Ten Persons Attached to a Mission in China Murdered.

Several English Ladies Among the Slaughtered.

Others Wounded, Including Two Children-Terrible Indignities Suffered by the Victims.

New York, Aug. 4.—The report of the massacre of Christians at Kucheng, a city 90 miles southwest of Foo Chow, in the Province of Fuh Kien, one of the southern Provinces, occasioned much alarm at the office of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions yesterday.

The board has had at Kucheng a flourishing mission, comprising a school for boys and girls and a hospital. Dr. Leonard, secretary of the board, at once cabled to Fou Chow to lear if the Americans were safe, as it was reported that five foreign women were killed in the massacre.

The Methodist missionaries stationed at Kucheng are D. Gregory, of Dakota, who is in charge of the nospital: Rev. Dr. Wilcox, of Iowa; Miss Mabel Hartford, of Dover, N. H., and Miss W. H. Rouse, of Lakefield, Minn. There is also an English Church mission at this point in charge of the Rev. Dr. Bannister and Rev. Mr. Stewart, both of whom have their wives with them.

Rev. Dr. C. C. Baldwin, who has been a missionary in China since 1847, and left there last April because of the failing of his health, was seen at his home in Newark yesterday. "It is likely," said Dr. Baldwin, "that the trouble which culminated in the massacre was occasioned by friction between two native elements-the vegetarians, who believed that they were unjustly discriminated against regarding taxes; and the anti-foreign group, who through their secret societies are constantly striving to prejudice the Government against the missionaries. The vegetarians are more amenable to Christian influence, and are, generally speaking, more moral, but the antiforeign group outnumber them. "Before we left China the American consul at Foo Chow had ordered that all the women connected with interior missions should be brought to the treaty ports, where, if necessary, they could seek safety on the American men

"The missionaries are in no way to blame for this outbreak, but if the report is true have undoubtedly been of a lawless anti-foreign mob before troops could arrive to protect them. There are several thousand native Christians in Kucheng and in the surrounding country."

Rev. Dr. L. Baldwin, of Brooklyn, who was a missionary in China for years, and is well acquainted with the city of Kucheng, said last night: the dispatch is true, there is no doubt that the five foreign women mentioned belong to our mission or to the English Church mission.

"This is one of the most flourishing missions we had in China, and a vast amount of good has been accomplished there. I think our hospital at Kucheng is the largest one connected with any foreign mission in China. Trouble has been feared between the native factions for months, and I hope later reports will show that our missionaries heeded the consul's warning and safe at Foo Chow. The anti-foreign element is very lawless under excitement, and unless checked by Government troops may have looted these mission stations completely." Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—The State Department received the following cablegram from United States Consul Kerngen at Shanghai concerning the reported massacre of missionaries near "Americans safe; none hurt. Ten British killed."

THE KILLED.

London, Aug. 4.—The Telegraph to-morrow will print a dispatch from Shanghai stating that the massacre at Kucheng occurred on July 31. The officials suppressed the news for three days. The names of the killed are: Miss Elsie Marshall, Miss Annie Gordon, Miss Bessie Newcombe and Miss Flora Stewart, all of the English Zenana Mission; Miss Nellie Saunders, Miss Topsy Saunders, Rev. Dr. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart, of the Church Missionary Society. Five of Mr. and two survive. One had a knee broken, and the other-a baby-lost an eye. SAVED. The following were saved: Miss Hartwell, of the American Mission; Miss Codrington, of the English Zenana Misssion, and Rev. H. S. Phillips, of the English Church Missionary So-

Mrs. Stewart's children were killed, and

United States Consul Hixon, who is stationed at Foo Chow with a party of volunteers, upon receipt of the news of the massacre started on a steam launch for the scene, and has returned, bringing with him the wounded Americans The experiencse of the survivors were terrible. They say that death was the least part of the sufferings of the butchered women.

INTENSE INDIGNATION. The indignation here is intense. Nevertheless the many warships in the harbor are idle. A mass meeting has been arranged for tomorrow to protest against the lack of energy on the part of the authorities and to urge that reparation be made and that the guilty persons be punished. The mandarins endeavor to blame certain secret socleties for the outrage. Europeans, however, regard this as nonsense. The officials are renewing their old tactics of stopping telegrams.

REPORTS MIXED. The reports of the outrage are rather mixed. The latest says it is now known that ten persons were killed, including Miss Lena Stewart and Dr. Stewart's whole family, except two. The American missionaries, Miss Hartford and Dr. Gregory escaped, but the for-mer was fearfully injured. Several English and American children were

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Standard tomorrow will demand that the murderers be visited with condign punishment, and that a stern example be made of the officials who virtually connived at the commission of the crime. The paper will say: "If the Emperor cannot, or will not, pro-tect British residents, we must give him assistance of a kind he will not wel-

The Chronicle says it trusts Great Britain and the United States will combine to teach the Chinese a lesson that will cause foreigners to be respected for ever, but in view of the feuds existing in the country, the bodies sending missionaries there, especially wo-men, incur the gravest responsibility. The whole position, the Chronicle adds, ought to be reconsidered.

The Times will say: The outrage must of course form the subject of strong representations to China from England, and probably from the United States also. It must not be passed over as a trifle. Immunity of the murderers would cause a standing menace to the lives and property of the whole

European community in China.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

The Times tomorrow will print a dispatch from Shanghai saying that the missionaries' sanitarium at Whasang, near Kucheng, was attacked, and five ladies were killed and two ladies and two children were wounded. Some others are missing.

Later reports, the dispatch adds, state that ten persons were killed. Rev. Dr. Stewart and his wife and one child were burned to death in their house. The Misses Yellow and Marshall, the two Misses Saunders, the two Misses Gordon and Miss Newcombe were murdered with spears and swords. Miss Codrington was seriously wounded about the head. This despatch confirms the report that Rev. H. S. Phillips and Dr. Gregory, of Hartford, escaped. Both of them were wounded.

FOUGHT AT CORUNNA.

One of Sir John Moore's Veterans Dies at Dresden, Aged 108-Was at Waterloo-Knew John Wesley.

(Dresden, Ont., Times.)

Last Monday night, at the residence of Mrs. Eliza McDonald, Main street, the veteran centenarian, Wm. Chambers, passed peacefully from this world into the great unknown. Although he had been ill for about a week previous, the news of his death naturally created little surprise, as at his extremely advanced age all felt that the fatal summons might be sent at any mo-ment. In his case the poet's words were indeed true and particularly ap-Propriate:

And we are glad that he has lived this And glad that he has gone to his reward. Nor deem that kindly nature did him wrong, Softly to disengage the vital cord; When his weak hand grew palsied, and his eye Dark with the mist of age, it was his time to die.

Mr. Chambers was born in the county of Antrim, Ireland, on the 12th September, 1787. and was quently in his 108th year. He enlisted in the British army in Dublin in 1808, when he was 21 years of age. His regiment formed part of the army under Sir John Moore at the battle of Corunna, in Spain, when the general was killed. Subsequently he served throughout the Peninsula war, and fought in the closing engagement at Waterloo. Eighteen or his relatives were in the army during the contest

Spain, and most of them took in the battle of Waterloo. While corps was in France at the close of the war, in the year 1812, his discharge from the army was bought for him. In 1831 he came to Canada, and had command of company during the rebellion in 1837-38. For many years past he had lived in the county of Kent, and for some time previous to his leath had been residing with his laughter here, Mrs. McDonald, where, during his illness, he received every care and attention that could be bestowed by an affectionate relative. He was an educated man, and the fact secured for him, through the late Dr. Ryerson, an appointment as inspector of some of the public schools in this county. His memory and intellect remained clear, despite his great age, to within a few days of his death, and he could relate with detail, and with much intelligence and interest, many of the stirring events in his early career. He knew both Charles and John Wesley, who were occasionally guests at the home of his family in Ireland.

Mr. Chambers was twice married. His first wife was Mary Murray, born on the St. Lawrence. She died March 12. 1856. Her remains were interred at Dawn Mills. She left six children. Mr. Chambers' second wife was a woman named Cole, who died about 20 years ago and left a large family.

He was a man of an iron constitution, never having known any illness since his early childhood till a week before his death.

DEATH IN A KISS.

So Says a Prominent Officer of Health, Chicago, Aug. 5.-There were 2,532

deaths in Chicago during the month of July according to the Bureau of Public Health. With the monthly report was this advice:

Donotletothers kiss you indiscriminately, and never without first wiping your lips with carbolized rose water and thoroughly drying them. This is a chunk of wisdom from Dr. Frank

W. Reilly, pathologist, bacteriologist, geologist, meteorologist, archaeologist and erstwhile editor. To your correspondent, Dr. Reilly said:

"Yes, that is the way half the people get consumption." "What is your opinion of kissing, loctor?" "Vicious, intolerable, barbaric and vile. This question of kissing has been a hobby with me for some time, and I have studied its results. I know a consumptive preacher down in Nokomis who made a practice of kissing his flock after service every Sunday. The mortality in the village increased 22 per cent. in one year, and when I left there half the members of the congregation were leaning against fences for support. The germs were in the contribution boxes, in the hymn book racks and all about the pulpit." A CAUTIOUS BISHOP.

Bishop Potter, of New York, while staying at a Syracuse hotel, was called upon by a reporter, who finally put the question: "Bishop, what do you think of the new woman?" "Why do you ask me that question?" the bishop replied. "They have Bishop Doane stretched upon a gridiron. Do you expect me to ascend the funeral prye? Every good work has received its impress from woman. The 'new woman,' if she be true to herself, will be, as she has always been, the sharer of man's joys and of his sorrows, and his helpmeet.'

Holmes' Castle.

Mrs. Pat Quinlan Can a Ghastly Tale Unfold.

Mystery Regarding the Williams Girl Clearing Away.

