ACTUATED BY PERSONAL REVENGE.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The Liberte says the identity of the miserant who attempted to explode a bomb in the vestibule of the Rothschilds' banking house in the Rue Lafitte on Thursday has been discovered. He was formerly in the employ of the Rothschilds, and belongs to a family. He is a professed Anarchist. According to the Liberte, he was actuated by motives of personal revenge. He found that the Rothschilds had not permitted children under 11 to perform in public, and they were now stranded, without money, and he feared that they would starve. The magistrate was unable to help the party. Gen. P. A. Collins, United States Consul-General in London, said that he could not assist them, either.

STRANDED IN LONDON.

London, Sept. 10.—Rev. John Jenkins, negro, president of an orphanage, accompanied by fourteen negroes, ranging in age from 5 to 10, has made application to the magistrate of the Bow Street Police Court for assistance to return to Charleston, S. C. He said the boys had formed an orphanage band, and he had been told by a committee of pastors of the orphanage to bring them to London, where they could perform and thus raise money. He found that the law would not permit children under 11 to perform in public, and they were now stranded, without money, and he feared that they would starve. The magistrate was unable to help the party. Gen. P. A. Collins, United States Consul-General in London, said that he could not assist them, either.

FRESH OUTRAGES ON ARMENIANS.

London, Sept. 10.—The Daily News publishes a dispatch from Kars stating that fresh outrages have been perpetrated in the Erzerum district. A band of brigands attacked on Aug. 12 a company of Turkish gendarmes, killed a sergeant, and made the Turkish authorities, without making any inquiries, decided that the assassins were Armenian revolutionaries from Kermak, who intended to release Armenians who are still in prison at Kars. A force of 1,000 Turkish troops was sent to Kermak and five villages were pillaged. Men were tortured and women and children abused. Four monasteries were sacked. It is reported that the Turkish minor officials have formed an anti-Christian society to slaughter Christians if the Porte accepts the scheme of reforms the powers insist upon.

GAY SCENES AT STETTIN.

Stettin, Sept. 10.—Last night the River Oder was beautifully illuminated as far as Gatzlow in honor of the visit of the Emperor Francis Joseph and the King of Saxony. The river presented a fairytale appearance, and its banks were crowded with spectators. The weather was fine. At half-past eight o'clock Emperor William and his guests went on board the Fried, which afterwards steamed along the river. The vessel had a considerable number of electric lights on her mast. The suites of their majesties, the aldermen and German princes followed on other steamers, the crowds on the banks cheering and waving torches as the steamers passed along. A number of Danish and American steamers in the port were covered with lights. At the turning point a skeleton viking ship with fireworks was burned. Emperor William afterwards thanked the burgomasters for the display, and promised to further Stettin's desire to become a free port.

A GROUNDLESS CHEESE SCARE.

A Montreal Star special cable from London says: Another scare has been raised in the hope of checking the Canadian competitor with the British farmer. The North British Agriculturalist alleges, on what it terms good authority, that a considerable proportion of the so-called full milk cheese from Canada is really made from separated milk, fattened with oleomargarine, which is very difficult to detect. It urges that the Board of Agriculture make an expert inquiry, and suggests that this explains why the Canadians are able to undersell the British farmers. They sell their cheese at 40s. per cwt., or 4d. per lb. The Times repeats the charge today, with deep regret, and says it is nothing short of suicide to the Canadian trade. I have been interviewed by leading shippers, who say at least the statement is a gross exaggeration, but still must do great harm unless promptly and officially denied. The largest London buyer of Canadian cheese says that any such fraud would not long escape them. He buys more Canadian cheese now than ever, and does not believe the charge. Other buyers confirm his statement.

SIR HENRY TYLER'S TRIP.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 10.—A representative from the Baldwin locomotive works, with an expert electrician from the Westinghouse Company, together with Sir Henry Tyler, ex-president of the G. T. O., will depart today for Peru, where it is said a test of the feasibility of the electric locomotive is to be made.

THE GLENCOE MASSACRE.

Lord Archibald Campbell's Explanation Not Well Received by the Inhabitants of the Glen.

Edinburgh, Sept. 10.—Lord Archibald Campbell and his Highland pipers marched through Glencoe tonight playing a dirge. Lord Archibald devised this project as an explanation for the historical massacre of Glencoe by the Campbells. His project, however, was not accepted by the inhabitants of the Glen in the spirit in which it was intended, and the descendants of the massacred McDonalds gave his Lordship notice that if he, or any others belonging to the clan who murdered their ancestors should attempt a demonstration in Glencoe they would send them the heavy cross and break their heads. Lord Archibald, however, determined to put through his project, and asked for police protection. It was feared that the proposed demonstration would revive the old feud between the clans, but the march through the Glen was accomplished tonight without disorder. The McDonalds gave no signs of approval, but they made no hostile demonstration.

TORONTO'S WATER FAMINE.

Efforts Made to Repair the Conduit Pipe.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Toronto's "pure water famine" is nearly over. Herculean efforts have been made to repair the conduit pipe that has risen across the bay, and it is expected it will be repaired today or tomorrow morning.

The breaks are being covered with tarred canvas, which will withstand the pressure of the water through the pipe, and also keep out the bay water to at least 95 per cent.

ST. THOMAS LAWYER FOUND DEAD.

Norman Macdonald, the Well-Known Barrister, Suddenly Expires—A Promising Career.

St. Thomas, Sept. 10.—Mr. Norman Macdonald, of the firm of Robinson & Macdonald, barristers, solicitors, etc., was found dead in the library in his residence, Southwick street, about 9:30 last night. He was one of the most promising young lawyers in the Province and had worked up an extensive business. Mr. Macdonald, it will be remembered, defended Hendershot and Wolter, who were executed here. The manner in which he handled this case alone made a name for him, ranking him among the best. He for many years resided at Belmont, but some twelve years ago came to this city and began studying law, and was not long in passing his final examination as a full-fledged lawyer. He was perhaps one of the best posted men in his profession in the Province. Some eight years ago he was married to Miss McPherson, daughter of Mr. John McPherson, Stanley street, who survives him, as well as three small children. Mr. Macdonald carried a large insurance upon his life, which amount could not accurately be learned last night, but one insurance agent placed it at $30,000.

WONDERFUL STORY OF A TOOTH.

A Black Bass Finds It and Keeps It For Two Years.

Two years ago this September, Messrs. John Redmond, Maurice Burke, and John Galvin were camping and fishing at the mouth of the Innisville river. Mr. Galvin was carrying a tooth in his pocket, and he lost it during the outing, but had no conception where. They searched all over and about the camp, and made a second journey to the ground from town, but it failed to respond to their anxious scrutiny. A few days ago Mr. Burke and Mr. Redmond sat down to dinner at the upper end of the Innisville river. A large black bass, to their utter amazement, as they carved, a curious substance appeared, which on being examined was found to be the identical tooth and plate lost two years ago. Their astonishment was boundless, and their pleasure at the recovery was no less exultant than that of the owner, who is now wearing it. It is interesting to note that it was as well preserved as when it was lost—Carleton Place (Ont.) Herald.

This sum, it is said, represents Dr. Talmage's earnings as a lecturer, he turning his earnings to his wife, who was his manager and press agent.

Valkyrie Wins!

Britisher Defeats the Yankee in the Second Race.

Takes the Lead From the Start and Holds It.

The Sea is Smooth and the Wind Light.

At the Beginning—The Wind Freshens—Defender Claims a Foul—A Protest.

Quarantine, S. I., Sept. 10.—8:15 a.m.—Defender and Valkyrie, both in tow, are passing out the Narrows.

