BACKGROUND

DIRECTIONAL EMPHASIS OF SECTOR

Manpower development is a priority in Singapore given the country's pursuit of industrial growth. The government recognizes the need to invest in human resources and skill development in order to meet demand by industries establishing operations in Singapore.

The Ministry of Education (MOE) is the official body responsible for the formulation and implementation of educational policies. MOE also controls the establishment and administration of government and government-aided primary and secondary schools, junior colleges, as well as private schools.

Similarly, although the National University of Singapore (NUS), the Polytechnic Institutes (eg : Ngee Ann and Singapore Polytechnic) and the Vocational and Industrial Training Board (VITB) are statutory boards responsible to their own governing boards, they are still under the overall policy direction of MOE.

Training centers and institutes for skill enhancement and the development of technical know how are run by the Economic Development Board (EDB).

In 1979, the government formed a council for professional and technical education (CPTe) chaired by the Minister of Trade and Industry to look into the future skilled manpower requirements. The development plan focused on three main areas :

- Providing maximum education and training opportunities to the young before they join the workforce by increasing enrollment in various institutions, including universities and polytechnics and by expanding post graduate programs in the areas of engineering, information technology and business administration.
- Upgrading skills of individuals already in the workforce through VITB programs like Basic Education Skills Training (BEST), Modular Skills Training (MOST), and Worker Improvement Through Secondary Education (WISE).
- Ensuring that the workforce possesses more flexible and creative skills by re-orienting the educational system to be more broad based, raising the level of creativity and stressing the need for continuous training.

