Five Killed By Lightning; Disaster at Summer Resort

Coney Island Bathers Meet Death Where They Had Sought Safety.

New York, July 31.—In a thunderstorm of terrific intensity, which passed over New York Sunday afternoon, five persons were struck by lightning and instantly killed, and nine were seriously injured at the Parkway baths at Coney Island.

At the same time, one man was killed and three were prostrated at Gravesend Beach.

When the storm blew up from the westward, the Parkway Beach was thronged with bathers and spectators. As the rain descended in torrents, hundreds of men, women and children sought shelter under the big bathhouse, which is elevated above the sand on piles.

A few minutes before 5 p.m., a bolt struck the flagstaff and grounded in the thickest of the crowd. Nearly fifty persons were prostrated, and the rest, screaming with terror, rushed out into the storm.

Those who had remained in the water were also panic-stricken, and fled in all directions, not daring to enter the bathhouse, which appeared to be on fire.

The nine injured were removed to a hospital, where it was said that some probably would die. Many persons less seriously hurt were taken home by friends.

A slight fire in the bathhouse was quickly extinguished by the rain.

About the same time, Henry Ransweiter was struck and killed while standing under a tree at Gravesend Bay, and his son, William, with John Apple and Daniel McCauley, were rendered unconscious.

Lightning struck at various points in the city.

A store in Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, was burned, and a car in Sixth avenue, Manhattan, was set on fire, but the occupants escaped unhurt.

The electric light and telephone wires in Bellevue Hospital were struck several times, extinguishing all the lights and causing much alarm among the patients.

PREACHER HELD AS A MURDERER

He and His Two Sons With a Negro Sentenced to Be Hanged.

Valdosta, Ga., July 31. — Rev. G. J. Rawlins, early yesterday was found guilty as accessory murder of two children of Rev. A. W. L. Carter, and unless a higher court intervenes Rev. Rawlins and his sons, Milton and Jesse, and Alf Moore, a negro, will have to hang. The Rawlins sons and Moore were found guilty of the murder some time ago.

Both Rawlins and Carter were for years ministers in the Methodist Church. A feud started and Rawlins plotted to wipe out the Carter family. It was arranged that Moore and Milton and Jesse and Leonard Rawlins would go to the Carter home, and kill the parents while they sat at the table. When the children ran out they were shot down. The assassins, however, arrived after the evening meal, and could not shoot through the windows at their victims. Some noise caused Willie and Fannie Bell Carter to run into the yard. Instantly the guns of the murderers spoke and the girl fell dead. The boy, shot through the body, dragged himself into the house and told who had done the firing.

All night long Rev. and Mrs. Carter crouched in their home. Trough crevices in the log house the Carters could see the assassins creeping about the yard, but whether their daughter was dead or not they could not learn. Finally, Rev. Carter reached his rifle and fired through a crack in the door. The shot caused the murderers to flee.

Moore confessed the plot.

RUSSIA TALKS OF MORE FIGHTING

Says She Is Reinforcing Her Manchurian Army By Rail and Water.

St. Petersburg, July 31. — The war office is not slackening preparations for continuing the war in case the peace negotiations are unsuccessful. The gap in Gen. Linevitch's army caused by the losses at Mukden has been filled and the railroad is working to its full capacity, carrying reinforcements.

A dispatch from Irkutsk announces the completion of work on the Trans-Baikal line. To relieve traffic on the railroad, Prince Hilkoff, Minister of Railroads, has sent three steamers loaded with rails and a flotilla of river steamers by way of the Arctic Ocean to the mouth of the Yenisei River, whence they will be transported to Krasnoyarsk, within 400 miles of Lake Baikal.

Khersu, Manchuria, July 31. — The Japanese are concentrating in considerable force far to the eastward to operate against Kirin and Ninguta and get in between Vladivostock and the Russian Manchurian army.

It is reported that the Japanese have landed at several places on the Siberian littoral between Nicholaievsk and De Kastries and that the telegraph line to Nicholaievsk has been cut. These landings, however, are reported to be by small forces.

The rains are moderating and the roads are passable. The wet weather and great heat are affecting the health of the army and stomach trouble among the troops is increasing. Some cases of typhus have been reported, but the disease is not epidemic.

Ban on Marriage.

Berlin, July 31.—It is stated that the Czar has refused the Grand Duke Cyril permission to marry the divorced Grand Duchesse of Hesse, the Princess Victoria Melita of Saxe-Cobourg.

Tilbury East's New Postmaster.

Tilbury, Ont., July 31. — W. Graham, postmaster at Valetta, has been appointed treasurer of the township of Tilbury East. He will furnish a company bond for $32,000. The salary is $325 a year. The bondsmen of Former Treasurer Robinson made an offer of $2,500 to cover Robinson's defalcation, but the offer was refused.

QUARANTINES ARE BEING TIGHTENED

Fruit Business Practically Barred in Louisiana.

ITALIANS SPECIALLY AFFECTED

Little Change in the Yellow Fever Situation—The Health Board Feels Encouraged.

New Orleans, July 31. — Little change was apparent in the yellow fever situation here today. A number of new cases were unofficially reported to the board of health. The large majority of new cases and deaths continue to be in the old infected area below Canal street. The health authorities, while freely admitting the situation to be serious, believe that the disease can be controlled. Reports from various points show a closer quarantine against New Orleans.

Much distress is beginning to appear among the Italian population growing out of the practical expulsion of the fruit business from Louisiana on account of quarantines. While the six-day detention ordered by the board of health last Saturday to all the lines which have been operating fruit steamers into New Orleans will divert their ships to Moville, and this will have the effect of throwing at least 35,000 laborers, many of them Italians, out of employment.

The health authorities are very much encouraged by the excellent work that is being done at the emergency hospital, and they believe that when the results of the treatment become known, families will readily consent to have their patients sent there.

While the feeling here is constantly growing more hopeful, there is apparently no abatement of the excitement and panicky feeling in the country districts of Louisiana and Mississippi. Local business houses are beginning to feel the effects of the scare.

Quarantines everywhere are being drawn tighter. A number of the towns in Louisiana and Mississippi are cutting themselves off from the world, and the shotgun quarantine is being extended. Guards and inspectors are appointed and making travel increasingly difficult.

MINISTER'S SUDDEN DEATH

Rev. Dr. Ure, of Goderich, Expires In His Own Garden.

Goderich, July 31.—The Rev. Robert Ure, D.D., died suddenly Saturday while sitting in his garden, in the presence of Miss MacDonald and his nurse. Dr. Ure was stricken with paralysis June 1, and up to a week or so ago his life was despaired of. Recently his mental and physical vigor began to return, and he made such progress it was hoped he would recover.

Dr. Ure was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, in 1823. When 19 years of age he settled in Hamilton and completed his theological course in 1850.

GREAT FIND OF SILVER

Important Discovery Made at Cobalt —R. R. Gamey Interested.

Cobalt, July 31.—Another important find has been made, and one that would indicate that the ore of this district extends further than has hitherto been believed, except by the most sanguine.

The north half of lot 13, con. 2, in the township of Bucke, is owned by a Swede named Peterson. He gave an option on the place to the Richardsons, of Philadelphia, for six months at the price of $5,000, the purchase to be paid when a discovery of silver was made.

There was an outcropping of iron seen from the start, and the Philadelphia people have been working for two weeks. Saturday, at a depth of four feet, the free silver was found.

The township of Bucke adjoins the township of Coleman, and is pretty well infested with prospectors.

R. R. Gamey has the south half of the Peterson lot, and on his half there is the same outcropping as shown in the Peterson half. He has three men out prospecting, and has every hope of success.

RUST IN WHEAT FIELDS

A Scare Prevalent in the District of Hartney, Man.

Winnipeg, July 31. — A rust scare concerning the wheat crop has precipitated almost as much concern as the wheat corner, and is an important topic on the grain exchange and in business circles.

A special inspector sent out by a leading grain firm to make private observations reports red rust very general around Hartney, some fields being much worse than others. All along the Glenboro' branch he found it reported at many stations, but there were no indications of black rust. Six samples forwarded by him show very decided indications of red rust, but the heavy land is not affected so seriously as the light.

A large number of samples from provincial points have been sent to Prof. Bolley, the botanical expert at the North Dakota Experimental Farm, and he says he found black rust on only one, which was secured at Gretna, just over the border from Dakota, where it is believed to be prevalent and to be creeping north the same as last year. Prof. Bolley also states that black rust, even in the red stage, seldom appears until the wheat has bloomed and begun to fill hence the most dangerous period is still to come.

WM. A. MACE EXPIRES SUDDENLY ON RETURNING FROM VACATION

Former Londoner Passes Away at Guelph—Had Been in Best of Health.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Guelph, July 31.—With startling suddenness, the summons of death came at an early hour this morning, to Wm. A. Mace, manager of the Sleeman Brewing and Malting Company. The deceased had only just returned from his vacation, and prior to resuming housekeeping, was staying with his wife at the Wellington House.

Up to retiring last night Mr. Mace was in the best of health, spending Sunday evening with his wife and some friends, laughing and joking in his well-known entertaining way. The first intimation of anything wrong was about 6 o'clock this morning, when Mrs. Mace heard her husband exclaim: "Am I out of bed or not." He was then gasping for breath, and before the doctor arrived he had expired. Failure of the heart is undoubtedly the cause of death, though it was not generally known he had a weakness of that nature.

Since coming to Guelph, Mr. Mace had made a warm place for himself amongst those with whom he came in contact. Not only was he popular, but he was most successful in placing on a sound basis the business of which he had the management. When the Sleeman Brewing Company changed hands some few years ago, Mr. Mace was selected as one most competent to manage it, and the result has more than justified the trust placed in him. He was at that time connected with the Carling Brewing Company, of London.

To mourn his loss, Mr. Mace leaves a wife and three children. Mrs. Mace is completely prostrated. To the family the sympathy of all, not only in Guelph, but throughout Western Ontario, where Mr. Mace is generally known, will be extended.

The late William A. Mace was well known in London. In Toronto he had worked as a newspaperman, and when he came to this city he soon was known to all as the writer of clever sporting articles under the pen name of "Cover Point."

In all legitimate sports he was prominent here, taking a particular interest in lacrosse and hockey. His enthusiasm and hard work kept many a team together, and when he left London he was greatly missed by all lovers of athletics. Socially, he was well liked, and his friends in London were legion.

For a time he was employed in the offices of the Carling Brewing and Malting Company as a stenographer and bookkeeper, and he severed his connection with that firm to take over the management of the Sleeman Brewing Company at Guelph.

Some years ago the deceased married Miss Della Edgecombe, only daughter of Mr. William Edgecombe, traveler, of Piccadilly street.

RUSSIAN HARVEST FAILS

Great Grain-Producing Districts Suffer Severely.

St. Petersburg, July 31.—The central statistical committee reports that the harvest in 41 of the 60 provinces of European Russia is a complete failure. In Tula Raizan, Saratoff, Warsaw and Kurland failure is interspersed locally with barely sufficient crops. Similar conditions prevail in twelve other provinches, including the great grain-producing districts of Samara, Tamboff, Pinza and the Don Cossack district. In twelve other provinces good and bad crops alternate. Good crops are expected in only six Polish provinces, and in Grosno, Kieff, Vilkynia and Bessarabia. Satisfactory crops are expected in two northern provinces, reports from which have not yet been received, but where good harvests are rare. Considering the optimism which usually characterizes such reports, the public anticipates a very serious famine.

REALIGNMENT OF EUROPEAN POWERS

Alleged Object of the Kaiser's Recent Maneuvers—Off for Denmark.

London, July 31. — The British Government is still in complete ignorance as to the motives for Emperor William's recent maneuvers, but is assured his efforts ultimately will be directed toward a readjustment of the equilibrium of Europe, which was loosened by the removal of Russia from the scale as a sea power. A high official said:

"The alarm created by the press of Europe during the last week was undue. The situation is not warlike, though it naturally requires that Great Britain shall make a move to prevent it from becoming dangerous. The British Government is convinced that any alignment of the powers arranged by Emperor William would be on the opposite side of the scale from Great Britain, and makes no secret of her desire to effect an agreement with France, considering that such an agreement would preclude the menace of any alliance Emperor William could then bring about."

Whether or not this project has been formally broached to France is not divulged, but indications are that the French Government is awaiting divulgence of the German Emperor's programme.

Dantzig, Prussia, July 31.—Emperor William sailed yesterday aboard the imperial yacht Hohenzollern for Copenhagen to visit King Christian. Emperor William will stay three days at Bernstorff Castle, the summer residence of the king. In anticipation of the visit and apparently in fear of hostile demonstrations against Emperor William, the German legation issued the announcement that expulsons from Schleswig-Prussia will be stopped. These expulsions have for a long time been the subject of resentment in Denmark.

JOHN BULL BEHIND JAPAN'S DEMANDS

Whatever Her Peace Proposals Japan Will Have British Support.

Washington, July 31.—Japan comes to the Washington conference assured that whatever her peace terms, they will have the sympathetic approval of Great Britain.

Several suggestions from Washington to London that the cause of peace would be served by an expression to Japan from her ally favoring moderation in her demands upon Russia have not availed to change the British Government in its apparent determination to stand by Japan, however severe she makes her conditions of peace.

Nor has the British Government seen its way clear to render assistance to Washington in the efforts which the American Government is making to obtain an armistice.

Advices reaching here show that London is opposed to an armistice until Japan has been satisfied that Russia's plenipotentiaries are prepared to do more than discuss means of ending the war; if Russia is ready to conclude peace and has so empowered her plenipotentiaries, Great Britain, it is believed, might favor an armistice, but even in such event it is said she would not be willing to offer Japan advice on the subject.

As understood in Washington, Lord Lansdowne's position is that as a loyal ally, Great Britain can afford to take no step nor assume any attitude that would in the remotest degree redound to the advantage of Japan's enemy.

This attitude on the part of the London Government is not misunderstood in Washington, as indicating that the British officials do not share in the wish of the neutral powers for peace.

It has been made plain that President Roosevelt has the full sympathy of the British people, although their first thought, it is declared, must be in the interest of their ally.

At the same time, the London Government in its exchanges with the American embassy in London has not hesitated to declare its confidence that Japan's terms will not be unreasonable, viewed in the light of the results of the war.

The cession of Sakhalin, which, it is understood, will be among the essential conditions imposed by Japan will, the officials here believe, prove the most serious obstacle to peace in the far east.

Sakhalin had not been captured when the President initiated his efforts to bring the belligerents together.

The Japanese Have Taken Another Saghalien Town

Defenders Driven Off After a Hand-to-Hand Fight—Russian Loss 700.

Tokio, July 31.—The following dispatch has been received from Japanese headquarters:

"Our independent cavalry, which entered Rykoff (off Saghalien Island, 45 miles northeast of Port Due), July 27, withdrew on finding order in the city unfavorable to its occupation. Our army, intending to crush the enemy's force before they retreated from the eminences west of Rykoff, commenced to advance at 3 a.m. on July 28. The van, together with an independent body of cavalry, advanced by forced march, attacking and dislodging the enemy holding the northern extremity of Rykoff, and rushed the town. Confused street fighting followed, but the town was completely taken at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

"The enemy's main strength, which opposed our right column, fled in disorder southward, taking the short route leading to Pareono.

"On July 28 a detachment which was sent south in pursuit of the enemy, met the enemy's infantry, some 800 strong, at a point six miles south of Rykoff, and killed over 200 and captured 500.

"The enemy's strength opposed to our right column was of some 3,000 infantry and four guns and four machine guns, and that opposed to our left column some 2,000 infantry and four guns.

"The enemy's loss in trophies is under investigation."

Insolating Vladivostock.

Khersu, Manchuria, July 31. — The Japanese are apparently concentrating inconsiderable force far to the eastward, with the aim of operating against Kirin and Ninguta and getting in between Vladivostock and the Russian Manchurian army. REV. J. J. SMITH SENT TO PRISON

Downfall of a Preacher Who Is Well Known In This Part Of Ontario.

