HAIG'S SPECIAL ORDER.

No Further Retirement.

History Repeats Itself. French Reinforcements Being Rushed to Front. British Holding Line by Magnificent Fighting.

HAIG SAYS "NO RETIREMENT!"

LONDON, April 12. Field Marshal Haig, in a special order of the day addressed to all ranks of the British army in France and Flanders says: "Three weeks ago to-day the enemy began his terrible attacks against us on a fifty-mile front. His objects are to separate us from the French, to take the Channel ports and to destroy our army. In order to do this he has thrown already one hundred and six divisions into the battle and is expending the most reckless sacrifice of human life. He has yet made no progress towards his goals. We are this to the determined fighting and self-sacrifice of our troops. Words fail me to express the admiration which I feel for the splendid resistance offered by all ranks of our army under the most trying circumstances. Many among you are now fighting who were not in the front line when the war began. To those I would say that victory will belong to the side which holds out the longest. The French are moving rapidly and in great force to our support. There is no other course open to us but to fight it out. Every position must be held to the last man. There must be no retirement. With our backs to the wall and believing in the justice of our cause, each one of us must fight to the end. The safety of our homes and the freedom of mankind depend alike upon the conduct of each one of us at this critical moment."

THE BATTLE OF THE HOUR.

LONDON, April 12. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The nation is watching with anxiety and interest since the beginning of the war the progress of the critical battle in Northern France. This anxiety is mingled with admiration for the tenacity of the British troops, who are meeting every foot of ground with the utmost stubbornness that makes the enemy pay dearly for his slow advance. As the struggle swayed along the thirty-mile front, observers here and in Paris are divided in opinion as to the enemy's intentions. One section regarding the offensive as a diversion intended to draw out the British reserves while preparing a fresh attack on Amiens. The other believes it is a definite, systematic attempt to destroy the British Army and break through to Calais while holding the French in the south. The consensus now favors the latter theory. It is indeed obvious that the enemy, backed by unlimited artillery, is doing what has up till this time been considered in this war, namely, conducting two or three very different simultaneous attacks at the very same time, launching a second before the first had time to draw away from the first. This prospect is grim for the British, but accounts of the fighting continue to breathe confidence that the British, however prolonged the struggle, won't give to the enemy in what is becoming more clear as a test of endurance. The key points of the battle are the heights at Messines and Passchendaele, which the Germans are endeavoring to outflank and carry by surprise assault. There is no evidence as yet that the enemy has gained control of a single bit of rising ground. Replies from correspondents do not confirm the enemy official claim of capturing the Messines Ridge. This claim is probably an euphemism for securing a lodgement on the eastern slopes, as the correspondents are unanimous in declaring, the fierce British counter attacks flung back the enemy from the ridge, and with the heaviest results, while further south the enemy was dangerously pushing in the direction of Bailleul the splendid resistance of the British checked the advance of the Germans to a continually contracting front.

Here enemy corpses were heaped beside the River Lys, as the British machine guns mowed down the oncoming waves with point blank fire, yet fresh waves advanced as though the enemy reserves were inexhaustible. The Germans poured gas shells into towns like Bethune crowded with civilians. Many of the gassed were women and children in British hospitals.

TERRIFIC FIGHTING IN FLANDERS.

LONDON, April 12. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Telegraphing from British headquarters in France to-night, Reuter's correspondent says the enemy continues to strain every effort to break through Flanders. Already thirty enemy divisions have been thrown into the battle, including reserves from other parts of the front. The enemy is employing great gun power, reinforced by great hauls from the east, in the same lavish manner as his men, thus imposing the most severe test upon our troops. Their response to this in courage and endurance defies all praise. By the sustained pressure of dense masses and constant blows and shock tactics the enemy has succeeded in the past twenty-four hours in advancing in the centre of attack. The flanks are holding. The enemy has extended the nose of his salient in a way in which nothing but immense superiority in numbers could render tactically feasible. We have been counter attacking to-day. The battle is progressing fiercely in clear weather, enabling the airmen to thoroughly assist in the reconnoitering co-operating in the combat with the most effective results. The enemy's objectives in this drive include Bailleul, Estaires, Bethune and Merville. The enemy had two hundred divisions at the beginning of the offensive on the western front, of which twenty are believed to be practically unfit. On our battle line their forces consist of twenty divisions which have been thrown in the battle line three times since the 21st March, and forty-five divisions which have been thrown in twice, while over four times the number of divisions have been hurled against the British than against the French. The enemy rate of spending man power cannot be long maintained. Already to a considerable extent the 1919 class is being sent to refit the battle line division while the calling up of the 1920 class began a month ago. Our reinforcements are steadily coming up. From Givenchy to Loconour the line is holding well. Everywhere the troops are fighting magnificently. Owing to pressure we have fallen back slightly in the area east of Bailleul.

THE FIGHTING IN BELGIUM.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 11.—Determined enemy attacks continued to-day against points of strategic value along the new battlefront north and south of Armentieres, from which the British have withdrawn, the Germans having placed it in a pocket by driving a wedge on either side of it. On the extreme right the Germans to-day were pounding away against the British defences at Givenchy, which has changed hands many times since the initial German onslaught on Tuesday. North of Armentieres the Germans were showing an equal desire to possess Messines Ridge and Whytchaete, which are dominating positions and which changed hands several times. Last night the Germans got a footing in Messines Village and they were still there to-night, but the British were clinging to the west ridge and were keeping the enemy from Whytchaete. In the neighborhood of Ploegstreet the enemy again surged forward, and hard fighting was proceeding in this section late to-day. South of Armentieres the enemy also delivered violent assaults. The British this morning made a successful counter-attack and forced the enemy from Paradise, southwest of Lestrem. The abandonment of five or ten miles of territory in any sector does not mean disaster. The battle has got beyond such considerations, and has settled down to a grim race to determine whether the German man-power is enough to make good the threat to annihilate the British Army and force its capitulation. It is a cold proposition of which side can kill the most men in the next few weeks, and at the same time find more recruits to fill the depleted ranks. The mist yesterday continued to favor the enemy and to hamper the defending gunners. It was partly on account of these fogs that the Germans progressed so far as they did above Armentieres. The situation here to-day did not appear to be critical. The enemy yesterday did not attack with the huge forces employed on other sectors since the opening of the offensive, although he undoubtedly used many more men than were holding the line attacked. South of Armentieres the British yesterday and last night continued to hold most of their front satisfactorily. The enemy crossed the River Lawe and obtained a footing in Lestrem but were quickly forced out again. Last night a considerable German force crossed the river between Vielle Chapelle and Lestrem, but again were thrust back. Throughout the day German aviators did much flying at low heights, and also were active in bombing work along the battle line. A small force of the British bicycle force did brilliant work for a short time on Tuesday when the Portuguese were forced back, and it was necessary to reinforce the centre of the Allies' battle line below Armentieres. This little body of troops were thrown in and held on gallantly until the regular infantry could be brought up. There was especially heavy fighting along the Lys, at Les Croix Du Bau, where the Germans crossed by wading. As they worked in towards the river from both flanks the British held their fire and allowed the enemy to assemble. Once the Germans were in the river the defenders opened a terrific fire and there was a huge pile of bodies in the waterway before some of the enemy succeeded in getting across. Armentieres was evacuated yesterday, but was still reeking to-day with clouds of poisonous gas and was a most inhospitable place for the enemy. The British withdrawal became necessary when the Germans on the north drove forward to the vicinity of Steenwerck, bottling the city. By their operations the Germans had gradually thrust forward lines on either side of the city toward the west until yesterday Armentieres lay at the bottom of a sack shaped salient, whose sides were 12,000 yards long and whose mouth near Steenwerck was only 3,000 yards across. The withdrawal does not mean as much from a military standpoint as might appear from a first glance, but the Germans undoubtedly will make much of the capture for the moral effect at home. Any distress over the abandonment of Armentieres is due more to sentimental than tactical reasons. In order to appreciate fully the trend of the present fighting the offensive operations must be viewed as a whole, for they must be made up of what undoubtedly is the crucial conflict of the war.

