Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles, as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, vousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run-down, and don't their lives, and many people saved themselves by taking refuge in their care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at any drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Anglo-French Negotiations to Be Opened at Once.

Paris Editor Wounded in the Thigh in a Duel.

Big Irish Demonstration Held at Cork-A Dreyfus Gathering-British Shipyards Busy.

London, Oct. 3.-Reinforcements have been ordered from Omdurman to Chedaref, where the force under Col. Parsons has repulsed another dervish attack with slight loss.

There is no news from Fashoda; but in all probability Major Marchand will shortly evacuate his position there.

A dispatch from Cairo to the London Daily Telegraph confirms the statement that Major Marchand had one brush with the dervish gunboats, which had gone to fetch reinforcements. He was in sore straits, and numbers of his men had died and deserted. On the arrival of the sirdar he had the entire force of about 120 Senegalese and five Frenchmen intrenched on a small tongue of land. The natives in that vicinity were very menacing.

In order to avoid loss of time, the British and French Government have decided not to await the arrival of Major Marchand's report, but open negotiations immediately for the settle-ment of the question of the occupation of Fashoda.

DEMONSTRATION AT CORK.

An orderly demonstration took place at Cork on Sunday, upon the occasion of the laying of the foundation stone by the mayor of the city of a monument in memory of the Irish revolutions of 1790, 1803, 1848 and 1867. A resolution was adopted congratulating Irish-Americans upon their patriotic efforts to prevent the forming of an Anglo-American alliance.

DR. NANCY'S ARREST. Dr. Nancy Guilford was arrested by Inspector Freeste, of Scotland Yard, who has been on her trail ever since she landed at Liverpool from Montreal on Tuesday last. She gave the name of McAklister, though on first arriving in London she declared her name was Catharine Wilbur. The prisoner was taken to Bow street police court, where she was formally charged and remand-

DR. NANCY GUILFORD ARRESTED. London, Oct. 3.-Dr. Nancy Guilford, the midwife, of Bridgeport, Conn., who is wanted by the American police on the charge of having been connected with the death of Emma Gill, has been arrested.

ENGLAND'S SUPPORTERS.

The London Standard says editorially that it is convinced England could confidently reckon on the support of the United States and Japan in the execution of necessary measures in China. SPANIARDS DEFEAT THE TA-GALES.

A dispatch from the Vizayas Islands says the Tagales have landed in the Antigua province, and have been completely defeated by a Spanish column after a sharp fight, in which 94 of the insurgents were killed.

BUSY SHIPYARDS. Eighteen vessels were launched on the Clyde in September. The tonnage

45,922 is the record for this period. The total for nine months is about 300,-000. A few fresh orders during the month have congested the yards. QUEEN LOUISE'S FUNERAL. The funeral of Queen Louise will not be held prior to Oct. 4. The interment will probably be in the ancient cathedral of Rosekilde, where most of the kings and queens of Denmark are burled. The czar has left the Crimea for Copenhagen to attend the funeral of the Queen of Denmark.

WORDS OF WARNING.

Admiral Humann, in the course of a farewell speech at Toulon, to the officers of the revolutionary squadron at the close of the naval meneuvers, said that the friction in international interests was becoming more accentuated. Eventualities which every soldier and sailor ought to look in the face without, however, desiring them, impose the duty of vigilance on the forces.

FOUGHT WITH RAPIERS Paris, Oct. 3.-A duel between M. Charles Ernest Paulmier and M. Turot, of the Lanterne, was fought Saturday morning, rapiers being the weapons used. M. Turot was thrice wounded in the thigh and side, and M. Paulmier was slightly wounded on the lip. Madame Paulmier, on Sept. 3, went to the offices of the Lanterne, and twice shot M. Olivier, the secretary of the editor, because, she asserted, the paper had greatly slandered herself and her husband in asserting that their household consisted of three persons, the third being a former mistress of M.
Paulmier. The latter subsequently challenged M. Turot, who was the writer of the article referred to. The charges made were indignantly denied by both husband and wife. DREYFUS DEMONSTRATION. The holding of the Dreyfus demonstration in Paris, organized by M. Pressence, one of the leaders in the agitation, for Sunday afternoon, was prevented by the closing of the Salle Wagram. M. Pressence and his friends tried to force an entrance, and an up-roar resulted. The police then intervened and arrested M. Pressence, M. Vaughan, editor of the Aurore, and Deputy Mery, amid shouts and counter-shouts of "Vive Revision!" "Vive Armee!" "Vive Zola!" and "A bas Les Juifs!" and the crowd was dispersed. The persons taken into custody were subsequently released.

The working classes so far have been held aloof, and the leaders of the rival parties are doing their utmost to stir them up. PHILIPPINE SITUATION IMinsurgent leaders.'

THE FILIPO GOVERNMENT. There is considerable comment upon Aguinaldo's speech at Malolos on Thursday. During the course of his remarks, Aguinaldo said: "Our friends, the Americans, came for the purpose of demonstrating the generosity and grandeur of their government and to assist in releasing the people from slavery without annexing the islands, thus setting a good example. We now understand and appreciate the Monroe doctrine of America for Americans, and justice demands that they add "The Philippines for the Filipinos."

The National Assembly at Malolos, at a recent sitting, voted Aguinaldo a civil list of $75,000; but Aguinaldo de-clined to receive anything until the army should have been paid. The Spanish community in Manila is telegraphing to Madrid in an endeavor to secure the inforcement of the release of prisoners. CABLE NOTES.

CHINA'S RULER

Contradictory Statements Regarding the Fate of the Emperor-Europeans Insulted.

London, Oct. 3. - A later dispatch from Shanghai said it was semi-officially announced that the Emperor of China had committed suicide on Sept.

A special dispatch from Shanghai says the announcement of the death of the emperor is confirmed. One story has it that he died by poison, and another that death was caused by strangulation, while a third relates that he was subjected to frightful torture, a red-hot iron being thrust through his

During the celebration yesterday of the festival of the moon, the drunken crowds which had gathered upon the streets threw mud upon all Europeans who made their appearance. As a precautionary measure, the Russian legation ordered an escort of Cossacks from Port Arthur. The British minister also ordered a guard of 25 marines from Wei Hai Wei.

BRITISH SENTIMENT

Workers Enthusiastic Over the Plebiscite Result.

London, Oct. 3.-Temperance workers here are jubilant over the prohibition plebiscit. Mr. Cain, ex-M.P., and temperance leader, predicts that this century will close with every liquor shop, distillery and brewery in the Dominion swept out of existence. The Canadian plebiscit must influence the British Royal Licensing Commission now in session. The United Kingdom Alliance officials here are jubliant, and say that the watchword at the annual meeting of the Alliance on Oct. 18 will be "Forward, Canada, and lead the

The Daily News says that law unenforced eats at that respect for law which is at the very basis of national stability. The sight of a law defied, of a gerenation of habitual law-breakers schooled in evasion and shamelessness of courts ineffective and unfaithful, which some of the prohibitionist states have exhibited, is not an example to encourage even an enthusiastic and daring young people like the Canadians to imitate them.

ENGLISH PRESS VIEWS

On Prohibition Plebiscite-Results and the Effect of the Vote.

London, Oct. 3.—Commenting upon the prohibition plebiscit in Canada, an editorial in the Morning Standard says: "There is no real diminution in the desire for the rightful use of alcoholic liquors until there is better knowledge. Human nature would tell the prohibitionists that their efforts foredoomed failure. The news of the result will probably offer the Laurier ministry an excuse for not proposing legislation on the drink traffic question."

The Daily Chronicle says that the result is an immediate sign of a healthy public opinion in the Dominion on one of the most insistent and important questions of all time. The Morning Mail has an article from the pen of David Christie Murray, who says: "All thinking, instructed lovers of liberty, good order, and clean, sober living, will rejoice to see prohibition definitely overthrown. Prohibition is the father of many vices, which are not an integral part of the vice of excessive drinking. Prohibition has always proven itself powerless to put down the special evil at which it

The evening papers comment in a similar strain to those of the morning, ridiculing the idea of total prohibition proving at any time a blessing to Canada, and estimating Thursday's vote as justifying the government in de-clining to go any further.

IN LABOR'S FIELD

Big Strike Expected to Soon Agitate Typographical Circles-Trouble Among Miners.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 3.-The Post today says: One of the biggest strikes in the history of the typograpical union is likely to be an event of the near future. It will be a con-certed movement for the working day of nine hours, and will evidently be fought to a finish.

Word was received in Pittsburg, Saturday by the local typographical union to be ready for the strike in the near future. The prevailing opin-ion among the trade seems to be that it will be called on or perore Oct. 10. Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 3.—A special from Washington, Ind., says: This city is in a great state of excitement. One-hundred and fifty coal miners from Pana, Ill., came here yesterday afternoon to meet at the fair grounds with the home union miners and organized. At 10 o'clock last night they got to-gether and masked, visited all the shacks where the colored miners lived. About 50 of the negroes were corralled, and at the point of pistols were driven out of town. One negro refused to go and the miners shot him dead. The police are powerless and unable to preserve anything like order. One brave policeman, Anderson Gannon, went up to the whole mob and demanded them to disperse. They answered by leveling their pistols at

The masked miners then took the town. Chief of Police Call turned in the fire alarm and called out the citizens to assist in keeping the peace. Several are deputized, and if there is a new outbreak of the trouble, much bloodshed is likely to result. At a late hour last night, the streets were crowded with people. The masked men have hid themselves, possibly to make an attack on other negro shacks. There are possibly 50 negroes who declare they will die before they leave

Business Soon Concluded After H merson's Case Was Decided.

