EVOUNG SENT UP ON CHARGE OF MURDER

ISONER NOTED TO PLEAD PRELIMINARY

Slaying of Policeman Is Told in Police Court

BAXTER APPEARS Premier Conducts Prosecution in His Capacity as Attorney-General

MURDOGH EVOUNG of Cape Breton today was committed for trial at the next session of the Circuit Court on a charge of having, on the morning of January 1, 1926, murdered Policeman Stephen P. McCavour, in the Seaman's Institute, following trouble developing in New Year celebration of 1926.

The Police Court was almost filled with spectators for the preliminary hearing of Evoung, who had been held for investigation in connection with the death of Policeman McCavour.

NOT ASKED TO PLEAD

Evoung had no counsel and was not asked to plead when the witnesses for the prosecution were called. He made no statement when informed of the charge placed against him.

The hearing took place in the Police Court before Magistrate G. A. Henderson.

Premier J. B. M. Baxter, in the capacity of Attorney-General, conducted the prosecution. Three witnesses were called, Wallace Steele, Dr. H. L. Abrahams, Provincial Pathologist and Police Officer Covay.

The evidence taken was a repetition of that given at the coroner's inquest on Saturday evening.

EVIDENCE HEARD

Steele's evidence was to the effect that he saw Evoung's hand go out and the officer disappeared from view as though he had fallen down stairs. Steele insisted that he heard a sound similar to that made by a flat striking steel and then the sound of a body falling. He re-told of his attempt to get out of the building to bring the police and of his meeting with Officer Covay.

On a question by Magistrate Henderson, Dr. Abrahams said that in his opinion the injury was too extensive to result in anything other than death.

In response to a question by the prisoner, the doctor stated that he had examined the stomach especially to discover if any traces of alcohol were present; there were none.

The case for the prosecution was rested at the evidence of Policeman Covay, who told how he had been summoned to the Institute and what he found there.

New Redistribution In Alberta Planned

A movement is under way among the Radical element of the United Farmers of Alberta providing for a new form of redistribution of the province, according to economic groups. The plan provides for leaving the cities as they are except that the rural sections of city ridings be eliminated. Another proposed change under the plan would be to take the town out of the rural ridings and mobilize them into one, two or three constituencies. A third change would be to apply the same principle to the villages in the province.

Quiet Again Reigns In B. C. Mine Area

Five Stores Looted Last Night by Mob After U. M. W. Meeting

GLACE BAY, N. S., Jan. 4.—The situation throughout the southern colliery district was quiet this morning, following last night's series of depredations by a mob, who, fresh from a mass meeting called by the United Mine Workers of America, to protest against the government, looted the stores of B. Siegel, Peter Mackenzie, A. Lang, L. Goldman, and L. Cherin. Today the miners and their sympathizers were looking to Halifax, where a special meeting of the local government had been called to consider the situation.

As a result of the rioting the store of A. Lang was burned to the ground. Mackenzie's store caught fire, but the blaze was extinguished before it had gained headway.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 4.—The Nova Scotia government went into session at 12:30 o'clock this morning for the purpose of considering the situation in the Cape Breton mining area.

Admiralty Denies Vindictive's Trip To China Due To Unrest

LONDON, Jan. 4.—It is officially stated at the Admiralty that the decision to send the Vindictive to China was reached months ago and has nothing to do with the stories of unrest said to have been caused among members of the crew by Bolshevik agitators of any nature which appears to be aimed against discipline.

Vindictive has forbidden the circulation of certain seditious leaflets among the crew, said an admiralty official. These leaflets bear no imprint, and are of a high seditious nature. There is no reason to suppose that the crew of the Vindictive paid particular attention to them, but the captain of any ship in the fleet is free to forbid propaganda of any nature which appears to be aimed against discipline.

CROWN PRINCE OF RUMANIA IS FOUND IN MILAN

Blue-Eyed, Red-Haired Jewish Woman Guest at Dinner

CAROL IS ANGRY

Fact Established That Morganatic Wife, Zyzis Lambrino, Has Remarried

LONDON, Jan. 4.—At least three points in the mystery surrounding Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, and his relinquishment of his right to ascend the throne, have been cleared up. Carol is in Milan. Also there is Miss Lupesco, the blue-eyed, red-haired daughter of a Jewish merchant of Jassy, Rumania, with whom Carol is on friendly terms. Zyzis Lambrino, former morganatic wife of the Prince, has remarried.

Carol last night, at the hotel where he is staying in Milan, gave a dinner to his entourage.

MME LUPESCO THERE

Madame Lupesco, who reports say, by her charm and calm dignity, provoked comment when she is seen in the public room of the hotel, also was a guest. At her place at the table was a huge bouquet of white flowers—of the same kind that she threw into his automobile, enclosing a love note which brought them together in the bonds of matrimony.

Prior to the sensational announcement of abdication, reports from Milan asserted that Mrs. Lupesco had been seen motoring together, but when the storm broke, these pleasure rides ceased. Carol remained in seclusion, but Mrs. Lupesco occasionally makes her appearance in the foyer and other public parts of the hotel.

FLIES INTO RAGE

To a number of written questions sent in by the correspondent of the Daily Express, Carol replied, also in London.

WORE BRIGHT CLOTHES

Margherita always wore clothes of a bright hue in contrast to King Humbert, who was noted for his simplicity of apparel.

She kept in touch with the latest developments in the arts, literature and science. She wrote a work on "The Heroines of Shakespeare," that never has been published. She also wrote poetry. She was opposed to divorce. A bill introduced in the Italian parliament in 1902 was withdrawn at her request.

An attempt was made to assassinate her in 1905, while motoring at Little St. Bernard. Two arrests were made. While at Evians Les Bains, she was stoned.

LOVED MOTORING

She loved motoring so much that she was arrested and fined for speeding the coach of parliament for the first time. Eight or ten more will be returning to parliament after years of absence. Of those who sat in the last parliament which had 285 members, about 125 were again returned in the October elections.

Gossip begins to hum about the capital. Most of it is sheer speculation, the line up in the house being so indecisive. "Anything may happen," seems to be the general comment.

Cabinet meets this afternoon in full council. Caucuses by the political parties will no doubt take place within a few days, as soon as a majority of the members are on hand. Sessional programs are being discussed but little has been divulged. Watchful waiting is the policy of all three parties at present.

MOTHER OF ITALIAN KING IS DEAD; HUSBAND WAS MURDERED

Dowager Queen Margherita Passes Away in 75th Year—Was Much Loved on Account of Charity—Attempt Was Made to Assassinate Her in 1905

Genoa, Italy, Jan. 4.—Dowager Queen Margherita, mother of King Victor Emmanuel, died today, in her 75th year. She had been ill of pulmonary pleurisy for several weeks.

Charity throughout her life caused Margherita Maria Teresa Giovanna, widow of King Humbert, to be especially beloved. When a bullet fired by an anarchist killed Humbert, the hearts of the world were filled with sympathy for her. She was ever ready to organize benefits for many philanthropic institutions under her patronage.

Even in her teens she obtained work for women of want, for she did not believe in indiscriminate alms-giving. She was a regular visitor to hospitals and asylums.

BARK LOST AT SEA

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 4.—The British bark Maid of England, has been burned at sea and abandoned, said a radio message relayed last night by the coast guard cutter Yamacraw from the German motorship Rio Bravo. The German ship reported she had rescued the bark's crew of nine men and would land them at Havana.

The burning took place several hundred miles southeast of Bermuda. She was last reported at Turks Island, December 16, to load for Baltimore.

The Maid of England was owned by F. K. Warren and Co., Halifax, N. S. She was built at Crosses Coques, Nova Scotia, in 1919, and was 887 tons register. She was engaged in carrying a cargo of salt from Turks Island to Baltimore on her last voyage. The members of her crew were for the most part, Nova Scotians.

