DISTRICT AND GENERAL

Mrs. Samuel Oakes, Strathroy, died Sunday night, in her 77th year.

London will hold an old boys' reunion and summer carnival from August 5 to 11 next.

Approximately 50 per cent. of the 20,273 ballots cast at the North Essex election were marked by women electors.

Burglars secured $67.30 from the post office till at Oil City and $20 from the store till. The M.C.R. station was also entered but no money secured.

Strathroy town council has purchased a new fire team—a good pair of matched dark browns, mare and gelding, weighing about 1,300 pounds each—from Peter Carthy, of Metcalfe, for $400.

English emigrants to the U.S. numbered 1,973 the last week of February. Emigration statistics show more Britishers going to the United States than to all British colonies combined.

Fire visited the premises of Duncan Horne, Blenheim, twice within 24 hours. Friday afternoon his stable was burned to the ground, and Saturday morning the upper part of his home was badly damaged by fire.

The first lot of store cattle in 25 years has been shipped from Montreal to Britain where they will be finished. Cattle space from now to May 1 has practically all been bought up. The ocean rates on cattle are $20 a head.

The highway from London to Springbank park will hereafter be known as "Springbank Drive." For nearly half a century this road has been commonly known as the "Pipe Line road from the fact that the city water supply was piped along its route.

The Salvation Army is out with a new campaign to increase Canada's population through arming British youths throughout the Dominion. Early in May a shipload of these young immigrants will arrive at a Canadian port and 40 will come to London for distribution in Middlesex county.

Death came without warning to Dr. James S. Labelle, corner of Essex county and prominent Windsor physician. Stricken by heart failure as he drove his automobile along the street, the physician died with his hand on the steering wheel. The car plowed its way along the street for some distance, then jangled over a curb and came to a standstill against a tree. Dr. Labelle was dead when passersby ran over to see what had caused the car to leave the roadway.

The final competition in the oratorical contest for the township of Mosa for the Lethbridge medal was held at No. 9 school, Mosa, on Friday evening, when the medal was awarded to Allan McLean, whose subject was "Agriculture: Past, Present and Future." The spectators evidenced considerable enthusiasm at the various departments, and much valuable information was imparted by the expert in charge.

DEATH OF DONALD MCGREGOR

There passed away, after a short illness of pneumonia, at his home on the Mosa and Ekfrid townlines, on Sunday evening, March 18, a highly respected member of the community in the person of Donald McGregor.

Mr. McGregor was born 75 years ago on the farm on which he died, and had resided there practically all his life. He was a member of the Glencoe Presbyterian church and will be remembered by his many friends and neighbors as one of an exceptionally kind disposition. He was married 36 years ago to Annie McAlpine, of Dutton, who survives him. He leaves a family of one son, John, at home, and two daughters, Mrs. McAlpine and Mrs. McDonald, and three grandchildren, all of Grimsby. He also leaves five brothers and two sisters—Gregor, Alex., Angus, Duncan, Mrs. McCallum, all of the West, and Peter and Mrs. Carruthers, of Detroit.

Funeral services were held in Burns' church, Mosa, on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Paton, of Glencoe, assisted by Rev. Mr. Robertson. Interment was made in Kilmartin cemetery.

CAT CAUSES FIRE

Fire completely destroyed the barn of Thomas Pierce, of the fifth concession of Caradoc, early Saturday evening, with a loss of $8,000, partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Pierce went up into the hay-mow to throw down some hay, setting his lantern on a beam. When he turned to take it up again he noticed a strange cat sitting on the beam about three feet from the lantern. The cat, apparently frightened, tried to jump over the lantern, knocking it down in the small space between the hay and straw mows, where it exploded. Mr. Pierce was unable to get it out.

All the stock was saved, but the barn, 24x70 feet, with a lean-to and considerable hay, straw and grain, are a total loss.

Every Bell Telephone a Long Distance Station

A "Balloonic" Party

BY EMILY ROSE BURT

Just as the struggle with windy March melts into April foolishness, you may appropriately think of a "balloonic" party. Cut out little brown paper balloons, with the instructions, inscribed on a small white basket-shaped card, below:

In our balloon, in our balloon. We'll sail away up to the moon.—Balloonicists will say we are.—And stop at every windy star!

Decorate the rooms with toy balloons of all colors, to bob and bow cheerfully on long ticks and strings from every chair back and window pole. Everybody should be greeted at the door with a request to wear a balloonic grin during the evening.

Soon after folks have arrived, announce a balloonic "meat," and invite all adventurers to be ready at the naval balloon station for the start. This is the signal for everybody to gather at a certain spot and receive one of the gay balloons unattached to strings or sticks.

The next announcement is the altitude test. All who enter it must stand in a row and strive to make their individual balloons reach the ceiling by dint of puffs and deep breaths. The most successful are set down by the judges for future awards.

A speed test takes the contestants down the length of the room, chasing their balloons with their lungs. Fans can be provided for this if you prefer. An endurance test to see how long the balloons can be kept in the air is a third exciting contest.

A balloon battle, in which greens and yellows attempt to bang and "burst" reds and blues, is a thoroughly ice-breaking occupation if the crowd needs living up.

The promised trip to the moon may be carried out in the same way as "Stage Coach." Each player is assigned some portion of a balloon's anatomy or the name of a star or planet. A clever person must be selected to tell the story of the balloonic trips to the moon, in which the various trials and tribulations that real balloonicists have been known to undergo may come in for exploitation. Each time the word assigned to any player is mentioned, he must rise and blow his balloon into the air, catch it again, and sit down. On mention of the arrival at the moon ensues the interchange of seats.

As if the company may not have acted sufficiently like lunatics, the next amusement may be a "Jury" one. The company should be divided into two sides, and the members are to vie with each other in doing individually or collectively something utterly absurd.

One side may act a scene from "Main Street"; the other side may put on a mock minstrel show, or some vaudeville parodies.

When it is refreshment time, the balloonicists are asked to come down out of the clouds to earth and food. Hot coffee is reviving in such a case, and of course there should be sandwiches, which, to be entirely consistent, may have filling of air currents and moon memories (currant jelly and cream cheese).

The stars may be represented by cookies or little cakes, or by big, luscious layer cakes, dusky as the night with dark chocolate frosting, but lighted by small star candles.

Big baskets filled with cracked hickory and butter-nuts may have real little balloons tethered to them as they are passed. Little paper parasols or wind-blown umbrellas will make delightful favors.

After supper, play the old-fashioned game of "Elements." The players sit in a circle, and one begins by tossing a rolled-up handkerchief to someone else, crying, "Air." As soon as the player who catches the handkerchief has mentioned some creature of the air—gull, eagle, aeroplane, swallow, or whatever it may be—he or she tosses it to another player and calls, "Earth!" The recipient must name some inhabitant of the earth—mole, bear, girl, hog, etc. When "Fire!" is called the player must keep silent until tossing it on again.

The prizes for the balloonic races should also be awarded after supper. If you care to introduce dancing, put on your liveliest records, and let the balloonicists end the evening in their own way.

Recipes for Easter Time

An Easter salad is prepared thus: Wash and drain lettuce, wrap in a wet cloth, and place where it will keep fresh and crisp until ready to use. Shortly before serving, shred the lettuce and arrange on plates to form nests. Mold cream cheese the size and shape of birds' eggs, dust with paprika and place in the lettuce nests. With the salad pass French dressing and saline crackers.

