Franco-British Advance Threatens to Pocket Germans WILL PROVIDE FOR 100 EMERGENCY HOSPITAL TO BE OPENED

Action Taken By Board of Health To Check Spread of Epidemic--Will Depend on Volunteer Nurses to Maintain Temporary Hospital.

Immediate opening of a temporary emergency hospital in the Tabernacle building, to provide accommodation for 100 influenza patients, as a measure of relief in the present epidemic, was ordered by the Board of Health at 10 o'clock last night, and ten minutes later an order had been placed for the necessary number of beds and arrangements for the securing of other necessary equipment were in full swing.

LETTER FROM HOSPITAL BOARD. The following communications were read: Mr. Minnes, chairman of the Board of Health.

With sixteen nurses at present writing on the sick list at the hospital and those able to work taxed almost beyond human endurance it is absolutely impossible for any more patients to be received.

There are approximately 2500 cases of influenza in the city at the present time," Dr. Pearson declared to the members present. Many of these of a most malignant type, and the situation is a serious one.

Mr. F. D. Reville, chairman of the house committee of the board of Hospital governors, laid the situation at the hospital before the gathering.

Moderate to fresh southerly to westerly winds, clearing, Sunday--Moderate to fresh westerly winds, fair, not much change in temperature.

NOTES ON INFLUENZA

GERMAN POSITION IN TWO POCKETS CRITICAL

Enemy Faces Grave Danger of Being Turned--Closely Pressed Along Line of Oise, While Mangin's Men Are Advancing Across the Chemin Des Dames.

By Courier Leased Wire With the French Army in Champagne, Oct. 12 (by the Associated Press).—There was strong defense at chosen spots, sometimes prolonged with great resistance, and at other spots a rapid retirement, of which the first symptom always is the glow of fires on the horizon, yesterday and last night from the region of Blanchemont and the Arnes, and on the heights northeast of Rheims looking over the field where the Germans are still holding the better parts of the line of the Suippe.

One of the most striking features of the situation is the boldness with which the enemy faces what from this side of the line looks like grave danger of being turned. To-day he is in two pockets, from which exit in good order may appear extremely problematical.

Closely pressed from the direction of Cambrai and St. Quentin along the line of the Oise, and with the movements of General Mangin's forces advancing across the Chemin des Dames, there was no certain indication that the Germans are abandoning the St. Gobain forest and the region of Laon yesterday. As seen on the map their situation is perilous.

The same may be said of their positions between the Suippe and the Aisne with General Berthelot crowding them east of the line between Berry-au-Bac and Bascourt and General Gouraud advancing northward west of the Argonne and taking a strong hold on the line of communication northward to Reims.

This morning the Germans were still holding most of their positions north of the Suippe. Berthelot's troops had forced a crossing between the east of Berry-au-Bac and St. Etienne, while north of Berry-au-Bac the situation was unchanged.

While the Germans are taking whatever risk these may be in clinging to this line, they are braving the sentiment of the world and the consequences of which they have been warned by the continued devastation of the region they still hold.

All along the line between the Suippe and the Aisne and further east, north of the Arnes, smoke clouds are to be seen in the distance drifting into immense billows that cover large areas. Dozens of these smoke columns appeared to-day to rise from the enemy's huts and barracks built in the forests. Others that shot up immediately following reports that were louder and carried farther than the sound of cannon, evidently were from the detonation of munition dumps. Many others that developed more gradually could be traced to the sites of towns throughout the region. On all the heights and in the ruins of towns along the lines from which this gruesome spectacle of the war could be seen, there are the most impressive examples of the power of the modern explosives, and the thoroughness of destruction of the Germans.

What Society is doing

FOOTSTEPS. (By Henry Chappell.) Dead son of mine, when first two tiny feet With step untraced a league-long yard. Then in my heart your throne was set complete. And love about you mounted royal guard. For you 'twixt wrought, adventured, planned. Nor dreamed that I was building on the sand. Then eager steps a hundred times a day Raced up the stair and down and in and out. Luring me on to join the boyish play; Making me one in prank and merry rout. Day was a garden lit by sunny beams, And night another day of happy dreams. With 'er passing year my burdens fell, For you, my son and friend, took up the lead. Love came to you, and all the world went down the path of a shining road. And life stretched out before, a shining road. I saw the promise fair of youth unfold, And all my harvest ripening to gold. Then came the call, the parting and the pain. When hands alone had voice to say good-bye. Now death has trampled down the golden grain. And all my places in ruins lie. O costly days that sacrifice has won. The throne is empty, I have lost my son. England's the story is, and mine the loss. You were mine own; to England, one son more Of legends who for her have borne the cross. And laid it down on weary hearts and sore. I take my cross, and if my heart be bowed The parent mourns, the patriot is proud. Dead son of mine it may be that you know. Grieve for my grief, and sorrow for my tears. So for your sake the tide shall only flow; I lift my head and face the empty years. Day with its memories of bitter-sweet, Night with its echoes of a soldier's feet. Owing to the prevalent epidemic of the "flu," the various ladies' colleges and boys' colleges are not allowing their parents to return home.

"It is new—and it is wonderful" IN a moment of curiosity I stepped in to see and hear this new phonograph. I had no idea what a surprise it was due for. "The young man who volunteered to demonstrate the Vocellon for me chose as his first record an 'Ave Maria' played by Eugenie Ysaye. "The Vocellon sounded the first notes. "Have you ever been really thrilled by music from a phonograph? I never had until that moment. The tones the Vocellon was bringing from the record were true violin tones—none of the richness, the appealing qualities produced by the singer's low were lost. "Record after record was played for me. I sat enraptured, gripped by the marvelous naturalness. "Then I tried the Graduals, the Vocellon expression device I had heard so much about. I drew the tone to a fine pianissimo, I pressed it to its fullest volume—I controlled the notes of the record. "The pleasure of it—I can't describe. You must try yourself. "So my views on the phonograph have been completely reversed. It is new and wonderful—this phonograph, the Aeolian-Vocellon.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. P. B. STEWART, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 13

ABRAM'S GENEROUS TREATMENT OF LOT.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-11; 14:1-4. GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity. DEVOTIONAL READING—Romans 9:1-24. ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Genesis 12:1-11; 14:1-4; 15:1-24.

I. Abram and Lot Return From Egypt (vv. 1-4).

Abram went into Egypt because of a famine. No doubt the famine was sent in judgment for the sins of the people, but also for Abram's sake. He needed the goods of his heart developed. He needed to know the weakness of his own heart, and the faithfulness of God. The child of God is not promised exemption from trials, but grace sufficient to endure them. Abram failed. In the midst of his trials he went off to Egypt without God's direction, where he got into trouble. Lot took his own way always brings him into trouble. His expedient to save his life was unworthy of Abram. He lied, and he is never justifiable. It is much better to die than to lie. Abram by prevarication deceived the king, but as soon as the truth was known he was thrust out. Though Abram had strayed from the path of faith, he had the good sense to go "unto the place where his tent had been in the beginning, where the altar was." This showed that he was willing to confess his mistake, and begin life over again. This Egypt experience of Lot is a warning to Abram, though he became rich there. Increase of riches is no sign that a man is in fellowship with God.

