TELLS OF CURES AT SHRINE OF STE. ANNE Returning after the pilgrimage to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaugre, Quebec, about fifty St. John people reached home yesterday. Father Maloney, C. S. S. R., who represented Bishop Casey on the pilgrimage, will not return for a few days, and a few others remained behind the larger body.

Among those going from St. John were: Mrs. Michael Quinn, Miss Andrew Helian, Miss Annie O'Donnell, Miss McDade, Miss Higgins, Miss Flood, Miss Collier, Miss Homan, Mrs. Murphy and son, Miss Maggie McGerigle and Miss Morgan. Mrs. Quinn was asked by a Telegraph reporter to say something as to the pilgrimage. She said "There were nearly 1,000 persons at Ste. Anne's, and this was considered a very large number. Yesterday morning at 7 o'clock the St. John party attended service, high mass being celebrated and Father Maloney preaching a sermon."

Asked as to whether she had observed any cures being wrought, Mrs. Quinn said "Yes, there were two cases which I noticed particularly. A woman whose name I do not know, as she was not from St. John, was cured of a bad attack of rheumatism. A man was also cured in a remarkable way, and a man from Appleton told me that he had been much haugli told me that he had been much cured and very few were helpless cripples. I noticed only one of our party with crutches."

LAST NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE At the opera house last evening an amateur dramatic performance, far superior to many professional ones on the same stage, was applauded by an audience that crowded the house and lingered after the curtain fell on the last act to call it up again and give the company one more round of hearty applause. In short it was a dramatic hit of the most pronounced kind.

Some idea of the relative value of criticism may be gathered from the following comments in the morning papers:— (Daily Telegraph.)

There was no uncertain verdict at the Opera House last evening, as to the success of Caprice, the drama presented by Theodore H. Bird and some of the best amateur talent in the city, in aid of the School for the Deaf. The play was staged and acted in a manner which reflected the greatest credit on Mr. Bird and all those who assisted him. So great was the demand for the seats that it was announced last evening that the performance would be repeated next Wednesday. (Daily Sun.)

The general opinion among those who attended the performance of Caprice given in aid of the Deaf and Dumb School last night, was that if the parts had been taken by the pupils themselves, it would have been more highly appreciated.

"I suffered so much from nervous depression that I feared I would become insane," says Mrs. Alfred Austin, of Vancouver. "For months, I was unable to do anything. I was prostrated with this trouble. I got so bad I could not eat a mouthful of food without it nearly choking me. I was afflicted with such terrible feelings of dizziness and nausea that I had to leave the table sometimes with just two or three mouthfuls of food. My nerves and nerves were all unstrung and I grew so weak that I could not even sweep the floor. In fact, I was unable to do anything to such an extent that I had to be left alone. I could not sleep at night, and used to wake up in the morning with a severe headache. I was taking medicine constantly, but it did not do me a bit of good. I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on a former occasion with good results, and at last I determined to try them again. I can say nothing but good for these pills. They are a blessing to me, as they have made me a well woman. Every trace of the indigestion has gone, and my nerves are strong and sound as they were in girlhood. Now I can eat anything that is on the table, and I get sound refreshing sleep at night. All this I owe to the faithful use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I shall never cease to praise."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill the veins with new rich blood. This is why they strengthen the nerves and every organ in the body. That is why they cure such troubles due to bad blood or weak shattered nerves, such as anaemia, with its grinding, wearying headaches, dizziness, and dizziness, rheumatism and neuritis, heart palpitation, indigestion, St. Vitus' dance, partial paralysis, kidney troubles, and all those special ailments that render the lives of so many women and growing girls a burden. But you must get the real Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, in the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE STEADY PROGRESS OF EDUCATION IN QUEBEC
Technical Instruction and Its Relation to the Great and as Yet Undeveloped Resources of the Province--The Example of Springfield, Mass.

In an address before the American Institute of Instruction, in Montreal this week, Hon. W. A. Weir, after referring briefly to the kindergarten, manual training, and commercial branches of education as they exist in Quebec province, said:—"We have a few agricultural colleges and dairy schools, and are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the good work that is sure to be done at the new Macdonald College at the western end of this island. Really splendid work has been accomplished also within the province by the Department of Applied Science of McGill University and the Polytechnic School allied to the University of Laval in this city. The most extended form of technical education in our midst has been carried on by the corporation known as the Council of Arts and Manufactures, supported by the provincial government. For the year just ended, it carried on some eleven schools in all--which three were in the city of Montreal, and one each in the town of Levis, Sorel, Three Rivers, Fraserville, Quebec, Sherbrooke, St. Hyacinthe and Valleyfield, at which a total of 2,288 pupils were enrolled. We are hoping to extend this list in the near future, in addition to this the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of Montreal opened last year a magnificent new building, under the name of The Commercial and Technical High School, where pupils will be prepared for the commercial and mechanical branches of modern industry."

