An Indispensable Favorite

Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER IX.

"Well—what?" old Miss Dormer asks, half frightened, but skeptical. "I saw her talking to Viscount Glynn for ever so long in the hall when you thought he was in the dining-room with Uncle Silas and Wilmot!"

"Talking? Well, really, Wilmot," begins Miss Dormer, bridling, with a displeased smile.

But Mrs. Sarjent is smiling, too—a smile of gloomy triumph.

"Talking to him and smirking at him as free and easy as you please—standing up close to him, and looking up at him in the most forward manner!" declares Mrs. Sarjent, with all the coldly wrathful denunciation of a crime against the code of propriety of the most prudish British matron.

"Well, but, after all, that isn't anything really bad, you know, Wilmot," urges Miss Dormer.

She is an obstinate old lady—Miss Keren-happuch Dormer—she is proud of her dreadful name, and writes it in full in all her books—very narrow-minded, as is natural to one whose whole life, mental and physical, has run in one groove; but she is an innocent, credulous old woman, whose knowledge of evil is less than that of many a child. She is fostering a firm belief in the "pious inclinations" of both Viscount Glynn and "mama-selle," and has an uncomfortable idea that Mrs. Sarjent is inclined to sneer at the "piety" of both.

"Wait a bit till I've done, Aunt Keren," Mrs. Sarjent says, dryly—"I've more to tell you. I had my eye on that fine French dame all the evening. My goodness, how she does dress! What do you pay her?"

"Fifty pounds a year," Aunt Keren replies, bluntly. "It's a good deal of money, but not too much for a good French governess, as Mrs. Vavasor, the lady who was her last employer, said to me."

"One would think she had twice fifty to see the gown that was on her last night!" Mrs. Sarjent remarks, with much bitterness. "She'll never be satisfied with your small salary and your quiet house, Aunt Keren," she continues; "as I can see that with half an eye! She means to fly at high game, and she doesn't mind if she poaches, either. Your viscount's a married man, isn't he?"

"Yes—of course, Wilmot," Miss Dormer answers, trembling with alarm. "But I really don't think you ought to talk so before Yolande."

"A nice moral married man he is, then! I pity his wife!" Mrs. Sarjent says, with self-satisfied malignity. "And it's quite proper Yolande should be here, Aunt Keren, since she's going to marry into the family—it's my duty to tell her as well as you what I saw."

"What?" they both ejaculate, and draw their chairs closer, and hold their breath, poor Yolande pale with dread of she knows not what.

But Mrs. Sarjent has no notion of giving her story away in a lump, so to speak. She stretches it out, and heightens the dramatic effect.

"Perhaps you don't look at things in the same light as I do, Aunt Keren," she says, severely—"perhaps you don't see anything very improper in it! I consider it immoral to be chucked under the chin!"

"Wh-ah!" Aunt Keren ejaculates, huskily, dropping her spectacles. "Chucked her under the chin!" Mrs. Sarjent repeats, tragically, rising to her feet in the excitement of the occasion. "I saw with my own two eyes that precious nobleman friend of yours chuck that French governess of yours under the chin!"

The "tic-tac" of the clock on the mantelshelf sounds loudly in the dead silence that follows this frightful statement.

"I can't believe it!" Miss Dormer exclaims, with almost a groan.

"And I always thought," Yolande says, in a choking voice, "that mademoiselle was such a very modest, shy girl!"

.....

"I want to tell you something, cherie," mademoiselle says that same night, coming into Yolande's room very softly in her trailing crimson cashmere dressing-gown lavishly ruffled with frayed crimson silk. "I don't think there is really any need that I should speak of it, dear," she continues in a meek tone, watching Yolande through her eyelashes; "but it might not be strictly honorable to you and dear Miss Dormer not to tell you who have been such kind, good, dear friends! Viscount Glynn spoke to me for a few minutes last night in the hall. What a good, kind, fatherly man he is," mademoiselle observes, in feeling tones that make Yolande dreadfully ashamed of herself—"so especially kind and considerate to me, because he thinks I am in the position of a dependent! That shows the true gentleman, doesn't it, cherie?"

"Yes," murmurs Yolande, tugging her thick brows, crosses instead of combing them out.

"Well," pursues mademoiselle, in a smiling confidential manner, "as he saw me crossing the hall, he spoke to me in his kind, friendly way, and then he asked me if I could recommend him—fancy, poor me—recommend him some kind, ladylike person as a nurse and personal attendant on poor, dear Lady Maria—the viscountess—who is such a sufferer, you know, dear."

"No, I didn't know anything about her, mademoiselle," Yolande responds, in a low tone. "I am very sorry, poor lady!"

"Poor lady, truly—only blessed in having one of the best of husbands!" mademoiselle says, warmly, seeing she can now go on and embroider her story as she pleases, for no discrepancy will be discovered. "But the Glynnes are all good husbands," she pursues, gravely, with an air of old and intimate friendship—"Zambal, devoted, warm-hearted!" She can hardly keep the grin of ridicule off her lips as she looks askance at the flushing face and downcast eyelids and nervous fingers twirling with the loose curly locks of honey brown hair, and turns it rather unsuccessfully into a tender smile. "You will prove that one day, cherie, I hope." And then she hurries on, with stammered delicacy. "And when I said, 'No, I could not think of recommending any one for such an important post, do you know what he said, dear?'"

"That he wants you to go to Fenestrath Place, mademoiselle!" Yolande exclaims, with a keen pain of envy thrilling her through.

Oh, why has not Fate made her a governess or a lady nurse, so that she might have this happy chance of going to live in the very house where Captain Glynn is? What exquisite pleasure to be able to meet him sometimes and say "Good-morning!" What unspeakable happiness to pour out his coffee and hand him the newspaper! And mademoiselle will not appreciate the happiness or the privileges in any great degree.

It is the very foolishness of folly, poor child; but her heart is on fire with passionate, jealous longing, and tears of bitter hopelessness rise to her eyes. It is the very foolishness of folly, as the wise world counts such things—the recklessness and restlessness, the fever, the torture of hope, the agony of happiness, the dull, life-longing coldness of despair of the frightened young soul just entering upon its woo-wedged heritage—love. It is the very foolishness of folly, this spendthrift wishfulness, this surrendering up in large and generous measure of the bright coin of a fresh young heart's richest treasures in exchange for the "fairly gold" of—withered leaves!

Cook does with very young scragged carrots, sweeten slightly and sprinkle with chopped parsley. When making a salad dressing all the dry ingredients should be mixed together before adding any liquids.

Just Say Blue-jay

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Stope the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in clear liquid and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

NOT QUITE THAT.

It was a very seedy City restaurant. One of those places that hide themselves away in a little back street, and where dinners are sold for a very few pence—at least, they are called dinners.

Among the customers was a bankrupt stock-jobber, who could hardly afford to patronise even such a place as that. He ordered the cheapest meal possible from the waiter, and when the food was brought along he noticed that the man who carried the tray was an old friend of his. "Good heavens, Charlie!" he cried. "What ever are you doing here? You don't mean to say that you have come down to this?"

Charlie drew himself up with dignity. "I wait here, Bill," he replied coldly. "I don't lunch here!"

WHO'S WHO?

