Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup;
it seemed as if he would die from stranguntion. One of the family suggested the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

"I have used AVER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by Lio use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AVER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. F. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AVER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the centrol of medicine.

(From the Sun) Among the apple raisers of New Brunswick, few have been more sucessful than Isaac Peabody of Douglas, York County. His farm a short distance from St. Mary's, on the northern slope of the St. John valley, is one of the finest in that fine section of the Province. He has about one hundred acres of cleared land, much of it alluvial and all in good condition.

FREDERICTON, N. B., February 25, 1885.

Opening of the Legislature.

The third Session of the present Local Legislature will be opened at 3 P, M., tomorrow, with the usual ceremony. The event is always regarded with considerable interest in Fredericton, inasmuch as it adds largely to the transient population, and materially aids almost every department of business. For the next five weeks at least, the people will discuss local politics, championing Government or Opposition, Mr. Blair or Mr. Wetmore, as their opinions have been formed.

The FARMER regrets that it is unable to furnish even a decent guess as to the probable contents of the Speech from the throne. If Mr. Blair sent us a copy, it has been mislaid, and if it has been an oversight on his part, we accept his apology. There are two matters, however, that may narurally be expected to occupy a place in the Speech, namely, the magnificent failure of Mr. Blair's School law amendments, and the Stock Farm fizzle. These have both had their development since the last session of the Legislature, and can scarcely be overlooked to-night, when Mr. Blair and his partner retire to the back effice to indite the Governor's Speech.

The resignation of Hon. A. F. Randolph. as a member of the Legislative Council. which was tendered previous to his leaving for the South a few days ago, has given rise to a number of rumors as to his probable successor. It is stated by friends of Mr. Blair, that Mr. Fred. Thempson will be appointed to the vacancy, as a reward for clinging so closely to the skirts of the Attorney General, and to save him from certain political annihilation in the general election.

The doctrine sought to be inculcated by the disciples of " perfect love," and " perfect sanctification," is not in accord with the popular Christian idea of Scriptural teaching. The man who will stand on a public platform, and solemnly declare that the temptations of sin find no responsive echo in his heart that his life is as pure and blameless as that of the Master Himself; that he does no sin, falls under no temptation, and leads a truly perfect life, is as regardless of his reputation for truth, as he is blasphemous and disgusting in making such declarations. Says the New York Tribune: The life of Gen. Gerdon is without a paralled in history. He had a will as imperious as Napoleon's : he had a nature as inflexible as Cremwell's; he had Clive's genius for war and fertility of resource; he had Jean Lawrence's capacity for governing semi-civilized races; he had Francis Xavier's overmastering love of humanity. But with these traits were combined a chivalrous devotion to the races for whom he labored, a contempt for the statemanship of Europe, an unquestioning reliance upon the law of his own conscience, and an intense religious nature that reflected at once the mysticism of the Middle Ages, the auster

While we with loyal rapture raise The shout of "Canada for ever!" A land of streams, a land of fountains, That keep our fruitful plains from drought-A land of proud, sky-soaring mountains, Whose distant slopes stand grandly out-Hills, valleys, rivers' falling thunder To name thy charms were vain endeavour; And O thy lakes' transparent wonder! Once more, then, "Canada for ever!"

Our boys, thank God, still love their joke, And laugh with all their father's brightness We're cheery, hospitable folk. That yield to no man in politeness, No tyrant's seen us on our knees. Our country we've deserted never-Our one resolve, to live in peace, Our motto, " Canada for ever!

When other countries vaunt their pearls Of womankind, as is their duty, We'll point to our Canadian girls, To show we've got our share of beauty If France's maids know dainter arts Of pleasing, why they must be clever, God bless our girls, frank, loving hear And guard old Canada for ever

IN SPITE OF HIM.

There never was a more popular young physician than Dr. Tredickar. His manners were the perfection of the sympathetic, his tact and his judgment were his personal magnetism was immense, and the cures he wrought were marvell-old families welcomed him as likely to setting up for themselves, chose him as likely to go along the road with themselves to the end. The event certainly as worthless to him as was the breath of pills yourself. justified their choice, and reports of the young doctor's ability went through the country side, and even extended to the next large city, so that not infrequently he was called in consultation there, with physicians of longer and wider repute than his own. His diagnosis of a case was so swift and sure, that people sed to say that Dr. Tredickar could tell what ailed you, by just looking at you; and the pulse than by another doctor's pre-

Very possibly she was, for Dr. Tredickar gave very little medicine; the case was extreme in which he sent much custom to the druggist, He carried about with to the druggist, He carried about with by his plate. As he looked about his dull few brown bread pills from every Sunday's travelled the entire distance on horselost. It is a positive cure for headache, nearalwas wont to administer, apparently po-tent, and made up under his own formula. to cheer him, and cursed himself for not From a peculiar liquid in a phial, he mea. thinking of it twenty years ago. sured one drop: if by any accident, a him he must do so and so; and he did, glass had to be rinsed and the single drop Then Dr. Harvey came, and said he must ton, New Brunswick, lectured on Tuesday, tried again; to this drop a half-glass of do this, and that; and he did, and he felt Dec. 23rd, at Ampthill, under the auspices sweetened water being added, the patient see Dr. Field.

"Canada a home for the emigrant." The was allowed a teaspoonful of the result once in six hours, if waking. It was generally understood that this liquid was something of Dr. Tredicar's patients felt for the kindness of his thus health and strength under its effect.

Another of the remarkable things he was fond of administering, was a tiny pill left in small numbers to be taken at morning and night, under certain other directions, slways ordering that if the patient felt too much braced on the second day, with ringing ears or crowded sensations in the head, or a pain in the left thumb, the number was to be lessen. health. ed, the pills, however, to be taken three days, and then omitted for three days until cure was effected.

If these and the liquid did not work in Dr. Tredickar seemed to take another view of the case, and to devote himself to it with personal assiduity and fiery earnestness, and to endeavor to bring the patient up as if on the strong wings of all his powers and learning.

The fact was that Dr. Tredickar believed in Nature. He knew that in certain malignant phases of disease, the physician and strong drugs and heroic measures are as necessary as the air we breathe; but he believed that many whimsical, hypochondriac, feeble-minded, weary and worn-out patients, were to be helped by a purely hygenic treatment, by proper diet, tient doctor. and other aids to health, and should not have one organ or another interfered with by the strong poison of drugs; and in every such instance he gave his priceless liquid and little dark pills, and let Nature, and the tonic effect of faith and hope, do the reviving work.