LAUGHTERING THE HUNS.

LONDON, April 12. "You could have shot them down with your eyes shut," said a wounded machine-gunner in describing how the Germans attacked on the Western front, according to the correspondent there of the Daily Mail. "We fired straight into them, and they went down in heaps, yet we could not stop them; it was one down and another come on." The correspondent quotes other remarks from wounded soldiers which are indicative of the unconquerable spirit of the British defenders, and which bear further testimony to the terrible toll the Germans are paying for every foot they advance. The correspondent says that wounded soldiers agreed that the Germans outnumbered the defenders at least two to one. "Aye, we're never far away," a wounded Highlander replied to the remark of the correspondent that the Highlanders seemed to get into all the battles. He proceeded to tell how his regiment was on a canal bank with the Germans coming up on the other side in an attempt to get across. We were told to hold our fire, and we waited until they were well in view. Then when there were hundreds before us we let fly. Monu, monu. it was murderous." (Continued on 7th page.)

make further efforts before abandoning their attempt to break through the Allied lines. Otherwise they would be in a bad position to explain the loss of so many men in an abortive offensive. Whether they continue to try to obtain possession of Amiens for moral effect, endeavor to capture the Aisne heights, or throw the remainder of their available forces against the British and Belgians in the north is a secret with their own staff. For the moment the northern part of the battle line appears to occupy their sole attention with the exception of last night's and to-day's attacks near Noyon, but any day may see a change in the direction of the German thrust. The situation is viewed with complete confidence by the French high command. Detailed particulars concerning the German liquid flame throwing organizations show that to a reserve regiment of engineers of the Prussian Guards is entrusted this terrible arm. Three battalions each of four companies containing 120 men, and especially trained for the purpose are used. The men are all young, and the service calls for strength and is very hazardous. Detachments from this regiment are attached to all units along the front.

An Appeal

I am addressing this Appeal to all the people of Newfoundland, but especially to those of the Outports.

Your Government have decided to make another special attempt to obtain further recruits for the duties forced upon us by the War. I am anxious to explain to you in simple and strong words why those duties are yours.

In your sea-girt home you have, I know, your own dangers and anxieties to face. As I write this my mind is still full of the appalling disaster to the Florizel. But War you do not realise; you are beyond the sound of the guns which, in the South East corner of England, I have heard day after day breaking in upon the beauty and calmness of the summer air.

That awe-inspiring rumble of the guns which I ask you to imagine—that lurid light on the horizon which I ask you to picture are the signs of a terrible struggle for Right—of a mighty effort to save from ruin, not only France, but every bit of free soil in the world, including this island of which you are so proud. The awful struggle seems to be approaching its climax now and your close kinsmen are in the middle of it.

Some may ask, What is the danger? and it is my purpose to endeavour to make it clear to you.

By some permission of Divine Providence, which we do not understand, a nation of criminals is now attacking all that is just and true in the whole world. Germany has set herself deliberately to violate every law of Right and every principle of Humanity.

Never before in History has a War been planned like this. Hitherto all wars have had some sort of pretext of right or impulse of passion. It has been reserved to the German military party to plot wilfully and wantonly a great crime against the peace of mankind.

And the hypocrisy with which Germany supports the crime makes it still more abominable. As Judas treated the Christ, Germany is treating Civilization. Under appeals to God, Germany masks the utmost malignities of the devil. The German nation to-day knows no Law except that of the pagan, the liar, the ravisher, the murderer. They are a curse let loose on the Earth. And the task demanded of all of us is to fight and conquer this curse just as in our moral life we are bound to fight and conquer Sin. The Cause is a far broader and holier Cause than that which impelled the Crusaders against the Saracens.

We may thank God that the greater nations of the World have realised the justice of the Cause; and I believe that every man in Newfoundland will one day be thankful that he was at least asked to face this question—"Is it not my higher duty to go out and save humanity from destruction?"

Remember that your wives, your children, your cottages, your boats, are in positive danger if the German breaks through France. As he is treating the foolish Russians, so he will treat every nation whom he touches—America, Canada, Newfoundland, are to him mere objectives for his greedy brutality. He is entirely evil, he has no sense of right and no feelings of Mercy.

This mass of incarnate selfishness is held back by the strong arm of the Allies in France. Will any man of British race decline to do all he can to defeat and crush it?

At this moment the need is specially great, for the Germans are now desperate. They begin to realise the truth of that dread decree "He that takes the sword, shall perish with the sword". At no horror will they hesitate if they can but escape the punishment that is their due.

Now on every man and woman among us lies the duty to bear a hand in administering that punishment a duty not only to ourselves but to posterity. If age or health prevent some of us from going they do not prevent us from following the greatest example ever set to mankind and making the sacrifice of that which is dearest to our hearts.

You young men I ask to listen carefully to the appeals which will once more be made to you in the next few weeks. Believe me that the voluntary act of a man, impelled by the high sense of duty, is far nobler than the mere obedience to the provisions of a public enactment.

One special word I say to women. Try to realise the sufferings of women and children wherever the Germans come: think of the little children starved in Belgium and slaughtered in cold blood in Armenia. Let your men folk stand out and protect you, for in helping to defeat the Germans they are protecting the honour and safety of all their dear ones at home.

Our First Duty.

Newfoundland will fail to rise above herself until all personal considerations and local jealousies are thrown into the dump and patriotism supreme springs from the hearts of every islander who places love of country first and foremost and far and away beyond individual benefit and profit.

So far as our conduct of war affairs has gone, we have not exhibited that spirit which brings victory, but have been too prone to cavil at everything, which in our opinion, has not suited us, thereby giving moral satisfaction and encouragement to the enemy.

Viewing the magnificent meeting of last night as an evidence that this spirit of distrust and criticism has disappeared, it should now be the prime duty of all classes, irrespective of any political predilections, to back up by every means at our disposal the new "win the war" policy, which has been generated, we might say, spontaneously; for it is apparent that only within the last few days has the true vision of things been seen by the people.

The great parade of last night has opened our eyes to the possibilities of our wholesome co-operation with the movement set on foot by the soldiers, and we realize now, as we had not perhaps before, the debt which we owe them, a debt which can only be repaid by striving with all our might to help in bringing the struggle raging in Europe, to a victorious finish for the arms of the Mother Land, the Overseas Dominions and the Allies.

And to strive with all our might means, that every man, every woman, every boy, and every girl, must put their shoulders to the wheel and push. New, fresh, strong, vigorous, determined efforts must be made. If the cause of victory demands sacrifices, we must make them without a murmur.

If it demands that we must give them as cheerfully as Abraham prepared to offer up Isaac. If the demand is for sacrifice in the way of luxuries, aye or of necessities, we must learn to do without them. Would we not be rather Britons on two meals a day than Huns on full rations? Better a dinner of herbs under British rule than a stalled ox with a Prussian bureaucracy established. Is money needed to win the war? Then we should be prepared to devote our last cent to bring victory. Money! Who would withhold a dollar when by contributing it, victory brilliant and glorious would be gained, and a peace lasting and certain, ensured. Let us then drop everything which keeps us apart; let us forget all past differences and begin anew the fight which will bring to the world the dawn of that day

When the war drum throbs no longer,
And the battle flags are furled in the Parliament of man
The federation of the world.

To Our Soldiers.
What are they fighting for, these splendid men,
Who sacrificing all a man loves most,
Go forth, undaunted, firm and true as steel,
Breaking the onrush of the German host,
Counting their very lives small price to pay?
They fight that we may see all warfare cease,
And Hate's dark clouds roll rapidly away
Before the dawn of Everlasting Peace.

