SWEATMAN ASKS FOR BROADER NATIONAL VIEW

1923, for the inside services, but a return tabled in the House for all of the services, both inside and outside, gives the total number of employees in 1923, as 80,204, with a total aggregate salary of over $80,000,000. Further comment is surely unnecessary.

"PORK BARREL" PLAYED

Mr. Sweatman said the picture would not be complete without reference to the "pork barrel" or the system by which the government in power dispensed rich favors to those groups who were friendly to them, and starved those constituencies which were hostile. This system was not confined to any party, he said.
"It has always been a serious matter," said Mr. Sweatman, "but now that our debt has grown to such proportions, it is necessary to arouse a militant public opinion so that a stop will be put to this waste."
"In England the treasury works 855 days of the year, and the 'pork barrel' is practically unknown. In Canada the estimates are prepared under the direction of the minister and the pressure which is brought to bear before an election by the various members of parliament to have expenditures made in their constituencies is well nigh irresistible.

TIME FOR CHANGE

This should be changed. The estimates should not be rushed down to the House at the last minute. A committee on estimates, chosen from both parties, in the House, should deal with them on a non-partisan basis. If this were done, and if the treasury department were strengthened, millions upon millions of dollars at present wasted and added to the public debt to be borne by the taxpayers of Canada, would be saved.
"Then again, in all our provinces, we have succession duties and death and inheritance taxes, which run into exorbitant figures. These produce very little revenue because it is a case of the exorbitant rate killing the traffic. But there they stand—brakes on the wheels of progress. Barriers preventing the development of this country of ours."

NATIONAL SPIRIT

Emphasizing the need for a truly national spirit, a "Canada first" spirit, Mr. Sweatman said:
"Why is it that with all our talk we have not done more towards the creation of a Canadian literature? It is because of our lack of a strong Canadian sentiment and a strong Canadianism."
"It is only as we are inspired by the ideal of 'Canada first' and determined to realize that ideal, that we can carry on the development of our country as it should be carried on. Our inheritance, extending from ocean to ocean, has come to us from the Canadians who were the makers of Canada. It is for us to develop a strong spirit of united Canadianism, which alone can make Canada great."

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO GALLANT OARSMAN

Ex-Champion Barry Places a Weath on Grave of James Renforth, Tyne Sculler

Great boat races of other days here were recalled by a paragraph from an English newspaper received in Saint John by a subscriber of The Times-Star and shown to a reporter today. It told of a tribute paid to the memory of James Renforth, who gave his life in a race against the famous Paris crew of Saint John on the Kennebecasis river more than 50 years ago. The tragedy occurred as Renforth was in his boat at that part of the river where now is the popular suburb of Renforth. The place was named in his honor.

BARRY'S TRIBUTE

The English newspaper says:—Ernest Barry, the ex-champion sculler of the world, has paid a tribute to the memory of a giant oarsman of the past during his stay on Tyne-side. In company with Jack Doddie, a King's Waterman, Barry visited the grave of James Renforth, the famous Tyne sculler, and deposited a wreath thereon. Renforth was lifted in a dying condition from his boat while rowing for the world's title in Canada last century, and his name is revered by northern oarsmen to this day."

Asked regarding reports that his name was mentioned as mayoralty candidate in the civic elections of April, McLellan said he was finished with politics here. He said that he was slowly recovering from his accident of some months ago, although rather tired from the long journey home.

TOTAL SUN ECLIPSE IN 1932 PREDICTED

Will be Observable in Canada and New England States, Astronomer Says

Canadian Press.—ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—A total eclipse of the sun, observable in Canada, New York and New England states in 1932, is announced by the Dudley Observatory as a result of a revision of approximations made by Dr. Egan Von Oppolzer, of the Vienna Academy, which for a half century have served as guides for the astronomical profession.
At the time of the total eclipse of January 1926, it was announced that another would not be observable in the Northeastern part of the United States for a century. Today, however, Benjamin Boss, director of the observatory and his assistant declared that new calculations based on the most recent lunar table, showed that instead of cutting across Labrador as indicated in the approximation of Von Oppolzer, the total eclipse of 1932 will swing down through the New England States and go out to sea off the Massachusetts coast.

