The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shell contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Séminaire de Québec
Bibliothèque

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminent par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

ex-officio a member of all Committees that may be appointed. To him all reports must be made, and through him must pass all correspondence of a public nature connected with the duties or business of the Brigade. In his absence the senior Officer will assume the command of the Brigade, and perform all the duties required of him, in accordance with the Militia Act and the Standing Orders of the Brigade.

OFFICERS IN GENERAL.

16. All Officers are desired to consider exactness of time at parades and posts of assembly as one of the first principles of military duty, and are earnestly enjoined, by strict adherence to all orders, to set an example of good order and Military discipline to every soldier under their command.

17. They are to make themselves acquainted with the Articles of War and Queen's Regulations; all General, Garrison and Regimental Standing Orders, of which latter they are to have a copy in their possession. Ignorance of orders will never be admitted as an excuse.

18. They are to make themselves thoroughly acquainted with all drills and exercises.

Battery, on which must be stated the intended address of the applicant while absent.

21. Officers cannot have too much zeal in the execution of their duties, or too much anxiety for the appearance of the Brigade, the good of the service, and the comfort of the men; they are enjoined to be very attentive to the dress and conduct of the Non-commissioned Officers and men, especially those of their own Batteries.

22. They are always to treat Non-commissioned Officers with kindness, not reprimanding them in the presence of the men when it can be avoided, and although no misconduct or neglect should be overlooked they are required to be very cautious in confining them.

23. They will make themselves acquainted with the names of every man of the Battery to which they belong, and acquire a thorough knowledge of his disposition and character.

24. When they reprimand a soldier they will on no account use violent or irritating language, and in no case whatever allow him to make any answer.

25. Each Officer must be in possession of a copy of the latest edition of the following books :

“Field Exercises and Evolutions of Infantry.”

“Manual of Artillery exercises, 1860.”

“Regimental Standing Orders.”

They are also recommended to provide themselves with a copy of the "Manual of Military Law," by Colonel Pison, which contains much useful information.

26. Officers signing documents are to put their regimental rank immediately after their names, and if they have brevet rank, it is to follow the regimental rank, and also to name the Brigade they belong to, which should always be in the Officer's own handwriting.

27. If an Officer above the rank of Subaltern obtains leave to change his duty, he is to make the Adjutant acquainted with it, and with the name of the Officer who is to perform his duty.

28. On joining the Brigade, either from leave of absence or detachment, they will immediately apprise the Adjutant of their arrival.

29. Officers returning from leave should make themselves thoroughly acquainted with all orders issued during their absence.

30. Officers are never to be seen smoking in the streets when in uniform.

CAPTAINS COMMANDING BATTERIES.

31. The Captain, or Officer commanding the Battery in his absence, is responsible for its internal management and conduct in every particular; he is answerable that his Battery is in every respect fit for immediate service; that all the duties are carried on by Officers and men with energy and zeal ; that all orders and regulations are adhered to in every respect, and that all returns are made out according to form, and sent to the Brigade Office in proper time.

32. He is responsible for the general uniformity of the dress and appointments, the smart appearance of his Officers and men, and the general discipline of his Battery. He will also be held strictly responsible for the arms and accoutrements, and other public property that he may be intrusted with for the use of his Battery, and of which he must be prepared at any moment, when called upon, to furnish correct returns.

33. He is responsible that his men are at all times complete in regimental necessaries, strictly according to the regimental pattern, and that they have no article of clothing that is not so.

34. When a Brigade is ordered to parade, the Batteries will be marched in charge of an Officer to the general parade ten minutes before the time ordered, to enable the Adjutant to tell off the parade.

35. He will be particular in recommending Non-commissioned Officers for promotion, that they are in every way fit.

SUBALTERNS.

36. The orders respecting Captains of Batteries apply equally to the Subalterns. They will be required to have a perfect knowledge of the Battery to which they belong. From them also is expected the same attention to their duties, and an implicit obedience to the directions of the Officers in command of their Batteries.

37. They cannot have too much zeal in the execution of their duties or too much anxiety for the appearance of their Battery, the dress, conduct and comfort of the men, especially those of their own divisions. They are to instruct them in their duties of artilleryists, and satisfy themselves that they are well acquainted with the practice tables, and that they can lay the guns with precision.

SURGEON.

38. The Surgeon has the entire charge of the hospital and sick of the Brigade.

39. He will send into the orderly room daily, by 10 a.m., a report of sick, according to the War Office form, on the back of which must be inserted the names of all convalescent Officers and men, with a specification of the duties he considers it desirable they should be excused from performing.

