

The Home Beautiful —in one day!

The window draperies, portieres, lamp shades, bureau scarfs, furniture or cushion covers in your home—are they faded, soiled, dingy?

To wash them would mean a hard day's work for some one—rubbing, scrubbing, ironing, re-hanging.

To dye them in chosen, harmonious, fast colors, and to clean them thoroughly at the same time will actually be less bother and toil and ever so much more satisfactory. Every room will assume a fresh and rejuvenated atmosphere—much saving will be accomplished—much pleasure experienced.

It's a splendid suggestion—decide to have a SUNSET day in your Home!

The University and the People.

Dr. J. W. Barrett, C. M. G. of Melbourne University, Australia, gives his impressions of the State University of Wisconsin. Speech before the Congress of the Universities of the Empire, 1912.

"On the way to Europe I spent two days at that remarkable University, Wisconsin, where the extension movement has been pushed on a scale and to a degree hitherto unknown in any portion of the globe, and I propose to give an outline of that most interesting development.

The University of Wisconsin bases itself on a tripod—research, instruction, and popularization. By popularization is meant the conveyance of information obtained by the researcher and others to the people of the State. The three functions are regarded as co-equal and are entrusted to men of equal rank but different temperament. The result is that there has been established an Extension department, separate from the rest of the University, presided over by a Dean and staffed on a scale that makes the mouth of an Australian University Governor water. The sum spent is $25,000 per annum, and there are thirty-one clerks and stenographers in the office, apart from the educational officers. All the difficulties that Mr. Mansbridge has raised about books, etc., do not exist in Wisconsin, because any citizen who wants a book has only to write to the Extension department, and he gets it by paying the cost of transit one way. The Extension department says in effect to the people of Wisconsin (2 1/2 millions in number): "Whatever information you want you can have; we keep a staff for the purpose. We have a bureau of universal information, and what you desire you can have. But in addition we will provide courses of study which we think will help you. We should like you to come to the University for four, six, or eight weeks in the summer, and we will then give you the information necessary for your particular occupation." Furthermore, the University sends from the Agricultural Department officers to visit the people on the farms, to prepare analyses of the soils of those farms, to inspect their herds, and to give them advice as to the best methods of meeting their problems. Trains are run conveying lanterns and other apparatus for lecturers who visit centres where the farmers collect from many directions, and instruction is given on the spot. I was informed that the provision of lectures at the University was not enough. It was personal contact with the men living in their own districts which was essential to the complete development of the scheme. The British idea of the Extension teacher as an inferior university officer is a mistake. The fact is recognized at Wisconsin by the insistence that every year the Research officer, the instruction officer, and the Popularization officer shall spend a period under the same roof engaged in pieces of research, so that they are acquainted with one another and know what work is being done.

This whole-hearted attempt to convey information is just as important

What is the use of obtaining information if it is to be filed away and not applied? All that has been done in Wisconsin has been based on the central idea of making the lives of the people better and more useful. What has been the result? The State of Wisconsin and the University are practically synonymous. The State will vote any reasonable sums of money wanted. The people are behind the University in every forward movement, and you have the spectacle of legislation conducted with the technical advice of University Professors. A Professor of Economics in the University of Wisconsin is in charge of the Parliamentary Reference Library. If you are a member of the legislature and wish to draft a Bill say, on the management of main roads, you go to the Library and inquire, "What has been done on the main roads problem in other countries?" The staff is set to work, and in a few days a precise is prepared and handed to the legislator. This practice of utilizing the expert for purposes of ordinary administration is pursued in other directions. It is an extraordinary spectacle. The end of it has not yet been seen, but it is so great an experiment that I defy any sensible man to visit Wisconsin without being profoundly impressed. I am quite aware of the difficulty of transplanting novel features from one country to another. It is, however, my intention to examine the Oxford movement, and on my return to Australia, to endeavor to improve the Extension system, to try to put it on its proper basis, and to obtain from University and State a clear realization that popularization in the proper sense of the term is an essential part of the work of educated men.

A Fighting Man.

He drives his dairy cart up to our door.
 Bringing the morning's milk and jar of cream.
 Dressed in his faded overalls and big Straw farmer's hat. It really does not seem
 As if he'd ever been a soldier—yet Not one of us are likely to forget That day the village boys came home from France;
 Haggard and thin, but happy as the rest.
 His empty coat-sleeve pinned across his breast.
 "Home again folks!" he laughed. Me for the farm,
 To show a chap can work with just one arm!

He never talked about himself one bit But others told the story; how that he Put up a German gun crew all alone And won the cross for special bravery.

Though, when I asked him how the thing was done,
 He only said: "Go ask your mother. Son,
 How many quarts of milk, and would she like Some green corn or tomatoes, fresh to-day?"

That's all! Just turned the subject, mawkish blivie!
 He didn't hear one word I had to say.
 But then—he sighed, and touched unconsciously That limp sleeve where his right arm used to be!

Masquerade Dance.
 VIEWED BY LARGE AUDIENCE.

The Masquerade Dance held in the Prince's Rink last night was witnessed by 1,200 people, some 100 masqueraders being in attendance. The colors of the costumes and the splendid decorations added greatly to the pretty spectacle that was witnessed. The costumes worn were both original and handsome, and the judges had a difficult task to perform in selecting the winner. After careful consideration the prizes were awarded to Miss McNicol, "Butterfly"; and Mr. Joseph Butler, "Admiral."

Both the C.C.C. and Mt. Cashel Bands were present, and played excellent music throughout the evening. After the sixth item on the programme general dancing followed, and a large number of patrons who were not masqueraders were thus permitted to enjoy themselves.

It is the intention of the C.C.C. Band who organized the affair, to hold a similar carnival before the end of the month, when the seasons Promenade Concerts will be fittingly brought to a close. The C.C.C. Band and all concerned are to be congratulated on last night's splendid success.

The menu will be a very excellent one, the catering having been left in the hands of Mr. Leo Robinson. The C.C.C. full orchestra secured for the occasion will render several of our war-time airs, which in itself should ensure the gathering a pleasant evening's musicale. To allow the employees from the Water Street stores an opportunity to attend, the re-union has been held over until 9.45 p.m.

"Newfoundland" Taken to Task.

