DISCUSSION AT THE LIT.

Motion to Make Payment of Fees Compulsory Was Lost.

LETTERS RE THE STANDING COMMITTEE.

An unusually large number of members attended the regular meeting of the Literary Society on Friday evening. So far the outlook for this year is bright, both on account of the increase in attendance and also the interest in the affairs under discussion, as manifested by the number of speakers who participated.

The meeting opened with President Wood in the chair. Letters were read by the secretary from the colleges in connection with the standing committee which has been proposed to deal with the organization of all students in the city upon special occasions such as Halloween or the homecoming of the troops. The Dentals and the Trinity Meds. were in favor of the scheme, the former having already appointed a representative, while Victoria appointed the President of their Literary Society and the President of each year as their representatives. Mr. MacLaren, seconded by Mr. Armstrong, moved that the Vice-President of the Society and the President of each year should be representatives. This was carried. Mr. Coleman then moved, with Mr. Cassidy as second, that the above committee be only temporary, and that it meet with the representatives from the other colleges to draft a committee for the management of a permanent committee.

A communication from Trinity University was then read, in which it was asked that a correspondent be appointed to represent Varsity in the column of the Telegram devoted to news of the students. A motion was passed empowering the Varsity board to elect the representative. Arrangements were then made concerning the route of march on Monday's celebration, and also about the purchasing of flags to be sold to the patriotic students. After this nomination was made for representatives in the public debate which is to take place shortly, Messrs. Coleman and MacLaren were elected, and will no doubt carry off the honors for Varsity. A committee of three was then appointed to co-operate with the Alumni Association for the purpose of replacing the memorial window which was destroyed by fire some years ago. Messrs. McPherson, A. E. Hamilton and E. F. Burtin were elected.

A motion was made to have the programme for the evening rendered before proceeding to vote upon Mr. Brophy's motion concerning the compulsory payment of Literary fees and before electing the first year representatives on the Executive. A highly entertaining programme was then presented. Mr. R. J. Young, who is right at home in the Scottish dialect, both Highland and Lowland, and who can burr his r's as if he had come straight from the "land of brown heath and scraggy wood," gave a very amusing reading in Scotch with a sprinkling of Irish. On being encored he almost moved the audience to tears by the pathos of a recitation about a lock of hair from a dead sweet-heart's head. However, having reached the climax when some Freshmen were observed furtively wiping the briny drops from their downy cheeks, he suddenly turned the laugh on everybody by closing with the words:

"But how mad that hair would make us
If we found it in our sou'!"

Mr. E. A. Lucas then read a violin solo, accompanied on the piano by Mr. W. C. Klutz, which was highly enjoyed. Then followed the debate on the subject "Resolved, that the payment of the Literary Society fees should be made compulsory by the Senate." Messrs. A. E. Hamilton and Chadsey spoke on the affirmative, while Messrs. Taylor and Vance maintained the negative side of the question. Mr. Hamilton enumerated some of the functions of the Society, showing that it was beneficial to every student whether he attended it or not and that therefore it would not be unjust for the Senate to ask the payment of the fee from any man, even if he did not wish to attend the meetings. It was not like a society whose work was confined to one class of students, but it had charge over the interests of the whole undergraduate body, and thus deserved their universal support. Mr. Taylor then spoke for the negative. He looked at the question from a practical point of view and questioned whether the Society would profit financially from such a course. He pointed out that the treasury had a surplus of over four hundred dollars this year after paying nearly three hundred dollars of expenses, an amount that it would be absurd to ask the Senate to enforce payment of fees as if the Society feared a financial collapse when in reality its finances were in such a prosperous condition.

Mr. Chadsey made an able speech in favor of the affirmative. He deprecated the state of affairs at last year's elections, when bribery in the shape of payment of fees was rampant. He believed that this would prevent any such thing, and, moreover, declared that the Society should not depend upon elections to recruit its coffers, but that elections should have nothing to do with the finances of the Society. The proposed measure, he thought, would remove that difficulty and also would prevent those students who through false economy deprive themselves of the advantages of the Literary Society on account of the fees from doing so in the future. It was not worth a man's while to pay a dollar to vote, but it was certainly worth his while to pay a dollar for the benefits of the Literary Society for one year.

