

Washington, D. C., October 14. — The Soviet army in Stockholm today said it was concentrating its troops for a decisive attack on the Finnish town of Denikine's Cossack garrison. Denikine's penetration into the Finnish town of Koronorezh and the fall of the town were regarded as threatening the central Soviet government. In a recent Soviet broadcast, Chief Commissar Molotov described the situation as serious.

An official dispatch from Moscow today said that the North Siberian army commander, General Ruzhkov, and General

DROWN SOLDIER'S QUERY TO BECK BY LOUD 'CHEERS'

Worked-Up Applause Smoothers Byron Soldiers' Representative.

FAILS TO GET HEARING

"Why Don't I Cheer?—I Did My Cheering in France," Vet. Says.

Cheers for Adam Beck, cheers for the king and cheers for numerous other institutions and persons succeeded in drowning out returned soldiers from the Alexandria Sanatorium, who sought to present their grievances to Sir Adam at a campaign meeting in the Masonic Temple last night. By the time the cheering was kept up until the hall was fairly well cleared and all opportunity to address the gathering had ended.

The spokesman for the soldiers, who said his name was Pte. Pat. S. Welsh, rose early in the meeting and demanded an opportunity to present the grievances of the soldiers. Chairman E. R. Dennis promised him that this would be given to him if he did not interrupt the other speakers. The soldier courteously agreed to this arrangement.

More Cheering. Immediately when Sir Adam finished speaking the soldier attempted to reach the platform from which Sir Adam's supporters were making a hurried getaway. They saw him coming and shouted for three cheers for Sir Adam. These were of sufficient volume to frustrate any attempt the returned man made to speak, and as soon as they had subsided somebody called for three cheers for the king. These were loudly given by the majority of the citizens in the hall.

The soldier, who was vainly endeavoring to gain a hearing, did not participate, and one of Sir Adam's supporters called out: "Why don't you cheer?" "Did I mine in France."

"I did all my cheering in France, not sitting up on a political platform," was the come-back of the soldier. "Are there any returned men on your platform?"

Sir Adam entered into a brief argument with the soldier as they left the hall, but disclaimed all responsibility for matters relating to the soldiers at Byron.

The statement which the soldier attempted to present was to the effect that there are on an average of eleven men absent without leave from the Sanatorium each day. Their maintenance at $2.05 is continued, and in a year would aggregate $35.35. The soldier said: "He wanted to know what became of this sum. He said that each man was also granted four days' leave."

leave, and that the Sanatorium received maintenance for them during their absence.

Claims Funds Juggled. He also claimed that money and articles donated for the exclusive use of the soldiers were turned into a general fund for the use of all the patients. He stated that he was on the soldiers' entertainment committee, and that Dr. Bell had received a letter asking him to create such a general fund with the articles donated by the soldiers.

Has Not Official Support. Mr. Gibbons acknowledged that he had not the official support of his union or Toronto organized labor. He claimed that he had talked with many representative labor men in Toronto, that they had favored him, and that their opinion was as representative as any mass meeting that could be called. He also read a letter from Joseph Flett, endorsing Beck.

"You're no labor man," cried a man in the audience. "My standing as a labor man has never been questioned, but there seem to be some labor men who are suffering from what I might call 'political insanity,'" replied Mr. Gibbons.

Reads Kipling. Following this Chairman E. R. Dennis sought to introduce Sir Adam Beck by reading one of Rudyard Kipling's poems. His oratorical efforts were unappreciated even by the warmest supporters of the candidate in the audience. "Is that the menu of the new hotel at Port Stanley?" demanded a man at the back of the hall, who had tried in vain to catch the poetical cadences. The meeting was fairly well attended and all the speakers, including Sir Adam received generous and at times vigorous applause.

Lauds Hydro System. Mr. Dennis, opening the meeting, said that the city and the province could not afford to ignore Beck's leadership. He eulogized the hydro system and dealt at length with Sir Adam's service as a removal officer during the war.

Dr. H. A. McCallum, the next speaker, said that the city should apologize to the candidate for not electing him by acclamation. He dwelt on what Sir Adam had done for the medical fraternity of the city. He claimed that as member for London, he had made the medical school a provincial institution had obtained provincial grants for it, and placed medical education within reach of the workman's son. He also gave him credit for maintaining a pure water system in the city by means of wells. He concluded by praising his work as power commissioner.

Surprise at Opposition. Joseph Gibbons, ex-controller of Toronto and business agent of the Toronto Street Railway Union, said that the Toronto Labor men were greatly surprised when they heard Beck was to be elected. He said that public ownership was a plank of the trades congress, that Sir Adam Beck was the foremost exponent of public ownership, that the policy of trades unions was to elect their friends and defeat their enemies, and that he therefore could do nothing else than support Beck. He said Sir Adam had proved public ownership practicable. Later he dealt with Beck's administration of the L. & P. S. R. and his contact with him in regard to wages.

Favors Independent Action. He said he wanted labor men to understand that he was not opposed to independent political action. He was in favor of it, but not against Sir Adam, "who has done more to bring about such independent action than any one man."

Chairman E. R. Dennis then introduced Sir Adam as "Ontario's favorite son."

Sir Adam made the usual expression of appreciation for past support, and remarked that the present campaign had been noticeably free of personalities. He had only kindest feeling toward his opponent and supporters. He had felt that he should take a independent stand at the present time although he was loathe to sever his affiliations with the party with which he had been associated since 1900, but that in doing so he felt freer to act in defence of hydro.

Not Hearst Follower. Although the local government paper had this night called him a member of the Hearst Government, he was not such a member, but was in the unique position of being independent and free to act in what he considered the best interests of the public. He was glad there was a contest. He wanted to know whether or not he had the support of the people before taking on another four years' work.

Sir Adam claimed that he had taken an interest in other matters than hydro, and claimed to have been the first member of his party to introduce the subject of votes for women. He said the Hearst platform was a good one. He asked the indignation of the citizens to make the Government enforce this policy. He said he approved of allowances for mothers who died the term "pensions" as applied to it. He hoped that this scheme would have the support of all parties. He commended the educational program, and said he would welcome the day when a new university was opened here.

Approved Collective Bargaining. He claimed that it was impossible to reduce fares on the London and Port Stanley Railway from 50 cents to 20 cents because of increased costs of operation. He had approved the principle of "collective bargaining" by addressing three thousand hydro workers in regard to a wage increase, and had seen that they obtained it. There had been no profiteering hydro power, and while other commodities had advanced in price, it had dropped.

The hydro plans called for the expenditure of $275,000,000 within the next five or six years, he stated, claiming that the returns would justify it.

HOUSING COMMISSION TRIES TO APPOINT CHAIRMAN, BUT FAILS. An attempt was made at the meeting of the housing commission in the city hall on Thursday evening to appoint a chairman, but as usual it was a failure. R. D. McDonald was nominated as a candidate for the office, but he flatly refused it, declaring that the job was too big for him. He was willing to serve on the board, and in that capacity do all in his power to settle the housing question, but the chairmanship entailed too much responsibility. So the housing commission is still without a chairman.

Since the resignation of J. G. Richter the position has been filled by the vice-chairman, J. W. Cunliffe. The matter of the appointment will be taken up again when every member of the commission is present. E. R. Dennis was the "missing link" last night. His thing is going very slowly," said Mayor C. R. Somerville in reference to the housing plan. "Is there no material was late in coming, and that by paying a little higher price than contractors at present he could secure the aid of St. Thomas and Aylmer firms to construct houses."

GRAHAM DECLARES OFFER TO TAKE OVER G. T. R. WAS URGED BY MANIPULATORS

Former Minister Says That Plan Was Formulated by Capitalists.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.—Allegations that the present offer to have the Grand Trunk Railway system being manipulated by some group of capitalists who, he claims, were behind the Canadian Northern Railway purchase, were made by Hon. Sir George P. Graham, former minister of railways, in an interview here tonight.

The purchase of the Grand Trunk Railway system is being used by this group of capitalists, Mr. Graham contends, as a stock gamble. He is of the opinion that the seizure of the Grand Trunk Pacific by the Government was dictated in London and from London, that when the stocks of the Grand Trunk were low in consequence they were purchased by the group of capitalists, and that this same group will make immense fortunes if the Government takes over the system at this time. Further, Mr. Graham declares that he believes the same group of manipulating capitalists hope to gain control of the complete government-owned system when the people become disgusted with public ownership.

DRINKING A GLASS OF HOT WATER IS A SPLENDID HABIT

Cleanse and Sweeten the System
Each Morning and Wash Away Poisonous, Stagnant Matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomachs, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity, and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

SAVE YOUR TEETH FROM PYORRHOEA

Before They Loosen and Fall Out—Tender, Bleeding Gums Are Warning Signals of Dangerous Rigids Disease. How to Treat at Home.

Don't Lose your teeth from Pyorrhoea or Rigids Disease. It's unnecessary now. There is no reason why everybody cannot have good, firm, healthy gums, and be free of the humiliation of sore, diseased gums, and unsightly, decaying teeth.

You needn't have your teeth pulled or wear false ones. Simply go to any live local druggist and ask for one ounce of Epithol—remember the name. B-P-I-T-H-O-L, and use it as directed. This is the prescription of a famous New York dentist, and it seems to work like magic on loose teeth and sore, tender, inflamed, receding, shrunken, spongy, bleeding, pus-discharging gums. Teeth tighten and the gums grow sound and healthy and the bleeding pus discharge soon stops. Both dentists and users are amazed at the wonderful improvement it brings so quickly.

All the leading druggists dispense Epithol on the positive guarantee that unless it gives satisfactory results the money paid for it will be refunded. This makes its trial a safe and easy matter and certainly proves its value.—Advt.

PURCHASE PLAN LIKELY TO LEAD TO SPECULATION

Known in London Before House Advised of Govt. Intention.

MUST HAVE HAD A TIP

Hon. W. S. Fielding Says Someone Will Profit At People's Expense.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—The government action has already constituted the foundation for the gigantic stock speculation on the London market, and has stock which prior to this action had very little value indeed. It is apparent that certain persons over their heads knowledge which was in this House did not have.

The above opinion of the new Grand Trunk legislation which the government is bringing down for the ratification of Parliament was expressed by Hon. W. S. Fielding this afternoon.

"We are agreed on the proposal of having an arbitration on the value of certain stock, but the country should have a chance," continued the minister of finance. "It is the same thing that happened in connection with the Canadian Northern. Stock was arbitrated and the arbitration board declared that the people must pay from ten to twelve million dollars for it. And the present minister of finance, Sir Henry Dwyer, had declared that that stock had no value whatever. It did not represent a single penny placed in the treasury of the Canadian Northern. It was simply a basket of waste paper for which the Canadian people paid ten to twelve million dollars.

"Under these conditions if common stock which had no value could be converted into ten or twelve million dollars, there is a grave danger that stock of the Grand Trunk, which paid small dividends, will cost the Canadian people a pretty penny indeed.

"The guaranteed stock of the Grand Trunk, sixty million dollars in amount, for which the Government had guaranteed to pay four per cent, with nothing behind it but the Grand Trunk, continued Mr. Fielding, stood at 45 recently on the London market. If the Government desired to acquire it, it should have done so at the value at which it was quoted at on the London market, or even at a little more than was quoted at on the market. The Grand Trunk had a hard bargain, and I would not be too severe with it. But it would have been a fair and liberal agreement if the stock had been acquired at something more than the market value. The Government might have taken it up at 50, and that would have been a generous and fair bargain.

"That instead of taking that course," pursued the ex-minister, "the Government has taken what was worth 45 and converted it into par value of a hundred. It is going to give it to the people who recently acquired it and make a gift to the recent holders at the expense of the people of Canada. We read in the London papers that on September 18 there was a sharp burst in this stock on the assumption that the Government was going to guarantee the interest upon it. The stock market had a 'tip' from somebody. We here did not know anything about it.

"On September 20 the London papers declared that the stock was 'strong,' but the first we knew about the Government's intention was on October 10. The stock is now worth 70. I predict that it will go to 100. And who is going to make the money out of it? Somebody is going to make a great fortune at the expense of the taxpayers of Canada; that is certain. It is unsound finance and management. It is going to put the Government in the hands of a man who has a tip and who bought the stock millions of dollars.

"What interest would have suffered," asked Mr. Fielding, "if the Government had put the stock in the hands of a man who had a tip and who bought the stock millions of dollars. Retrenchment is necessary. The minister of finance has told us that the financial condition of the country is very grave indeed. He has talked of the need for retrenchment. He has told us that the country can carry on only if we have careful regard to our financial conditions. He has spoken of stern realities. He has compared the national debt at the present time with that at the beginning of the war. After fifty years of confederation it was only $350,000,000. It is now six times that amount. Sir, never before has the Government demanded of Parliament, with half of its members absent, the passing of such legislation under such conditions.

All that I ask," concluded Mr. Fielding, "is that the Government will not condemn public ownership by undertaking more than the country can bear. It is a grave and dangerous experiment which it is now undertaking."

MAYOR OF DETROIT GIVES FREEDOM OF CITY TO DE VALERA

Republican Hopes For Ireland's Recognition As Separate Nation.

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—Eamonn de Valera, president of provisional Irish republic, was officially welcomed to the city today by Mayor Couzens in his office at the city hall.

After extending to him the freedom of the city, Mr. Couzens offered his personal welcome, telling his visitors, "I welcome you as I should for all lawful purposes," and adding, "I know you have in mind no other than lawful purposes."

The mayor then introduced William P. Bradley, councilman, author of the much debated resolution offering the freedom of the city to the Sinn Fein chief.

