When Final Ballot Was Taken, Eight Stood to Convict Murrell While Four Were For Acquittal, Basing Their Arguments On the Fact He Was Entitled to Benefit of Any Doubt as to Who Did Actual Shooting.

HOW THEY SPENT LONG HOURS OF NIGHT

Disagreement of the jury in the case of Sid Murrell and Slim Williams, bandits tried for murder at the fall assizes, has caused a great deal of speculation as to how each of the twelve voted. In the final argument before the last ballot was taken in the morning, the jury lined up as follows on the Murrell ease:

NORMAN WEIR, farmer, Dorchester. ROBERT MOIR, farmer, London Township. DAVID B. STUART, Elmwood avenue, London JOHN P. BEGG, King street, London.

JAMES MACPHERSON, farmer, London Township

ANSON McCLURG, farmer, London Township.

The letter states that so far contributions have been received from 439 places, making $2,422.14 so far collected. In addition to this $4,000 is expected from the Toronto public schools and the hope is expressed.

"I guess my stock has gone up 20 per cent," Sid Murrell remarked to Head Turnkey Wharton, in referring to the outcome of his trial on a murder charge at the fall

The final ballot, which was secret stood eight to four in favor of conviction of Sid Murrell. Williams was not mentioned during the proceedings, the jury deciding they must arrive at a decision on Murrell before they could decide Slim Williams

The first ballot, taken before the jury entered the courtroom at 9:30 o'clock Thursday night, and an-nounced it could not agree, stood seven to five. The next ballot, taken before the jury retired for the night at 1:30 o'clock Friday morning, stood eight to four. Previous to taking the first ballot, Robert Moir had lined up with the members who could not e their way clear to convict.
"Conflicting evidence" was the basis of the argument of those who were not in favor of conviction. After the jury had heard the evidence, the addresses by counsel, and the charge of the trial judge, they retired to the jury room. Before they entered into their deliberations, they rested a short time.

The jurrs smoked and chewed to-bacco, and talked on matters not pertaining to the case.

Deliberation began. Ere long the division in the ranks was noted. As each member voiced his oning. erious split was quite apparent. On our, two hours, three hours, passed hour, two hours, three hours, passed. The two groups remained adamant. At last, it was the wish of the twelve men that a ballot be taken. The vote was seven to five. The jury decided to return to court and make known their failure to agree. At 9:25 they returned. At 9:32 Hon. Mr. Justice Wright was told the jury could not agree. They told him, how-ever, they had considered the case as a single one, and had grouped the two risoners as one.

They were instructed they could return separate verdicts in each case, or that they could bring in a verdict in one case and disagree in verdict in one case and disagree in the other, if they saw fit.

The jury retired. Sid Murrell's case was considered. The jurors decided that before tackling Williams' case at all they must reach a decision in Murrell's case. The battle raged on. There was little noise of conflict, and no bitterness.

Eight For Conviction. One juryman who would not convict both prisoners was in favor of convicting Murrell. A halt in the debate was not called until 1:30 o'clock in the morning, when lunch was brought into the petit jury room. Then another ballot was taken. Eight the four for conviction was the reto four for conviction was the re-

The jury decided to return to the courtroom. Eighteen minutes after the crier announced the opening, the jurymen filed in, carrying their coats. They announced their deadlock. They assured the trial judge they could not break it. Within a few moments they were discharged. They hastened away from the court house to get refreshments. City men hurried to their homes and county residents to their hotel rooms. All were exhausted.

And what valuation is placed upon the same road by the hydro experts?

These are leading municipal questions at this moment, and The Advertiser was notified from a competent source at noon today that the company is or has been asking about $55,000 per mile. This would bring the aggregate cost for their 36 miles to approximately $1,980,000.

According to this calculation, the road would be worth $990,000 or about It is just possible, however, that the city would be willing to offer the company a little more than the $1.000,000 estimate. As a matter of fact, railway experts (not interested in the Bunnell maximum of $900,000 to a point well over the million-dollar mark, say, for instance, $1.200,000.

Sir Adam Beck and his engineering advisers to look as though quite a substantial portion of the burden is going to rest upon Ald. Judd. He is the choice of one wing of the party, but from all accounts the members of this particular group have just "talked it over" amongst themselves. Ald. Judd has not been asked for his own personal views.

It may be that Ald. Judd is just waiting to be asked. Or then, again, there may be other reasons, more or less important. The possibility exists that Ald. Judd doubts the outcome, although he states quite definitely that in any event he is "not seeking the nomination."

Then, again, there may be those at Tory headquarters to conclude that the company has made changes in its roadbed and equipment which as board of arbitration would value at $250,000, perhaps, irrespective of the fact that the material would be of no use to the city, after the purchase. Just what deterioration figure would be placed upon the road since the time the Bunnell report was submitted to the city council is another question yet to be publicly answered. ted to the city council is another question yet to be publicly answered Reporting Next Week.

As to be expected, neither Sir Adam Beck or the street railway authorities are willing today to ten-der any information for the general perusal of the ratepayers. The only fact that seems well established, however, is that Sir Adam is not submitting any definite report to the city council until next week. Mayor Wenige still insists that the street railway's price only must come to the council, when it will be decided whether the fiure is sufficiently reasonable to send to the people for approval in December.

"The chil-dren must play, and the grounds provided and equipped by the city are one of the finest assets it has, and more contented youngsters." With reference to the parks, for which an additional $4,600 has been asked, the opinion is that London would do well to have these kept in first-class condition, no matter what the cost, as the time will come when property will be too expensive to acquire, owing to the future growth of the city. New York Brokers Say Confusion Has Reigned in Week's Trading.

New York, Oct. 20 .- Speculative New York, Oct. 20.—Speculative uncertainty over the business outlook was reflected in the irregular and confusing movements of stock prices this week. Speculators for the decline succeeded in uncovering a number of weak spots, particularly among the rubbers, leathers and specialties, but they failed to break the usual leaders below their previous low and leaders the brother. Miss Gunne had been in ill-health for about one year. The function the provious leaders the leaders the brother will be of a private nature, from the residence of Mr. Gunne to her former home at Florence, Ont. Interment will be made in St. Matter the provious leaders the previous leaders the provious leaders confusing movements of stock prices this week. Speculators for the decline succeeded in uncovering a number of weak spots, particularly among the rubbers, leathers and specialties but they failed to break the usual leaders below their previous low and resisting points.

Most of the rubber stocks fell to new low records for the year as a result of additional tire cuts and the passing of the dividend on Lee Rubber and Tire. Leathers lost ground because of unfavorable trade conditions. Steel shares held relatively steady, reports of lessened production being offset by the larger inquiries from railroad equipment manufacturers and the relatively high earnings for the third quarter of the year.

Shipping shares strengthened on the belief that the proposed reduction in export rates on grain would result in increased business and reports that there was a larger inquiry for freight space. The statement of President Coof-idge that he favored lower freight rates on grain for export brought about rather heavy liquidation of the northwestern carriers, several of which touched new 1913 lows. Northern Pacific was especially weak, selling as low as 50.

Considerable interest was aroused during the week by the public offering of an additional issue of preferred stock of the "Nickle Plate" Railroad, the first of its kind in many months, although the Illinois Central and some of the smaller roads recently have sold additional stock to their own stockholders. All large railroad financing for the last two years has been in the form of bond issues or equipment trust certificates.

Rice was first searched and his money taken, and then one of the runmen searched his companion, finally discovering the roll of $2,375 In her stocking.

Mrs. Grupstein was griving east along the Kingston highway in her coupe, with Rice sitting beside her. She slowed up the car, she says, to let Rice out to examine the front tire, which he felt had become "flat." Just as she slowed down two men sprang out of the darkness, opened the door and seized Rice, hauling him out on the roadway. One man car-ried a revolver in each hand and had a red mask across his eyes. The other was not masked. Nearby a car stood, with a man in the rear seat. "Shoot, shoot!" yelled a voice, and the gunman forced Rice around to the rear and sat him down on the bumper. "Come on with the money!" he commanded. Rice handed over a $10 bill.

The gunman searched Rice, find-ing the $750 in his watch pocket in top of his trousers. After roboing Rice, the gunman turned to Mrs. Grunstein and demanded she hand Great Advances Made in Airships.

WILL FLY TO INDIA EXACGERATE REPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLETON.
Canadian Press Cable.

London, Eng.. Oct. 19.—"England to Canada by airship in less than 30 hours." This idea was held out, although somewhat nebulously, perhaps at this afternoon's sitting of the economic conference.

Sir Samuel Hoare, British minister of air services, had been outlining to the conference the proposed Burney airship service between London and Cairo and on to India. By the proposed Service, Sir Samuel explained, it would be possible to fly to India in 100 flying hours or five days, as opposed to the present time of 14 days.