A Story That May Lead to Finding Howard Peitzel's Body.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Pat. Quinlan knew of the disappearance of Julia Conner in Holmes' castle, and saw the body of the woman after she was dead She further knew, and has admitted, that Pearl Williams disappeared mysteriously in the castle after her return from a trip to the Quinlan farm at Lakota, Mich. Chief Badenoch took Mrs. Quinlan and her husband to the castle on Friday with Inspector Fitzpatrick and Detectives Fitzpatrick and Norton. What took place between them no one knows, but Chief Badenoch and his detectives are nearer a solution of the Holmes mystery than they were ever before The chief now has proof positive that Mrs. Conner and Pearl, her daughter, or Cora, Quinlan, were murdered in the building, while the mother was in his employ. Mr. Quinlan has given in-formation within the last 24 hours which brings the charge of murder nearer to Holmes than it has been in Chicago at any time since the case opened. Quinlan and his wife, while demonstrating to the police that they were at no time guilty of the crime of murder themselves, have made admissions by which the chief could use them on the stand as valuable witnesses against Holmes in proving that Mrs. Conner and a child were made away with by Holmes for the purpose of securing insurance which Mrs. Conner carried on her life in favor of her daughter, or in which Cora Quinlan's life cut an important figure. Further, Quinlan and his wife have proved to the police that Mrs. Conner was so well aware of the scheme which Holmes was operating that it became necessary for Holmes to put the woman out of the way. Mrs. Conner's body was disposed of by burial within the castle somewhere close to the spot where Pearl's supposed body was found. Pat Quinlan and his wife had admitted partially—the woman more than the man—that a business of receiving and disposing of dead bodies stolen from country graveyards was carried on in the castle under the direction of Holmes. The graveyards of the western portion of Michigan, Grand Haven, South Haven, Muskegon, Hol-The Bay and Lakota were despoiled of bodies and coffins. The bodies were brought to the castle, chemically reated and then disposed of to medical colleges. The coffins were remade by Quinlan, Pietzel and

Holmes, relined and disposed of to unundertakers at a fair profit. Detective Gyer says the charge murder against Holmes is strongest in

A NEW STORY. Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—Charles J. Thorpe, who is looking up evidence in the Holmes case, has arrived here. He tells a story of Holmes and two trunks that may lead to the finding of Howand Pietzel's body. "In the early part of October, 1893," he says, "I was in Franklin, Ind., where the Yokes' live, and where Holmes used to be a frequent visitor. I think it was about Oct. 8, 9 or 10, that Holmes came to Franklin for the last time. It was as near as I can figure out about the same time that the boy disappeared from Indianapolis. When he came to Franklin he was not in the habit of carrying any baggage, and it was remarked that the last time he came there he brought with him two trunks and a plain wooden box about three feet long. They were taken to the Yokes' house by the hack driver of Franklin, and they stayed there. No one ever saw them taken away from that house, and the next day Holmes left Franklin for good and all. I believe he went from there to Detroit. One of those trunks may have contained the body of Howard. The boy may have been killed in some hotel in this city and placed in the trunk and afterwards taken away to Franklin and then disposed of."

IS MINNIE WILLIAMS ALIVE? Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 4.-Minnie Williams, of the Holmes' case celebrity s said to be in this city, and the de claration is made by one who claims to have seen and conversed with and heard a partial admission of her identity from the woman's lips.

Late Canadian News.

A Toronto dispatch says an unsuccessful attempt was made on Friday night to wreck the north-bound train on the G. T. R. south of the Davenport station.

Two big petitions are being circulated by Senator Casgrain and other influential Windsorites praying for the reinstatement of W. L. Baby, the superannuated customs officer.

The steamer Daisy was burned on the Trent River early Saturday morning, about two miles east of Hastings. Loss $3,000. The crew, who were mostly asleep at the time, had to save themselves by swimming ashore. Two more notices of application to Parliament for divorce appear in the Canadian Gazette. They are given Mr. James Pearson, barrister, of Toronto, and Mr. Hector Morrison, of Vankleek The usual charges of desertion and adultery are made.

BIG BLAZES.

Over $160,000 Worth of Property Burned in a Washington Town.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 4.—Sprague, the county seat of Lincoln county, and division point and location of the Northern Pacific car shops, and having a population of 3,000, was almost detroyed by fire yesterday. A high wind, amounting almost to a hurricane, was blowing, and the fire swept the town with resistless fury, destroying over $1,000,000 worth of property in two hours.

The fire broke out in a livery stable on the south side of the railroad track, and from here the flames swept across the north side, and within half an hour both sides of the track were a seething mass of flames. The huge oil tanks in the rear of the shops exploded, and served to spread the fire to the business portion of the town. The firemen were powerless to stay the flames, and with-in an hour every business house, with the exception of three small stores and the First National Bank, were in Woodstock, Ont., Aug. 4.-A two story frame building, occupied by A. Pullen as a general store and postoffice in the village of Holbrook, eight miles south of here, was burned last night. Building valued at $900; stock, $2,500. A house and barn on Grover street Woodstock, were destroyed this morning. Insured for $900, which will not nearly cover the loss.

" HIP-HI-LARITY,"

And the Next Moment He Fell 30 Feet from a Tree-Arm Broken in 2 wo Places-Internal

"Hip-hi-larity!" shouted little Johnnie Reardon, of Ontario street, on Saturday morning, as he swung himself backwards and forwards amid the topmost boughs of a tall beech tree in Maurice Baldwin's field near the C. P. R. Johnnie is 12 or 13 years old, and full of animal spirits, and when he found himself up so high he gave vent to his feelings by the boyish whoop. The next moment there was a sharp crackling and a changed and a terrified cry as the boy's body shot down thirty feet through the tree, breaking the small twigs, and bounding from the larger branches until he lay, limp and silent, at the foot of the tree and within six inches of a fence that he luckily missed striking. Reardon was skylarking with a young rellow named Cox, living close by, and the lad, terrified, gave the alarm. The unconscious boy was carried to his home at the corner of Ontario street and Princess avenue and three doctors summoned. Just how great the internal injuries are will not be known for a day or so. His right arm is broken in two places, and the doctors think the brain is affected by an injury to the spine. The boy remained unconscious for 24 hours, but was able to speak a little yesterday af-

DROWNED IN A TANK.

Another Cistern Proves To Be a Veritable Death Trap.

An Eight-Year-Old Lad Named Walsh the Victim-Was Not Missed for Ten Minutes.

An 8-year-old boy named Robert E. G. Walsh, the son of Robert Walsh, a laborer, residing at 266 Clarence street, met with a fearful fate Sunday morning. The young fellow went to the cistern to draw some water. On the covering of the cistern is a box with a lid opening from the top, and the unfortunate lad had evidently stooped through this to get at the water. This was so far out of his reacn as to cause him to lose his balance, and he fell headforemost into the tank. Whether or not he called for help will never be known. No one heard his calls, if he made any. He probably scrambled about in the water for a few moments, but the tank was a veritable deathtrap, there being absolutely nothing to support the drowning boy. Exhausted, he sank to the bottom. He was not missed until ten minutes after, when his coat was found in the yard. The father lowered himself down into the death-trap, and was horrified to find his son dead in several feet of water. Every effort was made to save the boy's life, but without avail. Deceased was the youngest of seven or eight children.

TORONTO INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

Overwhelmed With Exhibits - Horses and Cattle-Special Attractions.

Toronto, Aug. 5.-Though space in the buildings of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, which opens Sept. 2, has for some time been all taken up, applications continue to pour in. Many manufacturers will be unable to show unless some method of providing for the accommodation of the surplus can be arranged. The bicycle display, which will be very full and representative, including exhibits sent by over 30 firms in Canada and the United States, will be on view in the western end of the carriage building, where an area of 7,500 feet has been assigned to it.

Entries of horses, cattle and other live stock are coming in in great numbers, so that the display, more especially in the finer grades, will be considerably in excess of last year. Entries close on the 10th inst.

Manager Hill has been in New York for some time arranging for special attractions and musical talent. The amusement feature of the fair will be very varied and thoroughly up to date, including a grand aquatic spectacle of a unique character and the newest entertainments in vogue.

EXPENSIVE FIERWOOD.

All who have traveled on the continent will recollect the exorbitant charges for wood, and the expensive luxury of a constant fire. One gentleman, who was spending some weeks in a German city, asserts that he found wooden dolls, which were plentiful in the shops, gave him a better fire, since the wood was well-seasoned, and cost less than bundles of wood bought at the hotel. He aroused much curiosity as day after day a large basket of dolls was sent from one or another shop to his room, until it was discovered that he used them for firewood. While Mark Twain was in Paris one of his friends was married there, and with his customary humor he bought a basket of wood, tied it fancifully with bright ribbons, and sent it to his friend, with his card, upon which was

BASEBALL.

(Special to the "Advertiser.") Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 5 .- A big crowd today saw the Hamilton ball club defeat the London Alents, who came fresh from their Toronto triumph. It was civic holiday here. The visitors were handicapped by the absence of a regular battery, Hiscott having pitched in Toronto Saturday, and Carney being saved for this afternoon. Tierney, their crack third baseman, occupied the box, and had he the box, and had he first-class support, he would lad have held the home team down to fewer runs. Tierney, too, was missed at third. Hamilton, Aug. 5.—Today is Hamilton's civic holiday, and two ball games were scheduled here today in the Canadian League series. About 1,000 people witnessed a good exhibition of hall this morning, London and Hamilton being the opposing teams. Tierney and Thorpe were in the points for the Forest City team, and the former was an easy mark for the Hamilton batters, and the team gave him but poor sup-port in the field. The visitors failed to locate Moore's balls until near the close of the game. The home team played an errorless game up till the eighth inning. Player, an old London man, played a magnificent game at third for the Hamilton team, and Watson, of Dundas, at first and "Chub" Collins, the old International League player, also helped the Hamiltons to down their opponents.

