"ECHOES of the Past;

The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XXII.

"It is very good of you to come down," said Clive. "There is a telegram from your father saying that he was called away to see some one who is ill; he bade me tell you that it is nothing serious. I am sorry your father is not here to-night, for I wanted to see him. Not only to make my peace with him for my stupid blunder which has caused you so much inconvenience, but to ask him for something. Lady Edith, can you not guess what it is? I want to ask Lord Chesterleigh if he would give you to me."

It had come at last, and its coming drove the color from Lady Edith's face, she closed her eyes for a moment then raised them slowly to his. If he had been in love with her, he would have read his answer in that upward gaze and would have taken her in his arms; but he still held her hand and went on talking unnecessarily.

"I have no right to hope that he would grant my request, for I am not worthy of so great a boon. I am only a younger son, without fortune and with uncertain prospects, while you — But, dear Lady Edith, I trust he may not let my unworthiness weigh against me. Dare I hope that if he should give his consent, I may in time be so fortunate as to win your heart? Will you be my wife, Edith?"

There had not been a word of love in his proposal, and he sure that the woman who was thirsting, craving for it, noticed its absence; but when one is starving a dry crust of bread is better than no food at all. She looked at him again, the color flooding her face now, and she leaned ever so little toward him; slight as the movement was, Clive was conscious of it, and he put his arm round her and drawing her toward him kissed her on the lips. She returned the kiss—she could not help herself—and her head sank on his breast.

"You know I love you," she murmured. "Ah, I have shown it too plainly," she breathed with a little sob that was very nearly one of self-contempt.

"By Heaven, no!" he responded quickly. "Never by word or look; you could not do so. But I am very glad. You have made me very happy." And at that moment he thought he was speaking the truth; so electric is the sympathy which flows from the human heart when it is pil- lowed on a fellow one. "I will try to make you a good husband; all my life shall be devoted to the task."

She laughed up at him. "How solemnly you said that, Clive! As if there were any need to try! I'm afraid I should love you even if you made a very bad one. But you must try and stop short of beating me. But that isn't the way to respond to your nice speech." She put her palms together on his breast and gazed at him with eyes ardent and heavy with passion. "I will try to be a good wife to you, Clive. But good or bad, I will love you very dearly!"

"What did I tell you, my dear fellow?" he demanded, with a chuckle. "You were half-inclined to be offended and think me a meddlesome old fog; but my dear boy I saw it coming. I saw it coming! I'm an old bird and I keep my eyes open. Charming girl, charming girl! Fond of her as if she were my own daughter; Chesterleigh and I were at Eton and Oxford together. Gad, I rather fancy he's older than I am—no, I'm wrong, but he's worn well. And yet he's had a lot of trouble—with his first wife, you know?"

CHAPTER XXIII.

Two days later the announcement of the engagement appeared in the Morning Post and the usual inundation of congratulations had started; for even before the announcement appeared in the newspapers, Clive's and the Chesterleighs' friends were, of course, made aware of the fact, and there was a consensus of opinion that the match was in every way a most suitable one. Clive's friends in the House, and, indeed, many of his political foes, sought an opportunity to shake him by the hand and express their hearty good wishes, for Clive was popular with all the parties into which the House of Commons is now split, and Lady Edith was universally admired.

Of course, Lord Standon succeeded in buttonholing Clive. It was at a reception of the speakers, and the old man was triumphant and jubilant over the fulfilment of his prophecy.

Clive suppressed an expression of surprise, and Lord Standon maun- dered on:

"Dreadful time, dreadful time! But it's a long time ago and I suppose he's forgotten it! Do you know I actually find my memory failing me at times—I wish your father could have been alive, my boy! How proud he would have been. Poor Dandy Raff—I beg your pardon, my boy. A very dear friend of mine, was at Eton and Oxford with me; a younger man than I am, and yet gone first. At least, no; I think he was older. Ah! There's Lady Waffles—now that woman does paint—I really must go and speak to her!"

Clive made his way through the crowded rooms, thinking of the old peer's words. Lord Chesterleigh's first wife! Surely it was not generally known that he had been married twice? Lord Chesterleigh had not mentioned the fact to him. Very probably it was not a fact at all, and Lord Standon had confused Lord Chesterleigh with some one else—who had been at Eton and Oxford with the old gossip. However it might be, as Lord Chesterleigh had not mentioned the matter to him it no business of Clive's.

Between himself and his future father-in-law there existed a very warm affection. When Clive had gone to Lord Chesterleigh to ask for Edith, his lordship had received him with open arms and had told him that if he had had all the world to choose from, he would have chosen Clive as a son-in-law; indeed, that he already regarded him as a son, and that any anxiety he might have felt regarding Edith's future was now dispelled.

"I know that my girl loves you, my dear Clive," he said. "And I am sure that you will both be happy."

He had been very much moved by the interview, more moved than even such an occasion warranted, and Clive's heart, always so ready to respond to affection, had gone out to the old man. Clive was at the house in Grosvenor Square every day, in fact, he went in and out like a son, and there was always awaiting him a loving welcome from Lady Edith; so loving that Clive was burdened by a vague sense of remorse; for, try as he would, he could not respond to the welcome, affection, passion, which she offered him with both hands; and

The General Says:—

"There are some very good reasons why my business is bigger each year than it was the year before."

Some years ago asphalt roofing was sold at high prices because the volume was small and facilities were limited.

When the General entered the field he broke up the high price combine by taking advantage of all possible manufacturing economies, thereby reducing production costs to the minimum and at the same time making a roofing of unexcelled quality.

Eventually the General became recognized as the leader of the entire field, and today the best known and largest used brand in the world is

Certain-teed Roofing

The General's big success brought about an attempt by others to imitate his policies and prices, but they didn't have the General's wonderful facilities, nor his superior equipment, nor his big organization, and it was an economic impossibility for them to equal the General's quality and price. Consequently with the reduction in price there was a big reduction in quality, and these lower quality roofings began to be sold under labels that had formerly been used on better goods.

Today the market is flooded with low quality roofings, made to sell at cheap prices without regard to the service they will give. When you roof your building with Certain-teed you have a responsible manufacturer's guarantee of 5, 10, or 15 years according to whether the thickness is 1, 2, or 3-ply respectively. This is your advance assurance that Certain-teed will give you at least a definite guaranteed service. Beware of guarantees without responsibility behind them.

Certain-teed products are used and well known the world over. Consult your local lumber and hardware dealers. They will quote you reasonable prices.

to atone for the lack of love on his part, he was most devotedly attentive.

No one seeing them together—and, of course, they were seen together everywhere—would have suspected that the love was all on one side, so well did Clive play his part, but, alas, he was only playing.

On the night of the speaker's reception he went home with that weariness which is of the spirit, and therefore, worse than that of the body; but he knew that he should not sleep, and he turned up the electric light at his table and got some work. There was plenty to do; for the conflict in the House was reaching a climax, and any day might see the overthrow of the Conservatives. While he was trying to concentrate his mind on some statistics, there came a knock at the door, and Quilton entered.

"Hello," said Clive; "you are quite a stranger. Been away? Sit down." He pushed a box of cigars toward him, but Quilton shook his head and took out his pipe.

"Yes," he said. "Been up North. Saw the announcement in the Morning Post and dropped in to congratulate you."

"Thanks," said Clive. "Thanks, very much."

"As a rule," went on Quilton in his slow, expressionless way, "congratulations are as baseless as they are conventional; but on this occasion, if you will allow me to say so, there is every reason for hoping that one's good wishes will come to pass. Don't think me intrusive if I express my humble admiration for Lady Edith's personal gifts and manifold charms. To remark that the marriage is, from a worldly point of view, an advantageous one for both parties, would be impertinent. I wish you every happiness with all my heart."

"Thank you very much, my dear Quilton," said Clive. He was silent for a moment or two and bit his lip as if he wanted to say something, then he made a plung. "I suppose you were surprised by the announcement?"

"Surprised?" said Quilton, regarding a corner of the ceiling as if he were trying to think why he should be so.

"When you were here last," said Clive, coloring a little, "I told you that I was in love—that I hoped to marry the young girl you saw when you came to Benson's Rents."

"Ah, yes," responded Quilton, as if he had suddenly recalled the fact. "Yes; I think I remember your saying something to that effect. But men change their minds about this little matter. Romeo, who I believe is regarded by universal consent as the prince and pattern of lovers, was, if you remember, in love with Rosaline before he met Juliet, and changed his mind."

