Following is the list of the dead: Michael Higgins, aged 35, killed at the switch house; Mrs. Mary O'Connell, aged 34, crushed at 31 Springfield street; Miss Mary O'Connell, aged 17, neck broken at the same place; Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, 16 Portland street; Annie Collins, aged 6, daughter of the former; Hannah Beatty, aged 9, 16 Portland street; Mrs. Mary Lyons, 6 Emmett street; Helen Cutler.

FIERCE FORCE OF THE STORM.

The wind continued in the direction of Springfield street, northeastward, through Union Square, breaking and twisting the trees in every conceivable shape. Large oaks and elms were mere pipe stems in the path of the destroyer. It is believed that from 500 to 1,000 trees were destroyed in and about the park.

In Andover the occupants of most of the ruined houses were hard-working laborers, whose houses were the fruit of a lifetime of toil. The engineer of the 8:30 express from Boston saw the cyclone as he was nearing South Lawrence and stopped his engine, thus probably saving his train. A Great Methodist Gathering.

London, July 28.—The Methodist Church is now in annual conference at Bristol. The feature of this year's gathering so far has been the extraordinary display of interest in the church in America and the enthusiasm with which the American ministers have been welcomed by their British brethren. The Rev. Dr. Little, of Syracuse University, was quite taken aback by the warmth of his reception on Thursday, and the representatives of the Episcopal Church of America were deeply touched by the fraternal kindness extended to them. Unfortunately proceedings have not been uniformly edifying, and the visitors had to listen to heated debates growing out of serious charges against the Wesleyan missionaries in India, and out of the attempt to fix the stigma of heresy upon a brilliant young minister, who had published some pamphlets said to contain heterodox views.

Dismal Crop Reports.

London, July 28.—The weather the past week has been less uniformly miserable than it was last, but the alternations of heat and heavy rains have scarcely been improvements from the point of view of the crops. All the country market towns report gloomy despondency among the farmers, and general advances in the price of breadstuffs. In some places the rise was temporarily forced by the fact that English wheat was exhausted, and that continental dealers had intercepted foreign cargoes intended for England. Most dismal reports continue to come from France, where the damage seems even more general than here. The price of breadstuffs is going to be the worst food winter Europe has seen in a long time. The potato blight is working havoc throughout Cork and the whole west coast, and the parish priests all write that a famine must ensue.

A Miraele Doctor's Prescription.

Vienna, July 28.—In Galicia, a few days ago, a trial occurred that revealed the wyphus, which he then put into a bottle of water, of which he made all those present drink.

The doctor was arrested and sentenced to five months' imprisonment.

Russia Aboutto Make a Move.

London, July 28.—The signs seem to indicate that Russia is at last on the point of bandoning her passive attitude on the Eastern question. Nothing grave is thus it will be well for England, on the grounds of her foreign interests, to have Parliament in will be well for England, on the grounds of her foreign interests, to have Parliament over the situation, but a merely general tide at that Russia intends to make a decisive move during the next few months. Pleasure Seeking Excursionists.

Saturday was a great day at Port Stanley. From early morn till dewy eve the many and varied pleasure producing amusements of that beautiful summer resort each found its eager quota of followers and when the whistle of the last train sounded few were found who did not agree that the day had been well spent. In addition to a multitude of small pienic parties were the annual outings of the Free Press, D. S. Perrin & Co., London Furniture Company and J. Ferguson & Sons' employes. An interesting feature of the day was the ball match between the news department and the remaining departments of the Free Press Company. The typos proved too much for their adversaries, however, and got up a big "string" before the game was half over. At the finish they had piled up seventeen, while the other side had secured but six. The following list of races was hotly contested:

Ladies' race—I Mrs. C. W. Norman, 2 Mrs. F. P. Gee, 3 Mrs. Jenkins.

Men's race—I. Che Webster, 2 C. W. Norman. Boys' race—I - H. Ruse, 2 Percy Taylor.

Boys' race—I. Cha. Taylor, 2 E. Loe.

The other picnickers were more individual

The other picnickers were more individual The other picnickers were more individual in their attempts at pleasure-seeking, the majority preferring to spend the day under the friendly shade trees or upon the waters of the lake. The London Furniture Company's employes, however, had an excellent list of contests which were put through with a vim. The winners in the several events were:

Shot His Little Playmate.

St. CATHARINES, Ont., July 28.—Eddie Taylor, 8 years old, whose parents live in Detroit, while visiting at his grandfather's, a short distance below this city, accidentally shot and killed Maude, the 9-year-old daughter of William J. White. Several children were on a patch picking berries and playing about, when little Eddie got an old gun. He was pulling at the trigger and cried out: "Maudie White, take care or you'll get hurt." Just then the gun went off, causing death almost instantly. The boy Taylor was found by the neighbors hidden in the top of an apple tree.

