Won't After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XIV.

"Nonsense, nonsense," he retorts, with his most gracious smile. "You shall. You shall dance with me."

"Really!" with a glad light in her dark eyes.

"Well, when I say dance," he says, gratified by the sudden pleasure in her voice. "I mean you will have to mark it with me, as you know I know no more of dancing than a bear. Will you—"

She rises, then she hesitates.

"Hugh, is it safe? I mean, is it the right thing? Aren't there other people you might dance with first? I'm sure there are!"

He looks around; he knows his duty. There is a stout, middle-aged duchess in the room—the county duchess, who still dances—and it is she with whom he should caper if he should caper at all.

Dulcie sighs.

"Never mind," she says; "perhaps we can get another chance. Hugh, don't choose the prettiest girl in the room!"

"Yes, I shall!" he says, "you shall see," and in a few minutes he is struggling through the mazes of the quadrille with the fat duchess, and Dulcie is content.

Half an hour later, when the ball is rolling, as Sir Archie says, he comes for her. A waltz is just being played, and couples are promenadeing.

"Haven't I been self-denying?" he says. "You told me to go away, and I went, and now you will reward me, won't you? You will give me this waltz?"

She looks up at him. She has not danced as yet, and conversation, though it be made with ears and baronets and ladies of county families, is a poor substitute for the glorious dance; she has been watching and longing, and now—here comes the best dancer in the room!

"Thanks, no," she says. "I don't think I shall dance at all—at any rate not a waltz."

"Not—a—waltz!" he echoes, aghast and incredulous. "Why, it's like Mil-lis saying that he sha'n't paint—at least, in oils; or Adelina Patti that she won't sing—at least, in opera! You won't waltz?—then, we'd better put the shutters up. We had, indeed! Really—I don't say it is preposterous, but it is wicked. Come!"

"I shall not," she says, with a smile that is a little wistful.

"Why not?" he asks, persistently, his face blank with disappointment.

Now Dulcie, speak out, and say plainly—"I have promised my lover, your friend, Sir Hugh Falconer, that I will not!"

But she does not; instead she laughs:

"If you must have an answer, then, I've broken my leg!"

"Broken your leg!" he retorts, with a disappointed and reluctant laugh. "Well, I should think it would want some such reason to cause you to refrain from waltzing. Seriously, don't you mean to dance?"

And he looks down at her with eager imploration.

"Seriously, nary dance!" she retorts, smiling but impatient. "Please go away. There are heaps of people who are dying to waltz with you."

"But there is only one I am dying to dance with," he says, in a low voice.

She colors with annoyance. Hugh, though he is talking to Sir Giles Fitz-Giles, the county member, is looking her way, and looking with curious watchfulness.

"That is nonsense," she says, energetically. "Please go away. If I don't intend to dance, I want to see; and you are not tissue-paper, Sir Archibald."

He moves off slowly, and reluctantly, but though he goes, others come—others to whom she can scarcely assert that she has broken her leg. But she is firm; she will be good to-night—there shall be no pain on the handsome, noble face she loves so well. But though they cannot get her to dance, she cannot refuse to talk; and before many minutes have passed, Lady Falconer, peering across the room under her haughty eyelashes, has the pleasure of seeing a group of men—her best and most distinguished guests—gathered round the vulgar and middle-class girl whom she so heartily dislikes.

And from this group rises little murmurs of laughter and appreciation. Dulcie cannot play or sing or work crew, but she can talk—talk with a freshness and originality which even raises a smile of approbation on the grave face of the county duke who stands beside her, his hands folded behind his back, his stately head wagging with enjoyment.

No other woman in the room has succeeded in getting such a little court, and a murmuring question runs round:

"Who is she?"

Hugh, promenading the room with Lady Fitz-Giles on his arm, hears the question, and hears the answer by a thin young lady with an acidulous countenance and bony shoulders.

"Who is she? Oh, a Miss Dorrmore. She is staying with the Falconers. No one knows where they picked her up; but it is said that she came on Sir Archibald's account. He has really been caught this time, poor fellow! I am afraid she is rather a flirt! Do you see him standing there, gnawing his mustache and glowering at her? I suppose they have had a tiff; I heard her send him away just now."

Hugh looks in the direction indicated, and sure enough there is Archie, eyeing the center of the group with wistful envy and jealousy, and the frown comes to Hugh's grave face.

At the same moment he sees another face—that of Lucy Fairfax. She is sitting on the music-stool, with a meek, patient smile in her green eyes, a little neglected droop in her small figure. There is no admiring group of men round her; a touch of pity, compunction, and indefinable sympathy moves him, and making some excuse to fussy Lady Fitz-Giles, he deposits her rather summarily in a chair, and goes to the drooping figure.

The green eyes look up with a little start, though they have been watching him closely for the last ten minutes, and smile sympathetically.

"Aren't you tired?" he says, abruptly. "You have been playing for a long while. Is there no one else in the room who can relieve you? They take advantage of your good nature; because you do not dance is no reason why you should be chained like a galley-slave to the piano. Will you take a stroll with me?"

She shakes her head.

"No," she replies, in a low voice. "I am going to play another dance now. What shall it be?"

"I don't care," he says. "Let some one else play."

She shakes her head, and laughs softly, sadly.

"No. I am going to play this for you—and Miss Dorrmore. You have not danced with her yet," she adds, in a low voice.

He glances at the group, from which rises a burst of suppressed laughter.

"No," he says, "I don't think it matters. She is well enough amused."

"Oh," she says, softly; "you don't understand! I am sure she would like a dance with you. Go and ask her."

"I should be in the way," he says, moodily.

"Nonsense," she laughs. "You don't make allowance for her. Don't you know that all beautiful women are a little vain and proud of admiration? Lucky girl, she is getting enough homage to-night. Why, she is the talk of the room! You ought to be proud of her."

He shakes his head. There is another ripple of laughter, amidst which that of the stately duke can plainly be heard.

"Why should a woman be proud of admiration?" he says grimly. "It is a contemptible weakness," and an angry flush rises to his face.

The green eyes watch him with hidden eagerness.

"Now that is hard and cruel!" she says. "Come, go and dance with her; I—should like to see you."

He is too courteous to refuse; he is also dying to go, and he smoothes back the black fit of jealousy and crosses the room. As he gets nearer the group he can hear Dulcie's fresh, clear voice, and it goes to his heart.

Almost abruptly he makes his way through the group as the music commences.

"I think you promised me this, Miss Dorrmore," he says.

Instantly a volley of reproachful glances are levelled on her by the circle of admirers.

"Sorry for you, Falconer, but Miss Dorrmore won't dance," says the duke.

Dulcie colors.

"Oh, but," she says, with a bright laugh that barely hides her eagerness. "I promised Sir Hugh early in the evening, and I mustn't break my word," and she rises and puts her hand on his arm.

"See what awkward thing promises are," she whispers, pressing his arm with a little caressing gesture. "I shall get into fearful scrapes in consequence of that rash vow I made for you."

Make Your Own Cough Syrup and Save Money

Better than the ready-made kind. Easily prepared at home.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will surely make you enthusiastic about it. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effective pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly. It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A duke! Hugh, I had an idea that dukes never laughed!

"He doesn't often," he says, his grimaces melting; "it is only a certain young lady of my acquaintance who can fetch a smile from him."

She laughs.

"I don't care for that, Hugh," she murmurs, "if—I can make you smile. If you knew how I had been waiting and watching for you all the time they were chattering—"

"Have you?" he says, eagerly, "and I thought that you had forgotten me?"

"Forgotten!" and she presses his arm again, "and that is why you look so stern! Oh, Hugh, Hugh! will you never understand! There, not another word. Let us dance—or pretend to!"

"That will be about it," he says, with a smile; "my performance is something very awful."

"Never mind," she says, "I give you leave to dance like a bear—you may tear my dress, jump on my toes, bang me up against the wall, if you like. I'd rather suffer all that than with you than dance with—with Sir Archie even, and he dances like an angel."

The light comes back to his eyes and he puts his arm round her.

"Thank Heaven!" he says, his lips close to her ear, "that a wife doesn't expect her husband to waltz with her."

If he does not sin in any of the outrageous forms mentioned by Dulcie, Hugh, alas, waltzes vilely, and after a turn or two he stops.

"I won't inflict any more on you, Dulcie," he says, with a laugh, but holding her arm close to his side, and looking down on the beautiful face with passionate eagerness. "You shall go now and dance with your angel—yes!" with generous eagerness. "I insist! See, here he comes with an aggrieved countenance and a volley of reproaches."

Sir Archie makes his way toward them. Dulcie pouts and turns her head away.

"I don't want to dance with him; let me be good for to-night, Hugh! He—he is an idiot, though he does dance like an angel."

"But from pure charity it is your duty to humor the idiot," he says. "Now, Dulcie, do as I ask you, to show me that you have forgiven me for my sulkiness."

Sir Archie is upon them before she can reply.

"I've come at the exact moment to congratulate you upon the marvelous cure of your broken limb, Miss Dorrmore," he says.

