CHAPTER XXXI.
WHO MORE WORTHY?

EARLY the next morning Louis arrived: the faithful fellow was awfully cut up, but kept as cool and composed as his master.

'It must have been a dreadful fall to knock him over like this, Mrs. Hester,' he said, shaking his head gravely. 'My master is as strong as iron and supple as steel. I've known him to do the most tremendous things in the way of riding and that kind of thing, things that would make your hair stand on end, ma'am; it must have been a dreadful fall.'

The news of the accident caused general dismay, and regret, for Dawson Slade had become popular, and, as the duke said, 'was not the man to drop out of the list without being missed.'

Every morning a host of inquirers were made at the little cottage, and sometimes three or four carriages would be crowded together in the narrow lane, which the duke had caused to be covered with straw, to deaden the sounds of hoofs and wheels.

Gerald was almost heartbroken, and he never allowed a day to pass without calling and holding a conference with the dame.

Harold, too, rode over every morning; indeed only one person in the neighborhood seemed to keep aloof from the sufferer, and that was Lillian Woodleigh.

It was rather strange, considering how frequent a visitor to the Hall the injured man had been, that one, almost alone of all the ladies in the neighborhood, refrained from calling. Laura Warner had driven over twice during the week, and had engaged the dame in a long conversation, endeavoring to discover how the accident had occurred, and whether Lillian had any connection with it; but the dame was discreet for all her age and good nature, and Laura went away unsatisfied.

Sir Talbot had sent over a basket of fruit and sickroom delicacies, but Slade was not in a condition to tell grapes from gray peas, or blanchmange from mortar. Sir Talbot could not come over himself, or he would have done so, for he was too weak to leave the house. More than a week had elapsed since the accident, and the interest in it had not disappeared, when the prospect of a still more exciting event stirred the county to its depths. Harold and Lillian's engagement had not made much stir, simply because it had been foreseen and predicted from the first; but now it was announced that the marriage was to take place almost immediately.

The news ran like wildfire, and the neighborhood was divided into two parties: the men who envied Harold, and the women who envied Lillian. Poor, unselfish Gerald went straight to the Hall to hear if the news was true, and get a few words from Lillian.

As he drove up to the house in the low pony carriage, which he preferred to the stately barouche, he saw Harold standing on the terrace. It wanted an hour or two to dinner time and Harold was smoking his favorite pipe.

Gerald's eyes were sharp, and he scanned the frank, handsome face keenly.

'He ought to look happy, as happy as a mortal can look,' sighed the boy; 'but he only looks grave.'

Then when he called to him, Harold came down the steps with his open-hearted smile.

'Hello, Gerald, where have you dropped from? I didn't see you coming.'

'I came by the Higham road. I have just been to the cottage to inquire after poor old Slade,' said Gerald, as they went up the steps.

'And how is he this afternoon?' asked Harold.

'A little better, they say; they wouldn't let me see him. No one has seen him excepting the doctor. Poor old boy! It's dreadful to think of him lying there. I saw Louis, who seems a little more cheerful and hopeful. But, Harold, is it true?'

'Is what true?' asked Harold.

And he looked up at him wistfully. 'Yes, it's true, Gerald,' said Harold, with a grave smile.

'I am so glad,' said Gerald, pressing the strong arm. 'Harold, you ought to be happy, very happy—and you are, of course. And Lillian—is she at home?'

'Yes,' said Harold; 'and you can go and ask her if she is happy,' he added with another smile, but with a something that almost savored of sadness in his voice.

'I shall see by her face; no need to ask her,' said Gerald, simply.

'She is in the morning room, or was a few minutes ago,' said Harold, as they entered the hall. 'Go in and see her, and I will finish my pipe.'

He opened the door, and Gerald went in. The room was almost dark lit by a candle or two at the table; but he caught the glimmer of a woman's dress at the further end of the room, and Lillian came forward to meet him, putting her hand into his extended one.

'Is it you, Lord Vavasour?' she said in her low, musical voice. 'I can scarcely see. Let me ring for more lights.'

'No, don't,' he said, dropping into a chair beside her. 'I like this light; but for one thing—I can't see your face distinctly, dear Lillian.'

She laughed, and at the mirthless almost bitter laugh, the smile fled from Gerald's face.

He sat for a moment holding her hand, and passing his fingers over the gemmed rings.

'Have you seen papa?' she said, breaking the silence.

'No,' replied Gerald, 'not yet; I have only just come. Is he better to-day?'

Lillian sighed.

'No,' she said, meekly; 'he is weak and tired. He sleeps nearly all day. I have been sitting with him this afternoon, and he has lain back holding my hand, and sleeping like a child.'

Gerald was silent.

'He is an old man, Lillian,' he said quietly.

'I know, I know,' she said, in a whisper.

'You mustn't sit in dark rooms by yourself, dear,' he went on in a minute, with a gentle chiding.

She leaned back and smiled.

'I do not,' she said; 'I came here for some work.'

Then she talked quickly and brightly about the duchess, the falling leaves, and the shooting that had been done; but never for a moment did she deceive the true, boyish heart which loved her.

'Lillian,' he said, suddenly, 'is it true that you and Harold are to be married directly?'

There was a moment's pause.

'Yes,' she replied, distinctly, 'it is quite true. Papa wishes it, and a wish of his, now, is law.'

Gerald looked at her; her eyes were downcast. It was not the voice of the face of a bride blushing with anticipations of happiness.

With all his love for her, Gerald was beginning to think that he didn't understand.

'I hope you will be happy, you know that, Lillian. I think Harold be happiest man in the world—you know that, too.'

'Do you?' she said, quietly, 'do you think he looks happy?' and there was almost a touch of irony in her voice.

'Harold always looked grave and wise,' said Gerald, patting her hand. There was a pause, then he said, suddenly, 'by the way, I am forgetting something of importance. I have just come from Higham.'

'From Higham?' repeated Lillian, turning on him with a swift blush and a sudden quiver of the delicate lips.

'Yes; tried to see poor Slade, but couldn't. They won't allow anyone near him excepting the old lady and Louis. Poor fellow!'