COUNTRY IS PUT UNDER MILITARY DICTATORSHIP

Premier Also Postpones Indefinitely Senatorial Elections

IS GIVEN OVATION

Guards Regiments at Complimentary Dinner Cheer as Announcement Ends

By ANTHONY PAPAYAN. United Press Staff Correspondent.

ATHENS, Jan. 4.—Greece today is under the rule of a dictatorship. Premier Pangalos has proclaimed himself dictator and indefinitely postponed the senatorial elections.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Coincident with the troubled situation in Rumania, due to the resignation of Crown Prince Carol and reports of a conspiracy to overthrow the monarchy, comes the news that two other of the Balkan States are in turmoil.

In Greece, General Pangalos, Premier and Minister of War, the man who deposed King Constantine and placed the crown on the head of King George, has announced that he will assume the reins of the government, thereby instituting a military dictatorship.

TROUBLE IN BULGARIA

Due to failure to bring the members of his cabinet into harmony, the Bulgarian premier, M. Tsankov, has handed his resignation to King Boris.

Andray Lipitcheff, a former finance minister and a Macedonian, will endeavor to form a new ministry. The resignation of the ministry followed a hectic session in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday night, during which lack of harmony between the ministers was extremely evident.

Pangalos is the man who once said that the Greeks went to war with the olive branch in one hand and the sword in the other.

He announced his decision to take over the entire control of the government during a banquet in his honor, given by the Democratic guard regiments.

ARMED FORCE PLANNED

Parliamentary government was the cause of all Greece's troubles, he added, and "I am therefore preparing a program, one based solely on armed force."

He also said the Senate elections has been postponed indefinitely owing to the attitude and statements of certain party leaders who persisted in giving the elections a political aspect which would only tend to inflame public passions and disturb public order.

The heads of the foreign affairs and navy departments did not attend the dinner. The Premier was given an ovation when he concluded his address. Later the guards led the dining hall and paraded the principal streets of the city, cheering for Pangalos.

A Little Bit of History

Not so many years ago two young lads found a business on their inexperienced hands. A Furniture Store, one that held no great advantage over competition; its prices were just the same and its goods no better.

People like to see young chaps get ahead. So when these juniors showed a talent for gathering together Furniture in the loveliest taste the public was their friend.

The business took great leaps forward. The young fellows were now able to buy in far larger quantity than competition and, by watching their dollars carefully, pay cash and obtain prices below the general market.

Thus they offered the public better value and variety on top of better taste until in due course their none too central store worked up the largest patronage in the Maritime Provinces.

"I Pushed Him With My Hand, But Did Not Intend to Do Him Any Harm," Declares Cape Breton Seaman

DETAILS OF TRAGEDY ARE DISCLOSED

Walter Steele, Charlottetown, Repeats Statement That He Saw Evoung Strike Constable During Drunken Brawl at Seamen's Institute; Inquest Resumed Tonight

MURDOCH EVOUNG, of St. Peters, Cape Breton, N. S., seaman, admitted, while on the stand at the coroner's inquest, Saturday night, convened for the purpose of inquiring into the tragic death of Policeman William P. McCavour in the Seamen's Institute early Friday morning, that he had "pushed the policeman" when the latter tried to follow him up stairs after he had left the dance hall, where much drinking had been going on among the men.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner H. A. Porter, while D. King Hazen was present in interests of the Seamen's Institute.

In the course of his evidence, Evoung stated that when he had left the dance hall, apparently to go to bed, he noticed Policeman McCavour standing near a telephone pole handy to the institute. He had looked out through the open door and saw the policeman. The latter had followed him upstairs, witness said, and when near the top of the first story the policeman had approached him and mentioned something about liquor. Evoung declared that he was not quite clear what the officer said, but he turned around and pushed the policeman down the stairs.

Following this he rushed upstairs and in a few minutes came down, passed the body of the policeman lying on the floor of the first landing, left the institute and started for his ship. Changing his mind, he came back and was later picked up by the police.

STAR WITNESS HEARD. Walter Steele, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., star witness for the police, stated that he saw Evoung strike the policeman when the latter came upstairs from the ground floor of the institute, apparently in order to quell an argument between some of the men. Steele stated further that he was standing at the door of the reading room and saw Evoung hit the officer. When this happened he (Steele) rushed forward and shouted, "What the hell is the matter here?" With this, James Melville replied that it was no business of his, followed by a punch in the forehead and (as he fell) a kick in the mouth. He recovered himself and rushed down the stairs, passed the body of the policeman and continued to the street, where he summoned help. Quite a number of the men had been in the dance hall just previous to the incident, where Evoung had produced four bottles, all the men present having a drink. The policeman had come and said something to Evoung, he thought it was about keeping quiet, as Evoung was quite argumentative.

JANITOR TESTIFIES. Harold Bowden, janitor, said that there had been much drinking among the men but he had not seen any of the men actually taking a drink. He had locked the dance hall room at 2:30 o'clock and all was quiet. Shortly after this he heard the front door open and somebody go upstairs. Within a few minutes the door opened again and somebody went upstairs. Shortly after, he said, he heard a scuffle followed by a thud. He rushed out of the office and saw Policeman McCavour lying at the foot of the stairs. He could not tell how the officer got into the building as he had not seen him.

ONLY HEAD INJURED. Dr. H. L. Abramson, provincial pathologist, in his evidence, gave a detailed account of the autopsy. The body of Policeman McCavour, he said, showed no signs of bruises except those on the head.

Dr. Abramson stated emphatically that there was no trace of alcohol in the dead policeman's system.

WALTER STEELE. Walter Steele was called and testified that his friend, the Charlottetown, P. E. I. He was a seaman, having worked on the steamer Empress. He was in the Seamen's Institute on the night of December 31st and the morning of January 1st. He and a friend were in the reading room on the second floor, his friend's name was Gallant, who was working with witness last summer. There was a dance being held on the lower floor and it was between 1 and 2 o'clock New Year's morning before the dancer left the building. Witness said that he entered the institute about 10 o'clock Thursday evening and had been to the Salvation Army quarters and the place was locked up. Witness was giving lodging at the institute for the night, but could not obtain a bed.

SAW COUPLE ARGUING. In the early morning he saw two men, who claimed to be brothers, in an argument. One of the fellows was Murdock Evoung, who carried a black bag, but at that time witness did not know what was in the bag. A man who appeared to be in charge of the building told Evoung and his companion to keep quiet. The two men went up stairs to the sleeping quarters and was quiet for a while. Shortly after the men upstairs were singing when this time Harold Bowden, janitor of the building, went to the men and told them they had better come down stairs to the dance hall and sing there. The men assembled in the dance hall where they sang and danced. Witness said that he then joined the party and gave a step dance for them.

WARNED BY CONSTABLE. Evoung and another man were quite noisy and Police Constable McCavour entered the hall, but after speaking to the men went out again. Evoung had the black bag and opened it in the dance hall. There were several sealed quart bottles of whiskey in the bag. There were a dozen or fourteen men present and they all had a drink of whiskey, including witness, who took but the one drink.

City Officials, Police, and Hundreds of Citizens Attend Funeral of Officer M'cavour

AS THE FUNERAL procession of Police Constable Stephen P. McCavour passed on through the streets of West Saint John to Lorneville yesterday afternoon, citizens of all ranks of life followed in the wake of the hearse, paying a last tribute of respect to the policeman who in the faithful performance of his duty was fatally injured at the Seamen's Institute New Year's morning.

Between two and three hundred marched in the procession as it left the residence, 258 Watson street, West Saint John. When the procession entered the village of Lorneville many mourners in automobiles and sleighs joined with those who had followed from the residence. It was one of the longest funeral processions that has been known in West Saint John.

