuilding

Canadian War Mission in the United States, 2388, 2400

Canadian Wheat Board, 240, 277, 343, 368, 379, 390, 487, 1452-63, 3566. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat
Agrarian party and, 1455
Correspondence, qu. 1348
Discontinuance of, 513
Participation certificates, 340-1
Report, 150

Canadian Wheat Board Bill
Res. 2116; 1r., 2117; 2r., com., 2158-59; 3r., 2159

Canadians, Foreign decorations to, qu. 1132

Canal Boats. See Fuel Supply Problem

Canals, 2025, 2602, 2953, 2960, 2966-98
Carillon and Grenville, 2603

Canals—Con.
Chambly, 2602
Georgian Bay, 688, 745, qu. 2625
M. (Mr. Devlin) 679. See also that title
Lachine, 2603
St. Anne's lock; St. Ours lock, 2606
Tunnel, 302
Navigation by coal barges. See Fuel Supply Problem
Perrot Island bridges, qu. 576
Soulanges, 2604
Road from Cascades Point to Couteau landing, qu. 576
Tolls, 2962, 2972
Trent, 3374, 3415
Construction, 2025, 2966
Improvements, 2606, 2953
Nassau dam, 2954
Peterborough dam, 266
Wharf at Lindsay, 2616
Welland, 1968, 3374
Construction, 2025, 2493
Contracts, 2966-98
Cost plus system, 2966-98
Improvements, 2960
Retirement of superintendent, 2493
Sand contract, qu. 600

Cancellation of Trains. See Canadian National Railways

Canned Foods. See Meat and Canned Foods

Canners. See Dominion Canners

Cannon, Mr. Lucien (Dorchester)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 531; Speech of the Minister of Militia; the new Prime Minister, 531; partizans and ultra Imperialists; big interests and protection; Government's mandate; struggle for constitutional and responsibile government, 532; election of 1911; controversial legislation following extension of 1916; the appeal in 1917; measures following the war; railway policy; Imperial Conference, 533; new Government leader and programme—the "Rump Parliament"—by-elections, 534; situation in Quebec—Mr. Gauthier—the Postmaster General—the Minister of Labour, 536—Quebec and the balance of power, 537
Annapolis public building, 2750
Arctic Expedition, 4113
Auditor General's report, 1388, 1396
Bankruptcy Act Amendment Bill, 2915-40
Judges under, 1085
Bounties, principle of, 1425

Cannon, Mr. Lucien—Con.
Business of the House
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays—Rule 17C, 1218
Canada Year Book, 1231
Canadian Nationals, 769
Canadian National Railways
Management and expenditure, 1662
Management — Information, M. (Mr. King) 1197
Canal tolls, 2962
Chief Justice, salary, 1569
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4489-90
Religious holidays, 4489-90
Civil Service Commission, 1336
Outside service, 1653
Civil Service, Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) political patronage in; vicious principle; patronage rampant; judicial appointments, 811; census commissioners; Halifax platform, 813
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3921-29
Dominion Elections Act Amdt., 305
Dominion lands and parks, 1334, 1343
Donner, Mr. W. A., ques. 1624
Estimates
Detail of item, 1226
French, in, 1386
Rule 17C, Thursday and Fridays, 1218
Post Office, date of submission, 4531
Statutory payments, 1414
Exchequer Court Act Amdt. Bill, 625
Expenditure
Necessity for reduction, 1336
Without consent of Parliament, 1415
Experimental farm in Dorchester county, 946
Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 4142
Government Railways, claims against, 1657
Governor General's cars, 3037
Grand Trunk loan, 4132-69
Halifax and Esquimalt dockyards, 4036
Highways, expenditure on, 3024, 3026, 3036
Houses, tax on, 3958
Imperial Oil Company, 1386-8, 1414
Intercolonial Railway, station at Lévis, 2757
Interim Supply. See also under this head Estimates
Discussion out of order, 1680
Notice, 1676
Interior Department Publications in French, 1333
Judges, conduct of, 1571
Live stock, distribution of pure-bred animals, 923
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1165
Montreal-Quebec pilots, superannuation, 1501

Cannon, Mr. Lucien—Con.
Motion pictures, artist, 1225
Parliamentary restaurant, 4536
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2716-36
Petroleum bounties, 1386, 1413, 1420
Point of order
Information, 1229
Statement of Member to be accepted, 2765
Railway Commission, 3020
Cases before, 3021
Chairman, 3017
Railway Congress, 3023
Railway Department
Deputy Minister's salary, 1666
Outside legal counsel, 1656
Solicitors and counsel, 1654
Work of, 1661
Railways. See also under this head Canadian National Railways
Lack of information, 1336
Minister, duties of, 1663
Railway employees, Civil Service Commission, 1653
Responsible Government, 1335
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 2799
Ste. Rose de Watford mail contract, qu. 3209
Secretaries to executives, 1671
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill, 653
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Consideration of, 3956
Statutory expenditure, 1419
Trade with Russia, 1224
Trent canal, 2960
Unemployment and immigration, 1375

Canso
Harbour, 3983-9
Wharf, and, 3983-9
Marine hospital, 3138
Mulgrave steamship service, 1496

Canteen. See War

Canteen Funds, Expeditionary Force, qu. 1133

Cantley, Col. Thomas, qu. 1501, 1609-10, 3407, 3610. See also Canadian National Railways

Cape Tormentine, dredging, 1017

Cardin, Mr. P. J. A. (Richelieu)
Government shipyard at Sorel, qu. 568, 2028, 2618
Indian Commissioner at Regina, qu. 964
St. Lawrence river
Deepening, qu. 2028
Dredges and tugs, qu. 568

Cards. See Criminal Code Amendments; Three Card Monte

Carillon and Grenville Canals. See Canals

Carroll's Landing, wharf, 3977

Car shortage. See Railways

Cartier, Dr. A. P., St. Hyacinthe, 3821, qu. 3904

Cartier Square, Ottawa, storeshed, qu. 3208

Cartwright, Sir Richard, 3645

Carvell, Hon. F. B., Chairman of the Railway Commission, 451, 1202, 1690, 1725, 3017

Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. (Charlevoix-Montmorency)
Baie Ste. Catherine-Tadoussac
Mail service, 4530
Steamship service, qu. 734
Business profits tax, qu. 576
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1907
Canadian National Railways
Baie St. Paul-St. Urbain branch line, 4328
Canadian National Railway magazine, 4332
Charlevoix station platforms, 4329
Directors' salaries, 4315
French language, 4329
Liquor
Seizure at Baie St. Paul, qu. 696
Theft at Baie St. Paul, qu. 1132
Montmorency county as tourist resort, 4332
Quebec and Saguenay station agents, qu. 696
Subsidiary companies, 1907
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 2032
Canadian Northern Railway, 1909
Canadian Pacific Railway
Canadian notes refused in United States, qu. 599
Champlain steamer, 1980, 1983
Charlevoix County
Station platforms, 4329
Wharves, 1929, 4536
Civil Service Commission, proposed abolition, qu. 1381
Dredging—Baie St. Paul district, 1992
Embargo on Canadian cattle, qu. 566
Experimental station—Charlevoix-Montmorency, 943-5
Foodstuffs, hoarding of, qu. 1347
Gauthier, Mr. L. J., M.P., qu. 1131
Grand Trunk loan, 4152-66
Grand Trunk Railway, reported application for assistance, 1498

Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F.—Con.
Highways, 3032
Grants under Act, qu. 567
Quebec-St. Joachim-St. Simeon, 3026, 4313
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3824
Isle aux Coudres telephone line, 4540
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1995
Montreal Post Office Mutual Benefit Association, qu. 567
Murray Bay-Tadoussac steamship service, 1528, 1822, 1828
Natural resources
M. to adjourn debate neg., 894
Payments to Postmaster General, qu. 567
Post Office
Mail Superintendents and postal inspectors, qu. 841
Religious holidays, 2626
Superintendents and inspectors, qu. 965
Public Works at Murray Bay, etc., qu. 604
Quebec and Saguenay Railway, qu. 963
Quebec (city) immigration officers, qu. 1131
Quebec riots, 1507
Quebec Steamship Company, 2775, 2941
Railway securities, provincial guarantees, 2619
Roumania, interest on advances to, qu. 566
St. Antoine, Montreal, representation, qu. 577
St. Catherines Bay-Tadoussac mail service, 4530
St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, warden, qu. 575
Scott Act, suspension of, 3584
Shipbuilding, 1895, 1929
Tapley, W. H., case of, res. 970, neg. 974
Three Card Monte, 1439
Trent Canal, 2607-17, 2972
War indemnity, Canada's share, 3583

Casselman, Mr. Orren D. (Dundas)
Budget, 3195. Congratulations to Minister of Finance, 3195; general election, 3196; tariff a political issue, 3196; protection, 3196; milk products, 3197; free trade arguments, 2197; tariff protection increased in foreign countries, 3198; group system of Government, 3199; Farmers' party, 3200; price-fixing, 3200; conscription, 3200
Experimental stations in Dundas, 954, 956

Catellier, Mr. Ludger J., 1465

Catholic Electorate. See York-Sunbury

Catholic Labour Unions. See Labour

Cattle. See also Agriculture; Health of Animals
Blood Indian Reserve, qu. 1818-19; see also Indians
Feeding, 344
Feeds, exemption of, 3746
Industry, 335
Live, export to Great Britain, 1474
Prize. See Agricultural shows
Shipping, 1039
Slaughtered, compensation for, 1061. See also Health of Animals

Cattle Embargo, 757, 3532. See also Health of Animals; Live Stock; Prime Ministers' Conference
Commission, inquiry, 1072
Promise of removal, qu. 566
Res. (Mr. Smith) 702
Amdt. (Mr. Pedlow) 725
Sub-Amdt. (Mr. Steele) 758, agreed to, 766
Res. (Mr. Lemieux) dropped, 766

Causapscal illustration station, 947

Cedar Posts for Canadian National Railways, qu. 1130

Cement Industry, 3683

Census. See also Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes)
Commissioners and enumerators, qu. 696, 800-12, 1209, 1226, 2098, qu. 3260
Appointment of, qu. 735, 2779, 2843, 2874-82, 3807. See also Civil Service Commission
Missisquoi, qu. 1132, 4113
Moncton, 3972
Officials, appointment of, 527, 597, 813, 827, 828, 830, 832
Pontiac, qu. 1127, 1231
Returned soldiers, as, qu. 2097
Industrial, 3490

Cent Coin, 2161

Central Railway Company of Canada, 3716. See also Private Bills Discussed

Chabot, Mr. J. L. (Ottawa)
Civil Service, Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) patronage in, 796; Civil Service Commission; ill-founded assertions; importance and variety of duties; organization attitude of Civil Service, 797

Chair. See Speaker's Chair

Chairman. See Deputy Speaker; Mr. Steele

Challies, Mr. J. B., 1346

Chambers of Commerce. See Trade

Chambly Canal. See Canals

"Champlain" steamer, 1980, 1983, 1995

Charlevoix County
Station platforms, 4329
Wharves, 1929, 4536

Charny, work at, qu. 1501

Chartered Banks. See Banks; Finance

Charters, Mr. Samuel (Peel)
Budget, 3410. Comment on Speech of Mr. W. C. Kennedy, 3410; Rural depopulation, 3411; production per man in agriculture, 3412; tariff and free agricultural implements, 3413; sales tax, 3413; outside capital, 3414

Chaudiere Junction, 1017

Cheese. See Dairying Industry

Chemicals for Fertilizers, 3441-2

Cheticamp Fishing station, 1991

Chicago Drainage Canal, 185, 1851, 2225

Chicoutimi
Customs collections, qu. 698
Labour Convention. See Labour
Pier, qu. 967
Wharves, 1921

Chief Electoral Officer, 4534. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Reports, qu. 577
To be printed, 731

Chief Justice. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Chief Whip. See Ames

Child Prisoners, 3011

Child Welfare, 3130

China, Importation of Eggs from, qu. 568

Chinese Immigration, 4131. See also Immigration

Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3207-3208; 2r., com., 3827; 3r., 3830
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Identity to be established, 3827
Power to arrest, 3829
Prohibited persons, 3839

Chippewa Power Canal, 2444

Chisholm, Mr. Alexander W. (Inverness)
Alcohol for medical purposes, 3729
Bernasconi, Mr., 4088

Chisholm, Mr. Alexander W.—Con.
Canadian "Spinner," "Leader," etc., qu. 1382
Census commissioners—returned soldiers, qu. 2097
Chartered banks, taxes paid by, ques. 2192
Cheticamp station, 1991
Dredging, 3983
Fraser, Mr., Collector of Customs, 3082
Grand Etang
Bridge, 3987
Light, 1997, 3987
Harbours and Rivers, estimates, 3975
Highways inspectors, 3023
Illicit liquors, 3082
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 622
Inspectors under Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 1043
Inverness
Fishery overseer, 2178
Harbour, 3985
Public building, 2817
Lobster hatcheries, 4037
Marine hospitals, 3138
Port Hood, wharf, 4104
Port Margaree wharf, 2174
Public Works—Engineering Branch, 4088
Relief of distressed seamen, 4039
Roy Building, Halifax, qu. 3089
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation, 4503
Trent canal, 2958

Chlorine Gas, 1027

Churchill, Right Hon. Winston and Shipbuilding, 1288. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Cigars and Cigarettes, duty on, 3698. See also Tobacco

Citizens' Liberty League, 304

Civil Aviation, 3776. See also Air

Civil Service. See also Arthur Young & Company; Griffenhagen; Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill; Civil Service Political Patronage; Supply
For individual departments see their titles
Appointments
As result of notices sent Members in Quebec, qu. 572
Competitive principle, on, 798
Distribution of, 1045
Dominion Lands Act, under, 4062
Dorchester penitentiary, Warden, 1092, 4467
Fruit inspectors in Nova Scotia, 1042
Gas and Gas Meters Act, Inspectors, 618, 619
Health of Animals, Inspectors, 1057, 1067

Civil Service—Con.
Appointments—Con.
Justice Department—lawyers, 1077
Member's recommendation, on, 2851-60-79
Militia appointments and dismissals, 2234
Order in Council, by, 1114
Purchasing Commission, 1100
Toronto post office, qu. 734
Trade Commissioners, 1464. See also Trade; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill Veterinary inspectors, 925. See also under this head Health of Animals
Woman Supervisor of Immigration, 3058-62
Bonus, qu. 901, qu. 967, 1176, qu. 1350, 1463, qu. 1623, 1948, qu. 2029, 2108-2115, 2236, qu. 3089, 3531, 4120, 4534
Health of Animals, Inspectors to, 1057, 1067
Lightkeepers, qu. 1622
Statement by Prime Minister, 1233
Classification, 817, 1660, 2236, 2842-8, 4465, 4475. See also under this title, Reorganization. For classification of the several departments, see their titles
Arthur Young Company, 551, 793, 799, 802, 816, 833, 2781
Board of Hearing, 823, qu. 2820
Bonus and, 1463
Civil Service Executive, 1671
Employment of foreigners, 825
Griffenhagen and Associates, payments to, qu. 575, 793, 833, qu. 4251. See also that title
Increase in salaries, 4541
Justice Department, in, 1076
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1995
Public Works, engineers, 2682
Record searcher, 1672
Commission, 825, 829, 835, 836. See also Civil Service Act Amdt.; Res. (Sir Sam Hughes); Retirement
Abolition, proposed, qu. 1381
Administration of Retirement Act, 2486-2503
Appointments by, 814, 822, 824. See also under this title, Appointments
Bland, Mr. C. H., 2861
Buffer, used as, 830
Certificate of competency, 2832
Cost, 794
Curtailment of jurisdiction, 815. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Establishment of, 798
Fraser, Mr. Roy, 2860-8
Good work of, 817
Information from, 1336
Nelson, Mr. Christian, 2880

Civil Service—Con.
Commission—Con.
Organization and duties, 797
Outside Service, and, 794, 815
Promotions, and, 827, 2833-9, 2847-50, 2867-2878, 2885, 4125
Removal of power to make certain appointments, 2778
Report tabled, 4449
Secretary, 2860-9, 2875-81
Competitive examinations, 817
Disabled soldiers, preference, 4049
Dismissals, 2234, 2884
Economy in, 3194, 3439
Efficiency and discipline, 2865
Employees, number, name and classification, 4255
Employment of women, 2286
Examinations, 2178
Competitive, 798, 817
Federal Union No. 66, 795
Fishery overseers, Lunenburg county, 2179
Grain inspectors, 1444
Griffenhagen and Associates. See under this title Classification; Reorganization
Halifax platform, 2844
Holidays, religious, 1384, qu. 1499, 2626, 2775, 4484. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Interim Supply and. See Interim Supply
Labour employment bureau, 2852
List, qu. 1349
Manual labourers, 2830-9, 2841-69, 2877-84, 4278-4460
Meetings in Government buildings, qu. 3421
Naval veterans, and, 3686
Organizations, 797, 2850
Outside Service, qu. 2820, 2876-80
Cost of placing under Commission, 794
Railway Department, 1653
Should be taken from Commission, 815
Political partisanship, 828
Political patronage, 2778-81, 2824-40, 2843-6, 2855-83, 3248. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill; Speeches on Res. (Sir Sam Hughes)
Census appointments, 800, 806, 808, 809
Committee to investigate, 790
Declaration against, 822
Opposed to, 797
Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) 789; withdrawn, 836
Preference to disabled soldiers, 4049
Prevailing rates of pay, qu. 3089
Printing Bureau, qu. 1234, 2827. See also that title
Professional, scientific and technical officers, 2830-43; 2866-84

Civil Service—Con.
Reform, 2844-71
Religious holidays, 1384, qu. 1499, 2626, 2775, 4484. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Reorganization, 1335, 4465, 4541, 4555. See also under this title Classification
American firm, employment, 517
Griffenhagen and Associates, 551, 799, 802, 813, 816, 2242, 2623, 2781, 2827, 4117
Officers detailed to assist, 600
Post Office Department, 4514. See also that title
Retirement, 2826, 4266. See also Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill
Barsalou, Mr., 2490
Customs and Inland Revenue Dept., 4117
Postmaster at Montreal, qu. 566
Provincial service, 2487-98
Report of Commission on, 1817
Survey staff, 2143
Returned Soldiers and, qu. 963, 2828, qu. 3259, qu. 3531, 4257, 4482. See also that title
Rural postmasters, 2829, 2833-41, 2866-84. See also Post Office
Superannuation, qu. 734, qu. 967, 2489, 2820. See also debates under Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill; Retirement Fund, taxation of, qu. 1237
Increased allowances to meet cost of living, 2112, 2491, qu. 3903, 4275, 4541
Application for, qu. 2099
Permanent Superannuation Act, 4277
Postmaster at Toronto, 566
Transfers, 2847-85
Unrest in, 795
Federal Union No. 66, 795
Whitley Councils, qu. 2820
Women in, employment, 2286

Civil Service Act, 1918, Amendment Bill
1r., 2865; m. for 2r., 2778, 2823; amdt. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) 2835; neg. 2887, 2r., 2887; com., 4278-80; 4460; 3r., 4493
Special Committee
Appointed, 2776
Discussed, 2778
First report, 2940
Concurred in, 3005
Second report, 3088
Third and final report, 3901
Discussed, 4278-80
Subjects and Sections Discussed:
Air Force, preference, 4483
Annual report, 4473-81; Amdt. 4482
Commission, jurisdiction of, 4460-82
Commission may make regulations, 4461
Customs officials, 4268

Civil Service Act, 1918, Amdt. Bill—Con.
Subjects and Sections Discussed—Con.
Dorchester penitentiary, appointment at, 4467
Employees on railways and ships, Act not to apply, 4278-83
Evidence before Special Committee, 4469-80
Exclusion of certain positions from operation of Act, 4281
Foran, Mr. William, 4286
Health Department—Research, 4464-78
Holidays, religious, Amdt. (Mr. Trahan) 4484; neg. 4492
Manual labourers, 4278-4460
Method of procedure, 4257-9
Naval Service, preference, 4482
"Nor in the public interest" Amdt. (Mr. Euler) 4283; 4460-81
Political patronage, 4280
Postmasters, 4278-4460
Professional, scientific and technical officers, 4279-4460
Provisions recommended by Pensions Committee, Res. 4257
Returned soldiers, preference, 4577
Amdt. (Mr. Cronyn) 4482; agreed to, 4484
Roche, Dr., 4287
Section 38, 4460
Senate amendments, 4577
Stayner, postmaster, 4470

Civil Service Association of Canada, 797. See also Civil Service

Civil Service Federation of Canada, 797. See also Civil Service

Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 2486; 1r., 2503; 2r., com., 4275; 3r., 4278
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Commission to report, 4266, 4277
Continuous employment, Res. 4266
Customs officials, 4268-72
Employees in post offices, 4268
Militia and Defence Dept., 4267-70
Notification of retirement, 4275
Officer, 4277
Officers of House of Commons, 4274
Officials
Permanent Superannuation Act, 4277
Receiving daily wage, 4267-70
Senate amendments, 4544
Sessional employees, 4268-71-74
Special circumstances, 4277
Working part time, 4267

Civil Service Retirement Act, qu. 734

Clapp, Miss S., 1332

Clark, Mr. Hugh (North Bruce)
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4485
Holidays, religious, point of order, 4485
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4350
Payments to Justices Riddell and Latchford, qu. 1500

Clark, Mr. Michael (Red Deer)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 397; sympathy with and congratulations to Mr. Bolton; the home market argument, 397; congratulations to Prime Minister—protection, narrow, sectional and local; "National Policy" a misnomer, 398; condition of the country—request for Grain Commission, 399; League of Nations—relations with United States—finance, trade, tariff, "luxury" taxes; production, markets; daylight saving; Board of Commerce; direct taxation; free wheat; Prime Minister's speech on Budget, 1920, 401; taxes difficult to collect, 402; rural depopulation, 403; fiscal policy of Great Britain; excess imports not necessarily adverse balance of trade; excessive borrowings, 405; labour conditions in Great Britain and United States; industries of Ireland; emigration from British Isles; iron and steel, 408; fiscal policy of United States; statement by Mr. Thomas W. Lamont, 409; antiquity of protection; Solomon a free trader; Britain has blazed the trail, 410; amendment to the amendment (Mr. Campbell); the amendment want of confidence in Government; redistribution; proportional representation, 411; the tariff issue, 412; sinking ship, 413; election; Progressive platform; the question before the country, 414
Agricultural publications, 1074-5
Bounties, principle of, 1424
Budget, 3218. Raises a clear issue; Canadian strawberries and grapes, 3218; fiscal condition of Britain; adverse balance of trade, 3219; National policy, debts, and deficits; tariff revision, 3220; taxes upon consumable commodities; three main principles of taxation, 3221; Mr. Fielding's amendment; Protection and Toryism, 3222; needs of the country; trade, increase in necessary, 3223; British trade increased, 3225; cost of living, 3226; building up of in-

Clark, Mr. Michael—Con.
Budget—Con.
dustries, 3227; taxation of land values, 3229; income tax, 3229; direct taxation, 3230; boots and shoes, 3230; tariff burdens, 3231
Business of the House
Complaint of undue haste, 4451
Duration of sittings, 1330
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1830
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2253-9
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1283
Canadian National Railways
Management, Information, M. (Mr. King) 1191, 1806
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1769, 1801
Canadian representation in the United States, 2396-2436
Cattle embargo, 704, 728
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Holidays, religious, 4492
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4268-73
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill
Crime and sin, distinction between, 3910
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Expense, 4395-4400
Fee, who pays? 3806
German reparation, 4429
Imports and exports, 4397
Increase in tariff, 4398
Invoice certificate, fee, 4397
Officials, appointment of more, 4398
Prohibitive legislation, 4420
Prohibitive tariff, 4429
Reparation Act in Great Britain, 4429
Restriction of trade, 4398
Roumania, 4429
Trade agents, 3805
Trade of other countries, 4430
Trade with United States, 4397-4400
Valuation for duty, 4419
Valuation of currency, 4429
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods, marking of, 3724, 3939-51
District Engineer's Office, Edmonton, 4543
Estimates, Committee on, 2201
French Trade Agreement, 2131
Highways, 3029, 3032
Construction in Ontario, 4294, 4305
Immigration, 2579-93, 3056-66
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4344-54
Latitude in debate, 1451
League of Nations, contribution to, 2370

Clark, Mr. Michael—Con.
Maisonneuve and Gaspé representation, 2315, 4437
Naval holiday, 4020
Naval Service, 4016-19
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale—point of order, 4031
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3853-88
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2902
Polish battalion for service in Frency army, 4059
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2639-58
Privilege—report in Ottawa Citizen, 448
Protected industries and export, 3631
Protective policy, 1288
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2045
Reparations—difficulties between Allied Powers and Germany, 599
Representation in Parliament, 1314
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships), 655
Shipbuilding, 1283, 1683, 1866, 1874, 1880. 1917, 1924
Closure, 1931
Newspaper comment, 1934
Progress in discussion, 1938
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4059
Taxation, incomes of $200,000 or over, qu. 838
Wheat Board, 1453, 1458

Clarke, Mr. W. A. (North Wellington)
Criminal Code Amdt.—docking animals, 3923

Clark's Harbour, public building, 2817

Classification. See that title under Civil Service

Clay. See also Natural Resources
Crockery for, 3384-5
Deposits in Saskatchewan, 846

Clements, Mr. H. S. (Comox-Alberni)
Fisheries of British Columbia, 890
Halibut industry, 891
Natural resources, 890

Closure, Rule 17B. 1844. See also Interim Supply; Shipbuilding
Government Shipbuilding Programme, 1979-2094
Interim Supply, 2025
Formal motion, 2026; agreed to, 2076
2 a.m. rule, 2094

Clover and Grass Seed, 1109

Coal. See also Fuel Supply Problem; Lignite; Mines and Minerals; Natural Resources

Coal—Con.
American competition with Nova Scotia, 3295
Canadian-owned railway mines in United States, 4316
Carriage of. See Fuel Supply; Railways; Transportation
Consumption in Canada, 1249
Deposits, Alberta penitentiary, 1092
Development, 842, 848
Maritime Provinces in, 1281, 3295
Prices at mine, 1251
Production and value, 3515
Railway rates on, 390. See also Railways, Freight rates
Railways, duty on, 1184, 1187
Reserve, 1247-8
Resources in Alberta, 857
St. Lawrence route, by, 1731. See also Great Lakes-St. Lawrence
Scarcity of. See Fuel Supply Problem
Trade, 1936. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Wales, from, 1716
Wasting of. See Fuel Supply Problem
Water carriage, 2963. See also Great Lakes-St. Lawrence

Coastal Trade, 1494. See also Shipping

Coats, Mr. R. H., 801, 1231. See also Census; Dominion Statistician

Cocaine Imports, 3130, 3170. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Cockshutt, Mr. W. F. (Brantford)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 91; tribute to new Prime Minister, 91; speech of Mr. Gauthier, a "family fight"; stability and self-respect of Quebec, 92; price of agricultural implements, 93; Opposition—amendment—the Government's mandate, 94; census, redistribution and appeal to country, 95; Agrarian party; expenditure of Ontario Government, 96; tariff and exchange situation—League of Nations, 97; disarmament, reparations, indemnities—taxation, 98; relations between Canada and the Mother Country—Judicial Committee of Privy Council—Governor General; agitation and unrest, 99; modern fads, 100
Binder twine, 3746, 3493
Brantford Customs office, 3086
Budget, 3488. Congratulations to Finance Minister, 3488; taxation severe, 3488; Leader of Agrarian party and manufacturers, 3489; co-operation between Cockshutt, Mr. W. F.—Con.

Budget—Con.
farmers and manufacturers, 3489; industrial census, 3490; agricultural implements and Western Grain Growers, 3492; Binder twine and free trade, 3493; home market, 3494; free trade with Britain, 3494; agricultural implement industry, 3496
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee, reference to, M. (A. K. Maclean), 1612
Canadian representation in the United States, 2402-11
Cattle embargo, 718
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Express parcels, 4403
Fee—who pays? 3802, 4402
Invoice certificate, 3802, 4401
Toronto Board of Trade, 4402
Trade
Agents and commissioners, 3802, 4402
Extension, 4403
Director of exporting company, 3564
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 308
Dr. Graham Bell's secretary, 2377
Housing, 1150
Income Tax Act Amdt Bill, 4350-3
League of Nations, contribution to, 2360-7
North American Trust Co., 1128
Parliament buildings, 3999
Pensions, widowed mothers, 637
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2724
Proportional representation, 1546
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2058
References to, 451, 491
Senate and House of Commons (Ministers and directorships) Act Amdt. Bill, 660
Shipbuilding, 1878, 1881

Cocoa
Cocoa paste and chocolate, 3703
Duties on, 3170

Coffee Adulteration, 3141

Coinage. See also Currency Act Amdt. Bill
Cent coin, 2161
Gold, melting down, 2160, 2269
Gold, standard, 2269
Nickel, five cent coin, 2160, 2269
Redemption of, 2160

Cold Storage. See also Dairying Industry; Health of Animals
Foodstuffs in, qu. 1347
Fruit, 1041
Meat of, 1125
Plants. See Live Stock
Warehouses, 1038

Collingwood breakwater, 3973

Collingwood Shipbuilding Company, 1884, 1890, 1902. See also Shipbuilding

Colonial Conferences, 3432. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Combines, 3293-5, 3382

Combines and Fair Prices Act, 3606

Commercial Exhibits, director of, 1225

Commercial Feeding Stuffs. See also Stock feed

Commercial Intelligence, Director of, 1219

Commercial Museum, 1227

Commercial Relations. See Address; Budget; Canadian Representation; Customs and Excise; Reciprocity; Trade

Commercial Treaties, 2378. See also Canada-West Indies; French Trade Agreement; Reciprocity

Commission of Conservation. See Conservation Commission

Commissioner of Patents, 623
Report, 107

Commissioners, Judges as. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Commissions of Inquiry. See Printing Bureau; Grain Trade

Committee of Supply. See Supply

Committee on Imperial Defence, 2637-49. See also Imperial Defence; Prime Ministers' Conference

Committee on Railways and Shipping. See Canadian National Railways

Committees, Standing. See House of Commons

Commodities, Taxes on, 3221. See also Special War Revenue Act

Compensation for Slaughtered Animals. See Health of Animals

Condensed Milk, tax, 3737, 3956

Confederation. See Ministers

Conference on International Finance, report tabled, 962

Confidence Games. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Confidential Documents. See Canadian National Railways

Confidential Information. See Canadian National Railways—Management

Confidential Messengers, 1079-80

Conscription, 3200, 3517, 3528. See also Military Service Act; Quebec riots

Consent of the House. See House of Commons; Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Consequential Amendments. See Corrupt Practices at Elections

Conservation Act Repeal Bill
1r., 3739; 2r., 3958; com., 3970; 3r., 3971

Conservation Commission
Abolition of, 2, 875, 3146, 3739, 3958, 3970-1
Illustration farms, 949-954

Consolidated Revenue Fund, surplus from Grain Board, 1447

Constituent and Subsidiary Companies. See Canadian National Railways; Railways

Constitutional Development. See Address; Canadian Representation; Ministers; Prime Ministers' Conference

Consular Agents. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade

Consular Certificates. See Trade, Agents and Commissioners

Consuls. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Serbian, at Montreal, qu. 605
United States, in Canada, 2405

Contracts. See Purchasing Commission; Shipbuilding

Controverted Elections Act. See Corrupt Practices at Elections

Convicts. See Penitentiaries

Cook, Mr. Fred, 4541, 4557-60. See also Printing Bureau

Cooper, Col. John A., qu. 697, 1713

Cooper, Mr. Hugh L., of New York. See Chippewa Power Canal

Cooper, Mr. R. C. (Vancouver South)
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, report, 4055-60

Co-operative Marketing. See Live Stock

Copp, Mr. Arthur B. (Westmorland)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 445; Minister of Militia; his

Copp, Mr. Arthur B.—Con.
Address—Con.
position from 1911 to 1917; an exponent of free trade in natural products; speeches of mover and seconder, 446; the amendment—constitutional position of Government; the written and unwritten laws—Bourinot; moral obligation to appeal to people; Ministers in disagreement—public opinion demands election; the precedent of 1911, 449; War election of 1917—formation of Union Government—retirements, 451; responsibility implies public confidence; Mr. Calder; Mr. Spinney; Postmaster General; Minister of Customs and Inland Revenue, 452; St. John Standard, 453; political conditions 1891 to 1896, 454; returned soldiers calling for election; Great War Veterans Association, 455; strength of the Liberal party, 456
Agricultural estimates, increases in, 951
Air Board, 3783
Amherst drill hall, 2739
Canadian National Railways, 4561, 4338
Employees, reduction in number, 1851
Freight rates, 4562
Maritime Provinces, 4561
Private cars, 4563
Staff, 4562
Census enumerators in Moncton county, 3972
Census officials, 830
Civil Service, political patronage, 830
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2489-90
Customs
Belyea, Mr., retirement of, 3082
Offices, amalgamation of, 3083
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Amalgamation of departments, 3820
Inland Revenue Act—administration, 3820
Customs Tariff Act Amdt., marking of imported goods, 3949
Debates, translation of French speeches, 701
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4068
Dorchester penitentiary
Purchases for, 1108
Salaries, 1096
Warden, 1092
Dredging, 3982
Forts Cumberland and Moncton, care of, 4540
Fredericton experimental farm, qu. 1131
Grand Trunk loan, 4136-67
Harbours and rivers, 3973

Copp, Mr. Arthur B.—Con.
Highways, 3023, 3034, 4290, 4303
Immigration, salaries, 3059
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 2166
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill
Intercolonial Railway, 4561
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 2119-20, 2151
Justice Department, private secretaries, 1079
"Laurentian," Government steamer, qu. 1348
Marine signal service, 1998
Moncton, examining warehouse, 2815
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4031-2
Parliament Buildings, 4070
Partridge Island quarantine station, 2810
Pilotage, 1999, 2001
Railway Department
Purchasing agent, 1670
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2153, 4564
St. John Rolling Mills. See "Niobe" and "Rainbow"
Sackville public building, 2816
Shediac and Cape Tormentine Railway, 4564
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation of, 4505
Shipbuilding, 1905, 1931, 1935
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1837
Welland canal, construction, 2996

Copyright Amendment and Consolidation Bill, 2, 649
1r., 350; 2r., ref. to Special Com., 2909; com., 3830. 3r., 3850; Senate Amdts. concurred in, 4256
Special Com. appointed, 2941
Report, 3761
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Acts of United Kingdom, 3833-46
Berne Convention, 3833
License to print, 3831-7
Phonographic discs, 3832
Publication in serial form, 3844
Royalty, 3831
Second or succeeding editions, 3840
Suppression of works, 3838

Corn Borer, 1025, 1027, 1031

Corning, W. H., cattle purchases, qu. 1624

Cornmeal, 3546

Correspondence. See also Canadian National Railways
Availability to Parliament, 1290-1

Corrupt Practices Inquiries Act
Bill withdrawn, 1126

Corrupt Practices at Elections Bill
1r., 1126-7; 2r., 2036; com., 2036; 3r., 2151
Subjects and Sections Discussed:
Avoidance of election, 2037
Exoneration of candidate from consequence of illegal practices, 2037
Exoneration of any person from consequences, etc., 2037
Illegal practices, 2036
Judge's report published, 2037
Presenting petition, 2037
Punishment of corrupt or illegal practices, 2037

Cory, Mr. W. W., and Immigration Department, 3056

Cost of Living, 3169, 3226, 3256, 3548, 3606, 4551. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service Bonus; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Superannuation, Increased allowances

Cote, Hon. Mr., Provincial Secretary, Alberta, 1266

Coughlan Shipbuilding Company, 1890

County Fairs. See Agricultural Shows; Live Stock

Courtenay Bay, improvements, 4097. See also St. John Harbour

Cowan, Mr. G. H., K.C., legal expenses, 2187

Cowan, Mr. Walter D. (Regina)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 165; Canada at Assembly of League of Nations—election—agitation and unrest, 165; abnormal business conditions—visit of leader of Opposition to western provinces; the tariff, 166; newspaper comment; opinions of business men and returned soldiers, 167; omission of tariff from amendment; unfair to hold election before redistribution, 168; duty on fruit; express rates; Scientific and Industrial research, 164
Agrarian party and Wheat Board, 1455
Briquetting plant at Bienfait, qu. 673
Budget, 3375. Congratulations to Minister of Finance, 3375; attitude of Opposition and Agrarian party, 3376; Agrarian party and free trade, 3376; loan to Belgium, 3377; agricultural machinery and the tariff; 3379; Customs duties and manufacturers, 3380; free trade and combines, 3382; price-fixing ring in Great Britain, 3383; protective tariff and Western Canada, 3384; agricultural implements, duty on, 3386-7

Cowan, Mr. Walter D.—Con.
Canadian Northern, Craven line, 3053
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 340, 341, 1452, 1455
Flax-growing, 1396
Fuel Supply Problem, 1266
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 685
Natural resources, 845
Saskatchewan militia organization, 2795-6
Trade commissioners, 1392

Cow-Testing Associations, 1036

Creamer, Dr. J. P., qu. 1236

Creameries. See Dairying Industry

Cream Separators, 3328, 3364, 3495, 3481, 3508. See also Agricultural Implements

Credits. See Finance; Housing; Loans

Crerar, Hon. T. A. (Marquette)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 262; congratulations to Prime Minister; to mover and seconder; the Speech a meagre bill of fare—freedom from unrest; Speeches of the Prime Minister; fishing in Quebec; unemployment insurance and old age pensions; tariff revision, 263; protection to agriculture; revenue, 264; finances; necessity for economy; expenditures, 265; naval and militia votes; trade and exchange; Great Britain, Australia, and United States, 266; need for extended markets; reciprocity, 267; commercial agents, 268; national railways; deficit; special committee suggested; reorganization of board of directors; immigration, 269; Prime Ministers' Conference; Imperial defence; the amendment; Government has lost confidence of country; by-elections; reorganization of Government, 271; redistribution; serious problems, 272
Archives, provision for, 2951
Budget, 3476. Reference to previous speakers in debate; national debt and Finance Minister's surplus, 3476; revenues and expenditures, 3477; maturing loans, provision for, 3478; Agrarian party—"servile tools and minions"—3479; York-Sunbury election, Government platform, 3480; Binder twine industry, 3481; cream separators, 3481; tariff revision, 3482; adverse exchange and protection, 3482; export trade, 3483; boot and shoe industry, 3484; Sherwin-Williams Paint Company, 3484; sales tax, 3485; income taxes in Crerar, Hon. T. A.—Con.

Budget—Con.
Canada and Great Britain, 3486; land taxation, 3486; agricultural products; restricted market and decline in value, 3487; rigid economy in expenditure necessary, 3487
Business of the House
Audibility of debates, 1625
Saturday sittings, 2818
By-elections
Medicine Hat, 2151
York-Sunbury, 3480, 3628
Canada Temperance Act, 4379
Canadian National Railways
Lord Shaughnessy's letter, 2503
Management — Information, M. (Mr. King) 1187
Special Committee
M. (Mr. Maclean) 1184
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1776, 1804
Amdt. 1812, 1813
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2412-17
Canal tolls, 2964
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2835-66
Deceased members, tribute to, 153
Destruction of documents, 2951
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4239-41
Additional courts, 3111
Alien wives of British subjects, 3106
Certificate of naturalization qualification, 4240
Forms, 4240
Government terminal elevators—overages, 3634
Governor General, address to on retirement, 4434
Grain Growers Grain Company, 3180
Grain inquiry
Proposed commissioners, 1674
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2449-59
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 689
Highway construction in Ontario, 4294-6
Hudson Bay Railway, 998
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4345
Judge Snider's report, 4436
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2351-2
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4184-4224
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill, 2891
Natural resources—transfer to western provinces, 2529-46
Navigation, season of, 1994
Owens, the late Thomas P., Editor of Debates, 259
Post Office Department, 4519

Crerar, Hon. T. A.—Con.
Proportional representation, 1545, 1546
Railway Commission, vacancy, 3021
References to, 367, 372, 390, 395, 438, 450, 515. See also Speeches on Address; Budget
Resignation of, letter, Sir Robert Borden, 516
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. (Ministers and directorships) 662
Senate Committee, leave to attend, 3207, 3259
Shipbuilding, attitude on, 1978, 2082
Speaker's Chair, presentation of, 3694
Trent canal, 2971-8
Welland canal, 2974
Wheat Board, position with regard to, 1452
York-Sunbury election, 3480
Debates, official report of, changes in, 3628
Reference to by Mr. Stevens, 3627-8

Criminal Cases
Appeals, 3006
Procedure, 3006

Criminal Code Amendment Bills
1. Aliens and Firearms (Mr. Currie) 1r., 2373; Bills withdrawn, 2560; (See Bill No. 7)
2. Excessive or Inadequate Punishments (Mr. Tweedie) 1r., 695; M. for 2r. stands, 1856, 1857, 2228
3. Defamatory Libel. (Mr. Archambault) 1r., 2149, 3933
4. Probation of Offenders. (Mr. Mowat) 1r., 2097. (See No. 7)
5. Three Card Monte (Mr. Lafortune) 1r., 1439; 2r., 1857; com., 1857-58; 2555; (See No. 7)
6. Warrant of Commitment (Mr. Mewburn) 1r., 2686
7. Age of Consent; Firearms; Motor Car Theft; Recorder's Court Jurisdiction; Seduction; etc. (Mr. Doherty) 1r., 3005-7; 2r., 3830; com., 3830-96; 3906; 3r., 3938; Senate Amdts, concurred in, 4342

Subjects and Sections discussed:
Animals, docking, 3922-36, 4343
Carnally knowing, 3912, 4342
Chattels, $25 in value, fraudulently burning, 3922, 4343
Clerk or Deputy Clerk of Peace, 3936
Commencement of Act, 3932
Concealed weapons, pistols, ammunition, etc., 3900-33
Disorderly house, 3925
Dogs—docking, 3936
Driving motor vehicles while intoxicated, 3911

Criminal Code Amendment Bills—Con.
Subjects and Sections Discussed—Con.
Falsely registering at hotel as man and wife, 3909
Feeble-minded, 3896-3932
Forms, 3932
Horses, docking, 3923
Illicit connection with Indian woman, 3907
Indecent assault—age raised from 14 to 16, 3911, 4342
Location of land, 4343.
Marks made on public stores, 3921
Metal tokens used as money. 3923
Offender under suspended sentence may be placed on probation, 3931
Officials stealing fares, 3925
Penalty for injuring oil wells, etc., extended to gas wells, 3922
Publication of Judicial Proceedings—Defamatory libel, 3933
Rape—whipping added to punishment, 3912
Reading depositions on preliminary inquiry, 3924
Recorder's Court, 3899
Revising of sentences, 4343
Seduction and carnal knowledge, 3899, 4342
Spanking—persons under 21 and guilty of theft, liable to, 3918
Stealing automobiles, minimum sentence for, 3913
Three Card Monte, 3921
Whipping for robbery and assault with intent to rob, 3922
Witness fees, 3937

Cromwell's Navigation Act, 1872

Cronyn, Mr. Hume (London)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2922
Civil Service Act. Amdt. Bill
Air Force, preference, 4483
Returned Soldiers, preference, Amdt. 4482, 4493, 4577
Housing, 1146
National Research Institute, 886, 2695
Natural resources, 885
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4366-73
Pensions, widowed mothers, 633, 4369
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4055
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4262, 4356
Returned Soldiers
Special Committee on Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment

Cronyn, Mr. Hume—Con.
Returned Soldiers—Con.
Motion for adoption of report, 4041-55. See also Returned Soldiers, Special Committee Civil Service
Quorum, 901

Crop Reports, 1116

Crops, Loss of through insect pests, 1028

Crowe, Mr. S. J. (Burrard)
Currency Act Amdt. Bill, 2269

Crown, taxation of the, 3742

Cruelty to Animals. See Criminal Code Amendment Bill

Currant Boxes. See Berry Boxes

Currency Act Amendment Bill
Res. 2160; 1r., 2162; 2r., com., 2269; 3r., 2270

Currie, Mr. J. A. (North Simcoe)
Adams, Capt. Henry C., qu. 1237
Armistice Day Bill, 3776
Australian and New Zealand trade, 1223
Automobile theft, 3914
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2925
Berry Boxes, 4115
Business of the House, 1831
Supply, procedure,
Discussion not in order, 1217
Hypothetical questions, 1217
Canadian Manufacturers and American markets, 1223
Canadian National Railways
Management—Information, M. (Mr. King) 1194
Cattle embargo, qu. 714
Chief Justice, income tax and, 1566
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3828
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2825-48-83, 4283, 4466-93
Annual report, 4473
Holidays, religious, point of order, 4485
Returned soldiers—preference, 4493
Stayner postmaster, 4471
Copyright Amendment and Consolidation Bill, 3835-41
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3900-34
Firearms, 2373, 2560
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Commercial agencies, 4408
Consular certificate, 4408
"Dick Turpin"—point of order, 4421
Dumping of goods, 4412
Invoice certificate, fee, 4391

Currie, Mr. J. A.—Con.
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill—Con.
Trade, extension, 4408
Valuation for duty, 4412
De Martigny divorce, 3764-9
Destruction of documents, 2950-3
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. 309
Dredging, 3982
Foreign trade commissioners, 1223
French Trade Agreement, 1175
Gaspé Peninsula, railway facilities, 2509
Geodetic survey, 2806
Geological survey, 2145-7
Grain
Grain Growers Grain Company, 1462
Open market in, 1452
Harbours and rivers, 3979
Highland regiments, 2307
Highway construction in Ontario, 4296
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4353-5
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2355
League of Nations, contribution to, 2365-73
Letter rate, 4517
Linen trade, 1391
Maple Products Act, 1920, Amdt. Bill, 2558, 2890
Militia
Command pay, 2292
Purchasing Commission, 2239
Topographic Survey, 2806
National Expenditures Committee, 1835
National Transcontinental Railway—Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2516
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale,—point of order, 4030
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2899-2905
Parliament buildings, 4076
Letter of Hon. George Brown, 4001
Post Office, Col. Verret, 4525
Potato growing and diseases, 1033
Press—publication of court proceedings, 3933
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2669
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4059
Spruce forests, bud worm, 1031
Trade agents, 1478
Trade with Fiji Islands, 1465
United States, exports to, 1222
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1831
Welland canal, construction—point of order, 2989
Wheat Board, loss under, 1457-9
Wheat, purchase by Great Britain, 1449

Customs. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Customs Tariff, 1907, Amdt. Bill; Tariff

Customs—Con.
Brokers'
Licenses, 3786
Payments to by departments, 1090
Drawbacks, qu. 2375
On fish from United States, qu. 600
Entry, 3786
Foreign monetary standards, qu. 1133
Importations
Foreign goods, 3119
From Germany, qu. 696
Marking of, 3120
Reported increase in, 597
Revenue by provinces, qu. 1622
Value for duty, 3786-3819
Valuation of currency, 3786-3818

Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Res. 3785; 1r., 3822; 2r., com., 4388; 3r., 4453
Subjects and sections discussed:
Certificate, form of, 3788
Certificate of trade or consular agent, 4389
Commission, 4388
Consular agents, 3791
Cost of production in foreign country, 4411
Customs house brokers, 4432
Department constituted, 4388
Entry, 4389
Exchange—tariff rates on foreign goods, 4421
Express parcels, 4400
Fee for invoice certificate, 4389
Who pays?—3792-9, 4391-5, 4400-9
German competition, 4423
German mark, depreciation, 3810-19
Invoice certificate, 3786-3809, 4391-5, 4400-9
Minister's duties, powers and functions, 4389
Molasses wash, for hog feed, 3787-3820
New or unused goods, 3813
Proclamation of Act, 3798, 4391-4
Provincial analyst, certificate, 3786
"Reasonable profit under the circumstances," 4415
Restriction of trade, 4398
Letter of Gillies Bros., Limited, 4418
Revenue, expenditure, 4397-9, 4403
Still—innocent manufacture of part or possession, 3788-3820
Third reading, complaint of haste, 4449
Trade agents, 3786-3809
Trade, extension of, 4389
United States Customs regulations, 4417
Valuation for duty at not less than wholesale price, 4411
Valuation of currency, 4420

Customs and Inland Revenue
Department
Board of Customs, 4126
Consolidation of offices, 3083
Estimates, 2889, 3077, 4117
Inspectors, 4126
Officials
Merchandise, branding of. See Customs Tariff Act Amdt. Bill
Overtime, 4123-5
Reorganization, 804
Retirement, 2490-7, 2502, 4268-72
Salaries and contingent expenses, 2889, 3081, 4117
Staff, reduction, 4117
Toronto, 1351
Revenue cruisers and preventive service, 4127
Minister, private business connections, 3077, 3172

Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Res. 3121, 3698; 1r., 3725; 2r., com., 3938; 3r., 3955
Subjects and sections discussed:
Anodynes, elixirs, etc., 3709
Imported goods to be marked, branded or labelled, 3711-19, 3938
Spirituous liquors, 3708-8
Sugar, 3699
West Indian importations, preference, 3698
Wines
Medicinal, 3709
Other than sparkling, 3710
Sparkling, 3711

Dairy Cattle. See Health of Animals; Live Stock

Dairy Herds, testing of, 1118

Dairying Industry, 1036, 3118. See also Address; Budget; Dairy Produce, Grading; Oleomargarine
Butter
Material for substitutes, 3745
Price of, 3190, 3256
Production, 3118
Butter and Cheese
Exports and imports, 1037, 1470, 1471, 3747-50, 3852-88, 4438
Cheese factories, 1472
National Dairy Council, 1126

Dairy Produce, Grading Bill
Res., 1r., 3760; 2r., com., 4439; 3r., 4448
Subjects and sections discussed:
Butter and cheese, export, 4437
Complaint of undue haste, 4449
Definitions, 4437

Dairy Produce Grading Bill—Con.
Subjects and Sections Discussed—Con.
Demand for legislation, 4437
Regulations, 4448

d'Anjou, Mr. Emmanuel (Rimouski)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 137; right of Mr. Mackenzie King to lead Liberal party—overtures of Government to Province of Quebec; the French language, 138; Government without authority to carry on administration; Prime Minister the author of iniquitous laws, 139
Agricultural shows, 1240
Debates, translation of French speeches, 700
Experimental station in Rimouski, 954
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1995
Military expenditure, 2801
Shipbuilding, 1924

