GERMAN PRESS RAISES BOGEY

Should Britain Renounce Free Trade Policy Serious Danger Would Result.

Countries Depending on British Open Markets—More Alarming than American Peril.

Vienna, July 22.—For a considerable time the German press, whose influence extends to the German portions of Austria, Switzerland, Holland, and Scandinavia, and even in Hungary and the Balkan States, has been engaged in exciting fears in regard to the imminence of the impending renunciation by Great Britain of her free trade policy.

This is represented as a serious danger for countries which depend largely upon the open markets of the British Empire. The idea has been so effectively worked as to convince many foreigners that the battle for free trade has been practically lost in England.

It is evident that this spectre, which is probably considered a more effective bogey than the "American peril," is intended to exert an additional force to the simultaneous advocacy of closer commercial relations between the threatened states and Germany.

HART'S RIVER HEROES RETURN

Trooper Winnifredian Arrives at Halifax With all on Board Well.

Halifax, N. S., July 22.—The trooper Winnifred, with the second C. M. R. on board, dropped anchor in the harbor at 3.10 this morning, and was soon boarded by Lieut. Col. Humphrey, acting D. O. C.; Mr. Baird, of the militia department; J. B. Lambkin, of the I. C. R., and press representatives. The ship had a fine run from Durban, the passage being less than 24 days. There was not a serious case of sickness on the boat, and all on board are in excellent health and spirits. Lt. Col. Evans is in command, Major Merritt second in command and Major Cameron junior command. The men all speak highly of the officers.

Lt. Carruthers, the hero of Hart's River, has little or nothing to say and expresses wonder at the fuss the Canadian papers are making over his little exploit. Lieut. Markham remains in South Africa. He is engaged in railway work there.

Contrary to expectations, the Winnifredian did not leave Quarantine until after two this afternoon. As it will take considerable time to transfer the men and baggage, there is not likely to be a street parade. Next day half the men came on shore in small bodies, and are enjoying themselves with friends. The city is in gala attire, and much disappointment is felt at there being no chance for a popular demonstration.

The S. S. Winnifredian docked at the deep water terminus this afternoon. There were over 5,000 people about the dock on Water street, and the men were given a hearty welcome as they came ashore. They were immediately placed on board of a train which was waiting for them. The train left for the west at 6.30 p. m. About 250 of the men remained in the city. Those who came on the trooper were—Lt. Col. T. B. Evans, Majors Merritt and Cameron, Captains Moodie, Elmsley, Leckie, McDonald, Thacker, Snider, Lt. and Adj. Church, Surgeon-Major Devine and Duff, Vet. Capt. Riddell, Vet. Lt. James, Lts. Tryon, Graham, Richards, Ryan, Marshall, Dixon, Callaghan, Bruce, Carruthers, Kirkpatrick, Douglas, McKay, Fishwick, Clarkson, Hank, Burton, Farrell, Lamb, Graham, Allan, Semers, Gault, London, Simpson, Roddan, 656 non-commissioned officers and men, 108 Canadian Field Hospital, Col. Worthington, Capt. Johnson, Lts. Robertson, Tremaine, Civil Surgeon Whitton, Lieut. Drum, non-com. officers and men, Nurses Forbes, MacDonald, Scott, Fortescue, Pope, Smith; discharged irregulars.

WORTHY WELCOME

Geo. Kendall this morning received a telegram from his son, Trooper James E. Kendall, of "E" squadron, Second Canadian Mounted Rifles, returning from South Africa, the effect of which was now in Campbelltown, New Brunswick, on the Intercolonial Railway, and that he was well and expected to arrive in Chatham on Thursday or Friday. Also he would wire again from Montreal fuller particulars.

The returning heroes, who have fought so well for a good cause and empire, are receiving splendid ovations in all the large cities—Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, London—and there is no reason whatever why Chatham should not welcome her soldier in a like manner. The time is short, but a whole lot can be done in a short time.

CONFEDERATION

St. John's, Nfld., July 22.—Wide-spread interest is developed here over the speech delivered in London last week by Sir Robert Bond, the Premier of Newfoundland, in which he declared that the confederation of Newfoundland with the Dominion of Canada was mainly a question of terms from the latter.

WAY OF ESCAPE BY CANADA

Senator Drummond on Shipping Combine—Land Line is in Control.

Speedy Service Between Great Britain and Halifax now Advocated.

London, July 22.—The House of Commons committee appointed to enquire into the question of steamship subsidies was in session to-day, and examined Senator G. A. Drummond, of Montreal. Mr. Drummond said that he had arrived at the conclusion, from recent developments of American shipping combines, that the land line practically controlled the situation, and that ocean lines were merely adjuncts.

At first sight it would appear that the purchase of a number of old British steamers by the American combination could be remedied by building new boats. But he believed that if this was done by a new organization it could be made unprofitable by the Americans, who, by means of through bills of lading from the producing centres, could control freights as well as quite a considerable portion of the passenger traffic. He believed that the only hope of escape from the control of the American shipping combine lay through Canada. Therefore he advocated a speedy, up-to-date service of twenty-two-knot steamers between Great Britain and Halifax, instead of New York. Such a line ought to be subsidized to the extent of £300,000 (1,500,000) to £400,000 (2,000,000) yearly for ten years, half payable by Great Britain and half by Canada. Thereafter, he believed, if judiciously managed, the line would be self-supporting. It would be advantageous to both countries to cement the trade between Canada and Great Britain.

Bar Admiral Lord Charles Bessborough told the committee that he did not favor fostering trade by means of bounties. He objected to subsidies, but attached the greatest importance to Great Britain owning a mercantile marine containing vessels of great speed, and favored postal subsidies for the encouragement thereof. Lord Bessborough suggested that the government might build 24-knot liners, and allow the companies to work them, and the government sharing in the profits.

DOUBLE HANGING

One Culpit Died With Curses on His Lips—A Ghastly Scene.

Greenville, Mass., July 22.—With curses on his lips and the expressed wish that the people perish in the fires of hell, Ashley Coke died here today. With him, but silently, Tom Lunderside also met his end. Both were convicted of the murder of Engineer Wray, and were hanged from the same gallows by the swing of a double trap. Coke died boasting that he would be in hell in a few minutes, and cursing everything and everybody. He said that those who had planned his murder would meet their end, and that $11,000 had been deposited in the bank, $1,000 of which would be paid for the death of each of the eleven men who prosecuted him. The execution was witnessed by 6,000 people.

DEMANDS HEARING

Complains that Charges of the War Secretary Were Unnecessarily Accentuated.

London, July 22.—General Buller has written another letter to William St. John Brodrick, the Secretary of State for War, in which he complains that Mr. Brodrick accentuated charges in the House of Commons which were never officially brought against him, and to which he was ordered not to reply. In his communication to the War Secretary, Gen. Buller demands that he be allowed to state his views regarding Lady Smith's capability to hold out against the Boers.