Then Col. Amount first translated Press Despatch.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—Diplomatic relations between the Berlin, Munich and Dresden governments, which local official quarters represented to-day as having assumed "a more tranquil aspect during the past 24 hours," late tonight were given an unexpected jolt by Dr. Von Kahr, the Bavarian dictator.

Dr. Von Kahr informed the Central government that Bavaria hereafter official relations with Dr. Otto Gessoler, the federal minister of defease.

agreement that it was desirable to create some machinery whereby the experiences of Great Britain and the dominions in air transportation could be pooled and made available to all parts of the empire. Passengers Increase,

In his statement, Sir Samuel mentioned that the British government was running an aeroplane mall service between Bagdad and Cairo, and that in the year ending this fall 13,500 passengers used the aeroplane service between England and the con-tinent—three times the number who crossed in 1920. #### Time to Quit It.

Correspondence between the attorney-general of Ontario and - the authorities of the federal governthere was something done in the way of definite co-operation between these two bodies in regard to race tracks and the issuing of charters for the same.

The case of the London Jockey Club serves to show what is meant. This much unknown club took out a charter in 1912, but nething was done. In September of 1923 it is allowed, on application to the department of state, to have its charter changed so that it can have race Weston and Hamilton a few days ago tracks in operation practically anywhere in the Dominion of Canada. although its original charter gave it the right to operate only at London, Winnipeg and Montreal.

On the one hand the people have the Dominion government, by an amendment to a charter, giving a jockey club the right to go ahead and operate as many tracks as it chooses, and on the other hand there is the attorney-general department in Ontario seeking to cut down the number of race tracks in operation because it is considered there is too much money wasted in gambling at those tracks already in existence.

The people themselves are being over-served with officialdom that plays into the hands of those who want to do what they want to do, and it is high time that the department of state at Ottawa quit giving the British Columbia capital. rights to any jockey club or other organization that was intent on and lumber finishing plant was doing things that Ontario, or any started, and 1,500 people left Vicother province, is trying to regulate and curb.

Bibles Read and Unread.

Whenever the moral temperature of the world is being taken, or an attempt made to judge whether we are going ahead or sliding back, it is an assured fact that some person will bring forth the figures of the this policy is continued our heritage British and Foreign Bible Society, will soon be a field of stumps. and quote that over a million more! should people buy more Bibles.

There can be no question that the spreading of the Word or God in this way is a desirable thing, but the mere sale of a Bible in many cases means nothing at all, because it is never read or, if at all, only when some person gets very sick in the house, or the pastor of the church comes to spend a half-hour.

It is not an onen book in the house. It would be interesting to have that question asked right in the churches: How many homes here represented read the Bible every day? There would not be a large response, for the very good reason that there are not many homes left where that fine old custom still sur- what would happen if a Yankee horse

That is why there is a demand for some form of religious instruction in the schools; that is largely why there is a call for ministers who "can appeal to our young people." Parents themselves realize that their own children have slipped out past them, and that to them the Bible is largely a closed book.

The printing presses are grinding out thousands of new Bibles, with which no one will find fault. The next step is to keep the dust from settling thick on those already in circulation.

All One-Sided.

The Sioux Indians made Lloyd George a member of their tribe during his Canadian visit, and some of the jokers in the press have had their little fling over the incident.

The red men have a habit of doing this when any distinguished visitor comes into their midst. It is a token of respect and friendship. They know of no other means of showing their pleasure and good wishes.

Some of the names they bestow may seem funny, to the point of being ridiculous. But it is all done

SPEEDING KILLS! Drive Right! -- Walk Right!

THE speed maniac is a menace to society. Almost equally guilty is the jay-walker. Too many unnecessary deathstoo many unwarranted accidents-are recorded against the year to date.

Not only in this community, but in almost every section of the country, the death-dealing motor car and the absent-minded pedestrian have brought sorrow and grief to hundreds of homes.

While we recognize this is an age of speed—nevertheless the wild, reckless, law-defying motorist must be curbed. There's a code that limits the mileage—a reasonable speed that places every car under control—and gives both rider and walker equal privileges on the highways and byways.

While the number of cars on the roads of travel has increased by leaps and bounds during the last few years, the total of killed and injured has far exceeded the normal advance. Recklessness is largely the cause.

In this plea, we the undersigned, ask the motorists to obey the speed laws and to keep their cars under absolute control at all times. We also urgently ask that all pedestrians look right and left before crossing the highways, and to avoid all unnecessary risks.

If this advice is heeded, we are certain that the number of deaths and injuries will be lowered considerably. We ask this for the sake of humanity.

DARDANELLES BURDEN

Kitchener Finds His Hands Tied by Earlier Delays and Indecisions-Conference On Board Queen Elizabeth Changes Whole Plan-"No" Is Motto, Months of Inaction Follow.

By RT. HON, WINSTON CHURCHILL, C.H., FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, 1911-1915.

What had happened at the Dardanelles The army had arrived from the earliest moment permitted to them the admiralty had carried all the troops to the point of concentration with punctuality. Sir Ian Hamilton had reached the Dardaniles on the eve of the naval attack narrows, and had witnessed from the bridge of the Phaeton its closing scenes. The impression of the sinking of the battleships, the spectacle of the crippled Inflexible, listed and slowly steaming out of the straits, the destroyers crowded with rescued crews, was strong in his mind. These appearances aroused in a nature chivalrous to a fault, an in-in this mood that he addressed himself to the problem with which he was immediately confronted. That problem was indeed grave and perplexing in an extreme degree. If the navy asked for help, Sir Ian Hamilton was resolved to give it to the utmost of his power. But obviusly then there was not a moment to lose. Every day, every hour, the Turkish defences and preparations would improve and their forces accuulate. A fortnight before, the dis- any administrative staff. .

been watching events on the sno since the beginning of March, was eager to land then and there, and onfident that the opposition would e overcome by a prompt attack.

Moreover, although nearly 60,000 men were now available within striking distance of the Gallipoli penin-sula, the supplies were scattered throughout the Mediterranean, the hospitals were not prepared, staff had never come together.

A Choice of Evils. Sir Ian Hamilton has recorded plight in pungent sentences:

"Here I am still minus my adju tant-general, my quartermaster general and my medical chief, charged with settling the basic ques-tion of whether the army should push off from Lemnos or from Alexense desire to come to the gid and cue of the sister service. In the choice of evils which now alone was open to Sir Ian Hamilton, his staff pronounced that whatever were the risks & delay, they were less than those of a precipitate and unorganized assault. The general therefore determined to transfer his therefore determined to transfer his base and his army from Lemnos to hase and his army from Lemnos to Alexandria, leaving only sufficient troops at the Dardanelles for minor enterprises, and to organize from Egypt any large military operation which the navy might require.

"They have done so.

"So there was no discussion. At once we turned our faces to the land scheme."

Far-Reaching Decisions. Far-Reaching Decisions.

It was a far-reaching decision. It put aside altogether the policy of the government and of the admiralty, with which, up to this, the admiral had declared himself in full accord. The plans which had emanated from the fleet, on which both admiral and admiralty had been agreed, were cast to the winds. It withdrew the fleet from the struggle, and laid the responsibilities of the navy upon the army. It committed the army in the

It was a decision entirely contrary to the whole spirit, and indeed to the explicit terms, of the enemy's side an important step was taken. General Liman von Sanders had hitherto been the head of the German military mission to Turkey, but had not exercised any executive command. The distress and the apprehension of the Turks, and the apprehension of the orders with which, on accepting the command, the admiral had stated he was in full agreement. It is true that the admiralty telegram, number 109 of March 15 had said:

Thus at this conference two grave decisions became operative: First, that the naval attack should be abandoned in favor of a general assault by the army; and secondly, that the army should go back to Alexandria to organize and prepare for this attack, although this process would involve at least three weeks' delay. On the contrary, by revealing how long an interval must intervene before a general military attack, it might well have been expected to strengthen his resolve. His answer to Sir Ian Hamilton on the evening of the 20th shows that this was apparently the case.

Vice-Admiral de Robeck to Sir Ian Hamilton.

"As a military measure I concur with your proposal to make Egypt the headquarters, but submit political result of withdrawal of troops from Mudros at the moment requires artillery ammunition is fired to shell-minimum to desist from theirs.