Mr. Bradley spoke resoundingly of the aims of Irish Nationalists and asserted that fully 85 per cent of the residents of Detroit are in favor of the kind of freedom for which Mr. de Valera is working.

In his address at a public meeting this evening, de Valera quoted facts and figures and made sharp criticisms without effort at oratory, but with a very evident purpose of getting the Irish republicans' side of the Irish question before American people as concisely as possible. Mr. de Valera passed the lie direct to many English allegations relative to conditions in Ireland.

He said one of the main objects of his tour of America was to crystallize the sentiment of the public, the "great governing body of America," on the question of the justice of this country's recognition of the Irish republic as a separate state, and he expressed the hope that that day would soon come.

2.51% Beer is Non-Intoxicating

Conclusive Findings of Interest to Ontario Voters

IN a news despatch to the Toronto World last Saturday, announcement was made for the first time of the result of exhaustive tests made by Professors H. L. Hollingworth and R. S. Woodworth of Columbia University, New York, into the effects of 2.75% Beer on the human system.

The tests were made upon six students of the law school over a period of twelve days. A corps of assistants, men and women, collaborated with the two professors of psychology in conducting the elaborate experiments that had been devised.

"The effect of the beer on the students was said to have been almost negligible," says the despatch.

DRINK 2.75 BEER AND REMAIN SOBER

Tests to Determine Intoxicating Qualities Made on Columbia Students.

New York, Oct. 16.—The story of how two Columbia professors, using the laboratories of the university, tested the effect of 2.75 per cent beer in studying the result to be used as evidence in a suit to force the government to legalize the manufacture and sale of such beer, came to light yesterday after having been kept secret for more than three months. The effect of the beer on the students was said to have been almost negligible.

The tests, in which six students of the law school were used, were held in the early part of June under the supervision of Professors H. L. Hollingworth and R. S. Woodworth, both of the department of psychology. A corps of assistants, men and women, helped in conducting the elaborate tests that had been devised. The experiments were designed to determine whether 2.75 beer, drunk to the limit of a man's capacity, would make him intoxicated or would affect in any degree his steadiness, his ability to coordinate, or his power to think rapidly and clearly.

The experiments lasted for 12 days. The same procedure was followed each day in the morning the students drank as much beer as they could hold, and then were tested to learn their normal steadiness and no change of mind.

In the afternoon, without having eaten anything, they were given as much beer as they could drink. The same tests were then given as in the morning.

The experiments were in nine parts, each designed to determine some particular effect of the beer. During each day's test the students were not allowed to eat or smoke.

This is the non-intoxicating beer that Labor in particular is demanding. Is there any fair or just reason why you should stand in the way of the working men obtaining their favorite beverage? Just because the beverage is labelled "Beer", is no reason for you voting against it. This is not a time for prejudice but a give-and-take spirit that sees the "other fellow's" viewpoint. Give the working men the more palatable and nourishing, yet non-intoxicating beer they are asking for.

OXFORD PROHIBITION WORKERS CHEER FOR LIEUT.-COL. MAYBERRY

TILLSONBURG, Oct. 16.—St. Paul's Methodist Church was filled to the doors this afternoon at a huge mass meetings in the interests of temperance. Rev. T. H. Roles, pastor of St. Paul's Church, was chairman. Col. T. R. Mayberry, president of the South Oxford Referendum Committee, was introduced. Col. Mayberry has been a life long temperance worker in South Oxford, and at the last provincial election, as Liberal standard-bearer, was defeated by V. A. Sinclair by a majority of one. Of course, Mr. Sinclair had the entire support of the liquor interests at his back.

The temperance workers have waited years to remove the black stigma from their reputation, and as well as working for four "no's," to vote solid for Alex. Ross, the temperance candidate in the riding, with whom Mr. Mayberry is appearing on the same platform.

A STAMPEDE TRICK

Government Trying to Railroad Bill Through,
Says Fielding.

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—The debate on the Grand Trunk resolution was resumed in the House this afternoon by Sir Thomas White, who said it had been his intention to speak on the second reading of the bill, but as the present discussion had taken on a general character he had decided to speak on the resolution. In opening, he wished to say that the policy of the Government in acquiring the Grand Trunk Railway System had his hearty and unqualified support. In fact, he failed to see how the Government could do anything else when the railroad situation and the transportation needs of Canada were taken into consideration.

Sir Thomas said that it was not his intention to go into details with regard to the financial situation of Canada's transcontinental railway systems. Already a great deal of light had been shed upon this subject. He proposed to touch upon certain salient features of the matter. In the first place, he thought that everyone in the House would agree that Canada was over-built with transcontinental railroads. Right at our door were four or five roads paralleling each other between Toronto and Montreal. It was idle to imagine that there was any need for this duplication of railroads. The blame doubtless rested on both parties, and the problems were too grave to waste time in quarrelling over responsibility.

Reviewed Situation.
The former member of finance went on to review the situation which has developed as the result of the acquisition of the Grand Trunk Pacific road and the extension of Canadian Northern lines to the east. His own view, he said, has been that the Grand Trunk Railway, with its strong lines in the east, should have been joined up with the Canadian Northern system in the west, thus forming a transcontinental system. If that had been done we would now find ourselves with two transcontinental railway systems, both of which would have a fair chance of successful operation.

The construction of the Canadian Northern Railway in Western Canada has increased the production capacity of the prairie provinces to a great extent, but under the system followed in transcontinental lines there had been a wasteful duplication, to the detriment of the entire country. Freight rates had been increased to help the three roads meet their obligations. The railway situation was the most important problem before the country prior to the war. Its settlement had been shelved during the war years, but it was not natural that the matter should again come before Parliament.

The Drayton Report.
Sir Thomas said that the railway situation from 1911, when the Liberal Government had guaranteed the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway to the extent of $35,000,000, for construction of the line from Montreal to Port Arthur, to the time when the present Government had taken charge. Large loans were required every year, and in 1915 it was decided that the country could not continue paying out large sums and allow the road to stay in private hands. That decision had led to the appointment of the Drayton-Acworth commission. The majority report of that commission was a historic document, and the recommendations met with general approval. It had recommended the taking over of the Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific lines and the linking of eastern and western lines to make two great transcontinental systems, with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"I am not in any way favorable to taking over the Canadian Pacific Railway system," said Sir Thomas. "I think most people in Canada will agree that it has rendered most efficient service during the war years."

In carrying out the recommendations in the Drayton-Acworth report, the Canadian Northern had been taken over and associated with the Intercolonial.

over and associated with the Intercolonial.

Was inevitable. Sir Thomas then dealt with the Grand Trunk Pacific matters, and said that the acquisition of the Grand Trunk Railway by Canada by the Government was inevitable. The road had been placed in receivership in February or March last. During the preceding summer the Grand Trunk Railway had appealed for assistance. It was involved with the Grand Trunk Pacific to the extent of one hundred million dollars, while the Dominion Government's share in the road was about $145,000,000.

Sir Thomas said the road must inevitably have sought the assistance of the Government. Sir Thomas, referring to financial aspects of the acquisition, remarked that it was often argued that when a government took over a railway the national debt was increased to the extent of the outstanding liabilities. But such a liability was a marginal liability. It was not a liability to the full extent of the outstanding securities. There were the assets of the company to be taken into consideration in the way of revenues.

Policy Unchanged.
Sir Thomas thought that the Government would have been derelict in its duty had it delayed in bringing the resolution down to the House. Arbitration, he added, had been open to the Grand Trunk from the first. There had been no change in the Government's policy.

Sir Thomas referred to the splendid part which had been played by Canadian railways during the war. He emphasized the fact that Canada would have been unable to do so without the railways of Canada must be kept in such a condition as to discharge the functions for which they were designed. Personally, he would look with pride upon the establishment of a great national transcontinental railway system in honorable competition with the Canadian Pacific Railway. If such a system were to be a success, however, policies must be eliminated in its management and operation. The best management available must be secured to run the system. The question of whether they came from any particular province or section of the Dominion was of no importance. Efficiency and capability in railroad matters should be the test.

Sir Thomas declared he was of the opinion that the Canadian public would not agree to the granting of any more large advances to private railway companies. He thought the public would agree to advancing money to railway systems owned by the Government.

Grave Doubt.
Hon. W. S. Fielding expressed very grave doubt as to the possibility of derailing of taking national railway systems of Canada out of politics. He did not mean politics in the tricky, unwholesome sense. Politics, in the proper sense, simply meant the transaction of the business of Canada. Surely the running of Canada's own railways was a part of the business of the Canadian people and should be controlled by Parliament.

At the present time, said Mr. Fielding, thousands of persons were asking why the Government was attempting to stampede the House of Commons into running through this most important legislation in the dying days of a session which was called for an entirely different purpose. The session had been called for the purpose of dealing with the peace treaty, when suddenly the House found itself confronted with a very different proposition which required careful consideration.

Many members had already gone away, some had gone home, some were on their way to Europe, not half were in the House. Of 235 seats there were only 96 votes cast in a division yesterday. The matter was being railroaded through the House while half the members were absent. It was not old legislation, either, as far as the House was concerned, for not more than one out of twenty members were fully conversant with the facts.

Hon. Arthur Meighen said the Liberals were opposing this measure on the same grounds as they opposed everything brought before them. The member for Queens-Shelburne opposed any addition to the Canadian Northern system, but the latter was incomplete and, if left as it stood today, would defeat public ownership in Canada.

No Time Like Present.
He asked what evidence Mr. Fielding had that there was an attempt to railroad this measure through the House. Certainly the close of the session had been anticipated, but that did not mean that the session was closed. Yesterday's vote was not anticipated for many reasons, and it was easily understood that many members who were in the capital were not in attendance at that time. There was no time like the present, said Mr. Meighen, and the session was not going to end before the Opposition had been given every opportunity to discuss this measure. He asked Mr. Fielding how he would absolve those members who had gone home, when it was clearly their duty to remain in Ottawa for the transaction of the country's business.

In regard to stock jobbing across the Atlantic on the strength of some rumor, Mr. Meighen said the same information which had reached the London market on Sept. 18 had been published in Canada papers. It was not official, however, and Canadians had the same opportunity of acting upon it as had British stock buyers.

Action of this kind by any Government was bound to result in an increase of stock values. He reminded Mr. Fielding of the "drama of 1907" when the stock of the Grand Trunk had advanced in London as a result of Canadian Government action.

Merely Conjecture.
On October 10, an understanding had been reached with the Grand Trunk officials which made it advisable to bring this legislation before the House. Any information published prior to that time was merely conjecture.

Mr. Fielding's suggestion that the government should permit holders of guaranteed stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company to retain it, paying them a dividend if the road earned it, Mr. Meighen regarded as impracticable. This would mean, he said, that Canada would have constantly to revise these stockholders' accounts. It would be impossible to merge the Grand Trunk system with the Canadian National Railways if this guaranteed stock were left in the hands of its present owners. They would want it. The Grand Trunk system operated as a distinct entity so that they might know the exact earnings of the road and whether or not they were entitled to a dividend. Another difficulty with the suggestion was the fact that these shares carried voting power. Could the Government of Canada go into partnership with some fifty thousand Grand Trunk shareholders over in England in the Grand Trunk Railway Company? The plan was impossible and unsound.

Mr. Jacobs asked if the acquisition of the Grand Trunk was due to fear that the Canadian Pacific Railway might acquire it.

Mr. Meighen: "That was one powerful reason."

Mr. Jacobs asked if that was the reason, too, why the Canadian Northern was taken over.

Again Mr. Meighen said that in his view it was a powerful reason.

Mr. Jacobs: "And the Grand Trunk Pacific?"

Mr. Meighen: "That was one powerful reason."

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Good Advice for Thin Men and Women.
Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skininess and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently-discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Saitogyn. The best strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere.

A month's systematic use of Saitogyn should produce flesh to the extent of at least 10 pounds of correcting foods of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood, increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided.

NOTE.—While Saitogyn has given excellent results in the treatment of nervous indigestion, it should not be taken longer than five days at a time, as those who are not willing to gain at least ten pounds in weight.—Advt.

LONDON LABOR'S CHANCE.

For some years now there has been a growing fury of complaint against the self-seeking or unfairness or even tyranny of the financial men who manage our political affairs. Everywhere exclamation is heard that no relief from the sea of troubles can be found by the poor wage-earner or salaried man until they send men of their own numbers to legislate in Toronto or Ottawa.

In a sort of desperation the workers in some sections have refused to listen to the counsel of deliberate and regular political methods and have turned in exasperated mood to the revolutionary path of "direct action"; there is, indeed, some danger of this tendency spreading and growing stronger if Canadian Labor does not set itself without delay to become a potent force in Parliament. The constitutional way is the better way, the only way of progress. This is generally recognized by the mass of sober workingmen in Ontario. But theoretical recognition must be made effective by active, unhesi-tant and consistent endeavor.

The reproach has again and again been levelled at the rank and file of Canadian Labor that when election day comes they don't stand by their leaders, but divide into the old party camps. Sir Somebody gets the vote on one specious plea or another that should be polled for "one of ourselves." In certain Ontario by-elections the farmers have given solid proofs of their ability to stick together and put in the real representative. The workingmen of the towns have in the coming election a chance to show themselves loyal to a principle which is democratic, Liberal and Labor, to wipe out a reproach of disunion and wobbling, and to plant in the seats of power a body of legislators whose own interests are identical with the needs of the masses whom they represent.