SAINT JOHN, N. B., JANUARY 18, 1926.

HOW LONG?

The Ottawa despatches indicate that practically all members of the three parties at Ottawa are opposed to a general election this year, but that events are pretty certain to drive them to the country by June, if not earlier.

Naturally the country will be asking, since an election appears inevitable, why it should be postponed until summer—why it would not be better to vote supply and put through any non-contentious legislation which is absolutely necessary in the public interest, and then give the electors another opportunity to have their say.

The Financial Post, in describing the situation at Ottawa, says that the country has been witnessing an auction sale, which is likely to be continued some time, while what it needs is an election. Says the Post:

"The government is in such a weak position that the speech from the Throne on the opening of Parliament was a re-distillation of election talk with a little more added for good measure to capture or hold Progressive support.

"The amendment of the Conservative leader was a no confidence motion that merely started anew the old game of the 'ins and outs.'"

"The fourteen points presented by the Progressives as the price of their support are nothing but the selfish demands of a group of men who can think only in terms of a quarter section in Western Canada."

"Instead of a policy from the leader of any one of the three groups that would inspire Canadians to work and as well to make Canada a country worth working for, each one in turn proposes something that will make the other fellow work."

"Where is it all to end? The answer seems to have been given by a cartoonist, who pictures a Progressive member approaching a small eating establishment. He scans two rival bills of fare, and extends himself with the remark, 'I don't care where I eat, just so long as I eat.' That is the measure of almost every member of the House of Commons to-day. Every one will see to it that the nation gets the minimum of fifty days required in order to qualify for the full indemnity of $4,000."

"Fifty days at $4,000. Eighty dollars per day. Not a big price to pay for leaders, for executives. But a big price to pay for fiddlers. A big price to pay for fiddling when an election is needed to attempt the definite result. He last election failed to give."

The resignation of Mr. MacDonald of Prince Albert, in order to permit Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to run there, reduces the Government's majority by one, and should Mr. Chaplin, the Conservative member who has been ill, return to the House within the next few days, and assuming that the Government still retains the support of the nineteen Progressives, it would have a margin of only one on division.

It is regarded as practically impossible to keep all the members in constant attendance in order to be ready for emergencies, for with the parties so evenly matched the Opposition may be expected to have a series of amendments in readiness. That is how it looks on the surface, at least, but if all three parties are as anxious to avoid an election as the Ottawa correspondent represent them to be, the Government may escape defeat for some time. Apparently it could only do so if the Conservatives are so reluctant to bring on an election that they are willing for a time to prolong the Government's existence."

Some of the western newspapers are applauding Mr. Bourassa's statement that any early return to the strictly two-party system is unlikely, and that the appearance of groups in the House is by no means to be deplored. Some of these western reviewers are urging the Progressives to make common cause with the Liberals and enable the Government to carry on indefinitely. It may be that there will be small groups in the next House, in addition to the two old parties, but the common expectation is that the Progressives in another contest would be still further reduced in numbers, and there is no present reason for believing that the Labor or Independent groups, which are now negligible, will grow to any formidable proportions.

There may be a little new light on the situation when the next vote comes, but it seems improbable that any of the five Progressives who voted with Mr. Meighan will change over at the next test of strength. The country at large has the impression that the existing situation is impossible and that it should not long continue, because it evidently means further fiddling and compromise rather than decisive administration such as would command public confidence and give Canada the leadership and the action with respect to public policies which are so essential to the public welfare.

Congratulations to the Brockville Recorder, which on Saturday last celebrated its 100th birthday. It was the first newspaper published in Upper Canada east of Kingston, and after finishing five years of its second century it is still going strong.