Highlands of Navesink, N. J., Sept. 10.—Real Valkyrie weather prevailed off the Hook this morning, a smooth sea and light air. The Britishers, not much discouraged by the defeat of Saturday last, had shifted some of her ballast from aft forward, at the suggestion of Mr. George L. Watson, her designer. They have had her remodeled, and quest to today's first challenge as far as the last heat of the battle for the cup. Therefore, they confidently expected her to show up in better form today.

TROUBLE SOME SIGHTS.—The only objectionable feature of the last race were the crowding of the excursion steamers, and the fact that a good view of the race could not be obtained owing to the fog and haze.

board tack. They are carrying mainsails, club topsails, stay sails, jibs and No. 2 jib topsails. Defender is in the lead, but to leeward close hauled.

DEFENDER GAINING.

11:32 a.m.—Defender is sailing a great race, and has gained over an eighth of a mile in the last ten minutes. She is constantly eating through the lee of the Valkyrie.

11:41 a.m.—Both yachts are still holding in shore on the port tack, and Defender has just broken out her large jib, out-wing, and is having difficulty in making it get well, and it is now being hauled down again.

11:49 a.m.—Both yachts are now but two miles from this point, directly east, and headed about southwest. Defender is sailing closer to the wind than Valkyrie.

DEFENDER OUT-MANEUVRED.

Previous to the start both went about a quarter of a mile from the line, and the British boat blanketed Defender, but to the surprise of everyone Defender worked out from her lee. Again the British boat blanketed her. Cranfield gave the English boat a fisherman's line, and Defender was obliged to pass to leeward and astern of the British yacht.

11:55 a.m.—Defender seems to have dropped back a little in the last ten minutes, but still continuing to point higher than Valkyrie.

12:00—Valkyrie has a lead of about 2-3 miles.

CLAIMED A FOUL.

Shortly after the start, Defender hoisted a protest flag, and the protest was allowed. It being believed here that the Valkyrie fouled Defender during the luffing matches. The true story of the protest is as follows: When the boats got together a quarter of a mile from the start, the Englishmen, in an endeavor to blanket the American boat, bore down upon her and carried away one of her shrouds. This was within a half-minute of the line, and the English boat kept on over-coursing ahead of Defender. The latter eased up a bit to see if her top-mast was hurt. It was noticeably sprung, and the protest flag was hoisted by Defender. The English boat saw it at once and raised the flag, demonstrating that she would recognize it.

12:30—Valkyrie has just come about on the starboard tack, and Defender immediately followed suit directly in her wake. She was sailing by Valkyrie just before the two boats tacked. Defender is now only a quarter of a mile behind.

12:32—Defender is now out-footing Valkyrie. The wind has freshened recently, and the American yacht has sailed a wonderfully fast race during the last ten minutes.

With a glass the rival skippers can be seen at their posts, Capt. Cranfield standing in the midst of a group made up of Lord Dunraven, Commodore Glenie and others, while Capt. Symonds was running backward and forward carefully watching the head sails. On board the Defender the crew seemed to be quite quiet. Capt. Haft was sitting down while he steered the yacht, while Mr. Iselin, Mr. Lees and others could be plainly seen huddled over to the leeward side of the boat, well astern.

At 12:35 Valkyrie seemed to be pulling a little away from Defender, and while not pointing quite as high was footing apparently a little faster.

12:40—It seems as if Defender was conceding the gap between herself and Valkyrie, and the latter cannot be much in the lead, from what can be seen here.

12:53 p.m.—Both yachts seem to be getting into a nice breeze, and are heading over about five or ten degrees. The American yacht is well up to windward and it is possible that she will round the first mark ahead or at least close to the rival.

12:55 p.m.—Both yachts are still holding upon the starboard tack. Defender, from here, seems to have fallen off a little recently in her windward position.

VALKYRIE FIRST AROUND.

Long Branch, 1:07 p.m.—The yachts have rounded the stake boat. Valkyrie went around at 12:57:20, and Defender at 1:00:20.

Highlands of Navesink—According to the time taken here, Valkyrie rounded the first mark at 12:58:15, and Defender at 1:00:20.

1:44 p.m.—The fog which obscured the race has just shifted a little, enabling the watchers here to see the two yachts reaching down to the second mark at a lively rate and with balloon jib set. It is impossible to distinguish between them at this distance, but it is believed that Valkyrie is slightly ahead.

2:03 p.m.—Both boats are visible, running on a nice breeze, but are too far off to enable the watchers here to identify them.

THE WIND FRESHENING.

The wind at the time of turning the first stake boat was increasing in strength and blew at the rate of 12 to 15 miles an hour, kicking up little white caps between here and the first mark, so that the yachts seemed likely to have a good breeze with which to cross the second leg, over which they should make good time, and if the wind holds out it appeared as if they would finish before 3 o'clock.

Highlands of Navesink, 2:16 p.m.—The yachts are in sight. One of the yachts has a lead of over a mile, and it looks like Valkyrie.

Far Rockaway, 2:22 p.m.—From the peak of her main sail, just seen above the mist, it is believed here that the leading boat is Defender, but it is impossible to decide just yet.

VALKYRIE LEADING.

2:30 p.m.—Both boats are now seen from here, and there seems to be no doubt that the Valkyrie is leading by a short mile.

2:31—The excursion fleet has gathered around the lights, and Valkyrie is expected to finish a winner before 3 o'clock.

2:35 p.m.—Valkyrie does not seem to increase lead over Defender. The excursion fleet is keeping back so as to give them a chance.

2:36 p.m.—The yachts are very close together, but Valkyrie is ahead. The Luckenbach has taken up her position at the finish line.

2:37—Defender is pushing Valkyrie hard, and it is believed here that the American yacht may win on time allowance.

2:48 p.m.—The yachts have

The Scrap Bag

He wore a buckskin suit and wide-brimmed hat, the revolver in his belt looked as if they had been considerable service, but he was quiet when the stranger in the smoking car drew him into conversation.

"Yes, I've been pretty tough," he said. "I guess we all have out at Bloody Gulch. But we have got over it. Got religion, you know. A fellow came through there last week with a gospel cart, and he got all the boys out and talked to 'em good and hard. He said a lot about how a fellow should be known by his deeds and not by the bluff he puts up. He said his work was what counted and not the guff. So we all got thinkin' about what tough critters we were, and we made up our minds to try a new way."

"To be good?" asked the stranger. "That's it, that's the stuff exactly," said the man with the big revolver. "We are goin' to be good and start a regular old reform wave shootin' around the gulch. There's been a lot of lynchin' out there, you know, so we took that in hand first, made up our minds that it had got to stop, and stop quick. The boys don't stand no foolin' when they get ready to move; somethin's got to happen. So when we heard about the eastern cities and their reform committees and their civic federations, and all that sort of stuff, we got together and organized a little committee of our own. It was a hot one, too, I tell ye. All the boys belong to it that are any good, and they swore they'd stop lynchin' inside 24 hours, and they done it."

"Organized an anti-lynching league, I take it," said the stranger.

"That's what it was, and it was a hummer. We just waited our chance to catch some of the tough fellers that was taking the law into their own hands, and we got it. We heard of a lynchin' that was comin' off that very night we organized our reform committee. Some of the fellers from the other end of the gulch had located a horse thief, and they were goin' out to string him up. Well, stranger, a horse thief is a pretty darned mean sort of a critter, and I ain't got much use for 'em myself, but religion is religion, and if a feller's got it, I reckon he's got to stick to it. So we went out after the lads that was goin' to lynch the horse thief, and we caught 'em about a mile up the gulch. We saved the horse thief, stranger, and we labored with the lynchers good and hard—just like the gospel feller said we should."

"Were you successful?"

"You bet we was. They ain't been a lynchin' in the gulch since that night. When we want reform you bet we get it, and get it quick, and everybody knows that we mean business. There can't be no mistake about that."

"What did you do with the lynch-ers?"

"We lynched 'em."—Times-Herald.

