What Shall We Do With Our Immigrants?

Illustrated Lecture in St. James' Hall Sunday Night by Rev. Dr. Shearer

In St. James' Hall Sunday evening, after the regular church services, a mass meeting was addressed by Rev. Dr. J. G. Shearer, chief superintendent of the Presbyterian department of Social Service and Evangelism.

Dr. Shearer spoke for a full hour, illustrating his remarks with about a hundred slides picturing life in the prairie districts, industrial centres, and sweatshops, slums, recreation places and social settlements of Canada.

The slides were operated by Mr. J. J. Ander. Dr. Shearer's lecture, both pathetic and humorous, was most instructive and interesting. He said, in part: It was a problem what to do with our immigrants. He had seen one day some 2800 landing from Britain and Scandinavia, and on same day 1800 from Southern and Southern Europe.

He hoped the war would help us solve our Temperance question. Russia and France had taken hold of it in the right way, but there was danger of Britain being left in the tail of the procession.

Russian immigrants were good men, religious, but not democratic. They would rise, if shown good example. But he was afraid they might have reason to feel ashamed of Canada. This country was reeking with graft. He knew what he was talking about. There were no immigrants better than the Dutch of Holland.

The Hebrews were loyal to their adopted country and succeeded in life. They rarely went on the land. The Rutenians (Little Russians and Galicians) were healthy people of good average mentality, religious and musical.

Of the 290,000 in Canada, from 40,000 to 50,000 had come under Evangelical influences. 19 had been ordained as Presbyterian Clergy-men in one day, and many had joined other Evangelical churches.

In Fort William (Ont.) there were whole blocks of houses around breweries wholly inhabited by non-Anglo-Saxons. Canada allowed these people liquor, to its shame and disgrace. In Canada $150 a minute, day and night, was spent on strong drink, and 15 people died from its effect every day.

Town Improvement Club Organized Monday Night

Advocates of Temperance Met in the Town Hall to Agitate a More Strict Enforcement of the Scott Act.

CHARGES MADE THAT AGREEMENT EXISTED Between the Police Committee and the Liquor Dealers That by the Paying of a Fine, and Other Conditions, Liquor Could be Sold—Denied by Ald. Doyle

About 160 men attended the public meeting in the Town Hall, Monday night, March 22nd. Mayor Morrissey was chosen chairman and H. H. Stuart secretary.

On suggestion of Rev. Dr. Harrison, Rev. S. J. MacArthur was called upon to explain the origin of the meeting and state its purpose.

REV. S. J. MACARTHUR Rev. Mr. MacArthur said that on his way to the Whiteville Patriotic Meeting (March 4th instant) in company with Mayor Morrissey he had first had his mind directed seriously to the present state of affairs.

He had agreed that no improvement could be looked for until the citizens through their influential laymen and church members determined to stand by each other for the good of the town. There was now a good feeling between the different denominations, which he hoped would continue and grow.

Many voices—Hear, hear! Rev. Mr. MacArthur continued, Two weeks ago, to his surprise, Ald. S. W. Miller and Mr. Clem. Ryan had appeared and spoken at a meeting of the Methodist Men's Union.

At this late hour it was felt that nothing could be gained by going before the expiring council. It seemed to him that the Scott Act was not enforced in Newcastle because it was not allowed to be enforced. If these charges should be challenged they could be proved up to the hilt.

John H. Ashford—That was done with me. Rev. Mr. MacArthur—Yes; Tom Clarke told me so. And a member of the present Council told me so. If the Police Committee dismiss a Policeman he is thrown back on his $500 a year and has to resign.

Mr. MacArthur added that men who had been in the liquor business in Newcastle say they had paid $1600 hush money. Who gave the Town its bad name? Those who point out the iniquity, or those who permit it to be?

REV. P. W. DIXON Rev. Father Dixon was pleased with the meeting going so much larger than he had expected. He had had much experience in his 40 years in Newcastle.