Govman is to meet Moore and Thunberg again tonight at Madison Square Garden, and this time the race is one of a mile and a half. Last Thursday it was three miles, and both Govman and Moore beat the Finn rather handsly, although he made a new record for two miles. At tonight's distance the pace will be faster, and it would appear that the trouble Thunberg encountered with the sharp turns will still handicap him, but that remains to be seen. There will be intense interest in to-night's test, because it will throw additional light upon the speed of the contestants and upon their chances when they meet in Saint John in the world championship. Here there will be seven events, including the shorter distances, the mile, two miles and five miles.

The Board of Trade has heard from eleven of the twenty-nine Maritime members of Parliament, who are ready to support any reasonable line of action to stop the diversion of Canadian traffic to American ports. This is a question which is non-partisan and of the utmost importance, and if Parliament can transact any public business at all, it should be able to deal with this issue at an early date. If it cannot deal with it, it would seem that it is in no position to do anything useful or to give any excuse for further existence. While the matter has been referred to the Railway Commission for special inquiry, there is still needed a robust declaration by a policy in Parliament showing united determination to have Canadian traffic carried east and west instead of north and south.

While there is no official announcement as a decision, it is expected that the Conservatives will oppose Premier King in Prince Albert, although Mr. MacDonald, who has vacated the seat in the Premier's favor, had an immense majority there in the last election. It is recalled that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was elected for Quebec East at the same time, standing in two constituencies, and he chose the Quebec seat, one that he held for many years. The return of Premier King in Prince Albert will be generally expected, but the result there cannot in itself change the situation at Ottawa. And, what will the situation in Ottawa be by Feb. 15?

There is no one beside thee and no one above thee, Thou standest alone as the nightingale sings! And my words that would praise thee are impotent things, For none can express thee though all should approve thee, I love thee so, dear, that I only can love thee.

BRITAIN NOT BEATEN. (Daily Express, London.) The truth is that all our foreign visitors are amazed by the vigor and energy of the British people in tackling their difficulties. Our national habit of extracting sunbeams from cucumbers and victories from reverses bewilders them. They watch us sobbing over impossibilities and doing them between our paroxysms of melancholy. They marvel at our capacity to carry all our burdens without collapsing. The British manufacturer and trader, like the British soldier, do not know when they are beaten, and they never are beaten.

WEALTH OF CANADA. (Montreal Le Presse.) We should never lose sight of the essential economic truth that the true, the only real source of wealth in a country is its production. Agricultural products and foodstuffs form the greater part of our exports. The value of our surplus for the last eight months has been estimated at more than six million dollars, while our exports of pulp and paper take second place with an increase of nineteen millions.

GENERAL PANGALOS. GREECE, torn by political strife for the past decade, is now ruled over by a military dictator, General Pangalos, former Premier. Upon assuming power he announced that since there was no hope of obtaining an understanding from the dominant political parties the government had decided to concentrate all power in his hands and place the responsibility for the political future of Greece with him.

A soldier and a Republican, he was instrumental in deposing King Constantine and putting Crown Prince George in his place. Later he resigned his post in the Gonatas Cabinet to join the Greek Army in Thrace, engaged in fighting the Turks. While serving there General Pangalos became Generalissimo of the Greek Army. In 1923 he resigned his command to devote his time to planning the overthrow of the government. He achieved his ambition when, as Military Governor of Athens, in 1923, he proclaimed a republic and demanded the resignation of the Gonatas Cabinet.

General Pangalos became Premier last June by executing a coup that overthrew the Michalakopoulos Government.

Dinner Stories

ALBERT was a solemn-eyed, sprit-ual-looking child. "Nurse," he said one day, leaving his blocks and laying his hand on her knee, "nurse, is this God's day?"

"No, dear," said the nurse, "this is not Sunday; it is Thursday."

"Yes, sir," said Albert, "and went back to his blocks. The next day and the next in his serious manner he asked the same question, and the nurse tearfully said to the cook:

"That child is too good for this world."

On Sunday the question was repeated, and the nurse, with a sob in her voice, said: "Yes, lambie, this is God's day."

On the anniversary the soldier repeated his request.

