ANNUAL MEETING OF ACADIA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

On Monday evening the Associated Alumni annual business meeting and reunion was held at the Women's Residence. It was a very successful and pleasing function and was largely attended. After prayer by Rev. J. A. Huntley, D.D., a brief address of welcome was given by the president, Rev. H. T. DeWolfe, D.D.

New members admitted were A. S. Currie, C. H. Read, Rev. F. L. Orchard, of Amherst; E. M. Vaughn, A. H. Chipman, of St. John; E. H. Cochran, Yarmouth; H. P. Moffat, Canso; Rev. W. D. Wilson, Middleton; Rev. A. N. Marshall, Wolfville; Rev. A. Vickers, Sackville; Rev. E. J. Bars, Bear River; W. H. Currie, Windsor.

Two excellent vocal selections were rendered by Mr. W. A. Jones. The sum of $600 was voted from the treasury toward the New Campaign. The report of the nominating committee was received and the following elected to office for the ensuing year:

President—Rev. H. T. DeWolfe, D.D.
Vice President—Prof. H. R. Haley
Sec-Treas.—Mrs. E. S. Mason

Directors—Miss Rogers, Mrs. Faye Stuart, Prof. F. E. Wheelock, Miss Pauline Perry, A. S. Burns, and Rev. O. N. Chipman.

Rev. Austen K. deBlois, Ph.D., L.L.D., of Boston, was the special speaker for the evening and his address was eloquent and inspiring. He turned the dial back toward the early beginnings of Acadia and showed the remarkable vision which the founders and leaders of the institution manifested, as well as the people who followed when they said, "Let us build a college without money."

President Patterson expressed his appreciation of the address which furnished the clear understanding which the speaker had of "the Acadia spirit."

Mr. R. A. Thorne, one of this year's graduates, spoke in behalf of his class, and Dr. Cutten was heard with pleasure by all present.

Prof. William Rogers referred to the progress that had already been made in the campaign and moved a vote of appreciation of Dr. Patterson's efforts in behalf of the university. This was seconded by Rev. Dr. Poole, and passed unanimously accompanied by a rousing cheer for the president.

A social hour followed which furnished an opportunity for the renewing of old acquaintances.

The Association now numbers about nine hundred, and three of these were nominated as members of the Board of Governors, namely, Rev. J. W. Manning, D.D., O. P. Goucher, B.A., and Dr. Leslie Eaton.

ONLY MAN IS VILE

To the Editor of the ACADIAN

Dear Sir,—The approach of summer is with us once more and nature is putting on her garments of beauty. The average householder is putting forth his every effort to make things more pleasing to the eye, yet there are places in our town that are sadly lacking in this respect.

Why do our town officials allow unsightly piles of old lumber to be left strewn along our public streets, which are not only a menace to public safety but a public eyesore? I understand there was a petition placed before the Council last year requesting its removal, but there was no attention paid to it. I want to ask how long these conditions would last under the gaze of some of our city officials.

Is not our tax money of just as much value as that of those who are fortunate enough to have property in the secluded area where part of our taxes go to have their front entrance dusted every morning? Oh, well, we may have to lump it, so what's the use.

Thanking you kindly, I remain
Yours for advancement
PATHFINDER.

INSPIRING SERVICES ON BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

Large Crowds Tax Seating Capacity of New University Hall

Baccalaureate Sunday at Acadia was this year of more than usual interest. Early in the day the weather conditions were far from reassuring, but later the sun made its appearance and flooded the earth with its radiance. All the exercises were held in the new University Hall, the magnificent proportions of which, it was considered, would provide ample accommodations for years to come. Long before the hour of opening a throng of interested friends began to assemble—a company which taxed the generous seating capacity and crowded the aisles of the handsome auditorium.

The members of the graduating class in conventional dress and gown marched slowly to the seats reserved for them, while the procession was sweetly rendered by two young ladies at the piano. President Patterson presided, and the scripture lesson was read by Rev. Dr. Marshall and prayer was offered by Rev. W. S. Richardson, of Montclair, N.J. Very feelingly Miss Ruth MacDonald rendered the composition of F. F. Harker, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," with Miss Blanche, of St. John, accompanying, after which Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" was given by the choir under the direction of Mr. W. A. Jones.

Dr. George Barton Cutten, Ph.D., D.D., L.L.D., formerly president of Acadia and now president of Colgate University, was the speaker, and he had an attentive and inspiring audience. In his address to the 1925 graduates Dr. Cutten discussed the two opposing tendencies in nature, life, religion and education—progress and conservatism—and declared that our religion should demand the most developed intellects and the most strenuous thinking, as it is the most important subject with which we have to deal.

The sermon was based on the text in Luke 17:32, "Remember Lot's wife," and the fate of the biblical character was turned into a pillar of salt as the result of looking backward served as the moral of the discourse. While the nature look, he said, is the most natural thing in the world, because by nature we are conservative and backward, he advised the young people, especially him who are entering upon the realities of life to continue to keep their eyes upon the east rather than the west, on the sunrise rather than upon the sunset. Unrepeatedly his address was punctuated with a question which he asked, "If that education would be in a period that ceased to read, if they ceased to study, if they ceased to think, they could not be classed among educated people."

In these wonderful days we cannot separate phases of life and say that one is closed backward to the early beginning of Acadia and showed the remarkable vision which the founders and leaders of the institution manifested, as well as the people who followed when they said, "Let us build a college without money."

President Patterson expressed his appreciation of the address which furnished the clear understanding which the speaker had of "the Acadia spirit."

Mr. R. A. Thorne, one of this year's graduates, spoke in behalf of his class, and Dr. Cutten was heard with pleasure by all present.

Prof. William Rogers referred to the progress that had already been made in the campaign and moved a vote of appreciation of Dr. Patterson's efforts in behalf of the university. This was seconded by Rev. Dr. Poole, and passed unanimously accompanied by a rousing cheer for the president.