Mr. Vance, of the first year, spoke vigorously for the negative. He considered it wrong to ask the Senate to demand fees from a student when they could not guarantee him satisfaction, since the Senate had nothing to do with the programme prepared by the members of the Society. The Society was an institution managed by the undergraduates, and he considered it unwise to ask any outside interference in its management. He pointed out that some men, in consequence of the arrangement of their studies, or of outside work, could not attend the meetings, and that it would be unjust to ask them to pay their fees. Mr. Hamilton replied for the affirmative, using as a parallel illustration the compulsory payment of library fees, why should it not be the same with the Lit.? The President left the decision of the debate to the Society. On a show of hands the negative won by a small majority.

The meeting then reverted to the order of new business, and Mr. Brophy read a motion recommending that the Literary Society ask the Senate of the University to collect the Literary Society fees in the fall term from each student in the same manner as the Library fees are collected. A lively discussion followed, but as the motion was virtually the subject of the debate, most of the speaking was a rehash of what had been said by the speakers on the debate. Messrs. MacLaren, Hutton and Lucas spoke in favor of the motion, believing that it would stop bribing in elections and insure greater freedom in the plans of the Executive, as they would know exactly how much money they could expend; whereas in former years it was not known how much money would be received during the year. Messrs. Irvine, Broadfoot, Millar, Vance and Carter spoke against the motion. Objections were made that reform was the unwillingness to sin, not the inability to sin, and therefore the proposed measure was inadequate; that those who would accept payment of their fees would accept bribes also, and thus bribery would not be stopped; that the only way to prevent it was to raise the moral tone of the Society so high that no one would dare to offer or receive a bribe, and that the increased attendance and interest in the Society guaranteed a sufficient financial support without making it compulsory. The motion was then voted on and was lost.

Messrs. Clarge and MacGregor were then elected as representatives from the first year on the Executive and Mr. Creelman on the Varsity Board, after which the meeting adjourned.

The usual custom of attending the theatre was observed this year. Many hundreds of students, all alive to have as much fun as possible, marched down to the Grand Opera House, rapping signs on their way, calling extravagant compliments to fair wayfarers on the sidewalk. When the students arrived at the Grand they each went to their several allotted seats. The arts students were surprised upon coming into "the gods" to find the following gentlemen in their choice seats: Messrs. Beal, Watson, Symington, Stratton and another unknown. Every one is wondering how they got there.

Each college vied with its neighbor to see which would give the loudest yell loudest, the stentorian chorus of a few would often drown the larger collection of less enthusiastic yells.

The boxes were very attractively decorated, great quantities of hunting being used to make a display worthy of the occasion. University College occupied the box nearest the stage; on the right-hand side. Here we noticed the "Hallowe'en" Committee, E. P. Brown, '99, E. M. Wilson, '99, R. J. Hamilton, '92, A. H. Rolph, '92, S. P. Biggs, '93. Mr. Aylesworth was also in the box. Some of the committee occupied the box above. The representatives of the School of Science were: A. L. McLennan, W. E. Douglas, of the Dental College, O. K. Gibson, E. A. Dooney, Pharmacy and Trinity Medical College were well represented. Trinity had hung a skeleton in front of their box. It did not startle the ladies as much as you might have expected, since it was a very respectable and well-behaved skeleton. We have not the names of the representatives of these colleges. Dr. Ryerson, who conducted our medical and hospital departments in the late war, being sent thither as special commissioner, and meeting with flattering praise, was in Trinity's box.

The order for the most part was good, much better we may say than last year at that date. However, it is still open to improvement. Through an unfortunate mistake on the part of an unconsciously playful actor, a silly sign was read before the public which was insulting in one way and again trivial to one of the colleges. When the mistake was observed the company apologized.

The whole affair through was most enthusiastic and interesting. The play was cut down from delays, which was rather unfortunate to the audience.

—Everyone is asking what struck Queen's on Saturday Varsity has to win the next two matches to come out on top. As Biggs, Gibson and Armstrong are going to play next Saturday the chances are good of Varsity beating Queen's on their own grounds. Three teams are going down, viz., Varsity I, Varsity II, and Varsity J Association team.

Put a determined stop to the custom of decorating the actors and actresses with the colors of the various colleges. It is the cause of nine-tenths of the interruptions to the play.

Do not cudgel your brains for a novel means of entertaining the students between the acts. During the inter-missions we can do all the entertaining ourselves.