Aiding Sanitation

In Your Plant

IN plants where cleanliness is important there is a very definite place for Goodyear Sanitary Hose. In packing-houses, abattoirs, dairies, creameries, canneries, ice cream plants, ice-making plants and hotel and restaurant kitchens this smooth, creamy hose is playing an important part in carrying out the modern idea of cleanliness and sanitation. It looks clean and is clean. It resists the action of animal fats, fish oils, vegetable oils and hot water and its cream-colored cover retains its original appearance to the end. It is tough and long-wearing—inside and out. The inner rubber lining lasts long, while the outer cover—like the covers of all types of Goodyear Hose—is designed especially. Dragging over floors and rubbing against vats, tanks and trucks make no impression on this sturdy cover of enduring rubber joined in a lasting union to the body of the hose. If you want cleanliness—and economy with it—you want Goodyear Sanitary Hose. Get in touch with the Goodyear Dealer or with the nearest Goodyear Branch. No Matter How Long You Have Been Engaged, it is Only Honorable and Right to Break the Engagement if You Have Ceased to Love, For to Marry Without Love is to Wrong Your Partner for Life.

NOT LONG AGO I expressed the opinion in this column that it was the part of wisdom and of honor for either a man or a woman who had ceased to love the one to whom he or she was engaged to break the engagement rather than to marry without love.

DOROTHY DIX

I advise a man under such circumstances to break the engagement in order to save the happiness of the girl as well as his own. Especially am I thinking of the girl's welfare, because a man can do a woman no other wrong so deadly as to marry her after he has grown tired of her and she has ceased to have any claim for him.

The bitterest tragedy that can befall any woman is to be an unloved wife. No other misery can eat out her heart so completely as to know that the husband she loves loathes her; that she bores him to extinction; that her very touch is repulsive to him, and that he would gladly be rid of her if he had the courage to tear her clinging arms from about his neck.

IF THIS heart-breaking situation arises after marriage it is just one of the catastrophes of life that befall the unfortunate and that cannot be helped. Nor is the husband always to be blamed. He married in good faith, honestly believing at the time that he loved forever, but he found that what he thought was an eternal passion was merely a passing fancy. Probably every husband, if he could, would stay in love with his wife.

But the human heart is an unruly member that no man can control. When it ceases to beat for a woman no skill can galvanize it again into action and make it thrill for her once more. Love dies. Needs alter. Tastes change without any volition on a man's part, without his being able to avert the disaster.

It is sad enough if a man falls out of love before marriage with the woman he has once loved, but it is not the calamity that it is if it takes place after marriage, because it does not involve the wrecking of a home and the half-orphaning of children whose fates are bound up in those of their parents. Nor does the breaking of an engagement bring to a woman the shame and bitterness of a divorce. She may be hurt and disappointed and wounded in her pride at being flitted, but that is nothing to the way her heart would be broken and her soul humbled into the dust at knowing herself an unloved wife, married out of compassion.

THE OLD, sickly, sentimental way of looking at this subject was that there was something fine and noble and grand in a man or a woman going on and marrying the individual to whom he or she was betrothed, no matter how much his or her feelings had changed nor how distasteful his or her future life partner had become to him or her. This was the favorite theme of the old-fashioned novel, and the poor, self-sacrificing girls were depicted as spending the balance of their lives in doing their duty to those they had married and making them happy, while they themselves were a sad, sweet sinner and were perfectly miserable.

Thank heaven we have more sense nowadays, and we know that for a marriage to be happy and successful it has to be a mutual affair, with both husband and wife loving each other and marrying because they want each other.

NO MAN is a good husband to a woman he has married because he hadn't enough nerve to tell her that he had ceased to care for her. No woman is a good wife to a man she marries out of pity because she can't bear to hurt him by breaking off the engagement.

Because nobody can keep up a living life of pretending year after year that they love those for whom they have only a mild affection. Nor is any man or woman stupid enough to be deceived and not to be able to tell the difference between the skim milk of liking and the rich cream of loving. Kindness, goodness, consideration will not take the place of the spontaneous tenderness, the undying interest, the real comradeship which alone make marriage worth while.