One must, however, make great allowances for the admiral and for the naval point of view which he represented. To statesmen or soldiers, ships in time of war possess mo sentimental value. They are engines of war, to be used, risked, and if necessary expended in the common cause and for the general policy of the state. To such minds the life of a soldier was every whit as precious as that of a sailor, and an old battleship marked for the scrapheap was an instrument of war to be expended in a good cause as readily as artillery ammunition is fired to shellcal result of withdrawal of troops artillery ammunition is fired to shelt the gravest consideration. If governing the gravest action as that of March 18 could have been fought with a loss of only thirty or forty British lives and two or three worthless ships, and that so many valuable conclusions had been attained at such a siender cost, Admiral de Robeck was saddened and consternated to the foundations of his being. These emotions were also present around the admiralty table present around the admiralty table in Whitehall.

It was now again open to the prime minister, to Lord Kitch-ener, to the cabinet, if they wished, to withdraw from the whole enter-prise and to cover the failure by the seizure of Alexandretta. We had lost fewer men killed and wounded than were often incurred in a trench raid on the western front, and no vessel of the slightest value had been sunk. I could not have complained of such a decision however. vessel of the slightest value had been sunk. I could not have complained of such a decision, however strongly I might have argued against it. But there was no necessity to argue. Lord Kitchener was always splendid when things went wrong. Confident, commanding, magnanimous, he made no reproaches. In a few brief sentences he assumed the burden and declared he would carry the operations through by military force. So here again there was no discussion: the agreement of the admiral and the general on the spot, and the declaration of Lord Kitchener, carried all before them. No formal decision to make a land attack was even noted in the records of the cabinet or the war council. When we remember the prolonged discussions and study which had preceded the resolve to make the naval attack, with its limited risk and the sur had passed I could never the naval attack. His hour had passed I could never the naval attack. ceded the resolve to make the naval attack, with its limited risk and cost, the silent plunge into this vast military adventure must be regarded as an extraordinary episode. Three months before how safe, how sound, how sure would this decision have been. But now!

Cessation of Naval Offensive. Admiral de Robeck did not in the event pursue even the limited operations of which he had spoken in his telegram of March 25. His energies and those of his staff soon became absorbed in the preparation of the comprehensive and complicated plans necessary for the landing of the army. The Queen Elizabeth never

Still vainer was it for Admiral Wemyss, when he succeeded de Robeck, to submit the Keyes plans and his own resolute convictions to and his own resolute conviction

Kitchener Assumes Burden.

When Lord Kitchener undertook to storm the Gallipoli peninsula with the army he was under the impression that a week would suffice to prepare and begin the operation and that meanwhile Admiral de Robeck would continue a steady naval pressure upon the Turks which might reveal at any moment the weakness of their marine defences.

He was astonished at the date of the military attack having to be put off so late as April 14, and he sent there and then from the cabinet room the following telegram to Sir Ian Hamilton:

"March 23.

"I am informed you consider April 14 as about date for commencing" ing for their their terms to successor for permission to attack. "No" had won with general assent and measureless ruin. Never again did the British fleet renew the attack upon the narrows which in pursuance of their orders they had begun on March 18, and which they then confidently expected to continue after a brief interval. Instead, they waited for nine months, the spectators of the sufferings, the immense losses and imperishable glories of the army, always hoping that their hour of intervention would come, always hoping that their hour of intervention would come, always hop-

Harry Steppe, popular star of vaudeville, musical comedy and burlesque, is responsible for this statement. Steppe is the featured member of Cain and Davenport's "Dancing Around," which comes to the Grand on Monday for three days.

Those theories about newspapers and audiences are the result of a long and successful career before the American public, and have more than a passing interest.

Degas, who came as near as anybody to capturing the thrill and beauty of the ballet, would have liked to try and get on canvas the rhythmic synchronized perfection of these dancers from England, and it would have been worth his time.

Their dancing comes as near perfection as anything is likely to in an imperfect world.

Besides the "Sunbeam Girls" the production boasts not only a bevy of show girls, but a double quartet of young men whose singing and stepping make them interesting factors in the performance.

The original New York ploduction is carried intact, the company appearing here being the only company presenting "Good Morning Dearie."

Throughout the wears of humor and its ever-present companion, pathos. Will Rogers did the most to bring the encless stream of humor and its ever-present companion, pathos. Will Rogers did the most to bring the stage, and his accomplishment in this regard is nothing short of marvellous. An audience delights in stuff that is up to the minute; it feels that its intelligence has been complimented when a comedian refers to something with which it is familiar.

LIONEL ATWELL COMING TO GRAND IN A NEW PLAY

The Heart of Cellini" Is New Starring Vehicle For English Actor.

HAS GREAT PART

B. C. Whitney will present "The Heart of Cellini" at the Grand Opera House for three days, beginning Thursday, October 25th, with Lionel Atwill, the eminent English actor in the stellar role of Benvenuto Cellini, the stellar role of Benvenuto Cellini, the famous Italian sculptor who lived in the sixteenth century. It is said to be a romantic comedy and is the work of Anthony Wharton, designed after the fashion of the Florentine arts of the late Italian Renaissance with the colorful Cellini in the foreground. The engagement has the appearance of being a promising one.

Arouses Interest.

Aside from what the play and production may hold in store for the public, the appearance of Mr. Atwill in a new vehicle should arouse marked interest, for he has been a prominent factor in the theater since Mr. Belasco raised him to stellar rank nent factor in the theater since Mr. Belasco raised him to stellar rank some four years ago. Almost continuously since that time, he played before New York audiences in such dramas as "Deburau," "The Grand Duke," and "The Comedian." Just how much any of the characterizations of any of these may be embodied in his forthcoming portraiture of the Italian sculptor must be a mere matter of conjecture; certain it is he was given first honors for his creation of these. In the prospect, however, Cellini seems to offer him greater opportunities than any of these. The historical Florentine sculptor-goldsmith is typical of a these. The historical Fibrelline sculptor-goldsmith is typical of a period, whereas the others, always picturesque, were characters with fewer dramatic possibilities, it would seem, because they represented no particular epoch.

Studied Memoirs.

Realizing the magnitude of the character, it is Mr. Atwill's desire to present him as true to life as possi-ble. It is believed he has a pretty authentic characterization in the authentic characterization in the book which Mr. Wharton has supplied admitting some digression for the purpose of dramatic construction. Should the character at any time seem over colored, it will be due to the imagination of Cellini as much as anything, for the author of the play went to the Memoirs of Cellini himself to get impressions of that gentleman first hand. So it is likely Mr. Atwill will suggest a madcap

BACON NOW AN AMERICAN STAPLE.

Bacon, which once went begging at ten cents a pound, is now an almost indispensable part of the American breakfast. At five times the former price the supply hardly equals the demand. This change is due to the improved quality of the bacon, the thin slicing by machine, and the fact that the public has learned that this meat is one of the most nourishing and appetizing foods.

The news of her phenomenal debut spread like wildfire throughout the country. New York burning with curlosity, was on tiptoe of expectation, but it was not until January 28, 1918, that New York had its first chance to hear her. It was in "Dinoral" at the Lexington Opera Huse, where she was accorded an ovation, such as had never before been witnessed. Memories of thousands surge back to that memorable night, for all who were able to obtain admission capitulated to the voice and charms of "their" new star. Since that day, now six seasons ago, stars have giashed across the firmament and gone out in darkness, but the refulsence of Galli-Curci's art remains undimmed, having grown mellower and deeper and richer with time until she has become the very idol of the music world.

Galli-Curci will appear November 6, in St. Thomas under Cortese management.

Famous Prima Donna and Her Excellent Company Will Be Heard Tuesday Evening.

One's memory does not have to go back very far to recall how Madame Melba arrived in New York to be the principal artist of, the newlyformed Manhattan Opera Company, which Oscar Hammerstein had just organized. It is recalled that until Melba arrived, the season had been disastrous and it looked as if this daring impressario would be compelled to give up his venture almost before it had begun. However, she enjoyed a success the like of which is unknown in the musical history of New York.

Next week on Thursday evening at the Patricia Theatre Londoners will have an opportunity of hearing this world-famous prima donna. Her London appearance is one of a few which she is making while in Canada. Scores have been turned away from the theatres at each of her previous appearances, and a huge advance sale makes it advisable for Londoners, international three-year-old supremacy and stakes of $100,000 at Behmont Park tomorrow in a race that promises to take rank among the greatest classics of all time.

Zev will go to the post, despite the eleventh-hour development of a skin malady, which it seemed today would force the withdrawal of the colt and the substitution of Rear-Admiral Gary T. Grayson's My Own, which was shipped to Belmont Park, prepared to race if called upon. But the race committee of the jockey club, after examining Zev and receiving the report of a veterinary, said the Rancocas star was fit, and announced the original entry would oppose the English champion. Though the jockey club committee's decision, made public by Major August Belmont, had the effect of restoring to some extent the waning confidence in Zev, general belief prevailed that, regardless of the seriousness of his malady, Zev would go to the barrier under a handicap.