SHAREHOLDER SAYS HIS FACTS AND FANCIES ARE ALL WRONG.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—The ignorance of a correspondent signing himself "Newfoundlander" in yesterday issue of the Telegram is so obvious, that for his thinly veiled stunts at myself and others, I would not venture to reply to such a quixotic knight of the pen, who jousts so refreshingly with the English language. Evidently he must be one of the directors of that so much advertised St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., or if not a member of that august but famously, useless body, he at least has been commissioned to scrawl in their defence. Whether or not he is a shareholder is not germane to the issue. Apparently he is one of the type of literary mongers who while welcoming criticism of the class with whom he associates, yet fears the genuine, honest article. He asks the shareholders of St. George's Coal Fields to look carefully into "what has been done during the past three years to destroy confidence in the possibilities of these unquestionably valuable coal areas." Well the shareholders have looked and so far as they can see it would need a microscope to discover anything that has been done to give investors a return for the money they eagerly spent in the purchase of stock ostensibly for development and promotion purposes. Newfoundlanders is altogether wrong in his premises. No shareholder wishes to tear down the fabric which his or her money helped create. The very thing which is objected to is that the directors have no say in the matter, hence they are helpless inasmuch as they do not appear to know how to break down the individual influence against them. That is why I asked that the shareholders appoint a directorate (if they are allowed) who do know how to begin to overcome the curse of one man government, even to an appeal to the court of last recourse if necessary. Newfoundlanders is not at all happy in his references. Neither are his opinions his own. There are more things in connection with the St. George's Coal Fields than are dreamed of in his philosophy, and I may take pleasure in telling him some of these some day.
 Yours truly
 SHAREHOLDER.

Coaker's Day is Done.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—In the editorial of the Evening Advocate under date of Nov. 1st, which has just come to hand, we notice the copy of a message supposed to be sent to Mr. E. J. Wornell of this place, cancelling signatures of those who signed Fishermen's Resolutions at Amherst Cove, Newman's Cove, and Birch Cove. Mr. Wornell did receive a collect message (and on its non-acceptance by him was afterwards paid) with no signature, and the first information received as to who sent the message was in the issue of Advocate of date mentioned.

The fishermen of this side of the Bay cannot realize that any body of their fellow fishermen even if they belong to a small section of the District, after hearing the Resolutions read two or three times and explained as well as any layman could do so, for them to sign, and a few hours after ask for their signatures to be cancelled. We cannot believe such to be the case, and can only think that if the one who should have signed the telegram received, which according to the Evening Advocate is John Elliott, who was our Chairman of the meeting held at Newman's Cove, we say that if this man did sign the copy of message he must have been easily led by the faction which we always supposed to be the friends of the underdogs, but now since we have started this fight for "Suum Cuique" we find that they are our enemies.

Our Resolutions gave the present Government a chance to make good their many promises to us, as the fishermen's friends, and in our opinion we are asking only that which is possible to be granted with retrenchment, and which some of our leading business economists say is quite possible to be done, and now in fear of losing their self-voiced large salaries they have turned traitors to the political platform on which they were elected again and again until they assumed the reins of Government. Mr. A. B. Morine seems to be the man they are afraid of, the man who was chosen by our delegates, who visited St. John's, and who was afterwards accepted as our adviser as we believe he understands our needs—more than any other man at this time—to keep the fisheries on a paying basis so that we may be able to maintain our families in some comfort. Now, men of Amherst, Newman's and Birch Coves, who signed those Resolutions don't be misled by those whom now we know to be the enemies of every man who takes a cod from the water. And when you have won the victory, be able to hold on your heads like men, and say: "We did our bit, to win it."

In a letter signed "Union" in the same issue of the Advocate before mentioned it is asked who E. J. Wornell is and in reply for your information we beg to say that E. J. Wornell is one who was appointed from the fishermen of the North side of Bonavista Bay as one of their committee and not chosen by Mr. A. B. Morine. He was afterwards asked by that Committee to accompany the Chairman, Walter Carter, and Mark

Bray to Bonavista to assist them in putting the Resolutions before the people. Now Mr. so-called-Union this is our answer to your query and further you are likely to know who a good many more Northern fishermen are before the movement is ended. We also wish to inform you that E. J. Wornell was not expelled from the F.P.U., but withdrew from that body as hundreds more of Green-

Preliminary Meeting A Great Success.

Bonavista Fishermen Give Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C. and Capt. A. Kean Tremendous Ovation.

Resolutions Endorsed by Whole Audience.

That the outport fishermen now in St. John's are united and in full sympathy with the movement for higher prices for fish, and reduced taxation, was clearly evidenced by the large and enthusiastic meeting held last night in the Assembly Hall of the Seafarers' Institute. The meeting opened shortly after seven o'clock, but long before that time the hall was filled, each being obliged to stand. Mr. A. B. Morine, who is acting as adviser to the united fishermen, on arrival was greeted with a rousing reception, a similar outburst of applause greeting Mr. A. Kean, who arrived shortly afterwards. Chairman Wm. D. Sainsbury on opening the meeting, explained that it would be but a sort of round table talk preliminary to the meeting of the delegates from the outports and the schooners now on the way. He emphasized the fact that the fishermen were not getting fair play, and that party politics was not to be introduced. It was not done at the meetings held in the Northern Bays and it must not be introduced here. He urged his hearers to be levelheaded and to carry out this programme. There was no reason to cause a disturbance and there was less reason to have a riot in part to prevent it. He read the following message received during the afternoon from the outports:

Mr. A. B. Morine,
City.

Delegates left by Susu, 2 p.m. Big demonstration, flags flying, cannons roaring, guns firing, public wharf thronged with people cheering until steamer left. Good evening. With you tonight in spirit. Best wishes to the people of St. John's. And all other places represented at your meeting.

S. W. HODDINOT,
Secretary.

The Chairman next called upon Mr. Morine to explain how the fishermen were to work and act during the present crisis.

THE SITUATION EXPLAINED.

Mr. Morine on coming to the platform explained that the meeting had been called at the request of the delegates from Bonavista Bay. He had learned that some sales of fish had been made at $4 and the promise of a $5. He advised all to wait until they received orders from the committee, as everyone accepted $4 and the price it was evident that there would be no rise. It was therefore being an injustice to themselves if they sold before the delegates had time to carry out their plans. The delegates had already accomplished something, as before their recent visit to the city, Labrador was sold at $3.80 but since it has been bought for as high as $4.10. He asked why not hope that something more may be done? He was not promising that there would be a rise, as it was not in his power to grant that. Mr. Morine went on to explain that this was a fishermen's movement that sprang from the hearts of the people despite what others had to say. It had been said that because he was mixed up with it that it was a political movement, but the people who were using the word in the "Advocate" were encouraging to beat the fishermen out of his back. He called upon the fishermen to say if the movement originated with him and received immediate responses of No! No! from all parts of the hall. Continuing, he said that he cries that this is a political movement is an injustice to the fishermen. It was that after the United Fishermen's Delegates had gone to the Government and the Board of Fisheries without getting any satisfaction, they came to him and asked his assistance. He willingly gave his services as he had always done and should not every newspaper, every politician, every lawyer, merchant, or anyone, assist the fishermen in getting water prices. In the present crisis one also seemingly came forward to take the lead, although some are doing quite a lot of talking and nothing for the newspapers.