"The Montreal Technical Institute, with the kind permission of the school commissioners, with the aid of the manufacturers of this city, and a subscription from the provincial government, will establish next September a night school in that building, and we are hoping that great results will result from that beginning."

ESTABLISHING NEW FACILITIES.
"At the last session of the Provincial Legislature attention was given to the question of technical education. It was resolved to establish a faculty, in connection with Laval University at Quebec, for the study of land surveying. Provision was made for the establishment of new commercial high schools in the cities of Montreal and Quebec, where pupils will be thoroughly prepared and trained for the higher ways of commercial life. Legislation was also passed for the establishment of technical schools in the cities of Montreal and Quebec. It is thoroughly realized that trade schools are not meant to interfere with the general education of children; but the boy is better prepared for the future by a system of education which will develop his creative as well as his acquisitive powers. I verily believe that if Canada and the United States are to maintain their relative commercial importance in the future, more and more attention must be paid to this question of technical education, in the city of Hamburg, Germany, there are no less than seventeen technical schools with 5,000 pupils in attendance, wherein instruction is given in forty different trades. Germany has astonished the world by the splendid results of her technical and educative system."

EDUCATION OR PROTECTION.
"Some of our people have been made timid by the competition of Germany's well-trained citizens that they have proposed as the only remedy, the raising higher of the protective tariff barriers. This seems to be only a temporary makeshift. A protective tariff can never be a permanent institution. In Canada, for example, the hundreds of thousands of farmers who are pouring into our almost boundless northwestern territory, are controlling the policy of this country, and when that period comes, they will join with the other consumers of the country, and say to the manufacturer that they want their goods at lower prices, and in order to get their necessities at the lowest possible price, the protective tariff will have to go."

"Our manufacturers would do well to see to it that they have a plentiful supply of employes, trained in technical schools and colleges, capable of assisting them in perfecting their processes and ameliorating their products. This will be a sure safeguard than a tariff."

"I wish to emphasize the fact that in Germany, in England, and the United States, the work of developing the technical schools has not been left alone to the government. Municipalities have taken hold of the matter and have contributed largely to the success of the movement. Private benefactors, associations of the leaders of the different branches of trade have also been liberal with their donations. A notable illustration of the liberality of a municipality is the case of Springfield, Mass., where one-third of the municipal taxation goes to the great cause of education, and where a magnificent new technical high school was completed a few years ago at a cost of $300,000. "The province of Quebec is peculiarly fitted for the development of technical education in all its branches. Less than five per cent of our soil is cultivated by the farmer, and there is room for the employment of the more recent developments of agricultural science. Our forests cover 250,000 square miles, and their products are capable in the hands of skilled men, of supplying many of the wants of human life. Our water powers have been calculated to be about one-fifth of the water powers of the entire North American continent, and can develop almost untold forces of electrical energy for the requirements of manufacturing industries."