Dark Lantern Brigade, 1187, 1192, 1209, 1282

Davidson, Mr. A. L. (Digby and Annapolis)
Annapolis public building, 2743
Apple-growing counties of Nova Scotia, 1046
British preference and free trade, 3666
Canada Temperance Act—relevancy, point of order, 4383
Canadian Wheat Board, participation certificates, 341
Guernsey cattle at Nappan, qu. 2686
Highways expenditure, 2555
Proportional representation, Special Com., 2027
Reference to Hon. Mr. Mackenzie King in speech, 2443

Davie Shipbuilding Company, qu. 1348, 1846, 1972

Davis, Mr. F. L. (Neepawa)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 483; congratulations to Prime Minister; "no man's land"; formation and composition of Government; out of touch with electorate, 483; Progressive platform; Liberal party; tariff "opportunism"; transportation; Committee on Estimates; Imperial relations; excess profits tax; demand by western provinces for natural resources, 484; redistribution and election, 485
American immigration, 3064
Budget, 3262. Business and financial depression, 3262; business profits and income tax, 3262; heavy freight rates, 3263; adverse balance of trade, 3264; exchange variation, 3264; debts and

Davis, Mr. F. L.—Con.
Budget—Con.
obligations, 3265; United States, borrowings from, 3266
Canadian National Railways
Management—Information, M. (Mr. King) 1193
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1793
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4283
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Cost of production, 4413
English bankers on trade restriction, 4412
Exchange, 4413
Foreign goods, cost of production, 3814
German goods via Holland, England and the United States, 4427
Money—purchasing power and exchange value, 4427
New and unused goods, 3815
Valuation for duty, 4412
Valuation of currency, 3816, 4427
Wages, 4428
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill, imported goods, marking, 3940
Estimates, Committee on, 484, 2197
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2458-70
Grand Trunk loan, 4146
Hudson Bay Railway, 994, 2969
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4220
Militia—reduction of staff, 2241
Natural resources—transfer to western provinces, 2537
Proportional representation, 1542
Welland canal construction, 2967-8
Wheat Board, unified buying, 1459

Dawson, Judge at, 1088

Daylight Saving, 401, qu. 1817
Ottawa, in, qu. 2687, 2776

Dease and Stikine Rivers, qu. 1133

Debates, Official, Report of. See House of Commons

Decayed Pilots, 2000. See also Pilots

Dechene, Mr. A. M. (Montmagny)
Agricultural Gazette, 1076
Agricultural shows, 1243
Board of Trade forms in French, 2819, 3320
Budget, 3466. Government system of taxation; war profits tax and large companies; income tax, 3467; Yamaska election, 3467; railway administration, 3469; fire insurance in foreign firms, 3469

Dechene, Mr. A. M.—Con.
Butter
Exports, 1037
Price of, 3256
Butter and cheese exports, 1471
Civil Service
Bonus, 4535
Classification, 4541
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4446
Government shipbuilding programme, 2094
Immigration, salaries, 3057
Militia employees, 2241
Montmagny—railway shed accommodation, 4570
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3759, 3860
Post Office, Isles aux Grues-Montmagny service, 4529
Potato diseases, 1032
Public Works—Nova Scotia, 2754
Special War Revenue Act Amdt.
Missals and prayer books, 3756
Prayer beads and crucifixes, 3756
Sales tax, 3757
Supply—point of order, 2759

Decorations, foreign, to Canadians, qu. 1132

Defamatory Libel. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bills

Delinquent Children, 3012. See also Juvenile Delinquents

Delisle, Mr. M. S. (Portneuf)
Cabinet Ministers and Post Office Dept., qu. 1349
Canadian National Railways
Conductors and brakemen discharged, qu. 1622
Post Office Department—reorganization, 3772

De Martigny Divorce. See Private Bills Discussed

Demers, Mr. M. J. (St. Johns and Iberville)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 232; congratulations to mover and seconder; general election, inevitable, 232; circumstances under which Government was formed; manipulation of soldier votes in 1917; no relief until constitutional government restored; Prime Minister's attitude towards Quebec, 233; all classes anxious for general election; necessity for rigid economy, 234
Budget, 3437. Financial and economic condition of country, 3437; railway deficit,

Demers, Mr. M. J.—Con.
Budget—Con.
3438; shipbuilding, 3438; military expenditure, 3440; economy in public affairs, 3440
Deposits outside Canada in Canadian banks, qu. 1623
Fort Lennox, Isle-aux-Noix, sundial, qu. 2097
Pecuniary Claims Convention, qu. 736, qu. 1817; qu. 2027
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2718-22
St. Jean Post office, receipts, qu. 576

Demobilization, 2285, 3523. See also Soldiers Civil Re-establishment; Special Committee on Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment.
Canadian claims against Germany, 4534. See also Germany
Enemy debts, 4534
Public Works, 3989

Democratic Government. See Ministers

Demography, Chief of, 1232

Denis, Mr. J. J. (Joliette)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 539; French language; speech of Prime Minister a document without fragrance, flavour or taste, 540; the new Government and the old; Prime Minister's tour; general election; position of Government precarious and humiliating, 541; province of Quebec, 542; League of Nations; French speaking representatives; International Labour Conference, 544; financial position of Canada, 545; amendments, 546; ten years without an election; the one issue of 1917; fiscal policy, 547
Alcohol, tax on, 3732
Budget, 3575. Approved by industrial interests, 3575; sales tax bears heavily on working classes, 3576; tax on spirits, 3576; railway situation, 3577; immigration policy, 3580; military expenditures, 3580
Business of the House
Duration of sittings, 3733
Private Bills, 3971
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2257-8
Canadian National Railways
Joliette bridge, 3038, 4320
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2419-21
Census commissioners in province of Quebec, 832

Denis, Mr. J. J.—Con.
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3828
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2865
Civil Service, political patronage, 831
Criminal Code Amendment Bill, 3830
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Valuation of currency, 3818
Dairy Produce, grading Bill, 3760
Debates, official, distribution of, 2221
De Martigny divorce, 4002-6
Estimates in French, 1385
Grand Trunk loan, 4159-62
Highways, Quebec, 4308
Immigration, 2598, 3088
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3825
Income Tax Act Consolidation, 2819, 3905
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3759, 3877, Amdt. to 2r., 3879, neg. 3886
Privilege—Immigration, remarks on, 3088
Proportional representation, 1543
Quarantine stations, 2811
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Amendments, 3755
Lumber, tax on, 3756-7
Sales tax, 3755

Departmental Expenditures. See also Supply, Depts.
Detailed information, 1186-7

Departments
Purchasing Commission, 1099
Supply, right of discussion, 1215. See also Supply

Deportation of Undesirables. See Immigration Act Amdt. Bill

Depot Harbour, wharf, 3973

Deputy Governor General, 1559

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees (Mr. George H. Boivin)
Rulings and Statements of. See also House of Commons; Speaker
Amendment
Changing destination of vote, 4169, 4289
Mover may not speak second time without consent, 727
Sent across floor, 764
To Public or Government Bill, 4485
Announcement by Minister in Committee, of Governor General's assent, 4169
Bills
Amendments
Involving or increasing charge on public revenue, 4359, 4485-91
Negativing principle, 3895
Which do not alter principle, 4355
Committee
Discussion of principle in, 779
Notice of amdt. to public or government Bill not required, 4485

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committee (Mr. George H. Boivin)—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Bills—Con.
Committee—Con.
Principle having been adopted discussion must be relevant to clause 4466
Question put and declared carried, 4488
Title cannot be changed in, 2033
Two questions cannot be considered at same time, 4229
Consideration of clauses en bloc, 3956
Introduction of
No debate allowed, 3007
Motion to strike out section not in order, 3952
Permissible to move consideration clause by clause, 3956
Private
Com. must first report progress and motion to refer back will be in order, 1130
Precedence only for first hour on Friday night, 4010
Recommendation for change of title, 1096
Right
To hear evidence, 3768
To refer back, 1130, 3768
To review action, 4004
Senate amendments, non-concurrence in, reasons, 3010
2r.,
Analysis of clauses on, 2832
Objection to Bill not being printed in both languages must be raised before, 1095
Order for, stands, 1857
Questions and comments not in order, 2834
3r.,
Amendment, notice of, 3421
Change of title, 1096
Chair
Cannot oblige Minister to give answer unless he so desires, 1908
Rulings of subject to judgment of House, 3562
To be addressed by Members, 1066, 1896, 3468, 3530
Closure. See that title
Minister's right to speak exhausted, 2080
2 a.m. rule, 2094
Committee
Discussion must be strictly relevant, 1570, 1995

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committee (Mr. George H. Boivin)—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Committee—Con.
Evidence taken in Court not to be used as argument, 3769
Forms adopted can only be reconsidered by unanimous consent, 4229-49
Having agreed to report, member's opportunity to speak has passed, 4275
Item declared carried after question put, 1091
No item before Com., debate not in order, 1090
Principle of Bill may not be discussed, in, 779
Vote in, 2756
Correspondence reflecting on members, 2176
Debate
Confined to specific items in Com. of Supply, 944
Details of railway administration, 747-8
Interjection of remarks during, 914
Limitation on Appropriation Bill, 2103
Motion for adjournment negatived, mover precluded from continuing, 894
Motion to adjourn by member closing discussion, 999
Debates, Official report of
Statement not read, insertion of, 472, 3270
Decorum—conversation, 272, 528, 3619, 3832, 3982, 4145
Interruptions—members should ask permission, 3215
Language
"Flippant" and "disrespectful", 2746
"Gentlemanly", 3553
"Misstatement", 2321
Letter already read may not be read again, 3080
Member
Attack or reflection on, 4297
Exhausting right to speak, 1650
Has no right to consent to irregularity in debate, 914
Lecturing another, 4078
May comment on letter but not read it again, 3080
May not question ruling, 3003
May speak to point of order, 1217
Minister having floor, member may not ask questions, 1867
Misstatement or untruth, 3615
Must accept statement of Minister, 3080

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committee (Mr. George H. Boivin)—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Member—Con.
Must not entirely forget subject under discussion, 996
Must rise to ask questions, 3216, 3553
Putting question without giving opportunity for reply, 4471
Right to close debate, 1528
Right to state point of order, 2322
Should speak to question, 1898
Sitting not entitled to answer question until member speaking yields floor, 4402
Two members cannot occupy floor at same time, 4467
Message from Governor General, 4169, 4289
Ministers
Comparison between, 3944
Official conduct of, 3079
Motions
Amended
Purchasing Commission, 2020
In absence of notice require unanimous consent, 3088, 3259, 3582
Mover to close debate, 2206, 2210
Negative, not in order, 2920, 3952, 4411
Non-debatable
Adjournment, for, 2148
That Committee rise, 2230, 2774, 4203
That further consideration be postponed, 1389, 2025, 3716
To refer back, 1130
Non-debatable subjects
Already debated, 2406
Notice of Motion
Action on does not imply acceptance of principle, 584
Order—Point of
Attacks or reflections on judiciary, 1570
Denial does not constitute, 2322
Discussion, 1218
Interim Supply, 2011
When raised members must confine remarks to it, 2009
Pairs—none in Committee, 4531
Previous debate, 3533, 3562, 4212, 4401
Questions
Not relevant, may be asked by consent, 2113
Not in order on item, 3065
Relevancy, 1035, 1345, 1571, 1772, 1898, 2113, 2175, 2405, 2747, 2751-59, 2761, 2916, 2966, 2990, 3003, 4158, 4313
Canadian National Railways, directors, 1667

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committee (Mr. George H. Boivin)—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Relevancy—Con.
Discussion of "Niobe" and "Rainbow" on estimate for Royal Canadian Navy, 4031
Highway construction in Ontario, 4293-6
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4354-5
Interrogation of Govt. on estimates to be taken up, 1218
Question not in order on item before Chair, 1669, 3065
Resolutions
Amendments to not reported, 3755
Consideration, item by item, 3026
Ruling may be appealed but not questioned, 779
Speaker's Chair, speech on presentation, 3691
Notice of presentation, 3688
Statement not a question, 4056
Supply
Agreement as to contentious items, 4538
Amendment changing destination of vote, 4169, 4289
Amendments in—discussion must be relevant, 1191, 1583
Announcement of consent of Governor General, 4169, 4289
Discussion confined to specific item, 944, 919, 3066
Government orders may be called in sequence as Government think fit, 962
Individual items, motion to strike out, 3015
Interim
Further consideration of item postponed, 1682
Motion, 1674
Notice not required, 1676
Resolution can only be considered by unanimous consent, 1680
Item by item, 3014, 3132
Item disposed of discussion not in order, 1090
Latitude of discussion, 3014
Liberty to discuss any subject on item allowed to stand, 4033
Minister in order in asking that item be called, 961
Mounted Police not to be discussed on Militia Estimates, 2799-2801
Motion that item be struck out, not in order, 2617
Questions not in order, 1653, 3056

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committee (Mr. George H. Boivin)—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Supply—Con.
Railway items to be considered separately, 3048
Reverting to previous item, 2163
Rule 17C, Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays, 959, 961, 962, 1677
Unanimous consent, 1026, 1074-6, 1677, 1680, 3088, 3259, 3582, 3725, 3849, 3936, 4245, 4489-92
Vote in Com., hearing question, 2756
Vote, to be counted, five members should rise, 1068

De Salaberry, Miss, 4070

Desaulniers, Mr. Arthur L. (Champlain)
Military Service Act—Mr. R. A. Stewart, qu. 2028
Privilege—name omitted from division list, 4255
Rural Mail routes, qu. 605
Stewart, Mr. R. A., qu. 2028, qu. 2343

Desjardins, "Ti-Noir," 1515, 3562

Deslauriers, Mr. Hermas (St. Mary)
Bonus to letter carriers, qu. 967
Canadian National Railways, locomotives at Parent, qu. 963
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2554, 2672
Shipbuilding, 1966
Unemployment, suspension of immigration, M, 1351

Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 1027, 4512. See also Entomology

Destruction of Public Documents. See Printing Bureau

Desy, Mr. Justice, 1569

Detroit River, 1996

Devlin, Mr. Emmanuel (Wright)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 57; complimentary reference to Minister of Trade and Commerce, 57; official languages, League of Nations; reply to Prime Minister; status of the Government; no precedent for present situation; the tariff, 58; financial, agricultural and industrial conditions consequent on war; Government by Order in Council; voice of the people stifled; agricultural growth of Quebec, 59
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 260
Experimental Station in Wright, 922
Georgian Bay Canal, 679
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 679

Devonshire, Duke of. See Governor General

Dick Turpin, 4421

Dillon, Mr. Gerald, Purchasing Agent, 1079

Direct Taxation. See Taxation

Directors. See Canadian National Railways

Directorships. See Ministers and Directorships

Disarmament, 98, 3150, 3418. See also League of Nations

Discrimination in Rates. See Railway Act Amdt. Bill

Diseased Herds. See Health of Animals

Disfranchising Act, 1r., 1126. Bill withdrawn, 1126

Disputed Accounts. See Pecuniary Claims Convention

Disraeli, Benjamin, and Proportional Representation, 1552

Divisions. See House of Commons

Divorce, 228, 4474. See also De Martigny

Dockages, 3633-34. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat

Docking Animals. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Dockyards, 4017-36. See also Drydocks

Documentary Evidence. See Canada Evidence Act Amdt. Bill

Documents
Access to, 1286
Production of. See Canadian National Railways
Public, destruction of. See Printing Bureau

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J. (Minister of Justice)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 188; speech of Mr. Lemieux; Canada's status; a voice in foreign affairs; Mr. Asquith's declaration, 189, 190; development of inter-imperial relations, 190; equality amongst the nations of the British Commonwealth; signature of Peace Treaty, 191; consular service; Ambassador at Washington; the ghost of Imperial centralization; declaration of Prime Minister, 192; general election before Prime Ministers' Conference, 193; Assembly of the League of Nations, 195; alleged violation of constitution by continu-

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.—Con.
Address—Con.
ance of Government, 196; authority derived from people and parliament; countries in which elections have been held, 197; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 198; by-elections, 199; requisitioning of ships; cattle embargo; merchant marine; the Gold Coast and Nigeria, 200; "deadly parallels"; reciprocity; election in England after South African War, 201; declaration of Prime Minister at Montreal, 202
Ambassador at Washington, 185. See also Canadian Representation
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation of, 1323
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2914-39
Judges under, 1085
Business of the House
Adjournment, 1173
Closure,
Motion under Rule 17B—Govt. shipbuilding programme, 2076
Notice of, 2026
Estimates, Rule 17C, Thursdays and Fridays, 958, 3001
Interim supply, 2011
Morning sittings, prorogation, 4338
Order of, 1672
Supply, procedure, 1073
Justice Dept., 1073
By-elections Bill, 1310
Canada Evidence Act Amdt. Bill, 3318
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bill, 4061
Alberta Court of Appeal, decision, 4375
Constitutional question, 4375
Costs, 4378-81
Court cases pending, 4374
Gold Seal Company vs. Dominion Express Co., 4375-8
Pending litigation not to be affected Amdt. (Mr. A. K Maclean) 4384
Prohibition plebiscite, 3901
Public vs. private interests, 4374
Canada Temperance Act
Quebec, petition for suspension of Act, 3584, 4382
Canadian Bar Association, 1095
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 397, 585, 644, 768
Declaration of alienage, 2031-2033
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1598
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1766
"Champlain" steamer, 1980
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2835-72, 4467-89

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.—Con.
Civil Service, Political patronage in, (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) 809
Conservation Act Repeal Bill, 3146
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 350, 649, 2908, 3830-50
British Copyright Acts, 3833
Explanation of provisions, 3830
License to print, 3831
Phonographic discs, 3832
Royalty, 3831
Criminal Code Amdt. Bills, 3005, 3830, 3896-3901; 3906-38
Automobile theft, 3913
Defamatory libel, publication of judicial proceedings, 3934
Firearms, 3900-6
Juvenile deliquents, spanking, 3918
Senate amendments, 4256, 4343
Witness fees, 3937
Excessive or inadequate punishments, 1856
Exchequer Court Amdt. Bill, 563, 623
Extradition treaty, 3008, 3319, 3740, 3741
Hearst publications, 4171
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 614
Judges
Exchequer Court, 1083
Judicial district of Quebec, 1081
Resignation of, 1093
Retirement and superannuation of, 1082
Vice-admiralty, 1084
Yukon, 1088
Judges Act, 1920, correspondence, 1851
Judges Act Amendment Bill, 1559, 1561, 3009
Free Conference with Senate, 3972, 4061, 4250
Retiring allowance, 1562
Judge Snider's report, 3905
Judicial districts, division of, 1083
Justice
Administration of Northwest, 1080
Yukon, 1087
Department
Litigated matters, 1089
Private secretaries, 1079
Purchasing agent, 1079, 1115
Salaries, 1076
Juvenile deliquents Act Amdt. Bill, 3319, 3758. See also under this head Criminal Code Amdt. Bill
Law stamps, tax, 1090
League of Nations. See also under this title Address
Contribution to, 2362-9
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2096. See also that title under this head

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.—Con.
Legal expenses, 4497
Madrid Postal Conference, 3001
Maisonneuve and Gaspé representation, 2315
Marine estimates, closure notice, 1988
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt., 2892
Militia Dept., sale of surplus supplies, 1098
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1160
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1650
Natural resources, transfer to western provinces, 2551
Nauru Island phosphate deposits, 4255, 4542
"Niobe" and "Rainbow" sale, 4018
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2905-8, 3009
Park St. Charles Company, 4571
Patent Act Amdt. Bill, 4456-60
Penitentiaries Act Amdt. Bill, 3738, withdrawn, 3973
Penitentiaries. See also that title
Alberta, closing of, 1115
Ballot boxes, labour on, 1092
Detailed statement of expenditure, 1105
Dorchester
Purchases for, 1109
Salary and retiring allowances, 1096
Warden, 1092, 4467
Flour purchases, 1107
Increase in crimes, 1091
Maintenance and cost, increase in, 1111
Prisoners, remission of sentences, 1094
Purchasing system, 1108
St. Vincent de Paul, warden, 1078
Salaries and retiring allowances, 1097, 1110
Saskatchewan, 1091
Stony Mountain, release of prisoners, 478
Supplies for, 1104
Pensions, widowed mothers, 638
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2708-36, 2096, 3014
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 1619
Post Office Department
Annuities Branch, 4524
Fiset, Dr. Michel, 4523
Isles aux Grues service, 4529
Letter rate, 4519
Maritime Provinces, 4522
Outside service, 4529
Parcel post rates, 4527
Purchasing agent, 4527
Railway mail service, 4519
Reorganization and administration, 4518
Griffenhagen and Associates, 4519
Rural mail carriers, 4524

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.—Con.
Post Office Department—Con.
St. Catherine Bay-Tadoussac mail service, 4530
Verret, Col. Hector, 4525
War tax, 4519
Prisons and Reformatories Act Amdt. Bill, 3011
Privy Council appeals, 1090
Proclamation—enforcement of Acts of Parliament, 3758
Provincial legislation, reports on, 2373
Public Works estimates, 2737
Purchasing Commission, 1080, 2015, 2021
Appointment, date of, 1102
Authority appointing, 1098
Civil Service Commission, and, 1100
Details of contracts, 1104
Reduction, 2024
Staff, 1113
Statutory authority, 1113-1114
Tenders—statute applying, 1106
Quebec riots, 1512
Representation in Parliament, 1321
Scott Act, suspension of, 3584, 4382
Three Card Monte, 1837. See also Criminal Code Amdt.
Vice-Admiralty Courts, registrars, 1086
Winding Up Act Amdt. Bill, 2095
Yorkton judicial district, 1080

Dollar, Mr. Robert and shipbuilding, 1707, 1725

Dominion Alliance, 304
Use of armoury at Windsor, 902

Dominion Arsenal, Lindsay, 2439

Dominion Canners
Greek and Roumanian purchases, qu. 1001, 1072

Dominion Coal Company, 3528

Dominion Controverted Elections Act. Bill withdrawn, 1126

Dominion Elections Act Amendment Bill. (Prohibition Plebiscite in Ontario). See also Prohibition Plebiscite. 1r., 150-2; 242; 2r., com., 244; 259; 3r., 313
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Agents, names of eliminated, Amdt. (Mr. Bureau) 304
Lists, preparation of, 307
Proclamation, assent and voting, 303, 311
Residential requirement, Amdt. (Mr. Steele), 306; neg. 311

Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 2775; m. for 2r., 2994; 2r., 3090; com., 3090-3114; 4227; Amdt. (Mr. Euler) to 3r., 4249; 3r., 4250

Dominion Election Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Subjects and sections discussed:
Administration of oaths, 3091
Advance polls, 3099
Amendment to writ, 3100
Certificate, 3100
Certified copy of list, 3094
Chief Electoral Officer, 4288-48
Consent of person nominated, 4246
Election officers, disqualification of, 4245
Foreign born wives and children of British subjects, 4229
Forms, 4227-40
Hours of polling—Amdt. (Mr. Fraser) 4245
Indexed copies of Act for election officers, 3094
Name added to list, 3092
Naturalization—certificate of qualification. Amdt. (Mr. Euler) 3103, 4249
New forms substituted, 3100
Nomination day, postponement of, 3094
Nomination paper, 4246
Oath of qualification, 4228-39
Oath of secrecy, 3095
"Personally naturalized", 4244
Polling divisions, urban, 3091
Polls, holding of, 3095
Qualifications, 3096
Recount, application for, 3097
Returning officer's report, 3098
Revising officers, 3091, 3101, 4250
Smith, Mr. Alexander, 4228-40
Voting, if disqualified, 3098

Dominion Elections Act
Chief Electoral Officer's reports, qu. 577; 731

Dominion Express Company. See Canada Temperance Act

Dominion Franchise Act, 361

Dominion Iron and Steel Company, 1710, 1723
Contract for ship plates, qu. 733, 1233. See also Shipbuilding

Dominion Lands, 1334
Aerial exploration and survey, 3778
Oil leases and, 1340. See also Oil
Pre-emptions and purchased homesteads, qu. 2506
Reclamation, 4495

Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill (Appointments). 1r., 3903; 2r., com., 4062; 3r., 4113

Dominion Lands and Parks, 1334, 1343, 4494
Antelope for parks, qu. 1134

Dominion Linens, Limited, 1398. See also Flax

Dominion Notes
And gold reserve, qu. 1234
Circulation of, qu. 1001
Securities, qu. 1383

Dominion Securities
Assignments of grain and produce, 1443

Dominion Shipbuilding Company, 1884, qu. 3423. See also Shipbuilding

Dominion Statistician
Census commissioners and enumerators, 801, 1232. See also Census

Dominion Textile Company, profits, 372

Donner, Mr. W. A., qu. 1624

Don Pacifico, case of, 1522

Dorchester Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Douglas, Mr., dismissal of from Militia, 2246, 2277

Douglas, Mr. J. C. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
Canadian National Railways—rails, 1852
Fuel Supply Problem, 1270

Douglas, Mr. James M. (Strathcona)
Oil and Gas rentals, qu. 672
Unemployment and immigration, 1366
As Chairman
Member must show what bearing question has on estimates, 3078

Doukhobors, 1365

Dourine among range horses, 1050

Drainage. See Reclamation; Irrigation

Draper, Mr. P. M., and Labour, 1632, 1637

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry L. (Minister of Finance)
Auditor General's Report, 737
Delay, 911-17
Fourth volume, 1385
British taxation of spirits, 3706
Budget
Date of, 738, 903, 1555, 2151
Speech, 3114. Luxury taxes, 3114; exports and imports (aggregate trade) 3115; trade with Great Britain, 3116; revenue and expenditure, 3116; liabilities, 3117; revenue and expenditure estimated, 1921-22, 3117; Grand Trunk acquisition, 3118; tariff changes, 3119; imports, marking of, 3120; Business profits war tax, 3120; excise taxes, 3120; sales tax, 3120; resolutions, 3121

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry—Con.
Business Profits War Tax, 2100, 3120
Canadian loans in New York, 3289
Canadian National Railways
Directors, responsibility of, 1604
Special Committee, reference to
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1602
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1762
Civil Service
Bonus, 2108-10, 4535
Superannuated officials, payments to, 4541
Coal prices, 3295
Combines, 3293
Comparative return on Dominion guaranteed and Nova Scotia bonds, 4165
Currency Act Amdt. Bill, 2160-2, 2269
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Dumping clause, 3815
Exchange, 4424
German
Agents of exporters, 4426
Competition, 3811-19, 4424
Labour, cost of, 4425
Mark, 3810, 4423
Policy, 4423
Reparation, 4423
New and unused goods, 3815
Roumanian loan, 3811
Unemployment, 3811
Valuation of currency, 3810, 4423
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill, 3698
Alcohol, 3705, 3725
Cocoa imports, 3704
Date of coming into force, 3724
Imported goods, marking of, 3711, 3714, 3719, 3722, 3938-54
Date of coming into force, 3724
Liquor, tax on, 3708
Medicated wines, 3709
Whiskey, 3706, 3707
Estimates, Committee on, 2202
Grand Trunk loan, 4165-6
Income tax, 2102, 2107
Exemptions, 3466
Forms, 1176
Penalties, 2100
Returns, 2625
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 3905, 4251
Consolidation, 4353
Penalties, 4343
Self-assessment and payment, 4344-50
Provincial Ministers' salaries, and indemnities, 4352
Railwaymen's expenses while absent from home, 4353
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Alcohol, 3727, 3729, 3732
Distilled spirits, 3726

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry—Con.
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Molasses, 3726
Patent medicines, 3728
Spirits, excise duty on, 3726
Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 2625, 4339
Insurance Conference, 3088
Interim Supply, 1675, 1680, 1681, 2095, 2100-10
Former votes, 1681
Necessity for voting, 2002
Notice, 1676
Payments due, 2025
Montreal Harbour Commission Bill, 2159, 2268
Reciprocity agreement with the United States, Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) 2041
Reduction of drink consumption, 3705
Returns, inquiries for, 1176
Roumania, Canadian loan to, 3811
Interest on, 478, 1072
Repayment of, 3811
Russian currency, 1072
Sales tax, 3120, 3372
Senate Committee, attendance of Mr. Crerar, 3259
Special War Revenue Act. Amdt. Bill
Alcohol, tax on, 3957
Amendments, 3742
Binder twine, 3751, 3756
Butter importations, 3749
Containers, 3754, 3956
Farmers, no tax on sales by, 3956
Fishing boats, 3745, 3751
Houses, tax on, 3959
Lumber, tax on, 3743
Farmers exempt, 3744
Missals and prayerbooks, 3756
Mixed grains, 3744
Sales tax, 3735, 3752, 3754
Change in clause, 3957
Tailors, 3955
Sparkling wines, 3734
Spirits, 3742
Sugar, duty on, 3699
Supplementary estimates, 3741
Supply, partial, 2019
Tariff revision, 903
Taxation. See under this title Business Profits; Income; Special War Revenue
Tobacco, duty on, 3698
United States tariff and Canadian duties, 4255
Whiskey, importation and taxation, 3706, 3707
Young Emergency Tariff, 3905

Drayton-Acworth report, 3042

Dredges and Dredging, 3982. See also Harbours and Rivers; Marine; St. Lawrence Channel
Baie St. Paul district, 1992
Cape Tormentine, 1017
"Internationale," qu. 2192, qu. 2506
Inverness harbour, 3985
Maritime provinces, 3982
Ontario and Quebec, 3985
Quebec dredging fleet, 2605
St. Lawrence river, qu. 568. See also that title

Druggists. See also Customs Tariff; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.
Alcohol tax, and, 3727
Prescriptions, 3725

Drugs. See Customs and Excise; Customs Tariff; Health; Inland Revenue; Opium and Narcotic Drugs

"Druid" steamer, repairs, 1980, 1984

Drury, Hon. E. C., and Drury Government, 96, 315, 335, 421, 3199, 4172-4221, 4301. See also Address; Budget; Highways; Lake of the Woods
Patronage, 2876
Position on tariff, 421

Drydocks, 1690, 3987, 4017-36. See also Shipbuilding
Esquimalt, 3149, 3648
Expropriation of, 1698
Halifax, qu. 567
Montreal Dry Docks and Ship repairing, limited, qu. 2191
Prince Rupert Dry Dock Engineering Company, qu. 3423
Victoria, contract for, qu. 565

Duff, Mr. Justice, 1561

Duff, the late Hon. James, 1033

Duff, Mr. William (Lunenburg)
Air Board, 3782
Apple-growing in Lunenburg county, 1042
British Chamber of Shipping, 1716
Canadian citizens' war claims, qu. 1820
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1686
Assets and liabilities, 1920, 1701
Balance sheet for 1920, errors in, 1698
Business brokers, 1713
Depreciation in value of vessels, 1701
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, 1711
Hall Engineering Company, qu. 695
Insurance, 1703
Officers, and seamen, 4357-60
Operating account, 1717

Duff, Mr. William.—Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine—Con.
Prime Minister and, 1708
Registering of ships at Halifax, 1720
Reported sale of ships, qu. 570
State-owned fleets in other countries, 1718
Vessels, qu. 1499
"Canadian Conqueror," qu. 1381
"Canadian Explorer," 1714
"Canadian Inventor," 1890
"Canadian Mariner," 1715
"Canadian Pioneer," 1689
"Canadian Recruit," qu. 575
Canadian National Railways and Montreal Locomotive Co., qu. 696
Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk bonds, qu. 837
Cantley, Col. Thomas, qu. 1501
Civil Service Commission
Appointments, distribution of, 1045
Fruit inspectors, 1042
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2496-2502
Cold Storage, 1040
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Consular certificates, 4404
Invoice certificate, 3791, 4407
Fee—who pays? 4399, 4403
Proclamation, 4407
Trade agents, 3791-4, 4404
Drydocks
Halifax, ques. 567
Expropriation of, 1698
Victoria, contract for, qu. 565
"Esperanto," wreck of, 4341
Fish and Fisheries
Canned and pickled, inspection of, 2182
Cold storage for, 1039
Drawback on from United States, qu. 600
Fish breeding establishments, 2188
Lunenburg overseers, 2179
Tax on fishing boats, 3745
French speech by Sir George Foster, translation, 1230
Fruit inspectors, 1041, 1047
Halifax-Newfoundland service, 1713
Highways, 4303
Johnston, Mr. Alexander, re-appointment, 644
Marine hospitals—Lunenburg, 3139
Montreal Drydock and Ship-repairing, Limited, qu. 2191
Natural resources, 881
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," qu. 671
Prince Rupert
Public building, qu. 567
Purchase of land from Mr. V. W. Smith, qu. 963
Railway Department, salaries, 1671

Duff, Mr. William—Con.
Railways, auditors, 1661
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4355-60
Shipbuilding, 1710, 1867, 1932
Advances at Victoria, qu. 599
Contractors' percentage, 1902
Contracts, 1689
Depreciation, 1886
Dominion Steel Company and Government, 1691
Exchange, 1894
Interest, 1869, 1886
Operating costs and wages, 1933
Opposition to policy by newspapers, 1892
Point of order, 1898
Programme, 2091
Trade routes, opening of, 1888
Sick mariners, 3129, 3139
Steel plates for ships, qu. 1233
Steel ships, contracts for, qu. 565
Trade and Commerce estimates, 1231

Duguid, Mr., naval architect, 1280

Dumping Act. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Du Tremblay, Mr. P. R. (Laurier-Outremont)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2921-7
Budget, 3191. Tariff revision, 3191; congratulations to Minister upon moderate changes, 3192; public debt, 3192; golden era of Liberal party, 3193; get rid of railroads, 3193; merchant marine, 3194; military and naval expenditures, 3194; Civil Service, 3194; war indemnity, 3195
German reparation, Canada's claim, qu. 643
Loan to shipyards, 1883
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4032
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3881
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2266-8, 2903
Tobacco, duty on, 3698.

Easter Adjournment. See House of Commons, Adjournments

East Elgin, 1293. See also Address

Eastern Car Company, Limited, 1611

Ebert, Mr. Justice, report of, qu. 4254

Economic Development Commission, 869

Editorial Committee, 4557. See also Printing Bureau
Printing of Civil Service list, qu. 1349
Statement, 4551

Edmonton
Deputy postmaster, 827
District Engineer's office, 4535-43

Edmundston
Bridge, 2810
Post office, qu. 3422

Educational Statistics, 1231

Edwards, Mr. J. W. (Frontenac)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 126; congratulations to Prime Minister; the tariff on apples, 126; speech of the leader of the Opposition; right of the Government to hold office; resignation of Ministers or defection of supporters no reason for dissolution, 127; Liberal party a thing of shreds and patches, 128; by-elections, 128; leader of the Opposition a usurper; issue of the 1917 election, 129; right of Parliament to deal with tariff; the soldier vote, 130; analysis of civil and soldier vote in Ontario and Quebec, 131; the amendment not specific, 131, 136; record of Liberal party on the tariff, 132; Government defeat would mean accession to power of leader of the Opposition, 133; province of Quebec, 134; record of the Government, finances, debt, expenditure, agricultural and industrial production, loans, savings, 135, 136
Agricultural shows, 1239, 1241
Budget, 3175. Liberals and free trade, 3175; Ministers of the Crown and business enterprises, 3176; German goods, 3177; public debt, 3177; other budgets, 3178; budget of 1919, 3178; tariff reductions on agricultural implements. 3179; Progressive party, attitude of, 3179; Mr. Crerar and Grain Growers Company, 3180; Prime Minister on tariff, 3182; member for Red Deer and free trade, 3182; Liberals and tariff reduction, 3183; fiscal policy of Great Britain, 3185; agriculture in Great Britain, 3185; pig iron industry, 3188; Ontario, progress in, 3188; United States, progress in farming, 3188
Business of the House
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1840
Butter and cheese, imports and exports, 3852, 4438. See also under this title, Oleomargarine
Cattle embargo, 715
Chief Justice, salary of, 1562
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2874, 4286
Air Force, preference, 4483
Holidays, religious, 4490
Returned soldiers, preference, 4483
Civil Service (res. Sir Sam Hughes), political patronage in; Judicial appointments; Halifax programme; Lib-

Edwards, Mr. J. W.—Con.
Civil Service—Con.
eral platforms, 1893 and 1919; census enumerators, 813; Civil Service Commission; an illogical and undemocratic system, 814; outside service; inside service, 815
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4274-6
Collins' Bay, wreck, 1989
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4438-46
Debates, translation of French speeches, 700
De Martigny divorce, 4203
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 680
Health of Animals—glanders in Frontenac, 926
Hearst publications, 4170
Highway construction in Ontario, 4290-4303
Interim supply, 2008, 2020
Judges Act Amendment, 1560
Judicial appointments, 813
Kingston, bridges and wharves, 3974
Langlois, Mr. George Arnoult, appointment, qu. 2505
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1995
Main Ducks life-saving station, 1991
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 1302, 2247, 2310-2339
Militia
Annual drill, 2295
Military expenditures, 2792
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1171
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3852-88
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. Bill, 2904
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4061
Privilege, Maisonneuve-Gaspé representation, 2247
Proportional representation, 1537
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2048
Representation in Parliament, 1316
Royal Military College, 2803
Shipbuilding, 1953
Soldiers Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment, 4054-61

Eggs, 1122
Chinese, importation of, qu. 568, 3751
Export and marketing of, 1122
Production, 3190, 3473

Egypt, shipment of railroad ties to, 1725

Elections. See also By-elections; Canadian Nationals; Controverted Elections; Corrupt Practices; Dominion Elections; Proportional Representation; Representation in Parliament

Elections—Con.
Foreign agitators at, qu. 903
General, necessity for. See Address; Budget; Representation in Parliament
Officers' fees, 188
Yamaska, arrangements for, 4534. See also Yamaska
York-Sunbury. See that title

Elective Senate. See Ministers

Electoral System. See Proportional Representation

Electric Power. See Fuel Supply; Great Lakes and St. Lawrence; Lake of the Woods, Water Powers

Elevators, 1442. See also Canada Grain Act; Canadian Wheat Board; Grain and Grain Trade; Terminal Elevators

Eleven O'Clock Adjournment. See House of Commons

Elkin, Mr. S. E. (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
De Martigny divorce, 3764
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2156
Shipbuilding, 1888
Sick mariners benefit fund, 4039

Embargo on Cattle. See Cattle

Empire Cabinet, proposed, 1385. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Empire Insurance Company. See North American Insurance

Empire Parliamentary Association. See also Speaker's Chair
Address by Sir Herbert Ames, 1311

England. See also Great Britain
Linen manufacturers, 1390
Railway situation in, 1008

English River. See Lake of the Woods

Entomology, 1024. See also Destructive Insects

Epiphany, 2626. See also Civil Service, Religious holidays

Esmonde, Mr. Osmonde Grattan, 1556

"Esperanto", wreck of, 4341

Esquimalt
Dockyard, 4017-36
Drydock, 3149, 3648, 3651
Naval College, 4010-16

Essences, tax on, 3709

Estimates. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Interim Supply; Speaker; Supply. For departments, see their titles

Estimates—Con.
Closure. See that title
Consent of House necessary, 1073
Consideration after midnight, 2736-75
Current necessities—Redlich, 1675
Discussion of, opportunity for, 1026. See also Labour Dept.; Ministers; Post Office Dept
Form of voting objected to, 1674
Holding up of, 1941. See also Shipbuilding
Lengthy debate, 1832
Main (1921-22) tabled, 644
Notice of amendment in Com., 4168
Obstruction in. See Shipbuilding
One-sixth of amount, 1674 See also Interim Supply
Passing of without information, 1616
Procedure in, 1676
Railways, deferring of, 1652
Right of Opposition to attack items, 1678
Scrutiny of by Special Committee, 484, 1503. M. (Mr. Lemieux) 2193
Statutory payments, 1414
Supplementary, tabled, 3901, 4170, 4453
Inquiry as to, 3741, 4070
Thursdays and Fridays, Rule 17C. See House of Commons
Unreliability of figures, 1203-4
Voting en bloc, 2006, 2012
Voting, method of, 4538, 4540

Ethier, Mr. J. A. C. (Laval-Two Mountains)
Berry Boxes, 4106, 4114-16
Canada Temperance Act, 4383
Central Railway Company of Canada, 3715, 3716
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4277
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4278-85
Classification and reorganization, 4465
Dorchester penitentiary, appointments at, 4467
Exemption of certain classes from jurisdiction of Commission, 4460-83
Returned soldiers, preference, 4358, 4483
Special Committee, evidence, 4461
Civil Service
Bonus, qu. 1350
Number of civil servants, names, and classification, 4255
Daylight saving, qu. 1817
De Martigny divorce, 3766-8
Griffenhagen and Associates, qu. 1821
Highways—Montreal—Hull, 4306
Inspection and Sale Act Amdt.—Berry Boxes, 4106, 4114-16
Veniot correspondence, 3719

Ethyl Alcohol, 3705. See also Inland Revenue

Euler, Mr. William D. (North Waterloo)
Air Board, 3777-85
Bounties, principle of granting, 1423
Budget, 3569. Business profits tax and sales tax, 3570; economy in expenditure necessary, 3570; income tax, 3570; methods of raising revenue, 3571; national railways, 3572; Mr. Fielding's amendment, 3573; Prime Minister's remarks on Budget, 3574
Canadian Nationals, 647, 770
Canadian National Railways
Independent auditor, qu. 1133
Canadian Press, Limited, 4533
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4280-5, 4469-82
"Nor in the public interest," amdt., 4283
Returned soldiers, 4258
Civil Service Bonus, 2110-15, 3531
Coal consumption, 1258
Convicts, increase in number, 1091
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3844-6
Customs Tariff, 1907, Amdt. Bill—imported goods, marking, 3953
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (prohibition plebiscite), 259
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4227-49
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects, 3103, 3113, 4209. See also Naturalization
Forms, 4227-46
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4229
Amdt. in Com., 3103, 4227; neg. 4342
Amdt. to 3r., 4249
"Personally naturalized", 4244
Fuel Supply Problem, 1263
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2461-3
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 694
Highways, 3028
House of Commons Chamber, temperature of, 1071
Hudson Bay Railway, 979, 988
Illustration stations in Ontario, 950
Immigration, 2574-92
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4344
Income Tax returns, 2567, 2625
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 4549
Kingston penitentiary, 1097, 1107
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4175
League of Nations—labour, 4547
Linen yarn factories, 1397
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1161
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4025
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3870
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt., 2267
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 2483-4
Royal Military College, 2802

Euler, Mr. William D.—Con.
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2154
Shipbuilding, assistance to, qu. 603
Smith, Mr. Sydney, qu. 1236
Suggested resignation of Opposition, 223. See also Stevens, Mr. H. S.
Surplus war supplies, disposal of, qu. 736
Trent canal, 2613-15, 2989
Welland canal, construction, 2988-96; amdt. 2989

European Corn Borer. See Corn Borer

European Credits, 3160. See also Belgium; Greece; Loans; Roumania

Excessive or Inadequate Punishments. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Exemptions. See Taxation

Exchange, rate of, 96, 267, 316, 416, 545, 3087, 3160, 3167, 3264, 3571, 3599. See also Customs and Excise; Finance; Loans
Comparative return on Dominion guaranteed and Nova Scotia bonds, 4165
German mark, 3810-19
Money—purchasing power and exchange value, 4427
Shipbuilding, 1894
Tariff rates on foreign goods, 4421
Trade with Russia, 1093
Valuation for duty, qu. 733
Valuation of currency, 3786-3818
Valuation of the pound and dollar, qu. 577

Exchequer Court Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 563; m. for 2r., 623; com., 625; 3r., 644
Subjects and sections discussed:
Appeals, 623
Commissioner of Patents, 623
General rules and orders, 258
Judges, 1083

Excise. See Customs and Excise; Inland Revenue; Special War Revenue

Exhibitions, 1123. See also Agricultural Shows; County Fairs; Live stock; Trade Film productions, 1558
Seed fairs, 1126

Exhibition Train, 1557-8

Exhibits Branch, 1466

Expeditionary Force. See Canadian Expeditionary Force

Expenditure in Departments. See Ministers

Experimental Farms, 922, 928, 931, 932-36, 945, 1949, 4215. See also Agriculture; Live Stock
American implements at, qu. 492
Charlevoix-Montmorency, 945
Distribution of, 1076
Dorchester county, 946
Fredericton, qu. 1131
Hours and pay, 932
L'Assomption, 918
Nappan, Gureney cattle, qu. 2686
Ontario, 948
Rimouski, 954
Ste. Anne de la Pocatière, 948
Seed inspection, 1125
Wright county, 922

Explosives, 2162

Exports. See also Address; Budget; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade
Canadian, for last year, 3483
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, by, 1276-7
Freight rates, 1224

Export Trade, Expansion of. See Shipbuilding; Trade

Express Companies, 3469

Express Rates, 169

External Affairs
Conservation Commission, 3960
Department, creation of, 2588
Estimates, 2437
Legal adviser, opinion as to correspondence re Canadian Representation in the United States, 2406, 2428
Passport office, 2436
Report of Secretary of State for, 397

Extradition Convention with the United States, Bill
1r., 3319; withdrawn, 3741

Extradition Treaty with the United States (Wife desertion.) See also Extradition Convention
Copies tabled, 3207
Inquiry, 3008, 3740

Fabian Pamphlets, 1034

Fafard, Mr. J. Fernand (L'Islet)
Algernon Rock pier, qu. 1383
Bonus to lightkeepers, qu. 1622
County fairs, 1123
Fruit inspection, 1043
St. John harbour, qu. 1383
Upper Crossing St. Roch light, qu. 1383

Fares, theft of, 3925

Farm Implements. See Agricultural Implements; Machinery

Farm Labour, 3412. See also Labour; Unemployment

Farm Lands, price of, 1034

Farmers
Agricultural publications, and, 1075
Canadian Expeditionary Force, in, qu. 1349. See also Military Service Act
Exemption, 3597
Income tax collections, 569, qu. 838
Organizations, 791
Prosperity of, 1035
Protection for, 3748-49

Farmers' Clubs, 1034. See also Live Stock

Farmers' Movement and Party. See Progressive Party

Farming, competition in, 3188

Farnham, Que., camp grounds, qu. 1132

Fat Stock Shows. See Live Stock

Federal Housing Board. See Housing

Federal Union No. 66. See also Civil Service
Agitation by, 825
Organization of, 795
Policy of, 823

Feeding Stuffs Act
Enforcement, qu. 965
Inspection districts, qu. 1624

Feeds, Mill, 1126
Adulteration of, 3589
Exemption of, 3745
Stock, 289
Mixed grains, 3745
Transportation charges on, qu. 2686

Female Suffrage, 173, 527, 4474. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill

Ferrer, Execution of, 1523

Ferries. See Marine

Ferryman. See Post Office

Fertilizer Act, 1909. Administration of, 4513

Fertilizer Act, 1909, Amdt. Bill, 1r., 1497; 2r., 2231; ref. to Com. on Agr., 2234

Fertilizers, duty on, 3441

Fielding, Hon. W. S. (Shelburne and Queen's)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 518; political possibilities—Liberal, Farmer or Tory Government—congratulations to Prime Minister; leaders of Liberal and Farmers parties; League of Nations, 518; Canada's participation; independence; expenses of League, 519; difference between British and Canadian representatives, 520; Article X, 521; the Government's mandate; change of leadership, name, party and policy, 522; individual understandings and experiences; conclusion of war ends Government's mandate, 523; Cabinet reorganization; Government's record, 524; Ambassador at Washington, 525; Imperial Conference, Cattle embargo, 526; votes to women; patronage, 527

Fielding, Hon. W. S.—Con.
Alcohol, tax on, 3705, 3727, 3730, 3732
Armouries for public meetings, 901
Auditor General's report, delay, 909
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2919-34
Bolshevism, pamphlet, 4548
Budget, inquiry as to date of, 1270
Approximate date, qu. 738
Speech, 3127, 3146; severe depression result of war, 3146; advantage of direct taxation, 3147; income tax returns, 3147; disposition of public funds, 3148; naval and military expenditures, 3149; disarmament, 3150; tariff revision, 3150; protection of industries, 3153; American tariff, 3154; free trade, 3155; Amdt. moved, 3155; neg. 3686-7
Business of the House. See also under this head Estimates; Interim Supply; Supply
Adjournment moved by member closing debate, 999
Agriculture Estimates, proceeding with, 1074
Announcement of, for to-morrow, 1026, 1073, 2148
Division after a recess, 1383
Easter, after, 1270
Further discussion, 1068
Meeting at two o'clock, 447
Motion requires longer notice, 1672
Prorogation, 4068
Sittings
Saturday, 2777
Wednesday, 1384
Adjournment at eleven o'clock, 1828
Evening sittings, 1174, 1844
Two o'clock rule, on, 447
Undue haste, 4449
Butter "dumped" into Canada, 3750
Canada Shipping Act. Amdt. Bill (Public Harbours) 2230-1

Fielding, Hon. W. S.—Con.
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bill
Cases pending, 3902, 4373-6
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1557, 2254-63
Canadian Government bonds, qu. 1620
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 647, 768, 2033
Canadian National Railways
Board of Directors, 1653
Correspondence with directors, 1003
Fire claims—Shelburne County, 4569
Halifax and Southwestern line, 3052
Extension to Lockeport, 3054, 4323
Station accommodation, 4327
Management — Information, M. (Mr. King) 1184
Special Committee, reference to
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1606
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1764, 1846
Amdt. (Mr. King) 1794
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2391-2436
Cattle embargo, 713, 729, 762
Chief Justice, income tax, and, 1566
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2780, 3901
Religious holidays, 4491
Returned Soldiers, 4259
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2489-90, 4268-78
Civil Service, political patronage, Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) 807
Clark's Harbour, public building, 2817
Conservation Act Amdt. Bill, 3959-71
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3834-48
Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. Bill, 2161
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Brokers' fee, 4432
Cost of production, 4411-14
Dick Turpin, 4421
Dumping clause, 3816, 4412
Exchange—tariff rates on foreign goods, 4421
German trade, 3813
Invoice certificate, 3801
Fee—who pays? 3801-3, 4389
New or unused goods, 3813
Tariff, increase, 3813
Third reading; undue haste, 4449
Trade agents, 3800-13, 4389
Valuation for duty, 4411
Valuation of currency, 3813, 4420
Customs Tariff, 1907, Amdt. Bill, imported goods—marking, 3712, 3714, 3722, 3953
Dairy Products Grading Bill—undue haste, 4449