We thrill with pride to think they are our own—
Those men who've bravely fought for God and King;
In years to come, what shall we call their names,
Which, through all ages, shall triumphantly ring?
Sajats, heroes, martyrs—all these paths they've trod—
Rather Peacemakers—children loved of God. N. C. E.

'Florizel' Inquiry.
At yesterday's sitting of the Marine Court of Inquiry, Mr. Dunfield intimated that the Attorney General had ruled that the matter of handling the bodies of victims of the Florizel disaster and matters pertaining to the belongings of the same, could be heard before another Court of Inquiry. He also pointed out that in the event of such an inquiry being started, it would be necessary for the Court to proceed to the scene of the wreck to take evidence, as well as conducting the inquiry in St. John's.

Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., representing Capt. Martin, then addressed the Commission and hoped to give our readers a full report of his address as soon as space will permit.

Former Report Incorrect.
Dear Sir—Many friends of Rev. W. W. Cotton, will be glad to learn that in reply to a cable sent by the Minister of Militia, Hon. F. R. Bennett, the War Office states that Lieut. W. W. Cotton has not been reported in the casualty list, and they suppose him to be with his unit. A former notice was to the effect that Lieut. Cotton had died of wounds. This message from the War Office will therefore, be a great relief to the wife and many friends of Lieut. Cotton, and I am greatly pleased to be in a position to make this announcement.

Yours truly,
L. CURTIS.

WIN THE WAR POLICY.
CHICAGO, To-Day.
The United States Chamber of Commerce in resolutions unanimously adopted at the sixth annual meeting, here to-day, urged the enactment of legislation for universal military service; reiterated its endorsement of the Government control of prices; took a stand favoring unequivocally the elimination of all non-essential industries, and announced its willingness to back to the utmost all measures that have for their aim the winning of the war.

AMERICAN MISSION HAS ARRIVED.
LONDON, To-Day.
An American mission, comprising representatives of Labor, Journalism, Banking and other interests, has arrived at a British port, where the mission was met by a committee, including Lt.-Col. Sir Campbell Stewart and Harry Brittain, Secretary of the English branch of the Pilgrim's Club.

HOME RULE TERMS.
LONDON, To-Day.
A report of the Irish Convention, submitted to the Ulster delegates, says that in regard to the fundamental issues no agreement was visible at any time. Almost every one of the speeches made by the Nationalists outlined a form of Home Rule far in advance of any previous claim. Finally a plan was brought forward on behalf of the Nationalists which included the following demands: A sovereign independent Parliament for Ireland, co-equal in power and authority with the Imperial Parliament; complete fiscal autonomy for Ireland, including the power of imposing tariffs and the control of excises; the right of making commercial treaties with foreign countries; the right to raise and maintain a military territorial force; repudiation of liability for the national debt, on the plea of over-taxation of Ireland in the past. Although the principal of a small annual contribution to the Imperial expenditures was admitted, it denied the right of the Imperial Parliament to impose military service on Ireland, except with the consent of the Irish Parliament. The Ulster delegates maintained that the fiscal unity of the United Kingdom must be preserved.

STILL UNREVEALED.
AMSTERDAM, To-Day.
The strategy of the German Supreme Army commanders is still unrevealed, says the Kiuestische Volkszeitung, and will be recognizable only in the course of further operations. The paper discounts this with the question of an "Extremely foolish idea" which it thinks may crop up, that the German thrust, against the Anglo-Portuguese front, indicates that when the offensive in Picardy couldn't be carried to success, the German Commanders wished to try an experiment elsewhere. The Frankfurt Zeitung regards the new thrust as a portion of a great plan of attack, and then dwells upon the great strain put on the enemy's nerves, by the necessity of having to make his dispositions in the greatest haste.

GENERAL SCHEME ADOPTED BY CONVENTION.
LONDON, To-Day.
The scheme mentioned by Sir Horace Plunkett as meeting the approval of the majority of the delegates, is set forth in paragraph 42 of the report, under the title "Statement of Conclusion," summed up as follows: Section 1.—The Irish Parliament to consist of the King, Senate and the House of Commons and notwithstanding the establishment of an Irish Parliament, the Supreme Power and authority of the Parliament of the United Kingdom shall remain unaffected, and undiminished over all persons, matters and things in Ireland, and every part thereof. (Section carried by 51 to 18.) Section 2.—The Irish Parliament to have general powers to make laws for peace, order and the good government of Ireland. (Section carried 51 to 18.) Section 3.—The Irish Parliament to have no power to make laws on the following: Crown and successor; the making of peace and war; army and navy treaties and foreign relations; dignities and titles of honor; necessary control of bors for naval and military purposes; coinage and weights and measures; copyrights and patents. The Imperial and Irish Governments shall jointly arrange, subject to Imperial exigencies for the united control of the Irish Police and postal services, during the war, provided that as soon after the cessation of hostilities, the Administration of these two services shall become subject to the Irish Parliament. (Section carried 49 to 18.) Section 4.—Restriction of the power of the Irish Parliament and prohibition of laws interfering with the religious equality; a special provision protecting the position of Free Masons and a safeguard for Trinity College and Queen University. Money bills to be founded only on a viceregal message; privileges and qualifications of the members of the Irish Parliament to be limited, as in the act of 1914, and rights of existing Irish officers to be safeguarded. (Carried 46 to 15.) Section 5.—Constitutional amendments as in the act of 1914. (Carried 46 to 15.) Section 11.—Money Bills to originate only in the House of Commons and not amendable by the Senate. (Carried 45 to 22.) Section 12.—Disagreement between the Houses to be solved by a joint sitting. (Carried 45 to 22.) Section 13.—Representation in the British Parliament to continue and Irish representatives to have the right to deliberate and vote on all matters; forty-two representatives shall be elected to the British House of Commons. Irish representations in the British House of Lords to continue as at present until that Chamber is remodelled, when that shall be reconsidered. (Carried 44 to 22.) Section 14.—Finance, Irish Exchequer and consolidated fund to be established, an Irish Controller and Auditor General to be appointed as in the act of 1914. If necessary, it should be declared that all taxes at present payable in Ireland should continue to be levied and collected until the Irish Parliament otherwise decided, and if necessary, adjustments of revenue between Ireland and Great Britain during the transition should be made. (Carried 51 to 18.) Section 15.—Control of Customs and excises by the Irish Parliament to be considered for further consideration until after the war, provided that the question shall be considered and decided by the United Kingdom Parliament within seven years after the conclusion of peace. Until the question of the ultimate control of Irish Customs and excises is settled, the Board shall contain persons nominated by the Irish Treasury, a Joint Exchequer Board, consisting of two members nominated by the Imperial Treasury, and two nominated by the Irish Treasury, with a Chairman appointed by the King, shall be set up to determine the true income of Ireland. Until the question of the ultimate control of the Irish customs and excise shall be decided, the revenue due to Ireland as determined by the Joint Exchequer Board, shall be paid into the Irish Exchequer. All branches of taxation, other than customs and excise shall be under control of the Irish Parliament. (Carried 38 to 30.) Section 16.—The principal of Imperial contributions is approved. (Carried unanimously.) Section 17.—Acceptance of the report of the sub-committee on land purchases. (Carried unanimously.) Section 18.—Deals with the judicial power similarly to the act of 1914. (Carried 43 to 17.) Section 19.—The Lord Lieutenant shall not be a political officer. He shall hold office six years and neither he nor his appointees shall be subjected to any religious disqualification. His salary shall be sufficient to throw the post open to men of moderate means. (Carried 43 to 17.) Section 20.—A civil service commission, consisting of representatives of the Irish Universities shall formulate a scheme of competitive examinations for admission to the public service, and nobody shall be admitted to such service who has not qualified. A scheme of appointments and salaries shall be prepared by a special commission, and no appointments shall be made until the scheme of this commission has been approved. (Carried 47 to 18.) Section 21.—The Irish Government, if desired, may defer taking over the departments of old age pensions, national insurance, letter exchanges, postal savings banks and friendly societies. (Carried 43 to 18.) The concluding paragraph of the report to the Imperial Government was carried by 43 to 35. The whole report was carried by 44 to 23.

