

NEW BUSINESS NOTICES.

The "MIRAMICHI ADVANCE" is published at Chatham, N. B., every Tuesday morning in time for despatch by the earliest mails of that day.

It is sent to any address in Canada, or the United States (excepting postage) to the publisher at one dollar a year, payable in advance. Advertisements, unless otherwise specified, are inserted at eight cents per line per week, for 10 insertions, and three cents per line for each continuation.

Four or more advertisements, are taken at the rate of $5.00 an inch per year. The matter, if not so covered by the year, or season, may be changed under arrangement made therefor with the publisher.

The "MIRAMICHI ADVANCE" having the large circulation distributed principally in the Counties of East, Northumberland, Gloucester and Kent, New Brunswick, and in Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, communications engaged in London, N. B., and agricultural, generally, offers superior inducements to advertisers. Address: Editor Miramichi Advance, Chatham, N. B.

MIRAMICHI MARBLE, FREESTONE AND GRANITE WORKS,
John H. Lawlor & Co., PROPRIETORS.

a good sign of Marble always on hand.

Monuments, Headstones, Tablets, Mantels & Tabletops, Garden Vases, Etc., etc.

CUT STOCK of all descriptions furnished to order.

CHATHAM N. B.

MARBLE WORKS.

The Subscriber has removed his works to the premises known as Golden Hill corner, Chatham, where he is prepared to execute orders for

MONUMENTS, TABLETS & HEAD-STONES, GEMMETRY WORK.

Readily also, COUNTER and TABLE TOPS and other miscellaneous marble and FINE STONE WORK.

A good stock of marble constantly on hand.

EDWARD BARRY.

For Sale or To Let.

The Dwelling House and premises situate on St. John Street, in the Town of Chatham, near the R. C. Chatham, lately occupied by Mr. Miller, Esq. For terms and further particulars apply to the undersigned at his office, 54 1/2 King Street, Chatham, N. B. Dec 1st 1893.

Robert Murray, BARRISTER-AT-LAW,
Notary Public, Insurance Agent, ETC., ETC., ETC.
CHATHAM N. B.

G. B. FRASER, ATTORNEY & BARRISTER NOTARY PUBLIC AGENT FOR THE
WOMEN'S BRITISH
MERCANTILE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Warren C. Winslow, BARRISTER
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Officer of Bank of Montreal.
CHATHAM N. B.

TIN SHOP.

As I have now on hand a larger and better assortment of goods than ever before, comprising

Japanned, Stamped AND Plain Tinware,
I would invite those about to purchase, to call and inspect before buying elsewhere as I am now selling below former prices for each.

The Peerless Creamer, ROCHESTER LAMP, SUCCESS OIL STOVE,
Also a nice selection of

PARLOR & COOKING STOVES
WITH PATENT TELESCOPIQUE OVEN.

The listing of which can be taken out for cleaning, thereby doing away with the removal of pipe or oven as in the inside with a screw.

A. C. McLean.

ATTENTION!
GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES, DRY GOODS & GROCERIES LOWER THAN EVER

F. W. RUSSELL'S, BLACK BOOK.

ENGINE & BOILER FOR SALE.

25 Horse Power Portable Engine and Boiler in perfect order and ready for work. For information as to price and terms, apply to

GEORGE STODART, CHATHAM, N. B.

DRS. G. J. & H. SPROUL, SURGEON DENTISTS.

Teeth extracted without pain by the use of Nitrous Oxide Gas or other Anesthetics. Artificial Teeth set in Gold, Rubber & Celluloid. Special attention given to the preservation and repairing of the natural teeth. Also Crown and Bridge work. All work guaranteed in every respect. Office over J. G. Kerwood Barber shop. Telephone No. 6.

VOICE PRODUCTION
—AND—
THE ART OF MUSIC

Mrs. Porterson's (Scholarship) Pupil of the late Madame Sauton, Dolly, London, Essex, will receive a limited number of pupils for instruction in the above. First term commences on 1st September 1893.

TERMS ON APPLICATION
A starting class will be formed the particulars of which will be gladly furnished.

Chatham, N. B. August 18th, 1893.

FOR SALE.

Horses, Harness, Wagons and cart for sale. For terms, apply to

F. W. RUSSELL, Black Book.

The address slip pasted on the top of this page has a on it, if the date of the paper is later than that on the it is to remind the subscriber that he is taking the paper out paying for it. See Publisher's announcement on 4th P.

MIRAMICHI ADVANCE

VOL. 19. CHATHAM, NEW BRUNSWICK, NOVEMBER 2, 1893. D. G. SMITH, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR. TERMS—$1.00 a Year, in Advance.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

K. & R. AXES
MADE WITH FIRTH'S BEST AXLE STEEL,
ESPECIALLY FOR US.
NONE BETTER.
100 DOZ. NOW IN STOCK.
KERR & ROBERTSON,
WHOLESALE HARDWARE,
ST. JOHN N. B.

Important Notice!

Just entered at Custom Houses, Chatham and Newcastle, direct from Great Britain, marked J. D. C., per SS. Demara from London; SS. Assyrian from Glasgow; SS. Sardinian from Liverpool.

113 BALES AND PACKAGES OF MOSE FOR OUR FALL TRADE

Comprising 200 dozen Perin's Eglantine, Bretagne and Suede Kid Gloves—special to our order from Grenoble, France—every pair guaranteed. 217 pieces of the latest designs in Fall Dress Materials, Shaded and Shot Silks, Surahs and Velvets, the latest conceit in style, Ladies' Coats, Mantles, Jackets, Fur Garments, Hosiery and Underwear, Cloths, Clothing, General Domestic Drapery and Fall Dry Goods of every description.

Carpets, Blankets, Window Hangings, Floor Oil-Cloths, &c., all personally selected for prompt cash and suited for a first-class city trade, which we venture to hope will soon be in order for the enterprising new cities of the beautiful Miramichi river, Chatham and Newcastle.