FRENCH STEAMER TORPEDOED WITH HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

LONDON, Oct. 15. Two hundred and fifty lives were lost when the steamer Media was torpedoed on Sept. 23 in the West Mediterranean, says a Reuters dispatch from Paris. The explosion of the torpedo detonated the mines in the ship's cargo. There were more than 500 passengers aboard the steamer, including soldiers and members of war. The Media was a French vessel of 4,470 tons. She was built in 1912 and her home port was Marseilles.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 15. The text of to-day's statement reads: On the northern, southwestern and Rumanian fronts there were fusillades. On the Caucasus front the situation is unchanged.

Baltic Sea.—Fighting yesterday for the possession of the Island of Oesel continued. After the repulse of Saturday, Arensburg was occupied by the enemy at 7 p.m. Advanced detachments were observed the day before from four to six miles from the town. Enemy naval air forces are supporting the land operations and are attacking north and south of the island. The south squadron of enemy cruisers, torpedo boats and trawlers attempted to force an entrance to the Irb Channels. Its further movements into the Gulf of Riga are covered by our long range artillery from the Island of Oesel. The northern group of enemy warships dispatched a squadron of torpedo boats between the islands of Oesel and Dagoo, which pressed back our patrol boats in the direction of Moonssund. Our naval forces reinforced the patrol boats and accepted battle and the enemy retired. A third group of enemy warships consisting of cruisers and torpedo boats approached in the afternoon the southwestern coast of the Island of Oesel and bombarded an unimportant part of the coast. Enemy submarines were seen several times at different places in the Baltic. In this evening an airplane was brought down on the northern front.

GERMAN REPORT.

BERLIN, Oct. 15. British troops yesterday attacked on a front of nearly two and a half miles on the Arras front between the Scarpe and the Cambrai-Arras Road, says to-day's army headquarters statement which reports the assault to have broken down except in the centre. Counter attacks at night drove out such British as had penetrated the central sector. Heavy artillery firing and active reconnoitering operations on the Flanders front are reported in the statement.

HEAVY FIGHTING ON ITALIAN FRONT.

ROME, Oct. 15. Heavy fighting took place yesterday along nearly the whole Julian front, the Italians withstanding violent local attacks by the Austrians which were launched after extensive artillery preparation. The war office announced to-day that sharp reconnoitering encounters occurred at various points in some of which prisoners were taken by the Italians.

SHIPPING COMMANDEERED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. Approximately 600 American coastwise and ocean ships of 2,500 tons or over were commandeered to-day by the Government. The ships on the Great Lakes were not affected. While Government control became effective today the ships continue in the same traffic under the same plan as heretofore until they receive orders to the contrary.

A PEACE DEMONSTRATION.

LONDON, Oct. 15. A monster demonstration in favor of peace by understanding, marked the opening of the German Social Conference at Wurzburg, Bavaria, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen to-day. Philip Scheidemann, the majority Socialist leader in the Reichstag, speaking to a large audience declared that all conditions of life warranted the attitude the Socialists were taking towards the war.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 15. The British official issued to-night says: Later reports show that the number of prisoners we captured in yesterday's raid southeast of Monchy-le-Preux was 64, including two officers. A hostile raiding party was repulsed last night east of Shrewsbury forest. On the battlefield, the activity of our own and enemy artillery continues. Hostile artillery has also shown more activity during the day in the neighborhood of Lens and in the Neuport sector.

Aviation.—Yesterday there was a slight improvement in the weather and artillery work and photography were carried out by our airplanes. One and a half tons of bombs were dropped on Ledingham railway station and hostile billets east of Lens. In air fighting three German airplanes were brought down and one driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing.

IN MACEDONIA.

LONDON, Oct. 15. The official statement relating to operations around Salonika issued to-day says: On the Struma front yesterday Scotch troops very successfully raided Homondos Village, near Seres. After a sharp fight 142 prisoners and three machine guns were captured. Our casualties were light.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The taxicab drivers at a meeting to-night decided upon a strike next Monday, owing to the refusal of the Home Secretary to sanction a 50 per cent. increase in their fares.

FEARS INVASION.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 15. The newspapers exhibit alarm at the landing of Germans on Oesel Island. The Ruskaya Villa says, we are being led toward our resurrection. The Rech attributes the disaster to bad visibility and the unexampled political frivolities of leaders of the Rhiastan Democracy. It is not believed a landing in Finland will be attempted owing to scarcity of supplies there and to the fact that provisioning will be difficult with the approaching season by the freezing of the sea.

UNDER CONSIDERATION.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15. The Evening Journal says to-day: The creation of a Canadian High Commissionership at Washington to represent Canada in the States is under consideration. It is understood that the Government is in communication with British and United States authorities on this step. The British Government will undoubtedly consent to the move and it is believed the American Government will welcome and gladly recognize a Canadian representative.

EXECUTED FOR TREASON.

PARIS, Oct. 15. At dawn this morning Mata-Hari, otherwise known as Marguerite Gertrude Zelle, was taken in an automobile from St. Lazare prison to the parade grounds at Vincennes, where her execution took place. Two Sisters of Charity and a Priest accompanied her.

CHICAGO WINS CHAMPIONSHIP.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. Coming out of the west like Lochinvar of old, the Chicago Americans won the world series for the baseball championship here this afternoon, defeating the New York Nationals 4 to 2 in the sixth and deciding game of the 1917 diamond classic. For the first time in almost a decade the titular banner will flutter over the fans of the middle-west metropolis next spring when the series pennant is raised.

How bravely, buoyantly, in a gallant load of woes and cares! We see him, tolling in the mart with fearless eyes and a dauntless heart. Dispatches bring him tidings dire; his buildings are destroyed by fire; his vessel filled with many beans; was sunk by German submarines; the bank in which he had his vault closed—the cashier's shipyard abroad. Perhaps he's pale around the gills, confronting unexampled ills; perhaps he sheds a pint or two of sweat as cold as morning dew; but he's the modern fighting cock, and so he raises no lament. With stoic calm, with Spartan front, he buckles on his daily stunt. Then he goes home to have a dose; a silly fly with tickling toes is climbing over his drowsy brow—oh, watch the Spartan hero now! Oh, see the dauntless stoic rise, and rave around and cuss the flies. He knocks the pictures from the wall, and roasts his loved folks, one and all, and says it is a beastly shame that one who's weary, sore and lame, can't harvest some refreshing sleep; and if his wife was worth her keep, she'd see that every doggone fly should curl its little limbs and die.

It is over 200 miles long. Tea was cultivated in China 2,700 years before the Christian era, and there it was first used as a beverage. The Sutlej, in India, is the fastest flowing river in the world. Its descent in one section is 12,000 feet in 180 miles. ## A Telegraphic Mystery.

What is known as the "secret mail" of India has for more than a generation perplexed the British mind, and is still a profound mystery. Although numberless attempts have been made to explain it, everyone who has lived long in Asiatic countries is aware that accurate knowledge of important happenings at a distance is often possessed by the natives a considerable time before it is obtained by the Government, even though special facilities had been provided for the transmission of the news.

This was frequently and conspicuously illustrated throughout the Sepoy rebellion. Happenings occurring hundreds of miles away were usually known in the bazaars hours, and sometimes days, before the news reached the authorities, and the information obtained was regarded as so trustworthy that the natives speculated upon it, even to the fall, extent of their fortunes. Indeed, upon one occasion the "secret mail" beat the Government courier by fully twelve hours, although every endeavor had been made to secure the swiftest despatch.

The Hindoos themselves say, when they consent to talk about it at all, that they depend neither upon horses nor men, and have no secret code of signals; but that they possess a system of thought transmission which is as familiar to them as is the telegraph to the Western world. (Anyone may accept this explanation that will.)

But though most people, with less fondness for the mysteries, and a better knowledge of the weakness of the Hindoos for making riddles of the simplest facts, will look for a more prosaic explanation, it remains to be said that none has been forthcoming. The "secret mail" is an indubitable reality, and no European has ever succeeded in solving its mystery.

If news is transmitted by signals, no one has ever seen the signalers; nor if there is a vast system of stages in operation, covering hundreds and thousands of miles, has anyone ever come across any of its machinery! And, indeed, it would seem that some means of communication must be at the command of the natives more rapid than horses or runners.

They Knew the Teuton

London Daily Express.—Shortly before the war a German naval squadron was visiting a Japanese port. The admiral and members of his staff were officially invited to go over the arsenal. Among other things they were allowed to see some of the famous shimoso, the Japanese high explosive. The admiral, like a good German, made an opportunity to steal a handful of the powder. He put it in his trousers pocket, and found on returning to his ship that his best gala trousers were ruined, as grains of the powder had stained it an ugly yellow. The precious pinch of powder was sent by special courier from the German Embassy to Berlin, where it was analyzed and found to be a most innocent composition colored with ground mustard! The wily Japanese, knowing their guests had judged it prudent to substitute this harmless compound for the real shimoso.