I wish to turn for a moment to the play. Let no one presume to pass judgment upon "The Princess Chic" based upon the Hallowe'en performance of the same. Where the composer displayed most of his talent was in the orchestral score. The most delightful piece in the whole opera is the musical dialogue between the King and Duke Charles in the second act, but the best part of it was lost in the general hubbub, especially the accompaniment, which is beautiful beyond expression.

A comparison of this and last year's programmes of "The Princess Chic" tells a rather interesting story.

The most noticeable differences are the new star Marguerita Sylvia, and the institution of Agnes Paul for Louise Hepper in the soprano role.

Miss Sylvia is an immense advance upon her predecessor, who made a doleful mess of the part. On the other hand Miss Paul, the little soprano who seemed to please most of the audience immediately, came as a great disappointment to those who had seen Miss Hepper in the same part. A role of this nature is not one that depends particularly for its effect upon the merit of the libretto and the music; it is made or marred by the actress that plays it. Miss Hepper's credit be it said that last year she and the basso, Mr. J. C. Miron, were virtually the co-stars of the production. Believe me, we have not heard the last of Louise Hepper upon the comic stage.

It would be unjust to all parties concerned to draw the foregoing comparisons, had I not some ulterior purpose in view to which the individual must be sacrificed. In truth I intended this week to make a few observations concerning the relation of play and player, which I shall have to let rip for another occasion, as I am already exceeding my space. While you are reading this, I shall be tossing upon the lay of the briny, probably in a condition unfitted for description. I am therefore compelled to bid this column adieu for a couple of weeks, when I shall, weather permitting, have a few words to say about the European stage.

TO THE TROOPS OF THE COLONIES.

Welders of Empire, Soldiers of Justice,
Ye who have wrought for the cause of the free,
Ye are the first fruits, the heirs of the glory,
The valor and glory your forefathers knew.
For ye now are beating the hearts of the nation,
And myriads praise ye, the souls of our slain,
Their memory enshrouded in splendor eternal,
Oh! when can that glory immaculate wane?
They reared the Empire, and we live to wield it;
They were triumphant on flood and in field,
They reared the Empire, and ye, ye must wield it;
Keep ye the trust that their red blood has sealed:
Oh! it is heavenly fighting for Justice,
Shinews and tendons are strained for the fray,
Now with bright arms, with the spirit of heroes,
Ye've gained us a lustre more splendid than day!
Wait for thy kinsmen afar in the future,
They will rise up and thy graves they will strew
With the fair garlands that grow in the bosom,
Hail ye as gods for the good that ye do.
Welders of Empire, Soldiers of Justice,
Ye who have wrought for the cause of the free,
Ye are the first fruits, the heirs of the glory,
The valor and glory your forefathers knew!

SOLDIERS' RETURN.

All the Students Turned Out.

A GALA DAY.

Never did Toronto look better than yesterday, when she donned her best attire to greet her returning soldier boys. The day was superb, and although the dust flew like a storm in the Sahara desert, it could not smother the enthusiasm manifested from the small urchin up to the aristocrats. The students maintained their reputation, and formed a principal part of the parade, with flags, colors, and all the paraphernalia suitable to the occasion.

The Varsity students took the lead, followed by Victoria, Knox and Wy-cliffe. Then came the Toronto Meds., with a man on a charger at the head and a gorgeous banner following. McMaster followed with a banner and close behind, the Trinity Arts men. Then came Pharmacy in battle array. The S.P.S. boys had devised something original for the occasion. They had a large cage with Oom Paul in captivity inside: a gun and a British lion on the top. Behind them came the Dentals, in full numbers, with a large banner. Several of the student bodies had representatives in the procession, and needless to say, were proud and happy to escort them in the procession. The occasion was one to be remembered, and will be handed down to future generations by their progenitors, now students in the different institutions of the city.

THIRD YEAR DINNER

The Men of '02 Celebrated Hallowe'en at the Dining-Hall.

MUSIC AND TOASTS.

The men of the third year Arts decided to hold a dinner on Hallowe'en, after returning from the opera.

The chairman first proposed a toast to the Queen, which was drunk after singing the National Anthem.

Messrs. McFarland and Moore then rendered a mandolin duet, accompanied by Mr. Klotz.

