The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Leah," he said suddenly, "have you seen a beautiful little poem called 'An Untimely Thought'?" It is supposed to be written by a husband waiting at the foot of the stairs while his wife puts the last finishing stroke to her toilet. He wonders when and where she shall die.

"I wonder what day of the week? I wonder what month of the year? Will it be midnight or morning? And who will bend over my bier?"

"What a hideous fancy to come! As I wait at the foot of the stair, While Lillian gives the last touch To her robe or the rose in her hair?"

"Do I like your new dress—Pompadour?"

"And do I like you? On my life, You are eighteen, and not a day more, And have not been six years my wife?"

"Those two rosy boys in the crib upstairs are not ours to be sure! You are just a sweet bride in her bloom, All sunshine and snowy and pure."

"As the carriage rolls down the dark street, The little wife laughs and makes cheer; But I wonder what day of the week? I wonder what month of the year?" Leah listened attentively.

"It is very sad and very sweet, Basil. Ah, it is a terrible thing—death! To think that nothing in the world can save one from it, neither wealth, nor love, nor—"

"Are you afraid of death?" he interrupted.

"Yes, I am—perhaps more than most people. When I was a little child, I was taken to Westminster Abbey, and was left alone amid the monuments until my friend came back for me. One struck me so much, Basil, I forget the name of the persons in memory of whom it has been erected. I remember only the subject—a young and beautiful wife clasped in her husband's arms, and Death, in terrible guise, trying to snatch her from him and drag her into his hideous den. I was greatly impressed with it. Child as I was, I thought how horrible, how strong death must be, when even the love of her husband could not keep a wife safe in his arms. I think that was the first time I ever felt afraid of death. Oh, Basil, now that I am so happy, I do not want to die!"

CHAPTER XXXVIII

The last autumn flower had died, and over the earth had fallen the white robe of winter. Glen was still in the hands of the workpeople, and Sir Basil was busied with the coming election, his marriage, and his estate. Leah was also engrossed in preparations; while the general rejoiced to see his niece so active and happy. A sudden interruption came to this state of things.

One morning the general came down full of bright plans and anticipations. His favorite beverage was a cup of coffee, made from the fragrant freshly-ground berries; Leah, on the contrary, preferred drinking orange pekoe from a cup of priceless Sevres. Sir Arthur discussed his breakfast, talked about the party of visitors whom he would like to gather under his roof for Christmas, about Sir Basil, and how much better he had seemed to be on the previous evening, and finally walked to a table in another part of the room, on which the post-bag was lying.

It was one of the rules of the household at Brentwood that the letters should never be opened until after breakfast; the general's idea being that, if they contained bad news, it was better to delay it, if good, it would be the better for keeping. He took the bag in his hands, all unconscious that it held for him and for others a certain doom.

"We have numerous correspondents this morning," he said, turning out the contents.

Some of the letters contained invitations and news from friends; others were circulars and charitable appeals. At last the general came to one envelope that seemed to puzzle him. He looked at the post-mark, and saw the word "Southwood." Who could have written to him from Southwood? That was the little town on the slope of the great green hill near Dene Abbey. He had driven through it once or twice; but he was not aware that he knew any one living there.

"Leah," he cried, "here is a strange thing—a letter from Southwood? That is the place by the sea, is it not?"

"Yes," she replied; "but I have never been there. I did not know that you had any correspondents in that part of the country, uncle."

"Nor did I," he said. "This letter is written by a lady, I am sure. It is an easy, elegant, flowing hand."

"The quickest way to see from whom it came is to open it and look at the signature," laughed Leah. "You do not seem to have thought of that, uncle."

He joined in her laughter, then opened the envelope, drew out the letter, and read it. As he did so, all the color died from his face, and the smile from his lips. He perused it slowly and carefully, then looked at Leah. Alarmed by the expression on his eyes, she rose from her seat by the fire and went over to him.

"This concerns you, Leah," he said. "It is written by your sister Hettie."

"By Hettie!" she cried. "Oh, uncle, what is it? May I read it?"

But when she held the letter in her hands, her agitation was so great that she could not see the words.

"Tell me what it is about!" she cried, in distress. "I cannot read—I cannot see! What is it about, uncle?"

The general looked at her with pitying eyes.

Even-Handed Justice.

(From London Tit-Bits.)

A brawny blacksmith was appointed Justice of the Peace. The first case he heard was one arising out of the death of a cow under the wheels of a goods train. Plaintiff's counsel enumerated the many virtues of the cow; he described her gentleness; he told of the great bereavement to her immediate family, consisting of a young calf, and dwelt upon the heartlessness of a system which by its brutal carelessness had made stow-meat of the parent and an orphan of the offspring.

As he sat down, the new Justice said, with a voice husky with emotion:—"I've heard enough! Plaintiff wins." And he then proceeded to enter judgment for the full amount of damages.

But the lawyer for the other side protested. He was silver-tongued, with automatic tear valves and a friction-proof jaw. Among other matters pertinent to the issue, he introduced the Union Jack, Magna Charta, and "Little Grey Home in the West," concluding the whole by bursting into a violent fit of weeping.

As he sank into his seat, the Justice wiped his streaming eyes, and in a voice quivering with sob, exclaimed: "Well, that beats all! Defence wins."

Church Fellowship.

(From the Chicago News.)

Bishop Talbot tells of an adventure Bishop Kemper had in the early days of Kansas. Dr. Kemper was traveling in a stage coach which was held up one night.

