LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Plenty of fish reported in Bocbec and Upper L'Etang.

Mrs. Menzies fell from the steps of the Alms house, Sunday, and was seriously injured.

The granite cutters and manufacturers met on Monday evening, when an effort was made to adjust existing differences. So far as can be learned no settlement was reached.

There is little improvement in the sardine packing business, the supply of fish being comparatively small. Line fish continue plentiful, however and the number engaged in this industry is large. --Eastport Citizen.

July 4th, Steamer Viking will leave Black's Harbor for St. Stephen, 6 a. m., calling at regular landings. Returning, leave St. Stephen at 5.30 p. m. (Atlantic) instead of at 2.30 p. m. as previously announced. Grand celebration at Calais Maine. Fare, 50c. for Round Trip from all points.

Sunday evening Mr. John Dow from Horton Academy delivered an interesting address from the Baptist pulpit in the absence of the pastor. This young man gives promise of a successful career as a preacher, and has the good wishes of his many friends.

Excellent music was given at the evening service by a male quartet viz. J. Williamson, J. Dow, R. V. and H. Dow.

The body of Capt. H. T. Whelpley was brought to the city from St. George on Saturday evening and was met at the depot by a number of the relatives and friends of the deceased and conveyed to the family residence, 48 Victoria street. A funeral service was held last night at the house by Rev. Neil J. McLaughlin. The casket will be taken on the steamer Victoria this morning to Williams' wharf near the Cedars where interment will take place. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent to the house yesterday. --Telegraph Monday.

The Flag in the North

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's defence of the despatch of Capt. Bernier to the Arctic Ocean, is quite convincing. It is necessary that Canada should assert her dominion over the islands of the northern seas, for as the Premier observes, possession is nine points of the law. It is characteristic of our ambitious neighbors to the south that they have issued a map showing these northern islands under American names. These neighbors are nothing if not aggressive, and we must always be on the alert to guard our interests. The territories in question may never be valuable as areas for settlement, but they are said to contain valuable coal deposits, which may be useful some day. Nothing should be omitted in the way of marking Canada's sovereignty of the north.

LOST

Friday night between Lockup and Frauley's stable, a heavy black knee robe--reverse side grey. Finder will be rewarded by leaving at Greetings office.

CARD

I wish to thank my friends for the many acts of kindness and sympathy extended me in my affliction. CHAS. MOORE.

If the old member does not feel as if he can afford these new rates he may still pay the former rate, but the amount of his policy will be proportionately reduced. This reduction will vary according to the age of entry. On the ordinary $1,000 policy, the future amounts under this option will be as follows:

Age of entry, 18, reduced to $789; 19, $782; 20, $775; 21, $768; 22, $762; 23, $756; 24, $753; 25, $751; 26, $694; 27, $676; 28, $660; 29, $645; 30, $632; 31, $619; 32, $607; 33, $595; 34, $576; 35, $565; 36, $556; 37, $547; 38, $538; 39, $531; 40, $536; 41, $540; 42, $543; 43, $573; 44, $600; 45, $625; 46, $642; 47, $690; 48, $760; 49, $815; 50, $862; 51, $839; 52, $818; 53, $792; 64, $769.

If the member does not care to accept either of these propositions, he has yet another alternative. He may from month to month borrow the difference between the old rate and the new. He will be charged at a rate of four per cent. for this loan, and it will be in the nature of a lien on his policy.

End of the World Set for October

According to All the Holy Ghosts Are Preparing to Migrate to Jerusalem. SHILOH, Mo., June 20--"Elijah!" Frank W. Sandford, founder of the Holy Ghost and U.S. Society, is ill and destitute at his headquarters in the Holy Land, and a cablegram has been received from him asking for aid. Mrs. Sandford also is reported to be in feeble health. "Moses" Charles E. Holland, who is in charge at Shiloh, is preparing to sail on the yacht Kingdom with money and supplies to relieve them. It was announced in the chapel this week that a message had been received from Sandford saying that the world will come to an end in October, and Holland is now negotiating with a New yacht two discarded vessels to be used to transport the colony to Jerusalem before October. On orders from Sandford all the Shilohites, men, women and children are learning to swim. The men in charge of Elder Tupper take a plunge every day at 6 a. m. while the women in charge of Elder Hatch, take their bath in the Androscooggin River each day at 10.30 a. m. There is much sickness and insanity at Shiloh. Only last week a Mrs. Shaw, who came here from New York several years ago, was sent to an insane asylum at Augusta.

The Wisdom of Diaz

President Diaz, of Mexico, dares opposition to public opinion in protesting against the proposed mining law which puts a ban on foreign ownership of Mexican mining properties. A wave of popular prejudice against Americans is responsible for the new idea, but President Diaz' patriotism is broad enough to realize that this application of the principle of "Mexico for Mexicans" is not sound. Some people, other than Mexicans, shy at the suggestion of wooing foreign capital. There is an idea, occasionally met, that a community or a State or a Nation can exist for itself alone, and that it is all sufficient interests is repelled as intervention or interference. The nation guards its own even if obliged to wrap its possessions in a napkin and to hide them, and it calls such a sentiment patriotism. The wise old dictator of Mexico knows better. He knows that Mexico can best be preserved for the Mexicans by inviting the world to aid in the development of the resources of the country if it will. --Boston Herald.

A Tree Worth Talking About

A giant white pine tree was cut in Pennsylvania recently, which produced the following number and length of logs: twelve sixteen foot logs, two fourteen foot logs, eight twelve foot logs, three ten foot logs and six eight foot logs, and the whole bunch scaled the magnificent total of 10,800 feet board measure. The butt log measured five feet in diameter at the small end. The tree was not 398 feet high, as it would seem from the figures, but had two forks and three branches of immense size, hence the large number of logs. The tree was cut down during the deepest snow of the last winter, and hence it was not much broken because the snow cleaned the fall.