OF COURSE, a man of honor may feel that, after he has been engaged to a girl for a number of years, it is incumbent on him to marry her, no matter how his feelings toward her have altered. He has perhaps kept her from making a better match than he is, from settling herself in life. She has been true to her part of the bargain to wait for him and he thinks it no more than right that he should keep his part of the contract. He has really done her a financial injury, to say nothing of blighting her dreams.

That is all true. The only trouble is that in keeping his contract and marrying her he does her a far worse injury than he would have done had he defaulted on it. There are some debts of honor, that cannot be paid. That is why the long engagement is so dangerous a thing to risk. So many men and women cease to love before the wedding day and yet feel bound to the one whom they have kept from other ties.

NOT MANY MEN and women wantonly break an engagement. Not many girls, like the heroine of the old poem, break a country heart for sport before they go to town. Not many men play with a girl's affections. The great majority of engagements are entered into sincerely and honestly, and when either the man or the woman falls out of love it is more often a misfortune than a fault.

This being the case, it is the bounden duty, it is the honorable thing and the kind thing for the one who has ceased to love to break the engagement, no matter how long the engagement has lasted, no matter even if they are on the very steps of the altar.

THAT WAY they save misery to all concerned, for a broken engagement is not the messy thing that a broken marriage is.

Spring Millinery Shows Few Changes

By MME. LISBETH.
WHILE 'tis said that higher crowns will be the order of the spring hats and there are other rumors of slight variations of the present mode. There are no revolutionary changes as evidenced by the showings of advanced spring millinery. Hats for the most part are small and plain, achieving chic effects through novel modes of trimming, although such trimming is smart and tailored rather than elaborate and arresting.

The group of chapeaux pictured above is typical of the mode generally. The only dress hat in the group, that at the upper left of the picture, is rather large and of the type known as the semi-poke. It has a hump crown and a radiating trimming of ribbon, a silk lining and a large, brilliant flower posed at the side.

Below that is the sports type of hat which almost invariably is developed in felt. In this instance it is a green felt with a banding and tailored trimming of grograin ribbon. The other three hats pictured are all of this type, the one on the standing figure (left) being an off-the-face model with slashing to show a pattern in the even design, while the other exemplify the over more severe trimming mode. The picture also shows the continued and, if anything, increased prevalence of the scarf.

Parisian hats, almost exact replicas of those worn by the famous "little general," are worn by some smart women. One well known woman has two, one in black and the other in brown felt. They turned up sharply all around, had a curved triangular inset of grograin at the centre front of the brim and on the back two side wings. The brim at the back curved up in the centre and stood much higher than the crown itself.

Parisian milliners are also showing many novelties in felt and bengaline combination; an antelope felt is also very smart, while a good deal of sangha straw—the croquet made popular last spring—is also being shown.

Is this your BIRTHDAY

JANUARY 18—You are cautious and somewhat inclined towards suspicion, yet generous to a fault. Your desires to love and be loved, yet you unconsciously repel advances, and seem incapable of fully opening your heart to your friends or family. Cultivate cheerful society and beware of jealousy. You should have a very happy married life. Your birth-stone is a garnet, which means faithfulness. Your flower is a snowdrop. Your lucky colors are navy blue and black.

A Thought

My days are swifter than a post; they flee away, they see no good.—Job 9:25.
THERE is nothing of which we are apt to be so lavish as of time, and about which we ought to be more solicitous, since without it we can do nothing in the world. Time is what we want most, but what, alas! we use worst.—William Penn.

Timely Views On World Topics

EUROPE is racing for time between two sets of wars, observed Shaw Desmond, Irish novelist, in a recent speech in this country. "If the war between the Red forces and the Fascist starts first the world will be indefinitely postponed, otherwise nothing can prevent the world war for which the world is preparing at the present time," declared Desmond.

"We must face the fact that the nations abroad are preparing for war. Sentimentally, there is hope for peace, never will get the world any-where, and, as it has been shown in the past few years, never will."