A social hour followed which furnished an opportunity for the renewing of old acquaintances.

The Association now numbers about nine hundred, and three of these were nominated as members of the Board of Governors, namely, Rev. J. W. Manning, D.D., O. P. Goucher, B.A., and Dr. Leslie Eaton.

ENGINEERS WON TRACK MEET

The Acadia inter-class track and field meet was held Monday afternoon. Although the weather was threatening all during the tournament, a large crowd watched the events.

The outstanding feat of the meet was the winning of the mile run by A. V. Denton, of Little River, Digby county, in the fast time of 4 minutes 47 seconds, equalling the Maritime intercollegiate mark for the distance, set by Brown of Acadia in 1912. Denton had an easy win.

Engineers won the meet by scoring 57 points, 40 more than their nearest rivals, the Juniors. The Freshmen scored 11 points while the Sophomores counted 7.

McWha, Engineer star, was the leading point getter, leading all rivals by scoring a total of 23 points. Estey, Engineer, took second place with 18 points, while Tingley, Juniors, had 14 points to his credit.

The summary:

Dr. Patterson thanked the class of 1925 for their gift of $500 to go towards the lighting of University Hall, and also the Engineering students for their gift, made by themselves, of the platform chairs and lectern. He also announced the gift of $500 from the Dramatic Society for the purpose of purchasing stage fittings for the Hall, and the gift of $2000 from the class of 1915 for the assistance of needy students. The Alumni Reunion Cup was awarded to the class of 1915, Mrs. Vesta Pick Usley receiving it for the class.

In his address to the graduates President Patterson said that each of them, on entering the larger life of the world, would either "lift or lean. He will either be a bearer of burdens or a burden to be borne by somebody else." He drew the distinction between one who digs a monument for display, and urged that every student carrying away the college parchment enter upon a life of sacrificial service, "for he who has dug for eternity builds the life of his kind of monument that can endure."

Each of the distinguished visitors present gave a short address thanking the University for the degree conferred on him. In his address Dr. DeWolfe announced that the sum of $1600, which had been raised through the efforts of Mrs. Rust, former vice-principal of the Seminary, would be presented to the University, the proceeds of which would go for a scholarship in biology, to be known as the Henry Burton DeWolfe Scholarship.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE CONTEST

Our readers in the Gaspereau Valley either found last week's puzzle a difficult one or they were not much interested in the contest, as only one solution was sent in and that was not correct. This week's puzzle will again be open to all who wish to compete, and we hope for a large number of correct solutions.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. S. W. A. Woodworth of Gaspereau desires through THE ACADIAN to extend his sincere thanks to all those who lovingly cared for his wife during her many weeks of illness.

In a certain school recently the children were asked to name ten of the principal towns and cities in the Maritime Provinces and the outstanding fact in connection with each, 40 out of the 42 mentioned that Halifax was noted as the home of Moirs.

This year fishers will have the advantage of taking along Moirs Camp Chocolate. Nibbled on the tramp or waiting on the banks it is not only a confection but a food. And what dandy sweetened cocoa it makes.

ACADIA'S ANNIVERSARY

DURING the past week Acadia University has passed through the activities of a very successful series of closing exercises. The attendance at these has been phenomenally large, taxing the capacity of the new University Hall which was occupied for the first time on this occasion. Many graduates of long standing were present to take part in the ceremonies and offer their felicitations and congratulations to those who today are responsible for the administration of the affairs of their alma mater. It is exceedingly pleasing to again have the opportunity of meeting these old time residents of Wolfville, some of whom are natives of and have brought honor to this town.

Naturally those who have all the years since their graduation retained a keen interest in the educational institutions located here will view with interest and satisfaction the evidences of progress which are manifest in the handsome structure which now adorns the site of the old building with which their memories are familiar, as well as in the increasing number of students who year by year are taking advantage of the opportunities which Acadia offers to young men and women of this and other lands.

In these days of great problems, when the need of education is perhaps better appreciated than ever before, it is most gratifying to note the strong hold which the interests of our institutions of learning maintain in the public estimation as indicated year after year in the ever increasing enthusiasm displayed at such gatherings as Acadia's anniversary.

TRADE AT HOME

EVERY merchant in Wolfville, and every business man of the orchards and farms around us, is an advocate of the trade-at-home idea.

It promotes community pride, pep and growth.

It is only giving the same support a parent is always willing to favor a child. Wolfville and neighborhood is the child; we, the citizens, are the parents.

The business and industries of this community are the traits of the child. They should be developed to the utmost. And as with a child, the more talents developed, the greater the man or—our town.

Our folks—mostly all—are buyers in the home market. They realize that it is the merchants and public-spirited men who do things in this town. And that these men cannot do big things unless the home business is patronized.

This newspaper is one of the business institutions of Wolfville. It needs to be supported—the same as any line of merchandising.

Circulation—subscribing for this paper—is one way of support. Another way is for the merchants and farm business men to buy advertising space in the columns of this paper.

Newspaper advertising is the foundation stone to successful selling. Buying of equipment, to be operated by inexperienced help in the attempt to get "exclusive" and "direct" letters, circulars and pamphlets, has never impressed the buyer as being exact co-operation in the buy-at-home idea.

Teamwork means for all of us to pull together.

ONE LAW FOR ALL

THE FUTILITY of human justice must be apparent to every careful observer who notes the doings of present day administrators of the laws of any land. With no desire to be counted as disrespectful to the courts we cannot but reflect that in far too many cases the enforcement of the penalties of the law are apparently for the poor and ignorant rather than for the affluent and influential. Such being the case is it any wonder that class differences exist. No such inequalities are evident in the carrying out of the laws which govern the realm of nature. "As a man soweth so must he reap" applies with equal force, and there is no failure in its application.