"I did not change mine," said Clive; then he stopped as if to catch back his words. "I mean—that is, she changed hers—no, she found that she did not care for me."

Quilton nodded. "Quite so, and like a brave and sensible girl she wrote and told you so."

"She did not write—well, practically she did," said Clive. "She was so sure of her own mind that she left London—I was going to say disappeared. At any rate, I cannot find her—and I've tried. Not that it would have been of any use; for she was a girl who knows her own heart, a girl of stronger will and fixity of purpose than one would think. She decided that she did not care for me, she did not wish to put me to the pain of hearing it from her own lips." He stopped suddenly and looked up as if he had been communing with himself rather than addressing Quilton, and he added, with a short laugh which was not without its touch of bitterness: "But one must not speak of that now."

"Quite so," assented Quilton. "The incident is closed, as the French say in their happy little way."

"Yes," said Clive; "but I should like to know what has become of her and where she has gone, whether she is well and happy."

"Oh, I think you can make your mind easy about that," said Quilton; "from my knowledge of that kind of people, I should say that she is all right and flourishing. That adopted father of hers was very good at fiddling, and, no doubt, he has got a berth of some kind or other. Anyhow, the freak—I beg her pardon, Miss Tibby—is quite capable of running the family. No; I don't think you need worry yourself about Rosaline, my Romeo."

There was actually a note of expression, a hint of sarcasm in Quilton's voice which caused Clive to look up sharply; but Quilton's face was as wooden and emotionless as usual, and Clive thought that he had only fancied the touch of satire or resentment. Quilton passed at once to political affairs.

"I suppose your people will be in directly," he said, "and, of course, there will be a place for you. Mr. Clive Harvey is too important a man to be passed over. You will be sure to be in the new cabinet—The Right Honorable Clive Harvey. I shouldn't be surprised if you should become prime minister. I have always been under the impression that moral copy-book headings were composed by Ananias assisted by Sapphira, but I am bound to admit that there is a great deal of truth in 'Nothing is so successful as success,' and you will find that Dame Fortune, not satisfied with giving you a lovely, accomplished, high-born wife, with a most influential gang of relatives, will bestow on you several other things which men struggle and fight and sweat for."

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Please tell me on which hand a young girl should wear her ring?" asked Maudie.

"The left hand is always reserved for the engagement and wedding rings. Therefore the right hand is the proper one on which a young girl should wear her ring," advised her aunt.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Oct. 23. The Admiralty announce the bombardment of the Bulgarian coast, the Dedeagatch Harbor works, railway station and shipping being seriously damaged.

France.—Enemy attacks at Givenchy, in Champagne and Argonne, repulsed.

Russia.—Enemy attack repulsed near Riga and in Galicia. Russians gained important positions, capturing seventy-five hundred prisoners, two howitzers and ten machine guns.

Italy.—General offensive begun in Tyrol and Trentino. Twelve hundred prisoners captured on Carso.

BONAR LAW.

FROM ALL FRONTS.
LONDON, Oct. 24. All is quiet along the Western front. Paris says that French and Belgian official communications report nothing of importance from Verdun to the sea. The French troops have joined the Serbian forces. The debarcation of the Allied army at Salonika continues under the best conditions. An official announcement states that the Italians have gained further important gains, and an energetic offensive continues along the entire battle-front. Rome learns from headquarters that the Austrians have been swept back. The Russians press the attack on the Svir successfully, and further captures of men and guns are reported in the official Petrograd communication. Athens learns the Bulgars are being held back by the French. The attack on Koprul by the Bulgarians is completely arrested as a result of a heavy flank attack by the allies.

COMMENTS ON GREECE'S ATTITUDE.
LONDON, Oct. 24. Commenting upon Greece's continued unresponsiveness to the Entente Allied proposals, and the possibility of the Allied cause being circumvented, as it was in Bulgaria, the Pall Mall Gazette to-day, says: "If Greece's Sovereign remains convinced that Germany and her Allies have the upper hand, what is there in his past conduct to ensure that he will not make a treacherous attack on

"CAN YOU AFFORD TO TAKE CHANCES?"

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known where serious complications and fatal illnesses have had their start from a neglected cough or cold.

A cold is more than inconvenient—it is dangerous—so the big thing is to find a reliable remedy—one that will give you quick, satisfactory relief.

There are many treatments that are recommended for a cough or cold but "STAFFORD'S PHORATONE COUGH AND COLD CURE" is recommended to be the safest, surest and most satisfactory way to cure a cold, gripe, etc.

Price 25 cts.; Postage 5 cts. extra. Prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. Manufacturers of 3 Specialties: Stafford's Liniment, Stafford's Prescription "A," Stafford's Phoratoxine Cough & Cold Cure.

Our forces at the first sign of their sustaining a check elsewhere? There is every need for the Allies to place their relations with Greece on a footing which will give no further surprises.

GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED.
PARIS, Oct. 23. Yesterday evening detachments of German troops endeavoured to advance from their trenches near Bois Enhaiche and Givenchy but were quickly dispersed, according to an official statement given out by the War Office this afternoon.

GERMAN MEAT SUPPLY SHORT.
LONDON, Oct. 23. An Amsterdam despatch says that according to advices from Berlin, the Federal Council has forbidden the use on two days of each week of dishes consisting of meats.

ITALIANS ADVANCE.
UDINE, Italy, Oct. 24. The Italian army is making a general attack along the whole line from Switzerland to the Adriatic. In the preceding five months of the Austro-Italian war, the Italians have been directing their efforts to the penetrating of Austrian territory and the capture of strategic points for the purpose of securing Italy against the possibility of Austrian invasion. In the opinion of the Italian general staff this has been accomplished, and the war is now entering its second phase. It is estimated here that the Italians have taken 25,000 prisoners during the war, and have put out of action upwards of 100,000 men. Italian losses, including killed, wounded and prisoners, amount to about 45,000, according to official figures, which is the lowest percentage of losses sustained by any of the belligerent nations.

BAD WEATHER CHECK BULGARIAN ADVANCE.
AMSTERDAM, Oct. 24. The Bulgarian invasion of Serbia has made further progress, according to an official statement from Sofia received here to-day, although the advance is delayed by bad weather.

GERMAN FRONTIER CLOSED.
GENEVA, Oct. 24. Germany is again closed, from Basel to Constance, to travellers of every condition, and no steamers are allowed to approach the German shore of Lake Constance. It is assumed, as heretofore, that the closing of the frontier is to keep intelligence, regarding the movements of German troops, from escaping.

A GERMAN REPORT.
BERLIN, Oct. 24. German troops have crossed the Drina River into North Western Serbia near Vizgrad, and are pushing southward along the Serbian heights, according to an official statement given out by the German army headquarters. It is also announced that Serbian troops have captured the Serbian towns of Negotin and Regjovo.

WANT TROOPS NOT TERRITORY.
LONDON, Oct. 24. What progress the British and French troops are making in their advance northward to the relief of Serbia, is still withheld, but there are misgivings in many quarters that Serbia never will be saved in this way. Greece's apparently authentic demand for Allied soldiers to insure her safety rather than Allies concessions to expand her dominions, and the constituted price for aligning herself against the Central Powers and Turkey, carries the implication that she regards the forces landed at Salonika as far from adequate for the purpose.

pose. Roumania's stipulation governing her entry into the war on behalf of the Entente Powers, has, according to reports, narrowed to similar, though more specific demands for four hundred thousand Allied troops to insure her against invasion.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.
LONDON, Oct. 24. The memorial service for Miss Cavell, the English nurse who was executed by the German authorities in Brussels, which was meant to be an unobtrusive tribute, is developing into national proportions. Premier Asquith and other members of the Cabinet have announced their intention of being present at St. Paul's Cathedral on Friday, when the service will be held. Public bodies and leading hospitals throughout the country are sending delegations.

BULGARIAN ATTACK ARRESTED.
ATHENS, Oct. 24. The Bulgarian attack on the Serbian town of Bezele Koprulu, on the River Vardar, twenty-three miles southeast of Uskup, has been completely arrested as a result of a heavy flank attack on the Kriovak-Strumitza, made by the French troops, according to official advices received here from Salonika.

SWEDISH STEAMER MINED.
LONDON, Oct. 24. A despatch to Reuters' Telegram Agency from Wisby, Sweden, says that the Swedish steamer Rulina, struck a mine off East Cranton light-house, and the force of the explosion broke her in half, the forward part sinking immediately. Six members of the crew, who were asleep in the fore-castle at the time of the explosion, were drowned. The Rulina had been captured by a German submarine, and a German officer was in charge. He with the rest of the crew escaped in boats and landed on the island of Gotland.