Bridging the Atlantic

The news that Lieutenant Ronald Ayre, R. F. C., has received the double reward of the Military Cross and promotion to a Captaincy will be received with universal pleasure by Newfoundlanders. He is the first from the Island to attain so high rank in the flying service and, if we mistake not, to win a distinction. The list of Newfoundland aviators slowly grows larger and the same intrepidity that distinguishes the Regiment begins to mark them out also in an arm of the forces where bravery is a byword. Lieutenant Howard Reid's exploits are well known, though not in their full extent; Lieutenant Blackall is a prisoner in Germany after one of the gallant combats in the air which are an everyday occurrence at the front; Lieutenant Leonard Edens long since won his wings and is doing his share towards the mastery of the air which will some day belong to the Allies; Lieutenant Green gave his life in the cause, but not until he had brought down a Boche machine; while other Newfoundlanders are training for, if not actually serving in, the Flying Corps.

It is a pity that Newfoundland itself has none but a hearsay acquaintance with aviation. There is hardly another corner of the world where the aeroplane is not a more or less familiar sight. If Lieut. Reid, who came recently from Canada in quest of volunteers, had been able to give even simple exhibitions of flying in a simple type machine, there is no disputing the interest that would have been aroused or the greater number of recruits he would have secured. While anything in the nature of a training school here is probably impracticable and unnecessary, at least the presence of a machine or two should not be impossible and might be productive of good.

For there is the best of reasons why we should familiarise ourselves with aviation and interest ourselves more in it. Those who look forward to trans-Atlantic flights, which are as inevitable as to-morrow's sun, measure the time in their minds until they become a fact in terms of months, not of years. The feat may not even await the termination of the war for its accomplishment. At the present time a number of Italian army aviators in the United States demonstrating the possibilities of the huge Caproni biplanes which have made Italy famous, developing enormous power and speed and a lifting capacity which makes light of a dozen or more passengers. The primary object of the mission is to spur the States to greater effort in the output of machines and to give American constructors demonstration of what has been achieved, but it is easy to see that it has done more than that. It has awakened speculation, which the war interrupted but which it has itself brought so entirely within the realm of practicability, as to the possibilities of flying from the old world to the new and vice versa.

There is reason to believe that the speculation will be very soon put to

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, arrived back this morning from the northern mail service. The ship was as far as GRIQUET, her terminus, and experienced an eventful trip. She brought a full freight and these as follows: Messrs. C. Clark, H. Deckers, T. Elliott, A. Heller, G. Budgett, E. Diney, J. Colbourne, H. Lang, R. Deckers, P. Meaney, T. Heller, J. Deckers, J. On Thursday last, Oct. 11th, a fierce snow storm swept over the French Shore. The Prospero had just left Quirpon at the time and was on her way south. Suddenly a terrific gale sprang up from the N.E., accompanied by violent snow squalls. Gradually the wind increased and towards midnight raged with hurricane velocity. Along the waterfront particularly the storm was felt the severest. Huge seas ran and the Prospero was obliged to run to St. Leonard's, south of Quirpon, for shelter. It was rough on the mariner at sea that night as the snow squalls were very dense, making it impossible to see beyond the length of oneself. While the storm was at its zenith on Thursday night the schr. Fearless ran ashore at Quirpon and became a total wreck. All of twenty-one persons, except the master, Gushue, were saved in motor boats. A few hours after the vessel struck the land she was dashed to pieces by the heavy seas. It was only after the storm abated next morning that the Prospero's crew heard of the wreck. Passengers who arrive by that steamer inform us that the storm was one of the worst they ever experienced and that a considerable amount of snow fell.

Shipwrecked Sailors Arrive in Boston.

A dispatch from Boston says that two of the survivors of the schooner George Ewart, Captain George Lake, have arrived there on a steamship from Italy. The schooner was bound from St. John's, Nfld., to Gibraltar with a cargo of dried fish and at Gibraltar the captain was to receive instructions as to his port of discharge.

At 11 p.m. on September 19, the Ewart, while hove to during a storm, was run into by an iron ship. The identity of which was not ascertained, and sank in less than three hours. The unknown vessel proceeded without waiting to ascertain the damage she had inflicted and the shipwrecked men were left to battle with the storm that was then raging.

They had hardly taken to the boat when a German submarine came up, looked the schooner over and, seeing that she was on the verge of sinking, submerged again.

After 11 hours in the open boat the Ewart's crew landed on the Spanish coast and there learned that the same submarine which rose to the surface near their vessel had previously sunk a British steamer. The castaways were taken to Gibraltar and remained there 23 days, waiting for transportation to their homes.

One of the men stated that while they were at Gibraltar 14 shipwrecked crews whose vessels had been torpedoed and sunk by German submarines, were landed there.—Halifax Herald.

Newfoundland Soldier Returns.

Pte. Charles Horton, of the C. A. M. C., arrived in the city yesterday on route for his home in Newfoundland. Pte. Horton, who returned by the last transport, has been at the front for over two years. He was very badly wounded in the head and has been some time in one of the English hospitals. While in Sydney Pte. Horton visited Mr. David F. Nolan, to whom he is well known. Pte. Horton was exceedingly reticent regarding the part he had taken in the war, though he has been through some of the thickest of the fighting on the western front.—Sydney Record, Oct. 10.

Weather and War

Sun, Rain or Snow—Some Section of the Army is Always Pleased.

Every soldier, be he general or private, takes a keen interest in the weather at the front, and it is not always the bad weather, as we know it, that he criticises. It depends on what unit of the Army he represents whether he will revile or praise.

A thoroughly wet day to the airman is often a blessing; it gives him a rest from the strain of flying, though on occasions even the rain does not stop him. It stops the German fliers, too, and thus gives a rest to the "Archie" artillerymen on both sides.

Infantry's "Bete Noir."

A wet morning, on awakening at dawn, is blessed by these gentlemen, for it means extra time in bed—a great boon when you know that "Archie" has to be up always before the sun, and never retires from his vigil of the sky till nightfall. In the early summer months this means a nineteen hour day.

For the infantry it is a different matter. Trenches are never too comfortable in the finest of weather, and a downpour of rain is one of the worst things that can happen to the men who occupy the trenches.

No matter what the weather is, there is no cessation here, and slippery clay, wet feet, and no way of escape are just causes for the infantryman's righteous anger.

The field artillery dislike the rain, for, although it may give them a rest from their labours for a little while, at any moment they may be called to settle a little account with Fritz across the way. And in most cases during bad weather it is a case of "blind" firing, for it is impossible to observe without aeroplanes or balloons. Even the "Q. Pip" observing officer in the front line trenches cannot see.

When a Storm is Welcomed.

The Army Service Corps men, driving and riding, learn also to hate the rain, for a three-ton lorry is not an easy thing to drive on a greasy, wet French road, as witness the unfortunate vehicle that has skidded into the ditch. It means hours of ungenial work in the rain trying to get it out again.

To the men who are about to return from leave in Blighty to France, stormy weather is just the thing they like, if the wind has made the sea sufficiently unrideable.

With the leave boats not running on a day like this, the men on leave get an extra day in Blighty, while the men waiting to come over from France do not lose any of their leave, for their ten days' holiday does not start until they are actually on the transport.

From the general's point of view, I suppose, none but fine and sunny days are desirable, for the success of any big move or push will, of course, depend greatly on this.

Still, the stop-the-war weather has its minor advantages, as will be seen, not the least good point about it being the fact that the baby-killers of Germany cannot carry out their bombing operation on England at such times.—Answers.

The concert held at Torbay last night in aid of the Convent, was pronounced by those competent to judge the most successful ever held in that settlement. Mr. W. J. Brown, Miss Ida Howlett, Miss Rose Brophy; Mr. Cyril Fox, Mr. Frank Walsh, Mr. Jack Walsh, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. P. F. Moore.

The performers are so well known to theatre goers that it is unnecessary to say that each performed the part with much acceptance. The hall was crowded and all were delighted with this high class entertainment. Monignor St. John, who was amongst the audience expressed his thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted in this concert from which a large sum was realized for the improvements necessary to the Convent schools. The entertainment ended with a grand dance which was heartily enjoyed.

Consider the Goat!

(From the Berkshire County Eagle.)

The high cost of living has caused us to consider the goat, the animal of the-cave tradition and a stomach that isn't afraid. Milk at twelve or fifteen cents a quart makes a goat look better to us. Of course there are goats and goats. It's the same with cows. Some are profitable and others are not. The tin-eat goat is in one class. Cultivated high-grade goats are in another. Authorities say this for the latter sort: It is estimated that from five to eight goats may be kept at the expense of one cow. Even stall fed it costs only two dollars per month to keep a doe, and practically no one would buy all the feed. The goats would largely subsist on surplus products of the place, and in very many cases would be able to enjoy free pasture. Very careful experiments were made at the State University Farm at Davis, Cal., recently, and it was found that buying every ounce of feed the cost averaged only about three cents per day. One goat yielded an average of two quarts per day for 310 days, and another over three quarts per day for the same period. In the first case the cost of feed was about one and one-half cents per quart; in the second case less than one cent per quart. A Pittsfield man has it in his mind to buy a drove of about twenty-five goats and it is to be hoped that he will. If only a part of what is claimed for the goat is true, anybody who demonstrates to our citizens the superior value of the goat in these times of high living costs will have conferred a favor on his fellows.

Weather and War

Sun, Rain or Snow—Some Section of the Army is Always Pleased.

Every soldier, be he general or private, takes a keen interest in the weather at the front, and it is not always the bad weather, as we know it, that he criticises. It depends on what unit of the Army he represents whether he will revile or praise.