REDUCED TAXATION.

Explaining how the movement for higher prices broadened out into a movement for reduced taxation, Mr. Morine said the delegates on their return to the Board of Trade were given the assurance that if they got a dollar extra price for the fish, the Government would reduce taxation.

They were told that they couldn't and they wouldn't reduce taxation. Hence they were now in the position that they had to start this movement, that has the sympathy of the country at large regardless of party or politics. Introducing the matter of reduced taxation, Mr. Morine gave his opponents no opportunity to say it was party politics. Why did the Advocate turn the matter into party politics? Why did they not say we will take off the taxes, he asked? He had been accused of not having a suggestion to make to improve the present situation. That was not so, and at the meetings which would follow he would give the details of a proposition that the Govt. could adopt to advance the price of fish, one that was feasible, and one that he could adopt without legislation were it in his power to do so. Outlining this proposition, he said that the price of fish abroad was kept below what it might be by unregulated competition. He illustrated this by pointing out that the arrival here during October month of so many schooners always tended to lower prices. This, he said, was the position of the merchants in the markets of Oporto and Alicante. There was too much competition at home. Nobody had tried to regulate this, but all movements were directed to benefit the exporter. He felt convinced that of all the fish now unsold in St. John's was given in charge of one man that the price would immediately advance. He had consulted with big men here who stated that they would be prepared to pay $4.50 or even $5.00 for Labrador fish, if they were assured that others could not buy at a lower price. He proposed that the delegates approach the Government to appoint a fish holding commission with power to hold and dispose of same for the benefit of the fishermen. This Commission should consist of three members; one appointed by the fishermen, one by the Government, and a third appointed by the two. This commission would have control of all the fish unsold, and be given the power of shipping the fish to the markets for the benefit of the fishermen. They would pay the present current price for the fish, and by means of a warehouse receipt, negotiate the necessary advances from the Bank, the Government to be asked to endorse the balance between the advance and the cost of fish. He thought this a sound business proposition, which should appeal to the Government. They were only asked to endorse the price which the merchants are now paying and why not do for the fishermen what they are doing for the Reid's in the Humber Proposition. The profits from the transaction would go to the fishermen, less the normal expenses of shipping. Thus the fishermen in a sense would be the shipper to market, of his own produce.

THE WAY OUT.

The path out of the present difficulties was by combination, negotiation and appeal. The fishermen must work with the merchant for the common good. The day had come when the cry "down with the merchants" had passed. It was necessary in the interest of both that the fisherman and the merchant should pull together for the common good and he was sure that when the merchants saw that the fishermen were making an honest effort to reduce taxation, with a united spirit and a broad principle, they would throw in their lot for the common cause. Every cent of taxes is paid out of the fisheries except a small proportion derived from the iron and wood pulp industries. The fisheries have to pay the running expenses of the country, and the fishermen bore the burden of government, either directly or indirectly. Last year the Government collected $13,000,000 out of $16,000,000 income from the fishery, and while this goes on what can be expected. Our public debt is growing, and no attempt is made to cut down our expenses. The expenditure was too high and the important question is, who is going to get things right? The merchant is required to know if the taxes are being reduced for next year, the fishermen want to know so that both would then be in a position to say if they could prosecute the voyage next season. To this end an early session of the House, continuous from day to day, was absolutely necessary. The necessary reduction in taxes must be made before Jan. 1st if the fisheries are to continue next year. In conclusion, Mr. Morine said he hoped the matter of immediate reduced taxation would be impressed upon all. The merchant, the mechanic, the fishermen, the laborer and the country were asking, "Watchman, what of the night?" They wanted to know what the rate of taxes was going to be, otherwise they would have to join the many thousands who have sought elsewhere for a living.

CAPTAIN KEAN SPEAKS.

Chairman Sainsbury thanking Mr. Morine for his splendid address reiterated what had already been said, that the movement had originated with the fishermen of the North Side of Bonavista Bay. When the men met to see what could be done to obtain higher prices for their fish the chairman, Capt. Winsor, wife Mr. Coaker asking if he would help them and Mr. Coaker replied point blank that he would not. It was following the refusal that the fishermen turned to Mr. Morine and asked his assistance in the crisis. The latter gladly offered his services free. He endorsed the view expressed by Mr. Morine, that there must be no operation between the fishermen and the merchant. They had been taught the policy of "down with the merchant" but the fishermen now see that co-operation was for their mutual benefit. Capt. Abram Kean being called upon from the audience gave a splendid address in which he reviewed the crisis thru which the country had emerged triumphant in former years. He said he was optimistic for the future. Many such trying times had been passed through and by the fathers of these present men they had forgotten their ordeal so quickly that they never recounted the circumstances as at present prevailed after the war of 1813 prosperity did not come until 1830. Then again there was the fire of 1846. The panic of 1880 and the year 1869. "The year of meal and molasses." In that year Confederation was proposed but despite the terrible condition of the country it was turned down. We had another period in 1870, but there was a redeeming feature in that the public debt then amounted to about one million dollars, whereas to-day it is fifty millions. He said that he believed that if all were to pull and strive together, the country would survive the present crisis. Needless expenditure must be abolished and the country made fit to live in. He was heartily in accord with their demands, and as a fisherman, and one who had a stake in this country, he wished the best every success. He was willing to throw in his lot with the man who persecuted him most in this country if he was big enough for the job of reducing taxation and putting the country on sound financial basis. The greatest difficulty to-day is the impoverished condition of the countries where our fish is exported. The Portuguese had sent to St. Pierre and brought over 12 loads of salt jerked beef and fish never before used for food, all to obtain cheaper living. We must be prepared to supply them with cheaper food and this can be done when we have a reduction in taxation. Chairman Sainsbury, thanking Capt. Kean for his remarks, said he agreed that the man who catches fish should live by the fishery and not be compelled to take to pig cutting where they received nothing but salt herring and spruce bud tea. He then asked all who were in favor of standing together for higher prices for fish and reduced taxation to stand. Every one present came to their feet, showing an unanimous feeling on this important matter and that the men are united in their cause.

Before the close Mr. Morine announced that a representative of the larouers of St. John's had waited on him and assured him that they were behind the fishermen's movement and would give them every support. He also announced that the delegates would be here by the Susu due to-day, when notice of a big meeting to take place tonight or Monday would be given. The affair then concluded with cheers for Mr. Morine and Capt. Kean, and the National Anthem.

THIS IS ARMISTICE DAY, NOVEMBER 11th—PRAYER FOR USE TODAY: APPOINTED BY THE KING.

"In remembrance of those who made the great sacrifice, O God, make us better men and women, and give us peace in our time"; for Jesus Christ's sake, Amen.