Fielding, Hon. W. S.—Con.
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 243
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 2944
Revising officers, 3092, 3101
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4063-5
Dredging, 3984
Election petitions, 3934
Entomology Bureau, 1025
Estimates
Expenditures not appearing in, 1423
Statutory, 1417-18
Thursdays and Fridays, Rule 17C, 1676
Voting of fixed sums, 1417-18
Extradition Treaty, 2687, 3008, 3740, 3741
French Trade Agreement, 1351, 1558, 2127-41, 2152
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2376, 2448-80, 2777
Harbours and Rivers
Estimates, 3976-82
Nova Scotia, 3990
Highways, 1664, 3023
Hudson Bay Railway, M. involving expenditure, 982
Imports, regulations, 3709
Income tax, Chief Justice, and, 1566
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4344-52
Intercolonial Railway—land at Lévis, 1846
Interim Supply. See also under this title, Estimates; Supply
Motion out of order, 2009
Procedure, 1677, 2012
Resolution should have schedule, 2015
Unanimous consent required, 2002
Urgency of, 2003
Judges' Act Amdt, Bill, 2118, 3010
Judges as revising officers, 3092-3101
King's birthday, 4450
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4224-6
League of Nations, Assembly, request for papers, 188
Lighthouse signal service, 4040
Lobster season, 2188
Lockeport-Froude's Point service, 1496
Lockeport railway extension, 3054, 4323
Luxury taxes, abolition, 1185
Macallum, Dr., 1432
Manufacturers and protection, 3660
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill, 2891, 4496
Montreal Harbour Commission Bill, 2159
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1649
National Research Institute, 1432, 2701-07, 2893-6. See also Research
National resources—transfer to Western Provinces, 2549

Fielding, Hon. W. S.—Con.
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4011
Nova Scotia harbours and icebreakers, 1994
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3531, 3863-90, 3906
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2898-2903
Ottawa Improvement Commission Act Amdt. Bill, 2941
Parliament Buildings, 3992-8
Pensions to pilots, 2000
Pensions, widowed mothers, 638
Pensions Act Amdt. Bill, 4365-73
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2097
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4061
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2637-8
Privileges and Elections Committee, 2373
Protection and, references to former speeches, 3332
Public Accounts Committee, information, 1805
Public Works Engineering Branch, 4083-4
Railway Commission, 3019, 3022
Railway estimates, deferring of, 1652
Reciprocity agreement with the United States, Amdt. to Supply, 2038
Representation in Parliament, 1318
Research Council, 1432. See also under this title National Research Institute
Returned Soldiers, 4365
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4261
Right of Dominion to tax provinces, 3742
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2482
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2155-6
St. John harbour, 4079
Soldiers pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4061
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Alcohol, 3705, 3730, 3727, 3732
Fishing boats, 3737, 3745
Patent medicines, 3728
Sales tax, 3754
Spirituous liquors, 3711
Sugar, duty on, 3699
Supply. See also, under this title, Estimates, Interim Supply
Amendments, non-confidence, 1184
Comprehensive items, 3015
Motions in, 1683
Tariff revision, 3749
Taxation, right of, 3706, 3742
Trade agents in United States, 1476
Trade with United States, 1468
Unemployment, 4549

Fielding, Hon. W. S.—Con.
Vacancies, 1324
Victoria Day, 3697
Vote on capital account, 1464
West Indies importations, 3704
West Indies steamship service, 1488
Westport signal service, 1998
Women workers, 4547

Fiji Islands, trade with, 1465
Catellier, Mr. Ludger, 1465

Films, Educational. See Trade and Commerce; Exhibitions

Finance. See also Address; Banks; Bonds; Brussels International Financial Conference; Budget; Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canadian National Railways; Currency Act Amdt. Bill; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Exchange; Grand Trunk; Housing; Loans; Taxation
Accounts with Great Britain, qu. 2191; qu. 2622
Canadian currency discount, 3115
Canadian dollar, value in United States, 3087
Canadian Government bonds, 3289
Chartered banks, taxes paid by, qu. 2192
Credits, 3160. See also Loans
Roumania and Greece, to, qu. 1236. See also Roumania
Department
Purchasing Commission, and, 1102
Deposits outside Canada in Canadian banks, qu. 1623
Dominion Notes
Circulation, qu. 1001
Gold reserve, and, ques. 1234
Issues, qu. 2621
Securities, qu. 1383
Expenditure accounts, qu. 2621
Expenditure and debt per capita, 2013
Expenditure, revenue and debt, qu. 2099
Foreign monetary standards and Customs, qu. 1133. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Government bonds, purchase of, qu. 1620
Investments, "other" and "non-active," qu. 2691
Minister
Miscellaneous estimates, passing of, 1116
Public debt—non-active, miscellaneous and banking accounts, qu. 2621
Repayment of, $25,000,000 loan, qu. 2622
Revenue accounts, qu. 2620
Revenue, expenditure and debt, qu. 2099
Victory bonds, 1920
Expenses, qu. 1620

Firearms, possession of. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bills

Fire Insurance, 3469

Fiscal Policy of Government. See Address; Budget; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Tariff

Fiset, Dr. Michel, qu. 963, 4523

Fish and Fisheries
Biological Board, 2189
Breeding establishments, 2185, 4036
Saskatchewan, in, 2185
British Columbia, 882, 890
Conservation Commission, 3965-9
Cowan, Mr. G. H., K.C., legal expenses, 2187
Development of, 856, 861
East Coast Fisheries drawback, qu. 600
Ebert, Mr. Justice, report, qu. 4254
Fish bait, 1038
Fish consumption, 1038
Gulf, Gaspé and Magdalen Islands, 877
Halibut industry in British Columbia, 883
Halifax award, qu. 2191
Inspection, 2182
International Fisheries Commission, Fraser River, 2189
Jurisdiction of Dominion and Provinces, 2104
Lobster hatcheries, 2188, 4036
Net fishing in Missisquoi Bay, qu. 570
Officers and guardians, 2177
Oyster culture, 2177
Patrol service, 2177
Problems, scientific investigation, 2188
Protection service, 4036
Quebec fisheries reference, 4040
Refrigerator cars, 1038
Salmon licenses, 2104, 4341. See also Privy Council
Quebec, qu. 1381, qu, 2506
Transportation of fish, 883, 877
Gaspé, 962

Fishing Boats, exemption of material, 3737. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill

Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 4142, 4314. See also Canadian National Railways

Flax. See also Bounties; Linen Yarn
Bounty, 1389
Decline in prices, 1389
Growers, Convention, 1391
Industry, experimental work, 931-2
Patent process of retting, 4455

Fleming, Sir Sanford, 3046

Florence & Son. See Printing Bureau, Destruction of Documents

Flour. See also Wheat
Moisture in, 1446
Penitentiaries for, 1107
Price of, 1448

Flour Bags, tax on, 3754. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill

Flynn, Mr. Harry, 217

Fontaine, Mr. J. E. (Hull)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 210; congratulations to new Prime Minister, 210; change in name of Unionist party; the tariff; neglect of agriculture; the working classes; consumer finally pays the taxes; the cost of living, 211; Georgian Bay Canal; national debt, expenditure; old age pensions and unemployment; insurance; province of Quebec, 212
Alcohol, tax on, 3725, 3728, 3732
Georgian Bay Canal, 745
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 745
Hull-Wakefield road, 3033
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1646
Patent medicines, 3728
Shipbuilding, 1941

Food Adulteration of. See Health
Maple Products, 887. See also that title

Foodstuffs, 3589, 3734
Hoarding of, qu. 1347
Tax on, 3546. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill

Foran, Mr. William. See Civil Service

Ford Motor Company, 3409

Fordney Bill. See Budget; Tariff; United States

Foreign Agitators and Elections, 903

Foreign-Born Wives and Children of British Subjects. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Foreign Business. See Trade

Foreign Currency Inflation. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Foreign Decorations to Canadians, qu. 1132

Foreign Imports, value, 3310

Foreign Loans. See Greece; Loans; Roumania

Foreign Manufacture. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Customs Tariff, imported goods—marking

Foreign Monetary Standards and Customs, qu. 1133. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill, Valuation of Currency

Foreign Shipments, Invoice Certificate. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Foreign Tariffs Division, 1437

Forest Reserves
Porcupine, 538
Winter grazing, 383

Forestry. See also Natural Resources; Research
Aerial patrol and survey, 3776, 4495
Bud worm, 1031
Canadian Forestry Association, 4494
Conservation Commission, 3960-9
Director of, 1346
National Transcontinental Railway, forest protection, 4335
Protection of forests, 870, 4335, 4494
Spruce forests—bud worn, 1031

Forfeitures and Penalties. See Inland Revenue

Forman, Mr. H., 1672

Fortier, Mr. H. A. (Labelle)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 169. Amendment—duty of Government to hold election; the Agrarian movement; West Peterborough; attitude of Quebec; National Liberal Conservative Association in no sense national, 170; change of electoral map will not change sentiments of the people; western representation; unconstitutionality, tyranny and despotism, 171
Air Board, 3785
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2912-34
Budget, 3417. Deplorable condition of finances, 3418; military expenditures, 3418; national debt, 3420; tariff revision, 3420
Canadian Bar Association, 1094
Canadian Wheat Board, 2116-17
Civil Service bonus, 2112
French, Bill not printed in, 1095
Highways projected in Quebec, 3025, 3029
Judges—reorganization of districts, 1083
National Research Institute, 2897
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3876
Railway Commission, French secretary. 3018

Fortier, Mr. H. A.—Con.
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2486
Shipbuilding, 1946

Fort Cumberland and Fort Moncton, care of, 4540

Fort Frances Post Office site, qu. 1233

Fort Garry Hotel, Winnipeg, qu. 1348

Fort Lennox, Isle-aux-Noix, sundial, qu. 2097

Fort Smith Railway Company. See Private Bills Discussed

Fort William
Harbour improvements, 4536
Terminals, 3050

Fortifications of the City of Quebec. See Quebec

Fortin, Abbe. See Labour, National Catholic Labour Unions

Foster, Mr. A. De Witt, 90, 3509

Foster, Right Hon. Sir George E. (Minister of Trade and Commerce)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 46; the tariff; First Assembly of the League of Nations; work and purpose of League, 47; development of national life; enlarged ideals and sympathies; the problem of world peace, 48; Covenant of League of Nations and Treaty of Versailles; Peace Treaty signed by 47 nations; the United States; duties and obligations of League; its organization; the Council, 49; respective jurisdictions of Assembly and Council, 50; the Secretariat, reduction of armaments and arbitration of differences; registration of Treaties; mandatories, 51; social and economic reforms; technical organizations; meeting of assembly in Geneva, 52; election of permanent president; rules of procedure; official languages, 53; spirit of courtesy; the smaller nations, 54; publicity of proceedings; financing of the League, 55; Article X; Permanent Court of International Justice, 56
Auditor General's Report, delay, 915
Bounties, 1386
Flax and linen yarn, 1389, 1393, 1394
Brunelle, Sergt. Major N., 1519
Budget, 3156. Income tax, 3156. Brussels Conference, 3157; League of Nations, 3157; debt, increase in, 3158; tariff revision, 3159; exchange and credits

Foster, Right Hon. Sir George E.—Con.
Budget—Con.
system, 3160; Young Emergency Bill, 3160; protection, 3161
Business of the House
Announcement of for to-morrow, 1026
Legislation pending, 4068
Progress in, 1230
Butter and cheese exports, 1470
Canada Grain Act, administration, 1442
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1557, 2191, 2251-62, 3703. See also West Indies steamship service
Canada Year Book, 1231, 1425
Canadian Engineering Standards Association, 1426
Canadian National Railways
Management — Information, M. (Mr. King) 1207
Cattle embargo, 711
Census commissioners and enumerators, 597, 696, 735, 806, 1209, 1226, 2098, 3260, 2843, 2874, 3807
Missisquoi, 1132, 4113
Moncton, 3972
Pontiac, 1127, 1231
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2842-74
Civil Service
Bonus, 1463
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1555, 4555
Reorganization, 4555-6
Civil Service, Political Patronage, Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) 802-3
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Invoice certificate, 3791-3809
Fee—who pays? 3792-9, 3804, 4389-95
Form of, 3799
Imports and exports, 4398
Proclamation of Act, 4394; Amdt. 4407
Revenue and expenditure, 4399
Trade agents, 3791-3809
Certificate of, 4389-94
Trade commissioners, 4394
Trade, extension of, 4394-8
Debates, translation of French speeches, 701
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 307
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4062-6
Editorial Committee, 4559
Estimates
Committee on, 2206-8
Procedure, 1385
Statutory payments, 1414
Exhibitions, 1466
Canadian goods, 1227
Flax bounty, 1403. See also under this title Bounties
Fox breeding, 1429
French Trade Agreement, 1174, 1573, 1557, 2125-41, 2152

Foster, Right Hon. Sir George E.—Con.
French Trade Agreement—Con.
Printing, 1380
Fruit, co-operative effort, 1470
Grain Act, administration, 1442
Grain
As security for Dominion notes, 1443
Chemistry—Dr. Birchard, 1228
Elevators, 1442
Grading, 1230
Inquiry, remuneration of Commissioners, 3972
Griffenhagen and Associates. See under this title Civil Service.
Hides, inspection, 1437
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4345-51
Industry
Encouragement of, 1469
Government aid to, 1397
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 351, 607, 2944
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1437
International Trade Conference, 2151
Judge Snider's Report, 3761, 4062
Labour—Mr. Lapointe, 3584
League of Nations, 47, 2356-73
Macallum, Dr., 1433
Motion picture films and exhibits, 1232, 1466
National Research Institute, 2688, 2708, 2892-7. See also Research
Newfoundland railways, 1485
Patent Act Amdt. Bill, 4453-60
Patents of Invention Act Consolidation Bill, 303, 2890-1
Pensions Act Amdt. Bill, 4368
Petroleum bounties, 1413
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2662
Printing Bureau, destruction of documents, 4559
Publications, printing, 1438
Research, industrial and scientific, 1426
Research Council Act Amdt. Bill, 2566; 2688, 2892. See also under this title, National Institute
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4355
Searls, Mr. George, Chief Grain Inspector, 1444
Shipbuilding, 1938, 1972
Statistical Department, 1231
Statistics Act Amdt. Bill, 3007
Statutory expenditure, 1420
Steamship Services
Australia-New Zealand, 1493
Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 1826
West Indies, 1488, 1491
See also under this title Trade
Terminal elevators, 1463, 1464, 1442
Timber culling, 1426

Foster, Right Hon. Sir George E.—Con.
Trade
Australia, 1468
Russia, 1003, 1072
South Africa, 1491
United States, 1219, 1468, 1475. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Trade and Commerce
Department
Director of Commercial Exhibits, 1226
Educational films, 1225, 1466, 1558
Patent and Copyright Branch, 1496
Salaries, 1218
Tariffs division, 1226
Weights and Measures, 1485
Trade Commissioners, 1219, 1224, 1391, 1464, 1479. See also under this title Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Trade Mark and Design Act Amdt. Bill, 229; 2891
War Indemnity—Canada's share, 3583
West Indies
Cable, 1438
Steamship service, 1488, 1491
Trade agreement. See under this title Canada-West Indies
York-Sunbury, French-Canadian Minister, 3638

Foundation Company of Montreal, payment to, qu. 4541

Fournier, Mr. C. A. (Bellechasse)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 203; speech from the Throne a "negligible document"; Government incapable of dealing with pressing issues; unemployment and soup kitchens; 203; League of Nations an ideal distant and unattainable; disarmament, 204; Administration's arguments for retaining office; inconsistency of Minister of Immigration; issue not the tariff but vindication of constitutional rights, 205; no general election held on last redistribution; crime of the junkers, fire-eaters and reactionaries; assault on national unity, 206
Agricultural expenditures, 1029
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2910
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1799
Civil Service, Political Patronage, 836
Highways in Quebec, 3030
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill. 2266
Parliament buildings, expenditure, qu. 4341
St. Michel wharf, Res. 967, 3991
Weekly bulletins, 1231

Fox Bay, squatters, 1514

Fox-Breeding, grant for, 1428

France
Amount of credit to, qu. 2622
Ministers, appointment of, 1154
Senate in, 1165
State-owned fleet sold by, 1718
Treaty with. See French Trade Agreement

Franchise. See also Canadian Nationals; Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill; Naturalization; Proportional Representation

Franco-Canadian Commercial Agreement. See French Trade Agreement

Fraser, Mr. Evan E. (Welland)
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Hours of polling in municipalities near international boundary, amdt. 4245
Returned Soldiers, employment on Welland Canal, 3001

Fraser, Mr. Roy, 2860-8

Fraser River
International Commission, 2189
Snag boat, 3978

Fredericton Experimental Farm, qu. 1131

Free Trade, 4419. See Address; Budget

Freight Rates, 214, 484, 3474. See also Railways; Transportation; Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canadian National Railways
Discrimination in, 1232
Increase in, 341, 389, 538, 3263
Ocean, 1734, 1946
Pulpwood and saw logs, 2511

Freight Ships. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding

French Canadians, 3594
Appointments to office, 355, 510
League of Nations, representation on, 552
United States in, 1483, 3675

French Language, 3824, 3972, 4543
Address not moved or seconded in, 138, 223, 280, 385, 539.
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, French Version. See that title
Bill not printed in, 649, 1095
Board of Trade reports, forms, 2819, 3320-75
Canadian National Railways
Conductors,, waiters, printing, 1782, 4329-33
In Quebec and New Brunswick, 4328

French Language—Con.
Debates, Official Report of, translation of French speeches M. (Mr. Archambault) 698; agreed to, 702
Election proclamation, 553
Estimates, printing and discussion in, 1386
Fuel Supply, Special Committee, evidence, 4251
Income tax instructions, 2626
Interior Dept. publications, 1333
Parliament buildings
Inscriptions
Central column, qu. 568
Tower, 3995-8, 4543
Pensions, application forms, qu. 965
Questions to immigrants, 779, 3824
Use of in debate, 539

French Parliament. See Ministers

French Purchasing Commission, 3172
Letter of Minister of Customs to, 3079

French Trade Agreement
Copy of
M. for, 578, 607, 766, 2193
Tabled, 1271
Inquiry as to date of, 1174
Printed copies, 1351, 1380
Terms and signature, 1185

French Trade Agreement Bill
Res. 1557; 1r., 1573; 2r., com., 2125; 3r., 2152

French Version, 3144. See also Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill

Fripp, Mr. A. E. (Ottawa)
Canada Highways Act, qu. 1237
Cartier square, Ottawa, stores shed, qu. 3208
Civil Service
Political patronage in, Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) 792; Civil Service Act; patronage not abolished, 792; classification, Arthur Young & Company; Griffenhagen; Printing Bureau; Mr. Wolffe; destruction of documents; patronage exercised by irresponsible persons, 793; outside service; cost; efficiency not increased, 794; unrest; Federal Union No. 66; reorganization by deputy ministers, 795
Reorganization, qu. 600
Superannuation, application for increased allowances, qu. 2099
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4481
Daylight saving in Ottawa, qu. 2687
De Martigny divorce, 3715, 4004
Gilmour and Hughson Bill, 1096
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4010-15
Right of House to review action of Private Bills Com., 4004

Frontenac Breweries, Limited, 1611

Fruit. See also Apples
Berry boxes, 4106, 4114
Cold Storage, 1041
Duty on, 126, 164-8
Growing, 1469, 3354
In British Columbia, 9-10
Inspectors, 1041, 1042-3, 1045
Preserved, 3703

Fruit Marks and Sale Act, 1041

Fuel Control, 2944. See also Coal

Fuel Supply Problem. See also Coal; Lignite; Mines and Minerals; Natural Resources
Special Committee, M. (Mr. Steele) 1247; appointed, 1439; withdrawn, 1857; Mr. Chisholm substituted for Mr. Lemieux, 2148; Evidence, printing and distribution, 2027, 4250

Fulton, Mr. F. J. (Cariboo)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 206; issues proposed by Opposition, 206; congratulations to mover and seconder; reasons for opposing amendment; no demand for immediate election; assertion that Government has usurped powers, 207; war not only issue of 1917 election; problems arising out of war; changes in personnel of Government; constitutional right of Government to carry on; British and other precedents, 208; conduct of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911; the reciprocity question, 209

Fumigation of Nursery Plants, 1028, 1031

Fur-bearing Animals, Conservation Commission, 3965

Furness-Withy Company, 1712

Gambling. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Game
Conservation Commission, 3965. See also Migratory Birds; National Parks

Gaols. See Prisons

Garbage Feeding. See Hog Cholera; Health of Animals

Gas and Gas Meters, Inspection of. See Inspection

Gaspé
Railway facilities, 2507
Railway from Amqui to Gaspé Basin, 876, 881
Service, qu. 962
Timber and mineral resources, 875

Gaspé and Bonaventure
Fishing communities, 1038

Gaspé and Maisonneuve. See Maisonneuve

Gauthier, Mr. L. J. (St. Hyacinthe-Rouville)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 74; comment on remarks of Mr. McMaster; demand for election in advance of redistribution; free trade, protection and the tariff, 74; fiscal policy of the Liberal Government; the late Hon. M. Tarte, 75; the Government's mandate ;increase of indemnity; precedents for retaining office; Liberals members occupying dual positions; member for Maisonneuve and Gaspé; "traitors and renegades"; Agrarianism a class movement, 79; Labour element, 80; isolation of Quebec; alliances of Laurier and Cartier, 81; Ontario natural ally of Quebec, 81; accusations answered; La Société des Artisans Canadiens Francais, 82; a "solid bloc" no longer possible; Quebec must have representation in public affairs, 86; the hour of Quebec has struck; Lafontaine, Cartier, Laurier; the Baptist preaching the coming of the Saviour, 87; gospel of toleration and self-respect, 88
Canadian National Railways
Management, Information — M. (Mr. King) 1196
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1583
Highways; Quebec-Montreal-Sherbrooke, 4305
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2338
References to, 421, 446, 514, 535, 559, 3215

Gauthier, Mr. L. J., and Montreal Progressive Club, qu. 1131

Gauvreau, Mr. C. A. (Temiscouata)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 385; address not moved or seconded in French; Government has not confidence of country; voice of the people; the Press and by-elections, 385; unpopularity of Government; usurpation of power; Prime Minister's attitude towards Quebec, 386; Canadian National Railways deficit; treatment of old employees; clamour for general election, 387
Business of the House
Monday, Government business, 2148

Gauvreau, Mr. C. A.—Con.
Canadian National Railways
Intercolonial
Section men, qu. 2028
Superannuation of employees, qu. 575
Section men, 1439
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 2033
Census officials, 597
Civil Service Retirement Act, qu. 374
Civil Service Superannuation, qu. 734, qu. 967
Customs officer, Riviere du Loup, 3083
Farmers' sawlogs, 3743-4
Indians at Temiscouata, 2168
Macdonald, Hon. Senator, appointment of, qu. 577
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2121
Sully station, 1822

Geodetic Survey, 2806
Report, 4340

Geological Survey, 2141-62. See also Mines and Minerals
Below normal strength, 870
Survey of Northern Canada, 856

George, Mr. A. D., qu. 1233

Georgetown wharf, 4564

Georgian Bay Canal, 212, 298, 679, 688, 745, 751, 755, qu. 2625, 3678. See also Great Lakes-St. Lawrence
Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Company, 229, 598, 1270

Germany
Commodity prices, 4431
Competition from, 3177, 4424
Cost of labour in, 4425
Enemy debts, 4534
Exports to Canada, 4426
Imports from, qu. 696, 838
Holdback, qu. 1350
Marking of. See Customs Tariff, Imported Goods
Labour conditions, 4425, 4428
Mark, 3810-19, 4421, 4431. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Reparation, 98, 599, 4423-9
Canadian claims, 643, 3583, 4534
Trade with. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Gervais, Mr. Theodore (Berthier)
Berthierville telephone, qu. 1233
Tobacco
Excise taxes on, qu. 1236
Growing, qu. 1500

Gilmour and Hughson, Limited. See Private Bills Discussed

Gladstone, Mr., and Thrift, 1169, 3640

Gladu, the late Mr. Joseph E. O., tribute to, 3, 153, 292, 430

Glanders. See Health of Animals

Glass, Mr. S. F. (East Middlesex)
Experimental farms, 938
Flax industry, 931, 1399, 1408, 4455-8
Imports, per capita, 3415
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4349-52
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3868-95
Patent Act Amdt. Bill
Flax, process of retting, 4455-8
Nolan Act, 4454
Right to continue to manufacture, 4454
Right to revive patent, 4454
Treaty of Versailles, 4453
Poultry industry, 939

Glass Industry, 3484

Gold
Melting down, 2160, 2269
Reserve, Dominion notes and, qu. 1234
Standard, 2269. See also Currency

Gold Seal Liquor Company, 4375. See also Canada Temperance Act

Good Roads Convention, 4300. See also Highways

Goods, new and unused. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Gordon, Mr. G. N. (West Peterborough)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2915-22
Budget, 3543. Will affect milling industry, 3543; packing business in cereals, 3544; sales tax and package business, 3545; Minister of Immigration and Liberal party, 3547; Mr. W. F. O'Connor, 3548; Peterborough strike, 3549; unrest and wages, 3549; inconsistency of taxation, 3550
Civil Service Bonus, 2111
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3910-20
Juvenile deliquents, spanking, 3920
Military and civilian caretakers, qu. 4340
Militia Department
Employment of women, 2286
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4024
Oatmeal and package foods, 3543, 3736
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2727
Shipbuilding, 1968
Trent Canal, 2953-9, 2976
Unemployment relief to returned soldiers, qu. 4253

Gouin, Sir Lomer, 1825

Gould, Mr. Oliver R. (Assiniboia)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 335; speech of Mr. Scott; quotation from speech of Mr. Clark (Red Deer); Premier of Ontario; dissolution, 335; speech of Mr. Crerar; congratulations to Prime Minister; members elevated to Cabinet rank, 336; Mr. Stacey; Tariff Commission, 337; the amendment; "want of confidence" argument; faith with the people broken; suggested fusion of Liberals and Progressives; platform of Canadian Council of Agriculture; Liberal platform of 1919, 338; agreements and differences, 339; Canadian Wheat Board; decline in price of wheat; participation certificates, 340; freight rates; Advisory Council of Scientific 3666; manufacturers and United Farmers, 3667
Budget, 3662. United Grain Growers, 3662; Mr. Steven's remarks on York-Sunbury election, 3662; new methods of taxation, 3663; taxation and large banking institutions, 3664; land taxation, 3664; agricultural losses from insect pests, 3665; Tariff Commission, 3666; manufacturers and Grain Growers' Association, 3667
Export liquor licenses in Saskatchewan, qu. 838
Farmers in Canadian Expeditionary Force, qu. 1349
Grasshopper plague, qu. 838, 1028, 3665
Horse clubs, 1120
Income tax, 2107
Insect pests, 930, 3665
Military district No. 12, 2379
Military expenditures, 2792
Military preparations, 2298
Natural Resources, transfer to western provinces, 1339
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2072
References to election, 368, 391, 438
Saskatchewan Militia organization, 2792
Smallpox on Scandinavian, 1498
Wheat Board and Progressive party, 1455

Governor General
Acknowledgment of address in reply to Speech, 3830
Address to on retirement, 4433, 4493
Cars, 3037
Lord Burnham, suggested appointment of, qu. 599

Governor-General—Con.
Lord Byng—reported appointment, 4435
Announcement of appointment, 4541
Message from, 4169, 4289
Prorogation, 4577
Speaker's Chair, speech on presentation, 3696
Speech on opening of Parliament, 2; relative prosperity of country; revenue maintained; taxes remitted; measures to relieve unemployment; unemployment insurance and old age pensions; British West Indies; Assembly of League of Nations; Tariff revision; Commission of Conservation; Dominion Elections Act; Canada Temperance Act; Copyright; Income War Tax Act; Scientific Research, 2

Governor in Council, specific power to pass Orders in Council, 1098

Government
Attitude of in regard to information, 1739
Borrowing from. See Housing; Loans
Buildings, Civil Service, meetings in, qu. 3421
Control of steamships, qu. 3530
Policy with regard to Estimates, 1026
Railways and ships, 1895. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canadian National Railways
Responsibility to Parliament, 1197, 1098, 1192, 1213, 1186
Shipbuilding programme, 1858. See also Shipbuilding
Ships. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Grade Cattle. See Health of Animals

Graham, wharf, 3978

Graham, Mr. A. M., 2618

Grain Act. See Canada Grain Act

Grain and Grain Trade, 316, 335, 390, 395, 396, 399. See also Agriculture; Address; Budget; Canada Grain Act; Canadian Wheat Board; United Grain Growers
Assignments of grain and produce as note securities, 1443
Car shortage, 512, 549. See also Railways; Transportation
Carriage on Great Lakes, 1915, 3371. See also Great Lakes
Certificates, 1451
Commission to investigate, 342, 493, 510, 513, 539, 549, 2247. See also Grain Inquiry Commission
Crushed grain, 3745
Dockages, 3633-34
Elevators, 277, 278
Country, 278

Grain and Grain Trade—Con.
Elevators—Con.
Overages, 3634
Quebec, 282, 1443
Saskatchewan So-operative Elevator Co., 391
Terminal, 278, 1442
Weed seeds in, 289
Exchange, 277. See also Winnipeg Grain Exchange
Export, 3045
Freight rates, 999, 3392
Lake, 1915, 2963, 3371. See also Canals; Canadian National Railways; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence; Hudson Bay Railway
Grain Growers' Grain Company, 288, 391, 3180, 3357, 3587, 3662, 3667. See also Address; Budget; Progressive Party; United Grain Growers
Agricultural implements and, 418, 491, 3372, 3492
Grain Growers' Guide, 391, 420, 3360, 3393
Inspection. See Canada Grain Act
Marketing, 346, 377, 383, 438
Moisture in grain, 1445
Montreal, handling at, 3371
Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, 277, 297, 379
Overages, 316, 1463, 3181, 3634
Screenings, 3182
Seed Grain Advances, 4498, 4506
Shipments
By American ports, 1975
Freight cars for, 3541
Staples, Mr. W. D., 3260
Supervisors, 439
Surplus fund, 1446
Tests, 1228
Transportation, 999, 2962, 2963, 2984, 3370. See also Canadian National Railways; Canals; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence; Hudson Bay Railway
United Grain Growers' Company. See under this title Grain Growers
Winnipeg laboratory, 1228

Grain Inquiry Commission, 278, 279, 441, 493, 1447, 1674, 2116, 2295, 3417
Counsel, Secretary, cost of, qu. 2625
Remuneration of Commissioners, 3972
Staples, Mr. W. D., qu. 3260
Winnipeg laboratory, 1228
See also Grain and Grain Trade

Grand Etang
Bridge, 3987
Light, 1997

Grand Trunk Arbitration
Board, salary of, qu. 1130

Grand Trunk Arbitration—Con.
Correspondence, 1619
Exchequer Court, Chief Justice, 1084
Expenses, 4335
Extension of time, 1498
Newcombe, Mr. E. F., qu. 1002
Obligations under agreement, 2030
Pensions, qu. 964
Progress of, 3321
Revival, 4436
Subsequent correspondence tabled, 3738
Taft, Hon. W. H., 4158
Tilley, Mr. W. N., K.C., qu. 1001
White, Sir Thomas, 464, 1294

Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill
1r., 2247; M. for 2r., 2346; 2r., 2445; com., 2450, 2560; 3r., 2566; Senate amdts. 2977, 2821
Agreement to revive and continue Arbitration to be made before May 16, 1921, 2474
Extension of time, 2450
Immediate possession and control, 2248
Letter of Messrs. Kelley and Phippen, 2454
Power to continue arbitration, 2248
Powers and duties of arbitrators to continue if Governor in Council extend time, 2476
Preamble, 2450
Request for delay, 2376

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. See also Canadian National Railways; Grand Trunk
Betterments, 1015
Borrowing, 3291
Cost of, 1614
Deficit, 1005
Equipment, details of, 1015
Improvements, 1018
Loan of $89,687,633.39, 4331
Amended item, 4168, 4288, 4313
Loan of $26,000,000, 4169, 4288, 4334
Mileage, 1005
Operating results, 1014

Grand Trunk Railway
Acquisition of, 3118
Alleged request for assistance, 1498
Amount due by United States Government, 4135
Board of Directors, 4142, 3741
Bonds, issue and sale, qu. 837
Building of, 1584
Coal mines in United States, 4316
Control, qu. 697
Details of expenditure of $25,000,000 advance, 4143
Employees
Pensions, qu. 964

Grand Trunk Railway—Con.
Equipment trust certificates, qu. 604
Estimated cash requirements, 4140
Estimates for, 1864
Guaranteed advances to, 4139
Guaranteed bonds, sale of, qu. 604
Interest, alleged default, 1498
Lines in the United States, 4326
Central Vermont, 4327
Loan of $89,687,633.39, 4131, 4334
Amended item, 4168, 4288, 4313
Details of, 4144
McAdoo award, 4143
Management and details, 1008
Operating charges, qu. 1132
Operating results, 4319
Portland terminus, 1384, 4316-27
Running rights Richmond to Quebec, qu 964
Shareholders
List of, 3320, 3560, 3740
Voluminous return, 3697

Grasshopper Plague, qu. 838, 930, 1027, 3665. Insect Pests. See also Destructive Insect and Pest Act

Graving Dock Company. See Halifax

Grazing
Blood Indian reserve, qu. 1817-19, qu. 2098, 2618, 2374. See also Indians
Leases, 335
Forest reserves, 383

Great Britain. See also Shipping; Trade
American wheat, sale to, 1449
Apple exports to, qu. 1051, qu. 1714
Butter and cheese exports, 1471
Cattle, live, export to, 1474. See also Cattle Embargo
Decline of agriculture in, 3185
Tonnage, disposal of, 1718
Trade agreement with Russia, 1003

Great Lakes
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and, 1913, 2192, 2969

Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Waterway
Chicago Drainage Canal diversion, 186, 2225
Motion (Mr. Keefer) for Special Com., 674-95, 738
Withdrawn, 757

Great Northern and Lake St. John Railways, 281

Great War Veterans Association, 105, 214
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2855-81. See also that title
Dominion Housing scheme, 4049. See also Housing
Early General election, 455

Greece and Roumania. See also Roumania
Dominion Canners, purchasers from, qu. 1001
Loans to, qu. 1236

Grenville Canal. See Canals

Griesbach, Mr. W. A. (Edmonton West)
Alberta Supreme Court, qu. 576
Canadian National Railways
Provincial liabilities, qu. 2942
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4284-7
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) political patronage; present system preferable; Civil Service Commission; Federal Union No. 66, 825
Disability pensions, qu. 1235
Immigration, 3070
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill, 2891
Military preparations, 2299
Militia staff, 2793
Oil and Gas leases
Bounties, 1387, 1413
Delay in issuing, 2029
Payments under, qu. 734, qu. 673
Surface rights, 579
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2639
Ross Rifle, 2784
Royal Military College, 2805
Y.M.C.A., qu. 1625

Griffenhagen and Associates, 1555, 2781, 2827, 4277, 4465, 4514, 4555. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill; Civil Service, Reorganization, Post Office, Printing Bureau
Employment of, 517, 551, qu. 1821
Officials detailed to assist, qu. 600
Payments to, qu. 4251
Penitentiaries, 1111

Griffin-Boscawen, Sir Arthur, 1156

Gulf of St. Lawrence Navigation Company, 1981

Gutelius, Mr., Intercolonial Railway, 1847

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh (Minister of Militia and Defence and Acting Solicitor General)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 415; divergence between reasons advanced by leader of the Opposition and Mr. Clark (Red Deer) in support of amendment; the fiscal question, 415; trade policy of Great Britain; adverse balance of trade; exchange situation, 416; purchasing from United States; United Grain Growers; tariff, policy of Farmers' party; South York speech; Mr. Rice Jones; statement

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh—Con.
Address—Con.
compared with evidence before Tariff Commission; United Grain Growers machinery almost all from the United States, 418; farmers demand for free implements; millions going out of country; why not buy in Canada; 419; did not say Farmers party a "menace"; tariff; position of Farmers' party, 420; Mr. Drury; the official Opposition; Mr. Gauthier; balance of trade; Canada's indebtedness largely to her own people, 421; Liberal Convention of 1919; tariff plank; Liberal Government was protectionist, 423; the amendment; British and Canadian precedents for Government's continuance in office, 424; who is clamouring for election? 426; by-elections; leader of Opposition represents only remnant of Liberal party, 427; amendment to the amendment (Mr. Campbell) 428; redistribution; rural and urban representation, 429
Air Board, 3776-85
Armistice Day Bill, 3773-5
Armouries for public meetings, 902
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2618, 2909-40, 3143, 4170
French version, 2557
Budget, 3267. Congratulations to Minister on financial showing; former surpluses did not reduce national debt, 3268; Brussels Conference; military expenditure, 3269; comparison of military expenditure by countries, 3271; returned soldiers and military training, 3279
Chief Electoral Officer, reports, 731
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2780
Civil Service classification and bonus, 2237
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4270
Corrupt Practices at Elections Bill, 1126, 2036
De Martigny divorce, 3771, 4203
Demobilization, 2286
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition Plebiscite) 244, 259, 303
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill 2775, 2944, 3091, 4228-48
Advance polls, 3099
Amendments to writs, 3100
Certificate to women voters, 3111
Disqualified voters, 3099
Election officers, disqualification, 4245
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects, 3109, 4233

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh—Con.
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Naturalization—certificate of qualification
Amdt. (Mr. Euler) 4233
New forms, 3100
Nomination and polling day, 3096
Nomination paper, 4246
"Personally naturalized," 4244
Polls, hours of, 3095
Qualified voters, 3096
Recount, 3097
Returning officers' report, 3098
Revising officers, 3091, 3101
Voters, identification of, 3093
Franchise Act—foreign agitators and elections, 903
Judges' Act Amdt. Bill, 2118
Military expenditure, 2301, 3269, 3551
Military Service Act, claim for services, 2807
Militia
Annual drill, 2294
Cadet services, 2296
Command pay, 2290
Employees, increase in number of, 2014
Employment of women, 2286
Estimates, 2234-46, 2275-2310, 2781
Permanent Force, 2239, 2788
Purchasing Commission, 2239
Record Office, 2280
Sale of supplies, 2244-5
Staff, 2787-95
North American Trust Company, 1094, 1129
Pensions
Deduction from pay of Permanent Force, 2236, 2275
South African, 2278
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4052
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2120-25
Quebec citadel, 1442
Fortifications, 968
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4261
Ross rifle, 2783
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, strength, 2800
Royal Military College, 2802
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4052
Tapley, W. H., case of, 972
Winding-up Act Amdt. Bill, 2158

Halbert, Mr. Robert H. (North Ontario)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 500; criticisms of Farmers' party; Colchester and East Elgin; election demanded by people; by-elections, 501; redistribution; great issues at stake; farmers' part in national development; unity and agreement as to national ideals, 502; equal rights to all; protection and class privilege, 503
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2485

Half Island Cove, breakwater, 3981

Halifax
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, registration of vessels, 1720
Dockyards, 4017-36
Explosion, 1699
Fisheries award, qu. 2191
Graving Dock Company, qu. 567, 1690, 1698, 1861. See also Drydocks; Shipbuilding
Harbour, government ships at, 1940
Naval College, 4010
Newspapers and merchant marine, 1705, 1706, 1928
Ocean terminals, 1017
Quarantine station, 2754
Roy Building, qu. 3089
Shipbuilding at, 1689, 1921. See also Shipbuilding
Shipyards. See Shipbuilding

Hall Engineering Company, qu. 695

Halladay, Mr. H. H. (Bow River)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 334; congratulations to Prime Minister; the amendment; mandate of the Government; election; the ins and outs; redistribution; Grain Commission, 334; price of wheat; the cattle industry; grazing leases, 335
Canadian Northern Railway, Hanna-Calgary line, 3048
Destruction of documents, qu. 604
Immigration, 2590

Halladay, Mr., Canada Cycle and Motor Company, address, 1227

Hamilton-Brantford Highway. See Highways

Hanna, Mr. D. B., 381, 1191, 1609, 1658, 1774, 1801, 1852, 3051, 3406, 3499, 4315, 4328. See also Canadian National Railways
Business interests, 3610

Hansard. See House of Commons, Debates

Hanson, Mr. R. B., and York-Sunbury election, 3639. See also York-Sunbury

Harbours. See Canada Shipping Act. For Individual harbours, see their titles

Harbours and Rivers, 3973-82, 4097, 4536
Estimates, amdt (Mr. Pardee) 3979
Manitoba, 3975
Nova Scotia, 3959
Ontario, 3973
Prince Edward Island, 3990
Quebec, 3991

Harding, Mr. R. T., payments to Judges, qu. 1500

Harling, Mr. Thomas, 1981

Harold, Mr. John (Brant)
Binder twine fibre, 3746, 3756, 3505
Budget, 3500. Canada's financial position; manufacturing industries, 3501; tariff problems, protection and free trade, 3502; manufacturers' profits, 3503; tax upon profits, 3504; customs tariff, binder twine, 3505
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Express parcels, 4400
Impediment to business, 4400
Invoice certificate, fee, 4399
Trade agents, 4399
Proportional representation, 1544
Sales tax, 3754

Harrison, Mr. Charles R. (Nipissing)
Address in reply to Governor General's speech, 230; Grand Trunk strike in 1910, 230; the tariff; effect of Opposition policy on wage-earner; United States industries in Canada; unemployment, insurance and old age pensions, 231; what Government has done for labour; the Mathers Commission, 232
Canadian Northern Railway
Salaried officials, qu. 2942
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill
Railwaymen's expenses while absent from home, 4352

Harrow Tobacco Station, 1076

Hawkins, Dr. Charles, and immigration, 3068

Hay, Mr. Thomas (Selkirk)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 393; congratulations to Prime Minister; no great demand for election; side-stepping of Opposition, 393; tariff; office seekers and usurpers; the home market, 394; the grain trade; commission of inquiry; old age pensions and unemployment insurance; Prime Minister should carry on, 396
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4242
Disfranchising, 3112

Hay, Mr. Thomas—Con.
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Naturalization—certificate of qualification
Amdt. 4242; agreed to, 4245
Hog cholera, compensation, 1065
Hudson Bay Railway, Amdt. 994
Imaginary letters, point of order, 3173
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3883

Hay and Straw Inspection. See Inspection and Sale Act

Hayter, Mr., auditor, 1668

Head Tax. See Chinese Immigration

Health. See also Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drugs; Quarantine
Adulteration of food, 3129
Estimates, 2940-3127
Minister's statement, 3127
Medical inspection of immigrants, qu. 573 3128
Opium and Drug Act Amdt, convictions under, 3134
Quarantine stations, 3128
Report of, 1852
Research, 4464-78
Salaries, etc., 3127
Sick mariners, 3129, 3155
Smallpox on Scandinavian, 1498, 1556
Typhus in Europe, 643, 4534

Health of Animals, 926, 1048, 4506-13. See also Agriculture; Cattle Embargo; Live Stock
Accredited herd, 4506-13
Alderson, Mr. G. B., claim of. See that title
Compensation for slaughtered cattle, 1061
Glanders outbreak in Frontenac, 926
Hog cholera, 1050-9. See also Alderson
Increase in amount of item, 1064
Indemnity for diseased herds, 1048
Motions (Mr. Sutherland)
To reduce item, 1068
To strike out item, 4513
Tuberculosis, 4506-13
Veterinary system, 1058, 4508-13. See also Alderson

Hearst Publications, 4170

Heating. See House of Commons, Chamber

Henders, Mr. Richard C. (Macdonald)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 272; protection of agriculture; tariff changes in the United States; the tariff, 273; the Government's mandate, issues of the election of 1917, 274; record of the Government; important measures passed, 275; the "want Henders, Mr. Richard C.—Con.

Address—Con.
of confidence" cry; no popular demand for an election; no charges of maladministration or corruption; progressive legislation, 276; Canadian Wheat Board; Grain Exchange; Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, 277; uniform price quotations; elevators; profits; overages, screenings; enquiry suggested, 279
Agricultural machinery, standardization of parts, 669; Amdt. 670
Binder twine, 3748
Butter and oleomargarine, 3748
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2868-83
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4232
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4187
Wheat Board, 1454

Hepburn, Mr. W. B. R. (Prince Edward)
Dairy Produce Grading Bill, 4441

Hewitt, Dr. Gordon, the late, 1030

Hickman, Mr., alleged deportation of, qu. 575

Hides
Inspection, 1437
Prices of, 3317, 3370, 3491, 3667. See also Budget Speeches

High Commissioner in London, 2437

High Cost of Living. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service Retirement; Customs and Excise
Superannuated civil servants, 2491, 4275.