The well being of every nation and community is dependent very largely upon the respect in which law and order and the administration of justice is held. Possibly we have too many laws upon our statute books, but none that are there inscribed can with impunity be disregarded. In a democratic land such as ours laws are lightly made and easily changed, and because of this are not always taken as seriously as they should be. However, we cannot afford to have different laws for different classes, and while they exist they are deserving of respect because they represent the will of the government which represents the will of the people.

In these latter times the smuggling of intoxicants in this country is openly referred to as though it were no longer a crime, and running as if it had ceased to be a disgrace. The fact that it is a lucrative occupation and participated in by men of affluence adds rather than detracts from its enormity.

WOLFVILLE'S PROSPERITY

WE EARNESTLY commend to the attention of our Wolfville readers the "Community Page" which appears in this week's issue. Readers in other sections may just as readily take the message which it contains to heart by substituting in place of the word "Wolfville" the name of that particular region which they call home.

It is an inspiring and patriotic word which our business and professional men have to offer to their fellow citizens, and is deserving of careful and thoughtful consideration. For several months past these messages of hope and invitations to join in community service have appeared. This week's message is particularly strong and appealing and bears in it the spirit of true devotion that makes for good citizenship. May it be adopted in the same spirit in which it is sent out and result in a more consecrated devotion to public welfare and the making of Wolfville into an "ideal community" of which its people may well be proud.

A BOY'S COMPACT

TWO boys recently ran away from their homes. They were picked up by police in another town and sent back home to their parents. When found they carried an agreement they had made before starting out. It pledged them as follows: (1) Once we leave, we stay together. (2) Not to fight. (3) Not to smoke or steal. (4) If dispute arises on any matter toss up to settle it. (5) Fifty-fifty on everything. (6) To keep going south and not back. (7) Play the game fair. Not such a bad agreement for two youngsters to make. It is no doubt best for them that they were found and returned to their homes. Education and a little more wise discipline should help rather than harm them. But if they retain their adventurous spirit along with their ideals of comradeship, fair play, honesty and stick-to-it-iveness they should go far on their journey toward success.

Wolfville's Prosperity

Wolfville can be prosperous only when folks in this community have set their hearts in that direction and have contributed the energy necessary to bring that condition about.

Wolfville will be prosperous in reality when every citizen has assumed his or her share of responsibility.

Community progress means good government, clean minds, the spirit of service, alleviation of poverty, absence of unemployment, increase of co-operation and avoidance of waste.

And this progress will not come from any single effort. Every one of us in Wolfville must constantly strive for the betterment of the community in every way possible.

Let us have the courage, energy, enterprise and patriotic service to make Wolfville an example and inspiration to other communities.

Let us make our town more than a mere plot of ground on which we live. Let us work toward what Wolfville should be. Then, with all working together, "the ideal community" will inevitably be the comment wherever the name of our town is mentioned.

The following Wolfville firms and individuals heartily subscribe to the above appeal to civic patriotism

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS ON SUNDAY

A distressing accident occurred on Sunday afternoon at Hortonville, when Frank Davison, son of Guerdon Davison, of Avonport, who was bicycling to Wolfville to attend the closing exercises of the college, was struck by a Halifax car proceeding in the same direction. It is said that Davison attempted to cross the road in front of the car, the driver of which was unable to avoid striking him. The unfortunate man was dragged under the car entangled in his bicycle, and sustained such injury that it was found necessary to amputate his leg. He was brought to Westwood Hospital, where his injuries were treated and the amputation performed by Dr. M. R. Elliott, assisted by Dr. Avery deWitt and Dr. Smith, of Grand Pre, who has charge of the case. At last advice the injured man was progressing as favorably as could be expected.

As the result of an automobile collision which occurred on Sunday afternoon just outside the eastern town limits, Mrs. George A. Coldwell, of Kentville, sustained severe injury, including a broken shoulder. The cars, which were driven by Ellis Collishaw, of Windsor, and Mr. Coldwell, were proceeding in opposite directions. It seems that Mr. Collishaw, who was returning from the college exercises here, attempted to pass a car in front of him when he saw the Coldwell car approaching. An impact was inevitable but presence of mind on the part of both drivers, prevented further injury to the vehicles than bent guards, both being able to proceed to their destination. When the accident occurred the door of the Coldwell car was slightly ajar, and the shock threw Mrs. Coldwell out upon the road. The other occupants of both cars were uninjured.

MRS. S. W. WOODWORTH

There passed to rest Wednesday morning, May 20th, at Gasperau, a much loved and highly respected resident, Mrs. S. W. Woodworth, in her 85th year.

She was a daughter of the late Augustus Eagles, of Gasperau Mt. When a young woman she united with the Gasperau Baptist church and remained a faithful member until her death. During the last year, when failing health prevented her attendance at church, it was her great pleasure to have the Women's Missionary Society, of which she was a Life member, hold its meetings at her home.

Early in the winter she had an attack of pneumonia from which she rallied only to be seized later with the illness which caused her death. She bore her sufferings with remarkable Christian patience, and was lovingly cared for by relatives and friends, her niece, Miss Fannie Cole, coming from Framingham, Mass., to spend many weeks with her.

She leaves a sorrowing husband, two sisters, Mrs. Matilda Nowlan, of Newport, Mass., and Mrs. Zilpha Blair, of Oxford, N.S., and a brother, Marsden Eagles, of Framingham, Mass.

The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the home and the church by the pastor, Mr. G. W. Guiou, the choir rendering the appropriate selections, "I would not live always," "He Wipes the Tear from every Eye," and "Asleep in Jesus". Interment was in the Gasperau Cemetery.

Archbishop Worrell held a Confirmation last Sunday in St. John's church at 4 o'clock, when the rector presented ten candidates. There was a large congregation, the church being filled to the doors.

The Archbishop gave a very impressive address to the candidates. In the evening his grace held another confirmation in the Kentville church. He returned to Halifax on Monday.

With such a keen interest in all the affairs of the town and his election should bring added strength to the administration of our municipal affairs.

