Many Sick Soldiers Die on Their Way Home.

Shafter Says He Has Troops Enough in Santiago.

Church Property at Manila Deeded to a Baltimore Prelate-Spain Figuring on Claiming Compensation for Public Works in Cuba.

DIED ON THE WAY HOME.

New York, Aug. 20 .- The United States hospital steamer Relief arrived here this afternoon from Porto Rico, having on board 248 sick and wounded soldiers from Gen. Miles' army. Ten deaths from typhoid fever occurred on the voyage. Four other deaths from typhoid fever occurred on the Relief The Relief also brought twenty wounded men, including three officers, the most of whom were shot in the battle near Mayaguez on Aug. 10. The total number of cases of typhoid fever on the Relief was 167. Capt. Arthur Lee, British military attache, was a passenger on the United States hospital steamer Relief, which arrived here yesterday afternoon from Porto Rico. Capt. Lee is suffering from intermittent malarial fever. TROOPS ENOUGH IN SANTIAGO. Washington, Aug. 20 .- Gen. Shafter has informed the war department that after consulting with Gen. Lawton, commanding the department of Santiago, it will not be necessary to send any more troops to preserve peace and good order.

The naval base has been changed from Key West to Norfolk, and all the vessels at the former place have been ordered north. The appearance of ten cases of yellow fever caused this order to be issued. Four thousand Spanish troops have already been shipped from Santiago, and the transports Villa Donga and Estrada Panai will leave today with 3,000 more. Six thousand Spaniards at Guantanamo Bay cannot leave before the last of the month. Sickness is inereasing among them.

THE CUBAN DEBT. Madrid, Aug. 20 .- It is rumored that the government will instruct the Cuban commissioners to present a strong case for the recognition of Spain's claim for compensation for the cession of public works in Cuba, the compensation to take the form of saddling upexisting in 1895. The papers advocate the strengthening of Ceuta and Andalusian ports in anticipation of Anglo-

Russian eventualities. Vienna, Aug. 20 .- The papers here predict that complications will arise sian resistance to American annexation.

CATHOLIC CHURCH PROPERTY. Chicago, Aug. 20.-A special from Manila says: All church property in Manila has been deeded, for the consideration of $1, to Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore. The Archbishop of Manila declares himself as having desired peace from the beginning of the war. He denies the authorship of the proclamation attributed to him. The Dominican friars have offered a church to Father Ready, chaplain of the Olympia.

SAGASTA ON THE SITUATION. Madrid, Aug. 20 .- El Liberal publishes remarks made by Senor Sagasta on the diplomatic and positical situation quoting the premier as follows: From a legal point of view, the present state of things is neither peace nor war, but merely a suspension of hostilities. An armistice would have allowed us to dispel better the obscurity of the sit-uation, but the United States declined to agree to our making a step further

The questions to be solved are numerous and complex. What we have done first is to lay down certain bases of which each minister may make any observations which study of the subject suggests. These will continue to be treated in daily cabinet councils, it being held that the bases in question are fundamental instructions for the guidance of the various commisin the forthcoming negotiations, to be supplemented and rectified subsequently by telegraph.

In Cuba, besides evacuation, there are many other problems. Spain may atandon her sovereignty over the Greater Antilles, but there will remain the question of edifices and all our properties. There are law suits before the tribunals affecting the interests of Spaniards. Where and when will these be decided? In Havana, where a large number of criminals have been condemned by Spanish tribunals, what is to be done with them?. Then there are other questions for which we have to fix a basis of discussion and agreement, regarding the Philippines. Be- and after capturing six women and

According to international law, as a suspension of hostilities, such as has been signed, the surrender of Manila ought to have no legal efficacy. How will that principle be understood by the United States? This causes us much anxiety and we give it great attention; but we are still awaiting the information demanded from Gen. Jaudenes, which has not yet reached us on account of the difficulties of communication between Manila and Hong

These remarks have all the appear-Kong. ance of being authentic, as they are in accord with information from other sources and in harmony with Senor Sagasta's usual style. The public is still anxious for an explanation of Governor-General Augustin's mysterious departure from ianila, but its curiosity is not likely to be satisfied for some time, the government declining to say anything. SPAIN'S POLICY OF DELAY.

New York, Aug. 20 .- A Madrid dispatch to the World says: Spain is north today for the Atlin Lake gold studiously preparing to protract the sessions of the joint peace and military commissions for weeks certainly, and for months if possible. Every conceivable point which can be disputed over, legitimate or not, will be raised and discussed to the limit. It evidently is a part of Spain's plan to seek to establish before the Paris peace com-mission a prima facie case with regard to the Cuban debt. She will try to bring out strongly all the points touched upon, so that her commissioners may argue forcibly in favor of requiring Cuba to pay at least a part of the debt incurred prior to 1895. LONDON TIMES' VIEW.

London, Aug. 20.—The Times this and nervous diseases disappear. This morning says editorially that it foresees circumstances which may compel the United States to a permanent occupation of Cuba, and adds: "If America is prepared to undertake the responsi-bility of the government of the whole

Philippine group, it is hard to see how any other power could legitimately in-terfere. If the United States repudiates such responsibility, a very perilous state of things might ensue, because it would not be easy to dispute the right of other powers to terminate the state of anarchy. Therefore, many difficulties might be avoided by American annexation. In any case, no European power might reckon on finding the United States as easy to coerce as Japan. SILVERA'S SAY. Madrid, Aug. 20.-Senor Silvera, now the virtual leader of the Conservatives, expresses the views of that party on the capture of Manila, in the following words: "The capture of Manila in no wise affects the rest of the archimoned with urgency in order to pre-pelago, and the cortes should be sumvent the world gaining the impression that Spain has lost her sovereignty in the Philippines. The Liberal party should conclude peace, but the Sagasta cabinet cannot effect the task.' If the queen regent tenders him an invitation, Senor Silvera is disposed to

on Cuba the bulk of the Cuban debt | Chicago Board of Trade Men May Ask for Removal of Tolls.

> Chicago, Aug. 20.-The Chicago board of trade will be asked by marine men to take action for the removal of the tolls at the Welland Canal. The international convention to settle disputed points between the United States and Canada will begin its session at Quebec on Aug. 23, and it is proposed to have a strong petition from the Chicago Board of Trade and other commercial interests before the convention. It is urged that the removal of the canal tolls will result in greatly increasing the business from the west to Montreal for export, and that the Canadians will gain in the increased traffic much more than they will lose by the abolishment of the tolls, which amount to half a cent per bushel. The change would be of great advantage to the smaller class of vessels, both American and Canadian, which have been forced down to star-vation rates by the construction of the large carriers the past few years. The big fellows are shut out from Welland Canal trade, and the smaller boats would have the field to them-selves. Millions of dollars' worth of vessel property would be greatly enhanced in value by the removal of tolls in this way.

Mr. Hodgens Brings Up the Ram Again.

The Government Bought Four Ewes Not a Ram...The Invoices To Be Pro duced-The Provincial Estimates-The Clinton Bonus.

Toronto. Aug. 20.-In the house yesterday, before proceeding with the orders of the day, Mr. Hodgens rose to a question of privilege regarding the statement made by the provincial secretary Thursday. The newspapers and the provincial secretary appear to be anxious to place it before the country of the Barry family, of Venoste, were that he had made a charge against the government in connectron with the matter. The statement by the provincial secretary that he had said in his written statement that he had imported the ram was, he regretted to say, false. The animal in was registered, the number 544. He also denied that he had made any charge that the animal had been purchased by the government at an ex-orbitant price. He had only asked for information upon the point, and in this connection he called the attention of the provincial secretary to the fact that in the public accounts of the province for 1886 Mr. Glennen had received $150 for the purchase of stock, but with the usual vagueness of the pub-Norfolk, Va., Aug. 19.—There has lished government accounts it was impossible to tell what the purchases were. Before sitting down the honorable gentleman entered a protest against the ridicule which was heaped upon the subject. Hon. Mr. Davis, in reply, stated that the observations which he had made Thursday, and which the honorable member objected to did not apply to anything that the honorable member for East Middlesex had said, but referred entirely to the article in the Mail and Empire. He had read from a written statement given to him by Mr. Hodgens that the animal was imported, and that he had sold it to Mr. J. Glennen in 1885. The honorable gentleman had now, by quoting from the public accounts, sought to make the house and country believe that the item in the public accounts for 1886 represented money paid for the ram to Mr. Glennen. An examination of the vouchers disclosed the fact that the payment in question was for four Hampshire Down ewes. (Government cheers.) Whether the honorable gentleman could take the four ewes together, and to say that a close search of the records of the Agricultural College farm had been made, and there was no record of the animal ever having been purchased from anyone, He also pointed out that the present minister of agriculture was entirely exonerated from blame, as Hon. John Dryden did not become minister of agriculture until years after the date on several which the honorable member for East Middlesex asserts that he saw the animal at the farm. Mr. Hodgens asked that Mr. Glennen's invoices be produced, and the attorney-general said there would be no objection whatever. THE CONSTABLES BILL. The debate on the second reading of the constables bill was brought to a close in the evening, and the vote resulted in the government majority of six, with one supporter absent, being maintained. Several members were paired. The bill has now reached the committee stage.

After the vote Mr. Whitney entered a protest against the vote of those members who were interested in the bill. He cited rule 16 of the house, which declares that no member is entitled to vote on any question on which he has a direct pecuniary interest; also rule 114 (a), which states that if anything shall come into question touching the return or election of any member, he is to withdraw while the matter is under debate. Mr. Whitney read an affidavit to show that petitions had been filed in the cases of the eight constable members, namely, in East Lambton, South Norfolk, West York, the district of Nipissing, Lennox, Muskoka, West Huron and South Perth, and that the seats of these gentlemen were affected, and came within the meaning of the rules of the house. The speaker decided that the protest not placed the matter in his hands in the shape of the required substantive motion. He also said that the members had been duly returned and had taken the oath of office, and it was not for him to sit in judgment upon their qual-

The debate on the constables' bill was resumed by Mr. Carscallen, of Hamilton, who denounced the measure, and claimed that the constable members were sitting as judges on their own cases. He moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Colquhoun, that the bill be not now read, but that the said bill be read a second time six months

Mr. Garrow (Lib., West Huron) characterized the measure as a bill to prevent the Conservative party from committing petty larceny, to prevent the Conservative party, though in a minority, getting oz to the government side of the house under false pretenses. Was it, he asked, not a fair and just thing for the house to remove the doubt regarding the constable vote, once and for all? They all confessed that the constables should be allowed to vote. Why not say so by the law? Then it would prevent a lot of money being spent in costssurely a consideration of vital interest to the sixty odd members who have protests hanging over their heads. Mr. Foy (Con., South Toronto), said the bill was vicious and contrary to sound legislation. Mr. Fov enumerated several objections. He objected that a political party should bolster itself up by changing the law, and at a sesquoted by Mr. Ross. Continuing after recess, Mr. Foy held that provision should be made to limit the number of special constables by appointing them only in cases of necessity. Messrs. Moscript (South Perth), Pyne (East Toronto), Charlton (South Nor-folk) and Kidd (Carleton), followed, and at 10:15 the division was taken. A CLINTON BONUS. Mr Garrow moved, seconded by Mr Pattullo, for leave to introduce a bill confirming the bylaw passed by the town of Clinton to raise 20-year debentures, amounting to $25,000, the amount at W. T. Strong's drug store.

Hundreds of Thousands of Wildly En thusiastic Citizens Take Part-A Grand Pageant.