II. Abram and Lot Separate (vv. 5-11).

The goods of both Abram and Lot greatly increased. When they attempted to settle down, trouble arose between their herdsmen. This is the first case of trouble between relatives over financial matters. They kindly interfere with friendship. They kindle jealousy and strife between men. They engender greed and selfishness in men. Many times members of the same family are estranged from each other through strife for wealth. For the chosen of God must to quarrel is utter folly and criminal, especially when the enemy of the Lord's people looks on. "The Canaanite and the Perizzite dwell then in the land" (v. 7). It is bad enough for God's children to quarrel, but to do so in the presence of the world which delights therein is greatly to dishonor God's name. It is a fine example of the art of living together peaceably. The disagreeable situation was relieved by a generous proposition from Abram. Lot was allowed his choice. Separation is sometimes necessary, though he owed all to Abram, his selfish heart caused him to grasp for the best. Lot's action shows that his stay in Egypt was ruinous to him. Perhaps he chose the plains of the Jordan because of their resemblance to Egypt. One cannot go into Egypt without being affected by it. This was Lot's fatal choice for Lot. The motive which drove him was worldly advantage. Though he for awhile prospered, it was an expensive undertaking for him. Lot with all his goods was taken away from the confederate kings came against Sodom. He is an example of one saved so as by fire (1 Cor. 3:11-15). He set his affection upon earthly things, and the time came when he had to separate from them. The world and its lusts pass away, but he that doth the will of God abideth forever (1 John 2:15-17). Lot was not wholly corrupt; he was a man who allowed the world to get the better of him. Once his money and his family were in Sodom he was simply endued with wisdom, longing to escape from it (II Peter 2:6-8).

III. Abram Delivers Lot (Genesis 14:1-16).

Though Lot's trouble was the result of his selfish choice, Abram's magnanimity of soul expressed itself, taking up arms to deliver him from the oppressors. This was because Abram was a man of faith. Faith trusts God and fights for the right.

While Lot suffered from his evil choice, Abram was greatly prospered. He grew rich in temporal things, while at the same time he was rich toward God. It was much better to have God and a poor piece of land, than a rich piece of land without God. When Lot was involved in the ruin of his evil choice Abram had the power to deliver him. Abram's whole life shows that those who make obedience to God first get the needed worldly gain (I Kings 3:6-9; Matthew 6:33).

Scripture Penetration.
So far as I have observed God's dealings with my soul, the light of preachers sometimes entertained me, but it was Scripture expressions that did penetrate my heart, and in a way bearing to themselves.—John Brown, Hindustan.

BY JANE PHELPS, AUTHOR OF "MARGARET GARRETT'S HUSBAND," AND OTHER NOTABLE STORIES.

Ruth Receives Brian's Message and Worries Over It

CHAPTER XLVII
Ruth received Brian's short note, evidently dashed off in a hurry, when she watched the mails for the letter she was sure would follow. "The dear old man not waiting to write, just writing first so I would not be disappointed," she said to herself as she read the message for the third or fourth time. "I'll get a nice long letter in the morning." But when morning came there was no letter, although she had spent her entire evening writing him. A long letter telling of the work she had to do, then of how she missed him. A loving tender letter, expressive of her feeling for him. "I wonder why it didn't come," she soliloquized as she dressed to go out about the business. "It will probably come on the next mail" and although she had not intended to, she went back to the hotel at noon time to get the letter.

"No, nothing for you, Mr. King," the clerk told her, then, noting the disappointment on her face, added, "there's another mail in half an hour. You may get something on that."

The half hour gone, she asked again. "Still nothing."
Sadly she returned to her task, trying to cheer herself by saying it would surely be there when she got back at night. But her disappointment was keen. She was wearing the third day of her stay and not a line from Brian save only that short wire.

The thought that he might be with Mollie King stung her. If that were the reason he was neglecting to write, he must care very little for her; and a good deal for Mollie King. This thought obtruded the entire afternoon, and when at dinner time there was no letter, she easily persuaded herself that it was Mollie King's fault. She had intended going to a play to help pass the time, but now she had no heart for it. As she sat thinking of Brian, she remembered what a child he was in some things; just a big sulky boy when things went wrong, and of her determination not to allow herself to be angered by anything he did.

She wrote him again, touching lightly on her disappointment at hearing nothing from him save the short telegram. She told of what she had accomplished during the day and ended by saying she was very tired and was going to bed although it was only nine o'clock.

Could she have known that at nine o'clock Brian and Mollie King were sitting in a secluded corner of a Riverside Drive restaurant, she would perhaps have been even more miserable than she was. Yet she tortured herself with jealous thoughts until she went to sleep.

In the morning the fourth of her stay, she received a short special delivery note. In it he told her nothing of what she wished to know, of what he had been doing; and where she would spend his evenings.

"A note he might have written anyone," she sighed, "and written as if he hadn't a minute to spare for me." Even his sending it special, did not comfort her. He had forgotten her so long.

And forgot, for a time, that there was such a person as Mollie King, whom she believed was trying to inveigle her husband to spend his time with her.

Like most wives, Ruth blamed the other woman, instead of blaming her husband. That Brian had sought out Mollie, not Mollie Brian, would not be thinkable. She had found that she could get home a day sooner than she had expected to. At first she was going to wire Brian to meet her. Then she figured that she would get up to the apartment just about the time he either came home to dinner, or that he came in to dress to go out. Either way, she would just catch him. If he had planned to go out she would just catch him. If he had planned to go out she would go too.

She arrived on time and took a taxi to the apartment. No one was there.

"He is going out, and has left Crawford home," she said to herself as she hurriedly prepared her bath. She would be all freshened up by the time he came in.

But she had her bath, washed and waiting, and yet no Brian. She had saten scarcely anything on the train and now hunger added to her impatience.

Where could he be? By and by she went to the ice box. It was almost empty. Evidently there had been little cooking done. But she made herself a cup of tea and some toast, then sat down by the window to wait for him. She would make him take her out to supper. She almost wished she hadn't tried to surprise him. She recalled hearing her aunt say once that surprises were vulgar; that they always reacted on the one who attempted them. To-morrow—A Distressing Wait, and a Lame Explanation.

NORFOLK NEWS

Another Good Gas Well. Simcoe, Oct. 12.—(From Our Own Correspondent).—Another good gas well was sealed yesterday on the farm of Frank Evans, between Port Dover and Port Ryerick, near the lake. The depth is 1,152 feet, and it is a 300,000 well. When coupled up with the system a few of the other wells had to be shut off to bring the pressure into proper adjustment. The second attempt with the steel derrick at the Point has been successful in that the casing is down and the well is now being abandoned owing to the casing refusing to drive.

Ex- Reeve of Middleton Loses Son. Advice reached this office yesterday of the death from pneumonia in England of Albert, son of ex-Reeve J. T. Simmons, of Middleton township. Mr. Simmons is a prominent Courtland farmer. The son was an excellent type of Norfolk's young manhood. He enlisted in Norfolk's unit.