"No, I can't come over to your house," screamed Margaret from the window to a passing playmate. "My mother won't let me because my sister's got a delicious disease."

The boy whose sister has the scarlet fever gets a long vacation.

Some find work where some find rest, And so the weary world goes on.

I sometimes wonder which is best, The answer comes when life is gone.

Some eyes sleep when some eyes wake, And so the dreary night hours go.

Some hearts beat where others break, I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some will faint where some will fight; Some love the tent and some the field.

I often wonder who are right—The ones who strive or those who yield.

Some feet halt where some feet tread, In tireless march, a thorny way;

Some struggle on where some have fled; Some seek when others shun the fray.

Some swords rust where others clash; Some fall back where some move on;

Some flags furl where others flash, Until the battle has been won.

FATHER RYAN.

Many a man who prides himself on being self-made is simply the product of a good wife.

A good-looking and witty young Frau, recently married, was much given to yawning in the presence of her husband. The latter one day asked her if she was tired of his company. "Oh, no," was the reply, "but you see we two are one now, and I always feel dull when I am alone."

He—Now that we are married, we are one, and I shall insist that this be the last time you appear in a low-necked dress. She—We may be one, but you are only half of us, and I shall dress my half as I please.—Boston Beacon.

DAILY HINTS TO HOUSE-KEEPERS.

That day is best wherein we give A thought to other's sorrow; Forgetting self.

BREAKFAST—Melons, Oatmeal and Cream, Baked Potatoes, Fried Oysters, Rolls, Raspberry Jam, Coffee.

DINNER—Cold Tongue, Lobster Salad, Gingered Peas, Spinach, Creamed Potatoes, Olives, Corn on Cob, Cranberry Jelly, White Bread, Peach Ice Cream Wafers.

LUNCH—Bread and Butter, Stewed Prunes, Loaf Cake, Tea.

GINGERED PEAS.

Four pounds of hard peas peeled and chipped fine; 4 pounds of sugar, 3 lemons sliced and seeds removed, 1-2 pound sugared ginger. Put in layers and let stand over night; then cook slowly about three hours.

To make a person conscious at every turn of some personal fault, or deficiency is to bring unnecessary pain to this person. It is a spirit that should not prevail in the ideal home.

Have you ever watched a lot of small girls do something about which they were a little afraid?

They are all anxious to do it; one watches the other; the bravest makes an effort, starts out courageously, and in two seconds falls back again. She looks at the others expectantly. They all return the look, and another makes the attempt. The first feebly joins her, seeing which the entire company goes at it, and with a mad rush the thing is done.

So it is with women and an innovation in fashion; such as the present prospect of small sleeves. For two seasons rumors have reached us, and the rumblings have grown so loud that we know the sleeve must come. Yet why do we hesitate, and why does one wait to see how the other is having her new gown made? In a few weeks, in an instant almost, we shall shed our large sleeves and don the small.

One of the courageous girls is having a very pretty house gown made, which shows many radical changes. The skirt has a side panel of velvet. Fans of lace, one on each side, finish this panel at the bottom of the skirt, while passementerie edges it toward the top. The waist has tight-fitting sleeves which are concealed by slashed velvet capes falling from shoulder to wrist.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Challie to Be Fashionable for Autumn and Winter Gowns.

Square necks, it seems, are superseding round cuts in Paris for dressy house and evening wear.

But they are by no means deeply décolleté, and the modest little square worn by Juliet in her balcony is considered the most becoming limit.

Belts, too, are much worn, wider than formerly, and made of a glistening gilt braid and silk heavily embroidered with gold and with great buckles fashioned like wreaths.

Indeed, wreath jewelry is the very latest fad; and besides the buckles there are wreath brooches, wreath fastenings to bracelets and wreath hat pins. They are made of metal, with flowers in a different sort, or gilt with silver and copper trimmings, or perhaps of pure gold with the blossoms superbly enameled.

More useful and less expensive belt buckles in favor of heavy gold wire in curious swirl designs, that loop over each other in fastening; and many of them madame—who is a power in New York—declares she will make fashionable for house gowns this winter. And now the house gowns themselves:

Kilted surah in a tender pinkish gray, the old-fashioned surah we have known these many years, is the ground work of a very fine dress. Black ribbon velvet braces the shoulders becomingly, and extends down the skirt, ending in big flaring bows near the bottom. The lace which in a shoulder cape and peplum is put on to give width to a too slight figure, is imitation Irishpoint.

Plain art green challie, of a web-like fineness and a tone as dim as the milky green enameling seen sometimes in old Venetian jewelry, is beautiful. The costume is in three pieces, a skirt and underblouse of the challie, and an overblouse of heavy white silk, bordered with black and gold in a rich Russian design. The dark edge that outlines the upper portion of this is a black velvet, cut to follow the lines of the blouse.

Pompadour challie in old pinks and browns, and blue liberty satin showing pink reflections, are the main features of the other two toilets. The flowery gown, which is of the challie, has an overblouse of heavy white gauze, and the satin, shown in the blouse, is ornamented by a stole collar of white organza and yellow lace. The plain portion of the flowered bodice is dull green silk, the collar dark red velvet.

Appropos of these toilets, their cuts, textures and decorations, madame who was mothering them, said:

"You see the only new material here is the black crepe, which is, in reality, only a spotted heavy crepe crinkled somewhat like crepon. As yet, Doct is the only one to make bare gowns, but I," and madame swelled like the important frog in the fable, "I shall make challie fashionable for autumn and winter house gowns. The new challies that I have seen at the manufacturers' are very charming. Some are patterned like silk, with great bouquets, but there are others that are beaded with little vines, between stripes, and other plain ones again in dim and sparkling jewel tones. These will be my favorites, and I will combine them with lace, ribbon and velvet in contrasting shades. One gown that I have in my mind will be in old blue, with a Greek border in gold thread, embroidered by hand, at the skirt bottom."

Yes," said madame, as she closed the door on all the wonderful things so soon to be borne to New York. "Remember that challies, winter challies, are to be revived."

A new meshair with an almost corded weave will be one of the favorite fabrics for autumn gowns. All-wool Bedford cords will also be in vogue.

The summer girl is wearing a belt of Dresden ribbon which is interlined with fiber chamme. The belt never wrinkles, and the ribbon may be changed according to one's fancy. The modish swing of the skirt is also affected by the interlining of fiber chamme.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Labor Leader's Protest Against Assisted Immigration.

Regulations for the London Meat Market That Should Command Attention—Dr. Arnott's Reply to Mr. Mills.

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": Just a word or two on my not voting on the Socialist question at the Labor Congress stands that after what I had seen I would not vote for it, and not thoroughly understanding the motion would not vote against it.

But my chief reason was the waste of time which should have been put to purposes of what to my mind are of far greater importance at this present time.

Chinese immigration was scarcely touched upon. It is of vast importance in the far west of Canada. There is one redeeming quality about it. The taxpayers of this Dominion do not have to pay for the bringing in of these eastern locusts to eat up what should be to the people of Canada a veritable Garden of Eden.

I wish I could say as much for this eastern immigration, which is as it needed as the Chinese. Why, I ask, should the Dominion Government spend such large sums of money on a system which only works evil to all Canadians? I want the working men who pay the taxes to ask themselves, why many dollars should have been paid last year for this purpose? Either they compete with the overstocked labor market, or in some cases become chargeable to the already over-taxed workers.

Why should Mr. Barnard receive in one year $2,575 to bring out boys that are not wanted? We have already plenty of children here who would be glad to get employment. Why, then, spend more money? Again, what sense is there in paying $14,936 as bonuses, to the tune of $5 a head, for what we do not require? And besides pay $4,735 to steamship companies.

One more question. Why, I ask, should Rev. Manley Benson receive $1,100 for speaking once or twice in the old land on a question he does not understand?

These and other questions of importance to our taxpayers were not touched upon for want of time.