Highland Regiments. See Militia

Highways
Alberta, grants to, qu. 1821
Canada Highways Act, administration of, 4289
Approval of projects in Ontario, qu. 1237
Grants, qu. 567, qu. 2098
Commissioner, Mr. A. W. Campbell, 3023-4289
Expenditure, 2555
Good Roads Convention, 4300
Manitoba, proposed, 4308
Metapedia valley, qu. 2505
New Brunswick, approved, 4306
Nova Scotia
Approved and applied for, 4307
Highways Board, 4304
Ontario
Approved, 4295
Biggs, Hon. F. C., 4290, 4448
"Charge of the Road Brigade," 4300
Dundas Street, qu. 4252, 4299

Highways—Con.
Ontario—Con.
Dundas-Waterloo, 4298
Expenditure, 4289
Extravagance, charges of, 4304
Hamilton-Brantford, qu. 3582, 3904, 4252-3, 4290
Hamilton-Dundas, 4290
Hamilton-Kitchener, 4292
Hogarth, Mr., 4298
London-St. Thomas, 4307
London-Stratford-Sarnia, 4307
Maclean, Mr., 4298
Peel and Halton, qu. 4252
Price paid for expropriated land, 4291
Purchase of trucks, 4292
Relevancy of discussion, 4293-6
"The Roads that Biggs Built," 4302
Toronto-Guelph-Sarnia, etc., qu. 4252
Toronto-Kingston, 4306
Town of Dundas, 4298
Wages, 4291
Warren Paving Company, qu. 4252; 4291
Ottawa-Point Fortune, 4306
Overhead charges, qu. 4252
Prince Edward Island, aid to, qu. 2345
Projected roads, 3025
Quebec
Approval of, qu. 2098
Federal aid to, qu. 2344, 2375
Hull-Montreal highway, 3029, 4306
Hull-Wakefield highway, 3033-34
Lachine bridge, 4308
La Salle, repairing road in, 4313, 4333
Montreal-Sherbrooke, 4305
Quebec-St. Joachim-St. Simeon, 4313
Rougemont-St. Hyacinthe, 4305
St. Hyacinthe-Richmond, 4305
Saskatchewan, approved, 4307
Grants to, qu. 1820
Statement of highways under agreement or consideration, 4309
Width of, 4306

Hillsboro river dredging, 3984

Historical Publications, Board of, 2947

Hobson, Mr. Robert, 1609-10, 3407, 3610. See also Canadian National Railways

Hocken, Mr. H. C. (West Toronto)
Chief Justice, salary of, 1565
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2859-66
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3844-50
De Martigny divorce, 4006-8
Fraser, Mr. Roy, and Civil Service Commission, 2860-8
Fuel Supply Problem, 1261

Hocken, Mr. H. C.—Con.
Housing, 1134, 1136, 1857
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 1565
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4209-18
Parliament Buildings, book on, inquiry, 1175
Printing Bureau employees, qu. 1234
Quebec riots, 1510
Toronto post office, promotions, qu. 1673
Unemployment and immigration, 1378
Wednesday evening adjournments, 1838

Hog Cholera. See Health of Animals; Alderson

Holt, Sir Herbert, and shipbuilding, 1900

Home Brewing, 3788

Homesteads. See Dominion Lands

Hooper, Mr. Ronald, 1539. See also Proportional Representation

Horses. See also Live Stock
Blood Indian reserve, qu. 1817-19
Diseased. See Health of Animals
Docking of, 3922
Purchase of by British Remount Commission, qu. 4341

Hospitals
Alcohol, use of by, 3726. See also Inland Revenue
Marine. See Health

House of Commons. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker
Adjournment to discuss matter of public importance, 4106
Adjournments
Ascension Day, 2688, 2941, 2998-3000
Easter, 1002
Victoria Day, 3531, 3698, 3738
Audibility of debates, 1625, 2252, 2269, 2385, 2892, 2941, 2989, 3998-4000, 4307, 4381, 4489
Bills
Introduction by consent, 2247
Private
Extension of time, 1625
Placed on order paper same day as reported, 3971
Procedure, 1128
Suspension of rule, 3582, 3715
Reported by Standing Com., 3761
Second reading by consent, 2889
Senate, delay in 1r., 1619
Business of the House
Alleged desire to hasten prorogation, 4068
British Practice to announce, 1026

House of Commons—Con.
Business of the House—Con.
Closure. See that title
Complaint of undue haste, 4068, 4449
Definite statement necessary, 1025
Division after a recess, 1383
For to-morrow, definite statement, 1025
Government, 1318, 1384, 2148
Legislation pending 2150, 2818-9, 4068
Mondays and Fridays, 1830, 1845
Government business, 2148
Order of, return incomplete, 2250, 2270
Progress of, 1842
Public Bills and Orders, 2819
Restriction of discussion, 1318
Rule 17C—Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays. See under this title Estimates
Saturday, on, 2777
Suspension of Rule, 103, 3582
To-morrow, for, 1025, 2148
By-elections, 217. See also under this title Vacancies
Dates, 903
East Elgin, 1293
Medicine Hat, 1174, 1293, 2151
Peterborough, 504
Yamaska, 4534, 4572-6. See also that title
York-Sunbury, 2151. See also that title
Chamber, temperature of, 1071
Closure. See that title
Committees, Select Standing, 3, 107, 303, 2776. For proceedings and reports, see titles of the several Committees
Liberty to sit during sessions of the House, 4338-40
Powers of, 110
Correspondence, unsigned, 2175
Debate, motion to adjourn by member closing discussion, 999
Debates, Official Report of,
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, errors in, 1697-8
Changes and corrections in 3716
Crerar, Hon. Mr., 3628
Documents not read, insertion of, 4308. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker
Distribution of, M. (Mr. Prevost) 2220
French speeches, translation of, M. (Mr. Archambault) 698; agreed to, 702
Motion in different form from Votes and Proceedings, 1130
Owens, the late Thomas P., Editor, 258, 430
Speaker's Chair, address to be printed in, 3696
Staff—strain of long sittings, 2887
Decorum, conversation, 528. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker

House of Commons—Con.
Divisions
Address, Amdt. (Mr. Mackenzie King) non-confidence, neg. 561
Budget, Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) neg. 3686-7
Canadian National Railways
Management, Information—M. (Mr. Mackenzie King) neg. 1215
Special Com., reference to M. (Mr. Meighen); Amdt. (Mr. Mackenzie King) neg. 1810; Main motion agreed to as amended, 1814
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Amdt. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax)—six months' hoist, neg. 2886
De Martigny Divorce Bill
M. (Mr. Stein) agreed to, 4107
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Mr. Guthrie)
Amdt. to 3r. (Mr. Euler) neg. 4249
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill
Amdt. to 3r. (Mr. Pardee)—six months' hoist, neg. 4226
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill
Amdt. (Mr. Denis) 3886—six months' hoist, neg. 3886
Prime Ministers' Conference
Amdt. (Mr. Mackenzie King) neg. 2679
Reciprocity—Amdt. to Supply (Mr. Fielding) neg. 2075
Representation in Parliament Amdt. (Mr. King) neg. 1329
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Mr. McMaster) 665
Estimates. See aslo that title
Method of voting, 4033, 4117, 4569
Post Office, late date of submission, 4531
Rule 17C—Thursdays and Fridays, 958, 1004, 1073, 1215, 1217, 1385, 1682, 2103-4, 2887, 3001, 4544
Effect of passage of Interim Supply Bill, 2103, 2105
Right to call department when in Com. of Supply, 2888
Supplementary, inquiry, 4070
Imaginary letters, 3172. See also that title
Indemnity of Members, 4450-52
Internal Economy Commission, 3
Members
Attendance of, 1829, 1832, 1838
Deceased, tributes to Gladu, the late Mr. Joseph E. O. (Yamaska) 3, 153, 292, 430
McLeod, the late Col. H. F. (York-Sunbury) 4, 153
Sifton, the late Right Hon. Arthur (Medicine Hat) 3, 153

House of Commons—Con.
Members—Con.
Deceased—Con.
Wallace, the late Mr. Thomas G. (West York) 152
Money resolutions, and, 1135
New
Election and introduction
Gordon, Mr., 258
MacKelvie, Mr., 1
McCurdy, Hon. Mr., 1
McDermand, Mr., 1
Wigmore, Hon. Mr., 1
Non-attendance on Mondays and Fridays, 1832-8
Resignation of. See also Representation in Parliament
Ames, Sir Herbert, 1001. See also that title
Maharg, Mr., 4340
Rowell, Hon. Mr., 4340
White, Sir Thomas, 1619. See also that title
Ministers to sit in either Chamber. See Ministers
Motions
For returns in general terms, 1555
Notices of sent in Advance, 1307
Pairs, correction of list, 563. See also under this title Divisions
Parliamentary Restaurant. See that title
Privilege
Archambault—Société des Artisans, 230
Clark, Mr., (Red Deer)—Address, incorrect report in Ottawa Citizen, 448
Denis, Mr.,—Immigration, misinterpretation of speech by Quebec newspapers, 3088
Desaulniers, Mr.
Correction, Montreal Gazette, 644
Name omitted from division list, 4255
Edwards, Mr.,—representation of Maisonneuve-Gaspé, 2247, 2310
Kay, Mr.,—Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, vote on, 3971
Lapointe, Mr.
Alleged statement of Mr. Davidson regarding Liberal leadership, 2443
Correction of report in Ottawa Journal, 477
Explanation of remarks on Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4543
National Catholic Unions, 3584
Meighen, Right Hon.,—York-Sunbury election, Hon. Mr. Veniot, 3716
Pedlow, Mr.,—Amendment incorrectly printed in Votes and Proceedings, 737

House of Commons—Con.
Privilege—Con.
Power, Mr.,—Withdrawal from Special Committee, Returned Soldiers, 789
Robb, Mr.,—Quebec bloc, 3261
Turgeon, Mr.,—Hon. Mr. Veniot, 3740
Wilson, Mr., (Wentworth)—Challenge to Hon. F. C. Biggs, 4448
Questions
Inquiry as to, 2943
Not answered, 1621, 1502
Returns
Alleged disobedience or neglect of order, 3320
Alleged imperfect, 2250-70
Inquiry for, 1176, 1499, 1502, 2688, 2775, 2777, 3008, 3320, 4255
Motions for in general terms, 1555
Reason for delay, 1555
Rules
Suspension of, 3582, 3715
Bills, first reading, 3716
17C. See under this title Estimates
Sergeant-at-Arms; Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 3
Sittings
Attendance at, 1844. See also under this title Wednesday evening
Duration of, 1330, 1828, 2438, 2736, 2750, 2772, 2887, 2998, 3000, 3900, 4169, 4420, 4449, 4531
All night
Government shipbuilding programme, 1858-2026
Saturday, 2777, 2818, 2941, 4338-40
Two o'clock, 2941, 3737
Wednesday
Two o'clock, 447
Evening, 1002, 1174, 1384
M. (Mr. Fielding) 1828; withdrawn, 1845
Staff
Law Branch, changes, 2685
Long sittings, 2887
Organization and compensation, 2441, 2685
Retirement Act, 4266-78. See Civil Service Retirement Act
Women workers, 4547
Supply. See also that title
Interim—Redlich, authority on, 1675
Procedure, 1215
Thursdays and Fridays—Rule 17C
See under this title, Estimates
Vacancies. See also under this title By-elections
Filling of, 1293. See Representation in Parliament

House of Commons—Con.
Vacancies—Con.
Leeds, 1293, 1619. See also White, Sir Thomas
Medicine Hat, 478, 1174, 1293
St. Antoine, 1001, 1069, 1293. See also Ames
Yale, 1
Yamaska, 478, 643, 1293. See aslo that title
York-Sunbury, 478,643, 1293
York, West, 478, 643, 1293
Writs, 643

House of Lords. See Ministers

Housing, 4362-8. See aslo Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Dominion Housing scheme, 4049
Loan to provincial governments, 4552
Proposed establishment of a Federal Housing Board
M. (Mr. Hocken) 1134, 1152
M. as amended withdrawn, 1857

Howard, Mr. See Purchasing Commission

Hudson Bay Railway, 330, 538, 1578, 1961, 1966, 2969-80. See also Canals
Early resumption and completion, M. (Mr. Campbell) 974
Amdt. (Mr. Hay) 994; agreed to, 999
M. (Mr. Campbell) as amended, withdrawn, 1852-6
Expenditure actual and estimated, qu. 2623
Fort Churchill, 1966
Port Nelson, 1966
Selection of lands, qu. 672

Hudson, Hon. A. B., 4184-4213

Hughes, Hon. Sir Sam (Victoria)
Civil Service—Res.—Political Patronage in; fads and freaks, 789; uplifters; Outside Service; Civil Service Commission; Inside Service; Committee to investigate, 790; trust and mistrust; autocracy, 791

Hungry Bay road, 1661

Hunter, Dr. Andrew, fox-breeding, 1428

Hydro-Electric Power. See Fuel Supply Problem; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence

Hyndman, Judge, and Grain Inquiry Commission, 1674

Icebreakers, 1979
"Lake Champlain", 2174
"Montcalm", 1985
New, 1994
Thunder Bay, at, 2174

Ice-cream, tax, 3737, 3956

Iles aux Grues-Montmagny mail service 4529

Illegal Practices. See Corrupt Practices at Elections Bill

Illicit Still, innocent manufacture of part, 3788-3820

Imaginary Letters
Hon. Mr. Ballantyne, 3174-3209
Mr. McMaster, 3173
Speaker's ruling, 3260

Immaculate Conception, 2626. See also Civil Service, Religious Holidays

Immigration, 269, 3580. See also Canadian Nationals Definition Act; Chinese Immigration; Health; Unemployment
British, Inspector of, 3067
Central European, 2575-85
Chinese, 4131. See also Chinese Immigration
Continuous passage, 2580-6
Co-operation of railways, 4129
Emigration to the United States, 3068
Esmonde, Mr. Osmonde Grattan, arrest for sedition, 1556
Exhibitions, 3067, 4129-31
Expenditure, qu. 2943
German and Austrian, 3206
Halifax Quarantine Station, 2754
"Hand picking" of immigrants, 3203
Head tax, 3056
Hickman, alleged deportation of, qu. 574
Immigrants rejected, qu. 1624
Infection, danger of, qu. 272
Inspectors, 3067
Land settlement policy, 2581, 2588-9
Liberal administration, under, 3245
Loss of in Western Canada, 3373-4
Medical inspection of immigrants, 3128
Medical offices at ports of departure, 3132
Mental defectives, of, 3055, 3523
Money qualification, 2579-85
Nationality of, 3071
Oriental, 2584-94, 2595. See also Chinese Immigration
Partridge Island Quarantine station, 2808-15
Policy, 850, 861, 872, 879, 3205, 3249, 3256, 3580
Polish immigrants rejected, qu. 964
Restriction of, 507, 1127, 2568-77, 2585
Statistics, 3071-3073
Suspension of. See Unemployment
Typhus fever, precautions, 643, 4534
Western Canada Colonization Association, 2583

Immigration Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3007; 2r., com., 3822; 3r., 3955; Senate amdts. 4343

Immigration Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Bill of health, 3824
Costs of appeal, 3823
Deportation after five years—cost, 3827
Hearing of cases, 3823
Investigation of complaints—deportation—cost, 3826
Landing of passengers, 3824
Medical examination, 3824
Non-immigrant classes, 3822
Possessing prescribed amount of money, 3825
Powers of Board exercised by officers in charge, 3823

Immigration Act Amdt. Bill (Deportation of Undesirables)
1r., 1497; order for 2r., stands, 1858. See above Bill

Immigration and Colonization
Department
Contingencies and general expenses, 4127
Deputy Minister, 3057
Estimates, 2568
Contingencies, 4131
Postponement of consideration, 3077
Quebec, officers at, qu. 1131
Salaries, 2568-2602, 3055, 3068

Imperial Bureau of Entomology, 1025

Imperial Conference, 526, qu. 564, 1073. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Imperial Defence, 228, 270. See also Prime Ministers' Conference
Committee on, 2637-49

Imperial Federation, 159, 2423. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Imperial Institute, 4499

Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 2164, 4498

Imperial Munitions Board, 1284. See Research
Shipbuilding, and, 1730, 1859, 1875

Imperial Oil Company, 3206. See also Oil; Petroleum Bounties

Imperial Relations, 247, 484, 519. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Imperial War Conference, 1917, 2389
Res. 2626-36-48. See also Prime Ministers' Conference

Implement Manufacturers, 91. See also Agricultural implements

Imported Goods, Marking of, 3120, 3938. See also Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt Bill

Imports. See also Budget; Customs; Trade
Foreign, value of, 3310
For home consumption, 1920, qu. 602
From Germany, qu. 838
From United States, 3409
German goods, holdback, qu. 1350
Invoice Certificates. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Marking. See Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill

Income Tax, 98, 402, 3229, qu. 3260, 3422. See also Budget; Taxation; Ways and Means
Canada and Great Britain, in, 3486
Chief Justice and. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Corporations, on, 3262
Exemptions, 1567
Forms, inquiry, 1176
Regulations, 1272
Returns, difficulty of making up, 3147

Income Tax Act Consolidation Bill, 3905
1r., 4251; 2r., com., 4343; 3r., 4355
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Administration, 4533
Direct taxation, 4344
Members' travelling expenses, 4349
Method of self-assessment and payment, 4345
Notice of assessment, 4353
Penalty for failure to file returns, 4343
Penalty for short payment, 4344
Railway men, expenses when absent from home, 4352
Salaries and indemnities of provincial ministers, 4351
Tax upon tax, 4349
Victory bonds, taxation of, 4353

Indemnity of Members. See House of Commons

Independence of Judges. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Independence of Parliament. See Representation in Parliament

Indian Affairs

Department of
Estimates, 2167, 2171, 4501

Indian Ford, 1055

Indians
Blood Reserve
Grazing leases, qu. 1817, 1818, 1819, 2098

Indians—Con.
Blood Reserve—Con.
Live stock, starvation of, qu. 2618
Sale of cattle, qu. 2374-5
Commissioner at Regina, qu. 964
Muscowegan reserve, 2171
New Brunswick, 4501
Prince Edward Island, 4505
Riding Mountain reserve, 2172
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 2173, 2618, 4501-5
"Shows" for distinguished visitors, 2169
Tobique reserve—timber cut, 4503
Women, 3907

Indirect Taxation. See Taxation

Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 4549

Industrial and Scientific Research. See Research

Industrial Councils. See Labour

Industrial Production. See Fuel Supply Problem

Industrial Property, International Convention for protection of, 230

Industrial Research Commission, Alberta, 1267

Ingonish-MacLeod's Breakwater, 4087

Inland and Coastwise Shipping Rates, 1497, qu. 2192, 2969. See also Railway Act Amdt. Bill

Inland Navigation, qu. 2192. See also Great Lakes-St. Lawrence

Inland Revenue. See also Customs and Excise Dept.; Customs Tariff

Inland Revenue Department. See also Customs and Excise Dept.; Customs Tariff
Excise taxes on tobacco, qu. 1236
Montreal officers, qu. 1820
St. Hyacinthe—Dr. Cartier, 3821, qu. 3904

Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill. (Forfeitures and Penalties—Mr. Archambault)
1r., 2247

Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 3726; 1r., 3733; 2r., com., 3r., 3955
Subjects and Sections discussed.
Beer containers—marking, 3786
Illicit stills, 3786-3820
Increased jurisdiction in proceeding in summary convictions, 3786
Liquor, tax on, 3708
Tobacco and cigars—unlawful sale, 3786

Inquiry for Returns, House of Commons. See Returns

Insecticides, 1027

Insect Pests, 930, 1024, 3665. See also Destructive Insect and Pest Act; Entomology; Grasshoppers

Inspection and Sale Act
Administration, 1437

Inspection and Sale Act Amdt. Bills
Berry Boxes, 4106, 4114
Hay and Straw. 1r., 3319-20; 2r., com., 3r., 3759
Root vegetables, 4343

Inspection of Animals. See Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals

Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill
1r., 351; 2r., 607; 3r., 2944

"Insular" Tribunal of England, 1090

Insurance. See also Fire Insurance; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Canadian, in foreign firms, 3469
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1278
Officers and seamen, 4359
Canadian National Railways, 1772
Fire, 3469
Fort Garry Hotel, Winnipeg, qu. 1348
La Société des Artisans Canadiens Français, 82
Marine, 1703. See also Shipbuilding
Registered mail matter, 2120-24
Registered parcels. See Post Office Act Amdt. Bill
Returned Soldiers, 4041. See that title; also Pensions
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4260, 4355. See also that title
Sickness, 2554
Taxation of Mutual Companies, qu. 605
Unemployment. See that title

Insurance Act
Proposed amendments, inquiry, 2625
M. for res. 4339; withdrawn, 4453

Insurance Conference, 3088

Intercolonial Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Interim Supply. See also Supply
Closure. See that title
Debate postponed, 1682
Former votes, of, 1681
Motion withdrawn, 1683
Point of Order—Res. to be preceded by notice, 1676

Interim Supply Bill. See also Appropriation Acts
Res. 1674; objected to, 1674; notice, Rule 17B, unanimous consent, 1676-82; withdrawn, 1683; Res. 2001; Amdt. (Mr. Lemieux) 2018-20; closure, notice of under Rule 17B, 2025-6
1r., 2095; 2r., com., 2100; 3r., 2116

Interior Department
Draughtsmen, 1334
Minister, necessity for presence in Commons, 1155
Salaries, 1330
Surveys Branch, 1332
Surveyor General, 1342

International Association of Railways Congress, 3023

International Boundary Commission, 1342, 4494
Joint report, 4340

International Commission, Fraser River, 2189

International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property, adherence to, 230

International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1437

International Financial Conference. See Brussels

International Harvester Company, 3394. See also Agricultural machinery

International Institute of Agriculture, 1116

International Joint Commission, 164, 2388, 2421, 2435. See also Great Lakes-St. Lawrence; Lake of the Woods
Appointment of Sir William Hearst, 510
Lake of the Woods Control, 1071, 1176, 1233, 4172
St. Lawrence waterway, 691, 3960-70

International Justice. See Permanent Court

International Labour Conference, 544. See also Labour

International Labour Union. See Labour, National Catholic Unions

International Trade Conference, qu. 2029. See Trade

"Internationale," dredge, qu. 2192, qu. 2506

Inventors. See Patent Act Amdt. Bill

Inverness
Fishery overseers, 2178
Harbour, 3985
Public building, 2817

Invoice Certificates. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Ioco, wharf, 3979

Ireland, Parliament for South of, qu. 603

Iron and Steel Industry
Development of, 873-4. See also Natural Resources; Steel

Irrigation. See also Natural Resources
Belly river water rights, qu. 2943
Milk river water rights, qu. 2099
Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, 858

Isaac, Mr. See French Trade Agreement

Italy
Cargoes of wine from, 1715
Lira, exchange value of, 3816-4227
Trade with. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. (George Etienne Cartier)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 503; congratulations to Prime Minister; by-election in Peterborough, 504; National Liberal and Conservative party; Mr. Bourassa, 505; Mr. R. B. Bennett; Government saturated with war spirit, 506; shipbuilding; immigration; restrictive loans and regulations, 507; railways and public ownership; Department of Trade and Commerce, 508; Departments not directly represented in House; military expenditures, 509; Royal Commission to investigate grain trade; conciliatory overtures to Quebec; appointments that violate the traditions, 510
Agriculture Dept.—Salary of Deputy Minister, 950
Air Board, 3780-3
Alpine Club, 4494
American immigration, 3065
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 1327
Animal Contagious Diseases, 1048
Armistice Day Bill, 3773
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill (Mr. Jacobs)—French Version, 1069, 2256
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill (Mr. Guthrie) 2910-39, 3144
Bankruptcy Act, Judges under, 1085
British Remount Commission, qu. 4341
Canada Temperance Act
Damages, 4387
Invasion of the province of the courts, 4379
Proceedings pending, 4378
Canadian Bar Association, 1094
Canadian Forestry Association, 4494

Jacobs, Mr. S. W.—Con.
Canadian National Railways, Special Com., reference M. (Mr. Meighen) 1785
Cattle embargo, 1072
Chief Justice, salary of, 1568
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3896-8, 3906-30, 4342
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Commissioner, 4388
Reflections on legal profession, 4406
Trade commissioners, 4406
De Martigny divorce, 3763
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Foreign-born wives of British subjects, 3105
Esmonde, Mr. Osmonde Grattan, 1556
Foundation Company of Montreal, payments to, qu. 4341
Fox-farming, 1433
Governor General's cars, 3037
Grand Trunk Arbitration expenses, 4335
Grand Trunk loan, 4158
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 749
Immigration, 2574-92, 3055
Exhibit decorator, 3066
Officials, 3057
Juvenile delinquents—spanking, 3918
League of Nations, contribution to, 2357-69
Liquor, tax on, 3708
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 1325, 2333
Medicinal preparations, 3709
Militia, cadet services, 2297
National Transcontinental, Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2513
Natural Research Institute, 2894
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4018-31
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3880-2
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. Bill, 2898-2905
Amdt. to amdt., 2903
Parliament buildings, 4075
Patent Act Amdt. Bill, 4456
Penitentiaries, 1092
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2709-35
Permanent Force, 2278
Private Bills—extension of time, 1625
Quarantine, typhus, 4170
Representation in Parliament, 1327
Roumanian loan, interest, 1441, 2030
Supreme Court and Privy Council appeals, 1089-1090
Tariff revision, qu. 903, 2346
Trade commissioners, 1219, 1465
Trent canal, 2607
Unemployment and immigration, 1358
Wines—British colonies, 3710

James MacLaren Company, Limited. See Private Bills Discussed

Jameson, Mr. Clarence, 799. See also Civil Service

Japan
Foreign credit, balance of, 1227-8

Johnston, Mr. Alex., 1280
Reappointment, 644

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred. (Last Mountain)
Address, 437. Congratulations to Prime Minister, 437; Canadian Wheat Board; statement of Minister of Immigration at Regina; attitude of Progressives, 438; definite stand taken on "enabling legislation", the farmers and wheat control; report of grain supervisors, 439; objections to Wheat Board, 440; scarcity of cars; increase in freight rates; commission to investigate grain trade; Board of Commerce, 441; Mr. G. M. Murray and the press, 442; the West anxious for an election, 444
Agricultural shows, 1245
Budget, 3550. Military expenditures; shifting of taxation, 3551; tariff revision, 3552; Government policy of moderate protection, 3553; agriculture, area and revenue, 3553; Soldier Settlement Board, operations, 3554; natural resources of prairie provinces, 3555; Ambassador to Washington, 3556; Farmers' party, 3556
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4469-72
Cow-testing, 1037
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4241
Naturalization—Certificate of qualification, 4241
Grain Commission, 1449
Grand Trunk Railway, operating charges, qu. 1132
Immigration, restriction of, 1127
Indian Commissioner at Regina, 2167-9
Live stock breeding, 1117
Muscowegan reserve, 2171
Oil development in Mackenzie district, 2162
Post Office, outside service, 4528
Public Works, expenditures in Saskatchewan, 2818
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2070
Stayner postmaster, 4470
Wheat Board, 1454

Joliette Bridge, 3038

Jones. See Rice Jones

Judge Snider. See Printing Bureau

Judges. See also Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill; Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, Revising Officers

Judges—Con.
Appointment of, 801, 811, 813
Chandler, Judge, Moncton, 2119
Chief Justice, Supreme Court, exemption of salary, 2188
Exchequer Court, 1083-4
Latchford, Judge, payment to, qu. 1500
Macleod Judicial district, qu. 2344
Number of, 1081
Riddell, Judge, payments to, qu. 1500
Salaries, 3680
Saskatchewan King's Bench, additional Judge, 1559
Travelling expenses, 1559, 2118
Vice-Admiralty, 1084
Wilson, Judge, qu. 1622
Yukon Territory, salaries and living allowance, 1087-8

Judges Act, 1920
Correspondence, M. (Mr. Lemieux) 1851

Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 1559; Amdt. (Mr. Lanctot) neg. 1572; 1r., 1573; 2r., com., 2117; 3r., 2151; Senate amdts. 3009; Free Conference with Senate, 3972; 4040-61; 4250

Judicial Committee. See Privy Council

Judicial Districts, Quebec, 1081-3

June Bugs, 1030

Justice
Administration of, Yukon Territory, 1087
Department
Counsel employed in, 1077, 3523
Legal cases referred to, 1655
Litigated matters, expenses, 1089
Newcombe, Mr. E. F., qu. 1002
Purchasing agent, 1079, 1115, 2017
Salaries, 1076
Taxation forms, revision by, qu. 1237
Law stamps, tax, 1090
Penitentiaries, estimates, 1091, 1096. See also Penitentiaries
Privy Council appeals, 1089. See also that title

Juvenile Courts. See Juvenile Delinquents

Juvenile Delinquents, 3013
Spanking, 3918

Juvenile Delinquents Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3319; 2r., com., 3r., 3758

Kamouraska, plum-growing, 1048

Kamouraska and Temiscouata Telephone Co., 2175

Kapuskasing Illustration station, 949

Kay, Mr. W. Fred. (Missisquoi)
Camp Grounds, Farnham, Que., qu. 1132
Canada Temperance Act, qu. 4253

Kay, Mr. W. Fred.—Con.
Census enumerators, qu. 735, qu. 1132, 4113
Income tax forms, 1176
Missisquoi
Census enumerators, qu. 735, qu. 1132, 4113
Net fishing in Missisquoi Bay, qu. 570
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3854
Privilege—vote on Oleomargarine Bill, 3971
Special War Revenue Act—condensed milk and ice-cream, 3956
Victoria Day, 3531

Keefer, Mr. Francis H. (Port Arthur and Kenora)
Africa, trade with, 1965
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2925
Canada-West Indies Trade agreement, 2259
Canadian representation in the United States, 2424-6
Canal tolls, 2963
Cattle embargo, 730
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2487-8
Fuel Supply Problem, 1257
Grain transportation rates, 2982
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2479
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, Res. 674, 753
Kingston, wharves and bridges, 3973
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2346-54
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4184-98
Parliament buildings, 3999
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2483-4
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 593

Kemp, Hon. Sir Edward (East Toronto)
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 590

Kenora
Board of Trade, 4184-6
Dam, 4172

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred (Glengarry and Stormont)
Cattle, embargo, 720
Cattle feeds, 3744
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
New and unused goods, 3814
Grading of cheese, 1037
Hudson Bay Company, selection of land, qu. 672
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3866
Unemployment and immigration, 1372

Kennedy, Mr. W. C. (North Essex)
Budget, 3404; deficit and annual debt; militia expenditures; mercantile marine, 3405; railway situation, 3406; Canadian National Railways, directors, 3407; manufacturers and home and foreign markets, 3408; importations from United States, 3409; amdt. of Mr. Fielding, 3410
Canadian National Railways, Board of Management, qu. 1132
Civil Service bonus, 2111-13
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 684

King, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie (Leader of the Opposition)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 10; congratulations to Prime Minister; usurpation of authority by Government; changes in Ministry; elected as a war administration—has it a mandate?—comparison with former administrations, 12; retirement of ministers principally responsible for Government's war record, 13; aims of present and former administrations different, 15; the tariff, 17; issue excluded in formation of Union Government, 19; no right to legislate without consulting the people; grounds for continuance of Government examined; limitation of parliamentary term, 20; supremacy of Parliament, 22; no pledge given in 1917, 23; withdrawal of Ministers who believed administration had fulfilled its mandate, 24; desire of Leader of Opposition for an election; significance of by-elections, 25; Canada alone in denying to people right of general election, 26; violation of fundamental principles of free government, 28; non-confidence amendment, 28
Air Board, 3782
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 478, 1069, 1295
Archives, provision for, 2949
Arctic expedition, 4106
Armistice Day, 3775
Auditor General's Report, 737, 903, 915
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2909
Budget, 3596. Tariff revision and the Government; tariff inquiry, 3598; Republican party in the United States—barriers to trade between two countries; exchange rate, 3599; comparison of Budget speech and policy and principles of National Liberal and Conservative party, 3600; inter-Imperial trade, 3601; association between interests and Government during war period, 3602; political power united with plutocracy of self-interest, 3603; Board of Commerce—Mr. Murdock, 3604; lack of constructive legislation, 3607; protection of the interests, 3607; expenditure on National Railways and Merchant Marine, 3608; directors of National Railways and business interests, 3609; loans to foreign countries, 3611; Members of Parliament and sales to foreign countries, 3611; Minister of Crown soliciting business from foreign government, 3612; Prime Minister and misrepresentation of attitude of Opposition, 3612; free trade and protective tariffs, 3613; methods of taxation, 3614; downward revision of tariff, 3616; election necessary, 3618

King, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie—Con.
Budget—Con.
Budget, date of, inquiry, 1555, 2151
Business of the House
Estimates—alleged agreement, 4569
For to-morrow, 2145
Interruption of debate on Address, 151
Legislation
Pending, 2150, 2819, 3972
Undue haste, 313
Lengthy discussions, 1230
Monday—Government business, 2148
Order of, 1619
Prorogation, 4069
Sittings
Duration of, 897, 900, 1330, 2887
Saturday, 2818
Wednesday evening, 1002
Supply, procedure, 1216
Victoria Day, 3689
By-elections, dates, 903. See also under this title Representation in Parliament
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1292
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, Bill, 585, 648
Canadian National Railways
Government-owned railways, correspondence, 1004
Information—attitude of the Government, 1759
Management, 1440
M. that information be laid before Parliament, 1178
Special Committee, reference to
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1188, 1594; M. (Mr. Meighen) 1758; Amdt. (Mr. King) 1761; Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 1813

King, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie—Con.
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2378-2429
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3828
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2486
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Amdt. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 2844; M. for 2r., 2778
Commission
Annual report, 4477
Jurisdiction of, 4286-8
Returned soldiers, 4258-9
Special Com.
Quorum, 2940
Reference to, 2776
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 2908, 3843-50
Cost of Living, 4551
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3830
Date of summoning Parliament, 311
Daylight saving in Ottawa, 2776
Deceased members, tributes to, 4, 153
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition Plebiscite) 151, 309
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Bill not printed, 2944
Certificate of qualification, 3090, 3107-10, 4238-9
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects, 3090
Forms, 3100
Voters' lists, registration, 3092
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4062-6
Estimates. See also under this head Business of the House, Interim Supply
Committee on, 2207-9
Time of taking up, 1330
French Trade Agreement, 2125
Governor General—address to on retirement, 4434
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill
Agreement of March 8, 1920, 2377
Committee of five, 2479
Legal consequences, 2451
Liquidation, 2451
Position of Opposition on taking over Grand Trunk, 2560
Ratification of new agreement, 2450
Request for delay, 2346
Senate amendments, 2777, 2823
Submission of agreement to Parliament, 2476
House of Commons staff, 2887
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4343
Interim Supply, 1679, 2115
Attitude of Opposition, 2004
Objected to, 1674
Obligations for payment, 2025

King, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie—Con.
Judge Snider's report, 3697, 3761, 3905
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 2117-18
Kamloops, speech at, 3623
Labour Department
Alleged combines, 4551
Bolshevism—pamphlet, 4548
Fair wages, 4545
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 4552
Minister—letter of in Gazette, 1643
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2033
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 3903, 4211-17
League of Nations, contribution towards, 2356
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1163
Montreal Harbour Commission Bill, 2159
National Research Institute, 2894. See also Research
Natural resources
Adjournment of debate, 894
Transfer of to western provinces, 2546-52
Nauru Island, phosphate deposits, 4255, 4541
Newsprint, alleged combine, qu. 2099
Opium and Narçotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2898-2907
Owens, the late Thomas P., Editor of Debates, 258
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payment, 4573
Peterborough speech, 134
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2123
Press Gallery, 2887
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2631
Amdt. to Supply, 2634-58
Prisons and reformatories, 3011
Privilege—alleged statement of Mr. Davidson regarding Liberal leadership, 2443
Privileges and Elections Committee, 2373
Proportional representation, 1552
Public money, accounting for, 1292
Purchasing Commission, 1099
Statutes
Limiting power, 1101
Providing for tenders, 1105
Representation in Parliament
Vacancies (Amdt. to Supply), 1293, 1300, neg. 1309
By-elections, 1306
Rockefeller Foundation, 2443
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2481, 2801
Shipbuilding, 1292

King, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie—Con.
Speaker's Chair, 3693
Supplementary Estimates, inquiry for, 3741
Tariff inquiry, 3055
Tariff revision, 3622-3
Unemployment, 4549
Vacancies, 478. See also under this head Representation
War Times Election Act, 4238
White, Sir Thomas, qu. 477

King's Bench. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill Judges, 1081

King's Birthday, 4450

King's County, fruit inspectors, 1041

Kingston
Fortifications, 969
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries
Wharves and bridges, 3973

Kino Hill, silver discovery, 856

Kirkwood Steamship Company, qu. 564

Knox, Mr. Andrew (Prince Albert)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 537; congratulations to Prime Minister; the amendment; Soldiers' Settlement Board; Porcupine Forest Reserve; lack of transportation facilities—freight rates—Hudson Bay Railway, 538; investigation of grain trade; farmers' movement
Budget, 3414. Government has reverted to indirect taxation, 3414; militia expenditures, 3415; expenditures on canals; northern Saskatchewan transportation facilities, 3416; protection and the farmers; grain inquiry, 3417
Canadian National Railways, passenger traffic, Montreal-Winnipeg, qu. 2376
Chinese immigration, 3056
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2855
Cordwood for fuel, 3748
Credits to Roumania and Greece, qu. 1236
Hudson Bay Railways, 538, 982
Immigration, 2589-90
Income tax payers—farmers, qu. 838
Saskatchewan railway lines, 3054
Senate representation—Saskatchewan, 2567
Trent canal, 2608-9, 2958

Kuskanook, wharf, 3979

Labour. See also Building Trades Conference; Housing; Immigration; Industrial Disputes; Shipbuilding; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Alleged combines, 4551

Labour—Con.
Bolshevism, pamphlet, 4548
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, wages, 1921
Civil Service, prevailing rates, qu. 3089
Conditions in Great Britain and United States, 408
Discontent and unrest, 3439
Department
Emergency relief, 4535
Employment offices, 2852, 4363
Estimates, 4170, 4535
Draper, Mr. P. M., 1632, 1637
Fair wage clause, 1910, 2955, 4545
Germany, cost in, 4425, 4428
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 4549-52
International Conference at Washington, 544
Status of Canada, 2629
Unemployment insurance, 4547
Washington and Geneva, conventions and recommendations, 4041
Women workers, 4547
League of Nations, 4547
Manual labourers. See Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Mathers Commission, 232
Minister in Senate, criticism of, 1154-5, 1162, 1169, 4544
Moore, Mr. Tom, 1627, 1632, 1636
National Advisory Council, 4363
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1625, 3584
Chicoutimi Convention, 1626
Letter of Minister in Gazette, 1642
Minister of Labour and, 1625
Platform of, 1627
Wright, Mr. A. A., letter of, 1647
National Industrial Conference, 2101, 4549
Railways, and, 1179, 1190, 1587. See also that title
Shipbuilding, Government, 1273, 1727, 1889, 1897, 1902, 1909, 1974
Strikes
Cape Breton in, 3528
Grand Trunk, 230
Number of, qu. 569
Peterborough, 3549
Winnipeg, 3359, 3360, 3560
Trades and Labour Congress, platform of, 1634
Unemployment relief, 4535. See also Unemployment
Wages and prosperity, 3514
Women workers—overtime, 4547

Labour Gazette, 1155

Lachine Canal. See Canals

Ladysmith, wharf, 3980

Lafleche, Col. See Purchasing Commission

Lafortune, Mr. D. A. (Jacques-Cartier)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 292; tribute to late Mr. Gladu; the debate reviewed, 292; Mr. Gauthier, 293; the amendment; Government's mandate executed; Prime Ministers' Conference, 294; Government in danger when it turns to Opposition for help; new name of Government party, 294; change of Government in 1896; issues of the election; promises made and kept; Manitoba school question; St. Lawrence river channel; revising barristers; contracts, men's wages; deficits; Sir Wilfred Laurier; the tariff, 296; reciprocity, 297; things the Liberals will do when returned; Georgian Bay canal; bridge between Vaudreuil and Ste. Anne, 298; will demand accounting; Quebec not isolated but badly represented, 299; widening of Victoria bridge; bridge at Longueuil; tobacco growers, 300; sugar beet industry, 301;
Automobile theft, 3915
Budget, 3669; historical and political review, 3669-70; Mr. Bourassa, 3671; Laurier administration; prosperity of manufacturers and agricultural interests under Liberal Government, 3673; Post Office Department—deficit, 3674; Lachine canal bridge, 3675; immigration of French Canadians to United States, 3675; protection of tobacco growers, 3676; Ville Emard tunnel, 3677; bridge at Ste. Anne's-Vaudreuil, 3677; bridges in Jacques Cartier county; Georgian Bay canal, 3678; Military Service Act, 3678; Liberals returning to Opposition after war, 3679; Judges' salaries, 3680
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3910-32
Lachine canal bridge, 3675, 4308
La Salle—road repair, 4313-33
Perrot Island bridge, qu. 576, qu. 603
Pointe Claire, wharf, 4312
Three Card Monte, 1858

"Lake Champlain", icebreaker, 1985

Lake Freights, 3371. See also Canals; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence; Transportation

Lake of the Woods and Other Waters, 3903. See also Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill

Lake of the Woods Control, International Joint Commission, 1176, 1233

Lake of the Woods Control Board, estimates, 2437

Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill
1r., 788; 2r., com., 2033, 2346, 3r., 2445
Subjects and Sections Discussed:
Board
Creation of, 2033-2346
Immunity from actions, 2355
Powers—enforcement of
By order of court, 2350
By taking possession of property, 2353
Purposes, 2350
Correspondence — International Joint Commission, 1176, 1233
Norman dam, English river, Winnipeg river, 2347
Statement by Prime Minister, 2033

Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill
1r., 3903; 2r., com., 4171; Amdt. (Mr. Pardee), six months' hoist—to 3r., 4226; 3r., 4227
Subjects and Sections Discussed:
Backus, Mr. E. W., 4173-4224
Boundary award, 4181
Concurrent legislation, 3903
Correspondence between the Prime Minister and Hon. Mr. Drury, 3971, 4170, 4182
English river, 4172
Hudson, Hon. A. B., 4184, 4213
Kenora dam, 4172
Norman dam, 4173
Rivers and Streams Act, 4174-4225
Sioux Lookout, 4191
Statement by Prime Minister, 4171
Technical Board, 4173
White Dog Falls, 4172
Winnipeg river, 4172

Lalor, Mr. F. R. (Haldimand)
Budget, 3656. Change in official Opposition, 3657; free trade and farmers, 3658; manufacturers help to lower prices, 3659; Roumanian and Greek loans and contracts, 3661; protection proper policy for Canada, 3661
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2492-4
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Dumping clause, 3817
Invoice certificate, fee, 4391
Position of Agrarian group, 4400
United States Customs regulations, 3817, 4417
Valuation for duty, 3817, 4417
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 307

Lalor, Mr. F. R.—Con.
Highway construction in Ontario, 4300
Hon. F. C. Biggs, 3037
Immigration, 2582
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4351

Lambert, Mr. Norman P., 289, 3329, 3363, 3685.
See also Grain Growers' Grain Company

Lanctot, Mr. Roch (Laprairie and Napierville)
Budget, 3516; tariff revision; Canada's participation in the war, 3517; imports and exports, 3518; revenue; expenditures, 3519; military expenditure, 3519; railway situation, 3520; Grand Trunk Railway, 3522; lawyers and Justice Department, 3523
Chief Justice, income tax, 1572
Civil Service bonus, 2107, 2114
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4352
Interim Supply Bill, 2107
Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Amdt. to res. neg. 1572
Montreal and South Shore traffic bridge, 2216
Post Office, outside service, 4531
Shipbuilding, 1959

Land.—See also Soldier Settlement; Immigration
Settlement, western, 3249
Location, 4343
Tax, 3229, 3317, 3453, 3486, 3511, 3634-35, 3664

Lang, Mr. Norman (Humboldt)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 342; the amendment; desire for election confined to one side; questions affecting West; investigation of Grain Trade, 342; marketing conditions; series of unfavourable years; Wheat Board; Wheat pool; better understanding between East and West; live stock industry harvest help; National Railways, branch lines, 344

Langlois, Mr. George Arnoult, appointment, qu. 2505, 2875, 4128

Lapointe, Mr. Ernest (Quebec East)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 457; congratulations to Prime Minister; special circumstances under which Parliament meets; House must reflect national will; public confidence withdrawn from Government, 457; justification of amendment; Union Government formed for duration of war—continuance in office injustice to Canada; democracy; the soldiers' vote;

Lapointe, Mr. Ernest—Con.
Address—Con.
war mandate used for other purposes, 458; new Administration without public endorsation; origin of National Liberal and Conservatice party; no mandate given in 1917 to present Government, 459; withdrawal of Ministers who gave prestige to Administration; sincerity of Liberals who support Government, 460; Government no longer in harmony with public opinion; by-election, 461; the Government's majority, 463; Sir Thomas White; Sir Herbert Ames; constitutional duty of Government; British precedents, 464; Imperial conference, 467
Alcohol, tax on, 3705
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 464, 1296, 1310
Business of the House
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays—Rule 17C—958, 1073, 1218, 1385, 2103-4, 4544
Canadian Nationals Definition Bill, 769
Canadian National Railways
Board of directors, 1605
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2429
Cattle embargo, 727
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2779, 4487-90
Religious holidays, 4487-90
Civil Service (res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political Patronage, 800; census commissioners and enumerators, 800; Judges, 801; commissions, 802
Closure, 2025
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3907
Customs Tariff, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods—marking, 3939-41
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 310
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4246-50
Nomination paper, 4246
Revising officers, 4250
French Trade Agreement, 2137-8, 2152
Harbours and Rivers, estimates, 3977-80
High Commissioner's Office, 2437
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill—(Deportation) 1497, 1858
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 2165
Interim Supply, 2010-11; 2101-4
Judges
Judicial District of Quebec, 1081-2
Justice Department
Counsel employed, 1076
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2033
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4210

Lapointe, Mr. Ernest—Con.
League of Nations, contribution to, 2357-67
Maisonneuve and Gaspé representation, 2314, 2342
Marine estimates, length of debate, 1988
Minister of Labour, 4544
National Catholic Labour Union, 1625, 3584
National Industrial Conference, 4549
Naval policy, 4023
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3891
Order, point of, word of member should be accepted, 1641
Parliament buildings, 3994, 4075-8
Inscription on tower, 4544
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4060
Prime Minister's Conference, 2505, 2637-67
Naval defence—contribution of Dominions to, 4256
Privilege
Alleged statement of Mr. Davidson regarding Liberal leadership, 2443
Correction of report in Ottawa Journal, 477
Explanation of remarks on Dominion Elections Bill, 4543
National Catholic Labour Unions, 3584
Provinces as traders, 3706
Purchasing Commission, 2015
Negative motion, 2019
Quebec riots, 1506
Railway Department employees, 1654
Representation in Parliament, 1307
Revenue from duty on wines, 2711
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4055-60

Laporte, Sir Hormidas, 1609-10, 4315. See also Canadian National Railways
Business interests, 3610

La Presse, 3217
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, criticism, 1709
Lord Atholstan, and, 3248
Yamaska by-election—Mr. Mondou, 3251

LaRochelle, Mr. M. G., 799. See also Civil Service; Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill

La Salle road, 4313-33

L'Assomption Experimental Station, 918, 946

Latchford, Mr. Justice, payments to, qu. 1500

"Laurentian", Government steamer, qu. 1348, 1863

Laurentide Pulp & Paper Company, 3049

Laurier, Sir Wilfrid, 3670. See also Address; Budget; Prime Ministers' Conference
Imperial Conferences, and, 3431-34
South African War, 1527
Tariff, 3614, 3642

Laval University. See Research

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. (Quebec County)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 280; congratulations to Prime Minister; the French language; demand for general election; changed attitude towards Quebec; unfulfilled obligations to city of Quebec; equipment for Transcontinental railway; grain elevators, docks, workshops; Great Northern and Lake St. John railways; St. Charles river dam; the Quebec riots of 1918, 282
Canadian National Railways
Directors, 4315
Quebec bridge—highway, 4333
Civil Service bonus, 2112-13
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 686
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3977
Income tax, 2106
Marine estimates, 1987
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1649
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payment to, 4575
Post Office
Fiset, Mr. Michel, 963, 4523
Loretteville, 4523
Quebec elevator, 282, 1443
Quebec-Loretteville line, 4328
Shipbuilding, 1971
Telegraph line, Loretteville-St. Gerard, 4539

Lavoie, Mr., and Canadian National Railways, 1659, 1670

Law Library, Canadian, 1090

Law Stamps, 1090

Lawyers. See Canadian Bar Association; Justice Department

League of Nations, 97, 110, 125, 157, 164, 186, 188, 195, 204, 227, 229, 237, 247, 285, 357, 400, 435, 474, 2629-50-52, 2789, 3157, 3205. See also Canadian Nationals Definition Act; Prime Ministers' Conference; Permanent Court of International Justice
Ames, Sir Herbert, 464. See also that title
Article X, 158, 1967
Elimination of, qu. 575
Assembly, 164, 436, 2629, 2710, 543
Canadian representatives, 188, qu. 602, 785

League of Nations—Con.
Assembly—Con.
French Canadians unrepresented, 552
Request for papers, 188
Aviation, 3782
Burnham, Dr., case of, 1521. See also that title
Canada's participation, 519
Canadian Nationals, 397. See also that title
Constitutional questions, 113
Council, 2709
Expenses, Canada's share, qu. 1235, 2356
Labour, 4547. See also that title
Nauru Island, 4255, 4541
Permanent Court of International Justice. See that title
Permanent Secretariat, maintenance, 2356

Leases of Federal Oil Lands. See Oil

Lecours, Mr. A. J. See Quebec Riots

Leduc, Mr. J. Alfred (Westmount-St. Henry)
Budget, 3463. Comparison of present with Liberal administration; Government economy in expenditure necessary, 3464; methods of taxation, 3465; income tax, 3465
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3882
Public buildings, Nova Scotia, 2770

Lee-Enfield Rifle, 2783-7. See also Militia; Ross Rifle

Leeds
Status of member for, 464, 1294, 1326. See also White, Sir Thomas
Resignation of member for, 1619
Vacancy, 1293

Legal Responsibility. See Quebec Riots

Leger, Mr. A. T. (Kent, N.B.)
Agricultural publications, 1074
Beef production, 1039
Cold storage—delegation from Maritime Provinces, 1038
Dairying, 1036
Dredging, 3982
Fruit growing, 1041
Harbours and rivers, 3990
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1994
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3759
Partridge Island quarantine station, 2206-14
Public Works—transfer of district engineer's office from Chatham, 4081-5
St. John harbour, 4078
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement of, 1499, 2173, qu. 2618, 4501-5
Veterinaries in New Brunswick, 1050

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe (Maisonneuve; Gaspé)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 177; Mr. Mowat; platform of Liberal Convention of 1919; Speech of Mr. Gauthier a "degrading incident", 178; the amendment; Government possible only with consent of governed; the "Khaki" election in England; Balfour administration, 178; no general election for ten years; issue in 1911; dissolution and election; only issue in 1917 was "Win the War"; that election a "sham" and "official debauchery"; tariff, 181; coalition illogical after the war; Cabinet changes; distinction between Tory and Liberal, 182; justification of amendment; Imperial Conference, naval defence; British foreign policy; Canada will never surrender rights; Government without mandate to discuss naval defence; organic change in constitution, 183; Canada a nation? Right denied to conclude commercial pact; consular agents, 184; Ambassador at Washington, 185; Chicago Drainage Canal; levels of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river; League of Nations; increasing desire for national unity, 187
Air Board, 3778
Archives, provision for, 2949
Arctic expedition, 4106
Ascension Day, adjournment, 2688
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 291c
Belgian Immigration, 4128
Berry boxes, 4116
Bertrand, Mr. Joseph Tetu, 4079
Brunelle, Sergt. Major N., 1518
Budget, 3241. Tariff Commission; free trade and protection, revenue, raising of, 3242; income tax; two normal periods of recent history, 1879-1896, 1896-1911, comparison of, 3243; British preference, establishment of, 3244; relations with the United States, 3245; benefits of Liberal administration, 3245; war loans, debts and deficits, 3246; a free press, 3247; naval and military expenditure, 3248; vigorous policy of immigration and land settlement, 3249; mining industry; attitude of Quebec, Yamaska by-election, 3250
Burnham, Dr., and Serbian Government, M., 1520, 1528
Business of the House, 1851
Morning sittings, prorogation, 4338-40
Previous debate, 3627

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe—Con.
Business of the House—Con.
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1833
Canada Temperance Act Bill
Costs of litigation, 4385
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1557, 2254-7
Canadian dollar in the United States, 3087
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1286
Canadian National Railways
Deficit--Mr. J. Lambert Payne, 3017
Foremen of engines, qu. 1673
St. Hyacinthe shops, qu. 2821
Special Committee, reference to M. (Mr. Meighen) 1774
Train agents, qu. 1349
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2396, 2430
Cattle embargo, 710; motion withdrawn, 766
Chicago Drainage Canal, 185, 1851, 2225
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3827-9
Civil Service
Bonus, qu. 901, 1176
Griffenhagen and Associates, 799, 4555. See also under this title, Post Office
Outside Service, qu. 2820
Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) Political Patronage in, 798; Liberal principles; Civil Service Commission; competitive principle; worries of patronage system; experience in England, United States and India; Hon. Sydney Fisher; confidence in Commissioners; Arthur Young and Company; Griffenhagen and Associates, 799
Reorganization, 4555
Superannuation, increase of allowances, 2112
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2855-71, 4258-60, 4280-88, 4466-86
Religious holidays, 4485
Returned Soldiers, 4258-60
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2490-2; 4275
Copyright Act Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3838-49
Customs
Minister of
Letter to French Purchasing Commission, 3079
Private business connections, 3079, 3080
Montreal port officers, 3086
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4448
De Martigny divorce, 3767-71, 4008, 4203, 4477
Destruction of documents. See also under this title Printing Bureau

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe—Con.
Divorce evil, 4474
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 3092, 4246
Naturalization, 3112
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4064
Editorial Committee, 4557-9
Estimates, Scrutiny of, Special Committee, M., 1503, 2193, 2210
Expenditure
National Committee on, 1835
Statutory, 1557
French Trade Agreement, 1557, 2127-41, 2193
Gaspé Peninsula railway facilities, 2507-9
Georgian Bay Canal, qu. 2625
Germany
Canadian claims against, 4534
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2450-80, 2564
Highways
Construction in Ontario, 4290-3
In Quebec, 3029
Housing
(Amdt.) 1135-36
Point of order, 1135
Immigration
Central European, 2575-85
Deputy Minister, 3057
Exhibits, 3067
Inspectors, 3067
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3822-7
Income tax
Instructions in both languages, 2626
Penalties, qu. 2100
Regulations, 1272
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4345-53
Insurance Act, proposed amendments, 2625, 4339
Insurance Conference, 3088
Interim Supply, 1679
Bill, 2101-2112
Motion to reduce, 2095
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 1561, 3010
Judges Act, 1920, Correspondence, 1851
Judge Snider's report. See under this title Printing Bureau
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4207-10
Langlois, Mr., 4128
Magdalen Island steamship service, 767
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2328
Military expenditure, South Africa, 3273
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, M., 1152; withdrawn, 1172
Murray Bay-Tadoussac Steamship service, 1825
National Research Institute, 4555. See also under this title, Research