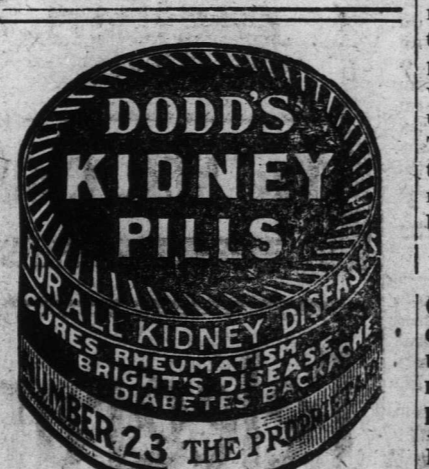

GERMANS REPULSED BY FRENCH.
PARIS, Oct. 24. The eighth German attack in five days on strong French positions in the wood of Givenchy, north of Arras, was repulsed yesterday with sanguinary losses to the Germans, according to the official statement issued to-day by the French War Department. In other sections on the Western front, artillery duels are in progress.

ATTACK BY SEA.
PARIS, Oct. 24. A despatch from Athens to the Havas News Agency, says it is understood at Salonika that the Entente Powers plan to make a landing on the Bulgarian coast in the Aegean Sea, at Porto Lagos.

GENERAL FRENCH REPORT.
LONDON, Oct. 24. A report issued officially to-day by Field Marshal French, describes briefly the progress of the campaign in France. During the last three days, says the report, there has been considerable artillery fighting, south of the La Bassée Canal, but no infantry action other than grenade fighting in the trenches. On the 22nd four of our armies had engagements in the air. In each case the enemy's machines were either forced to descend or were driven away. One German aeroplane-dived head first from a height of seven thousand feet into a wood just behind the enemy's lines. On the remainder of the front there was intermittent artillery action and a certain amount of mining and counter-mining, without any important results.

THE S. A. ELECTIONS.
JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 24. Premier Botha and his Imperial policy gained an important victory at the South African Parliamentary elections just concluded. The Botha party elected fifty-four of its candidates. The Allied Unionists captured forty seats, and the Independents returned five members against 27 seats won by the Hertzog Party. Four Labor members were returned. The striking feature of the election was the severe defeat of the Labor candidates.

LONDON BUDGET.
LONDON, Oct. 24. The Bulgarians, according to the official report issued to-day, have reached Uskup, an important junction on the Salonika-Nish railway, and have placed themselves across the route by which the Allies' reinforcements for the Serbs would travel. The Austro-Germans, in the north, have begun a more vigorous offensive, and have crossed the Danube near Orsova. This brings much nearer the linking up of the armies of the Germanic allies with those of Bulgaria and opening the way through Bulgaria to Constantinople. Their success is not being achieved without heavy losses, as the Serbian veterans, well entrenched in their mountains, are offering a stubborn resistance, and are making the invaders pay a big price for every mile of country invaded. French troops are fighting with the Serbians in the southeastern section, and reports from Athens say other steps are being taken by the Allies to help their small partner. Additional troops are being landed at Salonika, and Bulgarian ports in the Aegean and Black Seas are being bombarded. It is believed that men and munitions will be sent to Serbia by another route with the active cooperation of Greece and Roumania, though it is feared here that the Allies will not be able to reach the front in all recent communications, has been captured by the Germans. The persistence with which the Germans are attacking in this region shows the importance they attach to the capture of Dvinsk and Riga and the line of the Dvina river before winter sets in. On the rest of the eastern front the Russians continue their isolated attacks, which are designed to prevent the Germans from establishing a line of entrenchments such as they succeeded in doing before Warsaw last year after their first attempts to take the city failed. Except for a few attacks by the Germans, the fighting in the west consisted for the most part of artillery engagements and some exciting contests between airmen.

SERBIAN TOWNS CAPTURED.
NISH, Oct. 24. The official announcement issued to-day by the Serbian general headquarters staff says the Serbian towns of Kumanovo and Veles have been taken by the Bulgarians.

GERMAN CRUISER SUNK.
PETROGRAD, Oct. 24. A British submarine operating near Libau, attacked and sank a German cruiser of the Admiral class according to an official announcement made to-night.

The Anzacs Lead.

The Anzacs have gained great glory in their fights under General Birdwood in the region around Gaba Tepe on the Gallipoli Peninsula. Their commander is one of Kitchener's men. He was military secretary to Lord Kitchener in South Africa and India. He has also held a number of other important staff appointments, the last in India was Secretary to the Governor of India in the Army Department. At present he is temporary commander-in-chief on Gallipoli until the arrival of General Munro. The word Anzac is a word made up of the initial letter of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps, which General Birdwood commands. Australia with a population of nearly five million has sent some 75,000 troops on active service and has 25,000 more at home in training, besides handing over her Navy to the British authorities. The Australian Navy consists of one battle cruiser, the Australia, three light cruisers, Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane, and six destroyers, the three latter built in Australia during the past twelve months, and one submarine. Two submarines have been lost, one in the Pacific and the other in the Dardanelles. The latter was the first submarine to penetrate the Dardanelles. Another notable feature of the fine spirit which prevails in Australia is the success of the local War Loan. The Commonwealth Government, be it remembered, a Government of the Labor Party, has determined to issue bonds for £20,000,000. The rate offered is 4 1/2 per cent, a less rate than Britain and Canada have been offering in New York. The first instalment of £5,000,000 or 25,000,000 dollars has been put on the local market and has been subscribed for more than two and a half times over, the applications amounting to £13,000,000 or $65,000,000. This should give a lead to the people of Newfoundland in the direction of the local loans, we have already advocated. With confidence in the Government, Newfoundland can get over the troubles due partly, to freak financing and partly to the War, without any resort to Confederation to obtain financial aid from the Canadian Government.

New Zealand too has spent liberally of her men and her means in helping the flag. With a population of less than a million, she is imposing additional taxation of £2,000,000 annually for war purposes and raising £2,000,000 by local loans at 4 1/2 per cent. for public works.

447th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

11.30 A.M.

A CAVELLE DAY.

LONDON, To-day. The National Liberal Club is initiating a movement for the setting aside of a day to be known as "Cavalle Day," on which the nation collectively would pay homage to the memory of Miss Edith Cavelle, the English nurse, executed in Belgium.

NO CAVELLE CASE POSSIBLE IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, To-day. Sir John Simon, British Home Secretary and former Attorney General, in the course of an interview to-day declared the fate of Miss Edith Cavelle, executed by the German authorities at Brussels, had and could have no parallel in the records of Britain's treatment of persons accused of military offenses. Even in cases clearly proven of espionage, Britain, according to the Home Secretary, meted out to women no sentence of death. "No woman, said he, who had been tried for any military offence in this country, had suffered the death penalty since the war began or has ever been sentenced to death in this country; a woman, whatever her nationality, is always tried by a civil court. The Secretary explained the difference which existed in the conditions of Belgium and conditions in England; in occupied territory like Belgium, the administration law he expected to be slightly different, but he continued, the Cavelle case was not some sudden discovery, calling for drum-head court martial on the field of battle. This was at Brussels where the Germans claim to have established an orderly government, comparable with their government at home, and have appointed their civil governor. Questioned regarding the methods of dealing with military accusations against women in England, he replied: "In the first place the accused person is brought before a tribunal which holds a preliminary enquiry, taking summary evidence. The accused is always assisted by a lawyer and a complete record of the evidence is given to the accused, who is then allowed an interval to prepare for defence. If the accused is a woman the trial always takes place before a civil court instead of a court martial. If he is a British subject at the trial whether military or civil, lawyers for the defence have the same opportunity given to the accused in the ordinary course of peace time.

FRENCH TROOPS JOINED SERBIANS.

PARIS, To-day. The debarkation of French troops at Saloniki continue regularly and under the best conditions. The French troops who crossed the Greek frontier have formed a junction with Serbian troops.

TURKS DEFENDING BULGARIAN COAST.

LONDON, To-day. The Bulgarian forces on the Aegean shore have left for the northern Serbian front, says a message to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens. These troops have been replaced by five Turkish divisions, which now is charged with the defence of the Bulgarian coast. Reliable information, the despatch adds, places the strength of the Bulgarian forces on the Serbian front at seven divisions of which four are operating in the region of Pirrot and Klasevac.