HOBBS VS. ASYLUM. A most enjoyable game of baseball was played on Saturday afternoon between the Asylum and Hobbs baseball clubs. Both teams were well represented and played in good form. The excitement incident to good playing was well sustained throughout the game. The utmost good-feeling prevailed, the home team treating the visitors in a courteous and gentlemanly manner. This, coupled with the fact of playing on the well kept and beautifully situated asylum grounds, enabled the participants to enjoy a very pleasant afternoon's sport. The Hobbs team hope to have the pleasure of again meeting their asylum friends before the close of the season. Appended is the full

Of the concluding game between Capt. Hyman's Canadian team and All-Chicago on Saturday, the Herald of that city says: "The crowd was the largest ever seen at a game in Chicago and completely filled the grand stand. That the best team won there is no question, but the good showing made by the local clubs is gratifying as being evidence of the strength of the locals when pitted against such formidable players as the visitors." LONDON RIDERS DISTINGUISH THEMSELVES. Frank F. Radway and W. M. Carman, the crack riders of the London Bicycle Club, returned today from Detroit, where they distinguished them-selves in the great Hisendegen 25-mile road race at Belle Isle on Saturday. There were 30,000 people present, and the finish was the finest ever seen in America. There were 163 starters, including some of the fastest men on the continent. Radway was placed among the five scratch men and Carman given a start of two minutes. The world's record for the distance was 1 hour,5 minutes and 58 seconds. Both of the London boys had the proud distinction of beating it. Radway nnished fifth among the scratch men in 1:05:26, the winner being T. R. Eddy, of Columbus, O., whose time was 1:05:15, only 11 seconds ahead of Radway. Carman covered the distance in 1:05:42. The Detroit Free Press says:

"The finish between Patterson, of Bay City, one-minute man, and Carman, London, two-minute man, was sensational in the highest degree. Patterson came in ahead by but a foot or two. Carman, going at a tremendous rate of speed, struck one of the timers, who had incautiously stepped out too far, and went headlong in the dirt. He was helped to his feet in a half-sensible condition, but was found to be not seriously hurt.

"The time prize was won by Thomas R. Eddy, of Columbus, O., in the remarkably fast time of 1:05:15, or 43 secends faster than the track record for 25 miles, which is also the world's record. Eddy is a rather small man physically, but, as his achievement would indicate, possesses remarkable lung power and ability to withstand He stands about 5 feet 8 inches in height, and claims to be only 19 years of age

"The finish between Eddy, Gable and tary doctors, Leonard was one of the most sensational ever seen on an American track. The three men stuck to each other like leeches on every lap, and in the stretch down Central avenue on the last turn they were riding like demons. On they came, neck and neck, until within 200 feet of the tape, when Eddy spurted and won, Gable second, only two-fifths of a second later, Leonard third, onefifth of a second behind Gable." TURF.

Premier Greenway of Manitoba Replies to Threats.

The Blundering Remedial Order Must Be Withdrawn.

A Winnipeg dispatch to the New York Times says: Premier Greenway does not seem at all alarmed at the report that he is to be dismissed from office by Governor Schultz. Mr. Greenway said: "The Governor knows, and Earl Aberdeen and Sir Mackenzie Bowell should know, that no Government in Manitoba which would recede from the position which the Province now occupies on this question could live one week after it should get the Legisla-ture. The Dominion Government requests us to see how far we will go in a compromise measure. As the Dominion Government makes no move to withdraw the order demanding the restoration of the separate schools, the re-

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 5.-Two aeronauts were fatally injured in a balloon accident at Vandercock's Lake last night. The balloon used was one of the largest of the hot-air variety, with double bars. At 6 o'clock it was successfully inflated. Ella Peake, a trapeze performer, took the upper bar, and Charles Elliott, the lower. At the moment the retaining ropes were cast off a gust of wind caught the canvas, and carried it to one side, and it took fire. ### THE TIDE TURNS.

Great Improvement in the Health of a Well-Known Peterboro Lady.

Peterboro, Aug. 5.—General satisfac-tion is expressed here at the greatly improved condition of health of Mrs. K. Stephens, the well known music teacher of this town. Her friends have been much exercised over her condition for a long time, and a number of remedies have been tried during the ten years she has been a martyr to a complication of complaints, which recently became severe. She suffered frightfully with pains in the back pervous prostration and swelling of the limbs. She has been taking the new remedy for kidney troubles, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and has already experienced the most beneficial results.

What the Cry of "Man Overboard!" Signifies.

The Warnings That Men Get and Refuse to Heed,

Graphic Illustrations by the Breeklyn Boanarges.

New York, Aug. 4, 1895.—At this season of the year, when a large portion of the community is journeying either by land or sea, Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is still absent on his midsummer preaching and lecturing tour, has chosen as the subject of his sermon to-day "Man Overboard," the text being Jonah, i., 6-"So the shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy God, if it so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not."

God told Jonah to go to Nineveh on an unpleasant errand. He would not go. He thought to get away from his duty by putting to sea. With pack under his arm, I find him on his way to Joppa, a seaport. He goes down among the shipping, and says to the men lying around the docks: "Which of these vessels sails today?" The sailors answer: "Yonder is a vessel going to Tarshish. I think, if you hurry, you may get on board her." Jonah steps on board the rough craft, asks how much the fare is, and pays it. Anchor is weighed, sails are hoisted, and the rigging begins to rattle in the strong breeze of the Mediterranean. The sailors like what they call a "spanking breeze," and the plunge of the vessel from the crest of a tall wave is exhilarating to those at home on the deep. But the strong breeze becomes a gale, the gale a hurricane. The affrighted passengers ask the captain if he ever saw anything like this before. "Oh, yes," he says, "this is nothing." Mariners are slow to admit danger to landsmen. But, after awhile, crash goes the mast, and the vessel pitches so far "abeams-end" there is a fear she will not be righted. The captain answers few questions, and orders the throwing out of boxes and bundles, and of so much of the cargo as they can get at. The captain at last confesses there is but little hope, and tells the passengers that they had better go to praying. It is seldom that a sea captain is an eist. He knows that there is a God, for he has seen Him at every point of latitude between Sandy Hook and Queenstown. Capt. Moody, commanding the Cuba, of the Cunard line, at Sunday service led the music and sang like a Methodist. The captain of this Mediterranean craft, having set the passengers to praying, goes around examining the vessel at every point. He descends into the cabin to see whether in the strong wrestling of the waves the vessel had sprung aleak, and he finds Jonah asleep. Jonah had had a vearisome tramp, and had spent many sleepless nights about questions of duty, and he is so sound asleep that all the thunder of the storm and the screaming of the passengers does not disturb him. The captain lays hold of him, and begins to shake him out of his unconsciousness with the cry, "Don't you see we are all going to the bottom? Wake up and go to praying, if you have any God to go to? What meanest thou, O sleeper Arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not." The rest of the story I will not rehearse, for you know it well. To appease the sea, they threw Jonah overboard.

Learn that the devil takes a man's money, and then sets him down in a poor landing place. The Bible says he paid his fare to Tarshish, but did not get the worth of his money. Neither does any one who turns his back on his duty, and does that which is not There is a young man who, during the past year, has spent a large part of his salary in carousal. What has he gained by it? A spoiled reputation, a halfstarved purse, a dissipated look, a petulant temper, a disturbed conscience. The manacles of one or two bad habits that are pressing tighter and tighter will keep on until they wear to the oone.

One hundred dollars for Sunday One hundred dollars for wine suppers! One hundred dollars for cigars! One hundred dollars for frolics that shall be nameless! Making four hundred dollars for his damnation.

Instead of being in Tarshish now, he is in the middle of the Mediterranean. Here is a literary man, tired of the faith of his fathers, who resolves to launch out into what is called Free-Thinking. He buys Theodore Parker's works for twelve dollars; Renan's "Life of Christ" for one dollar and fifty cents; Andrew Jackson Davis' works for twenty dollars. Goes to hear infidels talk at the clubs, and to see spiritulism of the table-rapping. Talks glibly of David, the Psalmist, as an old libertine; of Paul as a wild enthusiast; and of Christ as a decent kind of a man-a little weak in some respects, but almost as good as himself. Talks smilingly of Sunday as a good day to put a little extra blacking on one's boots; and of Christians as, for the most part, hypocrites; and of eternity as "the great to be," "the everlasting now," or "the infinite what is it." Some day he gets his feet very wet, and finds himself that night chilly. The next morning has a hot mouth, and is headachy. Sends word over to the store that he will not be there today. Bathes his feet; has mustard plasters; calls the doctor. The medical man says aside, "This is going to be a bad case of congestion of the lungs." Voice fails. Children must be kept downstairs, or sent to the neighbors, to keep the house quiet. You say, "Send for the minister." But no; he does not believe in ministers. You say, "Read the Bible to him." No: he does not believe in the Bible. A lawyer comes in, and sitting by his bedside, writes a document that begins, "In the name of God, Amen. I. being of sound mind, do make this my last will and testament." It is certain where the sick man's body will be in less than a week. It is quite certain who will get his property. But what will become of his soul? Death cries, "Overboard with the unbeliever!" A splash. He goes to the bottom. He paid five dollars for his ticket to Tarshish when he bought the infidel books. He landed in perdition!

Every farthing you spend in sin Satan will swindle you out of. Learn how soundly men will sleep in the midst of danger. The worst sinner on shipboard, considering the light he had, was Jonah. In almost every place, I suppose, the Mediterranean might be sounded, but no line is long enough to fathom the profound beneath every impenitent man. Plunging a thousand fathoms down, you cannot touch bottom.

