A story of brutality toward a child was related in a New Orleans police court last week, which puts in the shade the sufferings of little Mary Ellen. Lucy Joseph was arraigned for ill treatment of her step-son, a boy of eleven, very small for his age. She had tortured him with devillish ingenuity, among other expedients compelling him to kneel upon hot bricks until his knees became roasted. While amply feeding her own children, the gave the step-son nothing, and he had to beg. The boy was constantly asking for food when in court, and eagerly devoured a loaf of bread.

Thursday evening closed with Georgia one ahead: Georgia, 5; South Carolina, 4. On Friday South Carolina won the first three fights, and at dinner the score stood South Carolina 8 to Georgia 6. Then two of South Carolina's champions went to hash, leaving the score even. The last fight was desperate, and ended in the death of the Palmetto bird.

A piece of elastic stone was recently exhibited in St. Louis, which had been quarried near Goldsboro, N. C., and has been presented to the St. Louis University. It is a bar of white sandstone, one foot in length by one fuch in width and thickness. It is easily bent in any direction, returning with a spring, when suddenly loosened, to its proper axis. It may also be compressed with a slight pressure, or extended, and it recovers its shape as readily as caoutchour or India rubber.

The Dismissal of Officials—The Late

Appointments-Sir John Macdonald Walks into the Ministry-Costigan's Resolution. OTTAWA, May 19. After recess most of the evening was spent in discussing the question of the removal of officials, since the last elections, on account of their opposing Ministerial candidates. It arose out of Mr. Mackenzie Bowell's resolution asking for correspondence respecting the dismissal of Dr. Strange, of Kingston, for voting for Sir John Macdonald. The Ministerialists argued that Dr. Strange was merely a Battalion surgeon, not having a commission, and, therefore, he could not be an official.

The Opposition showed that Strange's appointment was officially gazetted; therefore he was a Government official. M. Dorion argued that his services were merely dispensed with; he was not dismissed. Attacks were made on the late Ministry for appointments made preyous to their resignation.

Sir John replied in a masterly speech, showing that English Governments have made important appointments after votes of want of confidence have been carried against them. Among such appointments he instanced that of Earl Mayo as Viceroy of India at a salary of $50,000. Sir John denied having asked one of the ofcials in Kingston to vote for him, and hallenged denial of the statement. He then reviewed the course of the present Ministry in coercing officials. Among the instances given was that of the Minister of Militia writing letters to Cape Breton ordering officials to vote against the Opposition candidates. Could Ross deny it? (Opposition cheers.) He challenged Ross to deny it if he could. Sir John waited for an answer, and Ross hung his head and remained silent. Blake held that Government officials should be discharged if they took an active part against the Ministry, but under the ballot they could not be interfered with.

cupied in passing private and public lls, and moving and discussing motions for correspondence upon various sub Costigan withdrew his school resolutions. He had brought them forward, he said, in good faith, but the friends of separate schools, independent of political parties, did not think it would be expedient to press the question at present. He had fulfilled his duty to his constituents ve in the course he had pursued.

If one of the stitches is best,
Why that is the right one to use all the time,
And what will you do with the rest?" is

The "Howe" and the "Wilson" both vainly he tried,
The "Domestic" and "Osborne" as well.
But the "Howe" was too heavy, the "Wilson" too light, And the "Osborne" broke down on a fell.

The "Finkle & Lyon" or "Victor" he tried, The "Ætna," "Blees," "Leavitt" and "Weed," Till worried and vexed with his fruitless research He scarce hoped in the end to succeed. whose of average After trying in vain many other Machines, Without any hope of success. He called where the "Singer New Family" w kept, And they quickly relieved his distress. -

For here half a dozen machines were engaged.

In stitching of different sorts,
Which they did so complete, and with so little He acknowledged the truth of reports.

In lightness of running, in stillness and speed,
In construction so simple, yet strong.
Sure none but the "New Family Singer" would

Though he'd searched through the infinite