Respectfully soliciting an inspection of our stock, which for volume, variety and style cannot be excelled on this side of Montreal.

Get Samples for Comparison.

Prices Lower than at any other place.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
J. D. CREAGHAN, CHATHAM & NEWCASTLE

Miramichi Foundry,
STEAM ENGINE AND BOILER WORKS,
CHATHAM, N. B.

JOSEPH M. RUDDOCK, PROPRIETOR

Steam Engines and Boilers. Mill Machinery of all kinds; Steamers of any size constructed & furnished, complete.

GANG EDGERS, SHINGLE AND LATH MACHINES, CASTINGS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

IRON PIPE, VALVES AND FITTINGS OF ALL KINDS.

DESIGNS, PLANS AND ESTIMATES FURNISHED ON APPLICATION.

SPRING STOCK!
COMPLETE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

FULL LINES OF

Dry Goods,
Groceries,
Provisions,
Boots and Shoes,
Hosiery,
Dress Goods,
Haberdashery,
Carpets,
Hats,
Cutlery,
Caps,
etc., etc.

HARDWARE.
Wholesale & Retail.
J. B. SNOWBALL, CHATHAM.

Miramichi Advance.
CHATHAM, N. B., NOVEMBER 2, 1893.
ANDRE'S LOVE.

Are some men fated by the stars, as Napoleon Bonaparte believed? In ancient times it was almost universally held that "the stars in their courses" fought against or for men. We have given up such notions nowadays as superstitions, and yet sometimes, when one sees earnest and gifted men struggling in vain against adverse circumstances, while others, without a struggle, without an effort, are borne triumphantly upon the tide of happiness and success, one is apt to give credence to the old idea of astral influence and exclaim, "The stars are against us!"

Such a person is said to have been born under an evil star. Was Major Andre a man of that description? Let the reader judge.

Up to the age of manhood everything seemed to go well with him. Handsome, gifted beyond the common run of men blessed with the power to win hearts and to please, the world appeared like a house of delights before him. His father was a prosperous Genoese merchant settled in London, and John was educated in the famous city with a view to following a mercantile career. At the age of 23 he returned to his home, the intention being that he should join the elder Andre in business. But parental fondness still indulged him. John Andre had not seen much of his native land, and being fond of travel and study he was allowed to make a tour of England, his father feeling that the knowledge thus gained would redound to his son's subsequent success in business.

In the course of his travels the young man came to Lichfield and was there introduced to the circle of Miss Seward, famous in her day as a writer and poet. Among the persons with whom he met at her house was the fair Honora Sneyd, a young lady a few years younger than himself, beautiful beyond any woman he had ever seen before and dowered with the fatal gift of genius. As soon as he had seen her, upon this young lady than he fell deeply in love with her.

Miss Sneyd was not insensible to the attentions he paid her nor to the charms of his person and accomplishments. Not only did he play divinely on the harpsichord, but he had a good voice and was frequently induced to take part with Honora in a duet. One evening he was induced to sing a song in the composition of his betrothed, the tenderest sentiments of love and was greatly admired.

A little later, in a stroll with him round the garden, with its faintly trimmed parterres, its boxes of woodbine and roses and its lurking cupids in shady bowers, Honora ventured to pass warm encomiums upon his ditty.

"Will you accept it, Miss Sneyd?" said Andre. "I mean," he added, "will you accept its dedication?" Honora hesitated.

"It was written and composed expressly for you," he added, looking down upon her in rapture.

The moon was shining brightly, the garden was full of fragrance, and a nightingale was warbling his love notes to the summer night. The very air, soft and balmy, seemed an incentive to love.

"You do not answer, Miss Sneyd," Andre continued.

"You do me too much honor, Mr. Andre," Honora replied.

"That were impossible," the young man returned in an impassioned voice.

"Will you take me in, Mr. Andre? I think it is time we returned."

"If you desire it, but—"

In short, though they did return to the house in the course of a few minutes, it was not until Andre had declared his passion and Honora, confessing her own tender love, had promised to be his wife.

As they ascended the steps into the house they were met by Mr. Lovell Edgeworth, a gentleman who had for some time been paying his addresses to Honora. He was no longer in the flower of youth, having already buried one wife, but he was both educated and well to do, and his suit was regarded with favor by Honora's parents.

"Shall I take you to your father, Miss Sneyd?" asked Mr. Edgeworth. "He has been looking for you."

"Thank you," replied the young lady, taking his arm and giving Andre a look full of love.

Mr. Edgeworth had for some time noticed and been annoyed by Andre's attentions to Miss Sneyd, and fearing from their long stay in the garden that love had been the delayer he hastened to inform Mr. Sneyd of what had occurred.

In the morning, as early as propriety would permit, Mr. Andre called to see Mr. Sneyd. That gentleman was engaged for the moment, and while he was waiting Honora entered.

"Al! I did not expect this pleasure, darling!" exclaimed Andre. "Nor did I, but I thought I had better see you, for I fear there is trouble."

"What?" asked the young man.

"From something that was said at breakfast time."

"But you do not regret your promise given to me last night, dearest?"

"No, nor ever shall, whatever comes."

"God bless you, darling!"

They had barely time to seal their words with a kiss ere Mr. Sneyd entered. He appeared angry at seeing them together, and bade Honora leave the room.

When alone, Mr. Sneyd said he understood that his visitor had been paying very marked attentions to his daughter.

Andre bowed, replied that it was true, and that it was that matter which had brought him there.

Mr. Sneyd at once became very wrath and said that if his visitor had had the good feeling to make known his intentions before he would have saved him a deal of trouble. He then proceeded to inform Andre that he had already promised his daughter to another, and that in any case he should not have allowed her to marry into trade.

