GERMAN EAST AFRICA INVADED BY THE PORTUGUESE FORCES

Troops Occupy Miobo and Katibus, Advancing Towards Other Posts - Natives Willingly Accept Portuguese Control

By Courier Leased Wire. Lisbon, via Paris, Sept. 23.—An extensive invasion of German East Africa by Portuguese troops is reported in an official statement issued by the War Office. The statement says: "After the passage of the Rovuma River our columns advanced eight miles and occupied Miobo. The left column seized Katibus and the German barracks, and then proceeded toward Macoas. The columns on the centre and right, marching toward the Migomba depot, reached Taketo on Rovuma Bay. The enemy retreated in the direction of Saswara west of Lindi. The natives willingly accepted Portuguese domination."

Germany declared war on Portugal on March 9, and a month later the Portuguese military commander in Africa reported that he had occupied Kionga, a port on the border of German and Portuguese East Africa. Since then there have been no reports of any activity by the Portuguese. The greater part of the German colony is in the hands of the Belgians and South Africans, according to the official statements from London and Havre.

SERGENT G. SCOTT KILLED IN ACTION

Terrace Hill Veteran of 36th Makes Supreme Sacrifice Other Local Casualties.

The Canadian casualty lists from the recent Somme offensive continue of very great length, and give but small evidence of any diminution. In today's lists, received over the Courier's leased wire, appear some more local names. The most recent casualties are:

Killed in Action

Sergt. G. Scott, Terrace Hill. Wounded. Capt. A. G. E. Smith, 69 Corners, Lance Corp. Geo. Walkley, Paris. Lt. Hugh Sykes, Rosedale.

To Mrs. G. Scott of Terrace Hill street came yesterday the sad intelligence that her husband, Sergt. G. Scott, had made the supreme sacrifice of his life at the front. Sergt. Scott was a man and a patriot of the truest and highest type. Enlisting in the 36th reserve battalion, he accompanied that unit overseas to England, where he was retained because of his valuable services in instructing and training younger troops. Some few months ago he returned to Canada in charge of a party of invalided soldiers, visiting his home here for a short time, but being desirous of returning as soon as possible to England and the front. He was offered sergeant's stripes with a battalion here, but preferred to return and win his promotion upon the field, which he did.

He had only been at the front a short time when he was killed in action upon Sept. 11th last.

Sergt. Scott was of Canadian nationality, a married man, and resided at the time of his enlistment at 12 Dundas street. He had had three years' service in the Second Dragoons and one year in the Dufferin Rifles. Capt. A. G. E. Smith, attached to the bombing section of the 20th battalion, is a son of Chief A. G. Smith, of the Indian Reserve. It is the second time that he has been wounded. He was wounded at Brantford and to his home on furlough in March last, leaving since then for the front once more. A brother of Capt. Smith is a captain in the 114th battalion.

Pte. Whitham Mrs. Whitham, 107 Clarence St., was notified yesterday that her stepson, John R. Whitham, had been wounded, and was admitted to Oakbank war hospital, Glasgow on the 19th of September.

Pte. Whitham left Brantford more than a year ago, enlisting through the 3rd University Corps in the Princess Pats, which famous regiment has been prominent in the recent fighting. Mrs. Wall, of 181 Chatham St. is a sister of Pte. Whitham.

Lieut. Hugh Sykes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney B. Sykes of Rosedale, is in a London hospital with a severe flesh wound. He is a nephew of Mrs. Hugh McK. Wilson of this city.

STEAMER CAPTURED

By Courier Leased Wire. Berlin, Sept. 23.—(By wireless to Sayville)—The capture by German sea forces of the British steamship Colchester on Thursday night was semi-officially reported to-day by the Overseas News Agency. The Colchester was taken to Zebrugge, Belgium. The Colchester, 1,209 tons gross, and 280 feet long, was built at Hull in 1888, and owned in Harwich.

BRILLIANT VICTORY WAS CANADIANS, CAPTURED 1200 HUNS AND TWO GUNS

Took Positions of Foe on a Very Wide Front and to Depth of 2000 Feet - Troops From all Parts of Dominion Figured Gallantly in Great Drive

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The Canadian general representative at the front sends the following account of recent important operations participated in by the troops from the Dominion, including the capture of Courcellette and adjacent positions.

Canadian Corps Headquarters in France, Sept. 22.—The Canadian troops have been actively participating in the great battle of the Somme. Already, in a series of brilliant attacks they have forced the Germans back for over a mile beyond their original line. They have captured Mouquet Farm, having finally overcome a desperate resistance; they have attacked and carried the sugar refinery and its lines of connecting trenches, and then following up this success with a boldness of plan and action of execution not excelled in this war they have on the same day organized and delivered fresh attacks which made them masters of the whole village of Courcellette. The Canadians have taken over 1,200 prisoners, including thirty-two officers, together with two guns, a large number of machine guns and several heavy minenwerfers, or trench mortars, and in the course of the heavy and sustained fighting they have inflicted very serious losses upon the enemy.

Canadian Scottish There A Montreal battalion was the first to enter the battle, coming up through a heavy hostile barrage to the assistance of hard-pressed troops practically in the middle of an attack. They were closely followed by the Canadian Scottish, which includes men from Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Hamilton) and by a Toronto battalion. These battalions, although they delivered no assault, were given a very difficult and trying task to perform. They were heavily shelled in trenches newly dug or recently captured from the enemy and the exact location of which it was difficult—almost impossible—to determine. Yet despite very adverse conditions, they consolidated their trenches and repelled several hostile bombing attacks. At one time there was considerable movement remarked near Mouquet Farm. Men were seen jumping from shell hole to shell hole, and finally a large party in full marching order attempted to approach the farm. Our men opened fire and dispersed them.

BOMBED WORKS

By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, Sept. 23.—12.05 p. m.—Flying nearly 100 miles beyond the German border, Flight Lieutenant Warrant Officer Baron last night bombed the important works at Ludwigshafen, in the Palatinates on the Rhine, and at Mannheim, across the river from Ludwigshafen. The official report of to-day says the bombardment caused a large fire and several explosions at Mannheim.

BRITISH RAIDED FOE TRENCHES

Made Successful Attacks on Struma Front—Transport Bombed.

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Sept. 23.—12.20 p. m.—"On the Struma front our patrols successfully raided enemy trenches in the neighborhood of Komarian, causing casualties," says the official report of to-day in regard to the Macedonian campaign. "Our naval air craft bombed an enemy transport near Drama apparently with good results. On the Doiran front we raided enemy trenches at three points."

Take More Hun Trenches

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Sept. 23.—2.35 p. m.—German trenches on a front of about half a mile, east of Courvelette in the Somme region, were captured by the British last night, the War Office announced to-day.