'Is—he better?' she asked, the words dropping from her lips slowly, as if they cost her an effort.

'As if they cost her, he's better; on the turn now, but still very weak, and quite altered, they say. Louis was much concerned—I saw him, and he brought me a message from Slade, which I was to bring to you.'

'To me!' and her face paled.

'Yes,' said Gerald. 'That picture he was painting, you know. The poor fellow has taken a fancy for having to over there—says he should like to finish it. I don't expect he can hold a brush yet, but I told Louis I was sure you wouldn't mind letting him have it.'

'No, I do not mind,' she said, in a low voice. 'It shall go over to-morrow. Is that all—no other message?'

'That is all. Did you expect any other?'

'No; oh, no!' she said.

Then Gerald got up and began idly getting about and fumbling in his pocket, and suddenly he took her hand, and opening it, laid a small case on the soft, white palm.

'I thought I'd bring you my little wedding present,' he said, shyly. 'It's not a regular kind of present, as it ought to be, fresh from a Bond Street jeweler; it is quite an old trifle—it was my mother's, Lillian; but you will like it none the less for that.'

She, still keeping his hand, drew him to the candle light and opened the case.

A cross, formed of emeralds and diamonds, flashed in her eyes.

At a glance she saw that it was of enormous value, a gift fit for an empress.

With a start she pressed his hand, and drawing a long breath held the glittering mass toward him.

'Oh, no, no,' she said. 'Not such a gift as this; I am not worthy.'

'Not worthy,' he echoed, looking up at her with a rapt smile of worship. 'You not worthy? Tell me who is, then, dear Lillian?'

With a gasp she sank on to the floor, and hid her face in her hands. His question pierced her to the soul. Who was more worthy? He should have said who was less worthy than she, than she, the impostor—the criminal.

Gerald shook like a leaf, and bent over her, white and agitated.

'Lillian! Lillian! Dear Lillian, you will kill me. Are you unhappy—what is it? Tell me, you can trust me. Lillian, you know I would die to shield you from one minute's pain. What is it?'

Her good and bad angels struggled for the mastery for a moment, then she looked up, a smile quivering on her lips, her eyes wet and languid, and put her hand on his arm.

'It is nothing,' she murmured, 'it is just now. I am a naughty, unreasonable girl; don't tell of me, as they say at school, Gerald.'

Only half satisfied, he bent and touched her forehead with his lips.

'Is it nothing?' he asked, wistfully. 'Don't kneel—don't kneel. I don't like to see your proud head so low—you, who are my queen. Rise, dear Lillian.'

She rose slowly and put both her hands in his.

'You will keep my poor gift—it is a poor one, too. Think of the Woodleigh diamonds. You will keep it?'

'Yes,' she said, 'I will keep it until—'

'Until?' he said, wondering.

'Until you yourself are convinced that I am unworthy to wear the gems that have shone on your mother's bosom. Hush, here is Harold. Will you go?'

Slowly he loosened his grasp and left here.

As he passed into the hall he saw the lady's maid standing beside three large boxes that had just arrived.

He stopped and spoke to her. Marquis as he was, and heir to a dukedom, he never passed the humblest acquaintance without a smile or a word.

'Fresh treasure, Mary,' he said, with his pleasant smile.

'Miss Lillian's dresses, my lord,' she replied, dropping him a courtesy. 'The wedding dress is among them, my lord,' she added, with something like awe.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"A BABY'S grandmother is often its worst enemy."

So a splendid friend and nurse who makes her specialty of bringing back to health of sickly babies, told me the other day.

It was a pretty harsh indictment of that class of personage whose very name evokes a thought of tenderness and wisdom and a sort of mellowed and intensified motherliness, so naturally I demanded an explanation.

She gave it.

"They are the worst enemies of our modern methods. Not all of them, of course, but some. Because their babies lived and grew up in spite of what mistakes they made they try to have their daughters make the same mistakes."

"There is no doubt about it that modern methods have reduced infant mortality immensely, and though of course it's true that plenty of babies grew up into healthy children with the old careless methods, a baby brought up in the modern way has twice the chance to grow up that they did."

"But the grandmothers don't see it that way. They say all their babies grew up, or if one or two died, they would have died anyway, no matter what precautions were taken, and they tell their daughters that all this sterilizing and boiling and the rest of the things that we are trying to teach them is all nonsense."

"Most of them talk behind our backs but once in awhile one of them speaks right out to me so I know about what they say."

"Here's a few samples:—

"This feeding a baby every three hours to the minute is all tommyrot. Why, when Jennie was a baby I fed her whenever she cried, and she doesn't look very peaked now, does she?"

"This boiling the nipples and bottles is perfect nonsense. I never boiled a thing and I brought up five children and only lost one by cholera infantum and you needn't tell me any chit-gets cholera infantum from not having its nipples boiled."

"Waking a child up to feed him is the silliest thing I ever heard of. He has been under nourished and needs the nourishment? Nonsense. I had eight children and I always let them sleep as long as they would."

"That's the sort of thing they are continually saying, and as some of them have more influence than we do, the result is, that many of our most important instructions are neutralized."

"Why, I even know of one baby that I am sure would be alive to-day if he had the proper care, but they lost him because the mother let the grandmother pooh-hoo her out of doing what the doctor and nurse had told her."

"No, grandmothers may be well enough for older children, but a good many of them are the babies' worst enemies."

In the Philadelphia schools a lecture on the care of babies was given to the little mothers of the tenements this spring. The next day they were asked to write an essay on the lecture and one child of eleven brought in this startling indictment of grandmother:

"I never understood why my little brother Mikey turned over one day after he was several months with us, and gave a little grunt and died. Now I believe it was because my grandmother used to feed him the same things as she ate. Sometimes she would squeeze orange juice in his mouth and other times she'd give him a bit of cabbage to strengthen him. I think some germs got into these and made Mikey twist up in knots and die."

Of course that sort of grandmother doesn't exist among my readers, but I have no doubt that the other kind does, and I think, all things considered, that her sin of pooh-hooing the nurse's instructions is quite as bad as the tenement grandmother's orange and cabbage habit.