Soldiers' Day, and all that it means is now numbered with the yesterdays, but be it said, and the citizens of loyal old St. John's will bear us out, that never in the history of the country was there anything approaching such a display of bunting and the spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm as was shown here yesterday. From the business house on Water Street, down to the humblest dwelling in the back streets, some token of sympathy for the soldiers and the great cause was demonstrated by the abundant flutter of flags and pennants. The suggestion of the promoters that carbou heads and red crosses be shown from the homes of those who have sent soldiers to fight in the great cause and for those who are foremost in patriotic work was largely availed of. Each carbou head represented a person in that family who had joined the colors. The number of little "red deer" varied from one to five in several homes throughout the city. In the United States where Sergeant Mitchell got the idea, flags of a similar nature were always exhibited and are never taken down, and the same practice might be followed here. The presence of those little emblems as symbols of heroic service may have the effect of awakening in the heart of some slacker the call to duty.

The Soldiers' Great Day.

City Ablaze with Bunting. Enthusiasm Reaches Its Highest Pitch. Mammoth Parade and Recruiting Meeting. Selective Conscription Called For By a Crowded Audience. Stirring Patriotic Addresses. Over Fifty Signed Up.

"Take hold of the wings of the mornin',
And flap round the earth till you're dead,
But you can't get away from 'em the tune that they play
To that bloomin' red rag over head."

Soldiers' Day, and all that it means is now numbered with the yesterdays, but he said, and the citizens of loyal old St. John's will bear us out, that never in the history of the country was there anything approaching such a display of bunting and the spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm as was shown here yesterday. From the business houses on Water Street, down to the humblest dwelling in the back streets, some token of sympathy for the soldiers and the great cause was demonstrated by the abundant flutter of flags and pennants. The suggestion of the promoters that caribou heads and red crosses be shown from the homes of those who have sent soldiers to fight in the great cause and for those who are foremost in patriotic work, was largely availed of. Each caribou head represented a person in that family who had joined the colors. The number of little "red deer" varied from one to five in several homes throughout the city. The presence of those little emblems as symbols of heroic service may have the effect of awakening in the heart of some slackers the call to duty.

THE PARADE.

Undoubtedly the largest parade in the history of St. John's was witnessed last night by upwards of 15,000 citizens. Long before the starting hour thousands of citizens gathered near the C.I.B. Armoury. At 7.30 the march began, the order of procession being as follows:

- Returned Soldiers in carriages.
  - Returned Soldiers marching.
  - T. A. Band.
  - Reflected men.
  - Regiment.
  - The C. I. B. Band.
  - C. C. C. Band.
  - C. C. C.
  - Highlanders Band and Companies.
  - Salisbury Army Band.
  - Patriotic citizens.
  - Motor cars with girls.
- The route followed was: Military Road, Ordnance St., Duckworth St., Cochrane Street, Water Street, Job Street, New Gower Street and Henry Street. The total number participating was about 1,400 and took 10 minutes to pass a given point. Numerous torches were carried by the ever-wild and ubiquitous small boy while banners bearing the following mottoes were much in evidence: "This is my own, my native land," "Will it be Germanized," "Will we be Slackers, No," "Have you anyone over there to be proud of," "Would you like this to be another Belgium," "Selective Conscription or our Honor," "Volunteer to-day or be Conscriptioned after the 23rd," "Why should only the best boys go," "And everybody can do something, what are you doing?" The motto carried by the girls was: "Do you want us to fight for you?" All along the route of march homes and public buildings were brilliantly illuminated. Not the least effective was the display made by Cochrane Street Methodist Church which exhibited a white banner 50 feet long which floated from the tower and was covered with 75 caribou heads representing the members of the congregation who have answered the call. At Bowring Bros., the flag bore 52 stars, Parker and Monroe's 27, and many other places had correspondingly large numbers. All the business houses were lighted up while the windows of the new Militia quarters, Stott building, Water Street, were decorated with numerous candles. The display of electric lighting exhibited by the Reid N.S.D. Co. at their electrical department and at the railway station was a sight worth seeing.

MEETING AT THE CASINO.

On the platform were Doctor Rendell, Doctor Tait, Capt. A. Kean, W. A. Munn, A. Robertson, T. J. Edens, P. C. O'Driscoll, M. Donnelly, H. H. Carter, J. E. Dempster, J. B. Mitchell, G. Turner, I. C. Morris and many other fathers of heroes at the front.

Lieut. Carter in moving that Dr. Rendell take the chair, said:—

Owing to critical times, and the Regiment's great need for reinforcements this meeting is essentially a recruiting meeting. There is one man who is responsible for this meeting and parade and that is Ex-Sergt. Mitchell, and too much praise cannot be given for his success. I got the honour to name the Chairman, who is the father of two sons overseas, one of whom has made the supreme sacrifice. I have, therefore, much pleasure in naming Dr. Rendell as Chairman.

Lieut. B. Dicks, another returned hero, seconded the motion.

Dr. Rendell then spoke as follows:—

I can assure you I esteem it a high privilege to be called to be Chairman of this meeting which is unique in the annals of Newfoundland, and I consider it an honour which has been conferred on me by my sons. (Loud applause.) The meeting is unique, in this—those who have risked their lives in the great cause, battered in body, and shattered in health, are now using what's left for the benefit of their comrades "over there." I am not here tonight to sound any note of sadness, rather to sound that one glorious triumph, which is going to permeate this meeting. Up to the Patriotic Meeting held in this theatre a week ago, which was addressed by His Excellency the Governor, recruiting had ebbed to its lowest, but since that meeting it has turned and now will pass with an irresistible force and do what our lads wish us to accomplish. If tonight we sent a message to our boys: "What do you wish us to do over here?" flashed back to us in a moment would come the answer: "Send us more men." Therefore, let us send more men. Looking back into old books of history we read of one great figure who stands out prominently, one who went through the land with a fiery cross and a naked sword, calling the people to duty. I hope God may send a Peter the Hermit to Newfoundland to get the men to go fight. Nay, not only for King and Country, duty to home and self, to wife and children but for something higher—for God and the Right.

Sergt. Robinson said it was a great pleasure to have the honor of being one of the first five hundred of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, also a pleasure to address an audience in St. John's, and he could never have done this if it were not for the fact that he had been one of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. On the 7th September, 1914, he enlisted and on the 8th reported at Pleasantville. In those days every man, woman and child were with them. He recalled the day they paraded to the good ship Florizel, then lying in Harbour, their steaming out of the Narrows and the singing by the Blue Puttees "Good Bye Narrows," "Farewell, Pleasantville," "It's a Long, Long Way to Terra Nova," but our Hearts are There Still." They met the convoy and took up their position in the rear of the Red line, the convoy being drawn up in 3 lines—Red, White, and Blue. He related how when they arrived in Devonport they were paraded on deck to go on shore and "take in the sights," but owing to their boots not being cleaned for 15 days and not having washed for about the same length of time, with worn blue puttees and no caps, it was decided they were "unfit" for shore. He gave a brief description of their movements from there to Salisbury Plains, Edinburgh, Stobbs Camp and Aldershot, and explained how they had gone from Malta to Lemnos, then sent back to Alexandria, then to Cairo.