J. HAWTHORNE.

NEED FOR BETTER METHODS OF KILLING.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": Since writing my former letter on the proposed abattoir for London I have been greatly pleased to find in conversations about town that the ideas set forth in it and in the other letters and articles on the subject have been received with much favor by all classes of citizens. Even in other towns the subject seems to be exciting interest.

The dangers mentioned are recognized and abattoirs looked to for the protection of honest buyers and honest sellers. Almost daily observation more than confirms the necessity of the kind. On a certain Saturday within a month I saw beef on the market which had a large score as big as a man's hand, filled with pus, on the inside of the ribs. It had been wiped over so that an amateur buyer would probably not notice it. On the same day I saw offered for sale three veal which I am satisfied were not three days old, and which probably had not breathed 24 hours. The following Tuesday I saw more veal of the same kind. But I think your readers have heard enough.

Indeed, since this discussion has been in London, the convention of medical health officers recently held at Belleville has also taken it up and has resolved to the establishment of abattoirs in cities.

From what I can learn every, or nearly every, reputable butcher in this city would welcome it, as they feel so keenly the competition of those who are not. One who makes a specialty of that sort of meat and creates a demand in certain quarters for cheap stuff, that many of them feel obliged to sometimes buy and sell some of the same, though they do it with a pricking conscience. It is a fair trade for a man who wants to be honest (much less to his customers) to subject him to this class of competition and to tempt him to such methods of keeping even. Yours, etc., THOS. J. COOK, Hamilton road, Sept. 6, 1895.

DR. ARNOTT'S REPLY.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": Being out of town for my holidays I did not see Hon. David Mills' letter in reply to my note to the "Advertiser" until my return. Your readers will remember that I said that judging from Mr. Mills' own words I inferred that he did not believe in prohibition. Mr. Mills says that I was mistaken, that in fact there was no inference to be drawn from the interview which would justify such a conclusion. I would be only too glad to find that I was mistaken; it would give me hope that he might yet be found devoting a portion of his great abilities to the lessening of this great evil. One part of the interview referred to, where Mr. Mills says that people's hearts cannot be changed by act of parliament, seemed to me to be capable of no other interpretation. It is an old time-worn sophism used by those opposed to the prohibition of the liquor traffic, which, if it means anything, means that the drink traffic cannot be controlled by legislation. If it can be construed to mean anything else in this connection I would be glad to know it. Surely no one believes that people can be made good by act of parliament. But I was mistaken before, the language of his reply surely leaves no room for doubt. Here are a few sentences from his letter. After saying that much crime is due to drunkenness, and that therefore drunkenness should be suppressed in order to lessen crime, he says: "There is a loss of moral fibre preceding drunkenness, idleness and wrong doing, in which these evils originate."

During the Fair week, and always, in fact, customers will be made welcome, and a trip through this great factory, where the annual production of biscuits and candies runs into millions of pounds, is one of the pleasures of a lifetime.

Again, "Both the crime and the habit are the expression of the moral character which underlies them, and of which they are the expression." "The proposed reforms (prohibition and restriction) are the treatment, not of the cause, but the symptoms." Now, unless the meaning of these sentences lies too deep for my comprehension, Mr. Mills believes that if a boy becomes a drunkard, he would have fallen into some other vice in the absence of drink. They imply that the saloon atmosphere has no power to retard or destroy the moral character of our youth and lead them into drunkenness or crime. This is a terribly hopeless, fatalistic doctrine. If the environments of our youth does not influence their moral growth, the people who spend so much time, labor and money in advocating prohibition or restriction of the liquor traffic are wasting their energies. Notwithstanding my sincere respect for the opinions of the learned gentleman, I still believe that as pure air aids the development of the body, so a pure moral atmosphere assists in building up a healthy moral character. I am not writing this in any captious spirit, but because I feel deeply the importance of opinions expressed by someone as eminent as Mr. Mills. I must leave to your readers to decide.

The Elegant New Offices and Factory of This Well-Known Firm.

What a Large and Rapidly Growing Business Has Brought About—A Manufacturer Where Biscuits and Candies Are Turned Out in Immense Quantities.

Perrin's magnificent new office and factory constitute one of the finest business blocks in the city of London. The massive and beautiful six story structure occupied by this firm on Dundas street west marks a new era in architectural designs for business purposes in Western Ontario; and the beholder who, judging from the exterior, expects something handsome in interior fittings, is in no wise disappointed as he enters the office door of this establishment. The first effect that attracts attention is the all-the-year-round exhibit of biscuits and confectionery, at once unique in its extent and the tastiness of its arrangement. Occupying the whole length of the west wall is a massive oak case, beautifully carved, with heavy plate glass doors. This contains an assortment of biscuits and confectionery that is perfectly bewildering in its variety to the uninitiated, and ranging from the well-known soda biscuits to the daintiest and most toothsome cakes, and from the common bull-eye and stick candy, to the most delicately flavored bon-bon, that almost melts at one's touch.

The elegance of the office fittings, equipped by the Globe Furniture Company (Limited), Walkerville, Ont., all finished in the best quarter-sawn oak, elegantly carved, together with the judicious use of plate glass and hand-copper grille work, all arranged in the most modern style for the purpose of economizing time and space, stamp the premises as being thoroughly "up to date," and a fitting home for one of the busiest and most progressive biscuit and confectionery manufacturing in the country.

It would be interesting, no doubt, but impossible, in the space at disposal, to take the reader through this large establishment and record in detail the different processes necessary in order to place on the market a complete line of goods such as those manufactured by D. S. Perrin & Co. Business enterprise and integrity have caused the firm to be well known from one end of the Dominion to the other, and their goods are recognized everywhere as first-class, a distinction they have earned from the excellent qualities they possess, consequent upon the use of the very best materials only and the scrupulous care taken in manufacturing.

Nobody but the inflated can realize the enormous expense and constant revision required in an establishment of this extensive character. So rapid are the changes, in response to demands for "something new" that costly machinery of wonderful patterns is continually, it might be said, being added to the plant, thus necessitating a very heavy investment with the view of successfully catering to the requirements of the most exacting of their patrons.

During the Fair week, and always, in fact, customers will be made welcome, and a trip through this great factory, where the annual production of biscuits and candies runs into millions of pounds, is one of the pleasures of a lifetime.

Whilst Visiting THE London Exhibition

DO NOT FORGET TO EXAMINE OUR TWO NEW STYLES OF PIANOS.

THE EMPIRE STYLE

We show an extremely chaste and quiet-looking Upright Cabinet Grand, with panels ornamented with pressed wood-work, in Empire style. The instrument being of large size, it possesses a volume of tone almost equal to that of a Concert Grand Piano. Quality considered, its price is moderate.

THE COLONIAL STYLE

We show one piano only in this style, and we consider it one of the finest specimens of the piano makers' art ever exhibited at London. It is, musically, almost equal to a Concert Grand, and the case has been carved in the highest style of art.

MARQUETERIE PANELS

We also exhibit one large Upright Piano with beautifully inlaid panels, which we secured direct from France. The design is floral, and every petal, leaf and stem is delicately outlined with separate pieces of wood of various colors.

A WORD OF ADVICE

To purchasers—Always remember it is cheaper to buy from the manufacturer direct than from a dealer who has to make a middle profit. In cities where there are no manufacturers our goods are handled by the most eminent dealers there, but in our own city we sell direct, and London purchasers have the benefit of the profit which would otherwise go to a third party.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We have on hand about 25 nearly new Upright Pianos, which have been taken by us in exchange for new Uprights of our own make. These we will dispose of at remarkably low figures on easy terms.

P. S.—Good Pianos for hire.

SPECULATIVE CRAZE IN BRITAIN.