The bishop remonstrated with the road agent, saying, "Surely you would not rob a poor bishop engaged in the discharge of his sacred duties?"

"You're a bishop, eh? What church?" said the man behind the gun.

"The Episcopal Church."

"You don't say so. Why, that's the church I belong to. Go ahead, driver. Good night, bishop."

THE "WHEN-WE-BUILD" BOOK.

Some friends of ours who were about to build a house have not only the co-operative bank account but also a savings account which they regard as only less precious. This savings account is kept in a scrap book and it is a savings account of ideas of every kind in relation to houses and gardens.

A Savings Account of Ideas. They started this scrap book at the time when they started the co-operative account, and they call it "When We Build Book." This is the sort of things that it contains. Plans and pictures of all houses, such as are published in the time to time in Sunday supplements and magazines. Ideas for sunny and comfort clipped from other sources. Ideas for gardens and for landscaping small places.

A Laundry Chute. Ideas on all sorts of conveniences and attractive features which they are admitted in the houses of friends. For instance, a laundry chute leading from the bathroom into a closet off the kitchen. A little door opening behind the fireplace on to the stairs, and thus avoiding the need to carry the wood through the kitchen and hallway and across the fire room. A trapdoor in the fireplace to let the ashes down through a sack barrel placed underneath for them. No thresholds on the stairs floors so that dirt can be swept into the kitchen, and a little door there with an ash barrel underneath it. A chest of drawers built against the eaves and with the drawers extending into the room, thus utilizing what would normally be waste space. A bar in the closet instead of hooks, thus mak-

Enough Said.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the veteran principal of the Royal Academy of Music, tells this story of a teacher of singing who always had to say what he thought.

A certain young lady, well known in society, came and asked for his opinion of her voice.

"Tell me," said he, "are you fond of singing?"

"I adore it," replied the girl. The teacher raised his eyebrows. "Dear me! How very curious," he said.

DRIFTING APART.

GENOA, May 14. As a result of the meeting of the Economic Conference's sub-commission on Russian affairs to-day the situation became so critical that it seemed doubtful whether the British and French positions could be reconciled.

FRANCE VIRTUALLY WITHDRAWS.

PARIS, May 14. The French delegation will remain at Genoa to take part in deliberations on other questions properly before the Conference, although it will have nothing to do with the Russians, it was said at the Foreign Office this morning. As far as the Russian problem is concerned the Conference is considered by the French Government at an end.

THE POSSIBILITIES OF GENOA.

GENOA, May 14. The sub-commission on Russian affairs of the Genoa Conference met this morning to consider the Soviet reply to the Allied memorandum, outlining the conditions on which the Powers would undertake the reconstruction of Russia. While the Russian note has virtually disrupted the programme of the Conference and it appears that a general agreement with the Russians at the present meeting is improbable, a Commission may be formed to investigate such questions as credits, debts and the treatment of foreign property in Russia, with the hope that something genuinely constructive can be accomplished. One at least of the beneficial results of the Washington Conference has been duplicated at Genoa. The Conference has given spokesmen of the European people better acquainted and taught them the real nature of Europe's problem. At Washington the United States and Japan inaugurated what Europe considered a hopeful era for peace and co-operation in the Pacific. At Genoa the Powers grappled far more formidable and complex problems than the friendship of two states and the concrete question of Naval armaments. Genoa's task has been to reconcile Communism and Conservatism. And Communism has demonstrated that if it dies at all it will go down fighting hard. While pessimists are proclaiming the Genoa Conference dead, Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, alarmed at the possibilities of a new and dangerous political crisis in Europe, is with the other leaders striving to create a binding treaty which will prevent new schisms and dangers of war.

ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

GENOA, May 14. The Economic Conference will be re-convened at the Hague on June 15th to discuss questions, if the plan agreed to this effect at a private conference of inviting powers is accepted by the sub-commission on Russian affairs. The adjournment is prompted by the desire of the European powers to induce the United States to participate and apparently is the means of dissolving the Genoa Conference without admitting that the difficulties between France and Britain regarding treatment of Russian problems cannot be reconciled in Genoa. It was agreed that no separate agreements should be concluded with Russia, pending the work of the Commission which must report within three months. The proposal for a non-aggression treaty on reciprocal basis during the labors of the Commission was also adopted.

WILL MEET AT THE HAGUE.

GENOA, May 14. Subject to approval the sub-commission on Russian affairs decided to-day that the Genoa Economic Conference should re-assemble at the Hague

ON JUNE 15, to meet Russian delegates and choose a mixed Commission to endeavor to settle the Russian situation.

IRISH PEACE SITUATION.

DUBLIN, May 14. The Irish Peace Committee met again Saturday in the Manston House. Some optimism was noticeable, but no grounds for it are apparent. The official organ of the Free State party said yesterday that the Government has everywhere been fouted and interfered with and is unable to keep peace and order. The land question, it says is again raising its head and property has almost ceased to be respected, while a hopeless spirit is settling down on the people. One rumor says the result of the Conference may be a Coalition and agreed election.

WINNIPEG, May 14. In spite of days and nights of toil, disaster overtook the colony of Hutterites, fifteen miles west of here, when the temporary dykes constructed by them went down before the floods from the Assiniboine River, allowing the waters to invade 1,000 acres of wheat sown land. The flood situation along the south side of the River is serious.

EUROPEAN FAMINE FORESHADOWED.