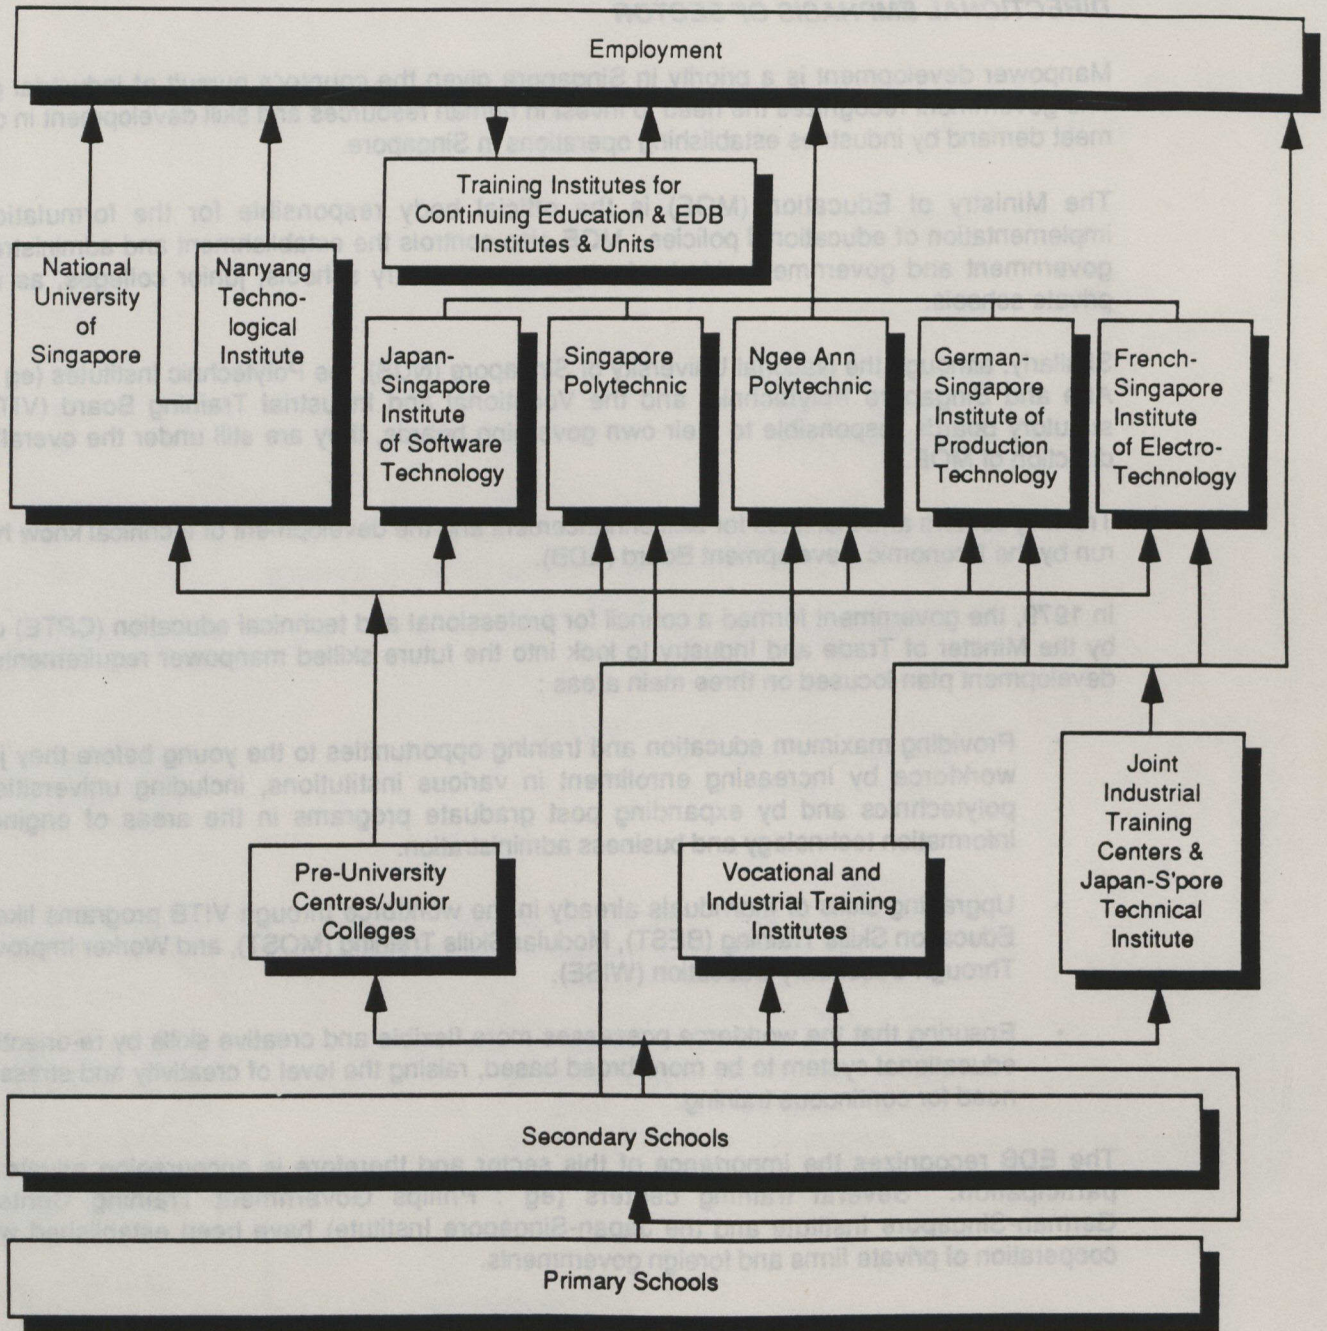

The EDB recognizes the importance of this sector and therefore is encouraging private sector participation. Several training centers (eg : Philips Government Training Center, the German-Singapore Institute and the Japan-Singapore Institute) have been established with the cooperation of private firms and foreign governments.

ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

The general education system in Singapore is based on 6-8 years of primary education, 4-5 years secondary education, 2 years of pre-university and 3-4 years university. In addition, there are several vocational or training institutes (1-2 years) or continuing education and training programs.

THE EDUCATION TRAINING SYSTEM IN SINGAPORE

The market for educational services includes primary, secondary and tertiary education institutions (universities and polytechnics). It also includes vocational and industrial training institutions as well as other educational services (eg : language, music and driving schools).

The growing demand for education services is illustrated by the increase in both private and government expenditure in this sector.

BACKGROUND ...

ECONOMIC OVERVIEW ...

From 1980 to 1988, total government expenditure on education grew by 12%* from S$688 million to S$1.7 billion. The major expenditures were on secondary schools (33%), junior colleges (31%), primary and tertiary schools (27%).

Education has been a major item of public expenditure. In 1989, the total budgeted recurrent expenditure for education was S$1.5 million (20% of total government recurrent expenditure).

Private consumption expenditure for recreation and education has grown by 10% over the past 8 years from S$1.8 billion in 1980 to S$3.9 billion.

CURRENT SITUATION

The total enrollment in educational institutions has increased by 1% from 501,887 in 1980 to 537,533 in 1988. Primary schools account for the bulk (55%) of total enrollment.

* All growth rates are CAGR (Compounded Annual Growth Rates).

BACKGROUND ...

CURRENT SITUATION ...

Demand for Primary/Secondary/Pre-University Institutions

Between 1984-1988, enrollment for primary education declined by 3%. In contrast, enrollment in secondary and pre-university institutions increased by 1% and 9% respectively.

ENROLLMENT IN PRIMARY, SECONDARY AND PRE-UNIVERSITY INSTITUTIONS
(1984-1988)

Demand for Tertiary Education

The enrollment of undergraduates at the two universities - National University of Singapore (NUS) and the Nanyang Technological Institute (NTI) rose in 1988. Enrollment at NUS rose by 8%, while enrollment at NTI increased by almost 12%. The total student population at the two tertiary institutions increased by 9% to reach 18,717. Engineering enrollment increased by 10%, while enrollment in non-engineering courses increased by 8.5%. The total number of graduates from both universities was 4,746, an increase of 2.3% over 1987. Of this, 1,025 were engineering graduates.