A STORY OF THE LOSS OF THE BRIG "WILLIAM KELSON" AT WESTER POINT, 1848.

The tragedies of the sea, in connection with the great business of Newfoundland, have been so many, that (at least to sea-faring men) they have become more or less common place; and unless the details of the reverent were committed to writing at the time, it is surprising how quickly those details fade out of the memory of our people, and how difficult it is to secure a sequence of the happenings many years after, though at the time of the tragedy those men were on the spot and knew every thing about it. During those years when John Bingley Garland and Robert Slade of Trinity carried on an extensive business with the Old Country and other parts of Europe, and when vessels of their employ were counted by the score, and went to and from those places all the year round, it is not surprising to know that many sad things occurred. During those years, some of the finest captains and sailors that ever sailed the ocean, left Poole for Trinity, and either have never been heard of since, or were dashed to pieces on our rock-bound shores in a blinding snow storm of a winter night.

Of those who have never been heard of since, the best known was Captain John Sabbin, who in the employ of John Bingley Garland, went to and from between Trinity and Poole three or four times a year for years—and who once made the passage from Trinity to Poole in eleven days. The last known of him and his vessel was sailing from Poole for Trinity in the Fall of 1844. He never reached Trinity and was never reported. Of those who (within sight or sound of home) were wrecked and lost on the coast of Newfoundland—was Captain Robbins of the brig "William Kelson" in the year 1848. So often had Captain Robbins crossed the Atlantic to Poole or Limerick and back again to Trinity, that it used to be said of him, "he had a well beaten track from Poole Quay to Skirwink, Trinity."

Those, however, who still go down the sea in ships on the Atlantic, know the special dangers that have always surrounded the mariner when approaching the Coast of Newfoundland in winter. No one realized this more fully than Captain Robbins, and though he had escaped them for several years in the past, he never forgot how real they were, and how necessary it was for him and his crew to be at their best, especially when approaching Newfoundland in the month of January.

Captain Robbins spent Christmas of 1847 with friends in Poole, and though in a dozen differing ways he gave evidences of how thoroughly he was enjoying it all, yet his friends noticed a shadow pass over his face at times, as though he had gloomy forebodings of the voyage that he was to undertake within the next few days. New year's Day found the "William Kelson" ready for sea, and specially equipped for a January crossing of the Atlantic. The weather of the first few days after leaving Poole was favourable to vessels going to Newfoundland; but incoming vessels during the next week reported an unusually stormy time at sea. The "William Kelson" experienced the roughest time in her history, and it was not till the 15th of January that the Captain found himself fifty miles east of Baccalieu; with, however, every reason to hope that the worst was over, and that within twenty four hours they would be in Trinity.

During the night the wind shifted suddenly to the South East, with a blinding snow storm; and during the next twenty four hours it shifted to the N. E. and N. W., driving the vessel altogether out of her course. On January 17th, the weather having cleared a little, and the Captain, under the impression that he was many miles from land, decided upon crossing till daylight, when he hoped that he would again get his bearings. At four o'clock in the morning, during a snow squall that hid everything from view, the vessel crashed upon the rocks at the base of a headland which, although they did not know it at the time, was Wester Horse Chops in Trinity Bay. The sea was running high, and as the vessel struck the rocks, her yards and jib-boom scraped along the face of the headland. The receding sea took her off from the shore, washing everybody from her decks, and sending her as a tangled wreck to the bottom. Nothing could live in that terrible sea; and of the men on board at the time, when the vessel went back into deep water, not one has ever been seen or heard of since.

During those few minutes, however, that the vessel lay against the cliff, two seamen—John Lander of Bonaville, and Gideon Badger of Bideford in Devon, had run up the rigging and from the yard arm, and the jib-boom, respectively they had leaped on some ridges of rock, that the snow in the face of the cliff, enabled them to see. A few hours later the daylight revealed to them their respective positions. John Lander was on a shelf of rock midway between high water mark and the top of the cliff, on which he had leaped from the yard arm; whilst Gideon Badger was on a much lower shelf not far from the sea, on which he had leaped from the jib-boom. Gideon shouted to Lander that the tide was rising, and that unless he could get higher up the cliff, it would mean only a few hours and he would be washed into the sea. In the meantime Lander had discovered a ball of heavy spun yarn in his jacket pocket, and he suggested to Gideon that he would try to help him to climb up to where he was, by the use of the spun yarn. It was doubtful as to whether it was strong enough to enable him to do this; but as it was evident to Gideon that he would soon be washed into the sea if he remained on the ledge of the rock much longer, he was willing to take the chances that the spun yarn offered.

To make it more feasible, Lander suggested that Gideon lighten himself by sending up first all the clothing he could divest himself of. So when the end of the spun yarn reached him, he sent up his sea boots, gurney, etc. Then Lander doubled the spun yarn and sent it down for Gideon to fasten it around his body. He did so, and just as the sea lapped the shelving rock on which he was standing, Lander began to pull carefully on the spun yarn. By taking advantage of every little projection of rock, Gideon was slowly lifted to the shelf on which Lander stood, and for the present he was safe. Then they took turns to about, with a full realization that unless some one heard them within the next forty eight hours, they would die from exposure, as Gideon's feet were already frozen, and they had not a particle of food of any kind. Thomas Oates, who then lived in Green Bay Cove heard the shouting, but he was so familiar with the noises made by the sea birds and the crows, that he decided the noises he heard were being made by them, and he paid no more attention to them.

I thank my brother reporter of Salvage for his kind assurance of the good effects that my weekly notes have had upon him. His own notes are not by any means so unimportant to the people as he would humbly infer, and we are always glad to find them in evidence. I have no patent, covering exclusive right to what he refers as my "style," and I shall be more than glad to find him or others, either imitating it, or improving on it, if they deem it worthy of such kind attention, in the interests of the general public.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH—THEN AND NOW.

As long as I can remember I have been reminded of the gallantry of Sir Walter Raleigh, when he took off his cloak and placed it on the ground, so that Queen Elizabeth might not soil her dainty footwear in passing over a part of a muddy street. Whilst never for a moment have I wished to detract from the gallantry of the action of the noble knight, or to overlook the prompt readiness that enabled him to do the right thing at the right time; yet I have never been carried away with the idea that the Queen, as a woman, was not entirely without a plan of her own, that would have enabled her to cross over dry land. We are told that "necessity is the mother of invention," and I believe that had Elizabeth been given sufficient time to realize the necessity, she would have been ready with the invention. It took me several years to prove this to my satisfaction; but, as "all things come to those who know how to wait," I waited, and the opportunity came to me during my visit to Nova Scotia last summer.