Two Men Die in a Well.

WINNIPEG, July 28.—Two sad fatalities occurred at Rossburn. Mr. Dancanson, a wealthy Scotch farmer, was engaged in deepening an old well, assisted by John Patterson, a mason. Duncanson went down the well on a rope. He cried out, but his call was misundersod by those above. A fall was then heard and Patterson went to his assistance. He did not return, and later it was discovered that both had been overcome by gas and were dead. Duncanson leaves a wife and three children.

ANCIENT ORDER OF FORESTERS.

Annual Church Parade of the Brethren.

A Large Turnout—Eloquent Sermon by Canon Richardson—Interesting Facts About the Order.

Although a large number of the brethen had already gone to the Hamilton demonstration, over 600, including the juvenile corps, turned out for the annual church parade of the Ancient Order of Foresters yesterday. The members of the various courts assembled at their respective lodges and marched to Court Pride rooms, corner of Richmond and Carling streets, where the procession formed. The Forester's band, together with the Knights of Sherwood Forest and the Juveniles in uniform, lent interest to the occasion. Following are the city courts represented in the parade:

Court Pride Dominion, 5,660-C. R., J. Jenkins.

Since then the society had widely extended its branches, not as a political organization, but for mutual help, mutual support and brotherly kindness. On their coat of arms was a little picture of the history of the order, including that grandest of mottoes, "Unity, Benevolence and Concord." The society were to be congratualated that unity with them was not a mere motto, but them was not a mere motto, but they had put forth every effort against anything that savored of disunion. throughout the States-and he had visited every one of them-he had not discovered a system equal to that prevalent here. He congratulated Canadians on possessing such a system, and pointed out that it was the best sous of Canada to go over the border every year, in large numbers, to ake positions of Intelligence and trust.

The celebration seems to have been a success, and no doubt the resolutions passed will be duly considered by the Government. We believe in instilling has progressed, the troubles which official mismanagement has led it into, and the solid benefits that have resulted from the labors of those unselfish men who were pion eers in the movement for thoroughly representative Government. Nothing should be sed over. Let a spade be called a spade Let it be shown who was wrong in 1776, when the then American colonies were driven to revolt against the stupidity of a visers. The manner in which the old land trade restrictionists of those days de-

When the compiler of the new popular history, which our friends the Lundy's Lane celebrants desire to have issued immediately, gets to work he must do full justice to William Lyon Mackenzie and his patriotic associates Down the latter of the latter in the agitation for responsible government.
"Nothing extenuate, nor aught set down in malice" should be the motto of the historian. His mission, indeed, can best be fulfilled by so chronicling the stirring events that have been the milestones of Canadian history as to inspire more and more loyalty to Canada and her democratic ons, and a greater devotion to every legitimate agency which is calulated to improve her condition and render her people happy and prosperous, with the "glori-ousprivilege of being independent. Independ-ent not in the sense of being a nation of swaggerers, anxious to pick a quarrel with other countries, whether near or remote, but simply as possessed of faith in our own country and determined to stand by it, while ready to co-operate in the arts of own country, but that of our neighbors as well." That is the utterance of a true patriot. Why should we not live in peace and trade in harmony with our brethren over the border? Is it not a fact that they inherit the same traditions of British greatness as we do our-selves? And do we not have more blood relations in the adjoining republic than in

Yet the Year Book makes no note of this fact. BRANCH OFFICES: Montreal and Maritime Provinces—A. McKim & Co., Montreal, Que.

The sinking fund now available in this city amounts to $271,796, which, if paid out on account of the would make a nice little hole in the sum, and bring the total indebtedness considerably below $2,000,000. Then the London auditors value the assets of the city at $2,569,521, leaving a balance of assets over all liabilities of $384,913. How many cities in the Dominion can exhibit a balance sheet equally satisfactory? Some of the assets might scarcely realize their estimated value if disposed been celebrating the 76th anniversary of the battle which was fought there between the British and Canadians on the one hand and of at forced sale, nevertheless such prop-United States troops on the other, when the former had a "famous victory." next year's issue a remedy will be pro-EAST ELGIN.