In the year 1775, the captain of a Greenland whaling vessel found him-self at night surrounded by icebergs, and "lay to" until morning, expecting every moment to be ground to pieces. In the morning he looked about, and saw a ship near by. He hailed it. No answer, Getting into a bost with some of the crew, he pushed out for the mysterious craft. Getting near by, he saw through the port-hole a man at the stand, as though keeping a log-book. He hailed him. No answer. He went on board the vessel, and found the man sitting at the log book, frozen to death. The log-book was dated 1762, showing that the vessel had been wandering for thirteen years among the ice. The sailors were found frozen among the hammocks, and others in the cabin. For thirteen years the ship had been carrying its burden of corpses. So from this Gospel craft today, I descry voyagers for eternity. I cry 'Ship ahoy! ship ahoy!" No answer. They float about, tossed and ground by the icebergs of sin, hoisting no sail for heaven. I go on board. I find all asleep. It is a frozen sleep. Oh, that my Lord Jesus would come aboard, and lay hold of the wheel, and steer the craft down into the warm Gulf Stream of his mercy! Again: Notice that men are aroused by the most unexpected means. gardener of the Countess of Huntingion was convicted of sin by hearing the countess on the opposite side of the wall talk about Jesus. John Hardoak was aroused by a dream in which he saw the last day, and the judge sitting, and heard his own name called with terrible emphasis: "John Hardoak, come to judgment. Again: Learn that a man may wake up too late. The last hour has come. The man has no more idea of dying than I have of dropping down this moment. The rigging is all white with the foam of death. How chill the night is. "I must die." he says, "yet not ready. I must push out upon this awful sea, but have nothing with which to pay my fare! The white caps! The darkness! The hurricane! How long have I been sleeping? Whole days, and months, and years. I am quite awake now. I see everything, but it is too late." Invisible hands take him He struggles to get loose. In vain. They bring his soul to the verge. They howl. The sea opens its frothing jaws to swallow. He has gone forever. There is something in the worm pages of the Bible he used to read which makes you think your father had a God. In the old religious books lying around the house there are passages marked with a lead-pencil—passages which make you think your father was not a godless man, but that, on that dark day when he lay in the back room dying, he was ready-all ready. But perhaps your father was a bad manprayerless and a blasphemer, and you never think of him now without a shudder. He worshipped the world or his own appetites Do not, then, I beg you, call upon your father's God, but call on your mother's God. I think she was good. You remember when your father came home drunk late on a cold night, how patient your mother was. You often heard her pray. She used to sit by the hour meditating, as though she were thinking of some good, warm place, where it never gets cold, and where the bread does not fail, and staggering steps never come. You remember her now, as she sat, in cap and spectacles, reading her Bible Sunday afternoons. What good advice she used to give you! How black and terrible the hole in the ground looked to you when, with two ropes, they let her down to rest in the graveyard! Ah! I think from your looks that I am on the right track. Awake, O sleeper, and call upon thy mother's God. But perhaps both your father and mother were depraved. Perhaps your cradle was rocked by sin and shame, and it is a wonder that from such a starting you have come to respectability. Then don't call upon the God of either of your parents, I beg of you. But you have children. You know God kindled those bright eyes, and rounded those healthy limbs, and set beating within their breasts an immortality. I think I am on the right track at last. Awake, O sleeper, and call upon the God of thy children. Today I know that many of you are sea-tossed, and driven by sin in a worst storm than that which came down on the coast of China, and yet I pray God that you may, like the sail-or, live to get home. In the house of many mansions your friends are waiting to meet you. They are wondering why you do not come? Escaped from the shipwrecks of the earth, you may at last go in! It will be a bright night —a very bright night—as you put your thumb on the latch of that door. Once in, you will find the old family faces sweeter than when you last saw them, and there it will be found that He who your father's God, and your mother's God, and your children's God. is your own most blessed Redeemer, to whom be glory and dominion throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Tree Trunks as Filters.

"A well-know Austrian engineer, M. Pfister," says the Railway Review, "is stated to have discovered a remarkable property of the trunks of trees, namely, that of retaining the salt of sea water that has filtered through the trunk in the direction of the fibres. He has con-sequently constructed an apparatus designed to utilize this property in obtaining potable water for the use of ships' crews. This apparatus consists of a pump, which sucks up the sea water into a reservoir and then forces it into the filter formed by the tree trunk. As soon as the pressure reaches 1.5 to 2.5 atmospheres the water is seen—at the end of from one to three minutes, according to the kind of wood used to make its exit from the other extremity of the trunk, at first in drops and then in fine streams, the water thus filtered being potable, freed, in fact, from every particle o fthe usual saline taste which is such a drawback to water obtained in the ordinary manner." NORTHWEST CROPS INJURED. Winnipeg, Aug. 5.—Hail last week seriously damaged the growing crops in the vicinity of Indian Head, Assa. About 2,000 acres of wheat were demolished. The weather is still favorable in Manitoba, although rain is threatened. KILLED BY A STREET CAR. Toronto, Aug. 4.—Edith Todd, the 4-year-old child of Arthur Todd, 11 Emer-son street, was instantly killed by a street car in Bloor street west Saturday afternoon. She tried to cross in front of the moving car. EXCEPTIONS DO OCCUR. A man isn't always a fool because he permits himself to be deceived .- Atchi-

"When Lucindy's eyes do shine, Jus like de muscadine!

Can't think of the rest of "dem mighty pooty verses." Wish I could, though; they would describe perfectly for me that beauty, the belle of the cake-walk, as she appeared last Thursday evening at the colored ball. Oh, those eyes! and that flashing smile, and gay laughter! It made one's heart grow light within to watch the blithesome rise and fall of those frisky

What an unlimited capacity for enjoyment! With what felicitous ease all members of the colored race seem able to cast away dull care, and enter into the spirit of the moment, like light-hearted children, enjoying their hour to its full. Under the shadow of a huge slave driver's whip, the descendants of those whom once it scourged, met together to celebrate, with feasting, dance and music, that lustrous day, when to each man, woman and little child was restored its dear birthright of liberty, withheld so lon! withheld so shamefully!

A well dressed young woman, holding a tiny girl by the hand, pushed her way out of a crowded store on Dundas street on Saturday morning. The little one became entangled in the skirts of the hurrying shoppers, and could not keep pace with her "mother." "Come along!" she snapped, pulling the tender little arm almost out of its socket. The child began to cry, as well she might, and again she was "twitched," this time off her feet, and slung on to the sidewalk. Two other women's glances crossed; the one looked horrifled; the other's eyes filled with tears. "She doesn't deserve to have children!" she exclaimed, as she went her way. And the crowd circled again, and again, and the strangers were lost in it, while this "mother," with the tiny girl, also passed out of sight, unconscious of the indignation that followed her.

Misapplied Talent.-"Whut yoh done whup de boy foh?"asked Uncle Eben, as he came into the cabin with a sable youngster whimpering at his side. "I whup 'im cos' he done stole er mushmillion! Dat's whut he done. It's soan'-lous ter t'ink ob dat boy whut we raise so keerful stealin' mushmillions. An'," she added with increased feeling, "dah was watahmillions in de nex' kyah!"

The Good Man and His Flock .- A country minister, in a certain town, took permanent leave of his congregation in the following pathetic manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say good-bye. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other, because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are moldy fruit and wormy apples, and 'by their fruits ye shall know them.' Brothers, I am going away to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary Where I go ye cannot come, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls. Good-

Alphonse Daudet's opinion of Mr. H. M. Stanley: He is the largest reservoir of human energy known to me since Napoleon. I admire him, I think, more than anything in the world.

Miss Lillian Russell's bathing costume consists of a waist and trousers. She deems a skirt superfluous, and so does Father Neptune, who gives the beauty prima donna a rapturous wel-come in Mantasset Bay every day when the tide is high. Miss Russell says she prefers swimming to cycling, and when she rides off on the wheel her dress consists of the regulation brown skirt, brown leggins, white waist and sailor hat. No bloomers for the fair and only Lillian, then .- Boston Herald.

Daisy Bell and her lyrical chronicler need no longer feel compelled to go tandem through weal or woe. They may now ride side by side on a threewheeled affair. If this is not fin de siecle enough they could use a tandem affair with three wheels, which offers especial features of comfort for both riders.

"Jack Little said some rather hard things about you at the club last night, but Bobby Gargoyle stood up for you.' "Ah! Bobby always was a friend of mine. What did he say?" "He said all women were liars."

In Self-Defense.-An old Scotch lady, who had no relish for modern church music, was expressing her dislike to the singing of an anthem in her own church one day, when a neighbor said: Why, that is a very old anthem! David sang that anthem to Saul." To this the old lady replied: "Weel, weel! I noo for the first time understan' why Saul threw hs javelin at David when the lad sang for him."

A number of pretty women are sitting on the veranda of a country house, discussing the pros and cons of fashion. One of them is dressed in a white linen suit, with a yellow silk front at this especial moment, and displays exceeding taste in her apparel in general. Listen to what she is saying:

"No, I never wear shirt waists. I hate them, with their stiff, hot collars and ugly fit. One is always conscious of not looking at her best in one of them." "But, surely," respended one of the ethers, "the silk waist you have on with the linen jacket over it, must be considerably warmer than a shirt waist

"Lam wearing no silk waist. What to you appears like one is merely a silk front with straps across the back to keep it in place. In that way I combine comfort and beauty."

"Now I understand why you have such a seeming variety of waists," murmured the other. "It must take little material to make such a front, and you undoubtedly are able to use all manner of odds and ends in this way."

Which was perfectly true, for our ingenious friend availed herself of every scrap of lace or silk that she secured, dressing herself prettily and economically, while the rest of us looked not half so well in more expensive gowns.

Another charming Tlea of this clever woman was suggested by the Marie Antoinette fichus seen on the new costumes. She made a number of light-colored mulls and silks, edged them with lace or a plaiting of the body materials. Some of them she made with long ends. The fichu is crossed surplice fashion over a plain gown, and the sash ends are knotted at the waist on one side, and hang to the edge of the skirt, making a charming adornment of a garment that is slightly putting it thus: An ounce of example weighs more with children than a pound of advice or precept. This is a good thought for mothers or teachers. How very early the child begins to imitate the example of its mother and teacher! Listen to the little girl playing with her dolls. She is playing mother. If her mother is deceitful, cross, impatient, the little girl is so to her dolls. Now she plays teacher. If her teacher is unjust. tyrannical, or a scold, the little girl is just so to her dolls. It matters not what good precepts the mother or teacher has given the child. She has learned to say, 'I must be truthful," "I must be patient," 'I must be kind," but she has had no illustration of it in grown people and she very soon comes to think that these precepts are things simply to be repeated, not to be acted upon, and treats them the way many religious people treat their religious precepts. There is perhaps no more common error in example among mothers, and those who have to do with children, than deception.