Mrs. A. Floyd returned to her home in Detroit yesterday, after visiting her parents, Edgar street.

KING EDWARD TO VISIT CZAR

And May See the Kaiser on Return Journey—He Still Progressing.

Able to walk a Few Steps—Will Hold First Council With the Balfour Cabinet Shortly.

London, July 22.—The weather was less wintry at Cowes, Isle of Wight, this morning and the reports from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert continue to chronicle King Edward's improvement. It is said that he walked a few steps yesterday.

THE FIRST COUNCIL

The King will hold his first council since A. J. Balfour became premier on board the yacht shortly. It is expected that the names of the new Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to succeed Earl Cadogan (whose resignation was made public July 17) will then be announced.

KING TO VISIT CZAR

Copenhagen, July 22.—It is learned from reliable sources that King Edward will visit the Czar in the latter part of September. Immediately after the coronation, Queen Alexandra comes to Denmark to join her sister, the Dowager Czarina, the King following on September 1. The King and Queen will go to St. Petersburg after two weeks' stay in Denmark, sailing on the royal yacht under escort of British and Russian warships, and most likely Edward will make his long-expected visit to the Kaiser on the return journey.

HUNT DROPPED

Pursuit of the Outlaw Tracy has Been Abandoned—Refused the Reward.

Tacoma, Wash., July 22.—After forty days of continual pursuit by men and bloodhounds, all organized effort to capture Harry Tracy, the escaped Oregon convict, has ended. No further posses will start after him. The pursuit of Tracy through Clark, Covitz, Lewis, Thurston, Pierce, Kitsap, Snohomish and King counties has cost these counties $10,000. The fact that Oregon declines to pay Miss Waggoner, of Chehalis, the reward for Meritt's body, has done considerable towards the dropping of the Tracy hunt.

RIOTING AT PARIS

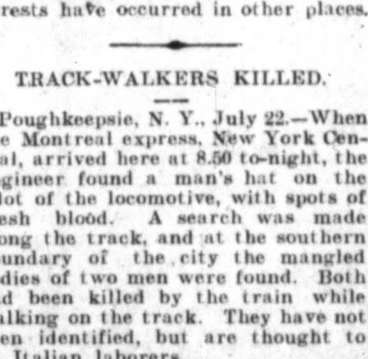

Paris, July 22.—After the distribution of prizes at a school belonging to an unauthorized congregation in the Avenue Parmentier here to-day violent speeches were made to the assemblage, denouncing the Government's action in closing the establishments of unauthorized congregations. Fighting ensued, the crowds breaking through the police cordons and shouting:—"Vive la liberte!" Francois Coppee, the author and poet, who was the chief speaker, Deputy Lerolle, Gaston Merry and the Abbe Parturault were arrested.

M. Coppee, Lerolle and Merry were later released. Comte Urban de Maille, who was among those taken into custody, was held for examination. Further disturbances and some arrests have occurred in other places.

TRACK-WALKERS KILLED

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 22.—When the Montreal express, New York Central, arrived here at 8.50 to-night, the engineer found a man's hat on the pilot of the locomotive, with spots of fresh blood. A search was made along the track, and at the southern boundary of the city the mangled bodies of two men were found. Both had been killed by the train while walking on the track. They have not been identified, but are thought to be Italian laborers.

SPROUTING WHEAT

"I saw something yesterday that I never saw in my life before," said Mr. A. Harrington the well known implement dealer to The Planet this morning, "and that was wheat sprouting in the head. I was taking a drive out through Chatham township, and dropped at French's and he showed me a field of ripe wheat, standing straight up, with the heads sprouting. The whole field of wheat was good for hog's food."

"This state of affairs exists in different places all through Chatham township, where the wheat ripened fast. When the fields got ripe enough to cut the farmers could not cut it on account of the heavy rains which caused the wheat to sprout on the head."

"A number of the farmers through Chatham township, will suffer heavily on this account. In some places where the sprouting is not very bad, the farmers will be able to thresh the wheat, but it will be a very poor sample. If we get much more rain I don't know what the farmers will do."

THE SOUTH AFRICAN PEACE.

There are people who have a strange faculty for always making trouble. Some of this class must be among the newspaper correspondents in South Africa.

Now we has an official statement, with all the hall-marks of truth, to the effect that the settling down of the Boer colonies bears a closer resemblance to that of Alsace-Lorraine than to loyal and reconciled Quebec.

BRITISH EDITORS COMING.

In a despatch from Ottawa we learn that W. T. R. Preston, the chief emigration official of the Dominion Government in Europe, is bringing ten British editors out to Canada.

This is a very good move and should help the British editors and people of Great Britain to a better knowledge of this country. Missionary work along this line is apparently very much needed in the old country.

A SUMMER EVENING.

The evening comes, the fields are still. The tinkle of the thrill rill. Unheard all day, ascends again: Deserted is the half-mown plain; Silent the swaths! the ringing wain; The mower's cry, the dog's alarms, Are hushed within the sleeping farms; The business of the day is done. The last-left haymaker is gone. And from the thyme upon the height, And from the elder-blossoms white In puffs of balm the night air blows To perfume which the day forgoes. And on the oare horizon far, See pulsing with the first-born star, The liquid sky above the hill! The evening comes, the fields are still.

THE MARKETS

Planet Office, Tuesday evening, July 22.

Ald. Waddell, of the firm of J. B. Stringer & Co., gives The Planet the following market quotations:—

The crops are in pretty fair condition. A few individual losses have been noted. The oat crop this year will be the largest on record. The barley and wheat crop is mostly all out.

GRAINS.

Wheat, 78c. Corn, ear, 60c. Corn, shelled, 60 to 62c. White oats, 45c. Mixed oats, 40c. Beans, 90c to $1.10. Buckwheat, 75c. Barley, per cwt., 90c. Cornmeal, $1.50 to $1.75 per cwt.

HAY.

New hay has started to come in and good loads bring from $6 to $7 per ton. Hay buyers are paying $5 to $6.50. Hay, clover, $5 to $7. Hay, new, loose, $6 to $7 per ton.

SEEDS.

Nelson Stringer gives The Planet the following quotations:— The growth of the seed crop, especially clover and alsike is very heavy this season. Red Clover, $4 to $4.50. Alsike, $4.50 to $5.00. Timothy, $2 to $3. Alfalfa, $6 to $6.50. Millet, 70c. Seed Corn, 60c.

WOOL AND HIDES.

Nelson Stringer states that the hide market is quiet, at lower prices. Deliveries are very light; washed hide some export demand, but unwashed so far is dependent on our Canadian mills for a market, keeping it down to a low notch. Hide market is a trifle firmer. Wool, washed, 12c. Wool, unwashed, 7c. Calf skins, 50c to 7c per lb. Lambs and shearings, 10c to 15c. Sheep skins, 25c to 65c. Cow hides, No. 1, 6c, No. 2, 5c. Horse hides, No. 1, 5 1/2c; No. 2, 4 1/2c.