New York, Aug. 20.-The reception given to Admiral Sampson's squadron by the people of Greater New York today was a magnificent one, and was Long before the sunrise gun was fired at Governor's Island the people were astir and about. Crowds were hurrying to the river to be early on the scene. Long before the time when the ferry boats and street cars are usually crowded, great throngs of people hung on the straps, trod on each other's feet, and journeyed in con-veyances to points along the river front. The New York and New Jersey shores were literally black with people, while the river and bay were thronged with craft, and the craft alive with people, all cheering and good-natured.

There was very little friction in the carrying out of the programme, and no delay. The citizens' committee left the foot of Cortland street on the steamer Glen Island at an early hour, and proceeded down the bay, followed by a long retinue of all sorts and descriptions of craft. At Tompkinsville, the mayor and committee embarked on the flagship New York. The welome ceremonies were short but impressive. The ceremonies over, amid the shricking of steam whistles and the cheers of the throngs, the mayor and the committee returned to the Gen Island. Then came

THE EVENT OF THE DAY. There was considerable wigwagging on the gray batttleships and then the police boats formed in line, and the battleships, at 10:10 a.m., began to slowly move up the bay. The salvo of cannon and the cheers of the people and the toots of thousands of whistles made an indescribable din. Soon the monster pageant was in line. First came Admiral Sampson's flagship New York, then Read Admiral Schley's flagship Brooklyn, then the Massachusetts, the Oregon, the Iowa, the Indiana and the Texas, and after them came a moving mass of all sizes and descriptions of craft with flags waving and people cheering. The great battleships moved slowly and majestically. As Governor's Island was passed there was a tremenyour dous report from the guns that did so much execution at Santiago. The people on shore and affoat fairly went wild. They yelled and screamed, waved flags and jumped up and down in patriotic fervor

The German em pire of today arose out of a strongly felt need of union and of common head, and it reared itself upon the basis of love of fatherland. "I am firmly determined to preserve with all my strength the work of my grandfather and that peace which is so dear to us. This I shall only be able to do if we succeed in maintaining our prestige with our neighbors. To this end the harmony and co-operation of all the German races and the German individuals is necessary.

You may be assured I shall always feel a warm interest in your future and shall do in your behalf all that lies in my power, so that you may be able to uninterruptedly live in civil concord, to conduct your trade and to cultivate your vineyards. I shall always be mindful of the fact that it was from the house of my dear cousin, where I am now a guest, that my grandfather started on his western march, during And so it was all the way to Grant's which, with a firm hammerstroke, he wielded the German empire. Berlin, Aug. 20 .- Herr Eugene Wolff, well-known German explorer, who has just returned from China, where he acted as correspondent of the Tageblatt, is being prosecuted upon a charge of having, without authority, assumed the role of judge, and with having liberated thirteen Chinese murderers of German missionaries. According to the evidence of Bishop Anzer, on which the prosecution is based, Herr Wolff, having heard of the trial, appeared in court with a dog named Schuster. Four vacant Dr. Bruce, of Clinton, Has a Close Call chairs stood in the hall in which the trial was to be held. Wolff seated himself in the most imposing of saying: "I'll take the post, and you,

Agitation in Newfoundland Against the Reid Deal.

St. Johns, Nfid., Aug. 20. - A citizen's meeting was held here in British Hall on Wednesday night for the two-fold purpose of petitioning the Queen to allow Governor Murray to remain and also to withhold her signature from the Reid deal. Many believe that even yet the deal may be staved off, but the principal men think it is too late. Over a thousand persons attended the meeting, and two resolutions framed on the foregoing lines were passed unanimously. These petitions will be forwarded at once to the colonial office. Government supporters here claim that they are from an inside ring of men who support the idea of Governor Murray's retention, believing that from his uncompromising attitude on the Reid deal, which he has openly spoken against, friction will ensue that might lead to the dismissal of the ministry. A large class favor the governor's retention, having full faith in his integrity.

THE SAINTS BEATEN. London's lucky hitting led to vic-tory over the Saints at Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon. The game was practically won in the first inning by one hit, which placed four runs to the oredit of the locals. Kerns, who has hitherto proved a puzzle for the home team was wild at the outset, and by the time he had steadied down the game had literally slipped through his fingers. Both teams lacked singer, and although the errors were few, they were most costly. Hagerman pitched a great game, and if he had had his way the Saints would have been shut out. They were goose-egged for the first seven innings, and when a chance to retire the side was given in the eighth, Keenan threw low to Laroque, giving Tibald a life, and allowing Sheehan to come in. Tibald afterwards scored on Martin's single. The other two runs in the ninth were earned by Pears' single and doubles by Reid and Kerns. After London's lucky first, Kerns twirled in his old-time form. In the second inning Ward scored on Sheehan's error after getting his base on balls and stealing second. The second hit obtained by the locals was Hagerman's home run, and it was a beauty. The ball lit on the bicycle track in the right field, and bounced over the fence, which exirts the track. Pears chased after it and cleared the fence in a jump that landed him in a hollow on the other sight almost out of sight. The ball was returned quickly, but the big twirler was home in plenty of time. Laroque's single and Keenan's double in the eighth made the score 7 runs on 5 hits. Kerns has a manner decidedly too easy in fielding. Had his dignity suf-fered a little when Smink bunted in the first inning, with Meara and Mohler on bases, and he had got after the ball more lively, Laroque's triple would have been at least 33% per cent less valuable. Rodden made a brave stop of a hot liner in the eighth and retired Smink. Kerns had Carey's measure. The center fielder struck three times in succession, the first time without once offering. Busse was the only Saint who dared to attempt a steal, and his failure proved that the others were wise not to make a similar venture with Pete Lohman watching the bases. The

At St. Marys on Thursday, at the end of the sixth, with the score 5 to 2 in favor of the Lucan Irish Nine, the final result was still in doubt. D. McNicholl, passenger traffic manager of the C. P. R., has returned to Montreal from a meeting of the pas-senger officials of lines east of New York, held for the purpose of trying to restore rates, which are in 1. 1 omewhat demoralized condition at present. W. E. Davis, general passenger agent of the G. T. R., was also at the meeting. The gathering did not represent any particular association, but was a special gathering of all the lines interested. It had no satisfactory result, how ever, and the gathering broke up to meet again later on. Speaking of condition of things in the west, Mr. McNicholl stated that the rate from Chicago to St. Paul was now practically $5. Shortly after the recent meeting of the interstate commerce commission an open rate of $8 vas announced, but now it is down to the first-named figure. Mr. McNicholl considers that the existing state of affairs is an evidence of the hollowness of their claim that the C. P. R. was the cause of the passenger rate war. The earnings of 131 roads for the seven months ended July 31 show a gross increase of $30.007,892, and a gross decrease of $184,448, leaving the net gross gain $29,823,444. Only fourteen roads of the 131 decreased gross earnings in that period. The largest increase shown by any one system was the Northern Pacific, which gained $2,-681,916. St. Paul ranked second. with a gain of $1,832,697, and then, in the order named, Canadian Pacific, $1,800,tion, $1,370,564; Southern Railway, $1,-238,370, and Wabash, $1,100,830. Quite a number of other roads showed a large or larger increases, but they do not publish weekly earnings, and the monthly statements have not been received up to the end of July. It is obvious that the large systems show the largest gains, and that the mileage gain of a small system may have been relatively larger. It seems clear enough, however, that the Northwest has been especially prosperous during the last seven months, although it is also true that the decreases reported in July included St. Paul, Canadian Paci-

Powderly Talks About the U.S. Alien Law-No Deportation Since His

Appointment. Montreal, Aug. 20.—Terence V. Powderly, United States commissioner-general of immigration, and formerly head of the Knights of Labor, who was in-Montreal Thursday, stated that it was the intention while in the city to lock closely into the question of making Montreal an immigrant station. This, of course, will only be with the approval of the Canadian Government, but as it has always agreed to other ports being so named, there is little doubt, so Mr. Powderly thinks, of obtaining permission. Speaking of the alien labor question, which will be one of the subjects discussed at the Quebec conference, Mr. Powderly says that, strange as it might seem, the framers of the Alien Labor law did not intend that Canadians should be included in the scope of its operations. To prove that what he said was correct, Mr. Powderly 323; Missouri Pacific, $1,721,802; Great of Mr. John S. McLennan, of St. Cath-Northern, $1,694,133; Oregon Naviga-rines, and secretary of the executive board of the Knights of Labor, formed one of the deputation that had visted Washington for the purpose of getting the bill passed through congress. The bill had been asked for in order that the importation of men in bodies from foreign countries to the United States might be stopped. It had so happened that in several strikes in the United States the strikers had not been able to make an effective resistance against their employers because the latter had been able to import men from other countries to take their places. THE INTENTION. The Alien Labor law was framed for the purpose of preventing a repetition of this condition of affairs. There was not the slightest intention on the part of its framers to exclude Canadians from the States, so long as they came over individually and not collectively. The deputation that visited Washington never dreamt for a single minute of preventing a Canadian from accepting a positon in the States, even if he had procured such position before leaving Canada. The bill chiefly had been directed against Belgian workmen who had come to the United States under contract with firms then having differences with their American work-Mr. Powderly stated, however, that the provisions of the Alien Labor law were very strict, and, unfortunately, several American judges had been inclined to base their judgments on the strict letter of the law without taking into consideration the intentions of its framers. That was why so many misunderstanings had arisen between the United States and Canada over the subject. Since he has been appointed United States commissioner, however, there has been no deportations, and during the past year Canadians have been permitted to enter the United States under contract. Moreover, the per capita tax of $1, which all foreigners had to pay into the United States treasury before entering the States, was not demanded from Canadians. 'We virtually recognize you as one with ourselves in the development of this great continent," said Mr. Powderly, "and we are anxious that the best of feeling should prevail between the Canadians and ourselves."

IMMIGRATION FALLING OFF. wonderful success in ingenious and valuable adaptations of the underlying principles of piano construction. IMMIGRATION FALLING OFF.

Mr. Powderly said that he was sorry to say that immigration from the British Isles and Germany to the United States was rapidly falling off. Most of the immigrants now arriving come from Hungary and Italy. The effect of the war on immigration had been very marked, the decrease being tremen-

Strange But True.

