CHAPTER XXIV.
The Young Lovers.

"Oh! how dare you," she said, looking up at him, "and I have only seen you twice—three times!"

"I loved you the first time!" said Charlie. "I couldn't love you any better if I'd seen you a hundred. I'm miserable, Mary—miserable all day and all night—and shall be if you won't tell me that you'll try and love me."

"I shall not tell you any such thing!" said Lady Mary, crimson still—with indignation, no doubt—and I think it very wrong—and wicked, and I have a great mind to tell Miss Harriet!"

"Oh, you wouldn't, you couldn't do that!" pleaded Charlie aghast. "Why, they wouldn't let you come, again, would they? and they wouldn't let me come even as near as this to you!"

"I don't want you to come any nearer," pouted Lady Mary, plucking at the flowers in her dress, "and I'm going this instant. I only came, indeed, to tell you that you mustn't walk round and round the house, and go to the same church, and stare at our pew as you do! It's fearfully rude, and—dangerous!" she said, archly.

"Is it?" he responded, dolefully; "but what can I do! I must see you, or, at least, be near you once a day! You don't know how I love you! Girls are so hard-hearted. But this isn't dangerous!" he added, quickly and eagerly. "I'll come here every evening at this time, just after your tea-time, and see you. You will come—Oh, why don't you stand still, you fidgety wretch! Oh, don't shake your head! You'll come, Mary! Dear, dear Mary!"

He leaned over so far, standing perhaps in the saddle, that Lady Mary shrank back alarmed.

"How far does it!" said Charlie, hungrily. "Perhaps I could drop down and climb up; the horse would stand—"

"No! no!" responded Lady Mary, in terror. "No, indeed, you must not! Oh, dear! Do go! Pray go! Oh, you wouldn't be so wicked as to come down here! They would see us!"

And in her alarm she unconsciously put up her hand, as if to stop him. Charlie leaned over and caught at the hand, but missed it.

"Well, well," he said, audaciously,

Every Neuralgic Headache Cured! Use "Nerviline"—It Won't Fail.

There may be a thousand pains; yet, excepting sciatica, neuralgia is the worst. Most remedies are not strong enough or penetrating enough to relieve neuralgia. You know everything you have tried has failed to give even momentary relief, and you have decided that neuralgia must be borne forever.

Do not make this mistake—try NERVILINE.

Apply it to the sore spot. Notice the glow that spreads deeper and wider as Nerviline's curative power is carried further and further into the tissue. How quickly the pain is soothed! How rapidly it lessens! In a little while you

"I must drop over, though it's nothing; and I could scramble up by the tree in a moment."

"No, no!" from Lady Mary; "I will come down if you'll give me your hand. You wait—there, Mr.—"

Lady Mary drew quite close, and put up her hand, shyly and slowly.

The abandoned boy caught at it, and actually kissed it.

"What a dear little hand!"

"Oh, let me go!"

"No, I can't—I feel that I can't!" and he kissed it again.

She snatched it from him, and left him for the moment nonplussed, but only for a moment.

"What are these in your dress—flowers! Have you worn them all day? Yes! Give them to me; I will have them—now I will, really—dash me! Ah, how I love them. There!" and he bent over until his hand with the flowers reached as low as his face, pressed almost close to the wall. "Mary! dear, darling Mary! kiss them!—the kiss! Ah, it isn't kissing me! Why should you look so? Kiss them! Shall I come down—"

With an exclamation, and a flush far exceeding all the previous ones, Lady Mary reached up her pouting lips and kissed the flowers.

Charlie, with a low cry of delight, pressed them to his lips, and kissed them once, twice—then a voice called "Lady Mary."

The wicked girl with a low cry darted away, and at the same moment the patience of the horse being exhausted, the horse drew a step or two on, and Charlie disappeared like a jack-in-the-box.

There was no harm done—he was on his feet in an instant, and thrusting the flowers in his breast, caught the horse.

As he was springing on to its back he caught sight of the tall, thin man whom he had seen standing under the elms in front of the house.

Lovers are proverbially suspicious, and Charlie pulled up for a moment to eye the stranger, but the man seemed too old to be considered, in the most remote fashion, as a rival, and, in addition, seemed to be so absorbed in contemplation of the rather pretty surrounding scenery that Charlie's suspicions vanished, and he rode off, full to the brim with the first draughts of love's elixir.

CHAPTER XXV.

A Game of Cards.

There are always to be found in society, even in its highest places, certain individuals who are obviously out of place in it, and yet manage to float on its surface like the green scum on an ornamental pond.

Count Hudspiel was one of those anomalies: a man mixing with gentlemen, enjoying the privileges belonging to their class, and yet by no means a gentleman himself. To say that he was only permitted to mingle with the hunt ten by surveillance would scarcely be too severe, and yet not quite a correct description of his position. For, strange as it may appear, the count, as he was generally called, was liked by a certain fast set of young men, and warmly welcomed; it was only by the more experienced, by the real leaders of the elite, that the count was weighed in the balance, found wanting, and regarded with suspicion.

On his first appearance in London he had been received with the usual curiosity with which strangers are regarded and it could not be said that that curiosity was ever satisfied. People could see for themselves that he had forgotten the pain—it has actually gone.

Neuralgia gives Nerviline an opportunity of demonstrating its superiority over all other pain remedies. Not magic, as you might imagine after you have used it—simply the application of scientific knowledge to the relief of pain.

Nerviline is a great outcome of modern medical ideas. You cannot afford to be without it, because pain comes quickly and comes to us all. Guaranteed to cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Large bottles, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents; at druggists or the Catarrhose Co., Kingston, Canada.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

he was tall, well dressed, and had the entree of certain well-known and esteemed houses, and, moreover, was acknowledged by the German Embassy as possessing the title affixed to his name on his visiting cards.

Bavaria was the country he always spoke of as his home, and the names of court officials and German nobility rolled easily from his fluent tongue.

By degrees the curiosity abated, and the well-dressed, good-looking German, who spoke English with scarcely any accent, and was singularly free from the extraordinary extravagances of dress which foreigners usually indulge in, was permitted to float with the rest and go with the tide.

Still, however, he was not received with the unalloyed confidence with which an English nobleman would have been welcomed, and his sphere appeared to be the card-rooms and billiard-rooms of the clubs, and the bachelor suppers and dinners of Richmond and Henley.

In the card-room the count was particularly at home, and at his ease. He was, he frankly admitted, attached to a quiet rubber or a hand at cards, and did not even object to such modern innovations as euchre or poker. Neither had he any scruples in the matter of high stakes—in fact, the higher they were the more complacent was the count, and, win or lose, he accepted fortune as a gentleman should receive a lady with polite equanimity and good breeding; it may be as well to add that the count's temper was not often tried on that point, for he very seldom lost. There was some uncharitable persons who hinted that the count could not afford to be the victim of misfortune, and that he played to win. But who does not? And at least even the uncharitable ones were compelled to admit that the count had never been detected in playing anything but fairly.

But it was a singular phenomenon in the world of chance that Count Hudspiel nine times out of ten rose from the card table, or put down his cue, with his opponent's gold in his pocket. As the count said:

"I was always lucky; but it will change some day! Ah, yes, fortune is fickle!"

Among those who regarded the count with suspicion and some aversion, Percy must be counted. His dislike dated from his first meeting with the accomplished Bavarian; something in the sleek, smooth face, with its dark, restless eyes and ever smiling lips aroused Percy's antipathy, and the count was not slow to detect and return the dislike; but he was far too great an adept at advantage to show it. Percy met all the count's deception with a grim, almost stern reserve, which rolled off the sleek and oily German as water does off a duck's back.

Then came the affair with Lillian Devigne, when Percy's coolness shot up into positive dislike, for there was no blinking at the fact of a certain indefinable connection between the Devignes and the count. He was seldom with them, it was true, but when he happened to be there was always an assured air of complacency and almost insolence that galled Percy to the quick, and aroused in his patriotic spirit a longing to seize the count by the scruff of his bill neck and throw him on his back.

With eyes quickened by love, Percy saw that, cold and distant as Lillian often was to those about her, her hauteur and coldness disappeared when the count was near—in his presence her manner underwent a distinct and mysterious change. It certainly was not esteem that caused her to drop her eyes and compress her lips when the count's voice came putting on the air; but if it was dislike, it was not freed from a certain dread. As for Lady Devigne, she never spoke or looked at the count without a certain air and tone of deprecation, and never heard his name mentioned without a certain little nervous flutter of the eyes. Had the course of true love run smoothly with him, Percy would have dug this mystery out; but the marquis appeared on the scene; Percy's connection with the Devignes and with England was broken for the time, and in the woods of North America the count was forgotten.