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. What the danger was he might not understand, but he would take no chances. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signals of Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a loss of flesh, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends. Such a condition calls for the prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie E. Clark, of Enterprise, Shelby Co., Mo. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratitude to you. I had despaired of ever getting well. I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything late distressed me. I could not get on my feet. I had taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my honest recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's. If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the 'pill habit.'" promised wheat in plenty and to spare for export. Oats are in satisfactory condition, and the cotton crop promises a large yield, even if early estimates have to be modified. So far, then, the indications are that we shall have abundant harvests, and a good foreign demand for our surplus. This is of vast importance to the business community, for it assures at least one more season of national prosperity, which there were not a few reasons to believe had, for the present at least, reached the zenith. Another crop failure would certainly have precipitated 600 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the east end abattoir yesterday. The heavy rains did not prevent the butchers from coming out in large numbers, and good cattle were in demand, at higher prices than prevailed last week. Mr. G. Martel paid 6 3/4c per lb. for a pair of choice cattle, and 6c per lb. for five others. About 35 head of pretty good grass fed steers were bought for shipment to Great Britain at from 5c to 5 1/4c per lb. and the butchers paid about the same rates for good animals; common stocks sold at from 2 1/4 to 3 1/4c per lb. The calves were a rather poor lot, and sold at from $2 to $5 each. Sheep sold at from 2 3/4 to 3 1/2c per lb. Lambs are very much in demand and sold at from $2.50 to $4.25 each. Fat hogs sold at from 6 3/4 to a little over 7c per lb., weighed off the cars.

OUTSIDE MARKETS.

HENRY CLEWIS REPORT. Henry Clewis, in his weekly letter to The Planet, says:— More now depends upon the harvest than upon any other single element. The outlook in this respect, continues encouraging. Corn, the pivotal crop this year, promises well; and, if conditions continue favorable, we may have a bumper crop, the average being the largest on record and condition above the average. Even if some damage should follow later on we shall still probably have an average crop, and the season is not so far advanced that a repetition of last year's damage is practically impossible. It was about this time in July, 1901, that the drought did its work, and the first correct estimates of damage were made public. The crop situation now is, therefore, in striking favorable contrast compared with 1901, except as to wheat, which proved a bumper crop. This year, however, we are a reaction, not merely in the stock market, where it would be most distasteful, but in general business and industry, where expansion has been going on at a marvellous rate beyond all expectations. Every week now serves to reduce the possibilities of such disaster and warrants a corresponding growth of confidence.

A BAD PRACTICE

Ex-Mayor T. A. Smith calls attention to the way lads at the Eau raid lunch baskets. Mr. Smith says that twice to his own personal knowledge baskets were looted yesterday. The boys leave nothing eatable in the baskets. The Maple City's ex-chief executive says that he doesn't mind the boys having a good meal, but would the owners of the baskets, if they were asked, but he does recognize the fact that unless something is done to check the boys in this work, their success will lead them into crimes more serious. Mr. Smith says that the loss of the edibles from a lunch basket while it is annoying to the looter, is not a matter of consequence, but should the boys thus get their first successful initiation into crime, it would be a serious matter, indeed.

A CHATHAM BOY

The Brockville Times of Monday has the following to say of Robert Knight, a young Chatham boy and an ex-member of the Park St. Methodist Church choir. Mr. Knight, as Chathamites are aware, is now a tenor in the Windhamville Methodist double quartette choir, of which Miss Elda Idle is the leader. Trinity Church was thronged with worshippers last evening, filling every available space in the sacred edifice. The rector preached from I Kings, 3, 5.—"Ask what I shall give thee," with special reference to the present state of the congregation. Mr. Cordingly presided at the organ. The choir rendered beautifully the anthem, "Seek ye the Lord," by Roberts, with tenor solo well taken by A. Robinson, Robert Knight, who is on a visit to his parents, sang with great power, expression and feeling, the beautiful solo, "The Voice of Jesus," by C. T. Sutcliffe.

TELEGRAPH

The Toronto Firemen's fund is now over $44,000. The Australian team won the Kolarup cup at Basley. The Peary Steamer Windward sailed from Sydney last night in search of Lieutenant Peary. The Winnipeg hotels are unable to accommodate the throng of visitors to the exhibition. Further earthquake shocks at Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, damaged many buildings. Fire in McLean's hardware store at Leonard Ont., destroyed about $10,000 worth of property. A counter petition has been filed in East Hamilton against Dr. Griffin, the Liberal candidate. Senator Drummond, of Montreal, gave evidence before the Steamship and Subsidy committee of the British House of Commons. An American officer was fined $50 and suspended for one month for administering the "water cure" to be administered to Filipinos. Several prominent Parisians denounced the government for enforcing the law of associations, and riotous scenes occurred. The Hamilton Board of works has passed a resolution recommending the city council to ask for the resignations of Engineers Wingate and Barrow. The council of Westminster have decided that the Canadian Coronation arch, condemned by the police commissioners as an obstruction, shall not be removed.

JAPAN LIKES SALISBURY.

London, July 22.—The Japanese Press, says the Tokio correspondent of the Times, is sympathetic and eulogistic in discussing Salisbury's resignation. It regards the retired Premier as a model of a great statesman, who leaves office when his fame is at its zenith, and his vital task has been achieved. The papers point out that Salisbury was the first European statesman who appreciated Japan, and who was ultimately willing to accept her co-operation as an ally.

NO GUARANTEE FOR FOREIGNERS.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, July 22.—The local authorities here have notified the consular corps that Cape Haytien is to be attacked by land and by sea, and that they cannot guarantee the safety of foreigners. The consuls have replied that the French cruiser, the D'Asses, now at Port-au-Prince, has sent here, but the French Minister there has replied that the situation at Port-au-Prince does not permit the sending of the cruiser to Cape Haytien.

A KENTUCKY MURDER.

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—Jas. Cockrell, of Breathitt county, who was brought here from Jackson yesterday evening, mortally wounded, died this morning. He was shot from the court house window at Jackson yesterday by an unknown assailant. Friends fear his death will be the signal for a prolonged and disastrous feud. Cockrell was preparing to leave Jackson to escape a feud in which he was involved when the fatal shots were fired. He was the town marshal of Jackson.

