DOWN ON GOVERNMENT

President M'Nee, of Windsor Board of Trade, Disgusted With Gas Expropriation.

Says the Ross Administration has Played Fast and Loose and Shabbily Treated Essex.

Detroit, Nov. 13.—Sheriff J. C. Iler, of Windsor, will not take up the natural gas pipes of the Interior Construction Co. for eight days at least, as he has been served with an injunction restraining him from interfering with the pipes that run to Detroit until the courts decide whether he has the right to do so. Sheriff Iler promised to grant sufficient time for the officials of the company to discuss the matter of disconnecting the gas pipes on the Canadian side of the river, but President Byrne took time by the forelock, and instructed the company's Canadian solicitor, J. H. Colburn, Walkeville, to at once apply to the courts for an injunction. Judge Horne issued the necessary order.

Archibald M'Nee, president of the Windsor Board of Trade, an ardent Liberal, probably voices the sentiment of nearly every resident of Windsor who is summing up of the whole vexed question.

"I consider," said Mr. M'Nee, "that the residents of Windsor (and of Essex county) have been treated in a very shabby manner by the Ontario government, and particularly so by the attorney-general. The question has been hanging fire since last March and it looks to me as if the government is simply playing with us."

"If the government has the right to order the removal of the pipes from the riverbed I think that the instruction which Sheriff Iler received from the government should have been couched in language which would have caused him to move in the matter before the other side had a chance to show their hand. It is a shame and a disgrace that a gas company is permitted to raise our gas rates on the pretext that the expropriation to Detroit has ceased, and we find later that we have been paying an extra ten cents per thousand and the gas is still going to our neighbors across the boundary."

ROYAL SCANDAL

Report That The Divorce of The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Russia is Impending.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—There appears to be foundation for the renewed report that divorce of the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Russia is impending. Incompatibility of temper long existing, appears to have reached the point where a separation is inevitable. They are both grandchildren of the late Queen Victoria, who with the Czar and an extraordinary assemblage of European sovereigns, was present at the wedding, which took place at Coburg, April 19, 1894.

The Grand Duchess is regarded as one of the most beautiful princesses of Europe. She and the Grand Duke were estranged during the first year of their marriage. She left him and went to stay with her sister, the Crown Princess of Roumania. Queen Victoria invited her and her husband to visit England and managed to restore a semblance of peace, but that soon disappeared.

The Grand Duke is reported to be a man of sullen, querulous temper, while the Grand Duchess is high spirited.

DEWET AT WOPK

Collecting a Force in the Northeastern Part of Orange River Colony.

London, Nov. 12.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria, dated Monday, Nov. 11, presents his weekly report, and incidentally locates General De Wet in the northeastern part of the Orange River Colony. He says the Boers have recently been collecting under his leadership, and that the British are now moving to disperse them.

A WEEK'S WIND-UP.
Lord Kitchener gives the Boer casualties since Nov. 4th, as 63 killed, 105 wounded, 104 captured, and 45 surrendered.

AGAIN UTILIZING TOWN GUARDS.
Cape Town, Nov. 12.—The military are again utilizing the services of the Town Guards.

BOER DELEGATES AT BERLIN.
Berlin, Nov. 12.—Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic representative of the Boers, and Mr. Esterhuysen, Transvaal delegate, are in the city. They disavow having any political object, but the idea prevails in certain quarters that it is not accidental that their coming coincides with the outbreak of Anglo-Boer hostilities. They are accompanied by Colonel Secretary Chamberlain's speech at Edinburgh. Meetings to protest against the statements made by Mr. Chamberlain continue to be held, there being four at Leipzig, Interburg, Hamm and Gera. Resolutions were adopted and forwarded to Chancellor Von Buelow.

STORM DOES MUCH DAMAGE

Bad Gale Sweeping Parts of England and Ireland Causes Many Wrecks.

Several Lives Lost in Shipping Casualties—severe floods Have Followed Storms.

London, November 12.—A tremendous storm, with torrents of rain, is sweeping the north of England and Ireland. There have been serious floods in Yorkshire. Several suburbs of Dublin are flooded and elsewhere in Ireland great damage has been done by floods. Several fatal accidents have occurred, and railway communication is delayed. In some parts of the country the rain has continued thirty-six hours. In the Manchester district there has been considerable damage, the floods have been rather welcomed than otherwise, as the mills had long suffered from the unusual drouth.