A great deal of liquor was drunk here now—the young were learning from the older. Last fall an old friend who visited him told him the hotel he stopped at was shocking. Old and young were served, and the latter learning to be drunkards.

He had suggested a meeting of the Town Clergymen. They had met in Father Dixon's study (on the 15th) All were there. One had since withdrawn, on the ground that clergymen should not dictate to the Town.

He appealed to the citizens on his own behalf to save himself from the shame of being a party to treating the Scott Act as a License Law, which it is not, for the saving of a paltry thousand dollars a year, which is next to nothing in an assessment of some $34,000.

The Advocate Explains Embarrassing Position

Statement Magnified by Temperance Glass Not so Strong When Read Fair-Mindedly.

A pill placed in the mouth of an erratic advocate of temperance, exploding at the temperance meeting in the Town Hall on Monday night, revealed a charge, or an assertion, that a statement had been made in The Union Advocate some time ago, which led to the belief that an arrangement existed between the Town Council and the liquor dealers, whereby the latter were allowed to sell liquor under certain conditions.

The Advocate, which has always upheld temperance, never made such a statement, as the following, which is the one in question, will clearly show for itself: "The police committee are deserving of much credit for the manner in which they are handling the Scott Act here. The benefit of the system is already being felt by the merchants, as one firm in particular informed The Advocate that their cash sales on Saturday night last were far in excess of many previous Saturday nights. There is no doubt but that this beneficial effect was felt by other merchants as well."

The good results of this strict enforcement does not end here. There is also a pronounced absence of drunkenness on the streets Saturday nights and Sundays, which fact is hailed with pleasure by all advocates of temperance.

The police committee have taken a firm hand in this matter and they should receive the support of the citizens in general and if the sale cannot be entirely stopped, outward appearance at least, can be greatly eliminated, and even at that it will be a vast improvement over conditions as have been existing during the past year or so."

The above appeared in The Advocate under date of May 20th, 1914, and if our readers will remember, just prior to the coming in of the new and present council drunkenness was as common on Sundays as it was on week-days, and our streets and gutters were littered strewn with empty bottles. After the new council came in and the present inspector was put on the force, all this disappeared, as stated above. Up to this time there was no talk of any agreement, and how our temperance friends could translate the word "system" into "agreement," or "arrangement," the words used Monday night, is more than we can understand.

At that writing there was no arrangement or agreement to the knowledge of The Advocate or its editor, nor is there any today, so far as we know, and the using of the word "system" was purely our own phraseology and used with absolutely no thought of there being such an arrangement as suggested at the meeting.

If the reader will read the second paragraph of the above quotation: "The good results of this STRICT enforcement," etc. Does that look as if there was an arrangement, and it was known to us? We fail to see it. Then further down to the next paragraph: "The police committee have taken a firm hand in this matter," etc. Does a FIRM hand mean an agreement or an arrangement? The reader can answer this. Again, "and if the sale cannot be ENTIRELY stopped" certainly has its meaning that if the police committee by using a FIRM hand in the STRICT enforcement of the Scott Act cannot ENTIRELY stop its sale, "outward appearances" (drunkenness on the streets, and empty bottles lying around) "at least, can be eliminated." If our temperance friends wish to translate this into any other meaning, and make The Advocate a target for mud-slinging, as was the case on Monday night, we will accept the above good-naturedly. If the statement made by W. C. Day was not what was intended for him to say, (we were informed beforehand that the article in question was to be brought up) we would suggest that his aim be made a little more accurate before he fires the next ball.

There are two questions The Advocate would like to have answered. The first is, if The Advocate was not directly charged with having made a statement that an agreement existed, (as Monday night's secretary informed us that we did) what was the charge, and why was the Advocate's name brought up in connection with this alleged agreement or arrangement? Secondly, when the editor of The Advocate was not in a position to produce the files of this paper when asked to do so, why did not Mr. H. H. Stuart, the secretary, read the article from the copy of the Advocate in question, that he had in his pocket, thus relieving The Advocate editor of the embarrassing position he was temporarily placed in?