A thoroughly wet day to the airman is often a blessing; it gives him a rest from the strain of flying, though on occasions even the rain does not stop him. It stops the German fliers, too, and thus gives a rest to the "Archie" artillerymen on both sides.

Infantry's "Bete Noir."

A wet morning, on awakening at dawn, is blessed by these gentlemen, for it means extra time in bed—a great boon when you know that "Archie" has to be up always before the sun, and never retires from his vigil of the sky till nightfall. In the early summer months this means a nineteen hour day.

For the infantry it is a different matter. Trenches are never too comfortable in the finest of weather, and a downpour of rain is one of the worst things that can happen to the men who occupy the trenches.

No matter what the weather is, there is no cessation here, and slippery clay, wet feet, and no way of escape are just causes for the infantryman's righteous anger.

The field artillery dislike the rain, for, although it may give them a rest from their labours for a little while, at any moment they may be called to settle a little account with Fritz across the way. And in most cases during bad weather it is a case of "blind" firing, for it is impossible to observe without aeroplanes or balloons. Even the "Q. Pip" observing officer in the front line trenches cannot see.

When a Storm is Welcomed.

The Army Service Corps men, driving and riding, learn also to hate the rain, for a three-ton lorry is not an easy thing to drive on a greasy, wet French road, as witness the unfortunate vehicle that has skidded into the ditch. It means hours of ungenial work in the rain trying to get it out again.

To the men who are about to return from leave in Blighty to France, stormy weather is just the thing they like, if the wind has made the sea sufficiently unrideable.

With the leave boats not running on a day like this, the men on leave get an extra day in Blighty, while the men waiting to come over from France do not lose any of their leave, for their ten days' holiday does not start until they are actually on the transport.

From the general's point of view, I suppose, none but fine and sunny days are desirable, for the success of any big move or push will, of course, depend greatly on this.

Still, the stop-the-war weather has its minor advantages, as will be seen, not the least good point about it being the fact that the baby-killers of Germany cannot carry out their bombing operation on England at such times.—Answers.

Torbay Concert.

The concert held at Torbay last night in aid of the Convent, was pronounced by those competent to judge the most successful ever held in that settlement. Mr. W. J. Higgins acted as chairman and the following ladies and gentlemen took part: Mrs. (Capt.) Martin, Miss L. Brown, Miss Ida Howlett, Miss Rose Brophy; Mr. Cyril Fox, Mr. Frank Walsh, Mr. Jack Walsh, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. P. F. Moore.

The performers are so well known to theatre goers that it is unnecessary to say that each performed the part with much acceptance. The hall was crowded and all were delighted with this high class entertainment. Monignor St. John, who was amongst the audience expressed his thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted in this concert from which a large sum was realized for the improvements necessary to the Convent schools. The entertainment ended with a grand dance which was heartily enjoyed.

Consider the Goat!

(From the Berkshire County Eagle.)

The high cost of living has caused us to consider the goat, the animal of the-cave tradition and a stomach that isn't afraid. Milk at twelve or fifteen cents a quart makes a goat look better to us. Of course there are goats and goats. It's the same with cows. Some are profitable and others are not. The tin-eat goat is in one class. Cultivated high-grade goats are in another. Authorities say this for the latter sort: It is estimated that from five to eight goats may be kept at the expense of one cow. Even stall fed it costs only two dollars per month to keep a doe, and practically no one would buy all the feed. The goats would largely subsist on surplus products of the place, and in very many cases would be able to enjoy free pasture. Very careful experiments were made at the State University Farm at Davis, Cal., recently, and it was found that buying every ounce of feed the cost averaged only about three cents per day. One goat yielded an average of two quarts per day for 310 days, and another over three quarts per day for the same period. In the first case the cost of feed was about one and one-half cents per quart; in the second case less than one cent per quart. A Pittsfield man has it in his mind to buy a drove of about twenty-five goats and it is to be hoped that he will. If only a part of what is claimed for the goat is true, anybody who demonstrates to our citizens the superior value of the goat in these times of high living costs will have conferred a favor on his fellows.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-Day.
The German forces which landed on the Island of Oesel at the head of the Gulf of Riga captured Arensburg, the capital of the Island, and are still pushing the Russians at various places. Aiding the operations as far as possible are the German cruisers and torpedo boats, which have shelled the coast batteries and towns. Attempts by the German fleet to enter the Gulf of Riga or to operate in the waters between Oesel and Dago Islands, however, are meeting with resistance respectively from the Russian land batteries and naval units. In the latter region the Germans declined to accept battle and retired in face of the Russian warships. As yet no attempt has been made by the Germans to effect a landing on the coast of Esthonia and harass the right flank of the Russian army, and neither have any efforts been made to penetrate to the Gulf of Riga and Finland waters, which are heavily mined and will require mine sweeping operations before a naval demonstration can be made against the important port of Revel. In Flanders no military operations on a large scale have been attempted, but the big guns are carrying out reciprocal bombardments with great violence, like those which always precede the starting of infantry offensives. The British troops have carried out several successful raids in which severe casualties were inflicted on the Germans. Prisoners and machine guns were taken. After a lapse of two days the heavy artillery duels have been resumed between the French and Germans on the Verdun front, especially to the north of the famous Hill 344; also on the Aisne front there is considerable artillery activity. Preparations apparently are being made along the Julian front in the Austro-Italian theatre for another big battle. In the Brestovizza Valley and on several other sectors the artillery of both sides is engaged in heavy fighting and there also have been sharp reconnoitering encounters. In the Brestovizza Valley a strong attack by the Austrians was broken up by the Italian machine gun fire, as likewise were attempted offensives from west of Floridaf to the head of the Adriatic Sea. The Entente Allies in Macedonia are keeping up their harassing tactics against the positions held by the Teuton allies, daily throwing heavy bombardments against them or launching infantry attacks of considerable proportions. The latest of these latter operations has been carried out by the Scotch troops, who raided the village of Homondas, near Seres, and captured 143 prisoners and 3 machine guns.

PLAIN ENOUGH, ANYWAY.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.
The Berlin Socialist paper Verwaerts, in an editorial on the political situation in Germany, says: "It is enough to make one weep to think that we have a Chancellor like Michaelis, a Vice-Chancellor like Von Helldorf, a War Minister like Von Stein, and a Naval Secretary of State like Von Capelle. It is enough to make one weep that in this critical time of Empire a Government should be in power which neither at home nor abroad can command or even lay claim to respect, a Government as to whose incapacity there is a general consensus of opinion from Heldebrand to Scheidmann and from Von Reventlow to Ledebour, and that we cannot even tell whether or not this Government will be forced to make way for another more capable."

ANTI-PEACE PROPAGANDA IN HUNGARY.

COPENHAGEN, To-day.
Austrian and Hungarian Socialist newspapers received here report that an attempt has been made to start an anti-peace propaganda in Hungary. The propaganda is laid to Krupp and allied interests and two million marks are said to have been set aside to establish a newspaper in Budapest and to carry on the propaganda by means of moving pictures.

GERMAN POLITICS.

COPENHAGEN, To-day.
It is believed the political situation which has arisen because of discontent in some quarters with Michaelis will reach a crisis before the Reichstag re-assembles in December. Michaelis remains in Berlin conferring with the Reichstag leaders and his personal advisors endeavoring to find a solution of the situation, but according to advices received here he does not seem to realize that his own position is endangered. The political leaders and the newspapers to declare his unfitness for the high office he holds.

PARLIAMENT REASSEMBLES.

LONDON, To-day.
Parliament re-assembled to-day and began grappling with the big grist of legislative and administrative work. The most important duty will be the passing of a new vote of credit. This probably will bring up for discussion the general war situation, but it will be a few days before that business is reached, for to-day there is nothing more exciting on the schedule than the second reading of a Bill giving the Government control over all petroleum, and the consideration of the Titles Deprivation Bill, which is aimed at those who took up arms against Great Britain and her Allies. The chief interest centres in the proposal that the Government will take advantage of the opportunity to announce the general policy of its air service, which has been brought into the foreground by the recent raids over London.

SUPPRESSION OF EMOTION.

Those very self-controlled women suffer terribly when things go wrong with them and the suppression of emotion surely harms their beauty. Most of us can talk out our troubles with a friend and get sympathy and comfort, we can look forlorn and get any amount of pity and consideration in consequence. And there is no denying the fact that sympathy and pity do help to make our troubles seem lighter.

But a very self-controlled woman would almost die of shame if anyone saw in her tears. She would sooner be insulted than look woe begone. The enormous amount of self-control which she practices cannot help bringing more or less of a strain to her, it exhausts her nervous strength and then, of course, her troubles seem worse than they really are. It isn't ordinary, easily moved, easily comforted folks, who are all broken by the troubles and tragedies of life. They make a great deal of fuss for a few weeks, and they probably mention their troubles in a self-pitying sort of way, now and then, for years. But as a matter of fact, they go along quite comfortably all the while, and are never in any acute distress.

The women who have broken hearts, whose lives are blighted by one big misfortune, or made empty by one loss, are those who cannot ease themselves of their sorrow by pouring it out on their friends. They don't say or show much, but, like the patriot in the story, they think the more, and suffer the more, too.

