STEWART'S Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES. Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

Better a Peasant Than a Peer.

CHAPTER XV.
PREPARING FOR THE CEREMONY.

"I declare I've been crying all night!" says Georgina. "It's very foolish. I know, but I can't help it. I am so sensitive. It's ridiculous, as mamma says, but one can't help being sensitive, can one?" and she appeals to Aunt Jane, who, with Maud and Mrs. Lambton, is busy superintending the mystery of the bride's toilet.

"I'm sure I cried all night, too!" says Maud, with a sigh. "and my eyes must be awfully red. Didn't you cry, Jeanne, dear?" she says, looking up at the kneeling at the feet of the graceful, delicate-looking figure, that looks unaccountably tall in its white garments. Jeanne looks down—her nose is not red, neither is any other part of the face white, excepting her lips, which are rather pale.

"No," she says, with a faint smile. "I have not been crying."

"And be sure you don't, my dear," says Mrs. Lambton; "nothing annoys a man so much as to have his bride wiping her eyes and sobbing so that one can't speak when the clergyman asks her. I'm sure when Lambton and me were married I could have cried my heart out; but I dared not, for he would never have let me hear the last of it. Oh, it is a trying time!" and the good lady sighs.

"I'm rather glad," says Aunt Jane, looking up with her mouth full of pins, "that I've escaped such a terrible calamity, if it's so bad as all that. If you're frightened, Jeanne, it isn't too late, you know."

"I don't think I feel very frightened," she says.

"Jeanne has so much confidence," murmurs Maud, with her head on one side. "I'm sure I should be ready to stick into my boots if I stood in her place."

Jeanne smiles.

"Vernon isn't so very terrible, either," says Aunt Jane, gravely.

"Oh, no, I don't mean that! But fancy standing up in the middle of the church—and, oh, I'm sure I couldn't do it!"

"Wait until you try," says Aunt Jane. "I've always heard that it is the man who is most nervous."

"Oh, they have a little brandy and water," says practical Mrs. Lambton. Jeanne smiles. By no stretch of imagination can she fancy Vernon Vane being nervous or keeping up his courage with brandy and water.

"I remember," says Georgina, "reading in a novel of a bridegroom who actually fainted and knocked the clergyman down!"

Jeanne laughs in spite of herself. "I don't think Mr. Bell need be afraid," she says; "and haven't you quite done? I feel like a wax image being dressed for exhibition at Madam Tussaud's."

"You look like an angel!" exclaims Maud.

"And we are going to chain her to earth," says Aunt Jane. "Now, Jeanne, if you've heard enough compliments, you had better come down and take your glass of brandy and water. Ah, I hear the carriage, and this I do know, although I haven't been married, that a bridegroom doesn't like to be kept waiting."

It has been arranged that, Vernon Vane appearing to have no relations, Hal shall be the best man and bridegroom's attendant, and accordingly he has gone down to Vernon Vane's lodgings, and is this moment regaling himself on cake, and waiting for his principle, who is dressing.

Outside the church door, and in the church itself, a small party of villagers and neighbors are congregated, and the grizzled head and weather-beaten face of old Griffin is seen shining from above a front pew in which he sits, looking in a complete new suit, and arranged almost as woebegone as the curate himself.

Maud and Georgina has spent some hours yesterday in the decoration of the altar with its bouquets of flowers, and there is a sweet perfume of roses and lilies about the quaint little edifice. Eleven o'clock strikes, and the sexton assists Mr. Bell into his surplice, and begins arranging the books.

Five minutes afterward, and the tall figure of the bridegroom enters, followed by Hal in the most fashionable and costly apparel which it has ever been his fortune to don. Notwithstanding his hatred of new clothes, the youth looks rather pleased with himself, and the pew opener, after a stare of admiring awe at the noble-looking bridegroom, casts a smile of keen, affectionate admiration at the boy.

Vernon Vane enters the vestry, and shakes hands with Mr. Bell, then turns to Hal.

"Wait outside a moment for me, Hal, will you?" he says, and, as the boy complies, he closes the double door.

"Have you the license—the special license, isn't it, Vane?" asks Mr. Bell, who is a firm friend and admirer of his successful rival.

"A special license," said Vernon Vane, and he takes a paper and hands it to him.

"Er—er—let me see," he says. "Is there any other Christian name? I like to know beforehand in case I don't catch it at the altar. Oh, I shall see on the license, shall I?" and he opens that document again.

"Don't trouble," says Vernon Vane. "I can hear the carriages. I'll tell you the names—there are an absurd number: Vernon Francis Edsworth Fortescue Vane."

Mr. Bell stares.

"Edsworth," he says confusedly. "That's one of the Ferndale family names, isn't it?"

Vernon Vane nods.

"Never mind," he says. "Here they are. I will speak distinctly at the altar."

CHAPTER XVI. THE SECRET OUT.

Mr. Bell was certainly far too nervous to examine the special license, and, indeed, there was no time to do so, for as Vane spoke, they could hear the rattle of the bride's carriage, and the clerk knocked at the vestry door.

Vane followed the curate to the altar, with Hal by his side; and presently there was the rustle of silk and satin, and just giving the finishing touch to the pretty interior of the old service was almost inaudible.

Then, with her hand on her husband's arm, Jeanne retraced her steps to the vestry. Vestries, as a rule, are never large enough for the swinging of a cat, without imminent peril to that domestic animal, and Bell, when he came in, could scarcely make his way to the table for the little crowd of satin and lace.

But when he did, he held out his hand timidly to Jeanne, and grasped hers.

"I—hope you'll be happy, Jeanne," he stammered, and with an amount of daring which astonished him for the remainder of his life, he raised her hand and kissed it.

Jeanne blushed, but crimsoned as Vane, putting his arm around her, drew her toward him, and kissed her.

"This, of course, was the signal for the rest of them, and Jeanne's bouquet and lace were considerably crushed.

"It's rather nice being married—for the bride," said Hal, in a stage whisper.

Then Bell turned to Vane.

"Will you sign the register?" he said.

Vane made his way up to the table and signed, and Jeanne followed. The rest crowded forward also.

"I say, Vane," said Hal, "what a lot of names you've got. Liberal kind of people your godfathers and godmothers must have been."

Vane smiled.

"Some of them are purely ornamental, Hal," he said. "Are we ready?"

There was a general move toward the door. Jeanne, on Vernon's arm, leading the way.

Then the group of children, who had been impatiently waiting, threw down a shower of flowers, and upon these Jeanne, with a sudden tremulous smile, stepped into the carriage. The other carriages followed close after, and in a few minutes, Hal, who was full of his novel dignity, had arranged the guests around the table, and the wedding breakfast commenced.