DENIES GREECE HAS UNDERSTANDING WITH BULGARIA.

PARIS, To-day. An authorized statement was made at Athens to-day says the Havas News Agency it denies a report current in Balkan capitals that an understanding exists between Greece and Bulgaria.

THE LOST CRUISER.

PETROGARD, To-day. The Prinz Albert is an armoured cruiser, 393 feet in length, and a displacement of 3,858 tons, she carries a complement of 557.

JOUBERT TO JOIN ENGLISH FORCES.

BERNE, To-day. General Joubert, of Boer War fame, arrived here on his way to Saloniki where he proposes joining the English forces. The British minister to-day presented him to President Motta.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to Reuters Telegram Co. from Athens says that the Bulgarian authorities, the foreign consuls have left Dedagatch for the interior.

1,000 BULGARIAN SOLDIERS KILLED AT DEDEGATCH.

LONDON, To-day. The bombardment of Dedegatch caused the death of ten civilians and over a thousand soldiers. There were large numbers of soldiers wounded, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens. A large portion of the military casualties, the correspondent adds, were in barracks which housed the 40th Bulgarian regiment. The barracks was crowded with soldiers, who were preparing for a meal when the bombardment opened at one o'clock with accurately aimed shells which demolished the barracks, burying the occupants in ruins.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GARTERS IN COWS.

Dr. Geisel at Greenspond

Special to Evening Telegram. GREENSPOND, To-day. The steamer Strathcona arrived here yesterday afternoon with Dr. Geisel, after a rough sail from King's Cove. When the doctor had been comfortably settled in one of our best homes, Mr. Crowe started out to make arrangements for a mass meeting, for unavoidably no arrangements had been made. After meeting the clergy and leading citizens of our town it was not long before an active organization were at work, and to show the enthusiasm of our people all arrangements were completed in four hours, including the carrying of hundreds of chairs to St. James' Hall where an audience of over eight hundred greeted Dr. Geisel at 8.30 last night, presided over by Dr. Jamieson. All children had to be excluded to make room for adults. The magnetic lecturer went right into the subject of prohibition and held the large audience for about two hours with such attention that a pin could almost be heard to drop, and the people came away wishing it had been as long again. Dr. Geisel warmed up to the occasion, and answered in most convincing manner local as well as outside objections that has been raised by the few against prohibition, and clearly showed what an asset a sound man was to the nation, and how alcohol impaired health and usefulness to the country. Rev. E. C. French proposed and S. W. Hoddinot seconded a vote of thanks. This community will give a good account of themselves on Nov. 4th by recording an overwhelming majority in favor of prohibition. St. James Hall is again packed this morning while Dr. Geisel is addressing them on the subject of health. Of this we will have more to say later. The party leave at noon to-day for Wesleyville, where the doctor will address a meeting this afternoon and to-night at 8 o'clock she will address a large meeting at Newtown. E. J. CRUMMEY.

Ordination at St. Thomas's.

St. Thomas's Church, yesterday morning, an Ordination Service took place, when Rev. E. H. Humphries, L. H. Dorham, native of Newtown, B.B., and for some time past stationed at Tack's Beach, P.B., was elevated to the priesthood, and Messrs. Edmund Hunt, of Trinity, who was educated at Queen's College, and Rev. Robert Bailey, B.A., of Bonaventure, T.B., who graduated at Bishop's College, Lennoxville, P.Q., were ordained Deacons. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland was present as well as Rev. Canon W. R. Smith, and G. H. Bolt, Rev. C. H. Barton, Dr. E. Jones, Rev. W. K. Gardner, Rev. A. Clayton, and Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell. Rev. Dr. Jones, Rector of St. Thomas's, preached a powerful and eloquent sermon, appropriate to the occasion, from the text Isaiah 6: 18. The service was fully choral the choir and congregation combined making the service impressive.

Yesterday's Parades.

OUR VOLUNTEERS.

The Volunteers of G. Company under command of Capt. Montgomery and headed by the C. L. B. Band, held a church parade yesterday, attending Divine Service at the C. of E. Cathedral, R. C. Cathedral and George St. Methodist Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, respectively. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the men returned to headquarters immediately after service instead of parading through the city as was originally intended.

C. C. C.

The weather also interfered with the plans of the C. C. C. who had arranged a parade through the city. The battalion, however, under command of Lieut.-Col. Conroy, paraded to the Cathedral and assisted at Last Mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Dr. Greene. After Mass return was made to the armoury by way of Harvey Road.

HIGHLANDERS.

The Newfoundland Highlanders under command of Colonel Paterson, and headed by the Pipes, paraded to Divine Service at St. Andrew's Church. The Pastor, Rev. J. S. Sutherland, conducted the service and also preached an eloquent and instructive sermon on "The Visions of Youth." Solos were rendered by Miss Strang and Mr. DeWitt Cairns in a very pleasing manner. The volunteers of the congregation were presented with Testaments and a special hymn entitled "For the Men at the Front" was sung by the Choir. After the service the battalion returned to their armoury on King's Road, the parade through the city being postponed owing to the downpour of rain.

Herring Industry.

The herring fishery on the West Coast in and around Bay of Islands and Bonne Bay is being prosecuted this season with greater enterprise than heretofore. The Gloucester firms of Cunningham & Thompson and Gordon Pew Co., and the Chicago firm of R. B. Book & Co., Ltd., have agents scattered along the coast and competition among buyers promises to be keen. Big prices are assured for herrings put up under the "Scotch Cure" method.

In Mladly's Boudoir!

TO FILL OUT CHEST AND THROAT.

To fill out the chest and throat rapidly a long course of lung exercise is needed. They must be taken in the freshest air possible, never in a tightly closed room, and in this manner:

Stand by the open window or on the veranda, or in the yard, and inhale slowly through the nostrils, for purification which, if carried into the lungs, would injure their delicate structure. You have seen the tiny hairs in the nostrils; these constitute the strainer for dust, lint and germs. After taking in the breath, prolong the movement until the whole lungs are filled, the lower as well as the upper parts. Give less time to letting out the breath, and make every other exhalation forcible and accompanied by a definite movement of the diaphragm, which will empty the stagnant cells in the lower part of the lungs.

While doing these exercises try to realize to the full that breath is life, health and beauty, for singular to say, there is some occult connection between the breath, the heart and the mind. The adequate breathing of pure air not only improves human looks, but it is a boost to that devine thing we call the soul. Always breath deeply, as without the assistance of the lungs muscles remain flaccid and torpid. All mechanical exercises which are taken indoors, begin with relaxing movements so as to reduce the body to a condition of perfect flexibility. The order of practice is to begin with the fingers; withdraw the vital force to the muscles; make the fingers feel numb and then shake them.

The hand comes next, then the forearm, the whole arm, the head, torso, foot, lower leg, whole leg, eyelids, and lower jaw. All of these points of the body are devitalized as much through the operation of the mind as by the relaxing of the muscles, and such general exercises are a good foundation for the neck and throat exercises which are fully as important.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Out of three articles ordered, the deliveryman had brought two and left one behind. The housewife was scolding about it. "I should make them send it right up from now," said the visiting lady, sharply. "You're sure you ordered it?" "You're sure you housewife," softening, "but I don't think I'll do that. They would probably send it, but it would mean an extra trip for the deliveryman and it's a quarter of six now. It may have been the order clerk's mistake and it's too bad to make the delivery clerk suffer. I can get along without the salad dressing to-night. I'll tell them in the morning and ask them to be more careful."

What made her have so much forbearance? you may be wondering. She has Sympathetic Imagination. Well, she is one of those people with the rare gift of sympathetic imagination. She sometimes makes mistakes herself and she likes to be treated leniently, and when others inconvenience her by mistakes she has enough sympathetic imagination to remember that they feel just as she does, and to control her natural impulse to blame them and make them suffer.

On another occasion she admitted to me that if she received too much change, or was under-charged for an article, or was in any similar way advantaged by a clerk's mistake she always went back to the shop and without drawing the attention of the manager tried to fix the matter up. "Aside from the honesty end of it,"

she explains, "clerks are sometimes docked for mistakes, and I wouldn't want to gain at the expense of their pay envelopes."

People Who Live in Glass Houses. An absence of sympathy and forbearance for the mistakes of others is a lack that only those who never make mistakes have a right to.