As a result, betting odds, which had declined to even money yesterday after a spectacular final workout by Papyrus, swung 'sharply tonight toward the English horse, which was expected to go to the barrier tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock a favorite, probably at odds of 6 to 5.

The exact condition of Zev remained somewhat of a mystery tonight.

of 6 to 5.

The exact condition of Zev remained somewhat of a mystery tonight.

There have been reports for some time that the Kentucky Derby winner was not in the best of condition, but the first intimation that anything was seriously amiss came, according to Major Belmont's statement, when Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire owner of the horse, advised the jockey club's committee that Zev had developed a skin malady which threatened the fitness of the cott.

Prospects of inclement weather and a resultant heavy track tonight gave another topic for speculation, though it did not dampen the ardor of turf enthusiasts.

Chemically, the apple is composed of vegetable fibre, albumen, sugar, gum, chlorophyll, malic acid, gallic acid, lime, and much water. The acids of the apple are of signal use to men of sedentary habits whose livers are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters which if retained would make the brain heavy and dull, or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles. Some such an experience must have led to our custom of taking apple sauce with roast pork, roast goose and like dishes. It is a fact that such fresh fruits as the apple, the pear and the plum, when taken ripe and without sugar, diminish acidity of the stomach rather than provoke it. THE APPLE HAS MANY VIRTUES.

THIS AFTERNOON

Crew Confident Will Wipe Wednesday's Defeat Off the Boards.

SAINTS EXPECT WIN

L. C. I. invades St. Thomas today in the Interscholastic O. R. F. U. fixture, confident of reversing the tables on the Flower City warriors. Wednesday the Saints turned back the locals right here on their own soil the locals right here on their own soil by an 11 to 1 count, and although the score looks somewhat more one-sided than the play seemed, nevertheless nothing other than an L. C. I. win today can wipe out the stain of the deceat administered Wednesday.

The local squad seemed somewhat crippled after Wednesday's game, and efforts were under way to have the game today shifted on a week or so. Nothing came of the proposal, however, and the L. C. I. gladiators are none the less confident.

nd the L. C. I. glaulators are hole the ess confident.

The probable line-up will be:
Flying wing, Wanless; halves, Hunter, Foote, Back; insides, Craig, White; middles, Chapman, McCausland; outsides, Johnston, Jones; snap, Rourke; quarter, Fitzmaurice; subs., Aikenhead, Bice, Gammage, MacGregor, Sharpe.

Ted Hart, the regular middle wing, is unable to make the trip.

tests. The seniors are counting on victory with London, and if they are successful they will arrange to play Sarnio one week from Saturday. The Forest City students are not going to let opportunity slip from their grasp if they can help it, although according to reports, their squad is somewhat crippled. The juniors should have little trouble with the Tillsonburg team, as they beat them on their own grounds Wednesday by the score 18 to 5.

District Units Favor Garrison A.A.A.'s Proposal To Form Military League

GARRISON CLUB MAKES HEADWAY

Work Is Being Pushed In Forming District Athletic Association.

NOTHING DEFINITE

Considerable headway was made to-ard the formation of a District Garnt, when at the third annual genera ing of the Garrison A. A. A. the meeting of the Garrison A. A. A. the matter was threshed out, and communications, favorable, all of them, read from the Eigin Regiment, St. Thomas; the Highland Light Infantry, Galt; the Oxford Rifles, Woodstock, and the Essex Fusiliers of Windsor.

Nothing in a definite way was done toward the actual organization of the proposed association. But the recommendation will be forwarded to the District Military Headquarters that the matter of organization be attended to in an official way.

With the complection of the organization, if military headquarters takes hold of it, the new association, taking in the old Garrison A. A. A., would comprise possibly the most complete military athletic association in Sanada.

All past officers retired voluntarily hast night.

The new officers of the Garrison A. A. A. re-elected were: Honorary president, Brig.-Gen. W. B. M. King, D.S.O., G.O.C., M. D. No. 1; President, Lieut.-Col. C. H. Hill, D.S.O., O.C., R.C.R.; first vice-president, Capt. William Feneron, M.C., R.C.R.; second vice-president, R.S.M. Edward Walker, W.O.R.; secretary, Segt. J. A. Glennie, C.M.S.C.; assistant scoretary, Segt. C. B. Handley, C.M.S.C.; treasurer, Major A. R. Mortimer, headquarters staff.

Q.M.S. H. B. Rutherford, the retiring scoretary, was appointed representative to the Ontarlo branch of the A. A. U. of C., which meets in Toronto on Oct. 21. The president, Lieut.-Col. Hill, was named representative to the L. A. A. A.

In other years unjust hints were thrown about the alleged tendencies of Huggins's team to fold up when headed. This year the Yankees fought from start to finish. They battled determinedly, always on the lookout for some littie physical, mental or psychological break through which to dive for runs. That big eighth inning of Monday showed the new spirit of the club. It wasn't altogether the colalpse of the McGraw defence in the box that did the trick. It was the charging and the surging of the Yankees as they perceived a small chance and proceeded to make it the biggest chance of any series, Nehf yesterday still was too broken up to go into any extended explanation of what had happened inthat eighth inning. He said that he had been felled as if by a bolt out of the blue. His collapse was mental and psychological rather than merely mechanical. The strain of pitching that 1 to 0 victory and then going seven innings on Monday with only two hits registered off him and only three balls hit into the outfield kept wearing him down. It wasn't just to ask him to shoulder all the heavy work in the box, and in the eighth the burden broke him up.

"I felt great when the eighth inning started," said Art, "but began to feel a strange sensation in my arm when Schang got that hit. I lost my stuff. Well, that was just a miscue: I'll get over it against Scott, I said to myself. But I could not get my stuff against Scott, and he hit too. Then I found myself unable to locate the plate for Hofmann, whom I did not regard as a dangerous hitter at all.

"My arm was gone; I had nothing. I tried with mignt and main, with all my heart and soul, and everything else I could throw in there; and yet I could not whip over the ball for Bush' to hit at, I was heartbroken. And I still feel that way."

TO REORGANIZE INGERSOLL

FIVE-PIN BOWLING LEAGUE

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, Oct. 19.—Efforts are being put forth to reorganize the Five-Pin Bowling League. During the past two seasons the league has been conducted in a manner that has created much interest. Interest in the game has been greatly stimulated. It is hoped the league this year will consist of either six or eight teams. The league games are usually continued until about the end of February.

Joe Changes His Style.

Dugan was stopped—and then he began to think. He met the emergency with a complete change in hitting style. He adopted a quick choke—ran one hand up the bat half way and poked the close ones into right field. It looked as if he were "crossing" him to right field in the series, and he will not make six hits in that sector in 100 games during the regular season. Joe met McGraw's strategy with strangay of his own—and won. That's what I call shining. In the field, Dugan gave one of the greatest exhibitions over put up by any third-beseman.

Babe Ruth, with tares acre records # which gave him, a new record for a world series, was another hero. Ruth did not quite "bust up" the series, as most of his admirers thought he would. McGraw pitchers threw the ball to the Babe, and often made him look bad, particularly on Monday, when Nehf and Ryan fanned the over-anxious Whale, However, Ruth hit for 368, and put up a corking game in right field. Long George Kelly, who played perhaps the best first-base ever shown in a world series, was a defensive hero, but George's hitting was far from robust, as he wound up with only 182. Giant Hitters Stepped. The extent to which the Yankee pit-

FRISCH SERIES HERO

Glant Hitters Stepped.

The extent to which the Yankee pitchers stepped the great Glant hitters may be appreciated from the fact that the McGrawmen came out of the series with a hitting average of .234. The winners, on the other hand, hit for .293. The biggest disappointment was Dave Bancroft. While he fielded the best world series of his career and did not get a single error, he hit only two safeties in the six games. It looked as if Davey was trying too hard for the stands.

Down the Line In All Sports

One thing about the series being ended for another year is that rest is as good for Braun as it is for Brain, and there'll be a rest from that par-

A rugby championship for London this year would put rugby back solid in this community. A rugby title and a new hockey arena all in the space of one year would entitle 1923 to be printed in bold letters as far as London's calendar in sport is concerned.

There's no argument in the fact that a wooden bat is better than a wooden head in any Innings of a ball game. London will have a basketball association in its second year this season

The organization introduced the game in many small centers last year where before it had only been heard of. The gentlemen who bet on horse races are not sentimental. When it was announced that Papyrus was sailing from England the odds were three and four to one against the English horse. Yesterday, for some reason or other, the odds shortened almost to six to five. If this epidemic of unce tainty concerning the chances of the American horse continues Papyrus might be favorite at post time. This ought to leave the American turf open to charges of lack of patriotism.