Every man of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment and every man in the 29th Division knew what he had to do in the 21st day offensive. They were over 1,000 strong at the beginning, and 10 per cent. were kept back; 870 men went to the advance and 806 were casualties. Out of 65 left some were wounded. These are the men you have done everything for, he said, and what are you going to do for them now? What's wrong with Newfoundland? We don't want conscription, we want men. You started and said you are going to have a regiment. Are you now tired handing out money? No! we know we can get you, but we're going to have you like the others. We want you voluntarily. We want to have the outposts with us. (Here Sergt. Robinson was interrupted by a large number of the fair sex trying to gain admission to the gallery.) Men are not cowards. Women wouldn't marry if cowards existed. Let the young man look at this thing properly. Sergt. Robinson concluded by saying you've got to die and what better way can one do it than die for the honour of his country.

Dr. Tait was the next speaker. He read a carefully prepared address referring to wars as written by Homer. Speaking of recruiting the doctor said, it was not cowardice that kept our men back from enlisting, nor was it lack of patriotism, nor pluck, nor energy. The truth was, the matter had never been placed before them in the proper light. What is needed is that form of appeal which will reach the conscience, and to do this men of sympathy, of experience, of knowledge, and of magnetism to enthrall and show to whom they are addressing, the duty and honor and privilege of serving their king and country. We are fighting to-day for our very existence; we are fighting for liberty, for freedom and for the good and general prosperity of the world. These two terms, "Dominion" and "Royal" were given to us on account of the loyalty, bravery and good behaviour of our sons upon the battlefields of Europe. Are we going to let the Regiment go down? No! Never! Newfoundlanders are not cowards. They have shown hundreds of times, at the fields, at the wreck, and on the fields of Gallipoli and France, and they have proved to the world their strength of character. "The coward dies a thousand times, the brave man only once." From this meeting we believe there will arise immediate results, and our people will obey the call in such numbers that there will be no need for conscription. The voluntary act of a man impelled by the high sense of duty, is far nobler than the mere obedience to the provision of a public enactment.

Mr. J. E. Dempster opened out with the remarks "I come here as an out and out conscriptionist. (Prolonged applause.) There are two reasons why I take this attitude of the world, which will bring in the slackers; two, where would France be but for conscription?" Mr. Dempster also stated in his remarks that a fish would not be worth 50 cents a quintal were it not for the British Army and Navy. Continuing, he said we want the men of the outposts to come and see the Regiment. This is the least they can do.

Major Carty then addressed the large audience and was received with a generous outburst of applause. The Major in a most interesting manner told us some of the Regiment's doing on the Peninsula. He started out with the landing on the beach at Sulva Bay, the receiving of their training on the Peninsula and their baptism of fire. Before going into the firing line, the Brigadier General came and told them they belonged to the glorious 29th Division (loud applause) which had never lost a man. That they were going into the best brigade in the army. We were then an unknown quantity, but there is no doubt that before we had been in the trenches long, those opposite us got a high opinion of us. Major Carty in a very interesting way told how a Captain Wilson of the Engineers came up to put out some barbed wire, but the moon being bright, decided he come to-morrow night. He came to-morrow night, but the moon was again too bright, so he decided to wait till to-morrow night, but that to-morrow night never came for Capt. Wilson, for Major Carty's own men went out at 4 o'clock and did the necessary fixing up. Major Carty, who dwelt upon the doings of his company, particularly paid a tribute to the men. They could do anything. He quoted one or two incidents to prove the spirit of our men which were received with much applause. One of them was the mail carrier who was very deaf. He didn't mind shells falling around as he couldn't hear them. He came back one day with head and face cut badly, and when asked why he did not go to the dressing station, answered I came up on the back of it, sir! Continuing the Major said "that's the spirit of our men, that's the spirit of the first thousand who were out there and of the young men of St. John's would buck up, there would be no need of this meeting. Over there" when our men were falling with dysentery, we were beginning to ask "has the people forgotten us? Some of the men who fought on the Peninsula are now in France, and are saying are they leaving us here to die for lack of men? These men, gentlemen, would rather die than have the Regiment withdrawn. (Prolonged applause.) I would like to ask the employers of labor what they have done for the Regiment? Let them think it over. The returned soldier is here looking for employment and if you cannot give it to him give it to the next best man

Instant Relief From Eczema

You can stop that awful itch from eczema and other skin troubles in two seconds.

Seems too good to be true—but it is true, and we vouch for it. Just a few drops of the simple, cooling wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for eczema, a new remedy that is attracting widespread attention and the itch stops instantly. The first bottle will prove it.

Eczema, Bad Leg, Ring-worm, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Psoriasis, Open Sores and Itching Rashos and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years and years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

If you have skin trouble of any kind, get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere. Recommended by T. McMurdo & Co., A. W. Kennedy, M. Connor, Peter O'Mara.

—the rejected man. In this recruiting campaign he hoped the rejected men were going to be the working party and we are going to be the firing party. If men fail to sign up before the 15th inst. on the 23rd, they will lose their chance of volunteering.

Mr. A. Robertson was the next speaker, and he as the father of a soldier, pleaded for recruits. If one man could do to St. John's what has been done to-night in a few hours, what would the returned men do if they were to go to the outposts and carry on the programme. He believed any man who goes to the other side and in the trenches makes the supreme sacrifice, by enlisting.

Mr. I. C. Morris then delivered a most dramatic and inspiring recruiting address. He would gladly volunteer himself, but he had passed the age limit. He believed if recruiting had been taken up in the right way not 500 but 5,000 would have responded. He knew every nook and corner in the island. The people were not unpatriotic but were brave and loyal. He had sent two sons to the front, one who had made the supreme sacrifice and the other wounded. He was poorer because of the loss, but felt richer in that they helped to stem the advance of the unchristian German hordes and helped to win the victory that must surely come. This was a war in defence of home, of right and justice and the call will not go unheeded. Mr. Morris gave a brief account of the first recruiting campaign, and he thought if we were to win the victory which must come eventually, then let us send more men. What are we fighting for? Not for territory! England had lots of that. The cause is a just one! Young men, hear you not your mothers call to you? The men in the trenches call to you! The men in the trenches call to you! Let the sons come forth. If they fall down, if they come not back, what better can a man die for than his country and honor?

Capt. A. Kean, who has two sons "Somewhere in Mesopotamia," was opposed to war as were his sons; Duty, however, was another thing and he was proud he had someone to send. He resisted that recruiting had not been taken up with the right spirit otherwise the response might have been greater. Now that we are into it the Regiment must be kept up. We are fighting for a great cause, for everything that is sacred; for the cause of our forefathers who fought and died, and if we don't come voluntarily other methods must be availed of.

Dr. Rendell then called for recruits saying, "I tell you your fathers and mothers are keeping you back, they are made of better stuff than that." The fathers and mothers one fear is that their sons may become cowards. The following answered Dr. Rendell's appeal and ascended the platform where they remained till the meeting closed:

Dr. Rendell expressed regret that Sergt. Mitchell was unable to be present owing to illness. With loud cheers for the recruits and Chairman and the playing of the National Anthem at 11.15, a most successful patriotic meeting was brought to a close, the effects of which will undoubtedly be felt in every district in the Island. Mr. Mitchell deserves great credit for his efforts in organizing the affair and should feel a much satisfied man for this united meeting of the campaign. If a hundred such men as Mitchell would visit the outposts there is no doubt that each will have the same results as he had at this meeting here. Congratulations!

They may have tried it, half-heartedly, in an I-know-I-can't-possibly-do-it spirit. They haven't tried it with a this-may-make-life-easier-I'm-going-to-do-it-if-I-possibly-can spirit.

They Respect Their Habits.

Many people seem to respect their habits. They appear to regard them as something admirable—not for any intrinsic value, but because they are theirs. "I couldn't possibly knit the continental way," "I've always done the other," or "I couldn't cook with a gas oven; I'm used to coal," or "It would be a nuisance to me to bother with a fireless cooker."

I have just had an experience with this attitude of mind in my own life. For years I have said "I cannot write directly to the typewriter. I have to write anything I want to say in pencil, first, and then copy it on the typewriter. I can't think without a pencil in my hand."