Conversation of a couple of men who know but can't place each other:

"Hello there."
"How's it do?"
(A nervous pause.)
"Haven't seen you around lately?"
"No. 'S a fact."
(A nervous pause.)
"Seen any of 'th' ol' crowd lately?"
"No. . . . No."
(A nervous pause.)
"Don't get around much 'nself?"
"Same here."
(A nervous pause.)
"Great of days, wasn't they?"
"I'll say they were."
(A nervous pause.)

IT HAD HAPPENED BEFORE.

"Now, dear," remarked Mrs. Subbub to her husband, as he was getting ready to go to the City, "I want you to do a little job for me while you are in town to-day. Will you go along to Gosse's and get me a jumper?"

"Very well, dear," replied her husband, and went his way.

Entering the shop some time later, Mr. Subbub gave his order.

"Here are some very pretty ones," said the shop-assistant. "What colour do you prefer?"

"It doesn't make any difference," was the answer.

"Doesn't make any difference?" echoed the girl. "But don't you think your wife would like a certain colour?"

"No, it doesn't make any difference what colour or size I get," said Mr. Subbub sadly. "I shall have to come back to-morrow and have it changed."

SHE WAS RIGHT.

Uncle John was explaining to his little niece all about the mysteries of bird migration. He explained how the swallows and martins come from far off lands in the early summer, and then go back again to the warmer climates when the autumn comes along.

Little Phyllis was very interested in his account.

"Do all the birds go away?" she asked.

"No, dear," replied uncle, "only a few of them."

"Does the robin go?" was her next question.

"No, dear," answered uncle, "the robin just gets himself a new red waistcoat and stays."

There was a long pause, and then Phyllis said thoughtfully:

"I don't think that's right, Uncle John."

"Why not, dear?"

"Well, I've seen heaps of robins wearing red waistcoats, but never one with stays!"

Incorporating a Duke.

The break-up and transfer of large landed holdings is one of the most notable results of the war in England. A peculiar incident in this movement is the announcement that the Duke of Devonshire and his son, the Earl of Devonshire, are to float a private joint-stock company for the acquisition of the estates of the Buccleuch estates. The Duke's Business (Washington, D.C.) states these facts from the Manchester Guardian Weekly:

The Duke and the Earl are to be the principals of the company, which has a nominal capital of £100,000, divided equally into preference and ordinary shares of £1 each, and is to carry on the business of managing and developing estates and of farmers, gardeners, sheep-farmers, and stock-breeders.

The estates to be acquired are in the counties of Edinburgh, Roxburgh, Selkirk, and Dumfries. These include three principal residences, among them Dalkeith House, where Royalty has frequently been entertained. The Duke has in all five residences, and the Earl has in two are Boughton House remaining in Northamptonshire, and London residence, 2 Grosvenor Place, S.W.

According to one authority, the Duke's estates in Scotland consist of about 400,000 acres. In Dumfries are 250,000 acres, in Roxburgh 100,000, in Selkirk nearly 6,000, in Edinburgh County approximately 3,000. These possessions stretch over large areas of hunting and fishing country, and contain a fair proportion of agricultural land. In addition there is considerable mineral wealth in the county of Edinburgh. He is also the owner of considerable land in England, especially in the Midland and Home Counties.

DOUBLE THE WEIGHT OF CROWDS

Recent investigations of the stresses set up by the movements of live loads have revealed the surprising fact that men and women, when they are excited, weigh twice as much as when they are sitting quietly.

The fact is taken into consideration by construction engineers in building large grandstands to seat thousands of persons at the races or at football and baseball games. The stands must be designed to support increases in load when crowds suddenly stand up, lean forward, or sway together in their excitement.

During tests made by a professor of engineering, a man was placed on the platform of a scale in a crouching position, then told to stand up. As he did so, a reading of the scale showed that his weight had increased 67 per cent. Arising from a chair added 78 per cent. When the man suddenly straightened up from a crouch and at the same time brought his arms down, the scale showed that he had momentarily added 17 per cent to his weight; in other words, that his weight had increased more than two and a half times.

A man rising suddenly exerts not only this powerful downward force, but a horizontal force as well.—Popular Science.

For a very unusual and cooling beverage try tomato punch. To 1 quart of strained tomato juice add a cold sugar sirup made with 1 cupful each of sugar and water boiled together for five minutes, and the juice of two lemons. Serve ice cold.

The flavour of H.P. sauce is quite unique. Oriental fruits and spices perfectly blended with pure malt vinegar give H.P. a delicious flavour and piquancy that suits all tastes.

O Wonderful Horse!

"O horse, you are a wonderful thing; no buttons to push, no horn to honk; you start yourself, no clutch to slip; no spark to miss, no gears to strip; no license-buying every year; no plates to screw on front and rear; no gas bills climbing up each day; stealing the joy of life away; no speed cops chugging in your rear, yelling summons in your ear. Your inner tubes are all O.K., and, thank the lord, they stay that way; your spark plugs never miss and fuss; your motor never makes us cuss. Your frame is good for many a mile; your body never changes style. Your wants are few and easy met; you've something on the auto yet."—Ranger H. R. Elliott, of the Malheur in American Forestry (Washington.)

THE FISHER-BOY.

Oh, happy boy who trudges down
The dusty lane at night,
And comes once more into the town
A vision of delight;
The proud possessor of a thrill
To which age cannot cling,
Who walks the homeward journey
With fish upon his string.

The pole across his shoulders wears
A touch of manly pride,
And surely these are lordly airs
Which mark the youngster's stride.
Here is achievement's lofty height
With all success can bring,
A fisher-lad bound home at night,
His trophies on a string.

The neighbours run to see his catch
And count them o'er and o'er
As though they'd never seen the catch
Of fish like those before.
The old men stop him on his way
To hear his wondrous tale,
And tell about the time when they
Once walked the self-same trail.

This is the highest peak of joy
To which life lets us climb:
To be a little while a boy
Stealing his care of time,
To come when evening shadows fall
And fade the golden sun,
Head high, to show to one and all
The trophies you have won.

Oh, once I trudged the dusty lane,
And once old men stopped me
When night came slipping down again
My shining catch to see;
Time was the neighbour's smile I Knew
And shared the joy you know,
Oh, happy boy. Once I was you,
But that was long ago!

United States Against Trusts.

Washington Now Asks Dissolution of International Harvester Co. Washington, July 18.—(United Press).—The Federal Government's trust-busting drive to-day was in motion with renewed vigor.

Following a lull of several months in which no suits were filed, the Department of Justice has now gone into the courts with a petition asking the dissolution of the International Harvester Corporation, which it charges continues to operate in restraint of trade, despite decrees ordering its activities curtailed.

Within the next few weeks, similar actions will be taken against Pacific Coast cement manufacturers and raisin growers and probably fish canners and lumbermen, it is understood. Certain makers of automobile accessories are also said to be on the slate for Government attack.

Attorney-General Daugherty put in motion the campaign against "industrial octopuses," soon after he took office. Among the anti-trust actions filed in the past two years are those against Northwest lumber associations, Ohio glass manufacturers, pottery makers and the Southern Pacific railroad.

AT HOME.