An exceptionally high Bay of Fundy tide, had covered the wharf, when a steamer on the river lay waiting for passengers. When the tide had fallen, it left several yards of muddy area to be crossed, before one could get to the clean plank of the wharf. Then men (of whom I was one) did not hesitate to soil the soles of their boots, and they went on board the steamer. I, however, stood watching a lady who was halting on the brink of the mud-flat over which she had to pass. I thought of Sir Walter Raleigh's action in similar circumstances; but I had on my best coat, and I was "far from home." Whilst I hesitated, the steamer's whistle blew for all on board. It caused the lady to realize the necessity for prompt action if she was to land on the plank wharf with clean boots, and the invention, that I always believed would follow in such a case, did follow. From her hand-bag she took a copy of the latest Fashion Book, that had just cost her 50 cents at the bookstore. She tore out a leaf, and bending down she placed it on the muddy surface, as far as she could reach, and then she planted her feet upon it. Then she tore out another, did the same and made another step. When she had used up some ten or twelve leaves in this way, she stepped on the clean plank of the wharf with unsoiled boots, and shaking her head defiantly, she said, "There, now!" The men cheered as she went on board, and were glad to know that they did not have to use their coats. This story should be put in our School Readers, side by side with that which reminds us of Sir Walter Raleigh, to show what a woman can do without any man's assistance. My mother was a woman, so I am standing up for the sex.

Miss Haines, teacher at the Church of England School, and Miss Smith, teacher at the Methodist School, Catalina, and Miss Randall of the Randall Hotel there, spent the weekend at Trinity. Miss Smith registered at the Garland, and Miss Haines and Miss Randall stayed with friends. We are given to understand that they enjoyed us and ours. We reciprocate, and hope they will come again.

I remember when some fifty years ago Patrick Murphy was the President of the Trinity Benefit Club, he would announce at the close of a meeting: "This Club will meet as usual twice a year, on the Feast of All Saints, and on the Feast of the Purification." Well, Wednesday, Nov. 1st was "the Feast of All Saints," and the Club held its semi-annual meeting as it has done since 1838, when Rev. William Bullock and others organized it. In the absence of the President, Mr. Edw. Grant, Mr. George Grant, Vice-President, presided. Mr. Grant who was at Curling on his way home from Blanc Sablon remembered the day, and telegraphed regrets at his untimely absence, and his good wishes for the welfare of the Club. The roll shows 139 members; Cash on hand $1065, amount paid in sick benefits and mortality money since February 2nd, 1920. Mr. Edw. Grant, President; Mr. Walter N. White, Secretary; Mr. William McGrath, Treasurer.

Last week, by request, I gave a list of marriages that took place within certain dates, and of which the bridegroom was from some part of Somerset, England. I now give others between 1768 and 1789, of which the bridegroom was from some part of Dorset, England—

1768—John Mills, of Bermington, Dorset, and Elizabeth Spragg.

1772—John Sturry, of Poole, Dorset, and Susannah Vorge.

1774—John Dolman, of Lytchett,

The Misses Grant were passengers to St. John's for the Prospero. They are registered at the Balsam, and are enjoying an autumn visit to the city.

Mr. Malcolm Parsons, representing the Newfoundland Boot and Shoe Factory, registered at the Garland, on Tuesday last and called on his customers. Glad to see him.

An interested reader has called my attention to a mistake in the following item of last week's issue: "1801—Marrled, James Bateman of the Parish of East Croker, Somerset, etc." It should read East Croker. I had copied the wrong spelling of the old parish clerk of long years ago, and I thank my friend for calling my attention to it.

W. H. MASON'S COURAGE.
When Mrs. Spick, a neighbour, had lost her milky cow, I called to say it was a shame, but said that I would try to get it for her. "Why worry?" "I'll be all the same a hundred years from now." It was for her a grievous loss; she sold some milk and cheese, which helped to buy the Worcester sauce, the Worcester, toast and tea; but patiently she bears her cross, and smiles at fate's decrees. Her logic's such as pagans write, that much I must allow; but still it makes her outlook bright, and soothes her furrowed brow; her griefs will be forgotten quite, a hundred years from now. And so will yours and so will mine, and those of every man, and putting up a feeble whine is but a cat's paw; our eyes should waste no precious brine throughout life's little span. It is in vain to cry "Alas," to raise a stial row; like stubble all life's tile will pass beneath time's speeding plow; your choicest woe will cut no grass a hundred years from now.

Household Notes
Beet relish is easily made and will be appreciated later on in the Mix together 1 quart of cooked 1 cup button onions, 1/2 cup horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 sugar, and vinegar to cover into jars.

DON'T TORMENT YOURSELF.

"I never can forgive myself," I once heard a woman say, who had lost one of her eyes.

"For I let it go," she said, "but I was ever so glad I did afterwards for I know when Rachel was so sick with scarlet fever and we couldn't find out where she got it he would have thought it was the dog. It wouldn't have been, but I never could have made him believe it and I should have felt myself as if it might have been, and felt dreadfully about it."

And it's just as likely that the pneumonia might have gotten started whether Phillip skated or not.

"I Told You So" But—

I had a very striking experience along this same line in my own family. I wanted to take a certain dear old lady on a trip she had wanted all her life to take. The rest of the family opposed the idea. "She isn't strong enough," they said. "It would be altogether too much for her. She might go to pieces." I didn't believe that it would have that effect. Happiness seldom does, to my way of thinking. Enjoyment gives you an extra supply of strength. But I was finally overborne. And what happened? The dear lady didn't have the trip but she did have the breakdown. She would have had it anyway but do you suppose I could ever have convinced anyone of that if we had had our way. Surely not. They would have said that the trip had caused the breakdown just as they prophesied. Yet it would not have caused it at all. Perhaps it might have even averted it. Who knows?

Maybe We Shall Find Out Some Day.

The whole business of what causes what is a very mixed up matter. We say coolly that this or that wouldn't have happened if someone hadn't done this or that. And sometimes we are right. And sometimes we are utterly wrong. We never can know surely—at least not in this life. Maybe in the next we shall be allowed to ask the answer to some of these questions all about cause and effect.

Poultry Raising in Newfoundland.

By W. K. CHANCEY.

Article V.

The cost of producing eggs for market of course varies for reasons too obvious to mention, and anything laid down here is not to be considered as a law of the Medes and Persians which changeth not.

The average production of the commercial flock, the amount of feed given as consumed per capita, and the cost of overhead expenses, may be taken as being pretty near the mark as a guide to figure from.

In Grain Growing States it has been estimated that eggs can be produced and show a profit when sold at a price of forty to forty-five cents a dozen. A prominent and world famous authority is responsible for the statement that eggs cannot be produced in a commercial way in extreme central States for less than fifty-two cents and allow a reasonable profit to the producer.