GENEVA, May 13. A proposal for the appointment of a Commission to investigate the ultimate effect of the Russian famine on Western Europe came up for consideration before the Council of the League of Nations here to-day. The formation of such a Commission has been recommended by Dr. F. Nansen, High Commissioner of the International Commission for Russian Relief, who declares Western Europe will have a famine the first year there is failure of United States and Canadian crops, unless drastic steps be taken to halt the era of non-production in Russia. Speed Up Production.

An advertisement now running in the daily press, advises that the Department of Agriculture would like to receive the names of all unemployed persons, who can plant a barrel of potatoes this — the present spring. It would be well for all those who can conform to the stipulation of planting the quantity named give heed to this invitation and get their names and addresses to the Secretary of Agriculture as speedily as possible. This not only applies to the people of St. John's but to those of the outports as well. Though a time limit is set for the receipt of applications, yet we do not think that any outport unemployed will be refused if their orders are not punctual to the hour specified. That a speeding up of production of the soil, particularly in potatoes is eminently desirable at the present period, is a matter that has given the Agricultural Board much thought. They realize that under present strained conditions that a great deal of the hope of the future depends upon the greater development of the farm and garden. Potatoes, as an article of food, are consumed in greater measure, perhaps, in Newfoundland, than in any other farming country producing this well known tuber, for not only do we use all that are grown, but not a year passes but we go outside the Colony in the purchase of additional supplies for local consumption. The humble potato is a popular article of food. It is found on the tables of rich and poor alike. We need not comment here on its nutritive value, for all are cognizant of its worth as an edible, and no real meal is complete without the potato appearing as a dish.

Though the production in Newfoundland has been somewhat on the increase during the past decade, there yet seems to be room for additional sowing. If for no other reason than that the potato is the most easily cultivated of any garden crop, an impetus should be given to a still further development in order that sufficient may be produced locally to supply the requirements of the whole Colony. The Agriculture Department officials desire this, and they believe that it is a first duty of all who can to speed up a bit. To this end they are devoting their time and knowledge and are as ready with information as they are to supply the necessary lots of seed applied for. Those who possess land—in small or large plots—would do well to take advantage of the offers made, and if possible to double their output, of all kinds of vegetables locally grown. There is a reason, and that reason may not be far to seek. Every country in the world, which can, is exploiting its agricultural possibilities to the utmost, because they believe that to produce is of better internal advantage than to import. The money thus, is kept in the country and in constant circulation, whereas that paid for foreign produce leaves the country never to return, and thus becomes, of no ultimate value to the people as a purchasing medium. In this connection, therefore we would beg to suggest to the Minister of Agriculture that he devise some system of marketing in order that each producing district or section may be easily assisted in the transportation necessary to make sale of their wares to non-producing districts or sections. Given this extra encouragement and facility, providing that all endeavour to "speed up," and we are of the opinion that in the more common order of vegetables Newfoundland will become more than self-supporting in this line of produce and may even become an exporting factor.

The Railway Situation

President Announces That Wages Can Not Be Paid -- Does Not Want Arbitration--Prime Minister Will Deal With Situation To-Day.

The railway situation was brought to a crisis to-day when President H. D. Reid of the Reid Newfoundland Company, in a notice to railway employees, declared that there was no money to pay their wages. The whole situation has assumed complications with which it will be difficult to deal. The future operation of the railway now rests with the railway workers and the Government. With the former because if they decide to quit work trains must stop running, and the decision of the men depends to a great extent on such action as the Government may take.

THE PRESIDENT'S NOTICE.

The full text of President Reid's notice is as follows:—
May 15th, 1922.
"TO ALL RAILWAY EMPLOYEES:
"We regret to inform you that the Government, having failed to pay us the instalments due under the operating contracts, we have no money on hand to pay your wages for April, due to-day. We are taking proceedings to recover the amount due us, and you can be assured that we will protect your interests to the fullest possible extent, and that you will be paid immediately sufficient money is received by us."
H. D. REID, President."

To-day is the monthly pay day for all railway employees.

RAILWAY PRESIDENT INTERVIEWED.

Mr. H. D. Reid told the Telegram this morning that the Railway Company would do all in his power to keep the line operating. He said the matter was in the hands of the men, who might refuse to work until assured of their pay. The deadlock has been caused by the action of the Government in deducting an amount of several hundred thousands from the guarantee of $1,000,000 voted last year to defray losses on railway operation. Mr. Reid explained that in the Operating Contract, referred to in the notice quoted above, a certain amount was set aside for conditional improvements. The Company was not compelled to provide this amount for some years, but to relieve unemployment, it was utilized last year. This is the amount which the Government have deducted from the guarantee of $1,500,000. The Company disputes the right of the Government to deduct this amount, and declare that they now have no money to pay railway workers. That is how the situation stands at present.

DOES NOT WANT ARBITRATION.

Mr. Reid said he had put the Government in full possession of the facts a few weeks ago. It is possible that those men who are paid by the month might remain at work on the chance of ultimately getting their pay. Engineers and others, who are paid by the day, may refuse to continue and a tie-up would result. So far the men have not approached him on the matter. The pay roll to-day is approximately $100,000. Mr. Reid said he did not favour arbitration at the present time, as he had other work on his mind.

Wanted Divorce.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES AIDED.
Domestic troubles were aired with extreme freedom in an assault case in which a man brought action against his step-father-in-law. Returning from abroad, plaintiff found wife in accused's room with the door locked and as he could not get in, he peeped through the keyhole. He made certain allegations against his wife and accused. Later he said, accused assaulted him on Duckworth Street. Accused denied all the allegations and said plaintiff had beaten his wife. The wife wanted a divorce. The case was dismissed.