But the count had neither forgotten nor forgiven Percy; he had taken some slight revenge for Percy's contemptuous reserve, by winning the wager from Charlie, and he saw his way to prolonging that delightful sensation, by still further plundering the boy when his guardian had gone.

But Charlie had been put up on his guard, and the count had been somewhat punished; not altogether, alas! for he had contrived to allay Charlie's suspicions by a careful circumspection, and he had pocketed no contemptible part of Charlie's allowance during Percy's absence. Be sure the money the count won of Percy's cousin and protege was sweeter than that of his other victims.

And now Percy was back, the London season was in full swing, and the count and he must inevitably run against one another now and then.

Percy was popular with the men of his set—with the women he was, of course, by reason of his wealth and position, of considerable importance, and they were never tired of asking him to dinner at Richmond, bachelor suppers, where more Moselle and grilled bones were consumed than anything else, and to the little select card parties, which have done so much harm to the young bloods of this generation.

Percy, though reserved, was not ungenial or morose, and more often than not accepted these invitations from his old friends, returning them in kind, and perhaps with a secret desire to bury himself and his unsatisfied longing for what he knew not, than any liking for dissipation.

Then Charlie came home to make the great mansion in Grosvenor Square less dreary, and of course was included in the invitations and regattals.

Fortunes Were Left to Lucky Servants.

Recent Legacy of $100,000 to Domestic Recalls Many Acts of Generosity on Part of Employers.

The recent legacy of £20,000 to her maid by the Dowager Countess of Wilton is not by any means the biggest sum left to a servant, even in recent years. In 1911, for example, a Buckinghamshire lady, Mrs. Anne Pilgrim, left her entire fortune, over £100,000, to her coachman, while in 1906 a Miss Cohen, left her ex-footman a sum of £50,000. One of the most curious bequests was that made by the late Mr. Alexander Flemming, a member of the famous firm of William Baird, the Scottish ironmasters. When he died in 1906 he left a sum of £10,000 to a Scottish piper who had whined away the millionaire's hours of illness by playing the bagpipes in his bedroom. Perhaps the most generous bequest of an employer to a servant was that of the wealthy London architect, Mr. Grunnon. When he died he left the whole of his big business, worth some £200,000 as a going concern, to his assistant, Mr. Pelly.

Many changes in the appearance of a gown can be effected by varying the neckwear which is worn with it.

The King's Message.

The general feeling of indignation about the misleading character of our first official announcement of the great sea fight has increased as it becomes more clear how it has affected the world and what a joyful surprise it was to Berlin. Only Mr. Dooley could do justice to the feelings of the Germans, after having their enterprise frustrated and being driven from the sea and limping into port with their best ships lost or battered, to learn from the English papers that they had won a victory. I hope Mr. Dooley will get to work on it. But in the crisis of our anxiety this week-end, when people are asking one another what it all really meant, two published announcements came to us to give the true perspective of the affair. Everywhere I hear in responsible quarters thankfulness expressed for the King's message to Admiral Jellicoe. This is one of the occasions when the opportunity arrived. They even more do I regret that the German High Seas Fleet in spite of its heavy losses was enabled by the misty weather to evade the full consequences of an encounter they have always professed to desire, but for which when the opportunity arrived they showed no inclination. The retirement of the enemy . . . robbed us of the opportunity of gaining a decisive victory."

Patriotic Grandsons of a Patriarch.

In the latest Canadian list of wounded, appears the name of John Cecil Pilot, grandson of the late Rev. Canon Pilot and great grand nephew of the late Rt. Hon. Sir W. V. White-way, K.C.M.G. Private John C. Pilot enlisted at Montreal in the 1st Canadian contingent in August, 1914. He spent over a year in the trenches before he received a gun shot wound in the foot which necessitated his removal to the hospital at Boulogne. At the commencement of the war he with his other brothers resided with his mother and step-father, the well-known artist, Maurice Cullen, R.C.A., Montreal. Edward, a brother, is a member of an ammunition column recruiting in that city; another brother, William, is in a bicycle corps recruiting in Toronto, while Robert, a young artist, has joined the No. 4 Ammunition column now in training at Peta-wawa. LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCE OF WALES' WAR MEDAL.

LONDON, June 12th, 1916. Apart from other aspects of June 2nd birthday honors the inclusion for the first time in such a record of the name of the Prince of Wales is a particularly interesting feature. The newspapers and clubs have not discussed this matter much but it is interesting to note that this conferment upon His Royal Highness of the Military Cross brings that youthful "Order of Bravery"—which was instituted only last year—its first Royal member, and enables the Prince to display British, French, Russian, and Italian war decorations, apart from other distinctions already in his possession.

A FAMOUS BANQUET OF HONOR.

Perhaps the greatest personal tribute ever paid to the late Lord Kitchener was the remarkable banquet which took place at the Mansion House in the autumn of 1903, shortly after his return from Omdurman and Khartoum. Many distinguished men who were present have passed away in the intervening years. In addition to the then Lord Mayor (Sir Horatio Davies), who occupied the chair, there have since died the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian Victor who succumbed in the South African campaign; Lord Salisbury, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Wolseley, Lord Roberts, Lord Strathcona, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Sir William Harcourt, Lord Wolvenhampton, Lord Stanhope, Lord Ritchie, the Speaker (Mr. Gully), Lord Rothschild, Lord Russell of Kilbuck, Lord Ridley, Lord Lister, Lord James of Hereford, Field-Marshal Sir Donald Stewart, Mr. George Wyndham, Lieut. F. H. Roberts, the only son of Lord Roberts, who was killed in the South African War; Sir Charles Hall (Recorder of London), and Colonel Frank Rhodes. An interesting guest who occupied a quite unimportant seat at the bottom of one of the tables was Lieut. Beatty, D.S.O., R.N. Another naval representative was Commander Colin Kipel, now the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Commons.

NAMING THE GREAT SEA BATTLE.

What shall we call the greatest sea fight the world has known since the mechanical age set in? "The Battle of Jutland" will hardly serve for a naval action. "The Battle of Jutland," though strictly accurate, is not euphonious, and the "sea" would soon be corrupted in popular speech to "ot." "The Battle of Horn's Reef" or "The Battle of the Skagerrak" fall lightly from tongue and pen, but neither may be topographically correct. Why not "The Battle of the North Sea"? Perhaps that ought to be reserved for the grand and final collision which shall strew the bottom with the fragments of the German Navy. A name is wanted which shall be imperishable in English speech. After this battle let us hear no more of "The German Ocean." It never was that. The name was the invention of Berlin cartographers. "Deutches Meer" was stupidly translated, and adopted by our map makers and writers of school geographies out of sheer laziness, or incapacity to understand the political significance of the verbal appropriation of these waters by Germany. Why not "The English Sea," on the same principle as "The English Channel"? The exclusive use of "The English Sea" from this time forward would be a perpetual reminder to Germany that she is to have no future on the water except as a trader—and no more of that than she can win by fair means and good behaviour.

"FAG DAY" AT COVENT GARDEN.

There were no signs in the streets on June 7, of the revolt against the tyranny of flag days about which editors and correspondents have been so eloquent of late. On the contrary, people were going out of their way to buy the jolly little "thumbs up" flags with a picture of the soldier in hospital blue and the tar, both furiously smoking. Outside suburban stations in the morning city-going men were actually forming a queue past the sellers' basket. "Fag Day," for providing smokes for the fighting men, has been almost the most successful of the long series. Every time news comes of losses war charities get a fillip, and this flag day benefited from the special desire just now to do even a little thing for sailors. The Covent Garden fruit and vegetable salesmen had a flag day affair of their own in the Floral Hall. A bronze bust of Lord Kitchener was put up at auction there by one of the expert fruit-sellers, and made ten guineas. The crowd in the market, listened bare-headed while the auctioneer spoke of the nation's loss. There was fierce bidding in the same place for a lot of cigars and cigarettes sent by Sir John Jellicoe. The Admiral's letter sent with the gift was sold, framed, for seventeen guineas. A box of cigarettes sent by Sir John Jellicoe from the fleet on the morning as he went out to meet the Germans was run up to fifty guineas, and the buyer was cheered as he went up to get it. The Admiral's box of cigars was sold one cigar at a time, each cigar selling from one to ten guineas, and when the box was empty the auctioneer sold the ribbons for a guinea and the box for two. The salesmen were so warmed to the work that they insisted on the auctioneer putting up his cap, and this ancient shilling garment cost the purchaser something over thirty pounds.