Harold Butler Dies of Pneumonia. Mr. Butler was surprised on Thursday of the critical illness of their son, Flizat, Lieut. Harold Butler. Mr. Butler left for Toronto yesterday morning, arriving at the bedside of his son a few minutes before he passed away. Pneumonia following the epidemic influenza was the trouble. The body will arrive here this evening for interment. A brother, Gordon, is overseas some two years now. The young man was but 19 years of age and a splendid young fellow.

The "flu" at Home. Up to the time of writing there has been but one death from the epidemic, the little child of Paul Wilson, whose family was one of the first afflicted, but Mrs. McIvor had visited the hospital yesterday forenoon, most of whom were ill of typhoid or Spanish flu. The doctors find difficulty in making their rounds. Patrons of the picture show were somewhat disappointed on going to the splendid play last night, but for the most part the populace is taking chances as a fatalist would.

Simcoian's last night heard metropolitan music at a tariff which was but a pittance compared with the expense incidental to a trip from home for this purpose. "Massey Hall had given her to do, was a difficult one, and needed all her attention. Absolutely she tried to put thoughts of Brian from her. But after she had finished for the day, she was so unhappy that she went to a theatre

FOOTBALL

A lively game of football will be staged this afternoon on the Holme-dale playing field when the Brantford Juniors will meet a picked team from Massey-Harris.

PUMP WORKING

The Butler, Me., Democrat complains in its last issue that "this town has all modern improvements, but they are not in shape to do any good. The swimming pool has no water in it, the town clock has no hands, and the jail has a hole in it."

CONCERT POSTPONED

Illness on Terrace Hill has resulted in the postponing of the concert, which had been arranged by members of Sydenham Street Church. The new date has not been fixed as yet.

BOWLING

The Dufferin Club are holding a lawn bowling tournament on Thanksgiving Day, beginning at 1:30 sharp. All bowlers from the city and country are being invited to play. Rinks will be drawn by ballot, and prizes awarded for high scores.

SONG SERVICE

There has been a very attractive program prepared for the song service at the local Y.M.C.A. to-morrow evening. Among the musical features of the service will be a silver quartette. The meeting will be addressed by Adjutant J. T. Wright of the Salvation Army on the theme, "How to Spend Life." The song division of the service will be led by Mr. James H. Friend.

KITH AND KIN

A meeting of the Terrace Hill Kith and Kin was held on Thursday, October 10th, at the home of Mrs. W. Borthwick, 131 Dundas street. The meeting opened with the National Anthem, and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting were read and various business items attended to, the members got very busy and packed the parcels for the men overseas. This was a very pleasant task, forty-two parcels being packed. Very dainty refreshments were afterwards served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Margaret Borthwick.

HAVE A HEART!

It was not the fault of the oft-maligned route boys, gentle readers, and those not so gentle, that the Courier was not delivered until eight and perhaps nine o'clock last night. Newspapers, far from enjoying an immunity from the tribulations of life, generally get more than their share, and that is the case in the present influenza epidemic. There is a per bit of what the edition was with the result that the edition was some hours late in getting to press. It may be the same to-day, and on Tuesday, and all next week; this is offered by way of explanation rather than of apology, and the public will understand.

BOUNDARY EXTENSION COMMITTEE

Will Be Appointed By City Council at Meeting Next Week

Boundary extension in Parkdale and Grandview was approved by the finance committee last night, after a deputation from the Board of Trade and thoroughly explained the project. It was agreed that at the city council meeting next week a committee would be appointed to go thoroughly into the matter.
"We are all in favor of boundary extension," Ald Harp stated to The Courier this morning, "but there are many questions to be considered—sewers, school accommodation and the like. We must decide whether such extension would be more in the interest of the city or of the county."

OBITUARY

C. E. JAMES.

The death occurred in Detroit yesterday of Charles F. James, formerly of Brantford, a son of the late Thomas James. He is survived by two brothers, Dr. W.T. James of this city, and E.E. James of Dunkirk. Mr. James was approaching his sixtieth year, and had travelled considerably through the States. The remains will be brought to Brantford and buried in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery.

JOS. KIRKPATRICK.

The death occurred yesterday of Joe Kirkpatrick, aged 23 years, at the home of his father, William Kirkpatrick, 25 Drummond street. The deceased was time-keeper at the Cocksutt Plow Company, and was a victim of pneumonia. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

THOS. KNOX.

An old resident of Brantford town died Wednesday night, at the person of Thomas Knox, aged 67 years. He was predeceased by his wife some years ago. The funeral took place this afternoon from Reid and Brown's undertaking rooms to Mount Hope cemetery.

MRS. RILEY.

The death occurred at her residence, Sydenham street, this morning of Mrs. James Riley. The deceased had lived in this district for some years and leaves to mourn her loss seven children. Her death was preceded by a short illness of about a week, previous to which she took an active part in the ladies' affairs at St. James' Church, being president of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

INFANT SOUL.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Soul, 14 Margaret street, mourn the loss of their infant daughter, Christina. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon to Mount Hope Cemetery.

MRS. BATSON.

The death occurred this morning of Minnie Batson, beloved wife of Mr. Samuel Batson, 278 1/2 Nelson street. The deceased has lived in the city for some time and was well known. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband, one small son. The funeral will take place on Monday to Mount Hope Cemetery.

Another victim was claimed by the influenza epidemic at an early hour this morning, when Mr. Alfred Dowling, 143 Sheridan street, one of the best known members of the post-office staff, passed away after an illness of only a few days. Mr. Dowling had been in ill health since last winter, when he sustained an injury to his shoulder by falling on the postoffice steps, and had undergone several operations as a result of his accident. His death was a health to some measure apparently until seized by the influenza. His death cast a spell of gloom over the entire postoffice, where he was known as a faithful employe and a valued friend.
"I cannot speak too highly of him," said Mr. J. C. Montgomery this morning. "He was a man of the most upright character, and one who always discharged his duties to the utmost satisfaction. He was held in high esteem not only by his fellow letter carriers, but by the entire staff of the department, who will mourn his early demise. He was a man who seemed to do anything wrong, a man who always placed his trust in a higher Providence, and led a most exemplary life."
Mr. Dowling was 35 years of age, and had been in the employ of the postoffice since April of 1912. He was for years secretary of Court Successees, A.O.U., and in this capacity ways performed his duties to the utmost satisfaction of his brethren. "He was ever willing to lend a helping hand and pleased to be able to extend words of kindness and encouragement to those in distress," said a member of the lodge.
The funeral will be conducted under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Foresters. Mr. Dowling leaves to mourn his loss a widow and several children, two of whom are ill from influenza at the present time.

His Opinion.

A certain Canadian battalion was under orders to proceed overseas, and one of its members, whom we will call Private Jones, had committed an offence—refused to obey an order given by an N.C.O. He was brought before the officer commanding and the punishment given him was that he be marched before the whole battalion carrying his full pack. After being marched up and down and between the files for about half an hour, the O.C. stopped him and said: "Well, Jones, what do you think about it?" Jones replied: "Well, sir, they are the rottenest bunch I ever inspected."