The gale is still raging unabated to-night along the coast. Reports continually arrive of shipping casualties, especially on the Northumberland coast where the storm is extremely violent. Three vessels were driven ashore to-night at the entrance of the Tyne. Four small vessels have been wrecked in the vicinity of Sunderland, and another has been wrecked off Hartlepool. Altogether nine persons were drowned in these disasters. The lighthouse on the Sunderland pier has been washed away.

The gale in the Irish Channel is the severest known for many years. Five vessels have been wrecked in Kingstown harbor, which is strewn with wreckage.

The mail boat Nord, which started from Dover for Calais at half past eleven last night ran down the lights of the works of the new Dover pier. The crew of the lights were drowned.

It is reported in Dover that sixteen persons went down with the lights. The Nord has gone ashore at the Foreland, but her passengers are said to be safe.

LOST IN GALE

A Schooner Sunk—Captain and Crew Rescued After Terrible Suffering.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Nov. 12.—The schooner Douglass Haynes, of Bath, Maine, from Port Johnson for Hallowell, Maine, with a cargo of 258 tons of coal, sank between Shovel and Pollock Dip Shoals with her three masts projecting out of water. Captain Blaisdell and crew of four men were rescued, after having suffered terribly from exposure. Captain Blaisdell, of the Douglass Haynes, states that when on Nantucket Shoals on the morning of the 10th inst., he encountered a violent gale. The vessel rode out the gale until late in the afternoon when the decks were awash and all hands climbed into the rigging. Thirty minutes after they had secured themselves the vessel went to the bottom. As she struck she careened over on her side, dipping her mast in the water, and the five men were obliged to hang on for their lives to keep from being washed from the rigging by the force of the waves. Fortunately the vessel soon righted herself, and lay on the bottom with her masts out of water. The men hung on as best they could until yesterday morning, when they were taken off by a schooner bound for Brunswick, Ga.

The two-masted schooner Mark Pendleton careened and filled off Chatham this afternoon, and has since been drifting about off Pollock Dip. The crew were rescued.

EDITOR JAILED

Chicago Journalists Will Serve Time for Contempt of Court—Other Cases to Come on.

Chicago, November 12.—On a charge of contempt of court Judge Henney today sentenced Andrew M. Lawrence, managing editor of Hearst's Chicago American, to 40 days in the county jail. The sentence of H. S. Canfield, who wrote the article objectionable to the court, was fixed at 30 days in jail. The cases against S. S. Carvalho, financial editor of the paper, and John C. Hammond, assistant city editor, were dismissed. Judge Henney declared the cases against W. R. Hearst, majority stockholder of the paper; Homer Davenport, cartoonist, and Clare Briggs, also a cartoonist, would stand until such time as these respondents could be brought into court by the sheriff. An exception to the decision was filed.

The article in the American upon which the proceedings in contempt were based, was a criticism of the court's decision on an application for the forfeiture of the charter of the People's Gaslight & Coke Co.

MR. HARCOURT'S DEFENCE.

Mr. Harcourt should be ashamed to excuse the absurdities of the high school geography on the ground that history has been made very rapidly of late, points out the Toronto News. The knowledge that wheat can be successfully raised in Manitoba or that Canada is rich in minerals of various sorts is surely not very recent, and it will seem ridiculous to most people, surely, that at this late date the high school text book should teach that wheat raising west of the great lakes and north of the American boundary is a doubtful experiment, and that the only mining in the country is carried on in Nova Scotia and British Columbia, where a little gold and coal are found.