A Simple Treatment that Will Make Hair Grow Now Sold in Nfld.

Every up-to-date woman should have radiant hair.

There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not try to improve it.

In England and Paris women take pride in having beautiful hair. Every Canadian woman can have lustrous and luxuriant hair by using SALVIA. The Great American Sage Hair Tonic.

Every reader of the Telegram can have an attractive head of hair in a few weeks by using SALVIA.

T. McMurdo & Co. sells a large bottle for 50 cents, and guarantees it to banish Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back.

SALVIA is a beautiful, pleasant, non-sticky Hair Tonic, and makes the hair grow beautiful.

not only whitens them, but is helpful in removing slight stains.

After whitewashing a ceiling there are often stains of whitewash on the furniture and windows. These can be easily removed by rubbing with a soft cloth on which a few drops of paraffin have been put.

To mend enamelware so it will hold take equal parts soft putty, finely sifted coal ashes, and sifted table salt, mix and pack well into hole. Place pan on stove with a little water in until cement hardens.

After cleaning the brass on the front door rub it with an old soft luster smeared with vaseline, and then polish with a dry cloth. This will keep the brass from tarnishing even in quite damp and foggy weather.

Beeswax and salt will make your rusty flat-irons as clean and smooth as glass. Tie a lump of wax in a rag; when the irons are hot rub them first with the wax-rag, then scour with a paper or a cloth sprinkled with salt.

The flavor of coffee is greatly improved by placing the dry coffee in an even until it is quite hot before pouring on the boiling water. To settle it without the use of egg, add a dash of cold water just before removing the pot from the fire.

Cracks in walls may be filled up with plaster of Paris. Mix this with kieselguiter instead of water. It will then be like putty and can be used with ease. If mixed with water it dries so soon that it is very difficult to use it quickly enough.

In making cake the first requisite is to cream the butter well. If it is inclined to be hard and the process will be slow, pour hot water into the mixing bowl and spoon until they are thoroughly heated, wipe dry and put the butter in at once.

To fasten the name labels on cans, jars and bottles containing food and their supplies use a small strip of adhesive plaster. This will stick to any surface, and the annoyance caused by labels falling off and being lost will be at an end.

When the linoleum or oilcloth has been washed and thoroughly dried take a little starch in a pint basin with boiling water, and rub lightly over with a clean cloth. It will dry brightly without any further rubbing and without being slippery.

New Race of Dwarfs.

Simplicity of Little Men of Bougainville.

The Solomon Islands, a large and richly numerous group, which lie several hundred miles to the northeast of Australia, are still among the less known parts of the earth. Discovered in the middle of the 16th century, and rediscovered two hundred years later, when their precise location had become a mystery, an unhealthy climate and decidedly inhospitable natives for years warned off the curious, and even to this day some of the islands are almost entirely unexplored. An Englishman bearing the old name of Graham Officer, who has lately been to the Solomons, states that in the high interior of one of the islands called Bougainville, lives a race of dwarfs. All the Solomon Islanders are short in stature, but these little fellows measure only three and a half to four feet in height. The only thing they wear besides a shell ornament, is their beards, and each man carries bow and arrow and a stone club. Their simplicity is equalled by their honesty, which in any age would have been thought extraordinary. The dwarfs have no salt in their mountain homes, and so they come to the beach to get it. They carry long bamboo pipes, which they fill with salt water. But looking upon the sea water as the property of the coast-dwellers, they bring with them a certain black pigment in payment thereof.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

When making mince pies and similar pastries brush over the top with cold water, and sprinkle with finely powdered sugar. Their appearance will be improved.

Upon removing a cake from the oven, set the pan on a thick cloth wrung from hot water, and in a few minutes the cake may be slipped from the tin without further trouble.

When cooking cabbage or other green vegetables, if the water boils constantly, the cooking will not be attended by unpleasant odors, according to the experience of one cook.

Scratches on furniture will disappear if rubbed well with a solution of equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine. Rub this well into the scratches and then polish with a soft cloth.

When you need a cold cloth and haven't ice try wringing a cloth out of cold water and shaking it briskly in the air. The rapid evaporation will give you an almost ice-cold compress.

Sank Under Them!

People who came up from Twillingate by to-day's express say that Howlett's schr. Daisy Belle, which arrived there Tuesday, reports that a schooner sank in a few moments under her crew of Griffin's Harbor, Labrador, on Wednesday last. They had just left the place coming south with six hands on board and all were on deck. Suddenly the vessel was noticed to be settling in the water and the captain happened to glance down in the cabin. He was horrified at what he saw, for it was filled with water, and in less than five minutes and just as all the crew had got into their boat and left the vessel she went to bottom with 200 qts. of fish, their summer's voyage, on board. The fish was not insured and the men, who lost all their effects, rowed back to the harbor they had left. Our informants could not remember the name of the craft.

The Branch Railway.

Mr. W. D. Reid returned here in the yacht Effe at 11 a.m. to-day from Trinity. Interviewed by the Telegram Mr. Reid said that he was down over the line and that Mr. Cobb had started grading at Trinity with his headquarters at N. W. Arm. The graders have commenced work up to the 54th mile, and the end of the track should be at Trinity Harbor inside of two weeks from now. The work is progressing as favorably as material will permit. More rock cutting has to be done and is to be accomplished on this branch than on the whole of the cross-country road. The cuts going through the rock land run from 22 to 28 feet in depth, both in the Arms and around Trinity Harbor. About 2,000 men are at work on the line and there are 30 miles more to be done to complete the road. Mr. Reid made daily trips over the road and visited Seal Cove Monday. Ballasting has reached the 41st mile and trimming has been done to the 38th mile. Mr. Reid was at Robt Hood also and was struck with the prosperity of the people in that section of the District. All own traps and combine farming to a large extent with fishing. There, he says, he saw the best agricultural land in the Colony, with splendid farms raising excellent crops. Fine roads are to be seen on all sides and the scenery is magnificent. It is safe to say that when this road is completed it will attract thousands of tourist to Trinity and vicinity.

School Gardens.

SKILLED DIRECTION.