The Governor-General

It is perhaps not too much to say that Earl Grey fills the office of the Governor-General more acceptably to the Canadian people than any other Vice-Regent of the Sovereign since Lord Dufferin. He has the faculty of serving the larger interests of the country without coming into conflict with its political machinery. His public deliverances strike a high note of nationalism and imperialism. They always reflect a keen appreciation of the country's material possibilities and set before the people the ideals of true patriotism. His imagination being of the true Elizabethan mould, unfolds a mighty destiny for the British Empire, and for Canada as a self-governing British State. Perhaps he looks forward, and some others do, to a time when the Dominion through increase of population and wealth, will become the dominant State within the imperial circle. A close friend of the late Cecil Rhodes, he shares the dreams of the colossus who painted South Africa red, and bequeathed his fortune to the consolidation of the Tonic races. But, like the Elizabethans, he does more than dream. He works for the fulfilment of his ideals. The scheme for the reclamation of the Quebec battlefields originated with Lord Grey, and it is fast drawing to a successful culmination. This is a task which makes for national consolidation, and one in which the representative of the King does the country good service. --Toronto News.

FATAL ACCIDENT

A distressing accident occurred Friday morning when Capt. H. T. Whelpley of the schr. Ruth Robinson fell into the hold of that vessel a distance of seventeen feet, with fatal results. A few minutes previous to the accident Capt. Whelpley and the owner of the vessel, Capt. Thiel, were walking up and down the deck engaged in conversation. As the vessel was nearing the mouth of the river, Capt. Whelpley went forward to call the men, in order to let go the anchors. In some way, which will never be known, when returning, he went headlong into the hold. Captain Thiel at once gave the alarm and the unfortunate man was tenderly lifted and put aboard the gasoline launch, belonging to the vessel, and brought to town. He was taken to Boyd's hotel and Dr. Taylor summoned, who at once saw that he was terribly injured and could not live. He was made as comfortable as possible and lingered until nine o'clock in the evening when death relieved him of his sufferings. His wife arrived from St. John, having driven the whole distance, and was present when he breathed his last. His body was taken to St. John on Saturday's train. The deceased leaves a wife, four daughters and one son. Capt. Whelpley has made several trips here and was well and favorably known. Capt. Thiel speaks in the highest terms of him and is deeply grieved over his untimely end. Mrs. Thiel, her mother and sister, were on board the vessel and had arranged to go on a visit to St. John accompanied by Capt. Thiel, and the deceased was to take the vessel to Norwalk Ct., where she was to discharge her cargo of pulp. Mrs. Whelpley and family have the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community in their sudden bereavement.

OBITUARY

With feelings of deepest sorrow and regret we record the death of Mrs. Chas. Moore (nee Carrie Greason) which occurred at San Diego Cal. May 31st. The remains were brought here by Mr. Moore for interment, arriving June 16th. Mrs. Moore was the last member of the family who all succumbed to that dread disease consumption. Mrs. Moore will be well remembered by many of her schoolmates as warm-hearted, generous and of a jovial disposition, having a kind word for everybody. The memory of her splendid qualities will long endure. To Mr. Moore we extend our sympathy in his deep sorrow.

Production of Coal

The production of coal in the United States is increasing at a very rapid rate. The production of 1905 shows an increase of over 11 per cent. In quantity and 7 per cent. in value over that of the previous year. The total production amounted to 392,919,341 short tons, having a value at the mines of $476,756,963, and surpassing all previous records. Mr. Parker of the United States Geological Survey, in his annual report, says that a portion of the increase in production was due to the efforts of operating companies to provide a supply of fuel in anticipation of a suspension of mining in April, 1906, when the wage scale agreements came up for readjustment. In each decade the output of the United States has been practically doubled. The great increase in the iron industry naturally called for an increase in the production of coal. There are 625,714 men and boys employed in coal mines in the United States.

Great Demand for Men in Manitoba

Winnipeg, June 21.--Advices from the West are becoming much more optimistic in tone. Every one is agreed as to the wonderful harvest this year and the enormous demand for farm laborers. Provincial immigration agent Burke says 24,000 men and 5,000 women will be required to help in the harvest fields of Manitoba alone. He has situations now for 5,000 women and is able to place men faster than he gets them.

Potato Gum on Stamps.

Every time a person licks a United States postage stamp he gets a taste of sweet potato. The gum with which the stamps are backed is made from that succulent vegetable because Uncle Sam's lieutenants consider it the most harmless preparation of the sort.

All of the gum used on American postage stamps is mixed by the government and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where the stamps are made. It is spread on the sheets after the stamps have been printed.

The gum in a liquid form is forced up through pipes from the basement where it is made. These pipes lead to a series of machines consisting of rollers between which the sheets of stamps are fed one at a time.

A continuous fine stream of the liquid gum falls upon one of these rollers. The sheet with its wet coating of sweet potato mullage passes from the rollers into a long horizontal flue filled with hot air. When it emerges at the other end of the flue the gum is dry.

The government makes two kinds of postage stamp mullage. If one could see the package of stamps as they come to the postoffice ready to be sold one would find them labelled, according to season, "Summer Gum" or "Winter Gum." The former is much the harder of the two and was devised some years ago to keep the stamps from getting sticky in warm, moist weather.

While Uncle Sam tries to make the lot of the stamp licker as innocuous as possible he does not advise making a meal off his sweet potato gum. The whole process of gum making and applying is made as clear as possible, but there is yet another item to be considered.

A sheet of postage stamps is handled a good many times before it even leaves the bureau where it is made. If you must lick any of your stamps pick out those from the middle of the sheet. The corner ones have gone through the fingers of half a dozen or more counters, not to mention the perforators and the separators and the rest.