Of course people of this reserved type find it terribly difficult to bring themselves to confide in anyone, even their dearest friends, and really prefer to go uncomfited and nurse their troubles and sorrows in silence. But I believe that, if only for their own sakes, they should make a great effort to overcome their natural tendency to silence on these matters, and break down the hard barrier of reserve and restraint they have built up around themselves, if only in the interests of their beauty.

Edward Halligan, of Murphy's Square, over 80 years of age and employed at the Foundry, St. John's West, met with a painful accident about 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon while at work oiling machinery, resulting in his right arm being badly battered and being caught in the main belt. He was rescued from a perilous position by a fellow worker. Mr. John Stowe, foreman of the foundry, phoned Dr. Anderson, who on arrival in his motor car conveyed the injured man to the hospital. Mr. Halligan has for upwards of fifty years been a member of the T. A. Society and so loyal was he to the cause of temperance that he declined a stimulant when offered it shortly after the accident. He was for many years employed in the railway service of the country, only leaving the Reid employ about six years ago.

House Sanctions Test of Mysterious Power

Armenian Says His Invention Will Revolutionize Warfare.—Claims It Drive Battleship Any Distance Without a Stop for Fuel—Propel Aero Around the World—Suggestion That It Resembles Keely Motor Rejected.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Washington is to-night excited over a new power system that will, if its inventor's claims materialize, revolutionize warfare overnight and end the conflict as suddenly, with America victorious. The system is a "free energy generator," and its inventor is Garabed T. K. Giragossian, an Armenian mechanic who has been working on his plan in Boston the greater part of twenty-six years. Here are some of the things he says it will do:

Drive a battleship any distance, without stop for fuel, propel an aeroplane around the world, give an aeroplane strength to carry thousands of pounds of munitions, enable an aeroplane to wear armor heavy enough to turn any anti-aircraft's missiles. A facetious suggestion made privately by one member of the House that this might be another "Keely Motor" affair was indignantly rejected by others of larger faith.

Other than to state that this system of utilizing free energy is as revolutionary as Franklin's discovery of electricity, Giragossian has not publicly described his theory. So radical are his assertions that they would be dismissed with a shrug and a smile, had he not, in secret demonstrations, backed up his statements. Official action has been taken, and if he can make good on a big scale, the United States will contribute more powerfully than any imagination had conceived, to winning the war from Germany.

In secret tests Giragossian convinced the House committee on patents, which studied the system, to be called "Garabed" and prepared a bill authorizing Giragossian to demonstrate his theory for the Secretary of the Interior. If it succeeds, the Government is to have the right to use it for any and all purposes. No other, except Giragossian, however, may take use of it. That was his only request.

The patents committee persuaded the committee on rules, there was something in "Garabed," with the result that to-day the rules committee induced the House to lay aside all other business and pass the bill.

After debate, the bill went through with a whoop, the vote being 234 to 14, with five voting present. To-night, Congressmen and others who have heard of the mysterious power generating system, are asking themselves what it is all about.

The only light thrown on the subject comes from a deleted report of the patents committee's hearings. It appears that Giragossian demonstrated a machine of ten horse power. On its performances, he based predictions that it will do away with boilers, furnaces, motors, coal, steam, oil—in short everything that has heretofore been connected with the idea or power.

The bill provides Giragossian shall convince the Secretary of the Interior and a committee of five scientists before the Government enter any agreement with him.

Origin of Famous Hymns.

Many of the most popular hymns had very romantic births. "Hold the Fort," which was written by an American, was inspired by a thrilling incident in the American Civil War. A very important position was being attacked, and the defender was driven further and further towards his centre, until eventually he was compelled to gather all his forces in one fort. He was on the point of capitulating when he saw a signal from General Sherman, who was then twenty miles distant. It said: "Hold the fort; I am coming." The music of "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was written before the words. The composer hummed the tune to Miss Fanny Crosby, and said: "Can you write some words suitable for that melody?" "Yes," was the prompt reply. "To me the tune seems to say quite distinctly, 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus.'" She sat down to write the verses immediately, and in half an hour the new famous hymn was completed. "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" was inspired by, and written for, the Yorkshire school festivals. One Whit Monday, fifty years ago, it was arranged that several Sunday-schools should join forces and form a great procession. A stirring march was wanted, and Mr. S. Baring-Gould, who was a great Sunday-school leader, took upon himself the task of writing the hymn.

A Perfectly Satisfactory Existence.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

An acquaintance of mine who had grown very tired of keeping house stored most of her furniture and went to boarding. "I am so tired of thinking what I have to eat," she said, "and of sweeping and dusting and mending and mending bills and all the paraphernalia of housekeeping I'm going to get rid of it all."
 It was plain that she expected to enter upon a perfectly satisfactory existence.
 That was four years ago.
 The other day I met her and she was hunting for an apartment.
 She Found Boarding Not Ideal.
 "Yes," she said, "I'm going back to housekeeping for a while anyway. I'm so sick of boarding house cooking and living in two rooms and being tied to the dinner bell. I want some privacy and freedom."
 It was plain that she hadn't entered upon a perfectly satisfactory existence when she went to boarding. I am afraid she never does.
 One is always expecting some change of circumstance to do away with all the annoyances, the vexations of existence.
 And one is always finding out that while the change may do away with one set of annoyances, it is apt to bring others.
 She Acquired a Maid—And New Troubles.
 I knew a woman who used to think she would be "perfectly happy" (that enter-beckoning adjective) if she could have a maid and not have to hurry home to get dinner and rise from the dinner table to a mess of dishes. She finally acquired a maid and found a new set of annoyances. She and her husband were fond of eating at irregular hours, the maid, needless to say, was not. They loved to have friends drop in unannounced, the maid did not. The wife liked her dishes washed and drained in a certain neat and orderly way, the maid did not. And so on—I am sure you can fill out from your own experience.

 People are always trying to make some outward change which shall rid them of all untoward circumstances. It can't be done. The only way to get rid of annoyances is to teach oneself not to be annoyed by them.

Happiness Must Come From The Heart.

All lasting serenity must have its roots in the heart and not in circumstances.
 Of course it is sensible to plan your life so as to minimize annoyances and discomforts but you can't eliminate them. You must supplement these plans with the habit of taking some annoyances for granted. You must realize that even if you could have things different there would still be other annoyances. You must train yourself to take untoward circumstances cheerfully and courageously. Make as little of them instead of as much as you can.

The older I grow the more firmly I am convinced that so and so only can one be happy.

THE TRAVELLING MAN.

The travelling man is one of Nature's handiworks who works mostly with his feet. A thoughtful and far-seeing Providence has supplied the travelling man with a pair of pointed, rubberized feet, which never give out until Saturday night, when they are taken apart and allowed to breathe in a free, natural tone of voice until Monday morning.
 Travelling men are not hired because of their personal beauty, but in order to prevent the hotels, restaurants and railroad eating houses of our country from going broke with a low muffled report. If it were not for the vast hordes of hopeful travelling men who drop off the train every day in crash suits and scatter money all the way from the ticket window to the sample room, the business of running a hotel would be about as profitable as selling poroknit underwear in Iceland.

Greet the travelling man with a seductive smile and an outside room. Every hotel man who ever made a success of the business greets the travelling man with a seductive smile and an outside room; and sees that he is followed to his room by ice water, fresh towels and the evening paper. Whenever you read of a hotel being closed in order to allow the sheriff to pursue the proprietor into an adjoining state, you will find that all of

The Liberty Motor.

American manufacturing methods have always been a source of astonishment to Europeans—an astonishment not unmixed with contempt; for the American product is usually designed for work rather than appearance, and the lack of finish in some of our machines has led foreign critics to believe that our manufacturers have absolutely no esthetic sense. But what our product lacks in beauty it makes up in ruggedness. We realize fully the importance of standardization, and must design our machines for manufacture in quantity in order to compete with cheap labor abroad.

When we entered the war it was realized that the enormous manufacturing facilities of the United States would be of greatest aid to our Allies, and we were urged to devote ourselves particularly to aeronautics, because in this field our manufacturing resources could be used to good advantage, and men could be trained for aviation service in a minimum of time. Unfortunately, although the United States is the native home of the aeroplane, we are sadly behind Europe in the development of this machine. It was realized at the outset that we must produce an engine of American make and American design to suit American methods of manufacture. It would not do for us to copy European invent a new motor, but merely to adapt to the system of manufacture in which we have specialized.