THE LAST OF NEW INN.

On the north-eastern side of Aldwych (which with Kingsway forms the wonderful new thoroughfare created in recent years in central London—Dickens land in fact), where once the slums of Clare Market had piled behind Wyck Street, one red-cabled Tudor range of buildings survived the great London County Council clearances which began fifteen years ago. It was part of New Inn, an Inn of Chancery, affiliated to the Middle Temple, and a residence of lawyers from the time of Edward IV, till our own days. It has stood derelict some years. Now the house-breakers are tearing its walls down. An adjoining landmark, Tess ancient but more dilapidated and more famous, is also in course of destruction. It is a big one-story erection of corrugated iron built as temporary offices of the "Morning Post," while that paper awaited the completion of its present home. Since then it has been a roller-skating rink, a headquarters for a force of volunteer policemen raised by opponents of Socialism, and the depot to which Belgian refugees and their baggage

Strength Will Return To Weak People Using This Treatment

You are discouraged. You feel old and worn. You are sick, but not aware of the fact. You can drag yourself around—but work is impossible. With your stomach crying out for assistance and the nerves all on edge why not try Ferrozone?—it will surely do you good.

Ferozzone is a wonderful combination of vegetable extracts, fortified by excellent tonics for the nerves and stomach.

When you feel despondent, Ferrozzone cheers you up.

When languor and oppression weigh you down, Ferrozzone braces you up.

When sleep is impossible Ferrozzone calms the nerves and gives you rest.

For bounding health, good looks, good spirits, nothing equals Ferrozzone; makes the weak strong and the sick well. Good for men, women and children; try Ferrozzone, it can work wonders, as it did for Mrs. Mary Mellors, of Harbour Bouche, N.S., who writes:

"Ferozzone built me up.

"Before using it I scarcely knew what good health meant.

"I was just as miserable and weak as any woman could be.

"Tired from morning to night, lathered by trifles, unceasingly nervous.

"The first box of Ferrozzone improved my blood, gave me appetite. In a short time I was like a new person. Now I rejoice in abundant good health.

Try Ferrozzone. It will make an unexpected improvement in your looks, your feeling, your health.

Whether anaemic, nervous, or suffering from secret disorders,—if you want cure, use Ferrozzone. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or direct from The Cattarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

were brought on arrival in London. Misadventures left it dilapidated, and now it is rapidly returning to its pristine state of old iron. While these landmarks disappear, the fine Commonwealth building across the street approaches completion and in the waste ground beside it a big rest-hut has been lately opened for Australian soldiers. So Aldwych is at last in process of becoming a Dominion centre in London, as we all hoped it would.

MUD COTTAGES.

The Household and Social Science Department of the King's College for Women is making an interesting war time experiment in the use of mud as a building material for cottages in the grounds of the College at Campden Hill, London. Mr. St. Loe Strachey had already run up a mud building on his estate in Surrey, which cost only £12 as against £30 if more orthodox material had been used. The King's College test is intended to carry his experiment a little further, and to ascertain whether the use of mud as a building material is practicable in the British climate. Six mud walls have been erected at Campden Hill. The first one is mere earth which had been subjected to pressure between wood; but in the case of the second soft soap has been added to the earth. The third wall is of earth, soft soap, and lime; the fourth has a "grouting" of cement over the mud; while the fifth has been dressed with tar; and the sixth is constructed of a mixture of earth, water, glass and lime. A careful watch is being kept by the students on the six walls and so far the one treated with tar has, it is thought, proved the most successful. As a mud cottage can be constructed in three weeks the experiment may solve an important war housing problem, as there is a shortage of cottage accommodation for war workers.

WOMEN WORKERS AND EVENING DRESS.

Early in the war there was a noticeable falling off in the observance of the evening dress fetich, and many restaurants and theatres where evening dress had been obligatory promptly announced that there was no longer any necessity to wear it. Now that the majority of restaurant patrons are able to dine in daylight while summer time obtains, there has been a further falling off in the evening dress departments of the West-End houses, and the creators of fashions are giving less and less attention to this once highly profitable branch of dress-making. In these circumstances it might be expected that some new fashion would be invented. The wholesale houses are preparing for a coming boom in "gowns for evening wear," which however, are quite distinct from evening dress. They are intended for wear by women war workers after their day's work is over. The garment will correspond to the rest-gown of the rich woman, but will not be so luxurious and extravagant.

W. MASON

Here's the presidential race we have long been waiting for, and its repercussions will displace tiresome stories of the war. We are tired of death and blood, and we turn with great relief, to the yarns of Mr. Mudd, who would be the nation's chief. Sleuths are busy laying bare all the things he ever did; whether, grows the hair underneath that statesman's lid. For he thought his foolish acts were forgotten, long ago; but the sleuths dig up the facts, make of them a public show. Correspondents, on his trail, strive to show, in language terse, that he served a term in jail, having swiped a widow's fence. Affidavits, by the ton, written down by trenchant pens, will declare he got his moon, with a lantern, stealing hens. Anecdotes of Europe's strife will seem flat, absurdly tame, when we take a statesman's life, and dissect and shred the same. Let the slogan gaily sound, let the hewgag hover near; there'll be lots of fun around, in this presidential year.

Amusements.

AT THE POPULAR CRESCENT.

The Crescent Picture Palace presents to-day Maurice Costello and Leah Baird in "Saints and Sinners," a great Vitagraph Broadway Star feature in three reels. Isabel Rea and Alan Hale, the Biograph stars feature in "The Man from Town," a strong drama. "The Fable of the Low Down Expert on the Subject of Babies" is a great Essanay Comedy written by Geo. Ade, America's foremost humorist. Professor McCarthy has arranged a new musical program for this big show to-day.

Running Nose Colds Cured. Sneezing Stopped Instantly

The worst of a cold is how suddenly it comes. No time to hurry to the drug store, croup develops, the lungs are clogged with pneumonia, or tuberculosis and it's too late. Keep Cattarrhozone on hand,—it kills colds instantly. Something magical about the way it cures catarrh and bronchitis. Cattarrhozone is the best remedy because it cures in nature's way; it heals, soothes and restores permanently. Carry a Cattarrhozone inhaler in your pocket, use it occasionally and you'll never catch cold—that's worth remembering.

Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Cattarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c.; sample size 25c.

In Milady's Boudoir.

THE ROUNDED SHOULDERS.

Fortunately, there are but few cases of rounded shoulders which cannot be corrected if one possesses patience and perseverance, but it is to be deplored that fashion ever demanded that the figure be made to resemble the letter S. It takes such a long time to straighten the back. We all know that when the shoulders are rounded the shoulder blades are thrown out of their normal position and the exercises which I am giving you to-day will help to flatten them. Stand erect before an open window or out doors with the arms extended on a level with the shoulders. Throw the shoulders as far back as possible, and bend the forearms so that they are at right angles with the shoulders. Now bend the forearms over until the hands touch the shoulders and resume the first position. Later on, when rested, the exercise should be repeated.

In the second exercise the arms are placed in the same position as in the first, but instead of bending the fore arms to touch the shoulders they are thrown as far back as possible in a paddling motion. Another movement which I have found excellent for rounded shoulders is called the diving exercise. Stand erect with the hands resting on the top of the head, the palms together. Straighten the forearms, keeping the hands together, just as if you were preparing to dive. Repeat this exercise until your arms become tired.

MONDAY, July 3, 1916.

The Mayoralty Election.

The first part of the Municipal Election, which is in several ways the most important, was concluded on Saturday night, when Mr. Gosling was announced to have been elected Mayor of St. John's for the next two years. Congratulations are due both to the city and to the new Mayor, as well as to his unsuccessful rival, Mr. Kelly, who ran him close in a hard race. We regard Mr. Gosling's election as more or less a confirmation of title. As Mayor of the town he will continue the valuable and energetic work he directed as Chairman of the Board of Commissioners; but the city will be glad to be represented in the old official way and to have back its Mayor and Council. The exact composition of the Council will not be known until this evening, or possibly tomorrow, but whatever it may be, the excellent personnel of the candidates is assurance enough that the new board will be a capable one.