Here in London the situation is pretty clean-cut. It is made all the more so by the fact that Sir Adam Beck has from his own viewpoint given much hard work and valuable time to the service of a great public utility. Supporting the most favorable view to be entertained of Sir Adam's public services, it has to be remembered that the very principle of the direct and genuine representation of Labor or of the common people by men of the masses is sharply challenged by the ambitions and autocratic character of Sir Adam Beck. "Is this democracy?" we have been asking ourselves as we see the grasp of scheming and climbing financiers tightening on our government in the interest of great corporations. In London, Labor has a chance to set a signal example of devotion to principle in electing not the "big man," though he should be the flower of knighthood, but the plain man who is for more equal division of the good things of life. Dr. Stevenson is deeply interested in education, and its fair distribution, in industrial reforms, in reform of taxation, in the prohibition of alcoholic drink, and in a grateful return to our heroic soldiers for their sacrifices in our behalf. Where does Sir Adam stand on any one of these points? He is simply a man of one idea. If you want things to move at Toronto, elect men like Dr. Stevenson.

THE ASYLUM CHARGES.

Sensational charges have been made against the administration of the London Hospital for the Insane by a returned soldier, a former employee of the institution. According to this man, there has been wholesale graft and ill-treatment of patients, particularly as to feeding of the patients. Dr. W. J. Robinson, the superintendent, makes a sweeping denial of the charges, but the hospital is a big institution, one of the largest of its kind on the continent,
and unjust and dishonest acts might easily escape his notice or that of his executive staff.
It is hardly credible that all the charges made by Pte. Lauder are without foundation, and while there is the slightest doubt on the matter
the public will not be satisfied with an official statement that everything is as it should be.
Dr. Robinson says he is quite willing that there should be an investigation. That is the correct attitude to take. For his own sake, as well as those of the inmates, the employees and the public, an inquiry should be held at once.

ALCOHOLICS AND DRUGS.

The liquor propagandists publish figures, purely disinterested and unadulterated statistics shall we suppose, to show how the consumption of noxious drugs, cocaine, morphine and opium, has increased since the O. T. A. came in. Supposing the figures given to be authentic, it would be easy to explain them.

In the first place the war has caused a great deal of general anxiety, trouble, sorrow and loss. Some of those disabled in one way or another have probably found temporary ease in the use of an anodyne, some of those stricken with sorrow affliction would perhaps do the same.
The liquor people, thinking mainly of their own scravings or sales, do not sufficiently consider this matter.

In the second place, the consumption of drugs has doubtless been increased on the part of a derelict element in the community, an element directly created by the alcoholic evil of the past. Deprived of their alcoholic indulgence by the operation of the O. T. A., these poor creatures desperately drown their physical distress in the "drowsy syrup" of the poppy. But such a phenomenon as this can be only very temporary. As an individual suffers somewhat in curing himself of a pernicious habit, so it is with the community. It has to have a pain or two in swearing off. As time goes on, very soon the derelict element, begotten of alcohol, will disappear amidst general abstinence. Sadder the community may be for a quarter of an hour, but it will arise a wiser and better and merrier community when intoxicating liquor has been definitely banished from the land.

THE WORKERS' EDUCATIONAL MOVE- MENT.

At this time, when so much attention is being given to the spread of popular education, there still remains a gap in our system, in the case of the worker beyond school age who
case of the worker beyond school age who technical character. We make provision in our cities and larger towns for the apprentice or workman who seeks further knowledge of his trade, and we encourage him to take advantage of his opportunity, but for the man or woman who desires to pursue studies of a more cultural character we have nothing, or almost nothing, to offer. The need of such educational provision was so marked in Great Britain in the ten or twelve years preceding the war that a great educational movement sprang up which has spread to other parts of the Empire, though as yet, in Canada, its work can be seen only in Toronto. We refer to the Workers' Educational Association, which was founded in 1903 as a democratic, unsectarian, non-partisan body, consisting of working people and scholars, of universities and labor organizations. The growth of the work in Great Britain was such that in 1914 there were 200 branches at work, and had federated 2,500 labor and educational bodies.

When the idea was first put forth that there were working men and women who cared about higher education for themselves there were scoffers in plenty. It was argued that, having regard to the hours of labor, they could never study persistently and with effect. Those who took that view pointed out that universities were unable to get working men and women to attend their "extension" lectures in any number, even though these were entertaining. The universities before 1903 would never have dreamed of asking workmen-students to pledge themselves to attend classes and write regular essays. They had no idea, however, of what men and women would do who were inspired by need. The Workers' Educational Association began its work in a small way, but after two classes had been running for two years, and six classes for one year, the essays that had been written were sent down to Oxford for examination. The master of Balliol College stated that 25 per cent of the essays presented by workingmen were the equal of those written by graduates of the final schools of modern history.

One of the striking features of the work in England is that it has attracted the efforts of some of the outstanding men in professional chairs. Plainly, it is no easy job to teach history or economics or social science to 20 adult students, but the character of the students, their keenness, their deep interest, has given to the work of teaching these classes a fascination that no ordinary academic work could give.
A report of the board of education says:

"No one could attend these classes without being struck by the zeal and earnestness of the students, their happy relations with the lecturer, the general atmosphere of emulation and good feeling in the classes, and the strong appreciation by the students of the benefits which they are deriving from the work. These impressions are not derived from any single class or type of classes.
They are common to the diverse and widely-scattered classes which we have visited."

It is impossible to measure the influence upon English social life of the thousands of workers who, while remaining at their trade, have pursued work of the standard for honors in a university. These men are undoubtedly influential in that shaping and reshaping of institutions which is now going on as an aftermath of the war. There have always been those who feared that the onward march of democracy would be faster than the education of the people to understand and appreciate the forms of democracy. That Great Britain should have among her people this large and influential group, holding sound views on economic subjects, may be one of the reasons for the steady-ness of English labor during the war, and the common sense that manifested itself in the settlement of the railwaymen's strike within the last fortnight.

In Canada a start has been made along lines similar to the English plan, Professor MacIver of the department of political economy at the University of Toronto being much interested in the movement, which he described in an issue of the Labor Gazette a few months ago. There are other cities where universities are located and where there is a large industrial population which will undoubtedly develop similar work as occasion offers. Conditions in Canada are perhaps somewhat less favorable to the success of such work, the population being less stationary and greater demands being made on the workers' time, but there are undoubtedly many men and women to whom the opportunity of going on with their education would be most acceptable.

SALVATION ARMY JUBILEE.

[Manchester Guardian.]
Mention of the Salvation Army Jubilee, to be held this month, after its postponement in 1915, sends the mind back to its early days. They were stormy days indeed. Everyone's hand was against the army, from the policeman to the rough, and the calculated eccentricities of its methods seemed to invite attack. Its hymns, crude and strong in their wording, were written and sung to the air of popular song of the day. Its untrained orators were almost eery in their fervor. It presented the noisiest kind of "musical instruments" into its service—the tambourine and cymbals were the favorite—and made night hideous with their excesses. Its printed matter shrieked at one rather than appealed. To the general public it seemed like a comic and unpleasant nightmare, distressing to the eye and ear, and above all to every sense of propriety. But it was in deadly earnest, and as years went by the testimony to its efficiency was transferred from its "pentitents' form" to the public statistics. Social and religious agencies which had formerly drawn their garments aside as it passed admitted that it had done work that they had failed to do, and precisely because there was no depth too deep for it. From the lowest stratum of human degradation it had rescued things that had been men and women, and made them men and women once more, and filled them with its own fury and sent them back to their homes like themselves.

From Here and There

THE STILL SMALL VOICE.

[Helen Combes.]
The little brooks go slinging along their shining way;
The rivers speak in deeper tones; like beat of muffled drum
The ocean surges thunder, and toss their mighty spray,
But the mountains stand immovable—immovable and dumb!

The trees have whispered secrets for those who listening, pass;
There's language of the flowers for all who patient seek;
Myriads of tiny voices sound in the waving grass,
But the mountains stand in silence—they may not, cannot speak.

All Nature seeks expression in tones that rise and swell,
So sings the joyous human, so grows the angry brute.
The wedding chimes at noontide, the evening passing bell,
But the mountains stand and listen—their peaks and valleys mute.

Only to those who love them, the mountains message send—
Those who have left their shelter, over the world to roam.
To them, like a strain of music, or the urge of a waiting friend,
The still small voice of the mountains whispers:
"Come home! come home!"

SHIP SURGERY.

A most extraordinary naval surgical operation has been performed by naval engineers at Chatham, England. During the war the British ship Zulu was torpedoed in her bow by a U-boat. At the same time another British ship, the Nubian, was torpedoed in the stern by another submarine. These two boats were placed in the dry docks at Chatham and the engineers decided to make one whole ship out of the two damaged ones. Thus there has been launched the Zubian, a combination in name and fact of the Zulu and the Nubian.

THE GOOD OLD OLYMPIC.

[Toronto Star.]
Sir Bertram Hayes, captain of the Olympic, which, with remarkable success, won her way back and forth across the Atlantic throughout the entire period of the war, in spite of all the enemy could do to intimidate her or destroy her, well deserves the honors which the city of Toronto has tried to pay him during his visit here.
The Olympic performed splendid service during the war. She came and went in fine defiance of the worst the enemy could do. She transported 200,000 troops, nearly half of them Canadians, was attacked ten times by the enemy, sank three submarines which sought to destroy her, and in every way this ocean liner carried herself through the war in such a manner as to add something to those great traditions of the sea which Britons so rightly value.
Toronto is a city far from the Atlantic coast, and most of our people never saw the Olympic, nor even the ocean on which she travels. But Toronto is fond and proud of that great ship, and throughout the long years of war watched and waited for news of her coming, and for reports of her safe arrival on the other side, and in course of time felt a pride in the record she was making. The city of Toronto thousands of our young men sailed on her to the war, and on her returned. The name of the Olympic became in this city a household word.
As an outstanding representative of those indomitable men of the merchant marine who carried on all through the war, Toronto is glad to honor the captain of the Olympic.

A REVERIE.

[Frederick Truesdell in Chicago Tribune.]
Between the day and night there fits an hour
With draperies of dream athwart the blue:
The after-glow turns back to kiss a star,
And far-off bells toll with a cry I faintly hear,
Distill the sweetness of my reverie
As tears that splash their love on baby hands.
And now Christ lifts his slim rebuking hands,
To say "Couldst thou not watch with me one hour?"
And lo! I see within my reverie
The shadow of a cross against the blue:
And then there comes a cry I faintly hear,
And silence, and the falling of a star.

Ah, what loneliness in the silent star
At which we children seek to warm our hands!
Would its possession in the cradle hour
The plaintive fretting of the slumber hour,
Or does its dying streak across the blue
Arouse its fellows from their reverie?
Come, earth-born love, to share my reverie!
I yearn for something closer than a star.
Reach out across the night, so calm so blue,
And touch my burning face with spirit hands.
Dream on, O Night! it is our wonder hour!
My love is speaking, bid thy voices hush!

What aces thee in the night's so solemn hush!
What somber thought disturbs thy reverie.
What when our love has left its little hour
The yaler fires of yonder trembling star
Shall shine down on our poor, unclashing hands,
Shall mock the dimming of thine eyes so blue?
Dear Love, are not the far horizons blue?
Relentless Time our passing breath may hush;
Yet in the flutter of thy sweet, fair hands,
Yet in thine eyes, thine azure reverie
Shall live, when Time shall pluck you sunset star,
And sigh, and sink, and fall to burn the hour!

LENNON.

Eternal Blue, receive our reverie!
Our doubting voices hush, and like the star,
Into Thy hands we give our little hour.

LORD FISHER AND THE NAVY.

[London Times.]
Sir,—This letter is not to argue with your leading article of September 2. (It's only a—d—d fool's who argue.)
Never contradict.
Never explain.
Never apologise.

(Those are the secrets of a happy life), but I am glad to see the admiralty have perfected all their economies, as below my letter, in your kindly insertion of it, I perceive a very remarkable official memorandum by the admiralty to the fleet, showing how they have time to attend to the minutest detail of battle! Like the elephant's trunk—one moment picking up a pin, the next rooting up an oak.

1. Full dress is only to be worn by the officers of the fleet at his majesty's levee. (I suppose this will be cancelled when President Smille comes along and we make a new rule, say, "in the presence of His Majesty the King.")

2. With No. 2 dress (half dress) the mess jacket is to be worn instead of the tail coat!

So thank God the weight of the war and two millions a day more than our income is lifted off our minds, and we can walk with a light heart! (Or is it still "Jazz"?)

Then, Sir, there follow twelve specific injunctions about cocked hats and gold-laced trousers and midshipmen's jackets! "Give peace in our time, O Lord!" If this indicates the minds of those whose hearts should be filled with an internal combustion engine and war hippopotami (but that's another story).

Sir, I tell you again with emphasis, the present navy is obsolete for a war a few years hence!

Stop the money! Yours,
September 3.
FISHER.

Can't you trust me?
1. Was I wrong about the water-tube boiler, when the whole expert world was against me?

2. Was I wrong about the turbine when I put it in the Dreadnought—when only before in a penny steamer and the experts called it "a box of tricks"?

3. Was I wrong about the battle cruiser that sunk Von Spee and all his fleet—with prodigious speed and the big gun?

4. Was a wrong about the submarine—when seven months before the war I described the sinking of the Lusitania by the Germans?

5. Was I wrong to bring the fleet from the Mediterranean to the North Sea in humble imitation of Nelson, who said your battle ground should be your drill ground?

6. Did the fleet at Scapa Flow on August 4, 1914, win the war?—when only before in a penny vessel of the line of battle that was there was conceived when I was first war lord.