One of our young men asks us the following question:

"What do you think of a young lady while in the company of a dude masher, remarking of an old schoolmate of hers that he is a good boy, but tied to his old mother's apron strings, and is of no good on earth. Will not the boy come out ahead if he supports and cares for his mother? Come out ahead? Well, of course he will. A girl who would make such a remark is not worthy to blacken the shoes of a boy who is kind to his old mother. Such a girl has no more heart in her than a telly and is only fit—oh, she isn't fit for anything. She ought to be taken across the knee of her old mother until she thinks it is about the middle of August. The meanest men in the world are those who have allowed themselves to drift away from their mothers and forgot all about them. The best and bravest men in the world are those who have never been so proud as when doing something pleasant for the kind old mother. The most heartless thing in the world is for a person to make such a remark as that quoted above about a young man who is proud of his mother, and loves her so that a tear in her eye is like a drop of melted lead on his heart. The young man who heard of such a remark being made about his relations with his mother no doubt felt that he had rather not have heard of the remark, but it is lucky that he did. If he thought he had never seen any woman except his mother, no matter how close the relation between a mother and son, a day is liable to come when the son will find a girl that he will marry, and though he may not think less of his mother, he will not have quite so much time to devote to her, but if he is such a son as the one above mentioned, there will never be a day but he will think of something that can be done for his mother. His good wife, if she is good, will join him in anything that can make the mother who bore him happy. And a day will come when the mother will lay down her knitting, and take off her spectacles, and her burden of life will be laid down, and her last prayer will be for the son who has been joked by a fool girl for being tied to her apron strings, and she will close her eyes in death with the feeling that of all God's best gifts to a mother, a dutiful, loving son, is the greatest. Those sons who have followed the counsels of a loving mother, and who have, perchance, followed the remains of that mother to the grave and heard the cold clay rattle on her last resting place, and who have gone away from the scene with hearts bowed and broken, will never, in their choice for a partner for life, take one who has ever spoken unkindly of a son who is kind to his mother. No boy need ever be ashamed to be called his mother's boy, and no person with a soul to save will ever make trifling remarks on so sacred a matter as the love of a son for a good mother.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain spasmic Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerve, alone brought that success and gave to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. With-out that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and yellow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

The Race For Battleships

The report that the British Admiralty is planning to go us "one better" building a monster battleship of 21,000 tons within the next eighteen months is far from incredible. It illustrates the folly of this or any other country trying to surpass England in the race of naval power. Our own new ships of 20,000 tons are supposed to be better all-around

Too Much Slang is a bad Thing

If the slang of today is the correct speech of to-morrow, what language will our children speak a generation hence? Will it be the English of George Meredith or the English of George Ade? Shall we talk in the flowery hyperbole of the Bowers, with which our newspapers of today, and even our books, are filled, or must we be content with the speech that has satisfied many generations of our forefathers? As we saunter along in enjoyment of the invigorating spring air on a bright Sunday morning, whether we have been listening to the words of the preacher or merely taking our Sabbath pleasure in the open, shall we say to our children, "you kids hike along home," or shall we tell them, "run along, and we'll follow." Of course, it will be needless to express ourselves in such grandiloquent phrase as "Children journey home, and behave yourselves decorously for the youth of to-day would be ill-mannered enough to laugh at us therefore, but there is a happy mean between the vulgar and the stilted, and correct and informal speech will fall upon childhood's ears like the words of an unintended sermon.

As a matter of fact a little slang is an excellent thing, but in the present era of slang more than the smallest quantity is a great deal too much. The English language may fairly be said to be the most picturesque and most expressive in the world, and it does not need the verbiage of the slum, or even the catch-words and catch-phrases of the street, to add to its vigor and its variety. As a rule the use of slang is indicative more of paucity of thought and idea than of susceptibility to the humorous and the glib. If we tell our friend to "get onto his job," to "get onto himself," to "get busy," to "get a move on," or any one of a hundred other things, we certainly reveal our tendency to move with the tide of the hour, but at the same time we clearly show that we are more intimate than original. We speak slang frequently through sheer laziness. It was the last word in the mouth of a companion, and it becomes the next word in ours. It is echoed by the speaker, by the teacher, by the lecturer, by the writer, but with rare exceptions it never becomes anything but slang. After all, it is only the best of slang that survives, but even then we need not excuse ourselves for becoming proficient in its use. We should think of the present as well as the future. Why use slang when we can speak the speech of our heritage equally well? Why become the blind dealers of the blind?—Boston Transcript.

Twenty Frozen Near

The Equator

Berlin, June 12.—A remarkable disaster has overtaken the exploring expedition of Duke Adolf Friedrich of Mecklenburg, in the volcanic region in the extreme north-western corner of German East Africa. In the crater of Beana, one of the lower mountains, the party was overtaken by a terrible snow-storm, and twenty of the black contingent nearly half of the expedition, were frozen to death, about ninety miles south of the Equator. The particulars of the tragedy have come from Dar-es-Salaam in a letter written by E. Kirschtin, the geologist of the expedition. The report has the official endorsement of Duke Adolf Friedrich, who subscribed his name to it and it was written in his behalf during his illness. The expedition was organized to make a study of this largest area of active volcanic phenomena in Africa, and the earlier reports of progress have been most favorable. The report describes how, on March 5th, as the party was crossing a shallow swamp in the crater, "Suddenly, almost out of a clear sky, a severe hailstorm and a thick fog set in. In a few minutes the temperature fell to a freezing point. Then followed a heavy snowstorm, as fierce as any I ever saw, and I should not have thought such a storm was possible in tropical Africa if we had not met with this terrible experience. "In vain I urged my men to hasten. I knew that to be long in that ice cold water would be the death of us all. We could just see the trees standing on the crater edge where we were going and I knew that if we could reach them we could build a fire and save our men, who knew nothing of such cold and snow. "But the carriers were simply paralyzed with terror. They stopped in their tracks, threw down their loads, and would not budge. All my pleadings, commands and threats were thrown away. "We shall die," they kept screaming in chorus. "It was a terrible moment and we were at our wits end. At last a few of the men said they would go with us, and we took them and by two Askaris (caravan leaders) and started for the trees, shouting to the others to follow. Not a man who was left behind came after us. At length through the storm and cold water we reached the crater wall and struggled up to the trees. Here we soon kindled a blazing fire, left the porters who had come with us to keep it going, and the rest of us went back into the crater to secure whom we could. "Nearly all the men were speechless and none of them was able to move when we reached them. We carried two or three at a time, a man between two rescuers. In the course of two hours we brought a number of them to the fire, but at last we could do no more. The men out in the swamp had to be left to their fate and we spent the sleepless night by the camp fire. "At the first sign of day we were down in the crater again. We did not expect to find one of them alive, and great was our surprise when we saw signs of life in my Mayampara Selim. He is now in a fair way to live. "All the others, twenty in number, were dead in the sludge and the fingers of many of them were clenching the mud at the bottom of the swamp."