There is absolutely no defence for a book which presents a picture of the country as it was twenty years ago, almost before there was any settlement in the west, and when a great part of the Eastern Provinces was yet unknown and unexplored. It should have been withdrawn ten years ago, if, indeed, such an inadequate work should have ever been accepted and by excusing it Mr. Harcourt simply convinces intelligent and impartial persons that he is not fit to hold the important position he does in relation to education. He says that the department would be censured whether it changed the text books frequently or not, but his duty is to change them when the change is required, neither sooner nor later. This, however, has not been done. In some cases new books have been unnecessarily ordered year after year, while in others, as in this instance of the high school geography, an antiquated work has been retained, not only after it had ceased to give accurate information, but even when its information was positively misleading.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The prosperity of every manufacturing country is so dependent upon the iron and steel industry to-day, that it is surprising to consider how very modern is its pre-eminence. The Montreal Witness, reviewing the situation, says at the beginning of the nineteenth century comparatively little iron and steel was made in any country, and the advent of railways was the beginning of their importance. The first railway in the world to be built for general freight and passenger traffic was the "Stockton and Darlington," in England, and that was not opened until 1825. The general use of steel and iron for bridges and steamships only came in the third quarter of the nineteenth century, and their extensive use in buildings and for all kinds of machinery is of comparatively recent date. The great year for railway building in the United States was not until 1887, and it was during the last quarter of the past century that the greatest progress was made in Great Britain in substituting iron and steel ships for wooden ones. Armor plate for warships was made in Great Britain after 1850, but, as Mr. James M. Swank, of the American Iron and Steel Association, points out in a recent brochure, it was not perfect in any country until within the last ten years, while the first contract for American armor plate was not made until 1887. Iron and steel buildings did not receive much attention from architects and builders until within the last twenty-five years, and steel cars are the result of the past decade. Considering its financial importance now, it is hard to believe that the manufacture of tin plates in the United States, on a commercial basis, dates only from the year 1890. The steel rail industry in the United States, was trifling until after 1875, but by 1890 wonderful strides had been made, and in 1897 there was a production of 2,191,904 tons, which figures have since been exceeded. Great Britain's largest make was 1,235,785 tons in 1882. Mr. Car-

Catarrh

The cause exists in the blood, in what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption.

Many have been radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood and has a peculiar alterative and tonic effect. M. J. McDonald, Trenton, Ont., writes: "I had catarrh, my system was weak, blood was bad, and my liver torpid and inactive. I tried many medicines without benefit until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has completely cured me and I highly recommend it to all sufferers."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. It is better not to put off treatment—buy Hood's today.

He once told Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the United States was going to take away Great Britain's iron and steel trade, and Sir Wilfrid replied that Canada would in turn take away the trade from the United States. It was not an idle boast. Because of the saving of freights, owing to the proximity of our raw materials, iron and steel can be produced at Sydney cheaper than at Pittsburgh, and we ought to be in a position in a few years to dictate prices to the world. When the comparative infancy of the industry is considered no criterion for the future must be drawn from our present small output. We have all the raw materials and geographical advantages, and we are beginning to have the necessary capital and skill to make the best use of them.

Most of the letters from press writers in the Duke of York's party suggest that the distinguished authors must have worried more about the quality of the meals they consumed than about the quality of the literature they produced.

THE PEOPLE MEAN WELL.

Toronto Telegram.
The defeat of Tammany in New York shows that humanity is not so black as it is painted by the politicians, who pretend that the people will accept nothing better than the methods of the machine. Occasionally the people will lean to virtue's side if they can get a chance in a straight fight between right and wrong.

ENCOURAGING AN INFANT INDUSTRY.

Hamilton Spectator.
They are going to place infant incubators in the children's hospital in Buffalo for the scientific treatment of children who are too weak to be reared in the ordinary way. Wouldn't it be a good plan to introduce incubators in Canada to increase population, as motherhood seems to have gone out of style.

WHY?

London News.
If there is need of Canadian soldiers in South Africa, if there are Canadians who are willing to go to South Africa, if the people of Canada are prepared to meet the expenses of a contingent to South Africa, why does the government hesitate? Why are not the men sent? The British troops are in need of reinforcements, and it must be that the offer made by the Dominion was not an enthusiastic one, or it would have been accepted.

THINKS WELL OF IT.

Hamilton Herald.
It will be time enough to talk of organizing another South African contingent in Canada when the imperial authorities say that it would be acceptable. Should such a notification be received, there would be little difficulty in raising and equipping a regiment in short order. As to the character of this force, we think that the suggestions of the warrior-editor of the Ottawa Citizen are eminently sensible and worthy of consideration.

The young Liberals of Toronto have raised a storm in their own seas. They are indignant first because Hon. Mr. Ross took the viper Maybes into his bosom, and second because, to give him tone, he labelled him an ex-Conservative. But Mr. Ross has been doing just the same sort of malignant business ever since he entered politics. This is nothing new. The only explanation for the revolt we can offer is that Mr. Ross, having fooled the people as long as he has, has been discovered. It is creditable that he is being disowned by

WRITES FROM NORTH DAKOTA

J. E. McMullen Writes The Planet an Interesting Letter From his new Home.

An Ex Chathamite who is Making Rapid Progress in the far West.