Two Persons Sent to the Central-Suit Against Street Railway Company Goes Over-Several Cases Settled Without Trial-Good Words for the Management of the Ja and Insane Asylum.

The business of the Middlesex fall assizes was completed on Saturday afternoon, immediately after the murder trial, which will stand in the history of London as one most exceptional in character. The court room was practically deserted by the crowds that thronged the place from the beginning of the trial until its end. The finale was marked by an occurrence seidom witnessed in a British court of justice, bringing to a sudden termination the solemnity of the occasion, and characterized by conduct that, from court officials and those most interested, recheer was not a desirable thing, and those who have had many years' experience in London's court house, say they never saw such an occurrence there before, and hope never to see it re-

When silence permitted, the business of the court was resumed. At 3:30, George Donaghy, who pleaded guilty to assaulting and wounding P. C. McDon-ald; and David Stewart, of Front street, South London, who pleaded guilty to an attempted indecent assault upon Miss Maude Thompson near Clark's bridge, while she was on her way home from church, were brought

The Forest Fires in Colorado Under Partial Control.

Great Loss of Life Believed to Have Resulted From the Wisconsin Conflagation-More Than 100 People

Denver, Col., Oct. 3.—Snow and rain have checked the progress of the forest fires on the main range in Colorado, and it is now thought that the further destruction of timber is prevented. At least all danger to the threatened towns is over. The temperature here has fallen perceptibly, and dispatches from the mountain towns indicate a similar fortunate change. At present nothing like a correct estimate of the damage done can be given, and it will be days before a correct statement of the losses by the fires that have been raging for a week or more can be made.

GALE AND FIRE WORK TO-GETHER.

The wind was blowing yesterday at the rate of 45 miles an hour, from the southwest when the fire started at the Denver and Rio Grande freight depot at the foot of Cuchares street, and the fiames spread with great rapidity. A strip four blocks from north to south, two blocks wide from east to west, was burned over. The Antlers Hotel, one of the largest in the west, several lumber yards and two blocks of business houses were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $1,-000,000. Antlers Hotel, $350,000; Newton Lumber Company, $60,000; Crissey & Fowler Lumber Company, $30,000; El Paso Lumber Company, $35,000; Irving & Sons, blacksmiths, $20,000; Denver and Rio Grande Railway, $30,000; Gulf depot, $5,000; Home Hotel, $3,500. General losses of business firms and individuals not enumerated above, $46,000. The fire started in a pile of rubbish underneath the platform of the Denver and Rio Grande freight depot. Within five minutes it had communicated to freight cars standing at the depot, and it spread so rapidly that is was impossible to move any of the cars. Half a car of powder exploded and scattered fire in all directions.

IN THE WOODS.

A special from Red Cliff says norning is heard in Eagle county but talk of fire from all sections. From reports of new territory in the grasp of the flames, there will be little timber left to tell the tale. A new county sending volumes of fire and smoke heavenward is Bear Willow-and Lake Creeks, a magnificent stretch of forest. Ranchmen on Gore Creek are having a desperate time saving their homes. Among the side hills near Minturn, even the ground is burning. Cattlemen are getting their cattle into unburnt districts as rapidly as possible, and even then are compelled to keep a close watch on them and keep them moving. A regular gale is blowing throughout the country, which means the fast traveling fire will be driven forward a hurrican of flames.

IN WISCONSIN.

A special from Rice Lake says relief parties are now out through the border district; south and west of Milwaukee. trict; south and west of Milwaukee. The loss of life from the disastrous forest fires can not now be estimated, but it will be great.

SCORES OF LIVES LOST.

More than 100 persons are missing Many dead bodies have been found and they are burned beyond recogni-tion. The remains of one man named Nelson were found today at the bottom of a well where he had gone to escape the fire. At another place a woman and two children were found in a The woman was so badly burned that she will die. At another place where a man had been plowing in a field his charred remains and the carcasses of his horses were found. All the cattle, horses and other stock in a large district have been burned to death. Even the wild animals could not escape the flames. The wind was southeast, and blowing at a rate of, 40 miles an hour. Fires are now raging in the hardwood timber lands be-

Great Destruction of Property in Georgia-Large Loss of Life Probable.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 3.-For eighteen hours, from 3 o'clock yesterday morning until 7 o'clock at night, Savannah was in the grasp of a West Indian cyclone. During that time the wind blew steadily from 50 to 70 miles an' hour. While the city escaped with comparatively little damage, the loss of property among the sea islands of the Georgia and South Carolina coasts is believed to be heavy. For miles in every direction around Savannah the low lands along the rivers are submerged. Only one fatality has so far been reported; but heavy loss of life is feared from the South Carolina islands. The conditions now are similar to those during the awful storm of 1893. Owing to the submerged country and the isolated location of the islands no news can be obtained from them until the water subsides. loss to rice growers alone will be from $50,000 to $75,000. Of the entire rice crop along the Savannah River, valued at $250,000, all but about 15 per cent has been lost in this and the preceding storms. The damage to shipping is considerable.

Amos Cartwright, Hullett, had the first two fingers of his right hand bad-ly lacerated while feeding a cuttingbox on Saturday.

On Wednesday of last week, Miss M. Shaw and Mr. Lachie McLean, of Marthaville, were quietly married by Rev. Mr. Jordan at Strathroy.

Mr. James Hutcheson, of Mitchell, is suffering from blood poisoning, caused by a kick from a horse, which he received some three weeks ago. Harry Stock, arrested at Brantford while trespassing in the officers' quarters at the Dufferin Rifles' armory, has been sentenced to four months in jail. While teetering on a board over a low fence a few days ago, Louie, the little daughter of John Foreman, of Lucan, fell and broke her arm just below the elbow. James McCool, Clinton, received a nasty wound the other day while put-ting a check on a horse. The animal struck him with such force as to burst several veins in his head.

Joseph Bullard, Wingham, who was njured by a board thrown from a saw in the mill, and striking him in the abdomen, has died of his injuries. He leaves a widow and seven children. Edward Bull, a lad of 14, was sentenced by mistake in the Windsor police court on Friday. When asked to plead to the charge of using insulting language to Mrs. Mettler, he replied "Unguilty." The magistrate thought he said "I'm guilty," and after giving him a lecture, fined him $4.33, or ten days' imprisonment. MONTREAL WINS THE CHAM-PIONSHIP.

Montreal is again-for the first time in four years—in possession of the lacrosse championship and the holders of the title are the National Lacrosse Club, the latest addition to the senior ranks. The match with the Torontos Saturday was to settle the tie which those teams played in the Queen City on the 10th of last month, and the western men went down before the Montrealers by a score of 4 to 2.

HID HER IN THE WOODS. Toronto, Oct. 3 .- About two months ago Alma Landon, aged 17, the daughter of well-to-do parents at Lapeer, Mich., disappeared, and her parents have searched in vain for her. She had a companion named Lulu Gummerson, with whom she went to school, and who left Lapeer two years ago for Woodstock, Ont., where she has lately been a servant in the Commercial Hotel. Lulu returned to Lapeer about ten weeks ago on a visit to her parents, and renewed her friendship with Alma Landon. Lulu and Alma's parents do not appear to have been very friendly but when the Landon girl disappeared no suspicion attached to Lulu, who almost immediately after returned to Woodstock. In the search for Alma a letter was sent to Lulu asking if she knew where her companion was likely to have gone. Lulu wrote to say that she was with Mrs. Bert Miller, Woodstock. Mrs. Landon, instead of writing, as Lulu evidently expected, came straight to Woodstock, to find that her daughter had probably been there, but had gone away. The Gummerson girl says she got Alma away from Lapeer, hiding her in the woods near the town the first night and giving her money to go away, but where to neither threats nor entreaties can induce her to say.

The Landons have applied for a warrant to arrest the Gummerson girl, who is only 19, on the charge of abduction, and the Canadian police are in the meantime keeping her under ob-servation and searching high and low for Alma Landon.

RAN AWAY AND MARRIED. Youngstown, O., Oct. 3 .- Miss Agnes McKelvey, daughter of a wealthy oil operator at Butler, Pa., and Pte. Benjamin F. Beatty, Fifth United States Volunteers, stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., eloped to this city and were married on Friday night. Beatty was on a furlough.

He says: My wife was most terribly afflicted with protruding piles, and contemplated a surgical opera-tion. A friend of ours recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and less than one box effected a complete cure. We were so pleased with the ointment that I tried it myself, as I have been troubled with an unsightly skin affliction which covered the lower part of my face.

For 25 years I suffered untold agony, and was treat-ed by the best medical skill in the United States. I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment worth its weight in gold for piles and skin disease.

Four Men Perish in a Coal Mine.

A Girl Shoots Her Mother and Hersel -Another Girl Suffocated by Gas.

A GIRL'S TERRIBLE DEED. Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 3.—Bertha Beilstein killed her mother yesterday and later put four bullets into her own body, from the effects of which she cannot recover. She said: "I wanted to die, and did not want my mother to live and fret over my death." The girl had been despondent since her father's death last December.

FATAL EXPLOSION. New York, Oct. 3.-There was an explosion yesterday at the works of the Laffin & Rand Powder Company, at Mountain View, near Paterson, N. J. Two men were killed, but none of the other workmen were injured.

FOUR MINERS PERISH. Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 3.-Four miners were burned to death in the Mid-vale slope of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company at Midvale on Saturday. A fire broke out in the slope about noon. Of the 150 men in the mine all escaped but four. SUFFOCATED.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 3.-Etta Alice Seburn, daughter of Hamilton Seburn, of Decew Falls, a cook employed at the residence of Wm. Chaplin, James street, was suffocated by gas in her room on Friday night.