Total full-time enrollment in the Polytechnics (Singapore and Ngee Ann) was 20,322, 3.6% higher than in 1987. The enrollment of engineering students rose by 1.2% while that for non-engineering increased by 13%. Output of full time students from the two polytechnics in 1988 rose by 8.8% to reach 5,781. Of these, 4,636 were engineering students.

In contrast, between 1986-1988, enrollment at the College of Physical Education and the Institute of Education declined by 8% and 10% respectively.

Demand for Technical and Vocational Institutions/Post Employment Training

In 1988, the demand for stronger skills and technical training raised total students enrollment at the VITB to 16,978 trainees, an increase of 5% over the previous year. Similarly, enrollment at the EDB Joint Industrial Training Centers increased by 7% from 2,526 in 1987 to 2,693 in 1988.

The popularity of post-employment training programs can be seen through the increase in the number of workers joining post-employment programs like the MOST, BEST and WISE.

The MOST program was launched in October 1986. It was aimed at equipping workers with the basic technical skills such as welding, metal machining, and maintenance fitting. In 1988, a total of 12,046 training places were filled, 20% more than in 1987.

BACKGROUND ...

CURRENT SITUATION ...

Demand for Technical and Vocational Institutions/Post Employment Training ...

The BEST program is geared towards providing opportunities to workers without primary six education, the basic knowledge in English language and/or Mathematics. In 1988, 38,694 trainees enrolled in the program, a 5% increase over 1987.

The WISE program is targeted at workers who are interested in earning GCE A-Levels in English language and/or Mathematics. In 1988, 10,575 training places were filled. This exceeded the target by 32%.

Apart from sending employees to outside training, some companies (eg : Hewlett Packard, GM Singapore ) also provide training in-house.

BACKGROUND ...

CURRENT SITUATION ...

Demand for Private Institution Including Commercial and Technical Schools, Fine Arts, Language and Others

As of 1989, there were 84 technical, commercial and correspondence schools compared to 79 schools in 1986. Private commercial schools include the YMCA centers which offer a wide range of courses such as brush party, floral arrangement and photography.

Other commercial schools offer six month to one year diploma courses in Business and Marketing or secretarial courses. There are 10 correspondence schools offering one year home study courses in management, electronics and other technical courses.

Private fine arts schools continue to be popular as shown by the increase in number of schools from 40 in 1986 to 58 in 1989. The majority, music schools (eg : Yamaha Music School has 5 branches), account for 62% total of the number of fine arts schools. Other fine arts schools offer courses in dance and other performing arts.

Likewise, the number of language schools has also increased by 30% from 10 in 1986 to 22 in 1989. 32% are Japanese language schools

Because of the trend towards Information Technology (IT), there is a proliferation of private computer schools offering courses in programming and applications (eg : CAL Computer Training, Informatics Computer School).

Other private institutes include kindergarten schools/child care centers.

FUTURE TRENDS

With the government thrust towards making Singapore workers among the most globally qualified and trained, the demand for education services is expected to increase.

The government's commitment to education is seen in the growing allocation of funds (from S$60 million to S$100 million) to the Skills Development Fund (SDF) for training over the next 3 years. Further, another S$20 million a year over the next 5 years will be set aside to enhance training for workers through enhanced learning opportunities, training programs, trainers and training facilities.

Because of the strong emphasis placed by the government on skills development and training, there is a large potential for growth in the area of adult training in various media. Current and future EDB programs in the direction of television led training programs offers opportunities to Canadian consultants in this field of expertise.

Furthermore, opportunities are also available for suppliers of training technical equipment. Like Genetron Engineering which carries the Canadian brand of laboratory lab-volt. The type of equipment which they supply to technical institutes like the VITB include computers, machines and other instruments required for technical training.

The private sector is also expected to increase its investments in worker education. On the average in 1989, employers increased their investment in the workforce to 1.5% of their payroll (up from 1% in 1988). However, this is still quite low in comparison to the 4% extended by global multinational companies.

BACKGROUND ...

FUTURE TRENDS ...

Because Information Technology is the thrust of the 1990s, there is a growing need for IT professionals. NTI will be offering a degree program in computer technology in 1989/1990, while the Information Communication Institute of Singapore (ICIS), a partnership between the National Computer Board (NCB) and AT&T will be operational in early 1990. It will focus on the development of telecommunication software specialists.