Georgina and Maud had dried their tears by this time, and were radiant with smiles as they fussed about Jeanne and arranged her veil. Uncle John and Mr. Lambton looking on approvingly. The latter gentleman was in great form that morning, and looked, in his new blue coat and brass buttons, as if he had never seen London in his life.

It was quite a treat to see him bustling about the room, to the imminent danger of the elaborately-laid tablecloth, and making his old-English-gentleman-laugh ring among the glasses. Bustling about, he made his way up to Vane, and in bluff and properly-condescending tones, exclaimed, as he shook him by the hand:

"By Jove, sir, you're a lucky dog! you ought to be a happy man! You've got a treasure, sir, a perfect treasure! And I say, look here," he added, drawing Vane a little aside by a buttonhole, but speaking so that every one in the room could hear, "if you ever want a friend, don't forget the old 'quire. I dare say I can find room for a picture or two—half a dozen of 'em—up at the Park. And good prices for 'em, too. Dang it, I like to encourage 'art! and give a 'elping 'and to strugglin' gentles. When you want a friend, don't forget me, Mr. Vane; I can't say more, eh, can I?"

"No, indeed," said Vane, shaking hands; "and I am very much obliged to you."

"And as for Jeanne—Mrs. Vane, eh?" he corrects himself, with a chuckle, and a sly dig at the side of Vane's frock coat. "why, I look upon her as one of my own darters, always have, by George. I wish you joy," and with a benevolent old-English-gentleman chuckle, Mr. Lambton sank into his chair, delighted with himself, and in consequence, everybody else.

"Mark my words," whispers Hal to Vane, "the old boy is going to make a speech! I can see it in his face."

eyes from his book; Vane stood straight and stalwart, half turned toward Jeanne; Jeanne herself stood with downcast eyes, the faint flutter of color coming and going upon her face. Vane's responses came promptly in his deep, musical voice, Jeanne's promptly, yet audibly, and presently his grave voice was heard:

"I, Vernon Francis Edsworth Fortescue Vane, take thee, Jeanne Bertram, to be my wedded wife."

At the long list of names, in place of the simple Vernon Vane, every one looked up excepting Jeanne, and there was a slight rustle eloquent of surprise; but Vane's face was calm and composed, and Jeanne's turn came to make the usual assertion. Only for a moment did she pause as he held out his hand, and in that moment she looked up at him, a look which he never forgot, and which, in the future, he never large enough for the swinging of a cat, without imminent peril to that domestic animal, and Bell, when he came in, could scarcely make his way to the table for the little crowd of satin and lace.

But when he did, he held out his hand timidly to Jeanne, and grasped hers.

The other carriages followed close after, and in a few minutes, Hal, who was full of his novel dignity, had arranged the guests around the table, and the wedding breakfast commenced.

Georgina and Maud had dried their tears by this time, and were radiant with smiles as they fussed about Jeanne and arranged her veil. Uncle John and Mr. Lambton looking on approvingly. The latter gentleman was in great form that morning, and looked, in his new blue coat and brass buttons, as if he had never seen London in his life.

It was quite a treat to see him bustling about the room, to the imminent danger of the elaborately-laid tablecloth, and making his old-English-gentleman-laugh ring among the glasses. Bustling about, he made his way up to Vane, and in bluff and properly-condescending tones, exclaimed, as he shook him by the hand:

"By Jove, sir, you're a lucky dog! you ought to be a happy man! You've got a treasure, sir, a perfect treasure! And I say, look here," he added, drawing Vane a little aside by a buttonhole, but speaking so that every one in the room could hear, "if you ever want a friend, don't forget the old 'quire. I dare say I can find room for a picture or two—half a dozen of 'em—up at the Park. And good prices for 'em, too. Dang it, I like to encourage 'art! and give a 'elping 'and to strugglin' gentles. When you want a friend, don't forget me, Mr. Vane; I can't say more, eh, can I?"

"No, indeed," said Vane, shaking hands; "and I am very much obliged to you."

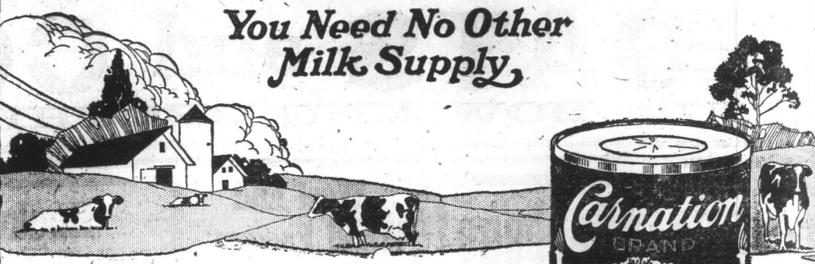

"And as for Jeanne—Mrs. Vane, eh?" he corrects himself, with a chuckle, and a sly dig at the side of Vane's frock coat. "why, I look upon her as one of my own darters, always have, by George. I wish you joy," and with a benevolent old-English-gentleman chuckle, Mr. Lambton sank into his chair, delighted with himself, and in consequence, everybody else.

"Mark my words," whispers Hal to Vane, "the old boy is going to make a speech! I can see it in his face."

So Pure, So Rich, So Convenient

You Need No Other Milk Supply

The Label is Red and White

MILK delivered the Carnation way offers you many advantages. It reaches your table as fresh and pure as milk can be. The fresh whole milk is brought to the Carnation condenseries, which lie right in the heart of Canada's finest dairy counties, and part of the water is taken away by evaporation. It is then sealed in clean, new containers.

And its safety is doubly assured by sterilization. This freshness, purity and safety are alone vital reasons why you will prefer to use Carnation Milk.

But you will like it also for its wonderful convenience.

You can keep as much of it as you like on your pantry shelves and open it as you need fresh milk. You always have milk "on time" for breakfast—never "run short" of milk for the children to drink—are never without milk to make custards, puddings or sauces to serve unexpected guests.

And you have milk that can be used as cream for coffee, tea, cereals and fruit.

For ordinary use, cooking and baking, you must add water to Carnation Milk—at least an equal part—to restore it to milk of natural consistency and richness.

You can use Carnation for all your cooking—there is no sugar, no preservative of any kind or anything else in Carnation Milk.

Ask your grocer—the Carnation Milkman—to send you several tall cans (16 oz. size) or a case of 48 cans. One week's trial of this modern convenient milk supply and you will never want to go back to ordinary milk.

Pres. Wilson and Russia.

Urges Generous and Comprehensive Treatment--Deprecates Violation of Territorial Integrity--League Supreme Council Meeting to be Secret--German Communists Have Red Army--Trade Commissioner Devine Asks For U. S. Consideration.