I'm glad I have a pleasant home, with costly chromos there, the lamplight glowing on my dome, an aunt in every chair. There simple pleasures do beguile the night hours as they sail; I play the phonograph while, and hear great singers wail; I read a volume large and thick, or dominoes I play, I take a drink that has no kick, and bid me to the hay. I'd rather read a goodly book beside the evening fire, than roam the town and meet a crook who'd rob me of my lyre. The folks who stay at home o' nights, with aunts and other pets, may miss some garrish, wild delights, but they have no regrets; their simple life is sane and wise, their accidents are few, and in the morning when they rise they are as good as new. The list of crimes would quickly slump if riddy gaults and games would gather round the kitchen pump and play some homely games. I'd like to see the home restored to what it was lang syne, when children grouped around the board till half-past eight or nine; they read strange tales from Mother Goose concerning Miss Bo-Peep, and when the bedtime hour cut loose, they promptly went to sleep. Old ways are gone and out of sight, and won't come back I guess; where are those kids of ours to-night, as we proceed to press?

He was on sentry duty for the first time. An officer approached. "Halt! Who goes there?" he shouted.

"Officer of the day." And the officer continued on his rounds.

But he hadn't gone far when the sentry shouted again: "Halt! Who goes there?"

The officer halted and look back furiously. "What's the idea," he snarled, "halting me twice like this? What's the idea?"

"Never you mind the idea," said the sentry. "My orders is to call 'Halt' three times and then shoot!"

The Need of the Hour.

The Report tabled by the Minister of Education will be read by, comparatively speaking, but a few of the community. Were it published in full in the daily papers, so as to come within the reach of every individual in the country, it is doubtful if it would receive from many, more than a casual glance.

Various reasons might be given for this remarkable attitude, but a few will suffice. There is not sufficient interest taken in the subject. There is an inclination on the part of some people to criticize without taking the trouble to find out first whether their attitude is correct or not. Some do not wish to realize their responsibility in the matter; others consider Education more or less a luxury.

The city of it! While the civilized-world outside has awakened long ago to the fact that Education is the base upon which the whole of its religious, social, political, and economical fabric must be founded, we as a people have given it but scant consideration. We have had in the past, and we have among us now men whose lives have been devoted to this burning topic. They have accomplished much, but as a people we have not realized our most pressing need.

The Press is continually emphasizing the absence of a healthy public spirit. What is going to awaken it? Education. There is prevalent a disregard for private and public property. How is this higher tone in civic morals to be secured? By Education. There are many who have no idea of the privileges they possess, or of the responsibility that is theirs by virtue of the franchise. What alone will bring it home to them? Nothing on earth but Education. We go into the outside world, and find ourselves outclassed because of our handicap, and were it not for our natural ability to acquire knowledge when it comes within our grasp, we should remain among strangers, hewers of wood and drawers of water.

In our own country we see the higher positions often filled by outsiders because it is impossible to obtain here persons with the necessary qualifications for those offices. But there is still hope. We are slow to change the tenor of our ways. We have a natural obstinacy which in times of stress has proved our greatest asset. It has likewise been a stumbling block in our march of progress. When once we realize, however, that a new course must be taken, the change is rapid and complete. Already there are signs that the country is awakening to a fuller realization of this urgent need.

The Editor's Thanks.

In Passing.

Hundreds of citizens eager to secure admission into the visitors seats in the House of Assembly were disappointed because of the large number who were first near the entrances and succeeded in filling every available seat leaving standing room at a premium.

All interest was centered upon Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C., who in making his pronouncement won the approval of the entire assembly.

Mr. Warren now faces the most critical period of his political history and it is the wish of all irrespective of political thought that he will be successful in his important mission.

He purpose assuming the office of Prime Minister at a period that will be recorded with many events that will be of substance for the future history of the colony consequently he is justified in the asking for the unqualified support of the Assembly and the confidence of the people.

The resignation of Sir Richard Squires which was made compulsory by his associates in the Government who wished to repudiate the actions of Sir Richard brings with it a certain degree of distrust and only by a united effort to make good the mistakes of his predecessor can Mr. Warren and his future Government hope to win and enjoy the confidence of the people.

That the Squires Government deemed it advisable to demand the resignation of Sir Richard Squires as Prime Minister of the colony is a hopeful sign that a sincere attempt to have a safe, sane and an honest administration in charge of the affairs of the country is being made. In his undertaking the Hon. Mr. Warren is deserving of the sympathy of all irrespective of party allegiance or affiliation. His task is a difficult one and it is earnestly hoped he will win despite the many obstacles that confront him at present as well as those which will crop up during the next two or three years.

This is the first time in the history of the country a Prime Minister has been forced to resign under such circumstances, an incident which recalls historic events of the past.

One in particular occurred in 1861 when Hon. John Kent, who was Premier openly accused Sir Alexander Bannerman (the Governor at the time) of conspiracy with the judges the lawyers and the minority in the House of Assembly to defeat the Government Bill fixing the value to be given to sterling money in the payment of official salaries. This accusation appeared in the newspapers. The Governor wrote to Mr. Kent who was also Colonial Secretary asking for an explanation. Mr. Kent replied that he did not consider himself called upon to give an account of his utterances to his Excellency. Immediately Sir Alexander dismissed the Kent Ministry and called upon Mr. Hoyle (late Sir H. Hoyle) to form a new administration.

Mr. Hoyle agreed, assembly was dissolved and a general election took place in April of the same year. The result completely changed the position of the political parties.

Gas Company Meeting.

The Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the St. John's Gas Light Company was held yesterday in the Reading Room of the George V. Institute. The Report of the Directors for the past year, and the Auditor's Report and Accounts were unanimously adopted. A marked improvement in the company's affairs was shown by the reports. The condition of the Gas Works and Plant had been very materially improved, substantial reductions had been made in the price charged for gas, and the Gas Service to the city had been most satisfactory.

The election of Directors for the ensuing year resulted as follows: John R. Bennett, Esq., James Baird, Jr., Esq., L. E. Emerson, Esq., W. H. Rennie, Esq., James Crawford, Esq., Cyril E. Carter, Esq., A. W. O'Reilly, Esq. After the close of the General Meeting the following officers were appointed: John R. Bennett, Esq., President; James Baird, Jr., Esq., Vice-President; W. H. Rennie, Esq., Actg. Secretary.

Recital Methodist College Hall.

AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE HEAR DELIGHTFUL SINGING.

A large audience was present at the Methodist College Hall last night to hear the Grand Concert by Capt. J. H. Campbell, M.C., assisted by Miss Eleanor Mews, L.T.C.M. As the proceeds of the affair were to go to the aid of the Girl Guides and Boy Scout Movements, there was not a single ticket left unsold at 8.30, and all seats had been occupied before the first number of the programme had begun. When the talented singers appeared on the platform the huge audience greeted them with a tremendous reception, which both gratefully acknowledged. The programme which was a very lengthy one, was rendered faultlessly, as follows:—

- 1.—(a) Have you seen but a Whyte Little grow, Anon (1614); (b) The pretty Creature, arr. Lane Wilson; (c) Sally in our Alley, Arr. M. Pierpont; (d) See where my Love a-maying goes, C. A. Lodgey; (e) It was a Lover and his Lass, arr. F. Keel, Mr. Hugh Campbell.
- 2.—(a) Les papillons couleur de neige, (Butterflies, colour of snow) D'Ambrasio; (b) Rondel melancholique pour une amante oublieuse, (Melancholy Rondel for a forgetful lover), Rabey; (c) Le Cid—Pleurez, pleurez mes yeux, Massenet. Miss Eleanor Mews.
- 3.—(a) Sea Fever, John Weland; (b) Epigram, Eugene Gossens; (c) Shy One, Rebecca Clarke; (d) Pigeonnie, Peter Warlock; (e) My dear Mistress, F. Austin; (f) Corrina's going a-maying, Ernest Walker, Mr. Hugh Campbell.
- 4.—(a) Now sleeps the Crimson Petal, Quilter; (b) Where the Bee Sucks, Arne; (c) O Mistress Mine, Willan; (d) Nursery Rhymes, Curran; (e) The Sailor's Wife, Burleigh; (f) Tally-ho!, Leonl. Miss Eleanor Mews.
- 5.—(a) The Little Red Fox, A. Somervell; (b) The bold unbidden Child, C. V. Stanford; (c) Troitin to the Fair, C. V. Stanford; (d) An coticaechan, 'Twa bonnie maidens, Jenny's Zaywee, Scottish Songs, Mr. Hugh Campbell.