NTI and a Canadian telecommunication firm, Northern Telecoms are currently undertaking joint research projects in telecommunication product development. NTI laboratory facilities and academic staff will be utilized while Northern Telecoms will provide funding for the equipment required. It will also be responsible for marketing and discussing the project if it turns out to be commercially viable. The first project involves ways of linking local area networks to Northern Telecoms PABX communication system using a set of international networking standards collectively known as integrated devices digital network. Discussions have also been held with the NUS for the possibility of undertaking similar joint projects.

Demand for other IT education services related (eg : computer schools) is also expected to grow in order for the population to keep abreast with the changes in technology.

Aside from IT, other growth areas are in Engineering and in Business Administration. NTI will be offering a course in Commerce from July 1989 with specialization in Banking and Insurance.

Demand for other education services such as dance, language and music schools is also expected to grow because of the growing affluence of the population and the trend towards shorter working hours.

Plans for a third polytechnic are currently being finalized.

COMPETITOR ANALYSIS

KEY PARTICIPANTS IN THE EDUCATIONAL SERVICES SECTOR

The count in 1989 showed there to be approximately 777 educational institutions in Singapore, 60% of which are public institutions. Primary schools account for the largest number, 203.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS IN SINGAPORE
(1989)

Most primary and secondary schools are government owned or government aided. Of the 203 primary schools, 158 are government owned while 45 are government aided. Of the 137 secondary schools, 103 are government owned while 34 are government aided.

The 2 major universities are the NUS and NTI. Other tertiary education institutions include polytechnics like Ngee Ann and the Singapore Polytechnic, as well as the Institute of Education and the College of Physical Education. All these are government owned.

There are 57 technical and vocational institutions and EDB institutes and 74 private commercial vocational schools. These include the VITB and EDB run institutes like the German-Singapore Institute of Production and Automation Technology, the French-Singapore Institute for Electronics, Computer and Automation Technology and the Japan-Singapore Institute for Mechatronics. Private commercial schools include the 4 YMCA education centers as well as other schools offering technical and management courses.

A Canadian institute; the Alterta Institute of Technology has set up a training center for offshore training and survival for the oil industry in Batam. The institute has just started its operations and so far about 100 students have completed 3-5 day courses in upgrading skills (eg : welding and other technical skills) needed in the industry. Longer and more extensive courses are planned in the future.

Another Canadian school is Group College La Salle which was set up in 1979. It offers courses in fashion design, tourism and hotel management and diploma courses in product packaging and graphic design.

In order to meet increasing demand for its technical courses, La Salle has decided to double its annual intake next year. Negotiations are in progress for a possible joint venture with a local partner.

KEY PARTICIPANTS IN THE EDUCATIONAL SERVICES SECTOR ...

For the expatriate community, there are 22 foreign schools in Singapore including the Singapore American School, the International School of Singapore, United World College, the Swiss School and the Japanese School.

As of 1990, there are 311 private institutions aside from the 74 private commercial schools and 22 foreign schools. There are 65 kindergartens, 58 fine arts schools, 35 computer educational schools, 22 language schools, 16 tutorial schools and 10 correspondence schools. Other private institutions include secondary, full and religious and other schools.

A survey conducted in 1986 showed that there were approximately 744 establishments engaged in education services with operating receipts of S$122 million. The majority consisted of driving schools (393) and dressmaking and embroidery schools (81). The others included technical education, commercial, and correspondence schools (79), general education services (75), music and dancing schools (40) and language schools (10).

KEY CUSTOMERS IN SECTOR

The key customers for education services are primary, secondary, and tertiary school students and skilled workers interested in pursuing further education.

CURRENT MARKETING TRENDS

Most primary, secondary, tertiary, and vocational educational institutions do not engage in the direct marketing of their services. Other education services (eg : music, language, computer and driving schools) however, market their products through newspapers and magazines.

Education services are provided through events like the International Education Career Development Week which brings together employees, institutions of learning and other parties involved in education and training from several countries such as Australia, Belgium, Singapore, West Germany and others. In the last exhibition held in 1987, representatives from Canada included the Cambridge International College, Columbia College, Columbia Secondary School and others. The next exhibit, held in December 1989, included the afore mentioned and others particularly from Australia and the US.

Education services and equipment are also marketed through exhibits like the ASEAN World Association of Manufacturers and Distributors of Educational Materials Expo (WORDIDAC) and the International Exhibition on education aids and vocational skills training equipment (EDU-AID).

INDUSTRY INCENTIVES AND REGULATIONS

GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS

Registration with the Ministry of Education is required before setting up a school in Singapore. Premises must be cleared by the Development and Building Control Division and the Fire Safety Bureau.

There are no particular incentives tailored for the education sector. The general incentives (eg : investment allowance) may be applied on investments in fixed assets, aside from building, tables and chairs, which are directly related to production.

LOCAL PREFERENCE POLICY

Singapore allows 100% foreign ownership of companies in Singapore.