A writer in the Shreveport Times has discovered a spot where umbrellas are held at a premium. He says: "The reputation of being the rainiest place in the world has long been enjoyed by the hill station Cherrapunji, on the slope of the Himalayas, in Assam. The latest official value, based on a forty-year record at the Cherrapunji station, is 526 inches per annum. Blanford, the well-known authority on Indian meteorology, thought that the mean in some places at Cherrapunji exceeded 600 inches, but nowhere amounted to 500 inches. As far as actual records go, the rainfall at the Indian station is surpassed only that recently reported by D. H. Campbell, of Stanford University, at Waialeale, in the island of Kauai, Hawaii. During the year 1912-16, inclusive, the Hawaiian station, which is 5,075 feet above sea level, recorded the astonishing mean annual rainfall of 518 inches, or more than forty-three feet."

monia cases should not be admitted to the general hospital, so many had been sent there that the building was at present time overcrowded, and, in addition, understaffed, some sixteen of the nurses being ill with the disease. He inquired whether unsanitary housing conditions were in any way responsible for the spread of the influenza.

"Not to any very great degree" replied Dr. Pearson. "We find it in the best of homes. He explained that influenza was not a specified contagious disease, and therefore the board had no power to enforce quarantine.

T. J. Minnes inquired where nurses for the epidemic could be obtained, when the hospital was so short-handed. He declared that the board of health was prepared to receive any practical suggestions on the situation.

"The influenza has been in existence in various countries, for the past few months, and no means of overcoming it has yet been discovered," commented Dr. Pearson. "In too many cases, there is a relapse after four or five days, after the patient has worried and he recovered. It is then that there is the greatest danger of pneumonia." He cited several examples.

"The situation looked better yesterday, but it is worse to-day," declared Mr. Minnes.

Board of Trade Delegation.
At this stage the delegation from the Board of Trade was introduced, and Mr. Harley read a resolution recommending the establishment of a temporary hospital, and a campaign to educate the public in the best means of avoiding the disease. He explained that it was not proposed to close the schools because the children were better cared for than they would be at home.

Mr. Milton Wilhoice gave statistics from a number of the leading factories of the city, from which he stated that the steel company had shut down owing to the prevalence of the 'flu'. The Dominion Steel Products were likely to do the same. Not over fifty per cent of the steel company's Canadian employees were at work, and less than fifty at the Wm. Paterson Company.

The Cockshutt Plow company reported 150 men laid up, and Massey-Harris, Waterloo and other concerns were similarly affected.

"Can we find the nurses to run a temporary hospital?" inquired Mr. Minnes. "We are prepared to start one at eight o'clock tomorrow morning if we can get volunteers."

Mr. Harley suggested that volunteers might be obtained from the St. John's Ambulance Corps.

Mr. Minnes inquired whether it would be safe to depend entirely on volunteer nurses.

Mr. C. A. Waterous believed that if two or three trained nurses could be secured, the volunteers could do the remainder of the work.

Mr. W. D. Christianson suggested that the physicians of the city get together and formulate a general prescription for a remedy, which could be made public and filled by any druggist.

"No one formula could be drawn up to suit all cases," declared Dr. Pearson. "To attempt such a thing would be dangerous, and would probably result in many deaths."

Mr. Minnes felt that the city was in need of a health officer who could devote his entire time to his duties as such. It was unfair to expect Dr. Pearson to deal with the situation on behalf of the city when he had his private practice to attend to as well.

"I think the citizens have fully made up their mind," declared Mr. C. G. Ellis, "that the Board of Health must take drastic action to prevent the spread of the influenza. I think the women will respond to an appeal for volunteer nurses. There must be hundreds in Brantford who have had experience, and many others who know a little about the work."

Mr. Patts suggested that the doctors of the city get together and decide on a course of action.

"If the doctors have any suggestions to offer, they should come across with them now," declared Mr. Minnes.

"If the factories are to be left open, it will be practically useless to close schools or any other places," observed Dr. Pearson.

In reply to a query whether liquor would be a desirable remedy for the epidemic, Dr. Pearson gave an emphatic negative. "It would make matters a great deal worse," he declared.

Want Doctors' Advice.
"In this matter we have got to be led and guided by the medical men of the city," declared Mr. Minnes. "It is for them to say what is to be done, and this board will see that it is done. We must call a conference of the Medical Association and have them decide whether the establishment of this temporary hospital is advisable."

Dr. Pearson observed that the doctors were working night and day and had no time for a conference until such a conference was called.

"They must find time," declared Mr. Minnes. "There must be a conference to-night, or before morning, and this board will not adjourn until such a conference is called."

Dr. Pearson telephoned Dr. Paris, secretary of the Medical Association, who arrived on the scene a short time later, followed by Dr. Secord. Both physicians ratified Dr. Pearson's remarks as to the seriousness of the epidemic and the need of rousing the public to a realization of the true situation. Dr. Secord at the same time expressed the opinion that the Board of Health should go to its health officer for advice, rather than to the Medical Association.

public as well, are absolutely disgusted that the Medical Health Officer and the Board of Health have not taken action long before the present time. The influenza is a disease more contagious than smallpox. The foreign tenements of the city are breeding places for the disease. Some temporary hospital should be provided where as many cases as possible could be isolated.

"Do you think the tabernacle is a suitable building for this purpose?" inquired J. W. Patts.

"I know nothing of the construction of the building," replied Dr. Secord, "but it would be better than none at all in any case."

Later the physicians had withdrawn, the board voted to take over the tabernacle at once and to obtain the necessary equipment and nursing assistance. Permission for the use of the building was obtained from Lieut.-Col. Howard, and an order for 100 beds placed with Ham and Nott, Messrs. Minnes and Patts were appointed a committee to arrange for the equipment and administration of the hospital.

Advice to Public.
The following list of precautions to be followed by the public was formulated:

1. Avoid crowding needlessly, influenza is a crowd disease.
2. Smother your cough and sneezes, others do not want the germs which you would throw away.
3. Your nose, not your mouth, was made to breathe through, get the habit.
4. Remember the three C's, a clean mouth, a clean skin and clean clothes.
5. Try to keep cool when you walk and warm when you ride and sleep.
6. Open the windows, always at home at night, at the office when practicable.
7. Food will win the war if you give it a chance, help by choosing and chewing your food well.
8. Your fate may be in your own hands, wash your hands before eating.
9. Don't let the waste products of digestion accumulate, drink a glass or two of water on getting up.
10. Don't use a napkin, towel, spoon, fork, glass or cup which has been used by another person and not washed.
11. Avoid tight clothes, tight shoes, tight gloves, seek to make nature your ally, not your prisoner.
12. When the air is pure, breathe all of it you can, breathe deeply.

DANDRUFF GOES!
HAIR GETS THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL

Save your hair. Double its beauty in a few moments. Try this.

Hair stops coming out and every particle of dandruff disappears.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded brittle and scruffy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Danderine is to the hair, what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exhilarating stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

The Costs of Civic Service

ARE what the taxpayers study most. They want a thoroughly up-to-date service at a minimized cost.