Editor of The Chatham Planet:

Since you were so kind as to publish my letter written from Souk Centre, Minn., I have thought perchance a few lines about this comparatively new state might be of interest to some of your readers.

As a representative of the Minneapolis Tribune, I entered Fargo, and from there have visited many of the towns north and west, and am now on a trip to Portal, the border town on the Canadian line. Looking at North Dakota from any point of view it appears as large as all out doors, and its immensity grows as one traverses its boundless prairies. The Dalrymple farm, for instance, is just one of the large enterprises, comprising 30,000 acres. Then the Chaffee farm of 25,000 acres, in Cass county, is a sight that the average farmer will look at in wonder. In one field on the latter farm I saw twenty-five gang plows at work, and standing near a barn I counted fourteen self-binders. The wagon boxes (grain tanks) which the farmers haul their grain to the elevators in look as large as small box cars, a load of wheat consisting of from 125 to 140 bushels. Many of the large farms are operated by syndicates of eastern capital, and are conducted with as much business-like precision as any of the leading mercantile establishments of the day. The portion of the state I have traversed is as flat as a table top and on a clear day one has an unobstructed view of the country for miles around, as not a vestige of a tree is to be seen except along the streams. The large farms are a serious detriment to the development of the country and a great drawback to the towns. For instance, the town of Anemia is in the centre of the Chaffee farm, and it is a regular Edward Bellamy community, as no business enterprise can enter its precincts without the permission of Mr. Chaffee. He is the whole thing. But where the land is divided up in farms of quarter and half sections the towns thrive with business life and progress.

There has been a great emigration this way from Iowa, Illinois, and some of the Eastern States, people who have taken claims on Government land. Land speculators are numerous and if you are land anxious these gentlemen can show you anything your heart may desire, but you will pay for it.

North Dakota is a prohibition state and, after living in Iowa for seventeen years, I am surprised to see the law so rigidly enforced out here. But if you want to see the "red eye" visit the river towns—Fargo and Grand Forks. Moorhead, Minn., is connected by a bridge with Fargo, and it is a sight to see the "jag" wagons lined along the streets ready to carry the thirsty over. The same is true of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks—saloons in every direction and everything that goes with them, of all kinds and degrees, and in my mind I cannot help but think that Moorhead and East Grand Forks look like the back door of hell. These conditions, of course, will change in time, but the present is awful to contemplate.

I meet a great many Canadians up this way and, as a rule, they are doing well. At Mayville I met Dr. McIntyre, a former St. Louis boy, Dr. McLaughlin, formerly of Chatham, is at Boyden, and doing well. In the words of Prof. Dobbins, of Minneapolis, formerly editor of the Chatham Tribune, "Canadians are thorough in what they undertake and they are bound to win in this world of opportunities."

I guess I have written enough for the present and will close, wishing The Planet and its readers continued prosperity. I am,

Yours, etc.,

J. E. McMULLEN.

PROGRAM.

Of the A. O. F. Concert to be given in the Oddfellows' Auditorium, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 13th, 1901.

BAD BLOOD

Reveals itself in many ways. Sometimes the impurities in the blood manifest themselves in blotches, pimples, boils or other eruptions. Sometimes the result of bad blood is rheumatism or a debilitated condition which is popularly described as "feeling played out, hardly able to drag myself around."

The impurities and poisons which corrupt the blood, clog the liver and cloud the skin are removed by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does more than eliminate the poisons; it increases the activity of the blood-making glands so that there is an increased supply of pure, body-building blood. It brightens the eyes, cleanses the skin, and gives new, physical energy.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
"I thank God for the good your medicines have done," writes Mr. James M. Stenora of Mitchell, Lawrence Co., Ind., Box 202. "I was not well for two years. My throat was always sore, head ached, and back ached nearly all the time. My weight was 135 pounds. I was taken sick with typhoid fever, and when the fever left me I had such a pain in my left side I could not breathe without pain. I thought I must die. My wife went to the drug store and procured a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and a vial of his Pleasant Pellets. I discontinued the use of my doctor's medicine and began with the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I at once began to feel better. The pain soon left my side and I could breathe with ease. In a week or so I felt so good I could not stay in the room. I began to walk about better. I felt better each morning. After a month's use of the medicine I was well. That was over a year ago. Now I weigh 154 pounds and feel better than ever in my life."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Theatrical