We were among those that regretted the necessity of an election at this time, but it has had its value. It has been a vote of confidence in Mr. Gosling and the Commission, and it has shown, or caused, a gratifying awakening of interest on the part of the public in the affairs of their city. We have had our attention drawn to the practical details of important questions like sanitation and the proper methods of water supply, housing of the poor, dust elimination and so on; we have opened our eyes more fully to prevalent evils and to the need and manner of reform. The course of civic affairs will be watched henceforth with far more than ordinary interest, which is our own men are called upon to participate. This will give the news from this time forward an added and particular interest to us.

Train Notes.

Mayor Gosling Elected By Majority of 464.

Mayor Gosling and Mr. Kelly Thank Citizens for Their Support.

At 8.50 o'clock Saturday night the curtain rang down on the last scene in the municipal contest, when Returning Officer Doyle counted the last ballot, and declared William G. Gosling, Esq., duly elected by the people of St. John's to be their Mayor for a term of two years. Mr. Gosling, in a brief speech thanked the citizens, all classes included, for their loyal support in electing him to the high office of Mayor of their city. "Should I," said Mr. Gosling, "have been asked three years ago to enter myself as a candidate for municipal honors, I would have unhesitatingly declined. However, after two years of hard work in the best interest of our city and with that work yet unfinished, I deemed it my duty to the people to offer myself as a candidate for Mayor." The contest which closed on Thursday night has been a clean one, well fought and well won. Mr. Kelly, said Mr. Gosling, "is a gentleman I have the greatest respect for; we shook hands and will always be the best of friends." The Mayor again thanked the people for their hearty support, and was answered by thunderous applause. Mr. W. A. O'Donnell then addressed the crowd, and congratulated Mr. Gosling on being chosen as Mayor of St. John's. "I still have your interest at heart, and should I appeal to you two years from now I hope and trust I will be more favorably received. As a member of the Citizens' Committee I will have something to say about the new charter. The contest just closed has all through been clean, and any little differences that may have arisen are now cast aside. I take this opportunity of thanking you for supporting me, and especially my committee men who worked hard in an effort to place me at the head of the echo by the large crowd. The total number of votes cast was 4,093 less 69 spoiled ballots, most of which were blanks, leaving 4,024 legal votes. Mr. Kelly scoring the first and last vote. The official counts were:—

Return of Sir. E. R. Bowring.

"Receives a Cordial Welcome."

In common with his compatriots the "Telegram" takes occasion to extend a warm and cordial welcome to Hon. Sir Edgar R. Bowring, principal of the Newfoundland branch of Bowring Bros., Ltd., who returned to-day by the Red Cross liner Stepano. The ship was profusely decorated with flags in his honor. Sir Edgar had been absent from the country for a term of two years, most of which was spent in the Old Country. He is at present enjoying perfect health, evidently having benefited greatly by his lengthy sojourn in the Motherland. As one of his friends remarked, he has never been looking better. He is almost unnecessary to dilate upon the fact that no man in this or any other country has done such a great deal and devoted so much of his energy, time, money and everything else at his disposal to the comfort, welfare and well being of the members of the Newfoundland Regiment, particularly the sick and injured, than Sir Edgar. Not infrequently has the devotion and attention to our Regiment by the big-hearted and philanthropic Terra Novan been testified to by returned soldiers and heroes, but the best evidence and demonstration of his warm sympathy for our men who worked hard in an effort to place me at the head of the echo by the large crowd. The total number of votes cast was 4,093 less 69 spoiled ballots, most of which were blanks, leaving 4,024 legal votes. Mr. Kelly scoring the first and last vote. The official counts were:—

MONDAY, July 3, 1916.

If you go camping this year, take a J. and J. Utility Kit with you. You may find it of great value should you give yourself a cut or get an attack of indigestion. A Utility Kit takes up very little room in your satchel, but contains in compact form the means of dealing with the slight accidents that are liable to occur to campers. Price packed in a neat box, only 30 cents.

If you want an Atomizer that will give the utmost satisfaction, that may be used for oil or water, that throws a fine, full, continuous spray, and that will not easily get out of order—ask for the "Mylas." You will find it ideal for all purposes for which a spray producer is needed. Price $2.25 each.

Lecture In Aid of Red Cross.

On Thursday evening, July 6th, at 8.30, in the College Hall, Lieut.-Commander Howley will give us our first opportunity of hearing first hand of the work of our Navy in the Dardanelles. It is pleasing to think that one of Newfoundland's sons was present at the beginning of the effort to force this narrow passage, and proved himself a hero in the naval fight, as his fellow-countrymen afterwards won the distinction at Carboneau Hill. He, as an eye-witness, will tell us how twenty blue jackets blew up the forts of Schi-el-Bair, he will show us the work of our Turkish allies and Irish shrapnel, and will make us realize more than we have ever done, how Britain's sea power proceeds will be given to the Red Cross, so much in need of help. Tickets may be had at Dick's & Co., to-morrow, Tuesday, morning. Reserved seats, 50c.; admission 20c.

SAGONA'S PASSENGERS—The Sagona sailed at 6 p.m. Saturday for the Labrador with the following first-class passengers: Mr. J. and Mrs. Badcock, Jas. Dawson, Mrs. Lewis Daves, J. French, Mrs. French, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. W. Chard, Mrs. B. Butler and two ladies and four gentlemen for the Grenfell mission.

THEIR USUAL KINDNESS—Mr. H. D. Reid of the Reid Nfld. Co. is very generously giving free transportation to the Royal Belgian Concert Co. from Sydney here and return. The Reid Nfld. Co. are our foremost contributors to all worthy objects, all requests meeting with a ready response.

"The Debt We Owe."

Everybody should subscribe to the Belgian Relief Fund by purchasing Subscription Tickets to be given in the Methodist College Hall, the 11th, 12th and 13th inst. By so doing we can show our sympathy, and give practical help to the brave Belgians, who sacrificed themselves and their homes to prevent the mad German rush to Paris. Their sacrifice saved Paris, and probably is having more effect to-day on the safety of the British Empire than we imagine. We owe the Belgians a great debt of gratitude.—adv.

About a Green Worm.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"The world is so full of a number of things, I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

He came in half an hour later, excited and enthusiastic. "Come out and see what I've got!"

I went out and found that the creature he referred to was a small green worm on a leaf. "Watch!" he commanded. He pushed the worm off the leaf and it dropped but kept itself from falling all the way to the ground by a tiny cable which it fastened to the leaf.

He had been studying the worm. "Look at him," cried the exhibitor. "He spits that out of his mouth, and now see what he does."

I watched and saw the little creature begin to pull himself up. "He's swallowing his rope," explained the exhibitor. "Isn't that wonderful? Every time I push him on he does like that, and then he swallows it up again. And look, if I hold something close under him after he falls, he lets himself down instead of pulling up. But if it's further to go down, he pulls himself up. How does he know?"

I confessed my ignorance of the mental processes of worms. To tell the truth, I had never before regarded ed the little worms that hang from trees as anything but a nuisance, but my nephew had given me a new point of view.

Any Child Would Be Interested. Even these pestiferous little creatures are wonderful, and they are only one of thousands of intensely interesting manifestations of life.

You mothers who are always looking for harmless interests for your children, here's a chance for you. Get them interested in things like these. I have always realized the possibilities in ant hills, and as a child spent hours sitting beside them and watching their inmates.

Fancy a giant bending over one of our cities and watching us. That's the position we hold in relation to the ant hills.

Sugar And An Ant Hill. I gave my nephew a teaspoonful of sugar to offer the little creatures and sent him forth. He came back still more excited and full of his adventures than before.

When his family returned from their ride and his small sister with sisterly tact told him what a nice time they had, he retorted, "Pooh! I had a better one." And it wasn't all idle boasting, either.

The world right around us is full of many infinitely interesting things. To be interested is to be happy. Why not teach your children—and incidentally yourself—to see this world?

The Life-Blood of the Nation.

Why We Need Sulphuric Acid. (By Professor F. G. Donnan, F.R.S., University College, London.)

In the course of a recent address at University College I made the remark that "the life-blood of England to-day is sulphuric acid."

By that I meant that without sulphuric acid we could not continue to fight. The same thing applies of course to our Allies and to our enemies.