French salad dressing requires four tablespoons of salad-oil; two tablespoons of lemon-juice or vinegar; one-half teaspoonful of salt; one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Place a small piece of ice in a bowl, add the oil and lemon-juice or vinegar and other ingredients. Beat with a fork until the dressing is thick. Remove ice and place the dressing in a cold place until ready to serve.

Chocolate-covered Easter eggs require the whites of two eggs and an equal amount of cold water. Beat the egg-whites to a froth, add the water, then stir in gradually sufficient confectioners' sugar to make a paste stiff enough to be molded into shape. Flavor with a few drops of vanilla extract, mold in shape of eggs, dip in melted chocolate and lay on waxed paper to harden. Grated coconut may be mixed with the paste, if desired.

Serve baked ham for the Easter dinner. To prepare it, fry a thick slice of ham on both sides until half done, place it in a baking dish, cover thickly with raw sliced potatoes, season with pepper and a little salt, sprinkle with half a cupful of grated cheese, and a cupful of bread-crumbs. Cover with milk and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a half. Serve spinach with the ham, and no matter whether you serve the canned or freshly cooked spinach garnish it with sliced hard-boiled eggs. Fruit blanc-mange may be molded in egg-shells which have been carefully emptied, and kept as whole as possible. Place one pint of juice, the canned fruit in a double boiler and when it boils add two tablespoonfuls of corn-starch which has been moistened with a little cold fruit juice. Allow to cook fifteen minutes, stirring constantly until it thickens, then stirring occasionally. When slightly cool, pour into the emptied egg-shells and stand aside to chill. Bake a simple cake in a thin sheet and when stale cut into narrow strips. Arrange the strips in a dish to form a nest, turn the blanc-mange "eggs" into this nest and serve with plain or whipped cream.

Hot cross buns with fruit are made as follows: Heat to the boiling point one pint of milk. Add one level tablespoonful each of lard and butter, one heaping tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt. Stir the milk until the added ingredients are all dissolved and then remove from the fire. When cooled to tepid heat, add two lightly beaten eggs, three-fourths of a yeast-cake dissolved in half a cupful of lukewarm water and sufficient sifted flour to form a stiff batter. Beat the batter hard, mix in half a cupful of cleaned currants, one cupful of seeded raisins and three-quarters of a cupful of shredded citron. Allow the sponges to rise overnight. In the morning turn out on a well-floured bread board and knead, with the addition of extra flour and let it rise again until light. Then mold into round balls and set in rows in greased pans. Brush the buns with melted butter, sprinkle thickly with granulated sugar and ground cinnamon and, with a sharp knife, make a very deep cross in the centre of each bun.

supposed to have its protective value, for it was believed that three leaves put in a heap of corn would prevent the latter from being devoured by rats and mice. An infant born on Good Friday was supposed to possess the power of curing fevers.

There are some things to be avoided on Good Friday. West country people consider it a sin to wash any clothes on that day. They declare that should you do so you are likely to lose your most valued possession before the year is out.

Marriage of Fractions.

Not Here, But Risen.

"He is not here," the angel said,
As to the tomb the women came
To anoint the Lord.
Whom they had seen in agony,
Die on the cross; whose body scarred,
From thence removed by loving hands,
Had here been laid.

"Not here but risen. Behold the place,
Wherein He lay and quickly haste,
The news to tell,
To those who loved but sorrow now,
As for the dead." Amazed they go
To tell the tale of empty tomb
And risen Lord.

"The Christ alive!" What joy was born
That Easter day, when from the grave
The Saviour rose!
To-day, as then, the glorious news
Of Christ, exalted from the tomb
Doth gladness bring and saddened hearts
Chant glad refrains.

How sad the world, were there no hope
For those who mourn—no comforting
For weary hearts—

But in the message Easter brings
Of One who lives, and living loves,
Hope springs anew and Faith uplifts
Her eyes to Him.
—Fred Scott Shepard.

April.

We love the month of changeful moods,
Sunshine and rain, and light and shade,
Winds, gusty, frolic in the woods,
Streams laugh and dance within the glade.

A drifting rain has drenched the fields,
The weeping clouds float tearful by,
The trees, in misty shrouds concealed,
Wave spectral branches to the sky.

In golden shafts the sun breaks through,
And bathes with warmth, a world so fair,
And dormant life bestirs anew,
There's joy in meadow, stream, and air.

Mid quickening life, and hopes newborn,
A world that thrills with nascent power,
Rejoice my soul: 'tis glorious morn,
Life's summer is thy priceless dower.
—D. Anderson.

Easter Gifts Worth Having.

The custom of giving eggs at Easter dates back, in England, to the time of the Reformation; but history tells us that the lads and lasses of Ancient Greece were in the habit of going from house to house performing the play of the Resurrection, and exacting an egg in payment from each household.

Some years ago a record Easter egg was presented to the Queen of Spain as a token of affection by some of her subjects. It cost more than $15,000 and was decorated with flowers made of fine metal and filled with the choicest sweets and several articles of exquisite jewellery. The egg was illuminated by electricity.

In 1887 the Pope received an egg of ivory. When it was opened it was found to contain a golden case and a ruby worth $10,000.

Some years ago an American millionaire commissioned a London firm to manufacture an Easter egg capable of holding the whole of his bride's trousseau and jewellery. When it was completed the services of seven men were required to carry it to the owner's house!

Rolling Eggs for Sport.

The egg-rolling competition by which Easter is celebrated in the North of England still has a considerable popularity.

On Easter Monday one can see thousands of people rolling hard-boiled eggs down hills and slopes. The eggs are dyed all sorts of colors.

The principal town where egg-rolling contests take place is Preston. The object of the competitors is to break as many as possible of their rivals' eggs as they roll down the slopes, the winner being the one whose egg remains intact the longest.

Another curious custom is observed in some parts of Switzerland, but its origin is unknown. A hundred eggs are distributed over a level piece of ground and covered with sand. Then the young men and women of the district dance around them. If a couple should be lucky enough to get through a dance without breaking any of the eggs, they become engaged to be married!

Farm Help for Eastern Farmers

TO BE OF SERVICE to Eastern Canadian Farmers and help to meet their needs in securing competent farm help, the Canadian Pacific Railway is prepared to assist its widespread organization to furnish such help from a number of countries.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC Railway will now receive and arrange to fill applications for male and female farm help to be supplied from Great Britain, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Switzerland and Norway, in all of which countries the Company has representatives who have farmed in and are familiar with Eastern Canadian conditions and who are now in touch with such men and women ready and anxious to come to Canada.

THE GOVERNMENTS of the countries above mentioned have expressed their willingness to aid the immigration of this class of their peoples. In order to fill such applications satisfactorily and bring the help to the farmer at the proper time and with a clear understanding of the requirements and conditions of each, a printed "Application for Help" form has been prepared which can be obtained from any of the offices listed below.

The Company will make no charge to the farmer for this service nor will the farmer be required to make any cash advance whatsoever towards the travelling expenses of his help to the nearest railway station. The information necessary asked for in these application forms, which will be held in strict confidence covers the following points—the kind of help wanted—make of farm—desired or vicarious date required and for how long; nationality desired; monthly wages offered; kind of work offered, etc.