The young man remonstrated, implored, but in vain. Mr. Sneyd was obstinate, and in the end showed him to the door, refusing even to allow him a word of farewell to his father.

Maddened, crushed, insulted, Andre lingered in Lichfield for several days, hoping to see and get a word with his beloved, but to no purpose. Miss Seward, advised him to continue his travels and leave the result to time. Andre was not indisposed to follow her counsel, but still lingered for a day or two. Finally one evening as he was entering the town after a long walk a carriage and pair dashed passed him in the gathering gloom. As it did so he caught sight of a sad fair face at the window, heard the word "farewell" and felt something drop at his feet.

It was a rose—Honora's last gift to him.

The carriage went in the direction of London.

There was now nothing to keep Andre in Lichfield, and next day he returned home. It was to find things in a very sad way there. His father, his only remaining parent, had been suddenly stricken down with fever, and his life was despaired of. The good man rallied for a time, but finally passed away three days after his son's return.

This second stroke of fortune was hardly less terrible than the first for young Andre had loved his father very dearly. But he had not much time to devote to grief. With his father's affairs to attend to he had his hands quite full. Still, busy as he was and full as his mind was of other things, the image of Honora was ever in his thoughts.

Finally, when things were somewhat settled, he returned to Lichfield bent upon forcing an interview with Honora's father. Miss Seward, whose guest he was, advised him against the attempt at present and pointed out that Mr. Sneyd had an invincible objection to trade, adding:

"But time and his undoubted love for his daughter may overcome that."

The result of the conversation was the birth of a resolution in Andre's mind which he at once proceeded to carry out—which was to quit trade forever. At that time war was raging between England and the revolted North American provinces, and he resolved to purchase a commission and see what active service would do to cure his melancholy.

He joined the British army to ward the end of 1775 and was shortly afterward taken prisoner by a party of Indians. Carried away into the woods and kept under close surveillance, he was otherwise treated with kindness. The report got abroad, however, that he was killed, and in the course of time—for communications were then very slow—the news reached England.

Honora, to whom the tidings were communicated, wept and bemoaned her lover's sad fate, and it was long before she could be comforted.

All this time her parents had been imploring her to consent to marry Mr. Edgeworth. They seemed sincerely desirous of promoting her happiness, and as her beloved was now in the grave she agreed after the elapse of some months to comply.

The wedding day came in due course. No one could see happier than the bridegroom and Mr. and Mrs. Sneyd when the ceremony had been performed. Honora, too, tried to look cheerful, if she could not feel happy. But she retired to her room to put on her travelling dress with a heavy heart. Upon her dressing table she found a letter, placed there by one of the servants. It was from Andre and was full of expressions of love and devotion.

The poor bride summoned up courage enough to put the letter away, to wipe her eyes and to go down and try to smile as they drove away amid the plaudits of the wedding guests. But from that day her heart was dead within her.

Meanwhile Andre had been appointed adjutant general to Sir Henry Clinton, commander in chief of the British forces. But every step he took seemed to be fraught with fresh disaster.

His position as Clinton's chief confidant brought Andre into connection with General Arnold, who was plotting the betrayal of West Point—the key of the rebel position—to the British. He carried on the correspondence with Arnold, which was disguised under color of a mercantile transaction. Andre adopted the name of John Anderson, and Arnold signed himself Gustavus.

When on Sept. 20 the negotiations were sufficiently advanced, Andre proceeded up the Hudson river in the British sloop Vulture to hold a personal interview with Arnold. In order to avoid treatment as a spy he wore his uniform and professed to be endeavoring to bring about an arrangement in respect to the sequestration of property of an American loyalist. His letter to Arnold on the subject having been shown by the latter to Washington, the American commander in chief so strongly professed against an interview between the two that Arnold was compelled to resort to a secret meeting, which took place on the night of Sept. 21. Arnold then delivered to Andre full particulars respecting the defenses of West Point and concerted with him the attack which the British were to make within a few days.

Meanwhile the Vulture had been compelled by the fire of the American outposts to drop further down the river, and when Andre wished to return on board his boatmen refused to row him back. He was accordingly obliged to spend the day at the farmhouse of a man named Joshua Smith, who is represented by some as a tool of Arnold's and by some as an accomplice.

Such was Andre's position now that he had no alternative but to disguise himself as a civilian, which he did as he now inside the American lines, brought him within reach of military law as a spy. He started early next morning with a pass in the name of "Anderson," signed by General Arnold, under the guidance of Smith, who only left him when he seemed past all danger. By 9 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 23 he was seized by three American cowboys on the look out for plunder.

Seized for unfortunates, the compromising papers were found in his boots. He offered the men a large reward for his release; but they, thinking they might get more for delivering him up, refused his bribe and carried him before the commander of the outposts.

But what need to enter into details? The papers found upon him only too fatally declared the nature of his mission. Every effort was made by Sir Henry Clinton to save him, but in vain. He was tried by court martial and sentenced to be shot as a spy, and on Oct. 2, at Tophen, in the state of New York, he became the penalty of the law was carried out.

A sadder tragedy was perhaps never enacted, and yet it has been universally acknowledged that no reproach in connection with the affair rested upon any person concerned except Arnold, who, traitor though he was, lived to reap honors and rewards.

In conclusion, let it be stated that his countrymen honored him by a monument in Westminster abbey, and his friend, Miss Seward by an eloquent monody on his life and genius, and recently the descendants of the people who killed him have removed his ashes from the abbey for interment in American soil—Million.

General News and Notes.

Marital law has been declared in Guatemala.

ENGLISH SPRAIN EXTERMINATOR removes all hard, soft or calloused Leups and Rheumatisms London and Lansdowne Life Assurance Company, London, East and West, Montreal, Que. OFFICE—DUNDAS STREET OPPOSITE E. A. STRANG CHATHAM, N. B.