This acid is used in the manufacture of both propellant and high explosives. The only explosive in which it has no part is the old black gunpowder, still used (as a primer) to a certain extent.

In the manufacture of sulphuric acid, sulphur obtained from Sicily or America, or metallic sulphide ores are employed. These fundamental raw materials are absolutely essential. Our enemies probably employ sulphide ores obtained chiefly from Hungary, but they have also other sources of supply.

At one time there was danger of a shortage of sulphuric acid in this country, but this difficulty has been surmounted by a very great development of our sulphuric acid works. It is certain that the Germans also had to take strenuous measures to avoid a shortage of the acid.

The British people are now beginning to realize that a vast development of chemical science and chemical industry is necessary not only for national power and wealth, but also for the defence of our national honour and integrity.

The present century is in fact characterized by this development, just as the nineteenth century was characterized by the enormous development of engineering science and craft.

Chemists are not people who make pills and compound medicine. On the number, training and ability of the chemists of a country depend its power and position in the modern world. Before the war the statesmen of Germany were the only ones who had any inkling of this fundamental fact. And even they failed to make a correct estimate of the stock of sulphuric acid required. They had counted upon a short war and they were mistaken.

Your Boys and Girls.

Has the birthday of your baby been registered? If not, you should see to it that this duty is performed without delay. It may some time be of greater importance to your child that there be in existence an accurate legal record of his birth, date, place and parentage.

Such a record serves to establish his age beyond question, and through this his right to the legal period of schooling and freedom from labor. It may also serve to establish his disputed inheritance and to establish for him various property or other legal rights which may be in dispute. There are numerous instances where the lack of this sort of record has been the cause of serious losses of inheritance and of educational and other rights.

It is, in most states, required by law that the doctor, or other attendant at birth shall report the birth to the registrar of births, but as this duty is not infrequently neglected, parents should investigate to see whether it has been done properly in the case of their children.

The complete registration of all births is indispensable, not only to the individual, but to the state and nation.

Everyday Etiquette!

"Will you kindly tell me what is correct in writing a letter to a firm of two women, as the Misses Smith?" asked John. "Should one say 'Dear Madams'?"

"No, one doesn't write 'Dear Madams.' One should use the French Mesdames. That, however, is incorrect if you are addressing unmarried ladies. The French Mademoiselle, or as it is usually written Mlle., is correct. The plural is Mesdemoiselles, written Milles," said her father.

The Pitcher.

By GEORGE FITH,

Author of "At Good Old 'Sivash."

There was a time when the American small boy yearned to grow up and become President of his country. He might still take the job if it were thrust upon him, but he is too busy trying to become a great baseball pitcher to waste any time in vain yearns.

The pitcher is the human Gatling gun who shoots the ball at the batter. He is his mission to protect the ball from all injury at the hands of the batter. He is the mainspring of the team and the care with which he winds himself up for each throw shows that he appreciates the fact. A successful pitcher can fill a baseball park twice a week with admirers of baseball Delsarte, contortion work and target practice.

The pitcher must not only throw the ball violently, but he must deceive the batter as to its intentions. It is beautiful to watch a good pitcher doing this. He balances himself on one toe, wraps the other about his waist, loops both arms about his neck, rubs his nose on his trousers, wags his left ear to the catcher as a signal and then uncoils like a catapult. In this way he retains such an influence over the ball that it will frequently hesitate half-way to the plate, and almost come back to be hugged some more.

Occasionally a pitcher who has tied himself up in this fashion forgets the combination and the result is very distressing. He must be taken entirely apart and reassembled before he can get his neck out from under his shoulder blades.

There are two kinds of pitchers—wet and dry. The latter curves a ball without the aid of glue, saliva or porous plasters. The former licks the ball with his long, glistening tongue, and then huris it at the batter, who is either drowned or is deceived into striking at the spray. Spittal pitchers are usually very effective, until they go dry in the seventh inning. If there were any way of training an artesian well as a pitcher, batting averages would become almost invisible.

The pitcher has to begin his career very early in life. A boy may fool around for thirty years before determining to become President, and still land the job all right, but a pitcher has to start before the age of ten, or he will be Olerized before he gets out of the bush league. The young pitcher must learn how to throw a feminine ball which changes its mind three times in sixty feet. He must learn how to watch the catcher, the umpire and second base at the same time and to enjoy the taste of wet horsehide and how to dig the ball out of his thorax, where it has been driven by the cruel batsman, and how to tangle himself up so inextricably while addressing the ball, that the batter will think he is having a fit and will not prepare for the ball. As a reward for all this labour, however, he may become a great man and may some day be sold to Pittsburgh for so big a sum that his owner can buy a private yacht with the money he got for him.

Use paper napkins occasionally at luncheon in the summer and there will be a great saving of washing.

It takes a good car "to make good". More than a MILLION FORDS have been sold to date. jun22,1f

PROGRESS OF THE GREAT OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, To-day. The German headquarters is at St. Quentin, 25 miles southwest of Peronne. Already the French forces threaten Peronne with the evident purpose of cutting the trunk railway there, which is an indispensable artery for German military reinforcements. A correspondent at the front describing the capture of Dompiere says the soldiers of one corps, taking their example from their commander, went into battle covered with flowers. "That," said the General, pointing to the carnation in his buttonhole, "will fade yonder where the Germans are now." The correspondent continues, two regiments covered themselves with glory in the fight for Dompiere which had been transferred by the Germans into a veritable fortress. In the face of fire from the machine guns that had survived the bombardment intact, they rushed the posts with such impetuosity that the gunners were captured before they had time to put their quick firers into action. In the streets of the ruined village there was furious hand to hand fighting. Of the German garrison defending the town not one man got away; when it was over eight bodies lay on the ground. The survivors were made prisoners. The battle flag of one regiment ridden with bullets was carried into the village at the head of the first company. Two Scotch regiments in the region north of the Somme went over three lines of German trenches without a halt, stopping only inside the village of Montauban, where they put several hundred Germans to bayonet and took the entire staff of the regiment prisoners. Desperate fighting continues around Verdun, although this field of action is separated by nearly one hundred miles from fighting to the north. Verdun is considered part of the vast military plan now unfolding. The French have now taken the aggressive at Verdun, to-day's report showing an attack at Deadman's Hill with heavy German losses and taking of prisoners. The French are thus keeping the Germans fully occupied at Verdun, preventing them from sending reinforcements to relieve their weakened line in the north.

HELPING THE ENEMY.

LONDON, To-day. A statement issued by the British Central Press Bureau says that five thousand five hundred engineers and Allied workers at Vickers, Barrow-in-Furness, struck over the dilution of labor last Monday. The strikers were repudiated by responsible leaders and were threatened under the Defence of the Realm War Munitions Acts. Picketing was prevented, and public houses were closed. General resumption of work with dilution of labor began last night.

THE ALLIES STRATEGY IN FRANCE.

PARIS, To-day. An artillery preparation of a violence which has never been equalled marked the attack of the Franco-British troops in their joint offensive yesterday, says a semi-official note. For more than a week the fact of continued preparation from the North Sea to Champagne gave an inkling of it. British in particular ever the entire sector which they occupied, had been methodically continuing the "alternating" system of intense bombardments and sounding operations here and there, according to preliminary information, the Allied losses were slight by reason of her efficiency of the preliminary work, while those of the Germans are said to be quite heavy. The first day of the offensive is considered to have been fully satisfactory, although not as overwhelming

FRENCH FORGING AHEAD.

PARIS, To-day. The French offensive south of the Somme in conjunction with the British drive continued last night with complete success, the War Office announced to-day. The French have occupied two lines of trenches of the second German position on a front of five kilometres (3 miles). The French have captured the village of Berbecourt.

LONDON, To-day. The Italian sailing vessel Garlo Alberta and the British steamer Windermere have been sunk. The Windermere was unarmed.

GOOD WORK BY RUSSIAN BOAT.

PETROGRAD, To-day. A Russian torpedo boat destroyed 54 enemy sailing vessels in the Black Sea near the Anatolian Coast on June 29, says an official statement.

RUSSIANS HOLDING THE ENEMY.

LONDON, To-day. As a result of one week of the most costly onslaughts on the Russian lines between the Stockholm and the Styx Rivers, the Austro-German forces have advanced but a few miles at most 5 miles eastward of the Styx and that only in some sectors, says a Reuters despatch from Petrograd. Military authorities, the correspondent adds, are confident that the Russians are firmly holding the enemy on this front pending the development of General Leitchik's sweep through Bukovina, notwithstanding that strong German reinforcements are entering the field. Meanwhile the Russians have progressed 15 miles south westward of Kolomea, and the Austrians there are hard pressed to cover their retreat to the Carpathian Mountains.