One of the points most emphasized by Dr. Robertson was the need of expert direction in the school garden movement, especially in its pioneer days, to put it on right lines and to prevent it proving a fiasco.

If such a movement is to prove anything more than pulling weeds, it is necessary to have teachers who can bring out its full educational value in the upbringing of our children, otherwise it will be worse than the cribbing and confining of our youngsters all day long within the four walls of a school room and keeping them poring over the printed pages of a book.

In other words we shall be making no improvement in our present fantastic educational method of putting part of the child to school, and turning out weak memorized walking encyclopaedias and imperfect human writing machines. If we are to develop the whole of the faculties of the child by engaging the intense and wonderful activities which are innate with him, we must have those in charge of education who know how to do it.

We have many bright and active teachers of both sexes who need only professional training to make a success of this movement.

Why should not a few of these be chosen and with the assistance and co-operation of Dr. Robertson sent to MacDonald College and given a thorough training in manual training, domestic science, physical culture, nature study and social economics.

On the return of these they might be engaged, male and female, on the staff of local training schools for teachers, and these local institutions thoroughly equipped for carrying on the local training of teachers.

The common man on the street has the feeling that all is not well with our schools, not that they are worse or better than schools abroad, but that school education is not doing what it was thought it should do when popular education was advocated a generation ago. And the man on the street is not far astray. A school is not a piece for turning out children to wear a collar and white shirt, but to make good in the world when he grows up, and our school training is sadly lacking in turning out really good, sound stuff. It is not the fault of the child, it is the fault of the system. We should not aim at turning out the perfect clerk or the complete tradesman, but we should succeed in turning ing out boys and girls with healthy bodies, active minds, keen in observation, sound in judgment, honest in character, who can take their part in the world's work and make good when they attempt their life's work.

In the Interests of Public Health.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—In reading your paper of this evening I noticed that the members of the Municipal Council paid a visit of inspection to Winsor Lake during the forenoon. This is as it should be, considering that a large expenditure of public monies is about to be made re closing up the old road and removing all the homesteads along the margin of Winsor Lake, and the opening up of a new road north of the present one with a view of protecting the waters from pollution.

While many persons differ on this gigantic and costly undertaking, and consider it useless (especially your esteemed correspondent "Reform"), I also beg to subscribe my name and influence to strongly oppose such a measure under the existing circumstances.

Still I am pleased that Mayor Ellis and the Aldermen are giving their attention to this matter before commencing work out there, for it shows that they are interested in their work as city representatives, and therefore hold the confidence of our citizens, even those of us who are opposed to the contemplated enormous expenditure. Therefore I would respectfully ask His Honor the Mayor and Councilors, who seem to be interested in the health of our citizens, to pay a visit to Long Pond and vicinity, and while there closely examine the many household sewers, besides the drainings coming directly from the slaughter house that flows into this pond and then find their way down Rennie's River.

When they find out as to what purpose the said waters of Long Pond and Rennie's River are being used for by thousands of families in the city, they will, I am sure, remedy this existing danger before they think about taking up the matter of Winsor Lake, which is veritably an ocean of pure and unadulterated water.

Yours truly,
Sept. 7, 1910. BE CAREFUL.

Police and Firemen Pass First Aid.

Yesterday the result of the examination of the police and firemen of the city on "First Aid to the Injured" was made known. The examining physicians were Drs. Duncan and Macpherson, and out of 59 men who took the course 35 passed, or a little over 60 per cent. of the whole and these included all the non-commissioned officers. Captain Trebble was first in the exams, and Consts. Walters and O'Neil, who were equal, second. It is a reassuring thing to see our police and firemen so proficient in this serviceable study and time will demonstrate that many valuable lives will be saved as the result of such proficiency.

Eucharistic Congress.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
MONTREAL, To-Day.

Three thousand people attended a reception given by the Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, to the Cardinal Legate at the Windsor Hotel last night. At the dinner given by the Provincial Government to the Cardinal yesterday at the Windsor Hotel, the Papal Legate created a great sensation by proposing the health of the King before that of the Pope. He visited Montreal jail yesterday, addressed the prisoners and celebrated Mass there. There was Midnight Mass at St. James' Cathedral last night. Elaborate preparations are being made for the big procession on Sunday. The 65th Regiment will turn out. Father Vaughan will deliver an address at Stanley Hall this afternoon.

P. K. DEVINE.

Body Discovered at Pouch Cove.

At 5 p.m. yesterday while Charles Gould, Edward Sullivan and Thomas Sullivan were fishing for squid on the ground about a gun shot from Bragg's Rock, just off Pouch Cove, they saw floating in the water the dead body of a man, and rowing towards it saw that it was perfectly nude. The men tied a rope around the body, and accompanied by a fleet of 100 boats, the occupants of which were also jigging squid, towed the corpse to Reginald Sullivan's stage where they placed canvas around it and took it up on the stage head, after which it was taken to the S. U. F. Hall. The feet were gone from the ankles, and the hands were also eaten off by the sea insects, and the flesh was gone from the face and the hair from the head. The remains were badly decomposed, and it was a gruesome sight to witness, as hair was left on the head, and the body was very much swollen. The man if in his natural state would be about 5 feet 10 inches in height, and must have been stout as he measured 18 inches across the shoulders. There was no hair on the skull and the limbs were sparsely covered with a growth of hair of a brownish hue. Some of the people imagined it was the fisherman lost from a Luenberg banker, at Torbay, on the night of the Regatta, while others think it is Henry Sullivan who was swept off his stage by a sea in November last, but both these men had their clothes on when they vanished. The generally accepted theory is that it is Michael Molloy, who is missing from Torbay the past 6 weeks. He was demented and it would be the act of a maniac to doff his clothing and jump overboard. Supt. Grimes left here by carriage at 10 a.m. to-day to investigate the case.

Still "Struck" on Her.

Despite the fact that the woman was under the protection of her husband and in his company, the man St. Clair, who eloped with Mrs. Hewitt, as reported in the Telegram, saw her before she left here Tuesday and had two interviews with her. He boldly asserts that he will not give the woman up and will follow her to Halifax. Her husband is justly incensed against him. Should he proceed to Halifax and continue his attentions to her, we will hear of "something doing" there in the near future.