"The Fadettes," a lady's orchestra from Boston, at the Grand to-night. To-day's London Free Press says:—

The second concert of the Lyceum Course for this season was given by the Fadettes Women's Orchestra, of Boston, last evening, and proved a very enjoyable treat for London music lovers, who were numerous enough in attendance to fill the lower part of the Grand Opera House. The organization is under the direction of Mrs. Caroline B. Nichols, and is composed of twenty-two instrumentalists, who play together with excellent skill, precision and spirit. The program was enjoyable by reason of its compactness. Some persons like to hear many compositions at one concert, but the most experienced concert-goers find satisfaction in an arrangement which leaves them with only a few impressions, and those clear. Those present last night will remember with great pleasure Thomas' overture to "Mignon," the dainty bit, by Steek, picked out on the strings, "The awakening of Columbine," the grand selection from "L. Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, and the weird descriptive piece by Puernez, "Imps and Goblins." The applause at times was hearty, and the ladies were generous of encores, the "Soldiers of the King" being given as one of the responses in a manner to fairly enthrall the audience. Miss Mary Bruck-Wilczek's violin solo by Wienawski was a really brilliant performance, the exacting music of the seventh concerto exhibiting a masterly technique, and exhilarating abandon. It received a deserved encore.

Miss Mildred Rogers possesses a pleasing mezzo-soprano voice of considerable power, and an engaging presence. Her solo, "Cantabile," from "Samson et Dalila," by Saint-Saens, was much appreciated, and her two other songs, "The Rosary" and "My Love is Come," were prettily sung and encored. The impersonation and artistic postings of Little Lena served admirably to relieve the musical portion of the program, and were marked with grace and intelligence. All present were well satisfied with the entertainment.

Mr. George H. Broadhurst, the gifted American author, has evolved another successful farce and has given to the public a piece which, it is said, is better than his former success, "The House That Jack Built" is constructed on very novel lines, the second act, in which a room is papered in full view of the audience, being particularly new and striking. The story revolves around a certain "Wille Slab," a paperhanger by force of circumstances but a "plumber at heart," who has been engaged to do work in a house being built by "Dr. Jack," a wealthy but eccentric gentleman. To him comes "Sir Edward Skington," who has seen and fallen in love with "Hector," the doctor's daughter, a young lady who believes in the down-trodden workman and despises the aristocracy. "Sir Edward," learning of her socialistic tendencies, persuades the paperhanger to pass him off as his assistant and when he makes his appearance

Mr. George H. BROADHURST'S "THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT."

Mrs. Ophelia Dooley.

In a workman's jacket and overalls, "Hector" is immediately impressed by the bearing of this magnificent specimen of American workman. "Mrs. Dooley," a wealthy widow, desirous of marrying a gentleman, "Florence" to a member of the nobility, discovers that "Sir Edward" is there in disguise but mistakes the genuine paperhanger for him. Out of this mistaken identity the author has given situation after situation that evoke shouts of laughter. The book fairly scintillates with epigrammatic wit interpreted by an unusually clever company of farcure whose names are a guarantee of an excellent performance.

The leading roles are in the hands of Mr. George H. Sumner and Miss St. George Hussey, assisted by an exceptionally strong company, all of whom are top-liners in vaudeville.

A deal of interest attaches itself to the coming of From Scotland Yard, which is a new detective drama of sensational episodes. The play enjoyed a London production three years ago and it has been probably suggested in English provinces since that time. The London press was a unit on its being the acme of this class of drama. The story has to do with a young Irish detective in the service of the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard. In the course of the play's four acts and fourteen scenes he becomes involved in many difficulties but always escapes with his life and in the end succeeds in locating the Captain Nero gang of desperadoes. From Scotland Yard is produced with a wealth of scenic effect and a fine cast of players is employed for the several roles. From Scotland Yard comes to the Grand next week.

Live to make somebody happy or you will never know what the true meaning of life is.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

Ten deer strung up in front of Fred. Goodland's butcher shop were attracting attention to-day. They were brought to this city this morning by James J. Houston, Fred Houston, Abraham Houston, Wm. Dunlop, Jack Lane and John Shaw, all of Chatham Township, who have just returned from a two weeks' hunting trip to Muskoka. Mr. Houston, 32, is 62 years old. Speaking of his northern hunting trip, he said: "We had splendid sport. The deer this year were very plentiful and the weather was fine. There were no accidents in our party, but a young fellow in the next camp was accidentally killed by his companion. We enjoyed the outing very much. Of course, everybody didn't get as many deer as we did. Some didn't get any."