The service at the family residence in Watson street was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. E. Freeman. The choir of the academy street Baptist church was present and led in the singing of the hymns, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide With Me." Dr. Freeman in his short address eulogized the faithfulness of Police Constable McCavour and spoke words of consolation to the bereaved.

As the funeral procession left the residence, Acting Mayor J. H. Frink, Commissioner W. L. Harding, department of public safety, and Commissioner R. W. Wigmore, county warden, walked first. The Carlton Cornet band followed and behind marched a detachment chosen from the city police in mourning uniform with badges draped in crepe and wearing white gloves. Following the hearse came the long procession of mourners.

The funeral passed along Watson street to Rodney street, and along Rodney street to the residence of the family. Coaches were taken at the corner of Prince and Champlain streets.

The service at the grave in Lorneville was conducted by Rev. Peter Jackson, minister of the United church, and was attended by large numbers of the people. The hearse was followed by a large number of six of his associates in the police force were pall bearers. They were: Sergt. Stephen Spencey, Police Constables John McElhinney, James McNamee, William Blackwell, Albert Gill and Frank Killen.

Among the great profusion of beautiful flowers were the following: Wreath from His Worship Mayor Frank L. Potts, M.L.A.; wreath from Chief of Police Smith; wreath from Police Magistrate George A. Henderson; wreath from the Police Protective Association; a wreath from the City Commissioners; a wreath from the Marine and Fisheries department; a wreath from S. P. McCavour, of Ottawa; floral pieces from Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McCavour, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pedersen and many others.

WALLACE BRINDLE. Wallace Brindle testified that he had been manager of the Seamen's Institute for the past two years. He was at the institute and was there on Friday until shortly after 1 o'clock on Friday morning. There had been a dance there the night before and it was conducted in an orderly manner. The dance was open upstairs until 10:15 o'clock and only soft drinks, coffee, sandwiches, cigarettes and tobacco were sold. This was on the second floor. Witness then described the interior of the building. The dance broke up about 11 o'clock and the men went to the building for his home. He did not notice any signs of drinking on the lower floor and there was no strong smell of liquor. There was no sign in the building. Mr. Thistle was in charge of the dance. It was his duty to report any disorder there, and no such report was made. There was no pervasion of the dormitory and no peering of the same.

Between 8 and 8:30 o'clock Friday morning witness said that he was called on the telephone and told there was trouble in the institute. He asked if it was necessary for him to go there and was told "No." Shortly after he was called again, and went to the institute and met the officers and others. They all went to police headquarters. Witness stated that the building was called again, and the constable wished him the compliments of the season and gave witness a cigar. There was no sign in the building several times during the night. So far as he knew McCavour was in the large hall and in no other section of the building. When witness left the building shortly after 1 o'clock Friday morning he left Harold Bowden in charge. It did not occur to him that the man who was drinking upstairs in the building on New Year's eve. There had been no disturbance in the institute this season. Witness stated that the building was closed at 10 o'clock at night and was opened only for men who had been working on ships. There was no intoxicated persons are allowed in the building and no liquor allowed there.

HAROLD BOWDEN. Harold Bowden testified that he was janitor of the building. He reported to Manager Brindle that the man who was drinking upstairs in the building on Friday morning that the men were upstairs drinking among themselves, that there were signs of a fight, and that the men were otherwise quiet. Mr. Brindle replied that they would perhaps quiet down later. After Mr. Brindle had left, witness went to the men were coming from the dance and the place was in a bad mess. Witness then went into the office. Later he went upstairs and saw a man named Snowden, who works there, putting a drunken man to bed. Later he saw Steele in the reading room and witness went into the office. Everything was normal about 2:30 o'clock when he took a table upstairs. Some men followed him downstairs and went into the dance hall and stayed there for some time and then returned to the upper section of the building.

MARTELLE EVICTED. A man named Stephenson was intoxicated and witness told him to go to bed. Evoung and Martelle had an argument on the second floor and they were under the influence of liquor and witness put Martelle out of the house. Evoung went upstairs. Police Constable McCavour came into the building shortly after 3:30 o'clock but only remained a short time. It was after 2:30 o'clock that witness heard some person going up stairs and all was quiet. Some time after 3 o'clock he heard a scuffle on the stairs, then a thud, as if some person had fallen. Upon investigating he found Officer McCavour lying at the foot of the stairs. Witness heard some person running up the stairs and he called him to come back. Witness saw the man who was the police officer in an attempt to revive him and saw Steele rushing from the building with Melville following him. Later on the police arrived and all in the building went to police headquarters. He said there were eight or nine men drinking in the building. He told the men to come down to the dance hall as he thought it would quiet them.

Police Constable Edmund Covay testified that about being summoned to the institute by Walter Steele and going to the place with Inspector Caples and Constable Phimey, how they found Officer McCavour unconscious and lying on the floor of the building under the influence of liquor, but quite able to hit a man.

INSPECTOR THOMAS CAPLES. Inspector Thomas Caples told of being summoned to the institute and finding McCavour. This was about 3:30 o'clock. He found Evoung in the street and took him along. He accused Evoung of pushing McCavour down the stairs. One witness in the dormitory, witness said of the men were drunk, some of them had been drinking. Constable McCavour, said the inspector, was a good officer and would be a great loss to the force.

JOHN OLDBAM. John Oldham told about Evoung hiding under his bed where he was found by the police. There had been much drinking upstairs in the building. There had been a disturbance in the dance hall shortly after 2 o'clock and Evoung had tried to go out the back door but was stopped by Constable McCavour. He said that if he went on the street with him he would be fined $200. Witness said that he went to bed and knew nothing of the policeman being injured until after he had been placed in custody by the police.

SIXTEEN RELEASED. There will be no charge laid against any person by Sergeant Detective Power with regard to the death of Police Constable McCavour until the inquest is concluded, it was stated last evening by Coroner H. A. Porter all the men were allowed their liberty on the understanding that they appear at the County Court tonight when the inquest will be resumed except Murdoch Evoung, James Melville, Patrick Martelle, James Bent and Walter Steele. The latter is being held as a material witness.

THE MORNING TRAIN FOR TORMENTINE-CANCELLED JAN. 4TH. DR. HARRY L. ABRAMSON. Dr. Harry L. Abramson, provincial pathologist, testified that he performed an autopsy on the body of Constable McCavour in the morgue at the General Public Hospital. He found in the body well developed and well nourished, chest, organs and abdominal organs perfectly healthy. There was a scratch on the left cheek, the upper lip and witness went into the office. Everything was normal about 2:30 o'clock when he took a table upstairs. Some men followed him downstairs and went into the dance hall and stayed there for some time and then returned to the upper section of the building.

Some one a bit wry? A contemporary newspaper comments: "The question, 'Is life worth living?' has come up again. Satisfied. (Ted Robinson in Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Of course we view with some regret the ending vacation. And yet, as officeward I turn, I feel no fierce resentment—My daily sustenance I earn With more or less contentment. I often hear men heave a sigh O'er boyhood's free existence—Their memories thereof, say I, Are softened much by distance. I'd rather be gray-haired than know Such grief as I remember. When I was dragged so long ago, To school, with each September 'Twas then I fairly wept to see The end of each vacation, And thridium which contained for me No hope of compensation. Sigh as ye will, ye foolish men, To join those bright-faced scholars—I wouldn't go through that again For ninety thousand dollars!

The "Desert," at Freeport, Me. (Portland Telegram.)