"Democracy in Europe has ceased to be a reality, and as such a byword as the feudal system."

MUSSOLINI SEES SITUATION CLEARLY.
"When the nations of the world spoke about democracy, brotherhood, fraternity and disarmament they really believed that such existed," the speaker asserted, "but the war showed things to be different. With the fall of democracy Mussolini has risen to dictator of Italy, and dictator of the Roman Empire that is to come."

He described Mussolini as a "man of destiny," a prototype, intellectually and spiritually of Napoleon. He spoke of him as "deadly sincere" and compared him to Lloyd George, Winston Churchill and Aristide Briand.

"Mussolini is the one man who is capable of believing in the logic of the situation and of coming out and stating it. Lloyd George, Winston Churchill and the leaders of the Fascisti in Spain and Germany believe in the conditions as Mussolini sees them, but none of them are willing to declare the facts."

FASCISTI MOVEMENT GAINING.
"The time will come when Mussolini will dictate to every man and woman in Italy," he declared. "Mussolini saw that a Parliament is a deadly thing to dictatorship; so he set himself about Parliament. Even his death will not end his power in Italy. There is strong feeling against him but no one has a chance to show it."

"The Fascisti movement is spreading throughout Europe to Spain, England, France and Germany. In England, nearly 600 men and women are joining the movement each day, all of them organized for the fight that is coming. And in France the Fascisti has grown to such an extent that I believe we will see a dictator ruling the French nation within five or ten years."

IT IS not surprising that only one man peered through the fence at Lady Godiva. The others were probably all down town watching the fappers go by.

DAILY MOVIE SERVICE News Notes From Movieland

By DAISY DEAN.
BLANCHE SWEET doesn't mind working under the direction of her director-husband, Marshal Nellan, in fact she enjoys it so much that she is willing to forego a vacation to play in one of his pictures. When Miss Sweet finished her work in "The Far Cry" for First National, she decided to take a month's vacation to go shopping and visit friends. Then her husband came home one night announcing that he planned to film Rebecca West's "The Return of the Soldier," and wanted her to play the leading feminine role. She abandoned vacation plans to don the grease paint again.

BLANCHE SWEET.

Miss Sweet was 18 months old when she made her first appearance on the stage as a babe in arms in a stock company play. Ten years ago she met Marshall Nellan when he was her leading man in "Classmates." They played together in a great many pictures before Nellan became a director. She has been Mrs. Nellan since June, 1922.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" will be the title of Harry Langdon's first feature length comedy for First National.

Oliver Borden, recently signed on a long term contract with Fox films, is to be starred in "Yellow Fingers," a South Sea story in which she will have the dramatic role of a halfbreed girl.

Esther Ralston is now Mrs. George W. Frey. At the wedding, which was performed in New York, Mary Brian was maid of honor and Nell Hamilton, the best man.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE CAT WITH THE SINGED WHISKERS.
UB Glub, the Nib Nob of Nobody's Land, spoke thus to the Third Princess: "Go and get your cat with the singed whiskers at once and bring him to me." Then he said to the servant with two noses: "Go and get me a pair of long, sharp scissors and a bunch of catnip." Then he said to Inch o' Pie and the Twins who were too astonished at all the queer doings to so much as move: "I shall soon present you with a hat that has three ends. When you get it follow 'twoskies, and place the hat in its path. When he goes over it, it will turn into a barbed-wire fence and he can't get past. Then you can catch him."

"The Twins were about to express their great joy and delight at this good news, when the man with two noses spoke up. He spoke like a radio announcer, because he had two noses and spoke through both of them.

"If you please, your Royal Nib Nobs, will you have the catnip raw or cooked or dried?" "I'll not have it at all," cried UB Glub. "It's for the cat."

"Very good," said the man, "then I shall send out six of the chief catnip hunters at once, sir."

And off he went with his ridiculous umbrella and his two noses under his arm. I mean the umbrellas were under his arm.