Court on Circuit.

Sheriff Carroll, Clerk Butler and Crier Allsop left by the Prospero yesterday to go on the Supreme Court Northern Circuit. His Lordship the Chief Justice will go by this evening's express, and Messrs. J. A. W. McNeilly, J. Fenelon, A. Herder and W. J. Higgins go forward as counsel.

Readers of the following description of Herbert Booth's lecture with which he is to conclude his mission next Monday evening, will know that there is a treat in store for the citizens of St. John's. There has certainly never been anything like it here before. It has been delivered over one thousand times in the largest auditoriums in the world, but most probably this is the one occasion when it will be seen or heard in Newfoundland. Asked how he secured his remarkable pictures, Mr. Booth said:—"The idea occurred to me in Australia. I wanted to bring before the Churches of to-day a vivid portrayal of the devotion of the early Christians—to bring the Saints from their graves and let them live and move and testify again for their Master. To portray their heroic struggle in the streets of Jerusalem, in the squares of Rome, in their primitive sanctuaries, in their hiding-places among the mountains, exhorting each other and burying their dead in the catacombs, their fidelity before kings, their struggles in the Coliseum—I wanted to make it all real and stirring by the aid of life model and moving pictures. How did such a good theory work out?"

"Having collected my facts, I organized a company of living models—Christian men, women and children. These I correctly costumed and trained to act their several parts—there were about 600 in all. Then I had scenery painted, an open-air stage erected, and on this stage I posed my models so as to follow my story with a picture for about every forty words spoken. The cameras did the rest.

When the story was thus illustrated by still pictures I got my models to act it before the cinematograph and secured my films. I am the only man in the world whose moving pictures are a fac-simile of his still pictures. This gives me what I believe is the most powerful combination in lantern work. The still pictures secure me the attention of my audience, enabling me to enforce the truth, while the motion picture repeats and re-presses it to the accompaniment of hymns sweetly sung. The effect is wonderful, as you may judge when I say that I have had as many as 8,000 people in America listening with the keenest attention to the sacred subject till after eleven o'clock at night." Tickets may be had at Dick's Bookstore.

Walked to Death in His Sleep.

CALAIS, Me., August 28.—Leaving his bunk and walking overboard in his sleep, William Dudley, 28, a seaman on the schr. Jessie Hart, was drowned some time last night. His clothing and personal effects were found in the forecastle where he left them on retiring, this morning the boat was at anchor six miles below the city. Dudley is survived by a wife and three children.

Water Supply vs. Drainage.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Today's Chronicle contains an article on the Windsor Lake Reserve which claims some reply from me who am, I think, chiefly responsible for the protest which has been made against the creation of this Reserve so long as the imperative demands of the town for a decent and sanitary drainage system remain unsatisfied. At the outset I desire to express my grateful recognition of the temper and spirit of the Chronicle's article. The writer indignantly and with the opinions which those who think as I do hold, but he evidently recognizes the fact that we hold our opinions honestly and are actuated by no other motives than a desire to do the best for the town we live in. For my own part, I think that no one will deny that I entertain and have expressed consistently an earnest wish to improve the present deplorable condition of our civic affairs, and that all my writings have been directed towards awakening an enlightened public spirit in the breasts of our citizens. No man is more impressed with the necessity of securing a pure and abundant water supply than I am, and were our finances adequate to the expenditure, I would never raise my voice against this Reserve. I would not oppose even a mistaken attempt to improve so important a service as the water supply if we were in a position to make experiments, or if other still more important services would not be curtailed or rendered useless to the town by reason of such experiments. My whole position is that the town is in danger every hour through the horrible contamination of our drains, and that we have apparently insufficient means to render this drainage system less dangerous. The perils arising from the sewers, gutters, heaps of putrefying garbage, drains and cesspools are daily before us, and unless reformation of these evils comes early, we may be face to face with a dreadful epidemic. The main duty of the Council, I contend, is to deal promptly and effectively with the evil which is ever present with us, the evil whose cause is manifest, the evil for which the remedy is provided in obvious. Until we make adequate provision for a sanitary drainage system the death rate of the town cannot be lowered, and the danger of loathsome and deadly epidemics cannot be averted from us. If we must find money, it must be first and foremost for this purpose; when we have achieved that desirable end we may be justified in seeking to improve the water supply. But not till then. If then, the Twenty Mile Pond Reserve can only be created at the expense of a radical improvement of the drainage system, I think that it is our duty to protest against it with all our might. And this is what I have been endeavouring to do. When it is proved to me that the dangers to be anticipated from the use of the Twenty Mile Pond water are greater than the dangers which we know arise from our filthy and disease-laden drains, I shall cease my opposition. And I claim that no attempt to prove this has ever been made. The Chronicle asserts that the water has from time

The Open Door for Consumption

And How "Father Morrissey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) Closes it.

A low run-down condition, with perhaps a neglected cold and a little cough, is a cordial invitation to the White Plague, Consumption, to come in and make itself at home. And it seldom overlooks the invitation. In such a case there is no time to be lost. The door must be promptly closed. This can be done by taking a complete rest, with plenty of fresh air, and "Father Morrissey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic). This medicine cleans out the passages, relieves the cough, and heals the delicate membrane of lungs and air passages. But perhaps most important of all, it builds up the whole system, giving Nature the needed assistance in fighting off the dread disease.

