Wants to Build a Palace of Solid Silver.

How This Former St. John Man Would Boom the City of New York,

By Using Sixteen Thousand Tons of the Precious Metal Now Hoarded in the United States Treasury.

(N. Y. Evening Sun, Oct. 5th.) A palace of solid silver, to be con structed from the silver in the vaults of the United States treasury, is what R. Flaherty thinks would be a suitable method of honoring the begin-ning of the twentieth century. This palace, costing some $400,000,000, would form the neuclus of a big world's fair that would knock the memory of the Chicago exposition higher than a kite.

Mr. Flaherty has embodied his idea in a letter, duplicates of which he has mailed to the presidents of the principal banks of the city.

It is entitled: "Silver Palace and Musical Exhibition and Festival for Opening the Twentieth Century."

"Sir-May I ask if you will lend your aid and influence to a project for holding in the city of New York, on Jan. 1, in the year 1900, and succeeding months, an exhibition of music and musical instruments of all kinds, open to the world, to be the most extensive in its special scope possible and greater than any ever heretofore

"In all ages large cities have held assemblies for festivity and instruc-tion of the people, and lately great exhibitions have been much in vogue In 1851 London commenced with the Crystal Palace. Paris followed in 1855, London again in 1862, Paris in 1867, Vienna in 1875. In 1876 our neighbor, Philadelphia, had its fair in comoration of our centennial year. The seventh exposition was held in in Paris in 1889.

The largest and greatest of these fairs was held in Chicago, in 1893, and fairs was held in Chicago, in the distance of the Khoga attracted nearly 30,000,000 of visitors, Aga Khan, the chief of the Khoga greatly to the profit of all kinds of sect. He says that the natives of greatly to the profit of all kinds of business in Chicago, it being estimated that over $500,000,000 was expended by the people on account of the

There could be no loss from the use of the metal, as work of casting the silver could all be done under the control of the mint and guarded from loss by theft at all times by a regiment of United States troops. There were $427,000,000 in silver dollars coined since 1792, and $375,-000,000 are still in the treasury.
"The cost of casting the 16,000 tons of silver would not be great. As the silver is to be used for the delight of the people, congress will hardly refuse its use. It is as good security for the certificates-issued as money against it—built into a palace as it is stored in the vaults of the treasury, and the people can enjoy it.

"Congress gave Chicago $2,500,000 in Columbia coinage. It could not consistently refuse New York the use of the silver now in storage. "It is expected that the preliminary cost will be defrayed by contributions who will be benefited by the exhibi of seats. The city would undoubtedly the parks for a site.

The revenue from admissions, sale of privileges, etc., will greatly exceed palace of silver worth $400,000,000 will attract a great many people from all parts of the world. "If this matter could be handled with like spirit and enthusiasm to that displayed by the men of Chicago in handling the World's fair, it ought to bring an expenditure of at least $100,000,000 among the various interests of our city, and to make it the grand success desired it can only be done by the co-operation of our leading citizens. "This matter is submitted to you and a few gentlemen of your rank and influence, hoping that you will interest yourself in it and help give it dignity by your aid and influence. On receipt of your assent a meeting will be arranged for organization and a will have sole charge of the matter. 'May I have your answer by Nov-

"Land and Water" calls attention to new form of "sport" wich prevails at the present moment in Queensland -that of shooting the wild, horses, which have increased to such an extent as to have become a source of annovance. The Queenslander calls this species of game "brumbles," possibly feeling thereby less conscious of the qualms which must rise in the mind of every sportsman at the idea of shooting down horses for pleasure. If the country is overstocked with horses it would be better to catch and horses it would be better to catch and slaughter them than to create a new sport out of the circumstance.

Queen Victoria has presented to the Roman Catholic bishop of Halifax, Nova Scotia, a magnificent cope in re-cognition of the respect paid by the bishop and his clergy at the obsequies of the late Sir John Thompson, Canadian premier, whose tragic death at Windsor so deeply affected the queen. The cope is made entirely of Irish material and workmanship and the clasp is set with precious stones. The 31st of August, 1896, is the date fixed for the formal betrothal of the young queen of the Netherlands to Prince Charles, the second son of the crown prince and Princess of Den-mark. Queen Wilhelmina will, on that day, complete her 16th year of age. The match meets with universal approval in Holland and the alliance is regarded with satisfaction, inasmuch

W. T. C. U. NOTES.

An attractive and useful T almanac for 1896 has been edited by Mrs. Frances J.Barnes and is to be brought out by the W. T. P. A. The texts and sentiments for the months have been arranged by the National T. secretaries and National T. organizers, and there will be halftone pictures of each, also of Miss Willard and Lady Henry Somerset, with quotations from their recent addresses. It will also contain pictures of the Temperance hospital and the temple. The moon's phases will be given and the hardlet will contain much that is belief ull at a low price. T. secretaries and others should send orders at once to Mrs. F. S. Evans, 161 West Sixth street, New York.

Mrs. Leonora M. Barry-Lake, one of Total Abstinence union, an eloquent woman and distinguished as a speaker and leader of the Knights of Labor. recently made a strong temperance address before a large audience in Pennsylvania, in which she said:

"Among the temperance organiza tions that are a power for good, I might mention the W. C. T. U., an or ganization composed of 300,000 women. These noble ladies have torn up the gnarled roots of custom, have planted in many places the sweet flowers of total abstinence, and the white rib-bon of the W. C. T. But the cursed rum has caused the loss of that home to countless thousands of women throughout the world. It is she who has had to suffer most, and because she has suffered, she should do her part in relieving every other woman as well as from this terrible burden. I appeal to you tonight for the total abstinence movement. And if somebody says you are over-stepping the bounds of a woman's place by peaking on temperance principles, say to them that the boundary of a woman's duty has never been properly defined; it is limitless, boundless. A loyal welcome greeted Miss Willard when she landed in New York, Saturday, Sept. 28. Among the white ribboners at the dock to greet her were Mrs. Frances J. Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.-General Mahone died at 1 o'clock this after-

He had been totally unconscious for more than forty-eight hours previous to his death and passed away seemingly without pain, Mrs. Mahone, Butler and William Mahone, jr., his sons; Mrs. O. M. McGill, his daughter, L. L. Manry of Southampton county, Va., a w, and Capt. Rogers, secretary of the Virginia state republican committee, and former secretary to Gen. Mahone, were at his bedside when the

the most picturesquely variegated pol-itical careers within recent American experience. He was very little understood and he never meant to be. That was a part of his game. He was a per-sonified paradox. At the north he was considered an aristocrat. In the south ie was known to be a plebeian. The bitterest of secessionists, he became ing the antagonism of the poor whites of the south toward the negro, he made friendship for the negro the cornerstone of his political fortunes. Once the richest man in Virginia, he died as poor as the poorest. Quick to make friends, he was equally quick to lose Everybody who idolized him by hating him. It was the object of the later years of his life to make Vir mia republican, and he was the principal and insurmountable obstacle in the way of that result. The organof the democratic party in Virginafter the war, and the dictator of its nominations and policy, his political annihilation came to be its prime rea-an initiation came to be its prime reason of being.

The great mistake of his life was going into politics at all. As a soldier he was brilliantly successful, and nothing can wipe out his record. As a raflway manager he was a genius, bold in conception, masterful in execution and unfailing in resource. He was the pioneer in Southern railway consolidation and reorganization, and consolidation and reorganization, single-handed he antagonized, fought and defeated some of the greatest railway chieftains of the north. It was in the exercise of his functions as a rallway manager that he began to make legislatures and governors. His success therein was such that he thought party succeeded for awhite in maintaining a successful and independent existence, and he dreamed of making that women have ever been on the existence, and he dreamed of making side of truth, liberty and justice, cf. it the balance of power in national elections. He threw its strength to ism and threw both overboard. It was the pastime of his later life to maintain his conduct of a mercenary contingent of the republican party, so as to give the state no choice between being democratic or Mahoneese. Since he retired from the senate th general public has heard little of him, but to Washingtonians, Gen. Mahone with his peculiar, old fashioned clothes, his broad-brimmed white hat, and his neglected looking beard and hair, was a familiar object. He has lived almost continuously in Washington of late, finding it much more congenial than his old home in Peters burg. The old senator was passionately fond of a game of cards, and in Washington he could generally find come of his old cronies who were always glad to join him at poker, while in his Virginia home he had fost caste since his senatorial career. His most bitter disappointment came during the last session of congress, when his bill selling to the government a plot of land on which to build the government printing office was lost. It was defeated after a bitter fight on Sunday, March 3, and the defeat crushed the old man so that he never was quite himself again. Gen. Mahone was born in Southampton county, Virginia, Dec. 1, 1826. He graduated at the Virginia Military Institute in :847, and until the beginning of the civil war was engaged in en gineering. He joined the confederate army in 1861, took part in the capture the Norfolk navy yard in April of that year, raised and commanded the Sixth Virginia regiment, was engaged in most of the battles of the Per sular campaign, those on the Rappahannock, and around Petersburg where he won the sobriquet of the "Hero of the Crater." He was commissioned brigadier general in March. 1864, and major general in August of the same year. He subsequently led a division in Ambrose P. Hill's corps and at Lee's surrender was at Ber muda Hundred.

At the close of the war he became president of the Norfolk and Tennes ee railroad. He was elected to the United States senate in 1881, and served until 1887.

Last night he committed self off Acadia wharf, at the foot of one of the principal streets of the town. Policeman McEachran from the Esplanade heard a cry from the direction of the wharf, but could see nothing. He instituted a search among the vessels without avail. Then he got a boat and pulled around the dock. After a little searching he found a bat floating on the surface and subsequently discovered McDon-ald's body floating on the water. An inquest held this morning rendered a verdict of accidental drowning. Mcdonald was a middle aged man. The emains were sens home to Glace Bay.

Ontario Knows too Little About the Lower Provinces.

Some Absurd Mistakes and Miscond Hint to the Railways

Toronto, Oct. 3.-Much surprise by dominion writers at the ignorance displayed by Englishmen concerning their most important colony—Canada. But it is cause for much greater surprise to find what false impressions prevail among the masses in Ontario regarding the maritime provinces. Many, otherwise well informed people, seem to regard those provinces as scarcely fit for habitation. They imagine the weather is intensely cold almost nine months of the year, during which time snow shovelling and lumbering form the chief occupations of the people, while they have to subsist chiefly upon potatoes and fish. In fact, like the gloomy knight of the opposition benches at Ottawa, they look upon the little sea-girt provinces as the "shreds and patches" of the dominion. Some actually think that potatoes are the only vegetables and pumpkins the only fruit that can be raised "down there." Some of the raised "down there." Some of the commercial travellers, who owe their ply: good salaries to the large orders they procure down east, seem to delight to good salaries to the large orders they procure down east, seem to delight to misrepresent our much abused country. One of these gentry, who lately returned from your stirring city, delights to tell his friends what a sleepy, behind-the-age sort of place St. John is. He represents it as being almost constantly enveloped in fog, so that the people have to grope their way through the streets almost in darkness. "Think of a city of such pretensions," said he, "without any parks other than their old burlal grounds, where the tumbled down tomb stones serve as lunch tables." In contrast with the above it might be mentioned, however, that another "knight of the road," upon his return from a tour through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, emphatically asserted that he made better sales down New Brunswick, emphatically ed that he made better sales down there than he did in either Quebc or Ontario, and found times better and money more plentiful than up here He also said that he listened to the ablest sermons and best choirs in St. John, Moncton, Amherst, etc., that he had ever heard in his life. Even the newspapers up here often get sadly mixed over the geography of the low-er provinces. The Mail, before its amalgamation with the Empire, had in its "travellers' directory" the name of an hotel at Amherst. New Bruns wick. Only last week, while conversing with a lady acquaintance, she mentioned a friend in Iowa and wished to know if I had ever met him She said, as I came from New Brunswick she thought I might possibly have met him, "Iowa being in New wick." She really seemed dumb founded when she was corrected on

It certainly is greatly to be regretted that the people in general are not better informed concerning their own country and that the various provinces of the dominion have not a more sisterly regard for each other. The people up here especially those mis-named liberals seem , to think Ontario comprises all of the dominion that is really worthy of mention, and look upon the smaller provinces as so the doxology the happy company dismany leeches who draw their sustenpersed with the rector's benediction. that time he has been diligently putprovinces also appear jealous of their oig sister and think she is kept up at their expense. "That useless Intercolonial which we have to run," is the cry up here, while down with you those expensive canals" forms the key-note of the grumblers' discords And so it goes. Our dominion can never attain its true position amongs the leading countries of civilization till this bickering and strife and jealousy ceases and the different problended than they now are. This can only be attained by freer intercourse between the provinces and a better knowledge of our dominion as a whole, which can only be gained in this way. Our Bluenose politicians are rapidly forcing themselves to the front and creating a respect for their increase and strengthen so long as our destinies are controlled by the conservatives. The great need of the day is cheaper fares between the east and the west Cheap excursions are in order every autumn between Toronto, St. John and Halifax, but they are chiefly for the benefit of Toronto's industrial fair and are too late in the season to atmany down east. What is wanted are cheap excursion rates from the chief cities of Ontario to Halifax. St. John and intermediate points to extend from July 1st to September 1st. Many college professors and others have expressed to your correspondent a desire to spend their vaca tion by the sea, but are deterred by the high railway fares and the fear of finding uncomfortable and very expensive accommodations down there Cannot you, Mr. Editor, prevail upon the railway magnates to give at least one trial of cheap rates as hinted at above, while you spread far and wide information concerning the beautiful scenery and the cheap and comfort able hotels and boarding houses that abound in every eastern city and vil-TYRO.

By terms submitted for agreement, the three trustees required the Protestants have one and the Catholics two on the board. It is reported that the Rev. A. F. Thompson disapproves of the arrangement. Those who know seem to entertain doubts as to an immediate ettlement. Whose Name Was a Household Word With Theological Students-A Diocesan Memorial Suggested.

(The Sun has been asked to repub lish the following from Church Bells of August 23rd, 1895.)

THE LATE PREBENDARY SADLER It is with sincere regret that we ave to record the death of one whose ame was a household word with theological students, and whose writings have exercised a powerful influnce in familiarizing the minds of church people with the teaching of the church on the question of sacramental doctrine. The Rev. Michael Ferrabee Sadler was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge. He won the Tyrwhitt Heprew scholarship and graduated in 1847. He was ordained by the Bishop of Peterborough in 1846, and in 1852 he was appointed to the incumbency of Hanover chapel, Regent street, which he held for five years. His next preferment was the living of Bridgewater (1857 to 1864), which he resigned on be ing appointed vicar of St. Paul's, Bed-In 1869 he became rector Honiton, where he has worked for the ast twenty-six years. Mr. Sadler was collated to a prebend in Wells Carieiral in 1863, and he has been one of the proctors in convocation for the diocese of Exeter since 1875. He had been in failing health for some time past, but it was only on the 4th inst., after conducting service in the church where he was so much respected and beloved by his parishioners, that symptoms set in which caused grave anx iety to his friends. He passed away at the last quite peacefully, having attained the age of seventy-seven.