HARRIET HUBBARD AYER

Children should be taught early in life to breathe through the nostrils. This is important for the health sake, and also for children's looks, for nothing gives a more foolish and unattractive appearance to a face than the habit of going about with the lips apart. The mouth is not only ugly but expiring to those obliged to look at it. Every mother should watch her little ones closely and see to it that they keep their mouths closed when asleep and at all times when not necessarily open for the purpose of eating, drinking or talking. Teachers of physical culture always begin by insisting that the pupils breathe through the nostrils and every athlete, if noticed, will be seen to keep his mouth closed while he is performing his feats as well as all other times when his features are in repose. Besides the disfigurement to a child's features from the continued evil practice of breathing through the mouth, it is a positive injury to the health. In the first place, the invisible dust which continually floats through the air is drawn directly into the lungs, injuring thereby the delicate membranes of the entire breathing apparatus. As a result catarrhal troubles and even more serious ailments ensue. The nostrils act as a kind of sieve and permit pure air, tempered by its passage, alone to reach the lungs through them, whereas the mouth will admit not only sudden blasts of icy air, sufficient alone sometimes to produce pneumonia, but foreign substances so destructive and irritating to the throat and bronchia. The habit of deep breathing is easily acquired and is permanent. "Breathe through the nose," if it could be made a household slogan and were honored by strict observance, would practically demonstrate the fact that most colds are the result of not knowing how to breathe. Deep breathing will cure a cold in the head in a few hours and prevent its attacking the lungs. Let the skeptical try taking one hundred deep breaths daily and I am content to await the verdict. Remember, take the breath in through the nostrils and expel it in the same way.—Harriet Hubbard Ayer.

Origin of the Womans.

According to a Hindoo legend, this is the proper origin of woman: Twashtri, the god Vulcan of the Hindoo mythology, created the world. But on his commencing to create man he discovered that with man he had exhausted all his creative materials, and that not one solid element had been left. This, of course, greatly perplexed Twashtri and caused him to fall in a profound meditation. When he arose from it he proceeded as follows: He took The roundness of the moon, The undulating curves of the serpent, The graceful twist of the creeping plant, The light shivering of the grass blade and the slenderness of the willow, The velvety softness of the flowers, The lightness of the feather, The gentleness of the doe, The frolicsomeness of the dancing sunbeam, The tears of the cloud, The inconstancy of the wind, The timidity of the hare, The vanity of the peacock, The hardness of the diamond, The sweetness of honey, The cruelty of the tiger, The heat of the fire, The chill of the snow, The cackling of the parrot, The cooing of the turtle dove, All these he mixed together and formed woman. For once she knew where John was. A party of young men were taking dinner a few nights ago at a fashionable cafe, when one of them, who is somewhat of a jester, called the waiter and said: "John, go and call Main. If a woman answers it will be my wife. Tell her that I instructed you to say that I am in the police station for a few hours and will not be at home for dinner. Say to her that the possibilities are that I shall not be at home tonight. Understand me, sir?" John winked a couple of times in a knowing way, bowed deferentially, and suggested: "Supposit'— "Supposing nothing, sir. If she asks who is talking tell her it is the turnkey at the central station, and she'll never know who told her the lie." The waiter shambled away and was presently seen to be having a good deal of fun with himself. The jester inferred that it might have something to do with his case and called him over. "What's amusing you, John?" "I wouldn't like to tell you, sir—at least, right here." "I guess these fellows understand—let 'em go." "Missus says to tell her husband she is glad he is so nicely located for the night—she knows where he is for once."—Cleveland Leader.

PAMPHLETS FOR TOURISTS

Grand Trunk Lease New Summer Resort Publications. Two new publications have just been issued by the publicity department of the Grand Trunk Railway System. One of them is descriptive of the charming summer resorts on the east coast of Lake Huron, including Southampton, Port Elgin, Kincardine, Goderich and Sarnia Ontario and the beaches that are reached through Port Huron, Mich. The publication is enhanced by direct reproductions in half-tone from photographs and is printed in the Luxotype process. In addition to a description of that part of the country there is information for the lover of road and gun, lists of hotels, with accommodation and rates, and a great deal of other data that is of interest to those who are looking for a summer play ground. The other new publication is a description written in a story-like form most interesting, and dealing with that vast wilderness embracing the region around French River, the descriptive matter takes the tourist over the northern division of the Grand Trunk to Nipissing Bay and from there across Lake Nipissing to Chaudiere Falls on the French River, which is as far as navigation by steamer can be enjoyed. The rest of the journey is made by canoe, several portages being necessary; but the scenery is so grand and so magnificent that anyone is well repaid for a visit to this charming locality. The hunting and fishing in this comparatively virgin district is unequalled—black bass, muskellunge and pickerel being the most numerous of the finny tribe found here, the big fellows of the muskellunge species running from 20 to 30 pounds are a frequent catch. The charms of this wonderful country beyond Lake Nipissing are not all confined to the summer season—it is beautiful in August and September, and it is gorgeous in October and November. During the first two weeks of November the deer-hunting is good, and in September and October a full bag is obtainable at any time. The waters of the streams tributary to the French river are literally alive with gummy fish of all varieties and sizes. This interesting booklet, sent free on application to G. T. Hill, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Montreal.

Charming Summer Resort

Two interesting little books of the illustrated folder type have been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System, one being entitled "Songs of the Nipissing," and the other, "The Eastern Coast of Lake Huron." The illustrations are very numerous, are of all sizes, and are scattered through the pages, and elucidate the text and appear to the eye just as the story told in the letter press does to the mind. The prevailing note in these little works, upon which a profitable half hour may be spent by the reader, is the craving for change, and there can be no doubt that men and women who live in the stress and strain of to-day, and feel the throbs of advanced and advancing civilization, do require change—complete change for mind and body. The haunts described here minister to the intellectual as well as to the physical health of jaded dwellers in cities. The physical exercises that can be obtained among the woods and waters create and promote a perfectly sound bodily condition, while the multifarious life that is to be found, stimulates the intellectual faculties and prompts inquiry and investigation into nature's ways as they are revealed in her flora and fauna. The maps which are in these pamphlets enable the visitor to the ever part he may be, and the general information given enables him to economize his time and spend it to the best advantage. Copies may be had on application to W. E. Ripan, 115 King street, Chatham.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK.

This famous national park offers to the tourist and sightseer more novelties and curiosities than perhaps any other spot on earth. The stage ride from Monida is through scenery hardly inferior to the park itself, and this ride is one of the very many enjoyments of the trip. The new route to the Yellowstone is via the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line Railroads to Monida, Montana, thence daily by palatial Concord coaches of the Monida & Yellowstone Stage Company to all points in the Yellowstone National Park. Full information cheerfully furnished on application to G. G. HERRING, G. A., 125 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. H. F. CARTER, T. P. A., 60 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont. Messrs. C. C. Richards & Co. Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes—so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your LINDIMENT to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected—a few applications completely curing the irritation, preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINDIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes. Yours truly, W. A. O.K.E. Harbor Grace, Nfld., Jan. 8, 1898. ENGLISH TEACHERS COMING. Toronto, July 22.—Hon. Richard Harcourt to-day received a letter from Hon. Geo. W. Ross, in which the Premier states that he will remain in England until the coronation takes place. The Premier also states that many English school teachers will make a tour of Canada during the present summer. Mr. Harcourt will arrange to have every facility afforded the teachers to see all that is to be seen in Ontario. The Premier states that he is in good health.