Toronto, July 3.—News has been received here of the trial, conviction and sentence to one year in state prison at San Jose, Cal., of the Rev. J. J. Smith, of Oakland. The specific charge was that of obtaining $100 under false pretenses from Miss Kate Boyle, of San Jose, by selling to her stock in the Altadea Mining and Investment Company, of which he was general manager and secretary.

His trial lasted five days, and the prisoner showed emotion only when sentence was pronounced. It was proved that the gold mine the company possessed was worthless.

Peculiar interest attaches to the sentence of Smith. He came originally from Caledonia, Ont., where his family is well known. There is no record of his being ordained in this country. In the years 1902-3, while visiting relatives on Dundas street, Toronto, he preached in Carleton Street and Wesley Methodist Churches, and took advantage of the connections thus established to unload on church members thousands of dollars' worth of alleged treasury stock in the company, in reality turning over to them his own personal stock.

One member of the Wesley Church, W. J. Lindsay, was induced by Smith by buy 1,000 treasury shares, par value $1, at 25 cents a share.

On corresponding with E. G. Northrup, a broker of San Jose, Cal., and a director of the company, Mr. Lindsay learned that Smith had sold him his own stock.

A letter to Mr. Stanley said other indictments were pending that might bring the sentence to ten years.

The Rev. J. V. Smith, now in charge of the Central Methodist Church here, said that the Rev. J. J. Smith had delivered evangelical sermons frequently in the First Methodist Church in London, Ont., when Rev. J. V. Smith was pastor there.

DEATH OF MRS. STEVENSON

Comber Coroner's Jury Hold Grand Trunk Railway Responsible.

Comber, July 31.—The adjourned inquest looking into the death of the late Mrs. Christopher Stevenson on Wednesday evening, was held at Stoney Point. Crown Attorney J. H. Rodd conducted the proceedings for prosecution, while A. H. Bartlett appeared for the Grand Trunk Railway. The evidence of several eye witnesses to the accident was taken.

The statement of Dr. Knister, who conducted the post mortem examination, pointed out that death was due to a fracture of the skull received by being thrown from a rig on the highway. The jury rendered the following verdict:

"That Eliza J. Stevenson came to her death by being thrown from a buggy after the horse started to run away; that the horse ran away, through being frightened, due to negligence on the part of the G. T. R. by leaving stones and gravel lying upon its crossing at sixth and seventh sideroad in Tilbury North Township."

COAL DRIVERS BAR PEACE PROPOSALS

Settlement of Chicago Strike Is Again Indefinitely Postponed.

Chicago, July 31.—With the capitulation of the striking teamsters nearly complete, and the release of Chicago from the oppression of the long labor war, practically assured, for today, a handful of coal teamsters have wrecked the well-developed plans.

The coal drivers, 350 strong, voted unanimously to continue the strike. As a result the Employers' Association, it is said, may close the doors to thousands of their former employes, who were to have been re-engaged today. The strike, with its police-guarded wagons, also will continue indefinitely All manner of protests from other teamsters' locals failed to move the coal drivers in their determination.

PEOPLE SHOULD DIE ONLY AS A RESULT OF OLD AGE

Dr. Maudsley Talks to British Medical Association on Doctors' Future Work.

London, July 31. — "The future work of medicine," said Dr. Henry Maudsley at the British Medical Association's congress, which is being held at Leeds this year, "will be mainly to prevent and stop the beginnings of disease, so that everyone should die from old age, as every doctor himself ought theoretically to die." Might not some good come, he asked, from systematic inquiries into the production and elimination of constitutional disease tendencies and disease immunities by marriage unions of different tendencies and immunities?

Another point worthy of investigation was how best to treat a person, having a native tendency to insanity, so as to cancel it in his progeny, or, better still, convert it into a good evolution?

Variation was what sometimes happened; one child of a neuropathic family dying in a lunatic asylum, while another rose to eminence as a poet, painter or orator. Why and under what conditions was epilepsy of one generation transformed into insanity of the next generation? How was it that diabetes and insanity go together in some families or alternate in them through generations? When medical science could answer these and like questions, it might then dictate some wise rules.

In concluding his address, which was closely followed by a large and distinguished audience, Dr. Maudsley said it was certain there were laws of mental breeding yet to be discovered, and it was not more unlawful to inquire scientifically into the nature of vice and sin than into the nature and actions of persons.

Hatred was as natural as hunger, and stood in no less need of scientific explanation. That moral qualities are not dependent upon a physical constitution, and have no physical connection whatever, was an opinion which, although fostered in the supposed interests of morality, really was a hindrance to the growth of practical morality.

"SMOG."

Hereafter, it would seem that London "particular" is to be known by a new name, the new name having been coined at the public health congress, where Dr. Des Voeux lectured on coal smoke abatement, and coined, amid applause, the new word "Smog," which is a compound of the two words, smoke and fog.

Here, again, the old charge against London of being old fashioned and out of date was leveled at her, for, said Dr. Des Voeux, if the obsolete kitchen fire were abolished there would be less "smog," in fact, Dr. Des Voeux professed to be able to detect distinct dirunal "smogs," breakfast, luncheon and dinner.

"Smogs," declared the Hon. Rollo Russel in the discussion, cost the metropoli $26,000,000 every year, and in addition, deterioration of health and depression of spirits.

Following the talk about "smog," and how to get rid of it, another indictment was brought against London in regard to its vitiated atmosphere, "smog" or no "smog."

Dr. T. Glover-Lyon, physician to the City of London Hospital for diseases of the chest, and principal speaker on this subject, drew a lurid picture of life in the center of London that was not apt to encourage visitors to stop long in the town.

Owing to the deficient air supply, he said, London was quite unfit as a dwelling place for men and women who engage in intellectual pursuits, and it was impossible for the rearing of children, as both the infant mortality and the sickly looks of those who lived therein testified.

Small gardens and parks were quite inadequate to allow a streak of pure air to enter. The consequence was that London was killing its children and allowing weak children to grow up to die miserable deaths.

The remedy suggested by this eminent doctor of chest diseases was that fresh air should be brought to London by means of tube railways, through which it could be pumped and by means of which the impure air could be removed; also large buildings, he said, should be split up into ventilation units, for, as arranged at present, the upper parts were fouled by the air from the lower and the leeward side by the air from the windward.

A Shining Mark

"Yes, yes!" faltered Kate, scarcely knowing what she was saying, and she held out her hand.

He went to take it, then stopped.

"Ah," he said in a low voice, "I had almost forgotten." He put his hand in the breast-pocket of his coat and took something out. "Miss Meddon, I ought to return you this. I know it was obtained under false pretenses. Will you take it and make me unhappy, or will you make me happy and leave it with me?"

Kate looked down at his hand and saw the shilling in it. The hot blood suffused her face, then left it pale.

"I may keep it? Thank you. I will never part with it. No"—with sudden earnestness"—not though I may be starving!" Then with a smile as he saw the swift look of trouble on her face, "Not that there is much chance of that! But I will keep it in remembrance of you and of all the kind things you have said to me."

He put the shilling back and held out his hand.

"Good-bye!"

Only two words, and yet they seemed to Kate the saddest she had ever heard!

For a moment she let her hand rest in his, then she drew it away, and, as if she were afraid to utter another word, walked quickly away and up the steep path.

It wound in a serpentine fashion towards the higher cliffs, and after a while she gained courage to stop and look back.

He was standing where she had left him, looking after her, and as she turned he raised his hat and waved his hand.

She did not respond to the farewell gesture, but hurried on, so agitated by the strange emotion that possessed her that she did not see another woman coming down the narrow path towards her until the new-comer was upon her.

Then Kate, with a start, stood back to let the woman pass. As she did so, she looked up and saw that the woman was young and gaudily dressed. She half paused and muttered a "Thank you!" and Kate hurried on with the impression of a rather handsome but vulgar face and two black, bold eyes.

The impression made by the face was an unpleasant one, and to drive it away she turned to see if she could get another glimpse of the man whose presence and voice had moved her so strangely.

At that moment the woman with the vulgarly handsome face and bold, defiant eyes had reached the recess, and Kate heard her exclaim, "What, Des! You!" and utter a loud laugh of astonishment and amazement. Then she saw the two, the man she had left and the woman who had passed her, shake hands.

For a moment she stood as if the shock of seeing their meeting had turned her to stone. She had felt hot—burning hot—a moment ago; now she felt cold.

He knew this woman—this woman whose vulgarity and commonness were as palpable as the sun in the sky! And she had called him by some nickname. They were friends! Then her father was right and had acted rightly in refusing to talk about this man to her! And she had been wasting her sympathy upon him!

Her face flushed with shame, her eyes filled with indignant tears of self-scorn. She had been deceived by a clever actor, a shameless hypocrite, who was even now, perhaps, laughing with this woman, who had accosted him so familiarly, over the girl he had hoodwinked and deceived with his fine speeches and gentle voice.

The revulsion of feeling was so great, so unendurable, that she flung herself on the grass, and covering her face with her hands, burst into tears. Kate, who had scarcely ever shed a tear before!

CHAPTER VI.

The young fellow, Desmond Carr-Lyon had surprised the major the night before; and it was now his turn to be surprised.

"Why, Des!" exclaimed the woman, and she stopped and stared at him, then burst into a laugh—the laugh that Kate had heard so plainly.

"Jess!" responded Desmond, then he laughed, too, but in a quieter fashion.

"Well, of all the extraordinary things!" she exclaimed, emphatically. "To think of meeting you here! You of all people!" and she looked him up and down as if she could scarcely believe him to be real.

"The world's a very small place, after all, Jess," he said in his quiet fashion, and with the grave smile. "But it's none the less extraordinary to meet Jess Plavford here. What brought you to Sandford-on-Sea, Jess?"

"What brought you?" she returned, avoiding his question by the simple device of meeting it with another. "And where have you been all this while? Why, you disappeared as if—as if you'd been swallowed up. Tell us all about it, Des," and she threw herself in the seat and invited him to fellow her example, with a free-and-easy gesture.

Desmond Carr-Lyon sat down and took his pipe out of his pocket.

"Don't mind the tobacco, Jess? You used not to," and he smiled.

"You can smoke like a limekiln, if you like," she responded promptly. "I always like it. You haven't got a cigarette?"

He took out a paper book and handed it to her, and she rolled up a cigarette with evidently practiced fingers, and lit it.

"Fancy meeting you here! Why, it's the very last person—but tell me all about it?" and she turned her black eyes upon him with undisguised curiosity.

"There isn't much to tell, Jess," he said, with his quiet smile. "You know the old proverb about the rolling stone; you see before you a stone that has rolled very much, indeed—"

And not picked up much moss, eh, Des?" she said, glancing at his weather-beaten clothes.

He nodded and laughed in a short manner.

"Not enough to line a nest with!"

"No? And you so clever, too. Des! But there, you were always a wild one, wasn't you?"

"I was?" he assented, cheerfully.

"And you've been abroad?"

"Very much abroad!" he said, quietly. "I've been to America, Jess."

"Oh," and she nodded significantly. "The land of the almighty dollar, the region of gold and silver; but somehow the almighty dollar did not come my way, and the gold and silver nuggets,"—he stopped and nodded rather bitterly. "But this reminds of the old times, Jess," he said, looking at her with a smile. "It's like the other day, and yet it's more than ten years ago. You aren't much altered, Jess."

"Thanks; of course you'd say that," she said, with a stifled sigh. "I can't follow suit! You are altered, Des," looking at him scrutinisingly. "You look older—it's that beard and the hair, I suppose; but you are just as good-looking—better!"

He raised his hat with mock gallantry, and laughed.

"That's a very pretty compliment," he remarked. "You didn't give me time to say that to you, which wasn't fair—"

It wouldn't have been true," she retorted, bitterly. "I have altered, and I am not handsomer, and I know it. Yes, it's like old times! I've often thought of you, Des; but I'll be bound you never gave a thought to me during your wanderings."

"Indeed I have," he said, simply. "Many's the time, when I've been sitting in my tent, with nothing for supper, and an appetite about the size of an elephant, with the rain dropping through the holes in the canvas, and the wind blowing like a knife underneath it, I have thought of the little tobacco-shop at Cambridge, and the pretty little girl who used to give us tea and muffins in the snug, little parlor behind! Yes, Jess, I have thought of you more often than you can guess."

She sighed.

"They weren't half bad, those times, Des," she said, with a sigh and a far-away look in her black eyes that rendered them soft and sad, instead of bold and defiant.

"No; and the tea and muffins were more than half good! I've tasted them a good many times—in my mind's mouth, Horatio—and wished I was eating them," and he laughed.

There was silence for a moment, then he said:

"Is the little shop there still, and is the little—no, the big girl!—still making tea and toasting muffins, Jess? Ah, no; I suppose not. Are you married, Jess?"

"No," she said, briefly and curtly.

"No? Let me see; you were engaged to a decent young fellow—what was he?—lawyer's clerk or something. Forgive me for forgetting; but though I've remembered you, Jess, I've forgotten him."

A frown came upon her face, and her hand moved restlessly.

"I wish I had!" she muttered. "No, I didn't marry Edward Lang—"

"No?" he smiled. "Poor fellow! Ah, well; it was too good a piece of fortune for him, I suppose. He took his chance with the rest; so many young fellows were in love with pretty Jess Playford, and wanted to marry her! You refused me, didn't you, Jess?" and he smiled.

"Yes; I was a better friend than you thought me," she said, curtly. There was silence for a moment, then she said, bitterly, as if she couldn't help herself, "What made you rake up the old times, Des?"

"I beg your pardon; forgive me, Jess."

"No—it was natural. Why shouldn't you? How should you know that the thought of them cuts me like a knife—like a knife! You say I am not much altered. By rights, seeing what I've suffered and gone through, I ought to be as wrinkled and as old as a woman of sixty. You say you have had a hard time Des; but I'll wager I've had a harder!"

Her face had gone paler and deep lines seemed to have become suddenly engraved on her face.

"Des, if it weren't for men like you, I should hate the sound of a man's name. There is one that I do hate, ah, worse than poison!"

"I'm sorry," he said, gently, trying to change the subject; but she went on as if she were compelled.

"You say you remember me—you remember what a happy, light-hearted girl I was, Des? Not a care in the world! With the best and honestest young fellow—poor Ned! begging me to be his wife, and, oh!"—she broke off, flinging her cigarette away and clenching her hands, "it makes me mad to think of it!"

"Don't think of it, then," he said, gently. "Harking back on the past—especially if it was a good time and the present is a bad one—is unprofitable work, Jess. Forget it."

THE RECORD FAST OF FISHER FOLK

Adrift 29 Days Without Food Or Drink.

EXPERIENCE OF 13 CASTAWAYS

Terrible Sufferings of Newfoundlanders at Sea During Severe Winter Weather.

St. Johns, July 31.—The exploits of some fasting man who goes without food for five or six weeks are chronicled with much detail, but the vastly greater feats of endurance represented in the mishaps of fishermen off the Grand Banks rarely receive any attention. Yet it is doubtful if one of the dime museum freaks would live for a week under the conditions to which the fishermen of Newfoundland and Gloucester are constantly subjected.

The record "fast" in this business is that of William Warwick, a fisherman on the schooner Little Pet, who deserted from her while harbored on the south coast of Newfoundland in July, 1903, and swam to a little islet, whence he intended to cross to the farther shore. But he was taken with a cramp, removed his boots to ease his swollen feet and was unable to get them on again. He found it hopeless to venture into the water again. On this barren rock he remained for 29 days, without food or drink, blistered by the sun in the daytime and benumbed by the cold at night. He was but scantily clad, and suffered from internal spasms in addition to the torments of hunger and thirst. He was at length discovered by a telegraph repairer who landed on the islet to inspect a pole. Warwick had feared at first to climb the pole and break the wire, lest he be punished for so doing when the repairer came along to make good the damage, and later when he tried to do so he found himself too feeble to carry out his intention. It was feared at first that he was so far gone that he could not recover, but an iron physique enabled him to pull through, and he was discharged from the St. Johns hospital two months later looking none the worse for his terrible experience.

Adrift in a Dory.