I have had that same queer pride I speak about in this awkward, handicapping habit of mind.

Written On The Typewriter.

And then one day I saw an article in a magazine on the use of the typewriter. It spoke of how much it increased one's efficiency if one could write direct to a machine. "It's too bad I can't," I thought, regretfully. Whereat, some rebellious, progressive section of my brain spoke up and said, "How do you know you can't? You never really gave the thing a good trial." "You need a pencil in your hand to help you think," the conservative lobe of my grey matter obstinately reminded me. "Well, it won't do any harm to try," persisted the radical.

I tried. I kept on trying. And I conquered.

Looking For More Habits To Conquer.

At first I did part of my work on the typewriter, and went back to the pencil when I was struggling with some thought that was particularly anxious not to be captured and imprisoned in black and white words. Now I scarcely use the pencil at all.

This change in habits has shortened my working time quite materially. And it has done more than that. It has taught me that I can change my habits. I am on the war path for more inefficient habits to conquer.

Your Boys and Girls.

It is not possible to measure the harm that follows from young folks having no right provision for their amusement. The dance halls are not fit places for young boys and girls. The men who haunt these places may have money, but they always have low standards and a cheap attitude toward life, and needless to say standards are not apt to be on lines of pure and innocent amusement.

Right through life the wise mother recognizes her child's desire to find pleasure in the company of others of both sexes. Especially when adolescence is reached, do boys and girls like to be together, and if they get that companionship in a legitimate way it is all right, but if they get it in a futile and illegitimate way, it is the ruin of many before they have hardly started on the journey of life.

When they have become accustomed in association in play through early childhood, the age of adolescence is much less difficult and dangerous, for it is only natural for the opposite sexes to continue to play together in innocent pleasures when they grow older.

Our Daily Story.

TRUE TO LIFE

"An idea for a play, eh? Tell it to me," said Simon Ringfinger, the well known manager, to Truxton Scribe, the well known playwright.

"It's like this," explained the playwright. Lottie Passover, a beautiful but virtuous shop girl, is seen and longed for by Clement Gobbs, a young and unscrupulous millionaire. Lottie, struggling painfully to live on her salary of six dollars a week, finally succumbs to the gold-tinted promises of the young millionaire and goes away with him, believing implicitly that he means to fulfill his promise to marry her. But, far from home, he leaves her to her fate. A year later, with her child in her arms, she confronts him and shoots him dead."

Simon Ringfinger held up his hands in horror.

"But, my dear Scribe!" he cried, "that's utterly untrue to life! Audiences want lifelike plays, plays dealing with situations and events that they know are true to life because they have experienced them themselves. Give me a play like that and your fortune is made."

"Well, how's this?" said Truxton Scribe. "Lottie Passover, the beautiful but virtuous shopgirl, repulses the advances of Lord Trumbles, young and dashing English nobleman who plots in vain to ruin her. Finally, completely won over by the girl's purity and strength of character, he disguises himself and obtains a job as delivery man at the department store where Lottie is employed. He makes ardent love to her, and she, falling to recognize the nobleman in his humble disguise, falls in love with him. He then reveals his identity and makes her Lady Trumbles and takes her home to England to preside over his ancestral estates."

Simon Ringfinger, enraptured, kissed the playwright on both cheeks.

"That's a real play—that's true to life!" he cried. "Here's a check for $5,000 advance royalty—and do you think you can write it by next Thursday?"

Selective Conscription and a Newfoundland Victory Loan will help win the war.

ESCAPING SUMMER TAN.

It is no longer considered the thing to exert all of one's powers to acquire a leathery coat of tan, which, to say the least is doubtfully becoming. And the poor skin. How it suffers and grows unsightly because of the owner's lack of common sense. Then, when the colder months come and low neck gowns are worn, the scars of the summer sun remain, and instead of the beholder thinking of the summer at the seashore, they are doubtless pitying Miss Blank on account of her appearance, knowing that it is no longer good form to neglect proper precautions against wind and sunburn. One of the first precautions against sunburn is that of carrying a dainty sunshade on sunny strolls, especially after a sea bath. An old umbrella will answer the purpose, of course, if one does not wish to risk damage to a delicate parasol upon the wind-blown sands and against a wet bathing suit.

Have a sunbath if you must, but do not go to the extreme and bake yourself brown, thinking it is becoming and will show that you are a real sport. Men do not like to have a girl a real sport, if that truth were known, but prefer to have them dainty and womanly. An excellent way to prevent sunburn is to mask the face in cold cream and powder before braving the rays of the sun, the salt spray and the wind.

This mask need not be as conspicuous as it sounds. First rub a good cold cream on the face so that it enters all the pores, and then, after wiping it off with a very soft cloth, apply a layer of powder, leaving as much on the face as you can without it being too noticeable. Thus protected, the rays of the hottest sun will do but little damage.

THE ROYAL GOAT.

I would not think it too surprising to hear the kaiser's tired of kaising. The crimes of all his generation, and every bloody deed infernal of every general and colonel, are charged against the reigning Billy, which is enough to drive him silly. No other monarch's so begated, no other kings so cursed and hated. When he in times of peace was kaising, he gave himself much advertising as Lord of War, with fist of metal, a sort of scrapping Captain Kettle. He tried to pose as Mars incarnate, and now he pays and mutters, "darnit!" He may in truth be quite a rabbit; but since he got us in the habit of thinking he is bloodshed's booster, a crowing and a fighting rooster, we charge to him the misdemeanors of warriors and submariners. Some correspondents say that Billy has long had feet extremely chilly; he hates to see his men go further with their red carnival of murder. However that be, the blame he shoulders, and will until he dies and molders. The cry of execration rises, however modestly he raises. Before our eyes he's largely hulked, in photographs, as Mars and Vulcan.

Fads and Fashions.

Charming parasols are made of jersey trimmed with pompons. Straight, soft and slender, describes the fashionable silhouette.

A black satin bag trimmed with oxidized beads is very attractive. A very crinkly shiny silk is used in delicate shades for separate skirts.

Some gowns suggest the shawl influence of Spain in their draperies. Black chiffon over white silk is fashioned into the prettiest of dresses. Fringed ends of ribbon drape over the brims of some very pretty sports hats.

Evening frocks are draped, but tailored frocks follow the straight line. A black serge dress is very smart when trimmed with white wooden beads.

Satin, taffeta and grosgrain are used with serge to give a gown great cachet.

The general utility coat is a full length enveloping garment for automobile wear.

Parasols are in very novel shapes, very few follow the lines of the practical umbrella. Golden brown tulle can be used lavishly on gowns and hats and always with much charm. Short coats, odd waist coats, narrow skirts all follow one line—that of youthful slimmness.

When there is a touch of embroidery on the waist it should be echoed on the skirt.

The sentiment represented by THE WEDDING RING suggests the selection of an article guaranteed to be Finest Gold, good colour, and made with great care—a ring to be found at—

CAREY FILLED THE GAP.

LONDON, April 12.

General Landeman Carey, who, in the words of Premier Lloyd George, accomplished one of the most brilliant feats in the history of the British Army by holding the gap between the third and the fifth armies in the first days of the German blow in Picardy with a hasty organized nondescript force, is fifty-one years of age and a son of the Rev. Tupper Carey.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, April 12.

The Irish Convention laid the foundation for an agreement on the Irish question which is unprecedented in history. Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the Convention, says in a letter accompanying the report of that body.

"We had every reason to believe the Government contemplated immediate action upon the results of our labor," says Sir Horace. "The work of an Irish settlement, it is now felt, admits of no further postponement. In the Dominions and the United States as well as the Allied countries, the unsettled Irish question is a disturbing factor both as regards war effort and aims."