Mr. Campbell's selection of songs gave him every opportunity to display his voice. Miss Mews surpassed the reputation so firmly established at her recital some weeks ago and was presented with two charming bouquets after her first appearance. Mr. Gordon Christian presided at the piano and his accompaniments were played exceptionally well and contributed greatly to the success of the singers. Mr. Campbell acknowledged this help by sharing his honors with Mr. Christian who was also accorded a round of applause. Many distinguished visitors were present among whom were His Excellency the Governor, Lady and Miss Allardyce and Vice Admiral Seymour. At the close of part 4 Lady Allardyce moved up to the stage and thanked the artists for their entertainment & appealed to the audience to continue to help out the Girl Guides and Boy Scouts. Lady Allardyce spoke of the good work which could be accomplished by helping out the boys and girls who, perhaps, may rise to be great men and women. There was much to be done and money was urgently needed for headquarters.

Naval Yacht Yankton Purchased.

WILL FLY ON BOSTON-ST. JOHN'S SERVICE.

S.S. Yankton, now on dock at New York, has recently been purchased by the Boston-Halifax-Nfld. Steamship Co. for service on this route. The ship, formerly an American naval yacht, is undergoing extensive alterations, to fit her for the passenger and freight service. According to a recent issue of the New York Herald, the Yankton was sold at auction at Third Street and East River for $8,900 plus Auctioneer's fee of $250. Built in 1893 at Leith, Scotland, the Yankton was acquired by Sarah Bernhardt as a private yacht. In May, 1898, the United States Government bought her at a cost of $125,000 and converted her into a gunboat, so-called by courtesy more than by reason of her armament for she boasted but two three pounders. She served as a despatch boat at Santiago during the war with Spain, and won fame as an ocean courier, dashing here and there among her larger sisters. In the late war she was detailed to help the Allies fight the U-boats in the Mediterranean and was with the British and American fleets at Gibraltar. Three years after the war naval experts decided the Yankton was too old and condemned her as unfit for further service. She was sold for $19,000.

Poor Fishery Report.

FISHERMEN WILL ABANDON VOYAGE.

A report from Change Islands to the Board of Trade states that the catch 6-date 780 qds. is the lowest on record for traps and trawls. A report from Charles Barrett, Sub-Collector at Bay de Verde, states that from Break Heart to Meads Brook there is no prospect of any catch. The season opened, he says, with one of the greatest storms for 40 years, and outdrags, salmon nets and trawls were practically torn to shreds. It took 10 or 12 days to repair the damaged trawls but when placed again in the water traps and nets were again wrecked. Over 300 men are engaged in the fishery in this section and to-date they have secured only 300 quintals fish. In 10 or 15 days time, he says, every fisherman that can get other work will abandon the fishery.

Mt. Cashel Day.

EVERYTHING FINALIZED TO MAKE GARDEN PARTY A BIG SUCCESS.

Preparations are all finalized for the making of the Mount Cashel Garden Party, which takes place this afternoon, a successful one. Bro. Ennis has taken special interest in the Sports end of the programme this year. The three mile race has a long list of entries, and promises to be the classic event of the day. Mr. Noel, the surveyor, has measured out a course on the football grounds, at eight laps to the mile, and there should be no dispute as to the winners time recorded over this route. Some 12 ponies were out to the grounds taking a spin over the course last night. This race promises to be equally as interesting as the other years. The ponies will race over the old track, which has been properly roped off for the occasion. The music during the afternoon and night will be furnished by the G.L.B., C.C.C., and last, but not least, the talented musicians of the Orphanage. All that is required to make the day a gala one is fine weather.

The Pound of Flesh.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—I noticed a note in your issue of last evening to the effect that a lady motorist had had the misfortune of running into and killing a cow. The item ends as follows:—"The owner of the animal has since been compensated for his loss." I should certainly say he had been compensated. The lady in question paid the amount asked for by the owner of the cow, without debate, and was promptly soaked one hundred and forty dollars ($140).

North Harbor River is about four miles from Colinet. The latter is only 3 hours motor drive from the city.

Army Develops Talking Gas Mask.

A new gas mask recently developed by an officer of the Chemical Service, U.S. Army, is said to overcome the difficulty of the while the mask is in place. A diaphragm of tracing cloth cannot be penetrated by gases in place in front of the mouth. The vibration of the speaker's diaphragm causes the sound to pass through the mask as if it were as though no mask were worn. In addition to this advantage the mask is supplied with chemicals which make it valuable as a respirator other than war gases. Wearing a mask a man need not fear carbon monoxide, ammonia and fumes.

Peace at Last Between Allies and Turkey.

Lady Astor's Bill Passed House of Lords - Chinese Bandits Seize British Engineer.

PEACE TREATY SIGNED AT 3.15 P.M. YESTERDAY.

LAUSANNE, July 24. The Lausanne Peace Treaty was signed this Tuesday afternoon, at three-fifteen o'clock.

PEACE TREATY SIGNED AT LAUSANNE.

LAUSANNE, July 24. The general treaty formally ending the state of war, was signed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Greece, Rumania and Turkey to-day.

Jugo Slavia announced refusal to sign on grounds that to do so would be harmful to her national interests. The treaty distributes the Ottoman Empire among countries like Jugo Slavia which acquired parts of former Ottoman Empire. Jugo Slavia maintains that she annexed her former Turkish territories as a result of the Balkan wars. She prefers therefore to abide by the treaties of London and Brest-Litovsk, which fixed the political status of the Balkans. She has agreed to negotiate directly with the European powers regarding her possible responsibility in connection with the Turkish debt. In addition to the general treaty, the Conference has a routine for the Turkish Straits to which Russia and Bulgaria adhere, and separate agreement on frontiers of Thrace commercial and amnesty accords, and protocols on concessions for minorities, and judicial safeguards for foreigners, and documents by which Belgium and Portugal adhere to certain parts of the treaty. Ismet Pasha for Turkey signed first Allied representatives following. The signing took place in the grand hall of Lausanne, and was carried out with traditional Swiss simplicity. Lausanne made the occasion a holiday.

Newfoundland as a Tourist Resort.

SIR EDGAR BOWLING SPEAKS ON "NEWFOUNDLAND AS A TOURIST RESORT" AT ROTARY CLUB.