A misfortune still more appalling in some respects was that of William and Michael Fleming, Newfoundlanders fishing from the schooner Jubilee in May, 1897, who went adrift in their dory in a thick fog and were thirteen days and nights astray in this frail boat, lacking food, water or shelter. At that season the frost is severe on the Grand Banks, and ice floes cumber the region. They had to battle with the floes at first, and these were too saturated with brine to assuage their thirst, while later on, when they became enfeebled, the frost struck them. Their masterless dork drifted at the will of the elements, half filled with the spray which beat against her, while the two despairing occupants lay on the bottom, unconscious for the last few days of their terrible voyage. The boat was sighted on the fourteenth day by a bark bound for Quebec, which transferred them to her deck, intending to inter them decently, but finding that life was not extinct, took measures to revive them. This was accomplished, though the poor wretches suffered agony in the process, and on arrival at Quebec both men had to have their feet and legs amputated almost to the knees.

On May 2 of the present year James Bartlett and William Hewitt, two of the crew of the Newfoundland fishing schooner Excelda, strayed from their vessel on Guero Bank while fog prevailed. They had no provisions in their dory, and for two days rowed in the direction where they thought the land lay. But when the fog lifted they saw an unbroken horizon, not even a sail being in sight. That night they drifted into an ice floe, upon which they found two dead fish, which they ate, sucking lumps of ice to appease their thirst.

For a whole week after this these castaways drifted aimlessly about, too weak and weary to attempt to reach the land. Then they met another ice pack, on the further side of which a schooner appeared and [illegible] perately to reach her, dragging their dory across the floe with them. With their feet swollen to twice their natural size from constant immersion in the brine, and their hands covered with sores from rowing, they toiled on until they came within a mile of the vessel. Then they abandoned the dory and hurried on toward the ship. But to their horror they saw her make sail again, for night was closing in, and though they shouted frantically and tried in every way to atract her attention, she sailed away without seeing them.

The significance of their situation, left to their fate on the naked ice, now broke upon them and reduced them to a condition of temporary collapse. When they recovered they sought their dory again, which fortunately was near, and betaking themselves to it, made another strenuous effort to escape. But their strength was sapped, and, when a few days later the French trawler Emilie found them they seemed at death's door, though nourishing food and careful nursing soon set them up again.

A Week Without Water.

An almost identical case occurred in August, 1904, when Peter Grady and Corney Connelly, of the Gloucester trawler Indiana went astray on Guero Bank also and remained adrift for eleven days and nights, during which period their only subsistence was a small jug of water, which they eked out to last them four days, the remaining seven being passed without even that. They touched no solid food whatever in the period, not even a fish, and the intense heat of the days, alternating with the chilly nights, lessened their vitality, rendering them insensible at the close, when the schooner Hydrangea found them in the dory's bottom.

Terrible, however, as the sufferings of these driftaway fishermen are in summer, they are far outclassed by the miseries endured by the ones who go astray in winter. Howard Blackburn, one of the crew of the Gracie Sears of Gloucester, with a shipmate named John Walsh, was caught in a mid-winter snowstorm on Burgee Bank, 100 miles off Newfoundland, in February, some years ago. They lost sight of their vessel in the blizzard, and tried to row to land, one toiling at the oars while the other bailed out the dory.

When night came on they made a drag, or sea anchor, of trawl kegs and bait tubs, to ride to during the darkness. While thus engaged Blackburn's mittens were washed overboard, and with naked hands his plight was desperate. But he gallantly held on, sheltering them as best he could. Next day his companion collapsed, and the third morning froze to death where he lay. Blackburn, taking the mitts and socks from his dead comrade, tried to cover his own hands, that were now positively frozen into the shape of his grip on the oars so that he could not straighten them.

The fourth and fifth days passed and yet he toiled on heroically, though all this time without food or drink, and on the evening of the fifth day reached the coast and moored the boat at a deserted fishing wharf, being still burdened with Walsh's body, as he had promised the latter to bury him on shore.

Satisfying his thirst by eating fresh snow, but being unable to find any food in the untenanted hut attached to the wharf, Blackburn lay on a pile of nets all night, the agony of his hands preventing sleep. Next morning he found the dory had hit a rock and filled, sinking at the wharf with the body still in her.

He hauled her up on the rock, bailed her out, and then, with his hands and teeth, lifted the corpse to the wharf above. Re-entering the boat, after plugging the breaks with moss, he rowed along shore all day, seeking in vain for a human being, until just at nightfall, when he came upon a little settlement. Even then he would not consent to accept their hospitality until some of the men set out to bury his dead comrade.

Lost Fingers and Toes.

As for himself, he suffered excruciating agony from his frozen fingers and toes, all of which he lost, there being no surgeon on the coast to attend him. Yet, marvelous to relate, this man has since won fame as a daring mariner, having twice crossed the Atlantic in the last few years alone in a dory, besides making a cruise of the American seaboard from Boston to New Orleans, also without any companion.

Almost as tragic was the experience of Raoul Hyppolyte, of the French fishing schooner Aristide, of St. Pierre, who, in March, 1903, went astray from his vessel on Pierre bank with a comrade named Yves Capilaine, in a blizzard attended with intense frost. They had neither provisions nor water, only the scanty garb of French dorymen, and Capilaine was shod with sabots. Hence he speedily became a victim of the cold, as two days and nights passed without their sighting land, ships or even a mass of ice. Capilaine's feet and legs swelled and became rigid. The third day he lay down in the bottom and abandoned all effort, and that night died.

The survivor, undaunted at the idea of being alone on the ocean with a dead comrade, pluckily toiled at the oars for two or three days longer, as best he remembers, and then lay down to die also, being unequal to further exertion, even to save his own life. But Providence was merciful to him, for on the fifth day after his chum died—eight days in all—the dory drifted among the Newfoundland fisher boats off Cape St. Mary's, and these hurried it ashore, as it was seen that one of its occupants lived, though the other was beyond all earthly help.

Hyppolyte was insensible when lifted out of his dory. His feet and arms were swollen to twice their natural size, and blackened with frost bites, while his ears, nose and cheeks were also bitten by it. He lost one foot, several toes off the other, seven of his fingers and parts of both ears, by amputation, and was several weeks in the hospital at St. Johns.

On July 4, 1904, there arrived here two American fishermen, James White and Charles Johnson, of the Gloucester trawler Monitor, who had for eight days and nights experienced the miseries of starvation and exposure in an open boat on the Northern Bank, near Belle Isle Strait. The weather having been fine and warm previously, they went to moor their trawls with only light clothing. Suddenly the fog rolled in, blotted out sea and sky, and chilled them to the marrow. After vainly trying to find their ship, they gave up that quest as hopeless and pointed the boat's head for the land, toward which they rowed steadily for two days, until their strength was exhausted. Bad weather set in now and the dory was half filled with water, which drenched their clothing and penetrated their boots, thereby adding to their misery. Another day was passed in alternately rowing and resting, and after a foggy night they heard a steamer's whistle, and later on could distinguish the noise she made plowing through the water.

They tried to attract her attention, but she sped by too swiftly. White collapsed entirely, and Johnson was not much better. Reclining in the dory's bottom, with feet so benumbed by the cold that they could feel no life in them, and with bodies emaciated from hunger, the hours passing in a stupor, so that they knew not how days passed. Finally, when they were too weak to raise themselves above the gunwale to look out, they were found by the smack Gleaner and taken on board. They were too feeble to stand or even speak, the boots having to be cut from their feet. This was White's fourth marine adventure, as he was previously astray four days and nights from the banker Moody, wrecked with the Cordova at Pass Island in 1897, and stranded on the Howard at Portugal Cove in 1886.

BLAMES IT ALL ON HIS DOUBLE

Alleged Wife Murderer Says His Own Cousin Is Man Wanted by Police.

New York, July 29.—Frederick Carlton, the man on whom the Brooklyn police are trying to fasten a charge of wife murder, declared today that all his troubles are due to a double. This double, Carlton says, is his own cousin, and he has had to stand for the man's doings for many years. Carlton told the story in all seriousness and answered questions glibly about his annoying relative.

"This man is remarkably like me," said Carlton, "and my lawyers are now looking for him. We think we can lay hands on him. I feel now that I am in a bad scrape and my only hope is to produce this man who resembles me so much.

"I have spent $3,000 keeping this man out of scrapes, all for the sake of my aunt, his mother. He looks so much like me that not long ago he went to a safe-deposit vault and got two letters from it on the representation that he was Carlton, letters which I had been holding over his head to keep him from using my name and pestering me.

"Now, if the safe-deposit company was fooled why is not it likely that the women all over the country who claim that they married me have not been fooled, too? This man often used my name.

"I know I am up against it, for if some of these women identify me as having married them, what can I do? How can I tell where I was on a certain day three, four or five years ago?

"I have not said anything about this before, out of regard for my aunt, but the time has come to speak out and not be blamed for another man's wrongdoing." Carlton declared that this double, whose name he refused to give, resembled him exactly even to the facial marks.

"But his index finger on the left hand is not crooked, said the questioner.

"Oh, yes, it is," was the reply, "He's got the same kind of finger. He told me he broke it playing ball, but I believe he broke it himself so that it would resemble mine.

"Why, he looks so much like me that my wife, my first wife Jennie Smyth, was deceived for a week. I was living in Washington then and one time when I returned home after a week's absence I found him occupying my chair. He fooled my wife, all right, and she thought it was her husband."

Carlton answered every question that was put to him without blinking. Nothing feazes on him. Of the efforts of the police to get evidence of murder against him, he said:

"Rest assured, Inspector Cross, who appears to be quite a nice fellow, will never convict me of wife poisoning. He can't, because I never did such a thing. As for Schaub, who charges me with stealing $700 from him, why, I'll take care of that matter at the proper time, and the obscene pictures, well, I did not own them; they belonged to another person, who will be named when it is time."

Inspector Cross says he is positive that Carlton is the man who has traveled over the United States under aliases of Martinez, De Roderiguez, Cartier, Farley, McCandless and others too numerous to mention.

"It is a matter of time," said the inspector today, "when we will learn all about him, and when we are through there will be no legal question of his identity as the man who had all these names and did all this marrying."

But what this will do, even if true, toward solving the alleged murder of Carlton's two wives, the inspector failed to say.

Carlton has been charged with various crimes, among them bigamy, grand larceny, forgery, uttering and using obscene pictures, for blackmailing schemes, wife murder and cruelty to animals.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

ROUGH ON THE KAISER

Socialist Says Emperor Is Chiefly Responsible for War Spirit.

Berlin, July 29.—Though the Kaiser and his chancellor, Prince von Buelow, succeeded in preventing the French Socialist leader Jaures from coming to this city, it is doubtful whether they have gained much.

Their action in forbidding M. Jaures to enter Germany has surrounded him with a halo and the speech which he was to have made to the workingmen of Berlin has been printed by the Socialist central committee and is being spread broadcast over the country.

Reading this speech one understands why the Kaiser so strongly objects to M. Jaures's presence here—it is not because of his socialistic, but rather his anti-militaristic tendencies.

"War, like the exploitation of labor, is just a form of capitalism," M. Jaures says, "and the prevention of wars between nations and the prevention of wars between capital and labor in each nation are associated tasks. The execution of these tasks means a gigantic educational effort, a hopeful effort as blind from blind optimism as from paralyzing pessimism.

"Already do we hold the beginning of a universal organization of labor, the signs of the birth of an international conscience.

"The first symptom of the new spirit in the economic sphere was the trade union legislation in England.

"Our horror of war does not proceed from weak sentimentalism, from enervation. We are as ready as others to accept the inevitable evils of the human lot.

"But in Europe of today liberty and justice are no longer to be achieved through bloodshed; the grievances of a people are no longer to be redressed in that way, but through an international unity—which, however, leaves each nation as unfettered in its specific relations as individuals are in their respective communities."

At the end of the address M. Jaures denounces as a barbarism the present condition of armed peace for which he says the Kaiser is mainly responsible and which he compares to a rotten, stagnant pool, reflecting the red clouds above.

Kitten With 28 Feet.

Louisville, July 29.—W. C. Nord, a saddler, of this city, has a litter of amalgamated kittens. They were presented to him by his old gray cat. There are 28 perfect little legs, seven heads and seven tiny tails that wag ceaselessly as their owners try to draw apart. The kittens are united at their anatomical centers. Five are black and two are gray. Mr. Nord has had several offers for the extraordinary bunch from persons wishing to use it in the public will have an opportunity to see the wonder in the window of one of Louisville's big stores.

No Waste of Heat In the "Bison" Hot Water Heater

The "Bison" has two drafts—a center draft to burn quickly, and a side draft to heat quickly.

The side draft carries the heat up a side flue passing up and down, and up again through a center flue, always in contact with water surfaces, trapping the heat and burning the gases. See illustration.

The draft is continuous, syphon-like in action, but always under easy control.

Not a particle of heat is lost—the sections get it all, the water heats quickly—the effect on the radiators is almost instantaneous — The "Bison" has more good heating points than all other heaters combined.

STEAMER ARGYLE GOES AGROUND

Perils of an Excursion Party From Toronto—Boy Fell Overboard and Lost.

Oshawa, July 31. — While the steamer Argyle was passing Newcastle on a moonlight excursion trip out of Oshawa on Friday night, Norman Hill, 14 years of age, a bellboy at the Queen's Hotel, fell overboard and was drowned. By some error, the steamer went on without making any effort to rescue him. While the same steamer was coming to Oshawa Saturday morning with a Toronto excursion party on board, she became lost in a fog two miles west of this place, and ran on the rocks at Corbett's Point, where she still lies with two great holes in her hull. The excursionists were landed in a tug and brought to Oshawa by rail.

When the excursionists returned to Toronto, George R. Harvey, member of the committee in charge, said:

"We were traveling through fog so thick that you could not see your hand before you, when suddenly there was a crash and a dull grinding noise. The shock was so sharp and sudden that dozens of our people were thrown to the deck on their faces. The women screamed and many of them fainted.

The bow of the boat had by this time risen eight or ten feet out of the water, and the utmost confusion reigned on the boat. The committee rushed in and did their best to allay the excitement. Secretary Matheson worked like a hero to bring round the women who had fainted and quiet the rest.

"The fog was thick and it was raining heavily. The grinding of the steamer on the rock kept up, and, hoping to back off, they reversed their levers, only to find that the water rushing in at the holes in her hull had put the fires out. The crew climbed up to the saloon deck, where the passengers huddled, wrapped in anything they could find to keep out the rain, and a boat was lowered. It made its way through the heavy sea that was running over the rocks and finally landed.

"We waited for an hour before any help came, and then it was in the form of the Donnelly wrecking tug, manned by Capt. Donnelly, of Kingston. The waves were running so high and the water so shallow that she could not come within 200 yards of us. The boats were put out and armed with life-preservers, the women and children were sent over to the tug. Finally, we were all taken aboard the Donnelly and carried into Oshawa.

"The Argyle had a mishap earlier in the day. Just as we passed the eastern gap the steamer nosed into a sandbank and stayed there some minutes. After much floundering and maneuvering we got away. The committee wanted to put back and go by train, but the captain would not hear of it. We were two hours and a half on the boat after she struck the rocks, and the wind and rain made it a most miserable experience. Just after we left the boat listed and rolled over on her side, showing the great holes in her hull. Sailors around Oshawa who saw her say she will never sail again."

TRAGEDY AT MT. FOREST

Mother and Daughter Killed by G. T. R. Train.

Mount Forest, July 31.—Mrs. Felix Curran and her 17-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, of Normandy, started from this town for home Friday evening, and at the G. T. R. crossing on Main street north were struck by a train, Mrs. Curran being killed instantly and her daughter so seriously injured that she died in the afternoon.

The horse they were driving was also killed, and the buggy badly smashed.

At the inquest the evidence of the train crew and witnesses clearly established the fact that the tragedy was purely accidental. It was shown that the women, in trying to cross ahead, urged the horse forward of the train, but misjudged their ability to do so and met their death.

REAL ICE MINE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Desirable Property Discovered in Potter County by an Old Soldier.