Our temperance friends who made the above charge publicly, we think owe it to this paper to withdraw it just as publicly as they made it.

Merchants Dollar Day Was a Good Success

Despite the Day Being Stormy, a Large Number of People were in Town.

One of the best shopping days that the merchants of Newcastle have enjoyed for a long time was that of dollar day, on the 18th inst., when the majority of our merchants, members of the Retail Merchants' Association, combined to give their patrons an opportunity in one grand day at bargain prices.

The columns of The Advocate were freely used, and banners and cards marked the stores participating in this great event. The weather and everything else beforehand pointed to a very busy day. Every preparation was made, and all awaited the coming of the eventful day, which broke with a typical St. Patrick's storm, putting a damper on all hopes of our streets being crowded with visitors.

As it was, there was a good attendance of buyers from outside, and opinions expressed by all are that a good day's trade was the result, and had the day been fine, Newcastle merchants would have enjoyed a day of business as has never yet been experienced by them. We know of some instances where non-advertisers, besides having calls from their regular customers, had many new ones on that day, which is proof to them of the value of advertising, and we trust that in the very near future their ads. will appear regularly in The Advocate.

Newcastle to do their shopping, appreciate these bargain days and it now remains with the merchants to follow them up, and eventually their one great aim of educating the people into buying altogether at home will have been accomplished.

The Advocate's campaign along this line will, we believe, in time, have the desired effect. It must not be overlooked, by our merchants, however, that as this campaign is being waged in their interests, it is naturally expected that they will reciprocate and patronize our advertising columns and job department.

We believe that the townspeople, and those in the county who come to

THE TALE OF THE DESPATCHES

A careful consideration of the despatches from the theatre of war, brings the reader to the conclusion that Germany, to try and retrieve lost ground, and re-establish lost moral, has attempted to assume the offensive in France and Flanders.

Another reason for sending more troops into Flanders, is the Kaiser's desire to retain Lille, that is being seriously threatened by the advance of the Allies.

By using up their new army and having their ranks seriously broken, they will be then able to withstand the shock that is sure to come when the Allies assume their promised offensive.

Gradually the way is being opened for Italy to come into the conflict. Austria persistently refuses to accede to the demands of Germany in the matter of making territorial concessions to Italy.

That the German offensive in Poland has failed altogether, seems to be conceded on all sides. It is largely due to the utter rout of the Austrian army in Eastern Galicia.

While these German villages cannot be conquered without time and bloodshed, yet these statements show clearly that even the commanders know that it is only a matter of time until they will be forced to give up the hopeless battle.

In the Dardanelles, considerable progress has been made in the destruction of the forts, not however unfortunately without some loss to the Allies.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The matter of daylight saving has been suggested to The Advocate, and after having looked into the matter and judging by results from its being tried out in other towns and cities, particularly in the west, we are of the opinion that the same could be satisfactorily worked in Newcastle.

The idea is, that the clock be moved ahead one hour, thus taking advantage of the daylight from seven o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock, the usual hour of going to work, and closing at say what would be nine o'clock under the present arrangement, which would mean a saving in electric light bills, and besides the evenings would be longer.

To the Editor of The Advocate, Dear Sir:—We would like to know from the authorities at Ottawa how it is that the Manager of the Wireless Station here is an American who persists in displaying the American flag over his office door, so that all Britishers and others entering must pass under it; also that all Canadian and British employes have been discharged and a number of foreigners taken on instead.

Some time ago a man went into a store in Brantford to buy a saw. He saw the kind he wanted and asked the price. It was $1.65, the dealer said.

"Good gracious," said the man, "I can get the same thing from the mail-order house for $1.35."

"That's less than it cost me," said the dealer, "but I'll sell it to you at the same terms as the mail-order house, just the same."

"All right," said the customer. "You can send it along and charge it to my account."

"Not on your life," the dealer replied. "No charge accounts. You can't do business with the mail-order house that way. Fork over the cash."

(The customer complied) "Now, two cents postage and five cents for a money order, to the mail-order house, you know."