Approximately seventy percent of civic expenditure is made on manual labor, haulage and transportation. Therefore, as it is the aim of civic administration to keep expenditures down to their proper proportion, they must cut their haulage and labor costs. Motor equipment will do this.

Light trucks are most adaptable for municipal service because they can be used for any kind of work such as garbage collection, street cleaning, hauling materials for public works, etc. The Ford One-Ton Truck fitted with a suitable body meets these requirements. It is of special value because of its low initial cost—further, it does more work yet costs less to maintain than a horse and wagon.

The Ford One-Ton Truck Chassis is being used by a large number of municipal councils throughout the Dominion.

THE LINES FAR BACK OF THE BATTLEFRONT TO WHICH THE GERMANS MAY TRY TO RETREAT. This map suggests the positions the German armies may try to take up as a result of the great Allied drive between Cambrai and St. Quentin. The shaded areas on the map indicate recent gains made by the Allies up to Wednesday. Since then Bohain has been captured and the Allies almost have reached the line of crosses southward of Le Cateau.

THE POLICEMAN Has Taken a Permanent Place in British Cities.

The Gilbertian policeman once whimsically lamented that "a policeman's life is not a happy one." One wonders, however, what social improvements may not have been wrought in his professional existence by the advent of his feminine counterpart, the policewoman. The feminine guardian of the peace, the "day constable," is already a permanent institution, and in England she is actually an integral part of the force. Her ranks swell visibly every year. Her duties increase with her enlarged experience. Schools are turning her out in numbers that barely suffice to meet the demand, and the scope for her professional activities is practically unlimited. But let it be said in her justification that she has not sought to tread upon the toes of her professional male, the masculine "Robert," but rather has endeavored to make of herself his fitting complement; to extend the sphere of usefulness of the profession; to introduce new and much wider powers of social utility. She does not disturb the measured functions of the policeman's familiar beat, the fixed post, or the traffic control. She is armed with nothing more formidable than moral force. She does not even carry a truncheon. For she is not chosen for her brawn and muscle, and is not called upon to chase an offender, or to lead him off as her lawful catch to the lock-up. She leaves the masculine wrongdoer, generally speaking, to the policeman, and keeps the peace along lines in which he failed to prove adequate or fitting, or which, a few years ago, were considered within his scope.

She works in the towns and on the railways. She is to be found in the factories and offices of the ministry of munitions department, she is under the Admiralty, and she is working in co-operation with the employees of the Government-controlled firms. She supervises women employees, she looks to the prevention of theft. She keeps her eyes upon woman's welfare everywhere in the station, in the streets, in the trains, and in the parks. She inspects places of amusement and women's lodging houses. She supervises children engaged in street trading. She takes depositions from women and children, and attends police court on their behalf; indeed, there is hardly any investigation of a public character, with regard to persons of her sex, in which she does not interest herself.

The policewomen directly connected with the metropolitan forces of London differ from what are known as the paid patrols. The policewomen co-operate directly with the metropolitan police in the work of patrolling the streets and the parks in the actual company of men constables on their different beats, while a further distinction is that they draw their pay from Scotland Yard, whereas paid patrols in the provincial towns, in some cases, receive it through a voluntary association. The paid patrol has been described as the free lance in policeman's work, tapping at the door of public opinion. She develops her work as need and opportunity arise. She not only undertakes a variety of work on behalf of the police, but she is also approached by the military authorities, the health authorities, the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and other organizations interested in public welfare. She often moves on to another town, and thus finds scope for talent, judgment and even pioneering instinct.

Men in Iron Masks.

The Man in the Iron Mask mystified all Europe for many years, and is still the subject of considerable romance and legend, but in our great industries men in iron masks are not at all common. In the process of arc-welding iron masks are necessary to protect operators from the terrific heat and dazzling light. The electric arc is about the hottest thing in the whole world and also as bright as the sun itself. The temperature of the arc is approximately 3,500 deg. Centigrade, and as the heat is confined to a comparatively small space directly in contact with the arc the light therefrom is blinding.

Mrs. J. E. Stratford, of Brantford, was unable to be present to receive the Military Cross conferred on her son, the late Captain J. B. Stratford, for leading his men in a courageous attack on Bois de Essart on March 26, 1915.

CATARH LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Catarh is as much a blood disease as scrofula or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but it cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the voice, deranges the digestion, and breaks down the general health. It weakens the delicate lung tissues and leads to consumption.

Hood's Sarsaparilla goes to the seat of the trouble, purifies the blood, and is so successful that it is known as the best remedy for catarh. Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and tones the whole system. It builds up. Ask your druggist for Hood's, and insist on having it. There is no real substitute.

DELIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

AT THE REX.
The Rex Theatre will present a romantic comedy, "Just for To-night," the first of next week. Special interest is attached to the exhibition of this feature owing to the fact that it marks the debut of Tom Moore as a Goldwyn star. During the past year Mr. Moore has played leads to Madge Kennedy and other members of the Goldwyn constellation and those acquainted with the history of the screen know full well that he was one of the first prominent actors in the picture art. "Just for To-night," however, is his first appearance as a star with the Goldwyn company. The reason for his elevation to the ranks of stardom was due to the fact that theatre patrons throughout the country practically demanded it. The results will be awaited with interest.

"Just for To-night" that it is a romantic comedy of the highest type, written specially for the star by Charles Logue, author of "The Service Star." It relates the fascinating adventures of one Theodore Whitney, Jr., who takes a fancy to a young girl he passes while motoring. He tries long and hard to be properly introduced to her, but failing time after time, finally resorts to the practice of a little clever deceit. Just what this clever deceit is it is not our pleasure to tell you at the present writing. But if you are a fan of a smile and a laugh, many of them rather—just drop round to the Rex Theatre on any day of the showing and you will be sure to be pleased.

And by the way, Mr. Moore's leading lady, a newcomer to the screen by the name of Lucy Fox, is a true charmer. You don't blame Theodore Whitney, Jr., in the least for his mad pursuit of her.

Among favorite screen stars in this country, few have a greater or more enthusiastic following than Dorothy Dalton, whose recent pictures, "Tyrant Fear," "The Making of Marcella" and "The Kaiser's Shadow," were seen here with such success. Miss Dalton has an en-mountain of Tennessee meets a handsome young mountaineer, portrayed by Mr. Meighan, who assists her to leave the plotters.

Mr. Meighan's popularity is by no means confined to the picture-going public, for he is one of the most sought after leading men in the various producing units of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. His services have been in such demand in Paramount's recent picture that he frequently has been found working in two or more productions at the same time. He has been leading man at one time or another, to nearly all the women stars of the organization, including, in addition to Miss Clark, Mary Pickford, Elsie Ferguson and Billie Burke.

Previous to this new Marguerite Clark subject, Mr. Meighan had the chief male role in support of Elsie Ferguson in "Heart of the Wilds." Mr. Meighan played the part of Sergeant Tom, a Northwest Royal Mounted Policeman. Other recent pictures in which he has appeared are "Eve's Daughter," "Arms and the Girl," "The Mysterious Miss Terry" and "J. Stuart Blackton's Paramount production, "Missing."