As a parish priest he will be sorely missed, and the memory of his ministrations will not soon be forgotten. But as an author his loss will be deplored by a far wider circle of friends and admirers. Perhaps the best known ter which Canon Ketchum made a a treatise on Holy Baptism, has passed through seven editions, and The One of Offering, on the Holy of the deanery, which had already the New Testament. His contributions to theological literature, exclusive of the last mentioned (all of which have been published by George Bell & Sons, Covent Garden), number fourteen. Perhaps the feason why Prebendary Sadler's treatises have been so widely circulated and studied is that his arguments are all based on and supported by the actual teaching of Scripture, which is largely quoted throughout each volume.

Our church has lost a venerable se vant and a most faithful son by the death of the Rev. Michael F. Sadler, rector of Honiton and prebendary of Wells. He was ordained in the year 1846, and as well as having done good and true work as parish priest in several spheres of labour, his value to the church as a writer cannot be over estimated. He began writing in 1851, his first book being The Sacrament of Responsibility, which has since been through seven editions. Ever since works which have a great circulation, and which have done splendid service. His Church Doctrine-Bible Truth Plain Speaking on Deep Truths, Communicants' Manual, and other books, are now known all over the world, as they deserve to be. His most recent volumes of Notes on the Gospels, and on other books of the Bible, are also very good. Prebendary Sadler, it was recently said in the pages of Church Bells that he ought long ago to have become Dean Sadler. was in his seventy-seventh year. He was Tyrewhitt Hebrew Scholar at Cambridge in the year 1847.

The Western Morning News says "The suggestion for a diocesan me orial to Prebendary Sadler, which has already received very influential sup port, naturally awakens our profound est sympathy, and we shall be glad to render it our best help. For it was in our columns that the claims of Prebendary Sadler were strongly advanc ed during his lifetime and received ear liest expression after his death, Sadber: more than av man of his day, impressed his line of teaching on younger clergy. A well known bishop's examining chaplain remarked after the great writer had passed away that or dination candidates came for examin ation 'simply steeped in Sadler to their lips.' If it be true that greatness sists in the power of influencing others which has recently been advanced a a postulate, if not an axiom, in another great field of activity, Sadler was in contestably in his own sphere a great man. A memorial to Sadler is undoubtedly appropriate in the diocese in which he labored for a quarter of a century We have, however, two suggestions to make. The first is that the diocese of Bath and Wells and Truro should be invited to co-operate in the matter with Exeter. Sadler was a probendary of Bath and Wells before he held a enefice in the more southern see, and Truro was an integral part of Exeter or many years after Sadler came Honiton. The other suggestion is as to the allocation of the projected memor At Honiton undoubtedly there ought to be a worthy commemoration in stone or brass of the long connec tion with the church of its great vicas This, we take it, will meet with unan mous assent. A BIT OF HISTORY.

(Hamilton Spectator.) Canadians cannot know too much about the heroic period of Canadian history—that is, the years 1812-15, when the pioneer settlers and the British troops were fighting shoulder to shoulder to repel the tide of invasion and keep Canada for the British empire. Every fact and incident of that great and agonizing time is precious and ing to know that never before has dians in the struggle that saved Cana national spirit. It also indicates that in the present generation something of the old heroic fire remains, when a people is proud of the deeds of its ancestors and honors their memory, that people is likely to emulate those deeds when the occasion arises.

Especially to residents of the Niagara peninsule, the chief battle ground of the war of 1812-15, is the history of that struggle interesting, and our antiquarians grow as enthusilocal astic over a fresh fact or incident of the period as a cologist grows when ne discovers a new fossil. The following contemporaneous account of the pattle of Stony Creek, which has not hitherto been published, will therefore be of general interest. Adjutant C. J. Steavenson has forwarded to Mr. Mills several extracts from the regimental records for the years 1812-13, which contains a succinct but graphic account of the night attack at Stony Creek and its result. We reproduce it in full:

"The five companies of the regiment, under Major Ogilvie, which had retired from Fort George, had taken a post on Burlington Heights, at the head of Lake Ontario, where about 1,600 men were assembled under Brigadier-General Vincent. Three thousand five hundred Americans with a field train and two hundred and fifty dragoons advanced against the British detachment and drove the pickets from Stony The light companies of the Creek. Eighth and Forty-ninth regiments, commanded by Lieut. Col. Harvey, moved forward on the fifth of June to reconnoitre; and, having ascertained the position of the enemy's camp, the five companies of the Eighth under Major Ogilvie, and the Forty-ninth regiment (mustering together only seven hundred and four bayonets), advanced at eleven at night against the enemy's post at Stony Creek, where nearly four thousand opponents were After traversing seven miles of difficult road with great sethe enemy's camp was surprised. The British dashed among their opponents with undaunted bravery, routed the very superior number of the with great slaughter, and made Brigadier-Generals Chandler and Winter (first and second in command), with upwards of one hundred officers and men, prisoners; also captured three guns, one brass howitzer and three tumbrils. "Brigadier-General Vincent observed in his report of this brilliant enterprise: 'Major Ogilvie led on in the most gallant manner the five companies of the king's regiment; and whilst one-half of that highly disciplined and distinguished corps supported the Forty-ninth, the other part right and attacked the enemy's left flank, which decided our midnight contest.

One of the points is the number of the Americans in camp at Stony Creek. It has been held that the number was grossly exaggerated—that it is absurd to suppose that 700 men could break up camp of nearly 4,000 and put them to flight. The exact number is, however, given in the regimental record, and the information was no doubt obtained from the American commanding officer, who was taken prisoner. The other point of controversy is as to whether Gen. Vincent was present in person at the battle of Stony Creek. For publicly stating just before the great railway strike of 1894 that "the railroad in the past had broken the law equally with their employes, though "no jurisdiction was attempt ed for the men in the strike," he re signed.

In another letter President Harper says: "Your speech at the First Pressafe for me to enter any of the Chisides. I proposed that during the university you exercise great care in public utterances about questions that are agitating the minds of the people.

When Prof. Bemis urged that the university should be in close touch with labor, municipal and monopoly problems, the president replied: "Yes it is valuable work, and you are a good man to do it, but this may not be; this is not the institution where such work can be done.

Referring to Dr. Bemis, the president told another gentleman: "It is all very well to sympathize with the working men, but we get our money from those on the other side, and we cannot afford to offend them." Altogether, aside from Prof. Bemis' ersonal interest in the institution, the question is declared to be a far

SEA GULLS.

During the balmy autumn days or early October the sea gulls of the Bay of Fundy, in vast numbers, have been holding, in imitation of the human biped, a series of meetings on the sands of Courtenay Bay. Long lines of these reckless sea routers could be seen in solemn conclave ranged along and below high water mark, at the head of the bay, making in the light sunshine a most animated picture, and giving to the brown waste of sand a scene of bird life seldom witnessed. Sea gulls, white and grey, from the lonely and rock-bound coasts of our bay, were in that vast assembly, and strutted a brief hour or more undisturbed and numolested. For centuries these assemblies have been held on the sands of Courtenay Bay. Long before the lovalists sought refuge and peace among the pines, maples and birches of New Bruns wick. What instinct impelled these assemblies, almost within the city's bounds, and in sight of the toiling thousands of this busy commercial mart? Can our local ornitholigists solve that problem? We do not ask them. But if these daring sea rovers could speak, what tales of thrilling adventure and heroic deeds they could relate, and what messages of love and constency they would bring us from that mysterious world, the mighty deep. It is better as it is, however, and He who orders our being as well as the sea gulls, has so made it, therefore let us welcome these feathered rovers, with all the mystery surrounding them, and protect them as guests worthy of our care and hospitality, having a mission, not the least of which is to treat up the great lesson of nature, that each which He has made has its sphere in

According to the last issue of Butler's Journal, its editor was right royally treated by the press when he visited the St. John exhibition. Out of the fulness of his heart, Mr. Butler writes: "What struck us most was the courteous, unselfish and wholehearted welcome extended to us by tors, staffs and hands of the Record. We shall never forget it-their excepour heart and did much to restore our confidence in ourself, which was badly shattered by the refusal of the C. P. R. and I. C. R. of the usual courtesies. At the press room in the exhibition building we do not put it too strong when we say we were lionized not only by the St. John scribes but by he country editors, who were there in a body, prominent among Prof. Rhodes of the Maple Leaf, whose paper has been a welcome exchange ance we were delighted to make.'

"Be sincere with yourself, whatever the temptation," was the advice of J. A. Froude. "Say nothing to others that you do not think, and play no tricks with your own mind. Of all the evil spirits abroad in the world insincerity is the most dangerous.'

Rev. Dr. McLeod moved that the general conference Sunday in each year be ministers' relief Sunday, and that churches be requested to take up one collection on that day for the ministers' relief fund.

It was, however, decided that the matter lie with the discretion of the local ministers.

Rev. G. A. Hartley moved that a motion to prevail must be determined by a majority vote instead of by a two-thirds vote. Rev. J. T. Parsons seconded the motion. Wm. Peters thought that there were certain cases in which a majority vote would be better than a two-thirds vote, but no in all cases. Major Vince was decidedly opposed to the change. No hardship was felt by the two-thirds vote, except on one occasion last year, when Bro. Hartley had a motion which did

Rev. Mr. Hartley knew of no other religious body which conducted its business on a two-thirds vote. For two years he had submitted a motion to this conference giving the right to women to vote. Except in the cities the women were the backbone of the church. If a majority vote had pre vailed, his motion would have carried, but the two-thirds vote was agains his resolution. Major Vince suggested that the motion be withdrawn and that ome arrangement be made by which each individual church might, if it wished, give its sisters the right to vote. Rev. Mr. Hartley withdrew his resolution, with the understanding 'mplied in Major Vince's remarks.

Rev. Messrs. Swim and Hartley and Major Vince were appointed a nittee on licentiates. On behalf of the committee on union of the Free Baptist churches in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Maine, Rev. Joseph McLeod submitted a report that closer union is desirable.

At the session of the conference in the afternoon, Rev. Gideon Swim oresiding, Rev. J. J. Barnes presented the report on religious literature. Rev. Dr. McLeod favored the founding of bookroom, where samples of different publications could be found. Rev. G. A. Hartley moved that instead of the conference meeting on the Saturday of or preceding the moon nearest the first of October in each year, the annual session be open ed on the first Saturday of October each year. Rev. T. S. Vanwart sec onded the motion. Rev. J. T. Parsons opposed the motion. DIMINUTIVE CEYLON OXEN.

One of the greatest curiosities among the domesticated animals of Ceylon is a breed of cattle known to the zoologists as the "sacred running oxen. They are the dwarfs of the whole ox family, the largest specimens of the species never exceeding 30 inches in height. One sent to the Marquis of Canterbury in the year 1891, and which is still living and believed to be somehere near 10 years of age, is only 22 inches high and weighs but 1091-2 pounds. In Ceylon they are used for quick trips across the country with express matter and other light loads, and it is said that four of them can pull a driver of a two-wheeled cart and a 200-pound load of miscellaneous matter sixty to seventy miles a day, keep up a constant swinging trot or run, and have been known to travel 100 miles in a day and night without either feed or water. No one knows anything concerning the origin of this peculiar breed of miniature cattle. They have been known on the Island of Ceylon and in other Buddhistic countries for more than a thousand years. One story told to account for their origin is to the effect that they were originally cattle of the ordinary height and bulk; that a Buddhistic oriest was once imprisoned in a stone buildin, one-half of which was used for a cattle stable. During the night he managed to dislodge one of the stones in his prison wall. The stone in ques tion was exactly two and a half feet

It was almost daylight when this apostle of Buddha felt the air rush through the opening he had made, and realized that he was all but free. He knew that he would be unable to get out of the enemy's country on foot, so he prayed that he might be provided with a beast of burden that would safely carry him to the homes of the followers of Buddha. No sooner had he done this than one of the large exen which had been quietly feeding in a stall at his side walked leisurely to the thirty-inch square opening and niraculously passed through it. The priest followed and mounted the now acredly dwarfed beast and was soon safe in his own country. Since that ime, so the story goes, there has been a breed of "sacred running oxen" Ceylon, which never grow too tall to pass through an opening the size of that made in the prison walls by Buddha's representative on the night when he miraculously escaped on the back of the first of the famous dwarfed oxen. A watchmaker of Dresden exhibited in 1883 a watch made entirely of paper. The paper was chemically pre pared, and the maker claimed that it the material ordinarily used.

Annual Convention Held at Millville, October 2nd and 3rd.

There Were 100 Teachers and 5,000 Scholars Reported-The Officers Elected.

The annual convention of the York County School association opened at Millville on Oct. 2nd, President Martin Lemont of Fredericton in the chair. Rev. A. Lucas lead the opening exercises. The president's brief address was of a practical business-like devotion to the work which called them together. In the absence of Mrs. Dr. Sharp of Marysville, through impaired health, Miss Carrie Kilburn was chosen recording secretary temporarily. The work of the county was they reviewed by parishes; first by parish presidents' reports. Some of these officers were absent, but reports were given rom Marysville, Manners Sutton, and Southampton, Mr. Lucas spoke on the principles and purpose of this parish work. He was followed by discussion by Revs. J. D. Freeman, J. Sykes, and others, commending such aims. This first session was attended by a majority of men, and was marked by strength of purpose. The afternoon session commenced at 2.30. The opening was conducted by Rev. J. D. Freeman. The credential committee made its first report. Mr. Lucas gave an instructive normal lesurged teachers to more thoughtful study of the Word and work on systematic lines. Several discussed the subject and methods. S. J. Parsons sent a letter of greetings and regretted his inability to be present. He was to address teachers on methods of preparing their lessons. This was put upon Mr. Lucas, who, in a plain way, outlined some simple steps which can be followed by the weakest teacher in a rural district, and not without application to some of greater privileges. This was followed by 'ntructive remarks by several members of the convention. The written questions were answered by Messrs. Sykes. Freeman, Lucas and Stoeger, and much practical information was given by the answers. In the evening the church was densely packed. Rev. J. Sykes of Keswick Ridge led the opening and connected with the Bible reading remarks on the importance of S. S. work to train youth in principles of good citizenship for uprightness in election and other tests. Mr. Lucas spoke to parents and teachers on their mutual relations and duties in Bible education for the young. The blackboard was freely used and the subject enforced om scripture and reason. Rev. J. r. Freeman gave an address on The Teacher's Example, enforcing the lesson taught in class. Mr.Freeman came to this province from Ontario, where he knew the association work and workers. CRACK SHOTS IN WAR. Practical Uses of the Training Received at Bisley and Other Ranges.