Coudersport, Pa., July 29.—The high temperature which has prevailed here for a week was responsible for a great influx of visitors on Sunday. Crowds drove in from the neighboring villages for the reason that the weather was hot, some even coming from as far away as Austin, twelve miles away, over the mountain. Visitors will continue to flock here every Sunday throughout the summer.

This town never was planned for a summer report. It is in a gorge where not a breath of air stirs, and the thermometer frequently registers 95 degrees. Nevertheless, the people of Potter county come here, because it is hot, to get cool.

This is the home of the now celebrated "Potter county ice mine." Here wilted humanity may enjoy an arctic atmosphere by descending into the shaft, or can moderate the temperature by moving to or from its mouth, to catch the currents of chilled air which the mine sends forth.

The hotter the day the cooler the mine. Atmospheric condensation goes on at a great rate when the mercury approaches the 100 degree mark, and currents of cool air are produced which circulate as far as 50 or 60 feet from the mouth of the shaft.

It is now seven or eight years since the fact became generally known that during the summer ice formed freely on a wooded hillside two miles southeast of Coudersport, on the Sweden Valley road. The village of Sweden Valley, consisting of half a hundred empty houses, is, in fact, a deserted village. Some milling or factory project which finally failed was the occasion of laying it out. Had the inhabitants known that in the pine forest, less than 500 yards from their doors, a veritable field of ice was spread out during the summer, it is hardly likely that they would have pulled up stakes, for there is profit in the ice mine, and its possibilities have hardly begun to be developed.

The ice mine is regarded as the greatest marvel of Potter county, rich as it is in natural phenomena. It was really Potter county's reputation as a birthplace of wonders that was responsible for the discovery of the summer ice fields.

An old Union soldier became possessed with the idea some years ago that the country's rich store of treasures had not been exhausted. He determined to search for mineral wealth on the forestclad mountainside southeast of Sweden Valley. Shouldering a pick he toiled up the mountain one scorching day for 100 yards. Selecting an open surface on a little plateau he struck his pick into the earth. The implement met with no resistance from the loose soil at the first blow.

On the second attack some hard substance gave forth a crunching, crackling sound. The veteran withdrew the pick and examined the point. Several glistening and rapidly dissolving crystals adhered to it. They were alike devoid of taste and odor. The rapid melting only served to arouse his curiosity. The veteran threw off his faded blue coat and hacked away with renewed energy until at the end of an hour he had laid bare a fairly large mass of the glistening substance. He examined it carefully and then ejaculated, "Ice, by gum!"

The old soldier guarded his secret closely, and returned day after day to work at the excavation. In the course of a week he had cleared out a circular patch ten feet in diameter and about a dozen feet deep. He lowered a ladder into the hole, covered it with boards, and went away for a few days. When next he visited the place he found that masses of ice covered the sides of the excavation. There were shaped like huge icicles. Then he began systematic observations. He soon learned that on the days of greatest heat the amount of ice in the excavation was far in excess of that found there on cold days.

Rumors of the "Potter county ice mine" had spread far afield. Incredulous persons visited the spot and left fully satisfied that the story was no myth. It was not long before learned professors from colleges and universities came to examine the ice mine and the neighboring territory. None, however, was able to account for the formation of the ice.

While digging around in the bottom of the shaft with a pick one day the old soldier cleared away the loose earth from a small opening, which proved to be a cleft in the rock. A current of cold air rushed out, and led him to believe that a small tunnel led to a cavern in the body of the mountain. Chemical action of some sort going on in some subterranean expanse may account for the manifestations in the local excavation. This solution of the problem, however, never has been verified.

A narrow stairway was constructed from the roadway up the steep mountainside to the rude platform surrounding the shaft, and here the discoverer and owner of the mine began in a modest way to reap the profits of his find. Mild refreshments were dispensed and a small admission fee was charged.

As the cool nights of the high altitudes came on with the advance of the season, the ice began to disappear, and at the onset of winter it was gone, leaving the interior of the excavation perfectly dry, and many degrees warmer than it had been throughout the entire summer. The same phenomena have been observed each year during the discovery of the place. The ice formation and the frigid atmosphere at and near the mouth of the mine shaft are never-ceasing sources of wonder to all who visit the place. When the heat is extreme an examination of the gray moss which covers the ground in the adjacent forest discloses the fact that its interstices are filled with ice.

There has been talk of building a big summer hotel on the mountainside, but the project has not been realized.

ELOPED, TO BE DESERTED

An Outcast for Two Months—Young Girl Lived in Parks.

New York, July 29.—Afraid to return to her foster-mother, too proud to appeal to friends or acquaintances, without money or clothes other than those on her back, Isabel Cowan, 15 years old, has for two months been sleeping in the thickets in Central and Riverside parks and feeding herself on stray bits of bread, or, on a particularly lucky day, a whole loaf dropped from a baker's wagon. When found today by the police, her condition was pitiful. Her long, dark hair was a mass of tangles, her dress was torn and soiled and her large blue eyes were heavy over her sunken cheeks. But even then it was evident she was a pretty girl and possessed of considerable native refinement.

It was because of her beauty, accentuated by the unusual combination of dark hair and complexion and deep blue eyes, that she was led to leave home. Infatuated with a man, not a youth, she consented to elope with him, but he abandoned her almost at once, leaving her to face the anger of her foster-mother, Mrs. Jean Riley, of 782 Columbus avenue, or to seek her fortune alone. That much the girl admitted today, but of the man she would say nothing more, refusing to make known his name.

Not knowing where to turn, the girl found herself, in Central Park when night fell, she said, and sought a bed in a thicket in the northern part.

There she slept most of the time for the two months she was a waif, though now and then she moved to Riverside Park for a night. Just at dawn occasionally she would take a quick plunge in the river in some spot sheltered from observation. Shunning places where she had been known, though continually in fear some of her friends would come upon her, she was able until today to escape detection. Her mother, however, appealed to the police, and today detectives found the girl on a bench in Riverside Park at Ninety-eighth street. Mrs. Riley declined to take her back and Isabel was turned over to the Children's Society.

RULERS' MEETING THE CHIEF TOPIC

Conference of William and Nicholas Still the Talk In European Capitals.

London, July 29.—The chief topic the last week has been and still is the meeting of the Czar and the Kaiser. In the absence of authoritative information as to what then took place, speculation has covered every possible corner of the European political arena. It is now accepted that the interview was arranged on the Kaiser's initiative and that has increased the deep feeling of uneasiness which this restless and powerful statesman's actions have inspired from one end of Europe to the other.

Writing from St. Petersburg on July 26, the Sun's correspondent there says:

"Among all Russians the abiding impression left by the emperors' conference has in it a large element of humiliation. The meeting did not really surprise people here, but it set out clearly before their eyes the horrible irony of a man constituted by character and temperament as is Nicholas, being actually the autocrat over a bigger slice of humanity than anybody else in the world.

"Nobody here doubts that the Kaiser made up the Czar's mind for him. Two other eminent autocrats, the sultans of Turkey and Morocco, have found on important occasions that their interests coincided opportunely with the Kaiser's and now the autocrat of all the Russias makes a docile third.

"This, of course, is an offense to all independent-minded Russians. To them the chief concern is not what advice was offered, or what was taken, but the great patent fact that at a moment when Russia is passing through the most terrible crisis in her history, the hereditary, absolute ruler of her destinies should go to a masterful foreigner, whose very definite convictions are German first, and second and all the time, and learn from him the next best thing to do for Russia.

"The Czar's own people see in this another of those heavy strokes of fate that have fallen throughout his dismal reign ever since thousands of his peasants trampled each other to death on the day of his coronation."

It is only natural, perhaps, that the Russians in the present miserable condition of their fortunes should regard chiefly this aspect of the case. Others, however, anxiously scrutinize every posible spot where the Kaiser and when the Kaiser's hands may next appear. The opinion is distinctly growing that in addition to a discussion of the war and Russia's internal condition, the Kaiser put forward prominently at the meeting the Scandinavian question. He is increasingly anxious to form a Scandinavian dreibund.

The Spectator devotes an article to speculation as to what the Kaiser probably advised in regard to peace and the internal arrangement of Russia, pointing out that China has an obvious claim to a voice in the disposal of Manchuria and is otherwise in a position to claim consideration.

The Spectator suggests that the Kaiser use his great influence at Pekin to throw Chinese weight on the Russian side of the scale and then try to secure a peace which, while it will arrest the actual war, will leave Russians and Japanese glaring at each other as potential foes who are unable to afford great enterprises lest their rivals take advantage of the opportunity.

Such a peace would probably concede an indemnity, but would leave north Manchuria in Russian hands. It is suggested that the Kaiser with the object of keeping his Russian neighbor sufficiently weak to relieve him from anxiety in Europe, will have to recommend concessions in regard to a constitution. As an upholder of the divine right of kings, the Kaiser might be expected to uphold the Czar in opposition to anything contrary to the monarchial principles, but, on the other hand, most Germans believe that a constitution in Russia would greatly diminish the danger from the eastern border for, the Spectator, says, "mobilization with a parliament is far more difficult usually and far slower than without one, and a declaration of war in a constitutional monarchy requires reasons which are acceptable to the people."

LONDON, MONDAY, JULY 31.

The Liberal Club.

The outline of the Park avenue facade of the proposed Liberal Club, published in Saturday's Advertiser, shows that the new building will have some pretensions to style. It will be a permanent and commodious home for the party in London, and the Liberal headquarters for Western Ontario. Provision will be made for the amusement and recreation of members, but there is a more serious purpose behind the project. The building of an auditorium, capable of seating several hundred people, will meet a need which every Liberal feels who believes that politics is the science of government and not of graft. It is hoped the club will realize that it has something more than a social function, and will use its new equipment to promote an intelligent interest in public affairs among the young men of the community. This may be done by debates and discussions, and by engaging prominent Canadians to deliver addresses on historical or political topics. In this way the Liberal Club can be made a distinct influence for good in the city. It should be a center of instruction and help to dignify party controversy. The promoters, it is gratifying to know, desire to make the club a Liberal lyceum.

The Canadian Mint.

It is a good suggestion that the new Canadian mint should give the country a nickel coinage.

The tiny and elusive five-cent piece is a public nuisance. It is apt to lose itself in the corner of the pockets, and is difficult to handle. The American nickel is a more convenient coin, though it is too easily discolored owing to the large alloy of copper. A pure nicken coin would be more durable than silver and fully as handsome. It might be made somewhat smaller than the American nickel, which is too near the size of the quarter. Nickel is a domestic product, while the bulk of the silver minted in Canada will have to be imported. Nickel, being cheaper, will yield the treasury the larger profit.

The redemption of worn and defaced silver should be considered a duty by the Government when the mint is in operation. There is a large volume also of "plugged" and mutilated silver, which cannot be redeemed at its face value without putting a premium upon these practices, but some arrangement might be made for effecting its withdrawal at a small discount so that the standard of the silver currency of the country may be improved.

Britain and the Baltic.

British organs of public opinion persist in seeing political motives in the dispatch of a British fleet to the Baltic Sea. It is interpreted as an answer to the Kaiser's ostentatious interviews with the Czar and the King of Sweden. Rightly or wrongly he is credited with the ambition of having the Baltic declared a closed sea by agreement of Germany, Sweden and Russia, the leading Baltic powers. Whether the Kaiser cherishes this design or not, the sending of a British fleet to these waters for the first time since the Crimean war is a notification that Great Britain regards the Baltic as an open sea. It is a warning that the doctrine of a mare clausum can only be maintained by force.

In spite of their common origin and many points of similarity in the character of the two peoples, Great Britain and Germany appear to be drifting further apart. An influential opinion exists in both countries that they are destined to come into collision for the supremacy of the seas and the determination of Germany's position as a colonial power. This has become what the French call a fixed idea, and colors the utterances of a large portion of the German and British press. The British profess to see in it the ultimate purpose of Germany's policy of naval expansion. The Kaiser has declared, in one of his flamboyant speeches, that the future of Germany is on the ocean, and there can be no doubt that he looks to the foundation of a colonial empire as an outlet for the German race, which is overflowing its present political boundaries in Europe.

It would seem that the recent revision of Great Britain's naval strategy was based upon an apprehension of the role which Germany is credited with aspiring to play. The central idea of the new disposition of the British fleet is its concentration in home waters, so as to enable it to strike at any point with its full force. The home fleet now more than ever dominates the North Sea and the Baltic Sea. If the secrets of the foreign office were laid bare it might be found that distrust of Germany was the mainspring of British diplomacy in the Anglo-French entente.

Beautiful Poems With Long Hair.

[Harper's Weekly.]

The following remarks on Tennyson were recently handed in on an examination paper by a schoolboy in an English literary class: "Lord Alfred Tennyson was a celebrated poet, and he wrote a lot of beautiful pomes with long hair. His greatest pome is called 'The Idle King.' He was made a lord, but he was a good man and wrote mand oads."

On a Southern Railroad.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]

Marshall P. Wilder, at a dinner in St. Louis, was telling railroad stories.

"One bright afternoon I was riding on a southern trip," he said. "It was full of sunshine and dust, and the air that swept through the open door was warm and gritty and unrefreshing. Everybody was uncomfortable, and a little boy who sat in front of me had his head poked out of the window all the time in search of coolness. Now and then, with some loud remark, he drew in his head, all coated with dust and soot, and made a few white streaks over its dark surface by daubing it with a handkerchief.

"The boy's remarks were amusing, and we all fell into the habit of waiting for them. In the heat and dust and glaring sunshine they seemed to afford us a little relief.

"The train after a time struck a serpentine stretch of track and began to rock from side to side. Now we were hurled to the right, now we were flung violently to the left. On we went with this crazy, rocking motion, and in the distance a tunnel appeared. As, always swaying violently, we drew near the tunnel the boy in front drew in his dust grimed head quickly; and in wild excitement shouted:

"'By George! I believe we'll miss the hole!'"

Women Nurses.

[From the Hospital, London.]

Nursing is peculiarly woman's work. As Dr. Worcester testifies, women are peculiarly fitted for the onerous task of patiently and skillfully caring for the patient in faithful obedience to the physician's orders. Ability to care for the helpless is woman's distinctive nature. Nursing is mothering. Grown-up folks, when very sick, are all babies, and some of us are babes when only slightly ill. In no other employment but nursing can women so well bring into action their highest powers. In so many employments now open to women only their brains are wanted or the use of nimble fingers. Craftsmanship and brainwork are sufficient for men, because they have the incentive to make provision for those near and dear to them. For women it is of the highest importance that they shall find employment in which their hearts as well as their heads and hands shall have full exercise. Nursing, of all other employments, offers this opportunity, and so nursing is the most popular of all pursuits for the majority of women.

WARFARE MUST CONTINUE

Rev. J. R. Johnston Says No Let-Up to Fight Against Satan.

Taking as his text, "They overcame him with the blood of the Lamb," Rev. J. R. Johnston, of Preston, delivered an eloquent sermon last evening in St. Andrew's Church, the pulpit of which he is occupying during the absence on his holidays of Rev. Dr. Ross, the pastor. He took as his theme the battle between the powers of right and wrong, or between the devil and those who are followers of God. Touching upon the story, indicated in several passages in the Bible, and enlarged upon by Milton, that Satan was cast out of heaven for his ambitious attempt to be higher than the Son of God, the preacher showed that the chief aim of the evil power was supremacy. This was what Satan was working for when Adam was cast out of Eden, when Israel wandered in the wilderness, and today in the hearts of men.

"There is no discharge from this warfare," said Mr. Johnston, "and the devil and his followers are skillful archers. There are poisoned shafts sticking in the hearts of our very children today, waiting to work.

The second object of the devil's warfare was to be able to bring an action against the sons of men in heaven, as exemplified in the story of Job.

Mr. Johnston went on to ask whether the spirit of Jesus Christ was the guiding motive of the church, of the people, today, and answered the question in the negative. Satan sought supremacy on earth and in the hearts of men, and has gained it, and also in the church.

What was the outcome of the warfare? Satan had been successful with all except Jesus Christ.