Temperance Arithmetic

Tom smokes 3 cigars, and his father smokes 5 each day, for which they pay 30 cents a dozen. His father drinks 3 glasses of beer a day at 5 cents a glass. Tom's mother buys three loaves of bread a day, at 5 cents a loaf, and 2 rolls of butter a week at 30 cents a roll; at the end of the year how much more do the cigars and beer cost than the bread and butter.

A teetotaler and a whisky drinker started on a journey, each with his own horse and buggy. The distance was 700 miles. The horses each traveled at the rate of 5 miles an hour. The teetotaler made the journey in 20 days. The drinker stopped three times a day at the saloons on the way for his drink, losing on an average 15 minutes each. How much longer did it take him to make the journey? If a man drinks a pint of ale two days, how many gallons will he drink 10 years? How much will it amount to 10 cents a quart?—White Ribbon Bazaar.

He Guessed It

A party of foreigners who are making a tour of United States called recently at the State Department and were received by Secretary Root. They had a very limited knowledge of English, and the conversation was conducted mostly in the sign language. Finally the spokesman of the party arose, and with a profound bow, said: "Mr. Secretary, we will not further crouch on your time." Secretary Root is known in Washington as the polite man. He did not crack a smile, but in diplomatic terms explained to his visitors that crouch was the proper English word to explain his meaning. "Ah," exclaimed the caller, with another bow, "I understand. Crouch am ze male and henrouch am ze female!" Mr. Root nodded his head. Further explanation seemed to be useless.—Washington Times.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC ELECTIONS

We have read carefully the pages of the papers representing both political parties and it is gratifying to see that both are well satisfied with the results.

The elections were looked upon as "feeling", and from the results we have forecasts of the future in Federal elections. In Ontario we have sweeping victories for the Conservatives, and in Quebec the same for the Liberals. Putting both together we have a majority for the Conservatives. From this fact the party prophesies the downfall of the Laurier administration.

Were the Dominion elections to be called at the earliest possible date, there would be some great surprises. The history of past contests reveal to us the fact that we can judge but little the results of a Federal contest, from those of a Provincial.

We may be poor prophets, but, place this prophesy in your note book and see if it be not a true one. "So long as Sir Wilfrid Laurier continues to lead the Liberal party, that party cannot be defeated." As a leader he has had no equal since the days of Sir John A. MacDonald.

When Sir John fell the party fell with him, there was no Bisha upon whom his cloak could fall, and today the Conservative party has no leader, and were it to come into power the question would be: "Who is there in the party to form a government?" Would we feel comfortable should the administration of affairs fall entirely into the hands of those forming the Conservative party as we find it today?

What has been said concerning Sir John A. may also be said concerning Sir Wilfrid. Should he fall out as leader of the Liberal party, then we would by no means be sanguine as to results. It has not been the first time that a party's life depended upon its leader. Fair minded men will recognize our position and see its strength.

The Conservative party can not be blamed if they take advantage of every weakness in the armor of their opponents, but the public should not be made to pay too dearly for experiments. Be sure there is an opening in the armor and then strike, but the public can not be expected to pay so dearly for suspicions, without protest.

Major Hodgins makes charges in regard to certain matters connected with the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, and from press and platform comes the cry "Graft." An opportunity is given him to prove the charges, and now he withdraws them. What does this mean? Only this—the people must pay the expense of an attempt to gain party advantage.

Obstruction is another such attempt, but oh! so expensive.

We appreciate the many kind things our friends, both Conservative and Liberal, are saying about us, and assure them that, whatever our party leanings may be, they will always find us ready to commend or condemn that which we may see in existing parties calling for either. Party leaning does not mean party blindness. Others in their party prejudices may be quick to charge us for any stand we may take. We cannot help this; they will always find us standing for that which we believe to be right, and we say again, we modestly accept the praise we have received from fair minded men of both parties. You will find us independent enough to stand for the trust and best.

Socialism—the dream of the poor and the paradise of the lazy—it will always have attractions for such as these. It flatters fools to preach to them the doctrine of equality; it naturally appeals to the poor to be told: "You have nothing; you are hungry and in want; your neighbor is wealthy and lives in luxury; all property is robbery; what he has you are entitled to go and take it." Were such a condition as Socialism conceivable or possible it could be only as the apotheosis of indolence and stupidity. Let the lazy work and there would be less poverty and fewer fools crying for the moon.

BY THE WAY

Haul gravel!

Meanwhile get out the tax bill and let joy be unconfined!

Our mosquitoes are the best in the country. Consoling!

The alderman who hasn't been asked what the sewer will cost, must be hiding.

Old people have faults, like children, but they have no mothers to forgive them.

It is not a favorable omen to see a man smoking a cob pipe while his wife milks the cow.

Don't worry. When we get water works the skies will have fallen and you won't mind.

The growing crops are feeling quite jolly about the weather conditions. No fear now of too many showers.

If you have a bitter pill to take gulp it down, don't chew it. So many people chew their pills, and oh how bitter.

The local government's long list of appointments continues to grow, and the lucky appointee gets to work like greased lightning.

Killing time at the cost of $27 per minute, without the slightest excuse, is pretty serious business. Messrs. Foster Fowler Bennett et al.