And yet how many of us, who can by no means qualify for the mistakeless class, show an utter lack of sympathy for the mistakes of that big army of public servants whom the humblest of us have in our employ. Whenever a person over whom we have power by reason of the fact that our trade helps pay him, makes some small mistake, we give free rein to the natural inclination to find fault. "Clothed with a little brief authority," how well that describes the pompous censoriousness with which many of us deal with such situations! We are always demanding allowances and always forgetting to make them.

We Forget We Aren't Served By Machines.

Another reason for our harshness, I think, is that we lose sight of the personal end of the service we receive. When the woman said, "I'll make them send it right up now," "them" didn't stand for anything personal in her mind. She didn't think of a delivery clerk kept overtime and his wife waiting dinner.

That's the whole trouble; we forget that the service we receive isn't rendered by machines, but by flesh and blood people who have meal hours and headaches and sleepless nights and engagements to keep and hopes and dreams to distract them from their duty. Even as you and I!

THE WAITER.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sitwash."

No study of natural history would be complete without a few carefully selected words on the subject of The Waiter.

A waiter is a patient individual, whose mission is to teach the people how to wait. There are a great many thousand waiters, and most of them are devoted to their mission. These are especially valuable in America, where haste is the national cure. A good waiter can take the care of an impetuous American, who would see the street car company if he had to wait five minutes for a car, and can not only make him wait half an hour for a soft boiled egg, but can make him pay for the wait as well as the egg.

Waiters inhabit restaurants, hotels and dining cars. They are perfectly at home in the dining-room, but are apt to get confused and bewildered in the kitchen when they go in search of food, and bring back a piece of asparagus pie to the man who has been clamoring for roast beef. The waiter is still the only known means of getting food from the kitchen to the customer, and science has been so busy perfecting the aeroplane and the automobile that it hasn't had time to improve and perfect the waiter. It knows when to tackle a job and when to leave it alone.

There are many varieties of waiters and their plumage varies considerably. In New York, the waiter can be distinguished by his swallow-tailed coat, though his costume is greatly infringed upon by the diners. In Chicago he wears a long white apron, with the date of washing carefully stencilled on one corner. In St. Louis the waiter is distinguished by his par-bolled thumb, and in Milwaukee by his long prehensile fingers, which he has trained to grasp a dozen steins at a time. New York waiters are frequently of great wealth and fine education, and are able to translate the most complicated bill of fare for their less talented customers.

The dining-car waiter is in a class by himself. He is a cheerful chocolate colored acrobat, who can carry a plate of food down a reeling car aisle on a trot, and write past half a dozen patrons in the aisle without spilling a drop. The dining-car waiter is one of our most successful vaudeville acts.

With all his faults, the waiter has a kindly, genial smile, which endears him to his victims. It ought to, because it is a dear smile. It costs half a dollar to see a perfect specimen in Chicago, and at least two dollars in New York. The waiter is not ambitious, and no waiter has ever become President. On the other hand, no waiter would attend a monkey dinner without being well paid for it. As a rule, the waiter is placid and not easily upset, even when he is tipped. In fact, the only way to upset him is not to tip him.

But we shall speak of tips some other day.

The Feildians and St. Bon's met in the second round of the Inter-Collegiate Saturday afternoon on St. George's Field. The St. Bon's came off victorious by five goals to nil. The bad defeat suffered by the Feildians was due to the fact that two of their best players were laid off, one of them, on account of injuries received at a previous game. The St. Bon's have to face the Collegians next and a win or a draw will give them the championship.

"THE SILENT PLEA" A CHARMING DRAMA.

There is a programme of big features at the Nickel Theatre to-day. The Vitagraph Co. gives a beautiful three part drama entitled: "The Silent Plea." It is a dramatic appeal for the widowed mother's allowance. It is one of the best releases of this company with Edith Storey, Harry Morry and Donald Hall. "The Grey O' Hearts" will be continued, the episode being a thrilling one—"as the crow flies." "The Yosemite Falls" is a delightful travelogue. The first of the big comedies with Charlie Chaplin, the world's greatest comedian will be shown. It is entitled "Recreation." These Chaplin comedies will be a weekly event at the Nickel in the future. The Harmony Boys, Messrs. Huskins and Cairns, will farewell this week. Wednesday "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be solved; it has a thrilling finale. Don't miss either change at the Nickel this week, as the pictures are of the highest quality—the best obtainable.

ATLANTIS AS MARBLE STATUE IN BEAUTIFUL ACT.

To-night there are two different and distinct acts at Rossley's: Donald Fisk in feats of daring, and Miss Atlantis in a delightful act known as plasticists, she appears as a marble statue in various delightful poses. This specialty is voted a most artistic success, critics who are capable of judging this most wonderful act declare it to be one of the most wonderful sights ever seen. It will be seen for the first time to-night. Donald Fisk will also give a marvellous exhibition of skill and daring. The pictures, too, are the best seen in a long time. "THE BLACK DIAMOND" AT THE CRESCENT.

The story of a mystery is portrayed in the great three reel feature that the Crescent Picture Palace is showing to-day; this feature is produced by the Lubin Company and contains some sensational and thrilling scenes. "The Black Diamond" is produced by the Selig Company and is one of their great secret service releases; this detective drama is intensely interesting. "When Samuel Skidded" is a rich comedy of the Vitagraph stamp, Kate Price stars in this funny play. Mr. Dan Delmar, the popular Crescent vocalist sings a stirring march ballad: "My Little Girl." On Wednesday a strong Essanay feature in two acts: "The Strength of the Weak."

C.M.B.C.—The regular weekly session of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class was held at the Synod Hall yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. J. Brinton presided and delivered an eloquent address on "The Power of Prayer." The gentleman made a touching reference to Private Wilfred Dawe, who was reported wounded in the casualty list received a few days ago. The young soldier was a lay reader in the class and is the first member of the class to be reported among the casualties.

DISPUTE SETTLED.—Mr. Frank Woods, who was selected by the Franks' Union to go to Port aux Basques and investigate a dispute that prevailed amongst the stokers of the s.s. Meigle, returned to the city Saturday night, having settled the trouble satisfactorily to all concerned.

The Good Genius of the Sick Room.

A Gas fire, always a desirable installation, never proves its worth more than in cases of illness, for an invalid may need a fire at any season of the year. A coal fire makes dirt and dust and needs repeated attention, and the noise and clutter that the least stoking operation renders inevitable is at once an annoyance and a possible danger to the patient.

Gas fires are clean and noiseless, and when once alight will burn for an indefinite period without supervision of any kind, and it is now the common practice of medical men, especially when the illness is likely to be lengthy, to recommend a gas fire in the sick room.

When children are convalescent but still confined to one room it is highly necessary, if the much-dreaded chill is to be avoided, to keep its temperature at a steady level. This is impossible where coal is the fuel, but a gas fire can be so easily and accurately regulated that the required degree of warmth can be obtained without difficulty.

The Turkish Capital is Without Coal and Supplies of All Kinds Are Getting Scarce—The People Depressed.

A dark picture of the plight of Constantinople and its inhabitants is drawn in a letter from the correspondent of the Nieuws van den Dag, in the Turkish capital. "Scarcity is gradually beginning to be felt in almost everything," he writes, "and the prescriptions and regulations interfering with our ordinary manner of living are becoming ever more severe and more numerous. The train does, it is true, still run to Europe daily and still arrives daily, albeit some hours late. But, besides the mail and a single passenger, it carries little or nothing away and brings still less. Owing to the way in which Roumania has hitherto maintained its neutrality, nothing is allowed to pass through that country destined for Turkey which can in any sense fall under the head of war contraband; whilst, on the other hand, whole ship and wagon loads of war material is allowed to pass for Serbia or Russia. Neither does the Government at Bucharest permit its own petroleum and other naphtha products to be exported to Turkey. "Constantinople can get just as little by sea. There remained the eastern route, from and to Anatolia, which is rich in corn and other products and in minerals of all kinds. From there also, however, the supplies are declining daily and will soon have to stop entirely owing to the lack of coal to keep the railway traffic going, whilst it is, of course, impossible to obtain sufficient by means of cart or carrier for a city of over a million inhabitants.

Coal is Scarce.

"If there was a rising dearthness before all this, there now appears to be many businesses which have nothing more to sell at any price. No more coal whatever is to be obtained, and this although the rich coal beds of Heraclea are scarcely 130 miles away. Now that the Russians are the absolute masters of the Black Sea practically not a piece of coal and no more petroleum can be imported over the sea. And as regards what is brought by endless trains of camels, mules, and carts which are now passing to and fro between the city and the coal field, this is scarcely sufficient to keep the workshops and the factories of the artillery establishments going and to provision the warships that are still running.