On Thursday £102,000 in gold bars was shipped from London to New York.

William Gordon of Tweed, Ont., is said to be 105 years of age, and is fairly good health.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—South American Cure for Rheumatism and New York radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. Warranted by J. Pallen & Son.

The brig Corbin, from St. John, is a wreck at the mouth of the Basin, Ireland; no lives lost.

Miss Daisy Garland, aged 23, daughter of ex-Attorney-General Garland, of Washington, shot herself, last Friday, with her father's revolver. Cause unknown.

A Wonderful Fish Producer This is the little given to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil by many thousands who have taken it. It not only gives flesh and strength to the body, but creates an appetite for food. Use it and try your weight. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable. Sold by all Druggists, at 50c. and $1.00.

The residence of Mr. Orville Sila, of Frankford, Ont., was entered by burglars. Mr. Sila started out to investigate, and just outside the back door came upon the burglar, who ordered him to halt; but the merchant instead fired on the scoundrel. The rascal, as well as his confederates, got away.

Iron, on human or animal, cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Warranted by J. Pallen & Son.

A commotion was caused in Salvation Army circles at New York the other day by the refusal of the registrar of vital statistics to accept a marriage certificate for a wedding at which Gen. Ballington Booth performed the ceremony. The registrar claims Mr. Booth has no power to marry people, while Gen. Booth claims that he has.

J. F. BENSON, TYPEWRITER, & C. O.

AGENT FOR "NEW YORK" TYPEWRITING COMPANY FOR NORTHERN COUNTIES.

OFFICE: BENSONBLOCK, CHATHAM, N. B.

TO SPORTSMEN.

For sale, cheap, a No. 8 Beech loading shot gun with a complete outfit, including case, loading tools and accessories. Also a No. 10 Remington, good as new, and in perfect order. Apply to

R. L. BOTSFORD, M. D., Montreal, N. B.

MANCHESTER HOUSE.
Men's Cashmere & Hosiery, Men's Silk Umbrellas, Boys' Black Ribbed Cashmere Hose, heavy double Aces, a special line for boys, Farnmouth Fancy Wool.

Tweeds at 60c per yard.
W. S. LOGGIE

SHINGLE WOOD!
THE SUBSCRIBER WISHES TO PURCHASE a large quantity of cedar shingle wood at the Factory Chatham.

JOHN McDONALD.
March 23rd, 1893.

COFFINS & CASKETS
—AND—
Rosewood, Walnut, etc.

Coffin Bindings and Boxes supplied at the very lowest price. Full Inventory until furnished. James Hackett, Undertaker CHATHAM, N. B.

LONDON HOUSE.
HOUSEKEEPERS WHO WANT A GOOD, RELIABLE FLOUR TRY THE FOLLOWING BRANDS: "Crown of Gold" "Queen City" "Neva" "Monarch"

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.
R. HOCKEN.

M. S. N. Co.

The Sir Miramichi, on and after Monday the 10th of Oct., will make three trips a week for points down river, calling at all stations, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays (omitting, however, Excursions on Mondays). On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays the boat will be opened for other excursions. Chatham, Oct. 11th 1893. W. T. CONNORS, Manager.

General Business.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. CO
DAILY LINE, (Sundays excepted)
FOR BOSTON
with connections to all parts of the United States.

Commencing July 2nd and continuing to Sept. 15th, the steamer of a company will leave St. John for Boston, Portland and Boston as follows: Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning. Tuesday and Friday morning. The steamer will leave St. John at 11 a. m. On arrival in Boston will connect with the steamer for New York. For further particulars apply to

C. E. LARCHELIER, Agent, St. John.

Teacher Wanted.

In district no. 2 Woodfield, a second class teacher, to take charge in October. Apply to

W. GILBY, Secy. to Trustees

New Barber Shop
—AND—
Tobacco and Cigar Store.

The Subscriber has opened a Barber Shop and Tobacco and Cigar Store in the single premises Water Street, adjoining Chatham's grocery, and newly opened the new building to the corner of Water Street. He will give his personal attention to the Tobacco and Cigar departments of the business, while the Barber Shop will be in charge of Mr. W. T. Terro, late of St. John, who is a first class workman.

A. J. PINE.

HAWKER'S TOLU WILD CHERRY BALSAM
WILL THAT CURE COUGH TRY IT!

IT HAS CURED HUNDREDS of cases considered hopeless after all other remedies had failed. Do not despair, take courage, be persuaded, and try this truly wonderful medicine.

IT WILL CURE YOU. For sale by all Druggists and general dealers. Price 25c and 50c a bottle. Manufactured by

HAWKER MEDICINE CO., Ltd.,
St. John, N. E.

GEO. W. CUTTER,
GENERAL IN CHARGEMENT FOR FIRE, LIFE AND ACCIDENT COMPANIES.

REPRESENTING: Travelers' Life and Accident, of Hartford, Conn. Northwich Union, of England. New York Central, of Montreal. London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company, of London. Royal and Montreal, Que. OFFICE—DUNDAS STREET OPPOSITE E. A. STRANG CHATHAM, N. B.

WILD CHERRY COUGH SYRUP
Made from balsams combined with Extract of Wild Cherry.

Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money cheerfully refunded. PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOTTLE. Perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Remember it is sold on a guarantee

—AT—
MEDICAL HALL.
J. D. B. MACKENZIE.
Chatham Jan. 11 1893.

NOTICE.

For sale one second hand carding machine breaker and carder, nearly all new work, guaranteed to make good work. Also 10000 medicine cards, cranks, pins, combs, emery, wood pickers, mineral paint his proof. 9-21-93

May 20 1893 W. MORRIS, ex. cfr. Sackville Via Westmount Road N. B.

DERAVIN & CO COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
ST. JAMES, W. I.
Cable Address: Deravin.
LEON DERAVIN, Consular Agent for France.