RECONSTRUCTION OF LOCAL CABINET
Premier Robinson Says it Was Not Discussed at Yesterday's Meeting.
Fredericton, N. B., July 5.—The local government held a meeting here this evening and disposed of a large amount of business, mostly of a routine nature. Letters of incorporation were granted to Hon. C. J. Osmen and others as the Big Hole Salmon Fishing Co., to the Little Leveque Fishermen's Bait Association, Cobble-Sutton Mining Company, Miramichi Agricultural Association, and Prescott Lumber Company.
The Hon. P. Kent was awarded the contract for boring wells in the counties of Sunbury and Queens, under the act of last session. It is understood that he will begin work at once.
A grant of $300 was made to the new Provincial Rifle Association under authority of the act passed last session.
C. A. Peck was appointed a referee in equity for Albert county. The subsidy contract with the Clifton S. Co. for a ferry service at Clifton was agreed to.
Members of the government will leave by early train tomorrow, and will meet for the day as hospital commissioners. Premier Robinson informed The Telegraph correspondent this evening that the question of reconstruction had not been discussed during the meeting. "When the matter comes up," said he, "you can rest assured that St. John's claims will not be overlooked."
James Barnes, M. P. P., Kent, has been appointed a member of the provincial government without portfolio. This afternoon about 1 o'clock he was sworn in. Hon. Mr. Barnes at once entered upon his duties as a member of the executive council and was present at the balance of the meeting of the government before adjournment for luncheon. Hon. Mr. Barnes has also been sworn in a member of the Board of Education and will attend a meeting of that body to be held this afternoon, and has also been appointed a commissioner of the Provincial Hospital for the treatment of nervous diseases and will attend a meeting of the commissioners at St. John later in the week.
Hon. Mr. Farris is to leave tomorrow for Quebec to meet the steamer bringing out the horses purchased in England and France for the government a short time ago. On P. King is in charge of the animals and will have them shipped by rail to this city.
In regard to St. John abodeau, Chief Commissioner LaBillette stated this evening that a thorough examination of it had been made by the provincial engineer, and he had handed in a report to the department, a copy of which has been forwarded to Mayor Sears. The report sets forth that it is the duty of the civic authorities to deal with the matter as the abodeau is within the boundaries of the city.
Engineer Wetmore is now preparing plans and specifications for a bridge at Cole's Island to replace the structure lately destroyed by fire, and it is expected a call for tenders will be issued in three weeks.
O. D. Ross and Mrs. Ross, of New Glasgow, were registered at the Dufferin yesterday.

How Ned and Speckles Went to Sea

A WOFUL TALE Little happy Puglet Drinking from a muglet...

THE REAL GRIP Rab had been very ill all winter. A old friend meeting him on the street...

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR. Ned had a new rowboat. It was the joy of his heart. Every evening as soon as his after-school chores were done...

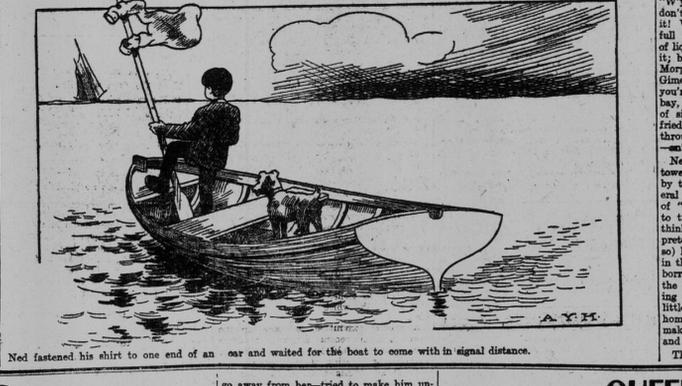

One evening when Ned came home from school he found his mother ready to go to town for a week's visit with an old friend who was in very poor health...

But rowing against such a current was like walking up a mountain of slipping sand. He made no progress; in fact, the water carried him further and further out towards the ocean...

At last a speck appeared in the distance. Ned watched it with some feeling of hope. The speck grew larger and larger, then took on the shape of some kind of vessel...

Ned then removed his coat and shirt, replacing the former, and fastening the latter to one end of an oar. Then he waited patiently 'till the boat came within signal distance...

occupied bench. But Mary kept watching him, feeling sorry that he had no companion. There is a pretty little park in the heart of the city of New York called Washington Square...

Little Holland trotted along beside her as she ran after her big blue-coated friend. "Oh, Mr. Policeman," Mary called out, "there's a little child lost—a little Hollander, I guess, sir. Will you take her home?"

"Well, leave the kid 'er me," said the officer. "I'll turn him into the station if he can't tell me where he lives." Mary hesitated a moment, then said: "Suppose he cries, Mr. Policeman? I'd be afraid if he frightened him. Indeed, I'd rather go along, sir, than to have the little Dutch thing afraid."

Trade Talks—The Commercial Traveller.

The average recollection of the word "drummer" who was popularly supposed to be a loud-mouthed, glibly dressed individual, who in a conversation like a book, in short, a cross between a book agent and a vaudeville comedian. It is quite doubtful if this type ever existed off the stage or on some cheap circuit of crossroads stores. If so, he is no more—or at least is not in the line of favor with large employers.