The Saunterer has seen at last what is known as "The Desert in Freeport, Me. This freak of nature is about three miles from the village post office on the road to Pownal. It is a strip of land perhaps a mile long and one-quarter of a mile wide, entirely covered with fine sand, at times rising into ridges several feet high. Standing quite near the road is a big old barn, and near the barn is a cedar which was the site of a house burned many years ago. Not far beyond this barn the sand has rolled up a conical heap fully twelve feet high. On three sides of this desert are forests, the trees including beech, pine, oak and cherry. How long this tract of land has been a desert, and how it happened to be, are questions that none of the residents of the village could answer. Professor William Kendall, who was born in Freeport in 1861, says the desert was there just about as it is today as long ago as he can remember. The Saunterer could not learn the year when the house was burned, though he was told that a woman who once lived in the house is still living in Freeport. Telling about this desert to Mr. Norton of the Natural History Society, the latter said he had seen it, but could not explain its origin. He said he had seen similar, though not so large or so rolling strips of sanded plain, in Anson, Wayne and New Portland.

THE EVERLASTING RELIGION.

IN FAR away India, Theosophists are busy defying, with elaborate ceremony, a youth whom they believe to be the Spirit of Confucius, Buddha, Jesus and Mahomet. They call him Krishnamurti. He is, they solemnly aver, the Great Teacher.

There is, however, nothing new about Krishnamurti's teachings. When he says that, "Every man is but the product of his own desires," and "Man is the maker of his own destiny, and what he wills to do cannot be stayed by any power on earth or in Heaven," he is but repeating what philosophers since the days of ancient Greece have been telling men.

THE foundations of this new sect are found on examination to be the same as those of Christianity, Buddhism, Mohammedanism.

Very old is the observation, "There is only one religion, but many forms of it."

All religion is, at bottom, a searching for the ideal which we cannot obtain without the six things named above, and so we find them being

December days were brief and chill, The winds of March were wild and drear, And, nearing and receding still, Spring never would we thought, be here. The leaves that burst the suns that shine, Had, not the less, their certain date— And thou, O human heart of mine, Be still, refrain thyself, and wait. —Arthur Hugh Clough.

It is curious that the year will end with a net profit of thirty million dollars. Railway matters were thrashed out so fully recently that there is no need to remind our readers what was said by either Mr. King or Mr. Meighan. The way things are going it may be best to leave the manager of the railway to his job without outside interference. We may soon be able to say that there was "a railway problem; not 'is' a railway problem.

GREATER CAPACITY TO PRODUCE

(Times' Engineering Supplement, London.)

The surplus producing capacity is now such as to constitute a positive handicap to industry and to weight it down with a burden of unproductive capital expenditure. . . . It is estimated that during the war the producing capacity of British shipyards and marine engineering and boiler shops was increased, but there is no employment for them. . . . This is to be said, however, that the handicaps under which the shipbuilding and the associated trades are now operating, cannot be attributed to the employers in those trades, to their workmen, or to any lack of technical capacity for technical progress of the most pronounced character. The handicaps are all outside the industries themselves.

Who's Who

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

FOR many years many owners and managers in industry have fought trade unions and wasted large sums of money in the battle to destroy these organizations of workers," said William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor in a recent speech.

Wm. Green.

"Such policies of trade union opposition have always been productive of losses, which cannot be measured in the terms of dollars," he said.

"These losses are represented in an absence of good will, of co-operation, of a high standard of service and in the unfavorable psychological condition which is created among the workers."

"Labor realizes that the success of management means the success of labor."

"For that reason labor is willing to make its contribution to assist management and to bring about the right solution of problems dealt with by management."

"Management holds a most strategic position. Its activities and its policies touch the very life, well-being and happiness of the workers. Chief among the ideals of labor is the development of cordial relations between the workers and management. The workers believe that through understanding and co-operation the best interests of all those associated with industry can be served. It is the hope and desire of labor that management will respond to this lofty sentiment so that in the consideration of policies management may seek to understand, not what it might expect the workers to do, but, instead, what the workers may be able and competent and willing to do."

SAVINGS OF THE WISE

Great men, taken up in any way, are profitable companies. We cannot look, however, imperfectly, upon a great man, without gaining something by him. . . . No nobler feeling than this of admiration for one higher than himself dwells in the breast of man—Thomas Carlyle.

Reckon the days in which you have not been angry. I used to be angry every day; now every other day; then every third and fourth day; and if you miss it so long as thirty days, offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving to God.—Epictetus.

One of the happy surprises of existence seems to be that of discovering in the power of doing a difficult thing well, a developed grace for doing lesser things better.—Annie Fields.

You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and forge yourself one.—J. A. Froese.

LIFE

Here is a series of metaphors from a Portuguese poet: "Life is a flower by a stream; Life is a breath that is drawn; Life is a comet's gleam; Life is a lark at dawn; A cloud by wild wind tossed; A war on the wild sea lot; In the pathless ocean's spume; Life is a drifting feather; From a bird in stormy weather, Swirled helplessly altogether; On the moaning winds of doom."

TEA AND MEDICINE

Doctors not only disagree with themselves. They also disagree with everything we eat and drink. Is there anything they have not barred and banned at one time or another? Yes. There is one thing. They had forgotten to rob us of our cup of tea. But even that harmless beverage is now on the medical black list. A doctor

WEALTH, SPEED AND MODICITY

Wealth and speed are what the world admires, and what everyone is striving for. Railways, postal facilities, steamships, "and all possible facilities" for communication. It is these with which the civilized world strives to over refine itself, and thus attain its mediocrity.—Gotha, 1881.

Future Welfare of Maritime Provinces Demands Common Policy And a United Front

THE Maritime Provinces are represented in the House of Commons at Ottawa by an ever dwindling unit now fixed at twenty-nine.

The federal election in October so far as Eastern Canada is concerned, resulted in a protest against existing conditions in this country which no political leader, his followers or the supporters of Confederation can ignore.

WHAT is the remedy?

It is admitted that the prospective lot of any Maritime Province member of parliament, who does not stand out openly in support of Canadian ideals and the use of Canadian ports will not be a happy one.

THE Maritime Provinces will be surprised indeed if all the members elect from these parts do not present a united front in insisting that either Sir Henry Thornton or Sir Henry's policy of building up United States ports be scrapped.

The Liberal members must hold up to ridicule Sir Wilfred Laurier's policy of Canada for Canadians or they must back his unalterable determination that Sir Henry's policy of Canada for Americans be abandoned.

They will have behind them not only the people whom they are elected to represent but the endorsee of every leading newspaper of Canada, irrespective of its geographical location or its political bearings.

HISTORY is in the making so far as Canada is concerned.

Will our representatives fail to make the most of their opportunities? In urging the upbuilding of Eastern Canada we are only asking what is in the interests of all Canada, and all Canada has been good enough to say amen to our petition.

Can the Maritime Provinces in turn depend on their representatives in parliament who are asked to disregard for the moment their petty political differences and unite in support of principles which both of their parties have professed to support but which unfortunately for these parts both have ignored?

Deaths

Frank J. Wilson

After an illness of only a few days Frank Joseph Wilson died at his residence, 119 Victoria street, on Sunday, Jan. 3, 1926.

He was 87 years of age and for the last 15 years had been in the employ of Manchester Robertson Allison, Limited.

He held the position of salesman and was very popular with his associates and highly regarded by all who knew him.

He is survived by his wife and two young sons. The children are Frank J. and Donald C. The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence.

J. Edgar Edgett

Following a short illness of pneumonia, J. Edgar Edgett passed away at his residence, 249 Charlotte street, on Jan. 3, 1926.

He had been in the employ of Manchester Robertson Allison, Limited, for 35 or 40 years and was a buyer in the wholesale department. He made several transatlantic trips on business for the firm and his wise judgment and marked ability in his own work were widely recognized.

There is No Such Thing as a "Sure System" in Picking Out the Sort of Wife or Husband Any One Will Make, and Most of the Pre-Matrimonial Tips Are Unreliable—With the Wisest It's Guesswork.

Is it possible to take marriage out of the list of extra-hazardous risks and put it in the sure-thing class?

Is it possible for a man to become really acquainted with the woman he marries before he marries her?