It has been frequently asserted by cynics, who sneer at the art of rifle hooting as exemplified at Bisley, that your crack shot is absolutely valueless in actual warfare, that he finds moving men very different from stationary targets, and that all sharpwould be as serviceable as if made of shooting in action is mere hap-hazard themselves are from 18 feet to 20 feet guess work, in which the duffer is long

> At the time of the Indian mutiny, young Hercules Ross, son of the famous sportsman and marksman, Capt. Horatio Ross, and brother of Edward Ross, the first winner of the Queen's prize at Wimbledon, was the crack rifle shot of India. He subsequently won the Indian championship three years in succession, and on the third occasion put on ten consecutive bull'seyes at 1,000 yards. He was also a mighty tiger slayer. But he proved the value of his deadly skill with the rifle against more formidable forces than the jungle could produce. His greatest and most memorable feat was the following:

He had ridden nearly 100 miles to a ford on the river Gorga, where it was expected that a large force of mutineers intended to cross. It was of absolutely vital importance to keep them at bay until the women and children and the sick and wounded could be ved from an English station close by. Hercules Ross heroically undertook the task. He had a pit dug on the bank of the river commanding the ford. Here he took his post with dozen good rifles by his side and four attendants to load for him. The heavy rains had swollen, the river and the ford was impassable; but the enemy had a large boat, and with this proceeded to make the passage of the stream. But Ross, from his rifle pit, picked off the rowers one by one with marvellous skill. Time after time the boat put back, time after time it came on again; but the quick and deadly fire which that swift rifleman kept up prevented the oarsmen from ever getting more than a third of the way

Armed only with the old Brown Bess, the Sepoys could not touch the occupant of the rifle-pit. For three hours, with unfailing skill and nerve, Hercules Ross shot down the rebel rowers whenever they attempted to cross, till at last a body of English troops with three guns came up, and the Sepoys sullenly retired. By his splendid marksmanship, coupled with unflinching courage, young Ross undoubtedly saved the lives of women and children with their helpless sick and wounded companions.

Another and even more remarkable instance of the practical value of marksmanship in action occurred at Lucknow during the long and terrible slege. The Sepoys had hauled a couple of 18-pounders on to a flat roof of one of the palaces which surrounded the residency in which the English were at bay. If they could only mount these guns they would be able to pour a plunging fire down upon the defenders of the residency, which would soon have made the place untenable and compelled the English to surrender. It was imperative, therefore, that those guns should not be mounted. Sergt. Halliwell of the Thirty-second Foot was the crack shot of the little garrison. He was supplied with the best rifles the officers possessed, and he was posted in an angle of the residency, with orders to prevent the Se-poys from mounting those guns. The part of the building in which he took up his position had already been battered by the Sepoy guns into a heap of ruins, and behind the shattered masonry he lay at full length-there was just cover enough to protect him in that posture. For several days he re-mained there, never once rising to his feet or even to his knees, for to do so would have been to court instant death land, Alex. The Fairs at St. John and Yarmouth Inter fered Somewhat With the Display.

The united counties exhibition for and Pictou, which was held at New Glasgow from the 1st to the 4th inst., was considered, taken altogether, to be a very good show, and equal to that exhibitions were held in St. John and Yarmouth at the same time.

The interest taken in the last two that of St. John especially, a number of choice exhibits that would otherwise have come to New Glasgow, and as well to lessen the number of visitors. Only two exhibits in the cattle and horse departments came in from among the noted live stock of Cumberland. One a short horn bull, shown by J. W. Henderson of Amherst, and the other a Clyde stallion, shown by Mr. McKim of Wallace. The largest attendance was on Thursday, as there were cheap excursion rates on that day over the I. C. Samuel Dicker of Onslow exhibited six fine Holsteins. and Mr. Miller of Salmon River a herd of Gurnseys, but with what success in the way of prizes was not learned. There were some extra good specimens of horse flesh, draught horses and roadsters, but the exhibit of horses, all through, was not considered to be as good as that of former fairs which had been held there. The show of swine, which was excellent in its way, included a large proportion that were unusually large and heavy, and numbered about one hundred and fifty entries. There were about the same number of sheep, mostly Shropshires, with two or three small lots of Leicesters, and few South Downs, and for the mos part made a superior show of wool and possible mutton. Quite a number of different breeds of farm yard fowls were well represented in the row of coops. There was one coop of pea fowls, two or three of game fowls and a remarkably pretty collection of canaries, cr birds of a similar type, in the exhibition building. The show of roots and vegetables was quite full in numbers and excellent in other respects The potatoes had reached a wonderful growth and were exceptionally smooth and shapely, to be so large.

The fruit department was an agreeable surprise to many people from distance, who had the impression that fruit of such good quality could not be grown in the eastern part of the province. The apples, from Emperors to crab apples, apparently were as good as could be grown anywhere The plums were fine, and the samples of pears and grapes had attained a size and color such as to encourage a more extended cultivation of them. W. P. McNeil of New Glasgow exhibited samples of plows, spring-toothrakes and root cutters of his manufacture, and from Nova Scotia steel and iron. The wheels of the rakes except the rims, were made after the pattern of a bicycle wheel. These were esentially home productions, and sig nificant of future possibilities in these lines of manufacturing. For the same s the display of harrows by the New Glasgow Harrow Co. claimed ore than passing attention, in con sideration of the fact that either the finished implements of this kind or else most of the materials used in making them have heretofore been imported. There was not time to inspect with any degree of thoroughness the varied display of productions in the several lines of the industrial and fine arts that were shown, and which help to make up the pleasing attractions of exhibitions, and if this could have been done, the space to tell of these in de-tail could hardly be expected to be given. The afternoon was drawing to a close, and it was time for the trotting matches to begin. This phase of thes how rallied the crowd to the grand stand and along the fence beside the track, showing that there Antigonish, Colchester, Cumberland was a large number of people on the privilege of seeing the races might as well get that return for their money. After the races came the ride in the train to New Glasgow. The three excursion trains did not get away from there as soon as was generally expected, and some time was left to do town. The reservoir is one of the sights. It is half a mile from Provost street and on the west slope of the bordering high land, and has been excavated out of the hillside, the earth closure on the downhill side. (Kingston Whig.) In several pl.ces in the province (Ontario) the school boards have been contracting for the school supplies, getting them at wholesale rates and collecting from the pupils a uniform fee which, though small, covers the entire cost of school books and stationery. WORSE THAN SILENCE.

Lord Sackville's publication is severe reflection on United States national manners. Every right thinking citizen was heartily ashamed of the contemptible political trick by which Lord Sackville was induced to write the famous letter that drove him from Washington. A straightforward Englishman who could not see a political intrigue in a letter asking whether President Cleveland was a sufficiently good friend of England to justify the English writer in voting for him. Lord Sackville politely informed his correspondent that he supposed President Cleveland to be well disposed toward England. This letter was printed as campaign matter to win the Irish vote from the president, and Secretary Bayard, in order to get the good graces of the enemies of England, virtually ordered Lord Sackville out of the country. Mr. Bayard, like Mr. Lowell and other United States ministers to London has become a lover and a praiser of the English and their ways. His boorish treatment of Lord Sackville has not been used against him, and there is no doubt that he is more ashamed of it today than anyone else. The insult to Lord Sackville, whose only offence was in speaking well of his host, has not been forgotten by the Englishman, who has now received the story with the addition of many amusing and discreditable incidents. Lord Sackville would have pursued a more dignified course if he had kept these things in his heart and refrained from rushing into print with the story of his wrongs. He came out of the affair with promotion and a title. Court circles in London have built bonfires on Bayard's head. The contrast between English and American diplomatic manners would have been more impressive if the Sackville pamphlet had never been printed, even for private circulation.

Chief among them may be mentioned George W Fowler, who was chosen one of the candidates in Kings county, Mr. Fow ler was also selected at a convention of straight liberals, and as a result of this he gave a pledge not to do anything in future to hurt the cause of liberalism in dominion politics. This is an important point, as he has always been one of the strongest supporters of Hon. G. E. Foster.

KIRKSTALL ABBEY.

The ruins of this Cistercian abbey, at Leeds, are interesting fragments of the monastic splendor of the twelfth century. The abbey was founded in 1147 by Henri de Lact, baron of Pontefract. It was first established at Barnoldswick-in-Craven, but afterwards the order removed to Kirkstall, and on the site of the present ruins erected a porary church. The present church and claustral building were completed during the life of the first abbot, who died in the year 1182. At the general dissolution of monasteries, in the year 1540, the abbey was surrendered the crown, and the property sub quently became the property of the earls of Cardigan. In 1888 the estate came to the hammer, and was nominally purchased by Colonel Wilson of Leeds. Colonel J. T. North at once signified his determination to secure the rules for his fellow citizens, and the outcome of subsequent negotia tions was that the abbey became the property of Colonel North for £10,000. In 1888 the estate was formally handed over to the corporation of Leeds by Colonel North, who was presented with the freedom of the city. At this time the ruins were a dark and ivy-covered mass, picturesque, but rapidly crum-bling to dust. Scarcely a strong wind blew, but it carried away some piece of masonry, and it became absolutely necessary for the corporation, in orde to preserve the ruins, as well as in interests of the safety of the pub-ST. Frank Sharp, the Veteran Fruit Grow odstock, Interviewed.

Woodstock, Oct. 8 .- A Sun corres pondent had an interesting talk the other day with Frank Sharp, the veteran apple grower of Carleton county, whose fame has become almost world wide. Mr. Sharp still works actively in his orchards, although he is now well past the three score and ten time limit. Your correspondent made inquiries into a number of questions concerning the Chatham, N. B., Oct. 10.-The most apple and plum culture of New Bruns

"I have been trying to solve this flames. From Moran's shop it spread problem all summer. At first I thought it was the ravages of an insect, which always plays more or less havoc with fruit. But a circumstance has come to my attention which settles it, to my mind, that the drought was the caus of the plum failure. Patrick McLaughlin, who lives near the river, has large plum orchard. He says that the crop was a complete failure excepting works, from which it spread with in one small wet corner of his orchard.

OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Oct. 8 .- The Quebec list of appeals were finished in the supreme coprt today. Tomorrow the reference in the fisheries case will be taken up. All the provinces except P. E. Island and Manitoba have filed factums. The question in dispute involves the jurisdiction over the fisheries in inland waters, and the ownership of beds and foreshores of all inland lakes streams and rivers. Ontario is the prime mover in opposing the dominion contention. After years of correspondence, a friendly reference to the court was agreed upon. The American fishing tug Grace, seized by the Canadian cruiser Dolphin in Lake Erie in April, 1894, for illegal fishing and condemned by the admiralty court at Toronto. has been sold at public auction for the sum of $1.260 to satisfy the judgment. The owners, who live at Dunkirk. New York, sent a petition to "her glorious majesty," Queen of England, asking that their offence might be forgiven and the vessel released to them. As the vessel had been contravening the dominion law, the colonial office could not interfere. Ottawa, Oct. 9 .- Controller Wood, Gerard, assistant commissioner of the inland revenue, and Capt. Winter, the controller's private secretary, leave for the maritime provinces tomorrow on an official trip to inspect some of the ports.

The department of railways canals are calling for tenders for 4,000 tons of steel rails for use on government railways.

The return for Chinese immigration show the arrivals last month to be 136, not so great as in September, 1894, when the number was 187.

In the supreme court today argument was commenced in reference by the pricy council to the court in respect to provincial fisheries. The following council appeared to take part in the argument: Christopher Robinson, Q.C., and Mr. Lefroy for the dominion; Mr. Irving, Q. C., and S. H. Blake, Q. C., for Ontario; Casgrain, Q. C., for Quetec; Longley for Nova Scotia; Irving, Q. C., J. M. Clark, for British Columbia. Robinson, Q. C., opened for the dominion and argued that under the British North America act the property in waters was vested in the dominion; that the dominion could make regulations as to erections on public waters, and was not obtained to reremedy if any such erections made should interfere with navigation, and that the dominion also has power to make regulations as to the fisheries, and to grant leases or licenses of fishing rights even in waters granted before confederation. The question as to property in public harbors has already been decided in favor of the dominion in Holman v. Green (6 sup. C. R. 607) and that as in the case of fishing rights against the dominion in the Queen v. Robertson (6 sup. C. R. 52) as this reference will no doubt be taken to the privy council these decesions will come under review there. as the supreme court is con cerned their lordships stated that ese decisions would necessarily adhered to and counsel did not attempt to controvert them. Mr. Lefroy followed Robinson on behalf of the dominion, and when he had finished the attorney general of Nova Scotia presented his argument for that province, as he was desirous of leaving Ottawa tonight. The argufor very many years he had had a ment for Nova Scotia was concluded, two acre field in crop and the average and the counsel for Ontario was ad-

The post office department is being strongly arged by some cities to attach letter boxes to street cars. Deputy White stated today that the system was tried in England and was not a success. The towns are so well supplied with letter boxes and the collections so frequent that there is no urgent need of additional facilities afforded by the system. Although the annual returns of the railway companies should reach the government by 1st October, only 55 out of 140 are yet to hand. The department threaten to prosecute some Enquiry at the marine department today elicited the information that practically nothing has been done since the session respecting the new dominion flag. Some action is necessary soon, as the present flag, because of more patch-work by the addition of the new coat-of-arms of British Columbia. The new provincial arms consist of a shield, on which the Union Jack is exhibited. On the upper part of the shield there are six alternate wavy lines of white and blue, to represent the sea, and on it is a golden sun setting. This is designed to indicate that the province is the most westerly part of the empire. The metto chosen is "Radiance without setting," the words used by a Roman philosopher in the reign of Emperor Hadrian to describe the sun, and are expressive of the fact that the sun's brilliance never wanes. The old coatof-arms, consisting of a lion standing above the shield. Supporting the shield on the left is a stag wapiti, which represents Vancouver Island, and on the right a mountain goat, representing the mainland.

SOME FINE FRUIT.

A Sun man saw a lot of New Brunswick grown apples yesterday that exhibition, as an additional illustration of what the province can do in that line. William Hawker, the well known druggist, has for a number of years devoted his attention to gardening and fruit raising at his summer residence at Welsford. The apples referred to were from Mr. Haw-Bell Flower, New York Pippin, Haas Mackintosh Red and Alexander, all winter fruit, and as fine as any shown at the exhibition. Mr. Hawker also has Fameuse and Wealthy in winter fruit, and in summer varieties he raises Yellow Transparent, Early Harvester, Duchess of Oldenburg and Red Astrakan. He has about 30 crab trees, that yield very largely a fruit of unusually fine size and quality. largely this year, and the fruit was of the kind that takes prizes at fairs. He also raises large quantities of gooseberries. His orchard does not cover more than two acres, but it is living example to all who see it of the great possibilitie s of this province for fruit raising.

The New York World's Cable Giving Interesting Extracts From it.

The Late James G. Blaine, Lord Sack ville and the Irish Vote.

United States Politicians and Their Methods Severely Condemned.

New York, Oct. 8.—The World's copyrighted cable from its London correspondent will say:

An extraordinary and in many re spects unprecedented publication by a British or high diplomat has been quietly but amazedly discussed the past few days among the foreign representatives to the court of St. James and in higher official and social circles

This is a handsomely printed pamphlet marked "For private circulation only," and entitled "My Mission to the United States, 1881-1889," and has just been issued by Lord Sackville, who, as Sir Lionel Sackville-West, K. C. M. G., was the English minister to Washington for the time named. It will be remembered that Presi-Cleveland almost on the eve of the election of 1888 sent Sir Lionel his passports because of a letter written by him to an alleged Englishman in California, commenting upon the approaching election.