That an American ambassador who has made himself personally agreeable both to the British Government and to the British people should be transferred to a high place in the Government of his own country, and no popular commotion ensue, seems, when thus baldly stated, to be a strange subject for wonder and newspaper comment. One would suppose it to be one of the most natural and proper things in the world. What better training could a man of known ability and integrity have for such an office as that of secretary of state in his own country, than to have successfully filled so responsible a position as that of ambassador at one of the most powerful courts in Christendom? And yet the comment is well-founded. The fact that Ambassador Hay's withdrawal from the embassy in London and his appointment to the high office referred to at Washington, is at the same time deeply regretted in England and generally approved in the United States is really significant-not of any change in the tone or attitude of the British Government or people, for several of Colonel Hay's predecessors have been very popular in England, but certainly in those of a portion of the politicians and people of the United States. It would be too much to hope, we suppose, that any change has really taken place in the hostility of a certain foreign element in the rebublic to everything British. It would be equally useless to expect | ing sold to the Agricultural College. that any act of friendship on the part | Mr. Hodgens says he saw it there of the British Government and people twelve years ago. All rams look alike should tend in any considerable de- to most people, and it may have been gree to prevent that weakness, to use a case of mistaken identity-a wild, no stronger term, which causes a cer- woolly apparition. Exit the ram! tain not inconsiderable class of American politicians, including senators and members of the House of Representatives, to mould their politics and their ples with a view to catch the popular vote. But while it is true that we cannot hope that any great change of mind and heart has taken place in these quarters, this but makes the fact under consideration the more significant of change in the other and still more influential classes of Americans who are really the rulers of the nation. There can be no doubt that the feelings of the true, intelligent, representative Americans toward their kinsmen of Anglo-Saxon origin have undergone a marked change since the breaking out of the war, now happily concluded. These have found out by an unmistakable test where their true friends are. May we not hope that they have also found out who are the true representatives of those great principles of self-government and goodwill of which they have hitherto been so ready to believe, without due thought of investigation, that they themselves held a monopoly? One of the shallowest and most indefensible mistakes of the American people in the past has been their singular readiness to assume, many of them, we dare say, to believe, that because Great Britain held fast to a form of monarchical government, there was really no broad, radical difference between the principles, influence and aims of the mighty democracy, which the nation has long been in reality, and the narrow absolutisms which nearly all the other considerable nations of Europe still constitute.

the Dominion Government brought in the new tariff in 1897, providing for preferential trade with gress in the tenth district of Michi-Great Britain, Sir Charles Tupper bitterly assailed the measure, asserting that the reduction in the tax burdens of the people were so sweeping that Canadian industries would be ruined. In view of actual and ascertained results, the lamentations of this Canadian El Mahdi make queer reading at the present date. Said the Opposition

"Now, what is the result? The result is that this tariff goes into operation, and the honorable gentleman knows that the industries of this country are paralyzed in consequence. inflicted upon this country. It would have been bad enough if the nonorable gentlemen had gone to the country with a frank avowal that they were in favor of what they had declared to be their policy for long years previ-ously; it would have been bad enough if they had been able to get a major pledged to sweep away these industries and to destroy the policy that had schieved so much for Canada; but to obtain power by the solemn declaration made publicly and privately all over this country that no harm would come to the manufacturing industries, that not a hair of their heads should be touched, that in fact their rights would be protected and their position would be improved, because they were oing to have their raw material free. al was to be made free-I say that der these circumstances I can unstand how indignant the people of this country will feel at the outrage that has been inflicted upon them, not by a fair, open and manly declaration, but by false pretenses, under the guise of solemn declarations that no harm would be done to the industries of this country. They are showing this country. They are showing the people of this country that, having obtained power, which was all they wished, they are now prepared to abuse that power at the cost of the sacrifice of the industries of Canada."

That Ram Again.

It is necessary to apologize for referring again to Mr. Hodgens' ram. Aftertheexplanation by the Provincial Secretary, it should be retired to private life along with the other zoological relies of the Opposition, but the Mail and Empire tries to cover the retreat by telling this story, which is about as distorted as the bony

"It seems that the Government bought a ramshackle old ram from a friendly politician at an exorbitant figure, and then when Mr. Hodgens was running in Middlesex, its election agents falsely represented that Mr. Hodgens was the vendor, and that he had boodled in connection with the transaction. * * * What shall be said of politicians who blame their own sins 1886 upon a Conservative candidate

As we had occasion to point out pefore, the ram was turned loose on the electors of East Middlesex by Mr. Hodgens himself. No one had heard of before, and no one accused Mr. Hodgens of wrong-doing in connection therewith. The campaign was free from personalities, and was conducted by both candidates with praiseworthy moderation. The ram was Mr. Hodgens' platform hobby' and having ridden it well thought it might butt him into political prominence in a larger field. But the ram became a laughing stock, and now Mr. Hodgens tries to crawl under the barn, by claiming he was only protecting himself against charges of boodling.

The Provincial Secretary says there are no records of any such animal be-

Mr. Powderly declares that the American alien labor law was never intended to apply to Canadians. This discovery has been made since Canada passed an alien labor law of her own.

The constables bill has reached the committee stage, which will prove a mighty slow coach if the Opposition have their way. The Government will be justified in over-riding deliberate obstruction.

It is to be hoped there at truth in the report that Russia is dickering with Spain for a coaling station in the Philippines. This is calculated to rouse the ire of the Americans, who rightly regard the Philippines as their property. A nice little diplomatic row between Russia and the United States would help things along wonderfully in the East. It would throw John Bull and Uncle Sam together, sure.

Judge Maxwell, of Bay City, a possible Democratic candidate for Con-gan, said in a recent interview: "If the Canadians put an export duty on logs, Bay City, Saginaw, Tawas, Alpena and Cheboygan will see . their lumber business destroyed as effectualas if every sawmill was burned to It is important that a the ground. congressman be chosen from this district who can influence a modification of the tariff on logs or a reciprocity treaty in regard to them."

Judge Maxwell seems to have the right sow by the ear. Here's hoping he will be nominated and elected.

Much interest has been taken by many Advertiser readers in the letter on affairs in the east, printed in The Advertiser the other day. For the information of certain parties who professed to see something odd in the fact that the letter purported to be from a gentleman resident in China, whereas it was dated from Yokohama, let us say that we were perfectly aware of the fact that Yokohama is in Japan; but we did not think that anyone in these days of enlightenment needed to be told that it was quite possible for a resident of China to reach a near-by island and to pen a letter from one of

LIGHT AND SHADE.

EARLY SABBATH MORNING. In dear old days up country, Before I went from home. Oh, very sweet and saintly Did the Sabbath morning come, With footsteps hushed and quiet, Whatever wind might blow, And I'd hear father singing As he walked to and fro.

The fragment of a hymn-tune tender lilting air Would early as the dawnlight Come floating up the stair-Now martial and triumphant, Now soft and sighing low, But I'd know 'twas father singing As he walked to and fro.

And in the darkened parlor. When he had knelt to prav And crave for us a blessing At the very break of day, I'd hear his dear voice lifted From his pure heart aglow, And it hallowed Sabbath morning,

As he walked to and fro. Long years have passed since father Sang in those quiet hours; He's found the happy country And the fields of fadeless flowers, But still on Sabbath mornings

I wake, and soft and low, I yet can hear him singing As he walks to and fro. -Margaret E. Sangster in The Youth's

A Remarkable Cure of Sore Eyes And Sight Restored.

I am a graduate of Oberlin College, taught long enough after I graduated to have them give me the Honorary degree, and I have a great many acquaintances in and around Boston. About three years ago my son brought home a box of CUTICURA (ointment), and I picked up the circular that was around it, and earned about the CUTICURA SOAP, and told him to get me a cake. When I got it, the circular advised its use for the bath, teeth, scalp, etc. I had been a great sufferer all my life from sore eyelids, the whole lid outside and in was red as a beet. I had to sit in a dark room, evenings, for eight and a half years, and wear ek spectacles to keep the sun from my eyes in the daytime. When I got the CUTICURA SOAP, I got a fine, soft cloth, dipped it in hot water and rubbed it on the soap and washed my eyes with it. I can't tell you how much it has done me, although it smarted very much at first. My eyes are as clear and bright as when I was a young lady. I had to go backwards in getting spectacles and wear No. 15, the same as I did twenty years ago, I can read medium sized print in daylight without any spectacles. As a matter of course I am kind of a walking advertisement of CUTICURA. People will call to me when I am going along street and tell me how much good my CUTICUBA SOAP has done their eyes. Mrs. M. R. We cannot, of course, anticipate how CUTICURA BOAP will work in cases similar to the above, but to those who desire to try it we would suggest beginning with a very weak solution or " suds" of warm water and CUTICURA SOAP until its on is determined. CANADIAN CANALS

To Be Improved-A 14-Foot Waterway to the Sea.

Ottawa, Aug. 20 .- It is the determination of the government to have the 14foot system of navigation between the lakes and seaboard completed by next summer. The Welland, Cornwall and Lachine canals are ready, but work on the artificial waterways, between Prescott and the upper end of the Cornwall canal and also on the Soulanges canal, which will complete the link, is still in progress.

Many sections of these unfinished portions are all advanced, but to carry out the policy of early completion of the whole it is necessary that there should be no lagging on the part of any of the contractors. In this connection the government has expropriated a portion of A. Stewart's quarry at Rockland, from which stone has been

Those who have used the old fashioned powder dyes will appreciate what the introduction of MAYPOLE SOAP, the modern home-dye, means to the housewife. Where formerly the result of dyeing was attended with grave uncertainty, and often with complete failure, uniform and unvarying success is now assured, if MAYPOLE SOAP be used. Many things about the house one would not wish to risk spoiling may now be treated to a dye bath without any misgivings, furthermore when dyed they will not present that common, dead, re-dyed appearance characteristic of the work of powder dyes. The complete doing away with the mess incident to the use of other forms of dyes is in itself sufficient to popularize MAYPOLE SOAP.

GENERAL GORDON'S SEAL. The seal which General Gordon used on all the documents he signed while shut up in Khartoum had a history, which is narrated in the "Life of Chauncy Maples," missionary bishop of Likoma, East Central Africa. While at Cairo, the bishop stopped at the house of a friend named Floyer, of whom he writes: Floyer had seen a great deal of Gen. Gordon, and showed me one very interesting letter-the last he received from him. The occasion of it was interesting. Floyer had volunteered to prepare Gordon a seal with his name in Arabic characters upon it. For this purpose he chose an old coin, which he partially melted and refashioned. The Cost About $25,000,000-Will Irrigate Hundreds of Miles of Land.

After some centuries of discussion and planning the Nile is at last to be dammed. The plans have been completed for some time, and as soon as the season's floods have subsided the contractors will have several hundred men busy on the stonework at Assouan. The man who is to have the direction of the work is Sir Benjamin Baker. Sir Benjamin is ready to start for Assouan, where he will assume personal direction of the undertaking. In discussing the matter a few days ago he hazarded the prediction that by the beginning of the twentieth century the first steamer would pass through the locks into the reservoir on its way to the Upper Nile. Whatever difficulties may be encountered in the work, it probably will not take so long as it has for the khedive and his French advisers to make up their minds to Assouan is the site of quarries which furnished stone for many tombs in the days of the Ptolemies. The granite which will form the masonry work of the new dam was cut out of the hills thousands of years ago, and has stood here ever since. The same quarry which supplied the material for the temples of Philae, 3,000 years later will furnish granite for a new twentieth century wonder. These temples of Philae have formed one of the chief difficulties, though not an engineering difficulty, in respect of the dam's construction. The first cataract consists of a scattered mass of small islands and rocks, and it is across this seattered stone heap that that dam, a mile and a quarter wide, 40 feet broad and 70 feet high, is to be constructed. This is a modification of the original plan. which would have made the top of the dam 36 feet higher. The effect of the dam as at present conceived will be to submerge the nearer islands only, but as originally planned it would at flood time, or "high Nile," have submerged the Island of Philae, a mile up stream, and the temples on the Island of Philae are of immense interest to the architect and the archaeologist. They are splendid examples of the Ptolemaic

As to the importance of the work, from the engineer's point of view. Sir Benjamin says:

"The colossal character of the great dam will be apparent when it is stated that the flood discharge of a river a mile wide and 30 feet deep, flowing at high velocity, must pass through the dam's sluices at the rate of 15,000 tons of water per second-900,000 tons a minute-more than 50,000,000 tons of water an hour! At times the water will be dammed back & feet above its pressed level and for a distance of 144 miles above the dam. "The Nile at Assouan by no means fulfills the popular conception of a cataract. The river is broken up by innumerable islands-some of them of considerable acreage, but the great majority mere rocks, which are submerged at flood time-into myriad shallew water courses. At one or two A Great British Project Which places the water runs deep and fast between the islands, but for the greater part of the width of the river the channels between the islands carry only a trickle of water during the dry season. It is upon this foundation of earthwork which were cut or breached small islands that the dam will be at the top when the water was high built. So far as strength and economy of foundation are concerned the site | wasteful. The barrage at Koshesheh alleaves nothing to be desired. The rock throughout is hard, compact syenite or quartz diorite, and the river is so wide and shallow that the foundations | by 60 double arches. Each of these of the larger part of the dam can be put in dry. The under sluices will be built upon reefs projecting over the water surface, both in summer and winter, so that the foundations will be open to annual inspection-a most impertant advantage when so many interests depend upon the stability and endurance of the work. It will be a splendid thing to look at-stretching a mile and a quarter from shore to shore, of a compact granite, a huge mass 70 feet high at its lowest point, and its crest 320 feet above the lowest water level of the river below the cataract. "A carriage road, 30 to 40 feet wide will be driven across it from the east to the west bank of the Nile, and on its western side will stretch a chain of locks, leading from the upper to the lower river. The locks will be 150 feet long each, capable, therefore, of taking a good-sized steamer, and will be of an average height of 50 feet. The archipelago of islands will disappear, the tops of the hills on the larger islands will just appear above its surface, and the temples of Philae will rise out of a wide placid lake instead of appearing as now when tourists visit it at low Nile, insignificant and in a hollow.