Can any woman ever really know the man who leads her to the altar until after she has taken that fatal journey with him?

There will be two answers to these questions. The experienced will give a thunderous "No" in reply, while those who have never tried it will say "Yes."

Every flapper believes that she understands man. Every youth is convinced that woman is an open book that he can read at pleasure, and so they can see no reason why any fairly intelligent man or woman cannot psychoanalyze the party of the other part and know them from the last hair of their heads to the last quirk in their characters.

DOROTHY DIX

But those who have been up against the matrimonial proposition and have had personal experience know better. They will tell you that only ignorance of what they were getting in marriage made them blunder into the mess they did, and even the happiest Darcy and Joan admit that the things that astounded them most in matrimony were the things they didn't know about each other.

YOU may have been familiar with Johnny Jones ever since the days when you made mud pies and went to kindergarten together, but when you become Mrs. John Jones you have to become acquainted with a man the inner secrets of whose mind and temper and crankiness is as unknown to you as if you had never seen him before. You may have known Mary Smith since grammar-school days, but the minute she becomes the wife of your bosom you have to deal with a bunch of peculiarities, nerves and ways that you never suspected her of having concealed about her person.

It is the impossibility of really getting acquainted with a person before you marry him or her that is at the base of the theory that marriage is a lottery, and that when you go into it you had as well be guided by a dream book or a hunch as anything else.

Of course this is madness, but it is sadly true that no matter how prudent and cautious a man may be, there is no way by which he can judge with any degree of certainty whether a woman will make him a good wife or not. Nor is there any way by which a girl can get an accurate line upon the sort of a husband a man will turn out to be. Both may depend upon a system of picking the winners, as the race handicappers do with about the same chances of success. It turns out all right if they are lucky. Otherwise they lose, but with the wisest it is a matter of guessing.

NOW, roughly speaking, the virtues of a good husband are sympathy, consideration, tenderness and generosity, while the qualifications that make a woman a desirable wife are an amiable disposition, a soft tongue, a skilled hand and a loving heart. It looks as if it should be easy enough for every man in search of a wife and every woman desiring a husband to find out if their intended possess these qualities. Yet in reality it is practically impossible to do so.

How is a girl to judge if a man will make her a tender, considerate and loving husband, who will overlook her faults, pity her when she is sick and bear with her during all the times of mental and physical anguish that come to a woman, and that make her a torment to herself and to those about her?

She cannot tell by his conduct as a lover, for every lover tells his lady love that she is perfect and that he worships her. Nor can she judge by what men say of him, for the "good-fellow" man is often the worst of husbands—"Joy of the street and sorrow of the home," as the old French proverb puts it.

NOR can she any way to tell whether he will be stingy or generous with his money. She cannot argue that he will be a liberal husband from the gifts that he made her before marriage, for many a man who lavishes expensive presents upon his sweetheart stints his wife in street-car fare. Nor can she be guided by the name he has for generosity among men, for many a man who spends with both hands when he is downtown is so close fisted at home that his wife has to pry every nickel out of him with a crowbar.

The old axiom that a good son makes a good husband is also a fallacy, for chief among feminine martyrs are the women who have married devoted sons and who have not only had to take a second place in their husbands' affections, but have had their mothers-in-law's perfections and her ways and her pies thrown up to them as long as they live.

On the other hand, there is many a man who has been a careless and indifferent son, whose whole emotional nature is awakened by his wife and who shows her a tenderness and devotion that makes her blessed among her sex.

MEN are equally helpless when they seek for tips about how to choose a wife. When they are on the anxious seat all girls are so amiable and sweet and mild that it really seems a choice among angels. After marriage—but that is another story.

A man can't judge a girl's disposition by what her family says of her, for they are trying to "sell" her to him. He can't go by what her girl friends say, for no girl is boasting another girl's stock in a depressed matrimonial market. He can't even figure out from her face whether she is domestic or not, for the cook may be responsible for the crime and things may not be as hopeless as they seem.

IT ISN'T safe for him to marry a poor girl on the theory that she will be thrifty because she has had to pinch pennies all her life. The chances are that, never having had any money to spend before, she will think his salary is unlimited wealth and rush into riotous extravagance. Nor can he be certain he is wise in passing up the flighty girl, for she is as likely as not to turn sensible as soon as she is married and make the most industrious and practical of wives.

So there we are, with no way of solving the conundrum of what we are getting when we put our heads into the matrimonial grab-bag. Yet if people could know each other before marriage as well as they do afterward, it would make for matrimonial happiness—if it did not break up matrimony altogether.

WORE SCHOOLBOY "HOWLERS" LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Rev. Martin Thorpe, a schoolmaster, formerly chaplain of Willesden Education committee, published the following "howlers" in his school magazine:—"Hastein was the sculptor who made the memorial in Hyde Park."

Backs Are Important in the Mode

Paris has given a backward glance to the mode and lends importance to the details which mark the chic of the gown.

Elaboration at the back is the keynote of feminine smartness. The cape back, popular seasons ago, has returned for its share of chic and frequently appears on the very newest and smartest of afternoon and evening gowns.

The cape, which further calls attention to itself, is lined with rich metal fabrics in colors of no uncertain brilliance. The cape coat is also much worn in the smart manner along the avenue and is often effective in fur, which may also be bordering the coat.

The scarf of distinctive lines also is used to show importance behind the new mode. It is lined in rich tones and falls with graceful folds down the backs of the newest frocks.

The frock that ties behind is decidedly new and effective. The large bow, or small tie, is a mark of distinction on many of the newest models. In the evening gown of gold lame or metal lace, employing an ornamental grille, the lines at the back achieve smartness by distinctive draping which gives the broken hem line.

The decorated back is further noted to denote new treatments, but frequently one side will be used for decorative purposes.

The bolero may, of course, call attention to itself by appearing in the front as well, but many times it proclaims a new note by its broken lines at the back alone. The bolero effect makes possible the lines of a two-piece frock and is doubly popular because of this.

The upward movement in front is still seen, and the frock which ties in front and gives a graceful flare are noted for the unusual lines with which Paris backs them.

There is a flounce effect, often richly furled, which gives importance to the back, while a hint of the old bustle is seen in many of the draped girdles and bows behind.

The centre of the back is not always used to denote new treatments, but frequently one side will be used for decorative purposes. The gown of simple lines in front, with ample back, is apt to show an extreme fullness at one side caught with an ornament of beauty.

Materials play a leading role in deciding the manner in which a frock shall be draped. Velvets, which are so much seen this winter, lend themselves perfectly to all treatments. They fall with graceful appeal in a cape back, or are smartly draped into a back fullness at a low placed waistline.

Metal fabrics do not drape well and so rely upon distinctive cut for their chic. The two-piece frock, or bolero type, are found in metallic materials in the most formal types of gown. Laces are particularly effective in the draped mode. They are also smartly used in flounces and panels and are very new in the tiered lines which the season advances.

Dorothy Mackall, whose blond loveliness is well adapted to the mode of flowing lines and smart back treatments, has selected a very new frock of more which boasts a decorated back. Miss Mackall is appearing in the new First National picture, "Joanna."

Timely Views on World Topics

WHAT the well-bedded young man will carry this winter? I saw it in the window of a Fifth avenue haberdashery. To all intents and appearances it is a brief case. But that's where you're fooled, for it really contains three pockets. In one is a lady-like little silver flask, next is a hip-pocket size, and finally there is a place for the refill station.

YOU'D never know our old friend Babe Ruth. The "king of swat" has set out apparently to become the winter Beau Brummel. Saw him at the Cotton Club the other night, dolled up in one of those trick opera capes, usually associated with melodrama villains, a high top-piece and immaculate evening dress. Mrs. Babe was along.