Dr. Wilson, M.P., who so worthily repreents East Elgin, has won the esteem and confidence of the working classes in that riding by conscientious service in their interest in the House of Commons. It was for this reason, no doubt, that the Conservative convention of East Elgin nominated a socalled labor candidate the other day in the person of Mr. Ingram. They hope in this way to capture some of Dr. Wilson's supporters, who are workingmen, and thereby they confess where they are weak. But Mr. Ingram has represented the western riding of the county for four years in the Local Legislature, and he had in that sphere an in those four years? What single speech or measure of his can be pointed to as evidence of his usefulness? His record is almost a barren blank, although there are many matters of interest to workingmen which were dealt with by the Legislature during his term. Dr. Wilson has done far nore in any single session of his parliamentary service at Ottawa to advance the interests of the working classes than Mr. Ingram has done in the whole of his public in the next Parliament to render them a more signal service, for he will then occupy a seat on the Ministerial side of the House. But Dr. Wilson is not a class representative. He feels it to be his duty to represent every class directly or indirectly affected by the legislative functions of Parliament or the administrative functions of Government. What, we should like to know, have the farmers of Elgin to gain by exchanging Dr. Wilson for Mr. Ingram? The latter, as candidate of the Conservative party, is bound to oppose with all his might the procuring of closer trade relations with the United States, whereas the former is upon record as favor-ing the most unrestricted trade between the two countries. To the farmers of Elgin the gaining of free access to the mar-kets of Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and of the earth had been taught to square their stations more by the golden rule, and less by the rule that holds might to be right. "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war" is a truism which cannot be too strongly impressed upon the rising generation. When the country is a truism which can dairy products. It may also with safety be said that free trade with Canada and the United States. and the United States would speedily result in a new life to St. Thomas, Aylmer, Port Stanley and Port Burwell, a large shipping trade between the latter ports and the Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York shores of Lake Erie, and an industrial activity generally which would greatly improve the condition of the working classes as well as merchants and business men in overy line. We may therefore safely con-clude that the Conservatives of East Elgin have not been half so smart as they supposed themselves to be in selecting called workingman as the opponent of Dr. Wilson. Mr. Ingram will find that he has a heavy load to carry, and in spite of any gerrymander the plucky doctor will work while ready to co-operate in the arts of peace and of commerce with our neighbors. This is the brand of patriotism fitly described by Rev. Mr. Young, one of the brand at the Lundy's Lane celebration.

This is the described by Rev. Mr. Young, one of the speakers at the Lundy's Lane celebration. He pleaded for instilling into the breast of every young Canadian that real loyalty, which will not "create a hatred to our neighbors across the border, but will cause out of political life. What good men have been driven out? What good men have been driven out?

-Mr. Robert Rae, of London, England, celebrated as a temperance worker, has been speaking at Toronto. He says the people of Ontario are especially privileged, as they have the best temperance laws in the world.

-The Stratford Evening Herald will discontinued after the 31st inst., because the proprietors find there is no money in daily paper in that place. The brothers Dingman will continue the Weekly Herald. They are good newspaper men.

-Mr. Thomas Thompson, the well-known population and debt of the principal deal of poetry in his composition, which debt in 1889 as $2,235,431, whereas the fairly coruscates in his description of cottage life by the lake, at Chautauqua, near Niagara-on-the-Lake. It is certainly a pleasant spot.

111 -A Toronto corporation officer was st pended a short time ago "on account of at unfortunate failing which has seriously im-paired his usefulness," as Alderman Mose put it. But this worthy alderman urge the council not to be too hard on the officer
"Let's temper justice with mercy," Mose said, "and give him another chance." And he has been given another chance accordingly. This is the same Alderman Mose who ran in Toronto on June 5 as the candi date of the party of temperance, right ness and truth. Grip deduces from the in cident the moral that "If you have politica pull and social influence you can get drunk as often as you please with impunity.

.—Bishop Courtney, of Nova Scotia, makes an appeal to his people for aid for the wives and children of the Springhill coal miners, who have been so ground down as to be forced to strike. He asks the Church to help, as the distress is very great. The Church helped in the dock strikes in England, and it ought to help in this cas in Canada. they do an injustice. We trust that in chools for workingmen in Toronto has met with a temporary check, the City Solicitor stating that the Municipal Act does not contemplate the expending of public money in founding technical schools. The opinion no doubt is a correct one, and no doubt the Legislature will at its next session amend the act so that schools of this class may be founded and established by city and town corporations. It is, how ever, a curious commentary on the defea of the technical schools project in Toronto, that only a short time ago the Council of that city voted $5,000 for a summe carnival, although the City Solicitor had sent in a written opinion that an appropriation for that object would be illegal

-Mr. Caine, it will be remembered, was a Liberal-Unionist M. P., and a follower of Mr. Chamberlain when the latter ratted excellent opportunity of being useful to his own class. What has he done for them question. At the Barrow election there were three candidates: (1) Tory; (2) the re pentant Caine, who openly receded from the Liberal-Unionists; (3) Mr. Duncan, Liberal brought out by the regular Liberals, who thought Mr. Caine should first bring forth fruits meet for repentance. Mr. Duncan beat the field. And now, the cable says Mr. Caine has given a public dinner to successful young rival, and has been form ally received back into the fold and made life. And moreover he will be in a position | election for East Bradford. Evidently Mr. Caine has had enough of Liberal Unionis