After every possibility of an agreement had been explored, Sir Horace writes, he was instructed to draft a report, which would be a narrative of the Convention's proceedings. With a statement for Government information of the conclusions adopted unanimously by a majority. This draft report was adopted by a majority. Sir Horace added that the public has been provided with no ma-

Women Force Way to Meeting.

Several interruptions were made in last night's recruiting meeting at the Casino. These interruptions were caused by a large number of the "fair sex", who appeared deeply interested in the proceedings, trying to gain admission to the gallery. At the end of every speech a "general advance" along the gallery would be made, those in the front ranks securing sittings while their comrades in the rear ranks were not so successful. At 11.15, when the meeting ended, they had just become nicely seated. It really was too bad that seating accommodation could not be provided at first.

CAREY FILLED THE GAP.
LONDON, April 12.
General Landeman Carey, who, in the words of Premier Lloyd George, accomplished one of the most brilliant feats in the history of the British Army by holding the gap between the first and the fifth armies in the first days of the German blow in Picardy with a busy, organized nondescript force, is fifty-one years of age and a son of the Rev. Tupper Carey.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, April 12.
The Irish Convention laid the foundation for an agreement on the Irish question which is unprecedented in history, Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the Convention, says in a letter summarizing the report of that body: "We had every reason to believe the Government contemplated immediate action upon the results of our labor," says Sir Horace. "The work of an Irish settlement, it is now felt, admits of no further postponement. In the Dominions and the United States as well as the Allied countries, the unsettled Irish question is a disturbing factor both as regards war effort and peace." After every possibility of an agreement had been explored, Sir Horace writes, he was instructed to draft a report, which would be a narrative of the Convention's proceedings. With a statement for Government information and the conclusions adopted unanimously by a majority. This draft of the report was adopted by a majority. Sir Horace added that the public had been provided with no maajority report in the sense of a unreasonable statement in favor of the conclusion upon which the majority agreed, but has been left to gather from the narrative of the proceedings what the contents of such a report would have been. The issue of minority reports by the Ulster Unionists and a minority of the Nationalists has minimized the agreement reached and emphasized the disagreement. The Convention did not find it possible to overcome the objections of the Ulster Unionists, says Sir Horace. A majority of the Nationalists, all the southern Unionists and five of the labor representatives agreed upon a scheme of self-government which is given in the conclusion reached by the majority, which he states should be enacted into law.

Escapes From German Prison.

The Militia Department received a message from across yesterday stating that Moyles Stick had escaped from a German prison and was on his way to England. A further message corroborating the foregoing was also received by Mr. Archibald Macpherson from Private Stick's father, who is now in London. Pte. Stick, who left here with the R.A.M.C., afterwards joined up with the Regiment and took part in the battle of Monchy, in which he was captured by the Germans. No particulars as to how he escaped or where he is at present have been received.

MR. GEO. SOMERS FINDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS BEST.

In His Eighty-second Year He Tells Why, After Trying Other Medicines, He Pines His Faith to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Barrie, Ont., April 12th.—(Special.) Mr. George Somers, Barrie's grand old man, now in his eighty-second year, has made a statement in regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills, Canada's grand old kidney remedy. "I have tried several kinds of kidney pills," Mr. Somers states. "I have arrived at the conclusion that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best so far; at least, they have given me the best satisfaction. I have taken them for nearly twenty-five years off and on as I have needed them."

Mr. Somers, who for forty years before retiring was a carriage worker, strained his back while gardening, and for over twenty years has been troubled, more or less, with his kidneys.

That he has pinned his faith to Dodd's Kidney Pills after trying the other kinds is considered a splendid tribute to the grand old Canadian kidney remedy. As his advanced age he is splendid evidence of the good work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing.

THE WAR.

The great offensive has entered upon another stage, has assumed another phase. Shifting the point of their attack from the Somme, for the simple reason that it was held within unyielding walls of adamant and had scarcely room to move, the Germans have transferred it to the battle-scarred area to the north, around Ypres and Armentieres. I should have thought that the mere fact of this transference, and reflection upon the obvious cause behind it, would have been a great encouragement to anyone among the Allies; but because the same massed, and of course murderously costly, attacks have won the same initial victories of so much terrain captured, people get panicky instead and are prepared to see the war lost in a week. As a matter of fact, it seems to me that in pursuing the only course that can end in a speedy conclusion, which is victory for the Allies. The Germans will continue to buy fresh territory with fresh payments of blood, until their human treasury is exhausted.

Lloyd George gave a clear hint of this very conviction in his recent great speech, when he gave as a reason for the decision to throw the American forces into the battle at once the probability that that battle will be decisive. In other words, when that battle is over the war will have been lost and won. Undoubtedly the Allies are in danger, but it is not merely to meet and avert the danger that men are required now and are being summoned in such numbers: it is for the purpose that will follow when it has been met and averted. That purpose is to finish the war. In other words, the Allies need a reserve force large enough to indemnify them against every accident when, at the proper time, they throw into the great counter-attack every available man in France and Flanders.

When this present offensive is halted another will, in all likelihood, succeed it in another place. But it will be weaker, just as this one will be weaker than the tremendous assault upon the lines of the Somme and the Oise. Then the Allies will take their inings.

those who have the first claim upon him. The movement is one most creditable to the originators, among whom Sergeant Mitchell bears the first honours. Its beneficial effects will certainly extend far beyond its success in the recruiting endeavour, great though that promises to be.

TIME TO STOP IT.

St. John's has now looked on, apathetically enough at the discreditable spectacle of the N. I. W. A. strike for more than a fortnight. Who must bear the chief discredit I do not pretend to know, but we have certainly no cause to take pride in such an occurrence at such a time. By reason of its size and the public position of the Reid Company it has long since passed the point of a private dispute between employer and employee. It affects the public closely, but so far the custodians of the public weal, the Government, have not lifted a finger to put an end to it. The merits of the whole question should be investigated by it—should have been at the outset—and those in the wrong at once compelled to back down. The Government have not merely the right but a duty to intervene. It is strange that they do not hesitate to exercise the wide powers conferred upon them by the War Measures Act to interfere in a matter entirely outside the scope of that Act for purely political purposes, while they permit an occasion like this, which the law was peculiarly meant and adapted to apply to, to pass unnoticed. The price of fat is everything, and the whole country must be taxed to give less than two thousand fishermen something that the market never entitled them to; the public service is of no account and is no concern of the Government's.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

I sincerely hope that when the House assembles in the next fortnight it will busy itself at once to provide for the same excellent daylight saving as last year, and bring it into earlier operation. It could with benefit be initiated a clear month or more earlier than last year, so that the public may get the benefit of the long May and June evenings. I can imagine no objection whatever to such a course: the utmost any objector can urge is that he is not affected one way or the other. The idea has been tried out and found excellent in every way. Let it become permanent.

THE SOLDIERS TAKE A HAND IN.

Here in Newfoundland the Government has moved at last and set about doing its duty. Though the action is belated, it is none the less refreshing, and I congratulate them upon it. The warning is plainly given to the country, and if it passes unheeded, I hope the Government will not lack the courage to take the next step necessary. There is now a new factor to be reckoned with. A splendid movement has been initiated with energy and brilliant promise by the returned soldiers, which should result in a wave of enthusiasm through the length and breadth of the country. They have formed themselves into an association and invited the rejected men to join them in giving a stimulus to recruiting, and, in fact, carrying out a recruiting campaign of their own. All luck to them! They are the right men to do it, and many a slacker who will not listen to civilians or politicians, however eloquent and earnest, will have to listen to

There is nothing so wearing on nerves as worry and anxiety. Nervous force is consumed at an abnormal rate, and as the nerve cells become starved and depleted you find yourself unable to rest or sleep. You get so you can only see the dark side and become down-hearted and discouraged.