This pamphlet is Lord Sackville's defence and explanation, after several years, of that incident. But the probcedented part of it, and the part which has aroused very excited ment in the circles named, is, first, the freedom of his strictures upon the American people and American public men: and second, his own expressed should have accepted Mr. Bayard as ambassador to this country, while as secretary of state of the United States Mr. Bayard had wantonly insulted in person its accredited representative.

Except for a brief reference to it will appear in Mr. Labouchere's Truth tomorrow, no English journal has apparently had an intimation of

The late Chester A. Arthur was president, and James G. Blaine, secretary of state, when Lord Sackville to New York in November, 1881. At a reception given him by the St. George's society, the says that Mr. Blaine was sent to geet him by President Arthur, and he made a most cordial address of welcome. In it he referred to "The royalty of the Ameripeople and their admiration for that gracious sovereign, his royal mis-

Lord Sackville notes also his very cordial reception by the president him self, but remarks: "That while Mr. Blaine was using his conciliatory language he was carrying on a hostile ernment respecting the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty."

He says he entered upon his duties with great solitude. "I was well aware of the difficulties I should have to contend with in combating the influence of the fenian organization, exercised over the government, and which was so powerful in both houses of the legislature." Lord Sackville quotes a private letter he wrote to Lord Granville, then eign minister, in April, 1882, in regard apparently to a request or demand made by Secretary Frelinghuysen for the immediate release of certain Irish suspects. In this letter, Lord Sackville distinctly states that Assistant Secretary Bancroft Davis represented to him that the president felt embarrassed by the action of congress in the matter and "that he, the president, trusted to the courtesy of her majesty's government in enabling him to avert it." He says he told Secretary Davis that "he must remember there was a public opinion in England as well as a press, neither of which were likely to be convinced of the necessity of a concession to the United States on this question simply because congress was terrorized by the Irish vote."

Mr. Davis frankly admitted this and said that the president himself appealed to her majesty's government in the present case.

Lord Sackville deliberately states that Lord Granville, upon representations of Lord Spencer, then lord lieutenant of Ireland, and lately Lord Rosebery's cabinet, telegraphed the first assistant secretary of state saying that his (Lord Sackville's) life as in danger, and asking for protec-

All preparations were made in secret and they spent ten days cruising in the James river, after which "it was deemed that the excitement caused by the Irish executions had abated."

He says danger again became imminent, when he was instructed to demand the extradition of Patrick Sheridan for complicity in the Phoenix park murders. He felt that such a demand would be hopeless, and so replied to Lord Granville, and the instructions were revoked.

A presidential election was approaching and Mr. Blaine was likely to be the republican candidate. was at this time Mr. Blaine spoke to me in the most condemnatory tones of the conduct of her majesty's ernment in dealing with the Irish This language clearly indicated his intention to trade upon this hostility to England in order to

Mr. Bayard remained in obscurity for four years until the re-election of Mr. Cleveland, when he was appointed ambassador to London as a recognition, it may be presumed, of his re markable achievement. The perpetrat-or of these degrading acts of political trickery emerges from the political mire a social success and meets those upon whom he has so mercilessly trampled with a smiling countenance Lord Sackville says two justices of the supreme court, since dead, spoke in terms of the strongest condemnation of President Cleveland's action toward him. He quotes a letter in full from a manager of a dime museum in New York offering him $2,000 per week he would hold two levees daily in "my palatial museum." It is unnecessary adds Lord Sackville, for me to comment further upon the political degradation which avowedly exists in the United States, nor upon the difficulties which a British minister has to contend with in maintaining amicable re lations with a government influenced solely by the political necessity of the ent and whose action is controlled by a faction hostile to his own

London, Oct. 9.-The statements made by Lord Sackville, who as Sin Lionel Sackville-West was the British minister at Washington in 1881-89, in a pamphlet marked "For private circulation only," a copy of which was obtained here by the correspondent of the New York World, and the substance of which was printed in the United States today, have caused amazement in diplomatic Truth, commenting upon the state

Mr. Bayard, therefore, would be mean to complain of this point. But the matter acquires exceptional interest when it is considered side by side with a recent dispute regarding the race for the America's cup. It should be remembered that Sackville-West was the victim of an election trick. An indiscreet expression of opinion upon his part was exagger ated for the purpose of exciting anti-English agitation. The trick was suc cessful and Sackville-West dered his papers. England, in the person of her envoy, was grossly wantonly insulted. Mr. Cleveland, however, failed to secure the election, "In our relations with America exnerience teaches us always to be on the alert. This has made the English perhaps over suspicious, and being so they possibly imagine trickery where s not exist. For this reason it is specially advisable that international contests be discontinued until this impression is reversed or the Americans realize that they are sufficiently strong to depend upon themselves without the support of sharp practice. The two nations are very nearly allied and everything should be done on sides of the Atlantic to unite them more closely. Both nations have much in common. In America they have our peers and in England we have

Sugar Planters of Santa Clara Express Doubts as to Making Sugar.

An Interview With Capt. Gen. Martinez Campos on the Extent of the Outbreak.

Havana, Oct. 9 .- A band of twenty insurgents has been raised in the Vulta Abajo district. A number of civil guards has engaged a small band of insurgents at Recreeo, in the Matanzas district. The insurgents left two wounded on the field.

Another skirmish has taken place at Carmato between a small detachment of troops and thirteen insurgents, who left one killed and two wounded behind them.

The column of troops commanded by Col. Molino, while skirmishing near Santa Fe, in the Sagua district, had a brush with insurgents, killing one and wounding two of the enemy. It is reported here that according to official advices the British consul at Nuevutas, province of Puerto Principe, has joined the insurgents.

London, Oct. 9.-A despatch to the Times from Havana, dated October 5th, which will be published tomorrow, will say: "I have just returned from a long tour through the provinces of Santa Clara. I found the bitterness of feeling between the Cubans and Spaniards is growing stronger.

Whilst the number of the insurgents in the province of Santa Clara have largely increased lately, I do not see how it is possible for the insurgents to make an attack upon the Spanish forces unless they obtain a great addition of arms and ammunition. Judging from the conversations of Captain Gen. Martinez de Campos and the general distribution of troops, it is evident that a detailed military cccupation of the island is considered necessary at the present time, and robably continuing next year.

The sugar planters of Santa Clara express great uncertainty whether to make sugar. If a crop is lost this means absolute ruin to many estates. I saw a circular letter sent to the sugar planters of the southern districts Santa Clara demanding contributions for the insurgent cause to the value of property, and stating that if the demands were not complied with destruction would follow.

Halifax, Oct. 9.—A tragic drowning acident occurred at Lunenburg last night. The son and daughter of Recorder Chesley of the town of Lunenburg, found a watery grave. The young man was 19 years old and the girl 17 years. They were the only children of Mr. and Mrs. Chesley.

Yesterday the two went in a sail boat for a day's outing at Ritcey's Cove, a couple of miles from Lunenburg. Night came and the party did not return, but this caused no uneasiness, for the parents concluded the young people had decided to stay for the night at Ritcey's Cove, as the wind was blowing a gale. No accident was though of.

This morning a body was seen floating at the wharf in Lunenburg har-

THE DURANT TRIAL.

Testimony of C. T. Lenahan, Who, it Was Alleged, Was Taken for Durant.

The Court Rules in Favor of Miss Cunningham the Lady Newspaper Reporter.

San Francisco, Oct. 8.-After wandering through a mass of unimportant witnesses the denfence in the Durant case this afternoon examined two cf the most important witnesses that have been called since the prosecution closed its case. One of the witnesses materially aided the defence, from the fact that upon Ross's examination he failed to give important evidence by the prosecution. The examination of other witnesses had just begun when the court took recess until tomorrow morning, but in the short time the witness was one the stand he testified to one important fact, which was directly opposite to what the defence had hoped to establish. The most important witness of the day was Charles T. Lanahan, the young man whom the defence con-tends was mistaken for Durant by Pawnbroker Oppenheim. Lanahan, who does not bear a striking resemplance to the prisoner, said on April 3rd he attempted to pawn a small dia-mond ring similar to the one worn by Blanche Lamont, at Oppenhelm's shop. The witness said that he asked Oppenheim the same questions and received the same answers that Op-penheim quoted in relating the conversation he had with the young man whom Oppenheim testified was Durant. Then, to the surprise of the defence, which contradicted nearly all of the strength gained from witness's testi-mony, Lanahan said he tried to pawn the ring in the afternoon, while Openheim testified that Durant entered his shop in the morning.

Attorney Duprey was considerably disconcerted by the statement of the witness and endeavored to impeach Lanahan's testimony by reading a letter written by Lanahan to the attorney for the defence, in which he divulged the fact that he had tried to pawn a small ring at Oppenheim's on the same day Durant was said to have been in the place.

The court interrupted Duprey, how-ever, and refused to let him read only such parts of the letter as referred to the question at issue. Duprey then asked that the letter be admitted in evidence, and at the close of the struggle over this the court adjourned for the day.

After Lanahan surprised the defense by stating that he tried to pawn the ring in the afternoon Attorney Duprey became very suspicious of the witness and asked several questions intending to indicate that he had transferred his sympathy from the defence to the prosecution. Among other things Attorney Duprey asked Lanahan if he had not been informed by persons known to be in sympathy with the prosecution. Duprey also asked him when he had shaven off his moustache that he wore when he entered Oppenheim's shop. Lanahan said he had never worn a moustache in his life. Duprey intimated that he would impeach the testimony of witness on this point by a statement contained in the letter written by Lanahan to the attorney for the defense.

W. A. Dukes, a student at Cooper who was expected to give strong evidence for the prosecution, gave disappointing testimony. Dukes said that Durant asked him if he could not remember that he attended Dr. Cheney's lecture on the afternoon April 3, and to that end recalled a number of incidents said to have taken place at that time. Although Dukes' seat was next to Durant's in the lecture room, Dukes could not remembe whether Durant was there or not and told him so. Dukes said it was untrue, as had been reported, that Durant asked him as a favor that he would attend the lecture. On the contrary, Dukes said that Durant told him he wished him to testify only to the facts as he remembered them. With one exception the remainder of the witnesses were called to testify to the previous good reputation of the

H. F. Marshall, a reporter on a mo ning paper, testified that on April 14 Detective Gibson, who discovered Blanche Lamont's body in the belfry of Emanuel church, told him that he saw the prints of a number nine shoe near where the body lay. Durant wears a smaller shoe. In the case of Miss Carrie Cunningham, a newspaper reporter who refused to disclose the source of certain information relative to the nature of Mrs. Leakes' testimony, Judge Murphy ruled that the witness was right in refusing to answer the questions. Miss Cunningham was therefore not punished for contempt. San Francisco, Oct. 9.—Theodore Durant was on the stand in his own behalf today. He told a story precisely as outlined by his counsel of accomp anying Blanche Lamont to the school on the morning she disappeared. In the afternoon Durant described his movements, detailing his route and arrival at the church at five o'clock.

MRS. CHARLES CONNELL.

(Woodstock Press, 7th.) After six months of intense suffering, which was borne with a fortitude begotten of Christian faith and patience, Mrs. Connell passed peacefully to rest between seven and eight o'clock Saturday evening. The last hours of her life her sufferings ceased, and she seemed to have already entered upon her final rest, while yet permitted to make her last expressions of affection to her family.

Mrs. Connell was the oldest daughter of the late Peter Fisher of Fredericton. She was a sister of the late Judge Fisher of Fredericton and of L. P. Fisher of Woodstock. She was born at Fredericton on the 23rd of October, 1810, and was therefore near the completion of her 85th year. Two brothers, William and Peter Fisher, and one sister, Mrs. William Smith, survive her. Her first trip from Fredericton to Woodstock, where she came to visit the late Mrs. J. M. Connell, was made when she was a young lady of 22 or 23 years. Railways were then not amed of and steamboating was un-then running between these places. The common by-way was the tow path, and travel was by tow boat or canoe Her first trip was made in a tow boat and the journey, which can now be accomplished in a few hours, occupied week. Nor was that primitive way of travel free from danger, the boat was cansized en route.

On Wednesday, July 29, 1835, she married the late Hon. Charles Connell. The ceremony was performed at Fredericton by the late Dr. Somer-ville, and the bridal trip was made to Woodstock in the same primitive manner as her first trip to the village which was to be her future home. Their first residence was in a small wooden house on Main street, where the Connell brick block now stands And there was started the first flowe garden known in this part of the country. The cultivation of flowers was something in which she always took a deep delight, and for which she possessed a natural gift. Through this faculty she was able in later years to contribute very greatly, not only her own domestic pleasure and that of her personal friends, but also to the equal pleasure of entire strangers; to adorn the town with beautiful grounds, and distribute the fragrant products of her garden with most liberal hand. The site where stands the residence of her later years was, when she first came to Woodstock, covered with forest, and the large oak yet standing there is the representative of the primitive wilderness. From the couch of her last sufferings she could watch the waving of this old oak and the rippling of the creek nearby, both of which helped to recall many pleasant mem-known. There was not even a stage

ortes.
Twenty-two years ago she was called to bear the loss of him who had been the companion of her life for 38 years. The late Hon. Charles Connell died on the 28th of June, 1873.

The issue of their marriage was four sons and three daughters. One son, Herbert, was drowned in the creek when quite young. George H. Connell, M. P., died at Ottawa February 16th. 1881, and Dr. C. P. Connell died three years ago. The living are Wm. M. Connell, Mrs. Anderson of Hallifax, and Misses Ella and Alice Connell.

Mrs. Connell was conversant with all the history of the county. A woman of broad intelligence she took a keen interest in all public matters of general utility, and her influence, always quietly exerted, was more widely felt than was recognized by the general

P. R. A. ANNUAL MEETING.

Resolution Passed Looking Towards the Lengthening of the Prize List.

Against a Consolation Match-Amendment Made to the Constitution.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Rifle association was held 9th inst. at the office of Major John H. Parks, the president. There were present: Lt. Col. Tucker. Major Armstrong, Major Hartt, Major Magee, Capt. McRobbie, Capt. Hartt, Capt. Thompson, Capt. Lordly, Capt. Manning, Capt. Fairweather (Sussex), Lt. Perley, Col. Sergt. Henderson, Staff

Sergt. Lordly, Sergt. A. R. Lordly, Corp. Thompson and James Hunter. In his opening remarks the president said he was glad to see so many gentlemen present. He expressed the wish that they had assembled earlier, as much valuable time had been lost. The minutes were confirmed and then the president called for reports.

The minutes were confirmed and then the president called for reports. The twenty-ninth report of the council stated that generally the work of the association in its several directions had met with good results. Before going into the details of this work the council said they rejoiced to record that the fondest ambition of Canathe winning of Her Majesty the Queen's dian marksmanship had been realized through prize by a member of that "dignified embassy," the Canadian Bisley team. The victory of Private Hayhurst, G. M., was a thing to be proudly remembered by Colomal riflemen. Reference was then made to the Maritime match, which was won by Nova Scotia. It was suggested that of this match were continued it would be expedient for the association to make Sussex the place of the New Brunswick contest. The urgent need of more Martini rifles early engaged the attention of the council. By personal interview at Ottawa and through subsequent correspondence this matter was pressed upon the notice of the director of stores, and through his kind offices 100 rifles had been forwarded to St. John for issue, on the personal security of commanding officers. Prompt advantage was taken of this opportunity by some officers commanding, but unfortunately not by all. Still quite an addition had been made to the supply of reliable rifles.