There is not such a wide demand for commercial travellers now, in proportion to the business done, as ten years ago. Advertising of standard wares and great-selling systems having done their work, but the standard is higher and the rewards are greater for those able to meet them. The average wholesale merchant wants clear-cut young men of about twenty-five, men with a certain amount of home-coming and a "front" persons who are mature enough to work hard without the boss upon their backs and strong enough to resist the temptations of an unsettled hotel life.

To attain any sort of success, it is necessary that the candidate has shown ability in the more conservative role of a salesman. The clerk who can be depended upon to settle all problems that arise without oversteering calling upon the manager for advice, the man whose magnetism secures him a personal trade, the man who works for his company as hard as he would work for himself, that type is the ideal travelling salesman.

This work will appeal to the young man afflicted with the wanderlust, the desire to travel and see the country, but only if he has the standard requisites, for so many are the standard brands of goods, that it is no longer a matter of selling goods to merchants who want to buy, but of persuading them to buy your own in the face of perhaps a dozen temptations a day.

The commodities are attractive, though the ordinary traveller they do not nearly make up for the discomforts. They are without limit, running from $20 a week and expenses, to $200 a week plus commission paid to the same man in the same line—but of diverse ability, experience and taste. Like one of the easiest lines to break into, but only on the "make good" principle—At least a few living and say and a commission on the sales made.

Men Successful But Not Great

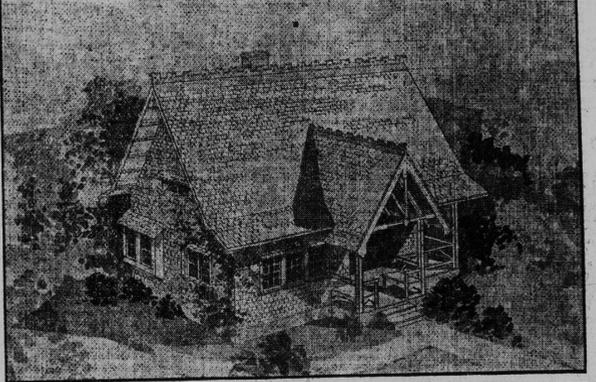

James Jerome Hill better known as J. J. Hill, is absolutely the railroad autocrat of the great Northwest, and the bitter enemy of Harriman. Hill's fort is Seattle, Harriman's stronghold, San Francisco. He likes to refer to himself as a plain farmer, and, though he looks the part, his domelike brow has enabled him to cope with and conquer Wall Street with ease. Following the plow at 18, he is the great railroad builder who ran roads through an unpopulated country practically on a "shoe string," then attracted a select class of immigrants to what is now the granary of the world—the gateway to the Orient. Sixty-nine years of age, he still dreams these wondrous dreams and puts them into shape.

"Jim" Hill is both honored by this great section of the country as a patron saint, and yet feared as the Old Nick himself. He holds his 4,000 miles of track in the hollow of his hand, and uses it like a long steel whip to lash cities or states into any way of thinking. He knows that he has made that section—for even his enemies call it the "Hill country,"—but he is the autocrat on all occasions.

Forty-one years ago Jim Hill was a mud clerk in a Mississippi steamboat—a "mud clerk" is the one who does the menial and most menial jobs. Learning the business, he secured a small freight agency. His motto through life—"I find it better to expend my energies in my own behalf than to labor for others"—then came into vogue, and he engaged in the fuel and transportation trade. Seeing the possibilities of the Red River Valley, he set out to sell something. Up-to-date young men expect the ladder of success to be transformed into an electric elevator!

This was probably the nearest to an epigram that the grizzled millionaire ever got in his life, but it illustrated the point that one thousand dollars slowly saved, marked the first milestone.

Don't despise the fact that one thousand dollars even in these days of great change and sudden wealth—is a small fortune to its worthy possessor. The very fact of possession will have a moral effect on

A FOUR ROOM BUNGALOW

By CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

We are illustrating for the benefit of our readers this week a small one story bungalow, built somewhat after the Swiss style, with high pitched roof, wide protected eaves timber bracketed and porch finished with timber treatment. The exterior of the cottage is designed to be shingled. In shingling the perpendicular walls, it is wise to dip the shingles all over in a creosote stain. This will preserve the shingles for many years and keep them from curling. A dark brown stain can be used. Paint all outside cornices, piazza wood work and window casings a light straw color and stain the roof dark green.

The size of this cottage home is 28 ft. in width by 30 ft. in depth exclusive of window projections. The main body of the front porch is covered by the house roof. It would be well to screen this porch in, leaving the projected portion without screen.