MR. DEVINE SPEAKS IN BEHALF OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A public and solemn engagement among the Great Powers not to violate or permit the violation of the territorial integrity of Russia, is urged by President Wilson as the main purpose of an attempt at the restoration of Armenia and other lands long since invaded by the Turkish Nationalists and Soviets. The President's views are set forth in a note transmitted to the League of Nations Assembly, by acting Secretary Davis, under date of January 15. "The disastrous situation of Armenia which has been invaded by the Turkish Nationalists and Soviets, is only one detail of the vast Russian problem," the President says, "and it is only by a general and comprehensive treatment of the whole problem, only by full and sincere co-operation of the principal powers, that a hopeful approach to the pacification and independence of Armenia can be found. The President says he never has been so troubled by the problems of the world as he is by the Russian problem. He says that the Bolsheviks' coup d'état could be followed by military actions from outside, and he expresses hope that the only logical development of the present situation is the only logical development of the present situation."

quest to mediate in the Armenia conflict. It is obvious to all that these small struggling border states will not attack Great Russia unless encouraged by a promise of support from the stronger powers." The President then suggests a "public and solemn" declaration among the powers to refrain from extending such aid, declaring that in this way responsibility for any new war which might break out on the Russian border would then be "clearly placed." "If the principal powers represented on the Council of the League," Mr. Wilson says in conclusion, "find themselves in accord with the President in this matter and will assure him of their moral and diplomatic support, he will instruct his personal representative, Mr. Morgenthau, to proceed at once on his mission."

THE SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—France's attitude in the Supreme Council concerning reparations, was the subject of a conference this morning at the Elysee Palace. The report of Allied experts on the situation was reached upon the form in which the French viewpoint will be presented before the Supreme Council to-morrow. The five powers to be represented at this Council will be Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan. The meetings will be held in the famous cloak room of the Foreign Office in the strictest of secrecy. They will have the aspect of a small peace conference. A number of advisers and experts will be at hand and called on should necessity for their presence indicate. The questions to be discussed will come up in the following order, unless after an exchange of views the delegates find it advantageous to adopt a different programme, disarmament of Germany, reparations, Turkey and Greece and the Treaty of Sevres, war debts between Allies and Austria, exchange and relations between the Allies and the United States.

GERMAN RED ARMY.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—A semi-official statement issued yesterday says evidence of the existence of a Red Army, created by the German Communist Party, has been discovered. The military headquarters of the army are said to be possessed of light and heavy guns as well as other war material in Berlin, says the statement. A general of the Red Army has been arrested, says a Dusseldorf despatch.

MR. DEVINE SPEAKS IN BEHALF OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Special consideration in favor of Newfoundland in case a duty is imposed on importations of fish by the forthcoming administration, was asked to-day by John M. Devine, Newfoundland Trade Commissioner here, in a statement supplementing testimony he gave last week before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington. Mr. Devine said he thought last year's $10,000,000 balance in favor of the United States in Commerce between that country and Newfoundland should have special weight in the formation of a tariff policy, especially on fish. Newfoundland, he said, buys a great deal more goods in the United States than either Britain or Canada. Last year purchases from the United States, he said, amounted to approximately $16,000,000.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A crisis in the discussion on unemployment is likely to come this week. A labor congress has been summoned for Thursday and moderates such as J. H. Thomas, J. R. Clynes and Arthur Henderson are expected to find themselves exposed to uncomfortable criticism from extreme elements. The Labor Party has refused to work with the Government in its palliative measures and has put forward a programme of its own, based on the idea that the community must maintain workers unable to find work. Labor leaders are afraid to do anything to arouse violent feelings. They realize the danger of arousing thousands of desperate working men now almost in desperation through lack of work.

DEATH LIST ADDED TO.

BELFAST, Jan. 24.—The body of a former soldier named Dennis Dyer was found yesterday on the roadside near Bandon. A label was pinned to the clothes of the dead man, which said he had been condemned to death as a spy. Two farmers, William Elliott and Wm. Charter, were kidnapped yesterday. Elliott's body later was found in a bog near Bellinakee, no trace has been found of Charter. Dublin Castle reports that three men who resided in County Galway were shot dead Saturday while attempting to evade arrest. It is presumed that they were shot in connection with the Ambuscade of Auxiliaries in Headford district.

One of the best known guides in Nova Scotia gives this testimonial of MINARD'S LINIMENT: "I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as Sprains, Bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly." (Signed) Ellison Gray, East Kempville, N. S.

Election of Officers.

ST. PETER'S LODGE, S. U. F. The annual election of officers of the St. Peter's Lodge, S. U. F., Twillingate, took place on Monday night, Jan. 10, the following being elected: George James, Worthy Master; Fred. Luther, Chief Officer; George Young, Second Officer; Stanley Newman, Quartermaster; Alfred Fifield, Lookout; Alfred Manuel, P.M. Purser; Leslie Anstey, Secretary; John Luther, Chaplain; P. M.'s, Arthur Colbourne and Arthur Manuel were elected Trustees, and the various committees for Relief, Investigation and Hall Management were also elected. The Society has had a number of calls for sickness and other expenses, but it is in a healthy condition, and welcomes new members to its ranks.

Mentholatum also soothes and softens chapped, roughened hands; relieves chilblains and cracked lips; stops colds—almost over-night.

open to-night.

Mr. John Steer who is in Hospital undergoing treatment is rapidly improving after an operation which was performed last week.

For your health's sake we offer Nature's answer to Constipation, "LES FRUITS." EL-LIS'S.—dec 9, 11

Leave your trouble at the office.
See "The Old Homestead" to-night.

PRINCE OF PILSEN.—The Opera Troupe will please note that on Wednesday night (Jan.
26th), practice will be held in the C.C.C. Hall.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. R. M.
Noberg gratefully acknowledges the receipt of many telegrams, letters, notes and messages of sympathy on the death of her husband, the late Capt. R. M. Noberg, who was lost on the ill-fated schooner Ludwig in Malaga Harbor; and herewith begs to thank most sincerely the kind friends who sent them, and particularly her Berlin friends whose heartfelt sympathy was so much appreciated by her.—adv.

Floral Tributes to the Departed.

Nothing so nice as Flowers in times of sorrow. We can supply Wreaths and Crosses on short notice, and guarantee satisfaction. We will endeavour to meet the humblest purchase. "Say it with Flowers."

Obituary.

We learn with regret that Mr. W.
H. Waterman, of Fogo, died at the General Hospital on Sunday, after a serious operation. The deceased gentleman was a well known business man, and for a number of years was a partner of the old firm of Hodge & Waterman.

FOR 14 DAYS OUR ANNUAL WHITE SALE COMMENCING JANUARY 22

Readjusted to Lowest 1921 Prices.