The population of the world is now estimated to be about 1,500,000,000. Of this number 150,000,000 are black, 600,000,000 are yellow, and 750,000,000 white.

Every public board should be organized free from partisanship, and based on broadest and highest principles, and do its work without distinction as to politics, religion or race and have at heart the interests of the town.

The handful of selfish politicians responsible for the farce being played at Ottawa have much to answer for, and unless we mistake the feeling of the people, all over Canada, a resounding rebuke will be dealt out to those "leaders" when the time arrives.

Not only has the cost of living increased but ideas have grown large as to what constitutes the necessities of life. Somewhere between the two extremes are the shoals of despondency and disaster upon which many a happy household becomes hopelessly stranded.

The fundamental branches of education—reading, writing, arithmetic and English composition are sometimes neglected in the public schools, owing to the amount of time given to other and unnecessary studies. Thoroughness in practical studies should not be sacrificed by too great a variety.

Mosquitoes always get there. In some places they may be less rapid, but they never lose the trick of being a nuisance. In this advanced era it is mortifying to acknowledge mankind's powerlessness to cope with an insect of the mosquito's size. It doesn't speak well for our wanted superiority to be "dome to death" by its ignominious bite.

The Bachelor and the Benedict were wending homeward their weary way. "Ah, you lucky married man!" sighed the Bachelor. "Think of having a hearthstone, a real home, a waiting welcome! Look—there is a light in the window for you!" "Gee! So there is!" muttered the Benedict. "Well, there's only one way out of that—let's go back to the club."

Disappointment kills many men. Sometimes it is called shock, and again pathology gives it a long-winded name, but the disappointment that must be endured in silence, that turns the knife in the wound, always ends by getting in its fine work. Then another "falls by the wayside," with the physician's certificate to assure the authorities that nothing so complex and subtle was the cause of death.

Conditions are such in St. George, at this time, that it will be well to recognize the fact that the people should do everything in their power to attract summer visitors. We have all the natural attractions that go to make this town one of the best and most inviting spots on the continent for the summer tourist. Like any other business, it requires some earnest work on behalf of those who have the welfare of the town at heart to bring about desired results. Greetings will stand for progress and improvement first, last and all the time, and we honestly believe that now is the time to make summer business paramount to everything else. With greatly improved railway facilities and contemplated improvements on the river and "basin" we are certainly in a position to make a bid for this business that will mean more to us financially, than any industry under present conditions.

A report reached town on Saturday that some person was dynamiting trout in Crazy lake. Fishery Inspector Marshall went at once to the lake, but found no evidence of work of this kind. A strict watch will be kept on this lake and others in the vicinity, and if such work is being carried on the guilty ones will suffer the full penalty of the law.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

J. W. Webster, Jeweller and Optician, arrived here yesterday and will be at his store for a few weeks.

Your interests and our interests are the same. We want you to come again for our custom clothes. We make them so that you will. Hanson Bros.

Some time ago Mr. H. V. Dewar had a large raft built at Crazy lake to be used for fishing purposes, and very generously left it in a convenient place for any person who visited the lake. The raft has disappeared and has probably been sunk by some greedy persons who have cheek enough to imagine they have a monopoly of all the fishing waters in this locality. It's a safe guess that the parties who used the dynamite also sunk the raft.

The Masonic convention held in St. Andrews, Thursday in which were represented all the Masonic lodges of Charlotte County, as well as McAdam, attracted nearly 200 men of the craft. The exercises included an exemplification of degree work in the Andraeco hall, a religious service in Greenock church, and a banquet in the Algonquin hotel, the visiting brethren being the guest of St. Mark's Lodge, St. Andrews.—Beacon.

It is the people who make an exhibition, and there is no doubt they have made up their minds to make the St. John show, this fall, the best ever held there. The prizes are larger and more complete, the preparations for, and the confidence in the success of the big event greater than ever before. The determination to please the people, to give them their money's worth, to ensure that the Exhibition shall be worthy of St. John, and but the forerunner of what can be done when the Dominion Exposition is held there is shown on every hand. Everyone should mark the dates, September 12th to 19th, well, and leave that much time to visit St. John and its attractions during show week.

Mr. John McMalkin, factory inspector returned last night from a visit of inspection to Musquash, Lepreau and St. George. Some improvements which the inspector had suggested have been made in every case. One improvement which the inspector said he considered a great improvement was the installation of a blower at the St. George pulp mill for the purpose of blowing the sawdust out of the mill, thus avoiding the necessity of having a man go into hazardous places to wheel it out. Mr. McMalkin said that Mr. J. A. Gregory is building a new portable mill on the Lepreau River. The new mill have a daily capacity of 25,000 feet of long lumber. The portable mill is being built near Mr. Gregory's stationary plant. Mr. Gregory has about 5,000,000 feet of logs to saw this year and is building the portable mill in order that he may be able to manufacture the entire quantity.

The Inglewood Pulp Company have begun the work of loading their crabs with blocks for the Mispeck mill which is about to begin operations.—Globe.

The following, from the Sun, will be of interest to Mr. Titus friends in Back Bay and L'Etete where he is present stationed. The Rev. gentleman is very popular among his people, and is enjoying his vacation by occasionally playing the game at which at one time he was one of the best. He has evidently lost none of his old time cleverness. The Marathons were once more victorious on the Victoria grounds last evening, when they defeated the Clippers to the tune of six to one. In fact if it had not been for an easy fumble by Chase in the last inning the Clippers would have been shut out and the most credit would have been due to George Titus, who pitched an excellent game for the winners. Titus has been out of the game for some time but last evening he had lots of speed and used the nice drop ball that he used a few years ago when he twirled for the Portlands. Mr. Titus is now, as he always was, a favorite with the fans and he has not lost any of his cleverness in America's national game. He had no less than six strikeouts in the seven innings and fielded his position well. He had, however, two errors, and those, it is fair to say, were caused by his slipping when fielding the ball, as he had no clumps on his shoes. The three assists he had in the game, however, were clever plays, and his many friends were happy to see him again on the diamond. It is exercise for him during his vacation and proves enjoyable. Mr. Titus' support was good throughout, and of the five hits made off him a couple were slow infield ones.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Royal Diplomacy

Mattie Mallison in Philadelphia Bulletin.