"The three gasworks have therefore also had to come to a stop, so that there is no more street lighting. The electricity works will have to do the same next week, and then the trams will be unable to run. For days there has been not a drop of petroleum to be got in the city. Candles arrive

Every Neuralgic Headache Cured! Use "Nerviline"—It Won't Fail.

There may be a thousand pains; yet, excepting sciatica, neuralgia is the worst. Most remedies are not strong enough or penetrating enough to relieve neuralgia. You know everything you have tried has failed to give even momentary relief, and you have decided that neuralgia must be borne forever.

Do not make this mistake — try NERVILINE. Apply it to the sore spot. Notice the glow that spreads deeper and wider as Nerviline's curative power is carried further and further into the tissue. How quickly the pain is soothed! How rapidly it lessens! In a little while you now and again by parcel post from Austria, and then cost three pence apiece, a price for which a whole packet could formerly be bought. "How shall we warm ourselves in the winter if the present condition of things continue a few months longer is still an unsolved riddle.

Sugar and Bread.

"Another necessary in which scarcity is being heavily felt is sugar, which we principally obtain from Austria and in part also from France. This last source is, of course, entirely stopped, and the former is not very fruitful. Still more serious is the bread scarcity, which, despite the measures taken by the authorities, occurs every now and again. It is really strange that we can be short of bread here when they don't know what to do with the millions of hectolires in Anatolia. The reason again lies in the lack of sufficient means of transport, and likewise in the lack of proper organization of the transport; further, in the circumstance that owing to the scarcity of fuel the four mills cannot work at full power. It has repeatedly happened of late that not enough bread could be baked for the entire population of the city, so that great unrest arose amongst the people, which soon degenerated into disturbances and in the indignat demonstrations (so feared by every Government) of women and children through the streets of Stambul and in front of the Ministries and the residences of the members of the Government and leading authorities. Recourse was had to a means that has already been adopted more than once in the provinces—that of throwing the burden of the evil on the German scapegoat. Thus it was first whispered, and then said louder and louder by the crowd, that through the war in which the Germans had involved the Empire, the calling up of all means of transport, and so forth, it had now come to pass that there was not enough bread for the people even in the capital. And as the war here, even amongst the Moslem population is still by no means popular, this talk spread at once, and the women's demonstration, behind which were of course the men, assumed a definitely anti-German character. For the present the military authorities have liberated railway trucks for the carrying of grain.

"All these difficulties would at once for the greater part be banished if there were free traffic between Turkey and the allied Empire, and the army authorities and the Porte are urging Berlin and Vienna ever more strongly to assure itself of the communication through Serbia. The Dardanelles position remains invincibly strong, but its defences continually demands heavy sacrifices, and that begins to make many a Turk somewhat depressed.

The Post Office makes £4,000 a year by unclaimed money orders.

"The Soul of Anzac."

About the Commander of the Australians and New Zealanders in Gallipoli.

"Lieut.-General Sir W. R. Birdwood has been the soul of Anzac. Not for one single day has he ever quitted his post. Cheery and full of human sympathy, he has spent many hours of each twenty-four inspiring the defenders of the front trenches, and if he does not know every soldier in his force, at least, every soldier in the force believes he's known to his chief."

That was the great praise given by Sir Ian Hamilton to the commander of the Australians and New Zealanders in Gallipoli. It is rarely that such high praise is given in despatches, but in the case of Sir W. R. Birdwood it has been won in the midst of the most terrible fighting the world has ever seen.

One of Kitchener's Men.

Like a good many more men who have come to the front in the war, he is one of Kitchener's men. He was, indeed, for several years Kitchener's right hand man, for he was appointed his military Secretary when in South Africa and followed his chief to India in the same capacity.

To the army, in fact, he was known as "Secretary Birdwood" until he was appointed to the command of the "dare-devil warriors from the south," to use the words of Sir Ian Hamilton. And General Birdwood was just the man to lead them. Absolutely fearless, he has escaped death time and time again by a sheer miracle. Last May, for instance, his hat was struck from his head by a bullet, which ploughed a new parting through his hair, severely cutting his scalp and partially stunning him. Despite that, he refused to leave his post, nor did he leave it when his name appeared in the casualty list!

In the Boer war he was very severely wounded, and his high courage and magnificent fighting spirit were mentioned no fewer than five times in despatches. Before being wounded he had several narrow squeaks, his horse being shot under him in a skirmish near Pretoria among other things.

In all our Wars Since 1883.

In the Tirah Campaign of 1897-98, just previous to the Boer War, he was also mentioned in despatches. The now famous general has been through practically all our little wars since he joined the Royal Scots Fusiliers in 1883.

Most of his life has been spent in India. The Birdwoods, indeed, are famous out there, for generation after generation have served in building up our great Eastern Empire.

As Secretary to Lord Kitchener in the Indian Army and the whole of the military affairs generally, one of the effects of which is now to be seen in the magnificent Indian Expeditionary Force. General Sir W. R. Birdwood can speak a number of Oriental languages and dialects and, in fact, he was interpreter to Lord Kitchener while in India.

Born in September, 1865, General Birdwood was knighted in the last New Year's Honour List.

He Was Sitting on It.

Mr. Augustine Birrell, the Secretary for Ireland, has recently returned home from the front where he had many interesting and exciting experiences.

Some time ago, while travelling in a third-class carriage in the north of England, Mr. Birrell found himself in an amusing, although very embarrassing position. He was only just in time to catch the train and sat down hurriedly next to a little girl in shawl and cloaks.

Happening to glance at her a moment or two afterwards, he saw that she appeared very uneasy and was regarding him with no great favour. Then it was that it dawned upon him that he was sitting upon her newspaper.

"Here, my dear," said Mr. Birrell, pulling the paper from under him and handing it to her. "I'm sorry!"

The little girl did not look quite satisfied; but she said "nothing till a few minutes later the train drew up at the station."

"Please, sir," she then inquired meekly, as she rose to get out; "may I have my fried fish? It was in the paper!"

Back to Nature

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense or tact. But every time she lays an egg she cackles forth the fact. A rooster is largely feathers, with little intellect to show. But none the less most roosters have enough good sense to crow. The mule, the most despised of beasts, has a persistent way. Of letting people know he's round, by his persistent bray. The busy little bees they buzz, bulls bellow and cows, moo. And watch dogs bark and ganders quack and doves and pigeons coo. The peacock spreads his tall and squawks, pigs squeal and robins sing. And even serpents know enough to hiss before they sting. But man, the greatest masterpiece that nature could devise, Will often stop and hesitate before he'll Advertise. —Exchange.

Huns Can't Play Football.

They Often Mob the Team That Beats Them.

The news that Steve Bloomer, John Cameron, the Tottenham Hotspur man, and several other famous old footballers are among the Englishmen interned in Germany is a reminder that despite their scorn and hatred of everything British, the Huns were, before the war, only too eager to take lessons in football from us.

For that purpose they engaged Bloomer, Cameron, and other celebrated professionals. Plainly envious of the physical benefits of footballing as compared with those of their own national pastimes of duelling and beer walling, the Germans became "mad" on the game.

The army authorities, from the all-highest Kaiser downwards, encouraged football playing, and even the Crown Prince himself was once photographed in football kit. At that time his special mania was to be "very English."

Too Sluggish for Football.

That the Germans have never proved themselves very adept at our winter game is not the fault of their coaches. Success at football demands a sprightliness of movement and nimbleness of thought not characteristic of the heavily built, sluggish minded sons of the Fatherland as a whole.

The French, the Belgians, and the Scandinavians, are much better footballers than the Germans, and the Danes, perhaps the cracks of the Continent at the game, are streets ahead of them.

And not only are the Germans unable to play football well, but their manners over the game are atrocious. They have no more idea of playing the game in a proper sporting spirit than they have of waging war cleanly and decently.

They can't stand being beaten—and as it has generally been their lot to lose against "foreign" teams, some shameful scenes have taken place on German football grounds.

Certain members of the Sunderland club could a tale unfold in this connection. A few years ago after the season here—the German football season goes on into June, by the way—they accepted an invitation to play a series of matches in Germany.