IN THE RIVER. New York, Oct. 3 .- The body of Daniel O. Esbaugh, president of the defunct New England Loan and Trust Company, has been found in the North River, opposite Hoboken. Esbaugh mysteriously disappeared on Monday last.

KILLED THE MAN.

George Tuttle and a young man named Youngs are in jail at Hillsdale, Mich., charged with the murder of William Roach, in Litchfield township. All of the parties were at the fair, and in the evening got into a dispute over a young girl. Roach took her in his buggy and drove to Mr. Brown's, in Litchfield, arriving there about midnight. Tuttle and Youngs followed, and on the way procured two revolvers. Arriving at the house, Roach was called out, a quarrel ensued, and Youngs shot Roach three times. Roach died about 4 o'clock. Tuttle surrendered himself to the sheriff, and Youngs was easily found and placed in con-

$150 FOR A POST CARD. Montreal, Oct. 3.-A commercial traveler, A. McNeil, brought action against a Madoc merchant, one, Milne, for slander. In taking an order from Milne a mistake was made, and the latter wrote a postcard to plaintiff's employers saying that McNeil "was see-ing double." Plaintiff contended that such words would convey the impression that he was intoxicated. Defendant contended that he simply intended to say that McNeil had made a mistake. Verdict for plaintiff $150. LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good. Algy—Have you ordered your spring suit yet? Reggy—I'm afraid I'll have to be satisfied with the suit my tailor brought against me for the clothes I got last winter.

The Emerson Verdict.

Whatever the strictly judicial mind, which sets aside sympathy, may think of the result of the Emerson trial, the verdict seems to meet with a considerable amount of approval in this community. It would be unfortunate if it conveyed throughout the country the impression that a Middlesex jury condoned the promiscuous use of firearms, or laid down the law that a man was justified in repelling a fisticuff attack with a revolver. The too common practice of carrying lethal weapons is one that should be stamped out by drastic penalties, making due allowance for persons who can satisfy the authorities that firearms are necessary to their protection. This lesson was painfully brought home by the Toohey tragedy. In Emerson's case however, there are circumstances which make the verdict less hable to be regarded as a dangerous precedent. For one thing, there was nothing sinister in the fact hat he possessed a revolver, as it was a feature of his stage "business." It was his misfortune that he chanced to have it in his pocket at the time. Without it the law would have avenged him amply for the insult and violence he suffered, and he would have been spared this long period of mental anxiety. The act was not committed with malice aforethought. He fired the fatal shot under extreme provocation, and the jury had his testimony that it was not done with fatal intent, but that he thought to shoot over Tuttle's head. He had also the plea that he acted in self-defense, as he considered his life in danger. He had already received a quantum of punishment by six months' imprisonment, and this probably influenced the jury's decision. Emerson's character, too, was greatly in his favor. He found that a good name was better than great riches for the purposes of his defense. His affection for his wife and child and the devotion of Mrs. Emerson naturally threw an atmosphere of sympathy around the prisoner, which the jury must have felt; but looking only at the' evidence, and considering the punishment already inflicted, it may be said that justice has been fairly well served, while the community has been saved from the danger of a sidly emotion which would have made Emerson a hero and acquitted him directly after the deed, without full inquiry into the facts. We are glad to see that Mr. Emerson takes the proper view of his own case, as appears in his remarks in an interview published elsewhere.

THE WORLD OF LITERATURE

Two of Wm. Watson's Poems-A Charm ing Dedication-An Interesting Number of Cosmopolis.

The Bibelot (J. B. Mosler, Portland, Me.) for August has come to hand, and is in the form of a neat reprint of William Watson's two poems, Wordsworth's Grove and Musae Lachrymae. The two poems have great merits, and to be able to get them in this tasteful form for the modest sum of five cents is a great opportunity. This brings them within the reach of all, and so we shall not quote from them, but reproduce the dedication to James Bromley, of Lathom, Lancashire, as it shows both the spirit of Wordsworth and the spirit of Watson:

This is an unknown land to many who is latest and best in the literature of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. We cannot review his review, but a glance at his essay shows that this region is not barren. While Sweden, during the past twelve months, has thus brilliantly enriched Scandinavian Belles Letters, Norway, usually so prolific and original, has produced nothing of importance. Of a new book by a Swedish lady, he says: "All who hunger and thirst after true poetry may here should have been written by a north-the least amazing part of it. It is absolutely Sicilian in tone and expres-picturesque poetry, the childish rai-vete, the fierce vindictiveness, the impulsive devotion of these children of the south being described, or rather revealed, with a dramatic intensity combined with an artistic restraint, of which only intimate knowledge interpreted by the insight of genius is capable. In the following sentence he gives us one of the gems: "Gaetano of a volcano Etna really was. He had not reflected that it had snow on its forehead, oak woods in its beard, vine-leaves round its waist, and that it stood and trampled in orange groves one of many writers whose works are passed in review, the whole concluding with this estimate of George

Brande's treatment of Heinrich Heine:

"It is certainly the most subtle and

THE FRENCH SECTION.

In the French section there are two studies of this kind, "quelques ouvrages allemands," and "etude sur la litterature du moyen age" (Le Roman D'Aventure). The first criticises Gerhard Hauptmann's great symbolic drama, "The Sunken Bell," and some of Sudermann's recent works, with a glance at two or three less important works. "It is an amateur, curious, concerning things German, who here examines according to his fancy some of the most recent works." The conclusion of the French amateur is: "Without any pronounced idea, it seems to us that the Germans carry their intellectual effort mainly into the theater and the schools. Their originality does not seem to us at present to open new horizons in poetry and romance; is contempfation seasonable when the living forces of a nature are directed towards action, political, industrial, and colonial"? The second discusses the and first blossoming in France about the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.

Another correspondent cables: The palace revolution at Pekin is treated here as a minor occurrence in the slow solution of the Chinese question. All that the European powers are now striving to decide is whether the decrepit empire will henceforth be a dependency of the czar's or whether the territory will be made accessible to the rest of the world to increase the world's wealth. The new man who mounts the throne will, like Alexander I, of Russia, be preceded by men who murdered his grandfather, surrounded by the men who murdered his father, and followed by the men who may murder himself." There is best reason for believing that Lord Salisbury will hold steadily aloof from this turmoil and intrigue. Still another correspondent says: It is in China the British policy is enveloped in a dark fog. No intelligible account has appeared in the English press of what has occurred there, not even the Times. What measures will be taken by Lord Salisbury for the protection of British interests is unknown. Kang Yuwei is safe at Hong Kong, but the British cruiser cleared for action in order to protect the liner on which the fugitive councilor of the emperor was escaping with his life. Another Chinese friend of England has been spared through the intervention of the British minister. This is Chang Yin Houan, who was a special envoy to the jubilee last year.

PETERING OUT.

The Fashoda affair is dropping into the background. The extremists, both in England and France, would have plased if Marchand had been been arrested or humiliated in some way, but keen observers commend Ketchener's management of the affair. The bridge was left open for Marchand's retreat after the Egyptian garrison had been stationed above and below him. It was improper for eight French officers and 100 Senegalese soldiers to contest the command of the White Nile when the sirdar had 2,000 soldiers with him. Kitchener avoided giving needless offense or magnifying a petty incident, but his action was decisive. France cannot obtain a com-manding position in the Nile valley without a war with England, and no campaign will ever be fought over the Fashoda swamps. Vanity Fair's correspondent with the Nile expedition writes that Gen. Kitchener decided that a French flag was sent is not by any means his first excursion to the khalifa at Omdurman. But, it appears, its reception was most undignified. The dervish leader gave it to his Arab slave, who used it for cleaning himself before prayers. SALISBURY AND BALFOUR. Lord Salisbury is not working in a glass house, where everybody can see him. He has retired into a dark, seca crowd of "characters." He impressed the diplomatists here with his power of making a rapid and comprehensive study of difficult foreign questions, and finding by a sure instinct the salient quibble over minor details, but comes to a quick decision on essential points. There are many signs that the British policy has been invigorated and stiffened as a result of his advice.

GERMAN PROMPTINGS. Most of the German press, in pursuance of the mutual dislike existing between the Berlin and London newspapers, candidly avow that they have been publishing articles urging the French to insist upon the retention of Fashoda, but the Kolnische Zeitung prints today this: "Taking account of the relative number of forces in the Soudan, as well as the general situation there, France can hardly expect to uphold her claim to the possession of Fashoda. England is firmly resolved not to tolerate French centers of influence in the Soudan under any circumstances. The diffi-culty of bringing about an understanding mainly consists of the question how to find a way out without hurting French susceptibilities-a way which would offer compensations wherewith the French government could, to the outside public at any rate, declare itself satisfied."

SNUBBED. Dr. J. W. Leyds, state secretary of the South African republic, has been in Berlin in behalf of the Transvaal, but returned to the Hague without seeing Emperor William. He did not even see Herr Von Buelow, the foreign minister, but his substitute is reported to have said to Dr. Leyds, in behalf of his majesty: "I must express to you the emperor's urgent wish that you and your government cease agitating in the German newspapers against the Anglo-German agreement." After this Englishmen would not be surprised at any extension of Anglo-German political co-operation.

TURKISH RULE IN CRETE DOOMED.

Turkish rule will come to an end in Crete within 40 days unless all signs fail. Salisbury has succeeded in keeping four powers together after the original concert of inaction was broken up by the withdrawal of Germany and Austria, and has induced them to guarantee safety to the Mussulman inhabitants after the Bashi-Bazouks have been disarmed and the Turkish forces have retired from the island. LULL IN THE DREYFUS EXCITE-MENT.