Karl the eldest son of the duke of Saxweinger, was in Carlsbad incognito, because his father had arranged a marriage with Princess Olga of Eisenberg. To the Crown Prince nothing could be more distasteful, for besides never having seen the Princess Olga she had the reputation of being possessed of the strongly marked features of the house of Eisenberg, which made her anything but a beauty. So he had gone off without leaving word at the castle as to his destination or the length of time he would be absent.

At Carlsbad he had a very dull time of it. Even if he had appeared in his true character no great consideration would have been shown him. As plain Herr von Steinberg he was nothing and what was worse he was a man with normal liver.

A man who has a normal liver has no right to live at Carlsbad. The inhabitants regarded him with suspicion and the doctors looked upon him as a fraud.

His presence there without drinking the waters is considered an insult to the place.

People are very unsociable at Carlsbad. They are all more or less thinking of their livers, for this is an absorbing subject.

At the end of a week the Crown Prince was more than sick of Carlsbad and had made up his mind to try his luck some where else, when a happy chance suddenly caused him to consider his determination.

It was the simplest thing in the world, but it changed every thing. He was in the Kur-Garden one morning looking at the long row of victims as they went up glass in hand to take their dose of the water. In front of him were two ladies, the one elderly, the other young. And the young lady was certainly handsome. If her features were a trifle marked, her complexion was so beautiful, her eyes were full of mischief, her hair so unconventional in its streaming wealth of gold, that the general effect was fascinating.

As he was making these observations, the shawl of the old lady suddenly slipped from her shoulders and fell at his feet. He stooped and picked it up.

"Permit me," he said, returning it to her, "you have dropped your shawl. The old lady bowed and smiled as she thanked him.

"May I get your water for you?" the crown prince asked eagerly.

"Thank you, but we have some one to do that for us. And what water do you drink?" she asked.

"Happily none."

The lady looked disappointed—people always are disappointed if you deceive them by being unnaturally well.

This was the beginning of a conversation in which it came out that the elderly lady was a Countess von Heisterbach, and the younger a Baroness von Busek. It also appeared that the baroness was the ward of the countess.

The chance acquaintance quite changed the crown prince's life at Carlsbad. It was no longer dull. Every day was delightful, and every day he met the charming baroness, and every day he fell more and more deeply in love with her. At last he could stand it no longer. He must declare his love. No doubt it was a very serious step; it would cost him his future throne, but love laughs at such trifles.

One day they were walking in the pine woods, when luckily the countess said she was tired. A seat was soon found for her and then the crown prince asked permission to take the baroness to a neighboring peak, where there was a delightful view. It was impossible to refuse his innocent request and the two were soon out of earshot of the old lady. In impassioned language he poured out the felling of his heart. He could see that he was not pleading in vain; the girl's heart was evidently touched. Great was his disappointment, therefore, when her answer came. "Alas, I am not free," the baroness sighed. "I have already been promised in marriage to another."

"And you consented?"

"I had no choice."

"This is infamy," the crown prince said.

What with his love and his rage he moved his arms so furiously that going between the countess and the sky line he caused that lady to take off her glasses and rub them with her handkerchief. She thought her eyes must be playing her some trick.

They walked on in silence for a few seconds. Then he suddenly turned round and faced his companion.

"Wilhelmina," he said, "we are both the captives of fate, for I too, am not allowed a free choice. But let us defy our choice, we love one another, that is enough."

"But what can we do?"

"I will tell you. We will elope. I know all about it. In Scotland there is no difficulty, you can get married there in a day almost without knowing it. We will go to Scotland and when we are married we can defy our relations."

"It is impossible," said the baroness sadly; "at least not in my position."

"Not your position!" replied the crown prince with an air of surprise.

"After all, your position is not as high as mine."

It was the girl's turn to look surprised.

The crown prince saw that he had committed himself and that he might as well tell the whole truth.

"I am not Herr von Steinberg," he said. "In confidence, I may tell you that I am here incognito."

"What?"

He looked around. There were now some trees between them and the old countess, so he gently passed his arm around the girl's waist.

"Yes, my love, I do not mind telling you; in fact, it is right that you should know it. But you must not betray me. I am the crown prince of Sax-Weiningen."

The girl disengaged herself from his arm and stared at him in blank astonishment.

"Impossible!" she exclaimed.

"So far from being impossible," replied the prince, "it is the simple fact."

"This is very perplexing," the baroness said.

"What is very perplexing?"

"Well, if there is one man whom I hated worse than any other it is the crown prince of Sax-Weiningen."

"What do you mean? You can't have known him or you would have recognized me."

"That is true, but he's the very man whom my relations have tried to force me to marry against my will."

"Then you are—"

"Princess Olga of Eisenberg."

It was the crown prince's turn to exclaim, "Impossible!"

Then they both fell a-thinking. It was a transformation scene in real life, and it had come with such suddenness that it took the speech out of both of them. Where was the historic nose, the nose of the baroness might be a trifle long, but what then there was nothing dreadful about it. On the contrary, it matched the other features to perfection, and the whole effect was charming.

"It is amazing," the prince said at last, "why you should be here incognito!"

"For my health," the princess answered. The court doctor suddenly prescribed Carlsbad water for me, so I was sent here in a great hurry with the countess as a chaperon. But really I feel quite well."

"You look it," said the prince, enthusiastically, "and do you still hate the Prince of Sax-Weiningen?"

The answer, though not given in words, was satisfactory to the prince.

"What an astonishing coincidence?" he said, as they walked on, forgetful of time and space. What an astonishing coincidence that you and I should both be here at the same time. But for that we might have hated each other forever. How astonished my father will be."