The programme containing the prize list and regulations was printed in the usual pamphlet form and copies distributed early in the season. It would be well perhaps another year to issue the programme in the nore convenient book form generally used elsewhere. In the value and distribution of the money prizes, the number of competitors, their ranges and number of shots, the programme was similar to that of 1894, but the regulations were made to the prizes in kind. All the matches were thrown open to civilians, who thus became eligible for all prizes except the N. R. A. medal and the cups specially restricted to the active militia. The change was made as an experiment, and the increase in the number of resolution was in terms limited to the matches of this yeaf, it would be for the association to decide whether the privilege should be continued.

Reference was made to the Harper cup, given by the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York, which had lately been received in the form of a solid silver punch bowl. The conditions which had been attached to it were that it should remain a challenge prize and be restricted to members of the active militia. For the first time a grand aggregate badge appeared in the programme. Three of them had been received for the winners, respectively in 1894, 1895 and 1896. The council's gratifude to Lt. Col. Maunsell was by no means lessened because it had been report mext dealt with the shooting at Sussex. The accounts of the secretary-treasurer, duly audited, were submitted, showing that the balance of $129.86, with which may year commenced, had diminished to $16.29. This decrease was, as last year, due to the purchase of medals owing county associations. Practically all these arrears were now wiped out. There were on hand four medals for Kings county awaiting the hames of the winners, and one for two winners in Wester morland county, both of whom were out of the province. Thus there was at date only none medal to be provided. There were on hand two Queen's Head medals (those which accompany the Prince of Wales cup), yet to be competed for. A full list of medal winners in county associations had been prepared, with the view to its publication in the annual report. In the past few years the loss of the provincial grant had so seriously affected the strength of our Ottawa team, and the more gradual introduction among our riflement of the Martini-Henry had so handicarned them in open contest with bose of loss of the provincial grant had so seriously affected the strength of our Ottawa team, and the more gradual introduction among our riflement of the Martini-Henry had so handicapped them in open contest with those of the larger provinces, that they had perhaps ceased to look for any special success under the existing circumstances. All the more welcome, therefore, had been the good things secured this year at Ottawa by New Brunswick riflement. The delegation was only nineteen in number, but one of these shot into the Bisley team, and two others, 24th and 25th respectively, were almost equally certain of places. There, as a conclusion, New Brunswick's eight in the provincial match by most brilliant scoring gained for the province another year's possession of the London Merchants' cup. The team total of 714, or an avreage per man of 894, was distinctly the highest score ever made for the cup, and thus became a dominion record. The council added that efforts were begun last year, and would be renewed at the proper time, to procure if possible a recognition of the association's claim to financial aid from the local legislature.

The financial report showed that there was was a balance of $129.38 on hand at the beginning of the year. The receipts brought tup to $2,390.27. The expenditures aggregated $2,373.98, which left a balance of $16.29 on hand.

These reports were received and ordered to be printed and the matters contained in the council's report taken up for discusion. The president said over $1,200 of the $1,300 granted by the Dominion government was distributed in prizes last year. The balance this year was much less than last year, but this fact could be accounted for by the expenditure for permanent repairs on the range, the expenses of the maritime match and the purchase of medals,

The consideration of the council's eport was then proceeded with. It was left to the council to decide what form the programme, prize list, etc., should take. The meeting was in favor of having the whole thing published in book form if the cost would

The Bible account of us is not exaggerated when it says that we are poor and wretched and miserable and blind and naked. Poor! The wretch that stands shivering on our doorstep on a cold day is not so much in need of bread as we are of spiritual help. Blind! Why, the man whose eyes perished in the powder blast, and who for these ten years has gone feeling his way from street to street is no in such utter darkness as we. Naked! Why, there is not one rag of holines left to hide the shame of our sin. Sick! Why, the leprosy has eaten into the head and the heart, and the hands, and the feet, and the marasmus of ar everlasting wasting away has already seized on some of us.

First we need a repenting heart. If for the last 10, 20 or 40 years of life we have been going on in the wrong way, it is time that we turned around and started in the opposite direction. Again, we need a believing heart. A good many years ago a weary one went up one of the hills of Asia Minor, and with two logs on his back cried out to all the world, offering to carry their sins and sorrows. They pursued him. They slapped him in the face. They mocked him. When he groaned they groaned. They shook their fists They spat on him. They hounded him as though he were a wild beast. His healing of the sick, his sight giving to the blind, his mercy to the outcast silenced not the revenge of the world. His prayers and bene dictions were lost in that whirlwind of execration: "Away with him! Away with him!" Ah, it was not merely the two pieces of wood that he carried. It was the of the ages, the wrath of God, the orrows of hell, the stupendous interest of an unending eternity. No wonder his back bent. No wonder blood started from every pore. No that he crouched torture that made the sun faint, and the everlasting hills tremble, and the dead rush up in their winding sheets as he cried "If it be possible, let this cup pass frm me," But the cup did

Was there ever such On that hill of carnage, that sunless day, amid those howling rioters, may not your sins and mine have perished? I believe it. Oh, the ranom has been paid! Those arms of Jesus were stretched out so wide that when he brought them together again they might embrace the world. one may be you! Again, to have a right heart it mus be a forgiving heart. An old writer says: "To return good for evil is Godlike. Good for good is manlike. Evil for good, devillike." Which of these natures have we? Christ will have nothing to do with us as long as we keep any old grudge. We have all been cheated and lied about. There are people who dislike us so much we should come down to pover ty and disgrace they would say: "Good for him! Didin't I tell you so?" They do not understand us. After the guest was gone the housewife came looked at the window, and saw the inscription, and called her husband and her children, and God, through that ministry of the window glass, brought them all to Jesus. Though you may to-day be surrounded by comforts and luxuries and feel that you have need of nothing, if you are not children of love, let me inscribe upon your souls, "One thing thou lackest."

GREAT LAKE TRAFFIC.

Argument in Vavor of a Canal Acros New York.

Only those who have given attention to the subject realize the immense mercial importance of the Great Lakes or the possibilities of traffic which lie in an open way connection with the Atlantic, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. Look for a moment at their present commerce. The tonnage passing last year through the Sault Ste. Marie was twice that passing Suez, while that of St. Mary's Flats Canal (Detroit River), was five times that of Suez. The round figures are: Suez, 7,000,000 tons; Sault Ste. Marie, 12,000,000 tons; Detroit River, 35,000,000 tons. Andthis last is to all practical purposes, a purely domestic rce. Only 5 per cent. of the traffic of the Upper Lakes is brought down into Ontario. Only 2 1-2 per cent. finds its way to the Atlantic via the St. Lawrence River. Careful estimates indicate a through traffic between the lakes and the sea of upwards of 60,-000,000 tons annually. The bulk of this now goes by an open way for ocean freighters from New York to Chicago and Duluth, at least two-thirds of this traffic would go by water. Capitalization or stock-watering aside, no one will insist that present freight rates are excessive. Nevertheless, water freights would not be more than onehalf or possibly one-third the present rail cost. The direct saving in freight from a maritime canal would it is estimated, reach $75,000,000 a year. And it is further calculated that the direct enhancement of farm values throughout the Western States tributary to the Great Lakes which would follow opening of such a canal would reach the stupendous total of half a billion dollars a year.

The Woman in Demand.

After everything is said and done it is the woman who can turn in and keep house creditably that wins lasting admiration from her friends both in and out of the home circle. To be able to sing and play, to ride a wheel or sail a yacht make woman a very pleasant and popular acquisition to society, but whe cook takes her departure none of these accomplishments seem as thoroughly satisfying as that of mastery over culinary difficulties.

The domestic problem is one of the most vexing as well as most important problems of the day. Training schools for servants are as necessary as they are loudly advocated, but the mistress needs training quite as much as the servant—a training which a season at a fashionable cooking school is inadequate to give. And it is the middle class housekeeper—the woman who keeps only one servant, the wo-man whose mother in nine cases out of ten was a notable housekeeper did her own work-who needs systematic and scientific training far mor than do the heads of more luxurious households, for among these it is no unusual thing to find women who are perfect in every department of house-

THE CHILD SAMUEL.

FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCTOBER 27.

Text of Lesson-I Samael III. 1-13 : Golden Text-Speak Lord for Thy Servant Heareth-I Samuel iil. 9-Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "And the child Samuel ministered unto the Lord." We have set forth in this book the blessings of submission and obedience and the opposite. Hannah, in the bitterness of her soul, looked unto the Lord, and He heard her and gave her this child. Therefore she called his name Samuel, which means "asked of God" (chapter i., 20, margin). Then she praised God in the beautiful words of chapter ii., 1-10. In this song we have the first use of the word "Messiah," translated "His an ointed" (verse 10; see also verse 35). We have also in chapter i., 3, 11, the title "Lord of hosts" for the first time Both of these titles suggest many things concerning the kingdom, and in this book sometimes called "the first book of Kings," we have the story of the first two kings, one a man after the people's heart, the other a man after the Lord's heart. 2, 3. "Ere the lamp of God went out in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was." Eli was now old and was not walking before God in the manner of his sons, and very early in the morning the Lord came to talk with the child. Samuel, of whom it is written that he ministered unto the Lord, grew before the Lord, the Lord to Samuel in Shiloh by the word of the Lord(chapters ii., 11, 18, 21, 26; iii., 19, 21). See how even a child may minister unto the Lord and have a place in the Lord's house and receive messages from the Lord, while older ones are passed by. Many things are still hidden from the wise and prudent and revealed unto babes (Math. xi., 25). The God, with the signet ring of Christ's thing that greatly pleases God is to live "before Him" and "unto Him, seeking in all things "His glory."

4. "The Lord called Samuel, and he answered, Here am I." It is evident from verse 10 that He called him by name. This makes us think of that beautiful verse in Isa. xliii., 1: "Fear not, for I have redeemed thee. I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine." And also of Isa. vi., 8, where the Lord says, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" And the prophet answers, "Here am I; send prophet answers, "Here am I; send me." How beautiful to be ready for His every call, an ear always open to

5. "And he ran unto Eli and said. Here am I, for thou calledst me." But Eli did not recognize that it was the calling him and so told him to lie down again. Eli had not the ear for municate with him only through Samuel. It was a rare thing to get a word from the Lord in those days, and vis-ions such as those granted to Abram and Jacob, Moses and Joshua, were unknown. See verse 1, R.V., margin.
6. "And the Lord called yet again, Samuel." Behold the patience of the Lord, Samuel's readiness and Eli's continued dullness. How difficult it often is for the Lord to get to our ear and make known to us His will! What a contrast to "watching to see what he will say unto us," or "watching daily at His gates" (Hab. ii., 1; Prov. viii., 34).
7. "Now, Samuel did not yet know the Lord; neither was the word of the Lord yet revealed unto him." He must have known the Lord through Moses and Joshua, but not yet by direct communication. Known means to perceive, understand, acknowledge, so there may easily be many degrees in knowledge. When Paul said, "That I may know Him" (Phil. iii., 10), he certainly knew Him as Saviour and Lord, His wisdom and His righteousness but he longed to know Him better. 7. "And the Lord called Sam again, the third time. And Eli per-ceived that the Lord had called the child." The third time did Samuel rise and promptly go to Ell, believing that he called him. What unwearied obe-dience! What a blessed son! When he would tell his mother of his experience and how he had acted, how she would be! I think this is the instance of God speaking directly to a little boy, but all, young and old, may hear His voice in His written word (John vi., 63). 9. "If He call thee, say, Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth." Ell is by this time wide awake and also wide awake to the fact that the Lord has something to say, but not directly to him. It is probable that he remained awake till he heard the tidings, and then he would be more awake than ever. "Awake, thou that sleepest," is ever. "Awake, thou that sleepest," is a good word for many of us. It would be wise also to say, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth," whenever we open our Bibles, and it would also be appropriate to add the prayer in Ps.

10. "And the Lord came and stood and called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel!" This is the fourth time that He came and called, suggesting the question, How often has He called us? And have we as yet submissively said "Speak, for Thy servant heareth?"

The attitude of a servant is well described in these words: "Ready to do The attitude of a servant is well described in these words: "Ready to do whatever my lord, the king, shall appoint." "For any manner of service, wholly at Thy commandment" (II. Sam. xv., 15; I. Chron. xxvii, 21).

11, 14. "And the Lord said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel at which both the ears of everyone that heareth it shall tingle." And then follows the thing that He will do then follows the thing that He will do then follows the thing that He will do a judgment upon the house of Eli, as told to Eli by a man of God some time before and fully recorded in chapter ii., 27-36. Mercy always precedes judgment, for God is slow to anger and plenteous in mercy. He had given Eli fair warning, but Eli nored his sons above God (ii. 29). The law was very severe, but very plain concerning rebellious sons (Deut. xxi., 18-21), and the ruler who refused to see the law carried out because the transgressors happened to be his sons certainly thought more of his sons than of God. Only those can truly serve the Lord who serve Him in sincerity and in truth (Joshua xxiv., 14), or, as our Lord Jesus said, "He that loveth fother or rether loveth father or mother, son or daugh ter, more than Me, is not worthy of Me" (Math. x., 37). In the morning Eli-called Samuel and begged him to hide nothing from him that the Lord hath said, so Samuel told him every while and hid nothing. Eli certainl and hid nothing. Eli certainly answered in the right spirit, for he said, "It is the Lord, let Him do what seemeth Him good" (verse 18). He makes us think of Job, who, under his great affliction said: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord." It may be that the faithfulness of Samuel in this hard matter to Eli was a step on the way to his being established a the way to his being established a prophet (verse 20). See in chapter iv.,

THE STORY OF LIFE.

One of John Godfrey Saxe's Best Poems

Say, what is life? "Tis to be born A helpless babe to greet the light With a sharp wall, as if the morn Foretold a cloudy noon and night; To weep, to sleep and weep again, With sunny smiles between—and the

And then apace the infant grows And them apace the infant grows,
To be a laughing, sprightly boy,
Happy despite his little woes,
Were he but conscious of his joy!
To be, in short, from two to ten,
A merry, moody child—and then?

And then in coat and trousers cled, To learn to say the Decalogue, And break it, an unthinking lad, With mirth and mischief all agog! A truant oft by field or fen, And capture butterflies— and then?

And then, increased in strength and size
To be, anon, a youth full grown,
A hero in his mother's eyes, A young Apollo in his own; To imitate the ways of men In fashionable sin—and then?

And then, at last to be a man,
To fall in love, and woo, and wed!
With seething brain to scheme and plan
To gather gold or toil for bread;
To sue for fame with tongue and pen
And gain or lose the prize—and then?