The speculative mania appears to have broken out with renewed vigor in Great Britain. A reliable cable correspondent informs us that never during the present generation has there been such an amazing display of insane folly and recklessness in speculation as is now being witnessed. The South Africa and West Australia mining craze has grown until hundreds of millions of dollars have been poured into all manner of enterprises by the general public. Most of the schemes are advanced by Barney Baranto, whose fame is now world-wide. He has been so successful that his name is sufficient to draw millions from the pockets of the gain thirsting public without other guarantee. The sum which this man has been able to draw into the treasuries of his enterprises in the form of popular subscription shares now amounts to the amazing total of $150,000,000. His last coup is the most astonishing, probably, in financial history. He put on the market last week the stock of the "Baranto Bank, Mining and Estate Corporation, limited."

No prospectus was issued, nor any statement of the constitution, object, or management of the institution. One or two preliminary deals were made with syndicates whose members cleared more than $10,000,000 in a single day by unloading on the public. The demands for the shares of this bank when for sale on the Stock Exchange seemed limitless. Five dollar shares sold in immense quantities before business closed at $22. This equivalent to a capitalization of more than $75,000,000 of an undefined financial institution which has hardly begun business. Men of finance who are not infected by this strange madness are wondering how soon the crash will come. Kaffir speculation has been greatly stimulated by French and German support, and it has been well known during the past few days that strong efforts are being made to further prolong it by carrying the infection to the American markets. Everybody whose opinion is worth anything believes the whole mining market is fearfully top-heavy.

Under a changed condition of affairs, which would open up new markets for our products, and enable our farmers, miners and others to make the most of their earnings, many millions of this money would have been directed to the development of Canada. But so long as our trade is restricted, and the exchange of our commodities between our producers and their customers in Britain and elsewhere is hampered, the effective development of this country by British capital will be delayed. With common-sense management, Canada will afford infinitely better opportunity and security for investment than any speculation in Kaffirland questionable schemes. But there must be no more governmental indorsement of wildcat railway or dead meat company schemes.

On Thursday next the clang of the motor gong will sound the knell of the London street car horse. May it never become the knell of a human being.

London may be "in the woods," and all of that, but her water pipes have the good sense to stay in good position for everyday use.

One hundred and fifty leading Conservatives have resolved to bring out a McCarthy candidate in Brockville. The constituency is now represented by Comptroller Wood. Thus is the unity of the high tax organization once more demonstrated.

Sir Arthur Sullivan has intimated to the committee of the Leeds Musical Festival that he cannot undertake to furnish them with the oratorio which they have demanded of him. The fact is Sir Arthur has been subsidized to get up an Alhambra ballet, and has no time for new work. What a strange mixture musical composition in the old land is!

One of the novelties introduced by the street railway company of this city is railway tracks without ties. The rails on those sections of Dundas and Richmond streets which are about to be asphalted are laid on the top of concrete piled into a trench one foot wide and six inches or more deep. Tie rods are put in every ten feet, but these are not "ties" in the usual sense. A seven inch girder rail is used. This system of construction is claimed to be suitable to streets which are permanently paved before the tracks are laid. The pavement most suitable is asphalt or brick, as this class allows the concrete to come much nearer the top of the rail than pavements with deep blocks. This is a radical departure from established methods, but as it has proved successful in Detroit, it will no doubt work well here.

Wiggins, the weather prophet, has predicted a storm during Western Fair week. What has London done to Wiggins? Or is Wiggins working in the interest of a rival fair? There is one consolation, however, as a prophet Wiggins long ago proved himself a decided failure.

Sir Henry Tyler, formerly president of the Grand Trunk Railway, is still a busy man. He is now in New York on his way to Peru, where he will represent capitalists holding $170,000,000 in Peruvian securities. Some time ago Peru defaulted on the interest. To the British creditors she made over certain railroads, guano beds and lands, and agreed to pay $50,000 a year. This agreement was ratified by Congress. The bondholders were incorporated as the Peruvian Corporation. Recent political troubles have made it necessary to test the soundness of the agreement, and perhaps to have it ratified by the present Government. Is there a civilized or uncivilized nation in any part of the world where Britain has not wealth invested? What a busy money-making, money-investing crowd the British are!

As there are four more "heats" in the international yacht race, it may be just as well for our Yankee neighbors not to be too cock-sure of success because the Defender has won the first of the five.

POINTS.

A few people grumble because the present mayor and council did not settle the street railway question soon enough. But the great mass of the people are satisfied that the civic authorities did the best they could for the taxpayers. The street railway authorities say that Mayor Little and his coadjutors made too good a bargain for them.

All must admit that ex-Lieutenant-Governor Schultz was a hard worker—for another term of office.

Chauncey M. Depew cordially praises his political opponent, Grover Cleveland, and believes the President will be nominated a fourth time by the Democrats. A fourth Presidential nomination would be without precedent in the Republic, and would be a crowning honor to the greatest statesman it has produced since Lincoln. But United States voters do not look kindly on fourth terms.

The Toronto Mail-Empire confesses that in the poorer districts of Toronto there are people so poor that they build little or no fire during the summer. Their plight, now that everyone is menaced by fever and disease who does not boil the city water can well be imagined.

Now boom business. And there's no quicker way to do it than to advertise, is the assertion of a man of great experience in money making.

The thousands of visitors to London Fair need not be afraid of not getting good drinking water. London's pipes don't float.

On Thursday next the clang of the motor gong will sound the knell of the London street car horse. May it never become the knell of a human being.

IS IT THE RUSSIAN THISTLE?

If Mr. D. B. Burch is right when he asserts that the detested Russian thistle is growing in the vicinity of the mill at Byron, the Middlesex county authorities cannot too soon take action to have the pest stayed. In the Western States agricultural operations have been almost rendered useless in widespread districts through the growth of this weed, and it is estimated that millions of dollars will have to be spent before it is effectively combatted. No doubt if it had been fought at the start its ravages could have been stayed at small expenditure of time and money.

ILLOGICAL AND SPENDTHRIFT.

A high tax contemporary prints a column and a half of involved calculations with the object of convincing its readers that the less trade Canada has with Great Britain or any other country, the more prosperous will be the Dominion.

How illogical these advocates of trade restriction are!

They profess to believe that a profitable interchange of commodities between countries is injurious to at least one of the parties to the bargain, and they advocate the piling up of restrictive taxes on imports, so as to make it just as difficult as possible for our farmers and other producers to get full payment for what they have to sell at world's market prices.

Then these trade restrictionists advocate the spending of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually on fast steamships to increase trade between Canada and Great Britain and between Canada and Australia and New Zealand. And they have been champions of the expenditure of millions of dollars on deepening the channels of navigation with the avowed object of increasing trade.

With one hand, therefore, they restrict and harass commerce in the interest of combines and monopolies, and with the object of accumulating a fund from public taxes to bribe communities, and with the other they lavish public money on enterprises that would be undertaken without any coaxing if trade were left to flow in its natural channels.

Assuredly it is time for a change.

ADVERTISEMENTS AND DRESS.

A Baltimore Herald writer makes the criticism that the universal American woman buys what she likes, regardless whether it be matronly or not; and what is worse her daughters will select articles of dress only suitable for married women. But surely if there is a time when a woman should be allowed her own sweet will it is when she goes shopping for herself; and why should a married woman proclaim her double blessedness in her dress any more than a married man? There would be small need of advertisements if all the wives were relegated to a conventional uniform—and what would become of taste in dress without the daily service of the press—Philadelphia Record.

AN APPEAL TO DESTINY.

Is it too much to hope for the day of the amateurless piano?—Washington Post.

The Canadian Magazine for this month, which is illustrated throughout, has a fine portrait of Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley as frontispiece, and its usual acceptable table of contents, among which may be noted Robt. Macbray's "Liverpool of Today" and James B. Peat's article on the Canadian cash reserves. Toronto: Ontario Publishing Company.