"But Karl's father took the matter very quietly. He was sitting alone with the not-marshal when his son's telegram reached him. "There, excellency," he said, handing the telegram to the marshal. "That affair is all right."

It was a famous idea of yours to give the hint you did to the court doctor at Eisenberg and the countess seems to have carried out her part of the programme very sensibly. The young people themselves appear to have no idea how it was managed."

"Love is blind, Serenissimus," the old courtier answered with a self-satisfied chuckle, "and diplomacy has still a certain value."

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather. Nerve and strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually see the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

To Young Married Folks

It is natural that a girl should wish to appear at her best before a man whom she loves. It is equally natural that a man should be careful to keep his shortcomings from the girl he is desirous of making his wife. He is thoughtful of her comfort, spends all his spare time in her company, will not see that she has any faults that his relatives point out to him, and is not exacting except as regards the amount of affection bestowed upon himself. The engaged girl is a person of importance, petted by her friends and indulged by her family. Her plans and wishes often have the first consideration. Little is required of her and much is yielded to her. Finally, after nothing but consideration for herself the wedding day comes, and with it a gradual change in the order of things. The husband is fond of his wife as the lover was of his betrothed, but she is his, and he is no longer anxious. He has duties and social obligations perhaps rather neglected during his courtship, which must be attended to. He does not show his affection so much and is not exacting; while the wife hitherto petted in her own home and her lover's one thought, imagines him changed and inattentive. No longer seeing him through rose-colored spectacles, she sees his failings and betrays her own. This beginning without any serious thought on either side, is often quite sufficient to lay the foundation of a thoroughly unhappy life.

Natural tact will do much, but it cannot supply the place of education. When a woman has learned to make a pudding she has learned but the smallest part of her duty. She needs to know how to sit at the table and dispense a hospitality so cordial and enlivening that the pudding shall be forgotten. There are a thousand women who can make a pudding where there is one who is mistress of her servants, of her children, of her husband, of her home, of her position. A woman who is all such a description implies one who must fit herself for it by cherishing great thoughts, and a noble appreciation of her responsibility. She must be mistress of a store of ideas and an exhaustive fund of general knowledge. The sphere of the woman is to preside over the home as its light and inspiration. No charms so captivating, no grace so irresistible, no spirits so exuberant, no wit so cheery, no conversation so fascinating no culture so varied but can find in the home a fit place for their varied charms.

Women's Period of Pain.

Regularity of the system can only be secured by maintaining strong healthy circulation. If feeble, run-down, nervous, be sure that circulation is poor. The natural result is congestion that exacts so severe a penalty. Besides being a food former and nerve tonic, Ferrozone adds additional vigor to the heart and ensures strong blood circulation. This is the only means of preventing congestions that cause pain, headache and nerve weakness. The whole system is renewed and fortified, with strength, vigor and endurance. For girls and women nothing equals Ferrozone, 50c. at all dealers.

The Newspaper of the Country Town

Every town of any pretensions whatever has at least one country paper, published at home and dealing principally with home affairs. Is that paper worthy of patronage? Should you place advertisements in it? Will it benefit you to secure its favor through advertisements in its pages? These are questions, says an exchange which many a country merchant has asked himself when approached by the solicitor.

When spread out beside the great city daily which comes on the train from the metropolis it may look small. The pages may be smaller and there are not so many of them; the wording or the reading matter may not be equal to that of the city paper. The people of a country community may read both the metropolitan and the local paper. They like to know what is going on in the great world. But the other paper holds for them a nearer interest. In it are chronicled the little homely details of their neighbors and themselves. It may not be so powerful, so large, so important to the world; it may not be so wise, so skilled in argumentation. But it is a chronicle of things at home and it holds a closer relation to the people of the village and countryside than the big city paper can ever obtain. This being the case, it behooves the country merchant to recognize the possibilities of the country paper. Your opinion of the city paper may not be the same as that of your best customer, but you do not find fault with one another about that; but the country paper is right with you, and when one espouses its cause it becomes more of a personal matter. It is a part of the town family. Now, what is the attitude of this paper toward your business? How does it stand on the matter of the parcel post, the catalogue house trade and similar matters of importance to you? Have you ever talked it over with the man at the head?

We believe that advertising is vital and that the merchant should use the means and instruments within his reach for his own benefit. The advertisement in your home paper serves a double purpose—it gives you the support of the paper in a business way and it brings your business to the attention of the people who may be customers of yours. The country paper is worthy of patronage. We have a vital interest in the prosperity of the merchant, and we believe that we are justifying in urging him to advertise in his home publication. Most merchants do, you may say, and that is true in a way but look through the country papers, as we do, week after week, and you will realize how few merchants, comparatively speaking, advertise with any vim or earnestness. They pay for two things and only take one of them. The publisher is willing that you should have both—why not take them then?

The Harvest of the Sea

In Scotland there are 10,544 fishing vessels, of the value of $4,117,549 including gear, and these landed 7,593,369 cwt. of fish, worth $2,971,593, thereby giving employment to 92,305 persons, of whom 38,856 were engaged as fishermen on the boats. The number of fishermen alone has increased since 1905 by 2,698, the total number of persons employed in the allied trades by 1,406. 1,542,764 barrels of herrings and 71,268 cwt. of other fish were exported in 1906 from Scotland alone. In England and Wales 1,167 more fishermen were employed in 1906 than in 1905, and 201 more fishing boats registered. Herrings exported from England were more valuable in 1906 than in the previous year by £56,326, the quantity caught being greater by 219,332 cwt. In 1907, however, whilst the quantity increased by 1,161,260 cwt., the prices realized fell off by £193,266. In Scotland the quantity for 1906 showed a smaller total catch by 362,949 barrels, though their value was greater by £306,083. Fish of all sorts landed in England and Wales during 1907 was worth £8,164,000 showing an increase over 1906 of £198,654, and over £661,255.—From The Engineering, London, England.