The customer, inwardly raving, kept to his agreement and paid his seven cents.

Canada has been importing frozen mutton from New Zealand. In view of these conditions, wool and mutton should prove very profitable for Canadian sheep raisers during the next few years.

Through the industry of swine in the Canadian West in the past three months, the supply in 1915 promises to be little more than half of 1914.

The exports of Canadian cheese have been steadily declining for ten years. Look at the market prices today. Do they not suggest the advantage of increased production?

Through cow-testing, selection and better feeding, the average annual production per cow in Canada did increase from 2,850 lbs. per cow in 1901 to 3,805 lbs. in 1911.

The dairymen of Denmark who supply Great Britain with butter and bacon are not satisfied unless their herds average 10,000 lbs. per cow.

Summary of the War

From November 15th to January 15th

The following facts about the war, published in a bulletin by the Paris Chamber of Commerce, give a general idea of the standing of things between the French army and the Germans.

Since the battle of Ypres, that finished on November 15th, and dealt a final blow to the Germans' general offensive, the war has been of the nature of besieging warfare, consisting, so to speak, of a series of sieges, in all of which, with one exception only, we have been successful and have compelled the enemy to fall back.

FRENCH SUCCESSES GERMAN SUCCESSES
From the Sea to the Lys—
All Left Bank of Yser, between Knocks and Hetsas, retaken. Destruction of Nieupoort Town, and Bridge-heads fixed up on Right Bank. General extension of our Front round Ypres. Enemy's Infantry attacks stopped. Nieupoort Baths; of the celebrated "Halles" (Markets), Cathedral and Hospital of Ypres.

From the Lys to the Oise
General extending and strengthening of our Front, by taking the village and castle of Vermelles, Rutoire, a number of German trenches between Aix-Noulette and Carency, La Boisselle, and some other-works at Lihous. Since Quosnoy-en-Santerre was taken, end of October, we have continually made progress Eastwards. Bombardment of Armentieres, Bethune and Arras.

From the Oise to Rheims
German trenches carried at Nampcel, as well as the plateau of Nouvron, the Spur 132, and the hill above Crony taken. Advantage gained by our artillery, consequently our infantry's losses were lessened by 4-5ths. Strengthening of our defensive methods. Spur 132, and the hill above Crony, retaken—from 1200 to 1800 metres to the N. of Soissons gained, Soupir and Soissons bombarded.

From Rheims to the Meuse.
Advance of 1 kilometre in the region of Prunay, of 2 in the region of Perthes, of nearly 1 kilometre in the Argonne, at the wood of La Gruerie; numerous counter-attacks of the Germans repulsed. Extension of our Front Verdun. Advance of 300 metres, along a front of 800 metres in Argonne at the stream of les Meurissons.

From the Meuse to the Swiss Frontier.
Continued advance over the Heights of the Meuse, in the Woivre, to the N. E. of Nancy, to the N. and S. of Senones, in the Vosges, where a number of German attacks were repulsed. In Alsace, we continued advancing towards Munster, Cernay and Altkirch; Aspach, Steinbarch and some villages in the East, taken possession of. Bombardment of a church at Nancy and the Hospital of Thann.

On the whole, our troops have progressed everywhere and very notable in certain places; the enemy has fallen back everywhere, except at the N.E. of Soissons—this in the sum-total of what has been accomplished the last two months, to complete which we must all:—
1st.—The German offensive in Poland has been completely checked, while that of the Russians is progressing in East-Prussia, Galicia, and the Carpathians.
2nd.—Most of the Turkish army in the Caucasus has been crushed.
3rd.—Germany has exhausted her supply of officers; her staff being limited, she will not in future be able to develop and extend her effective forces without detriment to those already existing, whereas the Allied Armies can still be considerably reinforced.
In short the German offensive is broken, and their defensive will be, too, in its turn. France and her Allies need only know how to wait for ultimate success, and to prepare the way to same with untiring patience and a steadfast will, and these qualities shall not be found wanting.