There has been a lull in the Dreyfus excitement since the appeal in the case, and the incriminating documents were sent to the court of cassation. whose decision, however, will probably not be rendered until January. The matter is not likely to formally come before the court before the end of October. The interesting announcement is made that the pope has ordered the papal nuncio in Paris to request the clergy and clerical organs to discontinue their opposition to a revision of the Dreyfus case. PICQUART'S PUNISHMENT. Lieut.-Col. Picquart is strictly se-Midi. No written or verbal communications, books or writing materials are allowed him. The prisoner's meals are taken to him by two soldiers, who stand beside him while he eats, but they must not speak to him. AN ASSASSIN WELL TREATED. The extraordinary lax treatment of the anarchist assassin of the Empress of Austria, the Italian Luccheni, in the prison of St. Antonine, Geneva, Switzerland, is causing much remark He is allowed wine, cigars, letters and newspapers, spends money and gives newspaper interviews. In fact, is treated like the lion of the prison. The assassin's trial has been fixed for the first week in November.

BUT THE FUTURE!

He will be condemned to solitary confinement for life. Only one man has hitherto undergone this punishment, which has more terrors than capital punishment. The prisoner is confined in an underground cell into which no sunshine ever penetrates. He is not allowed a bed, must sleep on the ground, and is only permitted to take exercise once a week in the prison yard.

BRITISH BLOOD IS DEAR. Christian blood was cheap in Armenia, but British blood is dear wherever it is shed. The slaughter of the British soldiers was the tragic incident which brought the comedy of Cretan diplomats to an end. Prince George will probably be installed as King of This is one of the wishes the Queen of Denmark. Her death will hasten the appointment. SPAIN'S FRAME OF MIND.

M. Blowitz sends to the Times an account of the frame of mind of Spaniards on the joint peace commission. He says that in the eyes of the Spanlards the sole question to be decided is the Philippines, whereon they are as firmly resolved to resist the pretensions of the Americans as the Americans are resolved not to abandon an inch of their pretensions in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The Spaniards seem persuaded that the Americans, realizing the difficulties of the annexation of the Philippines, and the extreme reluctance of the Spanish to accept an American protectorate over them, will come to an arrangement at once advantageous and honorable to both parties, and resulting in mutual and profitable co-

DISTRESS IN THE WEST INDIES. The subscriptions to the lord mayor's fund for the relief of the sufferers by the recent hurricane in the British West Indies are coming in quite slowly, and it is thought by many persons that if efficient aid is to be extended it will have to be by means of an imperial grant. A deputation from the West Indian committee waited on Lord Selborne and expressed the opinion that imperial aid, probably on a large scale, would be required to relieve the distress. Lord Selborne that he would report the observations of the deputation to Mr. Joseph Chamber-

THE CZAR'S PEACE CONGRESS. Berlin, Oct. 3.-Dr. Von Holleben, the German ambassador to the United States, who is now in Germany, will make his first report to Emperor William on the latter's return to Berlin a week hence. His majestly is particularly anxious for information regarding the present state of the tariff negotiations with the United States and their prospects, as on them largely depends the settling of those economic questions in the reichstag and the Prussian diet which concerns America. The Prussian agrarians have prepared quite a number of measures more or less inimical to American imports. The correspondent here of the Asso-clated Press learns from the German foreign office that the czar's proposal for a disarmament congress is quietly but slowly making headway. the powers, including France, have now accepted the invitation, but with limitations. Italy's repry, which has been published, indicates clearly what will be the basis of the conference. Ulterior questions, especially regarding territorial arrangements, such as Alsace-Lorraine, Egypt, and the pope's temporal powers will be strictly booed. The discussion will be confined to the social and economic aspect of the question. One German newspaper suggests that Russia should begin disarming by reducing her army on the western frontier by 50,000 men, adding that Germany and Austria would then make a similar reduction, and that by exercising influence at Paris, Russia could obtain the reduction of another 25,000 men on each side of the Franco-German frontier. Thus, the European active armies would be at one stroke reduced by 200,000 men.

BISMARCK'S SARCOPHAGUS. The sarcophagus for Prince Bismarck which Emperor William commanded the sculptor Begas to execute will be a very elaborate figure. The prince will rest on the sarcophagus bareheaded and in the uniform of a cuirassier partly covered by the German flag. Beside the pedestal a dog man flag. will watch the body, symbolizing fidelity. In a niche above the monument will be seated a weeping woman, typifying Germany's sorrow. A figure of justice will be on the left.

RECOLLECTIONS OF BISMARCK. It is related that Bismarck, at the age of 78, almost decided to challenge Gen. Count von Caprivi, the foreign chancellor, to a pistol duel. This was because he became aware that Caprivi, on the occasion of Prince Bismarck's visit to Vienna for the purpose of attending his son's wedding, sent a circular to all the German ambassadors abroad, saying Prince Bismarck was a private gentleman and must be so treated, and that his views no longer had any weight. Prince Bismarck, in conversing with a friend afterwards said: "That Caprivi should interfere with my social rights is going too far. I first wanted to challenge him, and had already thought about seconds. I still have a very firm hand, and would have gotten in shooting trim again. But I considered the matter and asked myself what would happen. I am an officer, and the matter would be brought before the court of honor of old generals. There would be much talk, and finally unmeaning declarations would be exchanged. What would be the good of this? So I gave up the idea."

HEAVY ROBBERY.

Count Bothe von Eulenburg, the Prussian minister of state, returned to Berlin on Tuesday from a holiday, and the same night burglars entered his house and stole valuables to the amount of 25,000 marks, including a number of presents which he had received from the emperor.

FOREIGNERS BOUNCED.

The governments of the various German states began last week to act within their own spheres in expelling cluded in the military prison of Chere foreigners who have become prominent as Anarchists or extreme socialist agitators. The government of Saxony expelled two leading Polish Socialists and a number of Anarchist writers. Bavaria followed suit. The Prussian Government has given a number of Austrian and Russian agitators, cluding the German Anarchist, Bader Landauer, a fortnight's notice to leave the country.

BERATED THE KAISER.

A comical incident happened to Emperor William at the village of Bergkirchen during the late army maneuvers. He rang up at 4 o'clock in the morning the village druggist, from whose veranda a fine view could be obtained of the whole valley in which eight army corps were bivouacking. The druggist did not recognize the emperor, and, being very angry at thus being roused from his sleep, refused his majesty admittance. The wife of the druggist joined her husband, and fired through the crack of the door a string of uncomplimentary remarks. Emperor William was highly amused, and finally disclosed his identity, whereupon the couple profusely apologized, admitted the emperor and prepared coffee for him. After chatting with the couple until daylight his majesty repaired to the veranda, and watched the result of an alarm of the army corps through his glasses. He afterwards sent the druggist a signed photograph of himself.

NOTES. Emperor William had unusually good sport at Rominton, killing one immense stag with 44-pronged antlers, and several with 24 and 28 prongs. The empress for the first time shared in the stalking and made some lucky shots. The Socialists held 26 mass meetings at Hamburg last week to protest against Emperor William's strike speech, and the intention of the government to restrict the right to strike.

MR. TARTE ON THE PLEBISCITE

The Effect of Quebec's Adverse Ma jority-Says the Province Should Not Be Coerced.

Peterboro, Ont., Oct. 3 .- Speaking at the Peterboro Fair on Saturday. Mr.

Tarte said: "The Province of Quebec has given a majority of 60,000 against prohibition, and you have voted for prohibition. Are you going to coerce me? If that is so we have got into a very danger-ous wrangle. The Province of Quebec has given that large majority not because, as your esteemed Mr. Maclaren says in his published interview, my French-Canadian countrymen had been told that prohibition would interfere with the practice of their faith. Mr. Maclaren has lived long enough in Quebec to be sure that the French-Canadians are not as simple-minded as that. We have voted against prohibition in Quebec, not because we drink more than you do in Ontario—about the same, no worse and no betterbut because we thought that prohibition was not a safe way to promote temperance; and do say more than that, because we thought that it would not be fair for those who think that t is not allowable to have a glass or wine, to prevent other people from having their wine. We are a free people. We think freedom is one of the greatest things that a true British subject and a true Canadian should enjoy. We have made many fights for freedom in Quebec, and we have won many fights for freedom on perhaps higher grounds than this prohibition question; although I fully recognize that those who have asked for prohibition have good intentions, and believed it was the best thing to do, while we in Quebec thought it was not the best thing. Now, that is the reason why we diffed from you. All I ask from you is not to coerce the poor French Province of Quebec. In conclusion, he expressed thanks for his cordial reception, and spoke most feelingly of the generous treatment he had received in the Province of Ontario.

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

Description of the Stranger Killed at Melrose on Sept. 29.

The body of the stranger killed on the C. P. R. track at Melrose, on Wednesday, Sept. 29, has been buried by the London township council without having been identified. No one knew who the man was or where he came from. He was about five fees six inches in height, of slight build, clean shaven and about 60 years of age. He was dressed in brown plaid pants, coat and vest brown, with a white speck; hat, black Derby, narrow rim, size 6½, bearing the trade-mark of Mabley; white shirt, nearly new, with black necktie, but no collar. He wore a flannel undersuit of light gray material, and carried in a news-paper another nearly new shirt, same as the one he wore. The shoes were of dongola kid, and had been half-soled, No. 7's. In his pocket were an old-fashioned purse, containing some $2 65 Canadian currency, a briar pipe, broken: also a Standard Accident Insurance Company's memo. book, of Detroit, Mich., with red covers, with the name of J. F. Patton, state agent, No. 51 Home Bank building. The book looked well-kept and clean. There was no private mark of any kind on his clothing by which a stranger could identify him. On Friday afternoon a scaffolding on the new town hall building at Glencoe, on which four masons were working, Two of the men clung to gave way. the wall, the other two being severely shaken up. Sam Fox, of London, fel to the ground, a distance of 30 feet. He fell on his back, and although no bones were broken, he sustained severe internal injuries. Contractor Forkin of Sarnia, was also jammed between part of the scaffolding and a window case, but was not badly hurt.