Increased Shipping.

MUCH LABOR EMPLOYED.
Since Saturday last quite a lot of shipping has entered port with cargoes which should provide long needed employment for longshoremen. There are several large cargoes of salt, 4 or 5 vessels with molasses and coal in port, and several steamers are due during the week with general cargoes.

Fishery Supplies.

DUTY MAY BE REMITTED.
It is stated on good authority that the Government, which has the matter of guaranteeing fishery supplies for the spring under consideration, has decided not to adopt the policy of last year but will arrange a form of duty rebate on outfitting for the fishery. At present very little credit supplies are being issued, and there will not likely be any appreciable movement until the Government makes a definite pronouncement.

Another Schooner Abandoned.

CREW LANDED AT POUCH COVE.

A Trinity Bay schooner of about 29 tons whistled on the way to this port became waterlogged and dismantled on Saturday night and had to be abandoned by the crew, who landed at Pouch Cove in a small boat. The vessel, which is owned by Steer Bros., was about 20 miles East of Cape Spear yesterday, and has probably driven to sea to-day. No attempt is being made to pick her up. The vessel was laden with lumber belonging to people in Trinity Bay. This is the second schooner to be lost in this manner during the last couple of days.

Aching Hearts Relieved.

PHRENOLOGIST ESTABLISHES OFFICE.

"She lifts a load from your aching heart" is one of the notices adorning the window of the premises formerly occupied by the Western Drug Store and now a consulting room for a foreign phrenologist. Among other appeals to the sentimental public are "She tells your past and present love affairs," and "She speaks seven languages." The "she" referred to is the wife of the man Markovitch, who arrived here recently with his family from Canada and for a time, camped in a Sudbury field and later near Waterford Bridge until compelled by the police to live indoors. News travels fast and the female phrenologist is bound to have a host of love-sick swains, sentimental dandies, harassed business men and possibly, members of the Executive Council and House of Assembly, waiting for interviews this afternoon.

Cost of Stopping Trains.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

An ordinary passenger locomotive consumes a pound of fuel for every 52 feet it travels. Each unnecessary stop, made with a heavy freight or passenger train, represents a fuel loss of from 500 to 750 pounds of coal, depending on the weight of the train, the length of the stop and the grade conditions. A brake-line air leak on a train of 50 freight cars has been known to cause a loss of as much as 2,540 pounds of coal in a ten-hour period. The loss of coal each time a modern locomotive stops off for five minutes is about 75 pounds. If locomotive firemen were to save a little more than one shovelful of coal out of each ten used, the total saving would be equal to nearly seven per cent of all the coal handled.

Jingling.

A ring is staked and roped out on the grass, and inside this the players take their places. One of them has his hands tied behind him, and carries a bell slung around his neck, while all the rest are closely blindfolded. The "Jingler" or "bellman" tries to escape from the blind man. As he moves about his bell rings, and the blind men follow and try to catch him. If a good "Jingler" he will lead his pursuers into all sorts of scrapes. Perhaps the best scenes are witnessed when two or more blind men rush in to each other's arms, and grapple, thinking they have hold of the "Jingler." If the latter is caught he must be blindfolded, and the captor becomes the ringler.

Halifax Woman Says She Gained 12 Pounds, And That Her Husband and Little Girl Were Entirely Relieved By Taking Tanlac.

"Since I was helped so much by Tanlac my husband and little girl have taken it with splendid results," said Mrs. Robert L. Allen, 56 Duke St., Halifax, N.S. "For years I had such bad indigestion that sometimes even milk and toast hurt me. I never could eat fat nor fried food. My liver was out of order, too, and I couldn't do a bit of my housework. I was nervous and dull, taking no interest in anything. "After trying all kinds of medicine with no results, I got a bottle of Tanlac and I declare it helped me from the first few doses. I have gained twelve pounds and can easily do all my work. We all think Tanlac is just wonderful." Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

The Bath in Japan. The European traveller on the unfrequented way (in Japan), if he asks to the corner of the front veranda of the house and invited to step into the large oval tub that serves for bath, and there submit to that process of prolonged soaking with constitutes the Japanese idea of a hot bath. He will be expected to do this in full view of the friendly passers-by, with whom he can the more pleasantly pass the time in conversation. This is, however, usually some competition for the privilege of the first dip, if such a term is sufficiently descriptive of an operation which involves a half-hour of parboiling at a temperature of 110-115 degrees Fahrenheit, succeeded by the actual washing done outside the bath. Next follow, after his exit, the other guests in order of arrival or of dignity, as the case may be—men always first, then the landlord, succeeded by the remaining males of the family. Finally, after the laundry and the other female relatives have finished, come the domestic, irrespective of sex, according to the size of the tub and to the number desirous of getting in at the same time. Thus the splashing and chattering go on without ceasing for five or six hours. But it is the mountain mineral spring—the onsen—that furnishes us with the most striking and characteristic popular institution of rural Japan, giving as it does, full scope to the sociability of its inhabitants; there is nothing quite like it in any other land. "Although in some cases one now finds separate compartments reserved for those who prefer to bathe privately, it is much more usual for a number of persons to bathe together without distinction of age, sex, or class. At one time in some of the towns, out of deference to European ideas of privacy, a cord was stretched across the big wooden tanks with the notice, "This side for ladies; that for gentlemen." But in the country-side such refinement is rarely observed, yet everything is conducted with the utmost propriety and decorum.—Rev. Walter Wilson in "Discovery."