"Christ who cast Satan out of heaven followed him to earth. There he battled for forty days against the devil and conquered. But even after that, Satan followed him to the end. But Christ conquered even in hell itself and rose without sin. He was the David of the human race, fighting against the Goliath of evil. He won, and there is therefore no condemnation to those that accept Christ."

Satan was no longer able to bring any accusation against man, by reason of the work of Christ. What was the devil, then, striving to do today? His object today was to hide Christ and his cross from men's eyes. As long as a man accepted the leadership of Christ, however, Satan had no power over him.

TREMENDOUS FALL OF RAIN

Downpour in Bridgeport, Conn., Over Ten Inches in Ten Hours.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 31.—Estimates today of the property loss due to the flood, caused by the bursting of reservoir dam after Saturday's heavy rain indicated that the total will approach half a million dollars. City property alone suffered probably to the extent of $100,000, and large manufacturing plants and many stores are heavy losers. Four city bridges were damaged, and much injury was done to the streets. The plant of the American Metallic Cartridge Company, which was damaged to the extent of $75,000, will remain closed for at least three days, throwing 1,700 hands into idleness. The American Graphaphone Company's plant, employing 1,500 hands, also was crippled.

According to the record kept by the Bridgeport Hydraulic Company, the total rainfall in the ten hours preceding midnight Saturday was 11.36 inches. Plans for rebuilding the broken dams were made by the Hydraulic Company today.

BEGGARS MADE WHILE YOU WAIT

Blind, Maimed and Diseased Turned Out Daily by an Expert.

New York, July 29.—In a small but neat and comfortable, flat in West Twenty-ninth street, lives an elderly, careworn man, who is known to his neighbors by the mysterious title of "The Beggars' Tailor." The "beggars' outfitter" would be a more appropriate sobriquet, for the elderly man's trade has nothing to do with the making of clothes. He equips and fits out professional mendicants for the practice of their trade.

His business address, for obvious reasons, he does not advertise, and there are no cork legs or eye-bandages disfiguring the cosy little room which he calls his parlor.

"A mendicant who has not mastered the tricks of the trade," said the "beggars' tailor," "has no more chance of making money than has a pugilist who has not learned to box. He must get an outfit. For a woman a small child is the most essential detail. But six beggar women out of eight have no children of their own—of the right age. I supply them.

"There are plenty of poor, hard-working mothers who are only too glad to let out their children, on condition that they get sufficient food and are taken care of. It is a mistake to suppose that these women neglect the children they hire. On the contrary, nothing opens the purse-strings of charity so quickly as a starved, hungry-looking mother carrying a fairly well-nourished child. Skilled beggars can afford to pay me as much as 50 cents a day for a child.

"But that's only a small part of my business. I'll guarantee to make the healthiest-looking man in New York resemble an anaemic cripple in ten minutes. Only a man who can work that transformation has a right to call himself a 'beggars' tailor.'

"The public horrors. Do you see those?"

The "beggars' tailor" took from his breast pocket a large pill box and removed the lid. Inside were about a score of wafers of different sizes, shiny with some adhesive on one side, and red, protuberant and nasty-looking on the other.

"Those," he continued, "are beggars' sores. It doesn't sound nice, but you don't want niceness in this business. My clients purchase them from me, stick them in the exact spot on their necks and faces, and find them a good investment. When the wafer is stuck on, the skin around it must be carefully treated with red and white coloring matter.

"Sturdy beggars from the country nearly always pose as on the verge of starvation. If it weren't for me their fat faces would belie them. But, as every stage 'dresser' knows, a few artificial lines and a judicious use of shadows will make a face like Falstaff's emaciated and lean. Beggars seldom wash, and that's lucky for themselves. Otherwise they'd be put to fresh expense every day.

"Are there other tricks of the trade? I should think so! If you ever see a one-legged beggar, wearing a long coat, ten to one he's a 'crook.' With a little practice a sound-limbed man can bend up his leg till it's almost parallel with his thigh-bone. He comes to me for an artificial leg, which he fixes to his knee-cap. The long coat enables him to carry off the fraud. A medal on his chest, a whine, and the trick's done. For money-making no pose can beat the soldier.

"Half the blind and one-eyed beggars can see as well as you or I. I can fit out a blind man with everything, from dog and eye-shade, to Braille book in raised-up characters. Dogs, of course, cost money, as they have to be specially trained. As a rule, the swindling 'blind' man hasn't got a dog. It's not necessary, and a great expense, whereas a real blind man, if he hasn't got a child, must have one.

"Many blind men are only half frauds. They have either lost one eye completely, or they have such bad sight that they can't work. Therefore they go the whole hog and pretend to be totally blind.

"I had an ex-sailor in here yesterday. He was short-sighted and partly color-blind, so he couldn't pass the test. Not being able to get work—for a sailor's a child ashore—he'd gone on the road as a blind tramp. He wore a green patch over one eye, but the other had a bleared, sunken look, which made it seem sightless. He told me he had made $5 on Park Row.

"Many sham cripples and blind men are ex-criminals. A man who's done a long term, and doesn't like it, fights shy of committing a second crime. As a rule, he makes a very successful beggar, for nothing sharpens a man's wits like prison.

"A man who got five years for one of the most daring jewel robberies that ever took place came to me some weeks ago. I fitted him out, and he left my shop the most woe-begone, starving blind man you've ever seen. I often watch the papers to see if he's gone back to crime. But I expect he makes a good income begging.

"What are the charges? Well, I have a minimum charge which just covers the cost of material and loss of time and leaves me a small profit. I add to that whatever my client can be made to pay. I supply and affix wafer 'sore spots' and decorate the flesh around at 10 cents each. That's cheap enough, for even medical men can't detect the fraud without close examination. Wooden and cork legs I buy second-hand and sell at about a third of the original price. Some of my income comes from giving lessons. The beginner as a rule, has no idea of his trade."

TRADED CHILD FOR DOG

Umbrella Mender Needed the Latter to Guard Him in Travels.

Rochester, N. Y., July 29.—The exchange of a bright little 4-year-old girl for a dog was made at Pavilion Center yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. George Tillotson, of that place, receiving the child and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Corry, who claim Lansing, Mich., as their home, getting the dog. Carry says he was formerly janitor of the Elks' Club at Lansing. In September, he claims, he lost all his belongings in a flood, but remained in Lansing until six weeks ago, when he managed to get together a horse and "democrat" wagon and started out driving around the country mending umbrellas for a living.

The couple claimed the child was not theirs, and denied that they had kidnapped it. "A man who had lost his wife came to board at our home," said Carry, "and suddenly disappeared, leaving the child behind. We could not abandon it and brought it along with us, but you can see we cannot properly care for it. Write to Lansing and you will find that what I tell you is true."

When the strange couple drove up in front of Tillotson's home Mrs. Tillotson, who enjoys a trade, jokingly offered Carry the dog for the child. To her surprise the Carrys accepted the offer. They needed a dog to protect them as they slept in woods and highways.

The Tillotsons are well to do and childless. They will investigate Carry's story, and if no one claims the child will bring it up as their own.

TO PREVENT IS BETTER THAN TO REPENT.—A little medicine in the shape of the wonderful pellets which are known as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, administered at the proper time and with the directions adhered to, often prevent a serious attack of sickness and save money which would go to the doctor. In all irregularities of the digestive organs they are an invaluable corrective, and by cleansing the blood they clear the skin of imperfections.

Tobacco is now being successfully cultivated in Ireland. Among brands of cigars soon to be put on the market are Colorado Claro de Skibbereen, Connemara, Perfectos and Flor di O'Toole y MacFlaherty.

THE MOST POPULAR PILL.—The pill is the most popular of all forms of medicine, and of pills the most popular are Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, because they do what it is asserted they can do, and are not put forward on any fictitious claims to excellence. They are compact and portable; they are easily taken, they do not nauseate nor gripe, and they give relief in the most stubborn cases.

LONG ago we realized that the baking and roasting qualities of the oven of a range are of greatest importance to the range user. We brought our knowledge, gained by years of experience, to bear on this one point. The result was the Imperial Oxford Diffusive Oven Flue. With this exclusive feature, the Imperial Oxford stands to-day the most perfect baking and roasting range on the market.

After getting this most important feature of a range to such a point of perfection we naturally did not neglect any other improvement which could add to the working of the range. These improvements were incorporated in the

because they added to the life of the range, simplified its operation or economized fuel.

Of these improvements the draw-out oven rack is one which will instantly appeal to the cook. The handle of this rack is outside the range—always cool enough to hold with the bare hand. By pulling this handle forward anything roasting in the oven may be drawn out onto the oven shelf to be basted, without touching the hot pan or reaching into the oven. The same applies to the testing of bread, cake or pies.

We would like you to see the Imperial Oxford Range. If your dealer doesn't handle it, write us for illustrated literature and the address of the nearest dealer who does. 15

Cheese—With the continued firm cable advices from Canada, the market has developed more strength, and is dearer on choice, cool goods. Colored cheese keeps scarcer than white, hence the difference in value. The demand has been fairly good. There is an inquiry for undergrades, but this class is in very moderate supply. Butter has been in good request for the choicest qualities, and Canadian has advaced 1s to 2s per cwt. Irish produce is also dearer, and choicest qualities are sought after, being scarce, owing to the hot weather. Danish has been in good demand, and the Copenhagen quotation has advanced 3 kroner for next week. Medium grades of butter also meet with more demand. We quote today: Choicest Canadian creamery, in 56-lb boxes, 102s to 104s per cwt; choicest Danish, in Kiel casks, 108s to 112s; choicest Russian, do, 96s to 100s; choicest Australian and New Zealand, 98s to 102s; choicest Argentine, 98s to 100s; choicest Irish creamery, 102s to 105s; medium grades, States and Canadians, 84s to 92s.

A HEAVY WINNER SOLD.

New York, July 29.—Major Daingerfield, winner of more than $100,000 in his five seasons on the turf, was sold out of P. J. Dwyer's racing stable yesterday to a western turfman, and it is understood is destined to end his career as a steeplechaser. The "Major," as he is known about the race tracks, has gradually fallen from his high estate as a great handicap horse because of his unreliability, and has recently been running in selling races. Occasionally he has won, but no turfman ever ventured to bid him up.

SMATHERS' STABLES CLEANED OUT.

New York, July 29.—Every horse in E. E. Smathers' eastern racing stable was sold at Brighton Beach today and excellent prices were realized. Pat Dunne also bought Rapid Water for $5,800; Burleigh for $5,600; Jake Saunders for $4,100, and High Chance for $3,600. Sly Ben was sold to P. H. McCarren for $5,100. Deceased was 77 years of age. He was a native of Lobo Township, and followed the occupation of cattle drover for many years, at the same time working a large farm. He was then made quarantine agent at Point Edward, and held the position until five years ago, when he retired. For a time Mr. McDougall lived in Detroit, but returned to Point Edward before overtaken by death.

NO END OF FUN HAD THE TRAINMEN

Second Annual Excursion of the Brotherhood Held at Berlin.

After all, no one knows better how to have a good time and how to give others a good time than the railway trainman. This fact was illustrated to everyone's satisfaction on Saturday when the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen from this city in company with their comrades from Toronto and intervening points, had a big day at Berlin. The occasion was the second annual excursion and picnic and it was a much greater success than the previous outing.

Last year the G. T. R. conducted the excursion, so this time it was the turn of the Canadian Pacific to carry the trainmen, their families and friends to the scene of the day's fun. And no one had anything but praise for the company's good treatment of the picnickers. Shortly after 8 o'clock a special train, made up of half a dozen of the best coaches, pulled out of this city with over two hundred passengers on board, and made its very best time to Galt.

At Galt the passengers were placed on board special street cars, which were waiting, and conveyed to Berlin over the line of the Galt and Berlin Electric Railway. It was just 12 o'clock when the Londoners disentrained in the beautiful Victoria Park, of which Berlin has good reason to boast, and marched down town, where they had dinner at the various hotels. Thus less than four hours were required for the journey, with the beautiful ride from Galt included.

It was not long afterwards that upwards of four hundred trainmen from the Queen City and other points along the line arrived. These, by arrangement, stayed in Victoria Park for dinner, which they had in picnic style.

The Berliners gave the visitors the usual hearty welcome which they extend to excursionists. Large crowds of citizens gathered to see the trainmen formally welcomed by the civic authorities, and to watch the interesting programme of sports which was run off afterwards. Victoria Park was the place of meeting for the two contingents of visitors.

As soon as dinner was over, the Londoners drew up in order of march and led by the band of the Twenty-ninth Regiment, which was so well known in this city at camp time, made their way to the fair park.

Here they were heartily welcomed in a kindly speech by Alderman Uttley Mayor Krantz being absent. Mr. Uttley expressed the pleasure which the visits of the trainmen caused the citizens of Berlin. He wished the visitors the time of their lives, and invited them to come back in still greater force next year. The speech was responded to with three hearty cheers by the crowd, and then the great event of the annual picnic, namely, the ball game, was commenced.

This match is always hotly contested It is fought out between two teams chosen from the visitors from the east and those from the west respectively. The Londoners lost his time by the score of 21 to 2, despite the fact that they played extra hard, on account of having been defeated last year. Toronto, of course, always has the greatest number of men from which to choose their players and therefore have somewhat of an advantage.

Notwithstanding their defeat, the London boys played good ball, and the best player on the diamond was undoubtedly a Forest City man, namely, F. Ryan whose clever stick work and four-bas hit drew the hearty applause of the crowd. The batteries: White and Larder for London; Harter and Welly for Toronto

THE SPORTS.

When the game was over the annual field sports were begun, and great was the competition for the numerous and costly prizes offered. The greasy pig attracted the usual amount of attention, He was finally rounded up and captured by E. W. Rau, of this city.

When the sports were over, the ownership of the great quilt, inscribed with the names of 420 trainmen, and which was woven by the Ladies' Auxiliary in connection with the brotherhood, was decided by lot. The result of the drawing was that Dr. Hamilton, of Toronto, carried away the valuable prize. A brief address on behalf of the energetic manufacturers of the quilt was then given by the secretary of the auxiliary, Mrs. Rolston.

The whole crowd of visitors then went to the pavilion, where dancing competitions of a most interesting nature were held. The Riddell children, especially, made a good impression on the crowd. Meanwhile a little rain fell, but not enough to disturb the pleasures of the day.

After the dancing the inevitable baby show was held, and the unfortunate judges had the usual desperate time in deciding upon the winner. It was almost an impossibility to pick out the best-looking child, but finally the judges decided upon the children of the following happy parents: 1, Mrs. Bert Layers, of Berlin; 2, J. J. Fitzpatrick, of London; 3, Mrs. A. Bernhardt, of Berlin.

When at last the big day came to a close, the Londoners left Berlin for home at a very seasonable hour, namely, 8 o'clock, and arrived before midnight, a tired but well-satisfied crowd. Tickets were good until Monday, and a number of excursionists stayed over.

It must be remarked that the engineer who run the train from Toronto was the veteran James Murdock, who has been appointed fourth vice-president of the United Railway Engineers, with a salary of $3,600 per annum. It was his last trip as engineer, and he could not have chosen a better occasion for saying farewell to his well-beloved iron steed.

The committee, which deserves much of the credit for the day's success, was as follows: C. P. R.—J. E. Miller, L. Wynn, J. Miles. G. T. R.—M. Cusack, J. Adams, W. Stanford, L. Donald. J. E. Miller, secretary-treasurer, Toronto Junction. Mr. Joe Moyer also deserves credit for good work.

WOMAN ECLIPSES CAPTAIN WEBB

Nineteen-Year-Old Australian Girl Has Wonderful Swimming Record.

London, July 29.—"Do you think the Americans will like my swimming?"

This question was asked under somewhat remarkable circumstances. It came from Miss Annette Kellermann, of Australia, who had just got well started on her recent long-distance swim in the River Thames. During his journey she completely overshadowed all previous performances under similar conditions, including that of Captain Webb, making 13¾ miles in 3 hours 54 minutes and 10 seconds.