To the Egyptian administrator the chief concern is in the money value of the new dam to the country, and in this respect it makes a most favorable showing. In a land which, in Sir Gardner Wilkinson's phrase, "positively screams for water," its worth can scarcely be over-estimated. With its supplementary dams and barrages at Assiout and near Kasheshat, it will increase the present cultivated area of Egypt by 600,000 acres and bring under constant cultivation the whole of that proportion of the 5,000,000 acres in Egypt which is now under yearly irrigation only. The supply of water needed for this purpose, according to Mr. Willcock's calculation, 4s 3,610,000,000 cubic centimetres flowing at a maximum rate of 630 metres a second over the whole line of the district affected. The money advantages of the scheme day be expressed by saving that the direct annual return to the state will be £850,000; that the increased value of land in Egypt will be £46.198.000: that the increase to annual produce will be £16,612,000 and to annual rent £5,390,-900. These estirates leave out of account the increased value of land and crops owing to increased facilities of navigation. Sir Benjamin Baker's view is expressed in the words: "The profit resultant from the works it is difficult to overestimate, as the value of the crops will be increased about £6 an acre over the whole area affected.

The cost of the dam itself was cal-

Benjamin Baker to be some £1,900,000, and this was an estimate that has been practically accepted by the contractors. Messrs. John Aird. But to this estimate have to be added the cost of supplementary dams and barrages at Assiout and at the other place which Sir Benjamin Baker has indicated, 231 miles nearer to Cairo. The exact form of these dams is not yet determined, cut the barrages which will be part of them will be similar to that at Koshesheh already existing. The modern masonry barrages are the substitute for the old-time "Khaleegs" or dams of enough, and were dangerous and ready existing is 273 yards long and is' practically a wall of masonry running by the side of the river and pierced arches is fitted with an upper and lower iron gate, and they permit the rising Nile to overflow into a reservoir which is 800,000 acres in extent and has a depth of three feet. This lake feeds the irrigation canals.

The great scheme is to cost altogether about £5,000,000, which is to be paid by the Egyptian Government in yearly installments extending over 30 years, and is not to begin to be paid until the receipts from the reservoir afford a margin of profit.

How Letters Are Delivered in Various Countries.

Many Strange Types-The Snowshoe Postm en of Norway-British Columbia Carriers-Japanese and Italians.

The postal delivery service of the world is one of the wonders of nineteenth century achievements in government, and of the armies that comprise its complicated human machinary, the postman is perhaps the most interesting personality. The world's postmen may be divided into two classes—first, the well-uniformed ones tal examinations, speed and endurance who make the house to house distributions in the cities; second, the long distance bearers of mail packs who serve communities remote from transportation highways. The latter are fewer in numbers, but more picturesquely interesting.

WONDERFUL FEATS OF STRENGTH.

On Norwegian shoes some snowshoe postmen have been known to pack in a day 150 pounds of mail, ascending from 8,500 feet to the bleak objectless altitudes of 13,000 and 14,000 feet and down again to 7,000 and 14,000 feet and down again to 7,000 or 8,000 on the other side. As the distance traveled would not exceed thirty miles it may be imagined how this particular kind of postman has to climb and slide. In the support with the disappearance the summer, with the disappearance of snow he usually has a regular zigzag

The newest border postman of American type is the one who follows the Eskimo mail car of the polar circle, his dogs the only animate beings he sees through the great stretches of ice and snow. Many years ago, after the navigation of the Colorado River by flat-boats had developed considerable commerce, odd postman's service was established particularly for the benefit of the army detachments stationed along the river. The mail was brought to the mouth of the river on the regular steamships. By river-boat it was three days to Fort Yuma, the first point of settlement inside the American line.

THE COCOPAH CARRIERS. Big Cocopan bucks, built like Olympian prize-takers, were the postmen organized to defeat the steamboats.
The distance to Fort Yuma, the first relay on the river route, was fifty miles by trail over the Sanore desert, where by trail over the Sonora desert, where blistering, strangling simoons were of common occurrence in the summer months. The heat at all times on this desert stretch is tropical, yet the Cocopah postman rarely failed to trot the distance in a day with 25 pounds of mail, thus beating the steamboat two days. The river trip was lengthened by the incredible curves of the channel. No white man ever ventured the Cocopah postman's contract, though it represented a goodly sum of money.

In some respects the Cocopah postman of the Colorado desert, who made his astonishing trip only at infrequent intervals, and stripped to his coppertanned hide, with his hair matted on top of his head in baked mud, is resembled by one of the picturesque postroutes where the use of mail carts is week is the maximum. The runner's load ranges in weight from 40 to 60 pounds; for distances less than 40 miles he is required to average four when, on account of his doctorate miles he is required to average four miles an hour, and three miles, when the distance is greater. An odd method of carrying the mail placed in a kind of catamaran, astride which the postman has to sit, while he at the same time navigates the mail transport and battles with sharks. Peasants carry the mails through the jungles of India, and across swolor torrential streams the mail bags are pulled on slung ropes. The slowest postmen are in Corea. They serve with ox carts. It is insisted, however, that the slowest delivery is in Turkey. There sacks containing the letters of the people often lie for weeks at a distribution office, until the local cadi finds it convenient to hand them over to the lowest bidder, who will un-dertake to deliver them within a specified time to the local cadi of the town for which they are destined. Almost for which they are destined. Almost without exception these delivery contracts are violated by the vagabond postmen, who loiter along visiting relatives. HOW JAPANESE MAIL IS CAR-

RIED. The coolie postmen of Japan are counted among the speediest and carry very good average loads, suspended from the bamboo pole which they bal-ance across their shoulder. But the cutest of all postmen are the dogs on the eastern slope of the Caspian Mountains, who are sent down to the postoffice towns of the plains with the tax collector, peddler, or anyone who chances to be going that way. The mail is placed in a pouch depending from dog's collar, and immediately he makes the dust fly in his tracks for

The difference in the regulation costume of the postman is so striking as to point plainly the national and climatic influences in taste. The Barbaloes postman has two uniforms. Dur-ing the three hot months he wears un-bleached cotton twill, with red facings, and the remaining nine he is attired in blue serge. His headgear is a hel-met. He takes the mail to the back-

However, he does better than the Viennese and Roman. All the Finland postmen are linguists, speaking at least Finnish, Swedish and Russian. They dress warmly, in long boots of thick leather, long, heavy coats and skull caps. The postmen of Denmark receive less pay than those of Norway, the annual salary running from $220 to $270. Just the same, they are said to be a fine lot of public servants. Roumanian postmen have a handsome uniform of dark blue cloth, with gilt buttons and green collar and cuffs. The uniforms of the continental postmen are mostly slight modifications of military patterns.

GEORGE EBERS

Death of a Noted Egyptologist-An In teresting Career.

The death of Dr. Georg Ebers, whose novels of Egyptian life have delighted so many readers, has just been announced from Munich. Ebers was born 61 years ago in Berlin and from early childhood was accustomed to the artistic and student life of the Prussian capital. His father, who was a banker, died before he was born, and left his estate greatly diminished, though the family was by no means poor. The mother was a native of Holland and between her and the son Georg there always existed the warmest affection She was a woman, besides, of rare beauty and of great attractiveness, and was admired by such men as Hegel, Humboldt and Schleiermacher. Ebers' earliest schooling was got from his mother and later he was sent to the celebrated Froebel's school at Keilhau. Through his association with artists quired a great interest in art, especially sculpture. He was a frequenter of many studios, from which some of the finest of modern work has come, and in after years he even put many of the workers in his novels. In due time he entered the University of Berlin and there developed a taste for This is Egyptology, which was increased rapthe native of Natal. Ordinarily, he does not cumber himself with clothes, although the government gives him a military great coat and cape. This trip was of Coromandel. Waterproof bags are made memorable by the discovery of the Papyrus E, which was subsequently named after him. This papyrus, although its contents relate principally to medical subjects, is amportant through the revelations it makes to the language and culture of the ancient Egyptians. Later Ebers discovered the biographical inscription of the Amen em Nab. In 1876 he suffered from an attack of paralysis, which prevented him thereafter from walking. He now seriously turned his attention to writing and produced his novels. His first work of fiction was "An Egyptian Princess," which appeared in 1864, and to the composition of which he was urged by his lasting friend, Moritz Hartmann. After his illness he produced first "Uarda," which at once achieved extraordinary success. His other books have since appeared at more or less frequent intervals.

HAVANA CIGARS

When the war with Spain was first declared the Sun informed its readers who smoked fine imported and domestic Havana cigars that there was no immediate scarcity in sight, and that if they patronized dealers of standing would probably not suffer from This has proved to be any famine. correct. Even now while the stocks in the hands of our leading importers are by no means a matter of the past, there is a prospect of more cigars to come. Three weeks ago the steamer Myrtledene came into this port with 576 cases of Havana cigars on board, these re-presenting about 5,760,000 cigars, and of these there was about 1,000,000 remaining in the hands of the New York importers, the remainder going to It follows, therefore, that if we could Europe. It is said on good authority keep the kidneys in a state of perfect that as soon as this shipment was safely on its way the factories immediately started to work in Havana, and tween 9 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m., has been received that the Norwegian steamer Bergen has cleared from Sagua for St. Thomas with quite a number of passengers and a matter of 5,000,000 cigars and 23,000 cigarettes, ly and that other shipments are in preparation.

Of the correctness of this information there is no reason to doubt. There is also said to be a quantity of highgrade leaf tobacco which is now in Havana ready for shipment, fully matured, which will be shipped very shortly by the same route, probably going to Europe and then transhipped to the United States. The goods are sent from Havana by wagon to the nearest railroad point, and then by rail Grande, on the north coast of Cuba, and then shipped. They are said to be sent out at manufacturer's rick without out at manufacturer's risk without bills of lading, the manufacturer being content to trust his consignees until there is a chance to pay. Under any circumstances there appears no searcity in sight of highgrade Havana goods, although there may be an advance in prices from time to time, according to the stocks of raw material received. It is estimated that there is a matter of enough tobacco in Havana today to last the American factories owning it for over another year.-New York Sun.

QUEER COLONY

Rules Which Govern a Settlement of Australians in South America.

One of the strangest colonies in the world is probably that of Cosme, founded in Paraguay by colonists of English blood from Australia.

The property of the colonists is all held in common and all their work is done in common-cultivating, building, housekeeping—but each family may occupy a house by itself. There is no currency but labor, and every colonist has to give the colony 86 hours labor a week. If he works longer he establishes a labor credit which he can draw on at any time. Only teetotallers are accepted as colonists. A single man may put in extra labor to provide himself with a house on his marriage. If labor to his credit is not sufficient the colony will allow him an overdraft to a certain amount. He could have as large a house as he chooses, although he would be con-sidered foolish to have a larger possession than he needs.