40. When men are excused by the Surgeon from performing any part of their duties they are to be seen daily by a medical Officer, to ensure their return to duty immediately they are fit.

41. He or his Assistant must make an inspection of health every Saturday, and one or other is always to be present when the Brigade turns out for parade, when a Battery exercises with ammunition and at practice.

42. He is to send in a written report every Monday morning of the sick who have been under his charge during the preceding week, showing the stations, names, diseases, length of time under treatment, and probable time of recovery with an abstract of the number remaining in Hospital at the date of the last Report, the number admitted, discharged, cured or dead, during the week, and showing the number remaining in Hospital at the date of the report.

43. Exclusive of the above he will immediately report to the Officer Commanding any casualty, accident or case of danger whenever it occurs, and state his opinion as to the occurrence being accidental or the result of design.

44. He will cause all men proceeding to the Military Prison to be inspected at the most convenient hour.

45. He will make arrangements for the inspection of the prisons by 9½ a.m. daily.

46. It is expected that the Surgeon will communicate to the Commanding Officer any improvements that may appear necessary to be suggested as regards the health and comfort of the men.

THE PAYMASTER.

47. This Officer will act as Treasurer to the Brigade, and will receive all subscriptions, fines and funds that may accrue from time to time, for which he will be accountable to the Finance Committee, and make disbursements thereupon only under their direction. He will keep a regular account of the Brigade funds submitting the same for examination and audit at the general Meeting of the Officers or when called upon for such statement by the Commanding Officer. To assist him in the collection of dues and other matters connected with his department he will command the assistance of the Paymaster Sergeant, who is placed immediately under his orders, and will afford such aid as he may require.

48. He is to adhere strictly to the regulations laid down for his department.

49. Wherever he finds it impracticable to transmit the several documents to the Brigade-Office at the prescribed periods, he will specially report in writing to the Commanding Officer the particular circumstances which render delay unavoidable.

ADJUTANT.

50. The duties of the Adjutant being of a complicated and onerous character, will necessitate on his part a due amount of care, diligence, and industry.

51. In consideration of the responsibility which attaches to the situation of Adjutant of a Brigade of Artillery, no Officer should on any account be recommended for the appointment unless he thoroughly understands the duties of a Captain, and is fit in every particular to take command of a Battery, and with a perfect and thorough knowledge of everything connected with interior economy, discipline, and drill. With this view, in the absence of the Adjutant for any period, one of the Senior Subaltern Officers wishing to qualify for Adjutant, and who can, by his attention to regimental duty and detail, be recommended subsequently for the appointment of Adjutant, should be permitted to do the duty in order to acquire a knowledge of the necessary requirements.

52.—The Adjutant must be particular in seeing the Regimental Standing Orders strictly adhered to, and having constant opportunity of observing everything connected with the Brigade, the Commanding Officer should desire and has a right to expect that he will on no consideration withhold from his knowledge any deviation from the established practice and orders. The Adjutant is to be considered as the voice of the Commanding Officer. All orders coming through him are to be implicitly obeyed by all ranks as if given by the Commanding Officer in person.

53. He will take care that every man is well set-up, and that his position and carriage is soldierlike. Every extraordinary occurrence, either in barracks or camp, must be noticed by him.

54. The drills and instruction of young Officers and men are under his immediate superintendance.

55. He will be responsible that the men at extra-drill are practiced not only in marching, but in the use and exercises of arms, and not suffered to go through either in a slovenly or unsoldierlike manner.

56. He is also to keep all books and official papers, correspondence, roster of all duties, leave of absence, Non-commissioned Officers' seniority book, &c., correctly, and in strict conformity to the Queen's Regulations and General Orders.

57. He will be personally present, parade and inspect all Guards and Picquets, or other duties that may be required of him. He will enter such orders as may be issued by the Commanding Officer in the Orderly Book, furnishing the Captains with copies thereof, should it be deemed necessary. The Staff he will notify of such orders as may concern them. He must make himself acquainted with the address of each Officer of the Brigade whom he will duly notify, when necessary, of all parades and meetings of the Officers, and keep a record thereof in the Brigade Minute Book.

58. He will attend all Courts-Martial, taking care that all lawful regulations on this head are strictly attended to, and be prepared to act as a prosecutor, to furnish all information that may be required by the Court as to character, former convictions, age, length of service, &c., and taking care that the prisoner is duly warned for trial, and furnished, if he wishes it, with a copy of the charges, and informed that his former convictions will be brought in evidence against him.