While thus creating a new world's record, the Australian girl found no difficulty in carrying on a most animated and interesting conversation with your correspondent, who, with her father and her official timekeeper, occupied a launch which kept about an oar's length away from the fair swimmer. Miss Kellermann began her phenomenal swim with a dive off historic Putney bridge, and in spite of the long distance and the fact that she had talked nearly all the way, was the freshest member of the party when she got out of the water at Blackwell pier and ingenuously demanded something to eat.

This Australian girl is curious to know how her swimming will be regarded by Americans, because she will visit the United States, probably early in September. Before that, however, she will attempt several little aquatic feats—notably to swim the English Channel. Miss Kellermann, who is now ony 19, has never before been defeated in any contest of long-distance swimming or artistic diving, either by man or woman.

So far her record is one continuous report of victories. At 15 she won the amateur mile championship of Australia in still, salt water in 29 minutes, which was 3 minutes and 49 seconds faster than any woman in the world had done. She then made 2¼ miles in 46 minutes and 30 seconds. When she had acquired all the amateur Australian championships Miss Kellermann became a professional.

In the last three years she won every Australian long-distance swim, making five miles in 1 hour 48 minutes and 34 seconds, and 10¼ miles in 4 hours and 23 minutes. So far her other speed records are 100 yards in 1 minute and 18 seconds, the best ever made by a woman; and a quarter mile in 7 minutes and 2 seconds, although she prefers the long-distance tasks. She is also the holder of many championship prizes won in her diving contests.

With it all she has found time to educate herself greatly beyond her years.

The Australian girl's beautifully moulded limbs and remarkably developed shoulders have nothing masculine about them, but leave no doubt of their strength. The movement of her hands and feet when in the water is good to contemplate. Her feet are small, instep high, and as they move through the air during a dive resemble those of a Parisian premiere danseuse. The activity of this 148-pound, five-feet seven-inch young woman betokens an immense amount of nervous energy under perfect control. This same characteristic is notable in Miss May Sutton, the tennis champion. Both girls are cool and decisive in action, quick-witted, educated and refined.

"Training?" she asked. "Well, I do so little it is hardly worth mentioning. I am a great believer in proper development. For instance, I practiced ballet dancing for two years. Privately, though, for I would not, for worlds, dance a ballet in public. But you have no idea how useful ballet dancing has been to me, particularly in diving. I know of no other method to train the muscles so that the feet may take on the suppleness of the hands. Then I am very fond of tennis, and have won several championships, but now only play, as I dance, to help my swimming. When there is a semblance of training required I usually run a few miles for several days before a contest. Otherwise I do not believe in doing too much. It wears one down. I eat the same things other people do, but only take one drink of any kind of liquid each day. This helps the wind."

"What do you think of the relative speed merits of men and women in the water?" I asked.

"It's no use for a woman to try and beat a man at short distances. That is a question of brute strength. But for long distances I certainly favor my sex because we have more patience. I am willing to swim any man in the world at any distance over ten miles. I do hope I will be able to get some of your American champions to try a long-distance match with me."

Miss Kellermann is bent on attempting to swim the English Channel, although she may decide to postpone the trial until she is thoroughly well acclimated to the British climate. This feat has never been achieved by a female swimmer, although Madame Isaacq, a Frenchwoman, tried it last year. Captain Webb was the only man who ever successfully swam the Channel, and he took nearly 24 hours. Miss Kellermann thinks she can do the same thing in less time, placing her reliance on her speed. This would be an important help to her as she would then have fewer tides to encounter than would a slower swimmer.

FLEW TOO HIGH A KITE

Gay Young Man Took to Safe-Cracking to Pay Expenses.

Chicago, July 29.—Because his salary received from the Chicago Telephone Company was not large enough to pay his expenses as a shining light in society and pay for all the ice cream sodas demanded by a young woman he was keeping company with, Walter T. Brabish took to safe robbery to supply the deficiency. He confesses this.

The young man was arrested today and is awaiting an officer from Springfield, who will take him back to the capital to answer to two charges of robbery.

Brabish was a clerk in the store of J. D. Lamphere, 320 South Fifth street, Springfield, until a year ago, when he took $50 from the safe. On account of his family and promise to repay the money Mr. Lamphere did not prosecute him.

Brabish came to Chicago and went to work for the Chicago Telephone Company. He became acquainted with a young woman and his salary was too small to pay his expenses. Last Saturday he went to Springfield, and in the night, he says, he broke into the Lamphere store and took $90 from the safe, returning to Chicago on Sunday.

About the first thing the youth did after returning was to write to Lamphere, telling him he had been so short of money during the year that he had not been able to pay him anything, but he hoped soon to be able to send him small amounts at a time. This was the first that Lamphere had heard from Brabish since he went away.

A fugitive warrant was issued and Brabish was arrested at the main office of the telephone company by Detectives Fitzgerald and O'Connor.

When taken to Central Station he confessed, but refused to give the name of the young woman for whose sake he committed the robbery.

CRUELTY OF LADRONES

Sliced Tongue of Old Man—Hacked Off Another's Legs.

Manila, July 29.—Emilio Aguinaldo, describing himself as a farmer, testified today in the Renacimento libel case. This is the case in which three editors of that most influential Filipino organ, were arrested on the charge of libeling Captain Baker of the constabulary, whom they charged with cruelty in the Cavite campaign.

Aguinald testified that a constabulary officer visited his farm and compelled him to go to headquarters where he was urged to influence two ladrone leaders to surrender. He refused to do so, saying he had no influence with the ladrones. Thereupon, Captain Baker swore at him and insulted him. He said he knew of several constabulary outrages. He said the ladronism is steadily diminishing.

Prosecuting-Attorney Smith cross-examined Aguinaldo. The former rebel leader became pitifully rattled. He abandoned his attempt to speak in Spanish and testified in the Tagalog dialect through an interpreter. He reiterated weakly the statement that he was leading a retired life as an example to his countrymen, but was forced to admit that he had been familiar with the raids.

Just at this time Aguinaldo was dramatically and suddenly confronted with five horribly tortured Filipinos who had been rescued and succored by the constabulary. One of these, 73 years old, had had his tongue sliced, three had been hamstrung, and their lips hideously cut up and one had his legs hacked off by the Cavite ladrones. This created an extraordinary sensation.

REFORMS IN INDIAN ARMY

Fears of Russian Invasion Will Cause Them To Be Inaugurated.

London, July 29.—With both Lord Roberts and General Kitchener hammering the Government because of its neglect of the army at home and in India, it is almost certain that great reforms will soon be inaugurated in this branch of our defenses, which has formerly been pushed aside, while millions have been spent on the navy.

The specter of Russia invading India has become more alarming than ever, now that peace between Russia and Japan seems imminent.

Should the peace plenipotentiaries who meet in Porthsmouth, N. H., in a few days really succeed in agreeing upon terms acceptable to the Czar, and, as it is, the autocrat of Russia is bound to accept almost any terms, Russia will have to bring back from Manchuria half a million of men armed and hardened, full of contempt for their officers, who have done nothing but drink and dissipate in the time of danger and these hundred thousands of soldiers angry at having been defeated in spite of their almost superhuman bravery, will constitute a danger far greater to autocracy than the revolting working men and peasants.

What would be more natural than for Russia, many people here reason, to divert them towards the south and attack India, which England could not possibly defend. Taking away from Great Britain part of her Indian territory Russia could easily afford to forget the loss of Manchuria. And many there are who mistrust the Kaiser and think that this is just what he has advised the Czar to do.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

TO TELEPHONE USERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC,—

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA has been operating for twenty-four years. Its operations were at first confined to the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, but later it also undertook business in the Northwest.

The amount expended by the Company during this time in building up its system is $10,558,686.79, over $3.00 per head of the population of the country served.

Considering that large sections of these Provinces are sparsely settled, that there are large areas where the Bell Company does not operate, but which are served by other Companies, the amount invested will compare favorably with any other country.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA has secured from investors this large sum of money upon the record of its management. While scores of other telephone organizations both in this country and the United States have either failed to pay dividends or gone to the wall, involving the loss of millions of capital, the stock of this Company has always been sold at par or upwards. The Company has survived the keenest competition in important centres,—all of which is a practical endorsement of the Company's management.

Is it not an advantage to telephone users and to the commercial interests of Canada, particularly during this period of national development, that so important a factor as the local and long distance telephone service should be in the hands of a strong company which commands the confidence of capitalists? Confidence and cash go hand in hand in the up-building of a telephone system, and both are an absolute necessity to continuous development. It is certain that the development of the next ten years will exceed that of the past twenty years. It is essential that the confidence of capitalists shall be maintained if the requirements of this growing country are to be met. This cannot be unless returns upon the investment are assured by reasonable rates, careful administration and an energetic and continuous policy.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA.

NOTED OFFICER DEAD

Demise of Col. Montizambert at Ovid, Mich.

Kingston, July 31.—A message from Ovid, Mich., announces the death of Lieut.-Col. Charles E. Montizambert, late D. O. C. at Montreal and Kingston.

Lieut.-Col. Montizambert was born in Quebec, Jan. 27, 1841, his father being Edward Montizambert, late law clerk of the Senate, and his mother, the daughter of the late Chief Justice Bowen. The late colonel was descended from a family of soldiers.

Educated at Upper Canada College, Toronto, he early showed a decided taste for military pursuits, and in 1860 entered with great zest into the volunteer movement, being subsequently appointed captain and adjutant of the Quebec Volunteer Garrison Artillery, in which corps he served until 1871.

When A and B Batteries, schools of gunnery, were raised in that year he was transferred to the command of B Battery, permanent artillery, Quebec, which he raised under Major-Gen. Strange, R. A., commandant of the School of Artillery.

He attained the rank of major in 1872, and lieutenant-colonel in 1877. In 1882 he was made commandant of the School of Artillery, consisting of B Battery, at Kingston.

He was in action at Fish Creek and at Batoche and was mentioned in dispatches and recommended for C. M. G. He was the author of a prize essay for the medal presented by the Dominion Artillery Association on the supply, care and repair of artillery. In 1897 he was transferred to Kingston as D. O. C. of military districts 3 and 4, and inspector of artillery for districts 1, 2, 3 and 4.

He was a member of the Anglican Church. In 1867 he married Alice Lawson, daughter of the late James Gibb, of Quebec.

WON'T SETTLE IN AFRICA

Zionists Decline Offer of a Tract of Land From Britain.

Basle, Switzerland, July 31.—By an overwhelming majority, the Zionist Congress has decided not to accept the offer of Great Britain of a tract of land in East Africa for the formation of a Zionist colony. A special sitting of the congress was called for the discussion of this subject, four orators supporting and four opposing Great Britain's proposition. The debate lasted for over six hours, and President Nordau eventually suspended the sitting at dawn owing to the tumultuous scenes. The sitting was resumed at noon Sunday, when the committee having the mater in hand, presented the following resolution:

"That the Zionist Congress firmly maintains the principle for the foundation of the colony in the Jewish fatherland, Palestine, or in that vicinity. The congress thanks Great Britain for her offer of African territory, the consideration of which, however, is terminated, and hopes Great Britain will continue to aid in the solution of the Jewish question."

The resolution was adopted by a large majority amid loud protests from the socialist section, the members of which left the building. The sitting was concluded with enthusiastic cheering.

A second session of the congress was held at night, calm prevailing throughout. President Nordau requested Mr. Greenberg to convey the thanks of the Zionists to the British Government for its East African offer. Mr. Leon, in the name of the American delegates, proposed a vote of gratitude to the memory of John Hay, who "so often lent assistance to the Jewish nation."

Kitchen Economy

There is triple economy in using Strong's Baking Powder:

1. It costs less than other good powders.

2. It goes about twice as far.

3. It gives uniformly good results.

The amount of money lost in one "spoiled" baking, through the use of impure powder, would pay the entire cost of Strong's Baking Powder for several months. This powder is always pure, fresh and full of strength, hence you can always depend upon it producing uniform results. Price, 25c a pound.

WILL MAKE A HIT

Seventh Regiment Sure to Do This on Military Day.

Citizens in general are taking a great interest in military day of Old Boys' week, and it begins to look as though this day will be the biggest of the week. The crack Seventh Regiment will that day be seen at its best, and London's pride will be sure to give a good account of itself.

To the visitors the regiment will be especially interesting from the fact that the Old Boys will be able to recognize in the present stalwarts the sons and nephews of former schoolmates.

"The regiment will be sure to make the hit of the week," a members of the executive told a reporter today.

EVERY PICTURE A GEM

Beautiful Souvenir of London Issued By Cooper and Sanders.

One of the finest souvenirs of the city of London that has ever been issued has been published by Cooper & Sanders, the photographers, and is now an sale. It is a booklet containing about 100 photographs of London's buildings, streets and public places, also of Springbank and Port Stanley.

Each picture is a gem in itself, and no resident or former resident of London can turn the pages af the book without delight. The book is novel in that it contains no pictures of people. It is specially designed for the London Old Boys; and the publishers believe that what the Old Boys chiefly want is a good collection of pictures of representative buildings, streets and public places at their former home.

A new two-color process was used in the printing of the pictures, which was done on highly-sensitive paper. The cover is also neatly gotten up. Altogether, the books will sell like hot cakes, and can be obtained from Cooper & Sanders, or at any book store.

CLOSING DAY FOR FOUR HOTELS

At Least, It Was To Have Been—Extension Granted to the Albion.

Today four hotel licenses were supposed to expire in London. They were as follows:

The Normandy Hotel, Thomas Lewis, proprietor.

The Albion, Jacob Obernesser, proprietor.

The Hunter, West London, Frank Hunter, proprietor.

The Gustin House, Michael Gilligan, proprietor.

Today, it transpires that the commissioners have, in the case of Obernesser, changed their minds, and it is understood that Obernesser has been granted a three months' extension.

The discrimination is said to have caused a lively row in local license circles, and many people wanted to know the why and the wherefore. The consequence was that another meeting of the commissioners was called for this afternoon, and it is barely possibie that they may again change their minds, and that they may grant extensions to other houses, or they may reneg on the Obernesser proposition.

THE SAD PLIGHT OF AN OLD LADY

Finds Herself Adrift and Friendless in London—Was Sent Back to Delhi.

Old age and poverty team badly. They will not drive together and leave things pleasant. Poverty is a mean partner at any time, but when it is hooked up to a mate of eighty winters it is seen at its worst. Around the city hall, in the offices of Inspectors Sanders and McCallum, poverty and old age appear to travel hand in hand in the visitors who from time to time seek assistance from the city.

Today Inspector McCallum had a pitiable case to deal with. An old lady of 80 called on him and told him her story.

"I have come from Delhi," she said, "and I want to get to Courtney, in Michigan."

"What is your name?" the inspector inquired.

"Eliza Wilson," she replied.

Then, seating herself in a chair in the office, she told her story. For many years she has been almost friendless. For many years she has found it an uphill job ekeing out a living among distant relatives and friends.

"I lived with Joe Chips at Delhi," she said, "but you know how it is—people gets tired. Dear knows, I don't bother people much, but then I am a bother. I have no money and I am too old to work. It isn't that I want to be a charge upon anybody, but I must be. I'd like to go to Michigan to meet my relatives there. I think they'll look after me for a while."

She was dressed in rusty black. Though the years had left her worn and wrinkled, they had not traced a single repulsive line on her aged face, and as the inspector looked at the motherly picture he scarcely knew what to do.

"If they find out at Sarnia or Windsor that you have no money they will not let you cross the line," the inspector told her.

"I can't lie," she answered. "I cannot tell what is not the truth. I must trust in God and hope that they will allow me to get into Michigan. I'll tell them the whole truth, no matter what the consequences may be."

The inspector then learned that the aged woman's niece at Delhi had driven her to the depot there and that she had been given enough money to take her to London. She stopped overnight at St. Thomas and finally she reached London on Saturday. Then she sat in the Grand Trunk depot until far into the night, when she was sent for a night's rest to the Aged People's Home. Today she called upon the inspector.

After looking into the case the inspector decided that the American authorities would not allow her to cross the border and he consequently sent her back to Delhi. She was bitterly disappointed, but she made the most of the situation, and she smiled at the inspector between her tears as he assured her that he felt sorry for her, and would have helped her across to Michigan had it been possible to do so.