This sort of thing could not happen in cauliflower circles. In the bout between John L. Sullivan and Charlie Mitchell, the Englishman, anybody who was traitorous enough to think that Mitchell had a chance kept the treasonable secret to himself and did not try to back it with money. It would have been an invitation to a lynching, with the traitorous person the lynchee at the party.

Everybody smiles on a winner. Since the team of Miller Huggins won the world series a dinner in honor of the little manager is to be given in Cincinnati. If his team had lost he might have had a dinner given him in New York-but he would have been afraid to eat it.

"IF WINTER COMES

HIS will be our third winter in Canada," remarked a London resident who came here from the milder climate of old England. "The first was a bad season, bad in every way, the next one was much better, and this one is going to be better still."

"How do you know?" was the query.

"Don't make the mistake of thinking that I am talking about the weather or working conditions. Not a bit of it. I refer to something the people of Canada have not studied enough, and that is living conditions. I mean just what I say. You are a bright lot of hard working hustlers, you have a lot of energy and all that; but I must say that you have not studied the art of making the best of your living conditions.

In order that you will understand exactly what I mean," continued the new Canadian, "I will tell you our own case, and you will see what I mean. When we came to Canada there were four of us, my wife and I, and the boy and girl. It was late autumn when we arrived and we had trouble in getting the house we wanted. In fact, we almost gave it up several times. I was in a position to buy if I saw the place we wanted. To make a long yarn shorter, we did get settled, but we had a miserable winter of it. The house in the first place was not well lighted. There are times when I want lots of light, and again there is nothing so restful as a quiet, soft light and a grate fire. Well, we had none of these things. Then, too, our clothing was not exactly what was needed for a winter, and we had to buy this more on faith than knowledge. The children were not familiar with the winter sports. They could not use skates or skis. Neither my wife nor I could enter into any of the outdoor sports, so we passed a rather dreary winter the first year we were here, but by the time it was over we were determined as to the future. It was, in the words you use here, 'never again.'

"The next winter, that is last winter, was different, and I will tell you why. We planned right at the start that we were going to be prepared, and that our home was going to be all that we could make it in the way of solid comfort.

"The children had picked up some friends of their own during the summer, and we had formed quite a number of cordial friendships ourselves. We had a big room at the front of our house, that had an old grate in it that was never used much. We had a couple of men work on it, and they enlarged it so that it was very much like the old grates to which we were used. It was an easy matter to get some short logs. and there you were as a starter for a pleasant evening. We had the lighting changed, but it was not an expensive undertaking. Then in that room we got a good, soft chesterfield. It was the most expensive thing we had done since we came over. Now, let me tell you that when our friends came in to have a game of cards or a chat with us on a winter night, and found a cheery log fire, a big, comfortable chesterfield, in a room that had just the right amount of light, they thought it was a pretty fine place, and they were glad to come. The children found that their little friends thought the same thing. When they would come in after skating in the evening, or from the hill near the house, we would have as many as ten or a dozen of them around that fire getting warmed and ready for the trip home.

"So you see we have come to the conclusion that winter is like any other season. It is there, and you can either make it a season of healthful pleasure, or you can shut yourself up in one room and growl about the cold until spring comes around again. I believe we have a better time out of your Canadian winter than most of your own people do. We have found merchants all over ready to tell us the things we ought to know. Just about two weeks ago the boy and I went down to a men's clothing store. I told the clerk who waited on me just about what we needed, and he set himself out to tell us exactly what we needed and what we did not need; and the result is that, as some of the young lads say, we are all set, and ready for the winter whenever it comes. Whether it's long or short, or cold or mild, it is going to be a good one for us. It is the best time of the year to make good use of your home.

"We have never decided yet what made the greatest difference in our home. The paper that used to be on the wall of the living-room meant nothing at all. It had no life, no warmth, no suggestion of comfort. I remember we had an old friend in Scotland who came over the border once in a while. He had a word that would describe it, and that was 'fooshionless,' by which he meant tasteless, or insipid. What a difference when that big room was done over in a paper that had plenty of autumn fints. It just seemed to add the touch that was needed."

THE FARMER'S WIFE:

comes is a big event in the lives of good pumpkin ples, but they can't corn-binder is used and the corn cut the children. They sit on the fence touch yours."

This is the first of a series of weekly articles written for The Adversaction titles, difficulties and point of view of a farmer's wife in the satisfies.

This article deals with "Autumn Activities."

The time has come," the farmer's said, "To talk of many things, of three-shings, plowing and corncutting.

The tasks that Autumn brings.

The time has come," the farmer's work of the chief said, "To talk of many things, of the time has come," the farmer's work for very often their bills have and hand clipping chickens' wings."

This is the time of year for which "Autumn brings."

The time has come," the farmer's work of the chief said, "To talk of many things, of the chief said, and clipping chickens' wings."

The time has been working all is important. The day the machine is only the day the deem of the children. They said the youngest, and the principal to one is take for one is take helpers; but one observed it and the tent of so right out of out in the life of so right out of business, for farming is just one between the principal part is all but the youngest. At the farmer would have to so right out of the wh fattened for market just as soon as the corn is ripe.

But work or no work, the fairs must not be neglected. That would be letting duty interfere with pleasure altogether too much. It is part of an education to attend one of the big fairs every year, if possible—either the Western or the Canadian National. And our own small fairs are not to be despised; and of course, they are especially interesting when we are exhibiting something ourselves. There are so many things to show, too, from the big team of Clydes to a few jars of ing when we are exhibiting something ourselves. There are so many things to show, too, from the big team of Clydes to a few jars of canned fruit or a blossoming begonia. Then the school fair is a matter of the contraction prime importance in a family of chil-dren, and what a task it is to keep them up to their tasks of preparing their own exhibits. But when the great day comes, they glow with conscious pride when they collect the ribbons won by their own efforts. Last year the eight-year-old under-took to make a birdhouse out of a piece of hollow apple limb; all went well until a nail got bent, whereupon his enthusiasm waned and he threw the birdhouse across the kitchen. Then his mother lost her temper and spanked him for losing his temper—but, eventually, he finished the lit-

-but, eventually, he finished the little house, and it took second prize at the fair in competition with those of much older boys.

And now for my seventh and last point—chickens' wings. Of course everyone knows that it is in the merry springtime that we clin their merry springtime that we clip their wings, when they develop so much interest in the garden seeds that they scratch them we are the service than the service that they were the service that they were the service that they were the service than the service that they were the service that they were the service than the service that they were the service that th scratch them up every half-hour to see why they aren't growing. Then the big feathers of one wing being clipped discourages their flying over the garden fence. In the fall, when we are separating the persistent personant was also as a separating the persistent personant was a separating the personant was a separat we are separating the persistent per-formers from the star boarders, sometimes there will be a hen whose char-acter is doubtful. In order to keep an eye on her to see whether she is earning her living or letting the rest of the flock earn it for her, we have to mark her so she may be easily distinguished from the others. The easiest way to do this is to clipher tail. But, as anyone can see. "tail" wouldn't rhyme with the rest of the verse at the head of the

Coburn, with License Inspector W. Coburn, with License Inspector W. H. Nugent of North Hastings and Fred Brandt, was hunting ducks in North Hastings, when Coborn unset his canoe 125 feet from the shore, and his friends, answering his call, found him hip deep in a muddy bog, Nugent and Brandt gathered poles and wired them end to end and pushed them out toward their comrade in a futile at-tempt at rescue. Coburn had sunk to his waist. Working frantically, the pair extended the improvised bridge. After 15 poles had been tied together with belts, suspenders and shoe laces, the snake-like contrivance was long enough but not rigid enough to be manageable from the

More odds and ends of clothing went to sterngthen the joints. After two hours and a half of desperate manoeuvering, the rescuers managed to shove their bridge within reach of Coburn, who, by this time was immersed to the shoulders. Then began the tedious haul to shore with the men at one end fearful every moment their frail structure would break. Finally a dripping, black figure set foot on terra firma.

"He just shook hands with us, with tears in his eyes. His strength was almost gone," said Inspector Nugent. More odds and ends of clothing

USED CAR BROKERAGE FIRM STARTS HERE

A used car brokerage has been opened at 80 York street by Fletcher Brown and Roy Ford, two prominen London boys.

In most large cities there is a de-mand for a business of this kind. The new firm will be known as Brown & Ford, and the main feature of their business will be the disposal of privately-owned cars, as well as con-ducting a market to supply used car buyers with a large range of secondbuyers with a large range of second-hand automobiles. Mr. Brown has already made a name for himself as one of Western Ontario's outstand-ing car valuators, while Mr. Ford has had several years' experience in automobile sales and general man-

Mr. Brown states that the policy of the new firm will be to handle nothing but late-model cars, and these must also be sound, mechanically, and of good appearance.

ondon, Eng., Oct. 19 .- The Adverer had a conversation with a lead member of the Canadian delewas being done and some interesting general questions were arising, but that he did not think the world was going to be made over again very radically as a result of the conference. Small doses of preference of a few selected articles would not change the broad tendencies of trade.