Tuesday was nomination day for the civic election to fill the place at the Council board made vacant by the resignation of Coun. Mitchell. There was only one nomination, that of Dr. William Grant, who is thus elected by acclamation. Although only a resident of Wolfville for a comparatively few years, Dr. Grant has evinced a keen interest in all the affairs of the town and his election should bring added strength to the administration of our municipal affairs.

ACADIA CLASS DAY EXERCISES

The graduating class of Acadia Ladies Seminary held their Class Day Exercises in University Hall on Monday afternoon, before a good sized audience. The members of the class marched to their places on the platform, and looked most attractive in their frocks of white and red, with red ties, made by themselves.

The program this year was of a different nature than it has been in the past. Instead of the class history and prophecy, an All Senior edition of the Pierian Paper had been prepared, which was read by Misses Ena Koop, Mary Fearon and Alexandra McLean. The musical numbers consisted of a vocal duet by Misses Mary Brady and Doris Leard, and a piano solo by Miss Margaret Barnaby. The Valedictory was given by Miss Evelyn Hatfield.

The Class Day Exercises of the Graduating Class of the University were held on Tuesday morning, before a large audience. The officers of the class are: R. A. Thorne, president; Evelyn R. Bentley, vice-president; Inga Marion Vogler, secretary; Vernon D. Shaffner, treasurer.

After the entrance march the president welcomed the friends to their exercises in a few appropriate words, commenting on the fact that they were the first class to graduate in the new building.

The reading of the minutes and the roll call was performed by the secretary, Inga Vogler. In the business discussion, it was decided that the sum of $500 be appropriated from the class funds towards the cost of the chandeliers and lighting fixtures in the auditorium.

A solo was rendered by Harry Molina which was well received. Claire Cullen read the Class History. This was one of the best histories heard at Acadia in recent years and received great attention.

The Class Prophecy, by Theodore Roy, was of a humorous vein, and showed wit and originality. Preston Warren gave the Valedictory, which was poetic in its language and a masterpiece of expression.

BACK YARDS

Our house front may be shining with varnish and with paint, Our windows all may glisten in the sun; We may sweep and dust and clean till ready 'most to faint,

And hang up brand new curtains one by one; But if our back yard's cluttered with rubbish and with dirt, Soiled milk bottle and old tomato cans, Our neighbors, when they look from their windows, may be hurt.

By a view of broken glass and rusty pans, A beautiful green lawn is a charming sight to see, With robin redbreast tripping here and there,

But if the weeds are carried back and thrown down carelessly In great untidy heaps, our neighbors stare And make unkind remarks about the nice effect and grunt

At the way things in our back yard appear; They care little how we beautify our property in front, If it's full of piles of rubbish in the rear.

"Always put your best foot foremost," a grandmother used to say, And maybe to a great extent that's true; But we ought to move the other foot as fast along the way,

With no worn spots or run down heels to view. "Love your neighbor as yourself" is a better rule today, For you'd like him to assist you in your plans;

But your neighbor will not love you, and will look the other way, If your back yard's full of dirt and old tin cans.—Ray H. Cross, in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

ACADIA CONSERVATORY ORCHESTRA GIVES SPLENDID CONCERT

A large audience attended the concert given by the Acadia Conservatory Orchestra, assisted by Mr. W. A. Jones, in University Hall last Thursday evening, and all were loud in their praises of the splendid entertainment given, as well as of the fine new hall which was used for the first time, the acoustic properties of which were found to be perfect.

The six numbers given by the orchestra, which is composed of twenty-five instruments, were all excellently rendered and reflected great credit on the director, Mr. Carl Farnsworth, who is to be congratulated on the fine program presented. The singing of Mr. Jones was never enjoyed by a Wolfville audience and all his selections were loudly encored. Miss Irene Card added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening by her splendid work as accompanist. Taken in all the performance was one of the best musical entertainments ever given in Wolfville. The full program was as follows:

ACADIA DEFEATS MT. ALLISON

In Two Games of Baseball—Scores 14 to 5 and 9 to 0

Two interesting games of baseball were played on the college campus last Saturday afternoon between teams representing Mt. Allison and Acadia universities. The latter team was easily the better and won both games, the scores being 14 to 5 and 9 to 0. The first game was replete with heavy hitting and loose fielding but was fairly even until the seventh inning, when the locals ran up a big lead which they retained to the end. O. Noble hit a triple and C. Munro also hit the ball hard. Elderkin and Munro were the battery for Acadia, and McKenzie and Linden for Mount Allison. In the second game Munro pitched a two-hit shutout over the visitors. This game was productive of better fielding and pitching. Bartheux, Acadia's Captain, hit a triple with three on bases, Carl Angus and L. Williamson unimpeded. The line-up: Acadia—C. Munro, c; B. Elderkin, p; Noble, 1b; Gould, 2b; McPherson, 2b; Eaton, 3b; Bartheux, ss; Lane, rf; J. Elderkin, cf; Bishop, lf; D. Munro, p. Mount Allison—Linden, c; McGlagger, p; Archibald, 1b; Chown, 2b; Lister, 3b; Burke, ss; Holland, rf; MacKenzie, cf; Brownell, lf.

MAKING COUNTRY ROADS SAFE FOR PEDESTRIANS

That accidents can occur easily and often in city streets filled with busy throngs is not difficult to understand. It would be surprising if it were otherwise. Much study has been given to the problem of making city streets as safe as possible for pedestrians, and many rules have been formulated with this object in view. Now the time has come to consider the safety of rural and suburban thoroughfares as they affect the dweller in the country. One of the most glaring instances of carelessness, even absolute disregard for their own safety on the part of pedestrians is the manner in which many people walk on paved highways on the outskirts of cities. It is advisable for these pedestrians to walk on the left hand side of the road facing the direction from which automobiles may be approaching. Some cities have adopted means of encouraging this precaution by placing warning signs on their highways directing the pedestrian to walk on the left hand side of the road. The time of greatest danger is the evening. It is astonishing how many people will deliberately walk on the right hand side of the road in the dark, where at times it is almost impossible for a motorist to see them until he is so close that it is extremely difficult for him to stop without hitting them. When the motorist is driving with dimmed lights to accommodate a car approaching from the opposite direction it puts the pedestrian in a dark pocket with his back turned to the car approaching on the right hand side of the road. He has no chance to judge its speed or its distance from him. Every motorist knows that when he is passing cars going in the opposite direction with lights on there is a dark spot for a certain distance ahead of his car and it is impossible for him to see a per-

THE GOOD MOTORIST IS ALWAYS LOOKING FOR NEW METHODS THAT HE CAN APPLY TO HIS DRIVING.