"HEARTS OF THE WILDS."
Elsie Ferguson, star of "Heart of the Wilds," her latest Arctcraft vehicle, which will be shown for the first time in this city at the Brant Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, was hostess to two hundred or more cowboys at a barbecue given in their honor by Director Marshall Nolan, during the filming of that photoplay at Cody, Wyo., and vicinity recently.

The appearance of the famous star caused a sensation among the residents, and she was accorded a big popular ovation. Mr. Nolan gave a barbecue at which Miss Ferguson was hostess. Speeches were made in their honor by Director Marshall Nolan, during the filming of that photoplay at Cody, Wyo., and vicinity recently.

Music in the Home

A man's creative individuality is the outcome of his admirations. It is for this reason that an artist will too many admirations never possess as an individuality at all. If one probes deep into the works of any great creative individual, it is not always derived from the same art. To take Percy Grainger as an example, it is evident that his very marked style is largely derived from whence his style has come, but it is not always derived from the same art. To take Percy Grainger as an example, it is evident that his very marked style is largely derived from whence his style has come, but it is not always derived from the same art.

Music is more than an art; it is an instinct. Beneath the savage's primitive delight in the tom tom and the musician's intellectual enjoyment of a Bach fugue, is the same underlying principle—a spontaneous love of rhythm and the desire to express it. To create exquisite harmonies is the heaven born gift of genius—the divine heritage of one man in a thousand. To interpret another's work is a talent, developed only by years of hard work and infinite patience. To listen to the perfect interpretation of a great composer is a blessed privilege, made universally possible by the greatest of musical inventions—the talking machine.

Prolific Composer.

Comment is often made upon the mere physical labor of writing the notes that are required in the scores of Richard Wagner. To copy these scores accurately and the parts for the orchestra would take years. Wagner, however, had many assistants truly new characterization in her latest Paramount offering, "Green Eye," written by Ella Stewart Carson, and produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, which will be presented at the Rex Theatre the last of next week. In this unusually captivating photoplay, Miss Dalton appears as the beautiful wife of an aristocratic Southerner, who is several years older than herself, and who is obsessed by the fear that she may lose her heart to a younger man, and he be deprived of her love. This man is persistent in his passion that she packs up and returns to her home determined never to see him again.

But it develops that the separation brings her to a realization of her love for her husband and she returns to his home. He receives her with open arms and both agree that jealousy will no longer have any part in their lives.

In the course of time the husband becomes jealous of his own brother, who when he is convinced that he has killed a man whom he had beaten, but who, in fact, had been murdered by a mulatto, brings a shadow over his brother's household. How this young woman convinces her husband of her love, in a scene of intense dramatic power, is shown in the development of the story, which, it is said, will be found to be one of the best in which Miss Dalton thus far has figured.

"A COUNTRY HERO"
Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, has taken to pastoral pursuits. Not exactly in the interests of Mr. Hoover, he is understood, although "Fatty" is enthusiastically boosting all schemes to increase the nation's food supply. The Paramount comedian's enthusiasm for the rural life is due largely to the filming of his next production, "A Country Hero," which features his adventures in the village of Jazzyville. This picture is the first to be made in the Coast studios since Mr. Arbuckle returned to California. It will be shown at the Brant Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"OUT OF A CLEAR SKY"
In Marguerite Clark's Paramount photoplay, "Out of a Clear Sky," which will be shown at the Brant Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the dainty star is accompanied by Thomas Meighan, one of the best known and most popular of the screen's leading men.

Miss Clark plays the part of a bold and fearless woman who is being forced into an obnoxious marriage with a German nobleman. She escapes to this country and seeking hiding-place in the hands of John J. Cain. This year Mr. Cain will see that the good natured and easily convinced old first man is impersonated in the way to confound him to his many friends and admirers all over the country. "Mother" too will be in good hands as testified by the return of Lida Kane to her original role. It is about five years since Miss Kane created the part. Another artist who is sure to find acclaim and approbation is Blanche Newcombe. She is the daughter of Bob Newcombe, who in the heyday of his reputation always could be depended on to make any audience laugh. It is understood that his offspring is a chip off the old block, and in addition a comedienne on her own hook.

Regarding this latest play based on the popular cartoons, from what we can deduce, it is said to eclipse all previous efforts. As we all are aware fun still clings to us, "Father" is a natural mirth-provoker, the right of heritage from a race that never brooks sadness or despair. So naturally we can expect to find him in a series of adventures, episodes, situations and complications to the accompaniment of lilting melodies, tangy song hits, ensembles, surprises and features.

Twenty-five pretty and captivating women compose a chorus such as only a manager of Gus Hill's calibre can muster. Those who have seen the production declare it to be the final word in musical comedy accomplishment.

STRONG PEOPLE NEEDED

The need for people to be healthy is urgent. Those whom illness has put outside the range of robust men and women in their position keenly feel they are handicapped in every walk of life and weak men and nerve-worn women need more earnestly than ever to put their health right and become strong again.

Many who began "patching" months ago are still now as on the day they began vainly tinkering with common drugs. Every ailing man and woman should remember that the ill of debility, nerve exhaustion, indigestion, sleeplessness, neuritis, and depression come from a faulty blood supply. Worry, over-work or other causes have impoverished the blood and left the life-stream impure. The nerves thereby are starving and the whole system is languishing for new blood. In this condition many thousands have won back strong nerves and new health and strength through the new rich blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually makes. In a word, the condition many thousands have won back strong nerves and new health and strength through the new rich blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually makes. In Omaha the Girls Red Cross is responsible for an innovation certain to "catch on." Motion pictures have been taken of bits of the town with well known citizens in action and a local playette using a host of the home girls. The films were forwarded for display in the Western front-cinemas.

GONE IS GLORY OF "HINKY DINK"
"Hinky Dink" Kenna, for over forty years famous as the dispenser of the "longest and coolest beers in Chicago," political boss of the "First Ward" will open an ice cream parlor next year, the nation goes dry. Pat O'Malley, the principal rival in the election trade, is to become a florist.

WAR CRITICS
War critics write their daily sermons, reviewing all the mighty deeds which change the nature of the map, or there where all the armies scrap. The allied armies chase the Turks until the latter split their boots, make prisoners of countless Huns, and capture 40,000 guns. "Let us beware," the critics say, "of getting too almighty." They are right, for the world is a balling now. That even Wilhelm must allow, but when arrive to-morrow's dawn the ground we've gained may all be gone. Expect the worst, that is the plan that's followed by the prudent man. These critics are the cautious boys; when it would make a joyful noise, and shoot off fireworks, tombs and tons, because we've spoiled a lot of Huns," they say. "That is no way to act; you ought to show more sense and tact. You ought to shakedown your head and sigh, when optimists so whooping by, and tell them how we'll have to tread the weedy road that lies ahead. Instead of which, you old fat clown, you take your brush and paint the town. It is a time to whoop and wall, and ride gay people on a rail. Just wait until the news is bad, and then cavort around my lad. Then you may whoop and make things whif, and fill yourself with bottled fizz."