Some of the boys had a comical adventure with a few policemen after the dinner, while attempting to put together the gun which the Meds. had dismantled.

on Varsity, and in some way they managed to procure the pumpkin, but only for a minute.

Pharmacy had the honor of the night and their colors were worn by the leading characters in the play.

The students thoroughly enjoyed the production and all the songs were encored many times.

At the conclusion of the performance the Pharmacy students met and lined up at the corner of Temperance and Bay streets.

From there they proceeded to our worthy Dean's, and after giving the College yell, Professor Heebner appeared on the balcony and in a few well-chosen words thanked the boys for the serenade and also complimented them on the success of the night.

The dinner given by the Provost in honor of Lieut. Wilkie, an old Trinity student, was held last Thursday evening in the College hall.

The dinner was a departure from the usual lines on Hallowe'en, and as it was a perfect success, the members of '02 are resolved to repeat it on a larger scale next fall.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

Hallowe'en! Pumpkins! Varsity's new emblem!

Who said Trinity men would take an insult?

"Sorry, gentlemen, but Trinity's are the only colors I would wear."—Marguerita Sylva.

In accordance with the old-time custom, we lined up at the college at 6:45 on Hallowe'en and marched in twos by way of Gerrard and Yonge streets to the Grand Opera House.

Above us, in the gods, packed like sardines into seats at 30c, were a mixed multitude composed of Varsity, S. P. S. and Dental students.

progress. If the efforts of these gentlemen go for anything, we may expect everybody to come away happy.

The Medical Society, which was postponed from last Tuesday, will be held this (Tuesday) evening.

Friday afternoon Trinity Meds and Victoria lined up on the University athletic field to demonstrate which was superior, theology or medicine.

We fear that the proximity of our committee to the stage left them open to wounds from Cupid's darts, which it will take some time to heal.

Continuing, the Professor said that he had been allowed the privilege of blessing the Canadian contingent before its departure and among them was Lieut. Wilkie and many a tear was shed as he entered the train.

Notice—I hereby give notice that I will not be responsible for results if any man asks me when I shall return to lectures.—Claude Pierson.

"Jimmy" Martin, '00, is again seen in the classroom. He has spent the summer in Port Arthur, expanding the practice of Dr. Brown, where he has had a large experience with an epidemic of typhoid.

J. Alex. Ferguson, B.A., '00, is resident physician in St. Mary's Hospital, Saginaw. He reports two Trinity men as leading the profession in that city.

Invitations are out for the annual banquet of the college, to be held in Temple Building, November 15.

At the close of the evening Mr. Turley, on behalf of the College, thanked the Provost for the very enjoyable evening he had provided.

court yard in the rear of the school, the heroic Meds., no one being near to defend, took the cannon from the yard and dismantled it before the Bling, but a faithful few, returning that way, in the wee sma' hours of the morning, were able, by the skill of engineers, to bring back the big gun, though unable to mount it again.

Jack Broughton's knee is recovering rapidly, and he says he will be in the game just to help the second team out, though probably not for the first match.

P. R. Bassett is sulking from an attack of quinsy, and was much missed in the game against the Meds.

J. J. McQuay has still a hitch in his gallop, and says he will do no more kicking this season.

Prof. Graham was very much excited Saturday lest the police should come and take away the cannon, but quieted all fears by "what we have well hold till Monday, for I'll lock the gate and keep it myself as soon as I get my millar."

C. J. Millar will meet our boys in Peterborough and will enter the city with the regiment.

According to rumor and some notices in red ink on the time-tables, the date for the S. P. S. annual dinner is set for December 21.

Let everybody turn out to the first game the second team plays. They play Varsity II on the Campus at 4 o'clock Wednesday.

"Baldy" Campbell is still an unheard-of entity, and there is a fear among the boys lest he be frozen in in some far northern region.

Mr. Bagshaw (Trinity) has announced his intention of procuring the Cup in the steepchase next week.

"Billy," '04, persisted in playing pranks upon his fellows. So a sophomore invited him down stairs on a little matter of business.

PHARMACY.

The Pharmacy students turned out as usual in force on Hallowe'en, and with their canes, colors, horns and college yell made themselves conspicuous.

As has been the custom for years back, the first part of the night was spent at the theatre. Pharmacy again attended the Grand Opera House, where the comic opera "The Princess Chic" is being performed.

Pharmacy and Trinity had a battle royal to see who could make the most noise between the acts, and the honours generally rested with Pharmacy.