The Advertiser's informant agreed would enable her to compete, not compete, not only with foreigners, but with Dominion manufacturers in their own markets.

"No doubt," he said, "if there were such an exchange of preference it would affect empire trade very fundamentally.

"If Britain wants such proposals to be considered, it is for her to take the initiative, but I, don't think the ion to the imperial economic con-

He dealt with numerous carpin criticisms of Canada's commercia that there might conceivably be big developments if Britain taxed foreign wheat and gave the preference to the Canadian product. It was certain that Britain would only do this renewed conditions that had obtained before the war. Canadian Press Despatch. St. Catharines, Oct. 19.-That the could assume ambassadorial funcrepresentatives of foreign powers the declaration of Honorable N. W. Rowell before the St. Catharines Women's Canadian Club this afternoon. was also no reason why either affecting the empire as a whole.

granting or withholding of trade preference. It is a political question that the British people must settle for themselves. If the people of Great Britain care to grant Canada a trade preference we as Canadians would Britain care to grant Canada a trade preference, we, as Canadians, would appreciate, but as Canadians we should hope that in the discussion of this question there should be no trading on the loyalty of the dominions, and secondly, that the dominions should not interfere with the domestic policy of Great Britain."

Mr. Rowell made this statement in referring to the imperial conference now sitting in London.

Deals With Reparations. He dwelt at greatest length with the problems arising out of the reparations question.

Canada was vitally interested in reparations, Mr. Rowell said, She had a share in it. Germany owed nothing to any one nation, but it was a joint debt to all the allies. If Germany could pay the whole debt 300,000,000 dollars would be coming to Canada. But we are not going to get that. Its greater interest lay in its effect on the whole industral and agricultural activities in Canada. The price canada received on commodities, on grain, depended on what our customers could afford to pay. The unsettled condition of Europe, the incapacity of Canada's customers made the armers of the prairies much less

A still more important considera-tion was the investment Canada had made for the cause of peace in lives and in money. This was the first time that an empire conference had been called to consider the future peace of the world. For that reason there should be an agreement reached on an empire policy. That policy should be based on three principles

Three Principles.

It should be based on justice.
It should be based so as to provide for the economic rehabilitation of Europe on a sound basis that would but men back to work and restore industrial stability.

The basis of settlement should be such as would make possible as far as could be humanly done, the permanent peace of the world.

In the speaker's opinion the proposal of Great Britain as expressed by the minister of foreign affairs at on the speaker's opinion the proposal of Great Britain as expressed by the minister of foreign affairs at the opening of the conference contained all those principles, and he felt that there should be no difficulty in assuming it as an empire policy. Outlining the whole reparations question, Hon. Mr. Rowell declared he had never been able to see any ground under which the eccupation by France of the Ruhr could be justified under the Versailles treaty. Neither was there any justification.

No progress could be made until Germany's ability to pay was definitely fixed. Both Great Britain and United States had proposed that Germany's ability to pay thould be investigated and the amount fixed by an impartial commission. If that an impartial commission. If that could be done and France could be got to agree with it the problem would be on a fair way to solution

AGRICULTURE MINISTER TO OPEN POULTRY SHOW

John S. Martin, minister of agriculture for Ontario, and members of the city council, it is announced, will open the London Poultry Show. The show is scheduled to begin Nov. 7, and will continue until Nov. 12.

I am not disparging any of these, but they are dead things, and not living. Yet it required the catacylsm of the war to prove to the great statesmen of the world that they were dead, and that they had no power to keep men from flying at one another's throats. They had to fall back on the foundations of God, upon those principles upon which human society must ever rest.

"We owe an incalculable debt to the war for revealing to us that in the twentieth century human nature was as rich in idealism, in enthusiasm, in courage and endurance as in the best centuries of the past the best centuries of the past.

"And the response of the young men was equalled by that of the young women. The challenge of the church to her young people today is to get back to this enthusiasm, to get back to a greater faith in God and in human nature and to prevent ourselves from drifting back into the state of mind which prevailed in pre-war days. Can Happiness Be Found by Breaking Laws?-The Woman Who Has No Friends-The Wise Young Man Whose Head Rules His Heart.

Dear Miss Dix-I am in love with a married woman, hardly more than irl. We are each other's ideals, only we met too late, God help us. We oth feel that we can never love anyone else, yet we belong to religious families and it would shock our parents, and brothers, and sisters great ly if they knew we entertained such feelings for each other. What shall we do? Shall we give each other up, or shall we forget God's law and run away to some distant, isolated spot where just we two could be happy

Answer:

You cannot travel so far, I. H., though you go to the ends of the earth, as to get away from your conscience, nor is there any spot where a soul that is not at peace with itself can find rest and happiness. Many thousands of men and women, who have een unfortunate enough to be in-your case, and loved where they could not possess the beloved one, have cried: "All for love, and the world well lost," and have fled with each other to some spot they believed would be a Seventh Heaven if only they could be together. But in practically every such case the end of the dream is tragedy

The knowledge that they were looked upon askance and that other women dragged their skirts away from the woman; the separation from old friends, and family, and old ties; the guilty knowledge that they had not played the game, killed love. Each pulled the other down. Each blamed

No man who really loves a woman would urge her to enter into an irregular relationship with him. He knows too well the price she would have to pay for it. He knows that for a woman to find any happiness she must be able to be proud of her man and her children, not ashamed of them, and so he protects her against herself and against himself, and keeps her from making a step that she would repent in sackcloth and ashes.

In a case like yours there are only two courses to be pursued. One is for the wife to go frankly to her husband and tell him that she loves you, and ask him to divorce her so that she may marry you openly and honor-

The other is to bear bravely, and nobly, and patiently the sorrow that has come to you. Renunciation isn't easy, but it brings with it a great and uplifting peace. And just to have known a great love is to have been

And, perhaps, the unsatisfied love is the most beautiful of all, for it is never tarnished by disillusion. It always remains a perfect ideal with shining clouds of glory about it. DOROTHY DIX.

My Dear Dorothy Dix-Where am I at fault? I am sixty-two years old, and all of my life I have given my money and my time and energy to people, and now at this late date I find that I have not one friend in the whole world. Only the other day some women were discussing me, and one of them said of me, "She is a very nice person, but I would not want to live with her." I get so discouraged. What shall I do? OTHERS.

Why, I'd try not to be so supersensitive. It's all nonsense about your not having friends. No one can give a long lifetime to the service of others without being loved. It's the pay God set for such work. I've never known a friendly person yet who did not have friends.

Perhaps the reason why you say you have no friends is because you expect too much demonstration on the part of your friends. This is a busy world, you know, sister, and we are all so occupied with our own affairs that we haven't time to get out a brass band or beat on cymbals every time someone we like comes around the corner. Nor do we fall on their necks, and kiss them and tell them how much we love them, because that isn't our way. We save that for some crisis, and then we are there with all the affection, and help, and appreciation that anybody could use. Do you remember in Barrie's story how Libby tries to make her little brother tell her that he loves her? He squirms and says finally: "Love is an awful word to use when folks are not sick."

And as for someone saying that she wouldn't like to live with you, ooh! A fig for that! Be just. How many people whom you know and pooh! A fig for that! Be just. How many people whom you know and like would you care to live with? By the time we get sixty most of us have got funny little ways, and irritating little habits that make us pretty trying as daily companions. Before you condemn anyone for not wanting your perpetual society, give yourself the once-over, and see if you aren't one of the old ladies who dip their bread in their tea, or suck their soup, or who just have to boss things, or who have the giving-advice complex, or who can't eat unless things are cooked a certain way.

All of this doesn't keep people from loving you, but it does make them desire your company in broken doses, and no one has a right to take of-the first meeting to be held under the new executive. Tuesday evening. Miss Wade will be fine speaker of the evening, and the subject of her address will be "Mothers of Men." Solos will be given by two of the teachers, Miss Corbin and Mr. Harry Seacord. Violin selections by Miss Pauline Fitzgerald with Mrs. Smith accompanying, will also be a charming number of the program.

So cheer up, sister. Take the best your friends give you, and try not to ask too much of them. The trouble with most of us is that we demand usurious interest on the little kindness and generosity we bestow on others.

Dear Dorothy Dix-I am a young man seeking your advice. I have been visiting a young girl for the last three months and am growing very tond of her. She is crazy about automobiling, and has been urging me to tures of many bridal gowns just now. buy a car. I refused, as I am saving my money for better purposes. But I The trains are edged and inset with am tired of being badgered about it, and of hearing of what wonderful lace. Necks incline to be high, graztimes she had when she was out riding with some chap who has an automo ing the base of the throat. Sleeves bile, and I have been thinking I had better keep away from her before I fall really in love with her. What do you think?