HARRY THAW continues to reappear along night club row from time to time. And he always leaves something to talk about, whether it be the presentation of a diamond bracelet or an argument. This time, I am told, Thaw got quite excited about the "effeminate practice of wearing wrist watches." He made quite an oration on the "stiffified stuff," according to one of my spies and secret agents.

SPEAKING of night clubs, the pedlock makers continue to work their plants overtime supplying locks for the New York places that turn night-time into day.

Just how rapid has been the growth of this industry can be gathered from the news item that all were padlocked in a single night recently, and, yet, not so much as a dime was made in the total.

Scarcely a night passes without a new night club. And they are operated by everybody from John Doe to an ex-member of European royalty. Take, for instance, Andrea De Segurula, who takes over the once padlocked Lido-Venice. Segurula was not so long ago the darling of Metropolitan Opera House audiences and is prominent in world music and social circles.

For some time he has directed the Plaza Hotel musicals attended by the Social Register's aristocracy. GILBERT SWAN.

825 FOR A LETTER

LONDON, Jan. 2.—An autograph letter of Thackeray to Charles Kingsley was sold recently at a famous London auction room for $225.

The letter referred to a journalistic attack on Thackeray by Edmund Yates, and mentions that what pained Thackeray most was that Dickens should have been Yates' adviser.

"Scores of the penny-line fraternity have written on his side," adds Thackeray in the letter, "and a great number of them are agreed it is the description of my nose that makes me so furious."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"STILL!" called someone softly through the window. "And right after that something went. 'Hess! Hess! Hess!'"

The Twins, who were not yet asleep, sat up in their little beds and listened. "It's Inch o' Pie and his geese!" cried Nick jumping out of bed and rushing to the window.

"Right you are!" called that bright little elf, sticking his head in and peering round the room.

"Is anything wrong?" asked Nancy. "Is there?" said Inch o' Pie, shaking the snowflakes off his tiny cap and putting it on again.

"Just wait until you hear about it. It's those goblins again. They're after all the candy-canes on the Christmas trees. Their appetites are as long as their noses. They are everlastingly gobbling up something."

Nancy and Nick laughed and Inch o' Pie looked completely astounded. "I suppose you think it's funny," he said sharply. "But it wouldn't be so funny, perhaps, if they ate your Christmas candy. And besides, it's high time they learned a lesson. Very high time! Why once I remember when they smelled a birthday cake that—"

"Right here Nancy sneezed, and Inch o' Pie said hurriedly, 'There! There! I talk too much, and you are catching cold. I'll tell you why I am here again so soon. The Fairy Queen heard that the goblins had been stealing bites off the candy-canes, and snipping strips off all the Christmas goodies. The Sweep told her. So she asked me to bring you the magic shoes again, and see if you could help me to stop the mischief.'

"Of course we will!" cried the Twins, hopping into their clothes in about two seconds, and then slipping on the magic shoes the little elf had brought.

"I just knew you would go," said Inch o' Pie gratefully. "Now then, Nancy, you get on Gans, and Nick, you ride Ole, and I'll do the driving."

In a trice they were out of the window, riding through the air in search of the greedy goblins.

And pretty soon they saw a whole bunch of them behind the park fountain, that had been all boxed up for the winter.

And didn't the goblins have a big candy-cane they had stolen off some little boy's Christmas tree, the goblin had, and they were taking great big bites out of it like so many mice.

Inch o' Pie drove his geese very quietly to the top of the fountain and the three of them watched.

"Here, you took a bigger bite than I did," said one goblin.

"Oh, go on, you eat faster than I do," said another goblin.

"Move over, you're taking all the room!" said still another.

"They are quarrelling as most thieves do," whispered the little elf to the Twins. "Watch me now and see what I am going to do."

So saying he broke off an icicle and dropped it onto one goblin's head.

"Move over, you're taking all the room!" said still another.

"They are quarrelling as most thieves do," whispered the little elf to the Twins. "Watch me now and see what I am going to do."

DAILY MOVIE SERVICE News Notes From Movieland

BY RUSSELL J. BIRDWELL

THE actors and actresses must smile, sit up, speak or grope but whether it's comedy or tragedy Henry King moves not a muscle of his mouth.

The third slap-stick "Potash and Perlmutter" is being filmed. It is a comedy of the rip-roaring type. But there stands King, his face as serious as though he were directing the Last Judgment.

King's most recent directorial gem was "Stella Dallas" with agony crammed into every line. King says the secret of the success and the secret of a film's imagination.

"Movies are illusion personified," he says. "Without imagination there would be no movies."

A Sorry "Joke."

(Boston Post.)

There are people in this world whose ideas of humor are so warped that it appears to be one of their highest aspirations to deal someone a practical joke.

Well up in the list are those who perpetrate insane and often brutal tricks on newlyweds.

But for downright folly and cruelty we would like—if he could be located—to award the blue ribbon to the person who telephoned the district attorney's office in Cambridge that Alice Corbett, the missing Smith College girl, was riding in a red automobile in Newton, bearing the registration 496,601.

Of course the police, both State and local, immediately proceeded to run down the "clue," and found that the car was owned by a young man who had been at work all day, except for the brief time when he drove his mother to Somerville. Naturally, he failed to appreciate the plesantry.

It is not funny to joke about a tragedy—for that is what this disappan-

BRITISH HEIR SAID TO SEEK PRINCESS ASTRID FOR BRIDE

Those Close to Court Say Swedish King's Niece is Girl of His Choice

ROYAL MAIDEN DUE FOR VISIT IN SPRING

Prince of Wales Reported to Have Declared For Love Match Only

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The matrimonial intentions of Edward, Prince of Wales, which for the last decade have interested the subjects of his father, King George, are declared by persons close to the court to be centered on his cousin, the Swedish princess, Astrid, niece of the King of Sweden and one of the few daughters of royal blood eligible by religion to become the consort of Britain's heir to the throne.

The source of this information would appear to take the edge off recent general denials that there was a possible heart affair between the Prince of Wales and Princess Astrid and that she contemplated an early visit to England.

TO VISIT LONDON IN SPRING

The Princess is already known and loved by the British reigning family, and it is again asserted that she will pay an official visit to London next spring, which will really allow an opportunity for her kindfolk to know her better and may bring a royal announcement that his Royal Highness has at last found a Princess of Wales to be affianced when this announcement is made Britain, and in fact the entire world, will be agog to know truly that the 20-year-old Princess of the House of Bernadotte has won this enviable position, in which most of the maidens of royal blood and countless others have been placed in fancy.

ALL MENTIONED

When he became heir to the throne, Britons began leisurely to look for a bride for him and at one time or another all the princesses of Europe—the German and Austrian princesses in the days before the war—have been mentioned. With the effect—the marriage of the Duke of York and Princess Mary with consequent the names of many daughters of the peerage have been coupled with his.

PRINCE IS NOW 31

The Prince of Wales is now 31 years of age. Not for hundreds of years has the heir to the British throne reached this age without a wife. Most of the British girls, believed at some time to be on the verge of marriage with the Prince, found themselves elsewhere and this, with the collapse of enthusiasm which surrounded the visits of Princesses of Spain, Belgium, Italy and Rumania to England, made it plain to people here that the Prince had decided he would never marry.

MOTHERS TOLD OF NURSING CLASSES

Mrs. I. F. Longley, president of the Saint John Red Cross Society, and Miss S. A. Barrington, organizer of some nursing classes for the Red Cross in New Brunswick, visited the mothers and children at the G. W. V. A. Christmas treat in the Veterans' Association rooms in Wellington row on Saturday afternoon and Miss Barrington spoke of the home nursing classes. The mothers were much interested and many of them enrolled as members of classes which will be organized shortly. It is expected that there will be two classes formed with soldiers' wives as members. The intention is to have these classes meet in the upper hall of the Red Cross depot in Prince William street.