The scaffolding was just about to be repaired at the time of the accident. Miss A. Ross, teacher in Form II., in the Giencoe public school, was pre-sented on Thursday by her pupils with a pretty sterling silver pickle castor. MRS. HOOPER ESCAPED

Because She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and So Cured Female Weakness.

Norwich, Oct. 3 .- Mrs. J. S. Hooper, vife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of North Norwich township, is a living proof of the unapproached value of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in the treatment of diseases women. Mrs. Hooper was a martyr to Female Weakness and Kidney Disease for 12 years. Norwich, Detroit and Buffalo physicians treated her unavailingly. She then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured her thoroughly, and made her as healthy, strong and vigorous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

What the Deepening of the Canals Will Do.

The Effects Already Apparent - An Optimistic Speech by Hon. Mr. Tarte.

Peterboro, Oct. 3.-Mr. Tarte, during the course of his speech at the banquet the other night, dealt at length with the subject of navigating the canals. He said: A fleet of iron boats had been built for the Erie Canal, which start from Chicago and go right through to New York. The question is why Canadian boats should not go through to Canadian seaports in the same manner. Canadian bottoms should, he held, be just as good as American. He predicted that Canadian waterways will carry the trade that will flow to the sea if the waterways are improved. At some length Mr. Tarte spoke of the great lakes, which form one of the greatest reservoirs of trade and commerce in the world, and which furnish from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons of trade every year; and of this, he asked, how many millions of tons went to Canadian ports in the past? Canada has only, he argued, to dig cuts to that reservoir to draw to the St. Lawrence route many millions of that trade she had lost in the past. (Applause.) The canals are being deepened by 14 feet in the hope of taking by the St. Law-rence route a portion of the trade that has flowed to American ports in the past. Was it not, he asked, a standing reproach to the Canadian people that they had not only not drawn any of that American trade to our waters but had not kept our own? They had built the C. P. R., spent eight millions of dollars in building our canals, and still have scarcely carried any Cana-This showed there is something wrong, something that can be remedied. He had expectation that by deepening the canals to 14 feet they would create a revolution in the carrying trade, and in support of his expectations he pointed to what has taken place during the last twelve months. New elevators have been erected at Owen Sound, Fort William, Collingwood, Goderich, one is going up at Prescott, two at Kingston, and Port Hope has built one also. words, the knowledge that the government would deepen the canals and equip the St. Lawrence route has caused private capital to increase the elevator capacity by 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 bushels. (Cheers.) The Trent Valley Canal will not be 14 feet deep, but it can be 8 feet deep, and there will be such a current of trade in the future that the Trent Valley and all other Canadian canals will be fully occupied in carrying the trade that is flowing through Canadian channels. As illustrative of the fact that the channels develop and attract trade, he referred to the fact that when he suggested to the Montreal board of trade, a year and a half ago, that the Parry Sound Railway would carry to the port of Montreal 15,000,000 bushels of wheat, he was laughed at, but since this spring the road had brought to Coteau over 8.000,000 bushels of wheat, (Cheers.) But improved facilities, he pointed out, meant the expenditure of money; and our American neighbors had spent large sums in improving the harbors of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Portland; $25,000,000 alone having been spent in Boston, whereas Canada had spent hardly anything. Speaking for himself, he held it to be our undoubted duty to equip these ports and our Canadian route. He also referred to the necessity of improving the harbor of Montreal, and of the growing importance of St. John as a winter port. SAVAGELY ASSASSINATED

A Lack of Foresight in Making Proper Preparation.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Sol Smith Russel Tonight-The Gor mans to Give a Benefit Performance to W. D. Emerson.

SOL SMITH RUSSELL IN "UNCLE

DICK" TONIGHT. That immensely popular comedian, Mr. Sol Smith Russell, who will play his engagement at the Grand this evening, is one of those actors for whom his audiences feel a personal affection. This is due to the simplicity and quaintness of his methods, for, after all, there is no human quality which has such staying power as simplicity. It is not genius in itself, but no great genius ever existed without it. Genius leaves mere affectation to mere talent. It could no more live in an atmosphere of pretension than a fish could live in air or a bird in water. Those who keep closest to nature in art are sure to be the successful men in the long run, and nature is nothing if not frank. She is the most inveterate of truth-tellers; neither policy nor interest can make her tell a lie. This quaint simplicity, then, this impress of homely truth, is the secret of Mr. Russell's magnetism, and from it proceeds his secondary charm of geniality. In his new play, "Uncle Dick," it is said, Mr. Russell has a part well fitted to his quaint personality and peculiar methods. It will be noted that Mr. Russell never exaggerates or strives for effect. His joy, his sorrow, his despair, his astonishment, are all marked with the quiet repression natural to a nature strained for years by both temperament and habit. Everywhere dramatic. he is nowhere theatrical. flow from their causes—they do not bounce in a way to make the spectator jump. Some artists consider this way of impressing their effects as a triumph of acting, and so their effects bounce until they lose their elasticity, then, naturally, they fall flat. A POPULAR BENEFIT.

With commendable generosity Manager A. E. Roote, of the Grand Opera House, has canceled the Berlin engagement of the Gormans (Mr. Roote having control of the Berlin Opera House), and has arranged for that excellent organization to return to London next Wednesday, Oct. 5, when a matinee and evening performance will be given for the benefit of Mr. Wm. D. Emerson. Mr. George E. Hawes, manager of the Gormans, and the brothers Gorman have kindly consented to donate their services; and, considering that they shoulder the expense of doubling the road back then take a 3 Guelph, and from o'clock train on Thursday morning to make Belleville for the evening, too much praise cannot be accorded them for such marked kindness. Mr. Emerson will accept this opportunity of thanking the people of London personally for the tender care bestowed upon his wife and child during his dark hours of incarceration, and for the universal feeling of sympathy which has been openly expressed since April 1. The prices will be made as popular as the cause, 15, 25 and 50 cents being the scale determined upon. Seats now on sale.

A train of ten cars of race horses and two coaches, in charge of Conductor James Mahoney and Engineer McInerney (engine 462), left Toronto at 10:15 a.m. and arrived at 1:35 p.m. Engines were changed, and Engineer Peter at 2 o'clock and arrived in Windsor at

-Mr. Isaac Nicholson, of lot 10, con. 13, London township, died today, aged 57 years and 6 months. He had been ill for eight weeks. Mr. Nicholson was the county. He was a member of Middlesex Masonic Lodge, Bryanston, and also belonged to the Woodmen of the World. He was unmarried. Four brothers and five sisters survive him, all of whom reside in the township, excepting one sister in Detroit.

-Mr. James Smith, at one time a resident of this city, his son, Mr. J. H. Smith, also Mrs. W. W. Smith and son Yorke, of Cleveland, Ohio, who have been visiting at the residence of the former's daughter, Mrs. A. W. Dowell, 563 Adelaide street, returned home, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Kickham, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Dowell. Mr. Smith speaks very highly of the many and great improvements which have been made since he last visited London, some 27 years ago.

-The city council will meet tonight. The relations between the county and city councils may be affected in some way, as that question is likely to be brought up. Some other matters of interest will hang fire for a while. The city solicitor has not yet reported on the Bell Telephone Company's rights in the city. The chairmen of the various committees have done nothing in the matter of readjusting the appropriations, therefore these questions will not be on the bili of fare. Under such conditions a brief meeting is possible. A possibility very remote though in this year of midnight sessions.

-At the conclusion of the evening service in St. James' Caurch, South London, yesterday, the rector, the Rev. Archdeacon Davis, the churchwardens, Mr. Hungerford and Mr. Dillon, and the choir of the church, met in the choir room to say good-bye to Miss Dora Taylor, who has been contralto soloist of the church for some time, and who is going to New York to complete her studies under one of the foremost vocal teachers in the States. The rector, in a few well-chosen words, said: "That while saychosen words, said: ing good-bye, at the same time they regretted that Miss Taylor would leave a vacant place in the choir, but wished her every success in the future, and while congratulating her on the THE NEW YORK GUBERNATORIAL possession of such a magnificent voice, expressed the hope that it would be used largely in the service of God, and that they might hope to have the pleasure of hearing her again in the near future in St. James' Church." Miss Taylor leaves on Wednesday next for New York, and will be greatly missed in musical circles in London.

SUDDEN SUMMONS. Mrs. Cousins, wife of Rev. J. B. Coueins, formerly of Indiana, now of Arva (St. Johns), died suddenly yesterday morning. Deceased, who had been indisposed for a week past, had come to the city, and was stopping with her mother, Mrs. R. W. Gibbs, 127 St. James street. On Saturday she was taken worse, and on Sunday morning expired very suddenly. The cause of death was inflammation of the bowels.

BASEBALL THE BOYS OF '93

The boys of the Alerts of '93, as aleady noted in these columns, played game of ball with Petrolia on Friday last, and showed the club of that town that they were still able to "get into Morrison, on engine No. 294, left here at 2 o'clock and arrived in Windsor at of 10 to 9. Some of the team have not played ball for five years, but Friday's game went to show that ballplaying was still among their possibilities. Bert Shere, was in the the locals, and completely rattled the well and favorably known throughout batters with his inshoots and awful curves. Tierney also put up a great game, accepting seven chances and having no errors. The game was well played throughout, and an exciting one for the spectators. Two American Warships To Be Sent as Near the Chinese Capital as Possible—Dr. Nancy Guilford Arraigned

The state department at Washington received the following cablegram from Minister Conger at Pekin: There is no serious danger yet, but considerable anxiety for the future. The foreign fleet is assembling at Tien Tsin. Some of the ministers are ordering marines to Pekin for legation guard. TWO AMERICAN WARSHIPS TO BE SENT TO CHINA.