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe—Con.
National Transcontinental, Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2509-19
Natural resources, 874
North American Trust Company, 1129
Oil and Gas permits and leases, 899
Oil bounties, 1421
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3883-94
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2906, 3009
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payments to, 4570
Parliament buildings, 4077
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4367
Pensions
Etienne, Mde., claim, 4367
Martel, Mde., claim, 4367
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2712-14
Pierreville postmistress, qu. 2624
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4053
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 1619, 2123-25
Post Office Department
Anderson, Mr., 4556
Annuities, 4524
Griffenhagen and Associates, 4556
Letter rate, 4515
Postmaster General, 4514
Railway mail service, 4516
Reorganization and administration, 4514-24, 4556
Verret, Col., 4525-56
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2642
Printing Bureau—destruction of documents, 2950-3, 4557
Judge Snider's report, 1625, 2444, 2943, 3905, 4062, 4436
Private members and money resolutions, 1135
Prohibition, 4474
Public moneys, expenditure of, 1678
Public Works in Gaspé, 4088
Purchasing Commission, 2021, 2018-22
Motion to strike out item, 2018
Quebec riots, 1514
Question not answered, 1621
Railways
Freight rates on, 2018
Refrigerator cars for fish, 1038
Revenue and expenditure, 4515
Salmon fishery licenses, 4341
Sandy Beach wharf, qu. 965
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 591
Senate Bills, delay in first reading, 1619
Shipbuilding, 1286, 1686, 2078

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe—Con.
Shipbuilding—Con.
Speech referred to, 1684
Soldiers pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4053
Speaker's Chair, 3694
Stony Mountain penitentiary, release of prisoners, 477
Thanksgiving day, date, qu. 2098
Trade with United States, 1481
United States tariff, Canadian duties, 4254
War tax, 4515
Woman suffrage, 4474
Yamaska election
Speech at St. François du Lac, 3528
Unsatisfactory arrangements for, 4534
Young Emergency tariff, 2905

Le Pas wharf, 3975-6

Letter Carriers. See also Post Office
Bonus, 2109-15. See also Civil Service, Bonus

Letter Rate. See Post Office

Letters. See Imaginary Letters

Levels, Great Lakes, 186. See also Chicago Drainage Canal; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway

Lévis, expropriation of land at, 1846

Libel. See Criminal Code Amendments

Liberal Bloc, 3216

Liberal Convention, 1919, 73, 175, 218, 338, 3637. See also Address; Budget
Fiscal policy, 3213
Tariff resolution, 3643

Library of Parliament
Joint Committee, 110
Joint Librarians' Report, 3
Noise, 4000

Life Assurance Companies. See North American

Life-saving Service, 1990

Lighthouses and Lightkeepers, 1994, 2174
Bonus, 1622, qu. 1623
Signal service, 4040

Lignite. See also Coal, Natural Resources
Briquetting plants
Bienfait, qu. 672, 673, 848, 4499
Estevan, 2689
Conservation Commission, 3965
Utilization Board, qu. 672, 673, 1269, 4499

Lindsay
Arsenal, 2782
Wharf, 2616

Lindsay, General
Oil lands, 1342
Tar sand rights, 671

Linen Yarn, Bounty on, 1389. See also Flax

Liquor. See also Alcohol; Canada Temperance Act; Customs and Excise Dept. Act; Inland Revenue; Prohibition; Special War Revenue
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2258-9
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, cargoes, 1713, 1715
Export licenses in Saskatchewan, qu. 838
Illicit traffic, 4388
Seizure of at Baie St. Paul, qu. 696
Tax on, 3705, 3708
Theft of at Baie St. Paul, qu. 1132

Lira, exchange value of. See Italy

Live Stock, 344, 846, 923, 1116. See also Agriculture; Health of Animals
Abattoirs and cold storage, 1125
Accredited Herd, 4506-13
Breeding, aids to, 1117, 1245
Cattle embargo. See that title
Corning—cattle purchases, 1624
County fairs and exhibitions, 1123
Dairy herds and cow testing, 1118
Distribution of pure-bred animals, 923, 948
Eggs and poultry, 1122. See also Eggs
Farmers' Clubs, 1117
Feed. See that title
Guernsey cattle at Nappan, qu. 2686
Health of Animals, 4506-12. See also that title
Marketing, 1039, 1119
Molasses wash for hogs, 3787-3820
Saskatchewan, distribution, qu. 1236
Transportation charges on feed, qu. 2686
Wool grading, 1121

Living Conditions. See Housing

Loan Companies. See also Housing

Loans. See also Address; Budget; Credits; Finance; Housing
Belgium to, qu. 577, qu. 1001, 3379. See also that title
Canadian National Railways, 4131-68, 4288, 4313, 4334
Canadian Northern Railway, 3037
Domestic, qu. 566
European credits, qu. 2622
Foreign, 3286, 3347, 3611
Grand Trunk Railway, 4131-68, 4288, 4313, 4334
Grecian, 2812
Roumanian, and, qu. 564. See also under this head Roumanian

Loans—Con.
Maturing, 3478
Repayment in New York, $25,000,000 loan, qu. 2622
Roumanian, 478, 564, qu. 566, 1072, 1441, qu. 2030, qu. 2344, 3811, 4430
Tax exempt, qu. 575

Lobsters. See Fish

Lockeport-Froude Point
Steamship service, 1496
Railway extension, 3054, 4323

Locomotives. See Railways

Long, Mr. C. E. (North Battleford)
Hudson Bay Railway, 996
Live stock commission men, 1123

Longueuil Bridge, 300

Loretteville, post office, 4523

Lowther, Right Hon. J. W.
Speaker's Chair, presentation, 3689
Expression of thanks, 3697

Lumber
Pacific coast trade, 1725
Piling of near stations, 1177
Profits on, Grain Growers' Grain Company, 3180, 3633
Sales tax on, 3449, 3736, 3742-3, 3751-7
Ties, railway, for Egypt, 1725
Tobique reserve, cutting on, 4503

Lunenburg County
Fishery overseers, 2179
Fruit inspectors, 1041, 1047

Luxury Taxes. See Taxation

Lynch, Mr. Frank, 4541

Macallum, Professor, 1328, 1432, 2144, 2688, See also Research

Dacdonald, Mr. E. M., 3529

MacDonald, Hon. Senator, appointment of, qu. 577

MacKelvie, Mr. John A. (Yale)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 7; (seconder) retirement of Hon. Mr. Burrell; acceptance by Hon. Mr. Tolmie portfolio of Agriculture; new Prime Minister; unrest; agitation and unemployment; re-establishment of returned men; old age pensions and unemployment insurance; the tariff; fruit-growing industry; amicable relations between two great races forming bulk of population, 10

Mackenzie and Mann, 1960, 3206, 3288. See also Canadian National Railways

Mackenzie District
Oil Development, 2162. See also Oil, Petroleum

Mackie, Mr. H. A. (East Edmonton)
Cattle embargo, qu. 714
Civil Service—(res. Sir Sam Hughes)—Political Patronage in; abuses of system; promotions; deputy postmaster at Edmonton; census commissioners, 827; transfer of patronage to officials; political partisanship, 828
Debates, official, distribution of, 2224
Natural resources, 878
Oil and Gas
Expenditure for discovery, qu. 695
Permits and leases, res. 894
Leases, issue of, 598
Rights, 2555
Point of order—member reading speech, 544
Tar Sand rights, qu. 671
General Lindsay, qu. 671

Mackie, Mr. H. J. (North Renfrew)
Pembroke wharf, 4539

Maclean, Hon. A. K. (Halifax)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 318; Prime Minister, congratulations to; tenure of Parliament; early dissolution desirable; life of Government measured by war, 319; attitude of members towards dissolution; Military Service Act and coalition, 320; understanding of electorate in 1917; War Times Election Act; redistribution, 322
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bill (Public harbours) 1174, 2228-30, 2556
Canada Temperance Act
Pending litigation not to be affected (Amdt.) 4384
Rights of litigants, 4377
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2255-61
Canadian National Railways
Management, Information—M. (Mr. King) 1204
Proposed reference to Special Committee, M., 1573
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2823-75
Amdt. to M. for 2r., 2835, 4464-93
Commission—exclusion of certain positions, 4477
"In the public interest," 4477
Naval Service—preference, 4484

Maclean, Hon. A. K.—Con.
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Returned Soldiers—preference, 4492
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2490-2502
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Consular agents, United States, 3792
Consular certificates, 4390
Invoice certificate, 3792, 4389
Fee—who pays? 4390
Proclamation of Act, 4391
Trade agents, 3792
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods—marking, 3954
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 307
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4240-5
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4240
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4067
Fuel supply problem, 1264
Grain inquiry—remuneration of Commissioners, 3972
League of Nations—Canada's contribution, 2362
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1154-9
National Research Council, 2896
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3895
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2264-5, 2898-2908
Parliament buildings, 3995-7
Public harbours, 1174, 2228-30, 2556
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2482-6
Unanimous consent, 1173
War Times Election Act, 322, 4240

Maclean, Mr. W. F. (South York)
Canadian Nationals Definition Bill, 769
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 3113
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 747
Hudson Bay Railway, 985, 996
National railways and telegraphs—Government business, 4130
Railways and immigration, 4129
Returned soldiers in Civil Service, qu. 963
Toronto post office, appointments, qu. 734

MacLeod Judicial District, qu. 2344

MacLeod's Breakwater, 4087

MacNab's Island. See Halifax Quarantine station

MacNutt, Mr. Thomas (Saltcoats)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 527; congratulations to Prime Minister; tariff; new Prime Minister but same old policy; position of parties uncertain; fusion; "moderate protection," 528; settlement of soldiers on the land, 529; high prices for seed and stock—low prices for products; suggestions for relief of returned men; housing; exchange, 530; amendments; no confidence in Government, 531
Budget, 3685. Budget a protectionist one; eminent men changing political opinions; Canadian navy, status of officers and men, 3686
Canadian navy, status of officers and men, qu. 3422, 3686
Census appointments, qu. 3260
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4234-5
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4234
Hudson Bay Railway—expenditure, qu. 2623
Immigration, 2584
Pre-emptions and purchases of homesteads, qu. 2506
Soldiers' Land Settlement Board, dismissal of Mr. Graham, 2618

MacPhail, Mr. E. S., 1232

McAdoo Award, 1588, 4325

McCallum, Miss Mary P., 3108

McCoig, Mr. A. B. (Kent, Ont.)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 88; reply to Mr. Gauthier—almost identical argument by Mr. his attack on Hon. Mr. Lemieux; anxious to be taken into the Government; almost identical argument by Mr. Gauthier and Prime Minister; election, census, and redistribution, 89; Canadian National Railways; Mr. De Witt Foster, 90; Board of Commerce; profiteering; combines; Tobacco Buyers' Association; agricultural machinery, 91
Agricultural machinery, standardization of parts, 584, Res. 666
Apple exports to Great Britain, qu. 1501
Budget, 3506. Taxation of necessaries of life, 3506; rural mail contractors' remuneration, 3507; agricultural implements, 2508; military expenditure, 3508; Government war scandals, 3508; tractors, 3509
Civil Service, bonus, 2029, 2109, 2115
Experimental farms, 943
Flax industry, 1397
Highway construction in Ontario, 4293-5
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 622
Interior Department—salaries, 1333

McCoig, Mr. A. B.—Con.
Militia
Annual drill, M. to reduce, 2296
Pensions, 2278

McCrea, Mr. F. N. (Sherbrooke)
Amherst drill hall, 2752
Grand Trunk loan, 4166
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4348
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4221
Military preparations, 2298
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4013
Shipbuilding, 1944

McCurdy, Hon. F. B. (Minister of Public Works)
Bryson-Calumet Island bridge, 3986
Clark's Harbour, public building, 2817
Commons Chamber, temperature of, 1071
Courtenay Bay improvements, 4097
Dredging, 3982
Drydocks, 3987
Fort Cumberland and Fort Moncton, care of, 4540
Halifax quarantine station, 2754
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3973-82
Montreal-South shore traffic bridge, 2217
Parliament Buildings, 3992-4001
Partridge Island Quarantine station, 2808-15
Pembroke wharf, 4536-8
Port Hood, wharf, 4104
Public Works
Amherst drill hall, 2739
Annapolis public building, 2741
Demobilization, 3989
Engineering Branch, 4080-90
Estimates, 2737-73, 3973
Expenditures, 4102
Nova Scotia, 4086
Return, inquiry for, 3008
St. John harbour, 4078
Telegraphs and Telephones
Isle aux Coudres, 4540
Loretteville-St. Gerard, 4540

McDermand, Mr. S. S. (East Elgin)
Apples, profit on, 1470
Encouragement of fruit-growing, 1469
European corn-borer, 1031
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 613

McDonald, Mr. Angus (Timiskaming)
Civil Service
Board of Hearing, qu. 2820
Bonus, qu. 3089
Meetings in Government buildings, qu. 3421
Prevailing rates, qu. 3089
Reorganization—Griffenhagen and Associates, qu. 2623

McDonald, Mr. Angus—Con.
Civil Service—Con.
Superannuation, qu. 2820
Whitley Councils, qu. 2820
Judge Snider's report, 3209
Returned Soldiers—civil servants, qu. 3531
Shipbuilding, 1884
Unemployment and immigration, 1377

McGibbon, Mr. Peter (Muskoka)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 154; the amendment; Opposition has no policy and no case against Government; taxation, debt, railways, repatriation, pensions; unemployment insurance; old age pensions; the tariff; vacillation of Opposition on question of the tariff, 155; the Government's record; war taxation, repatriation, pensions, expenditure, production—election; mistakes—who has not made them? 156; Government justified by its record—redistribution and representation—congratulations to Prime Minister, 157
Agricultural shows, 1242
Automobile theft, 3914
Budget, 3510. Business conditions of country; revenue by taxation; direct and land taxation, 3511; protection and industries, 3512; iron and steel industry; plate glass; pineapples; wire nails and sugar industry, 3513; prosperity and wages, 3514; exemption of farmers, 3516
"Canadian Inventor," 1891
Cattle embargo, 727
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2829-67, 4478
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill—firearms, 3907-14
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Home brewing, 3788
Restrictive legislation, 3790
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 308
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4239-41
Revising officers, 3102
Farmers, protection for, 3748
Health Department
Report, 1852
Scientific branch, 3134
Highways, construction in Ontario, 4293
Hog cholera, compensation, 1060
Illustration stations and farms in Northern Ontario, 955
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 618
Military preparation, 2304
National Research Institute, 2895
Ontario timber limits, 3391

McGibbon, Mr. Peter—Con.
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2264-7, 2901
Convictions under, 3134
Pensions Act Amdt. Bill, 4373
Pensions
Widowed mothers, 634
Record of member for Lunenburg, 1903
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4356
Shipbuilding, 1903, 1904
Trent canal, 2955-65

McGibbon, Mr. Peter R. (Argenteuil)
Questions, inquiry as to, 2943
Railway bridges, 1664

McGill University. See Research

McGilvray, Dr. C. D., 1055

McIntosh, Mr. J. C. (Nanaimo)
Fisheries—Mr. Justice Ebert's report, qu. 4254

McIsaac, Mr. James (King's, P.E.I.)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, moved, 5; congratulations to Prime Minister; tribute to Sir Robert Borden; after-war problems and conditions; Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 6; Customs Tariff, 7
Budget, 3397; congratulations to Minister of Finance; Canada's trade; financial position of country, 3398; revenue, raising of, 3399; sales tax; tariff revision, attitude of Opposition on tariff, 3400; Fielding, Mr., former speech on tariff, 3401; Amdt. of Mr. Fielding, 3403
Georgetown wharf, 4564
Harbours and rivers, 3990
Highways, expenditure, 4306
Prince Edward Island Railway, 4564

McKean, Mr. Melville, 4083

McKenzie, Mr. D. D. (Cape Breton North and Victoria)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 40; mover and seconder; congratulations to Prime Minister; tribute to leader of Opposition, 40; disappointed in speech of Prime Minister; should place himself in the "hands of the country"; election before redistribution; position of West, 41; quotations from Calgary Albertan and Montreal Gazette; newspaper comment on by-election results, 43; amendment necessary to expression of views; the tariff; wait until report of Tariff Committee of Cabinet produced, 44; a government of the "big interests"; restoration of confidence in parliamentary institutions impossible while Government remains in power, 45; position and policy of Liberal party, 46
Agricultural publications, 1075
Alcohol, tax on, 3957
Alderson, Mr. George B., claim for compensation, 2273
Amherst drill shed, 2739
Australia-New Zealand service, 1494
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2925-9
Budget, 3280. Minister of Militia and military expenditure, revenues and expenditures, 3283; speeches on Government side of House, 3284; luxury taxes, 3285; unfairness of taxation, 3286; foreign loans; Canadian Northern system borrowings, 3287, 3288; Grand Trunk borrowings, 3291; trade outlets; railway business, handling of; shipbuilding, 3292; combines, Nova Scotia coal, 3295; lack of railway facilities in Cape Breton
Burnham, Dr., treatment of by Serbian Government, 1526
Canada Temperance Act, costs, 4381-88
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, shipbuilding, 1280
Canadian Nationals Definition Bill, 778
Ruling of Chairman, 779
Canadian National Railways
Management — Information M. (Mr. King) 1210
Operating expenses and receipts, 4316
Special Committee
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1600
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2416
Cattle embargo, 763
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2781, 2844, 4287
Civil Service bonus, 4120, 2236
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage; election officers in North Cape Breton and Victoria; census officials, 832; service overmanned and underpaid, 11,000 dismissed, 25,000 appointed; classification and reorganization, 833; Printing Bureau; Civil Service Commission, 834; patronage and the party system; appointments, 835
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4274
Coal supply in Maritime Provinces, 1281

McKenzie, Mr. D. D.—Con.
Comparative return on Dominion guaranteed and Nova Scotia bonds, 4165
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3912-38
Currency Act Amdt. Bill, 2269
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Invoice certificate, 3806
Fee—who pays? 3807
Preventive service in Victoria county, 4388
Customs and Inland Revenue—payments for overtime, 4123
Customs officers, 3086
Customs Tariff, 1907, Amdt. Bill—imported goods, marking, 3947-55
Dairy products grading, 3760
Delinquent children, 3012
De Martigny divorce, 3766
Destructive insects, 1027, 1032, 1075
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 311
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill 3091, 4243-6
Election officers, disqualification, 4246
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4243
Nomination day, 3096
Recount, 3097
Revising officers, 3102
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4066
Flax industry, 1402
Flour, high price of, 1448
Fruit inspectors, location in one county, 1046
Fuel supply problem, 1260
Gas and Gas Meters, Inspection of, Bill, 609, 2944
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2458-80, 2446
Position, 3321, 4436
Grand Trunk Railway
Coal mines in the United States, 4316
Default of interest, 1498
Loan, 3291, 4152-69, 4315
Portland terminus, 4316
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 695, 738
Immigration, 2584-96
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 4343-55
Ingonish-Macleod's breakwater, 4087
Insect pests, 1027, 1032, 1075
Judges Exchequer Court, 1083
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2350-5
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4224-6
Lignite, 4500
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill, 2891

McKenzie, Mr. D. D.—Con.
Military Service Act, claim for services, 2807
Montreal Harbour Commission, 2269
National Research Institute, 2703
Naval policy, 4034
Newfoundland railways, 1485
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4032-6
North Sydney, removal of Public Works officials, 2817
Nova Scotia judges, 1572
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2264-5, 2908
Partridge Island Quarantine Station, 2813-15
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4372
Pensions, widowed mothers, 639, 4372
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2720-33, 3014
Prisons and reformatories, 3011
Proclamation—enforcement of Acts of Parliament by, 3758
Public buildings—Nova Scotia, 2736-71
Public harbours, 2229-31
Public Works—Engineering branch, 4083
Purchasing Commission, 1102
Quebec riots, 1511
Reid Newfoundland Company, 1486
Relief of distressed seamen, 4039
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4262
Ross Rifle, 2783-7
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2484
Russian currency, 1072
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 659
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 4503-4
Shipbuilding, 1280
Statistics Act Amdt. Bill, 3758
Steamship routes, new, 1494
Welland canal, construction, 2994
West Indies steamship service, 1490
Wharves and breakwaters, Cape Breton, 4103
Wheat Board, loss under, 1461
Witness fees, 3937

McLean, Mr. H. H. (Royal)
Chief Justice, salary of, 1562
Income tax, Chief Justice, 1561

McLennan, Professor, 1428. See also Research

McLeod, Late Col Harry, tribute to, 3-4, 153

McMaster, Mr. A. R. (Brome)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 65; congratulations to mover

McMaster, Mr. A. R.—Con.
Address—Con.
and seconder; criticism of speech of Mr. Nesbitt; unemployment insurance; the tariff, 65; Minister of Trade and Commerce and League of Nations; speech of the Prime Minister, 66; right of the Government to carry on—pledged to hold office only during war and demobilization; evidence of the agreement, 67; no difference between parties in desire to win war—conditions in 1904 and 1917 not comparable; Brown-Macdonald coalition; National Liberal and Conservative party, 70; Ministry not united on tariff question; position of the Minister without portfolio (Mr. Spinney) 71; election of Minister of Customs; a portfolio for Quebec; tariff attitude of Liberal party, 72; platform adopted at Liberal Convention of 1919, 73; parliamentary institutions on trial—the Prime Minister a usurper; Liberal Unionists elected for war only, 73; fate of Government in their hands, 74
Air Board, 3779-83
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 1301
Automobile theft, 3913
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2934-9
Bounties on oil, 1387
Budget, 3164. Income tax; League of Nations, 3165; war expenditure; protection of industries, 3166; debt and revenue; exports and imports, 3167; exchange rate; tariff schedule, raising of, 3168; short-sighted uneconomic policy, 3169; sales tax; cocoa, duties on, 3170; public men and private interests; St. John city, representation of, 3172; foreign governments; Ministers soliciting business, 3173; Imaginary letters
Business of the House
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays—Rule 17C, 960
Progress of, 1230
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bill
Costs, 4377
Pending litigation, 4377-86
Rights of litigants, 4377
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2251-9
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 649, 767
Canadian National Railways
Board of Directors, 1667
Questions on order paper, 1763
Special Com., M., (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1608

McMaster, Mr. A. R.—Con.
Canadian Northern Railway
Certificates, issue and sale of, qu. 605
Guaranteed bonds, sale of, qu. 604
Canadian representation in the United States, 2395
Cattle embargo, 765
Compensation for slaughtered animals, 1062
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3900, 3913-17
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Purchasing power of European countries, 4430
Valuation of currency, 4430
Valuation for duty, 4412
Customs brokers, payment, 1090
Customs—foreign monetary standards, qu. 1133
Customs Tariff, 1907, Act Amdt. Bill—imported goods, marking of, 3944-54
Delinquent children, 3012
Documents placed on Hansard without being read, 1539
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4247-8
Election papers, 3098
New forms, 3101
Expenditures, curtailment of, 2978
Flax bounty, 1393
Fox breeding, 1428
French Trade Agreement, 2130-39
Fruit growing in Eastern Townships, 1043
Grand Trunk
Equipment trust certificates, qu. 604
Guaranteed bonds, qu. 604
Halifax Shipyards, Limited, 1698
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3973-8
Health of Animals, diseased herds, 1048
Highway construction in Ontario, 4290-4302
Imaginary letters, 3173
Good taste, 3174
Immigration, 2572-82
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 4499
Income tax, qu. 3260
Interim supply, 2012
Interior Department, reduction of estimates, 1334
Justice Department, purchasing agent, 1079
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2355
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4204-24
League of Nations, contribution, 2359-70
Lignite, 4499
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2328
Maple Products Act, 1920, Amdt. Bill, 2559
Military preparation, 2295, 2303

McMaster, Mr. A. R.—Con.
Ministers of the Crown and directorships, 2228
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1169
Naval Service, 4022
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4013-29
Parliament buildings, 3998
Penitentiaries
Saskatchewan, increase in, 1091
Point of order—irrelevancy, 1066
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2120-22
Prisons and reformatories, 3012
Privy Council, limitation of appeals, 1089
Proportional representation, 1548
Purchasing Commission, 2016
Railway Board and Intercolonial, 1655
Reciprocity agreement with the United States, 2054
Research, 1427
Return, inquiry for, 3008
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4360
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 258, 585, 662
Statutory expenditures, 1423
Trent canal, 2953
University professors and scientific research, 1436

McNeil, Archbishop, and Housing, 1137

McPhail, Sir Andrew, 1353-55-60

McQuarrie, Mr. W. G. (New Westminster)
Farmers, protection for, 3748
Fisheries of British Columbia, 861
Housing, 1144
Natural resources, 861
Poultry industry in British Columbia, 3750
Unemployment and immigration, 1364

Machinery. See Agricultural machinery; implements

Madrid Postal Conference, 3001

Magdalen Islands
Steamship service, 557, 767

Magill, Dr., 1451, qu. 1624

Magrath, Mr. C. A., and Fuel Supply, 1256

Maharg, Mr. John A. (Maple Creek)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 485; congratulations to Prime Minister—statement attributed to Prime Minister; allegation that farmers in alliance with Bolshevists; what farmers did in the national crisis, Wheat Board, 487—results of discontinuance, 488; platform of Canadian Maharg, Mr. John A.—Con.

Address—Con.
Council of Agriculture, 489; fiscal policy of Great Britain—Government's record—elections; United Grain Growers, sale of agricultural implements; pamphlet attributed to Mr. Cowan, 491; Government supplies purchased in the United States, 492; Canadian manufacturers refuse to sell to farmers' co-operative organizations; Commission to inquire into grain trade, 493; British Columbia apples, 494; the amendment, 495
Agriculture Dept., salaries of officials, 1036
Budget, 3362. Reference to Prime Minister's speech; Mr. Norman P. Lambert and his article, 3363; cream separators and the free list, 3364; protection and Great Britain, binder twine industry, 3365; imports and revenue, adverse balance of trade, 3366; tariff reduction, 3368; home market, 3369; western grain shipments, 3370; freight rates, 3371; implement manufacturing, 3372; sales tax, 3373; railway situation; canal expenditure, 3374
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, West Indies trade, 1913
Canadian Wheat Board, 1449
Flour, cost of, 1450
Fruit inspection in the West, 1043
Government marketing of wheat, 1460
Grain
Chemistry expert, 1228
Commission, 1447, 1462
Overages, 1463
Transportation rates, 999
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 749
Great Lakes, ships on, 1913
Ocean freights, 1936
Magill, Dr., and Agrarian group, 1451
Point of Order—political sagacity, 1066
Resignation of, 4340
Returned soldiers, employment on Welland canal, 3001
Saskatchewan
Co-operative Elevator Company, qu. 391
Militia organizations, 2794-6
Searls, Mr. George, grain inspection, 1445
Shipbuilding, 1920
Steamship subsidies, 1492
Terminal elevators, 1463
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1842
Welland canal, construction, 2999-3003

Mail Bags, repairing of. See Penitentiaries

Mail Contracts, 1823. See also Post Office; Rural Mail

Mail Contracts—Con.
Ste. Rose de Watford, qu. 3209
White Horse-Dawson contract, qu. 2686

Mail Subsidies, 1485. See also Steamship subsidies

Main Ducks, life-saving station, 1991

Maisonneuve and Gaspé, Representation of, 2247, 2310, 4437
M. (Mr. Edwards) 2314; agreed to, 2343
See also Privileges and Elections

Majority of Votes. See Proportional Representation

Management. See Canadian National Railways

Mange. See Health of Animals

Manion, Mr. R. J. (Fort William and Rainy River)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 351; congratulations to Prime Minister; Liberal-Unionists not weak-kneed, servile or subservient, "Liberals" and "Conservatives", 352; the tariff, historical alignment of parties on, 353; the Farmers' party and free trade; position of Mr. McMaster: agricultural and industrial interests; the Government's mandate, 354; demand for election; no criticism of policies, principles or legislation; personal criticisms of Prime Minister and Quebec, 355; representation of French Canadians on Boards and Commissions, Supreme Court; friendship between Quebec and rest of Canada; Military Service Act; sane elements do not want election; the Government's record, 356; Canada's status, League of Nations; no charges against Government; the country prosperous, 357; social conditions; Canada's problems, 358
Alcohol and medicinal preparations, 3731
Budget, 3231. Speech of Mr. Clark (Red Deer) 3231; taxing of necessaries of life, 3232; attitude of Mr. Fielding on tariff; free trade policy in the United Kingdom, 3233; tariff policy for Canada a vital one, 3234; tariff and revenue, 3235; cheap countries; moderate tariff, 3236; carrying trade of Great Britain; adverse balance of trade; Great Britain's exports and imports, 3237; agriculture declining in the United Kingdom; United States manufactures and shipping, 3238; Great Britain suffering under free trade policy, reciprocity and the Fordney Bill, 3239
Canadian National Railways
Lake Superior Branch and Fort William, 3050
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2414-32
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill
Religious holidays, 4491
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2474
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 682
Macallum, Professor, 1435
Natural resources, Res, 841
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3879; Amdt. 3886
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 7, 2903

Manitoba
Grasshopper plague, 1027
Harbours and rivers, 3975
Highways, 4308
List of candidates and votes polled, 1539
Transfer of Natural Resources to. See Natural Resources

Manson's Landing, wharf, 3980

Manufacturers. See Address, Budget, Canadian Manufacturers Association, Customs and Excise, Labour, Trade Commissioners, Unemployment Agricultural implements and United Grain Growers, 418, 491, 3372. See also that title

Maple Products Act Amdt. Bill
M. for leave to introduce: Speaker's ruling, 2150
Res. 2193, 2557; 1r., 2618; 2r., 2890, 3141, 3720

Maple Sugar, 887, 1047, 1474

Marcil, Hon. Charles (Bonaventure)
Baie des Chaleurs, steamship service, qu. 2506
Bonaventure-Gaspé mail service, qu. 577
Bonaventure wharves, 3992
Campbellton-Cross Point
Bridge, qu. 573, 3987
Ferry, qu. 573
Canadian Nationals, 777
Canadian National Railways
Gaspesian peninsula, train services, qu. 2623
Tourist traffic in Gaspesian peninsula, qu. 2622
Intercolonial—Campbellford train service, qu. 3903
St. Alexis, qu. 2375, qu. 3582

Marcil, Hon. Charles—Con.
Census commissioners and enumerators, qu. 696
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4284
Dredging, 3985
Gaspé Railway, qu. 962, qu. 2623
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 608
Marcil, Mr. Joseph, pension, 3903
Marcil, Mr. Louis T., compensation for injuries, qu. 2942, qu. 3531
Metapedia valley highways, qu. 2505
Parliament buildings, 3993-8
Pensions, payment to Messrs. Louis T. and Joseph Marcil, qu. 2942
Quebec, Oriental and Atlantic and Quebec and Western Railways, qu. 573
Quebec salmon net licenses, qu. 1381, 2506

Marcil, Mr. Joseph, qu. 2942, 3903

Marcil, Mr. Louis T., qu. 2942, qu. 3531

Marcile, Mr. J. E. (Bagot)
Canadian National Railways
Ste. Rosalie-Bagot
Claims between, qu. 571
Disposition of unoccupied land, qu. 572
League of Nations, Canadian representatives, qu. 602

"Marie Lydia," schooner, 1985

Marine. See also Canada Shipping Act; Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipping. For vessels, see that title
Department
Estimates, 2190
Johnston, Mr. Alex., reappointment, 644
Marine insurance, 1703
Salaries, 1617
Shipbuilding, 1683. See also that title
Dredging
St. Lawrence Channel, 1991. See also that title
Hospitals, 3135. See also Health
Life-saving service, 1990
Lighthouses. See that title
Montreal Dry Docks and Ship Repairing, Limited, qu. 2191
Navigation
Aids to, 1996
Schools of, 1989
Ocean and river service, 1736, 1979
Pilotage, 1999
Shipbuilding. See that title
Signal service, 1997
Wrecking plants, 1990
Wrecks, investigation, 1988

Mariners, Sick, care of, 3129. See also Health

Maritime Provinces
Railway facilities, improvement of, 4516, 4561
Wooden ships, 1711

Marking of Goods. See Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill

Marquis Wheat, 1033

Martin, Mr. Peter F. (Halifax)
Highways—Nova Scotia, 4304-7
Parliament buildings, 3993
Public Works—Engineers' Branch, 4090

Marwick, Mitchell and Company, Auditors, 1278, 1694, 1704, 1724, 1866, 1933. See also Canadian National Railways

Massey-Harris Company, 3393, 3496. See also Agricultural Implements

Massey, Hon. Mr., Prime Minister of New Zealand, interview with, 3008

Masters and Mates, Examination, 1736

Matane
Illustration station, 947
Wharves, 3992

Meat and Canned Foods Act
Administration of, 1048

Medicated Wines, 3709

Medicinal Preparations, 3709

Medicine Hat. See also House of Commons
By-election, 2151
Vacancy, 1174, 1293

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur (Prime Minister)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 28; mover and seconder of Address; personal and public relations with leader of Opposition; position of the Government; proposed amendment to the Address; right of the Government to retain office, 30; successor to and continuation of preceding government; issue in 1917; Government's duty in regard to war problems not yet done; the Government's right to retain office after principle upon which it was elected has been decided; appeal to people after Armistice, 32; no departure from policy justifying an appeal, 33; by-elections; reasons for the amdt., 35; leader of the Opposition seeking alliance with Farmers' party, 36; where Government stands on tariff; leader of Opposition evades issue, 37; no departure from historic policy proposed; challenge to dissolve Parliament; representation of the West, 38; duty of the Government to carry on; Opposition invited to make

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Address—Con.
clear and specific statement on issue to be decided, 39
Agricultural machinery, standardization of parts, 584
Alderson, Mr. George B., claim for compensation, 2274
Amalgamation of departments, 1331
Amendment to Address, 348
Amendments, want of confidence, 1199
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation of, 478, 1071, 1298, 1300, 1311
Archives, provision for, 2952
Arctic, expedition, 4106, 4113
Ascension Day adjournment, 2688, 2941
Audibility of debates, 1625
Auditor General's report, delay, 903
Bermuda, trade with, 1271
Board of Trade reports, forms in French, 2819, 3320, 3375
Bolsheviki and wreckers, 3451
Budget, 3322. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; revenue and expenditures; Mr. Fielding's amendment, 3323; Farmers' party servile tools and minions of Opposition, 3324; tinplate industry, 3325; Liberal party and free list, 3328; binder twine; Mr. Clark and free trade, 3330; Mr. Fielding's amendment and tariff reduction; protectionist speeches of Mr. Fielding, 3332; Liberal press and protection, 3336; Government's attitude on tariff matters, 3338; Prime Minister's speech at Sherbrooke, 3339; moderate protection the policy for Canada, 3341; United States tariff revision, 3342
Building Trades Conference, 1498, 1556
Burnham, Dr., treatment of by Serbian Government, 576, 1523
Business of the House, 1340. See also under this title, Estimates, Interim Supply
Adjournments, 1841
Ascension day, 2688, 2941
Eleven o'clock, 1841
Victoria Day, 3531, 3698, 3738
Agriculture and Justice estimates, procedure, 1074
Announcement, 1073
Closure, notice, of, 1979
Complaint of undue haste, 4450
Delay, 1618
Distinction between Ministerial statement and Amdt. in Supply, 1308
Estimates, lateness of hour, 1330
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays—Rule 17C, 1074, 1215, 1682, 2103-6, 2887, 4544

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Business of the House—Con.
Legislation pending, 2150, 2819, 3972
Monday—Government business, 2148
Non-debatable motions, 1320
Order of, 1618
Procedure, 1345
Prorogation, 4068, 4340, 4451
Public Bills and Orders, 2819
Second reading by consent, 2890
Questions
Inquiry as to, 2943
Subject matter of, 1071
Sittings
Long, 897
Morning, prorogation, 4340, 4451
Morning and Saturday, 4451
Saturday, 2818, 2777, 2941
Two o'clock, 3737
Wednesday, 1384
Evening, 1002, 1841
Supply, to-morrow, 1270
By-elections
Dates, 903
Medicine Hat, 2151
York-Sunbury, 2151. See also this title,
Canada Temperance Act Bill
Costs, 4386
Damages, 4387
Effect of proposed amendments on plebiscite, 4386
"Having in view the provisions of this Act", 4386
Pending litigation, 4386
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 563
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1290
Insurance of officers and seamen, 4359
Special Com. proposed, 1440
Statement referred to, 1708
Canadian National Railways
Amqui station, 1177, 1233
Correspondence
Directors, with, 1004
St. Foy round house, 1502
Lord Shaughnessy's letter, 2503, 2890
Management, Information, M. (Mr. King) 1180
Private ownership, and, 1498
St. Foy round house, 767, 1502
Special Committee, reference to
Amdt. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1589
Notice of, 1618
Reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1755, 1817, 1803
Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 1812
Special Committee appointed, 1845
Sully, Que., 1134

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Canadian National Railways—Con.
Transcontinental, Winnipeg-Quebec service, 2514
Canadian Representation in the United States, 2378-2431
Cattle embargo, 725, 730, 761, 4543
Commission, inquiry, 1072
Chicago Drainage Canal, diversion, 2226
Chief Justice, salary of, 1567
Chippewa Power Canal, 2444
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2776, 2778, 3901, 4485-7
Religious holidays, 4485-7
Returned Soldiers—preference—provisions recommended by Pensions Com., 4257, 4577
Civil Service
Bonus, 901, 1176; statement, 1233; 2029, 2113-15, 3531
Number of civil servants, names, classification, 4255
Religious holidays, 1384, 2776, 4485-7
Superannuation, 2820
Allowances, 2112
Churchill, Rt. Hon. Winston, reported statement, 2567
Conservation Act Repeal Bill, 3958-70
Cost of living, 4551
Crerar, Mr., and attitude on shipbuilding, 1978
Customs, Minister of, private business relations, 3081
Dairy Produce Grading Bill, 3760
Daylight saving in Ottawa, 2776, 2800
Debate
Motion to adjourn by member, closing discussion, 999
Debates, translation of French speeches, 701
Deceased members, tributes to, 3, 152
Destruction of documents, 1625, 2943, 2953, 4558. See also under this head Judge Snider's report
District Engineer's office at Edmonton, 4543
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 150, 152
Motion to vary order of House, 152, 242
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 2944
Dominion Parks, 1343
Editorial Committee, 4558
Empire Cabinet, proposed, 1385
Estimates. See also under this title Business of the House
Opportunity for studying, 1290
Scrutiny of by Special Com., 1503
Supplementary, inquiry, 4070
Extradition Treaty with United States, 2687

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Fertilizer Act Amdt. Bill, 2231-4
Foreign trade, 3224
French Trade agreement, 767, 1271, 1351, 1559
Fuel Supply problem, 1268
Special Com. appointed, 1439
Evidence in French, 4251
Gaspé peninsula railway facilities, 2509
German reparation—Canada's claim, 643
Governor General
Address to on retirement, 4433-5
Lord Byng, reported appointment, 4436
Appointment, 4541
Grain inquiry, 1674
Grand Trunk Arbitration, 1498
Correspondence, 1619
Further, tabled, 3738
Progress of, 3321
Revival of, 4436
Grank Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2247, 2346, 2397, 2447-80, 2560-4; Senate amdts. 2777, 2822
Grand Trunk Railway
Assistance, 1498
Default of interest, 1498
Directors, 3741
Interest, alleged default of, 1556
Shareholders—return, 3697, 3740
Highway construction in Ontario, 4300
Homesteads, 1347
Housing, expenditure
Loan, 4552
Point of order, 1135
Hudson Bay Railway, M. involving expenditure, 982
Immigration, Restriction of, 1127
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill, 2819, 4352
Regulations, 1272
Returns, 2568
Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, withdrawn, 4453
Interim supply, 1682. See also under this title Estimates; Supply
Necessity for, 2004
Point of order, 2009, 2010
Procedure under, 1676
Interim Supply Bill, 2101-2116
Interior Department
Editors, 1331
Employees, dismissals, 1345
Surveyor General and International Boundary Commissioners, 1343
International Joint Commission. See also under this title, Lake of the Woods
Lake of the Woods Control, and, 1072, 1176, 1233, 4172
Judge Snider's report, 1625, 2943, 2951, 2445, 3209, 3697, 3905, 4436-53. See also under this head Destruction of documents

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 2117
Labour Department
Alleged combines, 4551
Bolshevism, pamphlet, 4548
Fair wages, 4545
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 4549-52
Minister, 4545
Letter of in Gazette, 1642
Lake of the Woods Control, 1233. See also under this title International Joint Commission
Board, 789
Inquiry, 1176
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2033-36, 2348-55
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 3903, 4171-4226
Correspondence, 4170
League of Nations
Canada's contribution, 2356
Labour, 4547
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2321-9, 4437
Massey, Hon. Mr., 3008
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1157
Ministers of the Crown and directorships, 2228
Musk-ox and reindeer, 4543
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1638
National Industrial Conference, 4549
National Research Institute, 4555.
Natural resources, adjournment of debate, 894
Transfer to western provinces, 1337, 2541-50
Natural Resources Branch, 1343
Naval Service, Capt. Adams' alleged statement, 901
Newsprint, alleged combine, 2099
Northwest Territories Act Amdt. Bill, 3903, 4113
Oil
Leases, 1340, 2377
Surface rights, 583, 666
Oil and Gas permits and leases, 898
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3759, 3889
Ottawa Improvement Commission Act Amdt., 2941
Owens, late Thomas P., Editor of Debates, 258
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payment to, 4574
Parliament buildings
Book on, inquiry, 1175
Inscription on tower, 4543
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4262, 4361-5

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Pensions. See also under this title Soldiers; Returned Soldiers
Deductions for insurance, 629
Widowed mothers, 632
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4054
Prime Ministers' Conference, 564, 1073, 2504, 2634-42, 3320
Naval defence—contribution of dominions to, 4256
Reported statement of Mr. Churchill, 2567
Printing Bureau. See under this title, Destruction of Documents
Privilege
Veniot, Hon. Mr., alleged offer to, 3688. See also under this head York-Sunbury
Privileges and Elections Committee, 2373
Proportional Representation, Special Com. appointed, 1554-5
Quarantine, typhus, 4170
Quebec Steamship Company, 2941
Railway Commission, alleged statements of Chief Commissioner, 2030
Reparations—difficulties between Allied Powers and Germany, 599
Representation in Parliament, vacancies, 1300
Research. See under this title, National Research Institute
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4260, 4356-60
Returned Soldiers. See also under this title, Soldiers
Housing, 4362
Relief for, 2688
Review of question, 4361
Special Committee, 732
Unemployment, 4361-4
Returns, inquiries for, 3321
Loans to Greece and Roumania, 3009
Motions for in general terms, 1555
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 1499, 1555
Riding Mountain Park, 1343
Roumania, loan to, 1441
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 657, 2228
Senate representation in Saskatchewan, 2567
Shipbuilding, 1290, 1976
M. that further consideration be postponed, 1979
Soldiers' insurance, pensions and reestablishment, 4054
Speaker's Chair, 3692

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur—Con.
Statistics Act Amdt. Bill, 3758
Supply. See under this head Business of the House; Estimates; Interim Supply
Tariff Commission report, inquiry, 1127
Tariff Revision, 2346. See also under this head Budget
Unemployment relief, 4549
Vacancies, 478, 1304. See also under this head By-elections
Victoria Day adjournment, 3531, 3698, 3738
Water powers, director of, 1345
West Indies Trade—Bermuda, 1271
Western provinces, natural resources, 1338-7
White, Sir Thomas, 477
York-Sunbury election, 2151
Government platform, 3481
Hon. Mr. Veniot, alleged offer to, 3638, 3716, 3688
Correspondence, 3716
Reference to by Mr. Stevens, 3627-8

Meighen, Mr. William, Warden of Dorchester penitentiary, 1092

Members. See House of Commons

Mencius, political economy of, 3228

Mental Defectives, Immigration of. See Immigration

Mental Hygiene, 3143

Merchandise, Branding of. See Customs

Merchant Marine. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Merchant Shipping. See Railway Act Amendment

Merchant Ships. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Meredith-Duff Commission, 1788

Metal Tokens. See Criminal Code Amdts.

Metropolitan. See North American

Mewburn, Hon. S. C. (East Hamilton)
Battlefields Memorials Commission, competitive designs, 2566
Canadian National Railways and Shipping, Special Com., first report, 2095
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill (Warrant of Commitment) 2686
Fortifications of Quebec, 969
Militia
Cadet services, 2297
Command pay, 2291
Record office, 2281
Patent Act Amdt. Bill, 4457
Pensions
Widowed mothers, 635
Withdrawal from Government, 451

Mexico, compensation, 1507

Michaud, Mr. Pius (Restigouche and Madawaska)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 436; Assembly of the League of Nations; Canada's war sacrifice; nations that profited should help the sufferers; immigration and repatriation; the tariff; early appeal to electors, 437
Canadian National Railways—cedar posts, qu. 1130
Cattle embargo, 566, 4543
Crosspoint-Campbellton bridge, 3987
De Martigny divorce, 3762
Dorchester penitentiary—farm, 1097
Dredging, Restigouche river, 3984
Edmundston post office, qu. 3422
Exchange, value of pound and dollar, qu. 3770
Fertilizer Act Amdt. Bill, 2233
Fisheries—Dominion and provincial jurisdiction, 2105
Grain elevators, 1443
Grand Trunk, Portland terminus, 1384
Madawaska, public building required, 2809
Parliament buildings, 3994
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4368
Potato seed inspectors, 1033
St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 1501
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2031
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 4502
Shipbuilding, 1944
Tariff Commission, report, 1127
Transcontinental Railway
Claims against, 1656
Wilson, Judge, qu. 1622

Middlebro, Mr. W. S. (North Grey)
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 1296
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2934
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage, 831
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2467-71
Pairs—Correction of list, 563
Privileges and Elections Committee, 2373

Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 2442; 2r., 2891; 3r., 2892
Enforcement, 4496

Militarism, 2294-2305, 2789-93. See also Military Expenditures

Military Authority. See Quebec riots

Military Districts, 2788-92
No. 12, 2279

Military Expenditures, 266, 509, 2294, 2305, 2792, 3269
Comparison by years and countries, 3270
Defence figures of various countries, 3275

Military Preparation, 2294, 2305

Military Service Act, 320, 356, 2807, 3200, 3678. See also Quebec Riots
Employment of Mr. Stewart, qu. 2028
Exemption of farmers, 3516, 3592

Military Stores Shed, Cartier Square, qu. 3208

Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 2294, 3405
M. (Mr. McCoig) to reduce amount, 2296
Armouries for public meetings, 901
Associations, grants to, 2439
Cadet services, 2296
Command pay, 2290
M. (Mr. Power) to reduce amount, 2292
Department
Anderson, Mr. A. H., qu. 735
Ashley, Sergt. T., qu. 3090
Black, Mr. A. H., qu. 755
Brackenbury, Mr. G. B., qu. 735
Central registry, 2281
Chief Engineer and Controller of Military lands, 2241
Douglas, Mr. H. S., dismissal of, qu. 735, 2246, 2277
Employees
Female, 2286
Increase in number, 2014
Quebec, in, dismissal, 2237
Retirement of, 4267-70
Engineer services, 2439
Permanent force, strength, 2278, 2797, 2800
Photographers, 2245
Record office, 2241, 2278-80
Salaries, 2234, 2275
Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay Branch, 2281
Supplies, 2239, 3244-5
Sale of to Roumania and Greece, 2245, 3564
Transfer to other departments, 1098
Survey Division, 2243, 2284
Topographic Surveys, 2806
Estimates
M. (Mr. Pedlow) to reduce amount, 2287-8
Highland regiments, 2307
Lee-Enfield rifle, 2783
Military and civilian caretakers, qu. 4340
Military district No. 12, 2279, 2792-97
Ordnance Arms and Lands, 2441, 2781
Permanent Force, 2278, 2797, 3279, 3405
Pensions, 2278, 2236
Strength, 2235
Purchasing Commission and Supplies, 2239
Ross rifle, 2783

Militia and Defence—Con.
Royal Military College, 2802
Staff
Pay, 2787
Reduction, 2234-46, 2282
Warlike stores, 2807

Milk, Prices of, 3197

Milk River, water rights, qu. 2099

Milk-Testing, 1037

Mill Feed, 1126. See also Feeds, Live Stock

Milling Industry, 3543, 3544

Mines and Minerals, 2141, 2162, 3250. See also Coal; Geological Survey; Natural Resources; Lignite Research
Alberta penitentiary mining rights, 1092
Conservation Commission, 3965
Development of, 841
Federal mining legislation, 871
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 4498
Machinery, duties on, 373
Returned soldiers, prospecting, 871
Zinc deposits of Gaspé, 876

Minister of Customs and Excise, 3785

Ministers and Directorships, 258, 585, 650 2228. See also Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill

Ministers
Cabinet, and Post Office Department, qu. 1349. See also Blondin, Hon. P. E.; Minister of Labour; Postmaster General
Personal business, 3079, 3173-6, 3612
Proposed right to sit in either Chamber
M. (Mr. Lemieux) 1152; withdrawn, 1173
Upper Chamber in, 1154

Minority Representatives. See Proportional Representation

Missals. See Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill

Missisquoi Bay, net fishing. qu. 570

Missisquoi County
Census commissioners, qu. 1132. See also Census
Income tax forms in, 1176

Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 1609-10. See also Canadian National Railways
Business interests of, 3610

Model Villages. See Housing

Molloy, Mr. J. P. (Provencher)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 495; congratulations to Prime Minister; demand for an election; the sub-amendment; redistribution and representation, 496; the amendment; soldiers, farmers, and business men; women against the Government; changed conditions, 497; danger in Government delaying; the Minister of Militia; Liberal and Agrarian platforms; the recall, 498; the acid test; Government must satisfy the manufacturers; tyranny and terrorism in 1917; people calling for an election, 499
Blood Indian reserve, qu. 1817, 1818
Live stock and grazing leases, qu. 1819, 2098, 2374, 2618
Fort Garry hotel, Winnipeg, qu. 1348
Grain Inquiry, Counsel, Secretary, cost, qu. 2625
Health of Animals
Glandered horses, 1054
Hog cholera, 1053
Inspectors, 1054
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4199
Manitoba harbours and rivers, 3975
Western farmers, 1035

Molasses
For destructive insects, 1027
For hog feed, 3787

Monastery station, 4324

Moncton
Canadian National shops, 1851
Census enumerators, 3972
Engine terminal site, 1017
Examining warehouse, 2815

Mondou, Mr. A., and Yamaska by-election, 3251

Monetary Standards, qu. 1133. See also Finance

Monsarrat, Mr. C. N., and Quebec bridge, 1653, 1670-71

"Montcalm," icebreaker, 1985

Montenegro Hospital Mission. See Burnham, Dr.