NOW ESTIMATED AT ABOUT 4000

This Is Figure Now Set on Canadian Casualties in Somme Fight.

By Courier Leased Wire. Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The casualty figures in the Canadian big engagement on the Somme, now amounts to about 4,000, the dead numbering approximately 900. In addition to the numbers announced in yesterday's reports to the militia department, reports to-day indicate between 400 and 500 killed, 1,790 wounded and 300 missing. Miss Dora Duke will continue this year on the staff of the Academy of Music. By an omission, Miss Duke's name was omitted in the annual fall announcement.

WORKERS IN CONTEST REAP THEIR REWARD IF THEY BUT SMILE AND WORK

Feel Confident, Be Energetic and Enthusiastic, Pleasant and Persevering and Success Will Crown Your Efforts

There's a heap of satisfaction, In the contest if you grin, If you keep your nerve in action And wear a lifted chin. There's joy in doing something, That you never did before. So don't be a deaf and dumb thing—Chance is knocking at your door.

It's in overcoming trouble That a fellow gets his fun; It's the shattering of the bubble That is labelled "can't be done" And the harder that your fight is Knowing that you have succeeded That makes life worth the living; and so in a competition like this, it is the fun of working, the interest of the rivalry that makes the prize worth more than the mere cash value. Be "truly game." Go into the contest as if you really meant to win first prize—and mean to. Organize business like methods of conducting your campaign of votes. This is essential to success in contesting for the $1,500 offered in prizes by the Courier.

Work hard yourself, collect coupons, solicit subscriptions, make personal canvasses, but exert your best efforts as a director and organizer. Enlist your family, relatives and friends, business associates, school chums, society and other people with whom you come in contact. Train them as a well disciplined army to work in your behalf. Do not attempt to shoulder the whole burden yourself. It is a poor friend who will not come to your assistance in the fight for a Courier prize.

Enthusiasm Yourself The live wire is the only effective wire. Be one yourself. Be full of energy charged to the limit of power. It will carry you far and will at once communicate a spark of enthusiasm to the person whom you are trying to interest in your candidacy. You can't give what you don't possess and unless you feel confidence, energy and enthusiasm you cannot arouse interest among your friends. Whenever you feel your spirit flag—sing refresh it with one of these thoughts. You know the prizes are worth a whole lot of effort. Every single candidate meets with a disappointment now and then. If a friend disappoints you, perhaps someone whom you expected nothing of may surprise you the other way. Try him. A Hard Fight Wins Friends If you are a hard fighter, if you make your struggle for the big prize warm and interesting, people will want to help you. They will feel that it is their campaign as well as yours. The normal man likes a good fight, and you can make him feel that he is an active, important, perhaps determining factor in a real man-sized prize for the winner. If you are a leader, a thinker, an organizer, a worker, you can clip out the nomination coupon in this paper, send it in, get busy and come out on top. Time to Get Busy. The contest is yet young; many are just beginning to realize what it means to produce a handsome prize for a few week's work. This offer really marks the start of the campaign opener and gives an excellent chance to make a good get-away. No one has, as yet, accomplished very much in the way of vote getting but soon all your rivals will get busy and you can't afford to loaf. Make a strong start now and see to it that no one gains an advantage over you. You Have a Large Following. Remember that you have just as many friends and just as large a following as anyone else in the contest and have just as good a chance to succeed if you get at it in the right manner. You can't fail to win if you try. Instead of asking your friends for a favor, you are giving without the paper that prints all the news. Tackle everyone you meet and see what a big vote you can roll up. Remember candidates, that Success and Failure have the same in the contest and which you wish to be depends entirely upon your efforts now, while the votes are large.

PREMIER HEARST RECEIVED BADGE

From Fred Kerr, Former County Constable, Now with 75th.

On his visit to France this week, Premier Hearst inspected a number of Canadian units, including the 75th Battalion, to which a very large number of the men who enlisted in this city in the 84th battalion, were drafted. Premier Hearst was presented with a German metal cap badge by the Sergeant major of the 75th battalion, no other than ex-County Constable Fred Kerr of Brantford, who, after going overseas with the Mississauga Horse, became attached to the 75th.

STRIKE ENDED

By Courier Leased Wire. Athens, Sept. 21, via London, Sept. 23.—The strike of the street car employes in Athens and Piraeus has been ended through the intervention of the cabinet. The settlement of this strike has averted a general walkout which was threatened. The street car employes struck on September 11th on account of the increased cost of living. Postal and telegraph employes threatened to join the strikers and labor troubles were reported at the same time in many other industries.

XMAS SHOPPING IN GERMANY

Will Be Done Under Difficulties Unless System Is Changed.

By Courier Leased Wire. Berlin, Sept. 22.—Via London, Sept. 23.—The Greater Berlin Association of retail dealers in clothing, haberdashery, textiles, etc., has again petitioned the imperial chancellor to so alter the present card system for the purchase of their supplies between November 1 and December 24 as to enable the public to do its ordinary Christmas shopping, which apparently is going to be difficult. The Association suggests that in addition to the regular cards issued to people desiring to purchase for themselves they also be given cards to show when they intend making gifts, especially for relatives in the field. Warning is given that if this is not done it is probable that Christmas gifts this year will consist largely of cash, to the great injury of business. The trade complains unambiguously that the Germans have confiscated goods months in advance, of taking them for military purposes, and then makes no allowance for depreciation, interest, loss on investment and storage—costs that make therefore that all confiscated goods be taken up within three months of their confiscation, with a full allowance for the costs involved. Come and look over the splendid display of autumn and winter wearing apparel. Many special values for to-night's selling. E. B. Crompton and Co., Limited.

Following is the detailed report:

THE RESIGNATION

Of Ven. Archdeacon Mackenzie Is Understood to Have Been Made.

It is understood that the Venerable Archdeacon Mackenzie has asked to be relieved of his duties as rector of Grace Church, a position which he has filled with honor to himself and pride to the community for thirty-seven years. It was in 1879 that the Archdeacon took charge of the parish, and his ministry has throughout been of the most inspiring and uplifting nature. Under his zealous efforts, other churches have been established throughout the city, in addition to the parent parish. In addition to his promotion as Archdeacon, other honors have deservedly fallen to his lot, including that of D.D. In season and out of season, the rev. gentleman has worked unceasingly in the vineyard of the Master, and he deservedly enjoys the very highest respect and esteem of all classes and of all denominations in this community. The same also can be unreservedly said of Mrs. Mackenzie, who has throughout his long pastorate, proved a veritable helpmeet. That both will yet have many years of happiness together, will be the sincere wish of everyone.

SPORTS DAY FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

This is Proposed by Members of School Board as Feature of Celebration.