"Two in the Bush; and Others Elsewhere" is the strange title of half a dozen stories by F. Frankfort Moore, author of "I Forbid the Banns." The scenes are laid in almost every quarter of the globe, and the stories are told with a vim. London and New York: Macmillan & Co.; Toronto: Copp Clark Co.

"Under God's Sky: The Story of a Cleft in Marland" is the latest novel by the author of "A High Little World," which had so large a circulation in England. This is a lively love-story, with a much-involved plot. Mr. Cromarty, the author, writes vividly and crisply. Published by Macmillan & Co., London and New York; Toronto: The Copp Clark Co., Publishers.

MARK IT WELL.

A Development Peculiar to the Present Generation Dangerous and Often Fatal.

As each generation comes and goes it is marked by changes, developments and discoveries unknown to its predecessors. From a physical standpoint, one of the most to be dreaded conditions, and peculiar for its rapid increase during the present generation, is when the mind labors under the delusion of persecution, continual restlessness, pain in the back and head, twitching of the muscles of the face and hands, furred tongue, breath foul and heavy, nausea and further indications of stomach trouble. There may be delirium, convulsions, or sinking spells. Medical authorities apply different names to the conditions that are unintelligible to the average reader. The actual facts are the demoralized and dangerous state of the system is due to the accumulation of "Body Poison" in the blood that should and would be thrown off by the kidneys if in a healthy condition. In order to restore health, strike at the root of the disease with Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, the only medicine known that will control the changes going on in the kidneys, enabling them to furnish for the whole system blood free from disease-breeding poison, building up the shattered condition of the nerves and relieving mental depression.

The first set went to Miss Osborne, 6-3. But the second was one of the longest ever played here. Miss Osborne finally winning by 12-10. In all-comers' singles, C. B. Noel, of Chicago, won with ease.

men fought at 110 pounds. The betting at the start was 6 to 4 on Wallace. In the tenth round Corfield appeared to be weak, but he appeared to be the better boxer. He resisted Wallace's rushes, and in the fifteenth round he felled Wallace twice. Thereafter the fighting was all in favor of Corfield, who hit Wallace around the ring, the Birmingham man out with a terrific left-hander in the neck.

DURANT'S DEFENSE.

Two Other Men to be Implicated in the Case.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10.—An evening paper prints a sensational story about the defense which will be offered in the trial of Theodore Durant for the murder of Blanche Lamont. The statement is credited to a person connected with the defense. "The alibi will be strong, but the defense has witnesses to show that Durant not only did not commit the murder but will indicate who did it. There will be more than one implicated in the murder. Witnesses will testify that they saw the girl enter the church on the fatal afternoon with a certain man, and at that time a second man was in the church. There the defense will rest its inquiry. It will not attempt to prove that these parties did commit the murder. The statements as to this are so direct that they will leave no ground for the prosecution to stand on, so far as Durant is concerned."

ODD ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

An express engine consumes ten gallons of water per mile.

The London and Northwestern Railway Company consume 3,500 tons of coal a day. No tree has yet been measured taller than the great eucalyptus in Gippsland, Australia, 450 feet high.

Two hundred women are employed by Edison in working at the more delicate details of his electrical inventions.

The whole of the land on the globe above water level is shrouded in the Pacific Ocean would only fill one-seventh of it.

South American ants have been known to construct a tunnel three miles in length, a labor for them proportionate to that which would be required for men to tunnel under the Atlantic from New York to London.

Vast quantities of flowers are gathered for perfumery purposes. Each year it is estimated that 1850 tons of orange flowers are used, besides 930 tons of roses, 150 tons each of violets and jasmynes, 75 tons of tuberose, 30 tons of cassia and 15 tons of jonquils.

The number of men and women in France is more nearly equal than in any other country, there being 1,007 women to 1,000 men. In Switzerland there are 1,064 men to 1,000 women, and in Greece only 923. In Hongkong there are only 366 women to 1,000 men.

A horse can draw on metal rails one and two-third times as much as on good asphalt pavement, three and a third times as much as on good Belgian blocks, five times as much as on good cobblestones, twenty times as much as on good earth road, and 40 times as much as on sand.

In Australia the rabbits climb walls—built at enormous expense, under the delusion that they were "rabbit proof"—and run up and hide in the numerous hollow trees as if they were opaculus. Tenders of the prejudice, and taken to the water, and swim across rivers like water rats.

The largest cargo steamship afloat was anchored the other day by Messrs. Harland & Wolff, at Belfast. The Georgio was built for the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, and will run in their cargo and live stock service between Liverpool and New York. On the upper and bridge decks there will be accommodation for 940 head of cattle, becoming stalls for a great number of horses in the center of the upper deck. She will be lighted by electricity. Her tonnage is 6,580 net and 10,000 gross.

CHINESE VENTRILOQUISM.

The following description of the performance of a Chinese ventriloquist is given by the author of "The Chinaman at Home." It was furnished to him by a friend, who heard the performance in Pekin.

The ventriloquist was seated behind a screen, where there were only a chair, a table, a fan and a ruler. With the ruler he tapped on the table to enforce silence, and when everybody had ceased speaking, he suddenly heard the barking of a dog. Then we heard the movements of a woman. She had been waked by the dog, and was shaking her husband.

We were just expecting to hear the man and wife talking together, when a child began to cry. To pacify it the mother gave it food; we could hear it drinking and crying at the same time. The mother spoke to it, soothingly, and then arose to change its clothes.

Meanwhile another child had wakened and was beginning to make a noise. The father scolded it, while the baby continued crying. By and by the whole family went back to bed and fell asleep. The patter of a mouse was heard. It climbed up some vase and upset it. We heard the chatter of the vase as it fell.

The woman coughed in her sleep. Then cries of "Fire! fire!" were heard. The mouse had upset the lamp; the bed-curtains were on fire. The husband and wife waked up, shouted and screamed, the children cried. Thousands of people came running and shouting.

Children cried, dogs barked, the walls came crashing down, quibs and crackers exploded. The fire brigade came racing up. Water was pumped up in torrents, and hissed in the flames.

The representation was so true to life that everyone rose to his feet and was starting away, when a second blow of the ruler on the table commanded silence. We rushed behind the screen, but there was nothing there except the ventriloquist, his table, his chair and his ruler.

BLOOD AS A MEDICINE.

"Let me have three ounces of that bottled blood quickly!" bids fair yet to become not an uncommon order in the corner drug store. According to a well-known Philadelphia physician, starting progress has been made in blood-healing or hemotherapy. "Blood is not only life," he declares, "but lives itself independently. It is a highly organized living tissue supply in the transition state. It can be made to live apart from the body indefinitely in perfect condition, and can then be turned into any tissue by any opening at any time, when it will instantly resume its full creative activity. It can even be swallowed, when the patient, suffering from draining of blood or hemorrhages, can take no other drink. Death from blood starvation will one day be exceedingly rare, indeed, and these corked-up vital corpuscles will be used not only for imminently dangerous, but for intractable lingering cases."—Philadelphia Record.

HOPE ABANDONED!

No Escape for the Men in the Osceola Mine.

Rescuing Parties Driven Back by the Deadly Gas and Smoke—29 Men and Boys in the Death Trap.

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 10.—Ten miners went down the southern shaft of the Osceola mine yesterday morning. The party descended in the skip, or iron car used in bringing up rock from the mine to the 24th level, and managed to press north on that level within 250 feet of the shaft next south of the burning one. At that point two of the party were overcome by the gas and to save ailing fresh victims to the already long list, the relief expedition turned back.

In No. 1 shaft at the other side of the mine a similar attempt was made, but at a depth of only 280 feet down the shaft smoke was met in such volume that it was deemed foolhardy to descend further, and the miners quickly came to the surface. The experience of the rescuing parties renders it certain that the entire mine is now filled with gas and cuts off the last hope that the missing men may have been able to preserve their lives. Rescuing parties with the sent down as quickly as possible to test the condition of the mine. It will probably be some days before the mine will be clear of smoke, even if the fire has gone out, which is quite doubtful.