When he had gone Nick said, "Where is Nobody's Land, Mister UB Glub?" "Nowhere," said UB Glub shortly. "Didn't you see my castle come right up out of the ground?"

"Yes," said Nancy. "But aren't there any other people?" "Yes, they live under the ground, too," said UB Glub. "Then no one has to pay taxes. We only come up when we wish to do marketing or go to a movie or catch butterflies for sale. A school or another, and one good cat whisker deserves to be rewarded. Tit for tat. If I give you a magic whisker out of the Third Princess' cat, what will you give me?"

"Would a box of tacks do?" asked Inch o' Pie, who had been so quiet no one knew he was there hardy. "By the eyes of the great potato! What do you mean by that?" roared UB Glub. "A box of tacks! What for?"

"You said you hadn't any taxes so I thought they might come in handy," said poor little Inch o' Pie meekly. "Well, they wouldn't," said UB Glub.

BECAUSE of her record in social service work, Miss Julia Lathrop, formerly director of the children's bureau at Washington, has had a signal honor conferred upon her. She has been appointed one of the four members of the child welfare committee of the League of Nations.

I have just heard the "true confession" of one of the many young women who grind out untrue confessions for the confession magazines. The confession was made over the lunch hour coffee and sandwiches. I had often noticed the "confessor" on the elevator of the building in which these paragraphs are written daily, a tall, lanky, collegiate looking girl, with humorous eyes and a wise expression.

She had started at the University of California and graduated from Columbia, where she studied journalism and short story writing under the famous Professor Pitkin.

"I turn out two confessions a week," she laughed. "Last week I confessed a sabbie sin and told how I inherited a taste for strong liquor from drunken parents. Isn't that how?" The week before I ground out one about going joy rid mad and stealing a car and another about how I changed the life of a cruel millionaire.

I had started to laugh, but a wistful look came into the heretofore merry eyes. "We sit here and say that the millions who swallow this stuff are saps," she went on. "But I'm the sap. I get $40 a week—that is, $20 a week. Try to live on forty a week."

And speaking of writing and of Prof. Pitkin reminds me that this celebrated tutor to the rising horde of journalists and writers, this author of so many well-thumbed text books, raised ducks on a Long Island farm after college hours.

Recently at a luncheon where the professor was a guest, discussion turned to a young man whose writing showed great promise but who had not had any material success. "He took to writing like one of Pitkin's ducks to water," commented a wisecracker.

"But there's a market for Pitkin's ducks," came the wry response. —GILBERT SWAN

She dedicates its efforts to advancing the interests of children everywhere. The other members of the committee are Miss Charlotte Whitton of the Canadian Social Service Council; Miss Helen Burniaux, head of the child welfare organizations established by the Belgian labor party, and Don Immanuel Valdes of Chile, president of the Pan American Child Welfare Congress.

Some years ago when Miss Lathrop resigned as director of the children's bureau, she said that she only wanted "to sit on the side lines and watch the work go by." But she did stay out of things long. Always active in the work of the League of Women Voters, she was made their counselor on public welfare in government at last convention of the organization, held in Richmond, Va.

Miss Lathrop has been living at Hull House, Chicago, recently, and working with Jane Addams. She will attend the next meeting of the committee in Geneva.

STATEMENT OF CATHEDRAL FOR 1925 IS GIVEN

Families Number 1,166—Receipts of Year $42,250 REPORT IS GIVEN BY FATHER DUKE

Spiritual and Material Affairs Told—Bishop Speaks on Home There are 1,166 families in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception parish—an increase of 84 over the previous year—and the sums given for the various purposes during the year totaled the large amount of $42,250, said Rev. W. M. Duke, parish priest, in making a statement for the year 1925 in the pulpit yesterday.

Details of the finances were given as follows: The ordinary receipts were $25,088.23 and the extraordinary receipts $17,161.54. Collections for charitable purposes reached a total of $8,093.95 and diocesan collections of $2,043.50, a grand total of $44,293.74. The ordinary expenses of the year were $20,710.56. These included $2,686.77 for rebuilding the large organ and installing a new motor for it; $3,493.85 for cleaning and painting the Cathedral; $873.51 for placing new iconostases at the main entrance to the Cathedral, and $348.71 for repairs to the stained glass windows, including re-paning.