Brantford's proposed celebration of the semi-centennial of the Dominion, which is slated for July 1st next, has at once become popular with every citizen. Some time ago a member of the Board of Education wrote a letter to the press, outlining a field day programme for scholars, which it was then proposed should be an annual event. There is every reason to think that this should become a fixture in this city, much the same as is done in many of the larger centres, and the proposal to add it as a feature to the coming celebration will undoubtedly meet with unanimous favor. To promote and foster many national sports, it is only necessary to begin with the younger generation, and no method can be found which will offer more opportunities along this line than the formation of school clubs and the holding of competitions each year.

To The Editor

Brantford, Sept. 23rd, 1916. To Editor Courier, Sir,—Quite a racket was raised with the Mayor about the inside of our public waiting room on the market square, but I've never heard anything said about outside as it stands to-day. I would like to ask through your paper, who gave the permit for a fruit and peanut stand to cover up part of the brick work which is I consider, very detrimental to the appearance, and should not be allowed. Another thing, just where that is situated, all the room is needed for pedestrians, as notice on very busy days, some have to step out in the road to the danger of being knocked down by passing autos, etc. Another reason,—health. Last night, whilst waiting for a car, I saw men lounging up against the building, constantly spitting in the corner, there to breed all kinds of disease. Another reason,—the janitor to-day seemed to be unable to get at the windows to do his work properly. I also saw our three Street Railway Commissioners standing peacefully within, taking stock, and I would like to hear from those gentlemen on the subject. Thanking you, and oblige, STEPHEN CAYLESS, 163 Terrace Hill Street.

Hun Prisoners Number 55,000

Paris, Sept. 23.—It was officially announced by the war office last night that according to new accounts the total number of prisoners taken by the Franco-British troops since July 1st, when the Somme offensive began, up to September 18, is more than 55,000, of whom 34,050 were taken by the French troops. This makes an average of nearly 700 prisoners taken daily in 80 days.

To the Grave

The funeral service of the late Lewis Benedict was held on Tuesday afternoon last, at his late residence, 31 Chatham street, where a large company of representative citizens gathered to pay their last loving tribute to the deceased. Rev. Llewellyn Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church, where he has been a constant member for almost 40 years, was in charge of the service, and read fitting passages of Scripture and led in prayer. Mr. George Kippax, an old time friend of the family, gave the address. It was a worthy tribute to a noble life. He said his recollection of Lewis Benedict went back to his boyhood, as he had known him intimately, as he had a child. "Mr. Benedict," he continued, "was a quiet man and would not want me to say much regarding him. But he could say that he was a man whose integrity in business was never questioned. He could not imagine him doing a mean, dishonest, over-reaching, underhanded deed. His splendid service to the church, where he was an active member and office bearer, was known to all. His service in the City Council and to all good objects, was known to all who knew the history of Brantford for the last 50 years. He was a man who could be counted on to do the right thing and to lend his influence to every good work, whether it were the church, the Bible Society or temperance reform. His life in the home had been a model one and he had lived to see his children follow in his footsteps. It was as a Christian man that he admired him most. He was a quiet, humble, consistent follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, and would so be best remembered by his friends. Mrs. Leeming led in the singing of "Abide with Me," after which Venerable Archdeacon Mackenzie, a warm friend of the deceased, pronounced the benediction. Interment was in Farringdon cemetery, conducted by the pastor and Mr. George Kippax.

A BUDGET OF NEWS FOR THOSE INTERESTED IN LABOR IN THE WORLD OF LABOR GLEANED FROM THE EXCHANGES AND OTHER SOURCES

The strike of the International Bookbinders in Detroit, Mich., is still effective, and victory is clearly in sight. The Railroad Telegrapher puts it right when it says: Women are as intelligent as men. We employ them in our public schools and "permit" them to rear our children. They assist in making the home. Why should they not help protect their joint property? Gas workers in Salt Lake City who were working 12 hours a day for a wage of 23 cents an hour, recently formed a union and forced down the hours of labor to nine a day and wages up to 30 1-2 cents per hour. In a recent speech in the United States Senate, Senator Dillingham stated that the number of non-English speaking emigrants had increased from 900,000 in 1900 to 2,800,000 in 1910, and that this condition constitutes a menace to American institutions. The Midvale Steel Works of Philadelphia, Pa., has granted the 8-hour day to its machinists, and these craftsmen, who called a general 8-hour strike last July, have scored a tremendous success, as the Midvale plant is one of the largest in the country. The Denver Trades and Labor Assembly has unanimously sustained the Colorado State Federation of Labor in its condemnation of the state law which makes it illegal for workers to strike before they have given 30 days' notice to the industrial commission. Local unionists will ask legislative candidates for their views on this question. Girls employed by the American Bakeries-Candy Company, of Birmingham, Ala., suspended work when their wages were reduced 25 per cent. Former rates were 4 cents for wrapping 48 loaves of bread. This was cut to 3 cents. The girls were unorganized when they struck, but have since formed a union. Trade unionists in Kansas City, Mo., have raised a warning cry against Judge Porterfield of Jackson County Juvenile Court, who favors an amendment to the state labor law permitting children 12 years of age or over to work during the school vacation, his reason being that if these children were at work they would be out of mischief and less frequent visitors before him. This is how the new season's labor works at the head office of the lakes, according to the Duluth Labor World: "If it were not for the seamen's act it is hard to say just how far lake steamship men would go in making trips with short crews and forcing men to work overtime. With a heavy fine attached to such offenses there is a beneficial effect, in that masters will attempt to keep their crews up to the required standard." A theatrical strike of paper cutters affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders was averted in Cincinnati, O., when the employers finally agreed to a $1 per day increase in wages with an additional fifty per cent increase the following year. It is said that Germany proposes to prohibit immigration from the Empire after the war. It is already recognized by German employers that they will never again be able to get labor as cheap as previous to the war, and that the labor problem will be a serious one after hostilities have ceased. The Waterproof Garment Workers' Union of Greater New York has signed a union agreement with the waterproof manufacturers' association, which concedes the eight-hour day.

Operators are to receive hereafter 75 cents an hour, but sewers $18 per week. About one thousand workers were benefited. This victory was followed by the independent manufacturers employing about 3,000 hands, agreeing to the same conditions. The Raincoat Workers are affiliated with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. "So far as individual unions are concerned, mention may be made of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, which, in point of funds, easily retains first place among registered British trade organizations. The funds of this union as a result of an increase during the year of 16 per cent, now exceed $5,000,000. On 31st December there were upon the register 690 unions. The membership of the 643 unions making returns was over 16,250,000. The income reached nearly $24,500,000. About $4,450,000 was expended in unemployment insurance benefit, nearly $3,350 in disputes, $3,000,000 in sickness and accident benefit, $800,000 in funeral benefit and a further $2,700,000 in benefits of a miscellaneous character." "There is no such thing as an open or closed shop," says Paul Scharenberg, secretary of the California State Federation of Labor. "A shop is either union or non-union. The chamber of commerce is trying to establish the non-union shop in San Francisco. The so-called open shop is open only to those who are willing to work long hours for low wages. The so-called closed shop is closed to union men, like the United Railroads Company. In the union shop there is collective bargaining between employer and employee. In the non-union shop there is no such thing as collective bargaining. The employer dictates wages and hours and the employee can accept them or quit."