Goods

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)
Codfish—The exports of dried codfish for this week totalled 21,713 qtls. as follows:—

From Outports—By schooner Maxwell R. from the Burin Export and Import Company, Burin, 4,114 quintals to Oporto; by schooner Edith M. from J. Penny and Sons, Raveland, 4,414 quintals to Oporto; by schooner Nellie T. Walters from St. John's, 3,935 quintals to Oporto, and by the schooner Armistice from A. E. Hickman and Co., Ltd., English Hr., 8,759 qtls. to Oporto.
 From St. John's—By S.S. Rosalind to New York for transshipment to the West Indies, 3,500 qtls. from Messrs. J. B. Bowring Bros., Ltd., R. F. Harcourt, A. E. Hickman, A. H. Harcourt, and J. B. Harcourt, and J. B. Harcourt and J. B. Harcourt. The Oporto market is in good condition, but Spain is overstocked and is not taking any fish at present. Messrs. Lind and Couto published this week to the Board of Trade offering to take fish at Oporto on consignment.

Oil—No transactions of any consequence have taken place, but there are some enquiries. Offerings are very scarce and the market remains steady. Colliver Oil—The Lofoden fishery where the best oil is made in Norway is now closed for the season. Some large contracts are reported for the best medical cod liver oil, but trade in general is very dull. Advice from abroad state that merchants look for a good European consumption this year, which may have some effect on prices in the Fall.

Wheat—May wheat in Chicago ranged between 137 and 145 this week, and July wheat 123 to 126. The local quotations are still $10.25 for leading brands wholesale, and a good fishery supply flour $10.00 cash. Under-grades are $9.85 to $9.80. The tone of the market in Canada is much stronger than it was last month, and the crop report received this week has resulted in sending wheat up three cents. No decline in flour prices was expected. The local transactions are liberal for this season, but better prices will likely follow the balance of the month and on to the middle of June. The imports to St. John's totalled 65,500 as against 55,000 some time last year.

Pork—The pork market is quiet and unaltered, both at home and in the neighboring markets. Chicago May pork ranging between $21.00 and $21.50 this week. In the local market the movement is so far as below as a solid winter, as supplying for the year has not yet really begun. A few schooners that came in from St. John's Bay last week got their supplies and returned home. They were independent men, and purchased their pork, beef, etc., with cash. The quotations are, Family Mess Rib Pork $36.00, Ham Butt and Mess $36.00, Fat and Clear $23.00, Boston Butt $30.00 and Spare Rib $31.00 per barrel wholesale.

Beef—The barreled beef market is quiet and unchanged. There is very little doing yet in the local market, such as is usual at this time of the year, but a better movement is expected next week and on the middle of June, when the Northern fleet of schooners shall have arrived to outfit the fishery. The few who have so far taken supplies have economized on beef steaks and taken one barrel less than usual for some crews. The quotations are to-day, Family Special $20.00, Rib Packet $20.00, Boneless $20.00, $21.00.

Molasses—Barbados Molasses has had a very strong turn at that island. The planters are refusing to sell any more "Fancy" molasses at present prices, and states that sugar prices are better and they have therefore turned their attention to its manufacture. "Fancy" molasses is still being boiled the sugar cane to concentrate of sugar, it is readily seen that the output of "Fancy" molasses is being curtailed this season. The crop is now nearing an end and may wake up one of these days to find all the "Fancy" is exhausted. Prices advanced accordingly. "Fancy" molasses is now in such demand and prices for it will follow the price of "Fancy" if our people in Newfoundland insist upon having that quality. The "Hazel Traber" arrived last week with 305 puncheons, 44 therms and 86 barrels to various importers.

Sugar—Large sales of sugar have been made in New York lately at $3.75 per 100 lbs., which is equivalent to 10¢ in St. John's. Trade during the past few weeks has been very slow, owing to the uncertainty as to the new tariff. The St. John's molasses quotation holds at $18.50 for 100 lbs., for white American granulated.

While some think the market advanced, others believe that it will advance where it is. If the situation should become settled in Russia and Central Europe, the extra demand that would no doubt put a strain on the markets and make prices advance. The imports this week were 250 barrels by S. S. Bolver.

The tea market seems to have reached a steady point after several advances the past five weeks. A recent report from Ceylon to the effect that dealers believe there will be no more advances this season, and that in fact, the market is a slight decline, and confidence seems to be general that the tea market is no more advancing. The St. John's lowest tea is 30c. per pound and the others 34 cents per pound to 36 cents in chests and half chests. A good household tea can be bought for 25 cents.

Potatoes—The price has weakened since the first week in May, and good home-grown have brought as low as $2.75 per barrel. The price of imported has declined also owing to a contemporaneous effort to get rid of the large stocks of old potatoes held in Canada. The receipts in Montreal last week from the country were no less than 25,502 sacks, (150 lbs.) The St. John's market is also flooded. The Oats—During the week the price of No. 2 Canadian Western Oats advanced two to two and a half cents per bushel in Montreal, the quotations now being 47 1/2 to 48 cents. The local market is steady at the old rates at $3.70 for mixed and $4.50 for white, and the advanced referred to will likely be nullified in the future importation by the cheaper freight rates from Montreal and Charlottetown. Including the consignments brought in this week by the S. S. Maple-down, the market is now well supplied. The S. S. Winona now on the way from Montreal direct will also bring some consignments.