MARRIAGE A PUBLIC DUTY
In London an interesting case touching the conservation of petrol has just been dispensed of, the prosecution resting upon the use of non-essential motors at a wedding. The Petrol Controller held that no case existed, "marriage at this juncture being a public duty" and therefore to be encouraged in every way.

DRINK HOT WATER

IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, are those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, chills that are both-ered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, is so abundant, it demonstrates that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

3—In Sterilized Bottles.
4—From a Modern, Sanitary Dairy.
5—From a Dairy Open to Inspection.

Don't take chances with your milk supply. Milk is too important, too vital a part of your daily fare for you to trifle with it.

Five years ago we began to pasteurize Hygienic Dairy milk. We have pasteurized all our milk since then. We did it because we believed it was necessary—it is a safeguard enforced by law in the big cities.

Note the other safeguards we offer. This milk comes to you in the modern, sanitary way—in bottles. It is bottled by machinery—human hands do not touch it.

Most important to all it comes to you from a big modern dairy—a dairy that contains the finest, up-to-date equipment—a dairy that maintains high standards of cleanliness—a dairy that is always open to your inspection.

You don't pay any more for milk from the Hygienic Dairy. But you get milk of richer quality. And you get peace of mind.

Besides, isn't it more satisfying to deal with a big responsible institution, with a big reputation to maintain?

Begin to-day. Phone and our driver will call. Or tell your neighbor that you want him to start calling.

THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT

Joshua Crane, former tennis star and now one of the leading golfers of Boston, is one of the few players who putts with one hand. His hands very low over the ball, his putter being not much over a foot in length.

Lord Hedsbury, who has achieved his ninety-fifth birthday, has held golf to be one of the secrets of his health and happiness. In Canada there are many octogenarians who still enjoy a round of the links. Notable instances are Mr. Bruce of Hamilton, and the Rev. Mr. Williams of Paris, Ont., both well over the eighties, but who both play the game with great zest.

Great Britain has a boy golfing wonder in Laurence Ayton, Jr., the four-year-old son of Laurence Ayton, one of the best types of St. Andrew's golfers. The little chap has a wonderful compact, full swing with the wood and already can cut the ball with his masher and make it stop charmingly. Expert judges predict early championship honors for this young prodigy.

Fancy suggests a foursome with Field Marshal Foch and Haig pitted against President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George. What a gallery that would bring forth and what a setting for the camera and movie picture man! They are one and all enthusiastic golfers. Another fetching event would be a freak match between Hindenburg, Harry Lauder, Charlie Chaplin and Little Tich, all of whom are by way of being players.

On Monday next, October 14th, will be launched on the golf links of the Dominion, the Royal Canadian Golf Association's big "drive" for the Red Cross. From reports received from all parts of Canada this Thanksgiving Day appeal for the most worthy of all patriotic funds, is going to be met with a record response from golf clubs and golfers. From every city and town comes word of an organized effort to make the day one long to be remembered on Canadian courses. One leading Toronto club, noted for its generosity along patriotic lines, has already some $2,000 in advance subscriptions in sight. The biggest clubs will nearly all "go over the top" to the extent of $1,000 or more, whilst the smaller clubs will come along with their contributions in the hundreds.

The Canadian Seniors' Golf Association was the first to give the Thanksgiving Fund a "boost" with a $500 subscription. Indications are very bright that when all the returns are in during the course of the next few days or so that the Red Cross will benefit to the extent of probably $25,000 or more as a result of this Dominion-wide golf appeal.

Red Cross exhibition matches still continue to occupy the stage. Following the highly successful day at Galt, the nearby city of Kitchener got into the game, the amateur champion, Mr. George S. Lyon, again being the chief attraction, assisted by his brilliant young son, Seymour Lyon, who had as his partner that well-known all round sportsman, Mr. E. Seagram, president of the golf club at Kitchener, who very pluckily faced a gallery for the first time—and there is no more trying out than playing golf under the eyes of two or three hundred critics and would-be critics. Seymour had as his partner, the local pro, "Tony" Forrest, who is capable of putting up a very stout game. The younger players had rather an easy win of it, they being up 3 holes each round. Seymour had the choice medal of the day, a capital 76; Mr. Lyon notched a 78, as also did "Tony" Forrest. The Grand River Club at Kitchener has a very interesting 9-hole course with a charming clubhouse on the banks of the Grand. Golf is quite popular there, many of the Canadian-German families having taken quite kindly to the game. As a result of the exhibition match a goodly sum was raised for the Freeport Military Hospital. Incidentally the playing of the Lyons, pater et filius, was quite a revelation and education to many of the local players and is bound to have excellent resultant effects.

The champion is certainly not sparing himself these days in the good cause. Following Galt and Kitchener in the one week, he took a team up to Camp Borden, where the military, under many adverse conditions, have managed to put into play quite a respectable little links. At Borden there are several well known British and American players in training and the grand old game has been quite the vogue there this season. Soldiers everywhere having taken very enthusiastically to "golf" and after the war there will hardly be a club throughout the Dominion that will not benefit in membership as a result. In Great Britain especially hundreds of Canadian officers and men have become converts to the game.

The old adage that "nothing succeeds like success" has been amply exemplified in connection with the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association, which was launched only last May at the Royal Montreal Golf Club, and which many prominent golfers were inclined to predict could not be made a success. In a very short time the membership was placed at 250 and even the most sanguine of the association's officials did not for a moment think that this limit would be reached probably for two or three years, even if then. Following however the intensely interesting and successful tournament last month at Montreal, has come a perfect flood of applications from prominent golfers all over Canada until to-day the hon. secretary reports the limit of membership reached and a waiting list inaugurated. It is now generally admitted that the 250 limit was perhaps a mistake (in the United States however the limit is 500, with probably ten times the number of Seniors to draw from) and already a notice of motion has been made to change the by-laws to allow of an increased membership. In the meantime, however, and until after next year's tournament and annual meeting, the dilatory Seniors who failed to put in an early application will be without the privilege. Leading jurists, members of Parliament, captains of finance and manufacturers, are among the recent applications received. The Seniors' Association probably to-day has the most distinguished list of members of any organization in the Dominion. The Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, the first Vice-President, who, on account of illness, was unable to attend the recent tournament at Montreal, has written to say that following the example of Lord Shaftesbury and Mr. Frank A. Rolph, President of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, he will be pleased to contribute a trophy to be competed for at Lambton next year. Capt. C. H. Perkins writes me that the most interesting golf since the outbreak of the war was seen in South Wales the week-end of September 14th, when Harry Vardon, J. H. Taylor, James Braid and A. Herd played a series of games with the object of assisting the Welsh prisoners of war fund. The tournament realized about £2,500, which is a record for a golf event in Great Britain. Taylor and Herd were pitted against Vardon and Braid in a two-ball foursome. Playing wonderful golf Taylor and Herd were soon 3 up. At the turn this lead was reduced to 1. At the 14th, however, they were again 3 up. Braid and Vardon, however, won the 15th and 16th and on the 17th was halved. Taylor and Herd were doing going to the 18th. It was a great finish for Vardon placed his tee shot a yard from the hole, whilst Herd was off the green, as was also Taylor. The latter, however, laid his second shot stone dead and as Vardon missed his putt, the hole was halved and Taylor and Herd won a most exciting match 1 up.