It is now positively known that 29 men and boys were caught in the mine. Nineteen of them were married. Houghton, Mich., Sept. 9.—Twenty women are widows and 50 children are fatherless by the disaster in the Osceola mine. Most pitiful scenes are being hourly witnessed in the vicinity of the shafts that have not yet been sealed. Bereaved women and children clinging to the spot in the desperate hope that some loved form may yet emerge from the opening.

ANOTHER CONVENTION FOR LONDON.

King's Daughters and Sons of Ontario Meet Here Next Month.

The Ontario Provincial Convention of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons is to be held in this city on Oct. 15, 16 and 17.

The conventions of this society have always been of the most interesting character, and it is expected that this one will not be behind those of former years. The society is interdenominational. Its aims and objects are "to develop spiritual life and stimulate Christian activities." The watchword is: "In His Name."

Circles may be and are formed in different churches under the guidance and teaching of the pastor. The circle is independent of the others and at liberty to choose its own line of work. Anything that can be done in the name of Jesus Christ, the King and Savior, is legitimate work for the circles. They may also be, and are, formed outside of churches for philanthropic work.

The work of the London circles is extensive, going on quietly. Many of them, apart from this work, have taken a deep interest in and furnished rooms in the Home for Incurables and visit it constantly. In fact all the homes and the hospitals in our city have received care and ministry from the King's Daughters. London was honored by having the convention of 1932 held here, when enthusiastic numbers of people attended the meetings. An opportunity will once more be given to our citizens to show their interest in the work, and also to profit by the practical Christian work and methods of the order laboring in His name.

NOTES.
The weather has been fine and warm, but it has been rather cool at night.

There are a number of young hogs who take the liberties of the camp and eat up all the straws of corn which happen to be within reach. It is impossible to keep them out, the fences not being built that way, and it is no strange sight to see one of the men make a run to chase them out of the tents.

Lieut.-Col. Cotton, inspector of artillery from Kingston, is expected here Tuesday and Wednesday next.

MAKING USE OF AN OLD BICYCLE.

(Philadelphia Call.)

"I had often wondered how I became of the old-style bicycles," remarked a wheeler, "I discovered the other day what had become of them. During a ride down in Jersey I came across a sawmill in the woods. To my astonishment I found that the motive power for the mill was supplied by a young man and one of the big-wheeled bicycles that were in vogue before the safe."

The bicycle was suspended from the ceiling and connected with the mill machinery with a belt. The young man sat on the seat of the wheel and worked the pedals with his feet, and in this way kept the saw in motion for hours at a time.

JACKETS.

Each season the aim of cloak manufacturers seems to be to out-distance their previous efforts as regards style, finish and make of garments. The experience we have gained in the cloak trade gives us a decided advantage in getting together the latest and best productions of the style makers, and buying in large quantities enables us to place before our customers the pick of the market at popular prices. Our cloak and costume department has this season been early filled with the latest ideas in jackets and capes of all kinds, from the lowest to the highest prices. But because we handle and show expensive cloaks, don't think we cannot supply you with a cheap one, and it is well to remember that our cheap cloaks are well made and stylish, not shop-worn articles. When we say cheap, we mean the price is cheap, not the article. Our aim is to suit every lady and girl in London with one of our cloaks.

TORONTO INDUSTRIAL.

Citizens' Day—Fine Display of Live Stock and a Record-Breaking Dog Show.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Citizens' Day was a misnomer for the twelve hours following noon at the Fair yesterday. Citizens started out early in large numbers to hold and enjoy the day set apart for them, but before noon the urban forces were overwhelmed and routed by the multitudes from the country, which the railways and boats emptied into the city. Although the grounds held thousands of city people, the country people seemed to hide them from view, and instead of "citizens" it was "everybody's" day.

The live stock is all in now. There are 870 horses entered, 160 of which are roadsters, and 80 hunters and 106 carriage horses. There are 737 entries in the cattle sheds. There are 158 Ayres, 122 Jerseys and 121 Holsteins. Four hundred and forty-seven sheep are entered, and 435 swine. There are 400 entries in the poultry department.

The dog show has 645 entries. It surpasses anything of the kind ever held in Toronto. Dr. Loughet, of Boston, shows 12 bloodhounds, which are each valued at $10,000, and the same value is placed on some mastiffs.

UNIVERSAL PATENT COAT AND MANTLE RACK.

One of the most interesting exhibits to drygoods, millinery and clothing merchants is located in the first gallery of the main building. This is the most nearly approaching perfection of any of the many contrivances for the purpose, and is in use in all the most complete and convenient article of the kind on the market." Percy Bros., of Smith's Falls, say in correspondence: "Your rack is all one could wish for. In fact, it more than fills the bill for ready-made clothing it is complete; also it is very useful in our tailoring department to display our made-to-order clothing. We accept drafts for the effect is perfect, and cannot fail to please both merchant and customer. S. F. McKinnon & Co., wholesale milliners, speak of this patent as follows: "This is to certify that we are using the Universal Mantle Rack in our cloak department, and take pleasure in bearing testimony to its usefulness, and can highly recommend it to the retail trade, as being in our opinion the most complete and convenient article of the kind on the market."

On my right hand I noticed what looked like a human habitation, although it was not constructed of cut-glass with inside shades, as is our universal custom. The house, if such it could be called, was seemingly built of painted wood, with square holes, in which a few small pieces of glass were set. Attracted by the possibility of an adventure, which, of course, is very rare nowadays, I walked at once to the door and entered. Almost at the threshold I met the owner, and greeting him cheerfully announced my intention of making a brief stay with him. Much to my surprise, he seemed to demur, but soon recovering his self-possession he ushered me into a room and introduced me to his daughter. I was rather embarrassed to the picturesque costume of antiquity, but presumed that it was merely done in sportive mood. Yet, truly, she looked a vision of loveliness. In the Year 3,000.

It is now the 42nd day of the spring season, in the year 3000 A.D. My name—C-234-M. G.—tells the reader my residence family and the phenological classification, and when I state that I have reached the mature age of 10, anyone must realize that I have something worth telling, or I would never risk the penalty imposed by law upon the purposeless author.

I am a clerk in the bureau of carpet tacks, department of house furnishings of D continent (formerly North America). Although my labor is credited to Guthrie (the Governmental center of D continent), I prefer to reside in C continent (formerly Africa) by reason of its superior climatic advantages, as well as the greater selectness of its single tax areas. I have the reputation of being honest and industrious, and although it takes me nine minutes to reach my office from my home via the Electric Flash system of governmental transit, yet I am as regular in my hours of attendance as any clerk living within a few hundred miles.

Having recently finished my proportion of individual labor for the common good during the current year, and received government dividends in safety, I determined to devote my vacation to a slow journey through the world.

My first destination, I had determined, should be the newest continent—anti-continent H (formerly Antarctica)—and the slow passage thither on an airship freighter was a novel sensation indeed. Under the most favorable conditions a speed of over 100 miles an hour was impossible, and the voyage, although enlivened by numerous well told legends of ships that sailed on the water, seemed interminable. Then we flew over the gigantic system of mirrors that by reflecting the rays of the sun have made a semitropical country out of this erstwhile ice bound coast, the air became rather oppressive, but in a very few minutes we had reached the elevated landings. Rapidly spreading my wing planes, I jumped outward from the deck and soon reached the ground in safety.

The moving sidewalk carried me rapidly to a place of amusement, when a man told me that a company would give a faithful reproduction of the wonderful American allegory, entitled "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He then stated that in the days of Mark Antony (or Mark Twain, as he was sometimes erroneously called) and McKinley Bill immense audiences gathered to witness this pagan spectacle, and that thousands of negroes were torn to pieces by savage bloodhounds for the delectation of the assembled populace.