Especially notable results were secured by this and previous bombardments of the aerodromes at St. Denis Westrem, says the announcement, which follows: "The enemy aerodrome at St. Denis Westrem was again attacked yesterday by a squadron of naval aeroplanes. The results appeared to be highly satisfactory. "Reliable reports now at hand show that every considerable damage and many casualties had been caused by previous bombardments of this objective. Red Sox are Still Winning

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—Boston won 4 to 1 from Cleveland in a pitchers' battle between Shore and Bagby. Only one hit of the eight registered by the two teams was wasted. Cleveland's only run came as the result of Speaker's hit and steal and Roth's single, with two out and the bases full. Speaker hit what looked to be a double against the right field wall but the heavy gate caught the ball and blew it back, allowing Hooper to catch it just inside the wall. THE PLANT

At the Dominion Steel Products Company Is Going Ahead at a Very Rapid Gait. A Courier man to-day paid a visit to the new plant of the Dominion Steel Products Company. It is situated on Reed Street alongside the Lake Erie and Northern Railway track, and the progress made in the short time since the commencement was made is little short of remarkable. The steel frame for the main building, 370 feet by 90 feet is all ready up and a large part of the brickwork accomplished. The bricks will go up to the windows and after that steel sashes will be placed. The building is to be completed by October 25th, and will undoubtedly be finished on time. Already some of the cement flooring has been placed. The L. E. and N. are laying down a switch alongside of the building and a line will also be run down the centre of the structure for the easier unloading of cars with raw material. In a temporary separate building many thousands of dollars worth of machines are ready awaiting installation.

Detroit Broke Losing Streak

The Italian Generalissimo, Count Luigi Cadorna, has not only achieved a brilliant feat of arms, a historical service to his country, but has gratified what must have been the warm wish of his heart. Austria has always been Italy's hereditary enemy. The Cadornas have been for generations ornaments of the Italian armies and among its most trusted military leaders. In the Italian-Austrian war in 1866 Count Raphael Cadorna, father of Luigi, led his army to Goritz when the historical objective was, as it is to-day the capture of Trieste, Austria's sole commercial seaport. What ever Count Raphael might have done to secure on this side to Italy, Italia Irredenta, will never be known, as the war came to a sudden termination with the signing of peace on the banks of the Isonzo, at the edge of the Carso plateau. Count Luigi, therefore, takes up the work on the very spot where his father was forced by the politicians to give it up.

Luigi Cadorna was born at Pallanza, on Lago Maggiore, in 1850. In Pallanza the old men still remember his boyish games, always fights against the "Austrians." At ten years of age he entered the military college at Milan, and his capacity and industry enabled him to pass the examinations of the college at fifteen. He remained for three years in the higher military school at Turin, and in 1868, when only 18 years of age, was promoted sub-lieutenant and was appointed to the staff of his father, who, fearing that favoritism might be charged, promptly displaced him. His last two years of study were passed in the turmoil of the war against Austria, and the subsequent peace. Promoted captain in 1875, he attracted attention by his concise and lucid writings upon the frontiers of Italy; and when in 1883 he became major of infantry, he revolutionized the whole Italian doctrine of infantry tactics. From 1886 onwards as a staff officer, he gained the confidence of old General Count Pianell and established his reputation as a practical soldier of rare ability. His first notable military exploit was the surrounding by his regiment, the Tenth Bersaglieri, of a whole enemy detachment at manoeuvres—an exploit more brilliant, though less solid than the remarkable retreat which his forces accomplished during the grand manoeuvres of 1911 in Piedmont.

Prefers Open Warfare Simple and modest, quiet and passionless, his features and his uniform alike weather beaten, General Count Luigi Cadorna seems to symbolize the character of the hard, undemonstrative warfare which modern conditions compel him to conduct. To his friends he often complains of the "anaesthetic war to which we are condemned," and expresses wonder whether some turn of military fortune will ever permit the employment of cavalry as a decisive arm.

Cadorna has never played to the gallery. Eminently prudent and careful of his personal prestige he has concentrated his attention upon "the thing in itself" rather than upon the production of brilliant effects. In his hands the Italian army has acquired a cohesion and solidity of which the Austrians long feigned to believe it incapable.

Loves to Study One of the greatest characteristics of General Cadorna is his love of study. Not only military art, but branches of ordinary science are familiar to him. It has not in any sense made him a pedant. As a young officer he devoted all his free time to studying the topography of the Italian frontier, and there is no man living in Italy who knows it better than he. Cadorna, when 33 years of age, being then a major in the Sixty-second infantry regiment, he caused a stir by appointing entirely new methods in training his soldiers. The colonel commanding the regiment opposed them, but the first big manoeuvres proved them so successful that he was left in peace, and became the real commanding officer of his regiment. He succeeded in raising the enthusiasm of some fellow officers, his ideas soon became widely known, and his tactics were adopted throughout the Italian army. He never thought of using his reputation to procure speedy promotion, so he was still a colonel when some of his comrades had been promoted to general.

In 1907, when the post of Chief of the General Staff became vacant, the whole of Italy demanded the nomination of General Cadorna. It was, however, given to someone else, and the first man to congratulate his new chief was General Cadorna. That was not hypocrisy, for when, three years later, he was given an opportunity of promotion, he asked as a favor to be allowed to work under the orders of the man who had been placed above him. During the great manoeuvres of 1911 he was in command of one of the armies. At one moment, orders having failed to arrive, he found himself in a very difficult position. He was told that, though orders were delayed, the King was expecting him to advance. General Cadorna, however, ordered a retreat. Everybody was dissatisfied. Yet a few hours later it was clear that by retreating he put the army of his adversary in a desperate position, and he was declared the winner of a manoeuvre. How many generals would run the risk of disappointing their Sovereign? This moral courage was shown again at the beginning of the present war in his rush against Austria with his only half mobilized army. He thus kept the Austrians from invading Italian territory and gained time to complete his mobilization.

FUNDS FROM ALL PARTS OF EMPIRE Contributions Received By British Treasury to Help in the War.