The city engineer is causing quite a commotion these days over the way the waterworks people performed a piece of work on Gray street. "They dug up the road along the gutter," said the engineer to The Planet this morning, "to put in some waterworks pipes in one of the residences along the street. When they filled up the ditch they threw the dirt in any old way and as a result the dirt is left piled up about a foot above the road, instead of leveled off. Now the city will have to come down and go to a lot of extra expense in leveling the road, when it should have been done by the waterworks. I intend to see that these jobs are done properly after this. The Board of Works has charge of that department of the work and not the waterworks people."

"Supt. Jones and R. C. Burt are talking about the Chatham Old Boys," said Orville Dolson, "but there are 2 or 10 who really are the old boys. Youngsters they were over 40 years ago, and just as bad as the boys of to-day. They went to school to Duncan McGill, afterwards Town Clerk McGill, about the year 1850. When building was a one story frame, standing where the Central school is now located. The pupils were William Ball, Capt. Sim Smith, W. R. Baxter, Ted Beardon, Charles Williams, J. B. Stringer, Andrew, Joseph, Richard and Jas. Northwood, my brother William and myself. The brick building, pulled down to make room for the present Central School was erected about this time. I was one of the first boys to enter the building the day it was opened and, on the first day, I was the first boy to be whipped. C. R. Atkinson, K. C., was the teacher, and he did the deed."

"At the Chicago World's Fair they had a place where, for 10 cents, mothers could check their babies and have them taken care of," said Judge Houston. "I was condemning this one day at the Fair when I unintentionally stepped on the toes of the woman sitting next to me. She turned on me sharply with 'Don't you want the women to see the Fair? What else can we do with our babies?' replied to her that the baby was more important than the Fair. It was nine o'clock at night and the woman said that her baby was there yet and that she wasn't bothering about it as it was well taken care of. I was surprised that the woman could so readily trust her child to strangers. I told her that if my wife had checked her baby in that way, that I would have left her for always taking the baby with me. My, the woman did get angry at that and I changed my place to avoid the fury of an angry woman."

IONE: A BROKEN LOVE DREAM

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

Author of "A Broken Betrothal," "Parted by Fate," "Parted at the Altar," "Heiress of Cameron Hall," "Miss Middleton's Lover," Etc., Etc.

Ione gave a great sigh of relief. This was a comforting assurance to her, and she never thought of doubting him when he added, "that he would give twenty lives, if he had them, for her dear sake; for living would be intolerable to him without her." He said it in so sincere a tone that, looking into his face, the girl believed him.

The world seemed to suddenly grow dark when he took his departure. At that identical period quite a scene was occurring in the millionaire mill-owner's Lexington avenue mansion. He had been informed of the terrible catastrophe, and how his son had perished his life to save a beautiful young girl who had worked on the fourth floor of the mill.

His face had darkened as he listened, but not until the messenger had departed did he give full vent to his annoyance.

"This affair may end in a love scene and a romantic marriage if I do not nip it in the bud," he muttered, striding angrily up and down the luxuriantly furnished room. "But surely the boy has not been too-headed enough to fall in love with her."

"No, no!" he muttered, under his breath. "Arthur must marry Elaine, my ward, whether he will or no. For long years this has been my plan. It is the only way out of the labyrinth of difficulties in which I am placed. And the name—Ione—Lawrence! Surely she cannot be his daughter and hers!" he muttered hoarsely. "If she is it was certainly fate or—retribution that led her to my mill. I never would have rested so if I had known there was a Lawrence in my employ."

At that moment Peters put his head in at the half-open door, with a letter in his hand which the post-man had just left.

Tearing open the envelope, Mr. Rochester saw at a glance it was one of the most despicable of all missives, an anonymous letter.

There was a time when he would have flung it from him like a scorpion, in deep disgust. Now he read it slowly through, and as he read his face paled and he caught his breath hard.

He leaned over and gave the bell-ropes a vigorous pull, which brought Peters in breathless haste.

"Is my son in the house?" he asked harshly. "If so, send him to me without delay."

Miss Rochester, the mill-owner's maiden sister, heard that command, and knew, by the awful sternness of her brother's voice, that there was something terribly amiss.

She went herself in search of Arthur, finding him in his own room.