The front door opens into a large living room 16x17 ft. The front end of this room is formed into an alcove with a seat extending around. There is a liberal fireplace opposite the entrance and a small projected Dutch window. This room looks as though it were used as a general living room and dining room. Opening by sliding door at the right of this room is a bed-room 11 ft. by 10 ft., also suitable for small library or sitting room. At the rear is a second bed room 10 ft. 6 in. by 12 ft. with clothes closets between the rooms. The roof being high, there is space on the second floor that can be used for storage purposes, the stairs leading up to same on the left side of the house. Below the kitchen is a small cellar with stairs leading down to same. The outside door from the kitchen opens into a small porch with inclosure for ice chest. There is a small pantry opening out of the kitchen, built in connection with the Dutch window in living room, which is not only a convenience to the house but a pretty feature to the exterior.

I would advise that common field stone or builders be used for foundation. Make the outside walls with good matched yellow pine or Norway pine and finish with building paper between, the upper thickness of floor laid with narrow yellow pine or fir flooring, seal all the doors and windows on the inside and put down a base of yellow pine or Norway pine and finish with the same with two coats, leaving it in its natural color and finish the floor with two good coats of varnish. This house should be built and finished complete at the highest price in any locality.

INVESTING YOUR SAVINGS.

The First Thousand Dollars

It is an old saying—one that has descended into a truism from overwork—that the most difficult problem of attaining wealth is to get together the first thousand dollars. This remark, however, is not the guidance to any great extent, for plenty of them—more than ever. But the trouble is the get-rich-quick mania. They want to reap a bountiful harvest almost as soon as they have put the seed in the ground. Patience—especially perseverance, sir! Let me tell you something. Up-to-date young men expect the ladder of success to be transformed into an electric elevator!

This was probably the nearest to an epigram that the grizzled millionaire ever got in his life, but it illustrated the point that one thousand dollars slowly saved, marked the first milestone.

Don't despise the fact that one thousand dollars even in these days of great change and sudden wealth—is a small fortune to its worthy possessor. The very fact of possession will have a moral effect on $1,000 should be worth on the market at least $1,500.

These, in brief, are the most prominent of the opportunities that the financial world offers you to invest your $1,000. From these it is an easy drop to the more commonplace but sometimes even more profitable mercantile and real estate investments that confront the "thousand-aires" in his own neighborhood. In every community there are stores, where outside their money invested as "silent partners," so as to expand or put in a more varied stock.

Naturally, this is the case where natural astuteness or expert advice must supplement knowledge of the proprietor and the status of his business.

TRUE TO HIMSELF.

They say in their silly way
That the man who sines
Is the man who wins,
In the rapid business fray.

But cleave to the loyal man,
The man who is true
To himself—be you!
Though he knows no pirate's plan!

THE HALL AND ITS FURNISHINGS

By BEATRICE CAREY

The first impression of the home enterer is often decided by the hall's appearance, and if this is badly arranged and decorated the rooms are likely to be less successful. Little can be done with the average hall in narrow city houses, but it may at least be kept from being dreary and forbidding.

A well-chosen stair carpet, wall coverings of good rich color, and doorway draperies in tones to match are likely to bring about this result. The less furniture the better. An umbrella stand, a chair, chest, and picture should be of a rather formal style, carefully chosen and sparingly used.

In summer homes or suburban houses the widest latitude is allowed in the treatment of the hall. The illustration shows a simple and effective way to furnish the ordinary city hall. The first three feet of side wall was covered with brown grass cloth, which is very durable and fade-proof. This was topped by a molding, above which the wall space was hung with two-tone buff paper. This turn had a strip of molding above it. The ceiling was covered with cream-colored paper.

The floor was of hard wood and was covered with rugs of harmonizing shades. The staircase was of mahogany and had a straight line design, and a mahogany hall table stood against the wall. Two oblong pictures hung over the table, on either side of the latter there was a double candlestick, made to fasten to the wall.

In the hall or on the stairway a few pictures may be hung if the width of the passage permits, but there must be no pictures over the doorway, as they are liable to be broken. They should be of assorted sizes, some oblong or square, others round or oval.

Fortunately, the picture molding is fast losing its original use. Nothing is more hideous than the triangular shaped space formed by the picture wire above a frame, particularly if the frame is small and the wires long. The screw-eyes should be about one inch from the top of the frame, and the wire should be so short that it does not show. Pictures should be hung flush with the wall, if they don't, they will be out of harmony with the architectural lines of the room.