MANUFACTURERS
Doors, Sashes, Blinds & Mouldings, Flooring, Sheathing AND ALL KINDS OF STOCK FOR BUILDING. ESTIMATES FURNISHED ON APPLICATION. —ALSO— SUPPLY SCHOOL CHURCH FURNITURE.

J. C. RISTEN & Co.
No. 2, Queen St., Fredericton.

ALEX. MACKINNON, WATER ST., CHATHAM.

I am now prepared to offer my customers and the public generally, goods at

REDUCED PRICES

In the following lines, viz:— Mixed Candy, Nuts, Grapes, Lemons, Raisins, Currants, Citron and Lemon Peel, Flavoring Extracts and Pure Spices, and other Groceries.

—ALSO—
A nice line of gift cups & saucers, Mugs, Lamps, and a General assortment of Glass and Earthenware &c.

ALEX. MCKINNON,
December 13th 1893.

WOOD-GOODS.
WE MANUFACTURE AND HAVE FOR SALE

Laths, Pailings, Box-Shooks, Barrel Heading, Matched Flooring, Matched Sheathing, Dimensioned Lumber, Sawm Spruce Shingles.

THOS. W. FLETT, NELSON.

Z. TINGLEY, HAIRDRESSER, ETC., HAS REMOVED

—AND—
SHAVING PARLOR
Benson Building Water Street, - Chatham. He will also keep a first class stock of Cigars, Tobaccos, Pipes, Smokers' Goods generally.

F. O. PETERSON, Merchant Tailor
(Next door to the Store of J. P. Snowball, Esq.)
CHATHAM - N. B.
All Kinds of Cloths, suits or single garments, patterns of which is respectfully invited.

F. O. PETERSON.

WILD CHERRY COUGH SYRUP
Made from balsams combined with Extract of Wild Cherry.

Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money cheerfully refunded. PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOTTLE. Perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Remember it is sold on a guarantee

—AT—
MEDICAL HALL.
J. D. B. MACKENZIE.
Chatham Jan. 11 1893.

NOTICE.

For sale one second hand carding machine breaker and carder, nearly all new work, guaranteed to make good work. Also 10000 medicine cards, cranks, pins, combs, emery, wood pickers, mineral paint his proof. 9-21-93

May 20 1893 W. MORRIS, ex. cfr. Sackville Via Westmount Road N. B.

DERAVIN & CO COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
ST. JAMES, W. I.
Cable Address: Deravin.
LEON DERAVIN, Consular Agent for France.

DERAVIN & CO COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
ST. JAMES, W. I.
Cable Address: Deravin.
LEON DERAVIN, Consular Agent for France.

To the Wives Is Sufficient.

For Rendering Pastors Short or Friable.

COTTOLENE

Is Better than Lard

It has none of its disagreeable and indigestible features.

Endorsed by leading food and cooking experts.

Ask your Grocer for it.

Made only by N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Wellington and Ann Streets, MONTREAL.

UNPRECEDED ATTRACTION! OVER ONE MILLION DISTRIBUTED.

MISSISSIPPI

Louisiana State Lottery Company.

Incorporated by the Legislature for Educational and Charitable purposes, and the franchise made part of the present State constitution, in 1879, by an overwhelming majority.

Its GRAND EXTRAORDINARY DRAWINGS take place every month.

When occurred and law relating to certificates of mates was invoked upon Miramichi steamboat interests, causing loss to the owners much more in consequence to the owners than was a newspaper out side of Northumberland to raise an editorial protest against the sudden respect for the law of 1883 generated at Ottawa. When, however, the sauce that was prescribed for the Miramichi goose is also administered to the St. John gander there is a honking and hissing that is much more noisy than dignified. The party papers, as usual, into it as partisans. There is comparative silence on the one side, which is compensated for by extra cackle on the other, and it is evident that the great question in the next federal election in the commercial metropolis will be the punishment of Sir Herbert Tupper for not winking at the continued violation of an ill-conceived statute after his attention had been called thereto. The Minister of Marine we think often wilfully persists in doing injustice simply because of a natural aversion to admitting that his department has acted hastily or unwisely, but in this particular matter, he had no choice. He has no power to suspend the operation of a statutory law and it is really for not assuming to be superior to parliament itself that he is attacked. Let us have less partyism and more common sense in these matters. The law is an absurd one, but it is the parliament that enacted it and not the minister who is unjustly called upon to enforce it that is to blame. The St. John papers are generally hysterical when the interests of their own locality are adversely interfered with, while they can stand by and, with stoical indifference, see those of any other part of the province slaughtered. That is why we, who have been through the mill, and, while going, had no sympathy from our selfish neighbors in the fog, are now amused at their sudden awakening to the necessity for doing something to render the certificate law non-applicable to boats on short forays, so far as masters and mates are concerned.

The Indian Commissioner. While no object can be offered on personal grounds to the selection of Mr. Carter of Richmond, Kent, C., as Indian Commissioner in the place of the late Charles Sargent, deceased, it is a palpable jab at Northumberland that the office should be removed from it. This Indian district is composed of the counties of Northumberland, Kent, Westmorland, Gloucester and Rutland, and nearly one-half of the Indians in it are located in Northumberland, which has more than one-half of the reserves and the largest of them all. Mr. Macdonald, P. M., perhaps, he can gratulate on having been able to secure the office for his partner, but the government cannot be congratulated on its inability to resist a too successful attempt to do an injustice to Northumberland.

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

"Without doubt Canada will be a great gainer by the Fair. Its exhibit in every department was a surprise to those unfamiliar with Canadian resources in grain, fruit, live stock, vegetables, fish, lumber and minerals."