Johnston Lodge Officers Installed

The installation of the officers of Johnston Lodge, L. O. B. M. P.'S. ARE HOSTS AT DINNER AT BEATTY

Col. MacLaren and Thomas Bell Have Election Workers as Guests

Colonel Murray MacLaren, C. M. G., V. D., M. D., M. P., and Thomas Bell, M. P., were hosts at a most enjoyable dinner in the Admiral Beatty Hotel on Saturday evening when they entertained the members of the local Conservative executive, the chairman and officers of the various ward committees and the representatives of the various parishes who were active in the recent election campaign in Saint John city and county and Albert county. There were about 100 guests.

REGRET MAYOR'S ABSENCE

The hosts expressed their regret that it had not been possible to extend the invitations to include all of those who had assisted in the campaign and they spoke most appreciatively of the services of all the workers. There was general regret at the absence of Mayor Furbush, who had been invited to attend and assist in the campaign and they spoke most appreciatively of the services of all the workers. There was general regret at the absence of Mayor Furbush, who had been invited to attend and assist in the campaign and they spoke most appreciatively of the services of all the workers.

A toast list was duly honored and enthusiastic speeches were delivered. Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, V. D., Premier of the province, was among the speakers. The outside parishes were well represented in the gathering. Herbert S. Mayes gave special notes that were much enjoyed.

Social Notes of Interest

Mrs. Hugh Mackay entertained at a delightful children's party at the Riverside Country Club on Saturday afternoon in honor of her son, Master Hugh Mackay, and her three little daughters, the Misses MacLaren, Mrs. W. Evidence of Coins Given For Fact—Cymbaline Was Ruler

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Interesting evidence in support of his theory that London was founded by Cymbeline, who reigned A. D. 4-40 is given by Professor P. G. Parsons, professor of anatomy at London University, and vice-president of the Anthropological Society, in a lecture at St. Thomas' Hospital.

In recent years much has been learned from coins about Cymbeline, or Cymbelinus, who reigned over an area from Kent to Gloucester, and was on friendly terms with Augustus and Tiberius.

"According to Professor Haverfield," said Professor Parsons, all the evidence points to the foundation of London in the early half of the first century and this means that it was founded in Cymbeline's reign."

But the question arises why did he select this particular site?

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones and their daughter, Roberts, have returned to their home in Saint John after visiting Mr. Jones' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jones, in Sussex.

Thus he wanted; A port for foreign vessels close to St. Albans, his capital.

To bridge the river so that the ferry might not delay travelers between the Continent and St. Albans;

A site easily defensible, and near the existing track, which led over the fens. London fulfilled all those needs.

There were two estuaries of the Walbrook and Fleet rivers forming tidal harbors, two excellent gravel-capped hills at Ludgate and Cornhill, and marshes and fens made the place easily defensible.

LIKELY MONTH END BEFORE WORK DONE

Vocation School Statement is Made—Conference Over Financial Responsibility

It will probably be the end of this month before the contractors, J. A. Grant & Co., Ltd., complete the work on the Vocational School, it was said last night by H. S. Brennan, representative of the architect, F. Nell Brodie.

Mr. Brennan said he expected that the machine shop wing would be ready by Jan. 10 and that the top floor would be finished in two weeks' time. The laying of birch flooring and the painting of woodwork are practically all that remains to be done of the contractor's work. As Dec. 31 was the date agreed upon for the work to be completed, a specially appointed committee, consisting of representatives of the School Board, the contractors and the architect, will confer again regarding the adjustment of financial responsibility. The meeting of the committee will probably be held this week, it was said last night.

U. N. B. ALUMNI TO HOLD DINNER HERE

The semi-annual dinner of the University of New Brunswick Alumni Society will be held in the Union Club on Friday night of this week at 7 o'clock. W. J. S. Myles, president, said last night that the chief business would consist of selecting an annual orator for the evening and making recommendations regarding the conferring of higher degrees. It is probable that a new feature will be introduced and an address will be given by an outstanding speaker.

DR. ALLYN WINS HONOR

SASKATOON, Jan. 2.—Dr. Jessie Allyn, 30 years medical missionary, whose home is in Edmonton, has received news here that she has won King George's gold Kal Ex-I-Hind medal for distinguished service in India. Maharajah Pithapuram of Madras recently wired congratulations on Miss Allyn's inclusion in the New Year's list.

BALANCE OF TRADE FAVORS FRANCE AS NEW YEAR STARTS

She Keeps 2,000,000 Foreign and 5,000,000 of Own Workers Busy

BUSINESS IS ACTIVE THROUGHOUT LAND

Mass of Money Maintained in Circulation; People's Patience Explained

by the contributions of certain small towns.

"My municipality, Courtemeur, with 800 inhabitants, counting women and children," he instances, "comes forward with a free offering of 100,000 francs for the sinking fund. They make the sacrifice cheerfully, without any other condition than that the fund be kept out of the hands of the politicians."

MOVE SPREADING.

Martin Namy, one of the industrial leaders of North France who offered to pledge their properties as a basis for a plan to renovate French finances, says: "The offer made to the government by the manufacturers has started the real producers of France on a line from which nothing can now distract them. The idea is contagious and has already caught the masses, as proved by the spontaneous gift of the modest people of Courtemeur. A splendid market has been set at the beginning of the new year to our burghs, communes, towns and cities. All that is necessary to bring out in full the generous impulse of the people is the assurance that their sacrifice will not be in vain."

PARIS, Jan. 3—France at the outset of the New Year has the balance of foreign trade in her favor, it is keeping 2,000,000 foreign workers as well as her own 5,000,000 laborers and mechanics busy, paying them wages that make life easy for them and maintaining in circulation a mass of money that furnishes unparalleled business activity throughout the country. That undisputed economic fact, in the opinion of financiers and business men, accounts for the patience with which "the average Frenchman has suffered the irritating complications of politics and the vicissitudes of the financial situation." It also explains why the French people, notwithstanding the fact that the year end has left the financial problem of the country in the air, greet 1926 with "easy confidence." RESTORATION ESSENTIALS. A budget that is balanced so that it will stay balanced, a sinking fund for debts that will be alright against inflation, is the way M. Doumer, Minister of Finance, expresses the essentials of financial restoration and the stabilization of the franc which may reasonably be hoped for and which should be the New Year's wish uppermost in the French mind. "Confidence is the first essential," in the opinion of M. Francois-Marcel, leader of the Nationalist wing of the opposition in parliament who adds: "A national union trace in partisan quarrels and a united effort by all classes will bring about that confidence." COMMUNIST IDEAS. The leader of the Communists, the other wing of the opposition, thinks that "dictatorship of workers and peasants is the best thing the new year can bring." "Divisions in the ranks of the labor organization," he continues, "made it impossible for us in 1925 to prevent the government from pursuing a policy of spoliation of the working class but great progress was made toward a united front by all the proletarian elements. Nineteen twenty-five passed into history as the year of Morocco and Syria, as well as the year of Locarno." "Those geographic names symbolize hypocrisy, bourgeois democracy." REAL FRENCH SPIRIT. The real spirit of the common people of France, according to Lucien Barard, one of the persons outside of political circles engaging in the crusade for the renovation of finances, is shown

BULGARIA PREMIER RESIGNS POSITION

Ends Long Disagreement With King Boris Over Harsh Suppression

VIENNA, Jan. 3.—Premier Zankov, of Bulgaria, has resigned, according to a dispatch from Sofia.

The announcement of his resignation terminates a long disagreement between the Premier and King Boris regarding the former's harsh suppression of the peasant's agrarian movement. M. Lipshtoff will endeavor to form a cabinet.

Alexander Zankov came into power in 1925, following the bloody destruction of the agrarian government administered by the former Premier Stambouliski. The peasant's ministers were hunted down or chased out of the country. Stambouliski finally was cornered in a mountain retreat and killed by the revolutionary troops. Thereupon began a long period of reorganization and vigorous repression of the somewhat Communist principles which Stambouliski had preached to his people.