London, Sept. 23.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Officials of the Treasury have been surprised by the steady inflow of gifts from all parts of the empire and from former Britishers in neutral countries in the form of cash towards meeting the expenses of the war. The donors range from men and women to small boys and girls, the former sending sums mounting up as high as a thousand pounds and the latter remitting the contents of their savings banks. A total of many thousands of pounds has been sent. Sums ranging from a shilling to a thousand pounds are acknowledged with the same promptness and politeness by the Treasury.

Many gifts are accompanied with notes explaining that they are designed as substitutes for personal service at the front, and one man in Canada explains that a sum of 200 pounds is intended as payment for schooling obtained in England a half-century ago. A firm in Sandakan British North Borneo, sent 500 pounds, explaining that as that territory contributes nothing towards the finances of the empire while enjoying all benefits of British protection, they wished to be allowed to discharge a portion of their obligation in this way. A Britisher writes from St. Louis in the same tone with a contribution of 100 pounds.

The Municipality of Matsqui, British Columbia, sends fifty-two pounds. The natives employed at Fanning Island, who live in the Gilbert Islands, have sent two gifts. A Baptist minister in Ontario sends five dollars. From Summit, New Jersey, an American citizen sends a substantial check made payable to the British Empire. A husband and wife send from China a check in four figures. From Singapore, an old man accompanies a check for twenty pounds with the explanation that it is to help beat the Kaiser.

A little girl who writes that she is seven and has two uncles fighting, sends from an island a shilling from her savings bank. There are many gifts from officers on active service, some sending a year's pay. Among gifts from retired officers, one writes from a far country to say that he desires to aid the war fund because, after having been made deaf from gunfire as a runner officer, he had been refused active service now on account of his lack of hearing. A working man, sending twenty pounds in an anonymous letter, explains that he never believed in war loans as long as gifts would be accepted. Many of the gifts are sent in the form of monthly donations, one man in Asia having instructed his bankers to remit a certain sum to the

Lepers Found in Japan

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 23.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The discovery of about twenty-five American lepers in different parts of Japan has become a pressing problem for American officials and for the American Association of Japan which is undertaking to secure their transportation to the American leper home in the Hawaiian Islands. The lepers have made their way home here in recent years with the hope that they might be healed at the famous Japanese hot springs, especially those at Kusatsu which is always crowded with Japanese lepers taking the waters. Gradually they have drifted to missionary leper hospitals or have in other ways become burdens on the community. In view of the excellent asylum at Hawaii the American Association is taking active steps to secure their removal.

Leprosy is one of the great questions seeking solution by modern Japan. It is estimated that the lepers of the empire number about 25,000. Five governmental leper asylums were established in 1907, but they accommodate only a few thousands. The remainder are scattered over the country desperately seeking a cure in the hot springs or publicly begging in the market-place or before the temples. At the last session of the Diet the Japanese Leprosy Prevention Society petitioned for the establishment of a national leprosy asylum on some island in the Pacific Ocean. The cost of the asylum was estimated at $8,000,000, and its maintenance at $250,000 a year. The petitioners declare that at least one third of the lepers could be housed and treated at once and it was contended by the petitioners that Japan could be cleared of lepers in the course of ten years.

DIUCRANE OF INSANITY (Associated Press) Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 23.—Insanity in Ireland has lately shown a decrease, chiefly among women. This is something new, as Ireland's statistics for insanity have always been unusually high. The Superintendent of the Asylum at Belfast declares the reason for the decrease is due entirely to the improved standard of living and to the restrictions on the liquor traffic. Many people who lived in poverty, are now in comparative luxury. There are, he declares, solid grounds for the hope that, especially among women, Ireland will witness a great diminution of neurotic disorders. Because he pleaded "too much whiskey," a Carlisle, Pa., jury found John Stewart, aged 18, West Fairview, not guilty of assaulting Justice Boble, but imposed the costs.

French Marquis Tours America

Tokio, Sept. 23.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The Marquis de Vitry, of France, who has just completed a tour of South America and of the Far East in the interest of the French government and of the French people, will sail for San Francisco on the steamer Shinyo Maru, Sept. 25, for the purpose of making an extensive tour of the United States. Monsieur de Vitry's chief mission to the Pacific Coast states will be the establishment of branches of the Franco-American Committee, the headquarters of which are at Paris, and which has as its object the development of the intellectual relations between France and America. He will deliver a series of lectures to the people of the West. Later he will probably visit New Orleans and New York. A well known member of the French nobility and living a quiet, retired life in the beautiful chateau district of Touraine, Marquis de Vitry responded to the call of his country to make a trip around the world to tell something of France's aims and ambitions for the future. He bears letters of introduction to many prominent people in the United States.

One of the owners of the great French newspaper Le Temps, he is writing a series of letters for that newspaper and while in Japan has made arrangements with leading Tokio newspapers for the transmission of a special service of Japanese news to Le Temps. (From Friday's Daily)
She turned to him, quivering, palpitating.
"Oh, General Kildare, what do you mean?"
"Just what I say, my child—no more, no less!"
Something throbbed and leaped into life within the breast of Allard—something which transfused and transmuted the values of life in an extraordinary way.
"Can I help you?" she cried.
"My dear, who knows?"
She laid a soft, quivering hand upon his arm.
"But I do not know your trouble yet! How could I help without knowing that?"
"And another day you shall know. To-day we will speak of happier things. Only I ask you one thing—do not ask the story of another; let my lips be the ones to tell it to you. To-day I will show you my house, which your mother used to love; and another day you shall hear the tragic tale." All I will tell you to-day is that my only son, my only child—my brave, gallant Jim—is eating out his heart in a convict prison, convicted by the law of the land of—forgery!"

CHAPTER X.
Audrey had just given the finishing-touch to the drawing-room flowers and sat down in the sunny window, with her book, when Penny threw open the door and made the grave announcement—
"Madame Lebreton."
Audrey advanced to meet her guest with admirable composure. She had learned this complete control of herself during those trying years when often she had been brought face to face with her father's creditors, who would not leave the house without seeing some member of the family, or with sympathetic friends consumed by curiosity to know what was going on, and who would seek to win the girl's confidence, often with really kind motives. And Audrey had schooled herself to meet anxiety, curiosity, bluster, or kindness with serene front and often a quite baffling composure of manner. So that now, although she was quite in the dark as to the significance of this call from the mother of Gipsy's foe, that handsome and sombre-faced Gaston, she felt that nothing could be as difficult or as trying as she had already passed.