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

An Ottawa despatch of 29th says: Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine, left for the maritime provinces yesterday. He will probably inquire into the difficulty respecting the non-enforcement of the act in regard to the enforcement of the act in the maritime provinces, a prominent officer of that department said yesterday: "The trouble seems to have arisen through the action or inaction of local customs officers. If they had done their duty in 1883, when the act became law, there would have been no outcry now in consequence of the sudden enforcement of the statute. It is incredible to believe that these officers were ignorant of their duty. Certificates have been granted by the masters to masters and mates during the past years, and non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which were fully discussed by parliament in 1883, must have been looked upon as a matter of course. The case of the Rastler is one which should settle the question. Through the non-observance of the statute, uncertificated officers were in charge of this vessel, and two lives paid for. All parties concerned in the running of the vessel, the certificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the act will be reported to the head of their department."

Death of Sir John Caldwell Abbott. A Montreal despatch of Monday last says that Sir John Caldwell Abbott, who succeeded Sir John Macdonald as premier of Canada and was the immediate predecessor in that position of Sir John Thompson died at evening at 8.30 o'clock. The ex-premier had been rapidly failing since Sunday when he had been confined to his bed. The cause of his death is not known. He was 72 years of age.

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

An Ottawa despatch of 29th says: Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine, left for the maritime provinces yesterday. He will probably inquire into the difficulty respecting the non-enforcement of the act in regard to the enforcement of the act in the maritime provinces, a prominent officer of that department said yesterday: "The trouble seems to have arisen through the action or inaction of local customs officers. If they had done their duty in 1883, when the act became law, there would have been no outcry now in consequence of the sudden enforcement of the statute. It is incredible to believe that these officers were ignorant of their duty. Certificates have been granted by the masters to masters and mates during the past years, and non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which were fully discussed by parliament in 1883, must have been looked upon as a matter of course. The case of the Rastler is one which should settle the question. Through the non-observance of the statute, uncertificated officers were in charge of this vessel, and two lives paid for. All parties concerned in the running of the vessel, the certificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the act will be reported to the head of their department."

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

An Ottawa despatch of 29th says: Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine, left for the maritime provinces yesterday. He will probably inquire into the difficulty respecting the non-enforcement of the act in regard to the enforcement of the act in the maritime provinces, a prominent officer of that department said yesterday: "The trouble seems to have arisen through the action or inaction of local customs officers. If they had done their duty in 1883, when the act became law, there would have been no outcry now in consequence of the sudden enforcement of the statute. It is incredible to believe that these officers were ignorant of their duty. Certificates have been granted by the masters to masters and mates during the past years, and non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which were fully discussed by parliament in 1883, must have been looked upon as a matter of course. The case of the Rastler is one which should settle the question. Through the non-observance of the statute, uncertificated officers were in charge of this vessel, and two lives paid for. All parties concerned in the running of the vessel, the certificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the act will be reported to the head of their department."

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

An Ottawa despatch of 29th says: Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine, left for the maritime provinces yesterday. He will probably inquire into the difficulty respecting the non-enforcement of the act in regard to the enforcement of the act in the maritime provinces, a prominent officer of that department said yesterday: "The trouble seems to have arisen through the action or inaction of local customs officers. If they had done their duty in 1883, when the act became law, there would have been no outcry now in consequence of the sudden enforcement of the statute. It is incredible to believe that these officers were ignorant of their duty. Certificates have been granted by the masters to masters and mates during the past years, and non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which were fully discussed by parliament in 1883, must have been looked upon as a matter of course. The case of the Rastler is one which should settle the question. Through the non-observance of the statute, uncertificated officers were in charge of this vessel, and two lives paid for. All parties concerned in the running of the vessel, the certificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the act will be reported to the head of their department."

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

An Ottawa despatch of 29th says: Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine, left for the maritime provinces yesterday. He will probably inquire into the difficulty respecting the non-enforcement of the act in regard to the enforcement of the act in the maritime provinces, a prominent officer of that department said yesterday: "The trouble seems to have arisen through the action or inaction of local customs officers. If they had done their duty in 1883, when the act became law, there would have been no outcry now in consequence of the sudden enforcement of the statute. It is incredible to believe that these officers were ignorant of their duty. Certificates have been granted by the masters to masters and mates during the past years, and non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which were fully discussed by parliament in 1883, must have been looked upon as a matter of course. The case of the Rastler is one which should settle the question. Through the non-observance of the statute, uncertificated officers were in charge of this vessel, and two lives paid for. All parties concerned in the running of the vessel, the certificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the act will be reported to the head of their department."

What the Books Tell us About the History of the World. Sir William Dawson has just published a book, "The History of the World," which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It covers the entire history of the world from the beginning of time to the present day. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is highly readable. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the world.

Good for Canada. A Chicago correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce has been counting up what he calls the gains and losses of the World's Fair, the countries and states that have derived practical benefits from their exhibits and those which have not. He thinks there was a certain monetary about the agricultural exhibits of the States located in the Valley of the Mississippi that caused them to lose their attraction. The New England and some of the other Eastern States, he believes, derived little benefit from making agricultural exhibits, as they were so much inferior to those made by the Western States. But what he says of Canada is this:

Novo Scotia's Coal Output. The Trades Journal publishes the following figures of the output of the provincial coal mines for the nine months of 1893 ending September 30th:

The Law Must be Enforced. An Ottawa special of 28th Oct., to the Halifax Herald says: "A rather serious and startling discovery was made by the officials of the mine and fisheries here lately in regard to the administration of the law relating to the time limit in 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or lying on the inland waters to have a certified mate. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a master with a certificate and steamboats all were by law to carry more than 40 passengers be required to have certified mates and as the places of the duty of enforcing the law on collectors of customs from water. Their special attention was caused by the fact that 'Bantler,' plying on the Miramichi river, in New Brunswick, in that locality called a ferry-boat, ran out of her course one night, in some way not yet accounted for, and collided with a boat. One young man was instantly killed. Another jumped through the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried out. This legislation is based largely on English acts of a similar character, and followed the occurrence of distressing accidents and loss of life in our own waters.