A GIRL OF THE PEOPLE

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson.

Somehow the time passed, and the doctor came. Afterwards, I heard that scarcely twenty minutes had gone by between the moment when Swift left me to take the message downstairs and that when he arrived. But the minutes seemed ten times twenty.

The doctor was an elderly man, with grey hair and keen eyes, and a concise way of speaking that inspired one with confidence. He asked questions as to my mother's previous state of health, smelt the medicine in the unlabelled bottle, and put it aside. Evidently it was not what was needed now.

He sounded the heart with his stethoscope, abruptly ordering Swift to get brandy and bring it to him as quickly as she could. Bending his face down, with his ear at the instrument, I saw his eyes suddenly fall upon the fresh button on my mother's arm.

For her sake I could have wished to hide it from him, for I knew how sensitive she had been regarding the scar, what anger she had shown when once, as a child, I had tactlessly asked her to tell me what it was and how it came to be there. But I had resisted the impulse to cover up the spot and concealed it from the doctor, thinking that the injury—which must have caused great pain and shock—might partially account for my mother's condition.

"What's that?" the old man brusquely asked, turning with a slight frown to me. "How did she burn herself?"

"I—don't know," I stammered. "She has been out, away from me for several hours, and only came in a few minutes before we went for you."

"Humph!" he muttered, his bushy brows drawing close together. "She has had a shock, and—the heart is very weak. You are her daughter?"

I nodded, for tears choked my voice. "I'm afraid I ought to warn you, then, that she is in great danger. If the action of the heart—"

Swift's return interrupted him. But I knew what he would have said, as well as if he had finished the sentence. "Cut the other sleeve open," he directed the maid. In an instant it was done, and with a tiny hypodermic syringe he injected brandy into the left arm.

This he did again and again, each time raising a slight lump with a tiny dot of red on the top, while I watched in silence, my heart beating fast in my throat.

At last her lips moved. "The—West Wing!" she said again, with a fluttering breath. The words ended in a long sigh. A curious, indescribable change came over her features. Never had she been so beautiful. Never had she looked, since I had known her, so thoroughly at peace.

The doctor's hand was on her breast, his eyes on the wonderful, marble face. For a long moment he did not move. Suddenly, my mother's long lashes quivered, and her eyes opened wide, black as mountain arms at midnight. Whatever she had seen before, when she had seemed to look through and beyond me, she now saw, or thought she saw, once more.

"Mother!" I cried out sharply. "What is it—oh! what is it?"

"My child," said the old doctor, "your mother has gone to sleep. She will not wake again in this world."

She was dead. And she had died seeing it.

CHAPTER IV. A Sound at the Door. Only one thing I recall distinctly in connection with that night, after the moment that brought the knowledge and shock of my mother's death. It seemed a trifle to stand out while other matters, more important, perhaps, mattered into the background of my mind, yet the great events of life are reared on a foundation of trifles.

When my mother's beautiful dead body, in all its bravery of mist-grey crepe and glittering stars of steel, was lifted from the sofa where I had laid her down to die, I noticed something that had passed unobserved before, in the excitement of her coming and her sudden illness.

I had half carried, half dragged her from the door to the lounge, after she had fallen against me, fainting, without removing the cloak that lay loosely over her shoulders, and when I placed her on the sofa, the wrap lay between her and the nest of cushions.

When they took her away it was still there, and as I stood staring dazedly at the place where she had been it was suddenly borne in upon me that this cloak was not the one which she had worn to the theatre; I had never seen it before.

She had gone out in a long, primrose-tinted wrap of satin, brocaded with great morigolds in shining threads of gold. She came home to die in a short wrap of lustrous black silk, lined with a deep shade of purple.

I shuddered at sight of the thing, remembering the black, jetted dress worn by the woman with the scar on her arm, the woman whom I could not help secretly regarding as my mother's murderer. I could not bear to see it lying where mother had lain, and in a sudden passion I seized the black, purple-lined garment and flung it viciously from the sofa into a far corner of the sitting-room, where it lay in a heap on the floor.

Next day my cousin, Roger Cope, came. He had inherited my father's title long ago, and was Sir Roger Cope. An estate which went with the baronetcy had also gone to him; but he had never lived there. The old home by the sea, in Dorsetshire, which I loved, had been my mother's. She and my father were distant cousins, and though Roger had inherited the title, as next-of-kin, after my father's death, he was even more nearly related to my mother.

Very little money had gone to Roger with the title and estates, for my father had been poor, my mother rich, and the new Sir Roger Cope let his place in Dorsetshire, living in town. He was a solicitor, and since mother and I had come to London for my first season, we had been twice invited to tea at his delightful old chambers in the Temple. When we were ready to leave the Coburg Hotel—Swift and I—for the and journey down to Dorsetshire, the maid came to me at the last moment, carrying the black, purple-lined cloak in her hand.

"What is it, miss?" she asked. "I never saw it before. It can't be yours—or my poor lady's. Was it—what she wore home that night—by mistake, perhaps?"

"Yes," I answered. "She wore it that night—"

I was about to add that the thing should be left in the hotel, where perhaps the owner would one day come to inquire for it, when I remembered that I might reproach myself later for letting a possible clue to the woman in black pass out of my hands.

"Give the wrap to me," I said instead. "I should like to look at it."

Swift laid the sombre folds over my arm, and I examined the purple lining for a pocket. There was one on each side, that on the left long and narrow, for the reception of a fan; that on the right only large enough for a purse and a handkerchief.

I plunged my hand into one after the other, and at first thought that both were empty. But into the corner of the purse-pocket was pushed a tiny, crumpled bit of paper. I pulled it out, smoothed it between my fingers, and saw that I had possessed myself of a small slip cut from the column of a newspaper.

"Lady Cope and her only daughter, Miss Sheila Cope," I read, "are spending the season at the Coburg Hotel, in Carlos place."

This gave me a new idea. I rang and sent for the manager. Of him I asked if it would be possible to find out, even now, whether anyone had called to see my mother while we were at the theatre on the evening of her death.

In a few moments word came back that a lady had called. She had seemed greatly disappointed at hearing that Lady Cope was out, and had inquired where she might be found. Our box for the theatre had been ordered by telephone from the hotel, therefore the lady had been informed that we were at the Lyceum.