Though other remedies may have failed, don't give up. Try "Father Morrissey's No. 10," combined with fresh air and exercise, and even though you are in the first stages of consumption there is hope of a permanent cure. Sample bottles free. Regular size 50c. at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissey's Medicine Co., 1111 Chestnut St., N. B.

to time been suspected of impurity, and that analysis has demonstrated that the "certainty of drainage finding its way from the farm houses into the Lake render the contamination of the water very probable." Even this, you will see, points to no more than a suspicion and to a probability. In opposition to it I bring forward the fact that no disease has ever been traced, during the long period of sixty years, to any contamination of the water at its source in the pond. In opposition to the project founded on this mere suspicion and assumed probability, I allege the certainty of the dangers arising from our defective and deplorable drainage system. Shall we deliberately choose to sacrifice dozens of lives in the town every year which we know must be sacrificed if we do not reform the drainage system, merely in order to protect ourselves against a danger which, as seems to be admitted, is no more than a probability? Shall we allow our drains and sewers to disseminate disease daily and nightly throughout the town merely in order to make sure that no possibility of impurity lurks in the water of Windsor Lake? Shall we spend $22,000 and more on the mere chance of doing some good when we cannot find a few hundreds to spend in the certainty of saving many valuable lives? That is what the whole issue amounts to. Our case is wholly different from that of Montreal and other cities which derive their water supply from sources which have time and again been demonstrated to be polluted. In the case of these cities the epidemic and endemic diseases which ravage them

Had Eczema In Both Legs

Remarkable cure of Chronic Eczema by use of DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. You could scarcely imagine a more severe test of this ointment than the cure of Mrs. E. Chase, who has been twenty years suffering all the tortures of this terrible disease and tried in vain the prescriptions of doctors and the cure commonly recommended. Mr. Fred W. Clark, Petworth, Ont., writes:—"My mother had Eczema in both legs for about 20 years and suffered from the dreadful itching, stinging sensations which can never be described. She doctor'd and tried everything for it but got no relief until she used Dr. Chase's Ointment which was recommended to her by a friend. She found that this brought relief and by continuing its use has been cured of Eczema. I do not think any one could have this horrible disease any worse than she did and can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a thorough cure for Eczema." Dr. Chase's Ointment, 50 cents a box at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Dr. Chase's Recipes sent free.

Lobsters Won't Decline

In this morning's Daily News there is a paragraph in which it is stated that the price of lobsters is $15 per case and that there is a large stock of same held in town, also that the price is likely to decline. From a most reliable source we hear that $15.75 per case has been paid this week, and instead of a decline an improvement in price is anticipated for the stocks held abroad are not equal to that of former years and the consumption is good with an active demand.

Kille Competition.

At the Newfoundland Highlanders' Armory to-morrow night there will be a miniature rifle competition for D. A. E. Perkins' gold medal, put up for the purpose. Four rounds of ammunition will be served out to the competitors with ten counting shots, and the highest score out of 100 points will win the trophy.

Injured at Clarenville.

By yesterday's freight train a man was brought but from Clarenville and taken to Hospital for treatment. On Tuesday while at work on the railway the wheels of an engine went over his left foot, crushing it severely. It will be weeks before he can be about again.

No More Misery in the Stomach.

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia vanish in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring, or your stomach or bowels like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you get Gas and Eructa, acid, indigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pepp's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation. This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion. PATENT FOR HOSPITAL—A man arrived by the freight train yesterday from Flower's Cove, French Shore, and went to Hospital for treatment. He is almost totally blind from a stroke of a ball received when a boy and hopes to recover his sight after an operation. MR. BESANT AGAIN CONDUCTOR—Mr. Jno. Besant, who was a conductor for years with the Reid Mtd. Co., has been appointed conductor with the A. N. D. Co., running a train for freight and passengers to the N. C. line from the Millerton branch. No better man could be got for the position than Mr. Besant, who is both faithful and careful.

Harbor Grace Excursionists.

The Harbor Grace excursionists with the British Society of that town after arriving here yesterday took in the sights of the city, visiting the churches, principal public buildings, armories of the city corps, dry dock, etc., and many went for rides in the streets. Last night they held a very enjoyable dance in the British Hall in which over 150 couples participated including many of our citizens. A very enjoyable time was had and a programme of 20 dances was gone through with. Most of the Second City folk leave by this evening's train for home.

Naval Men at Rifle Practice.

The naval men on H. M. S. Calypso are hard at work daily of late at the old rifle range near Nagle's Hill, where new targets have been erected for their accommodation. They are engaged at rifle practice; some of the Brilliant's crew are marking for them, and good scores are being recorded. Next week the men of the Brilliant will spend several days there at rifle practice.

Earl Grey Cannot Visit St. John's.

We learn that His Excellency Earl Grey who had at first intended to visit St. John's, will now be unable to do so. Owing to pressure of circumstances His Excellency has had to alter his plans and will leave Grand Falls on Saturday, and proceeding to Bay of Islands will embark on the cruiser Earl Grey for Quebec.

The Diana, Capt. Blandford, left here last night for Blanc Sablon, laden with provisions, and will return with about 4,000 lbs. of fish.

The HAGUE DECISION

The Defeat of the U.S. Contention Deplored in Washington.

Special to Evening Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 7. A substantial victory for Great Britain on perhaps the two most important points, a consoling triumph for the United States in the other 5 points with the prospect of another arbitration later at the instance of the United States, is the way the decision of the Hague Tribunal in the Newfoundland Fisheries case is viewed here. The decision eliminates the right of the United States to share in making and enforcing regulations governing the fisheries in the disputed territory, and it is that qualifications reasonable that may permit this Government some time to reopen the question of joint action as to the regulations. The State Department has not been officially advised of the decision and therefore declines to comment on it. The treaty consists involved are the Southern and western coasts of Newfoundland, from Ramea Island around by way of Cape Ray to Quirpon Island, the whole of Magdalen Islands, and the Labrador coasts from Mount Jilo northward, indefinitely. The defeat of the Washington contention on the first count, which includes regulations as to time and method of fishing, is especially deplored here.

How the Decision is Viewed in Gloucester.

Special Evening Telegram.

GLoucester, Mass., Sept. 7. News of the decision of the International Court at the Hague was received with doubtful sentiment by Gloucester fishing interests. The point won by Great Britain gives that country the right to regulate the time and methods of fishing and the implements used, and established the three mile limit around Newfoundland from headland to headland and not following the lines of the bays as contended by the United States.

Cardinal Vannutelli in Graceful Speech Proposed Health of King George.