the window and was drowned. An eye was immediately held by the owner of the boat of Hamilton by the direction of the minister of marine and fisheries into the circumstances attending the casualty, when it was ascertained that not only was the ferry running without either a certified mate or a certified mate, but that all over the maritime provinces the act had for ten years been a dead letter as far as ferry-boats and tugs were concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries, although in many cases what is termed a 'ferry' is in reality a passenger steamer. The marine and fisheries department had no time in communicating this state of affairs to the customs department, and the minister has been surprised by applications for suspension of the act until certified officers can be got. He has however refused to assume an authority or responsibility when parliament has wisely neglected to give it to him. The act referred to and kindred laws such as the steamboat inspection act, the deck law and that relating to the safety of life and property are statutory and may not be disobeyed by anyone. Such being the case their provisions should be firmly carried

THE BURGLARS.

It was much too fine a night to think of going to bed at once, and so, although the witching hour of 9 p. m. had struck, Edward and I were still leaning out of the open window in our nightgowns, watching the play of the cedar branch shadows on the moonlight lawn, and planning schemes of fresh devilry for the sunny morning.

rat, and his nightgown glimmered a moment on the gravelled walk ere he was lost to sight in the darkness of the shrubbery. A brief interval of silence ensued, broken suddenly by a scowling scuffle and then a shrill, long drawn squeal, as of metallic surfaces in friction. Our scout had fallen into the hands of the enemy!

Incidence alone had made us devolve the taskable investigation on our younger brother. Now that danger had declared itself there was no hesitation. In a second we were down the side of the porch and crawled Cherokee wise through the laurels to the back of the garden seat. Piteous was the sight that greeted us. Aunt Maria was on the seat, in a white evening frock, looking—for an aunt—really quite nice. On the lawn stood an incensed curate, grasping our small brother by a large ear, which—judging from the row he was making—seemed on the point of parting company with the head it suitably supported.

As most of you know, I am a native of England, and for seven or eight years of my early manhood served in the royal navy as lieutenant. In 1860 I sailed with the Princess Alice, where I first became acquainted with a young fellow—a little older than myself, named, or I shall call him, Freeman Lovelace. While I cannot say I ever conceived any real affection for him, he became rather good friends as such friendships go. He was clever, full of good stories, had seen much of life, though perhaps too much of the worse side, and was well liked by all on board. He was just the sort of man that women love to infatuate and throw themselves away on, and from what he would sometimes in confidential words let drop I fancied he was a most interesting character. At a dozen different directions ashore. When we left on the cruise I am going to tell you of, I thought that he seemed to have something on his mind, and once I saw him take up some letters he had and heard him murmur several times, "Poor girl, poor girl!"

But this unwonted seriousness wore away in a week or two, and I thought nothing more of it. But one night when he and I had just parted for the night and I had started for my cabin he called me back. "Frescott," he said, "did a woman pass you last night?" "I looked at him in amazement. We were 200 miles from any woman, and he knew it. "A woman?" I echoed. "Why, how should a woman come aboard the Princess Alice?" "Oh, all right," he answered lightly, although I could now see by the binnacle lamp that his face was singularly colorless. "It must have been imagination that made me think I saw some one in woman's dress steal out of the shadow of the mast there, Good-night!"

We were to touch at Gibraltar, Malaga and Barcelona as we entered the Mediterranean, and it was at the first of these ports that the next of the series of extraordinary events I have to relate took place. We had passed the mighty fortress and lay at anchor near the town when Lovelace and I got leave to go ashore for a couple of hours. As we passed along a street lined with houses closely shuttered, as it was noontide, I observed a woman standing half concealed by the pillars of a church. I was just about to call the attention of my companion to the fact that she seemed to be an English woman and that her quiet English costume seemed out of place in that Naples town when I saw him start back and turn pallid. I caught him, thinking him faint, but soon saw that it was unmistakable terror I detected him on his face.

The woman was in black, and in London would have been taken for a sort of superior working woman, probably the forewoman in a mantua making establishment. But what struck me as strange was the fact of the unusual intendment of her gaze fixed immovably on Lovelace, and that she held her hand to her throat in a way that concealed it from view. In another moment Lovelace seemed to rally and started up with a cry of "Lucy, you here!" on his lips. But as my eyes went from him back to the spot 30 feet away, where the girl had stood, I saw that she was gone. My companion now became excited.

"Where did she go?" he asked. "I was as much puzzled as he, for it was hardly possible that she could in that mere moment of time have gained one of the adjacent houses or have gone down the street unobserved by us. Indeed in both directions there was no one in sight. There was only the church, but on our entering we were confronted by a priest speaking very fair English who assured us that no one had entered the edifice within the last hour. I was, as I have said, puzzled by this, but thought nothing of any supernatural element it might have.

Lovelace, on the contrary, returned at once to the ship and for days secluded himself from all company. When we reached Malaga, he did not wish to go ashore, but the commander of the ship detained him, together with three others, to carry a dispatch to the consul at that port. I remained aboard, but on the others returning I heard what was designated as a queer story on Lovelace. It seemed that he, with the rest of the party, stopped on the street to buy some fruit, when all at once the fruit seller's child cried out in terror something about a woman in black that was standing just back of Lovelace. All looked around, but could see nobody there, and they went on choosing their fruit, when the child, giving up other still louder shrieks, and fell down. Its mother picked it up, and the little fellow clung to her, sobbing out that the woman had

GENERAL BUSINESS. PUBLIC NOTICE! In consequence of the wonderful increase in my business, I have found it necessary to remove my large and complete STOCK OF GROCERIES, ETC. to the store adjoining the one so well known as HARRIS' GENERAL STORE.

