Catholic Canadian Celebrities... (L. A. Henry, in Toronto Catholic Review)

Once again we find with pleasure that our work brings us back among the Gungarrysters, and into the little village of St. Raphael.

His early history is interesting. At the age of eleven the boy portrayed the man of independent principle, by striking out to make his own living.

It seems, however, that his commercial enterprise was greatly impeded in the bud by the street Arab's epithet of "counter-hopper."

But the people of G'engary were not to be pleased by the most esteemed and most capable of their men in that position which is the ambition of every Canadian—a seat in Parliament.

Mr. Macdonald opposed the Family Compact in Upper Canada, and cast his vote with the Lower Canadians against Representation by Population.

During this Government our Separate School Act was passed, and the Deaf and Blind Institute at Belleville, the Blind Institute at Stratford, and the Lantastic Lyceum were established through the philanthropic assistance of the Scotch Premier.

Referring to remarks by Mr. Davis Mr. MacDonald said: I must rise to protest against the aspersion which the hon. member for Queen's County has cast upon the hon. member for Prince Edward Island.

Abolition on the Field of Battle... To perpetuate a memorable scene enacted at Gettysburg on the second day of the fierce struggle, Mr. Paul Wood, the artist, has been requested by Professor Rivers to paint a picture of the Irish Brigade.

Hall at Notre Dame, Ind. The statue will represent what took place on July 2nd when the Irish Brigade was sent to the assistance of Slocum's Third Corps.

As he closed his address every man fell down on his knees with head bowed down. Then, lifting his right hand, Father Corby pronounced the solemn words of the abolition.

Gen. Mulholland, a witness to the less than half an hour of many of them were numbered with the dead. Who can doubt that their progress was good? That heart would be incoercible indeed that the scream of Father Corby's tender appeal would not move to constriction.

A QUESTION OF TIME... A story is going the rounds about a local jurymen, who cleverly outwitted the judge, and without leaving.

"Dear me, that's bad" said the witness judge. "Certainly you are somewhat judge."

"The next day the jurymen was not by a friend, who in a sympathetic voice, asked: "How's your wife?"

"The prisoner put his hand to his ear. "How best did?" cried the interpreter. "The prisoner looked stupid and did not answer."

"The French interpreter could not make the prisoner understand what was wanted of him, so they called the Italian and the Hebrew and the Danish and the Swedish and the Turkish interpreters, but none of them could get an answer from the prisoner.

Finally the court policeman lost his temper. "Why the devil don't you tell me what you are after?" he cried. "The prisoner looked surprised. "And where, after, and is that what you are after? Why the devil didn't you say so?" Kate Field's Washington.