We have carefully gone over our entire stock and readjusted prices, so that they are now very much lower than new goods are possible to be during 1921. We immediately offer the benefits to our customers by putting on our Annual White Sale with usual vast assortments of Fresh, New Merchandise of a quality that proudly upholds our reputation for good value.

SHOWROOM SPECIALS

That set a new value standard. The garments offered can not be replaced nearly so cheap—some of them can not be replaced at all. All the charm of daintiest lingerie—all the practical utility of quality fabrics. All values that can not be equalled in Newfoundland.

- LADIES' WHITE NIGHTGOWNS,
$3.11, $3.67, $4.19, $4.64, $5.77.

National Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving is defined as a public acknowledgment or celebration of Divine goodness: a day set apart for religious services, specially to acknowledge the goodness of God, either in any remarkable deliverance from calamities or danger, or in the ordinary dispensation of His bounties.

Thanksgiving Day in the United States of America has been an annual festival from the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on the bleak New England shores in the early years of the 17th century.

It is fitting that nations as well as individuals should offer up praises of Thanksgiving to the Almighty for mercies vouchsafed them.

POSTUM CEREAL

never disturbs nerves. Coffee drinkers who change to Postum usually feel better.

There's a Reason

cessity: for what have we to be thankful? Such an one does not go to the root of things or he would discover cause for thankfulness in many ways.

Successful Entertainment.

BY DUNFELD CLUB. The Dunfeld Boys and Young men's Club held their annual entertainment in Canon Wood Hall last night before a very large audience.

Woman Loses Her Memory. On Sunday night two young men brought a married woman, evidently suffering from loss of memory, to the police station.

The Latest Dope. The Inspector General informed the Court this morning that the latest dope is Bronchial Elixir.

Police Court.

Starting a Drug Business. Two men and a woman were charged with the larceny of a quantity of drugs to the value of $10 from the store of M. Connors. The men pleaded guilty, the girl not guilty.

Evidence was given by Constables Bruce and Pither to the effect that they had heard sounds coming from the drugstore whilst they were on night duty, and they had seen the accused taking some of the articles. Sergeant Fitzgerald said that he effected the arrest of the watchman, Michael Walsh, called, said the watchman had asked the girl to go and have a drink of rum and she refused to go without witness.

St. Andrew's Dance.

TO CELEBRATE "BURN'S NIGHT." The grand dance held annually by St. Andrew's Society to celebrate the birthday of Robbie Burns, Scotland's national poet, takes place to-night in the C.C.C. Hall. The dances held by St. Andrew's Society have always been very successful ones and are eagerly looked forward to by Mr. R. G. Ross and the social committee.

Chotch Haggis.

Procure a sheep's pluck and stomach bag. After carefully washing the pluck, place it in a potful of water to boil. The windpipe should hang out of the pot, in order that any impurities generated may have means of escape. The pluck is boiled for two hours. It is a good thing to ask the butcher to clean the stomach bag, but in addition to that, it is necessary to further clean it by bringing it to the boil. This has the effect of contracting the bag. The next thing to do is to put the bag on with cold water, and after it has again been brought to the boil, the water is poured off, the bag is scraped thoroughly, and then left in cold water until required. The next process is to mince the best part of the heart and lungs, leaving out fatty and gristly pieces. The liver is next grated, and all these are put into a large basin. Next toss 1/4th of oatmeal, and chop finely 1/4th of good beef suet, also a large onion. Add these ingredients to the contents in the basin, also a dessertspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of pepper. Mix all with a breakfastcupful of liquid in which the pluck has been boiled. At this stage the stomach bag is filled with the mixture, and the bag should be made for the contents swelling, otherwise the haggis will burst. The opening is then closed up, and the haggis is put in a potful of boiling water, and boiled gently for three hours. To prevent the haggis from bursting should be pricked several times during boiling with a darning needle. In order that the haggis may be taken to the bottom of the pot, it is necessary to put a plate or old saucer underneath it.—Glasgow Paper.

EXPRESS DUE.—The incoming express from Port aux Basques is due at 9 p.m.

United Thanksgiving Service.

The non-episcopal churches of the city, Congregational, Presbyterian and Methodist, held a united service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Thanksgiving Day. So large a congregation was present despite the inclemency of the weather, that it looked as if had the day been fine there might not have been room in the church for the people. It was a refreshing evidence of the fraternity and unity which exists among the free churches of the city, that they should thus hold their Thanksgiving Service together, and most seek to hallow the day set apart by royal proclamation for colony-wide Thanksgiving by devoting one hour of the twelve to public acknowledgment in His house and through His worship of the goodness and mercy of Almighty God. Why could we not have a wider union, and a more general participation in devout recognition of blessings which come without distinction to all?

The service was a delightful one. The church was bright and warm, the choir large, and most hearty in leading the singing, and the preacher of the occasion, the Rev. Frank Baird, B.A., who has won golden opinions during his brief stay in the city, delivered a most appropriate and helpful sermon. Taking as his text 1 Samuel: 4.5, the bringing of the Ark of God into the camp of the Israelites, to their great joy and encouragement, and to the dismay and discomfiture of their Philistine enemies, because as they said "God is come into the camp," the preacher remarked that the spiritual blessings of God even more than the material ones, should evoke our highest thanksgiving. God was coming in these days closer to His Church, to the great joy and encouragement of His people, and to the manifest discouragement of the forces of ill. The latter were not afraid of creeds or of churches, but they were afraid of God. In the second place, the coming of the church and its worship and in the great symbols of His grace and power, in the increased activity and sympathy displayed in the attitude towards sinning and suffering humanity, in the growing spirit of unity, of which the present service was an earnest, and in the united efforts of the Bishops at the recent Lambeth Conference an indication and in general, in the deeper devotion and wider horizon of those who were called by His name. The Church is defective in many respects, it is true, but her excellent guarantee of a splendid future, and the more sure she is of the presence and power of God in her midst the greater will be her tenderness and the more perfect her sympathy. It was this great spiritual blessing, said the preacher, which we should most to thank God. "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." That is being uncomfortably, perhaps even painfully, and dismayingly made known to us to-day, in reduced profits, depressed stocks, and financial stringency. But things material are not the great values. The great values are spiritual. A man's life is not material but spiritual. What we need is to set up the Ark of God. Set up the Ark of God in the counting-house, in the parlor, in the busy salesman's, set up not the Methodist Ark or the Anglican Ark, or the Roman Catholic Ark, or the Presbyterian Ark, or the Congregational Ark, but set up the Ark of God. Distinguished Newfoundlander.