59. He is responsible that young Officers on joining are provided with the necessary books required by regulation, and is to report to the Commanding Officer as soon as he is satisfied that they have made themselves thoroughly acquainted with the Queen's Regulations and the Standing Orders of the Regiment.

60. He will attend all parades, receive reports from Officers commanding Batteries, tell-off the Brigade, and report to the Senior Officer present.

61. He will bring young Officers and recruits before the Commanding Officer for dismissal as soon as they are perfect in the drills and exercises required of them.

62. In the performance of his duties he will be assisted by the Brigade Sergeant Major, who will be immediately under his control, and subject to his orders.

QUARTERMASTER.

63. This Officer will take charge of all stores or other property, public and regimental, handed over to him for safe keeping, and of which he will keep in his books a proper account.

64. He will superintend the issue and delivery of Ammunition whenever the Brigade may require it.

65. He is responsible to the Commanding Officer that all his books are properly kept and indexed, and that all returns relating to stores, forage, etc., are correctly made-up and forwarded by the proper date.

66. It is his duty to see that every part of the barracks or camp is kept in the most perfect order, and will report to the Commanding Officer any deviation he may observe from the orders of the Brigade, or any irregularity or want of cleanliness.

67. The barracks, stables, huts, &c., are to be kept in order by the men of the Batteries occupying them, and each Quartermaster Sergeant of a Battery will be responsible to the Quartermaster that the ground about their own building, as well as that on which its guns are parked, is kept in the most perfect order.

68. The Quartermaster is responsible that a correct list be kept of the buildings occupied by each Battery: also, that the guns are dressed and the carriages stripped before the detachments leave the park.

69. He is answerable that no bad forage of any description is received, and that the regulated quantity is always in store.

70. He is to receive and give up all barracks and to be present at the delivery and exchange of all barrack stores from the Barrack-master.

71. He is to superintend all the weekly issues from the Barrack-master of coals, candles, brooms, &c.

72. He is responsible that the bread and meat delivered to the troops is of good quality and full weight, and will regularly make an inspection of each delivery from the contractors, and in case of the rations being bad, will immediately report to the Commanding Officer and request his instructions.

73. The Quartermaster has general charge and supervision of all Barracks and Buildings in the occupation of the Brigade.

74. He will make a minute inspection of each of them weekly, and bring anything extraordinary to the notice of the Commanding Officer.

78. He is the assistant to the Adjutant, and on him, in a great measure, depends the general smartness of the Brigade. Being at the head of the Non-commissioned Officers, he must be an example of activity and soldier-like conduct; and must exact the most prompt obedience to his orders, and instantly correct any want of spirit or exertion he may observe in them; he must make himself acquainted with every man's name, character, temper and abilities; he must be very diligent in informing himself of every part of his duty, strictly correct in the execution of it, and by his manly, soldierlike conduct, zealous activity and a due regard to the feelings and comforts of those under him, set an example to the rest of the Non-commissioned Officers.

99. They are responsible that the Standing Orders of the Regiment, both in regard to themselves and every Non-commissioned Officer and gunner in the Battery to which they belong, are strictly adhered-to.

100. The situation of a Battery Sergeant Major is one of high respectability; but it depends on their own assiduity and character whether or not they meet with that attention the appointment entitles them to.

105. He must be prompt in rendering aid in case of accident or illness of the men while on duty; he must take charge of such and see them conveyed to their homes or hospitals.

106. He must be vigilant in watching over the conduct of the sick, taking care that no irregularity is committed, that no person is admitted into hospital without leave of the Surgeon, and that no patient is permitted to go out; he is to maintain a strict control over the men in hospital, and to observe that the orderlies not only attend to the sick, but also that they do not conceal or connive at irregularities.

SECTION VI.

NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND MEN.

107. The excellency of a Brigade or Battery depends in a great measure on the conduct of its Non-commissioned Officers; from them is expected the strictest attention to all their duties, the greatest sobriety and regularity of conduct, and attention to dress and appearance. They must insist on strict and prompt compliance with their orders, but at the same time use their authority with discretion, and never allow themselves to be influenced by prejudice or personal ill-will towards any individual.

108. Non-commissioned Officers should be perfectly acquainted with all drills, and be qualified to teach recruits every part of their duties, and they are to take the greatest care in instructing them; and in doing this they must avoid all harshness or impatience, and should be careful not to fatigue the men by keeping them long in one position.

109. Non-commissioned Officers must never make use of abusive or improper language to the men. They are never to suffer a reply when on parade or other duty.