The good motorist is always looking for new methods that he can apply to his driving. He learns how to drive with safety over strange roads, how best to make both right and left turns, how to go down steep grades, how to approach strange or dangerous crossroads or railroad crossings, how to drive over the tops of hills, how to negotiate sand and mud, how to pass safely vehicles going in the same direction and how to meet those approaching him. The traffic problem is an individual problem. It is up to every individual motorist and every individual pedestrian to do his share for safety by obeying the simple rules and precautions that experience has shown are essential. The individual who obeys these simple precautions, whether he is a motorist or a pedestrian, is almost certain to avoid mishaps. And he will be surprised to see the good effects that are brought about by his example. U. N. B. WON INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET

EMPIRE DAY OBSERVED AT SCHOOL

Empire Day was fittingly observed in the Hantsport schools and the following program carried out:

Chorus—"O Canada" by school.
Flag Exercises.—including songs and recitations by the primary room, under the direction of the teacher, Miss E. Hume. The little ones were most appropriately costumed for the occasion, each one carrying a Union Jack.

Flag Salute—Miss Stoddard's room.
Origin, meaning and object of Empire Day—Principal Sarty.

The important feature of the program however, was an address by Rev. Dr. Dickie, which brought to the minds of pupils and teachers more clearly than ever before, the grandness of our Province and the greatness of the British Empire, of which we form a part. The speaker set forth an urgent plea for loyalty to God, to ourselves and to our empire.

The program was brought to a close by Mr. Sarty's expression of gratefulness to Dr. Dickie for his very interesting address, while the school expressed their appreciation by hearty applause. The school was given a half holiday.

DOCTOR AND FAMILY REMOVE FROM HANTSPORT

Dr. F. R. Shankel and family left Saturday to reside in Windsor. Since coming here several years ago, Dr. Shankel has established a large practice and taken a keen interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of the town.

During the last few weeks several social functions were given in their honor. On Thursday evening, the "Lambada Sigma Society", of which Mrs. Shankel was a valued member, were entertained at the home of Mrs. D. W. Murray, Avon street. She was presented with a folding umbrella and a bouquet of carnations, the presentation being made by the President, Mrs. J. W. Hancock in behalf of the organization, to which Mrs. Shankel fittingly replied.

HANTSPORT BASKETERS LOSE AT HALIFAX

The Hantsport "Maples", who had not suffered one defeat during the season met their "Waterloo" on Friday evening, when they journeyed to Halifax, where they played a return game with St. Paul's basketball team. The following account of the game is taken from a Halifax paper:

St. Paul's Church basketball team scored a 62 to 24 victory over the fast Hantsport sextette at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last evening in a thrilling exhibition. A large crowd attended. This game was probably the last of the season here.

The R33 was badly damaged when she broke away from her mooring mast and was carried off in a high wind over the North Sea and across Holland. The photo shows the nose of the machine battered in and the inset shows Flight-Lieut. He brought the giant airship safely back to Fulham, Norfolk, from whence the breakaway took place.

The locals got away to a fast start, scoring twenty points in the opening session while the visitors managed to amass half that number. In the second period, St. Paul's swarmed all over their opponents, scoring 42 points, while Hantsport managed to send in seven baskets for fourteen points. Grisdale, of the locals, was the leading scorer of the evening, netting eleven baskets for 22 points. Fordham was a close second, scoring twenty points. Hyson with seven points, was the leading point getter for the visitors. The players and points:

Hantsport—Hyson, forward, 7; Flemming, forward; Bishop, centre, 5; Faulkner, guard, 6; Beckwith, guard, 6; McDonald and Beazley.

DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

Oct. 28th, 1850. Monday Morning. Well, my house looks as lonesome as ever when I enter it. I came home early this morning after having been away nearly a week. How sad and altered all things appear to what they did when Simon was here or I had hopes of his coming. While at father's I took a walk daily down the glen below the house and to the bridge to gaze at the flowing waters. It reminds me of the stream of time, thinking our lives are going as fast. Saturday afternoon I had a great ramble around the most rugged and steep bank I could find, and up to the spot where Simon and I sat so happily a little over a year ago. The melancholy winds and wild rambles suit my spirit better than anything I find. During the past fortnight I have been unable to put my mind on any reading except the Bible. I find daily comfort in the many precious promises for mourning afflicted souls. The past week has been uncommonly fine for the season. Old Father Harris came to father's yesterday and stopped a while; his words were comforting to me, he too knows the loss of a partner. He preached in the morning and Rev. Vaughan preached in the afternoon. As I was going into Hibbert's this forenoon he said, "There has more trouble come to our family". I asked, "What?" He said, "James Holmes has been brought home dead". I felt my grief fresh then, as I thought of poor dear Abigail. I came home, and then Hibbert came for me to go to tell Abigail; he said he could not do it. She had gone to Ann Barker's with her boys to spend the day. I went over, but could not go in the room where she was. "Oh," I thought, "if she only knew it, I could see her." After a while I went in and talked of what had happened, saying we knew not who would be afflicted next; then I spoke of James and said Hibbert had heard from him, and I went out of the room. Abigail followed me and demanded to know what I meant. I told her to be prepared for the worst. She began to scream. "You tell me he is dead", and she shook me. After she Michener and Mrs. Kendal came in, and after a while she prepared to go home; her father, Mrs. Kendal and I went with her, Emily Ann and some others following after. A short time afterward the body was brought home; the "Manchester" had brought him, having been put on board from the "Sterling" yesterday afternoon; and he died about eleven o'clock last night. He prayed about half an hour and then asked to be laid down; he only breathed a few times more, and was gone. There he was in his sailor clothes, looking so natural. Both sat thinking a space. Then Piccolo said: "But there is surely something else on your mind?"