"Your father wants you, my dear," she said. "I am afraid something awful has happened, something more than the accident at the mill, for he looks so stern and so white, and so very angry. He is waiting for you in his library."

"Waiting for me!" repeated Arthur.

And a nervous sigh escaped him as he realized how unequal he was to conflict with his stern father just then. His father was harsh and unyielding in his ideas.

It was his favorite expression that he had no patience with the frivolity of youth.

Like many a rich man, he clothed his son well for appearance's sake, but he was extremely penurious in money matters. He was always looking out for some trick or secret of this handsome son of his, for which he would have to pay. He did not give him credit for being as steady as he really was.

It was little wonder that Arthur actually trembled as he knocked hesitatingly at his father's door. And he would have trembled still more, could he have seen the letter which his father, purple with rage, thrust away in his desk when he heard his son's step.

"Sit down," he said brusquely. "I want to talk to you about Elaine Granger. This is a new subject between us. Don't stand with your back to me looking out of the window. Do you hear or care for what I am saying?" cried the millionaire mill-owner, thinking of the contents of the letter lying in his desk, and each moment his voice grew louder and more excited.

"Yes, father," answered Arthur, wearily. "I hear, I care, but I am so unsettled to-night. Let me off, won't you, father, until another time—to-morrow, if you will."

"No, I won't let you off," declared Mr. Rochester, angrily. "I intend to know why you are so indifferent to Elaine Granger, my ward. I will know, I say. Elaine leaves for boarding-school next week, and of course you have taken advantage of the opportunity to visit to your aunt as afforded you by proposing to her haven't you?"

"For heaven's sake, father, let me attend to my own love affairs!" replied Arthur, turning deadly pale.

"I am determined that you shall not make a mess of this affair," cried the old millionaire, irritably.

"There's some trick somewhere—something I don't understand. If you dared to make love to any other girl, by the Lord Ha'ry! you'd be sorry for it to your dying day! What's the reason you have not asked Elaine to marry you?" thundered the old gentleman. "What are you fooling around for?"

Arthur Rochester turned slowly and faced his father.

"I will answer you truly, honestly and honorably, father," he said. "I have not carried out your wish because I would do no woman the injustice of offering my hand when my heart did not accompany it. I do not love Elaine, and I do love another with all my heart!"

CHAPTER V.

"Who is this girl whom you love—or think you do?" said John Rochester, rising and facing his handsome young son.

The words were spoken almost in a whisper, but they echoed like pealing thunder through the room, and seemed to repeat themselves over and over again during the moment of utter silence that ensued.

"Who or what is she?" repeated the old millionaire. "Is she rich or poor? What is her name?"

"Her name is Ione Lawrence, father," said Arthur, proudly. "She has no wealth, save a dower in her beauty, purity and goodness. She is the girl whom I periled my own life to-day to rescue from death. She is employed in our mill."

Mr. Rochester sinks back in his cushioned chair, and there is a look on his face that Arthur has never seen there before; his face is ghastly white, and his eyes have a glassy stare.

The calm eyes of the son looked steadily into the eyes of the father, and he read a gathering storm in them.

"How long has this thing been going on?" cried Mr. Rochester, harshly, fixing his gaze keenly, steadily on his son's face. "How long have you been making love to this working-girl, Ione Lawrence?"

Arthur's face flushed a deep red.

"I have loved her from the first moment I saw her father," he answered. "It was a case of 'love at first sight,' as the poets say, and I said to myself, then and there: 'There is the only girl I will ever ask to be mine. I will win her, if I can, for my wife.'"

"You wife!" he gasped. "This girl whom I abhor from the bottom of my heart! I would rather see you lying dead at my feet than married to Ione Lawrence! I will never give my consent to your marrying her while I live. Do you hear, sir? Never, while I live!" he thundered.

"Do not be so hard upon me, father," pleaded the young man. "Remember, you were young once yourself, and loved my mother as I love Ione."

"Your mother was an heiress and a senator's daughter; she was reared in the atmosphere of culture and refinement. She was a queen of society. I did not stoop to a misalliance with a working-girl."

"Love levels all ranks, father," said Arthur, raising his head proudly. "If she had been a nurse in the almshouse you would have loved her, and would have been as anxious to marry her as I am to marry Ione, a society belle. For my sake—because I love her—think more kindly of Ione."