We learn that Rev. Dr. P. W. Browne, a native of Carbonear, has been nominated to a Fellowship in History at the Catholic University of America, and will lecture on "The Beginning American Ecclesiastical History." In addition he takes up the managing editorship of the Catholic Historical Review, the most important Catholic publication of its kind in the United States. The Academic distinction attained by Dr. Browne is without doubt the highest ever received by any of Terra Nova's sons. His native land, and particularly Carbonear, may well feel proud of their distinguished son. Congratulations.

Ice Hockey. OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE MATCH IN SWITZERLAND. The Ice Hockey match between Oxford and Cambridge, took place at Murray on Dec. 20, last, says a Reuter dispatch to the London Times, in brilliant sunshine and on rather soft ice. The result was a drawn game; neither side was able to score. This was the first university match played since the war. At the end of the three periods of ten minutes each, the captains agreed to play two extra periods of five minutes, but still the sides were unable to score. Cambridge pressed heavily throughout the game, but the ice was rather sticky and this helped to make the shooting erratic. The chief feature of the match was the brilliant defence of the Oxford goal by K. Taylor, the

B. I. S. Players in "Old Homestead."

ACHIEVED HUGE SUCCESS.

Played to crowded houses at yesterday's matinee and last night's regular performance, "The Old Homestead," about which much has been written, did not fail to capture the vast audiences assembled in the Casino Theatre. The B.I.S. Dramatic Troupe have every reason to be proud of the success which characterized the presentation of this delightful comedy-drama, and in their respective roles the performers left nothing to be desired, either in acting, elocution or enunciation. The motif of the play has been so often told that it would be superfluous to repeat it, and the players themselves so well known, that the amount of praise could add anything to the actor's reputation already acquired by the "Dramatis personae" of "The Old Homestead." The comedy part was well produced, being in the capable care of Miss M. Horan (Rickety Ann), Dr. M. S. Power (Eth the Gansy Boy), Peter O'Mara (Mister Clancy), Geo. Jackson (Francis the French footman), Miss M. Vickers, as Tilda, sister to Josh Whitcomb (Mr. W. B. Comerford), was, as is her wont, in the finest form, whilst Josh himself was the pivot upon which the whole play revolved. Mr. Comerford had a most difficult role which he well sustained. Misses Ida Howlett, F. Ryan, K. Byrne, E. Shea, A. McGrath and P. Brown were thoroughly at home in their respective parts, and carried them through in such a manner as to delight all present. The male members of the cast Messrs. (Lieut.) W. Grace (Frank Hopkins), (Major) J. J. O'Grady (Cy Prince), F. F. Moore (Happy Jack), who as usual excelled himself, Karl Trapnell (John Freeman), J. C. Pippy (Henry Hopkins), Gordon Muir (Judge Peterson), P. J. Dobbin (Lieutenant Whitcomb—the errand son), Max Channing (Officer McCann), Gordon Gaul (The Hoboken Terror), John Phelan (Len Holbrook), Hal Walsh (Cousin Stratton), Patrick Grace (Seth Tibbs), all contributed to the grand success of the performance, and the applause evoked certainly showed that their delineations were highly appreciated. The "Village Orchestra," Messrs. Phelan and Walsh furnished music for the very clever exhibition of step-dancing by Master Phippard of Mount Cashel, which aroused memories of old days, and communicated itself to the toes of many in the audience. The house went over the top in applauding this salutory item.

The choral features of the play were magnificent, and the rendition of that familiar old favorite "The Old Oaken Bucket" by Professor McCarthy, Messrs. Murphy, Hickey and McCarthy, brought a demand for an encore which was given. "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night," and "Nearer My God to Thee" by the characters of St. Patrick's, were sung with such expression that many at eye dropped tears. "Carry me back to Ole Virginia" by Miss Ida Howlett, with chorus, and Mr. Carl Trapnell's solo, "When My Ship Comes Home" each received a full measure of applause. Music by the C.C.C. Band was particularly good. The stage settings were in keeping with the theme of the story, the Grace Church scene being particularly beautiful. The performance, which will run for three presentations more, to-night, Wednesday and Thursday nights, is given in aid of that grand cause—EDUCATION—and we can say without hesitation that any who miss seeing "The Old Homestead," with its humor and pathos, its social and religious atmosphere, will have cause for regret, not only because they have omitted to help along a worthy cause, but as well because another opportunity to witness a most brilliantly acted play of the "Old Homestead" type will not be again available for some time.

Caught Red-Handed.

POLICE ARREST THIEVES.

Shortly before midnight Saturday Constables Pitcher and Braco caught a woman and a man, both named Walsh, in the act of stealing property from the drug store of M. Connor, which was recently damaged by fire. It is said that when arrested the thieves had on their persons enough drugs, which if improperly used, were sufficient to kill half a well-populated city. The woman's name is Alice Walsh, and she, it is alleged, was induced to visit the store by the nightwatchman. The police thought that something was wrong and after seeing the girl enter the premises, they stayed to await developments. Looking through an opening in the glass pane fronting Water Street they saw the man Walsh taking possession of everything he could lay his hands on, and when he came on the street they placed him under arrest. Later the constables also arrested the girl. After these two had been locked up the police again proceeded to the drug store and arrested the watchman. The three accused appeared before the Magistrate this morning, their case being reported in the Police Court Column.

TRADING WITH BRITAIN

Will Help Newfoundland Merchants Finance More Easily and Consequently Help the Financing and Business of Newfoundland.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—It was my privilege last winter through the columns of your valued paper to discuss the matter of the U.S.A. having a preference over Britain in the matter of Trade, through the manner in which values are arrived at by our Customs House. The pound sterling was then worth roughly, here, four dollars, and the American dollar was worth one dollar and fifteen cents.

In passing goods the Customs reckoned the pound sterling as being worth $4.85, and the American dollar as one hundred cents. I pointed out then that a position analogous to this existed in Canada but that the Canadian Government were giving the matter their attention. I also showed that the Canadian Government gave the home country a preferential tariff of at least ten per cent, and that we should do something similar. Since then the Canadian Government has passed a law by which duty on the pound sterling is paid on its value according to Exchange ruling on the day on which entry is made, thus encouraging Trade with Britain. There is no reason why our Government should not do the same, and it is only reasonable in more ways than one that it should.

This is not a matter of politics but a matter of statesmanship and I speak to the statesman on both sides of the House, from the standpoint of the ordinary citizen and that of the business man so that they will have our opinions on this matter before the opening of the House of Assembly.