"It's that light," said MacPherson. "I don't think it was a star. Shield your eyes from our own fire, and see if you don't see it still."

Piccolo moved clear away from the fire to stare at the black bulk of the rolls of hill to south.

"Can't make out anything now," said he. "But who do you think it would be? Movie Bill? Do you think he would come overland himself the way you suggested to the Kokanee policeman?"

Angus frowned. "What puzzles me," said he, "is how he knew to say that letter that we were going not to Kokanee but to south of the West Arm here."

Piccolo looked troubled. "You forget the map he stole," said he. "No, I don't," said Angus. "But I don't see how it could tell him. I drew a big bit of the country in that. And, besides, it was not until after the map was stolen that we made these plans."

"Perhaps I gave it away a bit at the Benwell House the way Jack and I got back," suggested Piccolo. "Some folk called me over from the road to say nothing at all except: 'Well, you are back!' I remember that fellow Greer asked me where we had been."

"And you told him?"

"I said: 'About eighty miles north by air line. I was going to say north of the Boundary but I was interrupted, so left it at that. Now I remember that clearly.'"

"Hoots, man! Then I don't see how you can blame yourself with having given any locality away, that light— if it was man-made—might be of some wandering prospector who knows no more of us than the babe unborn."

Piccolo wondered if he should tell of dropping the fragments of stone from his pocket at the Benwell House. He shielded his eyes from the fire-glow thought it over—then decided not to tell.

Angus, talking then, changed the theme slightly. "I wanted to think well of Allardyce," said he. "So many folks were ready to think him a high braggart, that light— No, not he suddenly broke out. 'There is more than that. You see—' he paused. He tried again. 'You see,' said he. 'I never saw his face as a bad face. I pride myself on being a student of physiognomy. Out here, in the big timber, we get simplified, Piccolo. I confess myself, my inmost heart to you. I am hurt. I'm peeved, and ye might say, I'm disappointed doubly, and sorely, for I thought I was a student of physiognomy.'"

He rose and moved from the fire and stared at the mountains across the lake, into which they would soon be journeying.

"No, I can see no fire now. Maybe it was a star, maybe it was not. Of course, as I say, it might be a prospector."

"It might be those two men who went ashore from the boat to the south of the Arm."

"Man, I doubt it. They could hardly break through all the woods up to that peak in so short a time. Well, it doesn't matter—star or camp-fire, it doesn't matter. I'm just peeved about Movie Bill. You see, and then he heaved a sigh. 'I'm going to turn in, he said. They slept soundly and woke to the gentle splash of lake water on the shore, and the discs of sunlight dancing on the little ripples. It was while they were at breakfast, discussing the day's work (Angus was to fish while Piccolo cut "plates," as he called them, of birch bark from the trees) that Piccolo suddenly said:

"What's that miniature warship?"

Angus looked in the direction of his gaze over the water.

"Ah-ha!" he broke out. "You never saw a canoe like that, did you? It's a Peterboro' lad. That's a Kootenay Indian canoe—made of stretched hide over a frame, and they have bow and stern sloped forwards into the water. They are kiltish boats for to get into. I once tried six times in succession and every time rolled her over and had to swim out. And the said Kootenay that let me try just stood watching me, with a glint in his eyes and the wee-est twist to his mouth."

"There's a whole fleet of them," said Piccolo. "They are going to the south shore."

"There's our ferry!" ejaculated Angus, and rising he shouted: "Ho Tillikum!"

Then he turned to Piccolo. "I can't talk Kootenay, but most of them talk Chinook," he explained.

The hail was heard and one canoe turned toward them while the others went to the south shore half a mile away, and there beached. The canoe that came to their side of the lake contained three old men who seemed in the same world with old buffalo bulls, or very aged eagles. They came ashore and shook hands; and, a Chinook, Angus asked them to act as ferry-men.

So it was that half-an-hour later Piccolo and Angus were ashore on the south side, where the creek now called MacPherson Creek sends its foam of silver ripples on to the shining waters of Flat-Bow lake. They got out, and as they were unloading their belongings, one of the Indians—the oldest-looking—saw the binoculars and was aware of their service. He said something to Angus, who handed them to him.

They were then about a quarter of a mile below the beach where the other Indians had gone ashore, and the old Indian, focussing the glasses, looked back at the camp. Then he beckoned to one of his fellows, and handed him the glasses. Number two looked awhile, and beckoned to number three. There they sat like effigies on a log, the binoculars passing from hand to hand, without a smile, each looking at the Indian camp a quarter of a mile away about the same length of time, then passing them on. Then the first one laughed, and called something to Angus who was re-strapping his pack-sack ready for the trek. Angus replied, laughing too. "What does he say?" asked Piccolo. "He says that they can sit there and watch if the women work well. They will be Big Medicine Men when they go back and tell them all they did in their absence."

Piccolo had his pack-sack on his back, rifle swung to his shoulder, ax in hand. "How long will they want to sit there looking?" he said.

"Children! Just children like the rest of us," observed Angus. "We'll give them another peep or two each and then we'll go."

He strolled over to the point where the Indians sat on their log, talked with them a spell; and Piccolo was relieved when he saw the binocular glasses returned to their owner without protest.

Angus came back to him. The old men in the dungarees and battered hats, with the thin braids of hair hanging down, got into their canoe to paddle along to their camp.

Piccolo and Angus marched into the scrub of willow and cottonwood along the south shore—unaware that a mere fifteen miles south, and four thousand feet above them, Movie Bill sat by a lonely camp-fire, pondering many things; though it was not his camp-fire they had seen twinkling from across the lake.