And then, in grey and wrinkled eld To mourn the speed of life's decline: To praire the scenes of youth beheld, And dwell in memory of lang syne; To dream a while with darkened ken, To drop into his grave—and then?

Disappearance and Probable Death of the Queen.

Russia, the United States and Great Britain Land Troops.

Washington, Oct. 14.-Information of the formidable uprising in Corea, resulting in the disappearance and probable death of the queen, and the landing of military forces by the United States and European powers, has been received by Minister Kuring of Japan from the foreign office at Tokio. It is quite sensational, indicating the landing of marines by Russia the United States and probably Great Britain.

The latest despatch to Minister Kurino states that a force of Russian marines, forty in number, has been landed. Thus far they have confined themselves to guarding the Russian lega-

United States marines were landed from the Yorktown to the number of sixteen. It is believed also that British marines have been landed. Besider these, the Japanese have a consider able force of soldiers at Seoul, who have been preserving order. The despatches come from Tokio and com municate the substance of despatches received from General Muira, the Japanese envoy at Seoul.

It appears in these despatches that the trouble had its inception through the queen's dislike of the newly organ ized soldiery of Cores. The old soldiers had the primitive equipment of the far east, but with the progress of Japanese influence in Corea two battalions of Corean troops were rganized on modern methods. Each battalion numbered 600 men, armed with modern weapons. They were well The List of University Prizes for the drilled and officered.

The officials are inclined to believe, however, that the unofficial reports of the queen's death are true. The Japanese government, the despatch further states, has acted quickly on the reports and has appointed a commission to inquire into the facts. In the meantime it is emphatically denied that the queen's death, if it has occurred, was due to the Japanese. One report is that a apanese Soshi killed the queen. This is not yet confirmed in the despatches received here.

General Murias' report. also covers the work of the Japanese troops in preserving order. These troops are stationed opposite the palace, having secured this point of vantage some time since through the Corean govern-ment. They took no part in the attack on the palace, but if there had occurred, when the native troops were fleeing and the new battalions were enforcing their success in capturing the palace, the Japanese troops aided in preventing bloodshed and disorder.

DEATH OF AN AGED LADY.

A correspondent writes: The death of Mrs. John Magee occurred at Hampstead a short time ago. Deceased was a daughter of Claudius McCutcheon and was born in reland, in the county of Tyrone, in 1819. The family came to America in 1841 accompanied by her cousin, John Magee, then a young man. They were the first settlers and founders of Clones. In 1843. John Magee and Catherine McCutcheon were married.
They moved to New Ireland in 1870 and bought the farm belonging to David Dunham, where the husband and father grew sick of heart disease and dropsy and died at the age of 70 years. Mrs. Magee was the mother of ten children, five of whom survive her. They are William Magee of Vermont; Mrs. John Woods of Welsford; Mrs. Harry McCumbor of Boston; Mrs. Rolly Haynes also of Boston, and John Magee of Hampstead. She has two brothers still living, William and John McCutcheon, who are older than she. She had a tedious illness of five months, which she bore with Chris tian patience and resignation, and died at the advanced age of 76 years. Her grandmother died at the age of 115 years, her father at 84 and mother at 89. She had a large funeral. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Foster, the text being: "Let me die the death of the righteous, that Li my last end may be like His," the same being used at her father's funeral thirty-nine years ago.

According to intelligence from Girgenti, in Sicily, the village of Favara and neighborhood were surrounded on Aug 24 by gendarmes and police, who then proceeded to arrest 42 persons belonging to various societies affiliated to the Mafia. Prisoners are accused of murder and other acts of violence steamer New England of St. John line in 1868 when wrecked on the Wolves off Grand Manan. Capt. E. B. Winchester had the steamer New Brunswick on the same line for a number of years. He died in Chelsea a few years ago. Capt. Field still lives at an advanced age. They were the two oldest captains on the St.

John line steamers. In 1828 a great event happened in Portland harbor, when the steamer Patent of 100 tons arrived. The first steamer ever brought into Maine was bought in New York to run from Portland to Boston. She was owned by Capt. Seward Porter. He had placed in 1822 an old engine on a flat boat and run it to North Yarmouth, Maine. This craft he named the Kennebec. The people called her the Horned Hog. The Porters had a shipyard at Freeport, Maine, where they built vessels and the famous privateer Dash was built there for the war of 1812. Three of the Porter brothers were lost on board the privateer Dash when she went down in a snow storm off Portland and were never heard from. She was a famous craft in her day, as was also the privateer America, haling from Portland, Maine.

P. E. ISLAND.

Little York, Oct. 7.-Your I. D. Pearson is to visit the island again during the present month. Should he be able to take up unfinished work in this part of Queens county, his efforts will not be in vain. The Sun is becoming a favorite, as a weekly, in these quarters. News reach us through its pages which is never noticed by our island papers, perhaps from the fact there are so many live contributors sprung up from different points of the province.

Farmers are now getting out their potatoes and report a most excellent crop, and free from rot. Oats have not been as good a quality for years as that which have been recently harvested, although in many quarters the straw was short, but with the thousands of tons of old hay through the country there will be no want of fodder this year. One of the prominent merchants of Charlottetown told your correspondent a few weeks ago that he had endeavored to gather up facts to put together, in back form, for his private use, in reference to free trade. Said he, "I was a grit," but to my great astonishment came out fully persuaded to be a Mason was in the chair and was supported by his secre-tary, Rev. W. Lawson, and quite a number of temperance workers from all parts of the county. The general business which called the members together was despatched with accustomed promptness. Reports from various parts of the county were inspiring to all workers present. The operations mended, being as creditable to him as satisfactory to the alliance. Quite an amount of hard but successful work had been accomplished by Mr. Baers and his helpers-the alliance. W. C. T. U. and the lodges of I. O. G. T. The stipendiary. Blanchard, was also commended for the promptness and energy with which he has been doing his work of late. They, however, expressed by full discussion and resolu-tion their desire that second and third offence should be punished more vigorously. The temperance lodge in Montague is initiating new members every week and is doing very effective work in seen and unseen ways.

The Georgetown exhibition was the best in every way ever held in Kings county.. The exhibits were equal and in some instances superior to those at the Charlottetown exhibition. Lower Montague as usual carried off most of the prizes. The order was nearly perfect, rum only being sold by a few private individuals , who will be called to give an account of themselves in the proper place. The races also were very orderly, adding to the character of all the participants.

Stiperdiary Blanchard has just scored a number of victories over Scott act offenders in Souris. Sandford Eveleth (Mrs. Dixon), author of Dexie, has been visiting an old school-mate, Miss Rome, who had just returned from a visit to St. John. It is rumored another story is on the blocks and the author was looking up characters, and I don't doubt she found them quite easily.

STORAGE AND TRANSPORTATION.

John E. Boak, a well known Halifax gentleman, in a letter to the Chronicle, after noting the action of the maritime board of trade anent cold storage, says: 'It will be of interest to producers and dealers in every kind of perishable food product to know that an influential group, well versed in the province under such a system, have taken the matter seriously in hand with the view of establishing depot storage on the most approved system of mechanical refrigeration at collecting and shipping centres, and also of arranging with the railway companies for a proper system of insulated cars and with the steamships trading from our ports for mechanical refrigeration for the safe transport of the goods to the European, West Indian and other markets.

The object aimed at is a complete system of collecting, storage and transport from beginning to end, whereby producers and dealers will be able to handle any class of goods with safety as regards their condition, and by rendering this public service, to give an impetus to the rpoduction and the extension of production of many articles of the highest excellence, for which the maritime provinces are so justly famous, but which have to a large extent been only grown for local requirements, for want of the facilities now being arranged for to place these commodities on the export list.

The subject is of vital importance to the development of the Atlantic seaboard."

Amherst, Oct. 8.—The supreme court opened here this morning, Judge Townshend presiding. In his address to the grand jury he congratulated them on the absence of crime of a serious nature in Cumberland county, in fact there was a marked absence of it all over the province, which he thought was a good sign of prosperity among its residents. DURANT ON THE STAND.

He Made a Number of Answers Considered as Incriminating.

San Francisco, Cat., Oct. 10.-Under the rigid cross-examination of District Attorney Barnes today, Theodore Durant made a number of answers that are regarded as decidedly incriminating, inasmuch as they appear to be in direct conflict with established facts, and then changed his replies when he realized that he was on dangerous grounds. He gave ! an explanation of a clew regarding Blanche Lamont's disappearance said to have been received by him, that was so surprising that many in the court room coughed aloud. The stifling atmosphere of the overcrowded court room came to Durant's rescue and he was enabled to recover from his confusion during the short recess that followed. When he again came to the stand he remained calm during the most trying ordeals.

Two days before the body of the young woman was discovered Durant said, as he was standing at the corner of Market and Montgomery streets a stranger approached him and asked stranger then asked Durant if, in view of the fact that his name had been connected with the disappearance of the girl, if he would not like to find her. Durant replied that he would be overjoyed even to obtain a trace of the missing girl.

to create a panic by the statement that the net debt Canada has increased $100,000,000 or 70 per cent. in fifteen years. It does seem to be time that this increase in debt should stop, and it is understood to be the present policy of the federal government to bring it to an end.

But what would Sir Richard say of a provincial government which found a small province with assets of $300,-000 over the debt and in ten years created a debt of $1.700,000 above the assets? That is Nova Scotia under the Fielding government.

Or what would he say of a ministry which in ten years raised the net debt of a small province from $750,000 to $2,250,000, an increase of 800 per cent? That is the record of the present government of New Brunswick.

Or what would Sir Richard say of an administration of a western province which in seven years increased the gross debt from less than a quarter of a million to four and a half millions? That is the history of the Manitoba government under Sir Richard's friend, Mr. Greenway.

What would be his opinion of party which in a larger province in- between four and nve thousand dol creased the net debt from $5,500,000 to lars. It was insured for $2,000, but it $14,750,000 in the short space of five is reported Mr. Moran accepted $1,800 years? That is what Mr. Laurier's master, Mr. Mercler, accomplished in Quebec.

If Sir Richard's sadness is not deepened by the financial record of his own friends it is not economic sadness but political gloom.

THE FRENCH TREATY.

The French treaty will probably affect New Brunswick more than the other parts of Canada, as this province is a large exporter of spruce lumber of various kinds. The French preferential tariff, giving to Norway and Sweden favored nation terms. placed Canadian lumber at a great disadvantage compared with that shipped from Baltic ports. The result has been that shipments to France from the north shore of this where, to put in a winter's supply of province have been discontinued. By fuel during the summer months. There is a proposition on foot to extend Wellington and Church streets through the burned district to the old awdust hill street. There are no streets running east and west from Foundry but Water street. It is good time to lay out those streets in good shape, although to do it will be necessary, in some cases, to acquire building lots riom some of the late fire victims. It is proposed to close up Muirhead street and give it to the property owners in return for land taken in the extension of Wellington to Foundry street. It is also propsed to widen Foundry street, which can be done by moving back one house at the foot of it. In its present condition it is far too marrow for safety in case of fire.

Catholics here as elsewhere, he was glad to say, were a unit as to efficiency. Efficient teaching and proper inspection Manitoba Catholics would not now, nor did Archbishop Tache ever resist. They aimed at superiority in educ tion, not equality or inferiority. The refuse the settlement of the question on the false grounds of Catholic unwillingness to be reasonable, was very poor poltics on the part of the local authorities. The better judgment of Protestant Manitoba must reject in the end a policy so mischievous. Manitoba should hesitate before continuing a fratricidal fight here or inflicting one upon the rest of Canada. He hoped the question would be settled amicably at once, and all work together for Canadian peace and unity. The sermon made a good impression

COLLISION ON THE RIVER.

The Tug Nereld and Steamer Hampstead Come Together.

Both Boats Damaged-A Rigid Investigation Ought to be Held.

(From The Daily Sun. Oct. 14th.) A collision occurred near John O. Vanwart's on the St. John river on Saturday evening which might have resulted in the loss of a number of lives. The tug Nereid, commanded by Capt. Samuel Price, was on her way down from Fredericton, and the other boat, the passenger and freight steamer Hampstead. Capt. Mabee, was making her usual trip from Indiantown to Hampstead. The accident occurred shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening and came very near resulting in the sinking of both steamers. There are always two sides to a story. The Sun has only been able to that of the people who were on the Nereid, as she arrived at Indiantown late on Saturday night. The Hampstead is still up river, whether at the place where the accident oc-curred or at Hampstead the writer has been unable to ascertain. A Sun reporter called at Captain

Price's house last night and was given the following story relative to the tug at the time: The collision occurred about a quarter of a mile below John O. Vanwart's between 7 and 7.3 on Saturday night. We on the Nereid aw the Hampstead approaching us when she was a quarter of a mile distant. She was at that time in the middle of the river. Her lights were burning and could be plainly seen. I right and found they were lighted. We kept to our own side of the river, the right hand, so as to show our port light to him. The Hampstead headed a little toward us and we kept closer to the shore. We went as close to the shore as we dared. When within two lengths of us the Hampstead's helm was put hard to starboard and she shot right in towards us. We did not have a chance to shift our course. We could not go any nearer the shore and it was impossible to go in the other direction, the steamer being so close upon us. We struck her on the starboard side, near the forward The injury was gangway. THE RIVER COLLISION.

The Hampsterd was to Blame-The Steamer Arrives at Indiantown.

(From The Daily Sun, Oct. 15th.) Steamer Hampstead, which was in collision with the tug Nereid up river on Saturday night, arrived at Indiantown from Hampstead on the usual hour yesterday. She made temporary repairs near John O. Vanwart's, where the collision occurred, and then proceeded up river to her destination. Men were set to work on Sunday, and It was not long before the damaged planks had been removed and new down river yesterday all right, and all that now remains to be done is the renewing of some deck planks. Mr. Whelpley, the mate of the Hampstead, a man of many years experience, was at the wheel when the steamers came together. He says he did not see the Nereid's lights till the Hampstead was right on top of her. It was too late then to avoid the collision so he ran her in so as to make it as easy on her as possible. His move was a good one. There is no telling what might have been the result if the Nereid had struck her further astern. The Hampstead was close in shore he admits. This was hecause the boat had to make a stop at John O. Vanwarts. A Sun reporter endeavored to see Capt. Mabee, but was unable to get an all interview with him. Several gentlemen with whom Capt. Mabee conversed relative to the accident say he does not blame the Nereid at all. He says his own boat was at fault. He was aft when the boats met.

Now here is a good and intelligent woman, who nevertheless wandered for weary while in the wilderness of pain and illness, without knowing what was the matter with her. If she had found out two things ten years ago, she might have been well in a month. As it was, she suffered from 1882 to 1892. What an outrage!