The attractions of Newfoundland as a tourist resort was the subject of a very interesting address by Sir Edgar Bowling at the Rotary Luncheon held Tuesday at Woods' Restaurant. Sir Edgar referring to the salmon and trout rivers and excellent shooting grounds pointed out that if the comforts and necessities expected by European and American tourists were to be had in Newfoundland, there is no doubt but that the revenue which would be derived from this source would be enormous.

The idea, as carried out in Norway, of renting certain rivers and lakes to tourists, he thought, would be an attractive scheme and would appeal to tourists. He also emphasized the necessity of good motor roads throughout the island and the necessity of a modern hotel located at St. John's and important outport towns. This is very important if tourists were to be induced to repeat their visits to our sporting grounds. A better steamship service between the old country and Newfoundland would also be vital to increase tourist traffic from the old country.

In speaking of the possibilities of developing the tourist traffic of Newfoundland, he instanced "the case of Bermuda which, largely through the energy and ability of a former Newfoundlandian the Hon. J. P. Hand, now a member of the Bermuda Government, has developed a tourist traffic from which is derived a main source of revenue. He also pointed out that the hotels at Bermuda operate for only three months and as short as this period is, a very handsome profit is derived.

In speaking of his visit to California and Florida, Sir Edgar stated that twenty-five years ago Miami was but a crude village. The colored inhabitants occupying rude huts; to-day it has a population of about 80,000, due principally to the development of the tourist traffic which is now enormous. Here also the hotels operate for

MOUNT CASHEL TO-DAY.

- 4.45—Pony Heats.

- 6.30—Finals Pony Race.
- 6.45—Football Finals.

LIVINGSTONE AND MCLAFLAN GRANTED BAIL.

HALIFAX, July 24. Maurice Noonan, aged ninety, who saw sixty-five years constant service at lifesaving station, Sable Island, died to-day at Dartmouth. He had never needed attention of dentist or optician; his eyesight and teeth being unimpaired at time of his death. His lifesaving service is thought to constitute a record.

CAPTURED BY CHINESE BANDITS.

Chinese bandits have captured Darcey Weatherbe, British Mining Engineer, near Chihuo, Province of Yunnan, according to reports received by Customs Commissioner here to-day. Weatherbe was formerly a resident of Pekin. Darcey Weatherbe is a native of Halifax and son of the late Sir Robert Weatherbe, former Chief Justice of Nova Scotia. He was educated at Royal Military College, Kingston, and has held positions in many parts of the globe. He was last heard from in May, when he wrote his brother from North Burmah, stating that he was setting out with mules and natives, to explore new uncharted routes to Pekin, from Burmah through a country never before visited by any whites. After graduating, Mr. Weatherbe held a position in the Nova Scotia mines office from whence he set out for foreign countries, earning international reputation as a mining engineer and visiting practically every part of the globe.

LADY ASTOR'S BILL GOES THIRD.

LONDON, July 24. The House of Lords to-day passed another amendment, third reading of Lady Astor's bill, prohibiting sale of intoxicating liquors to any person under sixteen years of age. The assent of the Crown is now only required.

A Sheffield Girl's Claim.

Miss Irene Gilbert, of Sheffield, brought distinction to English swimming when she broke the 200 metres Ladies' Breast Stroke record by the substantial margin of 11 secs. at Sheffield, a few days ago. The world's record was formerly held by Miss E. V. Bogart, of Antwerp, her time being 2 mins. 31 2-5 secs. Miss Gilbert is only a frail slip of a girl, and one is puzzled to know where she obtains her remarkable skill from. Maybe, it is her frailty which is the secret of her success, for she swims over the surface without apparent effort, whilst her rivals appear to be labouring trying to pull themselves through underneath the water.

DRIVERS, BEWARE! DRIVERS TAKE CARE!

Motor cars and other vehicles proceeding to Mount Casheiwads to-day will do so by the Portage Road and return by way of Kennel Hill. No vehicles will be permitted to pass towards the city over the Portage Road from its junction with the Torbay Road between 2 and 9 p.m. The traffic cop 'll git yah at yuh don't watch out!

THE BECKETT BOGEY.

At the time of writing it is still "will he—won't he" with Joe Beckett, who states that if he fights Carpenter to-morrow it will be under protest—who is making no attempt to train, and who refused to put up the $1,000 which Major Wilson demanded as a guarantee that he would face Carpenter in the ring. Whereupon the major demanded the posting of his guarantee—failing which, he intended leaving a writ. We leave Beckett and his action with regard to this contest with Carpenter to the public to judge, but one must say that our heavy-weight champion has appeared in anything but a favourable light from the start to the finish of the negotiations. There is one thing apparent all through, and that is that Joe Beckett does not want to meet Carpenter. He asks now that the fight shall be postponed until September in order that he may get his damaged hand right and have proper time to train. For the moment we will leave our comment at that.

GAME POSTPONED.

Despite the fact that a large number of fans braved the elements last night to witness the Fedians-Saints game the League officials decided on the field of play to postpone it owing to the wretched condition of the sod.

Who Should Play For England?

So far as the British Isles are concerned, there does not appear to be any very clear thinking indicated in with reference to the players who are, or are not, eligible to play for the Mother Country in the International lawn tennis events. For instance, it appears that Brian Norton, who comes from South Africa, is not regarded as a player who ought to turn out for the British Isles, but on the other hand, "Pat" Wheatley, who was also born in South Africa, has also played for the Mother Country in the International lawn tennis events.

THE "STILL" ALARM.

Mamie was a medium of wonderful control—She could raise a flock of spirits in a wink. Then one day the cops discovered that the "spirits" forms that hovered were dispensed from half pint bottles at half a buck a drink.

POPULAR BALL PLAYER INJURED.

Heber Gabriel, the well-known ball player who used to hold down third base for the C.E.L., was seriously injured at the Dock yesterday afternoon his legs being crushed. The full extent of his injuries are not yet known; but that they are not as serious as at present anticipated and that he will have a speedy recovery is the earnest wish of his many friends.

EDITOR'S NOTE.

"Road Race" strictures are quite justified in our opinion; and in reply we have to say, so far as the "Telegram" Road Race on Sept. 5th is concerned, that it will be run as before under the auspices and control of the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association and will thus constitute a championship. The 10 mile distance has been correctly measured and checked, and the point on the road near the Octagon where the start should be made is already staked.

Allowance is also made for the run up the field from the gate at St. George's and the two rounds of the enclosure. We understand that the distance for the G.W.V.A. Race was somewhat longer as the competitors were started some hundreds of yards towards the Toppall side of the measured distance. The haphazard methods as a rule of the road race committee militate against the competitors themselves and no one else unfortunately. The pity it is that all sports committees contemplating long distance events do not avail themselves of the willing services of the standing Road Race Committee of the A.A.A. whereby not only are records and distances guaranteed but contestants determined to finish the gruelling grind are given every protection and encouragement. In face this year the "Evening Telegram" is donating, in addition to the valuable silver cup, 2 gold and 5 silver medals for the first eight competitors who finish within a reasonable time.

WHAT IS THE OFFICIAL COURSE?