Without at all exerting themselves they mostly did pretty much as they liked. Their superiority was so galling to the German players and spectators that affairs culminated in the side being badly mobbed after one match. The Englishmen were kicked at, struck at, and blasphemed at, and although surrounded by a hostile crowd, out of which they had literally to fight their way, some of them retaliated good and hard.

Austrians Get Excited.

The Austrians and Hungarians, though more skilled in the arts of the game than their Allies, have equally bad manners over football.

Middleboe, the Dane who plays for Chelsea, has played football all over the Continent, and the worst crowd he ever came across was at Prague (Bohemia.)

"They were awfully excitable here," he said. "There was almost a riot because one of the home team's players was ordered off the field for being so rough."

An old Scottish international, for several years engaged in teaching Austrians to play football, also had some unpleasant things to say of the customs of his pupils and those who attended the matches.

"When they win they are very great chaps, indeed," he said; "but when they lose they say it's all due to the 'dirty' play of their opponents. I have seen three riots at football matches over there—ugly riots, too. One was after a game between a Hungarian and a German team. The military had to be called out to quell it in the end, for it spread all over the town."

Turks Threw Women and Children Into the Sea.

London, Oct. 15.—"There is only one power that can stop the Armenian atrocities, and that is Germany," declared Viscount Bryce at a meeting today at the Mansion House in support of the Lord Mayor's fund in aid of the Armenian sufferers. He declared that the only remedy was to bring the pressure of world opinion particularly of neutral opinion, to bear on Germany and force her to take action.

Viscount Bryce who proposed a resolution condemning the reported atrocities, paid tribute to the intelligence and progressiveness of the Armenians, who, he said, were far superior to the Mohammedans, and he declared the case was not so much one of religious fanaticism as it was of deliberate extermination of a people of whom the Turks were envious.

The horrors of the massacre exceeded anything in the history of persecutions, declared the speaker. Women and children, he said, had been driven across the Arabian desert and whipped by the Turks, who went mad, and at Trebizond carried their victims out to sea in boats and drowned them. "Women, many of whom were as highly civilized as any of us," he declared, had been sold into slavery, where they were Mohammedanized. He declared untrue the excuse offered by the Germans for the Turks to the effect that the Armenians had rebelled, the speaker declaring that the Armenians were quiet and unoffensive until forced to defend themselves.

In seconding the resolution Cardinal Bourne said that the evidence was so strong that even Germany was not able to deny the massacre. Neutrals, he said, should follow the example of Pope Benedict, who wrote a personal protest and plea to the Sultan.

Sir Edwin Pears, who had been the leader of the British Bar in Constantinople, apparently surprised his hearers by saying that the persecution was not an article of Mohammedan faith, and that the massacres were deplored by the mass of the Turks.

T. P. O'Connor mentioned the work of Americans in raising a fund, and also praised the efforts to the same end being made by the Lord Mayor.

Canadian Foreign Born.

The collating of the results of the census is slow and arduous work, and as a rule by the time the statistics of one census have been published the time has arrived for another National stock-taking. The Department is still issuing figures for the census of the year of 1911, and the end is not yet. The latest volume issued comprises an account of the Foreign Born living in the country four years ago. By Foreign Born is of course meant those born outside of the British Empire. They numbered 752,732 out of a total population of 7,206,643. The only elements belonging to this class that have since become an actual national problem, although not really a serious one, are the Austro-Hungarians and the Germans. The former numbered 121,430, a very large portion of whom were Galicians, a people neither in love with Vienna nor Buda-Pest, but largely Polish in sympathy. The Germans numbered only 39,577 of whom 23,283 were naturalized. The latter element need really cause no uneasiness.

To read British Columbian newspapers a few years ago and to talk with Western scare-mongers, one might get the impression that the Aryan population was in danger of being early and completely swamped by the incoming flood of Orientals. The census shows that only 35,503 Chinese and Japanese were to be found throughout the whole Dominion. The number of Americans was 303,680, more than half of whom were naturalized, while the arrivals from the Home Islands greatly outnumbered all others. Canada is becoming more instead of less British with the efflux of time, pessimists to the contrary notwithstanding.—The West-lyan.

GEORGE M. BARR.

Popular Plumer.

The Politest Man in the British Army.

"This retirement, carried out deliberately, with scarcely any loss, and in the face of an enemy in position, reflects the greatest possible credit on Sir Herbert Plumer and those who so efficiently carried out his orders." Such was the tribute which Sir John French recently paid to General Plumer in his despatches concerning the second battle of Ypres. The tribute, however, is scarcely surprising, for in no military leader does the War Office repose greater confidence.

Plumer is fond of saying that the only way to learn the art of battle is to fight. To him an hour of experience is worth a year of textbooks. General Plumer's record of service dates back to 1884, when he took part in the Egyptian campaign, and fought with such gallantry that he was mentioned in despatches, and received the medal with clasp and the Khedive's Star. It was in the Matabele campaign and the Boer War, however, that he made his greatest name. Few men, indeed, came out of the South African War with a more brilliant record.

"Tommy" has always regarded Plumer as the soldier's friend, although, on account of his regard for dress, he is known as the "Dandy General" and the politest man in the British Army. He believes in saying "please," even at the canon's mouth. When he was in South Africa it was always a case of, "Sergeant, you see that cloud of dust on the right? Try a little pom-pom, please. Thank you; that is very nice. Just a little more, please—a little to the right. Thank you." Mayfah could not have been more polite.

Much of General Plumer's popularity is due to his happy temperament, which has led him to collect quite a number of military stories, chiefly of his campaigns in Rhodesia and the Transvaal. One which he is particularly fond of telling relates to one of his men who was in hospital, being treated for a wound in the thigh received on the march to the relief of Mafeking.

After dressing the wound, one of the surgeons handed to the soldier a battered siphon, which had been driven by the bullet through the pocket into the wound, whence it had been extracted by the doctor.

"Ah, I know all your R.A.M.C. tricks," cried the wounded man, on receiving the coin. "Give me the other nine and a tanner. I lost half a quid."

Prospero Returns.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, returned from the northward yesterday afternoon, bringing a large freight and the following passengers in saloon:—

Messrs. W. J. Ellis, T. Tracey, C. Decker, H. Decker, T. Pilgrim, L. Patey, E. W. Breen, Penney, G. Burton, F. Wall, Malcolm, A. Bradbury, T. Carter, F. March, S. R. Oakley, F. Fowlow, A. Wilson, F. J. Morris, A. Moore, D. O'Neill, Const. Turk; Messdames Pilgrim, Brien, Winsor, Payton, Parsons, Bursery; Messrs. Burton, Wheelan, Collins, Gibbons, Siergrove, Benson in saloon and 90 in steerage.

FISHERY NEWS.

The Prospero brings word that the fishery is not over yet at any of the places north and that the outlook for a big autumn's catch is bright. Occasionally boats are prevented from getting on the grounds, owing to heavy seas raging, but when conditions are such to allow operations to be carried on and that is about three days out of a week, boats get an average of from 3 to 5 qtls. each trip.

Wedding Bells.

FROSTE-KNIGHT.

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents 2225 Cornwall St. at noon, Sept. 8, Regina, Sask., when Miss Blanche Knight was wedded to Mr. H. B. Froste, formerly of Deseronto, Ont. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Knight, while the groom is a member of the legal firm of Froste and Gee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Stewart. Hulse Cook, of Vancouver, niece of the bride, was a pretty little flower girl. The bridesman was Dr. Sweeney. Immediately after the wedding the bride and groom left for Lake Katewa to spend a few days and on their return will take up their residence at 2392 Robinson Street.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. Alfred Dave wishes to thank the L. C. A. S. for beautiful wreath and also Mr. and Mrs. G. Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. William Butler, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Whiteway, Mr. and P. G. Mount Cashel.

Yesterday was the seventeenth anniversary of the opening of Mount Cashel Industrial School, and to commemorate the occasion Mass was celebrated at the institution by His Grace the Archbishop. Besides the Brothers the pupils and patrons of the institution.

After Mass His Grace took occasion to address the boys. He recalled the opening of the Orphanage seventeen years ago, and in doing so paid a touching tribute to the late Archbishop who always took such a keen interest in Mount Cashel, and to the late Bishop McDonald who was also present at the opening of the institution in 1898. He paid a well deserved tribute to the good work of the Brothers of Mount Cashel, and closed his beautiful discourse by praying that the Archangel Raphael would continually watch over the institution dedicated to his care, and that God's choicest blessings would descend on the labours of the good Brothers, who were performing a work after God's Own Heart.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed, the singing at this ceremony and also at the Mass, being rendered by the boys choir under Rev. Bro. Eagan, Prof. Hutton presiding at the organ.