The Burden of Anxiety falls on the Women

ALMOST everybody is living under a tense nervous strain during these trying times, but the burden rests particularly heavy on the women in the home. Whatever their employment about the house, the mind has much time to dwell on the dreadful things that might happen. There is nothing so wearing on the nerves as worry and anxiety. Nerve force is consumed at an enormous rate, and as the nerve cells become starved and depleted you find yourself unable to rest or sleep. You soon get so you can only see the dark side, and become down-hearted and discouraged.

Headaches, neuralgic pains, indigestion and failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions are among the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves and low vitality. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you if you will only give it a chance. We know this from long experience with this great food cure. We have proven it by evidence published in this paper from time to time. It only remains for you to put it to the test. You may wonder why people are so enthusiastic in recommending this treatment for the nerves. But you will understand after you have experienced the benefits that are to be obtained by its use. You will find yourself resting and sleeping better, appetite and digestion will improve and you will know, again the joy of good health.

F. H. STEER, Treasurer. Selective Conscription and Newfoundland Victory Loan will help win the war. TELEGRAPHERS LOYAL. PEKING, April 6. By the Associated Press--A high telegraph official of the Government has investigated the reports that Germans are enlisting Chinese, Japanese and Korean telegraphers at Harbin and Chang Huan, for service on the Chinese Eastern railway and declares that no telegraphers has left their posts in China except, possibly, in outer Mongolia, where the officials are not under Government control. Strict orders have been issued against the granting of permission to leave the telegraph offices without the fullest investigation.

Statement of St. Vincent De Paul Society.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir--The following is a brief statement showing what the St. Vincent de Paul Society has done during the past year in the City of St. John's: No. of orders issued, 1,008; for Coal, Food and Special Cases. Great as this account of charitable work may appear, it is only a part of what might be accomplished if more means were at our disposal. Perhaps it would be well to state what way this charity work is performed and what classes we help. Well, we attend to every deserving case that comes before us and give it that attention as far forth as our means will allow. The classes we mostly relieve are the poor widows, who have no income; the widows and the little orphan children, and the families where a father is sick. Now, we assure you that in our city there are hundreds of people in these classes. What we give them is, practically speaking, very little compared to what their needs are, but we cannot do any more; therefore, we feel that by a little publicity, tempered by charitable motives, we may get those who would be of great assistance to us in the performance of this heavenly work, viz., helping the poor and distressed among us. It might be as well to remind you that owing to the increased cost of both food and coal our revenue is taxed to such an extent that it leaves us in a poor position to help as heretofore; hence it is we ask for your personal interest in our work, feeling that with your assistance we will be in a position to do a lot more for those who need our help. Should you desire to help us in this matter or should you have a friend who would be disposed to render us financial assistance, we shall be glad at all times to be at hand to receive what you may have to offer. Any information you may desire further on the matter, we shall at all times be ready to give you. Expressing our good wishes we remain, Sincerely yours, MICHAEL M. WALSH, Secy. CHARLES W. RYAN, Pres. April 11, 1918.

St. Thomas's Annual Parish Meeting.

The annual meeting of the parishioners of St. Thomas's Church was held in Canon Wood Hall on Thursday evening. The Rector of the Parish, Rev. Dr. Jones, presided, and a large number of parishioners attended. The Rector opened the meeting with prayer, after which the minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Mr. Fred. M. Stirling, Secretary of the Select Vestry. The report of the Rector showed great advancement in all branches of the work of the Parish, whilst the financial statement, which was presented by the Secretary of the Vestry in the absence of Hon. R. Watson, Financial Warden, showed the largest total receipts in the history of the Parish, with a substantial credit balance in the bank. Other reports were presented as follows: Church Institute, by Mr. Findlater; St. Margaret's Guild, by Rev. A. Clayton, L.Th.; Sunday Schools, by Mr. H. Y. Mott; Women's Home Missionary Society, by Rev. C. A. Moulton; Bands of Hope, by Rev. C. A. Moulton; Cemetery Committee, by Mr. E. S. Piment; Protestant Industrial Society, by Mr. W. Jeans. Certain improvements to the Church property were decided upon, including the erection of a new Rectory, for which a fund will be at once inaugurated by the Finance Committee, and erection entered upon in due course. Votes of thanks were then passed to the various Church workers, and the meeting closed at 11 o'clock with the singing of the National Anthem and the pronouncing of the Benediction by the Rector.

SUNLIGHT SOAP. $1,000 Guarantee of Purity on every Bar.

THE "Sunlight" Guarantee of Purity was never more justified than it is to-day, because it enables us to insure the wives of our gallant soldiers and sailors against the drudgery and worry of household cleaning. Sunlight Soap saves rubbing--saves scrubbing--saves the clothes. That portion of a wife's allowance which must be devoted to the cleaning of the home is, therefore, absolutely safeguarded when spent on Sunlight Soap.

VOLUME XL

Published by Authority

Owing to the collapse in Russia, which allowed Germany to remove the main part of her Army from the Eastern to the Western front, the Allies have been severely handicapped in meeting the greatest offensive of the war.
 There is an urgent call to all parts of the Empire for men.
 In the United Kingdom steps are being taken to conscript all men up to the age of 51 years.
 As a self-governing Dominion Newfoundland has been called upon to do her part in filling the gaps. We have been specially called upon by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to keep the Royal Newfoundland Regiment at its full war strength. Three hundred men (300) are required immediately and sixty (60) men additional per month. The need for these men is set forth in the despatch received Tuesday, April 9th, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, which reads as follows:—

"April 9th.—Statement has been received from Army Council to the effect that the Newfoundland Regiment in France is now short of the authorized War Establishment by 170 men, and that the number of men under training in England is not sufficient to make up this deficit. Since very heavy fighting must be anticipated, at least 300 men will be required from Newfoundland as early as possible in order to bring the Battalion up to strength and an additional sixty men per month will be required to maintain it in the field."
 H. M. Government trust that your Government will be able to supply these men.
 (Signed) LONG."

Conscription prevails throughout Canada and the United States, and Newfoundlanders in Canada are being conscripted.
 Under the War Measures Act the Newfoundland Government have ordered:—

That no unmarried man between the ages of twenty and thirty-five, who is eligible for the Army or Navy, shall be permitted to leave the Dominion.

That no person who is eligible for the Army or Navy shall be allowed to leave the Dominion without a Passport.
 Newfoundland must do its part, and cost what it will, the Regiment must be maintained. Our Regiment has performed deeds of valor equal to any in the history of the British Army. Its gallantry in the field has won the recognition of the King by the bestowal of the glorious prefix "ROYAL".

It has earned so many encomiums from the Commander in Chief, the Divisional and Brigade Generals, that we cannot allow it to be withdrawn from the scene of conflict.
 It has placed the name of Newfoundland on the Honour Roll of the nations. It would be an eternal disgrace to the eligible men of Newfoundland to allow the name to be erased from that Honour Roll by failing to keep the Regiment up to its full fighting strength.

An opportunity is now afforded the young men of the country to join the ranks.
 On St. George's Day, the 23rd April, the Legislature will be convened, and immediate attention will be given to the consideration of the steps to be taken to maintain the Royal Newfoundland Regiment at full war strength.

In the meantime the need is urgent, and every effort should be made to answer the call from the Excellency of the Governor and from the War Council, to enlist as many men as possible.
 W. W. HALFYARD,
 Acting Colonial Secretary,
 Dept. of the Colonial Secretary,
 April 11, 1918.

Published by Authority.

Under the provisions of the War Measures Act, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to order:—

1. That no unmarried man between the ages of 20 and 35 years, who is eligible for the Army or Navy, shall be permitted to leave this Dominion.
 2. That no person who is eligible for the Army or Navy shall be allowed to leave the Dominion without a Passport.

For public information it is notified that persons holding Passports under will, in the event of their desiring to leave Newfoundland, require to present the said Passports at this office, without such visa they will not be permitted to leave the Dominion.