An Imperial Custom.

It is becoming more and more a custom to have breakfast trays brought to each sleeping room in the family instead of having the erstwhile cheery gathering about the common board in the diningroom. That is reserved for luncheon. and the breakfast is of foreign simplicity -toast and tea, an egg, perhaps, and it may be a roll, or a cup of chocolate. At some very swagger country houses the first meal even is of innumerable courses and more like a luncheon. And yet it is sent to the bedroom on one of the little barrows made for the purpose. When a tray alone is used lovely little sets of china may be brought to fit it out, with tea or chocolate dishes and even a toastrack of the same china as the plates, the catmeal bowl and the cup and saucer.

Youthful Formality.

A young philanthropist went away from home the other day on a short visit and was much pleased at receiving a letter during her absence from one of the little boys in her Sunday school class. Such epistles often smack strongly of maternal assistance, but it was apparent, from the first word, that this was an original composition. It began: "Dear Madam!"

Give the Wives a Chance.

The management of Norwegian coasting steamers have arranged that husband and wife may travel at a fare and a half. This is a distinct encouragement to husbands to take their wives with them on a journey; and the plan might be extended to railroads and adopted nearer home to the manifest advantage of a large part of the community.

Adjustable Bonnet Trimmings.

The latest millenery importation is a frame-work bonnet with sets of adjustable trimmings. There are jet and iridescent pins and butterflies, and they may be fastened to the bonnet to adorn it, front, back and sides, as the wearer fancies, and the change allows it to correspond with any gown.

Probability That 160 Residents of Beaver Island Have Perished.

Marinette, Wis., Aug. 4.-The probability is that 100 residents of Beaver Island, located in Gueen Bay, at the entrance of the Straits of Mackinaw, have been burned to death in the forest fires which have desolated the en-tire island during the last few days. Captain Young, of the steamer Cuba, reports that Beaver Island on Wednesday night was enveloped in flames, which could be seen many miles out in Lake Michigan. The inhabitants, who are employed in fishing and lumbering, number about 100. The island is 50 miles from the mainland, and it is not kelieved that aid could have been secured in time to save life and prop-

Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. The Massacre of Christians in China-A Brilliant Week at Cowes-Unpleasant Gossip Concerning the Goodwood Meeting-Discontent Regarding the Command of the Army-Marvelous Improvement on Telegraphing Promised—The Queen as a Chess-Player-Dynamiter Daly's Election to Be Voided-Big Apple Crop in Eng. land-Britain and the Tripartite Alliance.

London, Aug. 4.-A dispatch from Shanghai gives the details of the reported massacre of Christians at Kiucheng. The ladies who are supposed to have been killed are believed to have been members of the Church of England, the Zenana and the American Methodist missions. According to the dispatch they were butchered after suffering atrocious outrages. A number of other missionaries, including women and children, were seriously wounded. The dispatch declares that the Chinese officials connived at, if they did not instigate, the attack on the Christians. The revival of outrages is attributed to the apathy of the British and American Ministers, despite the increasing antiforeign feeling that is displayed. Foreigners in Shanghai regard the commission sent to inquire into the recent riots at Chengtu as a farce. Many officials who are charged with complicity in these riots are being promoted.

A BRILLIANT WEEK AT COWES. The week at Cowes promises to be a brilliant one. The distinguished assemblage will include Emperor William of Germany, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and the Duke of Connaught, while the Queen, the Princess of Wales and Princesses Victoria and Maude will be at Osborne, near by. Yachts are daily arriving at Cowes. On Monday Emperor William, on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, accompanied by five German warships, will arrive. The usual fashionable crowd is already filling the hotels. The Countess of Cardigan is at the Marine, and the Archduchess Stephanie takes Lord Dor-chester's house. Hundreds of persons of title will attend the regatta. The Duke of St. Albans, Marquis of Waterford, Earl of Dunraven, Earl of Lonsdale, the Earl of Albemarle, the Earl of Caledon, Baron Iveagh, Lady Scott and Prince Batthyani will be present on their respective yachts. Probably at no place in the United Kingdom is there such a mixed assemblage as that now gathered at Cowes. Already there have been many brilliant functions ashore and affoat, which afforded opportunities for a display of splendid toilets. The roads are packed with yachts, there being present not less than 300 vessels of all sizes and

GOODWOOD GOSSIP.

The Goodwood race meeting, just closed, was below the average, both in respect to fashion and racing, notwithstanding that the course was in excellent order and the weather generally fine. The Duke of Richmond, the owner of Goodwood, is in mourning, and did not have the usual royal house The rumor that the Prince of Wales had asked Capt. Machell not to run Ravensburg for the Goodwood cup caused a good deal of gossip on the lawn and paddock at Goodwood, and did not produce a pleasant effect. The Prince heard of it, and was very angry. His friend, Gen. Owen Williams, announced on his behalf that there was not a syllable of truth in the report. The Prince is still much annoyed by the stupid rumor, and says it is almost enough to make him sell all his horses. Capt. Machell, moreover, has written letters to the press denving that the Prince asked him not to run Ravensburg. The actual facts were that the Prince found Ravensburg entered for the cup, and thought it likely that the horse would win it, but on learning that Ravensburg was not quite fit he asked Capt. Machell if he intended to run him, because in that event the Prince's horse, Florizel II., would not be put in training for the race. The result was that on Thursday morning it looked likely that Florizel II. would have a walkover. Later, Lord Penrhyn produced a horse to make a race, but the other owners held aloof.

The Times said that Capt. Machell withdrew Ravensburg two on three days ago, although the fact of his being among the acceptances for the Lewes handicap negatives all idea of his having gone amiss. This topic somewhat marred the harmony of cup

THE COMMAND OF THE ARMY. As the opinion grows that the retirement of the Duke of Cambridge as commander-in-chief of the forces will be deferred, and the succession of the Duke of Connaught to the command of the army be confirmed, the discon-The movement emanates almost entirely from the Queen, who imbibed from the Iron Duke, the Royal Consort, Peel, John Russell, Palmerston, Beaconsfield and other deceased statesmen, the idea that royalty, nearly related to the sovereign, ought to be at the head of the army. Nobody doubts that Lord Salisbury, with his present backing, will cheerfully comply with the Queen's wishes. The court is bringing a vigorous pressure on the Duke of Devonshire to make him renounce the recommendation of his own commission. The Queen has sent to Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Devonshire a long memorandum embodying her views in regard to the army. Her Majesty hopes to be able to prove to her grandson, Emperor William, next week that the British sovereign's hold on the army is not materially less than his on the German army. If possible, she hopes in some indirect manner to use the Kaiser to influence the Government to effect her purpose. During the week Emperor purpose. During the week Emperor William goes to Aldershott for a field day with the troops. The Duke of Connaught's brigade, with several volun-teer battalions, will take part in the display, which will conclude with a "grand march past." The whole affair has been arranged especially with the view of giving the Duke of Connaught a chance to impress his nephew and the public. The Emperor probably will be induced to make some pronouncement lauding his uncle's handling of the

A GREAT TELEGRAPH IMPROVE-

MENT. The Pall Mall Gazette has had an Interview with Dr. Cornelius Herz at Bournemouth. The doctor is worn with anxiety and pain, and is clearly dying. He declared in broken utterances that he would leave a great invention to be patented and developed. The gist of the invention is an enormous improvement in telegraphy, by which more han 100,000 words can be transmitted by long sub-marine cables in the same time that 20 words can be sent now. The invention, the doctor claimed,

He dwelt upon the influence that the invention would have upon the newspapers of the future, and said that he intended, in granting royalties, to reserve all rights as far as news for the newspapers is concerned. The invention, he says, would render sub-marine telegraphy and multiplex telephony feasible. Among those en-gaged in his laboratories in France on the experiments which have resulted in the invention, he mentioned Edison's

> THE QUEEN AS A CHESS-PLAYER. The Queen is much interested in the Hastings chess tournament. Her Majesty was formerly an excellent player, having learned the game from her hus-band. She rarely plays now, but delights in watching members of her family play. She often criticises the and explains how a checkmate might have been avoided. As a chessplayer, her Majesty is superior to all the members of the royal family, except ex-Empress Frederick.

BAD FOR IRELAND.

Ballard Smith cables from London to the New York World: Justin Mc-Carthy has issued a call for a full meeting of the Irish party on the opening day of the new Parliament, when Timoday of the new Parliament, when 17mothy Healy's recent rebellion will be dealt with, Mr. Healy probably has a following of twenty members, and if he should secede from the majority of the party and unite with the Redmond split it would leave the Nationalists with 50 members as against 20. The with 50 members as against 30. The outlook for Ireland in the face of all these dissensions is gloomy indeed.

ENGLAND'S FOREIGN POLICY. Russian newspapers are publishing as authentic the story that Lord Salisbury has offered to join the Triple Alliance if it consents to give Austria a mandate at once to occupy all Macedonia. Berlin newspapers declare of their own knowledge that England has just made a new compact with Italy, by which their forces are to co-operate in Africa to keep the French out of the Nile Valley. The Parisian press has not the shadow of a doubt that England has committed herself body and soul to this Triple Alliance, and teems with detailed plans for joint Russo-French naval action in the Mediterranean and Red Sea, with a view of seizing the Suez Canal and preventing the British and Italian fleets at Aden from closing the water route to the east. There is, in fact, so much studying of army lists and war maps for this side of the world just now that perhaps the more serious imminent problems over on the Pacific coast will meet with next to no attenion. It is not supposed here that Lord Salisbury can accept the new Franco-Chinese treaty without a protest, or at least, without seizing for England territorial compensations, and it is confidently expected that friction will be developed in that far-away quarter, either on this point or between Japan and Russia before European affairs disclose any genuine cause for un-

TORY TALK. The New York Sun's London cable says: One inevitable effect of the Radical defeat has been the unmuzzling of Tory sentiment, and the language indulged in throughout the land in the last few days, which has not been heard before in this generation, is amazing. The frankness of some of these utterances will produce a popular reaction, which, however, can find no means of expression in the near future. The American admirers of Jerome K. Jerome will read probably with some amazement this candid expression of anti-republican opinions in his news-paper today: "Democracy is an idle folly, and no one but an uneducated fool can believe in it. Ten thousand idiots cannot teach one child the wisdom of democracy. It has been given its chance, and its value has been proved. It grew up as a weed from the world's highway in the early morning of history, to be trampled under foot with a laugh as the pioneers of the human race pushed their slow way across the Ural Mountains. It was reared again in Greece and Rome, to be mowed down by the sword. It had its opportunity in France 100 years ago, and it was swept away. It was set up to be worshiped in America, and today America worships the Almighty Dollar, and the Almighty Dollar tryannizes over her with a rod of gold, such as no people in the old monarchial days would have tolerated. Democracy has not even the vitality to perpetuate its own species. Its child is invariably a despotism. Julius Caesar, Oliver Cromwell and Napoleon each sprang from the womb of a democracy.'