Easter

What is the significance of Easter to the average secular mind? It does not require the devout mental attitude of one faithful in religious observance and in church attendance to find in this great spring festival a peculiar and an inspiring meaning. Easter belongs to a world beyond church walls. It is an incentive to the race. It is, like spring itself, the symbol of new life and hope and victory. It signifies a conquest over the dominion of the material world, as the earth-bound spirit breaks it gives and is free.

Easter wears something more than an aspect of revival and survival—it even seems like something that never happened before. The day itself may be rainy or it may be brilliant with sunshine—the inner mood is capable of rising above the meteorology to the truth which Easter is intended to bring home to the consciousness of all of us, that "Life is ever lord of Death, and Love can never lose its own."

There will be in the churches the joyous animation of services planned with care to emphasize the paramount idea of the Resurrection. But in addition to these services each individual may profitably commune with himself as to the release of the buried life, the dormant forces that are in us all. Most of us are but half-alive. We go through the perfunctory motions of our duty, when we might undertake and accomplish incredibly more. It does not need William James to tell us what we well know—that we all are capable of doing a lot more than we are doing now. Easter ought to be an incentive to an expanding activity, in a lifetime that means a great deal more than keeping alive as long as one can.

Easter Lilies.

Majestic, stately, lovely as a dream,
The Easter lilies bow their heads in prayer

Before the shrine and offer incense there;
Like flowers of pearl the shining

glossoms seem;
Each golden calyx seems to catch a gleam

Of light from Him, the Altogether Fair;
Each lily breathes a message on the air,

The words of Christ form for each one the theme.

"I am the Resurrection and the Life;
He who believes in Me, though he were dead,

Yet shall he live; and he who lives in Me,

Shall never die. And lo! have I not said

"I am the Way, the Truth that frees from strife?"
Behold death swallowed up in victory!"

April Fooled.

Most April Fool's Day hoaxes are forgotten almost as soon as they are perpetrated.

There is one, however, that will live in history, if only because it was the means of saving two lives.

Francis, Duke of Lorraine, and his wife, being in the prison at Nantes under sentence of death, hit upon the idea of taking advantage of the Festival of Folly to effect their escape. This they did disguised as peasants, the Duke bearing a hod on his shoulders and the Duchess a basket of rubbish on her back.

While passing through the gates of the city, however, they were recognized by a woman, who ran and told the sentry. "Your prisoners are at large," she cried, breathlessly.

The man regarded her a moment, and then winked with great solemnity.

"Aye," he retorted, ironically, "they would be an' all. Dost think thou'st the only one as knows it's the First of April?"

Later on the Governor, to whom the story was told as a jest, grew suspicious, and ordered an investigation. But it was then too late, for in the meantime the fugitives, mounted on horses provided by their friends, were beyond reach of pursuit.

"Mothering" Sunday.

Though many ancient customs are rapidly disappearing from the England of to-day and giving place to the ways of more modern people, several old and quaint usages of the Lenten period are still handed down from generation to generation. Among these is mid-Lent Sunday, known in the more remote country villages of old England as "Mothering Sunday."

It is still kept as a kind of festival day in many parts of the kingdom. The term "Mothering Sunday" arose from the old country custom of allowing the lads and lasses in service away from home to take the day off in order that they might be able to visit their mothers. It was the custom for such young people to carry a cake as a present to mother; although nowadays the present usually takes the form of some inexpensive purchased article of no particular significance. To that extent the day has lost one of its charms.

In Shropshire, however, not only do they still take the simnel cake, as it is known, but also the first violets of the year, which gives rise to the local saying, "who goes another finds violets in the lap."

CAMPAIGN OF DESTRUCTION WAGED BY IRREGULARS TO BANKRUPT FREE STATE

Dublin Government Stands Firm on Its Terms of Unconditional Surrender of All Arms—Captures in England and Scotland Used as Propaganda by Republicans.

A despatch from Dublin says:—Attention is now being directed here to the status of the conflict between the Irish Free State and the Irregulars. The Irregulars are the country counter-measures are taken. For instance, many farmers have taken advantage of present conditions to seize other people's land, and in frequent cases use other people's grazing ranches on which to pasture their cattle without costs. In these cases the Government has promptly seized and sold the cattle, the sums realized being used as compensation for the landlords and others whose fields were invaded.

A measure just passed by the Dail Eireann gives widest powers to the Sheriffs in the enforcement of decrees for debts. This will immediately have the effect of enabling shopkeepers to collect money long due and, what is perhaps of more immediate concern to the Government, will greatly facilitate the collection of taxes.

There is no doubt in the minds of disinterested observers that the Government is governing.

Numerous peace moves are constantly being organized, but the Government turns them all down and insists that its own terms—the unconditional surrender of all arms—are the most to which it will ever agree.

Their drastic action is not confined to imprisonments and executions of irregulars; wherever disorder exists throughout the country counter-measures are taken. ## ASSURE RESUMPTION OF REPARATIONS

Allies Promulgate Two Ordinances to Compel Germany to Pay Debt.

Coblentz, March 18.—The Inter-Allied Rhineland Commission has promulgated two ordinances with a view to assuring resumption of reparations in kind from Germany.

One prescribes the seizure in the occupied territory of machinery and other objects, also animals belonging to the German Government and earmarked for restitution in conformity with the treaty of Versailles.

The other authorizes seizure of goods and property belonging to the Allied Governments or their nationals in these territories, but not in their possession. Declaration of possession of such articles must be made to the Inter-Allied Commission, the ordinance provides.

The latter ordinance aims at counteracting the orders issued by the German Government that its nationals refuse to deliver to the Franco-Belgians goods contracted for on the reparations account. The penalty prescribed by the ordinance for such refusal is a fine of 50,000,000 marks or imprisonment for not more than five years.

Forty-One Drawing Pensions From War of 1812

Washington, March 18.—The fact that women live longer than men is proved conclusively by the Dept. of the Interior, which announces that the Government of the United States is still paying pensions to 41 widows of soldiers of the War of 1812, notwithstanding the fact that 108 years have elapsed since the close of the conflict. Hiram Cronk, of Ava, N.Y., was the last veteran of the second war with Great Britain. He died in 1905 at the age of 105 years. Notwithstanding the fact that the war of 1812 closed 109 years ago, the oldest widow still drawing a pension is Habala Huff, Louisa, Ky., who modestly admits only 104 years. Matilda Show-acre, Cobb, Ky., admits 102 years, while Eliza A. Pate, Annapolis, Md., is 100 years old. All the rest are under the century mark.

MORE ARRESTS OF IRISH IRREGULARS

Rebels Continue Incendiary Plans, Burning Fine Residence Near Donegal.

Dublin, March 18.—Eighteen irregulars, including some men of importance, were arrested to-day at Ballyconnell and Tipperary. It is said they had arms and documents in their possession.

Bonnyglon House, a fine mansion near Donegal, belonging to William H. M. Sinclair, British Consul-General at Philadelphia, was burned yesterday by armed incendiaries. The caretaker, told the act was in reprisal for the four executions at Drumboe Castle, Wednesday, was given five minutes to leave the premises.

Free State troops patrolling the Rutland Square district of Dublin, at midnight last night, fired on Gen. Thomas Ennis, who was shot in the thigh. Detective William Egan sustained two leg wounds.