Having paid for his house he can draw upon his surplus labor for anything else he requires, or he can use his leisure for cultivating his garden or any other private purpose. While the house has been built by the man's labor he cannot, however, sell it. It is only his to occupy.

Cosme does not want single men, although single women would be welcome, being scarce, as in most new communities. The women are occu-pled with knitting, sewing, washing and other womanly occupations, but when a woman is married the colony makes no more claim upon her. She is doing all that the community requires in managing her house and at-tending to her children. Men are married at 21, women at 18. There is no religious service, but the community lives on the Ten Commandments and on its own ethical principles. "SHAKESPEARE'S YEAR."

It is not easy to diagnose the state of literary health while the symptoms are upon us, and, as a mater of fact, no one, so far as I am aware, has noted that we are passing through a complete crisis of Shakespearianism. But it is true; and the concentrated activity of Shakespeare scholars in 1898 has been so remarkable that I, in my and impassioned study of a poet who seemed almost hopelessly hackneyed, weighed to the ground under the terrible apparatus of the commentators, is a very striking phenomenon. Here we have a writer so over-written, and over-expounded (one might have said) that it was impossible to produce a new sensation regarding him, and, behold! a fresh class of students rises who treat his glorious works as if they were reading them for the first time.

This, indeed, is what strikes me as uniting in a common purpose the otherwise very dissimilar and even,on minor points, opposed critics and historians to whose labors I am about to draw attention in some detail. All of them approach their great theme as some farmer on the slopes of Vesuvius might visit his field after an eruption. It seems hopeless at first; here is the spot, indeed, but all is covered with scoriae and dust, all is hidden with light and volatile matter steadily super-imposed. It would be madness to waste top dreasings on that white and sterile coat of ash, and the Italian farmer (s tempted to leave the place altogether and seek fresh land. But he does better—he removes the scoriae—it is surprising how light they are—and he finds the rich fields beneath practically unhurt.—From "Shakespeare in 1898," by Edmund Gosse in the North American Review for August.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet Said To Be Engaged to William Waldorf Astor-Lucky Matrimonial Family.

Among the acquaintances of Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, of New York, it has long been an acknowledged fact that she is by all odds the cleverest matchmaker in American society. By all accounts she has now scored her greatest triumph, her widowed daughter, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, being, it is said, engaged to William Waldorf Astor, the expatri-ated American millionaire. Mrs. Wilson's sons and daughters have married into the richest, and, from a social point of wlew, most eminent families in New York society, but the news from London of Mrs. Goelet's engagement is of more profound interest than the announcement of any other mar-riage among her children. Twenty persons own 17 per cent of all the real estate in New York city. Of that 17 per cent the Astors own over half, or $180,000,000, according to assessed valuation. The estate left by Mr. Ogden Goelet when he died on board his yacht in England last August was about $35,-000,000, also largely in realty, so that an enormous whole will result from the union of the two fortunes. Mrs. Goelet is a handsome woman, with two minor children, aged 17 and 18 respectively. Their father's will provides that the greater portion of his estate be allowed o accumulate until his children reach the age of 25, when half will be given to each. One of them, Miss May, has already attracted attention by reason of her reported engagement to the English Duke of Manchester. The young duke was undoubtedly a suitor, but Mr. Goelet absolutely vetoed all idea of a union. Mrs. Goelet has an income of $150,000 a year for life from the estate, besides owning a town house and a French chateau at Newport, and several other valuable pieces of property. As the wife of William Waldorf Astor she will have an income which ambition will find it difficult to outstrip. As the assessed value of Mr. Astor's property in New York city is $110,000,000, it is easy to imagine that $200,000,000 is considerably below its actual value. Redoubtable have been the matchmaking triumphs already scored by Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, who is now said to have arranged a marriage between her daughter and Mr. Astor. Her eldest son, Marshall Orme Wilson, married Miss Caroline, daughter of the late William Astor, who had a dowry of $10,000,000; her eldest daughter, Miss May, is Mrs. Ogden Goelet; another daughter, Miss Grace, two years ago married Cornelius Vanderbilt, to great displeasure of the latter's father. Miss Belle married Michael Henry Herbert, brother of the English Earl of Pembroke. This was more a social than a financial alliance, as it brought the Wilson family into close relationship with one of the most distinguished families in England. Richard T. Wilson, father of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, was born in Georgia in 1831. After receiving a common school education he went to Knoxville, Tenn., where he started in the grocery business on a very small scale. His wife Macon, Ga. rose to be commissioner general of the confederacy, and while in the employ of that body abroad he laid the foundations of his fortune. After the war he came to New York, and went into business as a banker. He is reputed now to be worth $8,000,000. His wife showed her capacity for leadership at a period when New York society was passing through a stage of evolution which has given us the "400" and the wonder of the civilized world. marriage of her sons and daughters has been one unbroken series of triumphs, as already enumerated.

Perhaps few people understand that feather pillows should be occasionally freshened. In summer the pillows and bolsters from the various beds in the house should every few weeks be laid in the hot sunshine. An Almond-Eyed Lady Gives a Rude American a Crushing Reply.

A Chicago woman who has just returned from a visit to the Omaha Exposition tells of an incident which happened in the Chinese village of how a woman of the Flowery Kingdom rebuked a visitor for her rudeness. The party were gazing with wonder on the Chinese belles who are residents of the village. The little feet of the Chinese women were gazed upon with mingled feelings of astonishment and commiseration. Finally one of the visitors, who had no idea that the Chinese wo men understood or could speak English, said:

"It is positively brutal to squeeze the feet of those poor women like that." "Yes, and such a thing would be allowed only in a heathen land," remarked another visitor.

One of the Chinese women arose, bowed gracefully, and said: "Yes, Chinese women squeeze their feet, but I never knew a Chinese woman to deform her body by tight lac-

She had no strength and could not sleep at night, often having to sit in a rocking chair all night on account of the shortness of breath. She finds no difficulty in walking down town and back, something she was unable to do for many months. OUR SHORT STORY

"A Tender Ideal."

"Who in the world are the Holm-sure. Let me thank you for accepting my invitation. It is pleasant to meet eses?" said I, letting fall on my lap the note I had just opened. "The Holmeses?" queried my husband sleepily from the hammock. "Have you found acquaintances away off here?"

"Not at all," replied I; "that is the mystery. I never heard of them." And I read the note aloud:

'Dr and Mrs. Holmes would be pleased to have Professor and Mrs. White take supper with them on Wednesday next, at 6."

"Mrs. Mackenzie will tell us," said my husband, as our landlady appeared, and again I inquired, "Who are the olmeses?"

"Ah!" said Mrs. Mackenzie, smiling; "are you invited there?"
"We are, indeed, and I am sure they are perfect strangers to us. Do you know them? Do they live here, or

"I know them well," said my land-lady, "and when I tell you about them you will want to accept their invita-tion, I am certain. They are Virgin-ians," she continued, settling herself comfortably in a rocker, "and they came here ten years ago. He is a doctor, and a first-class one, too. He had a splendid practice and lots of friends and a lovely home—some peo-ple who knew them in the South told me so-and were as happy as two people could be, when all at once his wife's mind began to go. He traveled with her and doctored her and did everything for her, but she grew worse and worse. She isn't violent, you see; she is as quiet and gentle as can be, only she gets things mixed; she seems to think backward, as you may say. And then she loves to recite. She wants to speak pieces all the time. Things she learned in school, you know, when she was a girl. And the doctor, he just humors her in everything. He brought her here to Mackinaw to be quiet, thinking she might get well where the air is so good and nothing excites or worries her. And here they live all and she drives around with him on his calls, and I guess, after all, they pretty happy."

But," ejeculated I, in amazement, "all this makes this invitation the stranger! Surely he does not want outsiders to see his poor wife and know of her condition, and she cannot

She wants to invite everybody she sees. in the south she loved to entertain, and she thinks she must do it still. So her husband finds out quiet people like you and the professor here, and he just asks them, and that makes her feel satisfied. He can't deny her anything. He is just

"But," objected I still, "why could White call on us and tell as this and then invite us? I hate to go there without even seeing him first. "Because he knows I'd explain it for Mrs. White?" she added abruptly. him," said Mrs. Mackenzie, gently.
"He can't bear to speak of it. He just acts as if he didn't see anything wrong with her; and he loves her so, and is so proud of her! But you'll see. 'How dreadful it is," said I. "What a sorrow to bear; what a tragedy their lives must be!"

said my husband, thoughtfully, "I am not so sure about that. It is a great grief, of course. But it is better than some troubles they might have had. They love each other, and are in some sense happy to be together. He undoubtedly hopes her resoration, and that brightens her life. No. Alice, I don't agree with It isn't a tragedy at all.' 'Well," said I, "it seems a good deal like one to me, but we can tell better when we have been there. I suppose we must go.' 'Of course, we must," said the professor, in his most decided tones.

And we went, but, oh, how I dread-Mrs. Mackenzie directed us to their cottage at the farthest end of the village, on the cliff looking out over the magnificent sweep of water where Lake Michigan and Lake Superior mingle. In the front yard were masses of nasturtiums in red, yellow and bronze, and beds of geraniums, and dahlias, and all the sturdy flowers which flourish in that short cool summer. After a little talk about Mackinaw, and the summer visitors, and the glorious view, we went indoors, and he introduced us to his wife. She was a gentle, brown-haired woman, with a timid manner and delicate features.

My fears vanished; I felt as in the presence of a shy child, and sitting down by her, tried to talk with her.

But in a moment she slipped from the room. My host had found a congenial spirit in my husband, and both were deep in the books which filled two sides of the room. I listened, amused at their common enthusiasm, until Mrs. Holmes came back, and said shyly, as a child might say it, "Please come to supper. The table was daintly laid, with flowers upon it, and looked as any supper table might, except for one thing. Over it, from the hanging lamp, hung a coiled brass wire, such as bird cages are suspended from, and attached to it was the note I had written accepting the invitation. The breeze blew in at the window and caught it, and as the spring danced up and down, my note fluttered about in each gyration. I dared not look at my husband, but I saw just one gleam of distress cross the doctor's face. Evidently the note had been hung up served backward. First came waffles, crisp and brown, and with them delicious maple syrup. "How fragrant this is," I exclaimed as I tasted it. "It is so woodsy. That we have in the city is made of brown sugar.' "How strange," replied Mrs. Holmes,

"The bees make it here. We hang little tin buckets on the trees, and they fill them. Do you remember how the Bible says, 'My son, eat this honey, for it is good?' I always recall that verse when we have waffles."
"The bees have a short summer with you," I replied. "Don't you find the winters very long and cold?" "Oh, no," smiled she. "You see, I tend my flowers and vegetables in the garden, and feed the chickens, and gather wild strawberries, and the day

"Shakespeare loved nature, too," murmured Mrs. Holmes.

[By Clara J. Denton! The Minorca rooster, the handsomest fowl in the poultry-yard, was sick, and it was whispered about among his friends and relatives that he was go-

However, the White Leghorn, al though so very wise, had not yet learned that humans are not all alike, and, in spite of her long experience she was much surprised at

In the first place, the sick Minorca was given his food in a separate dish, warm summer days when there is so very tempting food it appeared, too; then, next, the master took him up in his arms and carried him into the warm hen-house, where the incubator and the brooder was kept. After that, when on warm days, the door of the hen-house was open, the north of the old Mason and Dixon line brood gazed through the wire netting at the forlorn-looking fowl lying on a bunch of straw near the lamp of the quoted incubator. His once beautiful greenish-black feathers had lost their gloss, wattles hung limply about his head in

The bantam rooster "craw-crawed" softly to himself as he moved along, followed by his troop of dainty little hens, and when he was well out of the Minorca's sight, he gave a proud crow that stretched his handsome little throat to its utmost.