While sometimes blamed for high prices of eggs the Commercial egg producer has very little to say in such matters as a rule. His eggs are forwarded to various market centres and he receives payment from wholesale dealers according to current market quotations. In other words he has to accept the price others are willing to pay for his product whether it nets him a profit or not.

The Law of Supply and Demand figures in his line of business just as surely as it does in other lines. Farmers may sometimes market a few cases of eggs at low prices where they have looked upon them as a bye product. These prices represent a fictitious value which cannot be taken as standard. Bidding against other lines of industry for labor, capital, materials, etc., and having over head expenses in there any valid reason, why the farmer should not be paid on the basis of the cost of production and a fair profit allowed him similar to those other industries.

A hen consumes from eighty to one hundred pounds of feed a year, and under careful experiments where all feed was accurately weighed the average consumption (omitting fractions) was ninety-one pounds of grain and mash feed per hen for all breeds under test, and two pounds of grit and charcoal. In spite of the advent of the two hundred egg hen, and a few small flocks with exceptionally high averages, the following figures on production will be found approximately correct. Farm flocks eighty egg per year. Medium sized flocks kept under proper conditions and given due attention one hundred and fifty to one hundred and eighty eggs per year. And the yearly reports from upwards of thirty-five Commercial plants where large flocks are kept show the yearly average per hen to be one hundred and twenty eggs. With wheat at $3.75 per sack, and laying mash at $3.50, Scratch feed $3.75 the cost of feed at the present time will figure around four cents a pound laid in. A one man poultry farm in a commercial way is generally considered a one thousand bird farm. Let us figure on five hundred here.

Whether the farmer hires labor or performs all the work himself a charge for same is justifiable. Put this item as low as thirty dollars a month or $360.00 a year and on five hundred birds it works out around seventy-two cents a bird. We now have

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply really and usually made. Says about 25.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, even children like it—and it is pure and good. Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It penetrates the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the sneezing, throat tickle, looseness of phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and influenza. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membrane. To avoid disappointment take your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex, with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Total . . . . . $5.243

This represents the revenue which must be obtained from every hen if cost of production plus a 10 per cent. profit is to come to the producer. Dividing the Commercial plant production of 10 doz. eggs per hen per annum, into this amount gives us in straight figures a price of fifty-two cents a dozen which the producer must average the year round to net a profit of 10%.

The value of his hens as meat can ## be overlooked as receipts from fowls sold as meat would be about equivalent to cost of replacing them with pullets in his laying house.

In case 5% as over head expense may be looked on as a padded item, let us see if 22.7 cents of 5% on feed and labor is an over estimate or otherwise. Let two dollars a bird be allotted to cover houses, equipment, owners residence, etc., and put the very conservative value of $1000.00 on a five hundred bird plant. Now value stock as low as one dollar a bird and we have an investment of 1,500.00 to figure on. Deducting 25% of the valuation of the plant at $1000.00 to represent the land itself, leaves $750.00 in buildings, etc., that are subject to charges for depreciation. Let us sum up.

Interest on investment of $1,500.00 at 6% . . . . . $90.00

Depreciation on Buildings . . . . . $750.00 at 5% . . . . . $37.50

Insurance (say) . . . . . 4.00

Total . . . . . $131.50

Dividing $131.50 by 500 to get rate per bird gives us in straight figures 26 cents as against 22 cents where flat rate of 5% on feed and labor was figured on as over head.

Figuring producers cost, Wholesale and Retailers legitimate charges for handling and marketing, it is hard to locate Jesse James in the market eggs business in spite of opinions to the contrary.

Passchendaele Ridge Falls to the Terrific Smash of The Canadian Attacks.

Three Weeks of Bitter Fighting End in Glorious Victory For the Canadian Corps Against the Flower of Hindenburg's Troops.

(Written for the Canadian Press by W. A. Willison, Canadian War Correspondent.)

Five years ago on Nov. 6, in Flanders fields, the Canadian Corps was concentrating on the last phase of its battles for Passchendaele. To-day, as we give thanksgiving throughout the Dominion for all the blessings that Canada enjoys, we will do well to remember those captains and subalterns and men of all services who, under the direction of higher commands, challenged Hindenburg, defeated the flower of his storm troops and completed on Nov. 6, 1917, the heroic story of Canada in Flanders. Bellevue Spur, Laanbeek, Wolf Copse, Hillside Farm, Heine House, Augustus Wood had fallen before the 3rd and 4th Divisions on October 26th. On October 30th, these same Divisions had stormed the outer defences of Passchendaele itself. From Houthouset Wood on the north to Gheluvelt on the south our artillery, combining with that of the French and Imperial forces, had roared its challenge on a 10 mile front. Behind one flaming stretch of misting shells, regiments from Nova Scotia, Manitoba, British Columbia, Eastern Ontario, Quebec, and Saskatchewan, had attacked Meetcheele and Crest Farm, those key points of the enemy position that guarded the inner Passchendaele defences. The 3rd Division had again held the left flank, with the 7th and 8th Brigades facing Friesland, Duck Lodge, Meetcheele, Vanity House, Vapour Farm, and Source Farm. The 4th Division was on the right, with the 12th Brigade fronting Haalen Copse, Haleen, Crest Farm, Tiber, Copse, and Vienna Cottage. The First Anzac Corps was on the Canadian right and the 53rd (Imperial) Division on the left as in the former battle. Such had been the vigour of the Canadian attack that within less than an hour of the barrage, the 4th Division had taken Crest Farm. Shortly afterwards it had captured all its objectives. The capture of Crest Farm in such a short time was a brilliant performance. The advance to it was precarious—a big swamp on one side and a wood on the other, leaving only a narrow gap swept by forty-eight guns. With surprisingly slight casualties, the attacking force stormed the gap and reached the Hun front line, which had been pounded to pieces by our barrage. Pushing forward to Crest Farm itself, the Division was subjected to heavy fire, but the enemy infantry were daunted by our bombardment and no protracted resistance was encountered. On the left, the success had been equally brilliant. On the extreme flank the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, heroically wading through swamps, had gone forward to Source and Vapour Farms and had even secured a footing in Vanity House. Such was the terrain on their left flank that the 63rd Imperials had not been able to get up, and the Canadians had fought all through the day with one flank exposed. With flanks about them on every side, they had been literally isolated. They had been subjected to attack and constant bombardment, but at 6 p.m. those that were left were hanging grimly on to Source and Vapour Farms, having withdrawn their outposts only from Vanity House. Relief came with the night.

"PRINCESS PATS" IN ACTION.