The ordinary citizen is patriotic and is in favor of inter-trade for the strengthening of the empire. If increasing the Trade of Britain strengthens the value of the pound sterling, the Newfoundland fisherman and the Newfoundland fish merchant won't say anything against it, as a rise in the Exchange is helpful to both. Previous to the war very much larger orders went to Britain from Newfoundland than are going to-day, or have since the war. The reason is that though most of us who are business men would prefer to buy in Britain, in many lines, we are prevented from doing so by our present tariff. From the standpoint of the business man, it might be of interest and instruction to enumerate our reasons for trading with Britain:—

- (1) From the patriotic standpoint.
- (2) That we have been used to that market and have many old business connections there.
- (3) That open orders are sent to Britain with more confidence than elsewhere, and we cannot all, or at all times, send buyers.
- (4) It is easier to finance purchases, as longer terms are given by British Houses.

The last reason is the one to which I shall give most attention in this article. To-day with the wiping out of large amounts of capital in Newfoundland during the past year, and the tightening of the Banks and other financial interests, the matter of credit is important to the business of the country, and as to everyone in the country, it is generally known that the great export trade of Britain in Textiles, etc., is to a very large extent due to the way in which she helps her customers to finance their purchases from her. The British terms may run from anything like sixty days to six or seven months. The American terms, with very few exceptions are

To Cure a Cold in One Day

ten days and thirty days, in some cases 60 days are given, but I know there are many cases where cash is demanded against Bill of Lading, and in some cases houses have told me of where they paid for their goods before they left New York (and these were firms with a good rating), and the American Houses also demanded that freight be paid in advance by wire before they would ship. It may be that there are a few firms that can pay cash for everything they buy, but they are exceptional and not the firms doing the biggest business. The big business of to-day is done on credit, and it is a safe way of doing business if credit is not too great or over extended. The whole fish business of Newfoundland, and upon it is dependent three-quarters of the trade of the country, is done largely on credit. If to-day the merchant on Water Street or in the Outports finds the Banks will give very little credit, or are curtailing even usual credits, and he is forced to buy the bulk of his goods in the U.S.A. for cash or short terms (which is practically cash) it is going to be more difficult to finance business, and less business can be done and consequently more people unemployed. Most business men may be unaware that Paragraph Seven of the Customs Act gives the Governor-in-Council power to make an order fixing the value for duty where any currency has become impaired. This paragraph is herewith published, in full for public information, as an Act like this is capable of different readings.

CUSTOMS ACT.
Consolidated Statutes Chapter 22.
(Third Series)

SECTION 7.
"All invoices of goods shall be made out in the currency of the country whence the goods are imported, and shall contain a true statement of the value of such goods; and in computing the value for duty of such goods, the rate thereof shall be such as has been ordered and proclaimed, from time to time, by the Governor-in-Council, who is hereby empowered to make such order, and the rate ordered shall be based upon the actual value of the standard coin or currency of such country as compared with the standard dollar of the Colony, in so far as comparative values are known; and whenever the value of a currency has not been proclaimed, or whenever there is no fixed standard value, or whenever from any cause the value of such currency has become depreciated, there shall be attached to the invoice of the goods imported a certificate of some Consul resident in such place or country, showing the extent of such depreciation, or the true value of the currency in which such invoice is made out, then and there, as compared with the standard dollar of this Colony: Provided however, that whenever the value of a depreciated currency is dependent upon the rate of Exchange on London, it shall be optional with the importer, with the consent of the Collector, or other proper officer to compute the value for duty at the rate of exchange certified by the Bank through which the Exchange is drawn, as current at the time and place when and where the goods were exported to this Colony: Provided also, that when the currency value is so determined at the time of entry, either by a Consul's certificate or by the certificate of the Bank as hereinbefore provided, such rate or value shall be final and not open

"BUDDY" BOOTS

The Strongest Rubber Boots made.

These Boots are Steam Pressure Cured and have Patent Muscled Legs.

When you are buying Rubbers you don't know the meaning of the ordinary trade names for Rubber wear, you are taking a leap in the dark.

Steam Pressure Cured means that the Rubber in "Buddy" Boots has been subjected to extreme pressure and a severe test in the manufacturing.

Patent Muscled means that the ordinary leg of the Rubber Boot is reinforced with bands of Rubber by means of a patent process discovered by the Buddy Boot Manufacturers.

These two processes together mean "Longer Life" to Rubber Footwear and are combined only in Buddy Boots.

to any readjustment by reason of the subsequent production of any certificate not corresponding in rate or value with that adopted. Anyhow it is very simple to arrange, that the value of the pound sterling for Customs purposes, be the value of the young sterling on the day on which entry is made, as per the Act. The Government would lose nothing in duties, in my opinion, but would gain, on increased importations. Our Coat of Arms, is Terra Nova bringing gifts to Britannia, and the motto is:—"Haec dona tibi fero." At the moment most of our gifts are going to strengthen the commerce of America. It is not impossible that any day we may want some favour from Britain.

One of our popular young tribunes from the People's House will in this pseudo-pageant, perhaps represent the young fisherman from Newfoundland who says, (translating freely, very), "Look at all the nice presents I have brought you, Ma." And Britannia, looking at the small raffle of West India may say,—"Well son I suppose they might be worse, but I guess your presents might have been better if you hadn't been spending most of your money, up at Uncle Sammy's, for the benefit of that saucy wench, Columbia."

We may appear to lack the diplomacy and foresight of the Canadians, and might even appear to some as not being so patriotic. I had intended to take this matter of Trade with Britain up at a Meeting of the Importers Assn., but the next one may not be convened for some time. I understand a long time ago the matter was discussed by the Board of Trade Council but have seen no report on it, and the press of the country has not to date featured it much. I have no doubt however that they will, when they see how important the matter is. Thanking you for your valuable space.

Yours truly,
K. M. BLAIR.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

FOUR NEW OLD THOUGHTS.

I went to a health lecture the other evening and heard not a single new thing. And yet I heard four things I very much need to hear. One was something of a paradox, but it isn't.

For all four we were perfectly simple things that everyone has held a dozen times that he ought to do, and that not one person has done.

Will You Ever Forget Again? The four points on which that lecturer recaptured my attention were:

1. The need of drinking more water. The lecturer insisted that everyone should drink two glasses of water before breakfast, to wash out the bowels of the system. It needs to be as much as the outside. Then he should drink at least two quarts during the day. Most of us do not drink that every act of the body requires the flow of saliva for food, the heating of the pores, the flow of gastric juices. She suggested the simple idea that if you do not get the body with enough water, it will draw it back from the bowels, and that dark brown taste. It does not seem to me after hearing that I shall ever forget to drink water again.

2. Sit Yourself of the One Free Thing. The need of deep breathing means breathing so as to lift only the chest but the stomach abdomen. The body throws off life-giving carbonic gas and gets life-giving oxygen through the lungs. If you use only half your system and get but half the oxygen you need. Poor vitality, poor energy, hardening of the arteries, some of the results of keeping poison in your system. Air is the one thing in the world that is free to everyone. Why under the sun should we stint ourselves of it to give us health?