Indian Districts Still Offer Human Sacrifices

A despatch from London says:—The revelation that human sacrifice is still common among the natives of Naga Hill, in Assam, India, is made in an official report issued here on Friday. The report explains:—The investigation showed human sacrifice is much more common at Naga Hill than was generally supposed, no fewer than six boys and ten girls yearly, and in plentiful years, twenty boys and thirty girls. They were kidnapped from Assam. Children are the usual victims.

GERMANS PAY ON TIME MONEY DUE BELGIUM

Shipments of Coal Ready for Transportation to France and Belgium.

A despatch from Paris says:—There is no confirmation officially here of reported German feelers for peace in the Ruhr. However, it is significant in view of known Belgian lack of enthusiasm for the enterprise that the Germans on Friday paid on time the 48,000,000 gold marks due Belgium.

Belgium military difficulties are emphasized by the decision to keep the present class with the colors another three months. This will enable the complete seventh division of 7,000 men to remain in the Ruhr.

Despatches from Dusseldorf show 1,200,000 tons of coal are now stocked at Ruhr pileheads ready for transportation to France and Belgium on the "Foch plan." By the end of the week, it is said, 3,000 tons will be transported daily to the two countries. Under the old reparations agreement before the occupation France and Belgium got 16,000 tons a day.

Valuable Relics Given to Queen's University

Kingston, March 18.—The contents of a tomb, said to be older than that of Pharaoh Tutankhamen are being presented to the Queen's University Museum by Dr. W. A. Kennedy, a graduate, who is visiting here. Dr. Kennedy purchased the articles when in Constantinople, where he was a special representative of the League of Nations. Dr. Kennedy had served as a missionary in the Near East before taking a medical course at Queen's.

COMMENT UPON CANADA'S NEW STATUS

Signing of the Fisheries Treaty Great Constitutional Event.

London, March 18.—Although there has been so far little press comment on the cable that Canada has concluded a fisheries treaty with the United States on her own responsibility, despite the advice of Sir Auckland Geddes, the announcement has created profound interest here. It will almost certainly be discussed in Parliament next week and will have the effect of hastening the date of the Imperial Conference if Canada finds it convenient to send representatives before next year. The Evening Standard referred to Canada's action on Saturday as a constitutional event of far-reaching importance and states: "It is important constitutional effect is admitted by the Home Government."

Taft Gets $75,000 for Services as G.T.R. Arbitrator

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Ex-President Taft of the United States was paid $75,000 for his services in connection with the Grand Trunk arbitration. This information was given in the House of Commons by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways. The payment was not made by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, Mr. Graham added, but by Grand Trunk shareholders.

TERMS FOR FUNDING WAR DEBT ANNOUNCED

Bond Issue Given, With Interest Payable Semi-Annually.

A despatch from London says:—The British Treasury has made public the exact terms regarding the funding agreement with the United States. On the execution of the agreement, England will make a cash payment of $4,120,850.74, leaving a net debt of $4,600,000,000. This total will be covered by a bond issue dated December 15, 1922, and expiring in 1934, with interest payable semi-annually at a rate of three per cent. to December 15, 1932, and three and a half per cent. for the rest of the term. The bonds will be payable in United States gold coin, and will be issued, as far as possible, in denominations of $100 each.

On 90 days' notice England may postpone any payment for a term of not more than two years, but the total payments due for three successive years must be completed by December of the third year.

Great Britain also is to have a respite on 30 days' notice that it will make payments on the principal which at any time will amount to $1,000,000 or multiples.

A despatch from Washington says:—The first payment by the British Government under the recently negotiated debt funding agreement was made on Thursday at the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

A total of 147,895 persons were in receipt of benefits under the Pension Act as at March 31, 1922, according to the annual report of the Board of Pension Commissioners of Canada. ## Canada from Coast to Coast

St. John's, Nfld.—The iron mines at Wabana, which were closed early this year as the result of the cancellation of German contracts for ore after the French occupation of the Ruhr, are again in operation. An agreement has been reached between the Newfoundland Government and the British Empire Steel Corporation, whereby the latter in consideration of the waiving of the export duty of 25 cents per ton imposed on this ore for the current year, agrees to provide employment for 1,400 men during February and March, for 1,500 in April and May, and to resume normal working of the mines after June.

Fort William, Ont.—The port record for fast loading was broken recently by the steamer Stikledstad, putting 360,000 bushels aboard in 25½ hours actual loading time. She arrived at 5 o'clock in the evening of Sunday, February 18, and sailed on Saturday afternoon, fitting out completely and loading in the meantime.

Three Rivers, Que.—The output of the International Paper Co.'s mill at Three Rivers is now running about 265 tons a day, an addition of nearly 80,000 tons to the Canadian total since the middle of last year. The company is planning to install the seventh grinder unit to increase the production of groundwood pulp to be attained, and a third digester for the sulphite pulp, which supplies about 25 per cent. of the pulp ingredients of newsprint, groundwood pulp forming the balance.

Victoria, B.C.—Valued at $11,500,000, the British Columbia salmon pack aggregated 1,290,326 cases, according to figures compiled by the Provincial Department of Fisheries. These figures have been exceeded only on four occasions since statistics have been compiled during the past twenty-six years and the most recent was in 1919, when the total was 1,333,156 cases.

mer if he is not willing to have the front of his farm chopped off and of his resistance forced to hand over his land, or in other words accept the proposals of the department. Surely the people in this country have had enough of Kaiserism and will stand together and demand their rights, and also that an immediate stop be put to such lawless and reckless extravagance.

REAL FELLOWS

What has become of the old-fashioned boy who loved his mother, was polite to his sisters and respected all womanhood? We mean the boy who got up and gave his mother the easy chair when she came into the room, the boy who refused to laugh when a dirty story was told, and who looked upon his sister as his special charge when they were out in company. The young fellows who wear monkey caps on the side of their heads and stand about on the street corners talking of somebody's sister, and puffing cigarette smoke through their noses, are as different from an old-fashioned boy as day is from night. We can remember when there were a lot of old-fashioned boys in Strathroy. They swam in the old swimming hole and they played the innocent pranks of boyhood. Not always gentle, but always respectful. They called the older men Mr. So-and-So, and they touched their caps in an old-fashioned manner when they passed the ladies. They worked for their spending money and generally helped mother with a contribution toward the household expenses on Saturday night.

We just don't seem to get used to this fox-trotting, slinky, lack of respect for anybody or anything era. If we were a girl we would tie a can to some of the nincompoops that come sneaking around. We'd be a bachelor maid for a thousand years before we would tie up with the average no-account youth that chatters the earth today.

We do not mean to say that there are no clean, earnest industrious young men in Strathroy. There are a few and you know them as well as we do. It isn't necessary to publish a list of their names. There are not so many.—Strathroy Age.