At the end of the first act the following chorus was sprung, with "telling" effect.

Some talk of Toronto Medicals, And some of Trinity's; Some talk of Osgoode lawyers, And some of Varsity.

But of all the institutions There is none that you may see With as jolly a lot of students As the College of Pharmacy.

Pharmacy had a Pumpkin carved to represent a man, and in it a candle was placed. This was lowered by a string down into the pit with a placard on which was written: "Varsity in the Gods." This was a sore hit Hallowe'en passed off in its usual way. A grand war-dance was held around the Sacred Fire, with "Heap Big Injun" Tanner poured forth all kinds of eloquence.

DENTAL AT HOME.

Dentals Win From Knox—Dentals II. Tie With Normals.

The Dental at home which is held with such favor among the boys of the school and which has also gained such popularity with the citizens of Toronto, is to be held on the 7th day of December.

Under the able management of Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the committee, the at home, with the assistance of every member of the school, should this year reach the highest pinnacle of success.

We understand that many who do not dance are at present taking lessons in the amphitheater of the college.

The Dental handball team have now played two games in the inter-college series. The first was played with the senior Toronto Meds when the Dentals won out by 39 points to 22.

On Friday the team visited Victoria alley board, and the Dentals again won, with the score 26 to 23.

The evening spent at the Grand by the different student bodies of the city on Hallowe'en passed off very pleasantly.

Even the weather, which had been of such a sickly cast for almost a week, aroused itself from its dejected lethargy and burst forth in an exhilarating radiance.

We were somewhat chagrined at the total absence of Dental colors on the stage. This must have been surely somewhat of an oversight on the part of our committee.

Our men were in better shape than at the previous game. The combination was good and the defence splendid.

Among the latest arrivals are George T. Gannon, Seranton, Pa., and J. C. Pembroke, Binghamton, N.Y.

From some valuable manuscripts just received from Tanner we learn that Count Zerfeitus was the inventor of the fashion of parting the hair in the middle.

Charles Burke, Wilkesbarre, Pa., has been appointed curator of the library and reading-room.

Our men found Knox throughout good-natured and gentlemanly. One or two accidents occurred.

Referee Zavitz, on account of his accident the other day, felt unequal to the entire game, and Mr. Broder kindly took his place.

The Intermediate team also showed up well and ran a tie with the Normals. They are a little raw yet, but show excellent foundation.

Mr. Cronyn made an announcement as to the dinner. That whereas the Anatomical Department had its rules in the departments in the departments annual dinners, there should be a series of at least four dinners, with faculty demonstrations and a thesis on the "value of annual dinners as factors in education, etc."

The Dean on then being called upon for a reading was greeted with a hearty reception by the valiant four hundred present.

On Monday, October 29, McMaster II. lined up for their first match in the intercollegiate games.

On Saturday, the 3rd inst., they met the Normal team, and when time was called a score of 2 to 1 in favor of the McMaster boys.

On Friday evening last the Literary Society held a very successful meeting. The routine of business over, the literary part of the programme was opened with a vocal solo by Miss Maud Ratcliffe, which was needless to say, thoroughly enjoyed by all.

to make themselves heard, but on their arrival were with quiet ceremony given the "glad hand," etc., being at once directed, with the utmost care and decision, to the voting-room.

Now that Hallowe'en is a thing of the past, students and committee can look back and congratulate themselves on what is admitted by all to have been the most successful event of the kind in the annals of the Toronto Medical School.

After the doors had been shut and President Treble declared the polls closed and forthwith proceeded to count the ballots.

The programme this year was in several respects an improvement on last year's. To Chas. Sutherland, chairman of the Programme Committee, is due in a great degree the excellent programme furnished, and the students testified their admiration of the same by encoring every number.

The first selection was a comic song by F. H. Wrey, a professional comic, who had been secured with great difficulty, and he was at once compelled to respond to a merited encore.

everyone to gayety and after partaking of the Dean's hospitality, the party broke up for the night, with the kind-hearted old custom of hand-shaking, after giving cheers for the Dean.

The Meds. then formed a procession, marched down College until at Bishop Strachan's School. Unlit windows, sombre walls, and a small squad of police were attentive to the songs of the serenaders.

After a while the boys divided, detachments grew smaller and smaller and at length became individual deserters wending their way towards home.