Montizambert, Dr., 3133

Mont Joli, 1800

Montmorency County, Tourist traffic, 4332

Montreal
Bank of, and Government ownership, 1895
Customs revenue, 3086
Grain handling at, 3371. See also Grain and Grain Trade

Montreal—Con.
Inquiry into public services, qu. 604
Post Office, Mutual Benefit Society, qu. 567
Registration of Government ships at, 1720
Revenue offices, qu. 1820
Transcontinental railway, qu. 574. See also Canadian National Railways

Montreal and South Shore Bridge, M. (Mr. Archambault) 2211

Montreal Dry Docks and Ship Repairing, Limited, qu. 2191

Montreal Gazette
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, comment on, 1707
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1627. See also Labour
Shipbuilding, criticism, 1893, 1900, 1917

Montreal Harbour Commission
Cold storage plants, 1041

Montreal Harbour Commission Bill
Res. 2151; 1r., 2160; 2r., com., 2268; 3r., 2269

Montreal Locomotive Company, 1203

Montreal Progressive Club and Mr. L. J. Gauthier, M.P., qu. 1131

Montreal-Quebec Pilots, superannuation, qu. 1501. See also Pilotage

Moore, Mr. Tom, and Labour, 1627, 1632, 1636

Morley, Alberta, air station, 3780

Morphine Imports, 3130. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. Bill

Morphy, Mr. H. B. (North Perth)
Air Board, 3780
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2931-3
Budget, 3454. Congratulations to Minister; free trade and protection; United Kingdom and Customs duties, 3455; United States protective tariff; beet sugar industry, 3456; Great Britain and world trade, 3457; protection of industries, 3459; trade with the United States, 3460; trade agents; Canadian Merchant Marine, attack on, 3462
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2261-2
Canadian Nationals Definition Bill, 768
Canadian National Railways, Toronto train connections, 4569
Canadian representation in the United States, 2404-30
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2827-79

Morphy, Mr. H .B.—Con.
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4119
Copyright Amendment and Consolidation Bill, 3841
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3923-31
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Invoice certificate, fee, 4393
Molasses wash for hog feed, 3787
Trade agents, 3788-95
United States consular service, 3796
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods, marking of, 3952
Customs officer at Listowel, 3084
Debates, Official, distribution of, 2223
Entomology Bureau, 1025
Fuel Supply Problem, 1265
Geological survey, 2144-7
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2457
Great War Veterans, qu. 455
Highways
Construction in Ontario, 4304
London-Stratford-Sarnia, 4307
Hog cholera—Alderson claim, 1063
Illustration farms and stations in Ontario, 952
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 615
Linen yarn, bounty on, 1389
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2331
Militia—photographers, 2245
Military districts, 2788-9
Polish battalion for service in French Army, 4056
Rulings and statements as Chairman
Estimates, vote to be dealt with as a whole, 2750
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 654
Stratford customs office, 3085
Trade agents and commissioners, 1475-77, 3460, 3788-95
Tuberculosis and pleuro-pneumonia in cattle, 1051
Wednesday evening adjournment, 1835
Wheat market, 1452

Morrison, Mr. J. J., rural depopulation, 403

Mortgages. See Housing

Motor Cars, Theft of. See Criminal Code Amendment Bill

Mounted Police. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Moving Pictures. See Trade and Commerce

Mowat, Mr. H. M. (Parkdale)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 171; Liberal-Unionists; conditions of 1864 and 1917; George Brown; no difference in principle between parties, 172; municipal and common rights v. rights of corporations; temperance legislation; woman suffrage; Liberal measures sponsored by Government; nationalization of railways; the game of politics, 173; amendment; election; leader of the Opposition wants power; ambitions that came to naught, 174; no reason for want of confidence vote; the tariff; policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier; tariff resolution of Liberal Convention of 1919, 175; "substantial reductions", 176; National Liberal and Conservative party; Canada's status as a nation, 177
Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, 2555
Armistice Day Bill, 2618
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2926
Canada Temperance Act
Costs, 4378
Rights of litigants, 4378
Commercial agents in the United States, 1473
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3834-48
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3931-36
Probation of Offenders, 2097, 3931
Dogs, docking of, 3936
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. (Prohibition plebiscite) 311
Fortifications at Kingston, 969
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2465
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 687
Housing, 1148
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 3010
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2350-2
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4225
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1167
North American Trust Company, 1127-8, 1130
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3865
Parliament buildings, 4000
Private Bills, extension of time, 1625
Probation of offenders, 2097, 3931
Railway Commission—alleged statement of Chief Commissioner, 2029
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 595

Mulgrave
Ice tenders, qu. 963

Mulgrave-Canso Steamship services, 1496

Municipal Cold Storage Plants, 1040

Murdock, Mr. James, 3603-4. See also Board of Commerce

"Muriel W.", steamer, 1990

Murphy, Hon. Charles (Russell)
Ambassador at Washington, qu. 671
Budget, date of, qu. 903
Budget, 3635; comment on speech of Mr. Stevens, 3636; Liberal Convention and Liberal platform, 3637; Mr. Crerar and York-Sunbury election, 3637; Budget born of necessities of Government, 3639; burden of taxation, 3640; Tariff Commission, 3640; speeches of Hon. Mr. Guthrie and Hon. Mr. Ballantyne, 3641; Hon. Mr. Calder and the Tariff, 3644; Canadian Manufacturers Association—Mr. G. M. Murray, 3645; newspapers—manufacturers, editorial control of, 3646
Building Trades Conference, 1498
Business of the House
Saturday sittings, 2941
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 771, 2032
Canadian National Railways
Employees remuneration, qu. 1673, 1737
Lord Shaughnessy's letter, 2890
Management, Information — M. (Mr. King) 1198
Special Committee
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1573
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1806
Chief Electoral Officer's reports, qu. 577
Chippewa power canal, 2444
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2779, 2833-70, 2940
Returned soldiers, 4260
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill, foreign consular service, 3808-3995
Debates, translation of French speeches, 702
De Martigny divorce, 3765
Empire Cabinet proposed, 1385
Entomology—increase in item, 1024
Expeditionary force—Canteen funds, qu. 1133
Fox-breeding, 1430
French Trade Agreement, printing, 1380
Governor General, suggested appointment of Lord Burnham, qu. 599
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 1498, 2448-77
Grand Trunk loan, 4135-7
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 751
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1555. See also under this title, Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill

Murphy, Hon. Charles—Con.
Hickman, alleged deportation, qu. 574
Highways
Construction in Ontario, 4295
Hull-Wakefield, 3034
Imaginary letters, 3261
Immigration, 2570-5
Mental defectives, 3583
Officials, 3060
Woman supervisor, position, 3058, 3062
Imperial Conference, 1073
Income and Business Profits Taxes, qu 837
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 609
Interim Supply, granting of, 2007
Judge Snider's report, 4436
Lake of the Woods Control Board Bill, 2034-36
Lord Byng, appointment, 4541
Luxury tax, qu. 600
Macallum, Professor, 1431
Massey, Hon. Mr., 3008
National Gallery, 2684
National Research Institute, 2962-2708
Naval Service, Capt. Adams, alleged statement, 901
Parliament buildings, 4071-6
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4373
Prime Ministers' Conference, reported statement of Mr. Churchill, 2567
Printing Bureau
Employees in, qu. 1131
Extension to building, qu. 1383
Quebec riots, 1510
Questions, inquiry for, 1502
Research Council, industrial chemistry, 1434
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2481-2
Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Thorold, qu. 574
Royal Military College, 2805
Trade with Russia, 1003
Veniot, Mon. Mr., 3637, 3688
Welland canal, obstruction, 1990

Murray, Mr. G. M.
Editorial control of newspapers, 330, 442, 2622, 3645-7

Murray Bay public works, qu. 604

Murray Bay-Tadoussac Steamship Service, M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 1528, 1822, 1825, 1930

Musk Ox and Reindeer. See Reindeer

Musselman, Mr. J. B., 3382

Myers, Mr. E. T. W. (Kindersley)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 388; Amendment to amendment (Mr. Campbell); congratulations Prime Minister; tariff; policies of the parties; alliance between Liberals and National Progressives; reform of Senate; freight rates, 389; Canadian National Railways; coal; the grain trade; Wheat Board, 390; Royal Commission to inquire into marketing; shipment through Canadian ports; no urgent demand for election; redistribution, 392
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 340
Income tax collections in Saskatchewan, qu. 2028

Nadeau, Dr., 3133

Nagle and Wigmore, 3077, 3172. See also Customs, Minister of

Nantel, Hon. Mr., 3019

Napier, Mr. J. J., qu. 1624

Nappan, Gurnsey cattle at, qu. 2686

"Narbethong," steamer, 2175

Narcotic Drugs. See Opium and Narcotic Drugs

National Advisory Council, 4363. See also Research

National Assets. See Fuel Supply Problem; Natural Resources

National Battlefields Commission
Fort Cumberland and Fort Moncton, 4540
Fortifications of Quebec, 967

National Catholic Labour Unions. See Labour

National Dairy Council, 1126

National Expenditures, Committee on, 1835. See also Estimates

National Gallery, 2684

National Industrial Conference, 4549. See also Labour

National Liberal Convention. See Liberal Convention

National Parks, 4495. See also Dominion Lands and Parks

National Policy, 3220, 3569. See also Address; Budget

National Progressive Party. See Progressive

National Railways. See Canadian National Railways

National Railways and Shipping, Special Com., reference to
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1755; names substituted, 2776. See also Canadian National Railways

National Research Institute, 886, 2566, 2688, 2892, 4555. See also Research Council Act Amdt.
Annual report, 2897
Bequests and donations, 2896
Bursarships and studentships, 2894
Co-ordination, 2892
Council, 2892
Discoveries and inventions, 2895
Establishment of, 886
Materials, investigation and standarization, 2893
Trade agents, 2893

National Transcontinental Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Natural Gas, 879. See also Gas; Oil and Gas

Natural Resources. See also Coal; Fuel Supply problem; Mines and Minerals; Research
Aerial explorations and surveys, 3776
Canadian hinterland, 852
Conservation Commission, 3961
Control of, 857
Development of, Res. (Mr. Manion) 841; neg, 894
Drainage of flooded areas, 871
Intelligence Bureau, 1343
Investigation of, 845
Mackenzie Basin, 879
Maple industry, 887
National Research Institute, 886. See also that title
Ownership of, 879
Timber and minerals, 893
Western provinces, of, 3555
Transfer to, 1336-40
Demand for, 484
M. (Mr. Campbell) 2519-84

Naturalization, 781. See also Canadian Nationals; Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill

Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. Bill (Aliens who served in Allied Armies)
1r., 2441

Nauru Island, phosphate deposits, 4541, 4255

Naval Defence, 183, 227, 266. See also Naval Service; Prime Ministers' Conference
Contribution of Dominions, inquiry, 4256

Naval Service. See also Canadian Navy
Adams, Capt. Henry C., inquiry, 901, qu. 1237
Air stations, 3780
Appropriation, 4017-19
Cost of maintenance, 2107
Estimates, 4010
Esquimalt, Naval College, 4016
Fisheries protection, 4036
Halifax and Esquimalt, dockyards, 4017-36
Halifax naval college, 4010
Naval cadets in Imperial navy, 4017
Naval holiday, 4020
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," disposal of, qu. 671, 4010-36, 4041
Pacific coast, vessels on, 4016
Preference in Civil Service appointments, 4482
Royal Canadian navy, estimates, 4010
Vessels presented by British Admiralty, 4016-23

Navigable Waters, obstructions, 1989

Navigation. See also Marine
Aids to, 1996
Schools of, 1989

Navy. See Naval Service

Navy League of Canada, grant, 4535

Nelson, Mr. Christian, 2880

"Neophyte", steamer, 1966

Nesbitt, Mr. E. W. (North Oxford)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 60. Government's term of office; no reason to seek re-election; group government versus the two-party system; War Times Election Act; Quebec most stable province; unemployment insurance; the labour situation, 61; extravagant living followed by curtailment; work the only salvation, 62; the "interests" all must work together; the Government not responsible for unemployment; the tariff—reasonable protection, 63; members not elected to promote partisan, selfish interests, 64
Agricultural shows, 1245
Alcohol for hospitals, 3706
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2933-6
Budget, 3252. Sugar, price of; congratulations to Minister of Finance, 3253; income and business profits tax; tariff

Nesbitt, Mr. E. W.—Con.
Budget—Con.
revision, 3254; reciprocity; free trade England, 3255; revenue and expenditure; cost of living, 3256; immigration; Great Britain and free trade, 3258
Canada Temperance Act
Cases pending, 4377
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2253
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee, reference to
M. (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1607
M. (Mr. Meighen) 1784
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2863, 4267-73, 4493
Consular agents, 1479
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Dumping, 4414
Invoice certificate, fee, 4393
Trade agents in United States, 4393
Trade commissioners, 4393
Valuation for duty, 4415
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods, marking of, 3712, 3724, 3942-55
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 306
Experimental farms and stations in Ontario, 950
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2460-75
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 741
Health of Animals, 4508
Hog cholera, compensation, 1060
Housing, 1142
Hudson Bay Railway, 992
Immigration, 2602
Imported goods, marking of, 3712, 3724, 3942-55
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 612
National Research Institute, 2693
North American Trust Company, 1130
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4367-73
Pensions, widowed mothers, 636
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4057
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4262, 4357
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 651
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4057
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Containers, 3755
Sales tax, 3735
Unemployment and immigration, 1357

New Brunswick
Minister of Public Works and York-Sunbury election, 3480. See also Veniot; York-Sunbury

Newcombe, Mr. E. F., and Grand Trunk Arbitration, qu. 1002

Newfoundland
Sick mariners, 3139
Steamship service, 1485, 1686, 1712

Newport News, Canadian vessels at, 1689, 1722

New York
Immigration officers at, 3131
Loans on Canadian bonds, 3288
Shipping pool, 1713

New Zealand
Steamship service, 1493
Trade with, 1223

Newspaper Comments on Shipbuilding. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Montreal; Press; Shipbuilding

Newspapers. See Press

Newsprint, alleged combine, qu. 2099

Nickel, Coinage, 2160
Five cent coin, 2160, 2269

Nicholson, Mr. Donald (Queen's, P.E.I.)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 556; congratulations to Prime Minister; speech of Mr. Cannon; the Government's mandate; soldiers' vote in 1917, 556; the charge of coercion; majorities of Mr. Wigmore and Mr. McCurdy; Prime Minister's Truro speech; Canadian Mercantile Marine, 557; Magdalen Islands, Prince Edward Island; revenue, expenditure and taxation; highway expenditure in Nova Scotia; Mr. Maclean, Halifax, 558; revenue requirements; Mr. Gauthier; Quebec and other provinces, 559; stand by the national policy; toleration, 560
Highways, Prince Edward Island, qu. 2345

Nicholson, Mr. George B. (East Algoma)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 283; congratulations to Prime Minister; a unique debate; no constructive criticism by Opposition; "bloodless neutrality"; programme of legislation; unemployment insurance and old age pensions, 284; League of Nations; the tariff; the Government's mandate, 285; unrest amongst business men and soldiers, 286; suggestion that leader of Opposition should form Government a "flagrant insult" to returned men; election, 287; policy of Opposition; Farmers' party, 288; United Grain Growers; stock feed; attitude towards farmers and milling industry; Mr. Norman Lambert, 289; flour, agricultural implements, profits—Mr. Rice-Jones; payments to newspaper for educational propaganda; campaign of "blatant hypocrisy", 290; increased representation for Quebec; the Prime Minister and Quebec—harmony, not discord, 291
Budget, 3299. Flotation of Canadian National Railway bonds in New York; foreign loans, 3300; Canadian National Railways; railway merging, 3308
Canadian National Railways
Special Com., reference to M. (Mr. Meighen) 1794
Canal tolls, 2975
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Foreign-born wives of British subjects, 3103, 3106
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2565
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 690
Interim supply, reduction of items, 2023
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2797
Railways and ships, 1730
Research, 1432
Supply—point of order, 2757
Trent canal, construction, 3975

"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale of, qu. 671, 4010-36, 4041. See also Naval Service

Nolan Bill, 3008

Non-Confidence Motions, 1184. See also House of Commons, Divisions

Non-Political Operation of Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Norman, Dam. See Lake of the Woods

Norris, Hon. Mr., 4198

Norrish, Mr., 1226

North American Trust Company, 1094, 1127. See Private Bills Discussed

Northcliffe, Lord. See Gulf Pulp and Paper Company

North Sydney
Port of, 1282
Public Works—removal of officials, 2817
Terminus, 1487

North West Grain Dealers Association, 277, 297, 379

Northwest Territories Act Amdt. Bill (Council)
1r., 3903; 2r., com., 3r., 4113

Northwest Territories Explorations, 4494

Nova Scotia
Canadian National Railways
Freight to certain points, qu. 1620
Coal supplies, 1261, 3295. See also Fuel Supply
Fruit inspectors in, 1041, 1045
Highways, 4304-7
Mines. See Fuel Supply; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence

Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, 1611, 3407

Norwegian Boats and coastal trade, 1494

Nursery Plants, fumigation of, 1028, 1031

Oatmeal, tax on, 3735

Oats, 3395
Banner, 1033
Quaker, 2954-76, 3455. See also Grain; Trent Canal

Obregon, General, 1507.

Ocean. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding; Steamship services
Freight rates, 1936-61
Decline, 1273
Pacific steamship service, 1493
Shipments by United States ports, 1975
Shipping—Government control of, qu. 3530
Trade routes, 1888

Ocean and River Service, 1736, 1979

Ocean Limited, 1800

O'Connor, Mr. W. F., and cost of living, 3548, 3606

Ogilvie, Messrs. D. W., and Company, 1846

Oil. See also Oil and Gas; Natural Resources; Petroleum
Bounties, 1385, 1413. See also Trade and Commerce
Development, 844, 2162-4
Expenditure for discovery, qu. 695
Government regulation, 3539

Oil—Con.
Leases, qu. 564, 3539
Issuing of, 598, 2377
Delay, 2029, 2377
Payments under, qu. 673
Mackenzie district in, 879, 2162, 3206
Purchase from Great Britain, 1253
Regulations, 1340
Rentals, qu. 672
Stability of title, 854
Surface rights, res. (Mr. Griesbach) 578; withdrawn, 666
Wells, penalty for injuring, 3922

Oil and Gas
Leases and permits, qu. 734
Res. (Mr. Mackie, Edmonton) 894; withdrawn, 901
Rights, 2555

Oil Burning Steamers. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bill

Old Age
Pensions, 2, 9, 231, 237, 263, 284, 395
Provision for. See Housing

Oleomargarine, 3384. See also Dairying
Importation of, 3852, 4439
Inquiry, 3531
Inspectors under, 1068
Materials for, importation, 3747

Oleomargarine, 3384. See also Dairying
Res. 563, 3759; 1r., 3760; m. for 2., 3850; Amdt. (Mr. Denis) 3879; neg. 3886; com., 3886; 3r., 3905
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Label with statement of ingredients
Amdt. (Mr. Robb) neg. 3896
Manufacture, importation and sale
Amdt. (Mr. Manion), limitation of one year, 3886
Agreed to, 3896
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Sutherland), oleomargarine not to contain milk or cream, 3887, neg. 3896

Ontario
Drury and Drury Govt. See that title
Duff, the late Hon. James, Minister of Agriculture, 1033
Government, expenditures, 3495. See also Drury
Highways, work on, qu. 1237. See also Highways
Prohibition plebiscite, 303
Referendum Committee, 304
Renfrew returning officer, 820
Voters' lists, 150, 242, 259, 303
Timber limits, 3391

One-sixth Vote. See Interim Supply

Open Market. See Canada Grain Act

Operation of Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Opium, imports of, 3130. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act. See also Health Department
Administration of, 3130
Convictions under, 3134

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 1069, 2263; 1r., 2268; 2r., ref. to Special Com., 2346; com., 2897; 3009; 3r., 3009
Report of Special Committee, 2708
Senate amdts. concurred in, 4062
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Failure to pay fine, 2908
Household remedies, 2902
Indictable offence, 2897
Penalty, 2897-2907
Possession, 2903-6
Prescriptions not to be filled more than once, 2897
Sale or gift to minors, 2897
Whipping, 2897

Orders in Council. See also Purchasing Commission
Appointment of representatives to Assembly of League of Nations, 188
Immigration, 2585
Peace Conference, 397

Oriental Immigration. See Chinese

Ottawa
Cartier square, stores shed, qu. 3208
Daly building, rental, 4094
Daylight saving, 2687, 2776
Hunter building, 4094
Lighting roads and bridges, 4090
Noon gun, 4091
Newspapers and shipbuilding, 1925
Parliament buildings, 3992. See also that title
Public buildings, 4101
Rental of buildings in, 3989, 4092-6
The "Reno" of Canada, 4474

Ottawa Improvement Commission Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 2941; 2r., com., 3r., 3759

Overages. See Grain

Owen Sound, wharf, 3974

Owens, the late Thomas P., Editor of Debates, tribute to, 258, 430

Oyster Culture, 2177

Pacaud, Mr. L. T. (Megantic)
Belgium, credit to, qu. 577, qu. 1001
Purchases in Canada, qu. 736
Budget, 3343. Importance of debate; inefficiency of Administration, 3344; extravagance and economy, 3345; control by Parliament of necessary expenditures, 3346; credits to foreign countries; amendment of Mr. Fielding, 3347
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
"Canadian Ranger" and "Seigneur", qu. 1382

Pacific Ocean
Steamship service, 1493
Trade, 3649

Pacific Salvage Company, Limited, 1990

Packing Houses. See Health of Animals; Oleomargarine
Cold storage plants, and, amount collected, 607

Pagè, Dr., 3133

Paintings, in Senate Chamber, qu. 566

Pairs. See House of Commons, Divisions

Palmerston, Lord, and Don Pacifico, 1522

Panama Canal, Canadian shipments by, 3047

Panet, Mr. L. C., appointment as Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 3

Paper, Newsprint. See Newsprint

Papineau, Mr. L. J. (Beauharnois)
Canadian National Railway vessels, qu. 1349
Canadian Postal Guide, qu. 1349
Parliament buildings, furniture, qu. 2192
Staples, Mr. W. D., qu. 3260
War, adjustment of accounts, Canada-Great Britain, qu. 2191

Parasites. See Destructive Insects

Pardee, Mr. F. F. (West Lambton)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 479; congratulations to Prime Minister; Minister of Militia, chameleon-like change of policy; the tariff red-herring; favoured free agricultural implements in 1914, 479; the Farmers' party, 480; reprisals against the United States; dissolution and appeal; by-elections; the "remnant" of Liberalism, 481; rural and urban representation; resignations of ministers; trust the people, 482

Pardee, Mr. F. F.—Con.
Budget, 3497. Tariff revision; luxuries tax; Great Britain, 3498; foreign trade; shipbuilding; railways and public ownership, 3499; position of Liberal and Agrarian parties, 3500
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2840
Civil Service bonus, 2111
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3908-28
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill, brokers, 4432
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 743
Harbours and rivers, amdt. 3979
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3826
French language, 3824
Interior Department, draughtsmen, 1334
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4177-4226
Amdt. to 3r., 4226
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale of, 4018-32
Representation in Parliament, 1326

Parent, Mr. George (Quebec West)
Agricultural shows, 1242
Amherst drill hall, 2739
Annapolis public building, 2764
Boots and shoes, Canadian, 1225
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 779
Canadian National Railways
Agents, 1605
Cancellation of trains, 1004
St. Augustin station, qu. 695, 3018
St. Foy round house, Res. 840, 967, qu. 1501
Correspondence, 1502, 1659
Shawinigan service, qu. 573
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3829
Compensation for slaughtered cattle, 1050
De Martigny divorce, 3762-9, 4006
Director of Commercial Exhibits, 1226
Dominion Shipbuilding and Repair Company, qu. 3423
"Druid," steamer, 1984
Experimental farms, hours and pay, 932
Fruit inspection, 1047
Fuel Supply, Special Com., evidence in French, 4251
Highways, amount of vote, 3024
Icebreakers and steamers, repairs, 1979
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3822-5
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 608
Intercolonial Railway
Work at Charny and St. Foy, qu. 1501
Interior Department, dismissal of employees, 1345
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1438
Liquor, tax on, 3707
Militia
Dismissal of employees in Quebec, 2237
Surveys division, 2244

Parent, Mr. George—Con.
Montreal Harbour Commission, 2269
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1646
National Research Institute, 2896
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4011-13
Pilotage, 1999
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2120-24
Prince Rupert Dry Dock Engineering Company, qu. 3423
Printing, Government, 1439
Quebec riots, 1918, Res. 974, 1503
Railway Commission—jurisdiction, 3017
Railways, law costs, 3015
St. Augustin Station, qu. 695, 3018
St. Lawrence dredging, 1992
Supply—procedure, 3014
Surveyor General and Boundary Commissioners, 1342
Trent canal, 2606-16
Waterpowers, director of, 1346
Welland Canal, construction, 2990-3001
Wrecks, investigation, 1988

Paris Agency, 2437

Paris Green, 1030

Park St. Charles Company, Limited, proposed payment to, 4570

Parks. See also Dominion Lands and Parks
Antelope for, qu. 1134

Parliament
Availability of Information. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canadian National Railways
Earlier sessions of, 1843
Information for. See Ministers
Prorogation. See that title
Representation in, 1293. See also House of Commons, Vacancies

Parliament Buildings, 3992, 4040, 4070-8
Acoustics, 3998-9, 4000
Architects' commission, 3995-4000
Brown, Hon. George—letter to Sir John Macdonald on former buildings, 4002
Building stone, 3994
Commons Chamber, 3996
Concrete, 3997
Cost, 3993-7, 4000
Draughts, 3998
Expenditure, qu. 4341
Furniture, qu. 2192
Inscription on central column, qu. 568
Inscription on tower, 3995-8, 4543
Library, 4000
Probable date of completion, 3992
Purchase of materials, 3994
Tower, 3993-9

Parliamentary and Departmental Printing, 1438. See also Printing Bureau

Parliamentary Control of Railways. See Canadian National Railways Special Committee

Parliamentary Elections. See Proportional Representation

Parliamentary Government. See Representation in Parliament

Parliamentary Guide, purchase of copies, 4533

Parliamentary Procedure. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Parliamentary Restaurant, 4536
Additional vote for, 4535
Joint Committee, 303
Manager, 2027

Participation Certificates, 340. See also Address; Canadian Wheat Board

Partridge Island Quarantine Station, 2808-15

Party Politics. See Canadian National Railways, Management

Passport Office, 2436

Pas, The, wharf, 3976

Patent Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3007; 2r., 4453; com., 4456; 3r., 4460; Senate amdts. 4544
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Alien enemies, 4456
Fee, 4456
No patent void by failure to make or import between August 1, 1914, and Jan 10, 1922, 4457
Return of fees, 4457
Rights of those who have commenced to make, use, or sell, 4459
Time extended, 4457
United States legislation, 4454-60
Validity of patents protected during war, 4459

Patent Act Consolidation Bill, 4456

Patent Medicines, tax on, 3120, 3727-28

Patents, Commissioner of, 623. See also Exchequer Court Act Amdt. Bill

Patents of Invention Acts Consolidation Bill
1r., 303; M. for 2r., 2890; withdrawn, 2891

Patronage. See Canadian National Railways; Civil Service

Peace Conference, 164, 2629. See also Address; League of Nations; Permanent Court of International Justice; Prime Ministers' Conference
French Canadians, unrepresented, 552
Orders in Council, 397

Peat Industry, 2689. See also Supply problem

Peck, Mr. C. W. (Skeena)
Australian steamship services, 1495
Burnham, Dr., case of, 1526
Dease and Stikine rivers, qu. 1133
High Commissioner's office, 2438
Military districts, 2789
Militia, command pay, 2292
Rulings and Statements as Chairman
Decision of Chair must not be questioned, 1904
Members, reflections on, 1903
Shipbuilding, 1923
Interruption in debate, 1898
Special Committee on Returned Soldiers, 788

Pecuniary Claims Convention, qu. 736, qu. 1817, qu. 2027

Pedlow, Mr. Isaac E. (South Renfrew)
Air Board, 3778-82
Alberta penitentiary, 1115
Armistice Day Bill, 3773-6
Canadian National Railways
Purchasing agent, 1659
Cattle embargo, Amdt., 725, 758
"Champlain", steamer, 1995
Chief, Foreign Tariffs Division, 1437
Civil Service Classification
Filing clerks, 1660
Griffenhagen, 2242
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2488-2500
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage; Liberal platform and administration, 815; defeated candidate should not control patronage; condition of civil service; discontent, dissatisfaction and unrest; classification and reorganization; Printing Bureau, 816; Civil Service Commission, competitive examination; census commissioners and enumerators, 817; prohibition plebiscite, returning officer at Renfrew, 820
Coats, Mr. R. H., salary of, 1232
Cocoa preparations, 3703
Confidential messengers, 1334
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Currency inflation and commodity prices, 4431
Fines, 4392

Pedlow, Mr. Issac E.—Con.
Customs and Excise—Con.
German bounty on sugar, 4432
German mark, 4431
Imports and exchange, 3810-12
Invoice certificate, 3799, 3803-04
Fee—who pays? 3804, 4391-4409
Obstacles to importation, 4410-16
Restrictions on trade—letter from Gillies Bros., Ltd., 4418
Trade agents, 4410
Valuation of currency, 3809-12-19, 4430
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods, marking of, 3938-55, Amdt. 3955
Customs estimates, 3087
Demography, chief of division, 1232
Fisheries, 2177-90
Flax industry, 1398, 1401
Free trade—Mr. Cockshutt, 3747
Halladay, Mr,, and Canada Cycle and Motor Co., 1227
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3976-9
Horse-breeding, 1121
Imported goods, marking, 3712, 3720-23, 3938-55
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters, 612
Interior Department, employees, 1343
Lignite, 4499
Militia
Estimates, 2239
M. to reduce, 2281-8
Purchasing Commission, 2239, 2287
Salaries, 2287
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4015-19
Parliament buildings, 3994
Pembroke wharf, 4536-9
Penitentiaries, increases in estimates, 1109
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4051
Polish immigrants, rejected, qu. 914
Post Office
Letter rate, 4526
Parcel post rates, 4526
Purchasing agents, 4527
Rural mail carriers, 4527
Stamps, postage and revenue, 4526
Preferential tariff—West Indies, 3704
Preserved fruits, 3703
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2482
Shipbuilding, 1956
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4051
Special War Revenue Bill
Consideration en bloc, 3956
Houses, tax on, 3958
Lumber, tax on, 3743, 3957, 3958

Pedlow, Mr. Issac E.—Con.
Special War Revenue—Con.
Sales tax, 3755
Change in clause, 3957
Wholesalers opposed to, 3752
Steamship "Narbethong", 2175
Sugar imports, 3703
Trade and Commerce employees, 1226
Trade commissioners, 1399
Trent canal, 2606-16

Pelletier, Mr. F. J. (Matane)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 381; previous arguments for dissolution endorsed; public ownership; Canadian National Railways; Board of Directors; employees and elections; sections granted privileges denied to others; Intercolonial, piling lumber in yard at Amqui; financial obligations due to nationalization; world-wide liquidation, 382; Prime Minister's duty to dissolve Parliament, 383
Canadian National Railways
Amqui station, 382, 1176
Illustration stations at Matane and Causapscal, 947
Matane, wharves, 3992
Quebec Union Telephone Company, 3343

Pembroke wharf, 4536

Penitentiaries, 1091, 1096. See also Justice; Prisons and Reformatories
Alberta, 1092, 1115
Appropriations for, 1104
Convicts
Number and cost of, 1092
Dorchester, 1092
Purchases locally, 1108
Salaries of officials, 1096
Warden, 1092, 4467
Flour purchases, 1107
Kingston, 1110
Staff and inmates, 1097
Trades at, 1092
Maintenance cost, increase in, 1111
Purchases, system of, 1108
Purchasing Commission, 1104
Report, 2027
Salaries and retiring allowances
Increases in, 1109-10
St. Vincent de Paul, 1078, 1091
Convicts, number of, 1091
Warden, qu. 575, 1078
Saskatchewan, 1091, 1110
Stony Mountain, release of prisoners, 477

Penitentiaries Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 3738-39; withdrawn, 3973

Pensions, 164, 2236-78. See also Returned Soldiers, Special Committee
Application forms in French, qu. 965
Assignment in payment of insurance premium, 4355
Board of Commissioners, 4366
British funds, disbursement in Canada, qu. 733
Brunelle, Sergt. Major N., 1518
Deduction from widows' pensions, 4369
Deductions for insurance premium, Res. (Mr. Power) 629; withdrawn, 630
Disability, qu. 1235
Etienne, Mde., claim, 4367
Marcil, Mr. Joseph, qu. 3903
Marcil, Messrs. Louis T. and Joseph, qu. 2942
Martel, Mde., claim, 4367
Old age. See Address
Permanent force, deductions from pay of, 2275
Refusal to soldier disabled by accident, 4366
Scale for deaths, 4266
Scale for disabilities, 4264
South African, 2278
Special Committee, final report, 4041
"Unmarried wife," 4369
Widowed mothers, Res. (Mr. Power) 630; withdrawn, 642, 4047, 4368

Pensions Act Admt. Bill
Res. 4262; 1r., 4266; 2r., com., 4361; 3r., 4373
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Board of Pension Commissioners, 4366
Deduction from widowed mothers' pensions, 4369
Housing, 4362
Increased sale, 4361
Interpretation of Act, 4366
Military Service, "as such," 4366
Statement by Prime Minister, 4361
Unemployment, 4361
Widowed mothers, 4368

Pentland, Mr., and Quebec Admiralty district, 1086

People's Representatives. See Ministers

Per Capita Expenditure and Debt, 2012, 3246

Permanent Court of International Justice Bill, 56, 285, 645. See also Canadian Nationals; League of Nations; Prime Ministers' Conference
1r., 2096; 2r., com., 2708; com., 3013; 3r.,

Permanent Force. See Militia; Pensions

Perrot Island bridge, qu. 576, qu. 603

Peterborough
By-election, 504
Milling industry, 3544
Trent canal, 2953. See also that title

Petitions. See Private Bills

Petroleum. See also Oil
Bounties, 1385, 1413
Government regulation, 3539
Leases, 3539
Natural gas, and, lease rentals, qu. 672

Pharmaceutical Compounds, 3726-7

Phonographic Discs. See Copyright

Pictou-Georgetown steamship services, 1496

Pierreville Postmistress, qu. 2624, 2858, qu. 3208; qu. 3422; qu. 3423. See also Yamaska

Pig iron industry, 3188

Pilotage, Administration of, 1999

Pilots, 1999
Montreal-Quebec, superannuation, qu. 1501

Pin, Mr. J. E. A., and Labour, 1642

Pipes, Mr., and Dorchester Penitentiary, 1093

Plate Glass Industry, 3513

Playing Cards. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill—Three Card Monte
Tax on, 3126

Pointe Claire, wharf, 4312

Poisoning of Insects, 1028

Police Magistrates. See Judges

Polish Battalion for service in French Army, 4051

Polish Immigrants, rejected, qu. 964

Political Control of Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Political Patronage. See also Canadian National Railways; Civil Service
Lawyers selected by Government, 1077

Pollution of Harbour Waters. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bill

Pontiac
Census commissioners and enumerators, 828, 1127

Population, increase of, 843

Pootmans, Mr. G., Vice-Consul for Belgium, 3347, 3379. See also Belgium, loan to

Porcupine Forest Reserve, 538

Portage du Fort, war record, 1928

Port Arthur and Fort William harbour improvements, 4536

Port Aux Basques, 1468

Port Colborne, breakwater, 3974

Port Hilford, dredging, 3983

Port Hood, wharf, 4088, 4104

Port Margaree, wharf, 2174

Port Nelson, dredging, 1853

Porter, Professor, 1427

Porter, Mr. George, Maycroft, Alta., 384

Portland Terminus, 1384, 3291. See also Grand Trunk

Postmasters. See also Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill; Post Office
Montreal and Toronto, qu. 566
Rural. See also that title
Appointment of, 2779, 4278-4460

Postmaster-General. See also Blondin, Hon. Mr.; Post Office
Election of, 1171
Necessity for presence in Commons, 1155, 4514
Payments to, qu. 567
Yamaska election, and, 3468

Post Office, 3003. See also Civil Service; Mail Carriers. For individual post offices, see their titles
Annuities, 4524
Canadian Postal Guide, qu. 1349
Department
Anderson, Mr., 4526
Cabinet Ministers, and, qu. 1349
Mail superintendents and postal inspectors
Res. (Mr. Casgrain) 841
Outside service
Maritime Provinces, Inspection Branch 4528
Parcel post rates, 4526
Postmen, bonus to, 3549
Purchasing agent, 4526
Railway mail service, 4516
Religious holidays, 2626

Post Office—Con.
Department—Con.
Reorganization, 804, 4514
Moon, Mr., 4518
Northrup, Mr., 4518
Retirement of officials, qu. 3772
Smith, Mr. Sydney, qu. 1236, 4518
Troop, Mr., 4518
Verret, Col., 4525
Superintendent and inspectors, qu. 965
Employees in post offices, retirement, 4268
Letter rate, 3571, 4515
Madrid Postal Conference, 3001
Montreal Mutual Benefit Society, qu. 567
Offices in Canada, qu. 1235
Parcelpost rates, 4526
Railway mail service, 4516
Bonaventure-Gaspé, qu. 577
Revenue and expenditure, 4515
Rural mail carriers, 4523. See also that title
Bonus, 2115
Saguenay district service, 1825
Stamps, postage and revenue, 4526
Statistical schedules, 3758
War tax, 4515

Post Office Act Amendment Bill
1r., 1619-20; 2r., com., 2120; 3r., 2944
Subjects and sections discussed:
Insurance of registered mail matter, 2120
Obligations of ferrymen, 2122
Unpaid or underpaid letters, 2121

Potato Bug, destruction by, 1932

Potatoes, 3224, 3525
Diseases, 1032
Export, 3442
Market for, 3473

Poultry Industry, 939, 1122
British Columbia, in, 3750-51
Egg production, 1242-3. See also Eggs
World's Poultry Congress, 4513

Power. See also Fuel Supply Problem; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence

Power, Mr. C. G. (Quebec South)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 100. The new leader of the Government, 101; dissolution of Parliament and appeal to the people; different schools of thought; House of Commons "express image of the feeling of the Nation"; present parliament not representative, 102: history of the Government; power despotically used; Cabinet reconstruction: by-elections, 103; defections among Ministry and Government supporters, 104;

Power, Mr. C. G.—Con.
Address—Con.
Government has lost confidence of country; deficits from public ownership; Great War Veterans Association, 105; enforced isolation of Quebec, 106; the public conscience, 107
Administration of Justice, 1325
Alpine Club, 4494
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2918
Burnham, Dr., treatment by Serbian Government, qu. 576, 1525
Cabinet-maker, Interior department, 1342
Canada Temperance Act
Quebec petition for suspension of Act, 4382
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Vessels, names of, 1962
Canadian Nationals Definition Act, 782, 2033
Canadian National Railways
Employes, fraud by, 1669
Canal tolls, 2976
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2780, 2881
Returned soldiers—preference, 4483
Superannuation—increased allowances, qu. 3903, 4541
Coats, Mr. R. H., 1232
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 304
Expenditures on public works, 2983
Fiji Islands, Mr. Catellier, 1465
Foreign agitators and elections, 903
Forestry
Canadian Forestry Association, 4494
Director of, 1346
Immigration, medical inspection, qu. 572
Interior Department law clerks, 1332
Ireland, South, Parliament for, qu. 603
Judges, Admiralty, 1086
Lights, repairs to, 1996
Marine signal service, 1998
Militia
Ashley, Sergt. T., qu. 3090
Command pay, 2290
M. to reduce, 2292
Estimates, 2275, 2310
Permanent Force, M. to reduce estimate, 2797
Record office, 2278-81
Staff, 2787-91
Military preparation, 2305
Miniature natural resources cabinets, 1342
Moving pictures, 599
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2265
Pensions Act Amdt. Bill, 4366-73
Pensions
Application forms in French, qu. 965

Power, Mr. C. G.—Con.
Pensions—Con.
Deductions for insurance, res. 629; withdrawn, 630
Permanent Force, deductions from pay, 2236, 2275
Widowed mothers, res. 630, 640; withdrawn, 642, 4369
Public Works—Quebec district, 2983
Quebec
Citadel, 1441
Fortifications, res, 967
Port and Merchant Marine, 1271
Riots, 1509
Ship repairing, 1986
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4355-7
Ross rifle, 2782
Serbian Consul at Montreal, qu. 605
Shipbuilding, 1962
Soldiers Civil Re-establishment
Loyola college building, Montreal, qu. 569
Supply—Public Works, point of order, 2758
Trent canal, construction, 2983-94
Unemployment relief, qu. 570
Union Service Fund, qu. 2192
Welland canal, construction, 2983-94

Prairie Provinces
Grasshopper plague, 1027
Transfer of Natural Resources. See Natural Resources

Preferential Vote. See Proportional Representation

Presentation of Speaker's Chair. See Speaker's Chair

Press
Bureau in New York, 2400
Canadian Press Limited, qu. 564, 4533
Comment on Shipbuilding. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Defamatory libel, publication of court proceedings, 2149, 3933
Murray, Mr. G. M., and, 330, 442, 2622, 3645-7
Propaganda, 290

Press Gallery
Long sittings of House, 2887

Preston, Mr. W. R. T., 3383

Prevost, Mr. Jules E. (Terrebonne)
Budget, 3427. National Liberal and Conservative Government; railway policy, 3428; expenditure, public debt and re-

Prevost, Mr. Jules E.—Con.
Budget—Con.
venues; taxation, 3429; military expenditures and conscription, 3430; Canadian policy and Imperialist doctrine, 3430; Laurier and Colonial Conferences, 3431; Prime Minister and Quebec, 3435; fiscal policy, 3436
Canadian National Railways
Montreal-Transcontinental, qu. 574
Census, appointment of officials, 696
Debates, Official, distribution of, M. 2220-5
Highways
Approval of in Quebec, qu. 2098
Federal aid to, qu. 2375
League of Nations
Article X, qu. 575
Canada's contribution to, 1235
Postmasters, Montreal and Toronto, 566

Price-Fixing, 3200

Prime Ministers. See Ministers

Prime Ministers' Conference, 183, 193, 227, 246, 254, 270, 294, 467, 526, qu. 564, 2626, 3320, 4304, 4449
Agenda, 2504, 2638-47
Anglo-Japanese Alliance, 2637-9-57
Canada and the United States, 2653. See also Canadian Representation in the United States
Canada's status, 2642
Committee on Imperial Defence, 2637-49
Constitutional conference, 2637-8-47-49
Constitutional development, 2626-47
Imperial Conference, 2628, 2633-36
Imperial defence, 2633-44
Imperial War Cabinet, 2636-48
Imperial War Conference, 1917, res. 2626-36-48
International relations, 2651
Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill, 2633-44
Military, naval and air defence, 2640-50
Naval defence
Contribution of the Dominions to, 4256
Peace Conference at Paris, 2637
Proposed instructions to Prime Minister, 2554
Reparations, 2653
Reported statement of Mr. Churchill, 2567
Statement by Prime Minister, 2504
Wireless Communications, 2640

Primeau, Mr., and Railway Commission, 3018

Prince Albert, Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 673

Prince Edward Island
Harbours and rivers, 3990
Highways, Federal aid to, qu. 2345

Prince Edward Island—Con.
Railway, 4565
Steamship service, 558

Prince Rupert
Dry Dock Engineering Company, qu. 3423
Public Building, qu. 567
Purchase of land from Mr. V. W. Smith, qu. 963

Princess Creek, wharf, 3980

Printing Bureau
Bailey and Wolffe, Messrs., qu. 603
Building, extension to, qu. 1383
Destruction of Public Documents, qu. 599, qu. 603, 793, qu. 1621, 1625, qu. 2028, 2943, 2950-3, 4062, 4436-53, 4465, 4557
Canadian Postal Guide, qu. 1349
Judge Snider's Report, qu. 2028, 2444, 2943, 2951, 2952, 3209, 3697, 3761, 3905, 4062, 4436-53, 4557
Statement of Messrs. Fred Cook and Frank Lynch, tabled, 4541
Statutes, plates of, qu. 603
Employees in, qu. 1131, qu. 1348
Additional, qu. 1234
Long sittings of the House, 2887
Reorganization, 793, 802, 816, 834, 836, 2827-79, 4465. See also Civil Service

Printing, Joint Committee, 110, 2618, 2889, 4041

Printing of Parliamentary and Departmental Publications, 1438

Prisons and Reformatories Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 1069; 2r., com., 3011; 3r., 3013

Private Bills. See House of Commons, Bills

Private Bills Discussed
Canadian Bar Association, 1094
Central Railway Company of Canada, 3715, 3716
De Martigny divorce, 3715, 3761, 4002-10, 4078, 4107, 4203, 4477
Fort Smith Railway Company, 3771
Gilmour and Hughson, Limited, 1096, 2442, 2503, 2800
James MacLaren Company, Limited, 598
North American Trust Company of Canada, 1094, 1127
Quebec Steamship Company, 2775, 2941
Quebec Union Electric Telephone Company, 3343, 3421, 4105

Privilege. See House of Commons

Privileges and Elections Committee, 2314, 2373, 2617, 2685, 2775
Representation, Maisonneuve and Gaspé, 4437
Substitution of names, 2441

Privy Council, 99, 2105
Appeals, limitation of, 1089, 1090
"Insular" tribunal of England, 1090
Judges. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Law library, 1090
Salmon fishery licenses, qu. 104, qu. 1381, 2104, qu. 2506, 4341

Prize Money. See Agricultural Shows

Probation, system of. See Criminal Code Amendment

Progressive Party, 331, 539, 1531, 1546, 3324, 3356. See also Address, Budget, Canadian Council of Agriculture, Crerar, United Grain Growers
Abolition of patronage, 822, 3163
Attitude on Tariff, 3212. See also Budget Speeches
Canadian Council of Agriculture. See that title
Railway problem, and, 1789
Wheat Board, and, 1451. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Canadian Wheat Board

Prohibition, 4474

Prohibition Plebiscite, 303. See also Canada Temperance Act; Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Alberta, 3901, 4374-88
Ontario
Renfrew returning officer, 820
Voters' lists, 150, 242, 259, 303

Proportional Representation, 346, 411
M. (Mr. Sexsmith) for adoption of, 1528
Amdt. (Mr. Calder) for Special Com., 1542
M., as amended agreed to, 1554; Special Com. appointed, 1554-5
Special Com., authority to print report, 2027

Proprietary and Patent Medicines, tax on, 3120

Prorogation, 4577
Alleged undue desire to hasten, 4068
Governor General's Speech, 4579
Probable date of, 4238-40, 4551

Protection. See Address; Budget; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill

Proulx, Mr. Edmond (Prescott)
British funds, disbursement in Canada, qu. 733
Buckley, Mr. Charles P., qu. 966
Canada Temperance Act
Pending litigation, 4384
Canadian Air Force, qu. 965
Canadian Bar Association, 1095
Cattle embargo, 766
Chief Justice, salary of, 1571
Civil Service
Bonus, 2115
List, qu. 1349
Res. (Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage; amendments to Civil Service Act; Civil Service Commission; appointments in cities and rural districts; census commissioners and enumerators, 829
Clapp, Miss S., 1332
Condensed milk, tax, 3737
Cooper, Col. John A., qu. 697
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4442
De Martigny divorce, 3765
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4247-8
Elections in France, 1552
Highways
Construction in Ontario, 4290-4306
Width, 4306
Judges
Exchequer Court and Grand Trunk arbitration, 1084
Superannuation and retirement, 1082
Justice Department
Lawyers in, 1077
Purchasing agents, 1079, 1115
Live stock breeding, 1116
Militia supplies, sale of, 1098
National Catholic Labour Unions, 1647
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2121
Roumanian loan, interest, qu. 2344
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 593
Unemployment and immigration, 1356
Welland canal, sand contracts, qu. 600

Provinces doing business, and taxation, 3705-6, 3742

Provincial Legislation, reports on, 2373

Provincial Responsibility. See Housing

Provincial Rights. See Canadian Bar Association; Lake of the Woods

Publications, Government, 1438
Editorial Committee, annual report, 901

Public Accounts Committee, 3582, 4105
Motion for reference to Com., 1069
Report, 397

Public Buildings
Estimates, 4090
Ottawa. See also that title
Charwomen, 4092
Elevator attendants, 4090
Nova Scotia, 2737-42
Toronto customs house, 4095
Yukon, 4096

Public Documents, Destruction of. See Printing Bureau

Public Harbours. See Canada Shipping Act; Harbours and Rivers

Public Money, voting of. See Canadian National Railways; Estimates; Supply

Public Ownership of Railways, 381, 1187, 1196. See also Canadian National Railways

Public Printing and Stationery Department. See Printing Bureau

Public Records, provision for, 2947

Public Service Retirements. See Civil Service Retirement

Public Works
Bridges. See Bridges
Demobilization, 3989
Department
Accounts, paying of, 1606
Salaries, 2680, 2736, 2808, 2945, 4070, 4079
District Engineers' Office, Edmonton, 4535
Engineering Branch, reorganization, 4079
North Sydney, officials, 2817
Expenditures, 4101
Property, protection of. See Criminal Code Amendment Bill
Rents, repairs, etc., 3989
Shipbuilding, 1858. See also that title
Transfer of District Engineer's Office, Chatham-St. John, 4081

Pulp and Paper Industry, 873, 875. See also Natural Resources; Research
Freight rates on, 2511
Pulpwood, exportation, 3513, 3744

Punishments, Excessive or Inadequate. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Purchasing Agents, 1079
Canadian National Railways, 1659

Purchasing Commission, 1080, 2015, 2142, 2163, 2190, 2287
Authority for appointment, 1114
Canadian National Railways, 1659