I say with St. Paul, "I boast myself a little";
he was compelled, so am I! "Seeing that many glory after the flesh, I will glory also!"

Up to a certain point "I suffer fools gladly," but I am a trustee to an estate that's only going to have 3s 4d in the pound left. It's time to kick!
The Times take two days to get where I am!
This is by return of post.

CARADOC GIRL WINS PRIZE ESSAY AT MIDDLESEX FAIR

"Farm Organizations" Is Subject of Essay by Winnifred Wallace, Who Captured County Prize.

The following essay, which shows an extraordinary grasp of the situation which confronts the farmers today and events leading up to it, was written by a public school girl of Caradoc, Miss Winnifred Wallace, and awarded the first prize for the county, at the Mount Bridge School Fair.

"In Unity There Is Strength." Almost all the trades, labor and professions have realized this and have the farmers in buying and selling, and to abolish many of the unnecessary middlemen. Branch stores are also being established in different localities. So far, they are confining their selling to large articles such as live stock, and their buying to sugar, salt, flour, etc. This is a wonderful investment, paying the shareholders a dividend of 7 1/2 per cent.

They have also taken over the Farmers' Sun as their paper through the columns of which the farmers may have freedom of expression. The United Farm Women, in connection with the above, is being formed with a view to better the rural conditions.

Women At Home and Abroad

WOMAN CANDIDATE PRESENTS WOMAN'S PLATFORM. Mrs. J. W. Studdy, woman candidate for North East Toronto, presents a platform which is indeed worthy of a first woman candidate. Coming out strongly for prohibition, she elected states that it is her intention, if elected, to work for mothers, the ill, the welfare, care of the feeble-minded, soldiers' pensions and proper housing. You will notice that this platform does not come out with a decided opinion on the questions which are more nearly suited to men's judgment. She has chosen a peculiarly woman's platform. The matters which she has set herself to work for are the kind for which the province has long felt the need of a woman's opinion and guiding hand.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN ORGANIZE AT LAST. The university trained women of Canada are one of the latest bodies of women to organize with the idea of promoting higher education for women. To stimulate the interest of university women in public affairs and to promote social intercourse and co-operation between the women of different universities. Organization was completed in Winnipeg on August 27, when representatives were present from the universities of Toronto, Victoria, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Regina and McGill. The organization is to be called the Federation of University Women in Canada. The work to be taken up immediately by the new organization is investigation of library systems in Canada, and the establishment of a travelling scholarship of $1,000, tenable in a British university. Mrs. R. F. Williams of Winnipeg is president of the new organization.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. John Barnard has returned to the city after visiting her son, Herbert Barnard and Mrs. Barnard.

Dr. Clarence E. Brown has left on an extended trip to Los Angeles, Portland and other western points.

Mrs. Everard Cotes (Sarah Jeanette Duncan), the celebrated Canadian author, is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Boyce, Belleville.

Miss Helen d'Avignon, girls' work secretary at the Y. W. C. A., has returned to the city, after spending the holiday at her home in Windsor.

Western University students are looking forward with interest to the faculty reception-dance, which takes place tonight.

Miss Elizabeth Harrison, daughter of the late Benjamin Harrison, at one time president of the United States, is now a lawyer. She is only 22 years old, and has been admitted to the practice of law in Indiana.

Miss Sabine was the hostess of a very enjoyable out-of-door party on Tuesday evening, when she entertained the third and fourth year students of the Western University at her summer home at Springbank.

The many friends of Mr. Walter G. Francis of the assessment staff are pleased to learn of his recovery from a serious illness, having been confined to his bed for the past three weeks at his residence, Lorne Avenue.

Among the out-of-town guests at the Judd-Davis wedding on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. C. McCreath of Toronto, Dr. and Mrs. Nesbitt of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. R. McVean of Toronto, Miss Hill and Miss O'Brien of Windsor, and Miss A. McKinnon of Toronto.

An interesting social event is the big Halloween ball to be given by the Mocha Temple Shrine on the evening of October 31, when many out-of-town guests are expected. The ball will be brilliant with Halloween decorations, while an augmented orchestra under the direction of Roselle Fococke will furnish the music for the occasion.

Mrs. F. B. Betts, commissioner of Girl Guides for London, has been appointed by the Dominion Council of Girl Guides to go as a delegate to the Winnipeg conference, which opens on Monday.

She will be accompanied by Lady Pelham of Toronto, the chief commissioner for Canada, Miss Edith Mairs of Toronto, the Dominion secretary, and Mrs. Torrington, representing Toronto. The party will leave for the west today.

The home of Mrs. H. A. Sabine was lovely yesterday afternoon with ferns, roses and chrysanthemums, when she received with her daughter, Mrs. T. C. Lamb.

Smartly gowned in rose and grey, with a little old-fashioned corsage of roses, Mrs. Lamb was assisted by her mother, who wore a black satin gown, with corsage of roses, and Mrs. C. K. Edwards in a gown of chambray, Miss Catherine Sabine, in blue tulle, also assisted.

At the tea table Mrs. Frederick Raymond and Miss Marion Baxter poured tea. The assistants in the tea room were Miss Julia Ward, Miss Helen Pope, Miss Margery Lawson and Miss Doris Yarker.

ROBERTS-SEAGER. The marriage of Grace Edith Seager, niece of Crown Attorney and Mrs. Seager, Goderich, to John MacDonald Roberts of Goderich, late lieutenant R. A. F., formerly with the Canadian Siege Artillery, son of the late John Mease Roberts of Goderich, was solemnized at high noon on Thanksgiving Day in St. George's Church, Goderich. Rev. Dr. Seager, cousin of the bride, rector of St. Matthew's Church, Toronto, officiated, assisted by the Rev. A. L. G. Clarke of St. George's Church, Goderich. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Crown Attorney Seager, wore a traveling costume of white-colored broadcloth with moleskin trimming and tulle hat, and carried a bouquet of orchids. She was attended by Miss Edith Carr of Toronto, Capt. James L. A. Sinclair, R. A. F., of Toronto, lately returned from overseas, was best man. The ushers were Harold Williams of Toronto and Ernest Lee of Goderich.

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, 26 Craig street, on Wednesday, when their eldest daughter, Annie Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. G. Albert Nicholls of this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dean N. L. Tucker. The bride wore a becoming gown of white crepe-de-chene and georgette, hemmed with pearls, and veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of Opheelia roses. She was given in marriage by her father, and entered the drawing-room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Luella Williams.

During the signing of the register "O, Promise Me" was sung sweetly by Miss Kathleen Ward. The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls, and to the pianist pearl earrings. After a wedding luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholls left for North Bay, Toronto, and Buffalo. On their return, they will reside on Tecumseh avenue. LONDON CURLING CLUB HOLD ANNUAL MEETING TO-NIGHT

Season o' Stanes Ushered in—
With This Meeting, and Big Season Will Be Prepared
For—Election of Officers.

With the annual meeting of the London Curling Club, which is to be held tonight in the rooms of the club on Lytle street, the "season o' the stanes" can be truly said to be here though the weather hasn't arrived with it.

The Thistle Club meeting has not been announced yet, but it is presumed will be held some time next week, or the next after, preparatory to another big season.

At tonight's meeting of the London curlers, the election of officers will be the main item on the program. It is presumed that the new president of the club will be the present occupant of the first vice-president's chair, Ken Casselman.

The London Club since its Queen's Park days has grown to be one of the biggest curling organizations in this part of the country, and have a membership of over 150 members, the make-up of which has gone far towards giving the organization its widespread reputation for the highest sportsmanship and best of good fellowship.

O'LEARY JOINS OTTAWA WITH OTHER ADDITIONS

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—Eddie O'Leary, who played for the T. R. and A. A. last season, and who was out at the beginning of the fall, rejoined the Ottawas yesterday. O'Leary is big and fast, a splendid tackler with plenty of experience. "Rug" Pritchard, another great war veteran, who played on the 20th team two years ago, also made his appearance yesterday. Pritchard is a line man, a well set, stocky man, who was one of the best tacklers in the military league in 1907. Pritchard will be available for Saturday's game against the Tigers.

"Dug" Munro, who was laid up for some time with an injured foot, was likewise among the Ottawa candidates at yesterday's practice. He is one of the best backfield players in the capital, and should come in handy for the Ottawa rearguard. Munro is a strong punter, and he seems sure with his hands.

ANNA MORN PAYS LONGEST SHOT IN CLEVELAND CARD

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16.—Long shots, interspersed with frequent payments on public choices, delighted the largest crowd of the fall harness racing meet at Cranford this afternoon.

The pari-mutuel machines enjoyed their busiest day. Long lines of waiting patrons were left disappointed when the starter sent away horses for each heat. The eight booths where tickets were sold were insufficient to handle the crowds of bettors. The book, established at the request of a few horsemen, and the auction ring also were well patronized.

The longest shot of the afternoon was Anna Moore, who returned $69.40 for a $2 ticket to her backers in the first heat of the 216 pace. She was aided considerably by a bad start, which placed Susan Boyd, believed to have been the best of the lot, far behind the field, but she managed to win the third heat under a hard drive, and thus won her race.

HOT OFF THE GRID

The local collegiate have put in their application for the Junior O. R. P. U., which means they will have a hard row to hoe, as they are grouped with Sarnia. They were undecided about it, but with a little urging on the point that Sarnia would get a cheap group they decided to try conclusions with the border city team, even if it was only to give them a hard workout.

They hardly hope to get far with their badly-depleted team, as they lost McDonald, Fox, Tichbourne and Holland through injuries. They hope to have

WORKOUTS ARE BEING HELD EVERY NIGHT

Workouts are being held every night under Captain Ken Lindsay, and he is whipping the material on hand into some semblance of a team, which will give a good fight to any opponents near their own weight. John (Mushy) Ross is teaching some of the youngsters the kind of teaching he did for the championship team five years ago. Although he cannot get his old drop kick working, he can still punt fifty-five-yard spirals, and under his tuition the boys should soon learn to kick.

The main trouble at the school is getting a scrub team to come out and put an argument with the regulars, as it took all the spares to fill in the

ST. THOMAS BOARD OF TRADE PREPARES FOR COMEBACK OF OLD CANADIAN LEAGUE

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 16.—It is quite probable that should an All-Ontario Baseball League be formed next year that St. Thomas may again see professional baseball. The board of trade have discussed the matter at a recent meeting, and are determined to have St. Thomas placed on the athletic map. A committee of local baseball enthusiasts of the old Canadian League days was appointed as follows: Geo. Rowley, chairman; R. J. Cottrell, J. B. Davidson and C. S. Butler. The committee will not only endeavor to work up a sporting interest in baseball but in all other lines of sports. Professional baseball will be the chief endeavor, however, and if the league formed next year is composed of teams from Ontario only, St. Thomas will endeavor to secure a franchise.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening grey, streaked and faded hair is grand, mother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite desirable, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyle's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyle's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

CROWD, CHEERING, BACKS UP ROSE AT TILLSBURG

Throng Crams Hall To Receive Liberal Candidate.

CALLS HEARST "CZAR"
W. G. Charlton, With Other Strong Speakers, Score Hearst Policy.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
TILLSBURG, Oct. 16.—Alex. Rose, Liberal candidate and farmer of South Oxford, met with a hearty and cordial reception at his meeting here tonight. Even standing room in the town hall was crowded. Mr. Sinclair, in his meeting here last night, barely managed to half fill the hall, and the interest shown in Mr. Rose's candidature makes it a foregone conclusion that Tillsburg will return him a handsome majority on Monday as well as the rest of the riding. Mr. W. C. Brown acted as chairman of the meeting.

Mayor Scores Lucas.
Mayor J. V. Buchanan of Ingersoll was the first speaker. He believed the people of Tillsburg were awake to the fact that a change of government was necessary. He was sorry to see Mr. Sinclair, Conservative candidate, trying to make political capital out of the temperance cause. He asked the ladies of Tillsburg to keep the politics clean and vote for Liberalism and Mr. Rose. (Loud applause.)

"Little Mr. Lucas sits in Toronto with the machinery necessary to break up 510 per cent profits and never raises a hand, while widows and orphans of soldiers have hard work to earn a living," he asserted. "The Liberals feel that the country owes these widows something and they will see that they get aid," said Mr. Buchanan, who went on to riddle the Government on its soldier policy. "The Government spent $2,400 for one rug in Government House in Toronto and then had it over-lavishly decorated for a millionaire governor to live in. This is their careful saving policy," said Mr. Buchanan.

Sowing Discord.
He protested against Donald Sutherland, M.P., going around and saying "Quebec, Quebec, Quebec, and sowing discord." (Wild applause.) "To serve our interests in the Dominion House, he should be there now instead of up here mouthing Hartley Dewar. Mr. Sutherland is getting an awful lot for what he does." (Applause.)

Rose Gets Oration.
Alex. Rose was loudly acclaimed as he rose to speak. He paid tribute to the ladies who had done so much in the war, and welcomed them into politics. "I am a farmer," said Mr. Rose, "and I'm proud of the fact also that I am on the Liberal platform that is so formed that on it there is room for all men of Ontario today, and I believe he will be elected. The Government has been sowing for four years, but the awakening is coming."

Referring to the temperance question Mr. Rose stated that the Liberal Government had done more for temperance than any other. Personally he was going to vote four "No's," and would never vote to have the bars back again. He asked the electors for their support and received loud applause.

Col. Mayberry, ex-M. P. P. Ingersoll, spoke in behalf of the temperance forces in the liquor referendum. The Hearst Government was forced to give women the vote on account of their war work, otherwise they would never have got it, he asserted. He asked his hearers where Mr. Sinclair stood at the last election. Certainly he was not for abolishing the bar, he declared.