U. S. BANK CASHIER CONFESSES THEFT

Gives Self up to Hartford Police; Admits Stealing $16,300

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 3.—Declaring that he had confessed because he had been conscience-stricken and that several times he had contemplated suicide, Guy L. Baker, former cashier of the First National Bank of Pulham, yesterday surrendered with the announcement that he had embezzled $16,300 from the First National.

Former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatrick, whose misuse of funds while cashier of the bank closed the institution and wiped out trust funds, is now serving a sentence in Atlanta prison.

Baker says he had no part in any of Gilpatrick's wrongdoings, but in the course of his own acts he discovered that Gilpatrick was a defaulter. He later assisted the First National Bank examiners and the bank receiver to check up Gilpatrick's affairs, and then resigned in October, 1924.

OLD-STYLE WALTZ COMING INTO VOGUE

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The old-fashioned waltz is slowly coming into vogue again. One of the biggest talking machine distributing agencies says three waltz records were among the ten most popular dance tune records sold during the last quarter.

It is asserted in dancing circles that the tango has failed to appeal to the "man in the street."

Councillor And Wife Given House Warming

APOLAHUQUA, Jan. 3.—On Tuesday evening of this week a large number of the residents of Berwick and Lower Millstream took occasion to pay honor to Councillor J. E. McAuley and Mrs. McAuley, of Lower Millstream, when they assembled to have a general "house warming" in their spacious new residence recently completed and in which Mr. and Mrs. McAuley have only been residing a few weeks.

COUNCIL ASKED TO PAY DEFICIT

Exhibition Association Seeks Assessment Order for Sum of $1,425

Sympathy With Widow of Policeman McCavour to be Followed in Substantial Way

At a meeting of the Common Council in committee today a communication from the Saint John Exhibition Association asking that the city assess the 1926 for the deficit on the 1925 Exhibition, amounting to $1,425.63, was read. Surprise was expressed by the commissioners at the request for this amount, as they said it had been understood the exhibition had paid expenses. The matter was laid on the table for further information.

Commissioner Frink reported that he had asked the City Solicitor to attend the council meeting tomorrow, when tax appeals are to be heard.

THE POLICE TRAGEDY. The council ordered a resolution of sympathy sent to the widow of Police Officer Stephen P. McCavour, and Commissioner Harding intimated that at an early meeting of the council a more substantial token of sympathy would be given, as he was preparing a resolution along these lines.

Commissioner Harding made appreciative reference to the loss of the city had sustained in the death of Police Officer McCavour, and moved that a letter of sympathy be sent to the widow. This was seconded by Commissioner Wigmore, who said that the city had lost one of its most efficient officers.

Commissioner Bullock said he was in hearty accord with the sending of the letter of sympathy, but had expected that a resolution expressing the sympathy of the council in a more substantial manner would have been introduced.

Commissioner Frink endorsed the resolution and said he had no doubt the Commissioner of Safety would introduce a resolution looking to the care of the small family left by Officer McCavour.

Commissioner Harding said this phase of the matter was receiving attention and would be dealt with later.

POSTPONE IF PRICE SET NOT OFFERED

That is City's Plan for Sale of Harbor Fisheries on Tuesday

The annual sale of fishing privileges in the harbor of Saint John will take place tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Court House. It was said by one of the members of the Council that an upset price, which the commissioners regarded as fair, had been placed on the desirable lots and if these prices were not realized the sale would be postponed until late in the spring. Last year the sale was postponed three times before all the lots could be sold. Under the act none of the lots can be withdrawn, but if a satisfactory price is not bid the sale can be postponed from time to time.

DIED LAST NIGHT

Wife of Rev. T. G. Cracknell Passed Away—Was Brilliant Woman

The death of Mrs. Sarah Jane Lowndes Cracknell, wife of Rev. T. G. Cracknell, of this city, occurred at the Saint John Infirmary last night at 10 o'clock following a brief illness. Mrs. Cracknell, who had been a sufferer from diabetes, was taken to the infirmary yesterday for insulin treatment, in the hope of saving her life, but acute symptoms developed to which she succumbed barely twelve hours after her admittance to the hospital. Mrs. Cracknell was of English birth, the daughter of a brilliant gentleman, the late Rev. Arthur Lowndes, D. D. and Mrs. Lowndes of New York City. She inherited her father's brilliancy and was a talented linguist, speaking fluently French and Italian. She was a prominent New York City, and did much work during the Great War.

It was interesting work handling the gathering of gift giving by the committee in charge. The boys have come to look forward to this treat and they thoroughly enjoyed the Saturday night affair.

CHANGE IN SCHOOLS AS WORK RESUMES

Several Classes in City Places of Learning Have New Teachers

The holiday season is over and more than 9,000 pupils and teachers commenced the Easter term this morning in the city schools. There were a few changes in the personnel of the teaching staff in several of the schools but in the larger portion there was no change.

SOME CHANGES

At the High School, Gordon Titus took charge of Miss Alice Lingley's class of Grade 9 boys. Miss Lingley Vanwart is taking Grade 1 in place of Mrs. Lawrence, while Miss Helen McGowan, reserve teacher at King Edward School, has been placed in charge of Miss Vanwart's class of Grades 4 and 5 pupils in Aberdeen.

Miss Helen Harris has replaced Miss Jean MacCallum as teacher at the Millidgeville School as the latter has been granted leave of absence.

REQUEST GRANT BE INCREASED

Victorian Order of Nurses Applies for $3,500 From City Funds

L. W. Simms Presents Case at City Hall—Financial Statement is Given

A request for an increase from $3,000 to $3,500 in the city grant was presented to the Common Council this morning by the Victorian Order of Nurses and action deferred until the estimates for 1926 are dealt with. L. W. Simms, president, and W. L. Caldwell, treasurer, of the V. O. N., Saint John branch, were present and the case for the organization was presented by Mr. Simms.

USE CAPITAL MONEY

He said that in the last five years the V. O. N. had had to make $7,467 from its capital account to meet deficits and that it would not be possible to do this any longer. With reference to the work done by the organization he said that in a great many cases the nurses visited the homes of the poorer classes and rendered a service that could not be supplied in any other way. When the supervisor, Miss Boswell, was here last fall she had said the nurses here were overworked and that another was needed. This need, he said, had been met in part by an agreement with the Board of Health for them to take over a part of the work. Showing the need for child welfare work, he said that last year 826 expectant mothers had had no pre-natal care whatever.

SAVING FOR CITY

He contended that the preventive work of the V. O. N. was saving money for the city in that, if they were not in the field more hospital accommodation would have to be provided and for this the taxpayers would have to bear the entire cost. The grant of $3,500 was the absolute minimum upon which the V. O. N. could get along and carry on the work being done at present.

The financial statement for 1925 was submitted by W. L. Caldwell, treasurer, as follows:

MAY BE ADJOURNED

Inglewood Case to be Taken up Here This Afternoon

The hearing before Mr. Justice LeBlanc in the $840,000 claim of the Inglewood Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. against the N. B. Electric Power Commission is scheduled to be resumed here this afternoon. It is understood, however, that a motion for adjournment will be made by counsel.

THE MAYOR'S HEALTH.

His Worship Mayor Potts, it was announced today, passed a restful night and was fairly comfortable this morning. This was the report from his home this afternoon.

Here Is Where You Overwork

Some women wonder why they have "nerves" half the time. Everything seems to hold them back—if it isn't one thing it's another.

The single cause of it all is likely too much washing. She may not notice it herself, but washing in winter works a double drain. One is over-exertion, the other is the chill caused by running to the front and back door from an overhot kitchen. It all saps vitality. And it costs much more than New System Damp Wash, the cleanest way of all.