Taft and Sherman on The Republican Ticket

Chicago, June 19.—The vice-presidential programme had not been solved an hour before the assembling of the convention. The surface view still placed Congressman James S. Sherman in the front rank of candidates, but he was in serious danger of being caught by the undertow of expediency and of being swamped. The representations for portions of the west have been so strong against the New York candidate that not only the Taft leaders on the ground, but Secretary Taft himself has been appealed to prevent his nomination. The effort of Washington is to supplant Mr. Sherman with some candidate from the middle west. The task is not proving easy. It is difficult apparently almost impossible to find the right man. There would be no difficulty in concentrating upon Senator Doolivar but the attitude of his Iowa friends is so determined in opposition to his selection, that the Taft people have been forced to concede the probability of his definite withdrawal. Cummins has not been accepted, as in all respects a suitable substitute for him. The convention was called to order at 10.15.

The New York delegation marched into the hall bearing banners of representative Sherman and preceded by a band. Their entry aroused considerable enthusiasm. On the call of the roll of States for nominations being made, Delaware yielded to New York and Timothy Woodruff took the platform to nominate Sherman.

Speaker Cannon seconds Sherman's nomination. His appearance created great enthusiasm. It is understood that the Taft forces will support Sherman, thus ensuring his nomination probably on the first ballot. Convention Hall, Chicago, June 19.—Congressman James S. Sherman of New York, was nominated for vice president of the United States by the Republican national convention on the first ballot. The total vote was: Sherman 816, Murphy 77, Guild 75, Fairbanks, 1, Sheldon, Absent 1. The convention adjourned sine die at 11.47 a. m.

More Territory for Manitoba

Ottawa, June 9.—It is understood that the Government is considering the advisability of giving the Province of Manitoba a little larger addition to its area than was originally intended. Instead of extending the present eastern boundary north to the Churchill River and thence along the River northeasterly to Fort Churchill, as was announced by your correspondent yesterday, it may be found when the Bill comes down that the Province has been accorded even more liberal treatment. It has been strongly urged by the Manitoba Liberal members that the Province should get a larger share of the District of Keewatin and the Government is now rather disposed to accede to the request and give Manitoba a greater portion of the Hudson Bay Coast Line. The proposal now under consideration is to extend the present eastern boundary northward to the Nelson River and thence along the River northeasterly to Port Nelson, thus giving the Province the additional district from Fort Churchill southward to Port Nelson. The northern boundary of the Province will be formed by an extension eastward to Hudson Bay of the present northern boundary of the Saskatchewan.

Baby Clothes of a President

In the corner of the National museum, attached to Independence hall and under a neat glass case, there is a little suit of silk baby clothing that seems to attract much attention, especially from the women visitors. It includes a tiny cap, dress, waistband and handkerchiefs made, according to the card attached, "for the sixth president of the United States by the wife of the second." Mrs. John Quincy Adams, as her eldest son John Quincy Adams, was born in 1767 and the tiny suit was evidently worn only a few times in his earliest infancy, it is now more than 140 years old. As evidence of maternal love and care the many delicate cross stitches in colored silk are preserved with marvelous delicacy. They are sure to attract admiring remarks whenever a group of matrons or stylishly dressed younger women bend over the case.—Philadelphia Record.

President Roosevelt's Self-Reliance

Those persons who think they see in Mr. Roosevelt an alarming disposition to regulate other people's affairs will be interested to learn how early this tendency was manifested.

When Theodore was quite a little boy, his father told him that he was going on a long journey and admonished young Ted to be a good boy and take good care of his mother. That night in his prayers, the lad asked the Almighty to watch over his father, who was travelling far from home and to help him to be a good boy. Then he added: "As for mother, I will look after her myself."—Success.

Chauncey's Latest

"Ah, Mr. Depew, you're the very man I am looking for!" exultingly cried a feminine member of the Kankakee Tourist Association. "You must introduce me to the President."

"But I don't remember ever having met you, madam," protested the Senator, with hands uplifted in a deprecatory gesture.

"Don't remember me, Senator Depew?" exclaimed the lady. "Why I met you when you spoke at Amsterdam, New York."

"Ah!" mused Mr. Depew. "Amsterdam—m-m. Let me see, now. That was 46 years ago. Impossible; you were not born then."

And with a courtly bow Chauncey disappeared behind one of his broadest smiles.

A June bug nearly broke up a wedding in Ohio last week. The thing flew in the face of the bride and she screamed when she should have promised to obey. The groom made a swipe at the bug and landed on the best man. The minister had quite a time quieting the party before he could proceed with the ceremony.

It was not a "Teddy" bear, but a big black bear from the forest that went across the field where Alton and Fred Murray and Austin Munroe were at work Saturday morning. The bear was not looking for trouble, so after getting a drink at the spring started on the return trip across the field, but seeing trouble before him he took a short cut for the woods and climbed a tree but was brought down by Beryne Bradford. It was the largest bear seen in this vicinity for some time weighing more than three hundred pounds dressed.

Malden Speech in The House of Commons

Lord John Russell's maiden effort was so insignificant that the reporters ignored it altogether; Disraeli's was a fiasco; Addison only got four words out and then "sat down" ignominiously (this, however, was in the Irish House of Commons); Gladstone was so nervous that the reporters could not hear him; Lord Salisbury's speech was dismissed by Hansard in eighteen lines, and was quite ignored by subsequent speakers; Mr. Bert Hanson of Pennfield, called on friends in Letete Sunday.

The many friends of Neven McMann, are glad to hear he is recovering.

A Good Ad

Whether the expenditure on exhibitions in foreign countries is worth its cost to the Dominion is one thing. That it has given Canada a remarkable advertisement is another, and quite indisputable thing. At St. Louis, at Oskana at Liege, at Milan, at Glasgow, at Dublin Lord Salisbury's speech was invariably a centre attention, and millions of people received from these exhibits their first impressions of the vastness of the Dominion, and of the variety and value of its natural resources.—Montreal Star.