Purchasing Commission—Con.
Closure, notice of, 2025
Creation of by Order in Council, 551
Limit of $5,000 without tender, 1101
Members of, 2016
Militia supplies, 2239
M. (Mr. Lemieux) to strike out item, 2108; amended 2020
Penitentiary supplies, 1097, 1108
Post Office, 4527
Public Works, 2681-3
Staff of, 1113
Surplus War supplies, disposal of, qu. 736
Tenders, statute providing for, 1105

Pure-bred Cattle. See Health of Animals; Live Stock

"Pussyfoot" Johnston, 902

Quaker Oats Company, 2954-76, 3544. See also Trent Canal

Quarantine. See also Health; Immigration Stations, 3128
Halifax, 2754-68
Partridge Island, 2808-15
Typhus, 4170

Quebec (City)
Arsenal, bonus to employees, 2113, 2782
Canada Temperance Act, 4382
Citadel, 1441
Elevators, 282, 1443
Employees, Militia, dismissal of, 2237
Fiset, Dr. Michel, qu. 963, qu. 4523
Fortifications, ancient. Res. (Mr. Power) 967; withdrawn, 970
Immigration buildings, 2757
Immigration officers, qu. 1131
Mail collection and delivery, qu. 576
Post Office, 4523
Riots of 1918
M. (Mr. Casgrain) 974
M. (Mr. Lavigueur) for compensation, 282
Mr. (Mr. Parent) 1503; neg. on division, 1518
St. Charles dam, 281
Transcontinental Railway workshops, 281

Quebec (Port)
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Discrimination against, 1965
Unfair treatment by, 1271
Elevator, 1443
Equipment, 687
Park St. Charles Company, proposed payment, 4570
Repairing of ships at, 1986
Shipbuilding, 1972
Transcontinental Railway facilities, 280
Wharves, 3977

Quebec (Province), qu. 570
Attitude towards Government, 551, 3216. See also Address
Census commissioners, 832
Highways in, 2098, 2344, 3025, 3029-34, 4305-13-33
Increased representation, 391
Judicial district, judges, 1081
Vice-Admiralty district, 1084-6
Labour in. See National Catholic Labour Unions
Natural resources, 875
Salmon fishery, qu. 1381, 2104, qu. 2506, 4040, 4341

Quebec and Saguenay Railway
Mileage, 1005
Station agents, qu. 696, 963

Quebec and Western Railway, qu. 573

Quebec Bloc, 3216

Quebec Bridge, 1653, 1670

Quebec Conference. See Ministers

Quebec-Montreal Pilots, Superannuation, qu. 1501. See also Pilotage

Quebec Oriental and Atlantic Railway, qu. 573

Quebec Salvage and Wrecking Company, Limited, 1990

Quebec Steamship Company, 2775, 2941
Petition presented, 3005

Queen's University. See Research

Questions, inquiry as to, 1502. See also House of Commons

Questions Passed as Orders for Returns, 578, 605, 606, 698, 839, 967, 1002, 1238, 1350, 1625, 1674, 1821, 2029, 2099, 2376, 2625, 2687, 2821, 3090, 3830, 3905

Quinlan and Robertson, 1972

Railway Act Amendment Bill (Inland Shipping Rates)
1r., 1497, order for 2r., stands, 2557

Railway Act Amendment Bill (Discrimination in rates) 1r., 1232-33

Railway Adjustment Board, 4547

Railway Commission
Cases before, 3021
Chief Commissioner, 451, 1690, 1725, 3017
Speech of with reference to Canadian National Railways, 1202, qu. 2029
Fuel Control, 2944
Inland Merchant Shipping, and, 1497. See Railway Act Amdt. Bill

Railway Commission—Con.
Maintenance and operation, 3016
Members, 3016
National Transcontinental Railway, fire protection, 4337
Railway mail service, 4517
Railway rates, and, 1803

Railway Problems. See Canadian National Railways, Special Committee

Railways, 484, 3014, 4131. For individual railways see their titles
Canadian National Railways. See that title
Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk bonds, qu. 837
Car shortage, 512, 548, 3541, 4322
Charges on dining cars, 921
Coal for, duty, 1183-4
Coal mines in the United States, 4317
Competition, 1181
Deficit, 1577, 1585, 1946
Employees, income tax, 4353
Employees' wages, 1803
Export freight rates, 1224
Financial condition of, 1574
Freight cars for coal, 1254
Freight rates, 1009
Coal on, 1249, 1976. See also Fuel Supply
Government. See also Canadian National Railways
Auditing by Auditor General, 1189
Lack of information, 1336
Ships, and, 1730
Grand Trunk. See that title
Locomotives
Cost of, 1587
Obsolete, 1587
Roumania and Greece, for, qu. 1236
Losses generally, 1008
Mail Service. See Post Office
Management. See Canadian National Railways
Merging of, 3308
Minister of and administration of Canadian National Railways, 1190
Party politics, and, 1179
Public ownership, 508
Quebec, Oriental & Atlantic and Quebec and Western Railways, qu. 573
Railway Commission, under, 3017
Requirements for, purchasing, 1610
Securities, provincial guarantees, qu. 2619
Situation generally, 1007, 3406
Statistics, qu. 3422
Taxation, 1008
Tourist traffic, 4495
Traffic and government ships, 1936
Utilization of, 844

Railways and Canals, Department of, 3014
Annual report, 697
Buckley, Mr. Charles P., qu. 966
Law costs, 3015
Minister of, duties, 1663
Outside service, 1665
Printing and stationery, 4335
Salaries, 1652, 3014, 4131, 4288

Railways and Shipping Committee. See also Canadian National Railways, Special Committee
M. for Standing Com. on (Mr. A. K. Maclean) 1555, 1582-3

Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines, Committee, 1174, 2247, 2708, 3005

"Rainbow" and "Niobe." See Ballantyne; "Niobe"

Rates. See Railways, Freight; Shipping
Discrimination in. See Railway Act Amdt. Bill

Real Estate. See Housing

Reciprocity Agreement with the United States, 268, 297, 1487. See also Address; Budget, Customs and Excise Dept. Bill Amdt. to Supply (Mr. Fielding) 2038; neg. 2075, 2393

Reclamation. See also Natural Resources
Dominion lands, 4495
Moose Range area, 871

Recorder's Court Jurisdiction. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Record Office. See Militia

Redemption of Gold. See Currency; Gold

Redistribution. See Address; Budget; Proportional Representation

Redlich on Procedure, 1675

Redman, Mr. D. L. (East Calgary)
Fuel Supply problem, 1253
Highway grants—Alberta, qu. 1821
Oil bounties, 1418
Tobin, Mr. W. J., qu. 1133

Re-Establishment, 314. See Returned Soldiers; Housing
Special Committee, final report, 4041

Referendum. See Prohibition Plebiscite

Reformatories. See Prisons and Reformatories

Refrigerator Cars for Transportation of fish, 1038

Regina
Indian Commissioner at, 2167-9

Regional Exhibitions. See Agricultural Shows

Registered Parcels, Insurance, 1619. See also Post Office Act Amdt. Bill

Registrars. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill; Judges

Regulations, Oil and Gas, 894. See also Oil and Gas, Petroleum

Reid, Hon. J. D. (Minister of Railways and Canals)
Annual railway statement, 1004
Business of the House
Estimates, alleged agreement, 4532, 4569
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1702
Statement to be made, 902
Canadian National Railways
Betterments, 4317
Board of Directors, 4314
Box cars ordered, 331
Canadian Government railways—vote of $7,000,000 for working expenditure, 4335
Canadian Northern Railway Company, 3049
Loan of $50,000,000 to, 3037
Car shortage, 4323
Claims against, 1658
Coal mines in the United States, 4317
Correspondence with directors, 1003
Deficit, 4319
Electrification, 4328
Employees, 1735
Reduction in number, 1851
Expenditure, 1616, 1662
Fire claims in Shelburne county, 4569
Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 4142, 4314
Fort William terminals, 3052
French language, 4331
Halifax and South Western line, 3053
Lockeport extension, 4324
Hudson Bay Railway, 985
Information, 1782
Intercolonial Railway, 1655
Land at Lévis, 1849
Transcontinental, and, management, 1189
Joliette bridge, 4322
Joliette county, 3038
Loan of $50,000,000 to Canadian Northern, 3037
McAdoo award, 4325
Management of, 1440, 1654
Manitoba, construction, 3053
Maritime Provinces, improved facilities, 4568

Reid, Hon. J. D.—Con.
Canadian National Railways—Con.
Monastery station, 4325
Operating results, 4318
Operation, cancellation of trains, 1004
Portland terminal, 4317
Rails, price of, 1852
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1771-4
Tenders for coal and ties, 1772
Transcontinental, forest protection, 4337
Transfer of rails to France, 4569
Western lines, 3039, 3048
Canal tolls, 2962
Fuel control, 2944
Government ships, 1731
Governor General's cars, 3037
Grain transportation rates, 2967
Grand Trunk arbitration, expenses, 4355
Grand Trunk loan, 4131-69, 4314-34
Grand Trunk railway
Lines in United States, 4326
Portland terminus, 1384
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 690, 740
Halifax Graving dock, 1698
Highways, 3030, 4289-4313
Construction, 3127, 3036
Expenditure on, 3024
Inspectors, 3023
Projected roads, 3026
Work on, 1661, 1664
Purchasing agents, 1660, 1670
Questions, answers to, 1502
Railway Commission, 3016, 3020
Cases before, 3021
Railway department
Auditors, 1661-70
Deputy Minister, 1665
Estimates, procedure in, 1666
Officials, 1654, 1660, 1672
Staff reduction, 1672
Travelling auditors, 1661
Railway estimates, 1652; 2953
Railways
Annual report, 1770
Congress, 3023
Items in supply, 3015
Law costs, 3015
Politics, 1771
Railway Commission, under, 3017
Traffic and Government ships, 1936
Red Deer river line, 3048
Returned soldiers, employment on Welland canal, 3001
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, extension of time, 2030, 2152-7
Soldier Settlement Board, Maritime Provinces, 4532

Reid, Hon. J. D.—Con.
Tariff investigation report, 3055
Trent canal, 2953-60, 2606-17
Welland canal, 2025, 2966-3003

Reid, Mr. John F. (Mackenzie)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 329; congratulations to Prime Minister; leaders who were born on the farm; new name for an old party; Government allied to big interests, 329; Mr. G. M. Murray and the press; Hudson Bay railway; Canadian National Railways, scarcity of cars, 330; grain blockade, United Grain Growers, Limited; National Progressive party, 331; business methods of the company; Mr. Guthrie's charges, 332; Mr. Rice Jones; names and birthplaces of directors; American settlers and goods, 333; Progressive movement not confined to Western Canada, 334
Agricultural implements, 3492
Bonds, War, Victory, tax free and taxable, qu. 2821
Briquetting plant at Bienfait, qu. 672
Budget, 3388. Comment on speech of Mr. Cowan; Agrarian and Liberal parties, 3389; economy in expenditure, 3390; tariff on agricultural implements; Canadian National Railways and freight rates, 3392; tariff revision; Grain Growers Guide, 3393; attitude of Government towards big interests, 3395; sales tax, 3396
Canadian National Railways
Grading in western provinces, qu. 570
Canadian Wheat Board, 2117, 2158
Cattle clubs, 1120
Cattle embargo, 717
Civil Service
Bonus, 2110
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2879-80
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage in; Civil Service Federation; Saskatchewan Customs Association; National Progressive party; Federal Union No. 66, 822; Board of Hearing; Printing Bureau, 823; British Civil Service, no fault to find with appointments, 824
Cold storage plants, 1040
Distribution of pure-bred stock in Saskatchewan, qu. 1236
Emigration, United States to, 3068
Hudson Bay railway, 991
Immigration
Expenditure, qu. 2943
Immigrants, care of, 3069
Income tax, qu. 3422

Reid, Mr. John F.—Con.
Live stock commission men, bonding of, 1124
Natural Resources, transfer to western provinces, 2539-45
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2266
Parliament buildings, 3995
Pensions Act Amdt. Bill, 4365-71
Pensions, widowed mothers, 4371
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2123
Public buildings—Nova Scotia, 2771
Returned soldiers, housing, unemployment, 4365-8
Ross rifle, 2784
Sales tax collections, qu. 2506, qu. 3830
Trent canal, construction, 2987
United States, emigration to, 3066
Vancouver island railways, qu. 3422
Yorkton Judicial district, 1080

Reid Newfoundland Company, 1486

Religious and Racial Questions. See York-Sunbury

Religious Holidays. See Civil Service; Post Office

Reindeer and Musk Ox
Arctic regions, report on, 2940, 4543
Economic value of, 841, 871

"Reno" of Canada, 4474

Rentals, of buildings, 3989, 4092-6

Reorganization. See Civil Service

Reparations. See Germany; League of Nations; War

Reports Tabled, 3, 39, 107, 150, 188, 229, 258, 350, 397, 562, 597, 643, 788, 836, 962, 1001, 1069, 1174, 1347, 1380, 1496, 1619, 2027, 2095, 2247, 2566, 2889, 3146, 3259, 3582, 3697, 3971, 4041, 4105, 4340, 4449, 4541

Representation. See Proportional Representation

Representation in Parliament, 1293
Amdt. (Mr. King) in Supply, neg. 1329

Research. See also Natural Resources; National Research Institute
Advisory Council, 150, 341, 1426, 2688
Scientific and Industrial Research Bureau, 169, 2144

Research Council Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 2566; 2r., 2688; com., 2701, 2892; 3r., 2897

Resignations. See House of Commons

Responsibility to Parliament. See Government

Restaurant. See Parliamentary Restaurant

Retail Merchants Association and Sales Tax, 3446

Retiring Allowances. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Returned Soldiers. See also Civil Service; Dominion Lands; Pensions; Re-establishment; Soldiers' Settlement; Unemployment
Canteen funds, 4050
Census commissioners, 2097
Civil Service and, 963, 2828-38-49-53-68-81, qu. 3259, qu. 3531
Preference in, 4482
Civil Service Act, Amdts. proposed by Pensions Com., 4257
Employment on Welland canal, 3001
Gratuity—estimate of cost by Mr. Thomas Cox, 3559
Handicap, problem and tuberculosis cases, 4050
Highways, employment on, 3033
Housing, 4362-8
Loan, 4552
Insurance, 4355, 4361
Insurance Act, 629. See also Pensions
Land for, 1344
Military training, 3279
Pensions, 4361. See also that title
Prospecting for minerals, 871
Re-establishment, 4361. See also that title
Relief for, 2688
Shipbuilding and, 1273, 1727, 1903, 1921, 1974. See also that title
Special Committee moved, 731, agreed to, 733
Mr. Sutherland substituted for Mr. Peck, 788
Quorum, 901
Statement by Prime Minister, 4361
Sympathy with, 1903-4
Unemployment, 4048, 4361. See also that title
Relief in Peterboro, qu. 4253

Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 4260; 1r., 4262; 2r., com., 4355; 3r., 4361
Sections and subjects discussed:
Annuity, 4356
Assignment of pension, 4355
Commencement of Act, 4357
Death of beneficiary during lifetime of insured, 4355

Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill—Con.
Sections and Subjects discussed—Con.
Insurance and limits thereof, 4355
Mercantile Marine, officers and seamen, 4357
Old age and sickness insurance, 4357

Returns. See House of Commons

Reuter's and Imperial News Service, qu. 564

Revenue Bills
1. Customs and Excise Department Bill
Res. 3785; 1r., 3822; 2r., com., 4388; 3r., 4453
2. Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Res. 3698; 1r., 3725; 2r., com., 3938; 3r., 3955
3. Income Tax Act Consolidation Bill. 1r., 4251; 2r., com., 4343; 3r., 4355
4. Inland Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 3726; 1r., 3733; 2r., com., 3r., 3955
5. Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 3733, 3741; 1r., 3758; 2r., 3955; com., 3955-3958; 3r., 3958

Revising Officer. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill

Rhodes, Hon. Edgar N. See Speaker

Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, Vice-President and General Manager, United Grain Growers, 289, 290, 333, 417, 3180, 3492

Richards, Mr. T. H., veterinary inspector, 1063

Riddell, Mr. Justice, payments to, qu. 1500

Right of Ministers to Sit in Either Chamber. See Ministers

Riley, Mr. R. T., 1609-10; 3610. See also Canadian National Railways

Rimouski
County Fairs, 1240
Customs office, qu. 839
Experimental station, 954

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand (St. James)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 120; Prime Minister—right of Government to retain power, 120; formation of a new party to take place of Unionism—its misleading name, 121; the Prime Minister's Sherbrooke and Granby speeches, 122; by-elections; non-confidence amendment, 124; argument of Prime Minister analyzed; census and redistribution, 125; tariff; League of Nations; clamor for general election

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand—Con.
Budget, 3651. Dr. Tolmie and dry dock at Esquimalt, 3651; Prime Minister's discussion of the tariff, 3652; Tariff Commission and revision of tariff, 3653; St. James by-election, 3655; customs duties and rate of exchange; deficits and expenditures, 3656
Copyright Amdt. and Consolidation Bill, 3835-49
Dominion Iron and Steel Company contracts, qu. 733
Exchange, value for duty, qu. 733
Excise officers and sales tax, 3955
Foreign decorations to Canadians, qu, 1132
German goods, holdback, qu. 1350
Government candidates, 3336
Immigration, 2579-2602
Importations from Germany, qu. 696, qu. 838
Income tax collections
For 1919, qu. 3422
For 1920, qu. 2821
Insurance against sickness, 2554
Loans, tax exempt, qu. 575
Member making serious charge should retract, 1904
Montreal Inland Revenue offices, qu. 1820
Taxation, mutual insurance companies, qu. 605
National Research Institute, 2894
Naval Service, maintenance, 2107
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," sale, 4012-30
Pierreville postmistress, qu. 2624
Post offices in Canada, qu. 1233
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2677
Sales tax, 3955
Shipbuilding, 1898, 1908, 1926, 2094
Estimates, manner of bringing down, 1937
Holt, Sir Herbert, comment on, 1900
Unemployment, and immigration, 1367

Riordon Company. See Gilmour and Hughson

Riots. See Quebec Riots

Rivers and Streams Act. See Lake of the Woods

Roads, 3986. See also Bridges; Highways

Robb, Mr. James A. (Chateauguay-Huntingdon)
Agriculture, grasshopper plague, 1028, 1030
Business of the House
British practice as to, 1026
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Preference to Canadian goods, 1280

Robb, Mr. James A.—Con.
Canadian National Railways
Transfer of rails to France, 4569
Canadian Wheat Board, 2116
Cattle embargo, 730
Cattle feeds, exemption of, 3746
Chief Justice, income tax and, 1565
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2778
Crushed grain, 3745
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill, brokers, 4432
Customs duties, increase in, 597
Dairy Produce Grading Bill, 3760
Estimates, supplementary, inquiry, 4070
Flax industry, 1404
Foodstuffs, tax on, 3736
Freight losses, 1658
Fruit inspectors, 1046
Grain trade, investigation of, 2116
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2563
Hungry Bay road, 1660
Immigration, 2582-94
Imported goods, marking of, 3714, 3723
Indian "Shows" for distinguished visitors, 2169
Interim Supply Bill, 2115
International Trade Conference, qu. 2029, 2151
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 2118
Maple Products Act, 1920, Amdt. Bill, 2559
Montreal Harbour Commission Bill, 2160
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3759, 3850-96; Amdt. 3896
Politics—participation in by railway employees, 4502
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2120
Province trading subject to taxation, 3705
Quebec Union Electric Telephone Company, 3421
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 656
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 2173, 4502-5
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Containers, tax on, 3754
Flour, 3755
Lumber, 3751-2, 3756
Trade agents, 1225
Trent canal, 2610-12
Unemployment and immigration, 1363
West Indies trade, 1271

Robertson, Hon. Senator G. D., 536. See also Labour, Minister of; Ministers

Roberval, air station, 3779

Robson, Judge, 3606. See also Board of Commerce

Robson, Mrs., and Immigration Department, 3058

Roche, Dr. See Civil Service Bill

Rockefeller Institute, 1433. See also Research

Rockefeller Interests and Mr. King. See Lapointe, Mr.

Rodrique, Mr. Didace, qu. 3208

Rondeau Harbour, 3975

Root Vegetables.. Res. withdrawn, 4343

Ross, Mr. D. C. (West Middlesex)
Budget, 3531. Reciprocity agreement great boon to Canada, 3532; attitude of various members on Budget, 3533; Minister of Militia and tariff reform; military expenditure, 3537
Customs—Strathroy office, 3085
Fuel supply problem, 1255
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3980-1
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 618
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4187-91
Newfoundland steamship service, 1486
Parliament buildings, 3995
Railway Commission, members, 3019
Steamship passengers, 1495
Trade with Australia and South Africa, 1468
West Indies steamship service, 1490

Ross Rifle, 2783-7
Statement of Rev. Canon Scott, qu. 599

Rotation of Crops, 1033. See Agriculture

Roumania. See also Loans
Loan to, 478, 1441, 3444, 3811, 4430
Greece and, qu. 1236, 3563, 3611, 3620, 3661
Dominion Canners, purchases, qu. 1001, 1072
Interest on, 1072, qu. 2030, qu. 2344
Sale of military supplies to, 2245, 3564

Routhier, Late Judge, 1085-6

Rowell, Hon. N. W. (Durham)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 110; League of Nations and Assembly at Geneva, 110; co-operation to prevent armed conflict; Covenant of League; public rights and wrongs in international affairs; war, or threat of war, concern of all nations, 111; purposes and functions of League; some phases of the work at Geneva, 112; constitutional questions;

Rowell, Hon. N. W.—Con.
Address—Con.
budget to be submitted annually; Council to report to Assembly; relations between Council and Assembly; Article XXIII, 113; vote to be not of a delegate but of the state he represents; proposed amendments to Covenant, 114; monopolies in and distribution of raw materials; admission of new states, Austria and Bulgaria, 116; questions of principle; case of Albania; minorities treaties, 117; Russian situation, 118; United States; attitude of representatives of self-governing minorities, 119; admission of Germany, 119
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2257
Canadian representation in the United States, 2394-2408
League of Nations, 110
Contribution towards, 2357
Letter of International Joint Commission, 691
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2722-24
Prime Ministers' Conference, 2647-67
Resignation of, 4340

Roy Building, Halifax, qu. 3089

Royal. See North American Insurance

Royal Assent, 486, 2160, 2899, 4578

Royal Bank of Canada
Canadian Government Merchant Marine and, 1719

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill (Fines and forfeitures)
1r., 2343; 2r., com., 2481; 3r., 2486

Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Dominion police force, withdrawal from, qu. 601
Recruits from England, qu. 601
Strength, 2798-2800
Thorold, qu. 574

Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Royal Commissioners. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 1712, 1714, 1870. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Royal Military College, 2802
Road, 3973

Royalty. See Copyright

Ruddick, Mr. J. A., 1036

Rule 17C. See House of Commons, Estimates

Rulings. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Rural Homes. See Housing

Rural Mail. See also Post Office
Boxes, number of, qu. 1235
Carriers, qu. 964
Contractors, 3507
Delivery, 1156
Routes, qu. 605
Rural postmasters, 2829-33-41-84. See also Civil Service; Post Office

Russia
Currency, 1072
Flax. See that title
Trade with, 1003, 1072, 1224

Ruttan, Dr. See Research

St. Alexis, station, qu. 2375, qu. 3582

Ste Anne de la Pocatiere
Destruction of library at, 1075
Illustration station, 948

St. Antoine, Montreal, representation of, qu. 577, 1069, 1070, 1293, 1295. See also Ames

St. Antoine, wharf, 2616

St. Augustin station, qu. 695, 3018

St. Catherine's Bay-Tadoussac service, 4530

St. Charles de Bellechasse, 1801

St. Charles River dam, 282

St. Croix wharf, 2616

St. Foy
Artesian well, 1659
Engine house, 767, 840, 967, qu. 1501, 1502, 1659. See also Canadian National Railways

St. Francis Harbour, 3990

St. Francis River, 1992, 1995

St. Francois du Lac
Electoral list, 3468
Lemieux, Mr., Speech at, 3528

St. Hyacinthe
Inland Revenue collector, Dr. A. P. Cartier, 3821, qu. 3904
Shops, qu. 2821

St. Jean post office receipts, qu. 576

St. Joachim-St. Simeon highway, 3026

St. John (City)
Belyea, Mr., retirement of, 3082
Representation, 3171-2
Vacancy, 1293

St. John (Harbour and Port) 4097
Facilities for potato shipments, 3443
Harbour, 4097
Improvements, qu. 1383, 4078
Partridge Island quarantine station, 2808

St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 1501, 4564

St. John and Quebec Railway Bill (Extension of time)
1r., 2030, 2097; 2r., com., 2152; 3r., 2157

St. John Rolling Mills. See "Niobe" and "Rainbow"

St. Lawrence, Gulf of Fishing in, 1038

St. Lawrence Navigation Company, 1981

St. Lawrence River. See also Canals; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence
Coal trade, 1494
Conservation Commission, 3960-8-70
Diversion of water, 186
Dredges and tugs, qu. 568. See also Dredges
Power development, 1252, 1263
Route and Channel
Deepening, qu. 2028
Development, 674, 691, 1252-63
Dredging, qu. 568, 1991, 4541
Navigation for coal vessels, 1260, 1854. See also Fuel Supply; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence
Sorel shipyards, qu. 568, 1992, qu. 2618

St. Malo shops, 1017

St. Michel wharf, res. 967, 3991

St. Pascal, domestic science school, 1075

St. Roch, Upper Crossing light, qu. 1383

St. Romuald post office building, qu. 577, 604

Ste. Rose de Watford, mail contract, qu. 3209

St. Simon station agent, qu. 3208

St. Thomas de Pierreville, postmistress. See Pierreville

St. Valier wharf, qu. 965

St. Vincent de Paul. See Penitentiaries

Sackville public building, 2816

Saguenay river, crossing of, 1822

Sailors, Sick, care of, 3129. See also Health

Sales Tax. See Special War Revenue; Taxation

Salmon. See Fisheries; Privy Council

San Jose scale, 1028

Sandy Beach wharf, qu. 965

Saskatchewan
Clay deposits for pottery, 3384-5
Co-operative Creameries, Limited, 1040
Co-operative Elevator Company, 391
Fish-breeding, 2185
Grasshopper plague, 1027
Highways, qu. 1820, 4307
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries
Pure-bred animals in, qu. 1236
Representation in Senate, 2567

Saskatoon, Canadian National engines, qu. 3090, 3903

Saturday Night, comment on shipbuilding, 1968

Savard, Mr. Edmond (Chicoutimi-Saguenay)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 554; speech a "meagre dish"; non-confidence amendment justified; Government has lost confidence of country; by-elections—Government's mandate exhausted; precedents, 555; Liberal leaders record; Borden Government, 556
Chicoutimi
Customs collector, qu. 698
Pier, qu. 967
Murray Bay-Tadoussac steamship service, 1824
Rimouski customs office, qu. 839
Shipbuilding, 1969

"Scandinavian," smallpox on, 1498, 1556

Scientific Institutions, 4494

Scientific Research. See Research

Scott, Mr. F. S. (South Waterloo)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 324; congratulations to Prime Minister; speech of Mr. Crerar; railway situation, economy in administration; financial situation in Ontario; Government's mandate; general elec-

Scott, Mr. F. S.—Con.
Address—Con.
tion, 325; business men opposed to dissolution; the amendment; confidence of the country; defections from Government; dissolution should be decided by Government not by leader of Opposition; Opposition and Agrarian party; Mr. Gauthier and province of Quebec, 327; Mr. Clark (Red Deer) and Liberal party, 328

Scott, Mr. W. D., and Immigration Dept., 3058

Scott Act, petition for suspension, 3584, 4382. See also Canada Temperance Act

Scottish Canadian Trust Company. See North American Trust

Screenings, 3182. See Elevators; Grain

Scrub Cattle. See Live Stock

Seamen, Sick, care of, 3129. See also Health

Search Warrants. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill

Searls, Mr. George, Chief Grain Inspector, 1444

Secretary of State. See also External Affairs
Enemy debts, demobilization, 4534
Estimates, 4557

Sedition
Esmonde, Mr. Osmonde Grattan, arrest for, 1556

Seed and Feed Control, 1125, 4513

Seed Fairs, 1126

Seed Grain
Advances, 4498
Inspectors, qu. 1624
Purchase, 4506

Seed Purchasing Commission, 1126

Seguin, Mr. P. A. (L'Assomption-Montcalm)
Budget, 3668. Administration of public business, 3668; tariff commission; tobacco-growing, 3668-9
Income tax—instructions in French, qu. 2624
L'Assomption
Experimental station, 918, 946
Pierreville postmistress, qu. 2624
Point of order—attack on members, 1904
Religious holidays, qu. 1499
Shipbuilding, 1916

Select Standing Committees. See House of Commons

Selkirk wharf, 3976

Senate
Age limit, 1171
Committee, leave for Mr. Crerar to attend, 3259
Free Conference—Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 3972, 4040, 4061, report 4250
Government representation in. See Ministers
Governor General—Address to on retirement, 4493
Macdonald, Hon. Senator, appointment, qu. 577
Members of to have seats in Commons. See Ministers
Members should be elected, 1163
Ministers in. See Labour; Postmaster General
Paintings in, qu. 566
Printing of Senate Bills, 3938
Reform, 389. See also Ministers
Representation of Saskatchewan, 2567

Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships)
1r., 258; M. for 2r., 585, 650, neg. 665

Serbia
Consul at Montreal, qu. 605

Serbian Government, Dr. Burnham and M. (Mr. Lemieux) for papers, 1520

Sessional Employees. See Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill

Settlers' Relief, 4498

Sex Offences. See Criminal Code Amdt. Bill

Sexsmith, Mr. J. A. (East Peterborough)
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4283
Dairy Produce Grading Bill, 4442
Highways, 3031
Metal, 4307-8
Illustration farms and stations in Ontario, 954, 956
Proportional representation, M., 1528
Toronto-Kingston highway, 4306
Trent canal, 2959, 2971-3

Shaughnessy, Lord, 1195, 1896, 3046, 3572
Letter on railway situation, 2503, 2890

Shaw, Mr. H. M. (Macleod)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 383; investigation of grain trade; winter grazing in forest reserves; letter from Mr. George Porter, Maycroft, Alberta; the Government's mandate, 384

Shaw, Mr. H. M.—Con.
Blood Indian reserve, qu. 1818, 1819
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 340
Macleod judicial district, qu. 2344

Sheard, Mr. Charles (South Toronto)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 253; Mr. Gauthier; Imperial Conference; Lord Beaconsfield; Imperial Council, 254; isolation of Quebec; pledges of 1917; no discontent regarding Government; urban and rural representation, 255; the tariff issue; seceding Liberal Unionists; Mr. Pardee; railway policy; Agrarians and free trade, 256; by-elections; union and harmony; Opposition policy, 257

Shediac and Cape Tormentine Railway, 4564

Shell Contracts, 1788

Sherbrooke, Prime Minister's speech at, 3339

Sheridan, Mr. John, Indian Agent
Resignation and reinstatement, 1499, 2173, qu. 2618, 4501-5

Sherwin-Williams Paint Company, profits, 372, 1897, 3484, 3565

Shipbuilding. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Labour; Unemployment
Advances at Victoria, qu. 599
Amount required for, 1683, 1858
Assistance to, qu. 603
Auditing, 1933
British Government policy, 1865
Closure, 1979-2094. See also that title
Continuation of after the war, 506
Contracts, 1683, 1689
Cancellation, 1726
Cost plus basis, 1910
For steel ships, qu. 565
Details of construction, 1874
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, qu. 733, 1233
Freights, lack of, 1284
Government programme, estimate, 2076
Government shipyard at Sorel, qu. 568, 1992, qu. 2028
Interest on cost, 1886
Labour for, 1889. See also Labour
Newspaper comment, 1893, 1900, 1917, 1925, 1934, 1968
Returned soldiers and, 1727, 1909
Royal Bank, remarks of President of, 1900
Sinking fund, 1885
Steel and, 1876, 1884
Tonnage depreciation in value of, 1734
Trade routes, 1888

Shipbuilding—Con.
Unemployment, 1882, 1897, 1902, 1909. See also that title
Victoria, qu. 599
Wooden ships, 1711

Shipping. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Canals; Great Lakes; Shipbuilding
British Chamber of, 1716
Flag, recognition in foreign waters, 786
Great Britain and, 3236
Inland, 745, 1497, 2192
Rates, 2963-9
Ocean, decline in, 1273
Special Committee. See Canadian National Railways
Tonnage into Canadian ports, 3650
United States discrimination in tonnage dues, qu. 697

Ships
Deadweight value per ton, 1702
Private control of, 1717
Publicly-owned, disposal of, 1718
Repairing at Quebec, 1986
Steel plates for, 1233

Shipyards. See also Shipbuilding; Sorel
Construction at, 1927
Government loans to, 1883
Vickers, 1967

Shortt, Professor Adam, 799. 2948. See also Civil Service

Sick and Distressed Mariners, 3129, 4039

Sickness, Insurance against, 4357
M. (Mr. Rinfret) withdrawn, 2554

Sifton, Late Right Hon. Arthur, tributes to, 3, 153

Sifton, Sir Clifford, and immigration, 3245

Silver, discovery at Kino Hill, Yukon, 856

Simpson, Mr. T. W. (West Algoma)
Natural resources, 872
Pulpwood, 3744

Sinclair, Mr. J. E. (Queen's, P.E.I.)
"Brant," steamer, 1982
Budget, 3470. Liberal party's record when in power; comparative tables of imports, 3471; average customs duty on imports, 3472; tariff issue; Prince Edward Island, potato growing, 3473; high freight rates, 3474; York-Sunbury election; record of Government during war, 3475
Cold storage plants, 1041

Sinclair, Mr. J. E.—Con.
Co-operative marketing of live stock, 1124
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4439-48
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4066
Dredging, Hillsboro river, 3984
Government shipbuilding programme, 2076
Health of Animals, 4506
Highway construction in Ontario, 4306
Migratory Birds Act, enforcement, 4496
Post Office, Maritime provinces reorganization, 4528
Prince Edward Island Railway, 4566
Soldiers Settlement Board, Maritime provinces, 4532
World's Poultry Congress, 4513

Sinclair, Mr. John H. (Antigonish and Guysborough)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 358; congratulations to Prime Minister; duty of Opposition to criticise; National Liberal and Conservative party; same old party; "strange bedfellows"; Cabinet changes; retrenchment, 359; practical suggestions; nation builders and nation wreckers, 360; Dominion Franchise Act; withdrawals from Government, 361; tariff of special interests, revenue, protection; Mr. Calder's change of heart, 363; Liberals and Farmers; hazards of the farmers' calling; prices of farm produce, 365; price-fixing; forces of progress must unite; big interests behind Government, 366; amendment a challenge to Government, 367
Air Board, 3785
Alcohol for medicinal purposes, 3957-58
Amherst drill hall, 2739
Auditor General's report, 597, 913
Blue books, printing of, 1485
Camp Borden, aeroplanes, qu. 1820
Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 2259-62
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1729, qu. 3089
Information, 1440
Trade routes, 1733
Vessels
"Canadian Beaver," qu. 1673
"Canadian Otter," qu. 1382
"Canadian Recruit," etc., qu. 1381
"Canadian Sapper," 734
Canadian National Railways
Coal purchased, 1763
Freight, Nova Scotia points, qu. 1620
Monastery station, 4324
Mulgrave, ice supply, qu. 963

Sinclair, Mr. John H.—Con.
Canso
Harbour, 3983-9
Navigation school, 1989
Civil Service
Bonus, 2109-10
Payments to Arthur Young and Griffenhagen, qu. 4251
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2487-2503, 4270-77
Coal trade, 1936
Commercial exhibits, 1227
Copyright Amendment and Consolidation Bill, 3840
Corning, Mr. H., cattle purchases, qu. 1624
Currency Act Amdt. Bill, 2269
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Valuation of currency, 3812
Customs and Inland Revenue, overtime, 4123
Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. Bill
Imported goods—marking, 3712, 3941-54, 3954
Debates, Official report, distribution of, 4560
Dominion and provincial jurisdiction over fisheries, 2105
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Polls, hours of, 3095
Qualified voters, 3096
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4065
Dominion notes
Circulation, qu. 1001
Securities, qu. 1383
Dominion securities—grain, 1443
Dredging, 3983
Drydocks, 3987
Editorial Committee, 4560
Estimates on Thursdays and Fridays, Rule 17C, 958, 1026
Export trade, development, 1732
Fish—breeding establishments, 4036
French Trade Agreement, 2135-40
Fumigation of nursery plants, 1031
Grand Trunk Arbitration Bill, 2452-69
Grand Trunk loan, 4162-5, 4317
Grand Trunk Railway, lines in United States, 4326
Half Island Cove, breakwater, 3981
Halifax fishery award, qu. 2191
Harbours and Rivers, estimates, 3976-82
Hoarded liquor, tax on, 3706
Horse breeding, 1120
Intercolonial branch railway in Guysborough county, 4567
Interior Department, editors, 1331
Job printers, taxation, 4123
Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 2118

Sinclair, Mr. John H.—Con.
League of Nations, Canada's contribution, 2357
Marine hospitals, 3130-36
Maritime Provinces, improved transportation facilities, 4567
Mercantile Marine, insurance of officers and seamen, 4359
Migratory Birds Act, enforcement, 4497
Military expenditure, 3278
Militia—surveys division, 2243
Montreal Harbour Commission, 2268
Moving picture films, 1226
Mulgrave, ice tenders, qu. 963
Murray, Mr. G. M., qu. 2622
Natural resources and western provinces, 1338
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4012-14
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3851-94
Parliament buildings, 3994-8
Partridge Island quarantine station, 2808
Pension Act Amdt. Bill, 4366
Pensions, refusal to soldier disabled by accident, 4366
Permanent Court of International Justice, 2717-21
Pilots, pensions to, 2000
Port Hilford, dredging, 3983
Post Office Act Amdt. Bill, 2124
Post Office
Expenditure, 4521
Reorganization in Maritime Provinces, 4521
Rural mail, carriers, 4523
Public Works engineering branch, 4082-90
Purchasing Commission
Staff of, 1113
Statutory authority to appoint, 1113
Quebec riots, 1516
Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt. Bill, 4359-60
Returns, inquiries for, 1176
Russia, trade with, 1003
St. Francis harbour, 3990
St. John and Quebec Railway Bill, 2152-4
St. Lawrence channel, dredging, 1992
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 591
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 4504
Shipbuilding, 1858, 1869, 1920, 2085
Contracts, 1683, 1872
Excessive tonnage, 1873
Newspaper comment, 1932
Progress of debate on, 1727
Ships under construction, 1927
Sick mariners, 3130-36
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Hospital supplies and medicines, 3957

Sinclair, Mr. John H.—Con.
Steamship services, 1493, 1489, 1495
Sugar, importation of, 3702
Swan, Mr. D. D., consulting engineer, 1997
Toronto Customs building, 3772
Trade with Russia, 1003
Trent canal, 2609-13
United States discriminatory tonnage dues, qu. 697
Vessels commandeered, qu. 2943
Victory bonds, expenses, qu. 1620
Whitehead life-saving station, 1991
Wrecking plants, 1990
Wrecks, removal of, 1990

Sioux Lookout, 4191

Six Months' By-Elections. See Representation in Parliament

Six Months' Hoist. See House of Commons, Divisions

Smallpox on "Scandinavian", 1498, 1556

Smith, Mr. Alexander. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill

Smith, Mr. Sydney. See Post Office Dept.

Smith, Mr. William (South Ontario)
Cattle embargo, res. 702
Eggs, importation from China, qu. 568
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3893

Smuggling
Aerial preventive service, 3778

Snider, Judge. See Printing Bureau, Destruction of Documents

Societè des Artisans Canadiens Francais, 82

Soldiers. See also Returned Soldiers
Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment, 315
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4051
Settlement on land, 529
Special Committee, final report, 4041

Soldiers Civil Re-establishment
Department of, report, 836
Disabled unemployed, 4364
Estimates, 4532
Loyola College building, Montreal, qu. 569
Operating expenses and working capital, 4532

Soldier Settlement Board, 314, 529, 538, 3554, 4532
Advisory and Qualification Board at Prince Albert, qu. 673
Estimates, 4532
Graham, Mr. A. M., qu. 2618

Soldier Settlement Board—Con.
Maritime Provinces, 4532
Operation of, 529
Tobin, Mr. W. J., and, ques. 1133

Solicitor General. See Ministers

Sorel Dockyard, qu. 568, 1992, qu. 2028
Shipyards, qu. 568
Superintendent, qu. 2618

Soudan War, 1882

Soulanges Canal. See Canals

South Africa
Steamship service, 1491
Trade with, 1468

South African War, 1527
Pensions, 2278

South Gabriola Wharf, 3981

Soviet. See Russia

Speaker, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes. See also Deputy Speaker, House of Commons Rulings and Statements of
Address, debate on,
Tariff not excluded from discussion, 58
Adjournments
For purpose of discussing matter of urgent, etc.; question may be discussed on motion for Supply, 4106
Amendments
Must amend, not merely negative, 561
Put subject to consideration, 376
Ames, Sir Herbert
Resignation of, 469, 1001
Member (Hon. Mr. King) may go into matter on motion for Supply, 1070
Bills
Additions to, proposed, 4259
Com., referred to after second reading, 2776
Details properly discussed in Com., 624
Preceded by resolution
Notice not necessary, 2942
Trade Bills should be, 2150
Press interview not germane to principle of, 2870
Printing of Senate Bills, 3938
Private
Notice not required, 3971
Reference back by Com. of Whole, 1094
Suspension of Rules for, 3716
Second reading, order must be proceeded with or stand, 650

Speaker, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Bills—Con.
Senate, motion for first reading not debatable but rule relaxed for Prime Minister and leaders, 151
Senate amendments, correction of error, 4068
To be disposed of by consent without discussion, 2890
1r.,
Senate Bills, unusual to explain, 151, 1619-20
3r.,
Debate on, 3343
Chair
Good taste, 3174
Ruling—exception to must be taken in constitutional manner, 3174
Should be permitted to exercise jurisdiction, 1308
Com.,
Standing, competent to consult Law Clerk, 598
"To-morrow" means next Government day, 563
Debate
Adherence to rules, 649, 2333
Closed by mover, 900, 2447, 2518, 3968
Questions not to be asked as in Com., 2450
Restriction of, 969, 2067
Debates, Official Report of Insertion of documents
After reading, 1539
Not read, 2067
Unanimous consent necessary, 1009
Decorum, 3174
Conversation in Chamber and galleries, 2053
Debate cannot be conducted from seats, 287
Debate, in, 286
Good taste, 3173-4
Governor General
Acknowledgment of Address, 3830
Address to on retirement, 4493
Imaginary letters, 3173, 3260
Minister of Crown and, 3174
Substitution of names, 3174
Interruptions, 3228
Language
"Coward", 287
"Deliberately false and untrue", 2444
"Flagrant insult", 287
"Mean appellation", 463
Unparliamentary, 1516
Members
Asking question may not make statement, 77, 987, 1308, 2865

Speaker, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Members—Con.
Comment on speech in other House not in order, 536
Debating, should be mindful of rule, 1758
Discussing principle of Bill on second reading restricted to one speech, 649
Having already spoken no right to speak again, 1307
How to be referred to, 69, 444
Leeds (Sir Thomas White) 69, 469
Limited to one speech on motion, 1177
May not reflect on judiciary, 812
Must be seated when Speaker rises, 3228
Not to be put on trial in House, 2443
One may give his own interpretation to remarks of another, 1197
Promises made by subject to rules of order, 4204
Reading from documents or newspapers when asking question, 736, 972
Reading speech, 544
Resignations, 1619. See also House of Commons
Ames, Sir Herbert, 469
Right to reply, 1245
Right to reply to reflection implied in question, 1172
Right to speak exhausted, 985, 1812, 2780, 3859, 4113, 4116
Should confine remarks to question before House, 816
Sitting, may ask question but may not make remarks, 127, 2225, 2867
Speaking, may not interrogate members sitting, 126, 2333
Speaking when no motion before House, 4203-4
To speak only once on motion, 2889
Speaking, has floor, 1794
Statement of must be accepted by House, 1197, 1641
Motions
Adjournment
Competency to withdraw, 1173
Adopted as amended, 1846
Amendment must amend not merely negative, 561
Committee
Not in order to discuss general railway problems, 1782
Error in, 1810
Involving expenditure
Housing, 1135
Hudson Bay railway, 985
Not in proper form, 4052

Speaker, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Motions—Con.
Notice not given—unanimous consent necessary, 732, 1439, 2027, 2776, 2940, 4250
Notice not required with respect to Private Bills, 3971
Practically identical, 974
Strict application of rule would leave only portion debatable, 1758
To adjourn for purpose of discussing matter of urgent, etc., 4106
Withdrawal by unanimous consent, 2554
Non-debatable subjects
Evidence before Committee not reported to House, 2881
Subjects already debated, 2824
Orders of the Day
Debate limited, 110, 1271, 1439, 2250, 2377, 3972
Alleged incomplete return may not be discussed in detail, 2250
Appropriateness of matter, 2626, 2776
Argument improper, 1070
Argument under guise of question, 901
House reverting to certain motions, 1851
Latitude allowed, 1070, 4254
Local questions, 110, 1271
Member not to be put on trial in House, 2443
No cross-examination of Ministers, 1004, 1441, 3321
Optional with Government to give information, 478
Questions reflecting on Government's policy, 1441
Questions unanswered, attention directed to, 1621
Summarizing newspaper articles, 1441
Pairs, correction of list, 563
Parliament buildings, inscription on tower, 4544
Petitions, manner of presenting, 562
Previous debate, 2824
Privilege. See also this title under House of Commons
Matter not affecting member personally, 2443
Questions
Answer of Government to be accepted, 1004
Deferred until Com. of Whole, 1024
Reflecting on Parliament, improper, 736, 1441

Speaker, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes—Con.
Rulings and Statements of—Con.
Questions—Con.
Supplementary answer to, 1755
Unanswered, member should direct attention to on Orders of the Day, 1621
Reference by way of illustration and not reflection, 3261
Relevancy, 1172, 1193, 1196
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2865
Resolution
Amended by avoiding mention of money, 1136
Latitude of discussion, 1135
Money, 1135
Propriety of form, 1146
Rules of the House
Discussion, widest possible measure of, 1135
17C, Thursdays and Fridays. See House of Commons, Estimates
Senate
Committee
Leave for Mr. Crerar to attend, 3207
Debates, reference to, 3968
Free Conference on Judges Act Amdt. Bill, 4040
Members of, reference in terms of disrespect, 536
Supply
Amendments to Discussion confined, 2067
Irrelevancy, 1193
Questions of detail should be withheld for, 1280
Rule 17C—Thursdays and Fridays, 1004. See also House of Commons, Estimates
Unanimous consent, 1009, 1233, 3715, 4433, 4453. See also under this title, Debates, Official Report
Canada Temperance Act, 3902
Minister making statement while Speaker in Chair, 1024
Votes and Proceedings, correction of, 737
Warrant for election writ—Durham and Maple Creek, 4340

Speaker's Chair, presentation of, 3689, 3691
Addresses to be printed in Official Report of Debates, 3696
Expression of thanks to Empire Parliamentary Association, 3696
Presentation of, notice, 3688
Speeches, 3689

Speech from the Throne debated. See Address

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. Bill
Res. 3733, 3741; 1r., 3758; 2r., 3955; com., 3955-3958; 3r., 3958
Subjects and Sections discussed:
Amendments, 3742
Binder twine fibre, 3746, 3756. See also that title
Boxed goods, 3735
Condensed milk and ice cream, 3737, 3956
Containers, 3737, 3754, 3956
Excise taxes, 3955
Fishing boats, 3745
Foodstuffs, 3589, 3734
Lumber, tax on, 3734, 3736, 3742-3, 3756-57
Missals and prayer-books, 3756
Mixed grains for feed, 3745
Oatmeal and rolled oats, 3735-6
Oleomargarine, materials for, 3745-6
Package goods, 3735
Sales tax, 3120, 3170, 3399, 3996, 3735, 3752, 3957. See also Taxation
Opposition to change, 3752
Sparkling wines, 3734

Speedways. See Highways

Spinney, Hon. E. K. (Yarmouth and Clare)
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2685, 2778, 4278-80
Annual report, Amdt. 4482
Special Com., report, 3901
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4271

Spirits, Tax on, 3120, 3506, 3576, 3705, 3726. See also Alcohol; Customs Tariff; Customs and Excise; Liquor

Spirituous and Alcoholic Liquors, 3705-8

Sprays. See Insects

Spruce Bud Worm, 1031

Stacey, Mr. F. B. (Fraser Valley)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 140; examination of reasons advanced in support of amendment; pre-election pledges of Government fulfilled or in process of fulfilment; no charge of maladministration, 141; Government policy in interest of country; unification of Canadian people, 142; class consciousness; by-elections in British Columbia; the Agrarians, 143; no demand for a change, 144
British Columbia, fishing regulations, 2180

Stacey, Mr. F. B.—Con.
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4268
Ministers to sit in either Chamber, 1163

Standardization. See Agricultural machinery

Standing Orders Committee, first report, 3005

Staples, Mr. W. D., and Grain Inquiry, 1674, qu. 3260

Statistical Department, 1231, 1672

Statistics Act Amdt. Bill, 1r., 3007, 2r., com., 3r., 3758

Statutes, destruction of plates, qu. 603

Statutory Officials. See Purchasing Commission

Stayner, postmaster, 4470

Steamers. See Vessels

Steamship Services
Australia-New Zealand, 1493
Baie des Chaleurs, qu. 734, qu. 2506
Baie St. Paul-Tadoussac, qu. 734
Halifax-Newfoundland, 1485, 1686
Halifax-St. John-Newfoundland, 1712
Magdalen Islands, 557, 767
Mulgrave-Canso, 1496
Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 1528, 1822, 1825, 1930
Newfoundland, 1485, 1686, 1712
Pacific, 1493
Pictou-Georgetown, 1496
Prince Edward Island, 558
South Africa, 1491
Supervision, 1496
West Indies, 1275, 1488, 1712, 1714, 2253-62

Steamships. See also Vessels
Government control of, qu. 2530
Subsidies, 1735

Steel
Nova Scotia, 3295
Plates for ships, 1283, 1884
Shipbuilding contracts, 1876. See also that title