Why Canada must borrow money to carry on

Because Canada has put her hand to the plow and will not turn back—

—our country is in the war on the side of liberty and justice and will stay in it till complete victory is won and the unspeakable Hun is smashed and beaten to the ground;

—a nation at war must make tremendous expenditures in cash to keep up her armies and supply them with munitions, food and clothing;

—Canada must finance many millions of dollars of export trade in food, munitions and supplies which Britain and our allies must have on credit;

—for these purposes Canada must borrow hundreds of millions of dollars—

And, this money must be borrowed from the people of Canada—

Therefore, Canada will presently come to her people for a new Victory Loan to carry on.

Canadians will loan the money by again buying Victory Bonds.

The national safety, the national honor and the national well-being require that each and every Canadian shall do his duty by lending to the nation every cent he can spare for this purpose.

Be ready when the call comes to see your country through in its great war work.

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee in co-operation with the Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada.

FAMOUS CANADIAN BATTLE FIELDS

By ROLAND HILL Former Official Canadian War Correspondent

THE German line in France and Belgium from the Channel southwards to Peronne and Ham has been swept backward in the wonderful fighting of the last few weeks. The undulating barrier which on their section British and Canadian troops have now completely broken will never again rest itself as a menace to divide the forces of Britain and France. The coveted Channel ports are safe and it is almost certain that the Germans will never again be able to strike at any point in enough strength to regain those battlegrounds of France and Flanders where history has been in the making for the last four years.

Those acres of towns where Canada has shed her best blood will from now on be inviolate. German guns will never again pound the ruins of Ypres and Soissons and Courcellette and the brave Canadians who lie in the shadows of these monuments to the fallen will rest in peace. The little graveyards among the poppy fields of Flanders, some of them unhappily torn by enemy shells in this last great fight, will be silent and at peace. Now and again some comrade will steal back to find the resting place of some friend; the kind old padres will visit and tend the little white crosses; but the thunder of the guns that drummed the great funeral march when those Canadian lads were laid to rest will for the rest of the war be but distant echoes. The great victories of these weeks have saved something that those who had to stay at home in Canada may see when war is done.

Langemarck, Wietze and St Julian where in 1915 Canada "lived" its days are mere rubbish of brick and stone. Along the main road that runs out from Ypres there are little clusters of Canadian graves that have marvellously survived the cyclone of war that have swept by them. Out on the mangled distorted highway, which runs to Paschen-dale there are little groups of Canadian graves where those heroes who fell in that first great fight have been joined by their comrades who died two years later in the taking of the strong German position which was again a menace to Ypres.

In many places around the historic Flanders city you can still find traces of the old groups of Canadian men who know can lead you to some of the old brigade headquarters now grass-grown and pathetically delap-dated. Piles of mistered stone and ironwork mark the old Flemish graveyards where well-known battalions made their stand. In Ypres itself the ruins can be marked for what they were. The asylum where thousands of wounded and gassed Canadians were tended in those heart-rending days of April, 1915, is still there and the barracks can be traced by its heavy brick walls. The ramparts, Vauban's strong fort built for other days and other kinds of warfare, are still standing in defiance of modern artillery and they have sheltered many of the Maple Leaf. There are badges of many a fine Canadian battalion painted over the big stone arches.

Vlamertinghe church, the landmark that meant comparative safety in those anxious days of 1915, and the station where scores of wounded were rescued by train, are badly damaged but still proudly in evidence, their battle scars making them look wonderfully dignified. Popperinghe, the happy hunting ground of the lucky battalions in rest, is shell torn but will be saved for already the Flemish shop keepers and the restaurateurs are flocking back.

Further to the south Bailleul and Armentieres and Hazebrouk are standing and the old hotels and eating places where officers and men found chance from rations in French dinners when out for brief rests are optimistically replacing their boarded windows with glass. Bailleul is the worse for war wear. The old square tower of the Hotel de Ville has been shattered. The big hostel, which always was "out of bounds for British troops" has been burned by accident or design during German occupation. The station is a mass of twisted steel and shattered glass but already the French engineers are at work and soon the leave trains will be running again as of months ago. Hazebrouk has suffered least; Armentieres is badly mauled by shells. Its great factories blown up by Hun explosives and there is still the sticky smell of poison gas.

Around historic Vimy the Germans are pressed back but slightly stayed but from Bethune to bettered Arras, those little towns that have been the happy hunting ground for men from Halifax to Victoria, are now safe. Vimy's sombre cemetery with its giant cross marking the resting place of those who won what was then Canada's greatest victory, has been won back from the range of the largest German guns. The quiet picturesque, wall-topped plots that mark the graveyards of scores of Canadian battalions around Souchez, side by side with those of France who fell at the first great assault of the ridge, will never again be disturbed by Hun shells.

Before Albert and on the Somme the life has been rolled back too. At La Boisselle and Mounet Farm there are scores of "w" crosses under which sleep the fighting men from Canada. All along the Beaumont road you come across them until you reach Courcellette. The German has not burned them since his last advance. Sometimes a stray shell has obliterated a cross but generally these little plots, screened off by fences of barbed wire torn from neighboring trenches, have been respected by the enemy. Courcellette is a grass grown ruin but the historic plots are still to be traced. The two original tanks that helped the Canadians in their successful onslaught against what was thought an impregnable position, the "Corden-Rouge" and the "Corden de Mantle" are still there.

The sugar refinery is marked by its great boilers and twisted girders and stretches of wire and twisted tangled filches will tell you where this bloody Zelleru Redoubt was wrested from the Prussian Guards. Esquive is badly smashed and Peronne also. They are shewn wreckage of war through which the trade winds ahead to the fighting line now many miles away. There is none of the dignity of Ypres about them but they stand out patently on a skyline of devastation.

Southward again from the Somme there are little towns and villages where Canadian cavalry and the Motor Machine Gun Brigades made history. Outside of Amiens, in Rure and Noyon, even to Noyon there are clusters of graves, still there and respected by the Huns, where gallant men from Canada have been buried. They are far from their comrades who sleep in Flanders and around whose Canadian Corps won their other great victories; but there is one great tribute to them too, that hints them with bonds of bravery. They also saved the day. General Goproud, who is now smashing the enemy lines in the Champagne, told those who survived and published it in French orders: "The Canadians have saved the day." General Goproud, fought with them have as carefully tended those graves as Day have their own. They are there alongside the bravest of France and again in tain. Taylor and Herd were pitted against Vardon and Braid in a 9-ball foursome. Playing wonderfully Taylor and Herd were soon up. At the turn this lead was reduced to 1. At the 14th, however, they were again 3 up. Braid and Vardon, however, won the 15th and 16th and as the 17th was halved, Taylor and Herd were downy going the 18th. It was a great finish. Vardon placed his tee shot a yard from the hole, whilst Herd was the green, as was also Taylor. The latter, however, laid his second stone dead and as Vardon missed his putt, the hole was halved. Taylor and Herd won a most interesting match 1 up.