Secretary Long, upon advices received at the state department showing the existence of threatening conditions in China, has ordered Admiral Dewey to send two warships immediately from Manila to a point as near the Chinese capital as possible for a warship to approach. The vessels selected for this undertaking are the Baltimore and the Petrel. It is expected that the Baltimore will not be able to get beyond the Taku forts, at the entrance of the Hang Hes River, upon which Pekin is situated, but the Petrel, being of smaller dimensions, may be able to reach Tien Tsin, 80 miles above the mouth, and about the same distance below Pekin. The officials keenly regret that there is not now on the Asiatic station a light draught gunboat of the Helena class, which could ascend the river as far as the Chinese capital.

THE REAL HEROES

Are Those in the Boiler Room of a Warship.

Feeding Insatiable Fires Amid Terrible Surroundings-The Sponge Bath Their Relief.

Down in the boiler room of a battleship or cruiser toil some of the real heroes of our navy-those doomed to risk, and suffer, and die, without hope' of fame or reward. With the stiffing | English preparation at 60 cents a large sweltering with steam and vapor and thick with dust and cinders, with the greasy odor of a thousand off-cups stenching the nostrils, the stokers labor like fiends to feed the insatiable fires, shoveling and raking until the flames burn white, and never once resting until relief comes either through faintness or a change of hands. To reach her maximum speed the great steel warship must go under forced draught. What this means to the sweltering stokers in the hold twenty feet below deck none but the initiated can imagine. In the dimlytighted steel boiler room, the double row of stokers face their furnaces. which they know must be fed to give the necessary steam, but which will also overcome them by their fierce heat. Stripped to the waist, and black with soot and coal ashes, they fling open the massive doors of the fur-

Then, as they shovel, the intense heat of the fires shoots out in almost insufferable fierceness. The hands and face seem to scorch under the withering heat-rays, and the breath is drawn quick and sharp. For an instant the doors are closed to relieve the men a moment from the intense strain; then again they are flung open and more coal is thrown on the fire.

The ship is creaking and groaning under the tremendous power of the machinery, and the whole hull vibrates and trembles. The whirr and crash of the machinery, moving with the regularity of clock-work, add to the noise and confusion of the boiler room. The long line of men stand up to the duty manfully, braving hardships and sufferings that the sailors and officers on deck know little about. Then one wavers and trembles; the heat is too much for him; he staggers back from his position. In another instant he has lost consciousness. He is hurried up from the boiler room and carried on deck to breathe the pure, fresh air, which his starved lungs are so much in need of, and another stoker takes his place.

There is only a side glance at the prostrated man from the other stokers, and they continue their work with monotonous regularity. A few hours later the same stoker returns to his post of duty, and his nearest comrade "Feel better? I'd take a duckin' oftener." The new stoker has learned his lesson. Then, when the heat rises up and threatens to overcome him again, he takes his turn before the man with the tub of water and sponge. Bending over he receives on his head and shoulders a shower of cooling water, which reduces his temperature, and makes life more endurable for the next ten minutes. One after another of the stokers come up for the cooling shower of water, which the man with the sponge freely squeezes over them. But when going through the tropics even this precaution is not sufficient to counteract the fierceness of the heat in the boiler room. Man after man faints under the tremendous strain imposed upon him, and is then hauled up to the open air to revive. The shift of men is made every twenty minutes, and still they faint and lose consciousness at their post of duty. Such a scene of self-forgetfulness and devotion to duty impresses one as nothing

When the ships are formed in line of battle, the stoker's position is even more untenable than that of the captain on the bridge or in the conning 84 tf | tower. What if a shell crashes through the hull of the ship and explodes in the boiler room! It carries death and destruction to the stokers instantly. The escaping steam would bell them alive if the shell did not kill them. If the ship is sunk in the engagement the stokers are the last to receive the order to "abandon ship," and they are the ones least likely to escape from the unfortunate craft.

As if to make their lives more miserable, the constructors of the torpedo boats and monitors have cramped them in such small quarters that they barely have room to turn around. They stand in constant danger of being hurled against their fiery furnaces. A sudden lurch might throw them against the hot steel doors, and burn them severely. In proportion to the smallness of their room is the intensity of the heat, and life in the boiler room of a torpedo boat or monitor is something not to be envied. Altogether it looks very much as if the stokers in our navy have had the worst of the late war, and will probably share least in its glory and reward. While praises are being bestowed upon the officers and fighting part of the crew, a few thoughts should be given to the poor stokers, who toil and labor in a black pit that more resembles a living tomb than a habitable place for

Thus the two years had passed very calmly but uneventfully to Maria. She went rarely abroad, then veiled, having yet a fear of encountering Lady Westbrook or Cecil, but kept as much as she was able to the apartment in which her duties laid.

One afternoon, a while after Lucille's marriage-the account of which she had read with much interest-Maria was seated at work in Mrs. Mannering's private sitting-room, the lady and her daughters being out for the whole day, and Caroline Langton having gone into Regent street to make some pur-

It was a balmy afternoon; the pleasant sound of children's voices rose from the equare, and the Italian, seated near the open window, sang in a mezzo voce over her work.

Happening to raise her eyes, she did not immediately lower them again; but kept them fixed on the same where they had chanced to fall; that was upon the railings of the square against which a man leaned, his face turned towards the houses.

"There he is still," she murmured curiously. "He must have been there over an hour, I am sure. No doubt, he is waiting for someone; if so, his temper must be a good one if he do not lose it at being so treated."

Bringing her attention back to her work, she was in the act of resuming It when she was arrested by the sound of light, hurried feet coming along the passage.

She knew not why, but there was comething in the sound that made her start from her chair and open the door. The person she beheld was, to her surprise, Caroline Langton. She had just thrown up her veil, as one in need of air; her face was deathly pale, and she staggered, as if near fainting. "Good gracious!" exclaimed Maria, alarmed. "Caroline, dear, what is the matter? You are ill. Come in here." She had taken the other's arm, and now led her back into the sitting-room.

The governess came passively. Her hand was pressed to her forehead, while her gaze was vague and stony. "Thank heaven! I am here at last," she murmured, dropping into a chair and speaking to herself, not to Maria. "I thought my strength would have failed me long before. Now-now-" The words died on her lips, and she slid to the floor insensible. Though much alarmed; as she beheld her friend's still, pallid face, Maria refrained from summoning aid. Instinctively she felt that whatever the cause of the governess' indisposition, she would hold it the greatest kindness for her to keep it from the household.

She was, consequently, much rejoiced that the unconsciousness was not of long duration. Scarcely five minutes had elapsed when Caroline's eyes opened and stared bewilderedly about her. Where am I? Where is-whereshe asked confusedly, and with an ex-

Then, stopping, she covered her face and shivered convulsively. "Come, dear, you are better now," said Maria, in her sweet, soothing, sympathetic voice. "You have been frightened, have you not?"

"Yes," answered the governess, raising her head—"yes, frightened—frightened to death by a face. Oh!" with an abrupt cry, "what an unhappy, wretched being I am!"

She bowed her head again, bursting into a passion of tearless sobs. Her manner was so strange, so wild and so vehement in it outbursts, that Maria began to feel seriously concerned, and to meditate if she should not summon help, when Caroline Langton again spoke, rapidly, but with more compo-

"Thank heaven!-oh, thank heaven, on my knees, that no one has seen me save you, Maria. How could I have explained it all to Mrs. Mannering and her daughters? I cannot explain it even to you. It must remain a mystery, though I feel you are my friend-heaven help me!-the only one I possess. Unaware of the reason, you, too, I am sure, will assist me, for-for I cannot leave this house again; that is, until I quit it forever, and that I must do very, very soon."

"Leave here!" repeated Maria wonderingly.

"Your eyes appeal for a reason, though your lips are mute," pleaded the poor girl in a parexysm of despair, clasping the Italian's hand. "But do

"Who told you that?" ejaculated the overness, raising her eyes in terror. "Your own words, dear. Listen, Caroline; do you think we have been so long together—do you think I have felt so sincere a regard for you without discovering you have a secret sorrow? No, indeed; I have grieved for you; but would not seek a confidence which was not offered. But now I ask for that confidence for your good. You say I am your only friend; you are in trouble—evidently great trouble, and, oh! the misery of possessing the burthen of a secret you may not whisper in another ear, and find relief from sympathy. Caroline, I, too, am alone in the world. I love you, Will you not trust me? Believe me, you may, and I will help you if I can." There was a pause; then the other, throwing herself on the Italian's bosom, exclaimed: "I will trust you, Maria. You have tempted me beyond my power to resist. How I have prayed for someone sist. to whom I might tell my suffering-from whom I might win some pity, for my secret is killing me. You, I know, will feel for me." "I am sure of it, dear, with all my heart."

Thank you, but I cannot tell you just now, nor must it be where we may be disturbed. I must be alone awhile, to regain strength and courage. In kalf an hour, come to the school-room, and you shall hear my story.

Maria promised and the other hurried from the apartment. When she had gone, the Italian, resuming her chair, rested her elbow on the sill of the open window, and, her chin on her hand, fell into a reverie, of which Caroline Langton was the che arose, and drew a little back.

"Still there," she exclaimed, surprised, "and apparently watching the Then she started, and an expression of intelligence broke over her face.

"Is yonder man he whom Caroline saw? Is it him whom she fears? Unable to answer the question, she once more looked down as the square. The man had gone, and the half-hour having elapsed, Maria proceeded to the school-room That evening Lord Carisford found in the letter-rack at the club a letter awaiting him.