I think that you are a wise young man, with his head screwed so securely on his shoulders that no silly woman will be able to turn it. The sooner you pass up your automobile fan young lady, the better for you. She is hitting too fast a pace for any young man who wants to get on in the world, and the road she is scorching down doesn't lead to success. It ends in poverty and bankruptcy.

If you marry a girl who tries to jolly you into buying an automobile before you can afford it, who is even willing for you to go into debt for it. you will need no fortune teller to read your future for you. You will sit girls. In marvelous shades of rose, on the same stool, or stand behind the same counter you do now, when you green and yellow, such wraps have a are sixty years old, for your wife will have spent money faster than you deep border and deep collar of the can make it, and you will have no chance to save up a nest egg to go into fluffy white fur. ess for yourself. You will grow old and bent, and worn out before your time, for you will have staggered along under a load of anxiety that will break any man. And you will live a life of slavery, sold into bondage by your wife's extravagance to milliners and dressmakers, and shopkeepers Straws show which way the wind blows, and every girl hands out enough tips before marriage to enable a man to judge what sort of a wife she will make. Clever and foxy is the lad who heeds these, who gets a line on her on the safe side of the altar, and who. if she tries to inveigle him into spending more than he can afford; pulls out before he legally assumes her shopping ticket.

The girls, who were of the first and ond years, numbering 200, dres second years, numbering 200, dressed in their mym costumes, enjoyed an hour of games in the gymnasium, including batball, relay races, basketball, jump the shot and basket goal. Following this, supper was served in the cafeteria, with Miss Kathleen Jackson, president of the Civil Att. Mrs. J. M. McEvoy and Mrs. F: Bal-antyne were present Thursday at letic Association, in charge. Following the supper, games were again enjoyed, and the evening wound up with school yells. Miss Edna Holland, physical directress, assisted by Miss Margaret Uren, was in charge of the sports.

of the sports. A charming affair of this afternoon was the post-nuptial reception held by Mrs. Laurence Glass, formerly Miss Judy Edgar of Toronto, at her home in Dufferin avenue. The rooms were tastefully arranged with autumn flowers, and the young hostess wearing her wedding gown of ivory satin De a guest next week with Mrs. A. D. Jordan at "The Grange." Mrs. Torrington is a past president of the National Council of Women.

A charming surprise shower was held at the home of Miss Kathleen Pugh, an October bride-elect, last evening, when a number of friends presented her with many useful kitchen utensils. A dainty supper was served following the presentation of the gifts.

Ing her wedding gown of ivory satin, trimmed with pearl ornaments, was assisted in receiving the many guests by Mrs. Charles T. Glass, who wore a smart gown of cafe au lait crepe, trimmed with brown and a becoming brown hat. The tea table adorned with marigolds was presided over by Mrs. George Gunn, Jun., gowned in gray and blue georgette with a black hat, and Mrs. John Knox Crawford of Toronto. Assistants in the A smart affair of next month will room included Miss Margaret Glass. wearing her bridesmaid's gown of gold crepe, trimmed with French flowers; Miss Estelle Hodgins of Toronto, wearing a gown of bisque lace with a jade green girdle, and hat to match; Miss Agnes Wrong of To-ronto, Miss Elizabeth Laidlaw of Toronto, gowned in gray georgette, heavily beaded in blue, with a becom-ing hat; Miss Jessie Gillespie and Miss Grace Edgar of Toronto.

CERISE AND SILVER. striking color combination

on a striking gown is this one of cerise velvet and silver lace. It is French model, needless to say. It ems a reversal of the usual order of things to have the skirt of lace and the bodice of velvet, but the world today seems more or less topsy-turyy today seems more or less topsy-turvy anyway, so why not? The ensemble is attractive.

Four ruffles of the lace in tiers forms the skirt. It gives the bouffant effect that vies with the pencil outline in favor. The bodice is plain as becomes the material. A couple of horizontal folds at the waistline breaks the severe line.

Just at the joining line of the skirt and bodice the couterier has placed a sparse line of velvet leaves ending in a bunch of the foliage at the left side. The skirt is quite long as is the made for many of the evening models.

GIRLS' WORK BOARD PLANS BUSY SEASON

Miss Mary Allison May Address Annual Banquet on November 8.

Plans for the annual meeting of the ndon Girls' Work Board were made at a meeting of the board held last light at the King street Y. W. C. A., Mrs. J. D. Detwiler in the chair. It was arranged that the annual meeting would take the form of a banquet to be held in the St James' Anglican Church on Nov. 8. A special effort is being made to secure as speaker Miss Mary Allison, newlyappointed girls' work secretary for the Province of Ontario. The elec-the Province of Ontario. The election of officers and presentation of reports will also be an important feature of this meeting.

The possibility of organizing a training school for girls work leaders was discussed, but nothing definite decided on. The matter of making up a list of girls' work speakers available in the city was also touched on. If such a list were compiled, the different churches might appeal to the central board when desiring speakers for their clubs.

Several committees were appointed at last night's meeting. It was determined to send five delegates to the Religious Educational Conference to be held in Stratford on Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1. Mrs. Detwiler will be one of the delegates. Four others are yet to be chosen.

WEDDINGS.

The marriage took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Centennial Methodist Church of Verna Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Read of Bothwell, and Norman Dent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dent, Garfield avenue. Rev. A. E. M. Thompson performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a smart suit of navy blue with a becoming hat to match, and carried a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Mrs. Minnie Whitehead, and Mr. R. R. Whitehead acted as best man. Fol-Whitehead acted as best man. Fol-lowing the ceremony, a wedding sup-per was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead, on Simcoostreet. Mr. and Mrs. Dent left later on a honeymoon, which will be spent in Buffalo, and upon their return they will reside in London. BELL-EDWARDS.

A pretty wedding took place this morning at 10:45 o'clock at Maitland Street Baptist parsonage when Kathleen Marjorie Edwards, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards and the late Walter H. Edwards of Dorchester, was married to Laurance Gordon Bell of Detroit, formerly of London. Rev. A. T. Sowerby performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a navy blue tailored suit, with a becoming brown hat trimmed with gold lace, and brown shoas and hose. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Bessie O'Brien acted as bridesmaid and wore a smart suit of navy blue with a gray hat and shoes, and corsage of pink roses. Mr. James Gay was best man. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left for Detroit, where they will reside.

CARROTHERS-PATTERSON. A pretty wedding took place quietly at the Cronyn Memorial Church today at noon, when Meta Evelyn, daughter of Mrs. Patterson and the ate Thomas Patterson, was married to Wendell Warden Carrothers, M. A Kitchen Geography Game. A Kitchen Geography Game.
One mother says:
Geography was hard for one of my girls, so we made a game of washing dishes. The dishes traveled from the cupboard (home) to the table (some place in tomorrow's lesson) in setting the table for the meal. They were taken to the sink by means of a river, washed in a lake or in the ocean, or sometimes in the river, if it had not been menorized. The game was so fascinating that the boys even wanted to do the dishes. dishes. (Copyright, 1923, Associated Editors) on time. I missed my regular train, and the one I took was late. So I had to take a taxi. You see—"

"Miss Mason, I'm glad to have met you, I'm sure,' and here the taxi driver, who had alighted, opened the door and informed Mr. Titus that he was "here."

All that day Leonard Titus went about with the memory of his taxicompanion uppermost in his thoughts.

It flattered him, no doubt, that this very charming young woman read his editorials every day, even though they did occasionally bore her. He wondered what she did. She had spoken of her office. He hoped sincerely that she was not a typist for he said something about the general stupidity of typists. He

SALE OF VALUABLE PROPERTY IN THE CITY OF LONDON

Sealed tenders will be received up to and including December 1, 1923, for the following property in part or en bloc, known as the Walper House, being all and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being part of Lot Number Five on the north side of Carling Street in the City of London in the County of Middlesex and Province of Ontario, commencing at the southwest angle of the said Lot, thence along the north side of Carling Street, eightyseven feet to Talbot Street, thence along the west side of Talbot Street one hundred and forty-three feet seven inches, thence west parallel to Carling Street eighty-seven feet, thence south along the west boundary of said Lot Number Five, one hundred and forty-three feet seven inches to the place of beginning. Together with a right-of-way for all lawful purposes, in, to, over and upon a lane twelve feet wide and immediately adjoining the lands hereby conveyed on the north and running the full width of said Lot Five from Talbot Street. The said lands having a frontage of eighty-seven feet and a depth of one hundred and fortythree feet and seven inches.