Hay—The S. S. Winifredian and S. S. Oxonian cleaned up nearly all the available stocks on hand here the past two weeks to feed the cattle they were conveying to Great Britain. The price paid for most of the hay was $1.00 per ton on the wharf. The regular price from the stores of importers, however, was, and still continues to be $3.00 to $4.00 according to amount of purchase. The market was quite bare till the arrival of the S. S. Maple-down yesterday from Montreal and Charlottetown.

Lumber—During the week about 10 schooners arrived in port with lumber—nearly all from Trinity Bay with oak, maple, birch, three-quarter inch, and half-inch mill board, palings, scantling, and billets. Following are the prices they are getting at the wharves:—

Billets 80 cents to $1.00 sent home, funks $1.10 to $1.20 delivered, 3/4 inch board $10.00 per thousand, 1/2 inch board $10.00 to $10.00 per thousand, 1 inch board $12.50 per thousand, Scantling $12.00 to $14.00 per thousand, Palings $2.00 to $2.50 per 100.

Fashions and Fads.
 Formal evening gowns of white satin are embellished with crystal beads. They steel beads have twinkled their way into favor on innumerable frocks. The sleeves which ends far above the yellow is predicted for summer frocks.

The deep neck yoke has been noted among the linen and Cherut will frocks. Black and white is as smart a combination as one could desire, as Paris says. A sleeveless bodice of allover silver tissue tops a skirt of grey silver brocade.

Current Business Conditions
By GEORGE E. ROBERTS
(From the Monthly Bulletin for May Issued by The National City Bank of New York)

SENTIMENT in business circles is much more cheerful than at any time last year, and this is especially noteworthy throughout the agricultural districts. Although price conditions are regarded as yet far from satisfactory, and many people still have a keen realization of the losses they have suffered, the country has generally recovered its poise, and is ready to face the future with courage and confidence.

Building operations are on a larger scale than a year ago, and sufficient to employ fairly well the workers in the building trades and building material industries. The automobile industry is much more active than a year ago, and contracts for railroad equipment are on a larger scale than at any time since the war. The effect of activity in these several lines has given a pronounced stimulus to the iron and steel industry.

For the first two months of the present year, operating revenues of the 261 Class I railroads total $796,823,889, showing a decrease from the like period in 1921 of $80,334,381. Operating expenses, on the other hand, amounted to $662,608,066, were $164,947,673 less. Notwithstanding the heavy falling off in gross, therefore, net operating revenues of $134,718,821, were $84,613,292 greater, and net operating income was $77,384,711, instead of a deficit of $3,626,343 for the first two months of 1921.

Coal Strike
The nation-wide coal strike has been in effect one month, during which time production from non-union mines has been equal to about one-third the total normal production. As yet accumulated stocks have been sufficient to prevent serious interference with industry or any considerable advance of prices, but if the shut-downs shall last another month the influence probably will be more apparent.

The situation presented by the coal industry is a very complicated one. The United States Geological Survey said of it: "The known coal fields of the United States have a developed capacity and present labor force in excess of that required to supply the demand. It is not so simple that it seems strange that so little is said of the remedy that is within the reach of the miners themselves. Since too many workers are seeking employment in the industry, some of them should leave it and find employment elsewhere. It then would be necessary to give regular and approximately full employment for the remainder in order to get out the required supply of coal. The consumers of coal would find that in order to be sure of having an ample supply they would have to lay in stocks. The coal operators would have to settle by competition who should have the mines and the business, upon the condition that the mines were operated all the year round, and the natural solution would be that the coal deposits would be worked first by the miners' union would use its power to promote some reasonable adjustment as this, it would help the situation of the miners, and at the same time render a great service to the public."

It is urged in some quarters that the mining industry should be taken over by the government. This, however, would involve purchase of all coal deposits in the country, an impractical undertaking, and if that was done, what policy should the government follow? Should it continue to divide up the limited amount of work among all the men who claimed a share of it, increasing the pay as the amount of work for each diminished, or should it organize the industry for efficient production, and compel one-third of the miners to find other work? If the latter is the remedy, the miners can apply themselves, without the intervention of the government. Would they rather do it of their own choice or under the direction of the government?

Social Progress
In the course of the recent hearings upon the coal industry before the Labor Committee of the House of Representatives, Washington, the following colloquy was reported as taking place between Congressman Atkinson, of Missouri, and Edgar Wallace, representative of the Federation of Labor and member of the miners' union:

Congressman Atkinson: "Miners were getting up to last week 31 per cent more than they got during the peak of prices on the United States is at a premium everywhere, nobody is going to withdraw funds from the United States. To do so would be an act of business folly. If the borrower does not want to use the funds for purchases here on his own account, he can sell them at a premium to somebody who does want to use them here. The premium is proof of that."

Moreover, why should we object if Holland, being in good credit, should borrow in this market and turn the resulting credit over to Germany, at a premium, in exchange for German coal or iron? The conditions may be more favorable for Holland to trade direct with Germany than for us to do so. And so there is no limit to the variety of deals and trades by which other countries may arrange to help each other in doing so? The more strict them in doing so? The more trade the less we lay have of it."

They'd Met.

(From London, Answers.)

Church was over, the congregation filed slowly out and gathered in little chattering groups in the churchyard. Presently the vicar came up and joined a select little party. He introduced an old sea captain to the leading light of the village, a wealthy Mr. Smith.

"You must have seen each other in church to-day," said the beaming vicar.

"Sure," said the old sea captain. "I was sleeping in the next bunk to me."

Dear Sir—Please permit me space in your columns to print the enclosed letter to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the members of the Newfoundland Football League for their handsome donation of $500 to the National War Memorial Fund. Thanking you for space.