It had no postmark, having been left by hand. He recognized the writing instantly. It was Mr. Noah Seacum's. For nearly a year Cecil had ceased to hear from the detective. It caused him the more eagerly to tear off the envelope. Was there news at last? The letter was brief and businessike, running after this fashion: "My Lord,—Though my repeated fail-ure made you doubt my ultimate success in the case which you know of, I took the liberty of not mistrusting my own powers, and, from experience, eing a stranger to defeat, proceeded with the matter on my own responsibility. The person you were in search of is found. If you are still interested in the case, and will favor me with a call, I will give all particulars. Your obedient servant, NOAH SEACUM."

Before Cecil had concluded, the blood was rushing like fire through his veins. Maria Saproni was found? Could it really be?

Quickly he consulted his watch. Halfpast seven; the hour was not too advanced. He hurried down the club steps, hailed a passing hansom, and drove to the detective's residence. No, Lord Santyre, the mountain torrent was not checked, nor was it in Lady Flora Desmond's power to divert its course; as she knew—if she thought about it at all-as Cecil knew, for these two young people happened to possess a certain secret between them with which Lady Flora's aunt and guardian had not been intrusted.

Of Interest to Women.

A Word About the Opal. Twenty years ago there were few women who would have worn an opal under any consideration; for a silly superstition, coming from nowhere and tending to nothing, had put one of the most beautiful objects of creation under a ban that associated it with death and disaster, and all dire and dreadful portents. So that she who happened to have an opal, either by descent or through the gift of some ignorant lover of loveliness, had to lose it or give it away or hide it in order to feel safe. How such an unpleasant bit of boding came to be attached to so exquisite a thing is something to be wondered at. It must, indeed, have started out of the dark of remote ages, for the stone was valued exceedingly by certain of the ancients; there was once a noble senator of Rome who chose exile for his part rather than surrender to Marc Antony an opal that was coveted by Cleopatra's lover. It must have been, however, an exceedingly fine one, for among the various computations of its worth is one that it was equal to about half a million dol-lars. It is to be doubted if the famous Vienna diamond, five inches long and half as thick and wide is its superior. Some precious or Oriental opals have been found that have commanded a higher price than diamonds of the same size—fire-opals full of flashes of burning hyacinth red and flame yellow from Hungary, or those delicately pellucid ones with blue and green shadows and flecks of splendor that look like miniature epitomes of summer seas weltering in the sun that come now from Australia. Many large and lovely opals come also now from Mexico, but they are ant to wear to basis of orange red that suggests the red earth of Aornus, and an idea that they are not the perfect thing. They were, undoubtedly, with the green turquoise or chalcedony, a sacred stone with the early tribes of the southwestern portions of our continent. But now that fashion smiles on these opals it is well for the possessors to know that few stones have to be handled with so much care. As even the owner of a diamond has to recollect, in cutting her name on the windwo-pane, to be careful of the angles of her jewel, because, although hard, it is brittle, so the owner of an opal should know that it is very easily broken, and that dropping it upon a hard surface may shatter it as if it were a bit of china. And while a diamond is combustible, and, held in the focus of a large lens, burns with a blue flame, and leaves nothing behind it but a little carbonic acid gas, an opal exposed to too great heat loses the infinitesimal particles of water that, held in its fissures, give it its iridescence; and if exposed to a corresponding degree of cold then these same particles will freeze and explode into a myriad atoms. Moreover, if an opal is often wet with soapsuds, the play of color practically goes out of it, the potash of the soap eating off the outer layer of scales and fissures and destroying the rainbow quality, and the owner has something left that looks like a dull white piece of carnethe work of the potash only by repolishing the stone, which, although it will make it smaller, will restore the brilliant variegation.

One of the great mysteries of cration is the mystery of crystallization the mystery of the active principle; spirit that seems to live in the sappling, the Oriental amethyst, the chrysoberyl and the rest; and no one of all the number is more puzzling and alluring to the fancy than the opal, which shuts into a bit of silex the sparkle of seafoam, the flame of the fire, and all the life and splendor of the rainbow.

The Training of a Debutante.

In the first place, it goes without saying that her training should be excellent. She must be polite, graceful, gracious; she must dance well, be up in the subjects of the day; she must know her out-door life, and be conversant with the sports and amusements of her brothers and boy friends; she must have read what people are talk-ing of; she must know about the actors of the times; she must have some surface knowledge, at least, of the celebrated artists and musicians of her day, as well as of those in the past. in this cosmopolitan world, for should she meet foreigners, she must be able to exchange the courtesies of the day. She must know theoretically something of music and art, even though she have no decided talent for either—in fact, a great deal of general information will carry her farther than mere thoroughness in one or two subjects. She must have savoir-faire, and show no awkward embarassment at unexpected circumstances; she must have tact to know when to talk and when to listen; she must not be forward in expressing her opinion, though she must by no means be colorless and imitative. She must never be loud or boisterous, and yet be full of life and spirit; she must be unselfish, and never for an instant appear to think herself of great importance; she must not brag to other girls less fortunately situated of her clothes, her entertainments, her friends. The Art of Serving Eggs.

Given a really good egg, a slice of nice toast, and almost anything left from the dinner previous, and a dish for a sybarite or a brain-fagged man of family can be readily prepared.

Most people boil eggs, and consequently most eggs are ruined, just as potatoes are. Neither should be put into hot water. Both contain albumen, which becomes so much glue by sudden contact with heat. Eggs in the shell need enough cold water to cover them. a quick fire and four minutes' cooking, by the clock. They should be sent to table in hot water, opened with a wooden or silver spoon, and eaten at once? They are prime with salt and a bit of butter, but it is a crime to pepper them. Some gastronomes Parisiennes season them with a pinch of minced parsley: Russians add a dash of paprika, and a real Roman will have the egg-cup rubbed with a bit of garlic or ring of onion. The poaching ring is the test of an You can't poach a bad egg; it wabbles the moment it is dropped, the yolk breaks, and the connoisseur knows at a glance that he is the victim of ignorance or fraud. But an egg above suspicion, poached sufficient to "set" the yolk, salted just before leaving kettle and served on a thin slice of nice brown toast, generously but-tered, is a dainty bite any hour of the twenty-four. This dish admits of the greatest elaboration. Indeed, the lover of poached eggs may have a surprise every day in the month, and find each lian. Only a lapidary can repair at a bit more appetizing than its predeces-mishap of this nature, and he can undo sor. Parenthetically, eggs are delicate sor. Parenthetically, eggs are delicate and should be delicately served-individually, that is.

Poached eggs in a dish of French peas is both pleasing to the eye and Poached eggs smothered in stewed cauliflower is a very appetizing break-fast dish. Poached eggs with a border of creamed carrots and buttered beets sliced and nicely seasoned is good to look upon. Poached eggs on toast laid on a bed of caulrhoby, or stewed cu-cumbers, is very nice; and poached eggs on broiled or French fried potatoes are not half bad. A platter of poached eggs, trimmed with quarters of peeled tomatoes and chips of broiled ham or bacon is a royal little spread.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS!

Bradstreet's Review of the Canadian Business Outlook.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 3 .- Bradstreet's weekly review says: There has been a fairly active trade done in most fines for the fall at Montreal the last week. The prospects for business are bright, and merchants are in a cheerful mood regarding the future. The shipping business shows considerable activity, as the season is now drawing to a close. Space is eagerly sought by exporters, although there is not as much grain coming forward as is usual at this season. In Toronto there has been an active demand for sorting lines. The far-mers' deliveries of grain are beginning to be more liberal. There is a better demand for fall goods at country centers, and that has brought many orders here. The orders being received here from the Northwest are very satisfactory, the large crop up there having had the desired effect on the retailers in that part of the country who are now disposed to order liberally for the fall and winter trade. Values in all lines of drygoods are very firm.

In Manitoba the situation continues satisfactory. The harvest has made fair progress, although wet weather has somewhat interfered with the handling of the grain. Business in wholecale lines is fair for this season, which, while it is a busy one for the farmers, is not always very active for traders.

Business at the coast has been fairly active the past week in wholesale lines. The New Westminster fire has stimulated many parts of trade at Vancouver, and large sales of building materials, builders' hardware, etc., are being made. Shipping has been quite active lately, and the departure of numerous Klondikers and the arrival of many gold-seekers from that country with more or less treasure, and the outgoing and incoming Oriental and Australia steamers, have all contributed to improve business.

FEED THE NATION

From Within Its Own Borders.

The Canadian Produce Corporation, Limited-Capital £200,000.

This is a British enterprise recently incorporated in England with a capital of £200,000, with headquarters in London and Canadian branches in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax and Winnipeg. It has been organized for the purpose of providing better facilities and opening up larger markets for Canadian produce, to abolish the system of intermediate profits, and to furnish the British markets with an abundant and regular supply of pure Canadian food at moderate prices.

The Corporation has made arrangements to construct and operate under skillful managemen a large number of wholesale and retail establishments in the city of London, dealing exclusively in Canadian produce, such as dairy products, fuit, meat, bacon, fish, canned goods, flour, eggs, etc. These stores will be divided into departments for the different classes of food, and thoroughly equipped with mechanical refrigeration and all other modern improvements. Contracts are pending to meet the requirements of co-operative stores, army and navy contractors, hotels, and other large consumers throughout Great Britain, and arrangements have been made for holding periodical auction sales at the central wholesale warehouses of the corporation. Arrangements have also been made on the Canadian side with leading producers and manufacturers, whereby the Corporation secures, at first cost a large and regular supply of fresh products carefully selected from the best and most reliable brands.