In silence the two met and exchanged a handclasp, and then Audrey said, as she indicated the most comfortable of the many-cushioned armchairs the room contained—
"How kind of you to come so soon to see us! I am sorry my sisters are out, but they are both so fond of outdoor life that I see little of them. We have been cooped up in London for more than a year, and the getting back to liberty and the country has been an unalloyed delight."
"Yet some young people would think this place a poor exchange for the air and brilliance of a London life."
"Ah, but our London life was anything but brilliant! Perhaps you heard something of our father's losses. I believe that once—"
"Yes, that is true. Audrey Vere was quite an intimate friend at our house years ago. He was a frequent visitor, and, as you know, it was through his visits here that he became acquainted with your mother."
"Yes, I know that. She used sometimes to speak of the people here, but not very often. We understood even as children that there was something—something a little painful about her past life."
"That was the pity of it. I always think it need not have been. So many things which bring pain and trouble and complications into human lives need not have been, if only—"
Madame Lebreton paused, and her eyes searched those of the girl before her—the girl who in some subtle fashion resembled both her parents, blending the two faces in a fashion that held the gaze of the woman who had known them both in the past. There was something in Audrey's face which took her liking—shrewd common sense, dashed with humorous appreciation, not usually attained at so early an age. But Audrey's life had tended to the rapid development of latent characteristics; and now, with her gaze upon the delicate, sensitive, but resolute and distinctive features of the lady of Gaston's Keep, she made a quick and sympathetic response.
"Indeed I agree with you. So many things happen which need not have happened, which a little patience and give-and-take on both sides would have saved. I know our mother or felt before she died that if she had had more patience in the matter of her marriage it need not have made a breach between her and her brother."
"That is possible, but I am not sure. Your father was an excellent friendly towards my husband. As I know that you will hear that much, if you do not know it already, I have no hesitation in speaking of it. It is one of those things which I regret—which I feel need not have been."
Audrey was perfectly well aware of it. There had been papers left for the girls to read—papers she had found afterwards, stories told by one or another of the Pennyquell family, which had made this fact perfectly plain. Moreover it had made plain something besides. Richard Rickard did not know that he had the girl's confidence, and he had not wanted his neices to be intimate with the Lebretons. He laid down no hard and fast lines, but the inference was plain. For some reason or other his displeasure had been hotly kindled against the neighbor of his. He had charged his neices to guard the right of way—a cause of chronic strife and irritation between the two houses; but Audrey was a girl of independent mind and remarkably clear sight for her age. Here was their neighbor, beneath their roof, making what certainly appeared to be tentative proffers of friendship, and much might depend in the future upon the way in which this offer was met.
Audrey smiled, and her smile was so frankly charming and disarming that Mrs. Lebreton was almost startled.
"That is quite true," said the girl with a candor so much easier to youth than to age—"my uncle did not like the Lebretons. And I think he does not want us to be friendly either; but I am going to judge for myself—I have always been a self-willed person in that respect. But there is one thing which we cannot and must not concede to you. The right of way through the plantation is not ours to give away—it belongs to those who went before, to those who are still here, to those who will come after. Our uncle left us a charge concerning that which we cannot set aside."
"My dear Miss Vere," Mrs. Lebreton very quietly, "believe me I am the last person in the world to wish for any concession in respect of that plantation path. I told my husband, and I have told my son, that they must expect no approval from me when it is a question of making

THE BLESSING OF A HEALTHY BODY

Has Not Had An Hour's Sickness Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. MARRIOTT
73 Lees Ave., Ottawa, Ont.,
August 9th, 1915.

"I think it my duty to tell you what 'Fruit-a-tives' has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run-down and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of 'Fruit-a-tives', I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 3 1/2 years, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using 'Fruit-a-tives', and I know now that I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain."

changes and infringing long-established rights. The whole dispute has been to me an absurdity, and it is the Lebretons who have been in the wrong from first to last."
"Then if you feel that," said Audrey, with a clear and vivid light in her eyes, "I do not see why in the world we should not be friends."
"Thank you, my dear! That is also my wish; but you may not find it as easy as you suppose."
For a short time Mrs. Lebreton was silent. She looked away out of the window, and Audrey studied the delicate high-bred face, its delicacy set off by the sweeping blackness of her attire, and noted lines in the ivory-tinted cheeks and round the dark eyes and firm, curved lips which told a tale of patience, weariness and fortitude that made instant appeal to the generosity of her nature.
This quiet and mother of Lebretons had not had an easy life. Probably there had been moments of keen friction and strife which had left visible traces upon her. So much Audrey divined by an instinctive process in which she had implicit faith.
"There is no reason why you and I should not be friends," she said, "whatever other people may choose to decide. I will not even answer altogether for my sisters; but I can answer for myself."
A hand was silently extended towards her, which Audrey took and held. When Mrs. Lebreton spoke again it was in rather low tones, as though she had been somewhat moved.
"I thank you, my dear. Your words are welcome; but you must not decide in haste. There is something which you ought to know before you arrive at any such decision. Have you heard the story of poor young Jim Kildare?"
"No. We know that General Kildare lives opposite upon that reef; but nobody seems to want to say anything. Only we feel sure that there is something very sad."
"Tragically sad," Mrs. Lebreton paused for a moment and passed her handkerchief across her eyes. "What you say it true—one likes to think or speak of it, though with me the thought is present at night and day. Jim Kildare, his only son, a dear boy of the greatest promise, is doing a term in a convict prison, and my husband sent him there!"
"Oh, no, no, no!"
"There was no one to stand by the boy. The old general was away in South Africa. He had gone out before the war began—not officially he had retired before that—but as a man knowing the country and deeply concerned in the gathering complications. The Kildares are a dying race, and Jim was careless, spendthrift, warm-hearted; he would have given the coat off his back to any one in need. What he did I cannot tell. My husband would never explain nor listen to my pleadings. He said that justice was justice. The war was breaking out; the papers took little cognizance of other matters. The boy got five years. Only three of them are run—not full three yet. His father came back to find him in jail. And it was my husband's act that sent him there. Now, do you understand?"
Audrey sat silent and aghast. It was terrible to picture what this silent woman must have suffered. No wonder that her hair had turned snowy white and that lines were deeply graven in a face which had long preserved a youthful bloom! (To be continued.)

THE ROUMANIAN QUEEN IS ENGLISH

Beloved Through Her Country for Charity Work to the Poor.

London, Sept. 23.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—One of the many reasons for rejoicing here at the entrance of Roumania into the war on the side of the Allies, is the fact that the Roumanian queen is an Englishwoman of great popularity. Before her marriage to the Hohenzollern prince who is now King Ferdinand, Queen Marie was the beautiful and popular daughter of the late King Edward's eldest brother, the late Duke of Edinburgh. She is still regarded as beautiful, and indeed with her husband and two boys and four girls is frequently spoken of as constituting the best looking royal family in Europe, as well as the most photographed.