3. The need of chewing our food properly. We have a vague idea that we should eat. Why under the sun should we claim we could attain perfect health by eating less and chewing less thoroughly. We need perfect food. We are reminded that at the age of 70, after a long career of chronic disease, he proved that he could go through the same exercises as a set of trained athletes on half the food that had formerly been thought necessary to maintain life without a bit of work, and still not be tired or lose a pound. Maybe you won't want to Fletcherize to the extent that he did, but surely you will feel that there is something worth while in a method that could produce these results. Maybe you will want to go to your library and get one of his books. Maybe you will just try to chew more carefully.

4. The fourth point on which my attention was recaptured, was the need for relaxing more. The tenseness of the average American is a terrible thing. Ninety per cent. of us are in urgent need of letting go. We think we have to be tense to accomplish things, but we could accomplish just as much if we would do things without straining. Did you ever feel that the muscles up the back of your leg were tense when you were walking? Notice them tomorrow. That's the sort of thing I mean. But if I get started I will write volumes on this line so that you will have to be left until some other day. In the meantime, wasn't it true of you as it was of me that these four things were not one of them new, and yet every one something you needed to hear and will profit immensely by taking to heart?

Thanksgiving Service. (I.C.M.)

At Gower Street Church on Sunday last, the annual Thanksgiving services were held and the usual collections for that fund were taken up.

The morning service was conducted by the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Forbes, and the evening service by the Rev. D. B. Hemmison, the former pastor; and all combined, the day was a good one, and the people came away with much to think about. There were rich anthems by the choir, and splendid solos by two of our foremost city singers, viz: Miss Herder in the morning and Mr. Woods at night—each of whom added much to the impressions of the day and contributed their talent to the edification of the congregations.

Both the sermons were in direct reference to Thanksgiving, and they contained many useful lessons on this becoming subject. The pastor, in his remarks, placed strong emphasis on the special feature of rejoicing, and of being glad and of doing good; and he pressed home the importance of gratitude for the blessings of every day life. Life's common mercies are among its best, and they call for thankfulness, and should permit of rejoicing—as with the Apostle, "In all things give thanks."

The evening sermon by Mr. Hemmison was of a wider range of thought than that of the morning, inasmuch as it treated upon the general world-wide conditions of society as well as upon the subject of thanksgiving, to which Mr. Forbes mostly confined himself. Mr. Forbes sent the congregation away with the note of rejoicing, and Mr. Hemmison's sermon was almost a challenge as to why men should rejoice. The sermon was sixty-two minutes in delivery, and every sentence of it was intently followed by the large congregation present. The unrest of the world, the disputes of labour, the uncertainty of peace, the power of money, the suffering of the innocent and the horrible losses of the war, all received candid and impartial consideration from the preacher, and honesty and sincerity were visible upon every utterance.

In the light of these conditions could men really be glad or could they be thankful. Here the preacher turned the tide of his discourse, and in language both assuring and graphic, he portrayed the higher ideals of life, and led his people onward and upward until they seemed to forget the shadows, and to see that in good living and personal service, the best was to be found and that amid it all there was ample room for Thanksgiving. The sermon revealed deep study and much careful preparation and was delivered with considerable zeal, and yet with commendable deliberation. Not only did the people hear what was said, but they also saw what was said. We have not the results of the collection at hand; but whatever the amount may be, we feel certain that the Thanksgiving services of Gower Street Church were truly helpful, and that the hands of the Pastor have been strengthened and that his heart has been cheered by the liberality of his people.

THE WAY OF OTHERS.

Others have shown to me the way To bear the burdens of the day. This task of mine is nothing new, Others have had this work to do; Others have suffered here and wept And faithful to their purpose kept. This is my time to meet the test, And I must face it as the rest.

Time was I thought that I might miss So terrible a task as this! Might go through life and never know The weight of care or hurt of woe, And once I fancied when I felt Borne back have been reconciled; As they have done, so must you do. When care and sorrow come to you.

I cried aloud against my pain, But found my whimpering all in vain, And then I heard a voice declare: "Your lot is what all men must bear. Others have wept the time you smiled, Borne back have been reconciled; As they have done, so must you do. When care and sorrow come to you."

But that was in the years ago, And since that time I've come to know That no one on this earth escapes From trial in his various shapes; No man is singled out to face Along life's way exemption from care, And I would see my trials through As bravely as the others do.

A Famous Astronomer.

Sir David Gill, K.C.B., who died on January 24, 1914, was born at Aberdeen in 1843, and educated there. He entered the private observatory at Aberdeen in 1868, and after a few years' experience he directed the private observatory of Lord Lindsay afterwards Lord Crawford. He then undertook the huge task of connecting the longitudes of Berlin, Malta, Alexandria, Suez, Aden, Seychelles, Mauritius, and Rodriguez, and measured the base line for the geodesic survey of Egypt—near Carlo, for which he received from the Khedive the Medal of the Third Order. In 1877 he carried out an expedition to Ascension Island to determine the solar parallax by observations of Mars, for which he received the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society and the Valz prize of the Institute de France. Five years later he organized the Transit of Venus expedition to South Africa, and in 1882 photographed the great comet. This led him to suggest the desirability of employing photography for the complete cataloguing of stars of any required order of magnitude. He directed the geodesic survey of Natal and Cape Colony, and in 1882, when the details of the survey of the boundary between Bechuanaland and German South-West Africa were to be arranged, Sir David was specially selected by the Colonial Office to head the mission to Berlin. The work was carried out in a most efficient manner, and he then turned his attention to the geodesic survey of Rhodesia in 1888, when Mr. Frank M'Lean presented the large telescope which is now in use at the Cape Observatory. A TRUE STORY.

There was a man who owned some flats, out in a western town, fit dwellings for aristocrats. A little painted white and red brown; and renters took their kids and cats to them and settled down. In time the greedy rent hogs rose, on get-rich courses bent; the hearts of many landlords furbelows, to pay the monthly rent. And landlords got an evil name throughout that plundered grad; they played a profiteering game that made the victims mad; said victims said it was a shame as they dug up the good. While other landlords raised the price, the hero of this tale said old time prices would suffice, old contracts should prevail; he would not ask an extra slice of hard-pressed tenants' kale. These tenants, being safe and sane, to gratitude not dead, when rent day came did not complain, or fear the landlord's tread; but they gave him a handsome cane, that had a golden line, and then, with seemly mirth, they sprung their tribute, high and fine, to one of sterling worth; and he was moved to shedding brine that trickled to the earth. He gets more pleasure from this gift than do the pirates gay, the profiteers who strive to lift the prices every day, from all the coin their evil thrift has won and fled away.