"Practical farmers in the Government are few and surely the Government needs men of the unquestioned ability of Mr. Rose," said Col. Mayberry. "There is need for improvement," and Mr. Rose would be a great improvement."

Dr. Rogers of Ingersoll was glad to see such a strong candidate as Mr. Rose brought out. The Liberals had done wisely to bring him out and he would be elected, the doctor predicted.

Liberals Secured Women's Votes.
"Ladies, you never would have had a vote had not the Liberals hammered away to get votes for you. Do not forget this when you go to the polls next Monday," he reminded. "Vote for Mr. Rose."

Premier Hearst had done nothing but steal planks from the Liberal platform, as witness the temperance question. He claims credit for many things, but not the right to increase in expenditure," said Dr. Rogers. "The Tories are spending four times as much as the Liberals when in power and still they ask to be elected. The Hearst Government appointed a milk inspector for South Oxford at $1,500 a year. He did not earn $500 and knew nothing about milk. He was just one of the faithful and a type of Hearst extravagance."

Picked on Sinclair.
"Someone had to be sacrificed, or in other words, justify the Government expenditure on Government House. Mr. Sinclair was picked on because Hearst knew he would be turned out next time, and he certainly will." (Laughter.)

"The Liberals asked the Government to have the nickel refined in Ontario, but nothing was done, and it went to the States and later to Germany to kill our boys. The Hearst Government must assume responsibility for this terrible state of affairs. Last election every barroom was a committee for Mr. Sinclair." (Applause.) When you come to mark your ballot promote the interests of Ontario, and Canada by voting for Mr. Rose."

Hearst is Czar.
W. G. Charlton, candidate for East Elgin in the Dominion House, made a fighting speech for Liberalism. "Liberalism stands for democracy, and the Conservatives for autocracy. Sir Wm. Hearst is a czar of the government, and we do not want this sort of thing in Ontario," he said, denying that there had been no criticism of the Government in South Oxford.

"The Liberals have always led in the agitation of temperance, and votes for women, but the Conservatives calmly tell you they did it, but you know the history, and you know that the Tories lie. They did not start these things. The Liberals have always been in advance of their policies, and they are today." (Applause.)

Children Greatest Heritage.
"The greatest heritage of the province is its boys and girls. Dr. Cody may be a good man, but he is playing politics the same as the rest of his confreres in the cabinet. He has been feeding the people promises. Certainly his program to date has been rapid and many."

"Dr. Cody says he will raise the teachers' salaries. This might look like a bribe to politicians, but then the doctor is not a politician so he says. Does Sir William Hearst believe that the public schools of the province keep Ontario first as he has posted on billboards all over the country? Surely not when they all these promises of consolidated schools."

"Dr. Cody cries, 'We are first' and then toddlers after Manitoba and Alberta, which have ordered their school plans on Liberal order. Ontario will have to make a good many more and skip before Ontario can be brought to a high level."

School Books Weakest.
"Ontario has the weakest set of text books in Canada," continued Mr. Charlton. "A lot of the books cannot be bought because publishers' contracts had run out and the government had not bothered renewing them until school opened. Some of them have not been printed yet. The government is hiding the cost of school books. I asked Dr. Cody to tell us what series of readers actually cost the Province of Ontario. Stamped on the books the series cost 49 cents, when in reality they cost three times as much."

Government Gave Monopoly.
"Dr. Cody blames the delay on labor, his denial that some money is paid to the publisher. The government has given a monopoly to the Copp, Clark Company, for some school books, and Liberalism does not believe in this." (Cheers.)

Touching on the agricultural situation, Mr. Charlton showed from the government's own statistics that the minister of agriculture had been asleep at the switch. "There was an appalling falling off on all lines of farm products and the price of some money is paid to the publisher. The government has given a monopoly to the Copp, Clark Company, for some school books, and Liberalism does not believe in this." (Cheers.)

progressive agricultural policy. The agricultural policy had been a rank failure. The meeting was closed with vociferous cheers for Mr. Rose.

Why Ontario Must Vote

No!

Twelve Plain Reasons for Banishing Booze Forever

1 "Booze" cost Ontario $36,000,000 a year before war-time prohibition came in.

The Ontario Temperance Act has saved this huge, worse-than-worthless expenditure, which is more than enough to pay Ontario's share of interest on the Canadian war debt.

2 "Booze" fills the jails, the insane asylums and the hospitals. The Ontario Temperance Act is emptying the jails, has closed the gold cure institutes, and alcoholic insanity has disappeared.

3 "Booze" diverts money from productive industry and kills business. The Ontario Temperance Act has increased manufacturing and business prosperity.

4 "Booze" murders wives and children, homes them in misery and clads them in rags. The Ontario Temperance Act has brought peace and happiness into thousands of homes and improved the living conditions of thousands of families.

5 "Booze" shortens a man's life, as Insurance Companies' experience proves absolutely. The Ontario Temperance Act has saved years of life to thousands of slaves to alcohol.

6 Repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act means return to the Ontario License Act and the evils of the open Bar, and liquors of every kind and strength. The Ontario Temperance Act will keep the "lid on Booze" if the majority at the Polls vote NO, and the women do not neglect their franchise.

7 "Booze" is constantly the cause of fatal accidents—motor accidents, railway accidents, shipwrecks, and accidental murders, homicides and suicides. The Ontario Temperance Act is the greatest measure of all for "Safety First." Remember that your life is in the hands of others every day.

8 "Booze" has been driven out of practically every respectable Community in North America, including the entire United States and most of Canada.

9 "Booze" wastes lives, money, foodstuffs, labor and time; produces nothing useful, and causes misery, crime, poverty, sickness and death. The Ontario Temperance Act will save all this waste and mischief at a period when every man should be 100 per cent. efficient, and every cent is needed to meet the cost of living and the debts of war.

10 Beer as strong as proposed on the ballot will produce drunkenness and its attendant evils. The Ontario Temperance Act forbids beer stronger than the limit for liquor defined by law as non-intoxicating.

11 By the sale of 2.51% beer in Standard Hotel bars, the liquor people hope to insert the thin end of the wedge, to pry "the lid off" other restrictions. The Ontario Temperance Act has improved legitimate hotel-keeping in Ontario, removed the bar-room loafer, reformed the habitual "drunk," and closed up the "bum" saloons.

12 By a century of experience Ontario has proved that there can be no compromise with "booze." It must be eradicated root and branch, finally and for all. Three years of experience of the Ontario Temperance Act has proved it a blessing to the province, and that its repeal or weakening would be a calamity.

LOVE MYSTERY YET UNSOLVED

Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, Heroine of Story, Slain
by Bolsheviks.

SERBIAN CROWN PRINCE
PLEADED FOR HER HAND

Her Reply Unknown; War May Have Prevented Royal Marriage.

The Hague, Oct. 14.—Out of the ruck of the war and the ruin of dynasties comes this love story:
The Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia, who is now acting as regent in place of his aged father, the king, wanted to marry the Grand Duchess Olga, daughter of the Czar of Russia.
Slain by Bolsheviks.
If she had married him she might to-day have been Queen Regent of the new and greater Serbia. Instead, she met a terrible death at the hands of the Bolshevik soldiers in the Siberian village of Ekaterinograd.

It isn't often that a royal love story is told as fully as this one. All of Crown Prince Alexander's side of the story is found in an official record which has just come to light here in Holland. Olga's side has perished with her and her family. There is a mystery about her part of it that perhaps only Alexander himself could explain.

A grey-haired, grey-whiskered old Serbian statesman who was minister-president of Serbia in 1912 travelled to Russia to talk to the czar about Alexander's love for Olga. He was Paschitsch, a leading statesman of Europe, accustomed to grimmer matters of European diplomacy than royal love affairs.

Report on Mission Revealed.
In the recent ventilation of the archives of European diplomats the report of Paschitsch on this love-mission has come to light. The visit was made at Petrograd on February 2, 1914, half a year before the European war broke out.

For half an hour Paschitsch talked to the czar about the Balkan situation; the czar little knowing what the grey-bearded old Serbian had in mind entered enthusiastically into the discussion, criticizing Austria, criticizing Montenegro, criticizing Ferdinand of Bulgaria and expressing his love for Serbia and the need of friendship with Greece. And then Paschitsch told Alexander's love story to the czar. I am able from Mr. Bogachevich's new book, "Causes of the War," to give

Paschitsch's report, as he wrote it himself:
"Thereupon I referred to the matter of the marriage of our heir to the throne in the following words: 'I am able from Mr. Bogachevich's new book, "Causes of the War," to give me to propose a wish and a request of our king, and not be angry if I do so.'"

Paschitsch seemed to realize that he was asking on behalf of the crown prince—crown prince by virtue of assassination—of a tiny country, the hand of the most beautiful maiden of one of the greatest and most splendid courts of Europe.

"Our king," he continued, "wishes to marry his son to one of the grand duchesses. The duty which he owes his country and his successors impels him to express this wish to your majesty through me, for he is convinced that no one will know or hear of it. If, for any reason, your majesty should conclude that this cannot be, our king will continue to cherish his sympathy for Russia and his loyalty to the Slav policy, and he would have the consciousness of having fulfilled his duty toward Serbia and Russia."

"The czar," so runs the report of Paschitsch, "replied smiling that he was not at all ill-disposed to the request of the king, and it was quite a proper one; his principle, however, was to permit his children to decide matters of the heart for themselves, and he did not wish to influence them in their choice of future life partners. He, too, considered it would be unnecessary for anyone to know about the matter. He had noticed that when the crown prince had been to dinner with the family of the czar he had often glanced at the grand duchess (Olga) and tried to avoid having the others notice it. He found the crown prince did not boast about his war ex-

"I thereupon thanked him and promised to tell no one, not even the king, what the czar had told me; only the crown prince was to know of it. Serbo-Croatian people. Her influence and her lustre would encompass the entire Balkan peninsula."

Paschitsch then added:

"The czar listened to my words with apparent pleasure. The impression of this entire incident was a good one. I noticed not the least sign that the czar was ill-disposed to the marriage, and I added that the crown prince, who had come to Petrograd with Paschitsch, could remain a few days longer, for there was not pressing business that called for his presence at home, but, for myself, I must depart on the following Friday. The czar said: 'Oh, he may remain here yet. He has plenty of acquaintances here and can enjoy himself very well.'"

Finds Czar Pleasant.

"I had said this," Paschitsch explains, "so that the crown prince still would have occasion to meet the czar and his daughter a few times. I did not require when we might have an answer from the czar. I regarded it as superfluous to inquire into the ways and means of the czar's reply. If he receives a satisfactory report from his daughter he himself will easily find ways and means to give his answer. Moreover, he can easily summon the crown prince and tell him what he has in mind. Upon my taking leave, the czar accompanied me to the door and asked me specially to present not only greetings to the king from himself, but also from the czar and his family, and wished him good health."

There's the official story of it. The beautiful Olga today is dead. Had the two been married it is true that today she would have been ruling over the southern Slavs, enjoying all the sympathy that grey-haired old Paschitsch promised for her. Did she say no to the wooing of Alexander? Or did she say yes, and did the world war, which broke out six months later, caused them to defer the wedding to what they thought might be a happier time?

Did the now-dead czar give his answer one way or another, and was it all really kept a secret from old King Peter of Serbia by his trusted old minister, Paschitsch?

Those are answers that the archives of Russia and Serbia have not disclosed. Perhaps, to this day, old Paschitsch and young Alexander are the only living persons who know what answer Olga gave.

VOICES OF THE PEOPLE

REPLIES TO McBRIDE.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
I note in the London Free Press of October 11 a letter from Mayor McBride of Brantford complaining against the people of London nominating a Labor candidate for London. This man McBride appears greatly nettled that the electors of London bring out Dr. H. A. Stevenson against Sir Adam Beck. Mr. McBride, in referring to Dr. Stevenson, says: "I do not know who the gentleman is, but he must be a camouflaged labor man." So I beg to inform Mr. McBride that the Labor candidate, Dr. H. A. Stevenson, is the only man living in three years in succession. Now, I would like to know who is that great man, Mayor McBride. I have been a taxpayer in London for over fifty years, and up to date I never heard of this

Mr. McBride—in fact, he must be camouflaged. I also beg to inform Mr. McBride that I have been a Conservative voter all my life, only once voting other than Conservative, but if I live till this election I intend to vote for the doctor. I have no doubt in my mind but that his Mr. McBride is one of Sir Adam's pets or tools, for he is trying to make the taxpayers believe that Sir Adam is a friend of the laboring man. I will try to convince Mr. McBride that Sir Adam is anything but a helper of the workingman. At the time Sir Adam bonded all the workingmen's houses in the city of London to raise money to electrify the Port Stanley Railroad, and when this road was started, Sir Adam gave over thirty free yearly passes to his friends, and I will dare Mr. McBride to name one workingman who got one of these passes. It may be that Mr. McBride got a pass as many out of London got a pass. Sir Adam's next move against the workingman was to kill the Traction and Lake Shore line. As soon as he got this done he raised the fares on his pet line from 30 cents to 50 a return trip to the workingman, and yet a free pass was at the same time sent to Sir Adam's friends. You say, Mr. McBride, that you are coming to London to speak in favor of Sir Adam. Now, Mr. McBride, a man from Brantford would have no influence with the taxpayers of London, and then you know Sir Adam has no birthright to the seat for London, and the people want a change, and Sir Adam is getting too old for the job. Yours truly

JOSEPH LAWRENCE.