France's Financial Resources
The financial resources of France have just lately proved to be what we had foreseen. On January 20th Mr. Ribot, Minister for Finance, informed the Committee of Supplies to the Chamber of Deputies that the amount of Treasury and National Defence Bills already subscribed for rose to over 2 milliards 700 million francs. Out of this amount, 250 millions were purchased in England. However it is now the time for redeeming the Bills at three months; notwithstanding this, in ten days only, January 1st to 10th, the amount of Bills purchased rose to 489 millions, minus reimbursements. Besides it is a fact, that in many Departments 6 and 12 months' Bills were notably more in favour than those of 3 months'. This is a proof some buyers are more partial to rather long-dated investments than to short ones. Therefore Mr. Ribot will meet their requirements by issuing short-dated Bonds, redeemable in 1925 at 1-100. It is thanks to these Bonds, to the Treasury and National Defence Bills as well as to the means of the public at

Town Improvement Club
Organized Monday Night

that the real source of the Protectionville tragedy was never located. The young man who killed the two children had been to Newcastle that morning, and got something in one of our hotels that maddened him.

H. H. STUART
Ex-Ald. Stuart said he had heard the same party who spoke to Dr. Harrison tell the same story on the public platform in Protectionville on July 7th last in the presence of 20 or 30 people. He (Stuart) had reported the speech and it had appeared in the Moncton Times, but no libel suit had resulted.

REV. M. S. RICHARDSON
Rev. Mr. Richardson hoped the citizens would not stand for such things. We had too many bums and drunkards, but when they go to hell, who will take their places? The saloons were worse than mad dogs. The Scott Act should drive liquor out. The citizens would no longer stand for the present force.

MAYOR MORRISSEY
Mayor Morrissey said that as far as he knew there was no agreement between the Council and the rum-sellers. The Scott Act itself was a farce—there was so little sincerity among the Temperance people who claimed to want it enforced. Too little interest was shown by the public. With the exception of clergymen nobody had visited the Council while he was in it to see how public affairs were conducted. He had sat with Temperance Aldermen who were guilty of not trying to enforce the Act. If he himself tried to really enforce the Act he would be standing alone in three months. There were many temperance people in the town who would drink all the liquor bought for them. He had bought it himself and found they would drink it any time if the door was closed while they were doing it. These were in his mind hypocrites, as no man could be other than a hypocrite who would buy rum after joining an organization such as was proposed tonight.

H. H. STUART
H. H. Stuart said that the Scott Act could be enforced. That was proved from December, 1913, to April, 1914, under last Council. When the Inspector in December, 1913, resigned rather than face a charge, they had secured an apparently faithful man, who immediately began to do things better. In January, 1914, A. A. Davidson became the Police Committee's lawyer and ably seconded the Inspector. The Committee—Aldermen Falconer, Ritchie and himself—were all in hearty accord with the strict enforcement of the Act and the Council by a substantial majority were willing to give the Committee a free hand. Inspector Chamberlain put on lots of $50 fines in December, January and February, and in March laid a complaint for second offence against one old violator and seized $400 or $500 worth of liquor from another. In the latter case the seizure was fought to the highest court in N. B., but was sustained and the liquor was destroyed. This redeemed the failure to hold the seizure of 1913, and showed that any contraband liquor could thenceforth be destroyed. The former case resulted in conviction and $100 fine was paid some time afterward. Another offender was sent to jail for one month for first offence. All this alarmed the liquor men and showed them that if something were not done at once their doom was sealed. So they prepared to win the next election. The retirement of Ald. Ritchie and Ald. Falconer from the Board and of Ald. Falconer from the Board and of Ald. Falconer left a big gap in the temperance ranks, and a dead set was made to prevent himself, the last remaining member of the Scott Act enforcing, Police Committee, from being returned. The Temperance people had no organization, and by a narrow majority he lost his seat and Ex-Ald. Allison was also left out in the cold. Had the Temperance men been organized they could have elected enough Aldermen to gain control of the Council. Whenever the people elected a Council that wanted to enforce the law it could be enforced as well as any other law.