Some of the collections of the year for the charitable work were: St. Patrick's Day, for the orphans, $391.40; All-Souls Day, $373; for the Sisters of Service work directed by Father Daly, $598.06; for the St. Vincent de Paul Society work, $948.97. Christmas collection for the orphans, $1,947.55. PARISH FIGURES. Father Duke said that the number of families now comprising the Cathedral parish was 1,166, which was 84 more than in the previous year. The number of individuals was 5,233 and the number of communicants, 4,297. There had been 253 baptisms, 197 were confirmed, and marriages numbered 63 and burials 181. The number given Holy Communion was 83,000 in the Cathedral and 85,000 in the institutions connected with it.

In presenting the statement Father Duke expressed thanks to God for the blessings of the year, to the Blessed Virgin, patroness of the diocese; to St. Joseph in connection with the temporalities of the church and to the personalities of the parish for their outstanding generosity without which, he said, the work that had been accomplished could not have been done. He referred to the good Sunday collections, to the large amounts given for charitable work, including the giving for the orphans and for the people of the parish, and also for the diocesan collections.

ASSAULTS TILLEY ON GOVERNMENT CONTROL IDEA

Rev. H. A. Goodwin Against Change in the N. B. Liquor Law. ENFORCEMENT OF ACT IS CRITICISED

Ministers Condemn. New Year's Eve Celebrations in Saint John.

The enforcement of prohibitory legislation in Saint John was criticised by several clergymen in the course of yesterday's services. Rev. H. A. Goodwin arraigned the authorities for conditions about the city on New Year's eve and assailed Hon. L. E. Tilley, K. C. P. for his remarks before the Rotary Club in which he advocated the sale of liquor under government control.

Rev. H. A. Goodwin said he had no doubt that the statement was sent out as a feeler, and he considered it most inopportune in view of recent occurrences. He charged the government with a failure to enforce the law. Mr. Goodwin said he was not speaking from a political standpoint. Personally he had no politics. He believed the cause of righteousness should be supported by the citizens rather than that of party. The late Government had been charged with non-enforcement of the prohibitory law. Consequently at the last election candidates had been asked for pledges on their part in this regard. Mr. Tilley had written the Temperance Alliance that he believed in legislation to promote temperance and that he would insist on the enforcement of the Licensing and Liquor Act while it remained on the statute books. He condemned a Government which would permit the sale of liquor contrary to law.

The Reds will probably make a first-string first baseman out of the tall Yankee. Manager Jack Hendricks of the Reds experimented last year with Babe Bradley, Al Nichols and Walter Holke. Holke, a superannuated veteran of the Giants, Braves and Phillies, finally ended up as regular first baseman, but Pipp is his superior several ways from the jack.

ENGLISH SCOUTS CAMP ON CONTINENT

Canadian Scoutmaster, Home From Abroad, Thinks Dominion Boys Better Off

That more than 5,000 Boy Scouts of England enjoyed camping trips to the continent last summer was the word brought here yesterday by Scoutmaster C. A. Taylor of Windsor, Ont., who was a passenger on the Canadian Pacific steamship Montserrat from Liverpool, Belfast and Glasgow. He had been to England on a visit and while there took advantage of an opportunity to visit the Boy Scout headquarters in London. Scoutmaster Taylor is strongly of the opinion that the Boy Scouts of Canada are better off than their fellow assemblies in the Old Country. He explained that the boys in Canada have opportunities for pleasure and educational excursions which are not available for the English boys. This he says is due to conditions in England many troops are organized in the large cities and they have no chance to take hikes into the country and camp on the shores of lakes and rivers like the boys do here. Scoutmaster Taylor has been a scout for 16 years and is a strong advocate of this training for boys. He left his home after an absence of two months.