TO TELL OF LUNDY'S TRIP MADE THROUGH ONTARIO IN 1830

The first of the season's meetings of the London and Middlesex Historical Society will be held in the public library building on Tuesday evening next, when Fred London, city librarian, will present a paper on Benjamin Lundy's trip through this part of Ontario in 1830. Lundy, who was the pioneer abolitionist of the United States, came to Canada to inquire into the conditions of the negro refugees from slavery, who were living at the Wilberforce settlement on the present site of Lucan. He entered Canada at Niagara and left at Windsor. His diary of the journey gives a most interesting picture of this district, ninety years ago. Mr. London secured photostat copies of the diary from the file of Lundy's newspaper in the New York Public Library, one of the very few sets of this publication known.

SILLOAM ANNIVERSARY.
Anniversary services were held at Silloam recently when Rev. W. E. Prescott, pastor of Dundas Centre Methodist Church, London, preached. The congregation filled the church. The evening, Reginald Hudson conducted a song service, and gave the anniversary address. Scores could not gain admission to the service.
Splendid music was provided by the choir of St. John's Methodist Church. Rev. H. Williams, pastor, assisted.

EVERYONE A MUSICIAN.
One can hardly appreciate what the invention of the Helitama & Co. Player-Piano means to thousands who have not had the privilege of a musical education. Anyone who has a knowledge of music can sit down before this piano and play the choicest selections of the master composers. You will never appreciate how true this is until you play it. At their main warehouses in Toronto and in all their branches throughout the Dominion, Helitama & Co., Limited, 242 Dundas street, London, are making a fine showing of their famous Player-Pianos.

'Grippe' Leaves Kidneys Weak
The epidemic of colds and grippe that has been sweeping the country has seemingly left even a greater number of people than ever in a weakened, run-down condition, from which there is but a slow recovery. Much of this after-weakness affects the kidneys and bladder, making it difficult for them to perform their natural functions. Sufferers have to get in and out of bed half a dozen times a night, their backs are weak and painful, sick headaches and dizziness are common symptoms. No serious trouble may exist, but the time to check such symptoms is at once, before matters grow worse. No complicated treatment may be needed if a few doses of a good, safe kidney regulator like Solvax is taken right away. Solvax straightens out an ordinary case of weakened kidneys in about twenty-four hours in many instances, sifts out and neutralizes poisonous uric acid, and drives the clogged-up poisonous kidney waste from the body, so that you can begin to feel better right away. Solvax is harmless, contains no alcohol or habit drugs, and all leading druggists agree to refund its full purchase price if in any case it fails to give entire satisfaction. WATERWORKS DEPT. FACES OVERDRAFT; RATES MAY GO UP

A report on water rates, as a basis of a thorough and complete investigation, will be given to the public utilities commission at its next meeting. The members decided today that this would be necessary when General Manager E. V. Buchanan reported that there would be an overdraft in the waterworks department.
The overdraft will be due to increased costs of materials and labor, he said. There was no reflection on the commission's management as the rates were fixed while the costs advanced. Chairman Philip Pocock said he was agreeable to the rates being equal to the costs at all times. Mr. Buchanan said the city should pay $15,000 more for fire protection, and the chairman agreed with him.
The parks department will break even with its estimates and expenditures. It has spent about $20,700 up to this time.

Stiff Joints Sore Muscles

In cases of rheumatism and lame back it penetrates quickly, drives out soreness, and limbers up stiff, aching joints and muscles.
Wizard Oil is an absolutely reliable, antiseptic application for cuts, burns, bites, and stings. Sprains and bruises heal readily under its soothing, penetrating qualities.
Get it from druggists for 30 cents. If not satisfied return the bottle and get your money back.
Ever constipated or have sick headache? Just try Wizard Liver Whips, pleasant little pink pills, 30 cents. Guaranteed.

The parks board will consider granting a request made to the commission to allow the building of a miniature railway in Springbank Park. An ex-railroad engineer proposes building this amusement device at a cost of three or four thousand dollars, and would be willing to have the miniature trains travel to the various beauty spots of the park. The present proposal is for a large loop-line.

The Path to Health

For many thousands of women the Path to Health has certainly been through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When this great remedy was first introduced, and for many years after, skeptics frowned upon its curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by it has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands—doubt and skepticism have been swept away as by a mighty tidal wave, until today this purely vegetable medicine is recognized as the greatest remedy for woman's special ills in the world. This is because it is a wonderful tonic and reconstructor which acts directly and favorably upon the feminine organization and is a specific for that purpose.

Who Took the 'Can' Out of Candidate

Who'd ever think that there was an election on in London at the present time of writing?
Gone are the good old days when one party had the pigs' feet and the other the ham bone. One had the school house, the other the counting flange of lager or ale at the refreshment stand. What chance had the honest voter to separate Hughie or Adam from even a twopenny to repay him for his arduous journey to the polls? No, the good old days are gone, and with them a bunch of fun and excitement, which we all used to share around election time, when we could throw our hats in the air and cheer for Charley or the Major.

THE MASON & RISCH PHONOGRAPH

SOMETIMES there is such a thing as "the best." Many men set "the best" as their goal. They seek out worthy materials for their work. They gather skilled craftsmen and hold before them high ideals. By sincerity and painstaking they climb near—often VERY near—to "THE BEST."

HE who attains the final "BEST," however, is he who, having all that the others have—integrity, skill, experience, courage—has, over and above these, a hidden advantage all his own. A method, a device, a knack, maybe, which Fate has given him, and denied to the rest.

SO the old masters of painting had a secret of mixing their colors that has made their paintings endure through centuries, while those of their contemporaries are faded and forgotten. SO, too, modern industry has its examples.

MANY manufacturers have earnestly tried to make the BEST Phonograph. All have had access to the same masters, the same equipment, the same workmanship, and GOOD Phonographs are being made in many factories.

BUT one maker has had the good fortune to possess that knack which the seeker after "THE BEST" must have if he is to attain his ideal. THAT ideal has been realized, and today we present to the music-loving public

THE MASON & RISCH Phonograph

A PHONOGRAPH as fine as human hands can fashion, and a reproducer of music which cannot be expressed in phonograph terms. The absolutely faithful tonal results that we set out to secure for the realization of our ideals in piano-building have been duplicated in the phonograph of our make.

JOHN D., JUNIOR, MAKES A PLEA FOR WORKERS

Urges a "New Spirit" in Industry At Washington Conference.

RECOGNITION AS MEN

Employees Cannot Be Enthusiastic If Treated Merely As Cogs.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—Recognition of the right of collective bargaining came to the floor of the national industrial conference today and was debated for three hours, but a vote was impossible as the conference had to adjourn at 5:30 o'clock under its rules. Virtual notice was given by members of the labor group that should the representatives of capital succeed in their attempt to send the resolution back to the committee of fifteen the labor delegation would withdraw.

The collective bargaining resolution, providing for an endorsement of the right of wage earners to negotiate with employers through "representatives of their choosing" was reported to the conference when it met at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon with the approval of all of the public and labor delegates in the committee, but opposed by the representatives of capital.

Realizing that the conference faced the likelihood of dissolution unless an agreement could be reached on the issue of collective bargaining, members of the public group directed eloquent appeals to the employers in an effort to win them over to the resolution.

Leading in this effort was John D. Rockefeller, Jr., representative of one of the nation's greatest industrial organizations, who pleaded for a "new spirit" in industry, with universal recognition of "the right of representation."

Frank Morrison, taking up the issue for the labor delegation, defied the employers with the challenge that they could not deny nor interfere with "the right of bargaining through chosen representatives," which he said had been acknowledged by such governmental agencies as the war labor board and the railroad administration, and was accepted generally in Great Britain, Germany and other countries.

The arguments of the public and labor delegates were countered by the representatives of capital, who insisted that the correct place to work out relations between employer and employees was in the individual establishment. He concluded his argument by presenting a motion that the resolution be referred back to the central committee, but as adjournment time came before a vote could be taken.

Mr. Rockefeller was joined by H. B. Endicott, a shoe manufacturer, and member of the public group, who spoke, he said, as "one of the largest employers in the country and the largest employer of labor in his line in the world."

"What joy can there be in life, what interest can a man take in his work, what enthusiasm can be expected to develop on behalf of his employer when he is regarded as a number on the payroll, a cog in a wheel, a mere 'hand'?" he asked.

"Who would not earnestly seek to gain recognition of his manhood, and the right to be heard and treated as a human being, and not as a machine?" Mr. Rockefeller was joined by H. B. Endicott, a shoe manufacturer, and member of the public group, who spoke, he said, as "one of the largest employers in the country and the largest employer of labor in his line in the world."

BOLSHEVIKI ARE EVACUATING PETROGRAD, SAYS NEWSPAPER

HELSINKI, Oct. 16.—The Bolsheviks are evacuating Petrograd because the troops are unwilling to fight, according to a message received here. The newspaper Ruskaya Zhen also reports receipt of advice that General Denekine has recognized the Poles as allies, and has declared his agreement with General Petura, the Ukrainian commander, at an end.

Petura recently declared a state of war with Denekine because the latter, it was declared, insisted upon the Ukrainians becoming a part of the Denekine army and losing their identity as a national force.

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO- PHOSPHATE

Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

The average person is beginning to realize more and more that the lack of physical strength and nerve exhaustion (frequently evidenced by excessive thinness) are the direct cause not only of the failure to succeed in life's struggle for the necessities of existence, but also for the handicap in one's social aspirations. Compare the thin, sickly, angular frame with the well-rounded form which is usually accompanied by the bloom of health and attractiveness.

That millions of people are conscious of this handicap is evident from the continued appearance in newspapers and magazines of many suggestions proposing various remedies in food or medicine or exercises, either of which might or might not be appropriate for a given case.

Authorities, however, agree that healthy nerve tissue is absolutely essential to a strong, robust body and mind. Weak nerves, while indicated by a multitude of different symptoms, more immediately and generally result in lack of energy, sleeplessness, irritability, depression, etc., which conditions gradually consume the healthy flesh, leaving ugly hollows, a flat chest, bony neck and graveney arms and legs.

Our bodies need more phosphate than most of them are able to extract from the foods we eat nowdays, and many opinions affirm that there is nothing which may be taken into the human system that so effectively supplies this deficiency as the pure organic phosphate known as Bitro-phosphate and sold by good druggists everywhere.

The essential phosphoric food elements in Bitro-phosphate assimilated by the nerve cells should soon produce a pleasing change in nerve energy and hence increased vitality and strength.

With the burdens of nervousness, sleeplessness, lack of energy, etc. lifted, normal weight with its attractive fullness and ruddy glow of health replaces the former picture of skin and bones. Miss Georgia Hamilton, who was once thin and frail, reporting her own experience, writes: "Bitro-Phosphate has brought a magic transformation with me. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

C A T P I O N.—Although Bitro-phosphate is unexcelled for the relief of nervousness and attendant disorders, owing to its tendency to increase weight, one should watch the scales while taking it unless it is the desire to put on flesh.—Advt.

THIRD VICTORY LOAN A WAR OBLIGATION, DECLARES DRAYTON

Canada Must Redeem Pledges, He Points Out.

MATTER OF PATRIOTISM Predicts Great and Glorious Success For New Domestic Issue.

TORONTO, Oct. 16.---County and district chairman in connection with the Victory Loan campaign, to the number of 150, from all parts of Ontario, met at the King Edward Hotel today, and had a long conference. O. H. Wood, chairman of the Ontario publicity committee, presided. Addresses were given by Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance; Chairman G. H. Wood, J. H. Gundy, W. J. Taylor, president of the Canadian Press Association, and chairman of the Dominion press news and feature committee; E. J. Coombs, chairman of the Ontario publicity committee, and others.

In introducing Sir Henry Drayton, Chairman Wood referred to the fact that in the last five years Canada had raised more than $1,300,000,000 by domestic loans, while in the same time Canadian bank deposits had increased $750,000,000. He complimented the people of the Dominion and the newspapers for their splendid co-operation in raising the money, besides referring in eulogistic terms to Sir Thomas

White, the former finance minister.

Sir Henry Drayton was given an ovation. He admitted that he knew little about Victory Loan drives, while the gentlemen present were veterans in the work, but he said he realized that the had played a very important part in helping to win the conflict, which had been an industrial and financial war, as well as a fighters' war. The minister referred to his efforts while chairman of the Dominion railway commission in assisting in transportation, in the coal shortage, and in the power supply in connection with the manufacture of munitions.

Financially the war was not over, Sir Henry said. The Victory Loan of 1919 was a war effort, because Canada's efforts were not over until the resources and the dollars pledged had been paid. It was up to the country to see that its pledges were redeemed, and until they were redeemed Canada would not have done its full share toward winning the war. Debts and the war had to be paid. The men who had returned must be given an opportunity of becoming re-established in civil life. Business must continue functioning, and must continue to produce. Surplus products must be sold and in order to be sold must be paid for. Farmers had to pay for their seed and for their labor, and they could do it only by the sale of their products.

Third and Last.

In order that Canada might carry on, every one was giving the best that was in him for the third and last Victory Loan. Its object permitted of no question or argument or debate, so far as any patriotic, right-thinking Canadian was concerned.

Sir Henry had heard it said that the patriotic aspect of the loan was past and must be put away. That wasn't his idea of what Canadian patriotism was, he declared. He believed the patriotic spirit was as strong in Canada today as it was in the heart-breaking days of 1914. It was just as necessary today, in order that the greater and grander Canada of today should become greater and grander than ever,

In conclusion Sir Henry pointed out the material argument in favor of the Victory Loan, 2 1/2 per cent interest as against 3 per cent interest from the banks. He predicted a great and glorious finish for the Victory Loan.