'What in the world do they want of this was the dress she had worn when 'so many Minorcas?" said the Buff she graduated from school. With a Cochin; "they are poor, delicate things at the best," and she gave a sidelong peck at a spruce young Minorea hen who stood near listening to all the

> The next day the house cat went strolling around the poultry-yard, and as he went he whispered a strange piece of news through the wire fence: "Out of the one hundred eggs put into the incubator only twelve chickens were hatched.'

> Well indeed, might they wonder, for some strange disease, which their owner did not understand, had carried the poor little chicks off, until there were only four left in the brooder. But one mild March day the flock stood longer than usual staring through the wire netting, for there be fore them were two things which they could not well understand; there was only one little lonesome chick feeding in the brooder, and the Minorca rooster was up and walking about! While they all stood gazing in silent astonishment, "Shoo, shoo!" cried a voice behind them, and they scattered to a safe distance, where they could watch their master's movements. Pretty soon he came out of the henhouse, carrying on his right arm the Minorca rooster, and in his left hand the last lonesome little chick. He put the chicken down on the warm, soft earth, and he at once ran about as happy and gay as a chicken could possibly be. The Minorca was carried to a fenced-in corner of the poultry-yard, and when the master had gone the flock hastened to look the matter They found the rooster provided with food and water, and a fine shelter from rain and the chilly night air. As the Minorca made no replies to the crowing of the bantam rooster, nor the cackling of the various hens, they soon all wandered off and left him to himself. By and by it began to rain hard and fast, and the little chicken who had been so happy ran "yipping" about in a very lonesome way. He tried to share the shelter of the larger fowls, but with many sharp pecks and much squawk-ing they drove him off, the hen-house was closed, and his master seemed to have forgotten him, so there was nothing left for him but to run up and down the poultry-yard crying with all his might. But in his wild running about he came near the fence that shut in the Minorca rooster, and his bright eyes at once spied a little hole in the wire netting: he quickly squeezed himself through the gap and ran to the Min-orca's comfortable shelter.

A few minutes after the master of the poultry-yard came wheeling home in great haste. He had remembered the baby chick. But as he failed to find him anywhere in the yard, he made up his mind that he must have gone off into some corner and died. When the warm weather came, and the fowls were turned out to roam the meadows, these two kept constantly together; the old rooster scratched for his adopted baby, called it when he found a choice morsel to eat, and fought for it like a good old motherly

UNABLE TO WALK.

Distressing Malady Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

[From the Hartland, N. B., Advertiser.] Right in our own village is reported another of the remarkable cures that make Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so popular throughout the land. The case is that of Mrs. E. W. Millar. vertiser interviewed her husband, who was glad to relate the circumstances publication, that others might read and have a remedy put into their hands, as it were. "For five years." said Mr. Millar, "my wife was unable to walk without aid. One physician diagnosed her case as coming from a spinal affection. Other doctors called the malady nervous prostration. Whatever the trouble was, she was weak and nervous. Her limbs had no strength. and could not support her body. There also was a terrible weakness in her back. Three months ago she could not walk, but as a last resort, after trying many medicines, she began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Improvement was noted in a few days, and a few weeks has done wonders in restoring her health. Today she can walk without assistance. You can imagine her delight, as well as my own. We owe her recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I recommend them for any case of nervous weakness or general debility.' Mr. Millar is part owner and manager of one of our lumber mills, and is well

"The history of other armies," he says, "has demonstrated that in hot climates abstinence from the use of intoxicating drinks is essential to continued health and ef-" He directs the attention of the officers to the use of light drinks, wines and beers, which are allowed at the posts, requires that the effects be carefully noted, and their use pro hibited if the welfare of the troops or the interests of the service require it. "In this most important hour of the nation's history it is due the government from all those in its service that they should not only render the most earnest efforts for its honor and welfare, but their full physical and intel-lectual force should be given to their public duties, uncontaminated by indulgences that shall dim, stultify, weaken or impair their faculties and caution is due to those who are serving themselves, their families and kindred. If they would not fail in maintaining their own honor and welfare, they must not contaminate themselves "by any indulgences that shall dim, stultify, weaken or impair their faculties and strength in any particular." The marines of Cervera's squadron were given liquor to stimulate their courage. The effect was that they pounded the sea with their shots but not their enemy. So it is in the battle of life.

A Full Surrender!

The opposition, after a long and hard-fought battle, have fully surrendered to the famous WILLIAMS PIANO. Its MERITS have told so forcibly that they have finally thrown down the gauntlet and admit, though unwillingly, that the WILLIAMS is the KING of pianos. Only those AGENTS having a very LIMITED knowledge of what a first-class piano should be will attempt to say anything against a WILLIAMS PIANO. Experienced agents are fully aware that the music-loving public everywhere know the WILLIAMS is the finest piano on the Continent, and know it would display ignorance on their part to say anything different, as for the past half-hundred years the WILLIAMS DIAMO has been profound when a high grade piano. WILLIAMS PIANO has been preferred where a high-grade piano was wanted. It is not necessary to mention, but we will for the benefit of the very few people who may have neglected to look into it, that the Williams Piano Company is one of the oldest and strongest financially in the world, having the largest and best equipped factory and employing only the most expert piano makers. The finest tone, best materials, best werkmanship and most modern designs in both Upright and Grand Pianos are exclusive features of the WILLIAMS PIANO. The Williams Piano Company have such an immense capital that it enables purchasers to buy High-Grade Pianos on the easiest terms and at a moderate price, without giving their note or notes. Write out your own contract and what you are willing to pay monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly, and that ends it. Giving a note or notes often gets people into a great deal of trouble if they can't meet them when due. You avoid all this by dealing with us instead of with small manufacturers and dealers. A lot of big Piano Snaps now on.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How-Some of the Conditions Neces sary to Perfect Health. The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medisines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take

She has been closely watched at the Christian home, but this did not event her from securing possession of laudanum. She was soon discovered and sent in an ambulance to the hospital, where her life was saved. She is a believer in suicide, and says that as soon as she is released f rom the hospital she will make another attempt, and that she is bound to be successful sooner or later. She says that she is of no further use to anyone, her husband being dead, and that she cannot understand why efforts should be made to keep her alive.

Why Many Persons Think They Have Heart Disease-How Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Correct That Idea by Curing the Cause.

Thousands of cases of so-called "Heart Disease" are nothing more nor less than a certain form of Dyspepsia.

The victim is afflicted with pain, or 'stitch" in the side, palpitation of the heart, or painful shortness of breath, after unning, walking fast, or other exertion. These are always looked on as symptons of Heart Disease. But they are not necessarily so.

They are generally due to a much simpler In certain forms of Dyspepsia the stomach distends, or swells, after meals. This is because it is unable to digest the food which accumulates, forming a hard mass. When fresh food is taken, the walls of the stomach are forced outward and upward, to make the extra room needed. Soon this distention, or swelling, becomes so great that the space in which the heart throbs is encroached upon. The result is that the heart cannot work properly-its beat is shortened, as you would shorten the swing of a clock pendulum, by decreasing the space in which it Then palpitation, which is simply the short, rapid throbbing of the heart, follows.

The other symptoms named are due to this cause also. Cure that case of Dyspepsia, and the socalled "Heart Disease" disappears. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the only remedy known that can effect this result. They cure Dyspepsia by digesting the ood. The stomach, freed of its unnatural load, returns to its natural size, the pressure is taken from the heart—and all is well. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50c a box, six for $2 50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

Mr. C. F. Colwell Removes to Ottawa With His Family-Will Engage in Extensive Financial Operations.

Mr. C. F. Colwell and family removed yesterday to Ottawa, where they will reside permanently. By Mr. Colwell's departure London loses a popular and public-spirited citizen of 32 directly after the Fenian Raid, during which he had served with the Toronto Artillery. He graduated a year later from The Advertiser office, and enter-ed the music business, in which he continued successfully for nearly 30 years, retiring in 1895, when he sold out to the R. S. Williams & Sons Company. Since then he has been engaged in extensive financial operations of various kinds.

Mr. Colwell has been closely identified with the city's progress, and has always had its welfare at heart. He has taken an active part in municipal affairs; for five years he was a member of the board of education. Politically he has been allied with the Liberal party, and has patricipated in all its battles for the past 30 years. Mr. Colwell goes to Ottawa as a larger field for the financial enterprises which he is directing. Although regretting leave the city and a legion of friends, he still retains important interests in London, which will bring back from time to time. The hearty good will of the community accompanies Mr. Colwell and family to their new home, where visiting Londoners may always rely on the hospi tality which distinguished Mr. Colweil here. His prospects in east are exceedingly bright, and with his experience, geniality and proved business capacity, his friends have no doubt he will realize them. The people of London wish Mr. Colwell and his estimable family the utmost suc-

Belleville Abolishes the System-Death of the Oldest Native Resident.

Belleville, Aug, 20 .- The ward abolition bylaw was carried yesterday by a vote of 600 to 120. The feature of the vote was the practically unanimous returns from the business portions of the city. James Walker, the oldest native resident of Belleville, died last night, aged over 86 years. He was born in 1812. Mr. Walker was a Methodist, a life-long Reformer and a man of spotless integrity, and was held in the highest esteem in the city and surrounding country. Three sons and his widow survive him.

IF RHODES wins 6.. 6.. 6 6..... Cape Town, Aug. 20 .- Mr. Hofmeyr's organ, Onsland, gives prominence to a letter from the Orange Free State, which states that if Mr. Rhodes is returned to power war with the Transvaal will follow. It adds that if the Afrikanders vote Progressive they are guilty of the blood which will be shed in the Free State and the Transvaal. It is rumored, but not generally believed, that the opening of parliament will be deferred until October. Polling commenced this week in several of the more distant constituencies. Dr. Rutherford Harris is reported to have stated that he brought to Mr. Cecil Rhodes the chancellor of the exchequer's positive refusal to be a party to any scheme which guaranteed the Rhodesian Railway. The Afrikander Bond claims that this indicates the true light in which Mr. Cecil Rhodes is held by the Imperial Government. Mr. Rhodes is now touring the strong

Dutch centers in his constituency, and is everywhere received with enthusi-All the villages are decorated with flags, the Dutch miners in the river diggings and farmers journeying miles to hear him. Mr. Rhodes' speeches, which are delivered in a conversational manner, have a telling effect on these simple people, who at every meeting unanimously carry a vote of confidence in him and his declarations that he would vote for a union of the South African states and colonies, and that the Transvaal must either refuse Uitlanders admission or give them equal rights with the old population, are everywhere heartily received.

In the event of a victory Progressive speakers are gradually paving the way for Mr. Rhodes to assume the leader ship of his party, despite his previous denials. Mr. Cecil Rhodes recently explained the future policy of the imperial party. In the event of gaining the poll the Progressives will endeavor to nullify Transvaal influence in Cape Colony There will be a new distribution of seats; the railways of the colony wil be developed, and the farming population will be assisted to make the best of their resources. Imports from the Transvaal will receive special attention as regards taxation, and an imperial policy will be established throughout South Africa.

Mr. Rhodes intends to promote the ederation of the South African states, excluding the Transvaal from all reciprocal advantages.

Mr. Rhodes will devote himself to Rhodesia in the event of a defeat. The northern territory will be developed. Beira will be enlarged, and the traffic from the northern territory will be carried over the Buluwayo-Salisbury-Beira Railway, to the detriment of a

Dr. Nordenskjolde Returning & No Chest Pressure. From His Search in the North.