Yours faithfully,
T. NANGLE, C.F.

St. John's, Nfld., May 13, 1922.
Rev. Col. T. Nangle, C.F. City.

Dear Padre Nangle—I have very great pleasure indeed on behalf of the Newfoundland Football League in sending you the enclosed cheque for $500.00 towards the National War Memorial Fund.

You will be pleased to know that this contribution was unanimously approved by the League, the members of which feel that it is both an honour and duty to pay this small tribute on behalf of the football loving public and lads who have ever taken part in League games to the memory of the many footballers who so nobly laid down their lives in the Great War.

It is with pardonable pride that we avail of this opportunity to have a share in the monument borne by an organization which has the distinction of having more men enlist than from any other form of sport.

Sincerely yours,
(Sgd.) W. J. HIGGINS,
President.

Boy Life in Japan.

Except under foreign influence the Japanese small boy does not wear hat or apron, but in a figured or striped kimono of grey, dark blue, green or brown, he looks like a little image of his father. From his babyhood he is serious and manly. At three and at five years of age he goes to the temple to give thanks to the protecting deity and at home he honors the ancestral shrine. At school he studies Chinese and Japanese literature and ethics and is introduced to various subjects borrowed from western curricula. The New Year's season he celebrates with new clothes and new toys and with sweetmeats, games and visits. On the day of Buddha's birth and at the great "maisuri" of the parish temple, which gives him a chance to help carry a "dashiki" or float, through the streets, his heart keeps holiday. Best of all, he has his own special "Shobu Matsuri" or feast of the Iris, when offerings are made indoors to the images of heroes and in the yard a huge paper carp, symbol of strength and endurance, floats from a tall bamboo pole, in honor of the son of the family.—Asia Magazine.

Feats of Memory.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)
Remarkable feats of quick memorization by blind musicians have been recorded by the National Institute for the blind. Mr. Fred Turner, one of the most accomplished blind musicians in Scotland, recently memorized the whole of Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" and in four months trained his choir, and himself accompanied the entire work on the organ; while Mr. Sinclair Logan, the blind composer and organist, memorized Somerville's "The Passion of Christ"—a fairly complicated cantata occupying 75 minutes in performance—trained his choir and accompanied a very successful rendering in less than two months, during which he was working under the stress of other heavy memorisation work for an important recital in Liverpool for the National Institute for the blind. In addition to his normal professional duties. To carry in the memory Beethoven's thirty-two piano sonatas as Mr. William Woltenholme does, and that of Bach, as in the case of Mr. H. Y. Spanner—two blind musicians resident in London—would seem no light achievement, and yet these form but a small portion of the range of works in the mental storehouse of these men.

Plenty of Time.

A long-headed man met a little boy, who asked him the time. "Ten minutes to nine," said the man. "Well," replied the boy, "at nine o'clock get your hair cut," and he took to his heels and ran, the aggrieved one after him.

"Turning a corner the man ran into a policeman, nearly knocking him over.

"What's up?" asked the policeman. The man, very much out of breath, said:—

"You see that young urchin running along there? He asked me the time. I told him, 'Ten minutes to nine,' and he said, 'At nine o'clock get your hair cut!'"

"Well," said the policeman, glancing at his watch, "what are you running for? You've got eight minutes yet!"

These Eternal Meals

"WHAT to get for dinner?" "What to get for supper?" To-day, to-morrow, next day, every day in the week.

This is woman's problem and the source of almost endless worry.

True, there are times when most women take a pleasure and pride in cooking and baking, but when you are not feeling up to the mark it does get on your nerves and become a real worry—a nerve-exhausting worry.

Since meals are essential to life, the old problem of "what to eat" must endure, but need not be a worry when your nerves are set right.

It is when you are tired—nervous tired—that such things become a source of worry. There is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to combat this condition.

It is because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is such a help under these very conditions that it has come to be relied upon by the great majority of Canadian women. Headaches, sleeplessness, tired, depressed feelings, lack of energy are some of the accompanying symptoms.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING.

The regular May meeting held last week was an usual fully occupied with many matters of interest. The President welcomed two new members, Mr. Herbert Winter and Mr. R. T. Korner. The April report of the Eggs Laying contest is as follows:—Pen No. 1 contains Rhode Island Reds and laid 45 eggs for April and a total of 59 for two months ending April 30, with an average for the month of 23 1/4 eggs each. Pen No. 2 White Wyandottes laid 55 eggs for April and came second with an average of 37 1/4 for two months ending April 30. Pen No. 3 White Leghorns came third laying 293 eggs for April with an average of 31 1/4 eggs per hen. Ancona laid 237 eggs with an average of 29 1/4 eggs. Another pen of White Leghorns came next with 103 eggs for April and an average of 29 1/4 eggs, followed by another pen of White Leghorns with an average of 28 eggs. A pen of White Wyandottes follow with 178 eggs for the month and an average of 27 1/4, whilst another pen of White Leghorns only laid 163 eggs for April with an average of 21 1/4 eggs each. These pens do not contain an equal number of birds neither are they fed, housed or cared for all alike, and the Association feels that until some arrangement is made to feed, house and care for an equal number of birds in the same manner a really accurate test cannot be made of the various breeds—meaning this test was made as an experiment. To the birds winning the greatest average a Silver Cup presented by Mr. H. W. LeMesurier, C.M.G. will be awarded. The Association members discussed the poor service of railway express transportation. Some members who imported birds and eggs have had birds arrive dead—one male bird having cost its owner twenty-five dollars at point of shipment. Eggs for hatching imported from best farms in U. S. A. and Canada also arrived broken and unfertile due to rough handling, and out of 220 eggs imported by two members only two chicks were hatched with four other eggs fertile. Two members imported some eggs of a new breed from England—Exchequer Leghorns, said to be great layers—with great results, due no doubt to better handling en route by steamer, and out of 24 eggs 23 are fertile. The Association decided to boycott in future transportation companies who will not care for live poultry and hatching eggs en route and arrange specially with one steamship line to handle all their importations to ensure better care and who will give their consignments proper attention. The Association is also trying to arrange for the purchase of a lantern in order to give illustrated lectures and talks on poultry culture. In some sections of Newfoundland the census returns show a marked decrease of the number of poultry kept as compared with ten years ago, and the Association is working to try and increase the production in order that the Colony reduce the large amount of $130,000 paid to Canada yearly for poultry and eggs.