The Editor of Sportographs Dear Sir—Would you kindly inform me through your Sporting Column, where the correct starting point is at the Octagon, for the 10-Mile Marathon. In the race last year for the Telegram Trophy, we started at a point near the Octagon, and finished with two laps of St. George's Field, which completed the 10-mile course. In the War Veterans Sports this year (and I may say this has occurred before in other races) we started the race about three or four hundred yards further in the road and finished with two laps of St. George's Field. Both times in this race was considerably slower than the time made in the Telegram race, and I content that we covered more than the 10-mile course, which would cause this to happen. Would you kindly inform me if this course has been over and properly measured by anyone, and if not, why does not one of our Athletic Associations have this done, and avoid further mistakes occurring. Another thing I would also like to see done is, that those in charge of any sports in which there is a 10-mile race, would let all runners finish the full course, and not halt them at the entrance to

Mount Casheiwads Garden Party To-Day.

NOVELTY AND FLOWER STALLS ADDITIONAL ATTRACTIONS.

An added attraction to the Garden Party at Mount Casheiwads this afternoon will be the introduction of a novelty stall in conjunction with the Tea Table presided over by Mrs. Harry Peddigrig. The articles on sale will consist of beautiful pieces of fancy goods, the work of the good Sisters at Bevidere Orphanage, hats, bags, aprons, and other dainty goods. As a remembrance to Mount Casheiwads Day 1923 a limited supply of souvenirs will also be on sale. Other table holders have also decided to supplement their receipts by additional attractions, one in particular, a flower stall, which will contain a bountiful display worthy of the best products of the various nurseries and private hot houses in the city. We draw attention to the many patrons present during the afternoon to these special attractions, all of which will help to add to the financial success of the Garden Party.

Dockers' Strike in Britain Has Become Serious.

Sudden Set-Back Given to Hopes of Peace After Conference

LONDON, July 18.—(A.P.)—The development to-day in Liverpool of a serious phase of the dockers' strike, interfering with trans-Atlantic shipping from that port, and stopping other traffic out of the Mersey, came as a set-back to the hopes of peace laid out here as the result of the executive body of the transport union having decided to call a conference in London of strikers from all the ports involved. This call follows preliminary negotiations at Manchester yesterday.

The critical state of the strike situation was indicated by the decision of the London cartage contractors that unless the men return to work immediately steps must be taken to safeguard London's food supplies. Some prices, particularly those for fruits and vegetables, are already soaring. Lemons have increased 1,000 per cent. and oranges 100 per cent. in price, and stocks of bananas are rotting in the holds of fruit ships in the harbor. The people, however, have been warned that there is no justification for increases in the retail-prices of other commodities.

Telltale Symptoms of Woman's Ills.

Every woman who suffers from headache, headache, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability, or dependancy should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a pallid complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been pre-eminently successful in overcoming such conditions, and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Auto Chassis on Pivots.

REDUCES ROAD SHOCKS. A novel automobile chassis which, by means of a pivot arrangement, is said to keep the body of the car riding practically on the level even when the wheels strike the roughest bumps has been devised by Dr. Joao Severiano de Miranda, of Taubate, Brazil. The chassis includes an inner and an outer frame. The inner frame, which carries the body of the car, is mounted pivotally on the outer frame which in turn is mounted on springs from the front and rear axles. The four pivot points are midway of the front and rear frame bars and midway of the side bars. Thus, whenever an obstruction is encountered, the outer frame tilts with the movement of the wheels, while the inner frame remains level.

"RAINBOW CHASING" OVER THE LABRADOR BOUNDARY.

Now that the "Humber Development" and "Railway Settlement" Bills have been dropped by the Legislature, it is only reasonable to assume that we shall soon hear something definite about the "Labrador Boundary Question." If no other reliable information can be obtained therefrom, it would be of some interest to the tax-paying public to know just what our "rainbow chasing" in that direction has cost the Colony the past year or two. The history of the whole affair has rather a fishy flavor about it. To refresh the reader's memory, let me recall the facts of the case: One fall the Dominion cruiser Montcalm brought from Quebec to Hamilton Inlet a party of nine surveyors, a lawyer, and a specially-appointed surveyor, and they established themselves at the head of Lake Melville, a salt-water basin 110 miles from the coast line, building a camp and clearing a field, and branding trees and rocks with the legend "Province of Quebec." During the winter they surveyed the basin and inlet, and rivers emptying into them, and subsequently, after presumably satisfying themselves of the merits of their case, the special Sheriff seized the trading company's logs in due form and declared them forfeited to the Province he represented. An agreement was reached whereby the Company was allowed to give back to the Province as there was no disposition to cripple the company in its operations; but, as a result of this interference and the uncertainty regarding the outcome, the company soon suspended operations.

HAMILTON INLET AND THE QUEBEC SURVEYORS.

Those of us who have visited the coast know that Hamilton Inlet is an arm of the sea that extends into the heart of the Labrador hinterland for 140 miles, the salt water being perceptible that far and the tide rising and falling noticeably there, while the incoming flood "backs up" the river water, in the form of a tide, for some further distance inland. The Quebec surveyors established themselves on and appeared to regard as part of their Province, the territory thirty miles nearer the sea. Yet the one fact clearly affirmed by the Alaska arbitrator was that the "coast" followed the sinuosities of the land, and wherever the waterfront was washed by the salt sea that strand was part of the "coast." If this principle be applied to the present controversy, it is manifest that Canada cannot make good her title to Lake Melville's borders, seeing that the ocean penetrates several miles still further inland. Clearly, then, Canada is about to advance in this case, the headland theory, and claim that Newfoundland is only entitled to the actual Atlantic coast line. Even this, however, will involve the question of how far back such a "line" should be construed as extending, since the permanent settlers on the outer sea-face are in the habit of withdrawing up the rivers some 20 or 30 miles inland each winter to obtain shelter from the furious blizzards which assail the outer margin and to pursue the trapping industry amid the snow-clad forests, when wild denizens there yield the finest peltries. The settlers also use the wood from these forests for firing, for building houses and boats, and for the construction of fishing stations; and if Newfoundland should be restricted to such a mere littoral occupancy as Canada claims, these people would be prevented from using the nearer hinterland any longer.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S PREPONDERATING INFLUENCE.

The indisputed possession of all this territory by the people mentioned for all these years, the fact that the Hudson Bay Company has paid duties on all goods landed at these posts, whether intended for their own use or for barter to the Indian tribes of the interior, and the recognized preponderating influence of Newfoundland in the region for a century or more, should make it difficult for Canada, with any show of justice, to push Newfoundland back to a mere fringe of coast, and secure all the rest of the "principalities" for herself. In 1846 the Dominion Government extended the boundaries of Quebec Province northward and eastward, by including in the Province a portion of Ungava territory, so as to give her an outlet to Hudson Bay and the eastern portion of the Mingan district beyond the Saguenay, and extending to the western boundary of Labrador. This latter, though, was not described; and it is a significant circumstance that while the Canadian maps published many years ago represented Newfoundland as owning a large section of Labrador, each succeeding issue shows her area there on a diminished scale, until now she is indicated by a barely visible line along the seaboard.

GOVERNOR BANNERMAN'S REPORT.