A new era has been opened up in connection with our food supply. Through the introduction and use of mechanical refrigeration, perishable products are now carried in cold storage warehouses for several months at uniform temperatures, preserved without any deterioration in flavor or quality and delivered to consumers in perfect condition at uniform and reasonable prices all the year round. Special refrigerating facilities have been established by the Dominion Government whereby perishable products can be transported and preserved in refrigerator cars and cold storage steamers, all the way from the source of supply in Canada to the leading sea-ports of Great Britain. This new Corporation will obtain full advantage of all these improvements, it has adopted the most improved methods of cold storage for its own warehouses and stores, and the services of experienced and scientific experts in produce and refrigeration have been secured. This Corporation, with its large available capital, doing a direct business in special lines on equitable terms and under reliable management, unlimited sources of supply and demand, is well worthy of encouragement and support; and considering the great success which has attended other well organized enterprises in food supply, there is no just cause or reason why there should be any exception in this case. The enterprise in every way will be right up to date, it will meet urgent requirements of the Canadian dairy interests as expressed by leading agriculturalists and others in the Dominion Parliament debate of March 23. and will undoubtedly be a leading factor in the future development of the agricultural interests of the Dominion. A large block of the stock of the corporation has already been subscribed, and the balance will be placed on the London market within a few days, and a small proportion of the capital will be reserved in case Canadian producers or others may feel disposed to hold an interest in the Corporation. Copy of prospectus, names of the directors, names of Canadian advisory board, and other particulars may be had on application to AEmilius Jarvis & Co., Stockbrokers, 23 King street,

But the auditors' letter to the finance committee Friday night, accompanied by a paid check for $450, has naturally led to explanations. The check was for $450 payable to City Engineer Graydon for refund of money paid Mr. A. Graham, and was indorsed to Ald. Douglass. It appears that this amount was due Mr. Graham for the construction of a granolithic walk on Albert etreet. Ald. Douglass says Mr. Graham wanted the money to meet a draft on a certain day, but was delayed in Port Stanley until the last minute. Then the train was late, and it was after three o'clock when he reached the city. He could not get his & money, and commented rather strongly on the little consideration shown him. The chairman of the board of works and the city engineer felt sorry for him, and generously advanced the money. Hence the peculiar check which the auditors could not reconcile with the clause in Mr. Graham's contract, to the effect that no member of the council was in any way interested in the contract.

Sergt. Dunlevy lies at the Wolseley Barracks' hospital in a critical condition. He was out wheeling last night about 7 o'clock, and when near Oxford bridge he was run down by a rig containing three drunken men. They galloped over the bridge at a furious rate, and smashed into the wheelman. Sergt. Dunlevy had four ribs broken, one of which pierced the lung, besides several other injuries, that altogether may prove fatal. The wheel was smashed to pieces. The young men, without waiting to ascertain Dunlevy's injuries, or lend a helping hand, whipped up the horse again, and galloped east along Oxford street. The injured man was carried into No. 5 Oxford street, and Dr. George Wilson called. He was removed to the military hospital in the ambulance. The three young men took the rig from the stable of a hotel on the second concession, where somebody else had left it, for a few minutes, and drove into the city. They went somewhere, and telephoned to the liveryman who owned the rig, that he would find it tied in front of the Grigg

W. D. EMERSON

He Is Grateful to the People of London.

A Benefit to Be Tendered Him on Wednesday Night.

Sketch of His Career—His Description of His Feelings.

An Advertiser reporter called on Mr. W. D. Emerson at the Grigg House yesterday. He said he felt better than he had for six months, for it was just exactly six months from the time he was arrested until he was acquitted. When asked about his feelings from the time the trial started, he said: "It is pretty hard to express my feelings in words absolutely. I was a little appre-hensive of what might be done, but as Mr. Johnston took the crown witnesses and made the tangled statements straight, I was a little more confident. Altogether, I may say that I felt very uncertain. The trial just completed was the most severe strain, both mentally and physically, that I ever experienced, and I never want to experience such nerve tension again. I have played difficult parts for other actors on the stage before thousands of people, and when I had not time even to look at the lines but for a few moments before the curtain rose. I have had to memorize the lines for the second act after the curtain dropped on the first. That is a severe strain, but it was no thing to last week's pressure. From the time the thing happened until nearly all the witnesses underwent the preliminary examination before the police magistrate, I was like an insane man. I heard one of the witnesses say something that was not quite right, and I said to Mr. Flock: "I have just awakened; I have come to myself." From that time on all my anxiety was about my faithful wife and my sweet baby. "Were you disappointed when your trial did not come off in June?"

"I felt a little disappointed at not coming up at the June sessions, and I was apprehensive that I would not get fair play, as I learned that a Brantford man would be appointed to conduct the case against me, and because at this season of the year I thought it might be impossible to get the witnesses here.'

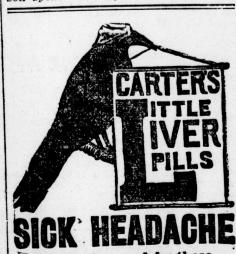

Mr.Emerson told of his feelings when the officers came to the cell for him after the jury had arrived at the court room with their verdict. "When I got to the dock and saw the jury waiting for his lordship, the nerve tension was terrible. My eyes felt like fountains, and my heart ready to burst, when I saw my wife and child, and realized what might follow. When the foreman said, 'Not guilty,' an awful burden seemed to roll off my shoulders. My wife, as she exclaimed, Thank God!' sprang and embraced me-and you know the rest. I appreciated the sympathy which the people extended to me in that-well, you can't call it a cheer; it was more an outburst of thankful emotion. His story could have been corroborated by prominent citizens to whom he mentioned it while the preliminary examination was going on. With regard to his own evidence. he said: "I went to the witness box to tell the truth, and I told it. When a man tells the truth he cannot be swerved." The judge's charge, Mr. Emerson said, "was fair, very fair."

A BENEFIT. Mr. A. E. Roote called upon Mr. Emerson and urged that he accept a benefit at the Grand Opera House Wednesday night, in which the Gormans and other first-class profession-al talent would take part. Mr. Emersaid he felt it his duty to be present, out of courtesy to Mr. Roote. He will probably accept a position on the stage again, as he has several good offers.

EMERSON'S CAREER. Wm. Emerson was born at Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in 1855. His father at that time was manager of Matt Peel's minstrel troupe, his wife traveling with him. As a boy, Wm. Emerson spent his early school days at St.

Considerable speculation has been indulged in as to how the jury stood regarding the verdict. One of the jurors, when asked, said: "The verdict was a unanimous one. Some of the older men were at first in favor of a man-slaughter verdict, as they thought that Emerson should receive some punishment. We talked the matter over for four hours before we all agreed. We were all tired and glad when a conclusion was arrived at. son complied with the request, and answer to the question of how long they sat upon the case, the juryman replied, "Just exactly 53 hours." "How did you win over those who favored a manslaughter verdict?" "Well," said the juryman, "if it had been a verdict for manslaughter, there was a possibility that the judge would have given him more punishment than of the jury thought he should have, because he told us a man guilty of manslaughter, could be imprisoned for any period from one day to a life-time. The big majority of them were in favor of acquittal as soon as we entered the jury room. The verdict seems to have been a popular one, but we had no means of knowing anything about what the feeling was. We had to take the evidence, and the verdict was in accordance with it."

A YOUNG MAN'S

Supplemented by Two Years in a Michigan Penitentiary.

W. R. Smith, of Almonte, Mich., who came to London with his young wife to spend his honeymoon, and was arrested at the Grigg House a couple of weeks ago by a United States marshal on the charge of robbery, is in a pitiable plight for a newly-married man. After his arrest here he consented to go back to Almonte. On Saturday he was arraigned before Judge Smith, at Lapeer, Mich., and pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into the depot at Hunter Creek and stealing a number of blank money orders. He was sentenced to the Ionia house of correction to use his influence to secure him a parole at the end of the first year, such parole to be extended during good be-

THE PEG-LEG

Madie Brown, the Supposed Murderer of P. C. Toohey, Arrested.

Located by a United States Mar shal in Washington State.

The Attorney-General Apprised of the Fact-Brown Held by the United States Authorities Awaiting Investigation-His Photo Indentified by Several Who Saw Him While in London.

Madie Brown, the peg-legged tramp, alleged to be the one who shot and killed P. C. Michael Toohey at the termination of Ontario street on the night of June 24, has at last been run down and locked up. Chief of Police Williams was yesterday notified by the United States Government of the arrest of Madie Brown in Washington on Sept. 24 - three months to the day from the time the tragedy was enacted. Brown was located by a U.S. marshal, and word sent here, together with the man's photograph. The U. S. authorities were wired to hold the prisoner, and the attorney-general was informed of the facts. That the right man has been caught, Chief Williams is morally certain. His photograph was put with pictures of half a dozen other peg-legs who have been arrested at different places, and the collection shown to witnesses, who thought they would know the murderer. Brown's photo was picked out from the bunch by several, who identified him as the supposed murdered.

Madie Brown is the 43rd one-legged tramp arrested on suspicion of being the perpetrator of the cold-blooded deed. Among the batch were some who were arrested five of six times. The matter now rests with the government officials, and extradition proceedings will be taken if necessary. Brown is in a bad box. If he refuses to come here, he will be taken back to Taylor, Texas, from which jail he escaped while serving a term for burglary. About three weeks ago, one of the police officers at Taylor, who had been instrumental in bringing about the arrest of Brown for the robbery for which he was serving time when he escaped, was shot and killed in the doorway of a Taylor saloon-by whom the U.S. authorities have yet to as-

Should extradition proceedings be necessary, some three months may elapse before he can be brought here. Chief of Police Williams has so far written 613 letters in connection with the case.