Just a Year Ago Since He Sailed Away in His Balloon-Generally Thought the Brave Fellow Is Lost.

Victoria, Aug. 20 .- News from the north is to the effect that Prof. Andree and his balloon have been heard from, but there are no particulars as to whether the daring aeronaut is alive or dead. It is also stated that Dr. Nordenskjolde is returning from his search. S. A. Andree and his two companions, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel, ascended from Dane's Island in the bailoon Eagle, in the hope of reaching the North Pole, on July 11, 1897, over a year ago. Four days afterward, on the morning of July 15, a carrier pigeon alighted on the rigging of the sealer Aiken, cruising in the vicinity of Spitzbergen, bearing a brief message signed "Andree," third he had dispatched. It was dated July 13, 12:30 p.m., in latitude 82 degrees 2 minutes, longitude 15 degrees 5 seconds, and reported "good progress eastward, 10 degrees south. All well on board." This dispatch was, therefore, written two days after the departure of the balloon from Dane's Island, when Andree should have been 900 miles closer to the pole. Though hopeful in tone it showed that he had made only 145 geographical miles north and 45 miles east of the of departure. Not a solitary point word has been heard from the expedition since. Walter Wellman, who is now on his way with an expedition to the arctic regions, in the hope of rescuing Andree and his companions, or, at least, of discovering some traces of them, advanced some time ago three probabilities as to the approximate point of descent, each strong enough to merit attention. The first is that the balloon remained in the air till Franz

Josef land was reached. Once over this land the aeronauts would be able to distinguish it by the changed appearance of the ice sheets beneath them and by the black cliffs at the edges of the fields. If Andree had abandoned the balloon here the party might make their way to Cape Flora, where Jackson left a comfortable house and ample supplies for wintering. The second probability is that the Eagle came down in the ocean to the southeast of Spitzbergen. When Andree was asked a few days before his departure what would happen if they descended in the sea, the adventurer replied coolly, "Drown." The third probability is that the balloon was driven by the winds far to the east or worthward of Franz Josef Land. In such case, according to Mr. Wellman's belief, the explorers are lost. Various arguments are advanced by Wellman and others in support of these and similar theories, and it is alive. All of them hope so. If he noticeable that the authorities on Arctic problems are willing to admit that Andree and his companions may be living he should be heard from within the next three months. If he is living on Franz Josef Land, or any-where within the reach of Wellman's and other exploring parties, he will certainly be found, for the search this summer will be general. The impression is that the expedition, in any event, was not successful. The direction of the balloon on July 13 was not favorable to the outcome anticipated by Andree. But the world wili be none the less interested in the rescue of the daring men who undertook this voyage of extraordinary peril, whether through pure love of adventure or in the interest of science.

He says they apparently do not understand their business, as it is reported that the magnificent maple which has for so many years adorned the front of St. Paul's Cathedral has had its trunk cut off near the top, which will kill the tree, besides difiguring it while it lasts. A number of trees on Dundas street have been treated in the same manner. This is a matter which should be looked into at once, before many more trees are ruined.

These bells will be placed throughout the house, probably around the family circle and gallery horseshoes, and an electric system will in connection, the wires leading to Mr. McKenna's place in the orchestra with a keyboard affixed thereto. "Rev. Thomas and Mrs. Wilson: It is with joy and gratitude in our hearts that we have assembled ourselves together in this social way to welcome both you and your estimable lady back into our midst. While absent, the Lord has been with us, as he is ever mindful of his children. Your return, we trust, desires to be more zealous in working for the advancement of the Master's kingdom. We hope that the vacation from which you have returned has been the means of building you up in vigor of body, mind and spirit, so that your further ministrations in this portion of the Lord's vineyard will be even more effective than in the past. Our gathering together in this way is an earnest that our hearts are with you in the course which both of you so dearly love, and our sincere prayer is that the good Lord will further strengthen you in the work which he has spared you to return to promote. WHEEL ANOTHER MEET AT TECUMSEH

PARK IS PLANNED. The Tecumseh Bicycle Track Association have decided to put on a "commercial travelers' day" at Tecumseh Park on Saturday, Sept. 3. Bicycle races, baseball match, Trunks vs. Grips, and other sports will be indulged in. A regular meet will be run off, including several events open only to travelers. Arrangements are under way to have the two well-known commercial travelers' baseball teams, Trunks and Grips, play a game of ball for the 1898 championship, as soon as the races are over. The rivalry existing between these two teams is sure to result in a very exciting game, and great preparations will be made for the coming struggle. Entry forms and programmes will be issued by Secretary McCormick early next week, and judging from the great success of the holiday meet, a large field will enter. With fine weather the commercial travelers and their host of friends will have a gala day on Sept. 3. SPOKES. The new one-fifth mile board track at Guelph will be opened on Labor Day, Sept. 5. Several London riders will compete in the different events. The London boys will resume active training again on Monday evening, in preparation for the commercial travelers' day meet on Sept. 3, and Labor Day meet at Guelph, on Sept. 5.

The attendance on Civic Holiday was the largest in the history of Tecumseh Park. The Guelph Mercury of the 18th, in commenting upon our Civic Holiday meet, speaks very highly of the treatment accorded their riders by Secretary McCormick.

PATTI'S CHILDHOOD

She First Sang in a Concert to Aid Her Parents Out of Difficulties.

Very interesting is the account of Mme. Adelina Patti's early life as she told it herself to a London newspaper "You want to know what I woman: was like as a child?" she said to her inquirer. "Well I am told I was unmost other little girls. My mother declared that my first cry had something musical-and singing came to me as naturally as to the birds of the air. Indeed, I count sing a number of little tunes long before I could speak plainly. My father and mother—they were both singers, and very fine singers, I can assure you were so devoted to their 'Lina' they could not bear to leave me at home when they went to fulfill their evening's engagement at the theater. So, when a mere baby, I may be said to have begun my musical education. Through a hole in the curtain at the wings I would watch my parents during a performance, and very soon I learned to imitate what I had heard and seen. When I was or 6 years old, after being put to bed I would just creep out again as soon as all was dark and mysterious in the house and act over the scenes of the operas I knew. Now I was Norma, now Donna Anna, now Zerlina. And I would clap my hands loudly when pleased with myself, and throw bouquets at my little bare feet.

"My first appearance in public was when I was 7 years old. Oh! an important personage I thought myself! Some misfortune befell my parents in that year, and, grieving for them in the political products and the second products and the second products and the second products are second products." my childish way, I suddenly realized that I might be able to help them.
'Papa!' I exclaimed, 'you just give a concert. I will sing! And you keep the dollars.' My father and mother were horrified at first at the mere idea, but after a while they agreed to make the experiment. I was already known as a juvenile prodigy in New York, and ieople came in their dozens to Niblo's gardens to hear me. Shy, was I? Oh, dear no! Though I am often nervous nowadays, I didn't know then what fear meant. I insisted on my mother's braiding and arranging my hair as smartly as possible, and powdering my small brown face. Well, I courtsied to my audience, and I sang—just the airs I sing now, you must know, 'Ah! non giunge!' and 'Comin' Thro' the Rye.' The more they clapped the longer I trilled. My success was made. . For years after that I appeared from time to time in public. Then, at 14 years old, my voice failed, only to return two years later, when I made my debut on the opera stage in New York as Suria.'

An absent-minded American recently fell under disfavor in an English club for neglecting to notice a small cour-He was entering the vestibule of the club house, and failed to perceive that a fellow-member was holding open the door for him. Courtesy required him to thank the stranger who had performed this slight service, and then to reciprocate it. As they were both entering the building, and as there was a second door leading into the central hall, he ought to have opened it and allowed the fellowmember to pass in ahead of him. Being intent upon his own shoughts he pushed in, and took no notice of the stranger who had opened the first door The first man was irritated by the slight, and subsequently denounced the absent-minded member as the worst-bred man in the club; and when the story was told in detail in the smoking-room opinion was to strongly against the American offender against English usage that the situation was explained to him, and he was forced to make his peace by an apology for his absent-minded breach of good manners. Great attention is paid to these small details in English society. The order in which guests shall leave a drawingroom and be seated at dinner is carefully regulated; and much importance is attached to the dignity of precedence. When groups of men or women are leaving a room together, one waits for another and seeks to accord to him or to her the honor of passing out

In the same spirit a courteous host accompanies his guest to the door and holds it open for him; or if a lady be "good-bye" he escorts her to saving the gate and puts her in her carriage. The door is always in English society a critical point where good manners are tested.

LYING BY THE CLOCK

The Family Timepiece is Deliberately and Persistently Untruthful.

Many a man who would not for any money go into the kitchen at 7 o'clock in the morning and say to the cook, "Do you know it is half-past seven o'clock? Well, it is, and more; it's just thirty-five minutes past seven, and my train goes in twenty-five minutes will quietly and in cold blood put the clock up to telling this lie for him.

That isn't fair to the clock. It is bad enough when a man, or even a woman, in a sudden gust of anger, swears at a tramp, or peddler, or irritating caller. That is done in a quick frenzy of temper, and has sometimes the excuse of great provocation. But lying by the clock is always done with calm deliberation and malice aforethought, and it is persevered in day by day. It's too mean on the clock. Vocal as the big clerk at Dr. Dombey's, speaking to poor little Paul, these martyred clocks should sit heavy on the conscience of the teacher, saying all day long, in staccato tones. "my, mas, ter, makes, me, lie. My, mas, ter, makes, me, lie." -Robert J. Burdette in the August Ladies' Home Journal.

TREATMENT OF PRISONERS. There is some perplexity apparently as to what disposition to make of Spanish prisoners of war. Admiral Cervera and his officers are destined, we are told, to come North, either to Annapolis or Portsmouth or New York. No doubt they will be made as comfortable as the status of their minds, poor gentlemen, admit, and if private hospitality is suffered to intervene, it may be they will pass the summer at Newport. There are few persons living towards whom Americans in general are kindlier disposed just now than towards Admiral Cervera. There is sympathy for him as a brave man in misfortune, and a cordial liking for him-so far as he is known- as a gentleman.

As for the Spanish soldiers and sailors, who seem to have accumulated in considerable numbers in the hands of Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter, why not send them back to Spain and put them ashore. They would doubtless be better pleased on the whole, to be at home, and once there they would have to stay there, for Spain has now no means of sending them anywhere Spain, we would be quit of the expense of feeding them and of the bother of guarding them, and there is no immediate prospect that we shall need any considerable number of Spanish prisoners for purposes of exchange. Another alternative would be to bring them to new York, find them jobs, and have them naturalized in time for the fall elections, but that would be hardly military, and very likely our Italian fellow-citizens would object.-Harper's

NOT LOVED,

The thunders of applause which heralded the fall of the curtain startled him, as it were, out of a dream. He roused himself, fearing his pre-occupation might attract attention. gentlemen rose, when Viscount Combermere said:
"Well, my lord, I am going to the marquis' box. Would you like an intro-"I should be delighted!" responded

Gerard, instantly taking his hat.
At that moment, Esmer, the which bound him, were forgotten. His mind was filled with Lucine. Had the peril, the misery which would arise from the step he was taking flashed across his brain, he might have refused that introduction. Yet why should he now? Was he so weak of self-control that, because he was the betrothed of Esmer Mortmain, he must avoid all other feminine society?
Threading the crowded lobby, box-kepeer threw open the door of the Marquis of Santyre's loge, and, a second later, Gerard, Earl of Letherington, was bowing before Lady West-

Had Gerard been asked the plot of "Dinorah." he would have found it as impossible to give as to read a page of Sanscrit: yet never had an evening passed more delightfully. It was one he was doomed never to forget, but to re-member with pleasure as also with bit-

Standing behind her ladyship, who had received him with evident favor, he found the little conversation which ensued displayed that ner mind was as well informed as her person was gifted There, in the shadow, he carefully examined the delicate features, illumined by the brilliant gas. The likeness, indeed, was wonderful, so unaccountable, between these two, who must have been as separate as the poles. It much perplexed him. Politeness not permitting his sojourn during the whole evening in the the dangerous fascination of which he was far from then divining, he resumcurtain, he was again standing by Lady Westbrook's side, listening to her sweet voice uttering her admiration of Patti, and looking into her clear, splendid

It was his privilege to place the rich Indian shawl round her ivory shoulders, to which it clung softly as the caress of Love. Also he held her bouquet, and gave her his arm to the carriage.