110. Non-commissioned Officers must exact attention, obedience, alertness and precision in all movements and drills, giving the words of command in a decided and authoritative voice.

111. Non-commissioned Officers must be perfectly acquainted with every man in their subdivisions, and answer readily any question concerning them.

112. They must never strike a soldier, or swear at him, or use harsh or violent measures, or call him by opprobrious names.

113. They are at all times to pay the greatest attention to the soldierlike appearance and behaviour of the men, both in and out of quarters.

114. Much misconduct of the men towards Non-commissioned Officers arises from their not supporting a proper and equal authority; for if they allow familiarity at any time, when they are placed in situations where it becomes necessary to exert their authority, they will find it weakened, and this produces hesitation and delay, two serious evils in the service where promptitude in giving and alacrity in obeying orders are so essential.

115. Non-commissioned Officers are never to make use of coarse, violent, or intemperate language towards the men; they are to give their orders plainly and decidedly, in as few words as possible.

116. They must reflect that example is better than precept, therefore it becomes their interest, as well as duty, to be correct in their own conduct.

117. Non-commissioned Officers and Gunners are to pay the proper compliment to all Officers of the Army, Navy, Militia, and Volunteers, when in uniform, and soldiers are to salute all officers and Military Chaplains, whom they know to be such, whether dressed in uniform or not.

118. When a soldier speaks to an Officer he is to stand at attention, as on parade,—having saluted the Officer on approaching him.

119. When he comes into a room he is to do the same, and to take off his cap or busby.

120. When passing an Officer he will salute with his outward hand to his cap, looking the Officer in the face whilst passing him.

121. All good Volunteers will, for their own credit, be obedient to their Officers, attentive to the care of their arms and accoutrements, as well as exact in the discharge of their duties, and always neatly and regimentally dressed; by these means they will show to their Officers that they feel an interest in the credit of the Corps, which will secure them every proper indulgence, comfort and advantage which their situations can afford, and preclude the necessity of that most painful part of an Officer's duty, the inflicting of punishment on those whom they only wish to benefit as their comrades in arms.

122. Non-commissioned Officers and men when in uniform are on no account to smoke in the streets.

123. The first principle that is to be instilled into the mind of every Volunteer, is strict obedience to orders, zeal for the service and an anxious desire to support the character and credit of his own particular regiment; these sentiments will lead him to an honourable and punctual discharge of all his duties, his occupation will be a pleasure rather than a task, and punishment will only be necessary for the idle and unprincipled. Good conduct will always meet its reward. Irregularity and drunkenness will be severely punished.

124. There must be no talking while on parade.

125. No man is to reply to an Officer or Non-commissioned Officer when found fault with on duty or in the ranks.

126. Every Volunteer will be treated with the strictest justice ; if any man has real cause for complaint, he must make it through the Officer commanding his Battery ; and without meaning to encourage trifling complaints, of which every good soldier should be ashamed, it is to be clearly understood, that all real grievances shall be redressed.

127. A Volunteer who is not properly dressed is on no account to salute ; he is to stand at attention till the Officer passes. The same rule is to be observed by a soldier who may be carrying anything that prevents him from saluting properly.

128. No Non-commissioned Officer or soldier present with the Brigade, is to address an Officer in writing on any subject connected with duty.

129. While seniority will generally give the right of promotion, yet, if a Non-commissioned Officer is careless, negligent, or indifferent to his duties, he can never expect preferment to the prejudice of the service.

130. Non-commissioned Officers may be reduced to the ranks for neglect of duty or inefficiency on report of a Regimental Court of Inquiry.

SECTION VII.

FUNDS.

131. Each Officer, on his appointment or promotion, shall pay into the hands of the Paymaster, to be placed to the credit of the Brigade funds, the sum of ten dollars.

132. Each Officer shall pay an annual subscription to the Brigade funds as hereinafter detailed, to meet necessary and unavoidable expenses, such as printing, advertising, Military Bands, &c.; and such subscription shall be paid quarterly, commencing on the first of April instant, viz:—

Major,	$10.00	per annum.
Captains, each,	6.00	“
1st and 2nd Lieutenants,	4.00	“
Staff, according to their respective rank.

133. Any Officer absent from a general parade or meeting, duly called by proper authority, without having previously obtained leave of absence, or from sickness without being duly reported in writing, will be fined 50 cents.