W. C. DAY
Mr. Day said that we did not need to go out of town to the Moncton Times to hear about the new arrangement. Look up the Union Advocate files of May or June to see about it. An article appeared in one of those issues complimenting the council or Inspector or Police Committee on the better enforcement of the Scott Act since the new arrangement.
J. H. BROWN—Are you sure that an article appeared to that effect?
Mr. Day—Yes.
Mr. BROWN—You should have brought a copy of that paper with you.
Mr. Day—If you open up the office I'll go and carry your file up.
Mr. BROWN—Declined the offer.
Dr. Harrison—Yes; that certainly took place. I saw the paper and showed it to some people.
D. J. BUCKLEY
Mr. Buckley wanted the Scott Act enforced, while it was law. Monsignor Richard had after vainly trying moral suasion, had the law thoroughly enforced in Rogersville in three months. So it could be done here. Stand behind the clergymen and Scott Act or any other law can be enforced.

C. E. FISH
Mr. Fish said the clergymen might have said more and been within the mark. Enforcement of Scott Act depended upon the people. A council should be elected who would enforce it. Affairs in his town were disgraceful.
S. W. MILLER
Ald. Miller said he had no complicity in the bargain, but he had grounds for believing that it had been made with the Committee. There should be no surplus from Scott Act. It was blood money. The ism in the course of the present war, acts for which even Germany's friends can find no excuse." (New York Tribune).—"The Raid had no military objective whatever. It was very like those crimes committed by the Red-Skins upon the Colonists in the early days of our history, when houses were burnt down, and women and children scalped" (New York Times). The Scandinavian press is no less severe, for the Politiken of Copenhagen says that no better stimulus to recruiting in England, could have been found; for after the Zeppelin raid voluntary enlistments increased in quite a remarkable way. On their return voyage, ignoring all International Conventions and Laws, the Zeppelins flew over Dutch territory whose government has demanded an explanation, on this point, from the German government.

On January 22nd, a number of German flying-machines dropped 80 bombs over Dunkirk, making 25 victims, amongst whom 9 were killed, and all were civilians. The Consulates of the United States, Norway and Uruguay were damaged, and Mr. Benjamin Morel, the United States Consul, was injured.
A telegram from Petrograd (26th January) states that a "Parseval" airship seen over Libau harbour, the Russian naval base in the Baltic, has been destroyed by Russian Marine guns, and the crew captured.
Battle in the North Sea—English Victorious—Early in the morning of the 25th of January an English fleet consisting of ironclads and light-cruisers, under the command of Admiral David Beatty, encountered four German ironclads, with several light-cruisers and destroyers, in the North Sea, making for the English coast. The Germans took to flight and were pursued by the British cruisers. A short and sharp battle took place in which the German big cruiser Blucher was sunk, and two others belonging to them badly damaged.
The English, on the other hand, lost no ships, and but few men. This fresh check at sea, added to previous losses lessens by half Germany's effective forces in cruisers.