Among the well-known men present were Judge A. T. Bowler, Simon, A. K. Russell, Brantford; C. H. Sumner, Ingersoll; S. L. McKay, Sarnia; Major W. G. Oldley, Leamington; C. M. Reid, London; Lieut.-Col. H. T. Rance, Clinton; C. L. Dunbar, Guelph, and Robert Hobson, Hamilton, Ont.

FIRST OPEN MEETING OF CHURCH FORWARD MOVEMENT IS HELD

Representatives of Five Denominations Gather in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15.---What was described from the platform as the most unique religious gathering ever assembled in Manitoba was held today, when representatives of the Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian denominations throughout the province met to launch the inter-church forward movement. This was the first open general meeting called under the auspices of the movement, although much preliminary work has already been done in committee, and was reported on by the speakers.

Many delegates from outside points were present.

His Grace Archbishop Matheson presided. He expressed the hope that the united effort would bring the churches people closer together, and that by it all the churches would be vitalized in their ideals and energized in their efforts.

LUCAS URGES TORY SUPPORT, IF ONLY TO RE-ELECT CODY

Says Dewar Was Brought Out To Punish Hearst For Prohibition.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 16.---There were numerous vacant chairs at the town hall in Aymer tonight, when Hon. L. B. Lucas, the attorney general of Ontario in the Hearst administration, addressed a meeting in the interests of T. M. Moore, the Tory candidate in East Elgin.

Mr. Lucas confined his remarks for the most part to a criticism of Hartley Dewar, and the U. P. O. movement. He declared that Mr. Dewar had been brought into political life for the express purpose of punishing Sir William Hearst for passing a prohibition measure.

The two opposition leaders of past days, N. W. Rowell and W. Proudfoot, had also made the statement. The speaker thought that the Hearst Government should be returned to power if for nothing else than that Dr. Cody, the minister of education, should be kept in power.

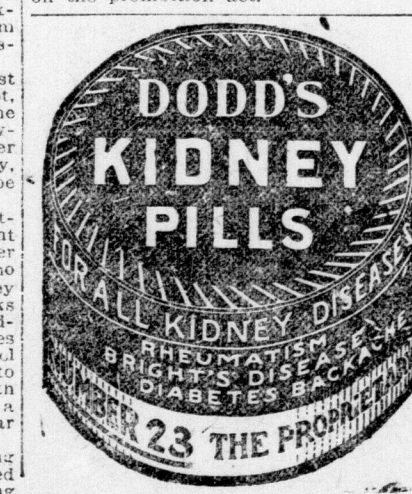

Hydro, he said, was one of the matters which Sir William's Government intended to support. In the earlier days, when he needed a friend, no assistance was received from Hartley Dewar, yet today, when he thinks hydro will assist him, professes friendship for it. He pointed to the charges made by Mr. Dewar in the nickel question and the shipping of booze to the St. Catharines by-election. Both charges had been proven beyond a doubt to be without foundation, as far as fact is concerned, he said.

He criticized Miss Isabel Armstrong of London, who he said had discussed the nickel question in Aymer during Thursday afternoon to the women electors. She was alleged by Mr. Lucas to have declared that the nickel was shipped from Ontario to Germany, and used in the manufacture of bullets to wound Canadian soldiers. Both the Globe and Toronto Star, afterwards Mr. Lucas' main attack, had repudiated these charges, and had condemned the agitation on nickel.

The activities of the U. P. O. politically are manipulated by a dozen directors, men on the executive who are using the organization for their own selfish ends," the speaker declared. He thought that if the object of the U. P. O. was to elect more farmers to the Legislature they might have allowed Hon. Mr. Macdunnachie and Mr. Henrie to return unopposed. Both were farmers, and had served the agricultural men well. He wanted to know why they undertook to oppose every Conservative farmer of the last legislature. He admitted that if the object of the U. P. O. was to defeat the Hearst administration, then the proper method would be the one adopted by them.

He endorsed the Hearst Government for its educational, prohibition and agricultural policies, dwelling principally on the prohibition act.

TORONTO RABBIS ISSUE DENIAL OF DEWART CHARGE

Four of Them Unite in Making Public Statement in Reply.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Four rabbis of this city have issued a statement denying the allegation of H. Hartley Dewart, K.C., M.P., Liberal leader, that cherry brandy, called "vishnick," was distributed wholesale to the Jews during a recent religious festival for corrupt political purposes in the interest of the Hearst Government. The rabbis in question are Rabbi Solomon Jacobson, Rabbi Weinreb, Rabbi Gordon and Rabbi Levy. In their statement they say in part:

"We have repeatedly asked the license board, through Rabbi Jacobson, for permission to use wine for religious purposes during festivals.

"This permission was always granted, the only stipulation being that each family should receive only sufficient for religious purposes.

"The suggestion that privilege was granted us for the Feast of Tabernacles with a view to securing votes, or for any other political purpose, is untrue.

"We took what we believed were proper precautions to carry out the instructions given us by the license board, and if any individual succeeded in obtaining more than he was entitled to, it was through his own deception and trickery, for which we are not responsible.

"We sincerely regret that a malicious construction has been placed on the action of the license board, and we assume all responsibility, and acted throughout in perfect good faith."

CLAIMS PREMIER OF HUNGARY PLANNED TO RESTORE MONARCHY

This Reason Is Given For the Attempted Arrest of Stephen Friedrich.

Vienna, Wednesday, Oct. 15.—The motive for the attempted arrest of Premier Stephen Friedrich of Hungary by Rumanians on Monday was the discovery, it is said, that he was planning a coup d'etat with the object of placing former Emperor Charles of Austria on the Hungarian throne. This information is given in a Budapest dispatch to the Abendblatt.

Hungarian forces commanded by Admiral Horthy, former commander-in-chief of the Austro-Hungarian navy, were last week within one day's march of Budapest, being brought forward under Premier Friedrich's orders, he having promised the Rumanian commander-in-chief that the Hungarian forces would place King Ferdinand of Rumania on the Hungarian throne, it is said.

The dispatch states that when it was discovered the premier's real object was to place former Emperor Charles on the throne, the Rumanian troops ceased their withdrawal from Budapest and ordered Admiral Horthy to halt his forces.

Advices to the Associated Press from Budapest say the arrest of the premier was prevented only by British and American guards, with fixed bayonets and prepared for battle, ordered the Rumanians to continue their withdrawal from the city.

MANAGERS OF MATRIMONY

[By R. Ray Baker.]
(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As matrimonial manager for her family, Mrs. Glendale Chesterton had every reason to feel proud of her record. Through their mother's efforts, three of the Chesterton "hopefuls" had their hopes realized. Husbands, with comfortable piles of coin to their respective credit had been found, lured and trapped. They had to be lured and trapped because of the daughters' vivid attractiveness. As visions and beauty, the three Chesterton girls would have made good cement mixers.

But Mrs. Chesterton's troubles were not over. There remained one more daughter, Lucia by name, to be married off before the mother would be content. And Lucia was the greatest problem of them all.

Not because of her looks. Far from it. In some way Lucia had escaped the rest of the family. In fact, those who knew said she made up for the rest of them.

According to these authorities, the other Chesterton girls had hair that resembled rope, while Lucia's was raven black, with tints of burnished gold. Her sisters' eyes were the color of mud puddles. Lucia's were brown, deep, mysterious. Lucia's nose was like a hawk's; Lucia's lips were pink, Lucia's thin and red; their necks like buffaloes, hers like a swan's; their bodies thin as rails, Lucia's slim like a bird.

But Lucia was recalcitrant. A number of husbands had been selected for her—and she would not touch them. "Don't want to get married," she affirmed. "I want to get married, that's all."

Mrs. Chesterton was ingenious, but all her ingenuity was lost on Lucia. The latter saw through her. In fact, when a prospective husband called and asked Mrs. Chesterton to give him a young couple alone, Lucia would propose a date. When a horseback party contrived by Mrs. Chesterton's suggestion to leave Lucia and a young man, she would say, "I don't want to go with you. I want to go with you."

For three years Mrs. Chesterton had been thinking the latter this way. She would whip up her own daughter, and become the bride of some nice rich young man. But Lucia was now 25 and more adamant than ever.

"No use," she would say. "I just won't get married. I enjoy myself too much being single. No man is going to boss me around."

About this time young Adam Forthgiver, who went away in quest of health, returned from a three years' sojourn in the West, where he became robust and made money raising cattle. This change for the better in his health—and also in the matter of his wealth—clearly made Mrs. Chesterton decide on Adam for a son-in-law. She had a conference with Mrs. Forthgiver, and the latter acquiesced. It was to their mutual social advantage.

"But it's no use," said Mrs. Forthgiver. "I broked it subject of marriage to Adam. In fact, I might say I had your daughter in view; you know they used to be best good friends. He nearly ate me up, and told me he was not ready, and would not be for a good many years, to take a wife, and when he was ready he'd select one without any help."

They had frequent confabs on the subject, and one day Mrs. Forthgiver, after serving notice by telephone, hurried into Mrs. Chesterton's home with the announcement that she had an idea.

Mrs. Chesterton, having visited England, had the afternoon habit, and she at once ordered tea served. Over the table they hatched the plot.

The plan was simple. In fact, young Adam Forthgiver was a party to it—was really its author—although he was unaware of it. Adam had decided to go hunting in the Michigan north woods. "I've always wanted to tramp through those forests in the winter," he had said. "It's ideal in the summer, and I know I'd like it when there's snow."

Mrs. Forthgiver's plan was for Mrs. Chesterton to send Lucia to the same territory, without, of course, apprising her of the fact that Adam would be there. The suggestion was received with enthusiasm.

"Just the thing!" she exclaimed, as she drained her second cup. "Lucia has often expressed a desire for some such winter frolic in the woods. I'll get Mrs. Alberts to go with her."

Adam had selected Brutus, a town south of Mackinaw City, for his headquarters. "There's a hotel there called the Purple House which serves the best dinners in the world," he had explained, "and when I get tired of camp cooking I can hike to town and get a real feed."

Adam's real purpose is to get the outdoors. He has asserted that he can't stand having anything but the sky for a roof. So there won't be much hunting. He'll take his gun along just as a blind. What he really wants is to eat and sleep in a hotel and spend the rest of his time in the woods. I know him. There's a young man living in Brutus who worked on Adam's ranch, and he's very fond of him. This young man will act as his guide.

"Now, I've had some work on my own account before broaching the plan to you, and I learn that there is a family at Brutus the name of Lineman. The family is just a lady and her daughter, poor but honest, and sometimes they take in boarders and roomers. It would be a good idea for Lucia and Mrs. Alberts to make reservations at Lucia's, and early December found her rooming with the Linemans and enjoying herself immensely. She roomed the woods every day with either Miss Lineman or Mrs. Alberts as a companion, and her roses cheeks were becoming more rosy.

"It's the life!" she cried. "Nothing is lacking."

But one day while wandering aimlessly through a strip of pine forest she became separated from Miss Lineman. She called repeatedly, but could get no response.

"I'm lost," she decided, but she was not greatly alarmed. In fact, the novelty was rather exhilarating.

She continued along the path, swinging with a carefree motion in spite of her predicament, and whistling softly. Suddenly a man stepped from behind a tree—a tall blond young man, garbed in hunting costume, carrying a gun.

She stopped and stared at him, and he stared back. There was something fascinating in the look from his eyes, and she was spellbound. A strange power she had never before felt drew her to him.

"He's come at last," she breathed. "This is the man that was meant for me. Aloud she said, 'I'm lost. Can you help me?'"

Adam Forthgiver and his erstwhile employee were having the time of their lives. Only once did they go hunting, and on that occasion they had not found anything to shoot at, and probably would not have fired if they had. They loved the outdoors and had no particular propensity for killing.

On one of their tramps the young men became separated. Adam felt some trepidation, for he was not well acquainted with the pine forest; they had been exploring; but he continued walking along the path, calling to his guide. He hoped the path would take him somewhere, but was not sure. There was such a network of paths, crossing and recrossing one another at many points.

Some carving on a tree drew his attention.

"This looks like the tree we cut our names in the other way," he said, and proceeded to investigate. It was as he had suspected and with the tree marker he felt reasonably sure he could find his way.

As he stepped from behind the tree he came face to face with a girl, a remarkably attractive girl. He caught his breath.

"Can it be?" she exclaimed, as he stared back. "Can it be this is the girl I've been waiting for all these years?"

Love at first sight. That sure is what this is!

Mrs. Glendale Chesterton slipped her sixth cup of tea.

"Well, we got them married," she said, setting the cup on the table.

Mrs. Forthgiver sighed.

"Yes, they're married, all right; but such a horrible mess! We sent Lucia and Adam into the woods to marry each other, instead Lucia picks out Adam's guide for a husband and Adam decides that Lucia's landlady's daughter is the girl for him. Such a mess!"

"Still, if they're both happy—" oh, served Mrs. Chesterton, picking up the cup. "Won't you have some tea?"