The lady had been tall, dark, dressed and cloaked in black, and she had come in a cab. She had left no name, and nothing further as known about her. But it was enough to serve as an answer to the question I had asked. The woman in black had gone to the theatre in expectation of seeing my mother, and for that purpose alone. The meeting had not come about by chance. No one save the doctor who had attended my mother, Swift, and myself, knew that anything mysterious had happened that last night. Though the doctor had asked a question or two, and frowned in a puzzled way at the burn on her arm, he had not hesitated to certify that she had died from an acute attack of the heart disease which had troubled her, menacing her life for years.

Why the Heavens Need Grit. Fowls swallow their food, broken or not, and it enters the crop, or first stomach, and remains in it until it has become more or less softened, when a small quantity at a time (just as grain runs into a gizzard) is forced into the gizzard among the gravel stones.

The gizzard is a strong, muscular organ, and works night and day when there is a grist to grind, contracting and expanding, thus forcing the gravel stones into the grain, breaking it to fragments and softening the whole mass, after which the food is in a suitable condition to be quickly digested.

To put forth a thousand dollars' worth of labor and worry and foolishness to raise a hundred dollars for Christ that might have been procured by a direct religious appeal is a method of supporting the gospel more popular than religious.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette says that local option has paralyzed the saloon business in Hillsboro, Ohio. And yet the Gazette man says, "prohibition don't prohibit." Truly the legs of the lame are not equal.

An Embarrassing Honor. A certain head of a government department was invited to dine with others at a table with a cabinet minister. During the dinner the former, who happened to be placed between a door and a window, and had said nothing at all, began to mope.

"Are you taking cold, Mr. Brown?" asked the cabinet minister. "I believe I have that honor and pleasure," answered Mr. Brown, bowing, very respectfully.

There is wonderful wisdom in dealing with difficulties as they are when we cannot have them as we wish. Many men fall by the wayside because of unwillingness to take hold of timely warnings.

years. Any sudden shock would have aggravated this disorder, and the doctor was certain that some such shock she must have received. Beyond this he knew nothing, save that she had been absent from home for a few hours.

Swift was aware only that her mistress had not come back with me, and had returned later in a dying condition, while my knowledge was not of a kind to establish proof of foul play against any person or persons unknown.

I did not even believe that there had been actual foul play. I thought that there was a mystery; that some news of a disturbing nature had been revealed to my mother; that she had learned some secret which had come upon her with a great shock. I wished to find the woman in black, not through a hope of bringing her to justice, but because I was sure that my mother had tried to repeat to me the secret she had herself heard. I could think of no way of learning it, except from the woman who had shown the heart-shaped scar; and though I shrank with physical loathing from the thought of seeing her again, with her cat-eyes and wicked smile, still my reason told me that I must endeavor to do so if I could.

My mother had liked Roger Cope, but I did not like him; and I could not bring myself to confide in him, establishing new intimacy between us by relating to him the events of that unhappy night. I resolved to depend upon myself alone, and when I found the newspaper cutting in the pocket of the cloak, discovering, too, that the probable owner had called at the hotel, I would not encourage the impulse to rid myself of the hateful garment.

I determined to take it away with me to the country, and decide later upon a way of using it as a clue to the mystery. Perhaps I ought to have applied to Scotland Yard, calling in the assistance of the police. But I was reluctant to do this, for I felt that such a course would be abhorrent to my mother if she could know. Besides, there was really little to tell which could make the case seem an important one.

So I kept the cloak, already vaguely forming a plan in my mind concerning the newspaper cutting in the pocket of the cloak, discovering, too, that the probable owner had called at the hotel, I would not encourage the impulse to rid myself of the hateful garment.

We went directly down into the country, taking my mother's body; and Roger Cope went with us and was very kind. Then came the funeral; and it was on the night which followed that my memory begins again to paint vivid pictures of events.

I was tired out. A pall of desolation had fallen upon my spirits, and I had gone early to my room. Old friends of my mother's had come to me and tried to be kind, but it was a great relief to

I had thought that when I had sent Swift away and was quite by myself, above all things in the world it would do me good to cry—to cry till I should weep myself weary.

But when I stood by the window, in my long white cashmere dressing-gown, with only the cold glass between me and the stars, I felt that I had been looking forward to would not come. I had no longer any desire for tears. I could not even conceal my grief.

Suddenly I thought of the West Wing and the broken words my mother had stammered. Had she meant that I was to look for something and find it in the West Wing?

The West Wing was the oldest portion of a very old house; but there was nothing mysterious or secret about it, so far as I knew.

The chapel was there, unused for many a year. There was a great picture gallery, which was also a ball-room, and had a great quantity of musicians at one end. There were three or four little wainscoted rooms which had once been sacred to the family priest long ago and the sisters of Queen Mary. These connected with the chapel by a private staircase, and my mother had used the prettiest room in the suite, octagon-shaped and moon-windowed, for a study. She liked writing letters and reading there; and when she had been in the "octagon room" it was tacitly understood that she was "not at home" by nobody, and allowed to break in upon her writing or other studies.

COST OF A BOY.

The City Boy Will Cost Five The Usual Dollars to the Educated.

I read the other day that it cost five thousand dollars to bring up a city boy and educate him well. I said to myself: "That is because everything in the city has to be bought and living is high." But I began to study the thing, and I found out that even a country boy costs his parents a good deal.

When you count what a boy eats and what he wears, and the school books he has to have, and the doctor's bills that have to be paid when he gets the measles or the scarlet fever, he will cost his folks at home at least one hundred dollars a year. If a boy is pretty bad to smash things or to kick his shoes right out, he costs more than that. So when I am twenty-one and old enough to do for myself, I shall have cost father more than two thousand dollars.

Mother cooked my food, made my clothes and patches, then washed and ironed for me, took care of me when I was a little fellow and whenever I was sick, and she never charged anything for that. If she were dead and father had to hire all that done, it would cost me a hundred dollars a year more; and that's two thousand dollars' worth of work mother will have done for me by the time I am a man.

Four thousand dollars for a boy! what do you think of that? "Those hard times. When parents put four thousand dollars into a boy, what have they a right to expect of him? Is it fair for a boy to play truant at school? Is it fair for him to play ball, go in swimming, or hang around the city streets, or hang around his father's potatoes are not dug nor the wood brought in for his mother? Is it fair for him to disappoint when by swearing and drinking it is fair to forget his mother's neglect even to write them letters?

"Some of our parents have put about all of the property they have into our boys and girls. If we make whiskey dealers of ourselves, they will be poor indeed; but if we make good citizens and substantial men, they will feel as if they had good pay for bringing us up."

Boys, what are you worth to your parents?—The Advocate.

Brick Code Filtration.

A Yorkshire girl asks for a simple code of filtration, saying that she is familiar with the fan and handkerchief system, and wants to know if there is no other.

Here is a simple code—the brickbat filtration:

Picking up brick from the street—I am waiting for you.
Carrying brick in right hand—I am watching for you.
Carrying brick in left hand—I feel secure.