In 1862 Governor Bannerman reported to the Duke of Newcastle, then Colonial Minister, that the Newfoundland Government intended to establish courts and Custom Houses on Labrador, and to impose the same duties that are levied under the annual revenue acts here, adding that "forty years before an attempt to collect duties was made, and was resisted by the wealthy fishing firms there, but that Earl Russell, then Colonial Minister, informed the Governor that, as a dependency of the Colony, there could be no question as to the legality of levying the same duties there that were levied at St. John's," in which view the Duke of Newcastle concurred. This is the region that Quebec and the Dominion of Canada, as the paramount power there, have challenged Newfoundland's right to. The Hudson Bay Company had formerly the exclusive right of trading with the Indians of that part of the region, which had rivers flowing into the bay, from which the company takes its name; but the Company sold out this right to Canada in 1870, and Canada is therefore the owner to-day of all the watershed, thus embraced, and has sovereign jurisdiction over it. But the point has never been made, until recently, that Canada possesses any sovereignty over the territory watered by the rivers that flow eastward to the Atlantic; and, to the unbiased mind, this would appear the ideal solution—for the "height of land" or watershed to be the political as well as the geographical dividing line.

THE ORIGINAL BOUNDARY.

It seems that the original boundary was the St. John River to the Hudson Bay. In 1824, however, in Governor Cochrane's commission, the boundaries are described as "from the entrance of Hudson Strait to a line to be drawn due north and south from Anse Sablon, on the said coast, to the 52nd degree of north latitude, and all the islands adjacent to the said coast of Labrador." This provokes discussion as to what is Hudson Strait; does it begin at Cape Chidley, as modern maps show, or at Cape Hope's advance on the west side of Unava Bay, as the ancient cartographers put it? If the latter, as would seem natural in a proclamation, drafted from a map 80 or 90 years old, then such a boundary line would give Newfoundland a very large slice of the hinterland; but if the former, then it would not even give her the whole coast line, because this curves westward at one point and a line drawn from Cape Chidley to the fifty-second parallel, at the point described, would give her control over only the northern and southern sections of the coast, leaving the middle removed from her authority. This, it is clear from the wording of the clause and from the whole administrative practice of a hundred years, was never intended, and therefore such a boundary line as is defined is impossible, and cannot be regarded as binding upon Newfoundland. On the other hand, the Canadians bitterly contest the theory that Ungava Bay is within our jurisdiction.

THE PARTY LEADER AND HIS PECULIARITIES.

Party leaders, in small communities like ours, are often more notorious than famous because of the short contrast between their utterances and their actions. A local critic who has studied one of them pretty closely seems to "hold the mirror up to nature" with considerable accuracy. He thinks the said leader's utterances should be dated, like vintage. He may not have changed. Possibly in his inner convictions he has not changed. But circumstances have changed, the perspective has altered. Friends have become foes and foes have proffered their friendship. Hence the opinions of to-day need to be adjusted to the circumstances of to-day; it is the inevitable result of the influence of environment. In the Museum there, is a most interesting series of groups of stuffed birds and beasts, showing the difference between their appearance in summer and then winter. The ptarmigans and the Arctic hares, which are brown in summer and white in winter, are no doubt perfectly consistent ptarmigans and hares. It is only their coat which is readjusted to altered circumstances. So it is with the leader in question. He is the same leader. But he wears another coat. The truth is that he is the supreme special pleader in politics. There never was any one to equal him in that respect with the exception of Lord Morris, and as he grows older he seems to surpass himself. He has supplied a complete set of arguments for almost every point of view in politics. He has described Toryism from a Radical point of view, and Radicalism from a Tory point of view; he has taken every prominent local leader in detail—Sir Hugh Hoyle, Sir Ambrose Shea, Sir Frederick Carter, and half a dozen others—and shown us first their evil and then their angelic side, or vice versa. The great measures which were twenty years ago to inspire the democracy and lead them into their promised land, are now, according to the same authority, the turbulent ravings of diseased minds. However, in view of the many difficulties by which he is confronted, from time to time, it is barely doing him justice to say that he has displayed a considerable amount of political tact and ability. As the poet puts it:—

"To win the prize in the world's great race,
A man should have a brazen face.
An iron arm to give a stroke
And a heart as sturdy as an oak;
Eyes like a cat, good in the dark,
And teeth as piercing as a shark;
Ears to hear the gentlest sound
Like moles that burrow in the ground;
A mouth as close as patent locks,
And stomach stronger than an ox;
His tongue should be a razor blade,
His conscience India-rubber made;
His blood as cold as Polar ice,
His hand as grasping as a vice;
His shoulders should be adequate
To bear a couple of thousand weight;
His legs, like pillars, firm and strong
To move the great machine along;
With supple knees to cringe and crawl,
And cloven feet placed under all."

JUVENILE OFFENDERS AND THE PARENTS.

"How do you account for the presence of so many juvenile offenders in the Police Court these days?" asked a city clergyman of me the other forenoon, as we walked down from the Temple of Justice. "Is it due to lack of restraint on the part of parents, or has the boy of to-day more wild oats to sow than had his predecessor?" "I am more than half inclined to think that parents of our time have not the same control over their children as had our grandfathers and grandmothers, or even our good old fathers and mothers. The mother's influence doesn't count these days and the father has "too much else to think about."

LIMITATIONS OF PARENTAL AUTHORITY.

And here I am reminded that, according to the present law of England, children have only one parent—their father. With him is vested the sole control of their custody, maintenance, education and religion, and even in the event of his proved unfitness legal proceedings are required to limit his rights. By the way, there is now before a Joint Committee of both Houses of the Imperial Parliament a Bill which puts an end to this anomaly and declares that both parents shall enjoy equal status as guardians of their children. The Bill further gives effect to its own intention by modifying the law as to maintenance orders. At present only the High Courts and County Courts can take cognisance of guardianship cases and the expense involved deprives the average working-class mother of her rights. This hardship is remedied by providing that cases in which the sums involved do not exceed two dollars a week, may be dealt with by ordinary magistrates. The principle which the Bill seeks to establish is now self-evident, and the practical application of it is thoroughly reasonable.

THE RESULT OF Muddled THINKING.

As to the general objection that in every marriage one or other parent is master and that the Bill contradicts facts by putting both parents on an equality, it is the result of muddled thinking. No doubt, one or other parent is master, but the present law declares that mastery is permanently vested in the father, and it is only under the provisions of the new Bill that the Courts will be enabled to judge guardianship cases on their merits. The present law, in fact, codifies a theory of women as the weaker vessel, which is now entirely obsolete. "We are committed to a re-organization of society on the basis of sex-equality, and in the interests of orderly social development it is essential that the principle should be given full application in legal practice."

BIBBERY AND CORRUPTION.

My attention has just been called to an extraordinary case of political bribery and corruption; but, in the absence of details, I shall, at present, make only passing reference to it. If I cared to do so, I could draw a very proper parallel between the case in question and that of an ordinary case of bribery and corruption. The comparison would not be favorable to the accused. I suppose the latter and the public in general have heard the story of the outthorbar man and the mule. It was originally told me by the late Mr. John Boone, who always enjoyed a good joke himself and humored it in others. "What is the difference," asked an outthorbar man of St. Barbe one day of him, "between a mule and a donkey?" The outthorbar man, of course, had never seen any member of the Equus family. "My dear fellow," responded his friend, a mule is a donkey, only more so!" Now, the accused in this case should be made to know that his conduct is a very flagrant example of bribery and corruption, "only more so," and the mulish conduct of the said accused in this connection accentuates the flagitious offence. His bribery and corruption are of the wholesale order. Appointed to a position of great responsibility, he basely, meanly and clandestinely sells his trust for money. He sells what does not belong to him for money, and he pockets that money himself. What is to be said of such a man as that? Why there are beggars and cross-street sweepers on our streets who would scorn to do an action so reprehensible, far-reaching and demoralizing in its effect. The average party politician of to-day is a good deal like Mr. Hosea Biglow's "Pious Editor," who says:—

"I do believe in being this
On that, as it may happen,
One way or 't'other handiest is
To catch the people napping;
It ain't by principles nor men
My prudent course is staided—
I scent which way the best and then Go into it baldheaded."