134. Non-payment of subscriptions or fines, after being notified by the Paymaster, will deprive those in default of the right to vote, speak or take any part whatever in the proceedings of a meeting while such default exists. Any Officer in arrears for two quarters may be published in Brigade orders, and will render himself liable to be reported for disobedience of orders, and dealt with accordingly.

135. No liabilities to be incurred, or payments to be made without the sanction of the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or, in his absence, of two members of the same. It shall be deemed sufficient notice when the assessments are due that the time is specified in orders a week previous. The Paymaster shall be in attendance on parade to receive the assessments.

SECTION VIII.

ANNUAL MEETING.

136. The annual meeting of the Officers of the Brigade shall be held on the first Monday of the month of November, at 3 P.M.

137. The Paymaster shall, before the meeting, furnish the Adjutant with a statement of every Officer in arrears (if any), so that the Adjutant will notify each Officer of the amount due by him to the Brigade. Five Officers will be considered a quorum, and the senior Officer present to take the chair. Special meetings may be called by circular, or, when put in Regimental Orders it shall be considered sufficient notice.

138. The Officers will appear in undress uniform at all meetings, unless when otherwise ordered. The following will be the order of proceedings at these meetings: Minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed, or otherwise, as the case may be ; Reports of Committees received ; Notices of motions ; General business.

SECTION IX.

SPECIAL MEETINGS

139. May be called on a requisition signed by any three Captains or Officers commanding Batteries, addressed to the Officer commanding the Brigade, specifying the object for which such meeting is desired, and to the discussion of which the meeting, when called, shall strictly confine itself. The Commanding Officer may at any time call the Officers together for the consideration of any matter affecting the welfare or good order of the Brigade. Three days' notice of all such meetings, when called, must be given : and it shall be considered sufficient notice if the same appears in Brigade Orders.

SECTION X.

COMMITTEES.

140. There shall be a permanent Finance Committee, consisting of two Captains, a 1st Lieutenant and the Paymaster, three of whom will constitute a quorum, and exercise supervision and control over the Brigade funds, and order such disbursements as may

SECTION XI.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

141. No recommendation for appointment to be made for a commission without the name be first submitted to a meeting of Officers, duly convened. A ballot shall take place, and one non-content in five shall exclude the name from recommendation for appointment provided that the number present exceed six.

142. Officers absent on leave will pay their assessments as if on duty, but will not be liable for fines or absence from parade.

143. No Captain or other Officer in command of a Battery shall call out his Battery for any special parade or occasion, except for drill or target practice, without the previous sanction of the Officer commanding, to whom he must address himself in writing, stating the object he has in view.

144. All orders read at any Muster will be held to have been duly communicated to the whole of the Brigade.

145. For leave of absence application must be made in writing to the Commanding Officer for any term beyond a month. For Non-commissioned Officers and Gunners, application must be made to the Officer in command of the Battery ; For Staff-Sergeants to the Officer in command of the Brigade.

146. No alteration or amendment of these Standing Orders can be effected without the sanction of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. Nor can any such alteration be made, or amendment carried, unless due notice has been given at the meeting immediately preceding that at which such change is sought to be made.

SECTION XII.

147. The Brigade shall consist of such number of Batteries as His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief shall direct. There shall be attached to each (until the existing law be altered) a Captain, 1st Lieut., and 2nd Lieut., a Battery Sergeant Major, two Sergeants, three Corporals, and three Bombardiers. The Non-commissioned Officers to be appointed by the Officer in command of the Brigade, on the recommendation of the Officer in command of the Battery.

148. Each Battery shall be divided numerically into two sub-divisions, the first under the charge of the 1st Lieut., the second under the charge of the 2nd Lieut.

They shall keep a record of the names and residences of their respective sub-divisions, and generally look after their drill and discipline, reporting to the Captain.

Accepted and confirmed at a meeting of Officers of the Brigade, held on the 5th April, 1866.

N. H. BOWEN,

Major Commanding Provisional Brigade of Quebec Garrison Artillery.

Approved.

By order of His Excellency the Governor-General and Commander in Chief.

P. L. MACDOUGALL, Colonel,
Adj. General Militia, Canada.

Militia Department,

Ottawa, 10th May, 1866.

The Brigade Orders refer to the internal management of the Brigade ; but in order that the Militia law may be understood, an abstract is given which contains all the principal points relating to Volunteers. It is earnestly enjoined that the Orders and Law be carefully read and thoroughly understood. The Brigade Orders must be strictly observed in every respect. No infraction can be passed by unnoticed ; and the welfare of the Brigade depends upon the vigilant efforts of all ranks to conform to the Standing Orders in every particular.