AT VERDUN.

PARIS, To-day. East of the Meuse on the Verdun front the Germans captured the Damloup redoubt, but the French after regained possession of it.

GERMANS FAIL TO HOLD THE ALLIES.

PARIS, To-day. The reserves which the Germans rushed up to the Somme region to check the Franco-British offensive began to make themselves felt yesterday afternoon and last night, according to the latest reports received here. The fighting reached a pitch of exceptional desperation, and as a result the German efforts to check the Allied advance failed. The Franco-British Allies, these reports say, retained the initiative which they had as a result of the day's fighting have materially advanced their line and strengthened their hold on what they had previously won.

HUGE BRITISH GUNS.

LONDON, To-day. The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Paris says: "I am credibly informed that the British heavy guns now absolutely outclass the German or Austrian famous 47 centimetre guns which the German command sprang as a surprise at the outbreak of the war. The supplies of munitions are so great that in the present offensive the question of economy of shells does not enter into account."

Shake Hands or Pay the Fine.

On a warrant sworn out by the captain of the schooner Spinaway, the mate was arrested yesterday by Detective Byrne, charged with a breach of the Merchants' Shipping Act—absenting himself without permission. The case was heard before Judge Morris to-day in the police court and proved of more than ordinary interest. It was admitted in evidence by the defendant that he remained ashore all night in defiance of the master, but also testified that he was compelled to take that course because the master, while loaded to the "plimsoll," was acting in an unusual way by pushing, striking, challenging and otherwise annoying him (the mate). After reviewing all the circumstances and as the vessel was ready for sea, the judge thought it fit and proper that the matter should end by both seamen shaking hands, which was done in open court.

TELEGRAM

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

Saturday's news of the great British and French drive north of the Somme was not unexpected. It was a step forward in a preconceived strategy, suited in its vast proportions to the huge areas over which it will soon be seen to extend. It is slowly but methodically unfolding itself; when it has reached its full magnitude we may see more clearly into the future. What will be the next step? Perhaps it is not very hard to predict it.

It is a point of academic interest that the course of the next few weeks may be days, besides testing the strength and resources of the combatants, will test also several generally accepted theories. The most important of these is the impregnability of either line on the West front. In the magnificent defence of Verdun observers see an earnest of the failure of any attempt to advance by the Allies at any point on this front. We share the opinion of the dissenting minority. That argument would be sound if the conditions at that particular point were the same as at Verdun, but that is what it is extremely unlikely they will be. The events of the past month will show why this is so.

First, Germany had greatly weakened her effective force before Verdun and was continuing to weaken them there. Then Austria inadvisedly withdrew her Eastern forces to undertake a drive into Italy. When this was well under way and Austria could not draw back, Russia set the Allied ball rolling. She rapidly broke the Austrian lines and drove them back, overran Bukovina and began to bring pressure to bear upon the Germans north of Galicia. She has now taken Bukovina and threatens Lemberg. It must be remembered that her primary object was the destruction of the Austrian forces and supplies, in which she has so far succeeded beyond anticipations. Austria was compelled at once to halt her Italian expedition. Italy seized her opportunity and recoiled with telling force. She has pulled herself together, and is only just getting in her counter-offensive. For the present the Italians are centering their energies upon the Trentino, where they have already regained much lost ground. When it is all recovered and the status quo of two months back is restored, Trent will be far more dangerously menaced than it was then. This much done, Italy will certainly renew her attacks in the other regions, particularly against Gorizia and Trieste and on the Isonzo.

Thus far we see the striking correlation of Russian and Italian efforts—now the French and British are joining in. Verdun has for some time been almost as much a French as a German offensive, and if the enemy relaxes his pressure there the French will certainly increase theirs. But the Central Powers, as their very title shows, have an enormous advantage do so. They must find the men to oppose the British and French either in Germany itself or at points along the Western front.

The exact effect and course of this British offensive it is, of course, impossible to foresee. It will depend both upon the advances made, and their strategic value, and perhaps even more upon the relative losses of attackers and defenders. We are certainly not going to buy any position at a price in lives greater than its strategic value, but it may not be necessary to pay so high a price. One thing we may expect, a great recovery by the French at Verdun. If our Allies are enabled, by the compulsory withdrawal of German forces from this region, to win back the old positions they held at the beginning of the year, it will be a lesson to Germany of the decline in her power greater, perhaps, than actual advances by the British or French elsewhere.

Germany is at last being made to feel the real meaning of the "moral arithmetic" of man-power which is our greatest ally. There remains one thing only to bring that factor fully into play. This is an advance from Salonika. We shall be very much surprised if it is much longer delayed. Bulgaria is now utterly isolated, and cannot count on the least German or Austrian support. Turkey, as a European element, is eliminated. We may soon see Serbia won back as rapidly as she was conquered, and Bulgaria beaten into submission as well. However that may be, since General Sarrail begins to move, then, with the British, French, Italian and Russian armies all pressing forward in their respective areas, we may look for something of magnitude to happen.

Dust and Flies.

This is the time of the year when the dirty dust from the streets and flies are in the air and watching their chance to alight on your bread and bring dirt and disease to your children. Guard against them by buying Lynch's Pan-Dandy Bread, white, and brown, wrapped and sealed by machinery in a dust and germ proof wrapper; it is the only bread in Newfoundland that is made, wrapped and sealed by machinery. Ask your grocer for it. Did you get any of Lynch's Beauty Cake, yet? Oh, what a beauty cake! the best in the land. Ask your grocer for it. June 22, 11.

Scotch vs. Irish.

A fast game of football is expected this evening between the St. Andrew's and B.I.S., both sides have altered, and are supposed to have improved their combinations. The players will be:

Scots—L. Ewing, goal; Pearce, Barnes, backs; Kerr, Foster, Burns, halves; Eiton, Reid, Bastow, Strang, Auckinleck, forwards.

I.R.S.—H. Phalen, goal; T. Duggan, Walsh, backs; Erian, Woods, Hart, halves; Phalen, Burke, McGrath, Morgan, Smith, forwards.

DEAD HEAT AT NEW YORK.—Sixty-seven round trippers came on the s.s. Stephano this trip from New York. They report that the hot wave has struck the States and that before leaving there people were literally sweating in the heat and were glad to avail of the chance to come to a cooler clime.

Be careful of that nasty cough that follows measles. Use Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure. Price 25c. Postage 5c. extra.—June 6, 11.

SOLDIER TAKEN ILL IN CHURCH.—Yesterday morning at St. Thomas's Church, Private John Carroll, of Burgeo, who enlisted a week ago, was seized with a sudden attack of dizziness, and fell backwards to the floor. He was picked up and brought out to the Vestry and was attended to by Lieut. N. Outerbridge, who instructed two volunteers to accompany him to the barracks, where he was placed in bed. He will be fully recovered in a few days.

Religious Reception at Litledale.

Yesterday at noon there took place at Litledale the Religious Reception of four young ladies into the Order of Mercy. The ceremony, always beautiful and impressive, was exceedingly so yesterday. The surroundings, internally and externally ideal; the neat and tastefully adorned chapel; the very perceptible happiness glowing upon the countenances of the fortunate young spouses of Christ; the dignity, the ease, the gentleness of His Grace the Archbishop, together with his beautiful eloquence, all lent additional lustre and charm to the occasion. Those privileged to be present were profoundly impressed as each phase of the ceremony was gone through. First came the procession—the nuns of the community with lighted candles; after them the young postulants arrayed in bridal robes, which pervaded the atmosphere, as it were with a tinge of the seraphic joy of happiness then came His Grace the Archbishop accompanied by the assisting clergy. When the preliminary functions of the ceremony were concluded the young ladies departed to return some minutes later arrayed in this time not in bridal robes, but in the sombre habit of religious profession. Finally the inspiring and eloquent and fatherly words of His Grace addressed to the happy young novices, who of their own free will and desire left the world and all near and dear to them to serve God in religion. The Archbishop's words were to the point and exceedingly beautiful and touching.