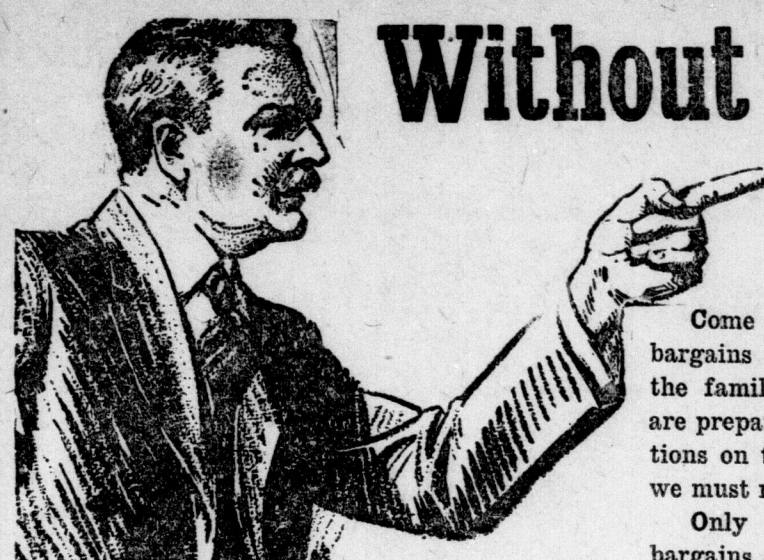

"No more, thank you," replied the guest. "I suppose we may as well make the best of it. As you say, as long as they're happy—"

Sure Way to Regain Robust Bloom of Youth

A smooth, velvety-soft skin, with a delicate peachlike bloom, is one of the Creator's most exquisite works. When the first blush of youth is over, this beautiful tint and satiny lustre are rarely seen. How to procure them—that's the question. Famous beauty experts abroad have known that ordinary mercialized wax works wonders in this direction. It actually gives a new surface to the skin, restoring that marvellous girlish color and softness in a remarkable manner. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug store, will convert a faded, worn-out complexion into one of captivating loveliness in less than two weeks.

No special skill is necessary in applying mercialized wax, it being smeared on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.—Adv.

BAPTIST RALLY IS HELD AT ARKONA

Arkona, Oct. 16.—The annual rally of the Middlesex and Lambton Baptist young people, held in the Baptist Church here yesterday, was a grand success. Some 300 delegates were in attendance, and a fine spirit of enthusiasm pervaded the gathering. The local union entertained the visitors with a supper, served in the basement, and not a few of the young people, piloted by Charles Bartlett, motored to Rock Glen, a beauty spot near the town. Pennants were awarded to Talbot street, London, Arkona, and Egerton street, London, unions for the largest attendance, and the Petrolia delegates with the London three won by a close margin on the question, "Resolved that Social Service is More Important than Evangelism." Rev. T. S. Roy of Talbot street, London, addressed the young people on the "Challenge of the Hour." Rev. N. S. McKee of Wortley Road, London, and Rev. S. Haverstock of Stratroy on "Christ Among Men."

The officers returned by acclamation are the following: Rev. A. C. Bingham, president; Thomas Mills, vice-president, both of Egerton Street Union, and Miss Louise Strathorn of Stratroy, secretary-treasurer, Rev. A. Hughes of High Park, Toronto, delivered the address on "The Supreme Sacrifice."

SKELETONS AND COINS
DUG UP AT KINGSTON

KINGSTON, Oct. 16.—The remains of several Indians, buried many years ago, were unearthed today outside the old Fort Frontenac at Tete Du Pont Barracks. The full skeleton of what is believed to have been an Indian was dug up, and many bones of other skeletons were also unearthed, as well as two coins, bearing the date of 1725 and 1814. One of the coins found was a half-penny of 1814, and was engraved with the picture of the Duke of Wellington, and the name "Montreal."

SHIP SUGAR BEET
CROP NEAR DUART

DUART, Oct. 16.—Harvesting and shipment of the sugarbeet crop is in full swing. The growers are taking every advantage of the ideal weather. Upwards of a hundred acres have been grown in this vicinity, and the crop is expected to average better than ten tons to the acre. Owing to the early drought the roots were late in starting, but with sufficient rains later the growth was rapid. Specimens have been procured weighing fully twelve pounds.

I. L. P.-U. F. O. Officials
Promise Interesting Program Tonight.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 16.—The officials in charge of the Independent Labor Union Farmer meeting which is to be held in the Engineers' Hall Friday night are preparing for a bumper crowd, and have promised an excellent program to be better than any of their rallies held so far in the riding of West Elgin.

Prominent among the speakers secured for the occasion are Joseph Marks and Mrs. W. L. Singer of Toronto, two champions of the Labor cause, Peter G. Cameron, U. F. O.-I. L. P. candidate, who contests the riding of West Elgin in the next Dominion election. The organization has arranged for a variance of the program by having Joe Ellis & Co. present various musical numbers.

WOMEN MIX ELECTIONS.
The story is told in the city today of a party of Conservative women canvassers who visited several homes in the Wilson avenue district soliciting support for Hon. F. J. Macdonald. They submitted the usual appeals to the women occupants, and were pointedly refused being informed that the latter had been carefully considered, and that John Lane would receive their votes on October 20.

The efforts of the canvassers to make the canvassed ones understand that John Lane is the I. L. P.-U. F. O. candidate for the Dominion elections proved fruitless. The women determined that he was the man that they should cast their votes for in the provincial elections.

EXCELLENT EXHIBIT OF APPLES SHOWN
AT HIGHGATE FAIR

HIGHGATE, Oct. 16.—The most successful show ever held by the Oxford Agricultural Society took place at Highgate on Tuesday.

The exhibits in the two halls were in great volume. In the vegetable and grain building the entries in corn were most numerous and were all of a high standard. Roots and vegetables, too, made a great showing. Apples, however, predominated, taking up the entire length of the building on the south side.

The fancy work section, also home-cooking, took up quite a large section. A good musical program was provided by the Highgate and Palmyra brass band.

A first-class war trophy exhibit, conducted by a few returned soldiers, was well patronized.

During the afternoon a cowboy gave an exhibition of lasso-throwing on the track. The principal prize winners were as follows:
Horses—Thos. Wootton, Highgate; Robt. Stewart, Highgate; Gordon Manning, Highgate; R. H. Newman, Highgate; Jas. Leathdale, Northwood; D. Gosnell, Highgate; P. OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—The Dominion council of health, which held its first meeting in Ottawa recently, settled on the division among the provinces of the federal grant for combating venereal disease on a basis of population. The various provinces will therefore receive the following amounts:
Ontario, $57,437; Quebec, $47,385; New Brunswick, $7,517; Nova Scotia, $10,573; Prince Edward Island, $1,195; Manitoba, $12,611; Saskatchewan, $15,361; Alberta, $11,979; British Columbia, $14,628.

These amounts total approximately $180,000. The remaining $20,000, it was decided to divide between the advisory council and the department of health for fighting the disease, the provinces receiving the federal grant undertaking to furnish a like amount.

HOW TO KILL DANDRUFF SO IT WON'T RETURN.
By a Specialist.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature grey hair, is a well-known fact. We appreciate, therefore, the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. For this reason it is a pleasure to give herewith the dandruff remedy which a famous scalp specialist states he has found, after repeated tests, will completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also immediately stop falling hair, and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of partial baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you—6 ounces Day Rum, 2 ounces Lavender de Cologne, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger-tips. If you wish it perfumed add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. While this preparation is not a dye it is unequalled for restoring grey hair to its original color—Adv.

The Best Health-Insurance Is a Clean Colon

THERE ARE TWO WAYS of insuring yourself against disease. One is to pay big premiums to an insurance company which will pay you so much a week when you get sick. And if you get sick, most of this money will have to go to the doctor who tries to make you well again.

THE BEST WAY is to keep the disease-resisting forces of the body so well organized and equipped as to guarantee health. Then you can enjoy life right along, and make it pay you premiums instead of paying premiums on a policy.

This can be done only by keeping the colon clean and free from clogging. For the most eminent medical authorities tell us that about 90% of the sickness we have is directly or indirectly due to constipation.

Nujol is the best health insurance "policy" in existence, because it keeps the colon clear and clean without deranging or weakening any of the other organs. It is the only foe of constipation which has no unpleasant or dangerous "come-backs."

Nujol is not a drug. Every particle of it that goes into the body comes out of the body. But on its journey it softens any mass that may be impacted in the colon and lubricates the way so as to make it easy for nature to move the obstruction and properly get rid of it.

Nujol never interferes with digestion or any functions of any organ. It is not absorbed by those millions of little "mouths" in the intestine which suck in nourishment from the food passed along by the stomach. Its sole job is to keep things moving in an orderly, comfortable way. And it does this without any pain—does it equally well for babies, children, adults and aged folk.

Try Nujol. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

For valuable health booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger" free, write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) 50 Broadway, New York.

Warning: Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All drugs, imitations on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

The Banner firepot extracts every unit of heat from the fuel

THE ability of a Banner Furnace, or indeed any furnace, to diffuse warmth is only limited by the extent of its radiating surface. In the Banner Firepot this area is unusually large.

The flanges on the sides, by increasing the radiating surface, allow more air to come in contact with the sources of heat and thus distribute a greater quantity of warmth to the rooms above. This means more heat for the house and less for the chimney.

The flanges, moreover, strengthen the firepot as well as increase its radiating surface. We have never yet had to replace a Banner firepot. Some other noteworthy advantages of the Banner are:

- Large Firing Door. Opening ready for immediate insertion of water pipes without drilling.
- Deep flue to keep you clean when making down.
- Safety gas damper. Handy clean out door in radiators.

We supply free of charge complete plans of installation and employ competent heating engineers to prepare them. A copy of our booklet "How to Choose a Furnace" will help you solve your heating problem.

Kindly send me a copy of your booklet on "How to Choose a Furnace."

SIX MEN ARE SHOT DURING A CLASH BETWEEN STRIKERS AND GUARDS AT STEEL PLANTS

Trouble at Newport, Kentucky, Is Believed To Have Been Caused by Reports That Non-Union Workers Were Being Brought In To Operate Works.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 17.—A clash between strike sympathizers and guards and workmen of the Andrews Steel Company, Newport, Ky., last night, in which William Nimmo, former chief of detectives of Cincinnati, and five other men, were shot, is believed to have been caused by reports that nonunion workers were being brought in to operate the steel plant. Nimmo received twenty gunshot wounds in his legs, arms and head.

Methodists Are Criticized For Holding Sunday Picnics

Anglican Synod Delegates At Winnipeg Gathering Call For A Stricter Observance of the Sabbath—Minister Compares Salaries for Clergy With Money Spent On Motor Cars.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—At the meeting of the Anglican Synod yesterday, following a heated discussion on the laxity of the general public in Sunday observance, Rev. H. M. McCann, of Brandon, a Methodist minister, strongly criticized the Methodist Church for holding what he termed "Sunday picnic picnics." He stated that in one district over $100,000 had been spent on automobiles, and he estimated that $200 per car per year was brought to the attention of the Lord's Day Alliance and the Methodists asked to discontinue such methods. It was decided that Archbishop Matheson should send out a pastoral immediately preceding the holiday season next year appealing to the people to "remember the Sabbath to keep it holy."

VETERANS SCORNING CHARITY OFFERED IN COMMITTEE'S PLANS

No "Relief Fund" Wanted by Returned Men. MONEY WOULD BE LOST Officials At Head of Branches Would Reap All Benefit.

Bitterness and anger permeate the atmosphere of the rooms of the Great War Veterans. Members are indignant over the recommendations of the committee appointed to report on the question of further gratuities and aid to re-establishment of soldiers in civilian life. The proposal to establish a fund to aid needy cases and for the alleviation of hardships of families of veterans brought on by the winter, is regarded as nothing short of an insult. The question of further gratuities has become a matter of second importance compared with this.

"We don't want charity," said Lieut.-Col. W. G. Cole when interviewed, "and this aiding of needy cases would be nothing but charity. If any needy cases turn up, circumstances will go down in their pockets and aid them, as we have done in the past. More money would be spent up by the paying of officials at the head of the committees in the different centres than in helping the soldiers. The only solution of the whole matter would be to grant a further six months' gratuity on the same basis as before, and do it immediately."

Useless Fund. Major P. Osborne said: "The fund would be just like the one established in England after the Crimean war, while the heroes of Sebastopol and Balaklava starved. Most of our men are too proud to ask any society for aid, and I cannot see how the government proposes to reach that class. We will take means to show our displeasure, and we certainly will show it next Monday at the polls."

STREET SWEEPERS ARE INDIGNANT AT ACTION OF CITY FOREMAN

Drastic Steps May Be Taken By Members of Union. [Special to The Advertiser.] St. Thomas, Oct. 17.—The dismissal of a street sweeper here by the city foreman yesterday may result in drastic steps being taken by the newly-formed municipal workers' union. The man in question, it is stated, was ordered to work in the rain yesterday by the foreman. He worked eight hours and was ordered home. A representative will meet Dr. J. D. Curtis, chairman of the board of works, this afternoon, and an attempt at a settlement of the difference will be made. The union was only recently formed and is in its membership every employee of the city, including the firemen and gas employees.

THOSE AT BANQUET TO PRINCE WILL REPRESENT ORGANIZATIONS OF LONDON

Invitations to the banquet to the Prince of Wales, which is being held during his short stay here next week, are to be sent out immediately. The personnel of the banquet is to be the most representative of the city, it is possible to get together. Although the number of persons who will attend is limited to 60, almost every organization which plays a part in the upbuilding of London will have one of its members present, according to Ald. O. J. Cunningham.

City councillors are expected to attend in a body, for they, as the chosen representatives of the citizens at large, are virtually acting as hosts. Other municipal bodies will be represented also. The prince and his escort number ten, thus reducing the number of invitations to be given to 50.

Ald. Cunningham has selected the names of those who are to be present, but they are subject to the approval of the Prince of Wales' reception executive committee, which meets in the city hall at 4 o'clock this afternoon. At this meeting final arrangements for the entire reception will be made. The names of those invited have not been given out yet by the committee.