In accordance with the rapidly drawn pictures to be found in the extant copies of a curious publication called a comic or comic weekly, the part of Little Eva was played by a woman of advanced years and the cakes of ice were represented by specially constructed and labelled soapboxes.

On my right hand I noticed what looked like a human habitation, although it was not constructed of cut-glass with inside shades, as is our universal custom. The house, if such it could be called, was seemingly built of painted wood, with square holes, in which a few small pieces of glass were set. Attracted by the possibility of an adventure, which, of course, is very rare nowadays, I walked at once to the door and entered. London West Councillors Stick to
Their Tax Rate Ideas.

The Reeve and Finance Minister Leave the Meeting—An End to the Deadlock in Sight.

The termination of the tax rate deadlock in the London West Council is now probably a matter of a very few days. The councillors met again last night to talk the question over, and doubtless owing to the stormy scenes of the previous meeting and an expectation of witnessing another show, the ratepayers were there in numbers. Between half an hour from the call of time by the reeve, the councillors were all on their way home—Reeve Macdonald and his aide-de-camp, Councillor Moore pairing off to the north, while Councillor Hamilton, with his right and left supporters, Deputy Reeve Murdoch and Councillor Andrews, wheeled south.

Every member was as fixed in his ideas on the rate question as the first time it was brought out. It had been rumored that one of Mr. Hamilton's followers was likely to bolt and go with the reeve and Mr. Moore for consolidation. No bolt occurred, however, and it is now more than likely that the 25-mill bylaw, as moved by Mr. Hamilton, will be prepared and signed by the deputy reeve.

Mr. Macdonald, in opening the meeting, said that several bills had been presented to him for payment and that they were due coupons for $300. Funds were short. He hoped there would be no more hard feelings between the members.

Mr. Andrews, whom some thought was going to bolt, told Reeve Macdonald that he was not going in for consolidation. He said the next best thing the council could do would be to compromise and strike a rate.

Mr. Moore offered his previous motion to strike the rate at 23 mills and consolidate.

"But you will not accept of a 22-mill rate, which you claim it will take without consolidation," said Mr. Hamilton.
Mr. Moore—I will not move for that,
as I do not want to drive anyone away from the village. I have no desire to be a stumbling block in your way, so I will put on my hat and go home.

Mr. Moore and Reeve Macdonald left their seats and went out of the room.
"Very well," said Councillor Andrews, as the two filed out. "We can prepare a bylaw and the deputy reeve can sign it."

Mr. Murdoch—if they are so pig-headed that they will not do it, we will do it ourselves. Tied up like a lot of fools all the time—I do not like it.

And the meeting adjourned.
Clerk Simpson will prepare the by-law. If Mr. Murdoch signs it disqualification proceedings may be begun against him, Mr. Hamilton and Mr.
Andrews.

Not a Matter of Dollars—Only Sense.

If one stove would heat a room comfortably no one would think of using two,
and the same logic holds in the case of coats or other garments. One coat or wrap lined with Fibre Channels will give more warmth than two without it, because it is thoroughly windproof and thus keeps out frosty breezes while it keeps in the heat of the body. And all this without being a burden, for its additional weight is a mere bagatelle. When you consider that it not only furnishes the warmth but lends the necessary stiffness for style, you will surely realize that it is an indispensable adjunct to comfort and economy in all fall and winter clothing.

excursions will be discontinued after this week.

planation of the Waterloo Band not going

the terms offered."

learn that the health of Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, of Toronto, is better than reported and that he seems to be improving.

of the Empire at Ottawa, has been appointed chief of the news bureau about to be established in Canada by the London Times.

—Mr. Hayter, Glenora, who is at the London Hospital for treatment for appendicitis, had an operation performed. The but his condition has somewhat improved.

—The marriage was solemnized on Saturday, by the Rev. A. E. Griffith, at his

—Mr. Thos. Donley, of St. Thomas, who has been lessee of the Fraser House, Port Stanley, for the past two years, has given up his lease. Mr. Donley, who ran a first-make money, and, having lost a considerable sum since he took hold of the business, has decided to discontinue running it. Mr.

Fraser takes possession on Monday.

—What might have proved a very serious matter occurred on Friday night in a house in the southern part of the city. A lady returning leaving a gas jet lighted for her husband, who was returning to town by a late train. After awhile she awoke, the house was in darkness, and her first thought was burglars! She arose and was almost overcome by the smell of escaping gas. She struck a match and found the jet still turned on, but unluckily the gas failed in many other houses in the city the same evening, and in one where a dance was in progress.

THE CHEESE INSPECTOR.
The Dominion Government has appointed
Mr. F. E. Jodery inspector of cheese at Montreal, and the cheese boards claim that they have been ignored in the appointment.
They also object to Mr. Jodery, that having been mixed up in the trade in Montreal his inspection would not give general satisfaction.

A CANADIAN ARTIST HONORED.

F. M. Bell-Smith the well known artist, formerly of this city, who was recently commissioned to paint a portrait of Her Majesty placing the wreath on the coffin of the late Sir John Thompson has received from Lord Edward Pelham Clinton, master of the Queen's household, a letter, from which the following is an extract:

"The Queen has seen the sketch you were good enough to send, and which I now return, and she quite approves of the arrangement of the figures and the conception of the picture. Her Majesty made no remark with regard to the introduction of the Pony Chair and I am inclined to think she has not much to say in the matter, and would leave to you to do what you consider best.
The view of the long walk, will I think have a pleasing effect and help to lighten the center of the picture. I may perhaps mention, as you are aware, the Queen's eyesight is not as good as it used to be and she may have had difficulty in seeing all the figures in so small a sketch, but she is evidently quite satisfied with the general idea."

TORONTO'S MEAT AND DRINK.
Hamilton had a lone delegate at the Trades Congress in the person of Mr.
John Flett. The intense rivalry existing between Toronto and Hamilton was manifested at the meetings several times each session, and as there were several Toronto delegates present Mr.
Flett could hardly turn his head without being "pecked at" by the Toron-tians. At first Mr. Flett confined his bursts of resentment to audible references to "Hogtown," and appeared to be much satisfied thereby. Then Mr.
Flett read in the "Advertiser"
of the rising of Toronto's water pipes, and the fact that her citizens were now drinking diluted sewage. Had the Toronto delegates seen the triumphant gleam that shot across Mr.
Flett's visage they would not have provoked him with any more references to Hogtown, etc. But they did not, and at last the Hamiltonian's opportunity came. Rising impressively,
he said:

"President, I don't wonder at the delegates being proud of Toronto, and trying to belittle every other place in creation in consequence. Why should they not be proud? For have they not a water supply which at present is meat and drink to them?"

And Toronto got the laugh.

DESTROY THE WORMS NOW.

In time of peace prepare for war. Kill the caterpillars while they are nesting, not to keep them from eating any more leaves this year, but to discourage the next generation of that pestiferous insect. The caterpillar harvest is now ripe for the active citizen who has enough energy and love for the beautiful to clean out the tree in front of his house. An ordinary walking stick will do most of the work. The worms have now begun to build their cocoons, and thousands of them are within reach from the pavement. They can be found in their grayish houses of woven webs in the rough places in the bark of the trees.

To smash a cocoon now means the loss of scores of members of the caterpillar family next season. The denuded trees appeal strongly for such a campaign against the caterpillar. Little can be done, of course, by individual effort that is not supplemented by other work all along the street and through the city, but an hour's work any afternoon during the next few days by every householder in the city will practically insure a freedom from the pests next summer. While it is true that the trees have not been permanently injured by the worms this year, much of their beauty has been lost by the eating of the leaves, and it cannot be possible that the attractiveness of the trees will survive many such seasons of devastation.