Nerves of the Stomach

Were Weak and Inactive as Result of Nervous Prostration. Lost Twenty Pounds—Had to Take Sleeping Powders to Get Any Rest.
 St. Catharines, Ont., October 16th.—Many people never realize that the movement and action of every organ of the human body is dependent on the energy supplied by the nervous system.
 When the nervous system gets run down there is weakness throughout the entire body. You feel tired and languid and your stomach and other digestive organs are similarly affected. Appetite fails, digestion is poor, you do not get the good of what you eat and gradually grow weaker and weaker.
 This process can only be stopped by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which goes directly to create new nerve force and thereby to invigorate the whole human body.
 Mrs. Geo. S. Elise, 46 Davidson street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My husband had an attack of nervous prostration, and although he doctor for some time and tried different other medicines, he could not get relief. He had to resort to sleeping powders given him by the doctor until he had lost twenty pounds. We had read advertisements in the newspapers for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and noticed that it seemed to be doing a lot of good for people troubled with nervousness, so my husband decided to try it. He found benefit almost from the start, and continued this treatment until he had taken about twelve or thirteen boxes. The results were most satisfactory. He is now enjoying good health, sleep well, and has gained back nearly all the weight he had lost. He also uses Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally, and thinks them an excellent remedy. I have also used this latter medicine for dizzy spells and liver trouble, and was completely cured of these complaints. We think a great deal of Dr. Chase's medicines, and cannot speak too highly of them."
 Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

To give some idea of the size of Australia, Queensland alone is half as big again as Germany, Austria, and Hungary put together. Its area is 668,497 square miles.

Newfoundlander Killed at Steel Plant.

According to a Sydney paper:—
 "On Friday morning last a workman named William Crowley, a native of Harbour Main, was fatally injured at the Nova Scotia Steel Plant at Sydney. An ambulance was hurriedly called to remove him to hospital, but he died on the way to the institution. The accident was witnessed by only one of his fellow workers, a foreigner, whose evidence, given through an interpreter, was not very clear; but it appears that Crowley met his death by being crushed between a car and a limekiln while coupling up a string of cars. The doctor who was summoned, stated that death was due to a fractured skull."

The body was sent home for burial by yesterday's express and put off at Woodford's Station.

The Newfoundland Band in London.

The visit of the Band of the First Newfoundland Regiment to London on Saturday, Sept. 22nd, was an event which excited much interest in "the great Metropolis of the world." For some time previous to that date the newspapers contained daily some reference to the impending attraction, and considerable enthusiasm had been created by the earnest manner in which the affair was taken up by a zealous organization committee.

The Band, numbering thirty, under Mr. L. L. Worthington, and accompanied by Capt. J. E. J. Fox, reached King's Cross Station shortly before 10 a.m. on the 22nd inst. and there was a very large gathering of people to meet them. The reception was genuinely sincere, and a remarkable demonstration of interest and curiosity was manifested in the Newfoundland Band, "Sable Chief," which, under the charge of Pte. Fraser, (son of Dr. N. S. Fraser), was quite the central figure. The people were especially eager to hear the "Banks of Newfoundland," or should one say "The Regimental March." It had been frequently referred to in the London press as a "weird mixture of Indian and Irish music," and although our Band played it with great volume and spirit it is doubtful if the large gathering realized what a reminiscent melody it was to us.

The afternoon was devoted to an open-air concert in Hyde Park. The weather was propitious and the gathering of people notably large. Every chair in the enclosure was occupied, and the "Weekly Despatch" in my authority for saying that the attendance topped the record for the season of 1917. In the audience I noticed Lady Morris, Mrs. Whitaker, Mrs. Green, Miss Constance Fox, Capt. and Miss Lily Johnson, Mr. E. R. Morris, Capt. Fox, Captain Chitt and Lieutenant H. A. Anderson, the untiring worker of the organization committee. Mrs. Edward Gosling and Miss Gladys Fraser—two prominent figures in recent society notes—were appreciative on-lookers. One must feel a thrill of pride to state that the concert was an entire musical success—the programme was excellent, and the selections rendered with real appreciation of their musical worth. The opening concert was a splendid commencement for "Newfoundland week," and the band was truly worthy of the unstinted praise and warm applause.

One was struck with the human element which creeps into every incident of these days of war. During the interval, several ladies came forward, having recognized in the band men whom they had nursed and cared for when they had returned from Gallipoli and France. There was no doubting the sincerity—the warmth—of the reunion.

On Sunday afternoon, the 23rd, the Band played at Wandsworth, the 3rd London General Hospital, where so many of our officers and men receive treatment. At this place a moving picture was taken of the affair, and in the various scenes there figure prominently Lady Morris, Colonel Bruce-Porter, C.M.G., Sir Joseph Out-erbridge, and the Matron, Miss Edith Holden. The week's programme is appended:—

Saturday, 22nd Sept. at 3 p.m.—Hyde Park.
 Sunday, 23rd—2.30 p.m., 3rd London General Hospital. 5 p.m., Gifford House Auxiliary Hospital.
 Monday, 24th—11 a.m., Royal Exchange. 5 p.m., Weybridge Convalescent Home.

Ronald Ayre Wins Promotion and Distinction.

A cablegram was received yesterday stating that Lieut. Ronald Ayre, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ayre and brother of Lieut. Wilfred Ayre, who made the supreme sacrifice on July 1st, 1916, had been promoted to Captain and awarded the Military Cross. Capt. Ayre is only 19 years of age, as he was at College when he volunteered for the aviation corps. In his early training he showed that he possessed the characteristics that would adapt him for the air and while on active service at the front demonstrated his ability.

The patriotism and loyalty of the Ayre family has already been exemplified. Capt. Ronald also had three cousins who died on the altar of Liberty and Justice. It is not known for what particular exploit Capt. Ayre won such high distinction, but letters received from him recently show that he has taken part in many thrilling expeditions and raids over the German lines. On one occasion he was personally congratulated by Sir Douglas Haig for his performance. He is the last member of the Ayre family now active in the line; that he is of the same sterling stuff as his brother and cousins is sufficiently shown by the honours he has won.

Experiences of Reservist Joy.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joy, New Gower Street, was the scene of much rejoicing last night when a reception was tendered their son Royal Naval Reservist Willie A. Joy, who returned from active service after an absence of about three years. The young sailor left here Nov. 14th, 1914, and on arrival in England was attached to a trawler doing service in the English Channel. From there he was transferred to H.M.S. Cornwallis, which ship was sunk in the Dardanelles. He was then put on board a trawler engaged in mine-sweeping, where after a short while this ship also went under, taking with her many of his shipmates. He took part in the landing of "Ours" at Suvla Bay and at other important engagements in Eastern waters, spending considerable time at Suez. Very few Newfoundlanders were met during his absence but whenever "Ours" were mentioned in despatches it was an occasion of great rejoicing by the whole ship's company who thought highly of the Oldest Colony.

Since leaving here Reservist Joy has led a charmed life for on many occasions he had a narrow escape from going under, but like the proverbial penny always showed up again.

It is said that bees are excellent weather prophets. When a shower is near they never go far from home, but gather their food within a short distance of their hives or nests.

Naval Heroes Welcomed

By the express which reached the city last night the following Royal Naval Reservists returned on furlough: Vincent Hurley, Cross Roads, Brigus; George W. Druggett, Curling; Benjamin Smith, Gooseberry Cove, T.B.; Eli Drudge, Long Beach, Random, T.B.; Esau Dowden, Rock Hr., H.B.; Frederick Clark, Brigus; Norman Osmond, Carbonear, C.B.; Peter Flacey, Winterton, T.B.; William Gillahan, New Per-Sean, T.B.; John Smith Heart's Ease, T.B.; William A. Joy, New Gower St. City; John Batt, Open Hall, B.B.; John Mason, 137 South Side, City; Edward J. Rahall, 5 Kitchen Place, City; Stanley Allen, City. On arrival at the station they were met by the Ladies' Reception Committee and Hon. Dr. Lloyd, Acting Prime Minister. The latter in a brief address expressed pleasure at meeting the men and thanked them for the valuable services they had rendered the Empire. "By your efforts," said the Acting Premier, "we enjoy the privilege of shipping our wonderful catch of cod to foreign markets." He hoped they would enjoy a well earned rest and that they would be influential in persuading others to join the colors. The men were afterwards placed in cabs and driven to their homes. This morning they reported on board H. M. S. Briton and, after getting squared up, proceeded in cabs to Government House where they were entertained by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson.

The Penny is 1,300 Years Old.

A penny is the most ancient of English coins. The word was originally used for money in general. It is first mentioned in the laws of Ina, King of the West Saxons, about the close of the seventh century, and was of silver deeply indented with a cross, so as to be easily broken in two or four parts. It is the radical denomination from which English coin is numbered, weighing 23 1/4 grains troy, being the 240th part of a pound. It is stated that Ethelbert, King of Kent, coined pennies between 560 and 616 A.D. Edward I. coined gold pennies. In 1797 copper pennies were used, and bronze ones in 1860, valued at half the copper ones. The United States coined copper cents and half-cents in 1793, in 1857 a nickel cent, and in 1865 a bronze cent. The word penny is derived from the old German word "pant," a pledge. It was the only coin current among the Anglo-Saxons. After Edward III. the coin decreased in value.

Profitable Salving.

Very little further work can be done in the way of salving the oil cargo of the U.S. oil vessel, Jas. Rockwell, now a total wreck at Cape English, St. Mary's Bay. People from the shore, who are being paid half their hand for rescuing the cargo, will make another good "voyage."

It is a curious fact that there is hardly a reigning monarch in Europe whose family is of the same nationality, absolutely, as the people governed.

There are two schools of vegetarians. One favours vegetable food which grows below the earth's surface, and the other favours that which grows above.

The Eskimo pay their doctors at each visit. If the patient recovers the doctor is allowed to keep the money, but if the man dies the doctor is expected to return his fee to the deceased's relatives.