THE LATE HUGH McLACHLAN

Hugh McLachlan sr. passed peacefully away at his home, lot 1, con. 8, Mosa, on Sunday evening, March 11, in his 95th year. Mr. McLachlan was a native of Kilmartin parish, Argyllshire, Scotland, and was born August 15, 1828. He was a son of the late Hugh McLachlan and Katharine McCallum, of Strath Lachlan, Scotland. When a child two years of age he came to Canada with his parents, six sisters and two brothers, the voyage across the ocean lasting six weeks. Then first landed at Quebec, where he remained for a short time, June, 1830. On November 12 of the same year the family moved to Mosa and settled on the farm where Mr. McLachlan resided continuously for ninety-two years and four months. He was the oldest pioneer in the township of Mosa. The country was a dense forest with blazed trails. His father and his older brothers, Donald and Duncan, set to work to clear the land and hew out for themselves a home. They were the seventh family to come to these parts. As the country became settled the people longed to meet together to worship God as they were accustomed to do in the motherland. His father's house being the most centrally situated and also a commodious log residence, it was decided to meet there. Rev. Mr. Sinclair, of Lobo, as Baptist minister, held regular services there for some time, the people coming from miles around to hear him, so eager were they to worship God in the new land. In this house also Mr. Sinclair met and united several couples in marriage. In later years Rev. W. R. Sutherland, of Ekfrid, performed the same duties at this home. Mr. Sutherland was afterwards called to be the first pastor of Burns' Presbyterian church, Mosa.

Mr. McLachlan's father, who was in poor health for several years previous to his death, sent him in company with his neighbors to Port Stanley with his first load of grain with a yoke of oxen when a lad of fifteen. He often used to relate of his thrilling experience over the rough country. He endured all the hardships of pioneer life. He helped to grade the Mosa and Ekfrid townships and drew the timber for some of the bridges, and he had the pleasure of seeing it the beautiful country road it is today. Mr. McLachlan was united in marriage to Miss Mary McEneaney, of Yorkmouth township, near St. Thomas. A family of ten children were born to them, two of whom are now deceased. One daughter, Sara, passed away March 6, 1886, and Nell, the youngest son, on June 3, 1913. His wife also predeceased him sixteen years, she passing away August 30, 1906. There now remain to mourn his loss three daughters and five sons, namely: Mrs. D. C. McDougall, of Alvinston; Mrs. Nell Le McKellar, of Kilmartin; Miss Julia, at home; Dugald, of Brooke; Hugh, Archibald, Duncan and Donald, of Mosa, the latter residing on the old homestead. There are also twenty-six grandchildren and three great grandchildren, and one brother, Alexander, who was born in December, 1830, shortly after their arrival on the old farm, and to whom he was very deeply attached.

The McLachlan reunion which was held on August 15th of last year, the 94th anniversary of his birth, is a day long to be remembered. Mr. McLachlan was well blessed with health and strength, for which he never forgot to thank God for His goodness to him. He was able to be about the house till February 15th, when he took ill. He had possession of all his faculties, being possessed of remarkable memory, and could converse so intelligently till the last. He was of a kind and sympathetic nature, always ready and willing to lend a helping hand in time of need. Being also of a bright and cheerful disposition, he endeared himself to all who had the pleasure of his ac-

PART II.
Lettice was at the dinner table; white shouldered, satin clad, in beaded evening slippers. For some reason she was a little pessimistic.

And then, between dinner and the first act of the play which followed, his pulse beat faster. Why? As he helped Lettice into the Wellman car and his hand touched her bare elbow, her loose evening coat sleeve having fallen back, a lovely color ran up her delicate profile.

In view of what was to come months later it was of some significance that, at the end of the second act that night, a messenger boy from Hammond Wettles himself slipped a summons to Stephen. Wettles, the breakfast food king who could not direct his own products, was chronically threatened with appendicitis, but shied from the necessary operation like an old horse from a high fence.

Stephen, obeyed the summons, although Lettice smiled "Must you?" and Dan Wellman snorted, "Dog's life you lead, Steve."

But because that last disappointed lift of Lettice's eyes stayed with him, giving rise to a certain reflection on his part, Stephen was somewhat absent-minded with an old pain-gripped man. Afterward he blamed himself. Had he been more insistent Wettles might have yielded then on a long mooted point and saved himself and Stephen much trouble.

"I'm afraid of the knife," said Wettles ill-humoredly. "And it's my own business."

"Yours," agreed Stephen. "Then why urge?"

"It's my business to urge," said Stephen curtly.

Old Hammond Wettles heard, grunted, sighed gloomily, and promised to bear his own condition in mind after a business trip to New York.

He went to New York. A diphtheria epidemic quarrelled to spare space with the year's influenza. A boiler explosion in a factory sickeningly marked one week. Hammond Wettles wrote that he would return presently—and, mind, no saw but yours, Lettice, if I saw it must be," Stephen, who was grimly devoid of vanity, disapprovingly reflected that Wettles better act faster and be less particular as to the saw's wielder, and then forgot Wettles.

He dined several times with the Wellmans, which meant with Lettice Towne, and he dined once at the Towne table itself, and he played golf twice out north where Lettice happened to be playing.

Lettice played golf—on nice days, when it was not too warm or too cold, she said.

He denied to himself that Lettice Towne had come to regard him with a feeling, plaintive wonder in her lovely dark blue eyes. He would not admit to himself that very often he had been greatly tempted to answer that question in a way to satisfy her—and himself for a while at least. He stuck to a slowly formed, austere resolution. Perhaps because in those early childish years Cora Bentlewin had printed austere on a small, clean, receptive mind. Perhaps he was a little morbid. He deliberately "dropped" Lettice from his thoughts.

And then—
Afterward—to be exact, while Lettice Towne's delicate white silk dress was trailing in that clay and her tulle scarf lay tramped in its mire—Stephen Bentlewin tried, and failed, to divide the blame in three equal portions, like thirds of a red apple: himself, accident, and Lettice the sharer.

Accident, Lettice's responsibility, his own negligence—
He had been grossly negligent. Criminally negligent, he could not quite admit; even if he had departed in silly schoolboy-like greed for a holiday, from his long fixed professional habit of keeping, in perfect repair, his own car or an excellent hired substitute.

His car was undergoing repair that Saturday afternoon when, just at the close of office hour, Dan Wellman breezed into his private consultation room. Dan was all invitation.

"Come along, Steve. Call it a day. These rains have made the turf springy as a hair mattress. And there'll be creamed home-grown peas for dinner."

Every year the Wellmans played at raising their own vegetables on two extensively fertilized acres, with a luxurious twelve-room cottage, near the golf links of a far north shore country club.

Stephen Bentlewin accepted the invitation almost without a word. It was welcome.

He had been hard driven for a good many weeks, his night and day calls stepping on each other's heels.

At Dan's imperative invitation he thought of his own car. He seldom rode in another man's. But he saw no great wisdom in waiting an hour or two on repair work. His spare hours were too few, and daylight waits on no mechanic. He saw no good reason for not hopping into Dan's six-thousand-dollar roadster. Now that it was proffered to him, he felt eager to get at his golf, in a place which he knew would be good and green.

Lettice Towne undoubtedly would be one of the smiling, appreciative guests at the Wellman dinner. For all the cold and careful resolution which undermined his feeling for her, the prospect of seeing her was not unpleasant.

Without ado, he accompanied Dan out the door, pausing to give a direction or two to the office girl, then down in an express elevator.

The sun was bright, and just inclining toward descent of day, as they rolled north over the great new bridge and took the lovely skirting road of the lake. With the first swift rush of north shore air against his face, Stephen shook off some of the accumulated fatigue of weeks.

He shook off more as Dan drove into the low club garage. To the immediate west of the garage the smooth rolling turf had caught something fresher and more emerald than usual from the recent rains. Like a mirroring lake, it allured.

Over it was a scattering of concentrated men and of women in gay sport sweaters and white footgear.

Lettice Towne was one of them, in a soft blue silk sweater and flat heeled white shoes, which made her seem smaller and younger. For all her modern training, the color rose in her face, too, at sight of Stephen Bentlewin.