The names of those received are:—Miss Christabel Ryall (in religion Sister Mary Paul), daughter of S. D. and Mrs. Ryall, Circular Road, St. John's, who is a cousin of Rev. Dr. McGrath, recently ordained to the priesthood in Rome. Miss Bridie Hogan (in religion Sr. Patricia), of St. Mary's; Miss Collins (in religion Sr. Margaret Mary) of Argenta and Miss Lawless (in religion Sr. M. Clare).

Patriotic Concert at Botwood.

A grand concert was given in the Orange Hall, on Tuesday evening, June 13th, by the officers of the S. S. Alouada, assisted by Mrs. Fogwill, Miss Gosse and Misses Aitken (2) when the following programme was gone through:—

Rule Britannia, Orchestra; Song, Mr. Heymes; Musical Comedy, Miss Gosse, piano; Mr. Wilson, violin; Mr. Stathem, one string fiddle; Song, Mrs. Fogwill; recitation, Mr. Weaver; Violin Solo—"The Rosary," Mr. Stathem; Humorous Impersonations, Mr. Weaver. Interval. Musical Trio—"Somewhere a Voice is Calling"; Song—"In Old Madrid," Mr. Turnbull; Violin Duet, Messrs. Turnbull and Stathem; Impersonations, Mr. Weaver; Mandolin Solo—"Keep the Home Fires Burning," Miss Aitken; Quartette—"Sweet and Low," Mrs. Fogwill, Messrs. Wilson, Stathem and Heymes. God Save the King.

Each performer did his or her part splendidly, but we think special mention should be made of the Patriotic selections "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," by Mrs. Fogwill, and "Till the Boys Come Home," mandolin solo and chorus by Miss Eleanor Aitken.

It is not very often the people of Botwood get an opportunity of hearing such musical talent, the selections of Tuesday evening were very greatly appreciated.

Miss Lillian Gosse, C. of E. Teacher, presided at the piano in her usual capable manner, and Mr. Edward Oke, one of our greatest patriotic citizens, acted as Chairman.

The lady performers especially who are never at rest unless they are doing something for the cause, are to be congratulated on the success of the evening's entertainment. The proceeds which exceeded all expectations were given to the Red Cross Fund.

C. L. B. Church Parade

A and F. Companies of the Church Lads' Brigade, under command of Lieut.-Col. Rendell, and headed by their band, held a church parade yesterday morning and attended Divine service at St. Mary's Church. The line of march was along LeMarchant Road, down Casey Street, to Water Street, across the Long Bridge to the church. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Uphill, Chaplain of the Brigade, and Rev. (Lieut.) Pike. The Rector occupied the pulpit and delivered an instructive and impressive sermon, and in his remarks on the great war paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Earl Kitchener, who, though dead, still lives in the heart and mind of every British subject. On returning to the Armoury the Lieut.-Col. presented a number of long service medals to the senior W. and N. C. members. C. Co. being disbanded for the summer months could not take part in the parade. Notwithstanding the large number of officers and lads who have enlisted in the Army of the Empire, the turn-out was fairly large, which goes to show that recruiting is being kept up.

REPORT FROM BRITISH HEADQUARTERS.

LONDON, July 1.
 British Headquarters reports from the front up to 12.30 o'clock, five hours after the combined French and British offensive was launched, showed that the Allies had captured the towns of La Boisselle, Montauban, Curliu and Faviers Woods. The main first line of trenches over the entire front under attack are reported to have been stormed, and at various points fighting has reached the main second line. These reports show that the French and British at points of their further advances, have broken through a distance of more than five miles beyond the first German trenches. Montauban is 5 1/2 miles east of the old British front and Curliu Wood is six miles southeast of Albert. The British are endeavoring to surround Thiepvail, and at other points an intense struggle is under way for the towns and villages. Reports from the front indicate that the important German position at Fricourt may be cut off.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, July 2.
 The great Anglo-French offensive was begun yesterday along a front of twenty-five miles north and south of the River Somme. The Entente Allied troops were successful in penetrating the German first line trenches at several points. A German division, defending three trenches, it is added, had to be withdrawn to other prepared positions from Gommecourt to La Boisselle. The communication says that the British and French sustained very heavy losses, and obtained no advantage worth mentioning.

BRITISH AND FRENCH CONSOLIDATING GAINS.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, July 1.
 The close of the first offensive over the largest front the Entente Allies have attempted, and the most extensive action in the war for the British, finds both British and French consolidating gains. South of the Ancre River, where the infantry swept forward, Curliu was captured by the French, whilst Montauban and Mametz were taken by the British with almost unbroken success, though against a heavy curtain fire and delays, due to a stubborn resistance at some points, particularly for the British.

From a German trench called Dancing Alley, word came back that the destruction by artillery was so complete, that one British battalion occupied it with the loss of a single man. The Germans, in their defensive tactics, in many instances left the first line trench lightly held, then shelled it when occupied by our troops, and carried on the fight to the second line.

The Germans in large force fought fiercely north of the Ancre. At Gommecourt and Beaumont Hamel, there was terrible complicated intensity of action, with every method of destruction, like at Verdun, with the Germans as defenders. When the attack was made in the morning, the mist in the valley made it difficult for the infantry units to keep in touch with each other or the gunners to follow their advance, but brilliant sunshine continued throughout the day with clear air and summer heat.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock, the village of Thiepvail was still being desperately held by the Germans. The place was visible to an observer before the British opened another artillery attack which seemed to be churning it to dust, making it impossible for any human being to survive in the strongest redoubt. British mortars also were busy, the projectiles glinting under the sun, as hundreds of them followed one another, like a juggler's balls, into the vortex of fire.

So swift is the transport, that some of the British wounded may already be in London. Prisoners are being brought in in batches, as they were gathered from dugouts, not destroyed by the artillery.

The destruction of six German sausage-shaped balloons by British airmen early in the week, is evident by a serious loss, as none have been replaced. It is noticeable that British aeroplanes over the battlefield greatly outnumbered the German machines.

Indignation is expressed by both British and French staffs over the statement in a German wireless communication, that our raid over Lille had bombed the church of St. Saviour. The statement is fiercely branded by officers as a lie. Lille, it was pointed out, had been within reach of the British heavy guns for a year without bombardment; and that the Entente Allies' machines bombed only the railway stations and military points and will continue to do so.

FRENCH CAPTURE FRISE.

PARIS, July 2.
 South of the Somme the French have forced their way into the second line of German trenches at a number of places, and have captured the village of Frise and Mereaucourt wood, according to an official issued by the French War Office to-night. The number of unwounded prisoners taken in the two days' battle is now stated to be 5,000.

REPORT SITUATION FAVORABLE.

LONDON, July 2.
 British General Headquarters report to-night as follows: Heavy fighting has taken place to-day in the area between Ancre and the Somme, especially about Fricourt and La Boisselle. Fricourt was captured by our troops about 2 p.m. and remains in our hands. Some progress has been made east of the village. In the neighborhood of La Boisselle, the enemy is offering stubborn resistance, but our troops are making good progress. A considerable quantity of war material has fallen into our hands, but details are not available. On either side of the valley of Ancre the situation is unchanged. The general situation may be regarded as favorable. Later information of the enemy's losses show our first estimates to be too low.

Yesterday our aeroplanes were very active in co-operation with our attack north of the Somme, and afforded valuable assistance to our operations. Numerous enemy headquarters and railway centres were attacked with bombs. In one of these raids our escorting aeroplanes were attacked by enemy Fokkers, which were driven off. Two enemy machines were seen to crash to earth destroyed. Some long distance reconnaissance was carried out in spite of numerous attempts by enemy machines to frustrate these enterprises, and that three of our aeroplanes are missing. Our kite balloons were in the air the whole day.

FIRST BATCH OF WOUNDED ARRIVE.

LONDON, July 2.
 The first batch of wounded from the British front in France, arrived at Charing Cross station this evening. Enormous crowds assembled at the station. The police had considerable difficulty in securing passage for the Red Cross vehicles through the cheering and flag-waving crowds.

BATTLE CONTINUES TO ADVANCE.

PARIS, July 2.
 North of the Somme the battle continued to-day to our advantage in the region of Hardecourt and Curliu. East of this latter village we have carried a quarry which had been powerfully organized by the enemy. South of the Somme we have obtained a footing in the second line of German trenches at numerous places. Between the river and Assevillers the village of Frise has fallen into our hands and also Mereaucourt wood, farther east. The number of unwounded prisoners captured by the French soldiers during the two days' fighting who have been counted, is more than 5,000, of which at least 150 are officers. Some cannon and much other material has also fallen into our hands. Thanks to very complete and very efficacious artillery preparation, and thanks also, to the plan of our infantry, our loss has been very small.