Chaplain Ball, who took for his text Eph., vi., 13.—After dinner a short while was spent in the study of the Sabbath school lesson, and then several of the boys made the rounds of the various cottages and camps and extended an invitation to the occupants to attend a service at 8:30 p.m. on the grounds in front of the Fraser House. When the hour arrived the grounds were packed. The service was under the direction of the Y. M. C. A., and a stirring address was delivered by Mr. W. H. Sallmon, from Hebrews, Xi. 26, 29. He was followed up by Rev. Chaplain Ball in a touching appeal to the use of his grounds. There must have been about 600 people present. permission, the Captain took the case in his own hands and conveyed about 70 people to the cemetery. Acting Mayor Moule was interviewed this morning on the subject. He said: "It seems a great piece of presumption on the part of Captain Foster to run against the wishes of the Council and citizens. I heard that he sent out a number of invitations to parties in the city, and got enough on board to make a trip. The Captain was fawning and cringing to the Council until he got permission to run his boats, and then to show his teeth in this way will not profit him anything. The Council can take away his dock and water privileges, and of course the matter will come up at the Council meeting and be dealt with there." Among the passengers on the boat on Sunday was Aid. Boyd, who stood out in favor of running the boats on Sunday at the Council meeting.

"You are undoubtedly my superior in argument," returned the girl with a movement of her long throat which was both graceful and charming in its half-laughing petulance. "Instead of subjecting me to any further defeat, suppose you tell me this wanderful thing which you have in reserve. I can't imagine what you have to say to me, and I am devoured with curiosity to know."

John did not answer at once. A walk with a girl like Diana was a totally new experience to him, and he was surprised to hind how much he enjoyed it. So little was he used to walting with women, that it never entered his head to alter his habitual long, swinging step when walking by Diana's side; and he was progressing with his usual speed, lost in reflection, instead of attending to what his companion said, when he heard a breathless voice at his side saying, "How you fire! He repressed the smile which came on his lips, and said:
"Possibly; but you will agree that a country in such things are done and tolerated cannot be called a civilized country in our sense of the word, and may permit other things to go on which would not be suffered in England."

"Oh, well," said Diana, "England is not verywhere, and what's the harn? I should think that the child is safer and wholesomer, in that field than in the churchyard, where in a year or two his bones would be tossed out of his grave again to make room for someone else."

She was half laughing as she finished speaking, and after looking at her for a moment, he too burst out laughing, and they both laughed until they nearly cried. "Why did you not tell me sooner that I was going too fast?" he asked, as they went on again at a more moderate pace.

"I kept up with you as long as I could. English people never like to confess themselves beaten, and in this hostile land one feels inclined to force one's national characteristics into undue prominence."

"Ohe I' she answered; "is that the principle on which you are making your railway? But now tell me what you wanted to say; you keep putting it off in the most cunning way. Is it something very disagreeable which you do not like to bring out?"

"That your own conscience must decide for you. You post your letters very care lessly, Miss Wentworth."

"What do you mean?"

He told her what had occurred at the post-office, and she laughed carelessly, and asked with some curjosity:

"Which one was it? I posted three."

He repeated the address to her, and she said.

"Oh! that—mamma's. It was of no importance."

"Are you not comfortable?" he asked, bluntly.

"Does it strike you as a place in which one would be comfortable?" she asked with a little edge in her voice.

"Well, no. To tell the truth, I was rather surprised to find you still here when I came back from Berg."

"Were you?" she answered. "I am not you."

"Then why not say it, and let us each go on our way again? I was enjoying my walk."

"It is too late for you to be out on this road alone. It is never very safe; thieves and cutthroats find it conveniently near the frontier. Berg is under Russian government. You would be exposed to risk at any time, and capecially now, with the navies about."

"Thieves and cutthroats?" she echoed, with a derisive laugh. "Do you scriously with a derisive laugh. "Do you seriously on our way again? I was enjoying my walk."

"Thieves and cutthroats?" she echoed, with a derisive laugh. "Do you seriously expect me to believe in those bogies in the nineteenth century in a civilized country? If thieves and cutthroats are the only dangers to be feared, I will undertake to walk from Jacewo to Berg and back again without a single qualm of fear."

"He heard her out, without being in the least disturbed by her scepticism.

"You talk like a child," he said when she had done. "There was a pause before John said, in a now of some constraint: "Perhaps some day we may be sufficient who will run great risks on the chance of a successful robbery.