There is a lack of uniformity in the thickness of a Bank of England note. It is thicker in the left hand corner than in any other part, to enable it to receive a sharper impression of the vignette there. This aids in the discovery of counterfeiters, as the latter are invariably of one thickness.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Myrick, of Cape Race, wishes to offer their sincere thanks to Dr. Rendell, Matron Campbell, Nurses Gibbons, Cluett, Oakley, Atwell and others of the Sanatorium for their many acts of kindness to their son, Patrick, while at the institution; also Hon. ### A Housing Scheme.

Scope For Philanthropic Investors.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The Social Service Congress focused our attention on the most glaring needs of the city as never before and I beg to submit for the consideration of our wealthy merchants and others a practical scheme for the amelioration of the terrible conditions under which so many of our workmen and their families live. We are indebted to Councillor Tait for showing in his splendid and informing address to the Congress that the most serious conditions are met with between Carter's Hill and Brasill's Square. My suggestion is that each wealthy merchant or company who can afford it could invest a portion of their capital in some poor locality in the city or suburbs and pull down the rookeries and poorly built houses now located there and build instead a row of model workmen's dwellings and thereby transform the street from an unsanitary and disease breeding centre into a healthy and attractive locality.

This would be an investment which would give sure returns to the city and merchant, for if this plan were generally adopted, workmen who are now only 50 per cent. or 70 per cent. efficient, due to the unhealthy conditions under which they live would become near 100 per cent. efficient living under decent conditions. The rents charged by the merchants might be slightly over bank interest, say 3 1/2 or 4 per cent., or the houses rented on the hire purchase system so that the occupiers would own their houses within, say, 10 or 15 years. This scheme could be handled in several ways, either the merchant could control his own investment or he could hand the money over to an association to be named, say, "The Workmen's Dwelling Association," the merchant retaining a seat on the Board. He could dedicate the entire amount to the Association or retain his interest in the property and leave same in his will either to his heirs or to the city. An investment of say $10,000 would build a row of 12 houses, 20,000 would build a row of 25, 30,000 would build a row of 40, 50,000 would build a row of 65.

These ranges of houses could be known by the name of the philanthropic investor and instead of the dilapidated dwellings of Lime Street, we would then have The "Harvey Rows," The "Ayre Cottages," The "Ryan Row," "Bishop's Court," "Knowing Range," "Baird Range," "Winters Row," "Marshall Terrace," "Monroe Cottages," "Singer Terrace," "Hickman's Range," "Crosbie Terrace," "Cahlin Row," etc. The tendency of the twentieth century is for moneyed men to spend a portion of their wealth during their life time and have the pleasure of seeing how much good they can accomplish. It must be a source of untold pleasure to Sir Edgar Bowring to note the keen appreciation of his splendid gift to the city "Bowring Park"; personally I never enter the park without a feeling of thankfulness to the generous donor which I am sure is duplicated by the thousands who visit that beautiful spot, and in like manner the philanthropic investors who would transform our slums into healthy localities would be doubly blessed as they viewed their work from day to day.

Trusting that some interest will be awakened in this or some other practical scheme for the reduction of the high death rate in our city.
I am, yours etc.,

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful, Thick, Glossy, Wavy

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Dandrine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandrine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandrine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Dandrine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful. You can easily have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandrine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

ENDS PAIN!

That is what Zam-Buk does when applied to a cut or scratch. It stops the bleeding, draws out all the soreness, and finally grows new skin over the injured part. Mr. Victor Lawson, of Magrath, Ala., writes: "I scratched my hand badly with a rusty nail. The wound pained terribly until I applied Zam-Buk, but this balm ended the pain almost as soon as applied, and healing soon followed." Zam-Buk is antiseptic, and prevents any possibility of festering or blood-poisoning. It is equally good for eczema and all skin troubles, chronic sores and piles. ### 10 Mile Marathon

IN AID W. P. A. FUNDS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Would you allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper to make a few remarks.

Seeing that the old footballers and cricket players have done their bit I make a suggestion that a 10 mile Marathon Race be run off in the Prince's Rink between our long-distance runners which ought to prove a success. I have no doubt whatever in saying that our runners are just as pitifolous as the football and cricket players. Seeing the W. P. A. needs more funds this would be a good idea to get funds. Mr. Editor I make the suggestion that Mr. S. Cullen, the well known athlete, and the indefatigable Jim Vinnicombe be induced to arrange for a race. I would like to see all the old runners coming out again: such runners as Bell, Duff, Maynard, Kavanagh, Pike, Ring, all of whom are well known runners. Now it is up to Messrs. Cullen and Vinnicombe to get busy and have this race run off.

Yours, etc.,
CARIHOU.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier. About the cost one must pay for small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoother and beautifier. Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Novel Use of the Periscope.

Although the periscope has become familiar to the general community chiefly from its association with submarine and trench warfare, it has been put to a distinctly novel and beneficial use in an wholly peaceful pursuit. One of the railways serving the city of Chicago has a sharp and dangerous curve of which, until the recent completion of a huge building, the signalman had a clear and uninterrupted view. The obstruction caused by the building rendered the signal-box apparently useless, and its removal was being contemplated, when the engineers determined to make a novel experiment with a view to avoiding this expense. They built a large periscope, 12 ft. in height, extending upward from the roof of the cabin. In this way it was found possible to peer over the intervening building. The eyes were placed conveniently near to the signal-operating mechanism, and as the picture is produced on a large scale the signalman has a clear and unobstructed view of the approaching trains during their negotiation of the curve. By this simple expedient several hundred pounds were saved, while the signalman experiences no more difficulty in performing his work than he did before the offending building came into existence.

The oldest building in the world that has been uninterruptedly used for church purposes is St. Martin's Church at Canterbury. This building was originally erected for a church, and has been regularly used as a place for religious gatherings for more than 1,600 years.

Local Breach of Promise Has Been Settled.

Joseph Pitman, Who Told of His Love in Poetic Verses Pays $300 Heart Balm.

Rather than face his 37 letters of poetry telling of his burning love, Joseph Pitman, of this city, has settled the breach of promise case, entered against him by one Geneva Barrett, a Newfoundland girl. The terms of settlement were $300 heart balm for the young lady and legal fees for the plaintiff's counsel, A. D. Gunn, amounting to $150.

Readers of The Record will remember a few months ago that Miss Barrett entered suit against Pitman, charging him with breach of a promise to marry. Pitman had been keeping with the young lady for some months and even sent her money to Newfoundland to come to St. John's and be married. He told the young woman of his love in a series of letters, that were mostly written in poetic style and which the plaintiff later turned over to her counsel to be presented in evidence. Extracts from these letters were published in The Record and caused a sensation at the time, so much so that the case was being eagerly looked forward to and was to have been tried at the recent session of the Supreme Court in this city. A few days ago, however, Pitman, who has since married, decided to settle the case and succeeded in keeping the case out of the courts.—Sydney Record, Oct. 12th.

Prophecy Fulfilled With Rasputin's Death.

The enormous influence that Gregory Rasputin held over the Tsarina of Russia was largely due to her regard for the mystic as savior of her family. She believed sincerely in Rasputin, according to Lincoln Steffens in "Everybody's" for October, and she believed in Rasputin's prophecy that while he lived, the Romanoffs would live and reign, and if anything happened to him, they would fall. Something most tragic did happen to him, and soon afterward the House of Romanoff fell. The bearing of one incident on the other is thus explained by Mr. Steffens: "After the killing of Rasputin, the conspirators put the body into an automobile, took it off and pitched it over a bridge through the ice into the river. The Tsarina, in frantic distress, ordered a search. One of Rasputin's rubbers was found on the bridge and a bloody spot over the side where the body struck in falling. These showed the searchers where to look; they discovered the body, and the Tsarina had it embalmed and laid away till the tomb she started near her palace could be finished. There was no vengeance. There were arrests, all the group were arrested, excepting only the Grand Duchess. She was not suspected. There were hearings, but the hints as to the nature of the evidence to be offered by the defence—a warning that the truth about Rasputin and the Court would be laid bare, quashed the proceedings. "In vain. The death of Rasputin, 'the inviolable' was too sensational to be passed over in silence. All Russia heard of and discussed it, and since he was certainly dead, all fear of him vanished and everybody laughed at that fear, at the man, and at the Court. The gossip about him was passed along and improved upon. Rasputin's prestige went fast and with it went that of the crown. Revulsion for the 'Little Father' could not survive when the very people were telling one another obscene stories about him and his wife and his court, and obscenely laughing. It was tragic."

Pithy Pars.

Rain falls more frequently between three o'clock and eight o'clock in the morning than at any other time during the twenty-four hours. The speed of a carrier pigeon, in calm weather, is 1,200 yards a minute. With a brisk wind prevailing, and blowing in the direction of its flight, a pigeon has been known to make 1,800 yards a minute. The "Bird of Death" is the only venomous feathered animal known to ornithologists. It is found in New Guinea, and persons bitten by the creature are seized by maddening pains, which rapidly extend to every part of the body. Loss of sight, convulsions, and lockjaw are symptoms that follow in rapid succession.

General Maude's Latest Victory.