Although Lettice had merely motored out to the Wellmans for the day, she had had foresight enough to bring along evening wear. In a soft white silk dress, she sat next Stephen Bentlewin at dinner. It was a filmy, delicate silk. Her arms were bare and powdered. Her slippers were satin and never manufactured for walking purposes. Her stockings were white cowbells.

Later when the cottageful went across to the clubrooms, for the evening dance, she wore a tulle scarf as well. It was silvery tulle, with infinitesimal beads forming a feathery design. Expensive-looking, but neither a useful nor a durable article. Merely one of the soft, useless, lovely trifles which civilization exhibits pathetically to mark wistful humanity's rise from savage red and yellow beads.

His pulse was not slow as he and she entered the club doors, lighted and streaming music. He was not a facile dancer. He had learned the art too late in life, with hardly enough zeal. But he knew that he was going through a turn or two with Lettice. That would top a pleasant day. He continued unmoved, however, in some secret recess of his being.

And then, even as she put a hand on his arm and the orchestra finished with the preliminary strumming of a fox-trot, he was summoned to the telephone. The telegram was repeated over the wire to him as it had been received by his office assistant in town:

Hammond Wettles stricken on way home. Immediate operation imperative. Have ambulance meet train 11.30 p.m. You yourself requested to operate. Telegraph reply—Flier, Toledo.

Physician on Train.
When he had had his assistant in Chicago repeat the telegram and in return had telephoned orders for a reply to be made and the ambulance attended to the turn of Stephen Bentlewin's heel was professionally eager and obedient. An animation, too, different from that induced by a green turf had taken possession of his face. That, to correspond, a certain animation had withdrawn from Lettice Towne's face, at his side, is irrelevant to Hammond Wettles's plight.

Stephen looked about for Dan Wellman, or a club steward. "Where can I get a taxi, Dan? Or a hired car? No, not yours—at the garage."

Two or three men, besides his host, were cordially ready to supply Stephen's lack. They pressed forward in a group as they heard. But Lettice Towne, gracefully, deftly took precedence of all. Smilingly, with a curious little fixed glint in her eyes, she waved them back.

"I'm driving back to town to-night. Truly! I promised to get home. And I can just as well go now. Please!"

Stephen was slightly annoyed. His mind and attention had thrust ahead to Wettles and hospital, and he would have preferred not having any one to talk to him on the drive back to town.

"I'd like to start instantly," he said. "And make good time."

"I'll get my coat in a second. Dan, have the car brought out of the garage, please."
(To be concluded.)

We all know how rapidly an idle brain deteriorates. Like the water in the brook which sparkles down the hillside becomes foul, muddy, and attracts all sorts of vermin when it ceases to work and stands idle in the bog at the foot of the hill, so the idle brain which keeps clear and limpid and pure when active becomes muddy and foul and attracts all sorts of vicious associations and deteriorating, dangerous tastes when idle.

Labor Savers I Use.
First comes my kitchen cabinet, standing five feet from and in front of the stove and containing everything that is needed for baking. I can prepare anything for the oven without taking a step till the cake or pies or biscuit are ready to slip into the oven.

Next comes my built-in woodbox that can be filled from the shed and forms a seat in my kitchen beside the firebox end of the stove.

With my five babies, all under five and one-third years of age, the bathroom on the first floor is a blessing. Two springs piped into a concrete reservoir supply the house and barn. The hot water tank is connected with my range.

And my laundry tubs! Such backache and time savers as they are. Mine are in the kitchen and covered as a table when not in use for washing. With no tubs to lift and empty, washing does not seem like washing. I had rather be without my hand-power washer than the tubs.

My husband had acetylene lights put in, so all the time I once used cleaning and filling oil lamps is now used for other work. With the outfit is the hot plate which makes summer cooking more comfortable.

I have an ironing board on a standard and a gasoline iron so I can iron when and where I choose.

One year I spent almost a day pitting cherries but never again! I bought a pitter and an apple parer. They not only do better and much quicker work but my five-year-old boy can operate them as well as I. Doing every bit of my own work, sewing for all of us even to the making of the children's coats, I must plan to save every minute I can so as to have a little time for reading and other things I enjoy.

By using my bread-mixer, it takes seven minutes to knead bread and have it set to rise.

I must also mention my mop wringer, dust mop and sweeper.

Winter used to mean spending a goodly share of each day carrying "chunks" from the woodshed to keep two heaters going. Now we have a pipeless furnace, all wood for it in the cellar and a much warmer house.—Mrs. L. L. S.

Women 100,000 Years Ago.
What were women like a hundred thousand years ago?

A number of French professors have been trying to find out, and some very interesting results have followed their search. They say that in the days when people lived in caves Woman was the most important of the two sexes. Men were only tolerated for the sake of the food and skins they provided. Women ruled everything, and almost every art and science we have to-day is due to the work of the women of thousands of years ago.

Women taught men how to defeat famine by snaring animals and storing them for times when food would be unobtainable. Women taught men how to get skins to clothe themselves in the winter. Women, in fact, saved the human race from being destroyed.

Since she was not strong enough to kill her enemies or provide food and clothing, woman had to use her wits and employ cunning instead of force. Every labor-saving device we have to-day is descended from the early invention of a woman.

Altogether it seems that woman a thousand years ago ruled man in almost exactly the same manner that she does to-day!

Music the Best Antidote for Waywardness.
During the adolescent age the boys' and girls' tastes seem to be forming, and in many cases it is at this point that it rests with the parents whether the boys shall become interested in the higher pursuits or in pool, cigarettes, etc. Music is the best antidote for waywardness that I know. An-chopped raisins; half cup of walnut meats; quarter teaspoon of vanilla.

Boil sugar and water until it threads when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Pour on beaten egg white and beat until it holds its shape. Add raisins, nuts, salt and vanilla. Mix well. Drop from a teaspoon on paraffin paper and set aside until cold.

A Dense Population.
A school-teacher asked her class in what part of the world the most ignorant people were to be found. A small boy volunteered quickly, "In London, England."

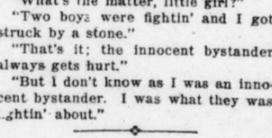

The teacher was amazed, and questioned the lad as to where he had obtained such information.

"Well," he replied, "the geography says that's where the population is most dense."

Johnny Scores.
Johnny hated his early bedtime. In the course of one of the nightly arguments his mother told him how all the little chicks went to sleep with the sun. For the moment he was silent, then he piped up: "But the old hen goes to bed with them, you know, mama!"

The extra half hour was conceded.

The Eternal Cause.
"What's the matter, little girl?"
"Two boys were fightin' and I got struck by a stone."
"That's it; the innocent bystander always gets hurt."
"But I don't know as I was an innocent bystander. I was what they was fightin' about."

A Certain Woman.
One might be with her year on year, and yet
Find always something new in her each day,
As a familiar landscape has a way
Of changing so that one may quite forget
How well one knows each hill and rivulet;
Her sudden vagaries are challenging
As are the fragrant breezes of the spring,
And from her smiles one learns love's alphabet.

In fact, she is so many different folk,
One never wearies of her comradeship;
Nor may a final judgment e'er invoke,
So varied the opinions she lots slip,
And always, through what mood or phase she goes,
One catches poetry within her prose.