The Sacred Tree of Death

Monster Plant That Devours Girls.

The noted German explorer and scientist, Dr. Karl Leche, has brought back from the wilds of Madagascar one of the most amusing stories that have ever come from the African island.

This plant, or tree, which he calls Crinoida Darjeena, attains, according to Dr. Leche, a size of ten feet, and is powerful enough to enmesh and destroy a human being.

"I had gone," he writes, "to Madagascar, to visit Queen Ranavalona II, and was persuaded by him that besides generous daily pay I was accustomed to reward liberally anyone who showed me something strange or out of the way.

"In his company I journeyed to the southeastern part of the island, inland among the hills covered with thick virgin forest, where there is a district practically unknown, whose white visitors can be numbered on the fingers of one hand. This is the region inhabited by the Mkodos.

"It was while among these natives that I was witness to what was probably the most horrible sight I have ever seen. Their religion consists in the worship of their sacred tree, one of the most wonderful freaks of Nature. To this tree they offer human sacrifices.

An Appalling Ceremony.

"The sacred tree is most remarkable in appearance. Its trunk, which rarely rises ten feet above the ground, is of a strange, barrel-like shape, covered with a quaint mosaic sort of bark, looking like nothing so much as a gigantic pineapple. At the top of this trunk it is between eight and nine feet in circumference, and upon it is fixed a remarkable growth very much resembling a huge plate.

"From the top of the trunk there hung eight leaves. They were of extraordinary size, ten to twelve feet long, a foot wide where they were hinged to the tree, widening to about two feet, and finally tapering down to a point as sharp as a needle. They were plentifully strewn with huge, venomous looking thorns.

"These leaves could not have been less than fifteen inches thick in the centre, and hung down inertly along the trunk, their point trailing in the earth. Above these there stretched, rigidly and horizontally a number of branches several feet in length. Finally, from underneath the plate-like arrangement there grew, pointing upward, half-a-dozen frail looking stems—palmi would be a better name. I believe—that shivered constantly, as if agitated by some strong wind.

"It seems the plate-like affair on top of the trunk contained some thick sweet juice. This liquid, which is a product of the tree and was probably originally intended to attract birds, is highly intoxicating, and even a very small quantity very soon produces coma.

"When sacrifices take place a woman is forced to climb into the tree and drink. If the 'devil' inside is in good humour, then the girl will be allowed to get down again in safety. If he was feeling ugly, however, then the poor girl was out of luck. Exactly how the tree was going to prevent her jumping down I could not make out, but I was to learn eventually.

"One evening my guide presented himself to me and told me that what he had been waiting for would take place that night.

"That night, having made the chief a present to insure that I would be welcome to witness their ceremony, I followed the tribe into the forest. They made their way to the sacred tree, and round it built twelve fires, so that the whole surroundings were lit up brightly. Then they disposed themselves about them and made themselves at home, some eating, but most of them drinking huge gourdfuls of native ferment.

"Very soon they were all of them more or less intoxicated, both the men and the women, with the exception of a young girl nearby, who neither spoke nor moved, but glanced about her as if she were terrified out of her wits.

"Suddenly without warning the yelling ceased and they scattered away like frightened deer. The crucial point had arrived. For a moment there was complete silence but for the crackling of the fires. Intuition told me that the girl I had noted before was the one that was to be the sacrifice. I looked at her and saw mortal terror imprinted on her features. Yet for the life of me I could not imagine why, and put down her fear to imagination.

"By now the first group of dancers had somewhat recovered, and, suddenly springing up, rushed upon the poor girl with unearthly shrieks and yells. They surrounded her, and with shouts and gestures ordered her to climb the tree.

"Terrified, she shrank back, apparently begging for mercy. At that the whole crowd joined in, furiously howling at her to obey. Once more the dancers gave out their orders; then, as she still refused and struggled, they armed themselves with spears, and stabbing at her forced her to retreat in the direction of the devil-god.

"At last, seeing it was useless to fight further, she turned and faced the tree. For a moment she stood still, gathering herself up for a supreme effort, then quickly she sprang toward the tree. She scrambled up, and reaching the top knelt and drank of the 'holy' liquid.

"Quickly she jumped up again, and I expected to see her jump down, thinking all was over, in that dim light not noticing instantly what caused her so to shriek with terror.

Halifax Man Restored by Tanlac Years Ago is Still in Best of Health, He Says.

"Tanlac beats anything I've ever seen, for it has made me feel just like a brand new man. Why, at the time I began taking it I had been in poor health for nearly four years. My appetite was gone, and what little food I did eat just would not digest properly, and I was in such an awful condition that many days I was hardly able to stand up, to say nothing of work.

"Well, I went down hill every day, and nothing helped me until I got Tanlac. But now all my troubles are gone and I feel just as well in every day as I ever did in my life. Tanlac certainly is the medicine to take all the aches and pains out of a fellow and make him feel like something."

The above statement was given by Thomas Joseph Long, 75 Maitland St., Halifax, N.S., early in January, 1920. A few days ago, after a lapse of nearly twelve months, a special Tanlac representative had the pleasure of an interview with Mr. Long, and found him enjoying the best of health and still praising Tanlac, which is another link in the long chain of evidence regarding both the immediate and lasting results being obtained from the Master Medicine.

Mr. Long is a life long resident of Halifax, and is highly respected by all who know him.

Fish Packages.

Some of the 'longshoremen who helped stow a cargo of fish shipped to Liverpool by last steamer, complain of the way in which the heads are nailed in the packages. They say that large nails are used in the lining hoops and not properly clinched. There is no doubt but that some of the packages complained of were dangerous to handle, on account of protruding nails, but this was not the only fault, as many of the casks were very dirty, at least on the outside, whilst others appeared to be slapped together. The necessity of having good clean packages in which to ship food is obvious, but apparently very little attention is paid to this matter, in many instances, one being such as we now record.

The Next Four Days are "Cold Day Comfort" Days

And right here and now, before you look at the list below, KEARNEY wants you to listen to a word of advice in season. During the past sixteen days of the 50-50 SALE there have been several shoppers who have come in late on the "fourth day" of different groups to purchase some one or more of the advertised articles, and KEARNEY'S Clerks had to say "I'm sorry, but we sold the last about half-an-hour ago." All that would-be shopper took away was a "grouch" because he was too late.

Don't YOU wait until the FOURTH DAY. COME ON THE FIRST DAY and early at that, then you'll get your pick of what's going (and there's a great list this time). Take KEARNEY'S advice, he knows that if you do wait until the fourth day, you'll be like the folks he's told you about, and all you'll get from the 50-50 SALE will be a "grouch" to think you didn't come earlier.