(Toronto Star.) The brilliant success obtained by General Maude's forces in Mesopotamia took place on the Euphrates and not on the Tigris river and at a distance of seventy miles from Bagdad on the west. Until now the main British forces have operated in the Tigris valley, their front at present being located just beyond Samarra, seventy miles northwest of Bagdad. As it also is seventy miles across desert southwestward from the main Tigris front to the Euphrates front at Samarra and Ramade form an equilateral triangle. Though General Maude's coup in capturing the bulk of the Turkish garrison at Ramade, along with its commander, all his staff, and some guns, was one of the most complete recorded during the war, the assumption that the main Turkish army in Mesopotamia has been overwhelmed offensively camouflaged. The main British offensive campaign is necessarily tied down to the Tigris valley and movements up the Euphrates have been and will continue to be merely supplementary. In fact, we should look upon last week's victory, now made known, as an offensive, whose success greatly relieved a situation that might have become dangerous. Months ago the British and Russian armies in Asia, by recapturing Kanikin Pass, with the result that the right wing of the British forces in the Tigris valley is far from safe. Had the enemy also been able to menace the British left wing, General Maude would have been compelled to maintain strong flanking forces on both the right and left, but his latest victory has destroyed the Turks' Euphrates army and made the situation tolerably comfortable for the British. General Maude's Latest Victory.

(Toronto Star.)

The brilliant success obtained by General Maude's forces in Mesopotamia took place on the Euphrates and not on the Tigris river and at a distance of seventy miles from Baghdad as the west. Until now the main British forces have operated in the Tigris valley, their front at present being located just beyond Samara, seventy miles northwest of Baghdad. It is also seventy miles across desert southwestward from the main Tigris front to the Euphrates' front at Samara lines drawn between Baghdad, Samara and Ramadid form an equilateral triangle. Though General Maude's coup in capturing the bulk of the Turkish garrison at Ramadid, along with its commander, all his staff, and some guns, was one of the most complete recorded during the war, the assumption that the main Turkish army in Mesopotamia has been overwhelmed is most unwarranted. The main British offensive campaign is necessarily tied down to the Tigris valley and movements up the Euphrates have been and will continue to be merely supplementary. In fact, we should look upon last week's victory, now made known, as an offensive, whose success greatly relieves a situation that might have become dangerous. Months ago the Turks drove in a wedge between the British and Russian armies in Asia, by recapturing Kanlikin Pass, with the result that the right wing of the British forces in the Tigris valley is far from safe. Had the enemy also been able to menace the British left wing, General Maude would have been on tender hooks. He has been forced to maintain strong flank forces on both the right and left, but his latest victory has destroyed the Turks' Euphrates army and made the situation liberally comfortable for the British. The front is not continuous between the Tigris and the Euphrates, the movement of troops in that arena being largely restricted to the river roads. An impassable sandy desert separates the British near Samara from the British at Ramadid. An advance of forty miles in a northwesterly direction to Hit from Ramadid can be made rapidly now if General Maude finds its desirable and weather conditions permit. By going on another sixty miles, a road leading northward on the important military centre of Mosul can be taken, thus in turn threatening to outflank the Turkish force on the Tigris. The odds are that the British will lose no time in moving on Hit. The map shows a gain by the Russians to the southeast of Van. It is doubtful that the troops that have moved forward in that region are more than a few hundred Russian horsemen. Were Russia in strength to advance beyond Rusa all the Turkish troops in Macedonia would be gravely endangered.

By a forced night march General Maude's troops early Friday morning captured a ridge at Mushaid. That place is north of the river, but General Maude does not report that he crossed the stream, and so we assume that the ridge, which he says is four miles east of Ramadid, is on the south bank and responsible for the bend in the river at that point. While part of General Maude's troops held the river front west of the ridge, an infantry column made a detour away from the river and advanced on Ramadid from the southeast and south, in addition to which a force of cavalry made a longer detour by way of the south and entrenched themselves west of the town. The river hems in the town on the north and apparently is without bridges, so that the enemy army, having failed in desperate attempts to break through to the west, was compelled to surrender.

And the Worst is Yet to Come

Reputations Made by the War.

Artists and Authors to Whom Armageddon Has Brought Fame and Fortune.

Of course, it is inevitable that among the actual combatants certain names leap into the red light of war which otherwise would have remained obscure. It is probable, for instance, that Hindenburg himself would never have been heard of outside of Germany; and very little inside, but for the war. Of instances of this kind, and of heroes whose names will be immortal there are many, but there are a few reputations which the war has made of quite another kind and it is of these we are thinking at present.

Two Sides of War.
Louis Raemaekers! What a name to conjure with, not only in the highest circles of art, but also in the popular arena. He it is who has set the "mark of the beast" indelibly on the Hun, who, by his scathing cartoons, has filled the Kaiser with such deadly hatred that he has practically set a price on his head! Probably never in the history of art has a man more thoroughly interpreted the feeling and teaching of the world for the horrible deeds and inhuman outrages of the militarists of Central Europe, and his work will stand as a witness to posterity that ours was a just cause.

Captain Bruce Bairnsfather is in the same category as Raemaekers, but with a little difference. He is a cartoonist not of the terrible, the bizarre, the horrifying, but of the laughter, the jocularity, the infinite cheerfulness of the British Tommy. He has made the world acquainted with Tommy Atkins as it has never been acquainted before. It regarded him as rather a dull dog, without gaiety and high spirits, one who took his pleasures sadly. It knows him now as the Mark Tapley of the world, the man who can joke in a mine crater, bandy chaff in the midst of a heavy barrage, and hold a little mid-ocean concert on a spar! Bairnsfather was never heard of before the war, and his reputation, now world-wide, seemed just a happy accident.

Of course, the gallant soldier who calls himself for pen purposes "Ian Hay," but whose full patronymic is John Hay Belth, did a bit of writing before hostilities commenced, but it was "The First Hundred Thousand" which made him a literary celebrity of the first rank, and which made the books he had written before begin to sell all over again. His is a real war fame, for it was out of the war he got both his public and his material.

Phillip Gibbs, too, may be counted among men made by the war. He was well known in Fleet Street, but the Literary Year Book does not include him in the list of literary men in its issues for 1916. He was considered a clever journalist and nothing more until he was sent out to act as war correspondent for a London morning paper. Then his quality was soon seen, and to-day for one who knew his name there are ten thousand, and his writings are read with a strained attention and closeness of interest which is accorded to few novelists.

The short stories of the soldier who signs himself "Sapper" are reckoned by everybody as giving in print as good a notion of the humour and semi-tragedy of the trench and dug-out as Bairnsfather gives by his inimitable drawings. He is a sole product of the war, and his subjects are invariably drawn from that teeming source of plot and incident.

A Poet Wanted.
It is said that there has been a renaissance of poetry during the war, and that poetry has ceased to be "a drug in the market." Certainly no great poet has arisen to voice the terrors and the heroisms of the war, and nobody has produced a poem which has been upon every tongue as "The Charge of the Light Brigade" was during the war in the Crimea. But Rupert Brooke is a name made by the war, the name of a young poet cut off by war-disease in the very golden prime of his powers, and his name will live not only because he has written some beautiful though immature poetry, but because his name will always be associated with Gallipoli.—Answers.

CLARK'S LINIMENT CURES GAITER ITSELF.

What are Peps?

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up in tablet or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles generally.

Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

There is no connection between the stomach and the lungs (see diagram below), and when for a cold or a cough or any chest complaint you take some medicine, such as liquid cough mixtures, syrups, lozenges, which go—not to your lungs, but to your stomach—you are wasting time.

Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—goes to the lungs and breathing-tubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes, and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tablet form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so the healing essence it contains turns into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages! These healing essences pass down your breathing-tubes, bathing all the inflamed surfaces, which no liquid or solid matter can ever reach. In health-giving pine fumes, and carrying a healing wherever they penetrate.

These tissue-strengthening, pleasant fumes, so liberated from the dissolving Peps, are not only healing in their operation, they are antiseptic. They kill the germs of consumption, catarrh, and those many and varied throat and lung troubles so common to-day. Peps fumes—like the fumes from nature's pine woods—get direct to the lungs and chest, and give instant relief to colds, whoops, bronchitis, etc. In short, Peps bring pure forest air to your home!

You have a nasty night cough? Take a Pep before going to bed—your cough will not trouble you! Your lungs are a little weak, and going from the warm house into the cool air outside makes you cough? Just before going out put a Pep in your mouth—there will be no coughing! Your throat feels "stuffed up," your chest feels tight, and your breathing troubles? Peps will put matters right for you very quickly.

Peps, while gradually turning to vapor as they are put into the mouth, will retain their goodness indefinitely if kept dry. Each little Peps pastille is packed in an air-tight wrapping, which is easily removed, and they are packed in neat tin pocket boxes. They are not sticky (the minister or public speaker can carry a few loose in the vest pocket); they do not spoil the appetite and ruin the digestion, like cough syrups and mixtures do; and—hey! DO cure coughs, colds and lung trouble!

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box of 3 for $1.25. Should your dealer be out of stock, order direct (post paid) from Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.

FREE TRIAL.—The proprietors wish this great discovery to be widely appreciated, and have decided to offer a free trial packet to all persons who would like to test this unique remedy. Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return.

If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.