"Stop!—stop right where you are!" foamed Mr. Rochester. "I will not hear it! This is but a mad infatuation you have for this girl. You must choose between us, Arthur," he went on fiercely—"between your father and his wealth and this working-girl! Love her, or your own fate. Love your own fate, if you choose this girl, you shall never have one dollar of my money; do you hear, sir?—not one dollar! I will make a bonfire of it first. You must give up Ione."

"Father!" cried the unhappy young man. "I cannot give Ione up, not even for your sake. Your wealth is as nothing, when weighed against Ione's love. I cannot and will not give her up."

"Do you dare defy me?" cried John Rochester fiercely.

"I have not attempted to defy you, father," replied Arthur, slowly. "Do not put it that way. I will respect your wishes in every other case but this, and try to follow them. In this case it is quite useless to persuade me. Every man should rule his own love affair; no one has a right to interfere."

"I have the right of a father over a son. I shall save you from yourself. You are not the first young man who has fallen in love with a pretty face, only to rue it bitterly six months after. You are infatuated with the girl now; a few weeks hence you will wonder how you ever happened to make such a fool of yourself!"

"I am willing to stand all consequences. Love, such as I feel for Ione, is no boy's love. It is no romantic fancy, father; it is the deep, true love that comes to a man but once in a lifetime."

Nervous Headache.

Irritability, Sleeplessness, Feelings of Lassitude and Depression, Weakness and Irregularity of the Bodily Organs

These are the symptoms which point to a depleted nervous system. They tell of thin, weak, watery blood, of wasting vitality and lack of energy and ambition.

They warn you that nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia, paralysis and even insanity are possibilities of the future.

It is folly to neglect nervous diseases, folly to suppose that they will disappear of their own accord, and still greater folly to deaden and destroy the nerves by the use of poisonous narcotics. It is a serious matter to trifle with the nerves. It is a question of life and death.

Mrs. Henry Clarke, Port Hope, Ontario, states:—"I have used seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervousness and a completely run down system, and can heartily recommend it as a wonderfully effective treatment. Before using this remedy I had been in very poor health for some months. I seemed to have no energy or ambition, felt tired and listless most of the time, and could scarcely drag myself about the house. I was weak, irritable and nervous, could not sleep well, and felt discouraged about my health. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has taken away these symptoms and given back my usual health and vigor, consequently I endorse it fully."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Fills the shrivelled arteries with new rich blood, strengthens and revitalizes the nerves by forming new nerve force and gradually and thoroughly overcomes disease and weakness. It forms new healthy tissues and gives a well rounded form and clear, healthy complexion to all who use it. 50 cts. a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Enthusiastic Converts

There are Thousands of them who Believe as This Woman Does

Mrs. Ira Knowlton, of Butte, Montana, is a most enthusiastic convert to the virtues of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as a cure for obstinate stomach trouble. She says: "I had poor digestion nearly all my life. It now seems to me that for years I never knew what it was to be hungry, to have a good appetite.
"I was troubled with gas in the stomach, causing pressure on the heart with palpitation and short breath. Nearly everything I ate soured in my stomach, sometimes I had cramps in the stomach which almost resembled spasms.
"Doctors told me I had catarrh of the stomach, but their medicines would not reach it and I would still be a sufferer had I not, in sheer desperation, decided to try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
"I know they were an advertised remedy and I didn't believe anything I read about them, as I had no confidence in advertised remedies, but my sister, living in Pittsburgh, wrote me last spring telling me how Stuart's Tablets had cured her little daughters of indigestion and loss of flesh and appetite and I hesitated no longer.

I bought a fifty cent box at my drug store and took two of the large tablets after each meal and found them delightful to take, being as pleasant to the taste as caramel candy. When ever, during the day or night I felt any pain or uneasiness in the stomach or about the heart I took one of the small tablets, and in three weeks it seemed to me as if I had never known what stomach trouble was.
I keep Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in the house, and every member of my family uses them occasionally after a hearty meal or when any of us have a pain or ache in the digestive organs.

Mr. E. H. Davis, of Hampton, Va., says: "I doctored five years for dyspepsia, but in two months I got more benefit from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets than in five years of the doctor's treatment."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, bloating after meals, sympathetic heart trouble.
Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is not a cheap cathartic, but an active digestive remedy containing the pepsin and diastase which every weak stomach lacks, and they cure stomach troubles because they digest the food eaten and give the weak, abused, overworked stomach a chance to rest and recuperate.
Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold in every drug store in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.