THE NEW DOCK AT SOUTH-

AMPTON. The Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke of York formally opened the new graving dock at Southampton on Saturday, said to be the largest dry dock in the world. Torrents of rain, however, spoiled the decorations and thoroughly dampened the enthusiasm of the large crowds present. For years the work of dock extension there has been going forward, and now the Hampshire town, within 80 miles of London, has a dock area of enormous extent. Already the great American liners, as well as the largest vessels other lines that run into this port, have been able to warp alongside the Empress dock and land their passengers in London within two hours of their arrival. But, by this latest addition to the docking facilities of Southampton, the ocean palaces can now be repaired and examined on the spot. Its capacity is over 73,000 tons, and its maximum depth is 35 feet. Its width is 87 1-2 feet at still level.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY. According to a Berlin dispatch, a new political party has been formed in Alsace-Loraine, with headquarters at Colmar. It demands complete poliical equality with other federal states; instruction in French in the national schools; the right to post public notices in French and produce French plays. Also, free education, the separation of church and state, and reduction of the military burdens. THE FIRST PITFALL AVOIDED. The Government in accepting the nomination of Mr. Wm. Court Gully as Speaker of the House of Commons, to which he was elected on the retire-ment of Right Hon. Arthur W. Peel, has avoided the first pitfall in its career. The only persons who regret the Government's decision not to oppose Mr. Gully's re-election are the extreme Radicals, who say that if a Tory Speakwould allow of cabling 50 words at a | er had been elected would have given | Harold Frederic cables from London

Radical leader, would not have been elected except for Radical and Irish votes. The Conservatives are willing to retain him in office, as he has shown himself firm to maintain order.

DYNAMITE DALY'S ELECTION. Among the first topics that will be brought up for discussion when Parliament meets on the 12th inst. will be the election of the dynamiter-Daly-to represent Limerick in the House. Mr. Balfour will move for the production of proof of Daly's conviction for participation in the Association for participation. pation in the dynamite outrages, and for the issuance of a new election writ for Limerick.

The Parnellites intend to raise the question of amnesty, but Speaker Gully will probably rule that it is irrelevant. As Daly is now in Portland Prison, this fact in itself renders his election void.

ONLY ONE BILL TO BE PASSED. It is understood that the only bill that will be passed before the adjournment of the House will be one postponing the fixing of judicial rents in Ireland until 1938, in view of the Government's land purchase scheme that will be then introduced. The summonses to the Government supporters in the House of Commons, even to the Liberal-Unionists, have all been issued by Mr. Balfour, as the Government leader in the House. This fact, taken in connection with the speech delivered by Mr. Chamberlain at a dinner given to him by the Birmingham Conservative Club, indicates the eventual fusion of the two sections of the Union's party—the Conservatives of the Unionis party—the Conservaives and Liberal-Unionists.

The estimates are likely to be passed at the beginning of September. After adjournment Parliament will not meet again until February.

SALISBURY'S FOREIGN POLICY. The Daily News, the morning Liberal organ, has published an article in which it deals in a most generous manner with Lord Salisbury's foreign policy. It says that as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs he has al-ways been cautious, prudent and cir-cumspect, and adds that his share in the partition of Africa in 1891 was taken in closer concert with Germany than with an other power. The Liberals, it further says, certainly will not complain of his cultivating the most friendly and cordial relations with Germany. Lord Salisbury is the one English satesman who seriously and earnestly endeavored to withdraw the British troops from Egypt.

BIG APPLE CROP IN ENGLAND. England has this year the largest apple crop that has been seen for many seasons. In all the European countries the crop is larger than usual, with the exception of France, where the crop is only good. American apples, if any are needed, must be of the fanciest varieties, and reach London in October. The drought that prevailed during May and June caused a loss to the Scotch farmers of nearly £3,000,000. Potatoes will reach a moderate average. Barley will reach the average production. In oats and wheat there is a deficiency 25 per cent. There is only half a hay crop. Fodder will be very deficient during the coming winter. The German potato crop will probably be a failure. Owing to the immense size of the crop its failure would cause a large increase in the imports of food from the United States.

A CURIOUS QUESTION. The Attorney-General and the legal advisers of the Government are exercised over a curious state of affairs discovered in connection with the duration of Parliament in the event of the Queen's death. By the act of 1696 it was provided that Parliament should not last more than six months after the demise of the crown. This applied to Scotland and Ireland after they entered the Parliament of the United Kingdom, but the Reform Franchise Act of 1867 enacted that the demise of the crown should not affect the duration of Parliament. This act applied only to England and Wales. A similar reform franchise act was in 1868 passed in Scotland and Ireland, but does not contain any clause referring to the demise of the crown. Hence in the event of the Queen's death Scotland and Ireland would have an election six months thereafter, unless Parliament should extend the clause of the English act of 1867 to them. In view of the Queen's age and the size of the present Parliamentary majority, indicating that the House will last for several years, the matter becomes of practical importance, while the delicacy of the subject makes it difficult to immediately introduce an act thereon.

THE IRISH MEMBERS. The Irish members having slightly increased the representation in Parliament, are taking an optimistic view of the situation. Mr. Justin McCarthy is not downcast nor disheartened, but is encouraged by the constancy of Ireland to the home rule cause. Mr. Timothy Healy's Dublin organ advocates a return to the original lines of the Irish This may be a sign of a coming alliance between Mr. Redmond and Mr. Healy, based not upon Mr. Gladstone's bill, but upon a more radical measure of Irish independence. The main body of the Irish members, under Mr. McCarthy's leadership, is not likely to alienate Liberal sympathies by following Mr. Healy into Mr. Redmond's

THE G. O. M. Mr. Gladstone is silent on political questions outside of the circle of his intimate friends. An attempt may be made to drag him out on the Armenian question at the public meeting at Chester before his departure for Scotland. Lord Salisbury, however, if the Unionist journals are not over-sanguine, does not need Mr. Gladstone's co-operation in order to bring the Porte to terms. The change of Government is represented by them to have had the wholesome effect of forcing the Sultan to accede to the demands of the powers. AFTER THE TIDAL WAVE.

Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables from London to the New York Tribune: After the tidal wave there is a sudden, complete calm. Liberal leaders and journalists have abandoned their attempts to explain the Unionist flood, and are silent, except the cynical Labouchere, whose ire against Lord Rosebery cannot be appeased. The only consolation which they have after their over-whelming defeat is the reflection that the Unionists' majority is so large as be unmanageable, and that Mr. Chamberlain, the man whom they hate, cannot dictate the Government's policy, and may some time head a revolt against Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour. This condition leaves out of acsomething more than an adroit political organizer and election campaign-He is a statesman of lucidity of mind and creative energies, and repre sents ideas as well as votes. Even with its great majorities the Salisbury Covernment can hardly afford to dispense th the services of a leader who is new the brain of the Tory democracy. WELCOME LULL IN POLITICS.

them the whip hand during the whole life of Parliament. If one of their political opponents occupied the chair and vigorously suppressed obstruction, he would be accused of partiality, whereas Mr. Gully, who was originally the nominee of Mr. Henry Labouchere, the Radical leader, would not have been to the New York Times: There is a notable and extremely welcome lull in politics here in England. The very immensity of the Unionist majority affects the public imagination like an opiate. The Speakership question hard-liv concerned the general crowd at any time, and except for a pressing impression that Mr. Chamberlain has proved too smart for Mr. Balfour in the matter, its settlement in favor of Mr. Gully has aroused no interest. It was, perhaps, in a sense, Chamberlain's triumph, but the really conclusive element was the solidity of the Tory lawyers in the House against unseating the eminent queen's counselor who had obtained the Speakership. The English bar is the most powerful and clannish trades union in the world, and when it said "Gully," there was nothing left for anybody else to say. Chamberlain had merely the acuteness to see this, and get on the winning side before his slower-witter colleagues in the Cabinet had begun to imagine that Gully's being a lawyer might be of importance

CANADA WINS AGAIN. Chicago, Aug. 4.—The Canada cricketers won the two-inning game with the All-Chicago team yesterday in brilliant time, closing the week's series of un-broken victories and earning praise from their opponents as well as the thousands of men and women who had turned out to see the play. The close of the day's contest was unique. Chicago had scored 170 for the first inning, part of which was played on Friday. Canada's first inning on Friday netted 241, and when eight of the visitors in the second inning had put together 190, to close the inning for six wickets including extras, Capt. Hyman elected down, believing that his men could easily retire the Chicago eleven for a less score than 431—the grand total for Canada-before the umpires called the game at 6:15 o'clock. And the Canadians just did it, without a second to spare, thus leaving the game from being called a draw. It was on the stroke of the minute. Nine Chicagoans had been put out, the last ball had been pitched by Grew-a slow, raising one-Morrison hit into Grew's hands, who held it, amid the plaudits of all. A miss would have meant a draw. The Chicagoans played towards the last to kill time and keep the inning from coming to an end before the call of time, but they were out-played, 430 to 324. The score: ALL-CHICAGO.