Fads and Fashions.

Almost every conceivable form of a panel is used on the summer frock. A sleeveless wrap-around dress of crepe de chine is headed all over in self color. A deep contrasting material may edge the inevitable apron tunic of one's frock. Clusters of fine petals are used on the straight skirt of a crepe de chine frock. Light summer frocks favor the hand-made chon as a dainty finish to their girdles. Clusters of plait are used at the sides of the front and the back of a straight skirt.

When you are "wandering around again" or at functions where full dress is usually worn, don't you feel out of place with a jacket on? Now is the time to leave your order for Full Dress or Tuxedo. Our prices for these Suits are remarkably reasonable. For special parades, or social calls, we can give you something within your means in a Prince Albert, or Morning Coat. We specialize in these garments.

Paris wisely choose black and white as distinctive in the riot of summer colors. Deliciously absurd rubber earrings dangle from the ears of the "beach flapper." Inserts of platted black net are charming on a frock of blue and green organdie. A red jet belt is worn on a frock of white marocain with entre-deux of black Georgette. With a frock of black and white printed crepe a scarlet hat and sunshade are effective.

A charming mid-summer motif is the velvet hat trimmed with white organdie. A row of pearl buttons travels way down the front of a frock of low garbandine. A frock of white crepe de chine weighs its handkerchief belt with pressive silver tassels. The one-button wrap-around of white flannel is an addition to summer wardrobe. West End Taxi Service. ### THE OFFENSIVE DEFENSIVE.

A great many times when you think your partner in the great game of marriage is attacking you, he is really defending himself. A general once said in war the best defence is a good attack. A marriage is nothing like that. I think that there are married couples who do not, to a certain extent, use just these tactics. A husband has forgotten to do an errand, he comes home fearing to do so about it and, in order to ward off an attack, he begins a counter-attack, when his wife is so busy, for her to ask him to do errands. She will wear him out if she isn't careful and then where will she be? If he goes at it with sufficient violence, he probably has his wife apologizing for asking him to do an errand instead of blaming him for not having done it.

The Wife's Counter Attack.

The wife goes to a bridge party and is late home and has to throw together an unsatisfactory dinner. Fearing she will be attacked on this ground, she hastily begins a counter attack based on the fact that all the other women at the club have maids and she is the only one who has to hurry home.

It is much harder to put this thing over on a husband, but she may manage it if she hasn't let him get the upper hand.

But it is more often the husband who employs the defensive offense. And the wife who smarts with a sense of injustice that he should go at her like that, when she is the injured one. If she understood that it was a sense of guilt rather than a sense of injury (as he pretends) that animates him, she might understand him and be able to handle him better.

Easier To Forgive.

You can forgive a person if you know he has a guilty conscience much better than if you feel he has no sense of having offended.

Over the desire married folks have to make each other feel guilty. "To marry," says Stevenson, "is to domesticate the recording angel."

And a very clever short story writer has this illuminating paragraph about a divorced couple:

"Alta, in common with so many wives, had always possessed the power of making her husband feel guilty. In old times with just a glance or an infection of the voice she could make him feel the lowest of criminals. And rage as he might, he found this power had persisted. Love may not always endure until death do them part, but the ability of married people to make each other feel guilty endures to the grave, and possibly beyond."

He Is Saying It.

A woman once said to me, "If my husband would ever say to me that he was wrong in anything it seems to me I should be perfectly happy. But we have been married nine years and as far as I can see he has never been wrong in anything. He will be awfully nice sometimes after we have had any trouble, but he never says he is sorry or that he was to blame. I expect I shall die without ever hearing him admit that he is wrong."

I expect she will—and a good many other women, too. But if it's any comfort, they can know that his most bullying manner is often tacit admission of that sense of guilt they long to know exists.

Concerning Golf Balls.

The fisherman who has been the butt of the humorists for years past with his tall story of "the big fellow that just got away," told in a thousand different forms and guises, may soon be deposed from the seat of honor in the club smoking room and the parlor car of the "Special" by the golfer. Not that tales of infinite adventure and unbounded imagination are new to golfers. At the nineteenth hole the eight foot putt will gradually expand under the mellowing influence of the libations poured in honor of "The Colonel" until the shades of night begin to fall they are like the serpent of Mendes Plato's "infinite serpent of Mendes Plato of infinite not heard of the man whose ball was 'quite hidden in the rough' from his drive at the long hole and yet "the best shot I ever made" landed it right in the hole.

The fisherman has grown more disgusted as his Munchausen tales of the ten-pounder are ridiculed and they compare their own fisher-craft with the "depressing spectacle of two normal men poking at a stationary ball into a comparatively large pot."

So the battle wages and the devotees of the art and the calling (for "golf" is now a profession, it's called) as the Baillie said) invent new stories and romantic writers arise to uphold their respective causes. The latest arrival is the story of the crow who pounced on the golf ball after the drive magnificent had carried it into a bunker. How like a crow. There indeed is a touch of reality. A dove would have tucked it under its wing and laid it gently on the soft and verdant green near the pin. But a crow never. He sees the crow and, being a crow, he knows the sort of language your every-day golfer uses when he lands there, so he drops it in the sand and flies off with a few hoarse croakings by way of giving the golfer a bit of a lead in the language test.

The story has great possibilities in it. A gun loaded with bird shot may in future be carried in the golf bag and with a little ingenuity a combination Schmeckady putter and double barreled breech-loader might be devised. Of course there is a little difficulty that may be apparent to your real golfer—as opposed to the nineteenth hole variety. It is not every crow that can get a whole golf ball in its mouth. It is the only hitherto recorded case the crow held "the fragment of the cover," indeed. Go tell it at St. Andrews. Balls have been sliced and cut, bruised and battered by beginners, but what sort of a player can so assault his ball with driver, brassie or niblick that a crow can pick his ball up by the cover?

Shades of Tom Morris, man, "this is no govt."

Church Gains in Canada.

Nine Canadian Church divisions have risen above the $50,000 mark in increased membership, according to the sixth religious census, taken in 1921 and recently made public. The figures for the larger denominations are: Roman Catholics, 3,383,863; Presbyterians, 1,408,812; Anglicans, 1,407,950; Methodists, 1,188,744; Baptists, 421,750; Lutherans, 287,484; Greek Church, 169,823; Jews, 125,190; Mennonites, 53,797. The census report is this summarized by the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate (Methodist) from The Christian Guardian, organ of the Methodist Church of Canada:

"Of the larger denominations, the Anglicans have made the largest percentage of gain during the decade, having grown from 14.47 per cent. of the population to 16.02 per cent. The Presbyterians also have gained ground, increasing from 15.45 per