A Question of Quantity.

WOMEN CIGARETTE SMOKERS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, May 13. (Canadian Press).—How many cigarettes should a woman smoke in a day. One hundred a week was suggested by the counsel of Mrs. E. Kingcott, of Parkington, Barks, in the Westminster County Court a few days ago, when the lady was being sued by a New Bond St. tobacconist for £73, balance of an account for cigarettes. "That would be fourteen a day," said Judge Tobin, who presided at the trial of the case. "Is that a reasonable number for a married lady?" he asked. "I think it rather large," defence counsel said. "If she smoked them all herself," he added. "But of course she would not smoke them all, some would be for her friends." There were two accounts, one against the husband, as well as the account against the wife, but they had not lived together for a couple of years. The wife told the court that she was willing to be responsible for 100 cigarettes a week and pay the bill against her on that basis. The Judge said somebody had to pay the plaintiff, who if he wished could join the husband and wife in the action brought against the woman for the £73. He adjourned the trial for a month.

He Laughed.

The inspector put his hand on the golden head of the tiniest girl in the class, and smiled kindly.

"What is your name, little girl?" he asked.

"My name's Iona," she piped nervously.

"And what is your surname?" asked the great man.

"Please, sir," she replied, "I would rather not tell."

"Come, come," said the inspector. "You needn't be afraid of telling me your surname."

"I won't laugh!" said the little maid anxiously.

"Of course not, my dear," was the reply.

"Well, sir, my surname is Ford," was the answer. And he had to laugh, after all.

A Postponed Interview.

A School Board officer knocked at one of the doors of a row of cottages in a poor quarter of a country town. "Can I see your husband?" he inquired of the woman who answered his summons.

"No, you can't!"

"Is he out, then?"

"No, he isn't; he's in, and that's why you can't see him."

"If he is in I will wait until I can see him."

"Of course, you're welcome to do that, only I'm afraid you'll get tired before you see him."

"Yet you say he's in."

"So he is!"

"Well, shall I call again, then?"

"Yes; but you'd better come when he's out, because you'll stand a better chance of seeing him."

"How can I see him when he's out?"

"You certainly can't see him whilst he's in."

"How's that?"

"Cos he's in—prison!"

What of the Blind?

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—

"O dark, dark dark, amid the blaze of noon,
Irreversibly dark! total eclipse
Without all hope of day."

I am concerned about the blind. I believe there are some five hundred of them buried away in various parts of the country, most of them forlorn and many of them longing for the great Reager to end their mortal and miserable days. Few of them are seldom seen except by their immediate friends and relations, and, unseen, they are forgotten. I fear that those of us who are blessed with sight and can see this world so fair, seldom pause to think of the lot of these, our unhappy fellows. It is no credit to us; on the contrary it is to our daily shame.

That prince of Newfoundlanders, Sir Edgar Bowring—the man with a big heart—has offered the Waterford Hall property for the good of the blind, if the country will take hold of it and operate it as a centre for the blind. In fact, he goes further and undertakes to maintain the property in a good condition. Can we, who can see, realize what hopes this offer must have raised in the breasts of those who cannot see?

I have said that I am concerned about the blind, and it is because the Government seems to be halting between two opinions as to its duty in relation to this matter. How the blind must pray that it may be moved to the right thing! The Government on one hand knows that the voice of mercy calls it to be merciful, and on the other hand it hears an impoverished people calling for economy. Between these it halts. Oh let it halt no longer! It has no right to rob the blind of the dry bread for which they beg. They seek no luxury; indeed, all they seek is that they shall be enabled to enjoy the experience of doing some work and making themselves independent. They are among the last in our midst that should be deprived, and if I know our people, I feel sure that it is their wish that the undertaking at Waterford Hall shall be proceeded with. The closing down of this work of love is not going to save the country; rather should I think its operation might help to save it, for God is merciful to the merciful.

There can be no doubt as to our duty in this matter. I did not intend to deal with the economical side of the question, preferring to rest the case on our sense of duty, justice and mercy. But surely it would be profitable to Newfoundland to convert a number of non-workers and unprofitable citizens into workers and profitable citizens. I do not like measuring this thing in dollars. It is distasteful to me. Yet there are those who can only measure in dollars. May I say to them this: the blind to-day are a financial burden. Other countries have demonstrated that every one of them can be converted into a wage earner. Open Waterford Hall and you will put not less than $25,000 per year in circulation, you add ten to fifteen thousand dollars to the revenue, and what is grandest of all, you bring joy, hope and gladness to those who live in gloom, you earn their gratitude and in so doing, you bring happiness to your own heads.

Yours truly,
ROLAND.