BASEBALL. TORONTO VS. SPIRNGFIELD.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 4.-The Torontos gave Springfield no trouble at all in yesterday's game, and did their best to push the home team pennantward. Crane was in the box in the first game, and for a time it looked as though the Ponies were not going to hit him. Springfield played an uphill game, and after Toronto had pounded Callahan for seven runs in the first inning, they settled down to work and shut he visitors out in the next eight They got track of Crane's curves, too, and toward the end of the game pounded them at will.

In the second game the youngster Chesbro pitched for Springfield, and gave Toronto considerable difficulty, allowing them but five hits in the seven innings played. Payne held Springfield down well at the start, but was hit hard in the last two innings. Donnelly made the pretriest stop of the season, a hot grounder over third, with Receives a "Setting Out" From the Police Magistrate.

A Liquor Case Enlarged - An Alleged Woman Nuisance-Finnigan Must Leave Town-An Italian Who Forgot His English.

At the Police Court this morning the charge of infraction of the Liquor License Act against John D. Wray, Britannia House, came up for a third hearing. Mr. Joseph Graham gave evidence to show that no one but Mr. Wray had entered the bar after hours on the night in question, and that he had gone to get liquor for a man who had a doctor's certificate.

The magistrate held that Mr. Graham, from where he sat, was physically unable to see anyone who might have entered the bar-room by one of the other two doors.

Mr. Love argued that the evidence of selling liquor was not strong, and the chief asked to have the information amended, and Mr. Wray charged with having lights in his bar-room during prohibited hours.

The magistrate allowed the change to be made, and enlarged the case for another week.

"It is represented to me that you are a nuisance to the whole neighborhood," said the magistrate to Mrs. Katherine Jones, an elderly woman, charged with vagrancy.

"I am not guilty," replied Mrs. Jones. "I will enlarge the case for a week. I want all the witnesses subpoenaed," said the magistrate as he proceeded to give Mrs. Jones a lecture on her long record. She attempted to talk, but Mr. Parke said that she would be given a chance to speak when the case came up. Elizabeth Shea and her sister, Mary Ann Carey, were charged with vagrancs. They were found on Saturday, July 27, in a vacant King street cellar. Mrs. Shea and her sister have been convicted twice on their admission of keeping a disorderly house. They have been charged with drunkenness, and Mrs. Shea's children were taken away from her and placed in a home. Her husband lives in Brantford, but contributes nothing to her supoprt. The excuse offered for entering the cellar was that they saw a policeman coming, and as they were out on "expended" tence, and had been drinking somewhat, they did not wish to meet him.

The magistrate found the charge proven, and Mrs. Shea begged to be let go, and promised to leave town. "You told me that before," said the magistrate.

"It was my children who kept me here," said Mrs. Shea. "Your children are Detter without you. What can a drunken woman do with children?" asked Mr. Parke. The two were finally remanded for a week for sentence. The death of a relative of the defendant caused the enlargment until Tuesday week of a stealing case. John Finnegan was let go to leave town at 2 p.m., and he is not to return for a year, or he will be arrested, to London.—Sarnia Observer. George Smart, charged with obstructing an officer, was let off on suspended sentence.

George McDonald, a mere lad, was discharged on Saturday, but was arrested again later in the day as drunk as ever. He was remanded for a week. Seven drunks were discharged.

Antoni Collato, an Italian, was charged with obstructing the street with a fruit cart. A few weeks ago Antoni acted as interpreter in a Police Court case, but this morning he had a small boy perform the duties for him, to the intense amazement of the court. He was discharged.

Dansville, N. Y., Aug. 5. - Mrs. Talmage wife of Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage, died at 5:30 this morning.

Since the burning of the Brooklyn tabernacle last year, Mrs. Talmage suffered from nervous prostration and she never fully recovered from the shock of that memorable Sunday afternoon. The fire broke out while the doctor was holding his usual Sunday reception and a large number of parishioners and visitors were in the church when the fire broke out. They all made good their escape, but Dr. Talmage went back into the burning edifice for something he had left behind. During his absence Mrs. Talmage who, with other members of the family was out side awaiting his reappearance, became greatly excited and alarmed for the doctor's safety. As soon as she was informed that he was all right she broke down completely, her overwrought nerves being unequal to

The motor consisted of two radius beams, fulcrumed, one on either side, to the rear of the frame. From the forward ends of the beams arms were attached. At the angles formed by the beams and the pedals driving rods connected with the cranks, which were placed, as in the ordinary bicycle, diametrically opposite each other.

The wheelman's foot, instead of describing a circle, made an oblong curve. Riding a wheel geared to 100 inches, each time one foot was turned the wheel covered a space of 26 feet and two inches.

The rider, who was said to be a nonprofessional, when timed, made the last third of a mile in 40 seconds.

The Secret Out

They were such as are very apt to follow a runaway match such as hers had evidently been; six months of extreme joy, followed by sickness, want, and growing neglect on the part of him who led her into his trouble. A few months later and the sickness had increased and the poverty deepened; then some blow, dreadful, but keen, called out the hurried line: "O, my poor darling, bear up till I come; you shall not endure this fearful grief alone!" after which there was a lapse of letter writing on the part of this person for months, and when it was taken up again, the frequent expressions of sympathy for his correspondent's widowhood showed what this grief had probably been; although there were other and less comprehensible allusions to some great sacrifice she had made, which threw an air of mystery over this portion of the correspondence that for some time the detective found it impossible to penetrate. Not till he ad in a much later letter your sweet little Mildred is well; I wonder if the other one has fiourished as rapidly and looks as well," did the light he was seeking break in upon this seemingly common-place history. Then, indeed, he appeared to catch a glimpse of something that might lead him out of the maze his imagination had wrought for itself, and he addressed his attention to the remaining letters of the packet with renewed interest. But beyond a kindly word here and there, and some expressions of relief that Mrs. Farley had had the courage to resign a portion of her burden in order that the rest might be sustained, he found nothing to corroborate his suspicion till he suddenly stumbled upon these words at the beginning of a letter dated from New York: "I have news for you, I have seen her, and she is as much like Mildred as any little lady brought up in the lap of luxury could be like a child who has not always had two little shoes for her feet. I met her as she was going to school. I was on the sidewalk in front of the house and she passed so near me I could have caught her in my arms. Why didn't I? She would only thought me crazy, and that wouldn't have done me any harm, while the letting her go by me as if her sweet body did not contain a drop of my blood, did. But her rich dress and the haughty way in which she held her head, overawed me, and I did not even follow her down the street, although I own my heart went after her almost as much as if she had been my own child. What grief, what longing must be yours! I appreciate it now that I have seen with my eyes this fac simile of the darling you have retained for your own solace." And this letter was signed Annie like the rest, and bore a date only ten years back.

After this Mr. Gryce was not astonished to find a change in the direction of the epistles addressed to Mrs. Far-From being sent to a small town in Ohio, they were now inscribed to a certain number in Bleecker street, New York. The widow had moved herself and child to the great metropolis, and henceforth recognized the fact that a stern conflict was going on in her breast, that, added to her daily strugfor bread, was fast undermining what little health she had.

At last, words of condolence took the place of words of hope, as the two struggles culminated; followed by sudden congratulations that she had found strength in her weakness, and had not only been saved from breaking a most solemn oath, but had found in the child who shared her life and fortunes a help and comfort that would yet compensate her for all she had lost and suffered. And then a sudden failure on the part of Annie to write; with hurried lines, manifestly from some other member of this same Annie's household, in which hope was expressed that Mrs. Farley was well, and news given of the invalid, as Annie was henceforth called: winding up with this single injunc-tion in the old handwriting: "Do be careful; Mildred's happiness as well as that of the other depends upon keeping things as they are. Remember your

And the packet was exhausted. But what had he not learned? Or, at least, what was he not at liberty to surmise? Procuring the date at which the first mention of Mildred was made, and storing up in his deep memory the name of the town from which came those letters signed Annie, he left Mrs. Olney, with a sense of great professional complacency, notwithstanding the secret dread which sprang from his benevolent nature of being upon the track of a crime destined to plunge a beautiful woman and a noble man into a pit of shame and dishonor.

What he did with the facts he now gleaned and what followed his pursuit of the unknown Annie to her place of residence I leave him to tell for himself in the ensuing chapter.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Dr. Cameron wished to see Mr. Gryce, Mr. Gryce was ready to see Dr. Cam-eron. The result was that they were closeted together at police headquar-

The meeting of the two was peculiar. Each had something to say and the other knew it, but the doctor as well as the detective carefully concealed his impatience, and waited with seeming impassiveness for the other to begin. It was Mr. Gryce who at last broke the silence.

know. It is an unexpected one, and may cause you some chagrin, and may not. It depends upon what affects your pride and whether in seeking a wife you had any other views than those which could be met by her youth, her beauty and her wealth Dr. Cameron smiled bitterly. "If I once possessed what you call pride, it has been somewhat roughly exorcised by the experiences of the last few days. Do not let any fear of wounding my self-esteem stand in your way."

"I only wish to prepare you," ex-claimed the detective, "for what will probably prove a surprise. And yet why should I take that for granted; you look like a man who has made his discoveries, too."

"My discoveries are not your discoveries," asserted the doctor; "yet why should I take that for granted? Because I have learned certain facts in what seem to me an unique way, it does not follow that you have not known them from the first through your detective intuition. But let us not fence with each other in regard to such an important matter. Tell me the result of your labors and I will respond if necessary by telling you

"Very good," returned the detective. You will pardon me if I begin with a question. When you married Miss Gretorex, so called-"So called?"

"Did you not suppose you were marrving the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Gretorex?"

"Certainly-of course-why?" "They let you think so? Did not tell you that she was only their child by adoption, beloved by them as their own, and the destined inheritor of their wealth, but not of their blood or lineage any more than this poor Mildred Farley was, let us say, or any other girl you might chance to meet in a walk through Broadway?"