Special Evening Telegram.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7. A graceful act of courtesy which earned a good deal of heart burning and diplomatic discussions was presented by His Eminence Cardinal Vannutelli to-day at the luncheon tendered the Papal Legate by the Provincial Government at the Windsor Hotel, when His Eminence personally proposed the Health of King George the Fifth before that of the Pope. This procedure has given rise to a great deal of argument and not a little difficulty since in the British Empire the toast of His Majesty is always first, while at gatherings of the Roman Catholic Church that of His Holiness is given precedence. The point was a delicate one, but it served to give zest to the diplomacy which has always been evinced by Cardinal Vannutelli since he came to Canada as a guest within the British Empire and therefore a guest of the King, who is the head of the Empire. Cardinal Vannutelli settled the whole question by himself proposing the health of the King in a graceful speech, in which, while shading not an inch of the position of the Pope, he recognized the Head of the British Empire. His Eminence expressed his gratitude to the Ministers of the Crown, who were his hosts, and concluded by proposing the health of His Majesty together with a warm tribute to the worth of the King and his family.

Floods in Japan.

Special to Evening Telegram.

TOKIO, Sept. 7. Serious floods threaten the cities of Tosaka and Kobe, on the island of Honshu River. Banks are collapsing and much damage is done. Probably high water also is doing serious damage in the northern part of the mainland.

London's Most Famous Street.

Where Schemes Involving Millions are Discussed and Peace or War Decided Upon.

Visitors from all parts of the world who gaze their way through London are not aware, perhaps, that the very hub of the British Government owes its existence to an American. Downing Street is synonymous with the governing power in the United Kingdom, and it was named after a Yankee. True, George Downing—Sir George Downing they had to make him in the long run—didn't know he was a Harvard graduate. In his day there wasn't any Harvard so far as the name went. The present University was only the public school of Massachusetts. But young Downing was graduated from it just the same, and his name is entitled to a place with those of other dead-and-gone alumni. And he it was who built England's world-famous Downing Street.

George Downing was born in America. His was a constructive genius. He put up his own rooms in what now is Harvard—bought the boards and nails and glass himself, and built the little wing with his own hands. Then, having provided a college home for himself, he set about his studies. He studied to such purpose that when he went to England in quest of a career he found one cut out for him. They made a diplomat of the man. Charles II. sent him to the Hague as Ambassador, and incidentally, being a thrifty as well as a merry monarch, took occasion to sell him the little lane along which Henry VIII. had been wont to stroll from Whitehall Palace to see cock-fights. Sir George afterwards became Secretary to the Treasury.

London's First Brick Houses. Downing Street is 100 yards long and 10 yards wide. In its confines Sir George built the first brick houses of importance ever put up in London. His children and grandchildren owned the whole street until Baron Bothmar, then Danish Ambassador to England, bought No. 10 in 1734. About the only thing the Dane did worth chronicling was to die there. No. 10 reverted to the Crown, and George II. (thrifty as the Merry Monarch, offered it to Sir Richard Walpole. Just when King George expected to get in return from his Minister is not known. Sir Robert was too fine a fellow to take the house as a gift, but he accepted it as the official residence of the Lords of the Treasury. As Britain's First Lord of the Treasury usually is Prime Minister as well, No. 10 Downing Street is the headquarters of the Premier.

Dwelling of the Great Pitt. A desperate attack, fizzling out to mere window smashing, was made on No. 10 by the Gordon rioters, when Lord North lived there. The great Pitt was so fond of No. 10 that when he could avoid it he never slept elsewhere. He dwelt in the house twenty years. All that time Downing Street was getting a reputation. Until 1780 the Ministers dated all their official communications "The Cockpit, Whitehall," as the place had come to be called early in the sixteenth century. Not until 1793 did "Downing Street" definitely take the place of "The Cockpit" at the head of the Government papers. Downing Street was built on a swamp, and the ground under the big houses is sown thickly with age-blackened wooden piles.

KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

Special Meeting OF THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the Council was held at 7.30 last evening, the Mayor presiding, and the full Board and a News representative being present. At the beginning of the meeting a discussion took place over allowing reporters to be present at special meetings. The Mayor contended that as special meetings were more in the nature of enquiries and preliminary deliberations, it was not necessary to have them reported, and that it was sufficient to give the public the results of such meetings after conclusions had been arrived at and decisions made.

Councillor Mullaly thought all meetings of the Council should be reported. Several Councillors expressed themselves on the matter, some favouring the Mayor's idea, others not. No definite action was taken.

The main business of the meeting was the consideration of Byrne's application for an increase of $4.00 per month on his retiring allowance.

Official reports which were read by the Secretary, showed that Byrne was retired through old age and inability to perform his work.

The Engineer was called, and in reply to questions from several Councillors said that he had recommended Byrne's retirement, as a result of reports made to him by the foreman under whom Byrne worked, and that he was not personally acquainted with Byrne's condition at the time of retirement. In reply to questions put by Councillor Mullaly the Engineer said it was chiefly on account of illness, and not old age, that Byrne had been retired.

Councillor Mullaly, after reading the reports tabled, could not agree with the Engineer. He thought it was his age that was made the excuse for retiring him, and as Byrne was not an old man, he (Coun. M.) considered he had been unfairly dealt with, and that he should be still in the employ of the Council. Councillors Myrick and Ryan agreed with him.

Here Mr. Donnelly, Inspector of the Water Works, was called. He reported that Byrne had been sick for three and four months at a time. In reply to questions as to whether Byrne had not done some special and extraordinary work in the department, the Inspector said that he hadn't.

Mr. Byrne was then called, and in answer to questions, said that he considered he should not have been retired, that he was quite equal to the work, and his illness, that had been referred to, was the result of a chill caught while doing some special work at Windsor Lake.

Councillor Mullaly still considered the man had not received fair treatment, and moved that his request, for an increase, be granted. Councillor Ryan seconded the motion.

A discussion then arose as to whether the motion was in order. It was pointed out that as there was already a regulation adopted by a former Council, that persons should be paid half the salary at time of retirement. Councillor Mullaly thought that the present Council should take no notice of what was done by their predecessors, that they "should forget the former Council ever existed." They were there to act on their own judgment, and not be influenced by what some other Councillor thought years ago.