NATURAL INCREASE, 49

Births in London in July Far Exceeded the Number of Deaths.

Vital statistics compiled by City Clerk Baker show that there were 86 births, 57 marriages and 37 deaths during the month of July. During the month of June there were 57 births, 67 marriages and 69 deaths. During July a year ago there were 95 births, 44 marriages and 43 deaths.

The births this month have been exceptionally numerous, the figures showing that the city's natural increase in population during the period was 49.

SURVEYORS ARE AT WO

Levels and Measurements for New Breakwater Being Taken.

With today the options secured by the city on lands in West London for the breakwater will have elapsed. Nearly all the bargains have been closed, however, and the engineer's department still declare that work on the breakwater will be commenced this year. When it will be concluded, no one cares to say. The surveyors are at work daily taking the levels and measurements for the new wall.

WALKERVILLE IS COMING

Distillerytown To Be Represented at Old Boys' Regatta.

The Old Boys' regatta, to be given on Tuesday next, under the auspices of the London Rowing Club, promises to be a great success. The crews are practicing faithfully, and are fit to race now. The best programme of the season is promised. The Walkerville oarsmen are coming to compete in the fours, and their presence will make the regatta much more interesting. The local oarsmen are working industriously to make the regatta a success, and no doubt their efforts will result in that end being successfully achieved.

THREE WEEKS JAIL FOR HIS ESCAPADE

Colored Man Gave Police Merry Time and Will Now Pay for It.

Although his Christian name would not lead one to suspect it, Michael Bryant is colored—a real son of the south. What is more, Michael is fond of gin—very fond of it—and this resulted in his being in the coop this morning. Saturday he got a load of Holland on board and started out to clean up "Whisky Row." He got into the Sadleir House and began to make merry, but was given a swift slap, and landed on the highway. A policeman happened along, and as Bryant was still hilarious, he was invited to take the rest cure for the Sabbath. He went along as well as could be desired, until the city hall was reached. When he started to put the force to the bad. Bryant is not very big, but he's a whirlwind in action. Two policemen were having their troubles with him when Detective Nickle happened along, and the colored man was stowed away. When he reached the cells, he invited the whole force—individually and collectively—to come in and be whipped. Bryant was up this morning before Police Magistrate Love, and was fined $10 or 21 days. For the next three weeks he will entertain the boarders at Castle Carter with his celebrated songs and melodies—with buck and reel dancing in the intermission.

William Jeffries brought in a load of vegetables on Saturday, and exchanged the same for a load of rye. He got his nag out on Dundas street and started to give a life-sized impression of John Gilpin's famous drive. He was having the time af his life, but he came nearly being snuffed out by a street car, which he tried to butt off the track. He was taken in tow by an officer, and this morning contributed $3 to the city for his entry in the race.

Merry citizens, keep off the grass! The first installment of boulevard walkers were before the police magistrate. They had crossed the boulevard at St. Andrew's Church, and a half dozen paid $1 each for the offense. The cases of half a dozen others were laid over until Saturday next.

Harry Stark was very drunk, and likewise very abusive. He was fined $3, and chased to the farm to garner the rest of the crops.

Alex McDonald was also inebriated, and paid $2 for the extra care and services of the policeman.

A drunk, first time up, was discharged.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD

Bank Clearings for July Show Increase Over July, 1904.

The bank clearings at the London Clearing House for the month of July amounted to $4,337,517.

The clearings for the same month of last year were $4,054,214.

The increase over July, 1904, was, therefore, $283,303, showing that business in London is going ahead at a satisfactory rate, as far as its financial end is concerned.

WALTERS—LAWLESS

Young Couple Wedded in St. Peter's Cathedral Today.

A happy event took place in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Miss Margaret Lawless, daughter of Mrs. Emma Lawless, of 63 Front street, became the bride of Mr. Richard Walters, second son of Mr. John Walters, contractor, of 208 Piccadilly street. The ceremony, which was of a quiet, although very pretty nature, was conducted by Rev. Father Stanley, at 7 o'clock.

The bride's brother and cousin, Mr. Edmond Lawless and Miss Minnie Holmes, respectively, acted as best man and bridesmaid. The bride was charmingly attired in cream crepe de chine and wore a bridal veil (and wreath of orange blossoms) with applique trimmings. She carried bridal roses. The maid of honor was gowned in the same manner as the bride and more a white picture hat trimmed with pink roses. She carried pink roses.

After the ceremony the happy couple left for a honeymoon to eastern points, after which they will reside in this city. They were the recipients of many handsome wedding gifts.

MANY FIRES, LITTLE LOSS

Department Answered Twenty-Five Calls During July.

During the month of July the fire department responded to 25 alarms. Of these 17 were for bona fide fires, 5 were chimney fires and 3 were grass fires. The most serious was that at Wortman & Ward's, and yet the loss was only a few hundred dollars.

This is a record of which the department and the chief may well feel proud. July and August are generally bad months for fires, as the buildings are dry and inflammable, but despite the fact that there was an average of nearly one fire a day during the month, Chief Clark and his men succeeded in keeping down the losses to a mere bagatelle.

The wisdom of putting in the new telephone alarm system is evidenced by the fact that of the 25 alarms received 18 came over the 'phone, 5 were box alarms and 2 were verbal.

CIRCUS IS IN TOWN

Norris and Rowe Arrive With Their Two-Ring Show.

The Norris & Rowe circus has come to town, and its tents are pitched near the Grand Trunk station in the east end. Norris & Rowe first made a reputation with a dog and pony show, but now they have gone into the circus business, in which they are making a name for themselves. Their circus is a two-ring affair and is strictly up-to-date, providing a magnificent programme for the delection of the hundreds of town and out of town people who are prepared to enjoy circus day to the fullest extent.

The parade this morning proved more than satisfying, and promises made in advance were more than fulfilled. The street pageant attracted hundreds of people and the pavements were lined from curb to curb.

The menagerie has a collection of rare wild beasts, including lions, tigers, elephants, llamas, camels, dromedaries, bears, wolves, sea lions, tapirs and many other wild animals. A number of these were in the procession. The feature of the latter, however, was the number of beautiful horses and ponies.

Labels Needed 11 Innings To Beat Candymakers

Champion Londons Meet Their Old-Time Rivals and Are Worsted.

What were undoubtedly the best games of the season in the City League were played on Saturday afternoon at Tecumseh Park before a large crowd of fans.

Interest was added by reason of the fact that the league leaders, the McClary nine, were to meet the Londons, their old-time rivals. While this match was interesting from start to finish, it was more than surpassed by the second game, between the Blue Labels and the Perrins, the tail-enders in the race. The two matches furnished over three hours of excitement that made the rooters feel that they had got double value for their cash.

The Londons put on the best team they have had this year, and they played good ball. Earley was in fine trim, however, and he had the "Old Boys" beaten nearly all the way. He was a trifle wild, a couple of bases on balls figuring in the score. Only five hits were made off his delivery. Sheere was hit hard at times, and was saved a worse beating by Wanless' great stop of a wicked drive by Hutchinson, that would have resulted in a couple of runs. Jackson went to sleep at the switch in one inning, and Sippi tagged him out easily. A chance to score was thus lost to the factory boys.

McClarys scored one in the initial period, but the Londons were blanked. The Londons got busy in the second. With two gone Earley passed Graham and then hit O'Rourke. Both stole and scored on Sheere's hit over third. Sheere was thrown out at second. They added another in the third when Fleming got a life on Ball's error, stole second and scored on Wanless' fine hit to right center. Wanless got to third on three bad throws to catch him off the bag. The Londons scored their last run in the fifth. With two gone Earley hit Wanless, who went to third on Jeffries' hit over third, and scored when Gibson failed to handle Stockton's hard drive. Graham was an easy out.

McClarys lost a good chance to score in the second, with the bases filled and none out. Abram was thrown out at the plate, however, after Graham had dropped Ball's fly. Graham also handled Hutchison's fly, and Jackson went to sleep at second, and no scores resulted. In the fourth Sippi made a bad throw on Collins' hit, and Collins went to second on the play. Gibson scored him with a fine drive to left for a couple of stations. Gibson went to third on Jackson's out, and scored when O'Rourke failed to handle Ball's hard smash. This netted two runs.

The game was won, however, in the sixth, when a base on balls, hits by Ball, Earley, Ecclestone and Phillips, and Stein's passed ball allowed four players to canter home. The Londons could do nothing in the last part of the game, as Earley had them sewed up. The score:

The second game was a splendid exhibition, going eleven innings—the first extra inning game of the year. Perrins played the best game of their career against the Blue Labels, and if they can keep up the pace they set Saturday, they will make all the other teams hustle before the swallows homeward fly.

The candy kids started after Smith from the drop of the hat. Perkins hit to center and scored on Clarke's terrific smash to left for three bases. This hit was the longest of the season, and certainly was "a beauty." Clarke scored on P. Penwarden's error, made on Taylor's drive. Taylor took a nap at second and was thrown out. Perrins added another run in the fourth on R. Penwarden's fumble and bad throw of Hier's drive. Hier went to second on the play. Patrick was safe on P. Penwarren's fumble, and stole second. Hier scored on Dewan's good hit, and Patrick scored on Dunne's hit. A good double play—Delaney to Ward to Maxwell—stopped the Perrins, whose scoring ended there.

G. Bennett pitched for Perrins, only one run being scored on him up till the eighth. This run came in the second, when two errors by Gregory and a hit by Wagner filled the bases. Bennett hit Griffin and forced in a run. He got out of the hole without any more damage. The aforesaid G. Bennett's undoing came in the eighth, when he received a fierce clouting. Four successive two-base hits by Maxwell, Ward, R. Penwarden and Wagner resulted in three earned runs and tied the score. G. Bennett was chased to the morgue, and Clarke went in in his place. He struck Delaney out and Smith also went out. "Nothing doing" was the sign hung up until the eleventh, when Wagner, of the cigarmen, hit to center. Delaney put him on second on his out, and he went to third on Smith's hard hit that Gregory could not handle. Smith stole second. Hier muffed the third strike of Griffin and threw badly to third to catch Wagner, who had taken a big lead. Wagner scored and Smith went to third on the play, and scored on P. Penwarden's long fly to Bennett. Griffin also scored on Bennett's bad throw to the plate to catch Smith. No more runs resulted. The "candy men" went out one-two-three in their half of the eleventh.

The crowd stayed until the game was over, and thoroughly enjoyed it. The fielding feature was Taylor's first base work, which was excellent. Wagner batted well, that bunt of his in the scond being perfect. The score:

HOCKEY LEAGUE MAY BRANCH OUT

Possibility of Chicago Getting Into International—Salary Limit Fixed.

Calumet, Mich., July 29. — Plans for the forthcoming winter season of the International Hockey League will be definitely arranged at a meeting, probably in Chicago, within a few weeks. The meeting has been delayed pending the decision of Chicago parties regarding the erection of a mammoth rink in that city and the organization of a hockey club there. Parties who own the White City amusement place in Chicago contemplate erecting a rink to cost upward of $100,000, with a seating capacity of 10,000, and if this is done, Chicago will be represented in the international league.

Many cities in the United States are willing to enter the league if Chicago does, but the directors of the organization have not decided to admit any others the coming season. Duluth and Hancock are planning the erection of large rinks and in the event of the plans maturing, hockey clubs will be organized and application made for franchises in the international league. Calumet, Pittsburg, Houghton, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., are certainties for the other clubs. As soon as Chicago and Duluth are admitted to the league, it is expected that teams will be placed in St. Paul, Minneapolis and possibly Philadelphia.

At the recent meeting of the league managers in Chicago, it was decided to place a limit on the salaries of the teams next winter, and each club has made a deposit of $500, which is subject to forfeiture to the league if satisfactory proof can be furnished that the agreement has been broken. A committee will be appointed to settle all disputes affecting the welfare of the league and restrictions will be placed on the players. Any player who has signed a contract with one team or played with that team, will not be allowed to play with another until he has been given his release. Many of the clubs are signing players for next winter now and it is likely that the coming season will see some of the greatest stars of the great Canadian clubs with American teams, as the international league clubs, even with the new salary, can get the best players of Canadian clubs, where nothing but amateur hockey is tolerated and where salaries are consequently barred.

Hancock capitalists are making every effort to erect a large rink in that city, and if they succeed, will organize a hockey team for the coming season. This would make three copper country towns in the league and would undoubtedly help the attendance.

OLD HANS WAGNER LED WHOLE WAY

Showed His Heels to Field Through Journey in Canadian Handicap.

Fort Erie, July 29. — Hans Wagner was a racehorse today. The manner in which the old Longstreet gelding romped away with the $1,200 first money which went to the winner of the Canadian Sportsman's Handicap was a delight to the lovers of the thoroughbreds gathered at Fort Erie for the day's sport, and even those to whom his success meant financial loss could not deny him a word of praise at the end of the mile-and-a-sixteenth journey. While before the race none denied Hans Wagner the respect to which his performances have entitled him, the majority looked upon his prospects in the event of the day as very doubtful. Frank Bruhns was thought to hold the winning hand with his McIlvain, which ran second to King of Troy in the Canadian Derby, beating Tongorder, and Benvolio. This pair, coupled, opened a hot odds-on choice for the handicap and were well nibbled at by the heavy bettors by post time. Hans Wagner was always a second choice and right at the close of speculation receded the fraction of a point in the betting, to 9 to 5, while King of the Valley, Blue Grouse and Little Boy, who completed the field, were held at the figures of the outsider in the order named.

Hans Wagner carried top weight at 112 pounds, but the load was a mere feather on his back, for when the barrier rose, Jockey Boland wasted no time with the lightweights, but rushed into the lead. And Hans Wagner must have enjoyed the pacemaking. At the turn into the back stretch he was a good three lengths in front and all through the hard-fought run he easily maintained his advantage. At the head of the stretch Boland, anxious for results, whacked him once with his whip, but the punishment was not needed, for Hans Wagner held good and true to the end, winning easily by a couple of lengths from McIlvain, on which Wishard rode a hard finish. King of the Valley had no difficulty beating off the rest for third money.

$15,000 IN IT; SYSONBY THERE

Keene's Famous Horse Had a Snap in Big Event at Brighton Beach.

New York, July 29. — Leading from start to finish, James R. Keene's Sysonby at 1 to 4 in the betting, today won the $15,000 Brighton Derby at Brighton Beach, defeating Agile by four lengths. The time for 1½ miles was 2:33 1-5.

The Brighton Beach summer meeting came to a close today and a big crowd was in attendance, fully 25,000 persons being at the track to take advantage of the last day of racing around New York until August 26. Three favorites, two second choices and a third choice divided the money and the public had quite a good day. A rumor started last night that Sysonby had pulled up lame in his final workout for the derby, was renewed today, many of the books laying against the Keene colt. Sysonby opened at 2 to 7, but his price soon dropped to 1 to 4, while Agile was held at 7 to 2. Pasadena, the only other starter, who was receiving eight pounds from Sysonby, was quoted at 200 to 1 and 8 to 1 for the place. The field was at the post but a few moments and was sent away to a good start. Sysonby, as usual, rushed into the lead and passing the stand the first time was leading by two lengths from Agile. At the turn into the back stretch, Nicol gave Sysonby a breathing spell and Agile crept up to within a length of the leader. Nicol, however, gave the Keene colt his head again and drawing away, won easily, Agile was thirty lengths in front of Pasadena.

GOLF.

EGAN AGAIN CHAMPION.

Chicago, July 29.—Chandler Egan today won the western golf championship for the third time, defeating his cousin, Walter Egan, in the finals 3 up and 2 to play.

The champion successfully defended his title, being only one down at the end of the 21 holes. By great work he squared matters at the 28th hole, and won the 29th, 30th and 31st holes in succession. The next three were halved and the match ended on the 34th green.

Next month at the Chicago Golf Club the young champion will defend his title of national amateur champion against the best players in the land.

ATHLETICS HAVE SAFE LEAD NOW

St. Kitts Team Is Sure of the Senior C. L. A. Championship.