CHAPTER XIV

Give-Out Creek

It was at about four miles inland from the lake, and maybe fifteen hundred feet above the shore level, that Angus MacPherson, who was in the lead there, abruptly went down upon his knees as though in adoration of the soaring of the tamaracks, the green of the balsams (some with a wondrous silt of blue, related, it seemed to the bloom on peaches—the waving leaf-clusters, like maiden-hair fern, of the silver-needled birches.)

Piccolo hastened after him and bent over him, a look of alarm on his face. "What is it, Scotty?" he asked.

Under the weight of the pack-sack and rifle and blanket-roll, bowed forward, thus kneeling, Angus looked up. The sweat was in his eyes, blinding him; it was salt on his lips.

"It's nothing," he said, "it's only that I'm tired."

"My God!" exclaimed Piccolo, in treble. "Drop your pack, sir. Drop your pack, Mac-Angus. I can hear the sands in his eyes, blinding him; it was salt on his lips."

"I will go on," said Angus, "if you'll give me an ease up to my feet. I am—tired!"

Even without aid from Piccolo he rose and lurched on; but Piccolo, with a quick glance at him, dropped his own pack and, pannikin in hand (they always carried a pannikin easy of access, lest wanting to drink from a creek while tramping), and rifle still slung from shoulder, went crashing rapidly ahead.

"You wait, he yelled over his shoulder, and hastened through the scrub. Angus sighed and sat down on his partner's pack. He moved his arms backward and loosened his own load from his shoulders; he let it sag back; then he too sagged to earth. He put his head on Piccolo's pack and immediately fell asleep.

Thus Piccolo found him, returning in haste a few minutes later. Angus opened his eyes.

"Man, that was a grand nap!" he ejaculated. "How long have you been gone?"

"Why, not five minutes. Have a drink of water."

Angus drank eagerly and then poured some of the water into a palm and ran it, thus wet, round behind his ears and neck.

"It has been a long and arduous business," said he. "We did a great part yonder across the lake in winter. He paused for breath. "And, man, it is awful close and summer-like by contrast here. 'I'll be better when we mount higher.'"

"There's a dandy camp-place right here, Scotty—fifty yards ahead, cool and shady, beside a creek."

(It is the creek called Give-Out Creek today. Some people think that it being so called is evidence that it gives out occasionally, that its flow stops; but not so. It comes from springs, and drains vast upper areas among big cedars and velvet moss. It was there that old-timer Angus MacPherson gave out. That is all. Such is the derivation of that place-name.)

Piccolo was overjoyed, full of a sense of relief (for he had dreaded a dire calamity on seeing Angus suddenly go down upon his knees) by the effect of that wonderful forty winks of exhaustion. A leaden hue he had noted had gone from MacPherson's face.

"You wait there," said Piccolo. "I'll just go ahead and fix a camp while you rest, and then come back to pack your load and mine. Now don't you stir, Scotty."

Leaving the pannikin of water, still half-filled, by Angus's side, Piccolo went on again to the creek. Angus could hear the clip of his ax, making camp, sound muffled through the woods. He cut down two forked twigs, or thereby, trees; he lopped them into poles. He cut another slender tree down and lopped it. Then between two big trees he raised, horizontally, the plain pole, supported and leant against them by the forked ones, the butts of the latter thrust in the earth. The branches he had cut from all three trees he criss-crossed and tossed down, as a mattress, under that skeleton prepared for the canvas. Then he returned to Angus. By the time he reached his partner, MacPherson had risen and was lifting his pack.

"No, no," said Piccolo. "I'll take it."

So Angus just followed him to the camp-site and, seeing it, gave Piccolo a nod of thanks, a growl of: "Fine, man! Fine twig of a body!" and straightway sat down, then reclined, propped on an elbow on the fir-bough bed.

"Ay," he said. "I'll leave the rest to you."

"Sure!" said Piccolo shrilly, for his voice to pierce the creek's rumble to which they were not at once accustomed. Back he went for the other pack and, returning, wisely left the casting of the canvas over the framework until a meal should be prepared for Angus's refreshment.

"I feel too tired to eat," said the old prospector, seeing the preparations. "Have a snack anyhow, and some tea," Piccolo advised.

CANADA TO EXHIBIT AT NEW ZEALAND

Dominion Will be Represented at South Seas Exhibition This Year

OTTAWA, May 17.—Canada will be represented at the New Zealand and South Seas International Exhibition between November, 1925, and April, 1926.

Though the official announcement has not yet been made it is known here that the negotiations are all but completed. Canada's exhibit will be arranged by the Department of Immigration in conjunction with other branches of the Federal government and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

J. O. Turcott, of the Immigration Department, who designed the Canadian building at Wembley, will probably go to New Zealand shortly to take charge of the Canadian exhibit. The present staff at Wembley will remain in England until the termination of the British exhibition.

The exhibition will be held at Dunedin in all 80,000 feet of space. The Vancouver Board of Trade is said to be organizing a delegation to the Exhibition.

5000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA

"5000 Facts About Canada" is famous as a rich storehouse of information about the Dominion. It is the production of Frank Yeigh, the recognized authority on this country as writer and lecturer.

The 22nd annual edition is out for 1925, and will, as in former years, be welcomed by an appreciative public. Fifty chapters—from "Agriculture" to "Yukon"—include a series of striking facts presented in a crisp, terse form that fastens them on the mind.

The 1925 issue contains much new matter, including a striking comparative table of our national growth during the quietude of a century since 1800. The book may be secured at leading dealers, or by sending 35 cents to the Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 588 Huron Street, Toronto. He who would know Canada will find this wonderful little book a means to that end.

Smile when your chum has a touch of the "blues". And tell him you understand. Don't turn him down as cross and dull. But lend him a helping hand.