Steel and Iron Industry, 3526

Steel Company of Canada, Limited, 1611

Steele, Mr. Michael (South Perth)
Cattle embargo, debate adjourned, 731
Sub-amendment, 757
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2497
De Martigny divorce, 3769
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill (Prohibition plebiscite) 306

Steele, Mr. Michael—Con.
Fuel Supply Problem, Res. 1247
Special Committee, evidence to be printed, 2027, 4251
Highways in Ontario, 3034
Immigration
Immigrants rejected, qu. 1624
Typhus fever, precautions, 643
Point of Order, letter reflecting on Minister, 2176
Proportional representation, 1550
Strikes, number of, qu. 569
Rulings and statements as Acting Speaker and Chairman
(as Acting Speaker)
Member not precluded from quoting from same debate, 3627
Member must accept statement of another, 3628
(as Chairman)
Conversation, 4307
Debates, Official report of
Insertion of documents not read, 4309
Discussion not relevant to item, 1665
Interim Supply
Schedule customary, 2015
Language
"Misleading the House", 1457
Relevancy, 1451, 1452, 1456, 1665, 3766, 3808, 3821, 4090, 4123-4, 4306, 4312
Letter from Gillies Bros., Ltd., 4418
Supply motion to strike out item not in order, 2018, 4513

Stefansson, Mr. Vilhjalmar, 871
Northern lands, possibilities of, 841. See also Reindeer and Musk Ox; Natural Resources

Stein, Mr. Adolphe (Kamouraska)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 550; charges of maladministration; war contract scandals; Purchasing Commission; feeling in province of Quebec; French Canadians not represented at Peace Conference; Assembly of League of Nations; other instances of discrimination; election proclamation in French, 553; election, 554
Agricultural publications, 1075
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill, 2914-16
Bankruptcy Act Judges, 1084
County fairs, assistance to, 1123
De Martigny divorce, 3715, 3761, 3769, 4004-10, 4107
Illustration station at Ste. Anne de la Pocatière, 948
Judges, local, in criminal cases, 1085

Stevens, Mr. H. H. (Vancouver Centre)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 212; the amendment; argument of the Opposition; Liberals and Agrarians, 213; Leader of Opposition's incentive is accession to power; redistribution before election; increased representation for West; freight rates, relative representation of urban and rural districts, 214; no general demand for an election; War Veterans, Mr. Harry Flynn; Peterborough by-election; Yale, Colchester, St. John, East Elgin; War Time Elections Act, 217; the tariff—Opposition dare not make it an issue; National Liberal Convention, 1919, 218; statement of leader of Opposition at Kingston; tariff a matter of vital interest; Opposition resolutions of 1919 and 1920, 221; Government will welcome campaign on fiscal policy; coalition between Liberals and Agrarians; leader of Opposition lacks sincerity in proposing amendment, 222
Average duty during Liberal regime, 3471
Budget, 3619; speech of Mr. King, comment on; Canadian National Railways, administration, 3620; loans to Roumania and Greece; members of Parliament and sale of goods to foreign countries, 3621; comparison of this year's expenditure and expenditure under Liberal administration, 3621; position of leader of Opposition on tariff, 3622; American tariff a factor in tariff revision, 3623; tariff for revenue only, 3625; Mr. Fielding and protection, 3626; Mr. Crerar and York-Sunbury election, 3627; Hansard, changes in Mr. Crerar's speech as delivered, 2627-8; tariff question, boot and shoe industry, 3631; agricultural implements, 3631; United Grain Growers and lumber combine, 3633; grain overages, 3634; taxation, 3634; land tax, 3634-35; Canadian representative at Washington, 3635
Canada Temperance Act, qu. 736
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1721
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, 1723
Canadian manufacturers and export trade, 1222
Canadian National Railways
Special Com. (Mr. Meighen) M., 1805
Chinese Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3828
Customs, Minister of, 3081
Private business of, 3078

Stevens, Mr. H. H.—Con.
De Martigny divorce, 3770, 4203
Government shipbuilding programme, 2088
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 3978-9
Immigration, 2595
Deputy Minister, 3056
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 2166
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 619
Interim Supply, Purchasing Commission, 2021
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4195
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill Amdt. (Penalty—whipping) 2901
Oriental immigration, 2594
Railway Act Amdt. Bill (Discrimination in rates) 1232
Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. Bill (Ministers and directorships) 596, 650
Wednesday evening sittings, 1829
Wheat Board, qu. 489

Stewart, Mr. J. A. (Lanark)
Alcohol, tax on, 3729, 3730
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 4268-73
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Commercial agents, payments to, 4405
Dumping clause, 4413
Ports of entry, 4414
Trade extension, 4405
Valuation for duty, 4414
De Martigny divorce, 3765

Stewart, Mr. R. A., qu. 2343

Stewart, Mr. T. J. (West Hamilton)
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill (Automobile theft) 3916
Highways, 3028
Construction, 3036

Stikine and Dease Rivers, qu. 1133

Stock Feed. See also Feeds; Live Stock

Stockyards, 1124. See Live Stock

Strathroy
Customs, 3085
Destruction of pasture lands, 1030

Streams Bill. See Lake of the Woods
Strikes. See Labour

Submarines. See Shipbuilding

Sugar, 3699
Beet industry, encouragement to farmers, 301, 3426, 3456
Canada-West Indies trade, 2255-7, 3699
Customs tariff on, 3698, 3725, 3938, 3955

Sugar—Con.
German bounty on, 4432
Imports, 3703
Industry, 3513
Refiners, prices, 3245
Season, vessels for, 1489
West Indies, from, 2255, 3699

Sully, Quebec, station, 1822

Summary Cases, Fees, 3006. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Superannuation. See Civil Service, Superannuation; Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill

Supplementary Estimates, 1618. See also Estimates
Inquiry for, 3741

Supplementary Extradition Convention with the United States. See Extradition

Supreme Court. See also Canada Temperance Act Bill
Appeal to in Criminal cases, 3006
Appointment of Mr. Mignault, 356
Exemption of Salary of Chief Justice, 2118
See also Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Gold Seal Liquor Co., appeal. See Canada Temperance
Judges. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill
Privy Council appeals, 1089. See also that title

Supply Bills. See Appropriation Acts

Supply. See also Interim Supply
Committee of, 562, 917, 1215, 1330, 1385, 1442, 1617, 1652, 1736, 1979, 2076, 2234, 2270, 2275, 2356, 2378, 2568, 2680, 2736, 2781, 2800, 2889, 2940, 2945, 3014, 3055, 3068, 3127, 3776, 3973, 4010, 4070, 4117, 4288, 4494, 4544

Supply, Committee of Amendments
Canadian National Railways—Information—M. (Mr. King) 1178, neg. 1215
Prime Ministers' Conference
Amdt. (Mr. King) 2626, neg. 2679
Reciprocity with the United States
Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) 2038, neg. 2075
Representation in Parliament
Amdt. (Mr. King) 1293, neg. 1329
Closure. See that title
Concurrence, 4541, 4576
En bloc, 2006
Estimates. See also that title
Committee on, 2193
Justice—without consent estimates cannot be considered, 1073

Supply—Committee of—Con.
Interim Supply. See that title
Non-confidence motions. See Representation in Parliament
One-sixth vote. See Interim Supply
Procedure in
Business for "to-morrow", 1025
Resolution introducing money bill should be preceded by notice, 1676
Rule 17C. See House of Commons
Subjects and items discussed:
Accredited herd, 4506-13
Agriculture, 4506
Entomology, 1024
International Institute of Agriculture, 1116
Live stock, 923, 1116
Publications, 1074
Salaries and contingencies, 917
Air Board, 3776
Alderson, Mr. George B., claim of. See that title
Archives, 4533
Canada Grain Act, 1442
Canada Temperance Act, 4533
Canadian Forestry Association, 4494
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1272, 2076
Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 2164
Canadian National Railways, 1004, 4131, 4169, 4288, 4313, 4334, 4561
Canadian National Research Institute, 4555. See also under this title Scientific Canadian Northern loan,, 3037
Canadian Press, Limited, 4533
Canadian representation in the United States, 2378
Canals, 2025, 2602, 2953, 2960, 2966-98
Civil Service
Bonus, 4534
Reclassification, 4541, 4555
Courtenay Bay improvements, 4097
Customs and Inland Revenue, 2889, 3077, 4117
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 1027 4512
Dockyards, 4036
Dredging, 3982
Entomology, 1024
Exchequer Court, 1083
Experimental farms, 922, 928, 931, 932-36, 945, 4512
External affairs, 2437
Fish-breeding establishments, 2185, 4036
Fish inspection, 2182
Fishery officers and guardians, 2177
Fisheries patrol service, 2177

Supply—Committee of—Con.
Subjects and items discussed.—Con
Fishery problems, scientific investigation, 2188
Fisheries protection service, 4036
Flax, 931
Geological Survey, 2141-8, 2162
Government Shipbuilding Programme, 2076. See also under this title, Shipbuilding
Grand Trunk Loan, 4131, 4168, 4288, 4313, 4144, 4334
Harbours and Rivers, 3973-82, 4097, 4536
Nova Scotia, 3989
Prince Edward Island, 3990
Health, 2940, 3127
Health of Animals, 926, 1048, 4506-13. See also under this title, Live Stock
High Commissioner's office, 2437
Highways, 4289
Housing, 4552
Immigration and Colonization, 2568-2602, 3055, 3077, 4127, 4131
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 4498
Indian Affairs, 2167, 2171, 4501
Interior, 1330
International Fisheries Commission, Fraser River, 2189
Justice, 1076
Labour, 4170, 4544
Emergency relief, 4535
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2437
League of Nations, 2356
Lighthouse and coastal service, 1994, 2174, 4040
Lignite, 4499
Live Stock Branch, 923, 1116. See also under this title, Health of Animals
Marine, 1617, 1736, 1979, 2190
Marine Biological Board, 2189
Marine estimates, notice of closure, 1979
Migratory Birds, 4496
Militia, 2275, 2438, 2781
Annual drill, 2294
Cadet services, 2296
Clothing and necessities, 2305
Command pay
M. (Mr. Power) to reduce, 2291
Permanent Force, 2797-2800
Salaries, 2234, 2275
Mines, 2141, 2162
National Parks, 4495
Naval Service, 4010
"Niobe" and "Rainbow", sale, 4010-36
Northwest Territories, explorations, 4494
Ocean and River Service, 1736, 1979
Oyster culture, 2177
Paris agency, 2437
Parliament buildings, 3992, 4040, 4070

Supply—Committee of—Con.
Subjects and items discussed.—Con
Passport office, 2436
Penitentiaries, 1096
Pensions, 2236-78
Post Office, 3003, 4514
Outside Service, 4528
Public buildings, rents, repairs, etc., 4090
Public Works, 2680, 2736, 2808, 2945, 3973, 4070-9, 4535
Quarantine stations, 2754-68
Salaries, 2680, 4079
Shipbuilding, 1858
Railways and Canals, 1652, 3014, 4131, 4288
Railway Commission, 3016
Relief of distressed seamen, 4039
Roads and bridges, 3986
Royal Canadian Navy, 4010
Royal Military College, 2802
St. Lawrence Ship Channel, 4541
Scientific institutions, 4494
Secretary of State, 4534, 4557
Shipbuilding, 1857, 2076
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 4532
Soldier Settlement, 4532
Telegraphs and Telephones, 3987
Telegraph lines, 4539
Trade and Commerce
Bounties, 1385
Canada Grain Act, 1442
Salaries, 1215
Trent canal, 2025, 2606, 2953, 2966
Welland canal, 2025, 2493, 2960-98
Yukon Territory, 1087

Sutherland, Mr. Donald (South Oxford)
Alderson, Mr. George B., claim of, 924, 1052, 2270-4, 4508
Animals slaughtered for export trade, 1051
Budget, 3584. Railway construction, 3585; industrial enterprise; class organization, 3586; Prime Minister and Progressive party, 3587; Grain Growers' Company, 3587; mill feeds, adulteration, 3589; foodstuffs and free list; farmers' sons and military service; Mr. King and the Government, 3593; Liberal platform of 1919, 3594; Farmers' party and record of Prime Minister, 3595
Butter importations, 3749
Cattle embargo, 706, 764
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4441-8
Experimental farms, 928, 931-6
Agricultural publications and, 1076
Flax industry, 1395
Grasshoppers, destruction of, 1030
Health of Animals, 1052-67; 2270-4

Sutherland, Mr. Donald—Con.
Highway construction in Ontario, 4296-4306
Illustration farms and stations in Ontario, 953, 956
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 610
Lake of the Woods Regulation Bill, 4219
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 3872-95: amdt. 3887
Oleomargarine, importation of materials, 3747
Parliament buildings, 3996
Return, alleged incomplete, 2250, 2270
Returned Soldiers, Special Committee, 788
Tubercular cattle, slaughtering of, 1051
Unemployment and Immigration, 1369
Veterinary Director General, 4508-13. See also under this title, Alderson
White grub, destruction by, 1030

Swan, Mr. D. D., consulting engineer, 1997

Tadoussac-Murray Bay Steamship Service
M. (Mr. Casgrain) 1528, 1822, 1825, 1930

Taft, The Hon. William H., 3205

Tailors, Sales Tax, 3955

Tampico, Government vessel at, 1716

Tappert, Rev. N., qu. 1673

Tariff, 7, 96, 125, 130, 132, 136, 147, 155, 161, 162, 167, 175, 181, 211, 218, 238, 241, 251, 256, 263, 272, 285, 296, 315, 322, 337, 350, 353, 371, 388, 394, 398, 412, 528, 559, 417, 437, 432, 570, 476, 479, 484. See also Address; Canada-West Indies; Customs; French Trade Agreement; Special War Revenue; Ways and Means
Changes, 2938-55, 3119, 3121, 3696, 3725. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Commission, 3055, 3241, 3640
Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, evidence before, 418. See also Rice Jones
Report, inquiry for, 1127, 3055
Legislation, 3118
Policy, 1878
Preferential, with West Indies, 2251
Protective, 1285
Reciprocity Agreement with United States —Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) 2038, neg. 2075
Reduction of—Amdt. (Mr. Fielding) to Budget, 3155, neg. 3686
Resolutions, 3121. See also Customs Tariff; Ways and Means
Revision of, 2, qu. 903, 2346, 3150, 3159, 3160, 3220, 3342, 3392, 3420, 3482, 4254. See also United States, Young Emergency Tariff

Tar Sand Rights, General Lindsay, qu. 671, 834

Taxation. See also Revenue Bills
Banks, qu. 2192, 3664
Burdensome, 1292
Business profits, 484, qu. 576, 3120, 3253, 3445
Cost of collection, 2100
Direct, 3147, 4344
Excise, qu. 1236, 3120. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Forms—revision, qu. 1237
Income Tax. See also that title
Appointments to staff, 2106
Collections in Saskatchewan, qu. 2028
Farmers from, in each province, qu. 569
Incomes of over $200,000 qu. 838
Instructions in French, qu. 2624
Penalties, qu. 2100
Preparation of return and computation of tax, 2567
Regulations, 1272
Returns, 2625, 3147
And penalty, 2101
Tax-payers—farmers, qu. 838
Taxes for 1920, qu. 2821
Income and Business Profits, cost of administration, qu. 837
Inconsistencies in, 3550
Indirect, 3221
Land. See Land Taxation
Law stamps, 1090
Job printers, 4123
Luxury, qu. 402, 600, 1191, 3114, 3285, 3445
Abolition, 1185
Motorbus, remission, qu. 603
Mutual companies, qu. 605
Postal war tax, 4515
Provinces, 3705-6, 3742
Railways, 1008
Sales, 3120, 3372, 3485, 3545, 3735-52-54, 3957. See also Special War Revenue Act Amdt.
Collections, qu. 2506, qu. 3830
Sales by farmers, 3956
Three main principles of, 3221

Taxation of Judges. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Teakle, Mr. R. B., 1934

Telegraphs and Telephones, 3988, 4539
Cape Breton, 3987
Government business, 4130
Isle aux Coudres, extension, 4540
Loretteville-St. Gerard, 4539

Telephones. See also Marine Signal Service
Berthierville, qu. 1233
Kamouraska and Temiscouata Co., 2175
Service, 4093

Témiscouta
Indians 2168
Telephones 2175

Temperance Act, prescriptions under, 3730. See also Canada Temperance Act

Tenders. See Purchasing Commission

Terminal Elevators, 277-79, 1442. See also Canada Grain Act; Grain; Wheat
Maintenance, 1463
Overages, 3634

Textiles. See Trade

Thanksgiving Day, date of, qu. 2098. See also Armistice Day Bill

Theft, Motor cars of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Thessalon wharf 3975

Thompson, Mr. Alfred (Yukon)
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill 4480
League of Nations, 55
Mail contract, White Horse-Dawson, qu. 2686
National Research Institute 2698-2700
Natural resources, 851
Proportional representation, 1553
Rulings as Chairman:
Member in order in reading from newspaper, 1891
Tedious repetition, 1892

Thompson, Mr. T. H. (East Hastings)
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4441-7

Thomson, Mr. Levi (Qu'Appelle)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 345; congratulations to Prime Minister; country's obligations to returned soldiers; conscription; United Grain Growers, Limited, 345; marketing of grain; sale of implements and other commodities; two party vs. group system; proportional representation 346; the amendment; different premises but same conclusion; confidence of the country; by-elections; consequences of vote on amendment, 348; no confidence in Government; the tariff, 350
Agricultural shows, 1241
Ames, Sir Herbert, resignation, 1317
Automobile theft, 3914
Budget, 3310. Sales tax and valuation of foreign imports; Canadian Reconstruction Association, 3312; protective Thomson, Mr. Levi—Con.

Budget—Con.
tariff for industries, 3315; free trade, 3315; raising of revenue; land tax, 3317
Cattle embargo, 714
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3897-9, 3914-35
Crushed grains, 3746
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Free trade, 4419
Indirect increase in tariff, 4419
Trade agents, 3808
Valuation for duty, 4419
Customs drawbacks, qu. 2375
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill
Candidate, death of, 3095
Disqualified voters, 3098
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects, 3104
Forms, 4228-47
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4237
"Personal naturalization", 4245
Recount, 3097
Revising officers, 3102
Dominion notes and gold reserve, qu. 1234
Farmers and protected interests, 3751
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 751
Justice Department
Law-clerk stenographers, 1078
Maisonneuve and Gaspé, representation, 2335
Military preparation, 2300
Point of order—member must accept statement, 3629
Proportional representation, 1534
Reciprocity agreement with United States, 2064
Representation in Parliament, 1317
Trade commissioners in the United States, 1465, 1484
Welland canal, construction, 2989
Wheat Board, 1453
Position of Mr Crerar, 1460

Three Card Monte. See also Criminal Code Amdt., 3921

Thunder Bay, Ice-breaking, 2174

Thursdays and Fridays, Rule 17C. See House of Commons, Estimates

Ticket-of-Leave, case of W. H. Tapley, res. (Mr. Casgrain) 970

Tilley, Mr. W. N., K.C., qu. 1001. See also Grand Trunk Arbitration

Timber. See also Forestry
Culling, 1426
Ontario limits, 3391
Tobique reserve, cutting on, 4503

Tinctures and Elixirs. See Customs Tariff

Tinplate Industry, 3326-7

Titaniferous Ores. See Research

Tobacco
Canada-West Indies Trade, 2254. See also that title
Cigars and, unlawful sale, 3786
Duty on, 3698
Excise taxes on qu. 1236
Experimental station at L'Assomption, 918, 946
Growing, 91, 1076, qu. 1500, 3669
Protection, 300, 3676
Harrow tobacco station, 1076
Licenses, 2554

Tobacco Buyers' Association, 91

Tobin, Mr. E. W. (Richmond and Wolfe)
Anderson, Mr. A. H., qu. 735
Black, Mr. A. H., qu. 735
Brackenbury, Mr. G. B., qu. 735
Civil Service bonus, qu. 1623
Douglas, Mr. H., qu. 735
Grand Trunk
Arbitrators, salaries, qu. 1130
Pensions, qu. 964
Taking over, qu. 838
Printing Bureau employees, qu. 1348
Quebec highways, aid to, qu. 2344
Rural mail carriers, qu. 964
Taxation forms, revision, qu. 1237

Tobin, Mr. W. J., and Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 1133

Tobique reserve, timber cutting, 4503

Tofino wharf, 3981

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. (Minister of Agriculture)
Accredited herd, 1049, 4506-12
Agricultural shows, 1245
Agriculture. See also under this title, Health of Animals, Live Stock
Benefits from agricultural bulletins, 1075
Department, estimates, 917
Publications Branch, 1074
Salaries, 1036
Seed inspectors, 1033
Alderson, Mr. George B., claim of, 925, 1052, 1059, 4512
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. Bill, 2031, 3011, 2942
Banff National Park, 4495
Berry boxes, 4115-16
Budget, 3648; dry dock at Esquimalt, 3648; Pacific coast trade, 3649; tonnage entering Canadian ports, 3650
Canadian Forestry Association, 4495

Tolmie, Hon. S. F.—Con.
Cattle
Embargo, 722
Feeding for export, 1120
Marketing, 1121
Cold storage, 1039
Montreal Harbour Commission, 1041
Municipally-owned plants, 1040
Dairying, 1036
Dairy herds, 1118
Dairy Products Grading Bill, 4437-48
Destructive insects, 1027
Dominion lands, 1334
Entomology, 1024
Esquimalt dry dock, 3648
European corn borer, 1032
Exhibitions and fairs, 1123
Experimental farms, 942
Farmers' clubs and cattle herding, 1117
Flax industry, 931
Forestry, 4494
Forests—aerial patrol, 4495
Fruit growing, development of hardy varieties, 1043
Fruit inspection, 1041
Inspectors, 1042; distribution of, 1045
Grasshopper and insect plagues, 1030
Health of Animals, 4506, 4513
Compensation for slaughtered herds, 1048
Diseases, 1048, 1051
Glanders in Frontenac, 926, 1058
Hog cholera, 1058
Garbage feeding, 1058-9
Procedure in dealing with, 1061
Alderson, case, 925, 1052, 1059, 4512
Increase in amount of item, 1057
Inspectors, 1067-8
Pleuro-pneumonia and tuberculosis, 1048
Slaughtering, 1048, 1051, 1062
Veterinary system, 1058
Horse breeding, 120, 1118
Illustration farms in Ontario, 952
Illustration station at L'Assomption, 947
Imperial Mineral Resources Bureau, 2166, 4498
Indian affairs, 2167-71
Insect and Pest Act, inspectors, 930, 1044
Inspection of root vegetables, 4343
Interior Department
Cabinet maker, 1342
Clapp, Miss S., 1332
Employees, 1332
Salaries, 1331
International Institute of Agriculture, 1116
Lignite Utilization Board, 4499
Live stock, 1116. See also under this title Agriculture, Health of Animals

Tolmie, Hon. S. F.—Con.
Live Stock—Con.
Commission men, 1122
Marketing, 1039
Pure-bred animals, distribution of, 948
Rescue policy, 1119
Migratory Birds Convention Act Amdt. Bill, 2442, 2891, 4496
Mines and Geological Survey, 2141, 2162-67
Municipalities—cold storage, 1040
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. Bill, 563, 3850-96, 3905
Pacific coast trade, 3649
Politics, participation in by public officials, 4503
Potato diseases, 1032
Refrigerator cars for fish, 1038
Seed Branch, 1125
Seed Grain 4506
Sheridan, Mr. John, resignation and reinstatement, 2173, 4501-5
Spruce bud worm, 1031
Surveyors, pamphlets for, 1335
Tourist traffic, 4495
Wool grading, 1121-2

Tonnage into Canadian ports, 3650. See also Shipping

Toronto
Customs building, qu. 3772, 4095
Customs officials, 1351
Harbour improvements, 687
Post Office
Appointments, qu. 734
Promotions, qu. 1673
Shipyards, 1889
University. See Research

Torrance, Dr. See Hog Cholera

Tourist Traffic, 4495.

Tractors, free, 3509. See also Agricultural Machinery

Trade. See also Board of Trade; Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; French Trade Agreement; Steamship services
Africa with, 1468, 1965
Agents and Commissioners, 525, 1392, 1464-77, 2893, 3460-2, 3785-3809. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Buenos Aires, 3794-8
Europe, in, 1473
United States, in, 512, qu. 1001, 1473, 3460. See also United States
Aggregate, 3115
Australia and New Zealand, 1223-4, 1468
British preference, 3699

Trade—Con.
Chamber of commerce, 1224
Development of, 1466
Export, 1688, 1712, 1732
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, by, 1276-77
Expansion, 1276
Figures, 3349
Foreign, 1221-1225
Canadian enterprise in, 3409
Imports, value, 3310
Invoice certificate, 4389
France, with. See French Trade Agreement
German. See Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Customs Tariff
Gillies Bros., Limited, letter on restriction of, 4418
Great Brtain with, 3116
Imported goods, marking, 3938. See also Customs Tariff
International Trade Conference, 2151
Report, 4541
Restrictions, 4418
Routes, 1888
Rates on. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Russia, with, 1003, 1072, 1224
South Africa, with, 1468, 1965
Treaties. See Canada-West Indies; French Trade Agreement; Reciprocity
United States. See that title
West Indies 1271, 1275, 1870, 2251. See also Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement

Trade and Commerce
Department
Bounties. See that title
Canada Grain Act, administration, 1442
Demography, Chief of, 1232
Dominion Statistician, 1231
Employees, 1218
Moving pictures, 599, 1225, 1467, 1558
Artists and Lecturers, 1225, 1232
Patent and Copyright Branch, 1496
Salaries, 1215
Increases, 1218
Statistical Branch, 1231
Subsidized steamers, 1712. See also Steamship Services
Weekly bulletins, 1220
Weights and Measures, 1485

Trade Mark and Design Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 229; withdrawn, 2891

Trades and Labour Congress. See Labour, National Catholic Unions
Platform of, 1634

Trahan, Mr. Arthur (Nicolet)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 223; disregard of rights of French language, 223; religious holidays; violation of pledge given by Sir Robert Borden; Prime Minister's professed friendship for Quebec, 224; attack on leader of Opposition and his supporters; military imperialism the mailed fist of commerce and industry; agriculture, the basis of industrial stability; industrialism fraught with danger; the "crisis of moral sense"; Pensions Act; the Prime Minister still a "downright imperialist"; Mr. Gauthier and the Minister of Marine; Quebec will remember 1917; War-time Elections Act; Government shows contempt for rights of Parliament and people; Peace Treaty; country's credit involved without the consent of Parliament, 226; Purchasing Commission; Canadian Navy; League of Nations; Prime Ministers' Conference, 227; Imperial defence; divorce; Quebec, 228; Government undeserving of confidence, 229
Civil Service
Ascension day, 2775
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 4484-89
Holidays, amdt. 4484
European credits, qu. 2622
Finance. See also that title
Accounts with Great Britain, qu. 2622
Dominion note issues, qu. 2621
Expenditure accounts, qu. 2621
Investments "other" and "non-active", qu. 2619
Public debt—non-active miscellaneous banking accounts, 2621
Repayment of $25,000,000 loan, qu. 2622
Revenue accounts, qu. 2620
Income tax returns, 2625
International Financial Conference, qu. 1237
St. Simon station agent, qu. 3208

Trains, Cancellation of. See Canadian National Railways

Tramp Steamers. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Transcontinental Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Transferable Votes. See Proportional Representation

Translation of French Speeches. See House of Commons; Debates; French language

Transportation, 738. See also Canals; Grain and grain trade; Great Lakes-St. Lawrence; Railways; St. Lawrence river
Difficulties, 3567
Car shortage, 512, 548, 3541, 4322
Rail and water, 484
Res. (Mr. Keefer) 674; withdrawn, 756

Travelling Expenses of Judges. See Judges Act Amdt. Bill

Treaties. See also Canada-West Indies; Extradition; Canadian Representation in United States; French Trade Agreement
Extradition between Canada and United States, 2687
Migratory Birds Treaty, 2892. See also that title
Negotiation of, 2387

Tremblay, Edouard. See Quebec Riots

Trent Canal. See Canals

Tributes to Deceased Members. See House of Commons

Trowers, Miss Catherine, qu. 1131

Trustees, remuneration of. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. Bill

Tubercular Cattle. See Health of Animals

Tuberculin Test, 1049

Tuberculosis, Prevention of, Canadian Association, grant, 3142

Turgeon, Mr. O. (Gloucester)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 144; congratulations to mover and seconder; the new Prime Minister, 144; the "Great Liberal" dead but spirit survives; the world in an abnormal condition; Prime Minister's reasons for not holding general election; Government has forfeited confidence of country, 145; reasons for formation of Union Government; Government elected for term of war and demobilization, 146; people clamouring for election; tariff; increase of railway rates, 147; redistribution, representation of rural and urban communities, 148; increased production and population, 149
Budget, 3447. Financial conditions and Government policy, 3447; tariff revision, 3448; value of home market, 3449; luxury taxes; taxation of lumber; tariff and protectionist spirit. 3450; income tax, 3451; free trade and Turgeon, Mr. O.—Con.

Budget—Con.
Agrarian party, 3452; Brussels Conference; taxation of unemployed land, 3453
Caraquet Gulf Shore Railway extension, 4338
Civil Service bonus, 2112
Civil Service (Res. Sir Sam Hughes) Political patronage in; Civil Service Commission; classification, 825; exercise of patronage by members; outside service, 826
Grain exported, 3054
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, 745
Intercolonial Railway, 4568
Lumber, sales tax on, 3450, 3743
Maritime Provinces, improved railway facilities, 4568
Privilege—Hon. Mr. Veniot, 3740
Railway situation, 3039
Shipbuilding, 1951

Turnover, Tax on. See Sales Tax

Tweedie, Mr. T. M. M. (Calgary West)
Canada Temperance Act Bill
Costs, 4387
Gold Seal Liquor Company vs. Dominion Express Co., 4379
Proclamation, omission of date, 4379
Rights of others than litigants affected, 4379
Strict compliance with statute, 4380
Vote, 4379
Canadian National Railways
Special Committee, reference to, M. (Mr. Meighen) 1789
Canadian representation in the United States, 2411-14
Cattle, slaughtered, compensation, 1061
Chief Justice, salary of, 1566
Civil Service Act Amdt. Bill, 2833-84
Criminal Code Amdt. Bill, 3926
Punishments, 695, 2228
Dairymen, loss to through destruction of cattle, 1061
De Martigny divorce, 3765-7
Estimates, Committee on, 2202
Excessive or inadequate punishments, 695, 1857, 2228
Inspection of Gas and Gas Meters Bill, 619
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. Bill, 2904
Natural Resources—transfer to western provinces, 2547-49
Pensions, widowed mothers, 636
Public buildings in Nova Scotia, 2744
Tubercular cattle, destruction of, 1061

Typhus
Epidemic in Europe, 4534
Precautions, 643. See also Immigration

Under Secretaries. See Ministers

Unemployment, 2, 3203, 3259, 3367, 3811-12, 4361. See also Address; Budget; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Housing; Immigration; Labour; Returned Soldiers; Shipbuilding
Emergency relief for, qu. 2623, 4535
Employment offices, 4363
Extent of, 4549
Housing loan, 4552
Immigration, suspension of
M. (Mr. Deslauriers. 1351; withdrawn, 1380
Insurance, 2, 9, 231, 237, 263, 284, 395, 4547. See also Address
Labour and, 1373. See also Labour
National Advisory Council, 4363
Relief, qu. 570, 4550
Emergency, qu. 2623, 4535
Returned soldiers, 4048
Peterborough in, qu. 4253
Shipbuilding, 1727, 1882, 1897, 1902, 1909
Quebec at, 1986

Unified Buying. See Canada Grain Act

Union Service Fund, qu. 2192

United Farmers of Ontario, 791, 3199, 3592, 4297, 4301. See also Drury
Railway nationalization, 1787

United Grain Growers, Limited, 289, 316, 331, 346, 417, 3662. See also Grain and Grain Trade, Progressive Party
Commercial activities, 516
Dockages, 3633-34
Lambert, Mr. Norman. See Lambert
Lumber business, 3633
Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, 289, 290, 333, 417, 3180, 3492
Sale of American implements, 346, 418, 491, 3372. See also Speeches on Address; Budget

United States. See also Ambassador; Canadian Representation; Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Reciprocity; Trade
Annexation with, 1483
Attitude of Southern States on protection, 3458
Boots and shoes, Canadian in, 1225
Borrowings from, 3266
Canadian dollar, value in, 3087
Canadian Government Merchant Marine cargoes, 1689, 1722. See also that title
Canadian War Mission, 3388, 2400
Capital invested in Canada, 3219

United States—Con.
Coal from, 1248. See also Fuel Supply Problem
Coal mines owned by Canadian Rys., 4317
Commercial agents in, 1473
Constitution, comparison with, 1166
Consular service, 1475, 3460, 3796. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade
Customs regulations, 3817, 4417
Emigration to, 3068
Exchange rate, 3167
Extradition Treaty with, 2687, 3008, 3207. See also Extradition Convention
Tabled, 3207
Farming, competition in, 3187
Fordney Bill, 512, 3239, 3368, 3442. See also under this title Young Emergency Tariff
French Canadians in, 1483, 3675
Grand Trunk Railway
Amount due, 4135
Lines in, 4326
Immigration, 1360, 3064, 3068, 3072
Commissioner, 3059
Restrictions, 1357
Importation of farm implements from, 417, 492, 3372, 3409
Migratory Birds Treaty, 2892. See also that title
Nolan Act, patents, 4454
Patent legislation, 4454-60
Pecuniary Claims Convention, qu. 1817. See also that title
Premium on American money, 3087
Progress in farming, 3188
Pure bred cattle, 1049
Railways, 1007, 1576
Cost of operation, 1576
Government control, 1583
Systems and freight vessels, 1730-31
Reciprocity with. See also Address; Budget, 268, 297, 1481, 2038, 2045, 2058, 2066, 2075, 2393
Relations with, 400, 3245
Shipbuilding, 1288. See also that title
Tariff, 3456. See also under this head, Fordney, Young Emergency
Canadian duties, 4254
Tariff legislation, 3118, 3342
Tinplate industry, 3326
Trade agents in, qu. 1001, 1219. See also under this title Consular Service
Agents in Canada, 1221. See also Customs and Excise Dept. Bill; Trade Trade with, 1482, 3460, 4397-4400. See also that title
Barriers to, 3599

United States—Con.
Young Emergency Tariff Bill, 2905, 3160, 3115, 3352, 3809
Rumoured new tariff resolutions, 3905

United States Transportation Act, 1007

Universities, Scientific work at. See Research

Unopposed Motions for Returns, 578, 606, 674, 767, 840, 1134, 1238, 1350, 1502, 1625, 1821, 2193, 2346, 2507, 2821, 3090, 3423, 2772

Upper Chamber. See Ministers

Upper Crossing, St. Roch light, qu. 1383

Uruguay, seizure of Nova Scotia vessel, 1527

Vacancies. See House of Commons

Vallée, Dr., case of, 3131

Vancouver Island
Canadian National Railways on, qu. 3422
Returned soldiers and shipbuilding, 1727

Vegetable Insects, 1027

Vegetables, Root, Inspection and Sale, 4343

Venereal Diseases, 3127

Veniot, Hon. P. J., 3637, 3688, 3717, 3740. See also York-Sunbury

Verret, Colonel Hector, 4525

Versailles Treaty. See League of Nations; Patent Act Amdt. Bill

Verville, Mr. Alphonse (St. Denis)
Housing loan, 4552
Income tax collections, qu. 569
Unemployment, 4550
Emergency appropriation for, qu. 2623

Vessel Rates. See Railway Act Amdt. Bill

Vessels. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Canadian National Railway, qu. 1348
Commandeered, qu. 2943
Names of
"Brant", 1982
"Canadian Beaver," qu. 1673, 1862
"Canadian Conqueror," qu. 1381
"Canadian Explorer," 1714
"Canadian Inventor", 1890
"Canadian Mariner", 1713, 1715
"Canadian Otter," qu. 1382
"Canadian Pioneer," qu. 1382, 1689, 1722, 1894

Vessels—Con.
Names of—Con.
"Canadian Planter", qu. 2942
"Canadian Rancher", 1716
"Canadian Ranger," qu. 1382, 1863
"Canadian Recruit," qu. 575, qu. 1381, 1382, 1703, 1863
"Canadian Runner", 1715
"Canadian Sapper", qu. 734
"Canadian Seigneur," qu. 1382, 1863
"Canadian Squatter", 1894
"Canadian Voyageur", qu. 1381, 1382, 1716, 1894
"Champlain", 1980, 1983, 1995
"Druid", 1980, 1984
"Esperanto", 4341
"Lake Champlain", ice-breaker, 2174
"Laurentian", qu. 1348
"Marie Lydia", 1985
"Montcalm," ice-breaker, 1985
"Muriel W.", 1990
"Narbethong", 2175
"Neophyte", 1966
"Niobe", qu. 671, 4010-36, 4041
"Rainbow", qu. 671, 4010-36, 4041
"Scandinavian", 1498, 1556
Seagoing, tonnage, 3650
Service, in, qu. 568
Wooden, 1714, 1728, 1871

Veterinary Director General, 4508-13. See also Alderson; Health of Animals

Veterinary Inspector General, 4513

Veterinary Inspectors. See Health of Animals

Veterinary Surgeons. See Health of Animals

Vice-Admiralty
Judges, 1084
Registrar in Quebec district, 1086

Vickers' Shipyards, 1967

Victoria
Drydock, 265
Contract for, qu. 565
Shipbuilding, qu. 599

Victoria Day, adjournment. See House of Commons, Adjournments

Victoria Bridge, widening, 300

Victory Bonds, 1285, 3444. See also Finance
Expenses, qu. 1620
Government investment in, 1704

Vien, Mr. Thomas (Lotbiniere)
Address in reply to Governor Generals' Speech, 430; Tribute to the late Thomas P. Owens, Editor of Debates; the late Mr. Gladu; does majority in the House reflect public opinion?; the Government's mandate, 430; Government elected in 1917 to enforce Military Service Act; the question of confidence; Liberal members of Cabinet; tenure morally at an end; Prime Minister's argument, 431; tariff, 432; fiscal policy of Liberal party; Farmer's platform; refusal of Canadian Manufacturers to sell to farmers' organizations, 434; Minister of Immigration; Canada's status; unity a real element of nationhood; Sir Wilfrid Laurier; dissolution, 436

Vien, Mr. Thomas—Con.
Address—Con.
Administration of Justice, Yukon territory, 1087
Agricultural shows, 1240
Bankruptcy Act, Judges under, 1085
Canadian Bar Association, 1095
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Administration, 1441
Insurance and value, 1278
Vessels in service, qu. 568
Canadian manufacturers and United States trade, 1222
Canadian nationals, 772
Canadian National Railways
Conductors, qu. 569
Divisional points, qu. 574
Freight cars, qu. 568
Operating expenses, qu. 1131
Policy and history of, not in order, 1773
Service between Winnipeg and Quebec, qu. 569
Special Committee, reference to M. (Mr. Meighen) 1768, 1779
Transcontinental, transportation of grain, 2984
Canadian Record, 1438
Canadian representation in the United States, 2386
Canadian Wheat Board Bill, 2159
Cattle and horse breeding, 1118
Cattle embargo, qu. 709
Civil Service
Bonus and reclassification, 1463
Copyright—Bill not printed in French, 649
County Fairs, assistance to, 1123
De Martigny divorce, 4078
Director of Commercial Intelligence, 1219
Dominion Lands Act Amdt. Bill, 4062-6
Estimates
Before item passes question should be put in Com., 1091
Discussion of, 1230
Experimental farms, 939
Flax industry, 1408

Vien, Mr. Thomas—Con.
Fortifications of Quebec, 970
Gilmour and Hughson Bill, 1096
Grand Trunk loan, 4134-51
Grand Trunk loan, 4134-51
Hudson Bay Railway, 989
Iron ores, 1436
Law stamps, tax, 1090
Linen yarns, 1407
Loans, domestic, qu. 566
Judges
Ad hoc, and Admiralty, 1084
Yukon territory, 1088
Justice Department
Purchasing Commission and, 1103
Maisonneuve and Gaspé representation, 2319
Parliament buildings, 4077
French inscription, qu. 568
Penitentiaries, 1115
Purchasing of supplies, 1097, 1104, 1107
Pierreville postmistress, qu. 3422
Point of order—statement misquoted, 2231
Polish battalion for service in French army, 4058
Privy Council—"Insular" tribunal of England, 1090
Purchasing Commission, 1098, 1103, 1114
Civil Service Commission and, 1100
Railways and Canals, annual report, qu. 697
Research Council, 1436
Russia, trade with, inquiry, 1072
St. Croix and St. Antoine wharves, 2616
Searls, Mr. George, grain inspection, 1444
Soldiers' pensions, insurance and re-establishment, 4058
Trade commissioners in United States, 1220
Trent canal, 2953, 2978, 2606-17
Veniot correspondence, 3719
Vice Admiralty, registrar, salary, 1086
Welland canal, construction, 2978
Wheat Board, 1454, 1463, 2159
Winding-up Act Amdt. Bill, 2158

Ville Emard Tunnel, 3677

Vote on Account. See Interim Supply

Votes. See House of Commons, Divisions

Walker, Sir Byron, 2684

Wallace, The Late Mr. Tom G., tribute to, 152

War. See aslo Demobilization; Germany, Reparations
Accounts, Canada-Great Britain, adjustment, qu. 2191
British Remount Commission, qu. 4341
Canada's share, 3583
Canadian Mission in the United States, 2388, 2400

War—Con.
Claim of Canadian citizens, qu. 1820
History, qu. 1625
Indemnity, 3195
Loans, 3246. See also that title
Reparations. See Germany
Scandals, 3509
Surplus supplies, disposal of, qu. 736
Union Service Fund, qu. 2192

War Measures Act, 4459. See also Purchasing Commission

War Purchasing Commission, 2309. See also Purchasing Commission

War Times Election Act, 217, 322
Perpetuation of, 4238-40

Washington. See Ambassador at; Canadian Representation in the United States; Prime Ministers' Conference

Water Powers. See also Lake of the Woods
Canadian General Electric Company, 2607
Conservation Commission, 3960-70
Development of, 844
Director of, 1346
Films showing, 1467
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence. See that title
Lake of the Woods, 4171. See also that title
Trent canal, 2954-64

Waterways. See Canals; Transportation Commission. See International Joint Commission
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence, 674, 738
Chicago Drainage Canal diversion, 186, 2225

Watson, Dr., Chief Pathologist, 1050

Ways and Means, Committee of, 562, 2100. 3688, 3698, 3719, 3726, 3733, 3741. See also Budget; Tariff
Resolutions, printing of, 3207

Webster, Hon. Senator, 1990

Wednesday Sittings. See House of Commons, Sittings

Weed Seeds, 289

Weekly Bulletins, 1220

Weights and Measures, 1485

Welland, Binder twine factory, 3227

Welland Canal. See Canals

West Durham Election, 1324

West Indies. See also Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement
Cable, 1438
Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships, 1913. See also that title

West Indies—Con.
Canadian ships for, 1870
Conference of 1920, 1870, 2252
Customs tariff, goods under, 3698. See also that title
Importations, preference, 3698, 3704
Preferential tariff, 3704
Proposed union with, 2254
Steamship service, 1275, 1488, 1712, 1714, 2253-62
Sugar imports from, 3699-3700
Trade with, 1271, 1275, 1870, 2251

West Indies Trade Agreement. See Canada-West Indies

Western Canada
Antelope in, qu. 1134
Colonization Association, 2583
Natural Resources. See that title

Western Dominion Railway Company, 3343. See Private Bills

Western Provinces and Natural Resources
M. (Mr. Campbell) 2519. See also Natural Resources

Wharves and Breakwaters, for individual wharves. See their titles
Cape Breton, 4103
Lighting of, 1929
Repairs to, 1971

Wheat. See also Canada Grain Act; Canadian Wheat Board; Elevators; Grain and Grain Trade; Transportation
Consumption and production, 3369
Credit to Belgium for purchase of, qu. 1001
Crop of 1920, 438
Marketing, 342, 346
Marquis, 1033
Milling in bond in United States, 3368
Pool, 391
Price of, 369, 3395
Rust, 341

Whipping. See Criminal Code Amdt.; Opium and Narcotic Drug

White, Sir Thomas, 451, 477. See also Leeds
Resignation of, 1619
Status of, 69, 463, 469, 477, 1294, 1326

White, Mr. W. H. (Victoria, Alta.)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 548; congratulations to Prime Minister; grievances of the West; car shortage; Commission to investigate grain trade, 549; sentiment of the West; the Agrarian group, 550
Agricultural implements, 3394
Blood Indian reserve, qu. 1818, qu. 1819, qu. 2098, qu. 2374
Budget, 3538. Alberta's representation in House; Government regulation of oil

White, Mr. W. H.—Con.
Budget—Con.
and petroleum resources, 3539; inadequate transportation facilities in West, 3540; freight cars for grain shipments. 3541; agricultural implements, 3544
Canadian National Railways
Car shortage, 548, 3541, 4322
Western representation on Board, 4315
Canadian Pacific Railway, patents to lands, qu. 2821
Cattle embargo, 704
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. Bill, 4234-5
Naturalization—certificate of qualification, 4236
Immigration, 2574-9
Immigration Act Amdt. Bill, 3823-6
Reciprocity agreement with the United States, 2071
Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act Amdt. Bill, 2484
Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 673
Transportation charges on stock feed, qu. 2686

White Cross. See Burnham, Dr.

White Dog Rapids, 4172

White Grub, destruction by, 1030

Whitehead Life-saving station, 1991

White Horse, Judge at, 1088

Whitley Councils. See Civil Service

Wholesalers. See Sales Tax

Widowed Mothers. See Pensions

Wife Desertion. See Extradition

Wigmore, Hon. R. W. (Minister of Customs and Inland Revenue)
Civil Service Retirement Act Amdt. Bill, 2500-01
Customs and Excise Dept. Bill
Amalgamation of departments, 3821
Brokers, 4432
Certificate, form of, 3799
Explanation by Minister, 3786
New and unused goods, 3813
Preventive service, Victoria county, 4388
Provincial analysts' certificate, 3788-90
Valuation for duty, 4411
Customs and Inland Revenue Department
Belyea, Mr., retirement, 3082
Consolidation of offices, 3083
Estimates, 3077, 4117
Officers, 3083
Nova Scotia, 3096
Overtime, 4123-5
Retiring allowances, 3084

Wigmore, Hon. R. W.—Con.
Customs and Inland Revenue Dept.—Con.
Job printers, taxation, 4124
"Niobe" and "Rainbow," 4018-32
Personal business, Nagle & Wigmore, 3077, 3079, 3612
Shipyards, 1927
York-Sunbury election, Veniot correspondence, 3718

Wilson, Judge, superannuation of, qu. 1622

Wilson, Mr. Gordon C. (Wentworth)
Highway construction in Ontario, 4289-4300
Hamilton-Brantford highway, qu. 3582, qu. 3904, 4252-3
Privilege—Hon. F. C. Biggs, 4448
Purchase of trucks by Hon. F. C. Biggs, 4291
Warren company, qu. 4252

Wilson, Mr. J. R. (Saskatoon)
Highways—Saskatchewan, 4307
Income Tax Act Amdt. Bill
Prosecutions in Saskatchewan, 4347
Unemployment and immigration, 1373

Winding-up Act Amdt. Bill
1r., 2095-6; 2r., com.; 3r., 2158

Windsor, use of armoury, 902

Wines
Imported, duty on, 3126, 3705, 3710, 3734
Medicinal, 3709
Other than sparkling, 3710
Sparkling, 3711

Winnipeg
Fort Garry Hotel, insurance, qu. 1348
Grain Exchange, 277, 335, 343, 379, 440, 489, 513. See also Grain
Grain laboratory, 1228
Proportional representation in, 1532, 1535, 1538
Strike, 3359, 3360, 3560

Winnipeg river., 2347, 4172. See also Lake of the Woods

Winter Fairs. See Live Stock

Wireless Communications. See Prime Minister's Conference

Wire Worms, 1027

Wolffe, Mr., 793. See also Printing Bureau, Destruction of documents

Woman Suffrage, 173, 527, 4474

Women Voters. See Dominion Elections Act; Canadian Nationals

Wood, Mr. E. R., 1609-10, 3610. See also Canadian National Railways

Wooden Vessels, 1714, 1728, 1871. See also Shipbuilding

Woods, Mr. H. W., 288, 331, 380, 513

Woodstock Exhibition, 1125

Wool Grading, 1121.

Working Expenses. See Penitentiaries

World's Poultry Congress, 4513

Wrecking Plants, 1990

Wrecks, Investigation of, 1988

Wright, Mr. A. A., and Labour, 1647

Wright, Mr. H. O. (Battleford)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 511; Congratulations to Prime Minister; Fordney Bill and its possible effect on Canada; Ambassador at Washington, 511; trade between Canada and the United States; adverse trade balance, 512; shortage of cars; Commission to investigate grain trade; foreign-born in Western Canada, 514; broader national spirit; national classification of census; leader of Progressive party, 515; commercial activities of organized farmers, 516; sale of American goods; purchases by Government in United States; Government's mandate, 517
Budget, 3565. Budget and taxation, 3566; Canadian Wheat Board; Agricultural and transportation difficulties, 3567; low price of farm produce and high price of farm implements, 3568; Farmers' platform, 3569
Civil Service bonus, qu. 967
Fish-breeding in Saskatchewan, 2185
Highways, Saskatchewan, qu. 1820

Yamaska By-Election, 1156, 1898, 3215, 3250, 3467, 4534
Boucher, Mr. Aime, 3422, 3423. See also Pierreville Postmistress; Park St. Charles Mondou, Mr., 3251
Vacancy, 1293

Yarrows, Limited, 3649

York-Sunbury
By-election, 2151, 3475, 3480, 3627, 3630, 3662, 3637, 3717
Catholic Minister, and, 3480. See also Veniot
Vacancy in, 1293

Yorkton Judicial district, Judge, 1080

York, West, vacancy, 1293

Young. See Arthur Young and Company; Civil Service, Classification

Young Emergency Tariff. See United States

Yukon Territory
Administration of Justice, 1087