During the year the Chapel at Mt. Cashel has been enlarged, and a large concrete play hall has been made for the boys to amuse themselves during the winter evenings. The good work of the Brothers of Mount Cashel is everywhere apparent. Several of their ex-pupils are holding good positions in various parts of the island and quite a few of the lads who received their first lessons in physical drill at the institution are now at the front fighting for the Empire. Rev. Bro. Ennis, the Principal, is doing splendid work for the glory of God, and the cause of the land of his adoption and the Telegram hopes that he may be spared many years to continue the noble mission of training the orphans of Mount Cashel.

Stains on blankets and other woolen goods can often be removed by using a mixture of equal parts of glycerine and yolk of egg. Spread this on the stain, leave half an hour and wash.

Fogota Arrives.

The S. S. Fogota, Capt. Dalton, arrived in port from the Fogot, mail service at 2 a.m. yesterday having made all ports of call to Change Islands going and returning. The ship brought a full freight, consisting principally of fish in cases, and the following passengers:—

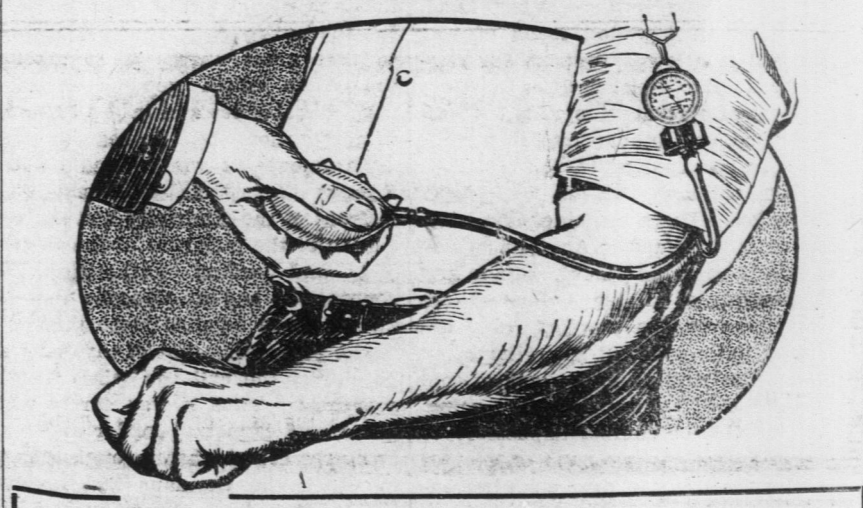

Rev. J. T. Hiscock, Pte. M. Hawco, Jas. Newman, E. M. Abbott, H. Gibbons, W. Parsons, J. Roberts, N. Smith, R. Collins, W. Guy, H. Moul-and, C. Coish, J. R. Whiteway, E. Abbott, W. Howell, Jas. Davis, Mrs. Capt. P. Barbour and 4 children, Mrs. E. Hogan, Miss F. W. Whiteway, Mrs. E. Cutler, Mrs. W. Murphy, Misses Coleman, Moulant, Reardon, B. Brinson, W. Roberts, E. Greene, B. Vincent in saloon and 30 in steerage.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

The realization of the extraordinary adaptiveness of the very young child should save parents many an anxious day and sleepless night. There is practically nothing easier than to impress upon the child whatever habits of daily and nightly routine one wishes him to acquire, if he be taken in hand early enough. The only requirements are knowledge of what is good for him and then inviolable regularity in everything which concerns him.

Under this training he will become as obstinate in being good as the opposite so called indulgent or capricious treatment always makes him in being bad. There is no reason why he should be walked with or held, why he should be taken up when he cries, why he should be treated when he awakes, or why he should have a light by night. Things like this are simply bad habits for which the parents have only themselves to thank. The child adapts himself to his training and it is his treatment that his habits reflect.

SEN-LAC ARRIVES.—The s.s. Sen-lac, 4 days from Charlottetown, reached port Saturday evening, bringing a cargo of live stock, including cows, oxen and sheep, and produce. She was unloaded quickly and left here again Sunday morning. The Sen-lac will make another trip here.

What Is Your Blood Pressure?

The age of the 40s is a critical period in every person's life. And one of the most common things that make it critical is increased "blood pressure" with its accompanying "hardening of the arteries."

Scientists have fully proven that increased blood pressure is caused by poisonous deposits in the delicate tissues of the arteries. One of the chief agents in this process is caffeine, the poisonous drug in tea and coffee.

"A man is as old as his arteries," life insurance companies say, and the Blood Pressure Test is one of the principal factors nowadays in determining a "risk." How do you stand?

If there is any doubt about tea or coffee hurting—if you have frequent headaches, biliousness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or heart flutter—try a 10 days' trial change to

Instant Postum

Postum comes in two forms: The original Postum Cereal—must be well boiled; and Instant Postum—the soluble form, made in the cup instantly.

One of the first steps away from increased Blood Pressure in tea and coffee drinkers is POSTUM.

THE CRAZY WAR.

WALT MASON.

When the flags have ceased to flutter over ambush, siege and rout, then perhaps the kings will mutter, "What was all this scrap about? We have torn our lands asunder, it has been a dandy war, but the time has come to wonder what in blitzen was it for? Now that for a little season we have ceased our gory fun, we'll have time to find a reason for the butchering we've done." They'll have time, the kings and princes, to ransack each royal mind, but a reason that convinces will be mighty hard to find. For a while they will endeavour, each to vindicate his crown, but the true excuse will never from a throne be handed down. If an honest, candid kinglet told the truth, he would declare, "By my halldom and cinglet, we were loaded up for bear; at each other we'd been yapping, springing warlike threat and curse, and we had to do some scrapping, just to show we had some nerve. We were wild and we were wooly, on each shoulder was a chip, and we had to act the bully, or we feared we'd lose our grip." Still the reeking cannon thunder, and there is no sign of peace, and the sickened nations wonder what's become of the pollice.

M. P. and the Turks.

"Wonderful Shots and Have Eyes Like Hawks," he Writes From Dardanelles.

Lieut. the Hon. F. S. McLaren, M. P. writing from the Dardanelles, says: "The Turks are wonderful shots, and have eyes like hawks. As soon as I put up my periscope bullets whizz round it, and at any moment one expects it to be shot from one's hand. "I have done a good deal of work in the Indian trenches. It is thrilling to see them chanting prayers in the evening, and reading from old religious books, which look as if they had come straight from the British Museum. They spend most of the day washing and cooking strange flat things like pancakes. Their English is very limited. "I have just been lurching with a machine gun officer, and he tells me how wonderfully and calmly they attack at night. A few hundred yards away there are 200 Turkish prisoners I had a talk with one, who complained bitterly that he had been fed on nothing but olive soup. "They have marvellous 'undies' spotted with dragons and crescents. Most of them are wounded, and our doctors were looping off fingers and toes and bandaging them up, while our soldiers were swooping identification discs, water-bottles, and such like for cigarettes."

Be very careful that the floor mop is washed at least twice a week. If it is used when black with dust it will break the floors. Time will be saved if a frying pan or griddle is wiped with a piece of newspaper to remove the surplus grease before it is washed.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISTEMPER.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

The Eastern Trust Company, Pitts Building, St. John's.

Did you ever think what a good pie could be made from the bits of jelly and fruit that accumulate? If there seems to be too much juice, add a little cornstarch.

Ducks are a good investment in the poultry yard, as they lay well through the summer, and the eggs are excellent for cooking purposes.

It is more pleasant for the guest if the hostess will not make plans for every minute of the day, rushing her about from place to place.

Every family will appreciate variety in bread. Whole wheat bread is nutritious, corn bread is good for breakfast, and is there anything better than rye muffins?

If you want to stock your chicken yard, it is better to buy little chickens already hatched and raise them with the brooder. In this way you will save the expense of buying old birds.

Cream soup is a pleasant nourishment for sick people. To one pint of boiling water add a half cupful of sweet cream. Season to taste and add tiny squares of well-toasted bread.

A fresh mildew spot can be removed with lemon juice and exposure to the sun. If it is an old spot, dissolve a tablespoonful of chloride of lime in four parts of cold water and soak the fabric.

For a family of six there is economy in buying a forequarter of lamb. You will have chops for one meal, shoulder for another and the neck for casserole or stewing, all for a moderate price.