Dinosaurian Remains in Alberta

Some of the finest and most extensive deposits of dinosaurian and other reptilian remains in the world are to be found in the Province of Alberta, according to noted paleontologists. Discoveries made at these deposits have enriched the collections of many famous museums both on this continent and in Europe, and have done much to enable science to gain a clearer conception of those forms of life existent on this world millions of years ago. Exploration work in recent years has been confined almost solely to the famous deposits in the Red Deer River Valley in Alberta.

This valley is in the east-central part of the province, northeast of Calgary, and can readily be reached by motoring from the town of Brooks, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, to Steepleville, from which point exploration parties set out on their journey to their operating base. The valley has many of the characteristics of the Grand Canyon in Colorado. It is several miles in length, in places some six hundred feet deep, and at Drumheller about two miles in width. The sides of the valley are formed of a series of rough, broken ridges, caused by water and wind erosion, bare of vegetation with the exception of a few clumps of brush here and there.

A Most Perfect Carnivorous Dinosaur. Well-equipped collecting parties have been sent out by various museums from time to time, and generally speaking have met with great success. The topographical features of the land have made it difficult for collectors to transport supplies and specimens, but this difficulty is gradually being overcome, and at the present time access to and from the valley, as well as transporting supplies, is a matter of comparative ease. Some of the discoveries made in this valley include the most perfect carnivorous dinosaur known; duck-billed dinosaurs; horned dinosaurs; crocodiles; turtles; while amphibians and fishes are abundantly represented.

As far back as 1897, the late Lawrence M. Lambe, of the Geological Survey of Canada, was actively engaged in collecting vertebrate fossils in this field, and it is in a great measure due to his untiring efforts that this wonderful deposit has become known to collectors the world over. In addition to Mr. Lambe, Barnum Brown, of the New York Natural History Museum, made the first systematic exploration of the fossils, and Charles H. Sternberg, until lately connected with the Geological Survey, and others have been active in exploiting this field. The Geological Survey of Canada now has a remarkably fine collection of dinosaurian remains mounted and on exhibition in the Victoria Museum at Ottawa.

Finest Specimens Being Taken Away.

For some time past museums in the United States, the United Kingdom and the Continent have periodically sent out collectors, who have taken away from this country some of the finest specimens discovered without Canada receiving any benefit directly or indirectly. There has been a considerable agitation in this connection, and it has been proposed that before any specimen can be taken from the Dominion the Government's permission must first be secured. It also has been suggested that if permission is secured by a foreign collecting party to remove a skeleton, a first-class, high-grade plaster cast should be made of it and presented to the Geological Museum at Ottawa. Should such measures be adopted by the Government, Canada undoubtedly would in time possess one of the finest and most complete collections of dinosaurian remains in the world.

The furnishing of technical information in response to inquiries relating to timber and forest products is an important function of the various divisions of the Forest Products Laboratories, of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior. This work usually involves a careful study of the available data on the subject in question and in some cases minor tests or investigations, the final step being the compilation of a report, a copy of which is forwarded to the inquirer.

A man is not judged so much by what he accomplishes as by what he tries to do and the way in which he meets obstacles and difficulties.

The great thing is not to allow the storms which sweep through our lives and destroyed our property to wreck our hopes and our beliefs also. The supreme thing is not to permit the accidents of life to kill our spirit, to destroy our belief in God, our faith in ourselves and in others.

No matter what has happened to your home or to your business, no matter what has happened to humiliate you, to make you seem like a failure in the eyes of others, just resolve that there are certain things in your life which can't be taken away from you—your belief in yourself, your belief in your mission, and your determination, no matter how long it takes or what the conditions, to make your dreams come true.

STORIES OF WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

Canadian Authoress Wins Life's

Miss Jean McIlwraith, whose "Little Admiral" has just been awarded $500 as the best Canadian story for boys and girls to be submitted to the publishers, Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton and the Mueson Book Company, is an authoress of international fame, and has had perhaps the most cosmopolitan career of any woman writer in Canada.

The fact that the award was made her manuscript without knowledge of the writer's identity is just one more proof that merit goes further in the business of writing than reputation.

Miss McIlwraith is at present a resident of Burlington, Ontario, where the long-hoped-for reality of settling down in her "own little home" is being fulfilled, and her chief desire in life is to "become an A. I. gardener."

The author of nearly a dozen books, a prolific contributor for years to discriminating periodicals, editor, news-paper-woman and special correspondent, traveller and lover of history in its most vivid forms, Miss McIlwraith stands out as an unusual type of woman. Her first five books were written in Hamilton at her old home; then she migrated to New York, where for many years she filled important positions in the literary and publishing worlds.

Now a woman of mature years, Miss McIlwraith's refreshing personality and keen enjoyment of the spirit of adventure and youth is what has made her one of the ablest people in the world to write the enjoyable stories for Canadian boys and girls.

The story of Miss McIlwraith's devotion to her mother is one which will appeal especially to her young readers. The bond between the authoress and her mother was one of unusual understanding and fidelity; it grew, if possible, in later years, when Mrs. McIlwraith, becoming a total invalid, depended more and more upon the love and care of her daughter. For four years the young writer remained at her mother's side at the old home, Cairnbrae, in Hamilton, and produced a book each one of these winters. At her mother's death in 1901, Miss McIlwraith broke away from every old association, feeling that the power for creative work had left her. It was at that time that she went to New York and began her brilliant editorial career—

Won After Order to Stop.

"Try again" must be a motto appreciated by Lord Carnarvon since his recent amazing discoveries in Egypt. When the great news reached him, he had already despatched a wire to "down tools" to Howard Carter, who for over two years had been carrying out the excavations under his instructions. Mr. Carter for some time had been working for the Egyptian government, and it is to this same government that most of the spoils will go. But Lord Carnarvon will receive specimens to the value of many thousands of pounds, some of which he intends presenting to the British Museum.

To Him Who Plants a Tree.

Perhaps our God has somewhere made a thing

More beautiful to see
Than a majestic tree;
But if He has, I think it grows
In heaven, by the stream that flows
Where whiter souls than ours do dwell.
Who plants a tree, he is akin to God,
In this impatient age.

Where quick returns engage
The fevered service of the crowd,
In reverent wisdom he is bowed
And hides his purpose in the cloud.
The blessed man that plants a long-lived tree
That shall grow nobly on
When he is dead and gone,
He seems to me to love his kind
With true sincerity of mind,
He seems to love his fellow yet to be
Above his grave the suns shall flush
And fade.

The seasons come and go
And storms shall drive and blow;
But sun and rain that from his tomb
Efface his name, renew the bloom
And glory of the monument he made.

Walking on the Invalid.

As long as the grass in a Chicago public park is healthy and green the children seem to look upon it as some sort of garden and keep off of it, as the signs command them. When it begins to die out, however, their respect for it instantly vanishes.

A man in a burly started one day to cut across a yellow patch in the upper park, but was stopped by a policeman.

"What difference does it make?" demanded the citizen. "The grass is half dead already."

"Sure," said the indignant officer, "if ye had a sick friend, would you be walkin' on his stomach?"

Surnames and Their Origin

GARNET

Variation—Garrett.
Racial Origin—Welsh.
Source—A local name.

Here is a family name which, instinctively, you probably associate with the name of a semi-precious stone.

But the association of ideas here is misleading. That the family name could have come from the name of the stone is a possibility. All of the available records go to show, however, that it seldom, if ever, actually was a development of it.