Bitting corner of brick—love you.
Rubbing brick on nose—Write to me.

Wrapping brick in handkerchief—I doubt.

Beware of the neighbors.

Balancing brick on chin—We are watched.

Striking back of head with brick—I am married.

Scratching ear with brick—Don't speak to me.

Throwing brick at stranger's head—I want to make an impression.

Putting brick in pocket—We are safe.

This code has the advantage of being certain to attract attention, and bricks are always to be found even when your fan is at home—Answers

Nervous Trick.

Very few are totally free from any trick of manner or involuntary movement.

These may generally be traced to nervousness of some kind or another which prevents the person from remaining perfectly still at any time.

Among the tricks which strike the observer most is that of twisting a button or watch-chain round and round while talking.

We know a lady who washes her hands with "terrible water and imperceptible soap" the whole time she is speaking to you.

But with this exception we fear that it is the much abused male sex that is most afflicted with nervous tricks.

A man will turn his neck, or his mouthache for hours, or if he has a beard will stroke it if engaged in any work requiring thought.

Running the fingers through the hair is generally a failing of literary people, so is the habit of walking up and down the room while speaking or thinking.

The most irritating of all are the tricks of biting the nails and tapping the foot on the floor.

Nothing makes us feel more uncomfortable than to hear the clicking noise of the nails and teeth coming in contact with one another.

Even schoolboys have their tricks of curling up the leaves of their books and so causing what is technically called a dog-ear on the page.

Baby's Increase in Weight.

The increase in weight depends upon the age of the baby, also the food.

An infant under six months should gain from four to eight ounces a week; from six to twelve months, not quite so much. Children fed on prepared foods gain more rapidly in flesh but are not as vigorous in other ways.

After three months a baby may be considered ready for short clothes. If the weather should be a little cool, keep the feet and legs warmly clothed, and do not make the skirts too short; make them just long enough to reach the feet. Every healthy child needs to have free use of its arms and legs, and these members would be stronger and develop more rapidly if babies were so hampered with long and heavy skirts.

Prof. Fleming, in a recent lecture on waves, at the Royal Institution, said that the common notion of the immense length and height of the Atlantic waves was a fallacy.

The longest did not exceed 200 feet, and commonly they did not exceed 100 feet. Instead of waves "mountain high," scientific measurements showed that the highest known waves were no more than 40 feet in height.

THE SICK ROOM.

Suggestions for Assisting in Bringing Back the Normal Condition of the Patient.

Nothing is so exasperating to an invalid as to have attendants or members of the family whispering about something or other. The sick person is generally in more or less nervous excitement, and even if it were otherwise, nervous excitement would be produced by the whispering. The mystery of it is irritating. No matter how weak or apparently unconscious the patient may be, in nine cases out of ten he is trying to hear what is being said.

A loud whisper, "Do you think he is going to live?" or even, "Hush; you mustn't come in here!" is alarming, and lessens the chance of recovery. Whatever must be said should be in an ordinary tone of voice. There should be no mystery about the sick room.

Gas logs, or gas stoves, are now, for two reasons, used much in the sick room. Their use involves less noise, and they are always ready to light. Care must be taken, however, that there is no leak in the connections, for hardly anything is more insidious in its effect on a sick person than escaping gas. A vessel of water with a large surface should always be placed near the stove or the hearth where the log is burning, to moisten the atmosphere of the apartment. A boiling kettle on a gas stove, when the stove is used, is even better.

In sudden illness those who attend the sick are too much inclined to fly to stimulants, especially brandy. It is a principle of first aid to the injured that when there is bleeding, even when fainting has ceased, alcohol should never be given, for it causes increased heart action, with a consequent increased loss of blood. This is particularly important to remember in cases of bleeding from the lungs.

When a person faints he should be laid flat on his back, and all articles of clothing that appear tight should be loosened. Fresh air should be admitted to the room, smelling salts or hartshorn should be applied to the nostrils, and the face and head bathed with cold water. If neither salts nor hartshorn can be found, a smouldering rag will often revive the patient. When the person has regained consciousness, the fainting was not accompanied by bleeding or the result of bleeding, then a small quantity of brandy or other alcoholic stimulant may be safely administered.

Many doctors still encourage the use of the old-fashioned mustard plasters or the flaxseed and bread and milk poultices of our grandmothers' time. When a mustard plaster or a hot poultice is removed, it is important to dry the parts quickly and cover with flannel or cotton wool. This is to prevent cold from exposure.

The sick room should be a large and cheery apartment. The windows must be arranged so that the room can be darkened when necessary. Often the glare of too much light in a large room is as depressing to a patient as the stiffness of a small one. Once a day the patient should be well wrapped up, and the room aired, no matter what the weather may be. Rugs are better than carpets, and a good matting better than either. Bent wood or wicker furniture is preferable to that which is upholstered.

Every day, if possible, there should be a change in the general effect produced by rearranging chairs or by changing the place of pictures or by hanging new ones. But the value of this will be lost unless the changes are made when the patient is unconscious of them. Do not always have the bed dressed exactly the same. Change the white counterpane for one that has some color.

If the health of the sick person permits it, shift the bed occasionally from one side of the room to another or change the head for the foot. All these things break the monotony of the sick room and assist as much as medicine in bringing back the normal condition of health and spirits.

Kidney Troubles of Children.

There are many mothers blessing Dr. Fitcher and his wonderful Backache-Kidney Tablets. This remedy has proved so successful for that serious affliction of children—bed wetting—that mothers rejoice to know of a positive cure. The Tablets have a strengthening and tonic influence on the weak urinary organs of children and enable them to retain their water naturally.

Don't let your child grow up with this weakness blighting his life. Have the trouble cured in time before it does permanent injury to the health.

THE DIFFICULTY REMOVED.

Mrs. W. M. Glover, Pearl Street, Brockville, Ont., says: "One of my children that had been suffering from sluggish kidneys read about Dr. Fitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets, and procured a bottle from F. R. Curry's drug store. They removed the whole difficulty promptly. That depressing pain over the kidneys stopped, dizziness and headaches ceased, and there was a general invigorating of the system. There is no question regarding the merits of these Tablets for the back and kidneys."

WORLD OF SPORT

BOWLING

London, Ont., July 22.—The seventh annual tournament of the Western Ontario Bowling Association commenced at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, on the lawns of the London Bowling Club. From present indications the event will be the most successful in every sense of any tournament yet held by the Association, for the attendance is greater, the quality of the bowling better, and the good fellowship 'twixt man and man more in evidence than ever before, which is saying a very great deal.