BOOTS AND SHOES AND CLOTHING which is increasing with phenomenal rapidity, and at the same time do justice to my extensive trade. FINE FAMILY GROCERIES. Thanking my friends for their liberal patronage in the past, I hereby solicit a continuance of the same. W. T. HARRIS, CUNARD ST., CHATHAM.

GREAT BANKRUPT SALE! Of Staple and Fancy Fall Dry Goods—Dress Goods, Grey Cottons, Tweeds, Homespuns, Men's Clothing, Underwear, Boots & Shoes, &c., IN RE THE M. F. NOONAN STOCK. TELEGRAM. FROM ST. JOHN, N. B. OCTOBER 5, 1893. To J. D. CREAGHAN, CHATHAM. "We accept your offer. Wired Mr. Hickson last evening." MANCHESTER, ROBERTSON & ALLISON.

J. D. CREAGHAN. Chatham Foundry. CHATHAM - - - N. B. ESTABLISHED 1852. Iron and Brass Castings a specialty—for Mills, Steamboats, Railways, etc. Stoves, Iron Railings, Ploughs and general Agricultural Castings, Rabbit Metal, etc. Machinery Made and Repaired with quick despatch. Orders promptly attended to at reasonable prices and fair terms. T. F. GILLESPIE, - - Proprietor.

Established 1866. Dunlap Bros. & Co., AMHERST, N. S. Dunlap, McKim & Downs, WALLACE, N. S. DUNLAP, COOKE & CO., AMHERST, N. S. Wholesale Wines and Spirits. 17 and 18 North Wharf. ST. JOHN - - - N. B. 5,000 HIDES! Five Thousand Hides Wanted.

EDWARD H. CONROY, Successor to Daniel Patton WHOLESALE WINES AND SPIRITS. 17 and 18 North Wharf. ST. JOHN - - - N. B. 5,000 HIDES! Five Thousand Hides Wanted. I will pay cash on delivery for all the hides I can procure; also, I will buy one thousand calf skins either for cash or for goods.

TO LET. House at Chatham station formerly occupied by Miss Goggin. Apply to J. B. SNOWBALL. TO LET. Upper end of double house on King street at present occupied by Donald McDonald. Possession given 1st June apply to J. B. SNOWBALL. SATURDAYS ONLY. SOMETHING NEW AT THE GOGGIN BUILDING. In future on every Saturday all goods in the Hardware line will positively be SOLD AT COST. Remember that prices are for SATURDAYS ONLY. TERMS - CASH.

TO LET. The residence and premises on St. John street opposite the Presbyterian Church, known as the John M. Johnson property. Also, the premises known as the Letten household (suitable for two families) on the west side of Queen street, facing the Church St. Immediate possession given. Apply to MISS ISABELLA LAYTON, or L. J. TREWICK.

CHOICE MILLINERY! A HINT TO THE LADIES. JOHN McDONALD, (Successor to George Cassady) Manufacturer of Bows, Sashes, Mouldings, etc. Ladies' Coats & Sacques. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CANADA EASTERN RAILWAY. FALL 1893. Between Fredericton and Chatham. For Chatham (week days) For Fredericton (week days) GOING NORTH. Leave Chatham, 9:15 p.m. 2:45 p.m. Arrive Chatham, 9:45 a.m. 3:15 p.m. GOING SOUTH. Leave Chatham, 8:45 a.m. 10:50 a.m. Arrive Chatham, 4:25 p.m. 11:25 p.m.

CONNECTIONS. Through Express for St. John, Halifax, Pictou, (Monday except) 4:15. Through Express for St. John, 4:25. Through Express for Pictou, 4:35. Through Express for Chatham, 4:45. Through Express for Fredericton, 4:55. Through Express for Chatham, 5:05. Through Express for Fredericton, 5:15. Through Express for Chatham, 5:25. Through Express for Fredericton, 5:35. Through Express for Chatham, 5:45. Through Express for Fredericton, 5:55. Through Express for Chatham, 6:05.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE TONIC AND Stomach and Liver Cure. The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk. This wonderful Nerve Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nerve Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF Nervousness, Debility of Old Age, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Headache, Sick Headache, Female Weakness, Nervous Chills, Paralysis, Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking, Fatigue, Palpitation of the Heart, Mental Despondency, Sleeplessness, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervousness of Females, Nervousness of Old Age, Neuralgia, Pains in the Back, Falling Health, Broken Constitution, Debility of Old Age, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Heartburn and Sour Stomach, Weight and Tenderness in Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Frightful Dreams, Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears, Weakness of Extremities and Fainting, Impure and Impoverished Blood, Boils and Carbuncles, Scrofula, Scrofulous Swellings and Ulcers, Consumption of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Lungs, Bronchitis and Chronic Cough, Pains in the Head, Chronic Diarrhoea, Delicate and Scrofulous Children, Summer Complaint of Infants.

NERVOUS DISEASES. As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nerve Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve force in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutrition necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nerve has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous degeneration.

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITUS' DANCE OR CHOREA. My daughter, eleven years old, was severely affected with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nerve and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Falling Health, from whatever cause. JOHN T. MERRILL, Montgomery County, Md. Subscribed and sworn to before me this June 22, 1887. CHARLES W. WARD, Notary Public.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA. The Great South American Nerve Tonic. Which we now offer you is the only absolutely unflinching remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value which is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the one and only great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unalleviated disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nerve Tonic.

Large 16 ounce Bottle, $1.00. EVERY BOTTLE WARRANTED. SOLD BY DR. J. PALLEN & SON, CHATHAM, N. B.

LOST. Taken from Boletown station this September being the day of the Excursion, a hand-satched containing goods and valuable papers, and any person returning it to the owner, James Parley, at Boletown, or giving information of it, will be suitably rewarded. JAMES PARLEY.