The surprise of the doctor, so great as to almost render him speechless, was his best reply. The detective immediately proceeded:

"Then you were made the victim of a deception", he declared firmly. "Genevieve Cameron is your wife, but she is not the child of Mr. and Mrs. Philo Gretorex. She was adopted by them when she was a babe, and under circumstances, and with such secrecy, that the truth has never transpired even among the nearest relatives of the family. Do you wish to hear any particulars of the affair?"

Dr. Cameron rose, walked to the window, threw it up, and took a deep breath of the cool February air; then he came back, a trifle haggard, a trifle wan, but outwardly composed.
"I most certainly do," he returned; but first reassure me in one regard. My wife-He had overrated his strength. That name could not pass his lips without a struggle. He paused and looked imploringly at the detective.

"I understand you," the latter respended. "You wish to know if she was a party to the deception? I would rather not answer you yet. Let me first give you the details of her adoption." Dr. Cameron drew a deep sigh. These tremendous blows, one after another, were telling upon him. "I am listening," he observed; but his eyes had a far-away look, as if they rested upon objects remote from those contained in this barren office. And they were. They were seeing, as if in a vision, a calm, sweet profile, outlined against a pillow, upon whose closed lids and immovable mouth unconsciousness sat, but sat so lightly that at any hour a change might come and awake this soulless marble into a living woman, with eager yearning in her eyes, and an awful trepidation in her heart. Was he beginning to dread that hour, and wish he might be lying in blissful unconsciousness when it came? Mr. Gryce, who as I have said, understood, men, perceived this look and remained for a moment silent; then, with softened tone and a quiet air commenced in his easy, colloquial way to say.

Annual Outing of Employes and Their Friends at Port Stanley.

A Ride on the Boat and a Sea Sick Crowd.

The Sports and the Baseball Match-A Big Crowd and a Good Time.

The "Advertiser" building on Saturday was quieter, if possible, than the shop of the merchant who sneers at printer's ink and advertises not. The silence was so dense it could be felt by the lone office mouse as he nibbled at the paste pot on the editorial room shelf, while the office cat looked on from the floor below and sighed for a stepladder. It pervaded the place from the top flat, where the click of the Linotype type-setting machines was silent, to the gloomy depths of the basement, where the wheels of the gigantic web press had ceased to revolve and the endless web of paper to unroll. The busy hive of industry was silent-and the bees were at play.

In other words, it was the "Advertiser's" annual picnic-the day when everybody from the chief editor down to the latest acquired carrier boy (the coming editor), is supposed to enjoy himself. The scene of enjoyment this year was Port Stanley, and the "Advertiser" has gone farther away from home and fared a great deal worse from the enjoyment point of view than it did on Saturday. The Port is not too far away for a man to take his family, and not so far as to necessitate three days for the journey. Six well-laden coaches filled with happy excursionists went down in the morning and a larger train was required to carry the afternoon contingent. Superintendent Young provided splendid coaches for the trip, and upholstery was a feature with each. It had been raining at Port, as in London, the preceding night, and when the climb up the hill began the dust was nicely laid and the coolness was delightful. A steady breeze blew in from the water, and none were better able to appreciate its freshness than the printers, whose vocation is so close and

When it came to the ball match the absence of one who had for years been the moving spirit of the "Advertiser" picnic sports became more than ever apparent. The late Jesse M. Symonds was absent, but not forgotten. His presence was missed also on the committees, and the memory of his cheerful disposition and willingness to aid caused the thoughts of more than one to take on a momentary tinge of sad-

The "Advertiser" ball match has always been the feature of the annual picnic. Each player was out for a record and a share of the prize money. Both pitchers were hit hard and often, the results ranging from foul tips that kept the umpire—Mr. Alex. Richards—dancing a fling to escape, to hits on which home runs were made while the fielders were exploring for the ball. Talliaferro, especially, had to bat with one hand to keep the ball out of the lake or off the The crowd applauded good and plays alike, and much enjoyed guying the players when they made an error. A pad of paper and two pencils were used up in keeping the score, which, at the conclusion of the game resembled somewhat the scores made by Charley Hyman's cricket eleven. It was 26-17, in favor of the job room team. A BOAT RIDE The waves were rolling in three at a time when the R. G. Stewart, of Duluth, began her hour and a half sail on the lake at 4 o'clock. A rush was made for favorable seats at the bow, and the first half of the way out was pleasant. Then one by one people began to get white in the face and to go below as fast as the tossing boat would permit. Every sofa in the ladies' saloon had its occupants, and many went down to the lower deck, where the motion of the boat was not so palpable. The boat's cook did a splendid business in lemons and cream tartar. Along the ship's rail heads were reclining, the owners of which had not the strength or inclination to move. The captain was at last prevailed upon to turn about and put for shore, but there are some who will remember their ride for many a day. Another lunch on the hill followed, and the majority of the picnickers returned home at 7:25 p.m., tired but

A LIFE DEVOTED TO CHECKERS. Remarkable Career of James Wyllie, of Scotland.

The most famous checker player in the world is James Wyllie, a Scotch-man. now in his 76th year, who has been playing for "a shullen a game, ye ken," nearly 60 years, and is still able to beat almost everybody.

Wyllie was born in the Pierce Barracks, near Edinburgh, in March, 1820, his father being at the time a sergeantmajor in the Scots Greys. He won fame as a checker player when a bay of 15. Wyllie came to this country in 1873, and played over 11,000 games of checkers. of which he lost less than 50. In 1881 he again visited America, and won 17,-654 out of 19,517 games, drawing 1,754 and losing only 109. As he charged Americans 25 cents a game for the privilege of playing with him he must have earned a fair income. In this country played matches with C. F. Barker of Boston; C. A. Freeman, of Providence, and the late R. D. Yates, of Brooklyn, winning from Barker and losing to the others. As Wylie had highly successful tours in England and in Australia, it is believed that he has acquired a snug fortune. Wylie claimed the title of "champion draughts player of the world" until last year, when he was beaten by Jas. Ferrie, a much younger Scotch player, in a match of 90 games, of which Ferrie won thirteen and Wyllie six, the nemainder being drawn. After the match the old man said despairingly, "I doot I'm too auld for draughts," but since then he has played thousands of games, and has had remarkable success in many places in Scotland.

Mr. Brennan strongly advised the council against sending any representative, arguing that the congress was a failure, from a labor point of view, nothing practical being Mr. Belland moved that only one delegate be elected, and this motion was adopted. Mrs. Patrick, of London West, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Saturday night. She had stepped from her wagon, intending to enter a grocery store on Wellington street, near Hill, to make some purchases, when she was struck by a passing carriage and knocked down. Friends carried her into a store unconscious and bleeding from an ugly cut on the forehead. She revived shortly, and it was found that no bones were broken. She was, however, very much shaken up. and it will be some time before she recovers from the shock.

Mrs. Foster, of Kent street, has just recovered from a serious attack of La Grippe, This is the second siege she has had of the influenza, the first of which attacked Mrs. Foster about three years ago, and left her with a very troublesome cough, accom-panied with chronic bronchitis, and a complication of other diseases, which made it almost impossible for her to attend church without disturbing the congregation by coughing, and, indeed, Mrs. Foster assures us that so bad were the spasms that she often feared she would burst a blood vessel during one of these severe attacks. It was very natural that under such circumstances numerous friends would recommend as many different "cure alls." She tried Cherry Pectoral, Tar, Linseed and other preparations, but was growing generally worse when a friend who had been benefited by Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam advised her to try that, and in a few days she was out of bed, and the best feature is that she is now entirely freed from all simptoms of the Bronchitis, of which she never hoped to be cured. Mr. Millar, a neighbor, also had a bad cough and was completely cured by the same preparation.

who died suddenly at Ingersoll last week had a phenomenal career. He was born in 1816. His father, Mr. Henry Coyne took up rand from Col. Talbot in October, 1817, choosing the spot in Dunwich now known as Coyne's Corners. Here he raised a large family, all of whom are now deceased. Mary, the eldest daughter, married Mr. Edward Green, and was the mother of the Messrs. Green, of this city. John, one of the sons, when he arrived at man's estate, settled in Mosa, being one of the pioneers of that township. Mr. J. W. Coyne, of Ridgetown, and Messrs. G. and H. Coyne, of Glencoe, are sons, while a married daughter resides at Wardsville. Thomas, another son of Henry Coyne, was reeve of Dunwich for many years, and was a prominent figure in that township. It was he who built the Coyne James, another son, removed to London, and Isaac to Mount Forest. Elizabeth, a daughter, married Mr. Thomas Webb, of this city. Miss Ann Covne was married to Mr. Benjamin Wilson, but died nearly half a century ago. He was an ardent Liberal, and his views of the relatives merits of the two great political parties were hardly those of today, but rather those of the stormy times when the liberties we now enjoy had to be fought for and sometimes to be bled for. Mr. Coyne was old enough to remember what the reign of the Family Compact meant. He was a young man in the prime of life when Mackenzie and his followers rose to obtain by force the rights they despaired of otherwise attaining. He had stood shoulder to shoulder with hundreds of his fellow Liberals in this city in 1849 to guard Lord Elgin from the attack of the Conservative party, and had there received a blow which had nearly ended his days. Time and again had he and his fellow Liberals to fight their way to the polls. He had in later years been one of those who demanded the secularization of the clergy reserves and representation in Parliament by population. He was one of those men to whom Canada owes much—industrious, persevering, intelligent, progressive, endowed with a hate of tyranny and a deep love of liberty. They rescued Canada from the forest and gave her people those rational liberties and self-governing power which they now possess. So good was his memory that he had a clear recollection of the death of Napoleon in 1821. In 1826, when he was ten years of age, he visited Mr. Green in London township, and one of his recollections was that of going to the forks of the Thames to see the place that Governor Simcoe had chosen as the capital of the Province. There was then not a single house where London now stands, and passage across the river was made during low water on logs thrown into the stream. Gibbons' Toothache Gum is sold by