This preferty is located in the heart of the business section and would be an ideal location for automobile showrooms, warehouses or manufacturing purposes. The building is constructed throughout of the best materials, stone foundation and brick. There are also on the land large solid brick barns which could be converted into a real garage. No tender necessarily accepted. Address all communications marked "Tender," and for further particulars to

John always waited a reasonable time after the 9:32 arrived, refusing other fares until he was perfectly certain that his distinguished customer was not coming.

One October morning the clock on the station facade pointed 9:45 and Leonard Titus had not arrived. John McKoy decided to walt no longer. That is, he reflected on the subject when a young woman, hurrying out to woman, bowing politely as he did so.

He looked a little embarrassed. Then he regarded his watch again, and then with a look of apology toward the young lady he dove into his brief case for a notebook and soft lead pencil.

"You'll pardon me, I hope?" he said, and began to read the scribbling in the notebook eagerly.

"You see, I'm late," he said after a few minutes. "And I must get this to the typist. You have been very good when a young woman, hurrying out to let me ride. I must go to Hill street

That is, he reflected on the subject when a young woman, hurrying out of the taxi entrance of the station, furiously waved her handbag to him by way of summoning him.

She did not possess the easy manner of one accustomed to riding in taxis. If she had been she would never have waved her bag in that manner, even though, as it happened, there were no other taxis standing at that stand at that particular time.

John McKoy was about to pull out when he spied his "steady," Leonard Titus, coming out of the waitingdo you so as far as that?"
"Yes," suld the young lady, and then, "I don't in the least object. The taxi man told me who you were. I have always wondered what you looked like."

Leonard Titus straightened the glasses on his nose and sat up a little straighter. "And what do you think I look like?" he asked without a shadow of impertinence.

"Well, not exactly what I expected, Titus, coming out of the walting-room. John McKoy stopped short, got out of the taxi, and went around though surprisingly like it, too. I thought you were a little tailer and perhaps a little more bald and not quite so heavy. But I knew your eyes were blue and that you had hands to talk to the young lady inside.
"I am sorry, but there is my steady," he said. "You see, I am obliged to take him—he's an important person—he has to get to his office, you see."
"How do you know I'm not im-

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan is without an equal in this country as a forceful, analytical, expository preacher. For accurate knowledge of the letter of the Scriptures, insight into the spiritual meaning of the sacred writers, wide vision over the past, present and future of the Kingdom of God, and skill in setting forth his views in a deeply impressive manner, Dr. Morgan's superior can scarcely by found among living men.

ried according to American law, if his sweet Rose trusted him enough for a secret wedding. Then, if her father consented later, the whole thing could be done over again in the proper way before outsiders knew the story.

Rose was sure her father would consent. Why, he'd have to! So a license was bought by the girl herself, and the two were married one afternoon at Jamaica, Long Island. Rose wrote to one or two friends, cautioning them not to tell; but she was in a mood not to care, really, whether they told or not. This mood changed somewhat, however, when the confession to pop had been made (by her, not Paolo), and she ad seen how he took it.

As she explained to Salvano aftervards, pop behaved more like a mad bull than anyone's kind old pa. He roared home truths about the prince's morals, and said he'd break the marriage, which wasn't a marriage, anyhow, by Gad!

Rose cried so much, however, that twentually Callahan relented. He talked with the bridegroom, and put him on probation. Salvano wasn't to consider Rose his wife, and must prevent the truth about the secret marriage from leaking out. The pair would be permitted to call themselves engaged, and Salvano might follow the father and daughter abroad, where Callahan had already planned to travel. If the prince behaved himself for six months, and if meanwhile Callahan heard no worse tales than he had heard already, there might be a real wedding — in Rome, perhaps, after a meeting with Paolo's parents.

ats, his position would star with his title, had taken the precaution of making inquiries before allowing things to go too far. He had expected debts, but not disgraceful debts, and the affair with Mrs. Sheridan was not the only one that had started scandal.

The old man would have liked to the control of the family—his most pressing debts should be paid immediately. Also Callahan was willing to advance money for Salvano's traveling and money for Salvano's traveli debts should be paid immediately. Also Callahan was willing to advance money for Salvano's traveling and other expenses.

The arrangement was humiliating; but there were plenty of better princes where Salvano came from, and in various other countries. Callahan resolved to take Rose where these princes were and where Prince Paul di Salvano was not. But he made one error of judgment. He let Rose and Salvano see too clearly and too on what was in his mind.

Rose knew her father well. She had been in love before—though not like this—and pop hadn't "cottoned" to the rien. He had been right in those cases, because they weren't was. She adored Paolo, and meant to have him. It was she, therefore, who warned Salvano of danger, and suggested a secret marriage, because "pop would have to come round in the end."

The prince, being Italian, would not have dared propose it, for the simple reason that such a marriage would not in fact be legal, and he might be accused of deceiving the girl. He explained in a half-hearted way that there ware added to the server of the way that there ware a like the paid immediately. Also Callahan was willing to advance money for Salvano's traveling and other expenses.

The arrangement was humiliating; but Callahan was a millionaire several times over. If Paolo could "keep on pop's good side," as Rose pointed out, all disagreeables would soon be forgotten. Pop was like that! He couldn't bear malice. Consequently Salvano was at present extremely busy in keeping on that good side. He hoped sometimes that he was succeeding, though Callahan remained gloomy and morose, suspicious every time that his son-in-law looked at any women except Rose, or accepted any invitation to play bridge.

Betty Sheridan's letter had been almost a death sentence. Salvano had glanced it through, crumpled it and the envelope into his pocket, and, thinking quickly, had walked in the wake of the Callahans on to the terrace. He shuffled his thoughts like a pack of cards, and as a result allowed Rose to sit facing Mrs. Sherid through the doorway.

It would be useless, he knew, to try to prevent the girl or her father from seeing the newcomer. Such an attempt would fail, and excite the suspicions of both, though Salvano had long ago "had it out" with Rose about Betty. He'd explained that the affair had been the merest flirtation, that Mrs. Sheridan hadn't been precisely backward; and that their position in society had led to exaggera-

Reddy Fox Rages When He Cannot Get At Little Bob White

THORNTON W. BURGESS. Reddy Fox soon picked up the trail of Mrs. Bob White and the wounded young Bob White, and so at length he came to the fallen, hollow fence post. His sharp nose told him at once that that wounded young Bob White was inside. Such a disappointment! It filled Reddy with rage. He hated that fence post, which, of course, was a very foolish thing to do. He took a long sniff, and his mouth watered as the scent of that young Bob White just beyond his reach tickled his nose. He snarled as he dug at the end of that old fence post with his claws. But that was quite useless and he knew it. The outside of that old fence post was solid. It was only the heart of it that had rotted away. Reddy ran around to the other end. That was closed. Then carefully he examined the whole length of that examined the whole length of that old fence post. You see, he hoped there might be a thin, rotted place which he could dig open. But there wasn't. He tried reaching in with a paw as far as he could. He couldn't reach quite far enough. That young Bob White was as safe from him as were a mile away. Presently Reddy realized how foolish his rage was. He sat down to think things over. He knew that ish his rage was. He sat down to think things over. He knew that somewhere near was Mrs. Bob White But he knew that it was quite useles to try to find her and catch her. He gritted his teeth as he thought of how she had fooled him by pretending to be wounded. Then he tried to think of some plan for catching either that young Bob White or his mother Reddy knows all about mother love Many times has he seen mothers risk their lives for their children. "The thing for me to do." said he to himself, "is to hide close by. Mrs Bob White won't be able to stay away from them.

So Reddy flattened himself on the ground in the blackest of the Black Shadows close to the old fallen fence post and prepared to wait patiently. The stars came out and sprinkled the sky with little points of light. By and by gentle Mistress Moon came creeping up from behind the Green forest and flooded the Green Meadows with soft, silvery light. There never was a more peaceful scene. It didn't seem as if there could possibly be anything but happiness and restful peace there. Yet inside that hollow fence post a young Bob White crouched, suffering from wounds and from terrible fright. Outside in the blackest shadow crouched Reddy Fox. patiently waiting for a Bob White dinner. And a little way off a little brown mother. Mrs. Bob White watched and listened and waited, too. And with every moment she grew more anxious.

Time slipped away. Mrs. Bob White

And with every moment she grew more anxious.

Time slipped away. Mrs. Bob White, wise in the ways of Reddy Fox, did not go to the suffering young Bob White despite the longing in her heart. The wounded young Bob White remained right where he was. He knew that he was safe. Reddy Fox grew hungrier and hungrier. At last he made up his mind that he was simply wasting time. If he were to have a dinner that night he must look for it elsewhere. He got to his feet and stole away softly. But he didn't go so softly that Mrs. Bob White did not know it when he went.