Queen Marie is beloved throughout her country for her generosity and constant efforts in behalf of the poor. She is the leading spirit of the Society of Goddesses of Roumania, each goddess acting as a fairy godmother to at least one poor child. The queen has an odd hobby in the collection of scent-bottles, of which she has more than 8,000. When aboard her father's flagship at Malta, Roumania's future queen became a great favorite with officers and sailors. She had a great love of helping the ship's cook with his duties. On one occasion she fried fifty eggs and slices of ham and had them distributed among the men as a token of good will.

Restoration to entry of nearly 457,000 acres heretofore enclosed in coal land withdrawn in New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming, was announced by Secretary Lane. Samuel Untermyer, noted lawyer, was operated on for intestinal trouble at his country home, Greystone, Yonkers, N.Y. The attending physicians announced that the patient is doing well.

CARRIER PIGEON STATION

(Associated Press)
Behind the Somme Front, Sept. 23—Scattered along the German lines in France but several miles to the rear are a succession of "Carrier Pigeon Stations" which form an effective link in the German scheme of defense, and in times of extreme stress can become well nigh invaluable. Especially is this the case when all other means of communication from the front trenches with the rear are destroyed.

In the trenches are kept cages of trained pigeons. The birds are kept constantly in practice so that in times of emergency they will go without fail to some station to give word of disaster that might have been telephoned had not the telephone connection been shot away or otherwise destroyed.

The messages are written on tiny pieces of paper, enclosed in thimble aluminum containers which are attached to a leg of the bird, and the fliers are released. If longer messages must be sent, or maps have to be transmitted, these are enclosed in a larger container which is attached to a sort of harness that can be put over the bird's head and fitted tight to its body.

The Birth of a Nation
After a sensational tour of country, following its recording engagement here, D. J. Griffith returns for an engagement of three days at the Grand next week. This production of the great spectacle is locally, in every respect, the same as appeared here previously with same large symphony orchestra before, there will be daily matinee after the opening performance.

For "The Birth of a Nation" Griffith took as the skeleton the work of Thomas Dixon's "The Clans" but he had in mind a far vaster conception than Dixon's. It was his to reproduce an epoch in American history so vividly that the speed would actually be carried out a present and live for three hours past that is fast becoming a history and romance with rare realism. He determined, the start to throw about it a glow of romance that would soften picture without distorting it.

The epoch chosen by Mr. Griffith, the most thrilling in American history. It was the epoch that witnessed the shattering of the old state sovereignty; Griffith, by history and romance with rare realism. The story is so strikingly thrillingly told that the audience applaud the big moments with the vigor that they use when reporters appear upon the stage. It animated his screen "phantom means of realistic effects and musical score made of it in grand opera manner that the spot was missed.

At the Grand
Mac Murray, the beautiful star, will be seen at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Jesse L. Lasky production "The Dream Girl," a most whimsical story written especially for the Paramount Program by MacPherson, the brilliant dramatist and produced under personal direction of Cecil M. Mille, Lasky Company Director.

As Lady Jocelyn, Leigh is here and to hold. Mac Murray has made her screen debut and secured pronounced success. Again as mischievous widow in "Sweet Bellairs," she increased her popularity and established herself as a photogenic artist of distinction. But as the little child of the in "The Dream Girl" she is here and has surpassed any of her previous triumphs.

The story has to do with a child of the slums who, before her dissolute father killed, runs away from her tenement home an ash barrel she has found a faded volume of "King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table" and her romantic brain pictures Galahad coming to her rescue. Lured by the dance music the house next to the orphan where a fancy ball is being held she climbs over the wall and in the garden comes face to face with her knight.

Nearly one hundred persons will be seen in the Aborn Company's mammoth revival of "The Bohemian Girl" at the Grand Opera House tonight. This number includes cast of principals, chorus, ballet dancers and a troupe of acrobats.

Horses, dogs, chickens, monkeys, and geese sound incongruous when associated with opera, but still it is said that all these named are introduced with entire consistency by the Aborn Opera Company in its spectacular production of "The Bohemian Girl."

It was his aim to reproduce an epoch in American history so vividly that the spectators would actually be carried out of the present and live for three hours in a past that is fast becoming remote and hazy. He did not make the mistake of desiring to depict this period of the past in a naked and horrid realism. He was determined, from the start to throw about it a glamour of romance that would soften the picture without distorting it.

Theodore Roberts as the father, is said to have done the best character work of his remarkable career either on the stage or on the screen. The brilliant young English actor, Arthur Fox, is seen as the young college student who appears to "The Dream Girl" as the magic knight.

MILLIONAIRE LOSES $20,000 PEARLS.

It All Happens in the Famous Players Comedy, "The Smugglers," Donald Brian as the Unfortunate Millionaire.

John Battleby Watts, a wealthy promoter and breakfast food manufacturer touring Europe with his new wife, loses partly through carelessness and more partly through foolishness his wife's twenty-thousand-dollar necklace. What did he do? He immediately bought her a duplicate for twenty cents, expecting to have the other one in a few days, and to his delight his wife did not realize that she had been deceived. But, alas, they are to leave for America, and no trace of the string of pearls! What would you do to prevent the customs inspectors from disclosing the false jewels to your wife? This is the problem Donald Brian, the popular stage star, faces in the Famous Players farce-comedy, "The Smugglers." Sidney Olcott, who is the director of many notable Famous Players productions, is responsible for the production of this screamingly humorous photoplay on the Paramount Program. The Brant will show "The Smugglers," commencing Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Watts decides upon a novel plan; he requests his wife to sit outside on the deck while he packs a few things together. Suddenly, as though he had just found the necklace, he calls to her to catch it through the port-hole. Watts throws the necklace far from her reach into the sea, but "there is man" a slip between the cup and the lip, as the saying goes; so it was in this case, for a big Swede employed on board the vessel was taking a smoke through a port-hole far below the deck when his neck was encircled by the descending "jewels." Upon the deck a great crowd gathers as they hear the story, and detective Gray, who had been suspecting them for some time, is greatly puzzled, but discovers the Swede coming up from below with the necklace. Watts is forced to give the fellow a large reward for its return, and the "hot coal" is again in his possession. He gives to his wrath in his stateroom, and goes so far as to state that his brother-in-law, an English lord whom they had acquired abroad, is the hoodoo and therefore responsible for the return of the necklace. Brompton, his brother-in-law is busily engaged in packing his valise, but stops a moment to take from the handle of his cane a cigarette. Amy, Brompton's wife, enters the room and asks her husband to help her with the packing. Watts seizes the cane as soon as Brompton leaves, an idea suddenly striking him. He places the "pearls" in the cane. Watts makes out the declaration list, omitting to declare the necklace; the omission is soon discovered by the detective, and he plans their exposure upon reaching the pier.