For if you trace the name back a bit you come across the spelling "Garned" instead of Garnet. If you trace it still further back you are likely to run across the spelling "Garnedd," which (if you know that it is Welsh) more readily associates itself with the ancient Celtic word "cairn," indicating a pile of stones, or more specifically, a structure of stone which was a Druid temple.

This would naturally be a local name found in almost any spot in England, or particularly of Wales, in which such ruins remained. It was exactly the sort of place name likely to become the surname of anybody living near it.

HUNGERFORD

Racial Origin—English.
Source—A locality.

Here is a family name which traces back to a given name through a local name. In other words, there was first a given name, from which was formed the place name. Then, at a later period when the given name had become obsolete, the local name was developed into a family name, being first a surname indicating place of residence.

The place name is the same as the modern family name, being one of those old English place names so simple of pronunciation that it has not changed through the course of centuries. The place is a market town in Berkshire, up the River Kennet.

From the spelling in "ford" you might have guessed that it was a community on the bank of some river or stream.

Hungerford was originally "Hunger's Ford," and to get at the reason for the place being so named you have to delve back to that period in English history when the Danish hosts invaded Britain. One of the most famous of the Danish chieftains was named Hunger. But few who bear this name realize that, indirectly, they are named after a famous Danish leader who lived more than a thousand years ago.

WHY MANY WOMEN SUFFER IN SILENCE

Do Not Realize That Their Trouble is Due to Impure Blood.

A woman needs a blood building medicine regularly just because she is a woman. From maturity to middle life the health of every woman depends upon her blood. If her blood is poor she is weak, languid, pale and nervous. If the blood supply is irregular she suffers from headaches and backaches, and some women have grown to expect this suffering and to bear it in silence. They do not realize that if the blood supply is kept rich and pure, their troubles will disappear, but such is the case in every woman's life. A tonic blood-enriching medicine is needed and for this purpose nothing can help them so much as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which act directly on the blood, furnishing the elements necessary to make it rich and pure. Mrs. S. J. Watts, Kingston, Ont., gives her experience with this medicine as follows:—"My first experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was while attending the Collegiate Institute at about the age of seventeen. I became very much run down, and could not go up stairs without resting half way. Finally I had to quit school and, notwithstanding all that was done for me there were no signs of improvement until after I had begun using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, under the use of this medicine I became well and strong. My next experience with this medicine was some years after I was married. After my baby boy was born I did not gain up as I should, so I at once started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills again. I took them all the time I was nursing baby, and you should have seen what a lovely, fat, healthy boy he was, and I was strong once more. Whenever I feel a bit run down Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are my tonic and I strongly recommend them to growing girls and all women."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Vegetation and Floods.

Attention has been invited to what is regarded as an important illustration of the sure results of deforestation in the Appalachians. Near a town in Tennessee the roasting and smelting of copper ores have entirely destroyed the vegetation over a considerable area and left the ground perfectly bare. Consequent surface erosion is rapidly removing the soil, the slopes are scarred with gullies, the waste from the steep slopes has buried the former surface along the streamlets, so that neither slope nor narrow flood plain is of any value for agriculture or grazing. Floods on these streams rise higher and more rapidly than in former times, while in dry seasons springs once perennial go dry and others almost cease flowing.

In the Wrong Room.

He entered the crowded room, took out a bundle of notes, and began to address the meeting.

The chairman made repeated efforts to interrupt the speaker, but he refused to be called to order. His oration lasted half an hour.

"Have you quite finished, sir?" the chairman asked.

"Yes—quite; but I defy you to deny the truth of my statements," he retorted.

"I have no wish to," said the chairman. "The gas company, of the management of which you complain, is holding its meeting in the next room. This is the Vegetarian Society."

Book-Tasting.

Every publishing firm employs a staff of "readers," whose duty it is to deal with the constant stream of manuscripts that flow into a publisher's office. Just as a tea expert tastes tea, so does a publisher's "reader" taste books.

Upon the judgment of the "readers" depends the success or failure of a publishing house. The reader is ever on the alert for the manuscript which may prove to be a "best seller."

A novel may be clever and possess originality of plot and of style, and yet prove a dismal failure. On the other hand, a novel, lacking in originality and written in slovenly style, may catch the wayward fancy of the reading public, and in a flash the author may become famous throughout the English-speaking world, and both the author and the publisher will find their banking accounts swelling.

Although the publisher's reader tries to feel the pulse of the reading public, and sense what sort of a novel will prove a success and which will prove failures, the reader's judgment may play him false, and a novel rejected by fifteen publishers may be accepted by the sixteenth and have a big success.

Reject Now Famous Novels.

Many novels now famous have been turned down and rejected again and again by various publishers' readers, and then after a period of years, often when the author has abandoned hope, an enterprising publisher, greatly daring, accepts the oft-rejected manuscript, and finds, much to his surprise perhaps, that he has discovered a popular success.

One can mention Charles Dickens, George Meredith, George Eliot, Frank Danby, H. G. Wells, Joseph Conrad and a host of novelists whose most popular books have been rejected by publishers' readers, but to mention regularly, until some farsighted book-taster has persuaded a publisher to print a book, which has leapt into the front rank of popular successes.

The lot of the publisher's readers is not a happy one, and it is difficult to find one which novel will successfully appeal to the reading public and which will fall. The reader, poor soul, wades through the poor, bad, and indifferent manuscripts, and he considers himself lucky if he discovers a "best seller" once in twelve months.

So, when you send your manuscript to the publishers, don't think too bad of the "reader" if it is turned down.

Jumping to Conclusions.

If you travel on a liner it is wise not to jump to the conclusion that every one who wears a yachting cap is a steward. A passenger on the Baltic asked a passer-by to get him a chair, and rewarded the man with a shilling for doing so. Half an hour later he heard that he had tipped Sir Thomas Lipton! Sir Thomas has been telling the story himself, which is a sign of greatness on his part. Tennyson and the late Duke of Norfolk were also tipped in their time—and bragged about it.

MRS. LEWIN SAYS IT'S WORTH $1,000

Toronto Lady Values Tanlac Highly, Declaring It Ended Stomach Trouble—Gains Nine Lbs.

"I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the good Tanlac has done me, for I would have given that much before I took this wonderful treatment to feel the way I do now," was the positive statement made the other day by Mrs. Matilda Lewin, 12 Strange St., Toronto, Ont.

"I suffered with stomach trouble, general run-down condition, and my nerves were so excited they nearly drove me wild. I ate scarcely enough to keep going, was dreadfully thin and weak, and often had to give up my housework to avoid a breakdown. Gas on my stomach bloated me till I could hardly breathe, I had to rush to the window for air, and seldom got a good night's sleep.

"If I live to be a hundred years old I will always bless the day I started the Tanlac treatment. I have gained nine pounds, am free of indigestion, nervousness and sleeplessness, and my housework is like play. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 25 million bottles sold.

"Capable Fruit."

A young Irishman, shortly after coming to this country, was stopping with a friend of his boyhood now living in New York. One day the friend took him down to have a look at Washington market. Passing a fruitstand, they saw some grapefruit, which the new arrival's friend said were oranges. "My, my," said the other, "but they're big fellows! I'll venture to say, now, it wouldn't take many of them to make a dozen."

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can wish the greatest of pleasure my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVET MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.