No less than forty-three different rinks took part in the preliminary and first rounds of the contest for the Labatt trophy, which were completed yesterday afternoon. Of these, thirteen were local rinks. The remaining thirty represented the following cities and towns of Western Ontario: Clinton, Ridgeway, Peterborough, Walkerville, Seaforth, Woodstock, St. Thomas, Dresden, Paris, Mitchell, Aylmer, Brussels, Strathroy, Goderich, Brampton and Blenheim. The quality of the bowling is indicated by the close scores, hardly a single rink being able to make a runaway race of it.

All three Chatham rinks were beaten in the first round and will not be able to enter the second round. J. Soverby's rink, which won the tankard last year, was beaten in the preliminary round yesterday by the Chater rink from Walkerville. There is now no chance of Chatham's winning the trophy. The Chatham rinks scores:

Chatham—L. E. Tillson, G. B. Merritt, A. H. VonGanten, J. Soverby, skip—49.
Walkerville—J. Radford, E. O'Neill, F. J. White, W. Chater, skip—23.

A BIG FIGHT

San Francisco, July 22.—Manager Delaney announces that Jim Jeffries is in the finest fettle, and will climb through the ropes Friday night for a reputation.

Jeffries is alternating in his days of heavy work. To avoid the stale condition he goes at his work like a trojan on one day and on the next relaxes somewhat. This method he finds agrees with him, and it keeps him on a vigorous edge.

Jeffries has taken on nine pounds in 36 hours, but this is not extraordinary for a man of his general proportions. He now weighs in the neighborhood of 225 pounds. He expects to tip the beam at or about 217 when he fights. Jeffries will continue his training in this city to-day, doing road work in the park and light gymnastic exercises at the Olympic club.

The canvas covered pavilion in which the fighting will take place is nearing completion.

The platform of the ring is in place, and a sort of wooden canopy to hold the lights has been built over it. The ring is of oval shape, with all the seats built on the ground except the gallery, which consists of eight tiers of boards similar to the bleachers at a ball ground, rising at an angle that will give all occupants an uninterrupted view of the encounter. To economize space as much as possible the seats have been placed very close together, and the distance from the centre of the ring to the most distant part of the enclosure is only 57 feet.

FITZ NEVER BETTER.

San Francisco, July 22.—Geo. Dawson, who supervised the training of Fitz, is in the best of health, in good condition and immediately upon his arrival turned to George Siller and said: "What do you think of him?" pointing to Bob. "Did you ever see him looking better?"

Fitz indeed looked the picture of health and a highly conditioned athlete. His skin was clear, his eyes bright and his general appearance all that Dawson claimed for him.

The veteran is completely loaded down with confidence. He cannot see how he can lose and talks as if Jeff was the easiest proposition he ever tackled in his life.

"All I want," he said, "is a clean-cut, fair, stand-up fight. I am giving away fully and weight—quite a handicap, you must acknowledge—and I do not want that big fellow to pull and haul me all over the

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost conscientiousness and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception. The anxieties of the sick and their relatives are traded upon in the most shameful manner; impossible cures are promised; many preparations are also being worthless, and some are positively dangerous to health.

As a consequence, all proprietary remedies are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

ring. Every second he lays the weight of his big carcass on me will have its effect, especially if the fight should go a long distance. I do not want him to hang on me and deprive me of my strength. I am going into the ring to fight and not to act as a meat hook for him to hang his weight on. I am supposedly the weaker man, and do not care to have my handicap increased by carrying him around upon my shoulders; neither do I want him to bother me into submission with his bulky shoulders.

"He has a trick of slipping blows by ducking his head in and toward an opponent's left and backing his left shoulder into his body. These shoulder blows, for they are nothing else, are more effective than some blows delivered with the gloves, and I have instructed Referee Graney to keep his weather eye open regarding them. Of course, I know that at times those shoulder blows, or butts, or whatever you may care to call them, are purely accidental and cannot be avoided, but when they come too often they are intentional and, therefore, are foul. Graney says he will caution Jeff about this trick, and I will see to it before I put up my hands that he has done so.

"I know I can win with an even break—that is, in a fair, manly, stand-up fight, according to the strict interpretation of the Queensberry rules—and I am going to demand the rules be strictly enforced, even to the size of the ring, which must be 24 feet square."

Graney, in speaking of the rules, said he had had a heart-to-heart talk with Fitz and Jeff, and that they both had agreed to box fair.

"Jeff, he said, 'does not care to argue the rule question, saying he would leave that to Bob. What suits Fitz will suit me, is about all Jim would say about the rules. I do not anticipate any trouble. They both understand the conditions under which they agreed to fight, and I am sure they will live up to them. There will be no hitting with one arm free, as neither of the men cares about that style of fighting. I will, however, permit the man who is not holding to smash the one that is until he compels him to let go. When they fall into a clinch, which they naturally will despite the rule, there shall be no hugging or wrestling. I will order them to break and the man who don't obey my order will get a severe call down, and numerous repetitions of the infringement of that rule are apt to cause the disqualification of the offender. They are both strong men and if they are not inclined to break when commanded, I am sure I could not pull them apart, and furthermore, do not intend to believe, though it will be a clean fight and easy to handle, at least I hope so."

Jeff would not argue the rules, and laughed at the idea of his being compelled to hang on, or hug, or use his shoulder as a battering ram, or to use any other unfair methods to defeat Fitz.

"I can hit hard enough with my hands to win, and do not have to bring my wrist or forearm into play to settle a man, as does Fitz. He hit me over the eye with his wrist at Coney Island and I caught him with my gloved hand. I'll do it again."

Our $10.00 Worsted Suit

We're outspoken about this suit. There isn't such another being sold in Ontario for the price.

Some store may sell equal cloth—we're doubtful of it—and some other store may give you equal trimmings or making, but as for all three together—why we couldn't do it ourselves with any body else's equipment.

This is a gentlemanly suit. You'll look in vain for any sign of readymadness inside or out.

Sack suits of fine imported, all wool, worsted, black, blue, or mixed grey, made with single breasted vest. The tailoring and linings are such as you look for in ordered work. Padded shoulders, all seams serged; made to last. $10

Ghosts would frighten many people who are not afraid of germs. Yet the germ is a real danger. If this microscopic animal could be magnified to a size in proportion to its deadliness it would show like a giant python, or fire breathing dragon. The one fact to remember is that the germ is powerless to harm the body when the blood is pure. It is far easier to keep the germ out than to drive it out than to drive it out after it obtains a hold in the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most powerful and perfect of blood purifying medicines. It increases the quantity as well as the quality of the blood, and enables the body to resist disease, or to throw it off if disease has obtained a footing in some weak organ. Wherever the digestion is impaired, the nutrition of the body is diminished, for the blood is made from the food which is eaten, and half digested food cannot supply the body with blood in quantity and quality adequate to its needs. For this condition there is no remedy equal to "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred persons who give it a fair trial. When there is constipation, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will promptly relieve and permanently cure.