D. W. STOTHART.

Act should be enforced so as to stop the sale altogether, and assess the town for the expenses.
J. M. TROY
Mr. Troy contended the whole Council should enforce the Act. Inspector Menzies had enforced it. It could be enforced again.
J. H. ASHFORD
Ex-Inspector Ashford said that with a Temperance Council he had successfully enforced the Act till Council changed. Then he was dismissed for doing his duty. The chairman forbid him to lay a charge against Hotel Miramichi without consulting him. His raids were generally known beforehand. If Council would support a man the town could be made dry.
D. P. DOYLE
Ald. Doyle repudiated any personal agreement with liquor dealers. If any such arrangement were made with them he did not know of it. He did not think Ald. Sargent did, and he did not think the chairman would be fool enough to make one. He had been on the Board with Ald. Stuart and Falconer—great temperance men or cranks, as you like—and things had not gone any better.
WM. McEVROY
Wm. McEvoy said that the chairman of the Committee had refused him permission to sell liquor, as only two were allowed to sell—Eddie Dalton and Hotel Miramichi.
REV. S. J. MACARTHUR
Mr. MacArthur said that the Mayor had challenged every man in town. He believed now that no man should touch liquor. This meeting should result in action.
DAVID RITCHIE
Mr. Ritchie advocated enforcement of the Act.
JOHN CLARK
Ex-Ald. Clark said responsibility was upon all. Legislation might be got to permit increase of Inspector's salary above $600—Inspector could not be removed unless after charge of not doing his duty was proved.
Mr. Troy resented the Mayor's intimation that most Newcastle temperance men were hypocrites.
The Mayor explained that he had not made so sweeping a statement.
Mr. Troy—Pretty near it.
Mayor—I still say there are mighty few. I have bought rum for men who could talk temperance by the hour. Until I see that men of the town mean business I will not take part in a movement. Many men who held up their heads tonight for Scott Act enforcement have liquor in them now or had very lately. They are hypocrites.
Jas. Stables—No; by no means.
W. C. Day also objected.
Mayor—I claim that men are not sincere temperance men who go to places to buy rum. Such men are hypocrites.
Mr. MacArthur agreed that temperance men should not frequent saloons. But men who occasionally drink might be sincere advocates of temperance. He wanted an organization formed, one of whose objects should be to have the Scott Act enforced.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT CLUB FORMED MONDAY NIGHT

Advocate in which was charged mention of an agreement had been made, asked the chairman for an opportunity to enter a challenge to W. C. Day with reference to this charge. When confronted, he denied making a direct charge, saying he used the word "arrangement" instead of the word "system," which word appeared in the article in question. Mr. Brown charged him with leading the citizens present to believe that the Advocate was against the cause of temperance. He then asked the secretary to read the article, and explained to those present that no such meaning could be taken from The Advocate's article if read in a fair-minded way. The article was then read, which clearly proved the contention of the Advocate's editor. Mr. Day—I said arrangement. The paper says system—What is the difference?
Mr. Brown—Any school boy will tell you.

Council Meeting Held Thursday Night

Plebiscite Will be Taken Next Election on Bill Relating to Election of Aldermen.

Town Council met on the 18th, Mayor Morrissy presiding. Aldermen present, Doyle, Kethro, Mackay, McCabe, McGrath, Miller and Stothart.

The submission of the following to the Legislature was moved by Ald. Stothart and seconded by Ald. Doyle:

BILL
An act relating to the election of Aldermen for the Town of Newcastle, BE IT ENACTED by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council and the Legislative Assembly as follows:

1. Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the Town's Incorporation Act the Aldermen of the Town of Newcastle shall remain in office for two years except that of the Aldermen first elected after the adoption of this Act by the Ratepayers of the said Town as hereinafter provided four of their number receiving the smallest number of votes cast shall go out of office at the then next annual Town Election.

2. At each annual election thereafter four aldermen shall be elected in place of those whose term of office is about expiring, and the term of every such alderman shall be two years.

3. This Act shall not come into force until it shall have been submitted to the Ratepayers of the said Town and its adoption determined by a majority of the votes cast.

4. Such votes shall be taken at an annual election for Mayor and Aldermen for the said Town and as far as practicable in the same manner and upon the same qualifications and restrictions as to voters as in the case of such annual election for Mayor and Aldermen.

Ald. McGrath wanted the submission of the Bill to the Legislature postponed till after it had been voted upon by the people. The plebiscite could be taken next month. Then it might be enacted into law by an Order-in-Council.

The Mayor—Supposing the Legislature should reject it what would have been the use of a plebiscite?

Ald. McGrath—Why not take the voice of the people first? It would save the expense of submitting the Bill in case the people should not want the change.

Ald. Doyle did not see why there should be two elections held when one would do. If the people reject the Bill at the time of the regular election, well and good.

Ald. McGrath—Just what I said—Why hold two elections?

Ald. Kethro asked if the election would not take place before the Bill could be passed.

He expected to enter the trenches very shortly.