For the formal doorway for the front door or the window, nothing equals the fluted lace panel. There are several ways of using this curtain; it may be stretched across a frame and set in the wall against a glass, or it may be attached to a small rod at the top of the pane and allowed to hang in folds to the bottom. The latter, however, has this advantage; when the curtain has been cleaned it may be stretched in the frame and dried in position. Otherwise the lace will tend to dry out of shape and look stringy and lacking in its pristine freshness.

One of the best frames comes with a groove in each side in which is a cotton cord. To this cord the lace panel is sewn, and when the cord is drawn in, the lace is held in place and the frame is ready to be taken out, and after washing be readily replaced.

WATER AS A COSMETIC

By BEATRICE CAREY

Water is probably the most used cosmetic that there is, and is the best. Though with the majority, the act of washing the face averages more than twice a day, very few, comparatively, know how to do this properly. Dirt is the chief cause of a bad complexion, and so the complexion suffers most from it in the city, especially where soft coal is burned as fuel. In such places it is almost impossible to keep the face clean for more than a short time. The dust, dirt and impurities in the air settle on the skin and clog up the pores, interfering with the circulation and causing eruptions.

To properly clean the face the water must be hot—as hot as may be. Hot water makes the skin soft and pliable, and should be used with good soap, guaranteed not to contain any uncombined alkali. As a general thing men's faces show a clearer skin than women's, though naturally of a coarser texture. This is due to the fact that men constantly use shaving soap, which is of a much finer quality than that of ordinary soap.

It is well to bear in mind that the pores should first be opened with hot water and the soap rubbed to a lather before it is applied at all, then washed off with water; after this use cold water to close the pores again. Often complexions are ruined by sponges and face cloths, not that these are harmful in themselves, but that they are not properly cared for after being used. They are carelessly wrung out and then hung up near the washstand out of the light. The soap and impurities remain in them, and the decayed soap and foreign matter being applied to the face causes blackheads and makes the skin

FROCKS FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

By DOROTHY DALE

The two frocks illustrated in the accompanying photo are excellent in design and are attractively made up in various wash fabrics, the figure to the right showing a design which would be also good in folds about the lower part.

The lace trimmed frock shown in the drawing was in figured mull, although the design would be equally practical for almost any sheer summer material. Inclusive lace insertion was used as trimming, ruffles to match being used on the neck and sleeves. The bodice and skirt were made separately, but were joined by an inset, tucked girdle, outlined by insertion.

The bodice was surplice both back and front.

MINOR FASHION NOTES

Pongees, embroidered in small designs, in self colors, are shown in all the fashion colorings for combination with plain pongees.

The variety in linen collars increases daily. The high turndown embroidered collar holds first place, but there is also a straight standing collar, likewise embroidered, which is much worn in Paris.

This is usually worn with one of the narrow lingerie ties, hand embroidered at the ends. The plain linen collars with the narrow fitted borders in pink or blue or green are among the French novelties.

Polka dot parasols scalloped in the edges are good in linen to match summer frocks and new silk parasols are of more, with a deep border of blurred floral design.

The fad of the embroidered linen collar and lingerie cravat has caused a demand for jeweled pins in rather large shoes, Turkish crescent and circle shapes, as these will pin through the sides of the collar and hold them in shape, yet will not interfere with a lingerie bow.

Also increasingly popular and two are worn to hold the collar fronts, when a lingerie cravat without a bow is slipped up under the collar.

Some of the new collars have little buttonholes worked in the turndown part, and link collar buttons are passed through, holding the collar in place without the aid of pins. A stud matching the link buttons goes with the set.

AFTERNOON COSTUMES FOR SUMMER WEAR.

SOME EXCELLENT ENTREES

By SARAH CRANFORD

Squabs on Toast—Dress the squabs carefully and cut them open down the back. Put four tablespoonfuls of butter into the chafin dish, and heat it until it begins to brown. Then put in the squabs, salt and pepper, and using paprika pepper, and cook them in a hot oven from five to seven minutes. Watch them very carefully while cooking, turning them the moment they are browned on one side. When finished serve on slices of toast.