He watched her sink back on the yielding cushions, and thrilled under her glance, as, in response to his bow, she gracefully inclined her head. Then the carriage rolled on, and Gerard, who had already departed from his friends, in a dream, a golden, lucent cloud, which rendered him oblivious to all the world besides, walked under the peace home to Grosvenor Place. Ascending the stairs, he entered his sitting-room, lighted ready for his coming, still buried in that sweet, golden trance, unconsciously humming the 'Shadow Dance' beneath his breath, for Lady Westbrook had praised it.

Approaching the table, he perceived a letter laying there, arrived during In a second the cloud was rent, or swallowed, by one of night-darkness. Violently, ah! how violently, was he

The letter was from Esmer Mortmain Meanwhile, Lady Westbrook, rather wearied by the excitement of the day, and the opera, on reaching Belgrave Square, proceeded at once to her dressing room, where her lady's maid was Sinking languidly on to a seat, she said, pleasantly: "At last, at last, Maria. I am so glad. In mercy come and rid me of this fin-

Thus speaking, she raised her hands to her pearl necklet A cry burst from her lips. She sprang to her feet.

"My locket!" she exclaimed. "My locket! It is gone! I have lost it!" Every cance, every bouquet, where It might have clung, was eagerly searched by both women. Then the dressing room; then, when all the household were at rest save these two. the corridors and lower apartments. In

CHAPTER VI. Lady Westprook was not, correctly speaking, the Marquis of Santyre's niece. Her mother, for it is necessary to say a few words regarding her antecedents, was merely his step-sister. Their common parent had been the widow of a Colonel Desmond, who, dying in battle, left her with a pension, as only child (Lucille's mother), and ner beauty, which later speedily overcame the susceptible heart of Captain Westbrook, nepnew of the Marquis of Santyre of that epoch. It was a well-matched union, and a happy one, though Captain Westbrook had little more than his pay, and no expectations, the marquis possessing a son strong of limb and healthful of constitution. Indeed, few men could have boasted of such a physique.

Unfortunately-forgive the apparent solecism-his very strength was his weakness, nay, it was his ruin. Owing to his powers to excel, athletic sports became a passion. He was, in such exercises, the chief of his college, the hero of Lillie Bridge; foot races, hurdle-leaping, football, were his delight. He grew as ambitious of surpassing all competitors as another would have been to win the honor of senior wrang-young American came to the college who was as renowned at Harvard as Lord Montem was at Oxford.

The two were naturally soon pitted together, and a testing run was arranged. The young Englishman felt the nation's honor, so far as athletics were concerned, rested on his should ers. He "trained" to excess under the best trainer.

The day arrived; the company was fashionable and numerous. The race was an exciting one, for, in addition to the spirit of patriotism, which starts into healthful life on the slightest occasion, the runners were in all respects equally matched.

For long the issue was doubtful. To-ward the last, however, Lord Montem Westbrook shot slightly ahead. The advantage was received with a loud cheer. Only those near noticed the purple veins start on the forehead of the racer, the bluish-white hue about the lips. Making a final spurt he rushed past the goal. A deafening cheer arose. The heartiest voice was the Marquis of Santyre's as he waved his hat in triumph. But his cheer ended in a short, sharp cry. The next instant he had alighted from his carriage and made his way through the crowd. His son had won, truly, but at what a price? He had not stopped on ob-taining the victory, but had staggered on with a dizzy, reeling gait, then had fallen prone, blood issuing from his mouth. He had broken a blood-vessel in the lungs.

Before the week was over a telegram recalled Captain Westbrook from Ireland. When he landed in England it was as the Marquis of Santyre, for father and son were dead.

To the new peer was born a son, no other children. That son was the present marquis, a childless widower.Janet, Colonel Desmond's daughter, had eloped with a penniless curate, tutor in a family that she was visiting. Her mother being dead, it was secretly believed her stepfather was not very sorry thus to cut the connection. He procured the husband a small victhe last act brought down the green arage in Westmoreland, and hinted very plainly he should do no more for them. The young pair, quite content, lived there happily, forgetful of the world, and that they themselves were forgot.

But when the vicar's hour came, which it did a month of so after his wife's demise, he thought it right to inform the marquis, Janet's step-brother, of the fact. It recalled to his lordship's mind the pretty step-sister who used to pet him when he was a child, and he determined to answer the letter in person. On beholding the beautiful but out-of-the-way situation of the vicarage, his heart smote him for his father. He saw that the proud family of the San-tyres had metaphorically buried the Rev. Stanhope Brand. Reaching his house, he was instantly struck by the extraordinary beauty and grace of Lucille. He felt, as he watched her fond attention to her parents, that with all his rank and title Stanhope Brand had been richer man of the two.

He took to her at once, and was further won by her sweet disposition and well cultivated mind. A certain sadness which marked her features, adding to their spirituality, he attributed to the dull life she must have spent at the vicarage, with no congenial intellect, save her father's, to converse with.

A longing seized him to remove so bright and beautiful a sunshine to his own hearth, and without hesitation he proposed to the dying man to adopt Lucille as his own daughter, she being soon doomed to be a penniless orphan. If the father consented, he promised to remove her into a sphere where, not only would her beauty, her intellectual gifts, her grace shine, and be appreciated, but where, infallibly, she would make a brilliant match. The dying man was apparently so taken by surprise that for a space he re-mained speechless. He then made an effort to speak, but fainted. [To be Continued.]

Business in Canada Fair for the Season.

Bright Prospects for the Fall-Good Crops-Fewer Failures-The Situation on the Other Side.

New York, Aug. 20 .- R. C. Dun & Co.'s review says: Canadian trade is fair for the season, and at all points the prospects for the fall are considerbright, with symptoms of revival in inquiries at Montreal.

Collections are slow at St. John, with unusual renewing, but fair at Halifax, good at Quebec, and satisfactory at Victoria.

Crop prospects are excellent. Wholesale business is fairly brisk at Toronto and Hamilton, improving at Montreal, with larger shipments of cheese and butter, and somewhat exceeding last year's in volume at Victoria. At Halifax no change appears, and at St. John both wholesale and retail trade continues quiet. Canadian trade is quiet, but the tone is one of confidence, based primarily upon an expected wheat yield larger than ever before in the Dominion's history. Canadian cotton goods are firm, but mills are now able to keep up with orders, and imports of American cottons have ceased At Toronto business shows a progres sive gain over previous years, while at Montreal a large fall trade is looked In the Maritime Provinces business is dull, and hot weather has hurt the crops in Nova Scotia.

In British Columbia a normal trade is doing, but the salmon pack, as a whole, is disappointing and prices tend Business failures in the Dominion of Canada this week number 26, against 33 last week, 41 in this week a year ago, 30 in 1896, and 37 in 1895. Canadian bank clearings for the week aggregate $22,711,000-6 per cent smaller than last week, and 2.6 per cent smaller than in this week a year ago.

New York, Aug. 20 .- Bradstreet's review says: Perhaps the most interesting feature of the general business situation at present is the air of confidence with which the mercantile community awaits the approach of the fall trade period. While, of course based in some degree upon favorable results already achieved in many lines. it is unquestionably true that the flattering crop outlook at home, and the return of peace, with the expectation of benefits to our export trade natural ly expected to accrue therefrom, make for much of the feeling thus expressed. The immense business doing in iron and steel products at advanced prices calls attention to the proportionately less notable expansion of crude iron production. Pig iron statistics, in fact, point to an even smaller output for the current month, some of which curtailment, of course, is naturally based on midsummer conditions. Advances in any grades of iron, notably Bessemer and southern pig, are features of the week, as are also higher quotations for steel billets at nearly all markets, wire rods and a great many classes of finished iron and steel, particularly structural material. The situation in cereals shows but little change, but prices are steady. Reports as to collections the country over are very encouraging. From wipter wheat sections especially reports are very good. Some slowness is noted in payments at the Northwest, but this is expected to disappear when the spring wheat crop moves.

Business failures are larger in number than last week, aggregating 195. against 157 last week, but compared with 221 in this week a year ago. R. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: A war which brought no shrinkage of business while it lasted has brought with its ending a quite remarkable expansion. Orders and purchases have increased in nearly all branches. It is odd that the iron industry, while reporting decrease in products, show more surprising gain in business than any other. The demand for finished products expands remarkably. In the woolen industry some mills are closing and others are selling old stocks of wool present orders for goods not warranting present prices of material. Yet other mills in equal number are starting on different lines of goods Of cotton mills, also, though a few have stopped, quite as many have started, and the demand for staples is increasing, and in prints and ginghams is fairly good. Wheat has further esciined 2 cents. in spite of the general holding of better grades by farmers, which renders receipts low and visible supply small beyond precedent. At 76 cents now Atlantic exports for the week have been 3,059,280 bushels, flour included, against 3,705,297 bushels last year, and Pacific exports 175,400 bushels, against 384,846 bushels last year, making for the three weeks 10.115.246 bushels, against 10,453,833 last year. Corn receipts are gradually declining, and prices are 2 cents lower, rather larger estimates of yield being now credited.

Suggestions of the National Conference at Saratoga, N. Y.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 20 .- The national conference on the foreign policy of the United States convened here yesterday with an address by Henry Wade Rogers, of Chicago, chairman of the committee of arangements. Mr. Rogers, in opening his address, said that the conference was called to consider some of the most momentous questions in the history of the republic. He spoke of the war and returned prayerful thanks for the peace now at While peace had arrived there were many serious problems to be considered.

He referred to the closeness of the friendship between the Americans and the British, which would promptly lead to international arbitration and finally to universal peace. The speaker spoke favorably of the Nicaraguan Canal, which he argued should be built and controlled by the United States Government. That canal would shorten the distance by water from New York to San Francisco by 10,000 miles. His reference to the trip of the battleship Oregon elicited hearty applause. Mr. Rogers said that the principle problem before the present conference was that of territorial expansion, on which many distinguished men of national reputation held widely divergent views. Indirectly he referred to the ositions respectively held by the expansionists and the anti-expansionists. Whether we should annex the colonies that are lost to Spain, or control them by carpet-bag governments was a problem that had become the most serious one to Americans, who should ponder wisely over it in order not to make any mistake. Commercial interests urged that we adopt a colonial system, but business alone ought not to control our conduct.

The question of the Nicaraguan Canal was taken up, and Warner Miller, of New York, took the platform in advocacy of the canal.

An Ontario Farmer Rescued by Paine's Celery Compound.

Wells & Richardson Co.: Gentlemen,-It is with very great pleasure that I testify to the value of your great medicine. Paine's Celery Compound. For nearly two years I suffered with indigestion and kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure, I decided to procure your compound. Be-fore using it I was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could not lie in bed owing to pain in my back, and it was only by resting on my elbows and knees that I was enabled to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your medicine I began to improve. I have now taken in all fourteen bottles with grand results. I am a farmer, and am now working every day. I am a living witness to the worth of Paine's life.