Everything looks black for Watts—even the actress, who was responsible for the loss of the original pearls and of whom we have not told you more because we did not want to spoil your interest in this amusing production, is in the steeage at that very moment. The unravelling of the remainder of the plot is rife with thrills and leads up to a great comic climax.

NEW LIMBS FOR OLD.

Artificial Limbs Fitted at St. Mary's Hospital Defy Detection.

At Queen Mary's Convalescent Auxiliary Hospitals at Roehampton, England, where British soldiers and sailors who have lost their limbs in the war are refitted, they challenge the visitor to guess which of a man's two legs is artificial, and duly disclose to him that both are!

Youth can adapt itself to almost anything, and most of our wounded fighting men are very young.

It has been on the top of a motor bus already, and I have only had this leg four days," exclaimed an eager lad, slapping the imitative mechanism, which it had been necessary to attach to his body at the abdomen, as not even a stump of his old limb had been left. He walked well with the aid of a stick, and soon he will be able to walk without any stick at all. Another cycled a few hundred yards to show—as he did—that the action of the mechanical joints is indistinguishable from that of the joints which Nature gives. A third ran across a lawn with considerable speed, though he had but one of his own legs, and the spectator could not tell a glance which of them it was that he had lost.

A young soldier who has both his arms amputated above the elbows writes with either of the hands with which he has been fitted, and for the satisfaction of his visitors will lift a match from the floor with his artificial fingers. They will shake hands with you with their imitation hands, and you are surprised at the grip they can give.

Requires Practice. These results are in a great measure due to practice, and the proper exercises are enforced with the rigidity of military drill—happily for the maimed soldiers, for man is so indolent by nature that they would never acquire perfection in the use of their mechanical limbs if they were not compelled to make the daily and hourly effort. But even more is due to the amazing skill with which the limbs themselves are made.

At Roehampton there are a number of workshops for the manufacture of arms and legs, and each workshop is the enterprise of a separate firm, so that the hospitals have the benefit of competitive ingenuity and workmanship—British, French and American. Most of them employ men who themselves have lost a leg or an arm, and these men have made many valuable suggestions or invented devices for the further perfection of artificial limbs.

One of them, for example, has designed a hand which will enable a one-armed man to play golf or cricket.

Using the Real to Make the False.

The limb-maker does not discriminate between officers and men, but officers pay to have an extra coat or two of flesh-colored paint added to the red willow and calf skin. If a patient has but a shoulder joint or hip joint left the mechanic, with the economy of art, will utilize it in the operation of the false limb, which will be bent or propelled by some little acquired strut or twist of the surviving natural joint.

Roehampton is not content with giving the maimed soldiers and sailors arms and legs; it also fits them to earn their own livelihood under their new conditions. In well-equipped workshops it gives instruction in light leather work, office routine, electricity, motor-car repairing and driving, hair dressing, tailoring, chemistry, designing, tailoring, other occupations. Over fifty qualified chauffeurs have been turned out by the hospital employment bureau and over 600 other maimed soldiers have been found employment through the same agency.

Happy Work for Legless Men. Employment has been found for men who have lost an arm in the following capacities: Commissionaire, gateman, gymnasium instructor, labor master in workshop, liftman, lodgekeeper, messenger, porter, railway work (sundry duties), telephone switchboard attendant, timekeeper, travelling road master, watchman, weighman. Men who have lost a leg have been procured the following kinds of work: Bootmaker, motor driving, domestic service, electrical work, engineering, light duties at pithead (for miners), munition work, milking, printing, telegraphy.

The country owes a debt of gratitude to a great many people associated with Roehampton, and not least to those who have made this employment bureau their special care, and to the heads of firms who have themselves in many cases come to instruct the all too eager learners. The abounding cheerfulness and optimism which one finds here prove that the men are fully-conscious and appreciative of the efforts which are being made to assure them of happy and useful careers in spite of the disadvantages with which they must restart life.

"Mose" Parker and Mrs. Parker, in Repertoire at The Colonial.

"The Birth of a Nation" are those of the battle of Petersburg, fought by 18,000 men on a field five miles across; the march of Sherman to the sea, culminating with the burning of Atlanta; the assassination of President Lincoln in the crowded Ford's Theatre; the wild rides of the Ku-Klux-Klan and the session of the South Carolina Legislature under the negro carpet-bagger regime.

120 MARKET STREET

The bodies of Emil Thomas, 21 years old, and of an unidentified girl, about 20, were found in a ravine in St. Louis County, Mo. County officials are of the opinion the pair were murdered. Driving his auto to Independence, Mo., from Chicago, where it was recovered after being stolen, owner was arrested in every town because description of car had been sent broadcast to constables. Out of three hundred amateur sailors who went to sea on the battleship Maine for the training cruise that began August 15, just twenty-two signed their names to papers signifying their willingness to volunteer in case of war.

SOLDIER SONG WRITER (Associated Press) London, Sept. 23.—Private Ralph Burnham, who came all the way from Virginia, where he was born of English parents, very soon after the call "Your King and Country Need You," and who joined the Middlesex Regiment, has developed into a writer and composer of music whose name will outlive the war.

DECREASE OF INSANITY (Associated Press) Dublin, Ireland, Sept. 22.—Insanity in Ireland has lately shown a decrease, chiefly among women. This is something new, as Ireland's statistics for insanity have always been unusually high.

CRAFTY

Canadians R Succouring W

By Courier Leased Wire.

With the British Armies in Field, Sept. 23.—By Phillip in Montreal (Gazette)—The Germans seem to have a special kind of respect for the Canadians and tried to show them about Courcellette by savagely attacking and heavily concentrating artillery, and the Canadians back, life for life.

There were trappers among who devised cunning ways of fighting at night over No Man's Land. There were real Indian tactics, between snipers. Night raids were organized and rehearsed with a scientific accuracy of detail that created new methods of trench warfare, the Germans feared.

The Canadian infantry had a cult operation. This ground the high ridge of Jolieres, down before them to the edge of village of Courcellette, where had been ordered to halt and cooperate, while reserve battalions French-Canadians on the right went up to mop up the captured. A man trench ran at an angle their objective, and as they advanced the Canadians had to take on a flank capturing trench the same rate of progress as the trench and right. The French-Canadian with their comrades on the right swung in a loop round the south half of the village and closed in invaded its streets. The capture Courcellette was one of the astounding things in this battle of the Somme. There were 1,500 German and about 1,000 French, captured by much less than that number—dugouts full of Germans routed out by a few men who had been crushed and killed by odds against them.

One Canadian boy went down a dugout, and after a time (a queer conversation could have been down there?) came out again. Prisoners. There were twenty of them, tall, big men, who could make a meal of this brown-eyed who marshalled them up.

Two battalion commanders taken and brought to the French Canadian colonel. One of the