Cream Chicken—Boil until tender two pounds of chicken; then strain as for salad; one cupful of celery, chopped fine; one cup of mushrooms, drained. Mix chicken celery and mushrooms together; stir two tablespoonfuls of butter and two and a half tablespoonfuls of flour until smooth. Heat hot; add a pint of milk or cream; add liquor of mushrooms, boiling hot, and pour butter and tomato; dash with salt and paprika pepper. Butter the baking dish, put a layer of chicken mixture in it, then a layer of dressing, and so on until full; cover with bread and cracker crumbs and little pieces of butter. Bake for half an hour.

Lunch Patties—One pound of sausage meat, half that quantity of mashed potatoes, one small onion and two eggs. First fry the sausage, then beat the eggs, chop the onion, mash the potatoes with a little milk; mix thoroughly together and fill the shells; then pour over the top enough beaten egg to cover; bake in a quick oven until a good brown; then serve hot.

Mock Potted Pigeon—Cut the thinnest possible slices of steak the round, and trim into squares of about seven inches. Serve with the following dressing: Soak some white bread in water until soft, squeeze dry and add one well-beaten egg, a good piece of finely chopped onion, a little chopped parsley and salt and paprika pepper to taste; mix well and spread on sliced meat to make about the thickness of the body of the pigeon; fold the meat at both ends; but in a stewpan with water enough to nearly cover, and let simmer for an hour and a half; after Spanish Hash—One cupful of cold meat of any kind, three potatoes, one onion, one piece of celery, chopped fine; one cup of tomatoes, pepper and salt; mix thoroughly; bake in muffin pans until brown, and garnish with watercress or lettuce.

Tongue on Toast—Mince fine a boiled tongue, pour cream or a little milk over it, add the beaten yolk of one egg, and let simmer over the fire about five minutes. Toast some thin slices of bread, butter them, and lay on a warm dish; cover with the tongue and garnish with parsley, serve hot.

Beef Souffle—Take about two cupfuls of cold chopped meat, one cupful of bread, cut in small dice; one scant cupful of tomatoes. Put a layer of meat in the bottom of the dish; then a layer of the bread and tomato; a pinch of thyme, pepper and salt, and so on till the dish is full. Pour a scant cupful of boiling water over the whole. Cook in a hot oven for half an hour and serve.

Stuffed Beefsteak—Take a round of beefsteak and fill it with dressing. For together lengthwise and pin the edges together with toothpicks. Any dressing such as is used for turkey may be used. Place in a pot, with a slice of pickled pork in the bottom, and boil for an hour; then turn all into the dripping pan and brown in the oven. Serve with the pan gravy. Cut across the foot.

Spanish Pigs Feet—Take eight clean, fresh "trouters;" cut each into four pieces; then boil until nearly done. Take the pigs' feet out and lay to one side. Boil the liquid one pint of tomatoes and one pound of parboiled tripe, cut fine; one small garlic, mashed fine; six potatoes, sliced diamond shape, half cupful of rice, half a cupful of Indian curry. When almost done put the pigs' feet back, taking care that they are well covered with liquid, and let it all boil until the pigs' feet are done. Be sure not to let the pigs' feet fall apart or have the sauce too thin. This is a favorite Spanish recipe.

DECORATION FOR A NURSERY WALL.

By BEATRICE CAREY

A very pleasing scheme of decoration for a nursery wall is a decided improvement on the stereotyped friezes of Dutch figures, birds and animals, and windmills, which have been so frequently used of late.

First, the side walls are covered with some plain filling, either ingrain paper, burlap or the prettier and more artistic grass cloth, which may be had in many purposes in the light ecru, although this depends upon the lighting of the nursery. If the room is sunny a medium tone might be better.

The cloth comes right up to the ceiling, where it is finished with a molding. Then, from paper which comes by the roll, design figures of birds, chickens, rabbits and cats. The figures are cut and applied to the grass cloth. The animals and birds are quite lifelike, so that the effect is most realistic. The birds should be perched on the top, the chickens, on the ground, at the bottom, and also the cats, rabbits and dogs.