In plain English, this is her story, told in her own words. If it sounds like so many others you have read, it is because her experience was the same. The following paragraph from a medical journal published on this contidemands our serious attention. physicians of the world is derived from the treatment of females. Not once is the diagnosis correct; not once in fifty is the treatment successful to the patient." Why is it that the editor makes such statement in his editorial in regard to the sufferings of women? Because the spirit of the times affects them as much as it does the men-more, their nervous systems are more delicate and sensitive. There is a cause for every evil, and in the school room we can usually find the starting point of these headaches, backaches and womanly ills which are growing so alarmingly common. When the great change from childhood to womanhood is in progress, the girl is crowded pushed, overworked, to keep up with her studies. Add to this the severe anxiety and worry which attend examinations, and when the school life is over her health is seriously deranged. After school days what comes? Are not the duties of women as wearing as those of men? Even more. Social, household, often business cares, must be assumed, which all lend a hand in bringing those delicate nerves into an irritated, weakened, unstrung condition. Is it to be wondered at that network of nerves, are deranged, and that life becomes one long, dreary road of suffering, without an escape

Paine's Celery Compound, that great nedical discovery, should be used. Soon your nerves will be strong and vigorous, and the nutrition, digestion and specially womanly functions wil be natural and regular. Rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes, a beautiful figure, al the freshness and beauty of youth will follow the health-giving influence of Paine's Celery Compound you are nervous, weak, tired, cannot sleep, have headaches, or any of the nameless ills which so many suffer in silence, use Paine's Celery Compound, and it will restore to you

A Houlton, Me., man told the Sun yesterday that potatoes are selling at the starch factories for 50 and 75 cents a barrel. He says the crop in the state has not been as large for years but that the farmers will not make enough to pay for the trouble in raising them. There is not much rot.

Insurgent Leader Favors Peace Over Armed Revolution.

The British Steamer Alene Fired on by a Spanish Cruiser.

Strange Actions on the Part of the Spaniard to Both the Alene and a Norwegian Vessel.

Havana, Oct. 11.-Private letters received here from Veguita, district of Manzanillo, state that the insurgent leader, Rabi, has issued a manifsto to his followers, placing before them the advantages of peace over armed revolution

Ex-Queen Isabella, replying to the greeting with Captain General Mar-tinez de Campos, sent her upon her birthday, has sent him the following message:

"Thank you more than ever for your heartfelt congratulations. You are aware that I follow you with my heart, praying to God to protect you and give you victory.
"Your always loving friend,

"ISABELLA." Halifax, Oct. 11.-The mail steamer from Kingston, Jamaica, tonight brings an account of an incident during the voyage of the steamer Alene from New York to that port, from an American citizen who was a passenger on board the vessel. In part the American says: On Thursday morning, September 26th ,the steamer Alene, of the Atlas line, bound from New York to Kingston, Jamaica, was fired upon by Spanish gunboat while passing the eastern end of Cuba. The gunboat was a mile from the island when first seen, evidently lying in wait for vessels intending to land men and ammunition for Cuban revolutionists. The Alene was five miles northeast of Cape Maysi light house when the lookout announced the presence of the Spaniard on her starboard bow, a league or more away. The steamer kept on her regular course, it not being an unusual thing during the last few months to see gunboats cruising in that locality to intercept the landing of insurgents. She passed abreast of the gunboat some two miles distant by the latter, when slightly south of the light house the report of a cannon was heard and a cloud of smoke was seen issuing from the port bow

Captain Seiders, thinking it was nothing more than gun practice, kept on his course. After an interval of ten minutes, a second puff of smoke was seen followed by the report of a gun, each time coming from the port side. The captain knew it could not be practice, and recognizing that the aniard insisted upon his coming to, the Alene was at once put about and came to a full stop.

Previous to the first shot being fired the gunboat was apparently not mov ing, but Instantly started at half speed heading directly for the merchantman and fired a third shot at least ten minutes after the latter had swung around, with her bow towards him. This was without the slightest reason for Captain Seiders was prompt in observing the international regulations of the merchant marine, hoist ing his flag at the first gun discharged and turned his ship about immediately after the second gun, flying the sig-nal inquiring if he (the Spaniard) wanted to communicate or come on

Without replying or manifesting the slightest intention of recognizing the signals he continued steaming slowly on until a little over a mile away. then turning his bow to the starboard made for the headland, increasing to full speed, evidently disinclined come nearer or give any explanation of his action. Following the discharge of the third shot a portion of his crew could be plainly seen sitting in one of their boats that hung from the davits, ready to be lower with a boarding

While waiting either to be boarded or a signal to go ahead, a large steamer was seen approaching from the south. As she came up the Norwegian flag was seen flying at her staff. She passed well under the head lands, very near shore, and when nearing the gun boat dipped her flag in salute, which was totally ignored by the Spaniard, who was lying motionless and nearer to the shore. It was assumed from his actions he had seen the fruiter approaching at a distance, quickly changed his course from the Alene to back of the point of headland to watch if she landed any supplies or such were his intentions he was great ly mistaken, for the Norwegian made no attempt to stop, and when no attempt was made in acknowledgement of her signal, passed the gunboat at ful speed and was soon out of sight, going north. The actions of the Spanish commandwere not only unexplained, but highly discourteous to the Alene, as well as the fruiter. This is but one of the numerous instances that are occurring almost daily to the annoyance, not only of vessels of every nationality but quite often producing nervousness and fear on the part of their passe gers, especially among ladies on board for no one can forsee or imagine wha diabolical conduct or malicious persecutions the Spanish commander and his crew may be guilty of. It certainly behoves the British government under whose flag the Alene and other vessely of the Atlas line sail to insist upon a cessation of such intolerant interfer ence and annoyance in the future.

The appeals for clemency in the pre sent case are so earnest and come to me from such various and influential quarters, and the considerations which would invest the granting of clemency with satisfaction are so exceptionally strong that I regret the conclusion to which my sense of duty has forced

A thorough examination of the case has conclusively convinced me that a cold-blooded and cruel murder was committed by this convict and two others equally guilty. The fact that one of them has escaped final conviction and punishment is a failure of justice which ought not in such a case as this to operate to the advantage of those deservedly convicted and sentenced. Every ground upon which the creditable and humane appeals in behalf of the convict are based fails when subjected to the test of executive duty in its relation to the just administration of the criminal law and the safety and peace of society.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Shocked and Pleased in Turn by the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst.

wo Big Meetings Held, one in the Academy of Music and the Other in Plymouth Church.

(New York Sun.)

Two cities were spread before the Christian Endeavorers who gathered in Brooklyn at the tenth annual convention of the New York state con tian Endeavor union this week. The Endeavorers saw Brooklyn from the trolley cars in the afternoon, and they heard of New York from Dr. Park hurst in the evening. There were 6. 000 of them at the convention, and after they had crowded into the Academy of Music for the evening session at which Dr. Parkhurst made his address, more than 2,000 outsiders were turned away from the doors, notwithstanding the fact that another meeting of the convention was being held simultaneously in Plymouhth church. Dr. Parkhurst spoke at both meet ings, but at the Academy first.

Obviously the centre of interest to the up-town delegates who made up the body of the convention was the theological politician. All of them had heard much of him, few of them probably had ever heard him speak, and from the moment he took the plat-form they watched him with the critical and unwavering attention that the congregation of a severely orthodox old-fashioned church bestows upon the young candidate who is under suspicion of being unsettled in his convictions. Dr. Parkhurst was even more flery and forcible and, in his peculiar style, more eloquent than His address was filled with usual. bits of astringent humor which startled the stricter element and filled the youthful with joyousness. caused an old lady in a front row to ask in tones quite audible for yards around, coming as they did in a pause of the speech, "Do preachers of the gospel here make jokes in the pulpit?" Again when the speaker spoke of himself casually as having been accused of being in league with the devil, a gasp of horror at his levity rose from his audience, and surprise and grief were mingled when he declared that he knew people so holy that he wished they could exchange a little of their holiness for common sense.

But whatever emotions the doctor aroused, he succeeded in holding his audience and, before he was thro in dominating them for the time being completely. Afterward many criticisms were heard, one of them from a minister in one of the smaller cities expressing the feelings of many: "It was a fine speech, but it wasn't the word of God.' The subject for the evening session was Christian Citizenship, and Dr. Parkhurst's address was on that subject. He plunged directly into his subject. "Christian Endeavorers are not politicians," said he, "and this society is not a political organization. I'm glad it isn't. We have too many political organizations across the river now, and I wish you could kill off a few. But the time is here when Christians must make a stand in polwon the victory in New and will deal out doses of paralysis Caraquet has a number of dwelling until Tammany, the striped beast, houses and other buildings in course lies dead beyond the hope of resuscitation. If we want to be sceptic, we must aim our arrows at some old reprobate whose sins have been expiated upon until he has come to stand for a type. In following this rule, enough is said of the wicked politicians of 3,000 years ago to drive them into the East River, if they were here now. It is a bit suggestive of cowardice to hammer antediluvians for their shortcomings and to let alone those who are equalling them in painstaking wickedness today. It suggests that the preachers are setting up targets so far away that their shall prick up no libel suits."

the concentrated bitternes which gives to Dr. Parkhurst's sneech its chief power was in his voice by this time, and he was speaking rapid-ly and with considerable excitement, evidently oblivious of the feelings of his audience. And their faces made up a study in emotions. Both the sentiments and the peculiarly unclerical language in which they were occasionally expressed had bewildered them at first. Then other sentiments made themselves felt, and doubt, enalarm, shock, acquiescence, amuse ment, regret, protest, and animosity everything but indifference-were porrayed in unmistakable limning in rows of upturned, eager faces. From time to time there was applause, un til the speaker paused and said

"I thank you, friends, but in only interrupts me."

Then a dead silence supervened until the end, save when an occasiona turn of speech or thought striking or starting beyond the general run sen

"After four years of experience," continued the speaker, "I believe that the tide of political misrule can be turned only by God's people fighting with all their might with the spirit of God animating them. One cheer ing fact is that we have 300,000 Christian Endeavorers to whom religion means not only going into a closet to pray, but coming out to fight, and to fight not only the individual devils, but the combination devil that poisons

Now. I am not a pessimist. Pessim ism is either atheism or biliousness But, fankly, the nomination today is a trying one, and the deeper you get into it the worse it looks. The trouble

There's a directness about it that lets you know where you are at. (Laughte itant kind.) That's why I like Dick Croker. That's why I used to be so fond of Paddy Divver and Tom Grady and other legal lights of our great city. I know just where to find them. I can rely on them. No Hyde-Jekyll busilarly municipal politics, are posses of the devil, a devil who cannot there. No odor of decency or tale of respectability to make them hard to deal with (Laughter and an air of relief as the Endeavorers began to rea lize what was meant.) But when you come to deal with people who are fifty per cent. imp and fifty per cent. angel of light you get to the point where the public intelligence becomes muddled and you begin to wish that all were thoroughbreds one way or the other.

"My platform is that a civic move ment to be a power for good must be religiously inspired. That was what won the battle last year. If we don't whip them this year it will be because the campaign is not laid down on Biblical lines-I wrote this down today, and I've considered it carefully-but lines of political strategy. The problem before us is the moral regen eration of our cities. If I could feel that at the end of fifty or even 100 years Brooklyn and New York will have attained to a settled character not a spasmodic one, of decency and dignity, such that no little revulsion of feeling could turn the whole thing topsy-turvy in one year, I would be happy, even though I knew that in two years the tiger would get loose on Manhattan Island and cover New York state with her litter of striped

Don't mix issues. This year in New York we have two issues. Tammany and excise. We could carry the city for the right cause on eithe issue alone. I doubt if we could do it with both. I have pleaded with beerloving Germans and saloon-denouncing prohibitionists to let the Sabbatarian issue go until we can down Tammany. (Murmurs of dissent.) The Illinois State Federation of Labor Says Debs Was Unjustly Treated.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 10.-At a meeting of the State Federation of Labor today a resolution was reported declaring that E. V. Debs was unjustly condemned to prison, having been sent there without trial by jury, and extending sympathy to him as far as the methods employed by Judge Woods had caused his incarceration, but "not endorsing the warfare being waged by Mr. Debs against trade unionism generally and various railroad brotherhoods in particular. calling upon him to "cease his unholy stab at the only means that can be used by the wage workers to better their condition."

This resolution drew out a hot discussion. Finally the resolution was adopted with the following substitute of the latter part of it: "And we express the hope that when Mr. Debs secures his liberty he will give his splendid efforts in upholding the trades union movement of America, because we believe that the solution of the great economical problems which we are pressing for solution cannot be had without the upholding along lines which respect the autonomy of each settlement of its own trade affairs." A report was adopted endorsing Prof. Bemis, late of Chicago university.

NOT YET SETTLED.

The Bathurst School Difficulty Hinges on the Division of Money.

There is a Prospect of Settlement This Week - Mr. Skinner's Statemeat.

There has been a lot of talk recently relative to the Bathurst school question. Some people have it tled, but it does not appear that a satisfactory arrangement has as yet een arrived at.

Chas. N. Skinner, Q. C., who spent a couple of days at Bathurst week, was seen by a Sun reporter last night. The information given the reporter by Mr. Skinner was substantially as follows: Soon after the last nearing in the matter, in August of the present year, it was intimated by ds on both sides that the matter could be settled. Geo. W. Fowler visited Bathurst about a month ago, and along with some others, met the representatives of the Roman Catholic party. Preliminary terms were arranged and it was felt that the settlement would be brought about in due time. Mr. Fowler being at gird youn armor on for a long and present engaged in the Kings county election, Mr. Skinner went up last week to ascertain if the arrangements 'Thy will be done.' To a Brooklynite could be carried out. When he got but one question, which was an inthe Star-Spanglide Banner, are both tricate one in the whole matter. in the terms of settlement it was proposed that the money paid in by the Roman Catholics and Protestants should be run into separate accounts that the Protestants should have the selection of one trustee and the Roman Catholics two, the latter being in the majority. The Roman Catholic trustees were to control the Catholic schools taught in the convent by the Sisters of Charity and the Protestants the public schools taught below the Grammar school. The Gramman school itself was to be controlled by the three trustees jointly.

It was taken for granted that the Catholic children below the Gran school would find their way to the convent and the Protestants to the school controlled by their trustee. It was seen that there might be a surplus of funds, either of Roman Catholic or Protestant money after all the expenses had been paid. It was on this point that they split, The Protestants wanted whatever money there was left from their departments returned to the ratepayers, or put in such shape that it would not go into the hands of the people who controlled the Catholic schools. The Roman Catholics wanted the surplus of money contributed by either party to go to the general account for next year's

The two parties could not agree on this question. Since his return to St John Mr. Skinner has received a telegram stating that the prospect of a settlement being reached this week is good. Mr. Skinner says this is not a political move. If it is he is not aware James Kelly, the grand master of the Orange association, was in Bathurst while Mr. Skinner was there, but the latter says Mr. Kelly happened to be there on a business trip

HOW DO YOU SLEEP?

A French Doctor Says Your Head Should be Lower Than Your Feet.