St. Catharines, July 29.—The Tecumsehs, of Toronto, who were tied with the Athletics for first place in the senior series of the C. L. A., suffered defeat to the tune of 15 goals to 3 here today.

This game practically settles the championship, the Athletics having now a safe lead.

The Tecumsehs today played well all through, but could not score. The home team's junior players did most of the scoring, showing splendid form. Referee P. J. Lally, of Cornwall, gave satisfaction. The line-up:

Tecumsehs—Clarke, Menary, Griffith, Grimes, Stewart, White, Felker, Querrie, Muirton, Durkin, Adamson, McMillan.

Athletics—Hasse, Harris, Cameron, Elliott, Richardson, Downey, Forrester, Barnett, O'Gorman, Lowe, Kalls, Hagan.

BRANTFORD DEFEATED.

Toronto, July 29. — Toronto defeated Brantford in the senior C. L. A. series at Rosedale today by a score of 3 goals to 2.

The grounds were in fine condition for a good game, but the playing by both teams was listless and uninteresting, and was one of the poorest games of the season. For the winners Lambe, Rowntree, Marshall and Powers played good lacrosse all through the game. Brantford's hardest and most effectual players were Hutton and Dowling, who played stellar lacrosse. The line-up:

Toronto — Hanley, goal; Francis, point; Iler, cover; Rowntree, first defense; D. Marshall, second defense; Lamb, third defense; Neeley, center; Cain, third hom; Carmichael, second home; Parkes, third home; Powers, outside home; Henry, inside home.

Brantford — Hutton, goal; Dowling, point; Davidson, cover; Brown, first defense; Adams, second defense; Degan, third defense; Cooper, center; Taylor, third home; Doyle, second home; Lamonte, first home; Whitehead, outside; Laynden, inside home.

Referee, Gillespie.

Packers Won on Saturday; Now Look Like Champions

Have Not Been Beaten This Season—Six Games Yet To Be Played.

The game between the Canadian Packing Company and Wortman & Ward, in the Wholesale League at Springbank was won by the Canadian Packing Company by a score of 10 to 5. It was a pretty game up to the end of the seventh inning, the score being 6 to 5 in the packers' favor. Owing to the closeness of the game, it was decided to extend the time limit, so that the game could be finished, the Junior League kindly consenting for the extra fifteen minutes. In the eighth inning, owing to wild throwing, the Packers scored four runs and won the game. For Wortman & Ward, Waud pitched a suberb game. Not a hit was made off him until the sixth, when Wescott made a clean single to ctnter. N. McConnell, at third base, made a great one-hand catch. Wortman & Ward's team had a couple of double plays to their credit. Dewan at first base, had fifteen put-outs. It new looks as if the Packers are going to land the Beck trophy, although they still have two games to play with Wortman & Ward's, and two with the Bennets, which will require hard work to win. THE LEADING BATSMEN.

Maitland, of the Canadian Packing Company, has .466; Begg, of the Somerville nine, .428; and N. McConnell, of the Wortman & Ward nine, also has .428. The Wholesale certainly has some heavy sluggers.

ROCKETS WON AT LUCAN.

The Lucan Irish Nine were beaten by the Rockets on Saturday at Lucan by a score of 5 to 4. J. Wilson outpitched Gibson, and the Rockets fielded better than the Irishmen. The game was the best ever seen in Lucan. G. Arthurs made a home run. Porte, as umpire, was satisfactory. The score:

Irish Nine	4	8	2

J. Wilson and W. Wilson; Gibson and Barnes. Umpire, Porte.

Woodstock	5	3	1
Ingersoll	3	4	5

Bussey and Roche; Millen and Graham.

THE AUTO.

RECORD REDUCED.

Cape May, N. J., July 30.—Being officially timed today by Sam Butler, secretary of the Automobile Club of America, Walter Chrystie, in his 120-horse power auto, reduced the American kilometer record by making the time 25 seconds flat. He made several attempts, but could not reduce his own time further today, his best later time being 25 1-5 seconds.

He will try again for the world's kilometer and mile records on Aug. 19.

LACROSSE.

ENDED IN A TIE.

Montreal, July 30.—The championship lacrosse match between Montreal Nationals and Shamrocks on the N. A. L. U. series which was played here on Saturday afternoon, resulted in a tie, each team scoring three goals. The match was one of the most stubbornly contested ever witnessed on a lacrosse field in this city.

CRICKET.

ENGLISHMEN HAVE A LEAD.

Philadelphia, July 29.—The Philadelphians in their second inning scored 234 runs, for eight wickets, when play ended for the day. Marylebone Cricket Club was all out for 244 runs. This gives the visitors a lead of 27 runs for the first inning.

IROQUOIS WILL DEFEND CANADA CUP

Rochester, N. Y., July 29. — The Iroquois, with Lorenzo G. Mabbett as skipper, has been selected by the committee to defend the Canada cup in the races which will be held at Charlotte on Aug. 12. The selection was announced this afternoon, and notice was sent to the regatta committee.

In the trial races the Iroquois won five and the Rochester seven. Capt. Mabbett handled the Rochester when she won and was also at the stick when the Iroquois was first. The judges believe the Iroquois to be the fastest boat in both light and heavy weather.

The Iroquois was designed by Chas. Herreshoff, and her measurements are: Length over all, 52 feet; forward overhang, 10 feet; after overhang, 10 feet; water line, 30 feet; extreme beam, 10 feet 6 inches; beam on water line, 10 feet; draft, 7 feet; ballast, 5 tons; sail area, 1,550 square feet; mainsail hoist, 29 feet 6 inches; boom, 37 feet 6 inches; bowsprit, outboard, 7 feet 4 inches; gaff, 24 feet 6 inches; spinnaker boom, 23 feet 6 inches; jib halliard block above deck, 43 feet.

The Temeraire has been selected by the Canadian yachtsmen as the challenger to meet the Iroquois. Capt. Mabbett, who has been chosen to command the Iroquois, is the fleet captain of the Rochester Yacht Club. In the trial races he showed marked ability, demonstrating to the satisfaction of the committee and the club members that he was the right man to have charge of the defending vessel in the match races.

M'CLARY'S HAVE WON TEN STRAIGHT GAMES

McClarys increased their grip on the bunting on Saturday, when they beat the Londons, and there are not a few who think they will be the champions of 1905. They now have a commanding lead over the Londons, who are their most dangerous competitors. The factory men have won ten straight games. The Blue Labels and Rockets are tie for third. Perrins are still in the ruck, but are playing better ball of late.

The standing:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
McClarys	10	2	.833
Londons	5	4	.556
Blue Labels	5	5	.500
Rockets	4	4	.500
Perrins	1	11	.091

COUPLING GAVE WAY

Unusual Incident as G. T. R. Flyer Was Entering the City.

An unusual accident, but one attended by no unpleasant consequences, happened when the G. T. R. Flyer was entering the city from the west last evening.

The coupling between the engine and baggage cars became unfastened, and the fact that the train was on a down grade caused the suddenly-released engine to shoot ahead with great rapidity. It was soon controlled by the engineer, however, and was soon again coupled to the coaches, which had been brought to a sudden stop, through the emergency brake going on.

The incident happened near the overhead bridge just west of the city. Hardly ten minutes elapsed before the train was on its way again.

REGARD PREFERENTIAL TRADE FROM BUSINESS POINT OF VIEW

Englishmen Do Not Allow Sentiment to Enter Into the Issue.

"It is difficult to say just what Chamberlain's status is in England today. If you talk to a Chamberlainite he will laud the great Englishman to the skies, but if you ask an opinion of a man opposed to Chamberlain you will find that the man from Birmingham is the most-hated man in all England."

This is what Mr. H. P. Allen, of the D. S. Perrin Company, told The Advertiser today. Mr. Allen was a member of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association excursion party, which visited England. He returned to this city Saturday night, accompanied by Mr. G. A. Somerville, of the Huron and Erie, and by Master Cuthbert J. Allen.

"As far as I was able to learn, Englishmen, while ready to do right by Canada in all things, regard preferential trade from a purely business standpoint. Sentiment does not enter into the issue with them.

"Chamberlain is a very clever man, but he is getting well up in years, and it is an open question whether he will be able to convert Englishmen to his ways of thinking. Englishmen are suckled on a free trade bottle, and it has given them such satisfaction that anything which involves a change is by them regarded as a matter for postponement.

"They do not make changes as easily as we in America do. They prefer to wait, so that it may be that even if the Chamberlain idea prevails it may not come into force for a great many years yet.

"In England the Canadians were taken care of in a royal manner. The deputation was the largest and most influential which had ever toured the mother country, and the people there did all in their power to show the visitors that they were still in their own country. In fact, the entertainment was as much a patriotic affair as a business one."

Continuing, Mr. Allen said he felt that the visit of the Canadians would be bound to result in much good to both countries, each, as a result of the visit, being better acquainted with the other. There were fifteen Londoners in the party, but some of them, including Mr. Allen, did not tour the provinces, but remained in London. In fact, Mr. Allen says, the social calls were so numerous that much of the original business trip mapped out had to be abandoned.

"But we found that everywhere we went, Englishmen were eager to discuss trade matters, and I have come to the conclusion that Canada is becoming very well known in England. Englishmen no longer regard her as a vast waste of snow hills, and they now laugh at Kipling's verses to "Our Lady of the Snows."

Mr. Somerville also stated that a number of English manufacturers accompanied the Canadians back to Canada, and they are thinking of establishing branches in this country.

KNOCKED FROM TRAIN BY SWITCH; HERBERT GREEN LOST LEFT FOOT

Fourteen-Year-Old Boy Meets With Serious Accident in G. T. R. Yards.

With the greater part of his left foot hanging by a shred, Herbert Green, 14 years old, sat at the edge of the Grand Trunk tracks at William street yesterday afternoon and awaited the arrival of a doctor and the ambulance to remove him to Victoria Hospital. His whole thought appeared to be whether it would be necessary to amputate the leg. Assured that he would only lose a portion of the limb he seemed to be quite satisfied to go on the operating table.

The lad certainly had nerve. Although he must have been suffering great pain he never complained, never shed a tear, and did not want his relatives to be informed of the accident that had befallen him.

Herbert is a son of Mr. Gus Green, now of St. Louis, but formerly of this city, but during the greater part of the time since the death of his mother he has lived with his grandfather, Mr. H. C. Green, of 571 Dundas street. Yesterday afternoon, between 3 and 4 o'clock he attempted to board an eastbound freight, between Maitland and William streets. He succeeded, and just at the west side of the William street crossing he was hanging to the side rods of a car when he came in contact with a switch. This caused him to fall to the ground, and before he could recover himself his left foot was under the wheels. Several cars passed over it, tearing the shoe completely off, and severing the foot just below the ankle.

Dr. Cline was the first medical man to reach the scene, and he bound the boy's foot and had him ready for removal to the hospital when the ambulance arrived. The operation was performed by Dr. English, the G. T. R. surgeon. The leg was amputated below the knee. Green is doing well.

Wonder has often been expressed that a larger number of boys do not meet with accidents in the local yards of the G. T. R. Despite the warnings issued by the company and the efforts of the crossing watchmen and trainmen, boys persist in boarding trains, frequently when they are going at a high rate of speed.

OLD BOYS IN THE OLD TOWN; WHAT A TIME THEY'LL HAVE

A Week of Solid Fun in Store for Them—The Programme Completed.

The Old Boys' programme is already completed. After months of hard work the members of the executive, with Secretary McCann's able assistance, are now able to lay before the citizens an outline of what will be done to feel happy next week with "the old folks at home." It requires no special entertainments to bring back former Londoners to the scenes of their childhood, but the home guard has seen to it that all that it is possible to do will be done to entertain the visitors and to show them that their visit is appreciated.

The official programme, as handed out, shows that the week's pleasures will begin on Saturday next. On that day many of the visitors will arrive. Those from Toronto will be chiefly in evidence, and as a consequence a concert by the combined bands of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, Toronto, and the Seventh Regiment, will be held in the evening. It is expected that nearly all of the Toronto contingent will arrive by Saturday night.

Sunday the visitors will continue to arrive, but the day will be a quiet one.

Monday, with fine weather, the week's revelries will open in a blaze of glory. The city will be decorated from end to end, and at night the main streets will be illuminated, so that night will be converted into day. On this day the reception committees will be kept busy welcoming the visitors, who as fast as they arrive, will be ushered to the city hall where they will register. On this day the big parade to Queen's Park will take place. It will form on the market square and will leave at 1 o'clock for the East End. Every Old Boy, every society, every vehicle in London will be expected to join in this parade. The big time at the park follows:

Tuesday a regatta will be held under the auspices of those princely entertainers, the London Rowing Club. The same day there will be a splendid programme of sports held at Springbank, so that Tuesday, with fine weather, will prove one of the best days of the week.

Wednesday will be military day, and the officers and men of the Seventh Regiment will put on first-class military games for the benefit of the visitors.

Thursday, the Irish Benevolent Society picnic to Port Stanley will be held. On that day the Old Boys will be given an opportunity of visiting the old resort at the lakeside, where they will find the same old hills, the same old winding roadway to the heights, the same old dance shed, and the same old merry-go-round, upon which as boys they rode twenty years ago. In the creaking of the old merry-go-round they will discover the music of "Ben Bolt."

Friday and Saturday the tournament of the Forest City Quoiting Club will be held, and that this event will prove most interesting all are prepared to admit.

As already announced, a handsome gold watch donated by Hon. C. S. Hyman, Minister of Public Works, will be presented to the mother who has the greatest number of sons and daughters amongst the Old Boys and Old Girls who visit the city. This prize will be awarded at the evening performance on Monday, Aug. 7.

The trophy given by the London Life Insurance Company for the best turnout in the procession will also be presented.

Chief of Police Williams and his efficient detective and police staff have been preparing for the big reunion for some weeks, and the moment a crook arrives in London, he will be nabbed. The police of Chicago have begun to drive the crooks out of that city, and it is not improbable that some of them may seek a refuge in London during Old Boys' week. If they do they will be arrested on sight, and it is likely that Chicago detectives will assist the local officers in this work.

Citizens are warned to keep their homes locked and to leave no valuables lying loose. "Take your valuables with you," the police say, "and be careful of your purses and watches when in a crowd."

Detectives from Toronto, Hamilton, Detroit and other places will be also on hand to assist the local officers.

The following is the programme for the entire week:

SATURDAY, AUG. 5.

Many of the Old Boys will arrive during the forenoon and afternoon.

Toronto Old Boys, accompanied by the Forty-eighth Highlanders, will arrive at the Grand Trunk station.

8 p.m. — Forty-eighth Highlanders, assisted by the Seventh, by the kind permission of Lieut.-Cols. McDonald and Little, will give a grand joint concert in the new armories. This is the only entertainment for which any charge will be made.

SUNDAY, AUG. 6.

11:30 a.m. — Arrival of Detroit, Chicago, Toledo, Montreal and Cleveland Old Boys.

MONDAY, AUG. 7.

Arrival of Old Boys from all parts. The reception committee will meet Old Boys will be welcomed and brought every train as arranged for, and the to the city hall, where they will register in the arcade at the city hall. The visitors may also get their certificates signed there by a staff of clerks for that purpose.

A special prize of a magnificent gold watch, presented by the Hon. C. S. Hyman, will be given to the mother residing in London, who has the greatest number of sons and daughters among the visiting Old Boys. This will be decided if possible on Monday, and the presentation made at the evening performance on Monday, Aug. 7.

There will also be a fine trophy presented by the London Life Insurance Company to the visiting Old Boys' association making the best turnout. This is not necessarily the largest turnout.

Both services at Talbot Street Baptist Church were taken yesterday by Rev. Mr. Vining, representative of the Northwest missions in England.

Rev. J. S. Scot, of Sarnia, exchanged pulpits with Rev. W. J. Clark, of this city, yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Baker, of Harding Hall, occupied the pulpit in the First Congregational Church yesterday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Hamilton, who was preaching at Forest.

Mr. Percy Harding sang in Christ Church last evening.

Miss Isabell Currie and Mrs. H. Higgins rendered a duet last evening in Talbot Street Baptist Church.