BATTLE OF THE SOMME IN FULL PROGRESS.

PARIS, July 2.
 The Battle of the Somme is now in full progress and marks the opening of the Franco-British offensive, long expected, as a critical, if not the decisive stage of the war. Early reports to-day show that the Entente Allied forces are sweeping forward along a twenty-five mile front. The French more than 6,000 prisoners, while the Allied lines have expanded within the last twenty-four hours by nine villages and fifty square miles of French territory, held till now by the Germans. The fighting lines extend between a great number of small villages, which are usually devoted to textile industries, while in the outlying agricultural sections the level fields are chiefly devoted to beet culture for the extensive sugar production of France.

The intense bombardment of the last four days was the signal for advance over these level fields beginning at 7.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The Allied artillery then lengthened the range so as to cut off all communication between the first German line and German reserves in the rear. This made it impossible for the Teutons to utilize their perfect organization for shifting of troops and for bringing up reinforcements.

It is thought by French military observers that the Germans misestimated the intentions of the Entente Allies, and expected attacks further to the north. The villages which the French captured at the first sweep include Dompiere, Beaucourt, Bassa and Foy. These and the towns

Patriotic Concert at Botwood.

Grand concert was given in the Hall, on Tuesday evening, 28th, by the officers of the S. S. Ma, assisted by Mrs. Fogwill, Gosse and Misses Aitken (2) the following programme was through:—

Britannia, Orchestra; Song, Symmes; Musical Comedy, Miss piano; Mr. Wilson, violin; Mr. m, one string fiddle; Song, Mrs. ill; recitation, Mr. Weaver; Violin—"The Rosary," Mr. Statham; various Impersonations, Mr. interval, Musical Trio—"where a Voice is Calling"; "In Old Madrid," Mr. Turnbull; Duet, Messrs Turnbull and Statham; Impersonations, Mr. Weaver; Solo—"Keep the Home Fires ing," Miss Aitken; Quartet, and Low; Mrs. Fogwill, Wilson, Statham and Heynes. Save the King.

The performer did his or her part ably, but we think special mention should be made of the Patriotic songs "We'll Never Let the Old Fall" by Mrs. Fogwill, and "The Boys Come Home," mandolin solo chorus by Miss Eleanor Aitken.

is not very often the people of not get an opportunity of such musical talent, the selections today evening were very greatly selected.

Miss Lillian Gosse, C. of E. Teacher, led at the piano in her usual able manner, and Mr. Edward Oke, of our greatest patriotic citizens, as Chairman.

The lady performers especially who never at rest unless they "are doing something for the cause," are to be congratulated on the success of the evening's entertainment. The program which exceeded all expectations given to the Red Cross Fund.

God Save the King.

and F. Companies of the Church Brigade, under command of Col. Rendell, and headed by a band, held a church parade yesterday morning and attended Divine service at St. Mary's Church. The of march was along LeMarchant down Cassy Street, to Water Street, across the Long Bridge to the ch. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Uphill, Chaplain of Brigade, and Rev. (Lieut.) Pike. Rector occupied the pulpit and pered an instructive and impressive sermon, and in his remarks on great war paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Earl Kitchener, who, though dead, still lives in heart and mind of every British act. On returning to the Armoury Lieut.-Col. presented a number of service medals to the senior W. N. C. officers. C. Co. being disabled for the summer months could take part in the parade. Notwithstanding the large number of officers and men of the Empire, the turnout was very large, which goes to show that fighting is being kept up.

taken by the British, Montauban and Mametz, were all found to have been strongly fortified by the Germans. The Allies, profiting from their experience in this work, quickly threw up strong earthworks around the villages thus taken, in order to protect them against counter-attacks. It was not before night, however, that the Germans were able to deliver any counter-attack. This was centered against the French position on the outskirts of Hardecourt. It was repulsed with heavy losses, ending in precipitate retreat. In addition to the military success the Terrain was overrun by the Allied troops. It has exceptional strategic importance. Four of the towns captured by the French are only seven miles west of Perronne, the chief rail highway from the German centre at Cologne to the German front in the region of Noyon and Soissons.

DESPERATE ATTACKS REPULSED.

PETROGRAD, July 2.
 Desperate attacks against the Russian line at various points have been definitely repulsed, according to an official statement issued to-day by the War Office, though preceded by gusts of fire made by infantry in mass formation.

ITALIAN ATTACK ON AUSTRIAN POSITIONS.

ROME, July 2.
 Continuing their efforts in the Trentino, the Italians have begun an attack on Austrian fortified positions between Zugli Tetya and Foppiano, says an Italian official statement issued to-day. The Austrians were driven from sections of trenches north of Pedescola, the statement adds. Some more trenches were carried between Zelt and Monfalcone. In the latter battle 196 Austrians were taken prisoners.

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phoratox Cough Cure" on hand.

Stafford's Drug Store (Theatre Hill) is open every night from 7.30 to 9.30.

Wedding Bells

CUMMINGS—WHITE.

A very pretty wedding took place on the 28th ult., at Gower Street Methodist Parsonage, the contracting parties being Miss May White and Mr. George Cummings. The Rev. Mr. Hemmison officiated. The bride was supported by Miss Beulah Bishop and Mr. Wm. White while Miss Bessie Cummings and Mr. W. L. Maunder supported the groom. The bride and groom received many presents both useful and handsome. A reception was held at 83 Long's Hill where they will reside. The happy couple carry the best wishes of a host of friends for a bright and happy future.

COX'S GELATINE.—Mark the brand. The housewife's choice and the old favorite that stands every test. For sale at all first-class grocers. Insist on getting Cox's—June 24th.

GRAND PICTURES AT NICKEL THEATRE.

Another brilliant programme has been arranged for the Nickel Theatre to-day and it is certain to attract very large audiences. "The Strange Case of Mary Page" which is one of the cleverest serials ever made for the movies will be continued. The chapter is entitled: "The Mark" and is highly interesting. Another great feature film to-day is "A Man's Sacrifice" and tells of western life. There are two comedies. Bert Stanley, the popular rag time artist, farewell this week. He has another interesting song for to-day and he is sure to please his admirers. On Wednesday there will be a big holiday show.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Fresh mint may be always at hand for cooking purposes by growing it at home in a glass of water.

Chopped preserved ginger added to the sauce served with cottage pudding is a delicious accompaniment.

Let strawberries stay on the vines for two or three days after they are red. If you would have them perfect.

There is nothing in a drug store that will relieve the pain of a bee sting quicker than a handful of mud.

Lard is much better to grease cake pans than butter. Butter will burn and cause the cakes to stick and char.

With the help of electricity the housekeeper for a small family can prepare breakfast at the breakfast table.

The housekeeper who wishes to save trouble should insist on fruit for all desserts during the summer months.

A clean cloth dipped into hot water and then into a saucer of bran will speedily clean white paint without injury.

Put lead weights covered with some white material into the lower hems of the curtains and they will hang straight.

Delicious cheese squares are made of grated cheese spread on salted crackers, peppered and set in a hot oven to toast.

Stained with Cabot's Shingle Stains

Twenty-five Years of Proof

"I built a house 25 years ago and the same shingles on today. I built another five years ago, and in each case Cabot's Creosote Stain in good shape. I don't intend to build without using it."

The EASTERN TRUST COMPANY

WE GO ON FOREVER.

Just two reasons why the Eastern Trust Company can administer an Estate better than a personal executor or administrator.

1.—It has nearly twenty-four years' experience, and its existence is perpetual, neither does it cost any more to employ the Company than an individual. The Company affords the Estate absolute security. It has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00 and a reserve of $250,000.00. The Estates held in trust to December 31st, 1915, amount to $15,036,533.85.

2.—In the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, your Estate must look around for a substitute. The new administrator is unfamiliar with the business and confusion is often the result. The death of any officer of this Company does not break the continuity of the policy of administration.

While the Company administers over Fifteen Million Dollars worth of Estates, it also does a very large business in executing Trusts of all kinds and acting as Financial Agents of all descriptions. We can give fullest satisfaction in the collection of rents, interests, mortgages, dividends, etc.

Full information cheerfully given and all communications treated as absolutely confidential. CALL OR WRITE.