Smile, when you're asked to do a good turn. And don't try to make excuse. There's nought in life if you are mean. And selfish, so what's the use?

Smile, and try hard to be a good pal. Just comfort and cheer and guide. Some other soul worse off than you— That someone close to your side.

SWEEPING HELP

If brooms are soaked in strong, hot salt and water before using, the splints will not break in sweeping. While sweeping, keep a pail of warm water near, frequently dip the broom in it and shake off the water, changing it as it becomes soiled. The wet broom wears the carpet less than a dry one, and the dampness keeps the dust from flying.

An excellent way to brush down dusty walls is to take a roll of cotton batting and fasten a thick pad of it on the end of a stick.

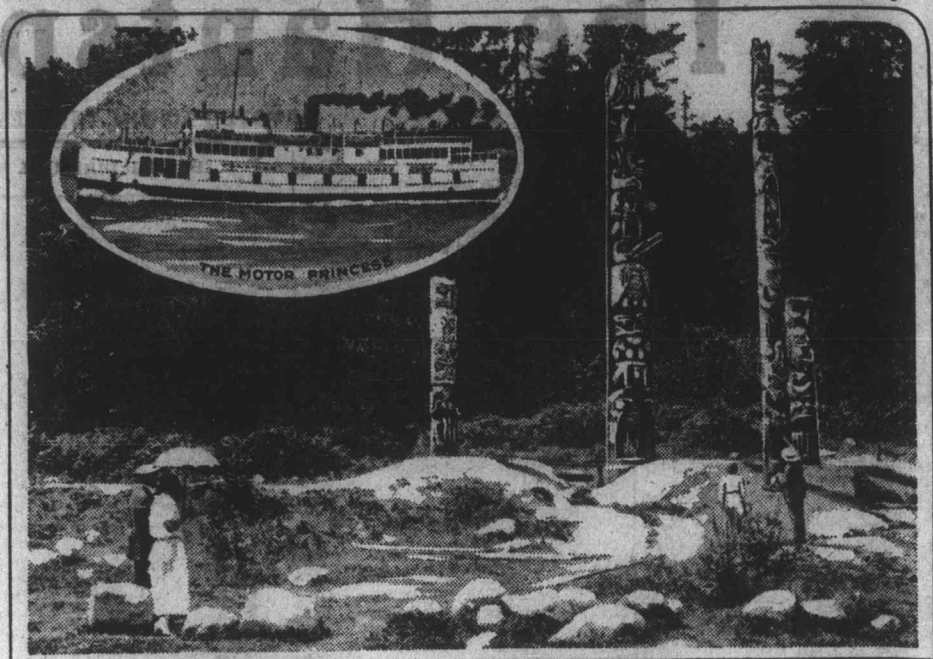

With this go over all the wall surface, burning the cotton as it becomes soiled, and renewing the pad.

TAN CORDED SILK ENSEMBLE IS TRIMMED WITH LIGHT BLUE

Corded silk makes the youthful ensemble shown here, with its jumper frock and three-quarter coat. The silk is of the corded variety, which is much used this season. The dress is made with inverted pleats for fullness and is worn with a blue and white striped silk blouse. The coat reaches to within a few inches of the bottom of the frock. It is trimmed with bands of light blue corded silk, which also mark the pockets of the frock.

The Bellingham Ferry that meets all the Autos

Totem Poles at Stanley Park, Vancouver.

Have you ever heard of Clo-oose? Appearances may be against it, but it is not a typographical error; neither is it a bird-call, nor Chinese for chewing-gum. It is, as a matter of fact, a thriving town on Vancouver Island, rapidly becoming famous for its salmon, shooting and scenery, and as one of the most interesting spots on the coast of British Columbia.

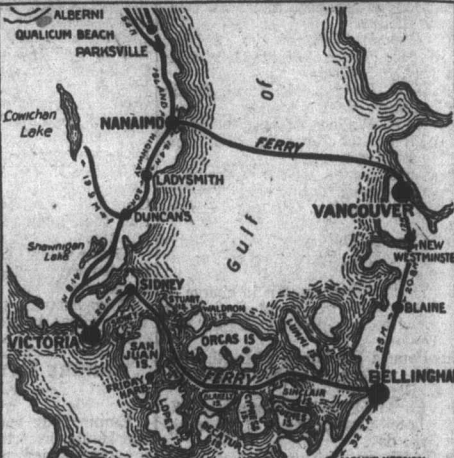

This coast is yearly becoming more popular with tourists from the South—California, Seattle, etc., Eastern Canada and practically everywhere else. But that detached portion of the coast, known as Vancouver Island is especially attractive. It possesses beauty of a mountainous, rugged, arboreal type, excellent in magnificence only by the Rocky Mountains and unexcelled anywhere for its hunting and fishing.

Incidentally, too, the Island is traversed by paved, winding highways, which are a delight to motorists and a credit to the Provincial Highway Department.

Indians (who have become so used to tourists, they no longer scalp them), inhabit most of the villages which are scattered along the Coast. They have not, however, entirely abandoned the practice of scalping, but nowadays they confine their activities in this respect to salmon, herrings, whales and similar trifles.

They (the Indians not the whales), are a thrifty, sober, industrious people engaged for the most part in catching fish and canning them in the local factories.

The Island is reached by means of a ferry-boat—"The Motor Princess"—operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway between Bellingham, on the mainland and Sidney, on the Island. This ferry is especially adapted to the transportation of automobiles and enables the tourist to run his car straight off the mainland highway, across the Gulf of Georgia and on to the Island highway, which he can follow south to

Part of Coast of British Columbia showing route of motor ferry boats between Vancouver Island and the mainland. Victoria, the capital of the province, and thence north to Nanaimo, Clo-oose or any of the other attractive parts of the Island.

It is an extremely pleasant trip, full of interesting out-of-the-ordinary sights and anybody who has toured British Columbia without visiting Vancouver Island and Clo-oose—ought to tour it again and correct a most unfortunate omission.