Being tinted in the natural colors, the children may become familiar not only with the domestic fowls, but with the birds and animals. As they are placed low in the range of vision of the child, they seem more like real companions than

TO CLEAN BRASS FIXTURES

It is well known to housekeepers that brass chandeliers soon lose their beauty, and will be glad to know how this may be prevented if treated in time. While the fixtures are still bright and fresh, go over them with a coating of white shellac, such is used by painters. Enough of the best quality for the purpose may be purchased for ten or fifteen cents, and a fine camel's hair brush will cost little more. Paint the fixtures carefully, taking care not to have the brush too full, as this will make streaks. Do not be discouraged if at first your work looks smears. The shellac will be an invisible protection when dry, and is used extensively by old furniture dealers on brass bolts, etc. Old fixtures may be improved and brightened by shellac. First scour and clean them thoroughly, polishing with dry flannel. Then paint them over with the shellac while still bright and dry, and leave until it has set.

CAPRICE SCORED GREAT SUCCESS LAST EVENING

Theodore H. Bird and His Company of Local Amateurs Delighted Capacity Audience at the Opera House—Will Be Repeated on Wednesday Next.

That the presentation of Caprice by Theodore H. Bird and his company of amateurs, was a pronounced success in every way, was the unanimous verdict of the large audience that filled every available seat and crowded the aisles at the Opera House last evening. It is doubtful if ever in the history of St. John a company composed of local talent made such a decided hit as did those who took part in last evening's performance.

None but expressions of surprise and pleasure could be heard as the large audience filed from the theatre. No doubt considerable of the credit is due Mr. Bird for his stirring energy and pains in drilling and rehearsing the local young men and women, for they certainly showed the result of careful training, though it was all accomplished in a few weeks.

It would be difficult to say which of the principal characters found most favor with the audience, but assuredly all were unanimous in pronouncing Miss Carrie Baillie in the role of Mercy Baxter, as all that could be desired. She was winsome and attractive. There was no halting for lines and every movement was perfectly natural, while her soft well modulated voice could be heard in every portion of the house.

In brief, the story of the play is that of a young man of the world, Jack Henderson, portrayed by Mr. Bird, who falls in love with the medicated country girl—Mercy Baxter. They are married, against the wishes of the young man's mother, and then the trouble starts when the young man realizes how ignorant his wife is. He speaks harshly to her and finally she flies to her father and then to a school. The last act shows her after a lapse of five years a radiant woman, educated and of fine attainments. Then comes the meeting of husband and wife, the mistake is acknowledged, vows are renewed and all in well. Mr. Bird's abilities are too well known to need any praise, suffice it to say that he was all that the part demanded.

Frank Stanton as Jethro Baxter, a rough diamond, the father of Mercy, played a character part in a manner that showed he was perfectly at home on the stage. He was excellent in his several strong scenes. As Philander Potts, in search of a wife, A. E. McKinley, provided lots of amusement and his every appearance was the signal for a hearty laugh.

Several men who were brought here to do the ornamental stone work on the Royal Bank building will be asked to pay a license fee of $20 each. The contractors offered $7.50 for each man, but the mayor and Recorder Skinner have decided the larger amount amount must be paid.

Last week's meat market showed a big slump in the price of beef, when the figures were $1.00 lower. Yesterday there was a further decline of a dollar. Dealers give as a reason that grass cattle are now coming into the market, and some of the wholesale men claim, it is said, that the retail dealers charged prices that were never justified by the state of the market.

A number of large baggage trucks were caught between moving cars in the Union depot last night and considerably damaged. A special train, having part of the 67th regiment and the 10th Field Battery, arrived from Sussex a little before 11 and the cars were being shunted out of the station. As the cars were moving along some people, said to be soldiers, pushed two or three trucks in close to the moving train.

WANT CHEAPER LIGHT. There appears to be a difference of opinion between the St. John underwriters and a number of leading business houses on the subject of gasoline lighting. It is stated that several large firms of the city would like to adopt this method of lighting, putting in their own plant, but that the underwriters make prohibitive stipulations.

The matter has been brought to the attention of the board of trade, and it is expected the board will discuss the whole subject at an early date. It is stated that gasoline lighting is common in other Canadian cities and makes a very considerable saving in cost in large establishments.

CARBOLIC ACID USED FOR CORNS. And as a Result the Young Woman Had Part of Two Toes Amputated.

Apparently there are many persons who do not know the deadly nature of carbolic acid. Ignorance on this subject has just cost a young woman two toes. She wanted to get rid of corns, and lost both corns and toes.

It appears that the young woman was told to put carbolic acid on the corns for a few nights, and they would disappear. Without knowing what would happen she put the acid on rather freely, with the result that it ate into the flesh of each of the two toes treated, and in the end she had to go to the hospital and have part of each of these toes amputated.