Another iconoclast! The rampant re former of the day has now invaded bedrooms. The orthodox fashion of making up the beds so as to gently slope toward the feet and having a good-sized pillow or two under head is all wrong. A prominent French doctor, M. Vilheim Fischer, is responsible for this statement. He as erts that after a long series of ex periments he has proved conclusively that to sleep in a bed prepared in the old-fashioned way is simply to induce ailments of all kinds. He advocates a complete reversal of things. You "Castoria is so well adapted to children that

New York, Oct. 11.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say: Only a fair, active business is reported from Toronto, but the outlook is promising. There is a fair demand for dry goods, groceries and hardware at Montreal and farm produce in the province of Quebec is moving more rapidly. At Quebec city the shoe trade is quiet and dry goods jobbers report business slow. Some improvement is reported from Newfoundland, but this is offset by the low price of codfish, the catch having been very heavy. The potato crop on Prince Edward Island is of exceptionally good quality, but the demand has fallen off. The total bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax amount to $22,460,000 this week, ten per cent. more than last week, about four per cent. more than in the like week one year ago, 16 per cent. more than in the corresponding week two years ago, and four per cent. than three years ago. The total number of failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week is 54, as compared with 27 last week, 37 in the week a year ago and 32 and 36 in the years of 1893 and 1892. R. G. Dun and company's Weekly Review of Trade, which issues tomorrow, will say: The price barometer gives indications that are not entirely favorable. Cotton goods go up with increasing evidence that the crop of cotton is short. Prices of other manufactured products, of wool, hides and leather, all show some decline, against abatement in new orders being the principal cause, with an immense volin the largest month of the exceptional year of 1892, and with evidence that several important branches the volume has surpassed that of any previous year, there is a growing uncer tainty about the near future of industries. ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE.

Students Entertained at Dorchester by Mrs. Landry.

The Poets and Orators for Commencement

Exercises. St. Joseph's College, Oct. 11.-Yesterday being the thirty-first anniver-sary of the founding of the college, a full holiday was granted to the students. It was without doubt the most enjoyable day of the present About eighty of the boys went to Dorchester and visited the penitentiary. They were afterwards royally entertained at lunch by Mrs. P. A. Landry. The students speak in the most glowing terms of their hostess, and say they never spent a pleasanter afternoon. Before leaving the lawn, where the impromptu pic nic was held, Walter Ryan, on behalf of the students, warmly thanked Mrs. Landry for her courtesy, and the boys emphasized his remarks by three vigorous cheers for that most charming lady.

At a well attended meeting of the Alumni association last evening, there were present representatives from St. John, Halifax, Charlottetown, Monc-Shediac, Dorchester, etc., etc. While the political campaign now in progress probably prevented a number of active members from leaving their homes at this date, the meeting proved a thoroughly successful one from every standpoint.

The election of the poets and orators for the next annual commencement exercises (in June, 1896) was the $3.25 to $3.50.

D., St. John. On hearing the report of the treasurer on the Lefebvre memorial fund, the meeting authorized the executive committee of the association to proceed at once to the selection of plans for the proposed hall, and to utilize the funds on in laying the foundation of the building, securing the material for 'he superstructure, etc. The work will probably be begun at an early date. In the absence of the president, Judge Landry, who is holding court at St. Andrews, Vice-president Poiries filled the chair during the evening.

THE CHATHAM FIRE.

A Total of Seventy-four Buildings of all Kinds Lost in the Conflagration.

There are People in Want and St. John Will be Asked for Assistance.

Chatham, Oct. 11.-The embers of yesterday's sixty thousand dollar blaze are still smouldering notwithstanding that the fire engine was throwing water on them all last night. The loss of property put at its lowest estimate is sixty thousand dollars. The insurance on the property destroyed in round numbers amounts to $17,725. Seventy-four buildings in all were de stroyed and ten acres of the town were swept out. Thirty six of the total number destroyed were dwelling houses, which were occupied by fiftyfour families, twenty-one were barns, six were buildings belonging to the Gi'llespie foundry, and the remaining eight belonged to Robinson's carriage and sleigh works.

Many pitiful scenes were witness today on the site of the fire. Men were bemoaning their loss, while women and children wept bitter, sorrowing tears for their homes which went up in smoke. To relieve the great distress existing among the majority of the unfortunate victims a public meeting was called this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Mas-onic hall. James F. Connors was called to the chair. Much discussion followed as to the ways and means of assisting the sufferers. The fact that seven widows were among the sufferers was brought out. A relief committee was appointed to see after the suf-ferers and a subscription list was opened. All present at the meeting sub-scribed, and Thos. D. TOADS IN TREES.

As considerable interest was caused by the statement published last week cotton brought over from last year, to the effect that a live toad had been found in the heart of an oak tree at Silsoe, the Belfordshire Times has taken the trouble to look up the records bearing on the question. authority on toads writes that he is willing to offer a silver medal to any one who can produce a toad or frog which has lived even ten years without food or air. Several experiments have been made to test the truth of the numerous strange accounts of the longevity of toads and frogs. A French naturalist enclosed three toads in closed box for eighteen months. At the end of that time one was dead and the remaining two moribund. Dr. Macartney buried a toad in a vessel covered with slate only a foot in the ground. At the end of a fortnight the creature seemed all right. He enclosed the same toad in an air-tight vessel and buried it. In a week the animal was dead and even much decaved. But the most decisive experiment was carried out by Dr. Buckland. He placed twelve toads separately in twelve holes made in blocks of soft limestone, and a like number of toads in twelve blocks of hard flinty sandstone. Each of the cells was covered with a plate of glass, over which a slate was placed, and each cover firm ly cemented to its own stone. These blocks with their inmates were buried 3 feet deep on November 26th, 1825. At the same time four toads were put into holes cut in the heart of an apple tree, each opening being securely blocked up. Four others were placed in a plaster of Paris bowl and completely covered with luting. The thirty-two reptiles were examined on December 10th, 1826. On that day every toad in the hard stones, all in the tree, two in the plaster of Paris, and all the small ones in the soft limestone were dead. The remaining two in the plaster were dying. Several in the previous stone were in good health and two had somewhat gained in weight. It was thought some water had filtered through the more porous stone, and insects had certainly penetrated into one cell. The surviving toads were placed in their respective cells for an other year, and at the end of that period all were dead. Thus not one toad out of thirty-two could live even for two years when deprived of air and food.

BOSTON LETTER.

Matrimonial Fever Keeping the Clergymen Very Busy.

No Political Bargains Disfigure Election Contests in the Old Bay State.

A Steady Trade Reported in all Kinds of Lum ber-The Fish Market, However Remains Quiet.

(From Our Own Correspondent.) Boston, Oct. 12.—This is the busy season of clergymen just now, owing to the wide prevalence of the matrimonial fever, which seems to be very contagious. The biggest event in the line of weddings, however, will occur in a few weeks, when the Duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt are married in New York city. The wedding will probably be one of the most costly that has occurred in this country for many years. The conquest of the duke may be set down as nother triumph for Americans, although some of them are not as appreciative, perhaps, as they should be. husetts is in the throes of an-Mas other election campaign, the only elecion which occurs this fall in New England. The A. P. A. issue is figuring largely, although it is not expected to change many votes. The republicans are carrying on their campaign on their past record and on the lines of protection. The democrats admit that their opponents will sweep everything, but are looking for a "moral that is, a reduction in the majority. Last year the republicans carried the state by 65,000 plurality, but it is safe to assume that the pl rality this year will be considerably reduced, as the normal figures are about 30,000. Campaigns are conducted her much the same as they are in New Brunswick, but there is this distinction, however; everyone here jumps into the fight, and while both sides call each other hard names, both accept the result gracefully, and there are comparatively no hard feelings after it is all over. There is another difference, which is very apparent. There are no political bagains between candidates of different parties or the party leaders themselves, and although there are upwards of three hundred elective offices to be filled, no one is allowed to take office without opposition. An election by acclamation in this state is a thing unheard of, although there is no written law against it. In districts where one party commands 90 per cent. of the registered vote, the opposing party is as sure to nominate a candidate as the sun is to shine, notwithstanding that a well rounded out political grave awaits him. This is explained in a measure by the fact that only a few elective offices require candidates to make a deposit to be forfelted, providing the candidate fails to secure the necessary one-third of the total number of votes cast. William Hobin, a carpenter, 49 years old, of West Bay, N. Samuel A. This week, however, it came to light that he had returned to Cape Breton. F. C. Perry, custom house clerk at the Yarmouth S. S. Co. wharf here has gone on a wedding tour through the Annapolis valley. Many street car men from Boston will attend the street railway men's convention which meets at Montreal next Tuesday. General conditions in the lumber market remain about the same, and a steady trade is reported in most kinds of wood. There is a slightly better demand for spruce, due to the approach of the end of the sawing season. Provincial cargoes are growing scarcer, and arrivals are dropping off day by day. Many of the car mills report having plenty of business on hand to keep them going for some time yet. Spruce matched boards and clapboards are still in good demand and priecs are well sustained. The shingle trade is not yet in a very healthy condition, although there is an improvement noticed over a few months ago. Eastern pine is 'un-changed and w'hout special feature.

The fish market is quiet, with the position of mackerel still firm. Recelpts of salt mackerel from provincial ports continue and prices are still retained at their high level. Salt mackerel in the wholesale trade is advancing this week, owing to light receipts and the fact that only a few more fish will be brought in from the provinces. Salt herring are dull and without feature. The codfish trade is active, but prices are not quite as high, due to large receipts. THE IMPORTANCE OF A LIVER.

housands Suffer Because the Liver is De ranged—South American Nervine is the Great Panacea of the Day for a Diseased Liver and all Stomach Troubles, Indiges tion, Dyspepsia, Nervousness and Genera

When a well known author wrote his book entitled, "Is Life Worth Living?" Mr. Punch, with shrewd, practical common-sense, replied to the query, That depends on the liver." And un doubtedly it is the case that when the liver is diseased untold troubles follow. Dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, nervousness and general debility are all species of stomach trouble that come from this source. The practical question is, "What are you going to do about it?" That great discovery of the century, South American Nervine, with ten thousand voices says, "I will cure." We might easily quote the words of well known Canadian citizens to fill this entire page. Let one or two suffice. Mr. John Boyer, banker of Kincardine, says: "I was very much troubled with indigestion, giving rise o those distressing feelings that can hardly be described in any language but that are so common to the dyspep tic. I tried South American Nervin and it cured me. I have no hesitation in recommending it to any person af fected with and stomach-trouble." Mr J. W. Dinwoodle of Campbellford, Ont. the large railroad contractor, says: "I keep South American Nervine ways in the house, and I do not hesi tate to say that it is the very best medicine I have ever taken, and most confidently recommend it to any one troubled with nervousness of ever form and the attendant of the liver and stomach that follow this weakness." Mrs. A. V. Galbraith of Shelburne. Ont., says: "South American Nervine cured me completely of indigestion. I nevr fail to recommend it to my friends." It is not an experiment with any one who used this great discovery. It has been tested and proven over and over again, with the one result, that it provides a certain cure.

Elgin, Oct. 10.-The annual exhibition of the Elgin Agricultural society was held on the grounds of the so ciety yesterday, and was largely attended. The people this season were favored with a fine day, and the re sult was that a much better display in the different classes (except live stock) was made. The show of horses was about as good as on former years, and in some of the classes of colts several very fine animals were shown. The exhibit of cattle and sheep was smaller than in the past, some of the thoroughbreds being much admired. The show in the hall was the bes seen for years, that of grain and roots being very large. A creditable show of potatoes was made by G. M. Killam, which consisted of 20 varieties of the latest production of the seedsmen. In the class of domestic manufacture there was a fine show of butter, 15 entries being made, and all pronounced by the judges a very choice lot. The number of exhibits in the differnt classes were: Horses, 48; cattle, 46; sheep, 17; grain, 55; roots and fruits, 168; domestic manufacture, 62; which totalled 396.

We spent a week in the village, during which Dr. Underwood dedicated the church and baptized ten women and nine men who were converted under the ministration of Mr. McKenzie, and of whose sincerity and understanding of the step they took there is no doubt. All who applied for baptism were not accepted as yet, however. The Christian community at Sorali is a bright spot in this dark land. It is like letters of gold in frame of lead. Let us hope that the work started there will spread all over the country, as has so often happened under similar circumstances in other ship Garfield, from Liverpool, June 29, for Valparaiso, has been destroyed by fire at sea. All hands saved and landed at the port of destination." The Garfield has made many trips to this port. She was built of iron and steel by Harland & Wolf at Belfast or destination. The Garnett has made many trips to this port. She was built of iron and steel by Harland & Wolf at Belfast eighteen years ago. She registered 2,290 tons, was 300 feet in length and was owned by the Northwestern Shitpings company of Liverpool. She was under the command of Captain McIntyre. She had a crew of 38 men and was carrying a cargo of coal to South America.

Haiffax, N S, Oct 14—The schooner Snowdrift, bound to Baddeck from North Sydney with coal, is reported ashore at Bras d'Or.

The schooner Valena, from P E Island to Boston or Heilffax with a cargo of produce is reported a total loss at Whitehead. She is a vessel of one hundred tons, only built this year. She is insured in the Nova Scotia for $1,300, and in Kenny's agency for $1,500. Her cargo is insured at Charlottetown.

The brigantine Gertrude, before reported abandoned, was finsured for $7,000, $4,000 with J F Kenny and $3,000 in the Nova Scotia Marime. The steamer which took the crew off was a Warren Line boat. The position of the Gertrude was in sight of land and she had been abandoned less than twenty-four hours from $1 Johns. She did not appear to be waterlogged and $t is thought she may be picked up by some passing vessel.

Capt. Bisset of the dominion government steamer Lansdowne reports that on the 11th, at 10 a m, while on his way to Sable Island, saw the Gloucester fishing schooner Aroostook about 30 miles SE of Beaver Island in $4 fathoans of water, with a signal of distress. He bore away for her, and the captain reported his anchor was foul of the cable and wanted assistance to get clear. Captain Bissett old him he had better cut his hawser and not damage the cable.

DRIFTED AWAY TO HIS DEATH.

Horrible Sufferings of Capt. Peter Powers.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 11-Information has just been received at Blue Hill giving the particulars of the horrible death of Captain Peter Powers, who lived near that town, and was widely known in Hancock county. Capt. Powers drifted in a small boat from the coast of Maine way down to Nova Scotia, and endured fearful suf-The information is given in a etter which has ust been received from the man in whose house Capt. Powers died, near Digby, N. S. 'This man found Capt. Powers on the seashore about two rods away from his wreckwater, to which he had crawled to and cared for him until he died, nearly a week later.

During all of that time he had his senses, but was unable to make himself very clearly understood. The following story was all he was able to tell:

He had started alone in his boat from Blue Hill for his home on Long Island. Before reaching there, the fog became thick, and he was obliged to steer by compass, which was out of order, and this caused him to pass by the island without making it. He was then at sea, lost in the fog.

That night there was a heavy squall, and his boat partly filled with water and began to leak. He bailed for 24 hours before freeing the boat and was then too much fatigued to manage her.

All of his provisions were lost at the time of the squall, and he drifted for His sufferings, caused by thirst, to-gether with such long exposure and the anxiety of mind, were too much for one of his age to recover from. His remains were sent to Deer Isle, his native place, and buried among graves of his people. He was about 84 years of age, a good-natured soul, and much liked by the many people who knew him. He was an intelligent man, and had been well off during the most of his life, but of late years had been somewhat reduced in circumstances.

His grandfather was the first set-