The attack on Meetcheele added further stirring pages to the history of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. A thousand yards of rising land, a succession of shell holes and stagnant water, had to be crossed. To their right was marsh. They skirted the marsh and struggled up the heights. They paid for every yard of their advance, for the enemy fought well, defending every fortified shell hole. Raked by machine gun and artillery fire, with comrades falling around them, and no shelter save that afforded by the dip of occasional hollows, they had pressed forward to their objectives. They had captured it—what was left of them. Meetcheele had fallen, despite the raking fire of another enemy stronghold only seventy-five yards distant, and the way had been prepared to Passchendaele Village and complete domination of the heights that overlooked the Rouler's Plain. The Germans had launched counter attack after counter attack to dislodge the Canadians, rushing their most formidable troops into the line, but again and again they had been sent reeling back with heavy losses. On the afternoon of the battle they had counter attacked no less than five times. In the succeeding five days they had attempted again and again to dislodge our forces. Their guns were never silent, but raked our front line with machine gun fire, haled them with shrapnel, and pounded them with one barrage after another. Driven from their positions at Bellevue and on the Passchendaele Spur after the first Canadian attack, smashed out of Meetcheele and Crest Farm on the second, the Germans fought desperately to retrieve their losses, or at least secure their final Passchendaele positions. With their faith broken in

INFANTRY ATTACK LAUNCHED.

Hindenburg and the higher German command had ordered Passchendaele held at all costs. The 1st and 2nd Divisions were to countermand that order. Even while the ebb and flow of battle surged around the forward positions, the 1st and 2nd Divisions relieved their battered comrades, and on November 3, they in their turn took up the conflict. Again, the Allied advance was on a 10 mile front, but this time there was no prolonged artillery bombardment. Our guns, which had been hammering the enemy steadily for forty-eight hours, spoke the protective value of the swamps and marshes which guarded their advanced areas and their infantry routed in hand to hand fighting, the enemy, by throwing in new divisions and rushing up additional guns, were constantly strengthening their defence in every possible manner. Suddenly and all together for two minutes. With that terrific concentration of shell fire, the infantry attack was launched; Canadian troops from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Eastern and Western Ontario went over the top on a front narrower than that of the previous Canadian attacks. On the left the British line had been extended, and the 1st (Imperial) Division had Gouberg Copse, Bonberg, and Viritie Farm before them. So on the right the Canadian line had been shortened. On their narrowed front the troops from the Dominion advanced from right to left as follows: The 6th Brigade of the 2nd Division attacked from near Grun on the extreme right front to Graf Wood, having Passchendaele Village as their chief objective, Mosselmarkt, Graf, Vegetable Farm, and Vapour Farm, strongly fortified positions, faced the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 1st Divisions. On the extreme left of the attack lay Vine Cottage, and there was written one of the lesser episodes of the war in the silent. It was cut off by marsh from the rest of the attacking forces; it imperilled the advance, and its capture was of great moment. The night before the general attack, a company and a half of Canadians were sent to seize and hold it. For hours there was no news of the gallant little band. Then came scattered reports of desperate fighting by men isolated from their comrades and without either reinforcements or supplies. The reports proved true. The German garrison fought grimly and only surrendered after their position had been carried with the bayonet. But carried it was, and the whole Canadian Corps rejoiced in the valour of the few that captured it.

Meanwhile the main attack had gone forward at 6.2 a.m. Against the front that Hindenburg had ordered held at all costs. Every possible preparation had been made for the attack. Railway troops had worked ceaselessly, pushing forward the light lines up past Wulffite. Plank roads had been repaired and extended. Many hundreds of yards of 4x4-boards had been added to the straggling shell-pocked trails that led to the forward line. For four days our heavy and light artillery had been pouring shells into the enemy lines. By night, and by day, through mud and slime, guns of all calibres had been slowly advanced to new positions. Fresh ammunition dumps had been established; and when the barrage thundered its challenge, confident infantry went forward under the protection of a bombardment that literally blasted the enemy out of many of his strong points. For once fair weather prevailed, and at least on the higher levels the men could advance and fight without the formidable handicap of clinging mud to halt their steps and exhaust their strength. Fighting the enemy artillery and machine guns was the most trying ordeal. German artillery had been concentrated on the ridge and the bombardment was terrific. But our men were not to be stopped. They followed our barrage so closely that in many instances they were upon the enemy before they had time to recover from the stunning effects of our artillery fire. It was largely short sharp work. The 6th Brigade stormed the village, and the 28th Battalion, operating on the extreme left of the Brigade flank, with the 31st in the centre and the 27th on the right. The ground which lay between the assembly trenches and the higher levels was swampy. In places the storming parties moved forward thru

Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes: "I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

had fought four battles, repulsed over two dozen counter-attacks, and captured 1,174 prisoners. Their total casualties from October 24 to November 12, according to a public statement of the Minister of Militia on Nov. 15, amounted to 122 officers killed, 380 wounded, and 7 missing; while 778 men had fallen; 7,397 were wounded, and 905 were missing. But their dead had died gloriously and their achievement had been wonderful. Behind the living who fought with them and followed after them, the ridge was ours. The tragedy of the low graves was relieved by the glory of the high hills. The shadow over the salient was lifting. Up to the ridge and on to the ridge, the Canadian Corps had stormed its way in a remarkable series of battles. The striking prophecy of the Corps Commander had been splendidly fulfilled. Canada in the field had kept faith with her dead and written the imperishable story of the glory that is Paschendale.

PRaise FOR ALL ENGAGED.
In this short summary of that writing, there is no space to detail the heroism of individuals and units, or even to appreciate properly the work of particular arms and services. In these battles of Paschendale there was praise and to spare for all; but above all others for the captains and subalterns and the men—of the line and the gun, of the engineers and the pioneers, of the stretcher bearers and the Medical Services. To them and to their kind Canada owes a debt that is beyond calculation, thanks that are without limit. They were the foundations and the bulwarks of the Corps and its body. Upon their thought and courage in immediate issues depended the attack and the defence, success or failure. They were the materials of platoons and the leaders. They knew the frenzy and the passion of battle and the strain and stress of waiting that preceded the zero hour. They felt the shock and roar of barrage and the terrible storm of answering shells. They knew the perils and the trials of counter-attacks, and the long hours of patience in shell hole and slime. They knew of bombs and the habit of being and invited death with their learning. They swayed with their limbers over shell torn wastes and often died in the driving. They built their trenches under bombardment and dugged their graves in the building. They tended their wounded under fire, and, wounded themselves, continued. They knew their guns as friends, knew friends and lived and were with them as much. Whatever their calibre and whatever their range, they directed and laid them for death. The whole corps rang with praise of the N.C.O.'s and men. Concrete pill-boxes, fortified shell holes, machine gun strong points, dominating heights—these things they fought and overcame, and with them mud and cold and slime and sleet. They lived in water up to their knees for days and nights on end. They lived without fires and without shelter in the shivering cold of those autumn nights, and their courage was never flinched. They suffered all the evils of trench-warfare, feet and mouth, wet and cold and exposure were added lice and scabies. They seemed to endure beyond human endurance, and then, as the sons of Martha—

Early at dawn ere men saw clear,
They stumbled into death's terrible stall,
And hailed him forth like a haltered steer,
And good and turned him 'till evenfall.
And as they stumbled on under murderous fire with their comrades falling around them, their subalterns were there a little in front to encourage and direct and lead them. They led their forties and their hundreds, and sometimes more than hundreds, into the mouth of hell and kept their heads in the leading. They shared labors and dangers, joys and sorrows, hardships and troubles. And so with their captains above them, and their majors and colonels and higher commands. So they brought honor to their Dominion. So they died in noble service "simply given to their own kind in their common need."