There was some doubt as to whether the regulation referred to was in writing, or only a custom, and Councillor Channing moved in amendment that the question stand over until after the next Finance Meeting; seconded by Councillor Martin, carried unanimously.

Councillor Channing gave notice that he would at next meeting move "that in future all pensions granted should be half the salary of the workman at time of retirement."

In the matter of distribution of patronage, it was decided to divide work among the different tradesmen as equally as possible, consistent with fair prices and satisfactory work. Meeting adjourned at 11.15.—News.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURE'S GARGLET IN COWS.

The Cornwall Coming.

We learn that the H. M. S. Cornwall which paid us a visit the past summer, is now on her way to this port with a new contingent of cadets aboard. On arrival she will stay for some time, and it is likely that she will take our naval reservists who enlist to go to southern waters.

The Brilliant will remain in port altogether ten weeks and will then proceed to the West Indies where the crew will engage in rifle practice during the winter.

Berated the Police.

Last night a Swede, a sailor on the big four-masted Gypsum Emperor, cut up lively in the West End, and was arrested by Consts. Lez and Another. On arrival at the lock up he began to berate Supt. Grimes, and wanted to have his tobacco and pipe in the cell with him. When told he could not do this he resisted going into the cells and the officers had to force him behind the bars.

Will Waive Claim.

Secretary James Foley, of the Cricket Association, had a letter from Mr. Michael Hynes, of the T. A. Club last evening in which he states that at the solicitation of the Association and to forward the interests of the game of cricket, the T. A. Cricket Club will waive its claim on the portion of the Parade Ground owned by them if the Association can arrange to procure this ground, not alone but the T. A. people will help in every way to forward the ideas of the Association. Such good sentiments are worthy of all praise.

Mrs. Bindon Improving.

Mrs. Bindon, of Placentia, who recently burst a blood vessel and lost much blood, as exclusively reported in the Telegram is now, though still very weak, slowly improving and the physician hopes to pull her through though it will be months before she will be perfectly strong.

To the Harbour Master

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Mr. Editor.—Would you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to publish the following:

Not long ago, and in fact many times, while crossing the harbour in boat, we and others have had several narrow escapes from being run down by motor boats owing to their not having a light on the bow of the boat or side light. Now, Mr. Harbour Master, is this thing allowed or not, as if it is there will surely be many disasters? In one case we had a very narrow escape and we asked the occupants of the motor boat what he was trying to do and why he did not have a light. He absolutely insulted us and even turned his boat and came upon us again, and we actually had to stop or be cut down. Now, Mr. Harbour Master, I think, if you don't, that it is high time to put a stop to this sort of work; if it is pleasure for the occupants of the motor boat it is no pleasure for the occupants of the other (hand power) boat.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I remain,

Yours truly,
AN ESCAPED.

Interview With Mr. W. G. Gosling ON THE DECISION OF THE HAGUE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL.

This morning after the publication of the findings of the Hague Court of Arbitration, a representative of the Telegram called on Mr. W. G. Gosling, interviewing him as to his opinions on the decisions rendered by this International Tribunal. Mr. Gosling said that it is difficult at the present moment to decide as to the value of the decision given at the Hague in view of the great difference between the public message which awards to us a favorable decision on questions 1 and 5 only, whereas Sir Edward Morris's telegram from the Attorney General, Hon. D. Morrison, says that we had won six out of seven points, the United States winning only on question 6. It would almost seem as if the judgments were so divided as to make it difficult to say which won on questions 2, 3, 4 and 7, questions 1 and 5 being definitely decided in our favour and question 6 in favour of the United States. Questions 1 and 5 are really the two most important questions, the first substantiating the British claim, that of having the sole control and regulation of the fisheries in her own waters. Question 5 is of more importance to the Maritime Provinces than it is to Newfoundland, involving as it does the right to the inlay mackerel fisheries to which the Americans had been endeavouring for the past 70 years to gain access. Question 6, which involves the point as to whether the Americans had the right to fish in the Bay of Islands, St. George's Bay and other bays on the West Coast of Newfoundland, has unfortunately been given against us. If the decision had been taken upon the sure wording of the Treaty it could not possibly have been given against us. Unfortunately in the past the Imperial authorities and the Colonial authorities had given away our position. This was notably the case at the time of the Halifax award, when a map was submitted to the arbitrators by the Newfoundland Commissioners showing that portion of the coast to which the Americans had the right of fishing colored red, and this included all the bays and harbours from Ramea Islands to Quirpon. It is probably hard in the face of this to substantiate our case, but there seems to be no question that originally a distinct difference was intended in the working of the Treaty which uses the terms "coasts of Newfoundland," "shores of the Magdalen Islands," and "coasts, bays, harbors and creeks of Labrador." The arbitrators practically say now that these three terms mean exactly the same thing, which is a matter for wonderment. The decision against us of question 2, combined with question 6, is a serious loss to the Colony, as it carries with it the right of the United States vessels to fish in the bays on the West Coast and employ other than inhabitants of the United States to fish for them. Presumably, however, there is nothing to prevent Newfoundland enforcing the law prohibiting her own fishermen from employing themselves in United States vessels. The loss of this question—No. 2—is very hard to understand, as evidence of the clearest nature was submitted, showing that the United States when asking for the renewal of the fishing privileges in 1818 desired them only for their own poor fishermen, making the contention that they were actually in indigent circumstances and that the loss of the right to fish in British American waters took away their livelihood. Also, an instance occurred in 1808, during the term of the 1783 Treaty, when a United States vessel on the Labrador was seized by a British cruiser because she was laden with fish not caught or cured by inhabitants of the United States. The vessel in question had secured her cargo by bartering with British fishermen. This was an important piece of evidence, because it not only showed that the term "inhabitants of the United States" was clearly understood, but also showed that the right of fishing was not understood at that time to carry with it any commercial privileges. It is therefore a complete and unanswerable argument in favor of us on question No. 7, which has also been given against us. Questions 3 and 4 are of minor importance. The arrival of the full text of the judgments will be awaited with the greatest interest.