INTERESTING FEATURE — WALLACE REID'S BEST PICTURE AT NICKEL.
The host of admirers of Wallace Reid were delighted with his latest picture, which was shown at the Nickel Theatre last night. The story is one that will please the most critical movie fan. The short subjects were of a particularly interesting nature.
The feature announced for Monday is one of special importance in that it is classed amongst the few really great pictures of the day. The title is "The Woman God Changed" and the cast is headed by Sena Owen and E. K. Lincoln. The scenes are laid for the greater part on a tropical island and the action is rapid and thrilling to a degree. He followed her to the tropics to arrest her for murder only to fall in love with the woman himself. This is one of the many strong situations in "The Woman God Changed." E. K. Lincoln is the detective and Sena Owen, the woman in the case. The support is eminently satisfactory.

C.L.B. Band Concert.

ATTRACTS NUMEROUS MUSIC LOVERS.

A large gathering attended the C.L.B. Band concert held in the Methodist College Hall last night. Promptly at 8.30 His Excellency the Administrator, Sir Wm. Horwood, arrived accompanied by his aide-de-camp. The guard of honor received the party with the usual salute, the band meanwhile playing "God Save the King." His Lordship Bishop White was tendered a similar reception, and with his suite, occupied special chairs arranged for the occasion. Representatives of sister brigades, besides a detachment of officers from H. M. S. Wintoria were also received, while many prominent people in business and social life were seated in the audience, which was a most appreciative one. "Colonel Bogey" was the first selection by the band. During the evening the band selections were interspersed by concert numbers, many of our well known leading artists contributing. Miss Margaret Mitchell's rendition of "I am Commander of my Soul" was heard to advantage. Her voice was in excellent form, an encore having to be responded to. Mr. Macklin sang two pleasing solos, which won unstinted applause. A pianoforte solo by Miss Allison Rennie won much admiring comment. Rev. E. C. Earp sang "Songs of Araby." The Rev. gentleman is possessed of a clear tenor, which gives great pleasure to his hearers and his song was rendered with a delicacy that evoked spontaneous applause, demanding an encore. "Drink to me only with thine eyes" as his second offering was another triumph. Mrs. H. Outerbridge's recitation proved so good that she had to respond four times to encores. Bandmaster Morris, who conducted the band, is deserving of great credit and praise for the high state of efficiency to which he has brought the C.L.B. Band. The selection "Thousand and one nights." "Our Blue-jackets," "The Chain Chorus" were very pleasing renditions. It is very rarely that a band selection is encored but it happened when the band played

OH! THESE GEDDES!

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. Sir Eric Geddes, brother of the British Ambassador to Washington, arrived yesterday on the Aquitania to attend to private business here, and also to visit Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes. He will sail for home on November 21.

NOTHING FROM NEAR EAST.

LONDON, Nov. 11. The situation at Constantinople is still very critical it is believed, but no authentic news is available, even to the government, owing to disrupted cable and wire communication. Absolutely nothing can be learned, and views in the newspapers are based entirely upon supposition.

HUNTING THE CULPRITS.

LONDON, Nov. 11. All night long master detectives from Scotland Yard scoured London for the perpetrators of the attempt to poison their chief, Sir William Horwood, who still lies critically ill, following an attempt upon his life through the medium of poisoned chocolates sent through the mail. Hopes for his recovery are based upon his strong physique and endurance.

FOR NOTORITY.

BRISBANE, Nov. 11. Lieut. Rendle and Sergeant-pilot Herbert Smith, both distinguished war aviators, are planning a flight from Brisbane to San Francisco in May or June next. A British firm has offered a seaplane and the Queensland Government has promised finances.

NEWLY MARRIED COUPLE VISITED. A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. W. E. Campbell, (nee Flora Mews), Cornwall Avenue, recently, when a number of her lady and gentlemen friends waited on her by surprise in the form of a linen shower. During the evening the friends of the newly married couple were entertained to a sumptuous supper which was done full justice to by all. Games of various kinds, followed by a dance, wound up the proceeding at an early hour in the morning.

Apologises to Himself.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—I regret my letter of yesterday's date re the St. George's light "Shareholders' list" allowed an opinion. My desire was far from that; it was rather to invite the shareholders of that company to a careful examination of what's been done to encourage the purpose for which I understand this company was formed. Examine the Reid Nid. Company's report to the Squires-Coaker government re-estimated cost of placing this coal at Robinson's Station; then turn to the report of the celebrated Railway Commission, made up of Government and Reid representatives with W. F. Coaker as Chairman; come further in and peruse the reports of the House of Assembly re the expenditure of something like $120,000 on the Reid property at South Branch; finally give the history of their company's dealings with the Squires-Coaker Government so that the public may judge for themselves. I say public adviser, because $120,000 of public money's were spent at South Branch. Yours sincerely, "NEWFOUNDLANDER."

ANOTHER DROP.—We have been advised of another drop in the price of Fire Proof Teapots at STEELER'S. Prices now range from 30c. each.

Years ago I met a man who told me that he had lost 100% of his blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest cause of all debilitating weakness. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when a real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

sign of Nourished Iron: then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 4-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

NOTE: The above company is known to be thoroughly reliable. Over 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by 70,000 Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians.

For sale in this city by T. McMurdo & Co., Ltd., and all other druggists.

RID-JID
FOLDING IRONING TABLE

A New and Better Ironing Board
The Rid-Jid Ironing Table is as steady as a bridge—it will not wobble, sway, bend nor creep when you iron. You can sit on the end and it will not even tilt. No more propping an old board up on two chair-backs and having to lift it each time you wish to iron a skirt or petticoat. The Rid-Jid stands firmly on its own foundation, and is so constructed that a full-length skirt may be slipped on over the end.

In spite of its marvelous rigidity, the Rid-Jid is lighter than any other folding board made. It closes at compactly as a pocket knife. We would be glad to have you look in and see it.
